Hillier testifies in saloon license hearing

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

Plymouth Township trustees for three hours held an emotion-charged hearing Tuesday night to determine whether they should revoke the liquor license of the Plymouthrock Saloon. The hearing resumes at 7:30 tonight in Plymouth Township Hall.

Before a standing room-only crowd, two under-age women testified about the day they got drunk at the Plymouthrock and, upon leaving, caused a fatal car accident.

Killed in the head-on crash in December 1986 was Dorcas Ruth Aumann, 67, a retired teacher from Canton Township. Her widower, Bruce Aumann, didn't attend the hearing.

PLYMOUTHROCK ATTORNEY Norman Farhat objected to the proceedings, saying that given just a few days notice, he had no time to prepare a case.

Peter Elefterio, imprisoned on drug charges before becoming a part-owner of the Plymouthrock, sat listening to Farhat and special prosecutor John Stewart question witnesses.

At times Elefterio nodded "no" as a string of seven minors testified they were served at the bar, several of them in the last three weeks. Other times he looked dejected, hanging his head.

Yvonne Hillier, serving a five-to-15-year manslaughter sentence in connection with the accident, testified that she accompanied her friend and co-worker Kathy Paananen to the Plymouthrock Dec. 13, 1986.

The girls intended to have a few beers before going Christmas shopping.

THE FORMER Westland resident said she remembered ordering three pitchers, but recalled little after that.

"I remember being in the foyer. It seemed like we were looking for the keys to my car. I don't recall walking out the door," Hillier said.

Prosecutor John Stewart handed Hillier photos of a smashed 1978 Impala, asking whether she recognized it.

"The car was mine," said Hillier, breaking down.

"Yes, I was in the car. But all I remember is waking up in the hospital."

"But for drinking that amount of alcohol and getting in a car, Ruth Aumann would not be dead today, isn't that right?" Stewart asked Hillier.

"Obviously, because look what happened," Hillier answered, crying.

"What awareness do you have now that this accident occurred?" pressed Stewart.

"Scars," Hillier said.

"Let's see them," said Stewart.

Hillier lifted her powder blue cotton skirt, exposing scars on her knees.

"Is it true your upper lip will require plastic surgery?" asked Stewart.

"Yes," she answered.

PAANANEN, 20, was asked what she remembered about Dec. 13, 1986.

"I suggested let's stop and have a couple beers at the Rock after work," said Paananen, who wore a turquoise top, black stretch pants, boots, blue nail polish and a black lace half-glove.

After sharing three pitchers with Hillier and a friend, the girls drank shots of tequila and other drinks purchased by patrons at a nearby table, Paananen testified.

Plymouth-Salem High School's pompon squad impressed the judges with their rhythmic moves during the competition at Franklin High School. The group captured third place.

CEP squads take 2 top spots in local competition

Centennial Education Park pompon squads took two of the top three spots in a local competition.

The top point-getter in Class A was Plymouth-Canton. "They had outstanding kicks," commented Karen Blazaitis, president of the Mid America Pom Pon Association, who was on hand for the event.

Plymouth-Canton Chiefettes pompon coach Christina Branham choreographed the routine.

"We practice every day after school about four hours a day during the competition time," Branham said.

Plymouth-Salem took third place. "They were very unified — their rhythm and timing was very unique," said Franklin High School pompon coach Delores Mohammad.

When you ask Mohammad what's the difference between pompon squads and cheerleaders, she has a quick answer:

"They work a lot harder than cheerleaders do."

Not only do her girls practice 2:30-4 p.m. on school days, they practice on Saturdays, and right through May, June and July to prepare for summer camp competition.

"It is very vigorous. There is a lot of counting and listening to the music and listening to the beats," she added.

For the first time ever, Franklin hosted regional pompon competition Saturday, involving 30 squads and 463 girls in class A, B and junior varsity rankings.

Each squad had four minutes for routines. They were scored on their entrance and exit, unique and original ideas, kick line, unity, rhythm, audience appeal and eye contact.

The competition drew more than 700 spectators. "You couldn't find a space in Franklin's parking lot," Mohammad said.

The second-place point getters were Garden City. "Their kick-line was excellent," Mohammad said. Fourth place was Franklin, "The girls' appearance was excellent — they wore (hair) ribbons to match;" and Churchill, "They were very together."

Autopsy results are awaited in inmate's death

A 23-year-old Detroiter, held in the Plymouth jail on a narcotics charge, died Sunday shortly after he was observed to suddenly stop breathing in the lockup, city police reported.

Matthew Anderson was pronounced dead at 8:07 p.m. at St. Mary Hospital, Livonia, police said. He was discovered unconscious in the jail at 7:35 p.m.

An autopsy, including toxicology tests, was performed Monday. Results weren't expected for several days, said an investigator for the medical examiner.

RESUSCITATION EFFORTS were attempted by local police and fire personnel in the lockup and en route to the hospital, said Police Chief Richard Myers.

"No significant event appears to have precipitated the sudden absence of vital signs," Myers said in a press release. "There were no signs of trauma or violence."

Anderson didn't appear to be ill while in the city jail, Myers said.

"We don't keep people in here who are sick," the chief said. "We take them to the hospital. There was no complaint of illness on his part."

Anderson was being held in the city jail on $50,000 for possession of dangerous drugs with intent to deliver and on four outside warrants, Myers said.

'No significant event appears to have precipitated the sudden absence of vital signs.'
— Chief Richard Myers

Plymouth Township police, responding to a disturbance at the Hillcrest Club Apartments, arrested Anderson at about 11:10 p.m. Friday, said Chip Snider, deputy police chief in the township.

Township police confiscated a small amount of narcotics, as yet unidentified, from Anderson when placing him in custody, Snider said.

An unloaded 16-gauge shotgun and drug paraphernalia were found in Anderson's car, Snider said.

ANDERSON WAS turned over to city police at about 4 a.m. Saturday and formally arraigned on the city's outstanding drug warrant Sunday, Myers said.

Nothing was found during a search of Anderson while in the custody of city police, said Commander Michael Gardner.

Anderson had no visitors while in the city lockup and didn't come in contact with any outsiders during his arraignment, Gardner said.

A decision would have been made Monday whether to transfer Anderson to the Wayne County Jail or hand him over to a police agency in another jurisdiction where warrants were outstanding, Myers said.

Former nurse oversees reviews of medical care

By Louise Okrutsky
staff writer

As chief operating officer of the Michigan Peer Review Organization, Karen Douthett helps oversee an organization viewed by many doctors as the enemy camp.

Douthett began her career in nursing and moved on to hospital administration before joining MPRO about 2½ years ago. The non-profit organization is under federal and state contracts to review the quality and appropriateness of medical care given to Medicare and Medicaid patients.

"Definitely, from the hospitals' perspective, we're the enemy. We've been called the nazis, the Gestapo," Douthett said. The organization has six offices throughout the state including an administrative office in Plymouth.

INVESTIGATORS routinely review random cases of Medicare patients before admission to the hospital, before surgery and after they are discharged.

Patients also can initiate complaints with MPRO. Sometimes congressional representatives on the state and federal level inquire about the care received by their constituents.

Most patient complaints don't uncover abuses in the system, according to Douthett. "Very few of the inquiries were really true problems of quality care," she said. "More often than not it's a difference in understanding between patients and doctors."

Some patients complain they've been released from hospital care too soon. Others call MPRO because they believe the treatment administered to them as an out-patient really warranted a hospital stay.

"There is a little higher occurrence" of valid complaints about being discharged too soon, according to Douthett. But many complaints stem from a lack of sophistication about trends in medicine. That, too, is changing. "The senior population is learning more but there is a communication breakdwon."

Most valid complaints about care are uncovered through MPRO's own medical review covering about 30 percent of Medicare admissions. To be approved for Medicaid payment, treatment must be deemed necessary.

Treatment also must be administered in an appropriate setting and the quality of the care must be consistent with the standards of the community.

"Sometimes people have so much faith in their doctor they don't complain," she said. Most of the time the problem stems from "something that is obvious in the review process on a doctor-to-doctor basis."

AS INDIVIDUALS, most physicians cooperate with the doctors who act as MPRO investigators. This group of investigators includes MDs and osteopaths.

On the whole, doctors are dedicated to improving medical care, Douthett said. However, physicians and hospital administrators are angered when MPRO declines to certify a hospital admission for Medicare payments.

"They're angry we know the outcome already. They, as doctors, didn't when they were treating the patient. We get mixed reactions," Douthett said.

Tax application help available

Tax application help is available again this year for senior citizens, low income families and shut-ins.

Volunteers from the Plymouth-Northville chapter of the American Association of Retired Persons are offering help on federal and state income and property tax returns.

The service is offered free each year by specially trained AARP members.

Those wanting to take advantage of the tax return assistance must provide the following documented information: W-2 forms (wages), dividend and interest statements, pension and Social Security benefits, rent receipts with landlord's name and address, 1987 property taxes, heating, medical and hospital insurance for 1987 and 1987 tax returns.

Those wanting to take advantage of the assistance must provide documented information, including pension and Social Security benefits, and 1987 tax returns.

TAX AID locations and times in Plymouth are:

- 9 a.m. to noon, 1-4 p.m. for walk-ins on Tuesdays at Tonquish Creek Manor, 1160 Sheridan.
- 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Thursdays on a walk-in basis at Friendship Station, 42375 Schoolcraft.
- Plymouth Towne Apartments, 107 N. Haggerty, by appointment by calling 459-3890.
- 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on a walk-in basis in the Plymouth Culture Center, 525 Farmer. Handicapped people and shut-ins may call Carole Donnelly at 455-6620 for appointments.

TAX AID locations and days in Canton are:

- 1-4 p.m. Thursdays, Royal Holiday Trailer Park, 39500 Warren. For an appointment, call 397-1000, Ext. 278.
- 9-11 a.m. and 1-3 p.m. Mondays, 9 a.m. to noon Tuesdays in the Canton Recreation Center, 44237 Michigan Ave. at Sheldon. For an appointment, call 397-1000, Ext. 278. Handicapped people and shut-ins may call 397-1000, Ext. 278.

Ball deadline Feb. 29

An extension has been made for the Invitational Scholarship Ball applications.

The Scholarship Ball, sponsored by the Woman's Club of Plymouth and supported by the Observer Newspapers of Plymouth and Canton and the Mayflower Hotel, will be held Saturday, April 23, in the Mayflower Meeting House.

The deadline for applications has been extended from Feb. 22 to Feb. 29. Applications may be obtained at high school counselors' offices at public and private schools in the Plymouth-Canton community or at the Observer office at 489 S. Main, Plymouth.

Seniors from the Plymouth-Canton community are eligible to apply. All students who are invited to attend the Scholarship Ball will be honored and recognized and many will receive scholarships and merit awards. Last year financial awards given at the dinner-dance exceeded $4,000.

Applicants are expected to carry a minimum 3.5 grade point average and be involved with service to their church, school or community. Financial need is not a requirement since the event honors academic achievement as well as contribution to the community.

● AMATEUR PERFORMERS

The Plymouth Community Arts Council is updating its list of amateur performers who are willing to share their time and talent with students. The resource list is provided by the PCAC to all elementary teachers in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Particularly needed this year are dancers, singers and musicians. If you or someone you know has a special skill they are willing to share, call Pat MacIsaac at 453-8051.

● WANTED: CIVIC RADIO HELP

Plymouth Area REACT Team is looking for members for emergency radio communication (no experience necessary) and other community programs. All residents from Plymouth, Canton, Northville and surrounding areas are invited. The group meets at 8 p.m. the second Thursday of each month at Plymouth Township Hall, Mill at Ann Arbor Road. For more information call 455-9609 or 453-7641.

● 'RIDE WITH US'

Plymouth Area Citizens Team program is made up of volunteers from Plymouth and surrounding communities who patrol the Plymouth area. The organization is looking for volunteers to devote one night (four-five hours) per month to be the "eyes and ears" for the community. Those interested in going on an observation ride with a PACT member should call 459-2075.

● HISTORICAL MUSEUM

Volunteers are needed at the Plymouth Historical Museum. Are you interested in antiques and Plymouth history? Come in and visit your museum and see what's there. The museum needs volunteers for changing displays, helping in the gift shop, typing, printing, sewing and helping in the educational program for school children. Call 455-8940 or stop in from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Wednesday or Thursday to ask what you can do to help.

● IN-HOME CARE HELP

Volunteers are needed for in and out of home care for older adults. In-home care provides in-home relief for care-givers of the disabled or frail older persons. Out-of-home care is a supervised program at a day care center, which includes social and rehabilitative activities in a group setting. Care is provided for older persons who need supervision when family and friends are not available. For information, call Plymouth Family Service at 453-0890.

● PROBATION VOLUNTEERS

35th District Court Probation Department is seeking volunteers to provide direct supervision of adult misdemeanor probationers. The only experience needed is an interest in working with people. Volunteers are needed to work between the hours of 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. The number of hours per week and days per month are negotiable. Training classes now are being scheduled. Interested persons should contact the Probation Department at 459-4749.

● FISH NEEDS HELP

A Plymouth-Canton volunteer organization of neighbors helping neighbors is in need of volunteers to answer calls or drive on a once-a-month basis. For more information call FISH at 453-1110.

● CANCER VOLUNTEERS

Anyone willing to serve as a driver or in another volunteer capacity in the Michigan Cancer Foundation office on Main Street in Plymouth may call Barbara Bicking at 833-0710, Ext. 348, or Catherine Cameron, Ext. 245. Volunteer drivers last year logged more than 34,000 miles. Because radiation therapy and chemotherapy often require daily visits for several weeks, a patient often will have two, three or more drivers during the course of one week's treatment. Michigan Cancer Foundation is a Plymouth Community Fund/United Way agency.

● TRAINING MENTORS

Youth Development is a diversion program, in cooperation with the Plymouth, Plymouth Township and Canton Township police departments and Growth Works, for juvenile first-time offenders. The program is designed for both the youth and his/her parents as an alternative to the juvenile court system.

Growth Works trains volunteers to work on a weekly basis with the youth. The training covers communication skills, empathy listening skills, building and bonding relationships, alcohol and substance abuse, decision making, consequences of behavior, parenting skills, and crisis intervention. Training sessions totaling about 20 hours are open to all interested people willing to commit to at least six months of about three hours per week. For information, call Sue Davis, 455-4902 Monday through Friday.

● DELIVERING MEALS

Residents are encouraged to volunteer their time to deliver meals one day per week to the homebound elderly in the city of Plymouth and in Plymouth Township. Delivery takes about 1½ hours, 11 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Drivers are needed Monday through Friday. Mileage reimbursement of 23 cents per mile is available. For information, call Louise Stern at 453-9703 between 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Monday-Friday.

● MEDICAL HELP

Henry Ford Hospital is looking for men and women 18 and older as volunteers at the Plymouth Center on Main Street east of Penniman. Needed are people with all types of skills to help with patients or to perform clerical and other tasks. Nurses also are needed for blood pressure screening. For information, call Kathleen Kernen at the volunteer services department at 593-8131 from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

● TEEN VOLUNTEERS

Teens can volunteer year-round at Catherine McAuley Health Center and not just during the special summer program as in the past.

Teen volunteers can help out at the Arbor Health Building in Plymouth, St. Joseph Hospital, Mercywood Health Building, Maple Health Building and at Reichert Health Building working directly with patients or in non-patient contact positions during weekday, evening and weekend hours. Orientation and training is provided to all volunteers. For information, call the volunteer services department at 572-4159.

Testimony is heard in saloon license case

The girls were asked by their waitress whether they had identification. But they were not asked to produce it, they testified.

"We drank as much as we could handle without passing out," Paananen said.

Stewart asked her what she remembered about leaving the bar.

"I stood up to put my coat on, and I guess I remember trying to put it on backwards. When they told me what I was doing, I said, 'F--- you, it's reversible. It wasn't though.'"

Paananen also remembered picking up a chair and attempting to throw it.

"I remember picking it up, but I don't remember why I was going to throw it. I didn't hit my target."

"Did any employee come up and say I think you've had enough, or offer you a ride or offer to make a call for you?" asked Stewart.

"No. We were being assholes. They probably thought, 'Good riddance,'" Paananen said.

PAANANEN SAID she and Hillier "decided to go because we still had to go Christmas shopping."

She remembers nothing after that, Paananen testified.

"I don't recall anything about an accident."

Cross-examining Paananen, Farhat said that given the provisions of the township's liquor ordinance, the accident has no bearing on whether the saloon's license should be revoked.

> 'Yes, I was in the car. But all I remember is waking up in the hospital.'
> — Yvonne Hillier

Township Supervisor Maurice Breen, acting as judge during the quasi-judicial hearing, asked Paananen whether she could walk a straight line when she left the Rock.

"No," she said.

"Is there anything else you want to tell us?" asked Breen.

"I've tried real hard," said Paananen, her voice breaking.

"Yvonne is in jail, but half of it was my fault. She's taking all the punishment. I'm trying to do all I can."

Yvonne Hillier, serving a five-to-15-year sentence for manslaughter, answers special prosecutor John Stewart's questions.

Suspect confesses to shooting of officer

By Marie Chestney
staff writer

About an hour after his Feb. 4 capture, the man charged with shooting a Livonia police officer confessed to the shooting, according to police testimony Tuesday.

Livonia Police Sgt. Lawrence Little read the confession of Vernie Ray Handley during Handley's pretrial examination Tuesday in 16th District Court.

In the confession, Handley admitted he knew he was in a stolen car. He said he went to a house on Marsha Street because he needed money.

In the statement, Handley said he was running from a pursuing police officer, out of breath, when he reached for a handgun and shot the officer.

"They roughed me up, but I don't blame them," Handley wrote in his confession.

Judge Robert Brzezinski bound the 18-year-old resident of Madison Heights over for trial on four charges in Wayne County Circuit Court.

Handley is charged with assault with intent to commit murder, receiving and concealing stolen property over $100, attempted breaking and entering, and violation of the felony firearm law. Brzezinski dropped one of the original five charges against Handley, auto theft.

OVER THE objections of defense attorney Craig Daly, Brzezinski continued the $500,000 cash or surety bond he had set for Handley at the Feb. 5 arraignment. Daly said the bond was excessive. Handley failed to post bond and has been returned to the Wayne County Jail.

Handley is accused of shooting Officer Dennis Perttunen while Perttunen was investigating the attempted break-in of a home on Marsha Street in the Laurel Park subdivision in west Livonia. Perttunen suffered a shoulder wound and was listed in fair condition Tuesday at St. Mary Hospital.

Robert Lloyd Compton, a 17-year-old Detroit man arrested at the same time as Handley, waived his right Tuesday to a pretrial examination. Brzezinski ordered him bound over for trial on three felony counts — auto theft, receiving and concealing stolen property over $100, and attempted breaking and entering.

Brzezinski dropped the $200,000 bond he originally set for Compton to $25,000, or 10 percent. As of Tuesday, Compton had not posted bond.

Wayne County Juvenile Court is seeking to have a 16-year-old Westland youth, who was arrested with Compton and Handley, tried as an adult, said court official David Wollock. The youth is charged with breaking and entering, receiving and concealing stolen property over $100, and carrying a concealed weapon, a knife.

He said the court also is seeking to have the youth tried as an adult on two other crimes not connected with the shooting.

AT HANDLEY'S examination, Marsha Street resident Arthur Mikuta testified he called police when he saw three men trying to force their way into a Marsha Street home.

"Something distracted them (the three)," Mikuta said. "They ran back to the car and threw some objects into it. Two (of the men) ran down the street together. The third ran between houses."

When police arrived, Mikuta said one officer chased the two men running together and eventually handcuffed them; a second officer chased the man who ran off alone.

"I heard three shots, bang, bang, bang," Mikuta said. "I thought someone had been shot."

Mikuta said the officer left behind turned his two prisoners over to a man shoveling snow and ran after his partner.

Officer James Kelly testified he and other officers, following tracks in the snow, captured Handley in the backyard of a home near Sunnydale and Myrna streets.

Kelly said he found Perttunen lying on the ground, bleeding from a wound near his shoulder and chest.

Officer Gary Lubar testified Handley had three handguns on him when arrested. Three bullets had been fired from one of the guns, a .38-caliber Colt, he testified.

Watch for snow buildup around those gas meters

Watch out for buildups of ice and snow around your gas meter, says Consumers Power Co.

"A regulator is attached to the gas meter and, if blocked, it could cause a loss of gas service," said Edgar L. Doss, general manager of the utility's metro region.

"Normal snow accumulation should not lead to an interruption of gas service, but excessive amounts of ice buildup could," said Doss.

"Customers should keep the area around the meter free of ice and snow."

He alerted customers to the danger signs of carbon monoxide buildup within their homes.

"CARBON MONOXIDE is a deadly, odorless gas that can leak into your home because of faulty furnace operation or a plugged chimney.

"Symptoms of carbon monoxide buildup include headaches, dizziness, nausea, a feeling of weakness, smarting eyes or unconsciousness.

"One sign that a furnace may not be working right is excessive moisture buildup on the walls, ceilings and windows of the home. We recommend an anfiual checkup of your furnace and vents as a prevention against carbon monoxide buildup problems.

"If customers smell gas, or if they experience symptoms of carbon monoxide poisoning that they think may be coming from a faulty furnace or plugged chimney, they should call us as soon as possible," said Doss.

Commission rejects offers for surplus land

By Doug Funke
staff writer

The Plymouth City Commission in a move that seemed to stun both Mayor Karl Gansler II and city manager Henry Graper, rejected two purchase offers Monday, each in excess of $400,000, for city-owned surplus land.

The 49-acre parcel, a former water well field, is off Beck Road between Six and Seven Mile roads in Northville Township.

A conversion to Detroit's water system in the early 1970s made the city's well field available for sale.

Several purchase offers through the years either were considered too low and weren't accepted by city officials or else were accepted and subsequently fell through.

MOST RECENTLY, Carrollton Arms made a cash offer of $412,000. Fairfield West II a three-year land contract offer of $475,000.

City administrators seemed to lean toward the cash bid.

"The cash proposal from Carrollton Arms would most certainly provide the most expeditious resolution of the city's ownership of the well field," reported William Graham, city finance director.

The benefits of an outright cash sale eliminates the necessity of establishing an ongoing relationship with the purchaser.

"Risk as to receiving all payments in total and on a timely and consistent basis is no longer a consideration," Graham reported.

Bob Paciocco, co-owner of Carrollton Arms, said he proposed to build 70-80 houses of 3,000-4,000 square feet on the well field site.

The houses would carry selling prices from $200,000 to $300,000, he projected.

As many as 18 of the 49 acres at the former well field may be unbuildable due to ponds and wetlands on site.

The commission seemed reluctant to deal with the land-contract offer since it didn't comply with bid specifications.

That apparently hasn't deterred Paciocco.

"We're a Plymouth, Livonia, Farmington, Northville developer. It happens to be right in our back yard," he said of the parcel.

Commissioner James Jabara, a developer himself, urged the commission take a hard look at the land-contract offer, which Graham projected could yield upwards of $615,000.

"I'm only thinking in terms of what's best for the city," Jabara said.

THE COMMISSION SEEMED reluctant to deal with the land-contract offer since it didn't comply with bid specifications.

Commissioner William Robinson said he believed the land is worth more than $412,000 cash.

Some Northville homeowners Monday vowed to fight development, especially of apartments, on the well field near their subdivision. That group could complicate future purchase offers.

They talked about taking their cause to the state Department of Natural Resources and, if necessary, to court.

"I was disappointed that the land was not sold and in all honesty I have personal fears whether the land ever will be sold," Gansler said.

Money from the sale of the well field could be used for any purpose the city commission designates, Graper said.

Gansler and Commissioner Dennis Bila voted to accept Carrollton Arms' offer. Jabara, Robinson and commissioners Ronald Loiselle and Robert Jones voted against. Commissioner Mary Childs was absent.

The Fairfield West offer didn't come to a vote.

Plymouth sets hearing on block grant money

By Doug Funke
staff writer

How would you spend $58,000 in local federal Community Development Block Grant funds during the upcoming budget year if your wish were officialdom's command?

City of Plymouth administrators have prepared a spending plan.

But before anything is finalized, a mandated public hearing has been scheduled for 7:30 p.m. March 7 at city hall, 201 S. Main.

"Under current regulations, we have to service specifically a low to moderate income individual, a low to moderate income area or senior citizens," said Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager.

"The problem we find is guidelines don't allow us the ability to fund a wide variety of projects."

Sincock's recommendations for spending CDBG funds during budget year 1988-89 are:

- $27,700 to install more streetlights on Mill.
- $22,000 for a senior citizen van program.
- $2,500 for a senior citizen newsletter.
- $5,800 for administrative expenses.

Sincock said he put together the block grant spending program after consulting with the planning commission, the Old Village Association and various city administrators.

The city's CDBG allocation of $58,000 is based on population.

A household of five in the Detroit area now is considered low income with annual income less than of $20,400 and moderate-income with income up to $32,150.

A majority of a census tract must fall within those levels to qualify for CDBG funding — unless senior citizen programming is involved. Funding rules have been revised often.

Sincock said he doubts many alternatives will be proposed at the public hearing.

If his plan wins city commission approval, the $27,700 for lighting on Mill could be augmented by about $8,250 for lighting improvements allocated this budget year but not yet spent, Sincock said.

The CDBG program, seemingly on its last legs in recent years, has managed to avoid the Congressional budget scythe. Its future remains uncertain, Sincock speculated.

Doctors will admit patients to the hospital for observation only to discover that MPRO ruled against it. In cases where an admission is deemed unnecessary, the hospital ends up footing the bill. It's illegal in such cases to bill the patient.

However, Doetlett sympathizes with doctors who feel they need to place a patient in the hospital for observation. She says she understands that a doctor may believe it's better to admit the patient instead of seeing him return to the hospital in poorer condition.

"I would like to see an observational situation with a different kind of reimbursement. That would be a real positive move," she said.

If a patient insists upon being admitted to the hospital when there isn't a justifiable cause, he's billed for those costs. Occasionally a family will be reluctant to allow a relative to leave the hospital if some at-home care is required. In that case, the family receives a letter explaining they are liable for hospital costs incurred after a certain date.

State cracks down on heating firm

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Michigan Attorney General Frank Kelley has ordered a Livonia heating and cooling company to stop "inducing consumers to buy new furnaces to replace those that are in good working order" or face a lawsuit for violating Michigan's Consumer Protection Act.

The company has 10 days to settle the problem. If the company fails, the lawsuit will be filed, according to an announcement Tuesday by Kelley.

Steve Smith, owner of Cannon Heating and Cooling in Livonia, had no comment Tuesday afternoon, according to his secretary.

JOHN WHITE, Livonia Chamber of Commerce executive director, said he viewed Cannon as "a problem."

"At this time we get more complaints, that we handle through our customer satisfaction service, about Cannon than any other company," White said.

Clayton Yoder, senior plumbing inspector of the Livonia building inspection department, said since the end of November 1987 the department has averaged two complaints a week against Cannon.

The Michigan Department of Labor mechanical division has received 12 complaints against Cannon since 1986, according to Herman Bennett, chief of the mechanical division.

Customers who filed complaints live in Canton, Plymouth, Garden City, Livonia, Lathrup Village, Northville and Dearborn.

All but two of the complaints were closed after settlements between Cannon and the customers, Bennett said.

THE BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU recently issued a report that said the complaints filed with the agency "allege that the company's representatives use high pressure scare tactics and misrepresent the need for unnecessary repair or replacement of customers' furnaces."

Cannon agreed to work with the bureau to eliminate the cause of the complaints.

Commonly, Cannon customers said the initial contact was made through a solicitation call from a Cannon representative selling a special $29.95 cleaning offer, according to state and Livonia documents.

Cannon owner Smith has previously said "I'm trying. I'm devastated by the whole thing."

If a lawsuit is filed and the violations proven, Cannon faces up to a $25,000 civil penalty, an injunction preventing further violations and a possible court-ordered remedy for those defrauded.

Kelley said "I bring this particular case to your attention because unfortunately my office is beginning to receive complaints indicating that a growing number of furnace contractors are operating similar to Cannon."

Consumers: Beware of sales scams

Customers beware.

In the wake of complaints against a furnace company's reported use of high-pressure sales tactics and unnecessary repairs or replacements, the Better Business Bureau and state agencies are trying to inform consumers about these practices.

The following are warnings State Attorney General Frank Kelley has released concerning certain sales practices.

- A furnace contractor offering low-priced furnace cleaning and inspection services to consumers.
- The salesperson, once in the home, tells the consumer that the furnace is dangerously defective and if not immediately replaced, the family faces asphyxiation.
- The salesperson pressures the consumer into buying a new furnace at a cost of between $2,500 and $4,000.

The consumers are often told they have a bad heat exchanger — the part of the furnace heated by burning fuel, which in turn heats air passing over it and is distributed throughout the residence, said Kelley.

Kelley's office is offering this advice:

- Make sure you are dealing with reputable firms by calling the attorney general's office or the state department of labor.
- Get a second opinion. Consumers Power and Michigan Consolidated Gas will check your furnace. Usually there is a $25 charge.

The Better Business Bureau encourages consumers to call and check about businesses at 962-7566 or to file a complaint at 962-6785. Letters may be written to the bureau at 150 Michigan Ave., Detroit 48226.

Exec, sheriff sued over jail

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

A hearing one week from today will determine whether Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and Sheriff Robert Ficano should be held in comtempt for allegedly inadequate prisoner conditions at the Wayne County Jail.

The hearing is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 25, before Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Kaufman, according to attorneys bringing charges against both officials.

Attorneys representing jail inmates filed motions of contempt against the county executive and sheriff Tuesday for allegedly failing to provide court-ordered improvements.

Judge Kaufman has ordered the county to improve jail conditions and is overseeing improvements.

While both men could be jailed if found in contempt, attorneys said the goal was to improve jail conditions.

"THERE ARE deplorable conditions at the county jail," said attorney Richard Skutt of Detroit. Skutt is one of three attorneys representing prisoners in their long-running suit against county officials.

Prisoners face mis-classification — including having first time offenders placed with hardened criminals — as well as "an almost total lack of medical care," Skutt said.

Allegations of inadequate prisoner care are contained in a preliminary draft of a jail examination being conducted by court-appointed monitor Vincent Nathan of Toledo, Skutt said.

Though the report's final draft hasn't been issued, experts were reported in both Detroit daily newspapers.

Ficano said the preliminary draft contained "gross inaccuracies" concerning the number of psychiatric patients held at the jail, as well as other issues.

McNamara said the county's jail problems were similar to those in other counties throughout the country.

"WE AREN'T running a Holiday Inn, we're running a jail," McNamara said.

Overcrowding lies at the heart of the jail dispute. Ficano estimated as many as 3,000 prisoners have been released over the past 18 months due to lack of prisoner space.

Action is slow on 'right to die' bill

By Tim Richard
staff writer

For an editorial comment, please turn to today's Opinion Page in this section.

A few sentences are holding up action on a state "right to die" bill in which a terminally ill patient could give someone else legal power of attorney to order removal of a life support system.

"We're down to one, maybe two sentences," said state Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, a minority member of the House Judiciary Committee.

Law joins Rep. Nick Ciaramitaro, D-Roseville, and Right to Life of Michigan in holding out against a section that would allow food and water to be withheld from a terminally ill patient.

"We're close," said David Wiener, an aide to state Rep. David Hollister, D-Lansing, who has been sponsoring a "right to die" bill in the House for 12 years.

Said Law this week: "Many think withholding food and water is a terrible way to die. People think it's inhumane."

Said Right to Life spokesman Mark Schaeffer: "Our organization will not support starvation and dehydration to cause a patient's death."

Wiener said the bill allows food and water to be withdrawn only when death is imminent and caused by the disease, not by starvation-dehydration.

POLITICALLY, each side points a finger at the other.

Hollister's bill has been reported out of the House Judiciary Committee and is on what's known as "second reading" — waiting in the wings for its first floor debate.

The committee majority rejected the rival version sponsored by Ciaramitaro, supported by Law and embodying details endorsed by Right to Life of Michigan.

"He (Hollister) hasn't the votes to win in the House," said Law. "Ciaramitaro's groups have made monumental concessions compared to where they were three years ago. Hollister's haven't moved an inch."

Hollister sees chances of his bill's passing as 60-40 against. "Right to Life is digging in," he said.

Wiener said, "There is no schedule to take it to a vote. We don't want to get into a floor fight. We're working it out among the interested parties."

HOLLISTER DISLIKES the "right to die" phrase. He sees the bill as ensuring a patient's right to choose.

His bill (HB 4647) would add a new section to the state probate code. It would allow a patient to write a "durable power of attorney" authorizing another person — called the "patient advocate" — to make care, custody and medical treatment decisions in the patient's behalf when the patient is unable to participate in making decisions.

The patient could revoke the power. So could a probate court at the request of someone who believes the advocate isn't acting in the patient's best interest.

With a law, a terminally ill patient like the late Clifford Culham, 57, a former contractor from Farmington Hills, wouldn't have had to fight for a Circuit Court order from Judge David Breck to be removed from life-support systems. Breck on Dec. 15 had to assure health care providers they could do so "without incurring any criminal or civil liability under the laws of the state of Michigan."

RLM spokesman Schaeffer said his group has no problem with the Culham decision because Culham was conscious. RLM is concerned about incompetent and comatose patients. "It should allow protection of the vulnerable," he said.

Law said there is a fear of relatives hastening the death of a comatose patient for financial gain.

Hollister, pointing to 41 states which have laws like the bill he's sponsoring, said, "Modern medical technology has made it possible to sustain people beyond the point at which they can participate in decisions regarding their own care, custody and treatment."

LAW SAID Michigan attorneys "for years" have been writing durable power of attorney papers.

"But not everybody (hospitals and doctors) will accept them. Some accept them routinely. Some don't."

He said that if RLM's wording is accepted, he said, some attorneys will have to rewrite existing power of attorney papers.

Wiener said debate centered on three differences:

- Withdrawing food and water, which RLM opposes.
- Pregnant women — Ciaramitaro's version says a patient advocate cannot act to withdraw treatment "for a patient who is pregnant (where it) would be detrimental to the embryo or fetus without the probate court's approval."

Wiener said this section of Hollister's bill still is being worked on.

- Patient's wishes — Ciaramitaro's version has the advocate acting in the "best interests" of the patient. Hollister emphasizes the "patient's wishes."

Seminar will address handicapped workers

Schoolcraft College addresses the concerns of the working handicapped in a one-day seminar, "Handicappers in the Workplace" on Tuesday, March 8, from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The seminar is designed to create employer awareness of the physical and social problems faced daily by the handicapped worker.

Dr. Leonard Sawish, a consultant for the Michigan Rehabilitation Services, Lansing, and a handicapped person, will share first-hand experiences and facilitate a discussion on the advantages of hiring handicapped workers.

The registration fee is $25 and includes lunch in the Waterman Campus Center. The seminar is sponsored by Schoolcraft College, Livonia Public Schools, Michigan Rehabilitation Services, Plymouth Canton Schools, Rehabilitation and Placement Associates Inc., and the Wayne County Intermediate School District.

The seminar will be held in room 200 of the Liberal Arts Building. Call 591-6400 for more information.

Commission rejects offers for surplus land

By Doug Funke
staff writer

The Plymouth City Commission in a move that seemed to stun both Mayor Karl Gansler II and city manager Henry Graper, rejected two purchase offers Monday, each in excess of $400,000, for city-owned surplus land.

The 49-acre parcel, a former water well field, is off Beck Road between Six and Seven Mile roads in Northville Township.

A conversion to Detroit's water system in the early 1970s made the city's well field available for sale.

Several purchase offers through the years either were considered too low and weren't accepted by city officials or else were accepted and subsequently fell through.

MOST RECENTLY, Carrollton Arms made a cash offer of $412,000. Fairfield West II a three-year land contract offer of $475,000.

City administrators seemed to lean toward the cash bid.

The cash proposal from Carrollton Arms would most certainly provide the most expeditious resolution of the city's ownership of the well field," reported William Graham, city finance director.

The benefits of an outright cash sale eliminates the necessity of establishing an ongoing relationship with the purchaser.

"Risk, as to receiving all payments in total, and on a timely and consistent basis, is no longer a consideration," Graham reported.

Bob Paciocco, co-owner of Carrollton Arms, said he proposed to build 70-80 houses of 3,000-4,000 square feet on the well field site.

The houses would carry selling prices from $200,000 to $300,000, he projected.

As many as 18 of the 49 acres at the former well field may be unbuildable due to ponds and wetlands on site.

That apparently hasn't deterred Paciocco.

"We're a Plymouth, Livonia, Farmington, Northville developer. It happens to be right in our back yard," he said of the parcel.

Commissioner James Jabara, a developer himself, urged the commission take a hard look at the land-contract offer, which Graham projected could yield upwards of $615,000.

The commission seemed reluctant to deal with the land-contract offer since it didn't comply with bid specifications.

Customers who filed complaints live in Canton, Plymouth, Garden City, Livonia, Lathrup Village, Northville and Dearborn.

All but two of the complaints were closed after settlements between Cannon and the customers, Bennett said.

THE BETTER BUSINESS BUREAU recently issued a report that said the complaints filed with the agency "allege that the company's representatives use high pressure scare tactics and misrepresent the need for unnecessary repair or replacement of customers' furnaces."

Cannon agreed to work with the bureau to eliminate the cause of the complaints.

Commonly, Cannon customers said the initial contact was made through a solicitation call from a Cannon representative selling a special $29.95 cleaning offer, according to state and Livonia documents.

Cannon owner Smith has previously said "I'm trying. I'm devastated by the whole thing."

If a lawsuit is filed and the violations proven, Cannon faces up to a $25,000 civil penalty, an injunction preventing further violations and a possible court-ordered remedy for those defrauded.

Kelley said "I bring this particular case to your attention because unfortunately my office is beginning to receive complaints indicating that a growing number of furnace contractors are operating similar to Cannon."

Consumers: Beware of sales scams

Customers beware.

In the wake of complaints against a furnace company's reported use of high-pressure sales tactics and unnecessary repairs or replacements, the Better Business Bureau and state agencies are trying to inform consumers about these practices.

The following are warnings State Attorney General Frank Kelley has released concerning certain sales practices.

- A furnace contractor offering low-priced furnace cleaning and inspection services to consumers.
- The salesperson, once in the home, tells the consumer that the furnace is dangerously defective and if not immediately replaced, the family faces asphyxiation.
- The salesperson pressures the consumer into buying a new furnace at a cost of between $2,500 and $4,000.

The consumers are often told they have a bad heat exchanger — the part of the furnace heated by burning fuel, which in turn heats air passing over it and is distributed throughout the residence, said Kelley.

Kelley's office is offering this advice.

- Make sure you are dealing with reputable firms by calling the attorney general's office or the state department of labor.
- Get a second opinion. Consumers Power and Michigan Consolidated Gas will check your furnace. Usually there is a $25 charge.

The Better Business Bureau encourages consumers to call and check about businesses at 962-7566 or to file a complaint at 962-6785. Letters may be written to the bureau at 150 Michigan Ave., Detroit 48226.

Exec, sheriff sued over jail

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

A hearing one week from today will determine whether Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara and Sheriff Robert Ficano should be held in comtempt for allegedly inadequate prisoner conditions at the Wayne County Jail.

The hearing is scheduled for Thursday, Feb. 25, before Wayne County Circuit Judge Richard Kaufman, according to attorneys bringing charges against both officials.

Attorneys representing jail inmates filed motions of contempt against the county executive and sheriff Tuesday for allegedly failing to provide court-ordered improvements.

Judge Kaufman has ordered the county to improve jail conditions and is overseeing improvements.

While both men could be jailed if found in contempt, attorneys said the goal was to improve jail conditions.

"THERE ARE deplorable conditions at the county jail," said attorney Richard Skutt of Detroit. Skutt is one of three attorneys representing prisoners in their long-running suit against county officials.

Prisoners face mis-classification — including having first time offenders placed with hardened criminals — as well as "an almost total lack of medical care," Skutt said.

Allegations of inadequate prisoner care are contained in a preliminary draft of a jail examination being conducted by court-appointed monitor Vincent Nathan of Toledo, Skutt said.

Though the report's final draft hasn't been issued, experts were reported in both Detroit daily newspapers.

Ficano said the preliminary draft contained "gross inaccuracies" concerning the number of psychiatric patients held at the jail, as well as other issues.

McNamara said the county's jail problems were similar to those in other counties throughout the country.

"WE AREN'T running a Holiday Inn, we're running a jail," McNamara said.

Overcrowding lies at the heart of the jail dispute. Ficano estimated as many as 3,000 prisoners have been released over the past 18 months due to lack of prisoner space.

Action is slow on 'right to die' bill

By Tim Richard
staff writer

For an editorial comment, please turn to today's Opinion Page in this section.

A few sentences are holding up action on a state "right to die" bill in which a terminally ill patient could give someone else legal power of attorney to order removal of a life support system.

"We're down to one, maybe two sentences," said state Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, a minority member of the House Judiciary Committee.

Law joins Rep. Nick Ciaramitaro, D-Roseville, and Right to Life of Michigan in holding out against a section that would allow food and water to be withheld from a terminally ill patient.

"We're close," said David Wiener, an aide to state Rep. David Hollister, D-Lansing, who has been sponsoring a "right to die" bill in the House for 12 years.

Said Law this week: "Many think withholding food and water is a terrible way to die. People think it's inhumane."

Said Right to Life spokesman Mark Schaeffer: "Our organization will not support starvation and dehydration to cause a patient's death."

Wiener said the bill allows food and water to be withdrawn only when death is imminent and caused by the disease, not by starvation-dehydration.

POLITICALLY, each side points a finger at the other.

Hollister's bill has been reported out of the House Judiciary Committee and is on what's known as "second reading" — waiting in the wings for its first floor debate.

The committee majority rejected the rival version sponsored by Ciaramitaro, supported by Law and embodying details endorsed by Right to Life of Michigan.

"He (Hollister) hasn't the votes to win in the House," said Law. "Ciaramitaro's groups have made monumental concessions compared to where they were three years ago. Hollister's haven't moved an inch."

Hollister sees chances of his bill's passing as 60-40 against. "Right to Life is digging in," he said.

Wiener said, "There is no schedule to take it to a vote. We don't want to get into a floor fight. We're working it out among the interested parties."

HOLLISTER DISLIKES the "right to die" phrase. He sees the bill as ensuring a patient's right to choose.

His bill (HB 4647) would add a new section to the state probate code. It would allow a patient to write a "durable power of attorney" authorizing another person — called the "patient advocate" — to make care, custody and medical treatment decisions in the patient's behalf when the patient is unable to participate in making decisions.

The patient could revoke the power. So could a probate court at the request of someone who believes the advocate isn't acting in the patient's best interest.

With a law, a terminally ill patient like the late Clifford Culham, 57, a former contractor from Farmington Hills, wouldn't have had to fight for a Circuit Court order from Judge David Breck to be removed from life-support systems. Breck on Dec. 15 had to assure health care providers they could do so "without incurring any criminal or civil liability under the laws of the state of Michigan."

RLM spokesman Schaeffer said his group has no problem with the Culham decision because Culham was conscious. RLM is concerned about incompetent and comatose patients. "It should allow protection of the vulnerable," he said.

Law said there is a fear of relatives hastening the death of a comatose patient for financial gain.

Hollister, pointing to 41 states which have laws like the bill he's sponsoring, said, "Modern medical technology has made it possible to sustain people beyond the point at which they can participate in decisions regarding their own care, custody and treatment."

LAW SAID Michigan attorneys "for years" have been writing durable power of attorney papers.

"But not everybody (hospitals and doctors) will accept them. Some accept them routinely. Some don't."

He said that if RLM's wording is accepted, he said, some attorneys will have to rewrite existing power of attorney papers.

Wiener said debate centered on three differences:

- Withdrawing food and water, which RLM opposes.
- Pregnant women — Ciaramitaro's version says a patient advocate cannot act to withdraw treatment "for a patient who is pregnant (where it) would be detrimental to the embryo or fetus without the probate court's approval."

Wiener said this section of Hollister's bill still is being worked on.

- Patient's wishes — Ciaramitaro's version has the advocate acting in the "best interests" of the patient. Hollister emphasizes the "patient's wishes."

Seminar will address handicapped workers

Schoolcraft College addresses the concerns of the working handicapped in a one-day seminar, "Handicappers in the Workplace" on Tuesday, March 8, from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The seminar is designed to create employer awareness of the physical and social problems faced daily by the handicapped worker.

Dr. Leonard Sawish, a consultant for the Michigan Rehabilitation Services, Lansing, and a handicapped person, will share first-hand experiences and facilitate a discussion on the advantages of hiring handicapped workers.

The registration fee is $25 and includes lunch in the Waterman Campus Center. The seminar is sponsored by Schoolcraft College, Livonia Public Schools, Michigan Rehabilitation Services, Plymouth Canton Schools, Rehabilitation and Placement Associates Inc., and the Wayne County Intermediate School District.

The seminar will be held in room 200 of the Liberal Arts Building. Call 591-6400 for more information.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

License, vehicle fees increase

Fee increases for driver licenses and vehicle registrations enacted into law in December went into effect Tuesday. The revenue from the increases will be used for road improvements.

Fee increases for driver licenses and vehicle registrations enacted into law in December went into effect Tuesday, Secretary of State Richard Austin said.

The revenue from the increases will be used for road improvements.

Effective as of Feb. 18, any motorist whose license expires after April 5 will be required to pay $12 to renew their driver license and $10 to renew a chauffeur license.

People applying for an original driver license or a chauffeur license after Feb. 18 will also be required to pay $12 and $10, respectively.

BEGINNING APRIL 5, replacement licenses will be issued for $4 if they are reported lost or stolen within 120 days of being issued.

After 120 days, the fee will be $12.

ANY TITLE-RELATED fee increases will also apply to the issuance of expired license plates, the transfer of license plates and the non-renewal of license plates.

The price of a title transfer and registration will increase from $10 to $15 for a 15-day late title.

A motorist whose driver's license has been restricted, suspended or revoked will find that reinstatement fees will increase April 5 regardless of when the action against the license was taken.

The price of reinstating a license suspended for failing to answer a citation (FAC), failing to comply with a judgement (FCJ), or failing to clear parking violations (FCPV) will increase from $10 to $25. These fees are paid directly to the appropriate court.

The price of reinstating a license suspended, revoked or restricted by the Secretary of State based on driving performance will increase from $25 to $60. These fees are paid when the driver license is reinstated.

Energy theft down in '87

AP — Consumers Power Co. says there was slightly less theft of its energy last year than in 1986.

Although we've seen improvement, we're still concerned, said Gene McGraw, vice president of customer services and marketing for the utility company.

Company spokesman Paul Knopick said Friday that Consumers Power had found $405,000 in energy theft last year, compared with $429,000 the year before. Ten people were arrested for stealing energy last year and most were convicted, the company said.

Consumers Power said stealing electricity or natural gas is punishable by four years in prison and a $2,000 fine.

The company serves nearly 6 million people in 67 of the 68 counties in Michigan's Lower Peninsula.

Task force to compile list of county wetlands

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

A new Wayne County task force will make a list of county wetlands this year — possibly paving the way for industrial development in future years.

County Executive Edward McNamara unveiled the task force Tuesday. It will compile an inventory of county swamps, marshes and other wetlands, McNamara said.

The goal, task force members said, is to protect environmentally sensitive county land.

"This is not an economic thing, per se. We're out to protect our wetlands," said task force leader Don Juchartz. Juchartz, former director of county extension services, is a Belleville resident.

TASK FORCE members, however, will also distinguish between environmentally sensitive areas and land that could handle development without damaging the environment.

McNamara said he hoped the task force would develop an "urban policy" that would guide the DNR in handling wetlands permits from heavily urbanized counties. DNR officials were unavailable for comment.

Wetlands have long been a point of contention between the Michigan Department of Natural Resources and development-hungry Western Wayne communities.

Community leaders complained to DNR leadership that development was held up or blocked on several sites due to wetlands disputes. Their comments came during a 1987 area visit by DNR director Gordon Guyer.

Wayne County has lost "at least one major industrial development" due to wetlands disputes.

county executive

THE COUNTY has lost "at least one major industrial development" due to a wetlands dispute, McNamara said. Though McNamara declined to be specific, the property was reportedly near the I-275/I-94 intersection.

County commissioner Milton Mack, whose district contains both the "lost" development and the Ford plant, hailed the task force's creation.

Recent development of a Frod plant in Wayne was also dogged by wetlands questions. Though wetlands destroyed by the development are being replaced by man-made wetlands, a dispute has broken out between the city and neighboring Romulus, where the new wetlands would be placed.

"I'm pleased the county executive is throwing the full weight of his department behind the issue," Mack said.

The DNR generally restricts land classified as wetlands from being developed.

While the DNR was to have begun compiling a list of Michigan's wetlands nine years ago, an inventory of Wayne County land has never been taken.

DNR officials blame staff shortages for the failure to complete wetlands inventories required under the state's Goemaere-Anderson Protection Act.

Former state legislator Tom Anderson of Southgate, co-sponsor of the act, is a task force member.

Western Wayne task force members include Michigan League of Women voters president Nancy White of Plymouth and community planner Robert Wade, chairman of the board of the Wade Trim Group.

Environmentalist and former state senator Alice Tomboulian of Oakland Township and developer John Tobin of Troy have also been appointed to the 19-member task force. All other members are based in Wayne County.

Task force members are expected to complete their report in July.

Task force members would seek to work with the DNR, McNamara said. "The DNR is not our enemy," he said.

A cost estimate hasn't been compiled, McNamara said.

"The benefits will far outweigh the cost," he said.

Blanchard's budget receives pummeling by senate committee

By Tim Richard
staff writer

They're suspicious — in both parties.

Members of the state Senate Appropriations Committee last week fired at the wrappings on Gov. James J. Blanchard's fiscal 1989 budget. One foresaw a big tuition increase for Oakland University students because state aid is short.

"I'll be glad to work with you," Shelby Solomon said seven or eight times in his first meeting with the Senate panel.

Solomon, who has been with the governor since Blanchard's congressional days, is the new state budget director, succeeding Robert Naftaly.

BIGGEST SENATORIAL complaint was "supplementals" — Blanchard's practice of submitting a tight-looking budget and then asking additional, or supplemental, money later in the year.

Sen. R. Robert Geake, R-Northville, blistered low college funding in a subcommittee meeting, predicting higher tuitions at Oakland and Michigan State universities.

"On the face of it, the governor calls for a 1 percent increase in higher education funding," said Geake.

What he doesn't say is that the 1 percent increase represents the restoration of the 0.75 percent cut made in this year's budget, which would represent only a 0.25 percent increase.

"But that's not the worst. The entire 1 percent 'increase' is earmarked for the new tuition assistance program for needy students. The result is that universities will receive less discretionary money than last year."

Geake quoted OU officials as warning students of a double-digit tuition increase in spring after last June's 7.3 percent hike.

AMONG OTHER bipartisan complaints:

● Chairman Harry Gast, R-St. Joseph: "Some legislative priorities are at risk in the (governor's proposed) $800 million bond issue (for environmental cleanup) — particularly if the voters don't approve it."

Solomon replied that the budget has Superfund matching money and funds for toxic cleanups.

● Dan DeGrow, R-Port Huron: "You anticipated 8,000 less students (last year). But you had to put $38 million in your mid-year (supplemental) because student count went up."

● Joe Conroy, D-Flint: Blanchard has proposed a pre-school program for "at risk" 4-year-olds, "but I struck on an elementary school having kindergarten go all day long. It was terrific for those without an educational start at home. Instead of 4-year-olds, think about an accelerated program for 5-year-olds."

● David Holmes, D-Detroit: "Do you expect more supplementals?"

Solomon: "Yes — in social services, especially the medicare area."

● Geake: "In social services, there's no increase in the program for foster care and runaway shelters. We're going to pay 3.5 percent more to social workers. How do we eat the increase?"

Solomon: "By reducing significantly the number of employees in social services. We're forcing the department to work more efficiently."

Despite the assurances, Geake still fears a reduction in services.

● Nick Smith, R-Hilsdale: "You kept your pisoner count low. You're $26 million short. The average increase is 280 prisoners a month. . . ."

Solomon: "I disagree with the notion. We've taken our best estimate."

Chairman Gast: "It leaves us wondering if we're opening up to a new supplemental down the road."

● Connie Binsfeld, R-Maple City: "You're raising the fees for state water inspectors. We've tried to encourage people to get their (well) water inspected. That is raising a barrier."

Solomon: The growth rate of programs isn't "in sync" with the level of revenue. "I made . . . very, very tough choices."

● Gast: Workfare, the civilian conservation corps and other job programs are reduced. But new programs are requested. "It seems it isn't any good unless it's a new program."

Solomon: "The Neighborhood Youth Corps is new. It's a combination of things that have worked. We're taking people off welfare and general assistance."

People form mental notes about crime

Crime on "Miami Vice" is easy to spot. But in real life, deciding whether a serious crime has been committed is considerably tougher.

For instance, says David Rauma, a University of Michigan sociologist, when Mary, a young white woman, steals $500 from a gas station attendant so she can buy food and medicine for her son, is it a crime? If so, how serious is it on a scale of one to 10?

Or when Jeff, a white cab driver, tries but fails to stab Karen, a 45-year-old white maid who is a stranger to him, and Karen refuses to press charges, is that a crime? If so, when does it come on the scale?

Or if Tom forces his wife Susan to have intercourse with him, is it rape? Can a husband rape a wife? Is there such a thing as a minor rape?

RAUMA, ASSISTANT professor of sociology at U-M, used these and other vignettes in a 1986 "crime seriousness" survey of 543 Detroit-area residents to determine how they felt and made decisions about crime.

Each was asked to decide if a crime had been committed in 20 of the vignettes and, if so, how serious it was and who was at fault. The study was part of the annual survey conducted in conjunction with the Institute for Social Research at U-M.

Most respondents had a standard mental "script" about why such crimes occur and how much injury is involved, Rauma found, and they fit the facts of a vignette into these assumptions.

Respondents had strong feelings and well-developed scripts for robberies, which were labeled crimes nearly 97 percent of the time.

Their robbery scripts were so well established that respondents often ignored certain facts in the vignettes, such as the reasons for the robbery and the amount of money stolen. They also made assumptions about potential losses and injuries in the incident.

It seemed that just the threat of injury during a robbery was an overriding factor in their decisions, Rauma says. "Robberies respondents felt were serious crimes."

ASSAULTS WERE more ambiguous and complex.

About 25 percent to 40 percent of the time — depending on the vignette — respondents decided an assault was not a crime. "We also found that they had less complete scripts for assaults," Rauma says, "so they paid more attention to the actual facts."

Most facts about race, occupation, age and even prior record were ignored. "They should be," Rauma says. "They are legally irrelevant."

Gender, however, was an exception.

Respondents were less likely to label an offense committed by a woman as a crime, and more likely to see an offense against a woman as a crime.

However, once they determined that a woman had indeed committed a crime, gender became irrelevant. A shooting by a woman ranked as high as one by a man on the seriousness scale, he said.

THE WILLINGNESS of the victim to press charges in an assault had an impact on whether the incident was considered a crime.

In cases of punchings or stabbings, if the offender actually had been put under arrest, the incident was more likely to be considered a crime.

"Husband-wife rapes," he adds, "were generally condemned, but men were slightly more likely to excuse them than women."

HOW DID respondents feel about Mary, Jeff and Tom?

Almost 97 percent of the gas station robberies were considered a crime, so Mary was not likely to get off easily, Rauma said.

Nearly 76 percent of the stabbings were called crimes, so Jeff's fate was somewhat more equivocal.

Tom, however, was dealt with more leniently. Only 62 percent of the respondents said raping his wife was a crime.

Pets of the week

Buddy, a black mixed-breed spaniel; Whiskers, a brown and white terrier mix; and Felix, a gray domestic long hair cat, need homes. Buddy is 7 weeks old, Whiskers is 15 weeks old. Both puppies are males. Felix is a 1½-year-old neutered male. Pets are available through the Humane Society of Southeastern Michigan, 445-3720.

State Dems eye March 26 caucus

AP — State Democratic chairman Richard Wiener vowed that his party's unity would be in stark contrast to last month's muddled GOP state convention.

Intra-party warfare marked the state GOP's first-in-the-nation presidential delegate process, showing "you can't trust the Republicans to govern this state or this nation," Wiener said.

"I think the biggest thing (the convention) demonstrated, and that the last year has demonstrated, is that the Republicans are incapable of running their own party," he added.

"We are united internally and excellently prepared to meet the challenge of the next four years by electing a Democrat," said Wiener.

MICHIGAN'S 150-member Democratic national convention delegation will be selected in a three-tier process.

They will be divided up based on the support each candidate receives at the March 26 caucuses, when Michigan Democrats will be able to cast straw ballots at one of 575 locations across the state.

At the May 7 congressional district conventions, 90 delegates will be chosen.

On May 14, the Democratic State Committee will meet to elect the remaining pledged delegates.

Wiener said he hoped the number of voters participating in the caucuses would exceed the 135,000 who voted in the 1984 delegate process.

Wiener said he expects most of the Democratic candidates to visit the state by mid-March.

School quality bills derailed in Senate

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Minority Democrats, aided by a handful of conservative Republicans, derailed three educational quality bills that were supposed to run through the state Senate Tuesday.

"It's not our intent to scuttle them," said Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, "but there is no agreement on where to get the money."

And conservative Republicans such as Edgar Fredricks of Holland feared "a move to centralize authority" in the state Department of Education, calling the package "educational protectionism" for public schools.

Sen. Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, branded both arguments "transparent and spurious."

TWO KEY VOTES dealt surprise defeats to Senate Majority Leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, who had made school quality "the issue" of 1988.

First, the coalition in a voice vote refused to take up SB 549 requiring local school boards to make annual educational reports (see related story).

Second it rejected 13 in favor and 18 against SB 548 on annual improvement plants. After that, senators never got around to SB 547.

"This was the first recommendation of the Harden Commission," said Engler. "The governor recommended it in his State of the State message. But now he's lobbying to vote on it to cover up the lack of program his party has in the House."

Gov. James J. Blanchard, a Democrat, had picked up many Republican ideas in his message. But as a condition, he insisted the Legislature must pass his four-year-old, $250 million "tax equity" program — higher taxes on banks and insurers, an income tax on military pay and a tax on large lottery winnings. Republicans oppose it as a business tax increase plan.

REPUBLICANS have tied the school quality bills to a plan to guarantee $2,750 in school funding for every pupil.

Faxon called the GOP plan unfair because metropolitan Detroit school district costs are 22 percent higher than the rest of the state's.

Engler also criticized Democratic Sen. Chris Dingell of Trenton who voted for the school quality bills in the Senate Education Committee and against them on the floor.

Dingell said the Democratic caucus decided the bills are "underfunded by as much as $150 million."

Engler replied: "We're spending $6 billion on education (counting state aid and local property taxes). Couldn't this (quality bills) be done with existing revenue?"

ON THE ROLL call vote to reject SB 548, Observer & Eccentric senators voted:

- Yes — Republicans Doug Cruce of Troy and Rudy Nichols of Waterford.
- No — Democrats Jack Faxon of Farmington Hills and George Hart of Dearborn, Republicans Richard Fessler of Commerce and Robert Geake of Northville.
- Not voting — Democrat William Faust of Westland.

SOME REPUBLICANS, led by Fred Dillingham of Fowlerville, wanted to tie-bar the school quality bills with a Senate bill reducing regulations on church-related schools.

That measure, SB 116, is bottled up in the House Education Committee where chairman William Keith, D-Garden City, won't take it up. Keith's office has been deluged with non-stop telephone calls from church forces.

"The issue of private schooling is not going to go away," Dillingham said, adding he wanted the tie-bar to "force discussion of SB 116."

On the Dillingham amendments, area senators voted:

- Yes — Republicans Fessler and Geake, with Cruce voting yes on one and an excused absende on the other.
- No — Democrats Faust, Faxon and Hart, and Republican Nichols.

EXPLAINING his vote against the Dillingham amendment, Nichols said, "To add it to the quality bills would further make murky the waters."

Education chairman John Schwarz, R-Battle Creek, sponsor of two of the quality bills, objected that Dillingham's amendment wasn't germane. Schwarz noted the Senate had amended his quality bills to apply only to public schools.

The 3 school quality bills

Here are legislative staff analyses of three educational quality bills debated by the Michigan Senate.

- SB 547 requires local boards to make a "core" curriculum consisting of required and elective courses available to all pupils attending a public school. The "core" would include career education, communication skills, computer science, foreign language, health and physical education, math, science, social studies, visual and performing arts, vocational education.

An amendment exempts non-public schools. The state school aid act provides incentive funds.

- SB 548 requires local boards to develop and implement three- to five-year school improvement plans for each school in the district. Plans would be based on state Board of Education models. An amendment requires "proposed methods of maintaining classroom management."
- SB 549 requires local districts to prepare and make public an annual educational report, covering accreditation status of every school, core curriculum activities, student achievement, dropout and retention rates.

Fessler, Faust ask more truck safety

Two suburban state senators are forming a bipartisan front to reduce what they call the alarming rate of increase in truck accidents on Michigan roads.

Sen. Richard Fessler, R-West Bloomfield, is prime sponsor and Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, a co-sponsor of a bill to establish a truck driver safety fund.

Sen. Faust

It's part of a package of bills aimed at improving truck safety unveiled last week in Lansing. Other sponsors are Reps. Curtis Hertel, D-Detroit, and Ed Giese, R-Manistee.

"A major solution to reducing the number of truck accidents is to better educate our truck drivers," said Fessler, chairman of the Senate Transportation Committee. "It's imperative that we ensure the safety of motorists who are coming to fear big trucks."

Funds for the truck driver safety bill would come from a $5 charge on motor carrier licenses, part of a nine-bill transportation package passed late in 1987.

Other bills in the new package would:

- Require tarpaulins on trucks carrying loose loads.
- Allow stiffer fines for violators of trucking regulations.
- Bring Michigan in line with federal standards by allowing only a single driver's license per truck driver. This is aimed at preventing drivers from "diluting" their offenses across several licenses.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

Librarian shortage threatens services

By Susan Buck
staff writer

> 'If we should have even one librarian leave, we would have difficulties filling the position.'
> — Rebecca Havenstein-Coughlin
> Canton Public Library

Technology, pay scales and a decline in the popularity of public service jobs are creating a shortage of public librarians in the nation, experts say.

In the past five years, public libraries have seen a dwindling of job applicants especially in children's librarian positions and those positions that require extensive technical knowledge.

As computer databases, cassettes and compact discs join newspapers, magazines and books, the United States is confronting a shortage of public librarians to help sort through the glut of information.

In Livonia, Farmington Hills, Plymouth, Canton and Redford, library heads say they have not had to cut back on services, but fewer qualified applicants limits the selection process.

"Eight years ago when I first came here, there were as many as 200 applicants for a full-time reference librarian," said Rebecca Havenstein-Coughlin, assistant director of the Canton Public Library. "I interviewed for days. Last year, we received 15 applications for a full-time children's librarian position, which is a similar professional position."

THE CANTON Library has seven full-time and 10 part-time librarian positions, Havenstein-Coughlin said.

Canton's young families create many demands for library resources. "If we should have even one librarian leave, we would have difficulties filling the position," she said.

Plans for the opening of a new Livonia Public library in June places that city in an enviable position especially when compared to Westland, which has no public libraries within its city limits. The Wayne-Westland Library operates from a location in Wayne.

Westland, with a population of 85,000, is the only city among Michigan's 15 largest cities that does not have its own public library.

The Livonia Public Library will hire eight to 12 librarians for its new library. Among these positions, there will be two full-time and two part-time children's librarian positions.

"I would expect that we will have relatively few people applying for the children's librarian positions," said Michael Deller, director.

Livonia has three other branch libraries.

In the past, children's librarians were paid about 20 percent less than their counterparts in some areas, Deller said.

Historically, librarian was considered one of the few acceptable positions that women could hold.

"People felt that a children's librarian position was a dead-end position with no opportunity for advancement. The problem isn't finding children's librarians. The problem is finding children's librarians of the quality we want to work with," Deller said.

THE REDFORD Public Library and the Wayne-Westland Public Library are part of the Wayne County Public Library, which has 15 member libraries. The Wayne County Human Resources Department is responsible for hiring, according to Barbara Gray, assistant director of the Wayne-Oakland Library Federation who administers the Wayne County Library.

The Redford Public Library has been without a young adult librarian since September when that person was promoted to head librarian for the Lincoln Park Public Library, said Marjorie Hoag.

Hiring is expected soon from the three applicants who applied for the position, said Gray.

In the meantime, Hoag and a children's librarian have taken over responsibilities.

No vacancies exist in the Wayne-Westland Library, according to Gray.

In Plymouth, a part-time children's librarian position has been unfilled since Jan 1, according to Pat Thomas, director of the Dunning-Hough Library. The person who previously held the position took a job in a public school library, she said.

"Of seven applicants, only two had the background and experience that we were looking for, and they have already found other positions. I plan to repost the position," Thomas said.

According to the American Library Association, national average salaries in 1986 for those with master's degrees in library science were $20,874 as an average starting salary, $25,552 for reference workers, $28,390 for school librarians and $28,943 for corporate and other special libraries.

IN MICHIGAN, the closing of the library science department at Western Michigan University less than a decade ago left the state with only two universities that offered library science studies: the University of Michigan and Wayne State University.

And the word is getting out at the U-M that a librarian shortage exists, according to Mary Cary, director of student admission in the Information and Library Studies Department.

In fall 1987 the university registered 301 students seeking a master's degree in information and library studies — the highest ever at the University, she said. In 1984 only 172 students were enrolled in the program.

And library directors are going the extra mile to find the person most qualified for the job.

In 1986, for example, Farmington Community Library director Beverly Papai posted a head of children's services position for the Farmington branch in national library journals. Also, two people were hired for children's positions at the Farmington Hills branch, as a result of an American Library Association Conference in North Carolina, she said.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

it's the Best.

Tax request

Take time to review issues

ON TUESDAY, March 22, residents of Canton and Plymouth will be going to the polls to decide a special millage request for Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The school board is asking voters to approve 2 operating mills ($2 per $1,000 state equalized valuation) for a period of 11 years. The board has decided to ask voters to increase the operating levy instead of asking them to undo the effects of the Headlee Amendment — a request voters twice denied last year.

If approved, the actual increase will be more like 1.38 mills instead of 2 because the total millage would be rolled back from 40.4 to 39.02 by requirement of the Headlee Amendment. The owner of a $100,000 house would pay school taxes of $2,020 compared to $1,951 without the increase.

Residents have a month to examine the need for more money and get themselves informed before it's time to walk into the ballot box. Information is available in the board administration office on Harvey just south of Ann Arbor Trail.

Information already has been published in this newspaper and will be during the next 30 days. Information will likely be mailed out in newsletters from the individual school buildings and likely will be included in the monthly district newsletter mailed to all homeowners. There should be adequate opportunity for voters to inform themselves.

SOME OF THE factors to consider is the relative wealth of the district and the relative burden on local taxpayers.

A district's wealth is reflected by its total tax base, its relative wealth by tax base (SEV) per pupil. Plymouth-Canton's SEV per pupil for 1986-87 was $72,288. That same index for other school districts is: Wayne-Westland, $46,601; Trenton, $113,300; South Redford, $125,631; Redford Union, $39,785; Northville, $105,937; Livonia, $114,260; Garden City, $36,996; Dearborn, $159,441; and Allen Park, $88,447.

The 1986-87 operating millage for these same schools is: Plymouth-Canton, 36.02 operating mills; Wayne-Westland, 43.4; Trenton, 37.34; South Redford, 33.15; Redford Union, 36.9; Northville, 40.82; Livonia, 35.2; Garden City, 39.37; Dearborn, 26.98; and Allen Park, 41 operating mills.

Northville, a similar community to Plymouth, has both a larger comparative wealth and a larger tax rate than Plymouth-Canton Community Schools. Similar comparisons suggest that Plymouth-Canton does not have a high millage rate in relation to wealth per student.

Many readers are interested in teachers wages, as salaries make up about 80 percent of the operating budget. Average teacher salary for these same school districts in 1986-87 is: Plymouth-Canton, $36,725; Wayne-Westland, $35,923; Trenton, $37,789; South Redford, $35,553; Redford Union, $36,725; Northville, $33,103; Livonia, $38,042; Garden City, $34,989; Dearborn, $33,316; Allen Park, $37,197.

THE ABOVE figures may be helpful for those who wish to measure financial need by how the district operates in comparison with others.

Basically, though, the school board is asking for the added 2 mills because the district is losing state aid. Plymouth-Canton, which received $9 million in state aid in 1986-87, will receive only $7 million for 1987-88. Administrators project a further loss of $1.8 million in state aid and the potential loss of another $900,000 due to a mandatory rollback of the millage to compensate for increased property values in 1988-89, as required by the Headlee Amendment.

Most accountants recommend that school districts and municipalities maintain an emergency surplus account of 10 percent. At the beginning of the budget year the district's unallocated fund balance was 8 percent; it is projected to drop from $4.3 to $3.8 million when the current fiscal year ends June 30. The fund balance includes receivables and inventory as well as unallocated cash.

The Observer urges its readers to use the next 30 days to become informed on the need for additional millage. There's time to become informed; let's not waste that opportunity.

Patient's right

Law would provide guidance

THE TIME has come for the state to recognize a patient's right of medical self-determination.

Our legislators must provide a legal means by which patient wishes may be honored without foisting criminal and civil liability on medical professionals and family members honoring those wishes.

In granting Clifford Culham, a Farmington Hills resident suffering from Lou Gehrig's disease, the right to be disconnected from a ventilator in December, Oakland Circuit Judge David Breck cast the sharpest light.

"Life is hard enough without artificially prolonging a dying patient's agony . . . The least society can do for these unfortunates, and especially the courts if necessary, is to allow them to choose early death with dignity and comfort."

WE SUPPORT efforts by state Reps. David Hollister, D-Lansing and Nick Ciaramitaro, D-Roseville, to legislate patient rights by amending the state probate code.

We urge the legislators to hammer out their differences and enact law to serve dying and incapacitated patients and their families, who have been forced to look to courts for answers in the absence of much-needed legislation.

We support legislation allowing patients to designate an advocate who will carry out their expressed desires for medical treatment, including termination.

We support legislation to serve patients who become unable to make health care decisions by allowing them to make their desires known in advance.

Legislation will not provide an absolute solution to the increasing myriad of patient circumstances. But it is an important vehicle for acknowledging and adhering to patient self-determination in the wake of overnight advances in medical technology and treatment.

We urge the legislators to hammer out their differences and enact law to serve dying and incapacitated patients and their families, who have been forced to look to courts for answers in the absence of much-needed legislation.

DECADES AGO, terminally ill patients would have died a natural death. Today death is forestalled and ultimately dependent on the on-off switch of sophisticated medical equipment.

A patient's right of free choice in determining the type of care and treatment, including termination, underscores the spirit of the much-needed legislation.

We support the inclusion of three important provisions in the patients' rights legislation to meld humaneness with a patient's right of free choice.

A provision declaring that a patient advocate must adhere to patient desires, rather than what may be determined to be the patient's best interests, must be included to ensure the right of patient self-determination.

We support prohibiting the withholding of food and water as a means of hastening death. Food and water are among the most basic human needs.

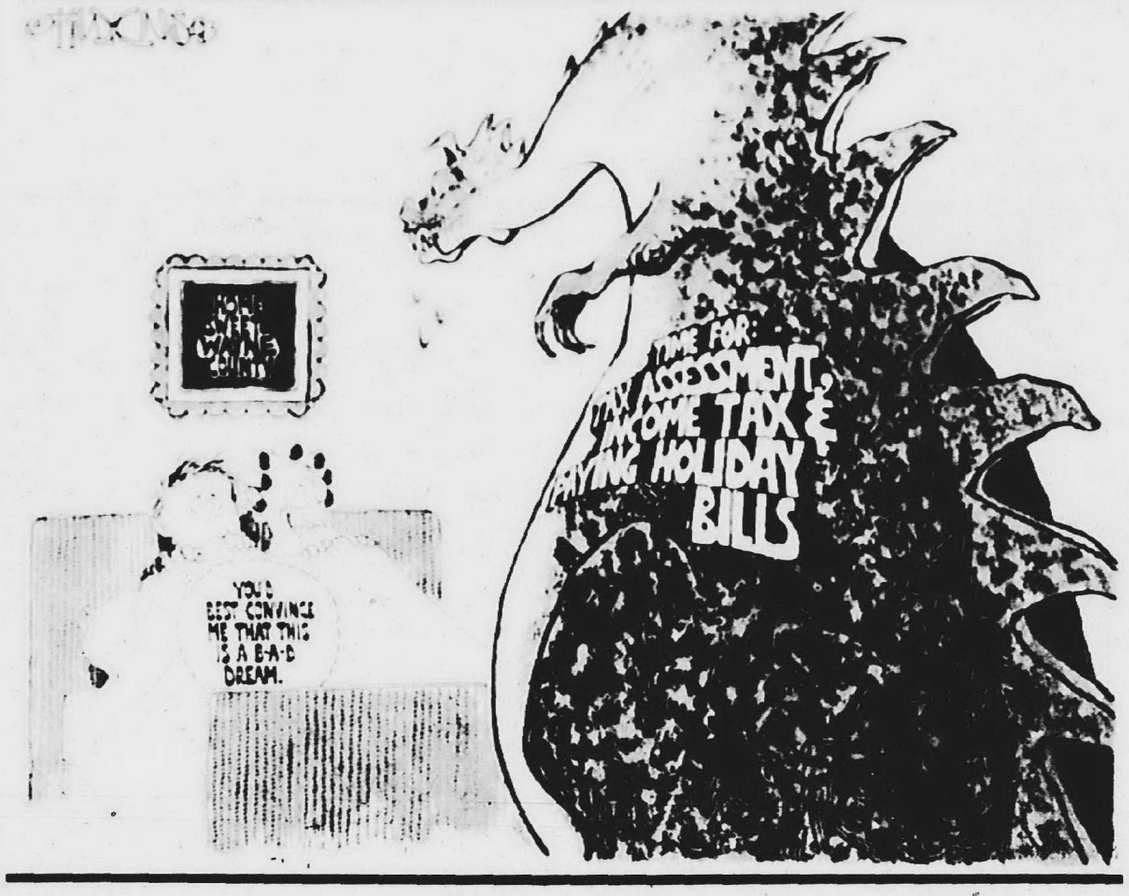
We support prohibiting a patient advocate from exercising medical treatment for a pregnant patient that would be detrimental to the embryo or fetus without probate court approval.

We strongly urge interest groups to avoid sidetracking legislation with continuing debate on this issue. It is legal in this state to protect a fetus or embryo.

WE SUPPORT legislation ensuring the protection of health care professionals who carry out patient wishes. Legislation must ensure that a physician will not be held liable for carrying out a patient's expressed medical desires.

While physicians, philosophers and legislators continue struggling with a definition of life, dying patients linger in frustration and agony as captives of modern medical technology.

As that technology advances daily and medical cures lag steadily behind, the need to provide a legal, safe and secure process for patients to determine their own fate remains paramount.



It's time to stop those who prey on tragedy

SO. THE lawyers and insurance folks are up to it again — figuring out another scam on how to make big bucks out of public misfortune.

This time they've finagled the state Legislature into passing a law that would mandate insurance for retailers who sell liquor. Minimum would be $50,000.

Now it doesn't matter whether you're a nightclub specializing in the spirits or some VFW hall that serves beer to its members during football games. You've got to have this insurance.

In short, you pay the fee or your liquor license is revoked. Real simple.

Appropriately, this law goes into effect on April 1 — you know, April Fools' Day. What a joke.

Of course, advocates are touting this as a measure to protect retailers who have sold liquor to persons who later get in hot water with the law for their drinking escapades.

CALLED the Dram Shop Act, it provides that retailers assume liability for the incident once a victim or the survivors of the victim sue the person who was drinking.

Now on its face, this may sound like a good idea. After all, if some drunk kills a loved one, you're going to want to get all the money you can. If nothing else, it will make you feel like something at least was done to penalize the wrong.

And admittedly, it's pretty tough to feel sorry for businesses that make tons of bucks off people getting loaded.

The real point is that you and I are increasingly paying out through the nose because lawyers and insurance companies have systematically gone about hitting first one business, then another for all the dough they can get.

But that's not the point.

The real point is that you and I are increasingly paying out through the nose because lawyers and insurance companies have systematically gone about hitting first one business, then another for all the dough they can get.

It's the old ambulance chaser routine.

As our society keeps mass-producing lawyers, a bigger and bigger need exists to provide for their expanding ranks. Once they saturate an area, they make it their business to find another.

For years now, the health care system, and the way you have been taken care of, have been burdened by these self-employed scalpers.

PHYSICIANS have been easy targets. After all, in the public's eye, what's a couple of million bucks to a man or woman who has more money than you or I can ever imagine?

Hence, physicians and hospitals have been bombarded with lawsuits, so much so that it's getting more difficult to recruit physicians to come to Michigan. Borderline hospitals have actually moved across state lines.

Municipalities have also become victimized. The most popular suit around is when a city is sued after somebody rams their car into a tree. You guessed it. Cities lose those cases and end up spending your tax dollars because some lawyer figured out an angle on how to make an easy buck.

It's time that we insist the state Legislature cease being the work resources outlet for the legal profession in this state.

King's day of honor noted

To the editor:

I enjoy reading what the community feels in the Reader's Column. Oftentimes the comments are complaints and/or negatives and I would like to request that people research their topic before sending in a negative story which leaves anyone who reads the letter feeling uncertain.

In Thursday's paper Terence Lynch commented about the children in his family not being aware of Martin Luther King's birthday, about the national holiday and about the man himself. I do not have any children in the high school, but I do have a child at Allen School and I would like to say that even though I cannot state that every teacher brought this subject into his/her curriculum, I would like to point out that the halls of Allen School were covered with portraits of Martin Luther King done by the children and stories were hanging in the halls written by children entitled "I had a dream." By the way, Mr. Lynch, your son's fifth-grade art teacher is black.

I ask Terence Lynch to go and visit his school before he writes a negative which would leave a person not familiar with the school and its teachers wondering what is "wrong" with this school.

Reader upset about travels

To the editor:

At last, we have a good explanation of where some of our tax dollars will be spent this year (Plymouth Observer article Feb. 1). Over a quarter of a million dollars for sun tans and stress reducers.

Trustee E.J. McClendon is going to Las Vegas and you and I, taxpayers, will pay nearly $2,000 for this boondoggle! That's over $500 a day (first class, eh?), must be nice. Administrator Norm Kee comes home from San Diego, refreshed and tanned on our tax dollars! You and I have to pay for our vacations but not our school administrators — nothing but the best for them!

Just wait a minute now, enough is enough. Do you world travelers think that we taxpayers are stupid? The budget for these "Vista" trips this year will be nearly 300 percent of the previous budget. Cut your budgets, don't expand them — especially on items that indirectly impact our children.

There are a lot of fine teaching seminars right here in Michigan, where I believe our tax dollars should remain. Focus on the basics. We have colleges to expand from the basics. Wow, I can't wait to get to the polls in March! How about you other taxpayers?

Pursell's vote on Contra aid is supported

Subject: Wayne Peal's article, Feb. 8.

Whatever has happened to objective reporting? You are entitled to your own opinion but not stating it as a matter of fact.

You printed John Adler of "Neighbor to Neighbor" (never heard of either) views as if they represented the views of the majority of Rep. Carl Pursell's constituents. Unless you take an accurate poll, you're in no position to assume this.

Your selected size of type preceding the article plus side note was obviously intended to make Rep. Pursell appear as a radical who was not representing his voters wishes.

Two important facts not stated in your article (are), the close vote in the House and the Senate approvals. True the Senate's vote didn't count but it did show the divided opinion.

Rep. Carl Pursell represents my views and I want to see the opponents' alternate plans if the peace plan fails and there are no more Contras around to continue the fight to rid Nicaragua of the Sandinistas.

We know who Rep. Pursell is but in all honesty you should tell us more about John Adler and his so call "Neighbor to Neighbor;" how many members? He may have more members by now that you have given him free publicity.

'Be thankful for what you have'

THIS WILL BE brief, because a love affair, both unmarried and married, that extended through 42 years, two months and one day was interrupted when Mother Goose died last Thursday.

Also, though few may notice, there'll be a break in the action, as John Madden is wont to say, at the Bifocals typewriter for a few weeks. Simply put, I need a rest and will get it by visiting friends across the nation. Hopefully, I'll be permitted to resume these essays later in the year.

Grief is private. Saying thanks to people is not. Thus, to the many friends who have been so very, very helpful during the travail of these past 14½ months, God bless you.

So, too, to Dr. Carmen Lim-Tsai, Dr. Philip J. Stella, Hospice registered nurse Lynn Hodgins and her aides, and the entire oncology staff of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in suburban Ann Arbor whose skills and compassion helped my wife live well beyond expectations.

Many of us either are born with, or for one cause or another, develop infirmities during the period we are allowed between the womb and the grave, but many, many years ago I sensed that no matter what the problem, there's someone else who has one that's worse.

That philosophy found expression in words and music written by Buck Ram and Andre Rand. As I seek respite, ponder these lines from their composition called "I complained."

"I complained that I had no shoes till I saw a begger who had no feet
Then I knew how lucky was I;
I knew how terribly lucky was I.

This snapshot of columnist Fred Delano and his wife, Olga, was taken at a post-season football celebration two years ago.

"I complained that I had no wealth till I saw the people who have no health
Then I knew life was good to me, how really wonderfully good to me.

"Be thankful for what you have.
Thank the good Lord and count your blessings.
Be thankful it is not too bad, you're lucky just to be alive.

"I complained that I had no right when I saw a blind man who had no sight.
And I saw how lucky was I.
I ask the good Lord's forgiveness that I complained."

Judge shows legal backbone

Tim Richard

HUNDREDS OF judges must have breathed signs of relief when former state Supreme Court Justice John W. Fitzgerald last week cleared Oakland Circuit Judge Alice Gilbert of misconduct charges.

Millions of common folk who pay taxes and buy liability insurance should have cheered, too, if they understood the far-reaching implications of this case.

Judge Gilbert had the rare courage to tell a jury it was wrong, that its $7 million award in a medical malpractice case was "excessive to the point of being outrageous."

She ran just the $5 million figure awarded the baby through a compound interest table and figured the kid would be worth $14.3 million by age 18, $25 million by age 24, and $225 million by age 50. That, she said, would provide him "a most luxurious and extravagant living, which is available to few in the world."

Gilbert knocked down the award to $107,000, which, with interest, will yield the injured party $544,000. The plaintiff family has gone to the Court of Appeals, which is legit.

BUT A MISCONDUCT complaint by the staff of the Judicial Tenure Commission?

Fitzgerald put the social issue clearly. On one part of the complaint he said, "Any remedy lies not in disciplinary procedings but in civil appeal. To hold otherwise would subject every trial judge in the state to excoriation and hindsight allegations by losing parties . . ."

Big bucks are at stake, not just for plaintiffs who win multi-million-dollar judgments but for the lawyers who take a one-third cut off the top.

The Michigan Trial Lawyers Association, with the pious smile of a Tartuffe, has a pat reply: "Let the jury decide."

Poor answer. A jury decides an individual case. It doesn't think about the precedents it sets for other cases and out-of-court settlements. It doesn't think about what it does to liability insurance rates when it makes calculating a premium impossible. It doesn't think about taxes when it pays damages with significant chunks of our road construction budgets. That's not a jury's job.

But it is a legislature's job to set caps on "pain and suffering" awards. And it is a judge's job to set aside awards that result in "a most luxurious and extravagant living, which is available to few in the world."

THERE'S A MINDSET in society that it's OK to find the deepest pockets you can and empty 'em. Wayne County jurors are notorious for that mentality, which has spread into Oakland, too.

That mindset has been likened to a crap shoot or the lottery — a flawed analogy. In a crapshoot there are odds. In the lottery, you know the state won't pay out more than half of what it takes in.

But in liability cases, one can't calculate the odds because juries pick numbers out of the air as they go along. Society's oddsmakers can't calculate how much to set aside for damages to those who deserve compensation.

EX-JUSTICE Fitzgerald and Judge Gilbert deserve plaudits for giving the Michigan judiciary a backbone transplant.

This is not to give Judge Gilbert, whose term expires this year, a blanket endorsement. In an Open Meetings Act case, she wrote a positively dreadful opinion, accepting every lame alibi the Oakland University board of trustees could concoct for doing the public's business in secret.

Let's just say that in this case she has set an example of courage.

One hopes the "excoriation and hindsight allegations" of recent months don't take too much wind out of her sails.

Gearing up to Olympic contortions

Rich Perlberg

THE YEAR WAS 1976, the setting was Montreal, the goal was the Olympics and the travel was strictly budget-conscious.

But it was fun, even if the Maverick that took us from Detroit to Quebec also served as a night's lodging when our tent took a sorry bronze to a gold-medal thunderstorm.

I was a novice at this game but not so my travel companion, a sports nut and travel guide named Bob Cooper who moonlighted as a teacher. His parents still live in these parts near Telegraph and Maple roads. "Coop" has moved on to a new lifestyle. He is married and will soon be a father. Both are miracles of a scope that by comparison make the U.S. hockey gold in Lake Placid seem as unexpected as Tuesday following Monday.

IT IS NOT fair to say that Cooper was cheap, although he was. But cheapness is not a fair description because he raised it to a pragmatic artform.

I, for instance, was more than willing to pay for a space in the parking lot next to the station where we boarded the subway each morning. Not Cooper. He multiplied the $5-a-day parking cost by a week and figured the proceeds saved would cover two scalped tickets to the middleweight boxing events.

So he found a free parking place two blocks away. For me, a once-a-year traveler, it was irritating to waste so much time for a small amount. For Cooper, who once traveled to sporting events in all 50 states during a single year, the parking costs represented a substantial savings.

Parking search aside, we spent a week unknowingly attending the last Olympics in which superpower boycotts were not an issue. There was still controversy. The Taiwan delegation was held up at the border because they wanted to march under a Chinese banner; mainland China protested and the Canadians sided with truth, justice and the government likely to buy the most wheat.

FROM THE spectator's vantage point, the Olympics are sensational. Scrounging for tickets, we rubbed shoulders with American basketball stars taking in the sights. They seemed equally as excited. It was truly an international bazaar of people; the aroma of worldwide friendship easily overwhelms the stench of nationalistic fervor.

One night, for instance, we struck out when diving tickets were being scalped for $100 apiece or more. Disappointed, we went to weightlifting, the only event our pocketbooks could manage.

It was great. The tension mounted as each competitor battled gravity, himself and other lifters. The audience roared its approval and encouragement as first a Pole, then a Russian and then a Rumanian struggled to outdo each other. The Rumanian won, earning not only an ovation and a medal, but a respectful hug from the two men he had bested but not defeated.

It was an emotional moment and a stirring one. It's a picture that should be seen by all who believe that the Olympics are won by the nation that wins the most medals.

What is a VITREOUS DETACHMENT?

The vitreous is a clear gel that fills the inside of the eye behind the lens and in front of the retina. Its purpose is to maintain the eye's shape and pressure. As we grow older, the vitreous tends to change from a gel to a fluid, allowing dot or thread-like protein particles in the vitreous to move about freely. These particles are called floaters. This liquefication process may be accelerated in highly nearsighted people, and may occur as early as the late 20's or 30's.

As the vitreous liquefies, it shrinks away from the retina (vitreous detachment), usually without symptoms, and the process goes unnoticed. In some cases, however, the vitreous may pull on portions of the retina to which it remains temporarily attached, causing a sensation of intermittent light flashes which are most noticeable in the dark.

In most cases, complete separation of the vitreous from the retina takes place without serious consequence. However, in the course of separation, the vitreous may cause a tear, or hole to develop in the retina, which can lead to retina detachment. If the symptoms of floaters and flashes are noticed, you should "take it easy" at home. If those symptoms persist, see your ophthalmologist to make sure that the retina is not damaged during the vitreo-retinal separation process which may take several weeks to several months.

Student talent takes center stage

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Plymouth-Canton students are so talented it's hard to fit all of that talent in one room.

The Little Theatre at Plymouth Canton High School wasn't big enough to accommodate all the students trying out for the Damaris Student Fine Art Awards. The annual awards program for students in sixth through ninth grade is sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

This year, some 97 students applied for the awards, said Mary Corridore, chairwoman of the awards program with Sharon Rucinski.

"Last year, we had 64," Corridore said.

This year's record number of entrants created a few logistical problems. During the Tuesday, Feb. 9, tryouts for the awards, some of the students performed in the Canton Little Theatre, other entrants auditioned in the band room of the Phase III building at Centennial Educational Park in Canton.

THE AWARDS program is designed to encourage further study in the arts, including drama, vocal music, piano and other instrumental music, creative writing, painting, dance and photography.

Girl Scouting's been a good part of her life

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Rochella Thorpe has seen a lot of changes in Girl Scouting over the years.

"I think that Girl Scouting has changed with the times, which often surprises people," said Thorpe, the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council's field director for Plymouth-Canton-Northville.

The focus in Girl Scouting has expanded over the years, she said. There's still an emphasis on such traditional skills as cooking and sewing, but science, math, car repair and computers are also subjects Girl Scouts learn about these days.

Girl Scouting lets girls know they have many choices and have the ability to make those choices, Thorpe said. There's an emphasis on career choices, particularly in programs for older girls.

At the same time, homemaking and child care aren't belittled.

"I think that any choice a girl makes is good," said Thorpe, a 25-year-old Ypsilanti resident.

SHE'S BEEN on the job as Plymouth-Canton-Northville field director for about 14 months now. Thorpe supervises Girl Scout programs involving about 1,700 girls.

Thorpe's work involves recruiting and supervising volunteers. She works mostly with troop services directors, administrative volunteers who supervise local Girl Scouting activities.

This is Thorpe's 18th year as a Girl Scout. She started as a Brownie in grade school and has stayed with Girl Scouting through the years.

Thorpe enjoys attending events where she can meet Girl Scouts. Meeting the girls reminds her of what Girl Scouting is all about.

Thorpe received a bachelor's degree in music from Bowling Green State University in Ohio. She minored in women's studies as an undergraduate. Thorpe did graduate work in American culture at Bowling Green and was a teaching assistant in women's studies as a graduate student.

During college, Thorpe worked in different jobs at several Girl Scout camps. She worked at Camp Libbey in Ohio, Camp Molly Lauman in Ohio, and at Camp Potomac Woods in Virginia.

Ypsilanti resident Rochella Thorpe is Plymouth-Canton-Northville field director for the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council.

THORPE ALSO worked as a troop leader one year in college, "for Senior Girl Scouts who were not much younger than I was."

Thorpe enjoyed growing up as a Girl Scout. She found the friendship of other girls a valuable part of scouting.

"They're the ones who really value their women friends, and value themselves."

Thorpe was born in Columbia, S.C. Her family moved to Toledo when she was young.

Thorpe was also involved in band and orchestra in high school, including participating in state competitions.

As a Girl Scout, Thorpe enjoyed summer camp and troop camp.

"I loved camping. I think that camping taught me a lot."

Thorpe knows she won't have to live off the land, but also knows she could do so. She found the camp staff members to be good role models.

Her current job as field director has both rewards and frustrations. Girl Scouting provides leadership opportunities for girls; however, the girls who need scouting the most may drop out as they get older.

It's also frustrating not to have enough leaders for troops, Thorpe said.

"But the people we have are marvelous. They're wonderful."

GIRL SCOUT volunteers come from many walks of life, including homemakers and women who work outside of the home.

"They have wonderful management skills and are very organized and diplomatic. They really believe in it and really do a fine job."

Thorpe would like to teach some day at the college level. She'd return to school to earn her doctorate and would then teach women's studies and American culture.

Girl Scouting provides a variety of interesting staff jobs, she said. Staff members can move throughout the U.S. and elsewhere; they can work on the national level and help coordinate council activities, "which would be fascinating."

In her free time, Thorpe enjoys reading political theory and science fiction. She has no children, but does live with her cat, Rhea.

'But the people we have are marvelous. They're wonderful. They have wonderful management skills and are very organized and diplomatic. They really believe in it and really do a fine job.'

— Rochella Thorpe, Girl Scouts

"She's the best cat in the whole world," Thorpe said with a smile.

Thorpe has enjoyed living and working in the area.

"I really like this area of Michigan. It's certainly a good quality of life here."

The area offers a great deal culturally and socially, she said. Its proximity to Detroit and Ann Arbor is beneficial.

"The people here are very special."

In previous years, students have auditioned in the Canton Little Theatre, Corridore said. This year, the piano and dance students auditioned there. Drama, instrumental and vocal music students appeared before the judges in the band room.

The art work, creative writing and photography entries were on display at CEP during last week's tryouts for the awards.

This year, Plymouth-Canton students competed for $1,500 in prize money. That money will be distributed among the winners.

Although the awards program takes a lot of work, it's all worth it, Corridore said.

"Certainly, it's a wonderful asset to the community. I have enjoyed it for a number of years." The program provides proof that the Plymouth-Canton community has plenty of talented students.

The students are a bit nervous when it's time to audition, she said.

"I think they're all a little nervous." The students seem to overcome their nervousness and do just fine, Corridore said.

"I really admire their courage." The young performers give their parents and teachers plenty of reasons to be proud, she said.

CO-CHAIRWOMAN Sharon Rucinski kept things running smoothly in the band room at Phase III during the tryouts. Things took a bit longer in the band room, she said, the stage at the Canton Little Theatre is in some ways a better place to audition.

"They get the feel of being on the stage," Rucinski said.

2nd Lt. Nancy Anne Zylka of Plymouth and 2nd Lt. Jeffrey Edgar Kleinsmith of Clarksville, Tenn., were married Jan. 2 at Our Lady of Good Counsel Church in Plymouth. The Rev. Richard A. Perfetto performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Richard and Dian Zylka of Plymouth, Carolyn Kleinsmith of Plymouth and the late Edgar Kleinsmith.

The bride is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University, where she studied geography. She is a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army Reserve.

Her husband is a graduate of Eastern Michigan University, where he studied criminal justice. He is a second lieutenant with the U.S. Army at Fort Campbell, Ky.

Sister of the bride Julianne Zylka was the maid of honor. The bride's attendants were Pamela Chellan, Ann Marie Gregory and Amy McElroy.

Russell Shaffer was the best man. The bridegroom's attendants were Lt. Douglas Kleinsmith, Cadet Erik Kleinsmith and Brian Kersten. Brothers of the bride Timothy Zylka and Patrick Zylka were the ushers.

For her wedding, the bride wore a white taffeta gown with mutton sleeves and a jeweled lace bodice. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations with red roses.

Following the military wedding ceremony, a reception was held at the Mayflower Meeting House in Plymouth.

The newlyweds are making their home in Clarksville, Tenn.

Leonard-Brito

Luanne Brito and William (Biff) Leonard were recently married.

Parents of the couple are Mary Brito of Point Loma, Calif., the late Lou Brito, and Mr. and Mrs. William A. Leonard of Plymouth.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Santa Clara. She is employed as an interior design specialist.

Her husband is a graduate of Plymouth High School and of the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. He received a master's degree in business administration from the University of California at Los Angeles and is employed as a financial consultant.

Sister of the bride Andrea Bokosky was the bride's honor attendant. The bride's other attendants were Mary Fike and Mary Maderios Brito.

The best man was Dr. Gregg Schwab. The groomsmen were Aldis Valkris and Fred Fogerty.

Van Bynen-Pemberton

Cheri Lynn Van Bynen of Garden City and James Troy Pemberton of Canton plan a March wedding at First Congregational Church of Wayne.

She is the daughter of William and Charlotte Van Bynen of Garden City. He is the son of Troy and Lanita Pemberton of Oklahoma City, Okla.

The bride-to-be is employed at Mediabase Research Corp. of Farmington Hills. Her fiance is employed as assistant program director at WLLZ-FM.

IMAGINE DYING FROM A DISEASE YOU NEVER KNEW YOU HAD.

Eleven million people in the U.S. have diabetes. But almost half of them don't know it.

Untreated, diabetes can lead to heart disease, kidney disease, blindness and gangrene.

And for 150,000 people each year, it leads to death.

That's why you should be aware of the symptoms of diabetes: blurred vision, excessive thirst and frequent urination are just some of the warning signs. Because the sooner you find out if you have diabetes, the more likely you are to get it under control, before complications set in.

Finding out you have diabetes can be scary. But not finding out can be fatal.

FIGHT SOME OF THE WORST DISEASES OF OUR TIME.
Support the American Diabetes Association.

A defense against cancer can be cooked up in your kitchen.

There is evidence that diet and cancer are related. Follow these modifications in your daily diet to reduce chances of getting cancer.

1. Eat more high-fiber foods such as fruits and vegetables and whole grain cereals.
2. Include dark green and deep yellow fruits and vegetables rich in vitamins A and C.
3. Include cabbage, broccoli, brussels sprouts, kohlrabi and cauliflower.
4. Be moderate in consumption of salt-cured, smoked, and nitrite-cured foods.
5. Cut down on total fat intake from animal sources and fats and oils.
6. Avoid obesity.
7. Be moderate in consumption of alcoholic beverages.

Priestly pursuit

Seminarians answer the call

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Jim Bilot pauses for a moment and looks down the long corridor of St. John's Provincial Seminary in Plymouth.

"Imagine 20 years ago, everyone would be walking down here in black cassocks with their hands folded," said Bilot, 26, a seminarian from St. Clair Shores.

Times have changed.

And so has St. John's Provincial Seminary, which will close in June.

In its heyday, St. John's would have 90 young seminarians, wandering through its sacred halls, wearing the traditional clothes of the regimented life for one entering the priesthood. More than 1,100 people have studied at St. John's and have been ordained as priests.

Currently, there are 39 men studying for a life in the church.

Today's seminarian is likely to be older and college educated and as a result, more sure of his decision to become a priest.

For Bilot, the calling was a gradual one.

"It's not like a bolt of lightning that came from heaven saying, 'I want you,' " said Bilot, who spent last year studying at Sacred Heart Seminary in Detroit. "For me, it was a five-year process to enter."

BILOT GRADUATED from Wayne State University with a business degree and was ready to embark on a career. Except life in business didn't jibe with his personal values.

"I was looking forward to a new car and a nice income," Bilot said. "But I realized a new car and money aren't always going to make you happy."

Bob Fisher, 28, of Southfield felt the same way. Like Bilot, Fisher had a business degree from the University of Detroit.

But working with the Catholic Youth Organization, he began to feel the priesthood might be for him.

"I always enjoyed working with people in a faith setting," he said. "It added a new dimension for me.

"As I looked to the future, I always figured I'd be happy as either a priest or as a husband of a family. Giving up the possibility of having a family was the hardest part."

Many find it too hard, which can explain the declining numbers of those entering the clergy. Recently, there have been television spots encouraging men to enter the priesthood.

The Rev. Robert Burn, rector president at St. John's, believes there is a culmination of reasons for the lack of seminarians.

"I think there's a loss of the attractiveness of the priestly lifestyle," Burn said. "Plus, there is more opportunity for lay people to become involved in the church and still have a family."

IN TERMS OF study, life in the seminary can be hard as well. Things are not as regimented as before the reforms of Vatican II. Then seminarians were not even allowed to leave the grounds.

The program is similar to any graduate program at a university. There are plenty of papers and projects to complete.

There's time for fun as well. Some seminarians recently did a spoof play-by-play broadcast of the St. John's vs. Sacred Heart basketball game for WGOD-TV. On this day, a group of St. John's seminarians were planning to go sledding down the hills surrounding the seminary, using lunch trays.

Many seminarians keep busy with community work as well. Bilot worked with the poor in Detroit while Fisher was ministering at Sinai Hospital.

For them, the learning experience is enlightening.

"You go in with an attitude you're going to help someone else," Fisher said. "But really, they help you."

"They're very humble, yet their faith is so deep," Bilot said. "They have a certain wisdom."

Part of the seminary program includes spending a year working at a parish. The total program involves five years (four years of classroom work and one year at a church).

LIKE EVERYONE at the seminary, Bilot and Fisher will be transferred elsewhere. More than likely they will go to Sacred Heart Seminary in Detroit. They will miss the rural setting offered at St. John's.

"It's very quiet, it's really nice," Bilot said. "The only thing you hear are the trains. And they have a different effect on you than cars and people yelling.

"When you look out your window and see green grass and trees, there's a different feeling than looking out the window and seeing an abandoned car and two apartment buildings."

Jim Bilot, 26, of St. Clair Shores passed an opportunity for a new car and a nice income in the business world to pursue the priesthood.

● RECTOR RESIGNS

The Rev. Kenneth Davis has resigned as rector of St. Andrew Episcopal Church. On March 1, he will become the rector of Church of the Advent in Orchard Lake.

Davis has been rector at St. Andrew Church since 1970.

As rector at St. Andrew Church, Davis has been named Livonia's Outstanding Citizen and has been the chaplain to the Police Department and Fire Department of Livonia.

Davis is on sabbatical, but will return to St. Andrew Church for services on Saturday, Feb. 27, and Sunday, Feb. 28. Following the 10 a.m. service on Sunday, there will be a special brunch at St. Andrew's Newton Centre to honor Davis and his family.

● LENTEN PROGRAM

Newman House, the Catholic campus ministry center for Schoolcraft College, will present its third annual Sunday evening Lenten program beginning Sunday, Feb. 21.

The presenters on each of the six Sunday evenings will be Jack Wilcox. Wilcox's own ministry has spanned more than 30 years in almost as many countries. In the Newman House series, he will address the questions of: Who in the world are we? Where in the world are we? and Why in the world are we?

The program, which runs from 6-7:30 p.m. Sundays during Lent, will take place at Newman House, 17300 Haggerty Road, Livonia. The program is open to the public.

● CRAFT BAZAAR

St. Paul United Church of Christ, 26550 Cherry Hill Road, at John Daly, Dearborn Heights, will have its annual Spring Craft Bazaar from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, March 19. Tables are still available. For more information, call 278-7270 or 562-2805.

● MISSIONS CONFERENCE

Bethel Baptist Temple, 29475 W. Six Mile, Livonia, announces its 14th Annual Missions Conference now through Sunday, Feb. 21. Featured will be missionaries from Micronesia, Malta and Canada. Also, missionaries to prisons and rescue missions will be on hand. At 7 p.m. Saturday, there will be a potluck dinner to honor all missionaries. For more information, call 525-3664 or 261-9276.

● LENTEN SERIES

The Lenten Series of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Livonia will highlight a series of tapes by Christian radio personality John MacArthur. The series will begin Wednesday, Feb. 24, and continue through March 23. The church is at 16360 Hubbard Road in Livonia.

● SACRED MUSIC

A concert of Sacred Music will be presented at 11 a.m. Sunday, Feb. 28, in the Parkway Heights Free Methodist Church by The Singing Nicholsons. Composed of four brothers and accompanied by Teresa Nicholson at the piano plus the wives and nine younger children, the family sings a blend of traditional and contemporary music that can be recognized by young and old alike. Parkway Heights Free Methodist Church is at 23705 Plymouth, one block east of Telegraph, Redford.

● VEGAS NIGHT

St. Mel's Men's Club will have a Vegas Night from 7 p.m. to midnight on Saturday, Feb. 20, in the Father John Furlong Activities Building, 7506 Inkster Road, Dearborn Heights. Admission is $1. For more information, call 274-0684.

● MINISERIES

Risen Christ Lutheran Church, 46250 Ann Arbor Road, one mile west of Sheldon Road, will present, "Yeshua," the life and ministry of Christ in documentary form. This five-hour miniseries will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Wednesdays, Feb. 24 through March 23. Soup dinners will be served weekly from 6-7 p.m. For more information, call the church office at 453-5252.

● RUMMAGE SALE

St. Elizabeth Church rummage and bake sale will take place from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, March 26, at the church, 26431 W. Chicago.

● LENT SCHEDULE

First United Methodist Church, 6443 Merriman, Garden City, has scheduled the following events for Lent: At 5 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 21, potluck supper and program presented by Worship Work Area at 6 p.m.; at 5 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 28, a potluck supper and Kathryn Janiczek of Cass Avenue Community Church in Detroit speaking at 6 p.m.; at 5 p.m. Sunday, March 6, a potluck supper followed by Duane Miller at 6 p.m. who will discuss mission work; at 5 p.m. Sunday, March 13, a potluck supper followed by a program at 6 p.m. sponsored by the Evangelism Work Area; at 5 p.m. Sunday, March 20, a potluck dinner followed by a program of puppets, music and fun presented by the church children and youth. A nursery is available during all the programs.

● WARD MISSIONS CONFERENCE

Ward Presbyterian Church will have its 19th annual Missions Conference Sunday, Feb. 21, through Sunday, 28. Missionaries from around the world will attend, providing training, seminars and opportunities to share their experiences.

Movie brings out subtlety of war and peace

moral perspectives

Rev. Robert Schaden

Adrian Cronauer hasn't been what you would call a household name. I, for one, had never heard of him before Robin Williams brought him to the screen in "Good Morning, Vietnam."

While the real Adrian was doing his job in Southeast Asia, most of us were busy about other things. The patter, or even the thoughts, of the armed forces disc jockeys hardly found their way into our everyday wonderings.

Adrian's real job, however, was larger than spinning records. He was assigned as an anesthetist. His mission was to raise the morale of Americans who had been sent to set up the machinery for the bloody years to come.

You see, the real seeds of war are sowed in subtly. The whole process is pulled off in such a way that the reality sneaks up on all but a few. That is where things went wrong for the powers that were. In Cronauer, they picked a man who was one of those few.

His job was to smokescreen the tragedy in the making, give the illusion that all was well, give out only that news which would further the cause of war — the truth be damned. Only the official news was news. Other events were grist for cover-up.

But Cronauer broke those rules. He called as he saw it and could not live with covering up those truths which, if allowed into light of day, would cause responsible opposition.

Some might suggest that "Good Morning, Vietnam" trivializes the tragedy. However, the movie in at least some sense is a metaphor for war itself. If you have seen it, you know what I mean.

THE STORY line begins on a rather innocent note. The audience gets off to a good laugh and then just when no one expects it, a bomb tears through the tears of laughter and melts them into tears of — I'm still not sure what. Shame? Sadness? Anger? Grief? Fear? Perhaps a combination of all of that and more.

It is somewhat the same bag that grip those who experience the Wall in Washington, the black marble built to memorialize it all.

The real tragedy, however, is for a nation to have gone through such terrible times and learn little or nothing from what went down and how it all got started in the first place.

At what point the laughter turn to tears when 20 or 30 years hence a movie is produced to tell the same kind of story all over again? This time, however, the movie crew would not have to travel as far.

"Good Morning, Vietnam" was shot in Bangkok. (We are not wanted in Vietnam.) Central America is not nearly so far away.

Military strategy is not the final answer in attempting to solve the world's problems. A good understanding of how other cultures differ from our own may be the beginning of not needing the military strategy in the first place. Perhaps had we learned that lesson in Vietnam, we would not be employing the same mistakes in Central America.

The mid-60s in Southeast Asia were not that different than the late '80s in Central America. The sowing is subtle and there is as much camouflage of the plan as there is of the hardware.

BUT THE seeds do take root and as we discovered in the Gulf of Tonkin, there comes a point of no return — not a surprise to the planners — but too late for the many to do much about.

Having viewed the movie, one does wonder where the anesthesia is being administered today.

For now, there still is time. But time itself won't make much difference unless there are a few Cronauers unwilling to accept their assigned roles. Some of those have stood up to be counted in Congress.

But beware of the anesthetists. They are still offering their patter, while the machinery is so neatly put in place.

The Rev. Robert Schaden is a member of Newman House at Schoolcraft College in Livonia.

Adjusting your life patterns can beat jet lag

A. Jolayne Farrell

Dear Jo:

My wife and I have been doing a great deal of traveling in our retirement. We plan well ahead for our trips and take advantage (whenever possible) of the special reduced air fares for seniors.

Something that we are experiencing more than ever before is jet lag. Could this be due to our age (late 70s)? And how can it be prevented?

T.B.
World Traveler

Dear Mr. T:

Certain changes associated with the aging process apparently contribute to jet lag. For example, it takes more time for people your age to adjust to changes in time zones, foods and the effects of caffeinated beverages and alcohol consumed on a trip.

Adjusting to a new time zone is a slow process. The body's inner clock gets out of synchronization with time cues from the environment. Daily cycles of eating, rest and activity are the main cues that keep the body on schedule and healthy.

Jet lag sets in when the internal cycles are in conflict with the environmental signals. Traveling across more than three time zones can cause feelings of anxiety, insomnia, indigestion, constipation and general disorientation.

GENERALLY jet lag cannot be prevented, but you can speed up your recovery by altering your life patterns (including rest and diet) even before you leave home.

About two weeks before your departure, adjust your daily schedule ahead or behind (depending which way you'll be traveling) and change it by one hour every few days. Since you and your wife are retired and don't have to work at fixed times, this should be easier for you than for most.

Your diet should be adjusted:

Include protein foods for breakfast — they enhance the formation of catecholamines that keep the body awake.

Lunch should include other nutritious foods providing sufficient protein to continue this energizing process.

Make your evening meal lighter. It should consist of mostly carbohydrates such as legumes, whole grains, fruits and vegetables. Carbohydrates stimulate the producing of serotonin, which signals the body that it is time to sleep.

WHILE TRAVELING, avoid caffeinated beverages and alcohol. They alter your body's metabolism and can compound the effects of jet lag. Try to drink water (bottled) and fruit juices.

During your flight(s), get up and walk aroud the aircraft every hour or so.

When you get to your destination, set your watch to local time. Then try to establish your usual routine.

Good luck. I hope you and your wife have many pleasant and "jet lag free" trips.

Readers can write to Jolayne Farrell at 11 Cynthia Crescent, Richmond Hill, Ontario L4E 1J3.

For now, there still is time. But time itself won't make much difference unless there are a few Cronauers unwilling to accept their assigned roles.

Realistic savings plan paves retirement route

"HOW MUCH should I be saving toward retirement" is a commonly heard plea of those seeking financial planning advice. This is often followed by an anxious "How am I doing." This month's financial profile centers on Jim and Molly West, a Farmington Hills couple who fall into that category of adults known as DINKS — short for Dual Income, No Kids.

Jim is 39 and works as an engineer at one of the auto companies. Molly is a secretary who just turned 40. They have a combined income of $67,000 along with good health and disability benefits at work. Their net worth (assets minus liabilities) approaches $170,000, consisting mostly of equity in their house ($75,000), autos ($26,000), IRAs ($25,600) and other miscellaneous assets.

THEIR CASH reserves seem high at first glance. They include a bank money market account of $22,000 and other accounts totaling $10,000. But they sold an investment property at a sizable gain in 1987 and expect a $15,000 tax bill on April 15.

Both Jim and Molly have up-to-date wills. Most of their property is held jointly. Our advisers agree that this is an adequate estate plan for them at this point. A trust fund would be appropriate if they had children or if their combined estates (including life insurance proceeds) exceeded $600,000 or if they were getting on in years. In case one of them should become incapacitated, our advisers suggest that each draw up a durable power of attorney. This would allow the other to act on behalf of the incapacitated spouse should it be necessary.

THEY HAVE STATED two major financial goals: to build their nest egg over time and buy a second house in northern Michigan. They plan to turn this house into their primary residence at retirement. If all goes well, they would like to retire by the time Jim reaches 55.

Our advisers note two weaknesses in the insurance area. Attorney Alan Ferrara, a partner in the Southfield law firm of Couzens, Lansky, & Roeder, addresses their homeowner's insurance.

"Mr. West has coverage for $130,000 on a dwelling which he estimates could cost approximately $170,000 to replace. This is below the 80-percent figure which is required by property insurers to pay any claim in full," Ferrara said.

"FOR EXAMPLE, if he had a $10,000 claim, it is unlikely the insurance company would cover the full amount of the loss. He should raise this amount to a minimum of $150,000 and add an 'inflation-guard' rider to his policy."

Ferrara also examined Jim's insurance coverage.

"Jim is the primary wage earner of the family, earning more than $55,000 per year. If he were to die prematurely, Molly would need significant additional income to maintain her standard of living. Jim has a $100,000 universal life policy and approximately the same amount of term insurance provided by his employer.

"Though $200,000 sounds like a lot of money to them, if it were invested at 8 percent, it would bring in in only $16,000 per year. This is not enough to allow Molly to maintain her current standard of living, and future inflation could squeeze her even more.

"Until they can build up their asset base, Jim needs to buy a term policy with a face amount of $150,000 to $250,000. At his age, it should cost them under $500 per year, assuming he is in good health."

THEIR BIGGEST questions revolve around the retirement goal mentioned earlier. "We want to be able to slow down and relax by the time Jim is in his mid-50s," Molly said. "Assuming a paid-off residence, in today's dollars (not adjusted for future inflation) we want to have $3,000 per month in before-tax income. How should we approach this area of planning and what should we do now?"

Certified financial planner Daniel H. Boyce in Birmingham has some guidelines for the Wests in this area.

"First of all, they should be congratulated for setting such clear goals. Their retirement objective is specific in the amount of money and in time frame. Too often people have given little thought to their goals, or at best have only a vague idea of what they want to accomplish."

BOYCE DESCRIBES the sources of retirement income as a "three-legged stool" consisting of pension, Social Security and personal savings.

"It is imporatant to realize that personal savings is typically the only one over which you have any control. So this must be built up over time for a secure financial future."

Jim expects his pension from his current employer to provide a

The Bottom Line

Financial strengths

- Own home with substantial equity.
- No bank loans or credit card debt.
- Solid savings and emergency reserve.
- Both have wills.
- Pension plan through work.

Financial weaknesses

- Uncertain as to amount of savings needed for retirement.
- Inadequate insurance on dwelling.
- Inadequate life insurance on husband.
- No inflation hedges in investments.

It is important to realize that personal savings is typically the only form of retirement income over which you have any control. So this must be built up over time for a secure financial future.

As an independent owner of Troy's Grub Street, Phil Lauri finds paying higher liability insurance rates cutting into his profits already threatended by restaurant "conglomerates."

Dram shop insurance squeezes proprietors

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Owners of area party stores, taverns, bars and restaurants that sell liquor are upset over a state law requiring them to carry a fixed amount of liquor liability insurance. They say increased premiums pose severe economic hardship on small retailers and are forcing others out of business.

The law, which takes effect April 1, requires all liquor retailers in Michigan to carry at least $50,000 in liquor liability insurance or the equivalent in cash and securities. Proof of such coverage will be required before liquor licenses can be renewed.

'I think we carry 50 percent responsibility, and 50 percent rests with the individuals. He's the one who commits the crime. Make it tougher on him. Not the supplier.'
— Phil Lauri

The insurance protects retailers in the event they sell liquor to a minor or an intoxicated person who is later involved in an incident causing bodily harm, providing it is shown the liquor was the "approximate cause of the injury, damage or death," according to Ken Wozniak of Michigan's Liquor Control Commission.

The Dram Shop Act of 1933 provided that retailers assume liability for the incident once a victim or the survivors of the victim sue the person who was drinking, Wozniak said. "This new wrinkle in the law assures financial responsibility on behalf of those who sell alcoholic beverages."

Until now, the purchase of liquor liability insurance by retailers has been optional.

The Salahs have always carried li... ...ility insurance. While packaged li... ...or sales constitute only a small ... portion of their overall business, they say their rates have increased ten-fold since the Salahs opened the store in 1982.

Phil Lauri, owner of Grub Street in Troy, admits to being in a "vulnerable" position. Lauri's 225-seat restaurant competes for business in an area dominated by what he describes as eating conglomerates.

"We're small. It's pretty tough making a profit."

Lauri carries liability insurance to guard against possible law suits. Last year his premiums were "in excess of $5,000," an increase that he said was about 20 percent higher than the previous year.

ARMAND DiCAPITE, owner of Bottle & Basket shops in Bloomfield Township and Birmingham, also carries liability insurance and said he has since he opened his first shop in 1951.

In the past four years DiCapite's premiums have risen more than five times in cost, from $8,000 charged by Travelers Insurance in 1984 to $40,000 charged this past year by Mount Vernon Insurance.

Years ago everybody carried liability insurance because the cost was hardly anything. Everyone is fighting it now because costs have gone up so much," DiCapite said.

Annual profits, he added, are not keeping pace with increased insurance rates. "I'm just working harder, and it's more difficult to make a profit. People can hardly afford to stay in business."

During 27 years of business DiCapite said he has never been cited for improper liquor sales from the state's Liquor Control Commission, which regulates sales.

Mike Odetalla, who has owned the Canton Party Store on Michigan Avenue for 10 years, also has never been cited.

"That should count for something, like it does for auto insurance," said Odetalla, adding his liability insurance rates have increased from $500 for one-half million dollars in coverage in 1984 to $6,000 for $50,000 coverage this year.

Insurance rates, Odetalla said, should reflect number of violations, with retailers like himself whose records are clear being eligible for lower rates.

But Odetalla feels lucky. "The guy down the street (who owns a tavern) is hit (with increased rates) a lot harder than me."

LIQUOR LIABILITY rates are based on the volume of liquor sales in an establishment and certain additional factors like whether the facility has a pool table or live entertainment, according to Teri Creamer, director of research and analysis for the Michigan Insurance Bureau.

Hence, owners of party stores and taverns whose primary income is from liquor sales pay higher rates than retailers like Salah who also has income from drug items or Lauri who also has income from food.

In addition, profits on the sales of distilled liquors are established by Michigan law at 17 percent a bottle, according to Wozniak. Retailers who own party stores must rely on increased sales for increased profits to pay increased insurance rates.

"Rates are higher. There is no question about that. And there is a wide disparity between them. But it is difficult for us to say whether they are appropriate or not," Creamer said.

Twenty-one companies in Michigan now sell some form of liability insurance and a new major source of liability coverage is Limited Liability offered by the Michigan Licensed Beverage Association, she added.

Realistic savings will ease retiring

monthly income of $1,700 in inflation-adjusted dollars in retirement income at age 55. In addition, he has a vested pension benefit from a previous employer of $600 per month. Thus, almost two-thirds of his monthly income is provided through his pension benefits.

Jim would prefer to ignore Social Security in the calculations. Boyce concurs.

"IT'S NOT that I expect Social Security to disappear," Boyce said, "but I believe benefit levels will be gradually decreased and the age of eligibility raised. Since Jim will be retiring at age 55, he will be without Social Security coverage for a number of years anyway. He should look at it as a bonus at age 62 or 65, a possible cushion against higher-than-expected inflation."

Boyce tackles the calculations of how much the Wests need to put aside in personal savings.

"Realizing that any retirement projection involves a very complex set of calculations which are periodically reviewed, it is nonetheless possible to give a shorthand method providing simple guidelines.

"IT APPEARS that they will need to generate about $1,000 per month from investments, adjusted for inflation. This is $12,000 per year in current dollars. At an 8-percent return, it takes $150,000 to generate $12,000 per year ($12,000 / .08).

"Now, after they pay their $15,000 tax bill, they have saved about $50,000. Subtracting this from $150,000, they need to save another $100,000 (again, adjusted for inflation) in the 16 years between now and retirement. Divide the number of years (16) into the needed amount in current dollars ($100,000), and the answer gives the amount to save this year — $5,625.

"This is just under 10 percent of their income and should be achievable. Each year as inflation pushes their income up, they should strive to maintain that 10-percent savings rate — so the actual dollars they save each year will increase. If eligible, the best place for them to save this amount is in the employer-sponsored 401(k) plan.

"ADMITTEDLY, THIS is a very rough estimate, and it will need to be periodically reviewed and adjusted. There are a number of factors that this calculation ignores. Nonetheless, for someone planning on retiring in their early to mid-50s, this provides a good starting point."

McCosh leans about fine Corinthian leather auto talk

Dan McCosh

The expansion of Cobo Hall in Detroit has raised hopes that next year the Detroit Auto Show will be as large as Chicago's — which is to say large enough to rank with the largest auto shows in the world.

Maybe so. But in the greater scheme of things, Chicago's main purpose is to act as soapbox of the auto industry, a forum of trends and statements that has developed over the years for reasons other than a booth count.

Chicago, for example, is where you find out that Ann Landers is shorter than she looks in her picture, where you finally discover what Corinthian leather is — the kind of stuff that gives you a feel for what's really going on in this industry.

IT'S BEEN a better spring than anyone expected although the UAW pickets from Kenosha protesting the pending shutdown of the old AMC plant there found this little comfort.

The Kenosha shutdown overwhelmed Chrysler's attempt to show two new cars that will be built in a new Illinois plant it co-owns with its Japanese affiliate Mitsubishi. Chrysler chairman Gerald Greenwald showed a touch of statesmanship with his even-handed fielding of questions at the largest press conference at the show.

But it was clear that the gloss is off Chrysler's "turnaround" image, and it will be a lot tougher to handle the cuts at AMC than it was at Chrysler itself during the bailout era.

CHRYSLER AND FORD showed off new cars still a year away from going on sale to the public — a rare happening that underscored the basic nervousness haunting executive suites. The glut of new cars, new plants and a shrinking market seems to call for extreme measures.

Which is why there was considerable debate over Japanese pricing practices in the past year — when the sinking dollar should have forced Japanese prices upward. Instead, many Japanese prices have stayed low or with minimal hikes, bringing charges of dumping, mainly of Japanese pickup trucks, on the U.S. market.

At least two auto sales executives, from Mazda and Toyota, called attention to the effect rising insurance rates are having on certain car lines — the first time I've heard a semi-official pronouncement on the subject. Then GM president Robert Stempel tossed in a warning about pending U.S. legislation that would further tighten emission controls — at considerable expense, according to Stempel.

THE BUS driver that took us to McCormick Place was having trouble with the windshield washers on his Chevy, and Ms. Landers thought Stempel was a great public speaker.

But it wasn't until I sat down at a Chrysler dinner with a familiar looking gentleman who not only was wearing a tux but knew how to tie his own bow tie that I got an answer to a question that has been on my mind for years.

Corinthian leather, it turns out, is from the soft underbelly of the cow, which was used for the upholstery of the 1975 Chrysler Cordoba at about the same time Ricardo Montalban was doing "Don Juan in Hell" on the Broadway stage.

The rest is history.

Compounding can cost you money on CD

Sid Mittra finances and you

Recently John Jones, an irate client, complained about a local bank shortchanging him on his certificate of deposit (CD) interest.

He bought a CD from a bank that advertised a high interest rate. John assumed that the first year's interest would be added to his principal as the basis for figuring interest payable for the second year.

That wasn't done, thanks to the sale of the little known simple-interest CD, which permitted the bank to legally avoid compounding the first year's interest.

Table I compares the outcome of simple interest vs. compound interest CDs.

IT SHOWS that on a two-year CD paying 7.25 percent simple interest, John received $53.00 ($1,503-$1,450), or 0.53 percent less than what he would have received on a compound interest CD.

Put differently, the bank offering two-year CDs at a 7.25-percent simple interest overstated its rate by 53 basis points (0.53 percent) when compared to a CD that compounded the interest.

Another point worth noting is that the difference in interest rate widens as the frequency increases from annual to daily compounding. This is clearly seen in Table II.

SIMPLY STATED, the bank compounding your interest daily and offering 6.77 percent interest on a two-year CD is paying exactly the same rate as the other bank that is paying 7.25 percent simple interest on that CD.

Shopping for CD rates can be tricky. Consult your financial planner, who should be able to help you select the best CD for you.

Equity Investment. The ZIP code printed in my earlier column was in error. If you would like information on this topic, please send your address, telephone number and $1.44 in stamps to Sid Mittra, Oakland University, Rochester 48309-4401.

Trade pact before congress

The Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association is urging Congress to approve the U.S.-Canada Free Trade Agreement.

The Free Trade Agreement has been signed and is before Congress.

The agreement offers the opportunity for free trading for foreign automotive companies now establishing plants in North America, if their products contain a sufficient level of North American content.

A key factor in the new agreement, Hanna said, is Canada's removal of its duty-remission program for autos. In the early 1980s, the Canadian government began offering a new series of duty remissions as an investment lure for Japanese and other auto companies interested in setting up operations in North America.

Under the agreement, one form of duty remission — which companies earned as a reward for exporting from Canada to the U.S. — will end immediately. A second form of remission, which the Canadian government granted to companies in exchange for specific investment commitments, will be phased out.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

COMMISSION ORDER CFI-104.88

(Under authority of Act 230, Public Acts 1925, as amended)

STATEWIDE TROUT AND SALMON REGULATIONS

Under the authority of Act 230, Public Acts 1925, as amended, being Sections 300.1 to 300.5 of the Michigan Compiled Laws, the Natural Resource Commission at its December 4, 1987, meeting, ordered that for a period of five years no person shall possess, take or attempt to take any species of trout or salmon from any of the waters of this state except by hook and line during the open seasons prescribed and within the minimum size limits and maximum possession limits indicated below.

Statewide open seasons on all trout streams and designated trout lakes shall be from the last Saturday in April through September 30 (longer on trout streams designated by the Director for extended fishing under Act 165) on all trout and salmon; statewide open seasons on all other inland waters, the Saginaw River, and the Great Lakes and connecting waters shall be any time for all trout and salmon, except on Lake Huron and its tributary streams and on Lake Michigan and its tributary streams where the season on lake trout is from May 1 through August 15. Also, the following areas are established as refuge areas for lake trout rehabilitation and are closed to the taking, keeping, and sport fishing for lake trout:

Lake Michigan (north part)
All waters enclosed within an area bounded by a line commencing at a point (45°30' latitude, 85°15' longitude) 7¾ miles due west of the northwest corner of Section 30, T36N, R6W, (Emmet County, Michigan) on the Lake Michigan shoreline, then proceeding due west for 12 miles (to 45°30'N latitude, 85°30' longitude), then proceeding due north for 6 miles (to 45°35'N latitude, 85°30' longitude), then proceeding due west for 8 miles (to 45°35'N latitude, 85°40' longitude), then proceeding due north for 11¾ miles (to 45°45'N latitude, 85°40' longitude), then proceeding due west 16 miles (to 45°45'N, 86°00' longitude), then proceeding due south for 40 miles (to 45°10'N latitude, 86°00' longitude), then proceeding due east for 8½ miles to 45°10'N latitude, 85°50' longitude), then proceeding due north for 6 miles (to 45°15'N latitude, 85°40' longitude), then proceeding due east for 7½ miles (to 45°15'N latitude, 85°40' longitude), then proceeding due north for 6 miles (to 45°20'N latitude, 85°40' longitude), then proceeding due east 16½ miles (to 45°20'N latitude, 85°20' longitude), then proceeding due north 6 miles (to 45°25'N latitude, 85°20' longitude), then proceeding due east 4 miles (to 45°20'N latitude, 85°15' longitude), then proceeding northly to the point of beginning (45°30'N latitude, 85°15' longitude).

Lake Michigan (Mid Lake)
All waters enclosed within an area bounded by a line commencing at a point 15 miles (43°40' latitude, 87°50' longitude) due west of the northwest corner of Section 36, T15N, R19W, on the Lake Michigan shoreline (Oceana County), then proceeding 15 miles due west to the Michigan-Wisconsin boundary, then proceeding southerly along the line to a point (43°00'N latitude, 87°05' longitude) due west of the northwest corner of Section 17, T7N, R16W, (Ottawa County) on the Lake Michigan shore, then proceeding due east 13 miles (to 43°00'N latitude, 86°50' longitude), and then northerly to the point of beginning (43°40'N latitude, 86°50' longitude).

Lake Huron (North end)
All waters enclosed within an area bounded by a line commencing at the southwest corner of Section 17, T14N, R5E (Chippewa County) on the Lake Huron shoreline for the point of beginning and proceeding due south 15 miles (to 45°45'N latitude, 83°50' longitude), then proceeding due east 8 miles (to 45°45'N latitude, 83°40' longitude), then proceeding 6 miles due south (to 45°40'N latitude, 83°40' longitude), then proceeding due east to the Michigan-Ontario border, then proceeding northwesterly and then northeasterly along said border to a point due south of the southeast corner of Section 1, T41N, R7E (Chippewa County), on the said shoreline, and westerly along said shoreline to the point of beginning.

Size limits shall be 8 inches in Lower Peninsula streams, 7 inches on Upper Peninsula streams, and 10 inches on all lakes. The possession limit for trout and salmon shall be 5 fish singly or in combination but no more than 2 lake trout or splake from Lake Michigan and its tributary streams or 3 lake trout or splake from Lake Superior and Lake Huron and their tributary streams, including the St. Marys River, except that an additional 5 brook or brown trout or pink salmon may be taken from tributary streams, including the St. Marys River, from the last Saturday in April through September 30.

In addition to one day's possession limit of salmon and trout, a person may possess an additional two days' possession limit of processed salmon. For the purposes of this Commission Order, the term processed means:

(a) Canned in a sealed container
(b) Cured by smoking or drying
(c) Frozen in a solid state

Any processed salmon or trout aboard a vessel on the water or at dockside shall be included in the daily possession limit.

This order supercedes the Commission order, entitled "Statewide Trout and Salmon Regulations" effective April 1, 1987, and given number CFI-104.87.

This order shall take effect on April 1, 1988, and shall remain effective through March 31, 1993.

Winning drama is about losers

Performances of the Theater Guild of Livonia-Redford production of "Getting Out" continue through Saturday, Feb. 27, at the playhouse in Redford. For ticket information call 522-8057.

Chris (Pistra) Drogosch will nail you to your seat with her portrayal of the imprisoned teenager, Arlie.

The Theater Guild of Livonia-Redford's latest production is "Getting Out," a play about losers. The play itself, however, as presented by the innovative TGLR, is anything but a loser. Especially in the categories of acting and directing, this version of "Getting Out" is a real winner.

Written by Marsha Norman ("'night, Mother" and "Third and Oak"), "Getting Out" shows Arlie/Arlene Holsclaw at two stages in her life: as an abused and abusive adolescent, and as a young woman recently paroled, trying to escape the prison of her past so that she can make a new life for herself. There's nothing new or original, of course, about the story itself. What sets "Getting Out" apart are its hard-to-forget characters.

Chris (Pistra) Drogosch will nail you to your seat with her portrayal of the imprisoned teenager, Arlie. Arlie is like a sick animal, caged and badly treated — vicious, hurtful, instinctively lashing out at anyone who dares to stick a hand in the cage. It's not easy to make such a belligerent character a sympathetic one, but Drogosch, with some astute direction from Rebecca Smith, manages to carry it off throughout.

As Arlene, Collene Hackney faces a similar challenge. Colorless and frail in appearance, living in hardscrabble poverty and almost constantly put upon by those who won't forget her past and won't let her forget it, either, the character treads an intensely fine line between poignant and merely pitiable. But Hackney's Arlene, imbued, as Norman intended, with just the right amount of dignity and grit, never crosses the line. In the last act, during a disturbing scene in which she reveals how Arlie "died," Hackney is at her heart-stopping best.

In the last act, during a disturbing scene in which she reveals how Arlie "died," Collene Hackney is at her heart-stopping best.

OTHER MEMBERS of the well-directed cast include an appealing David Kelley as Bennie, the lonely prison guard who comes to care for Arlie; Cynthia Betlej as the hard-bitten, beleaguered mother of Arlie/Arlene, and Nancy Matejak as the unpretentious Ruby, who eventually befriends Arlene. Looking mean enough to kick a sick puppy around, the darkly handsome Alan Madeleine does an admirable job as Arlene's manipulative boyfriend, Carl.

As to peripherals, some awkward sound effects detract slightly from the overall quality of the production. (The recording of prison doors clanging shut — heard several times throughout the play — always sounds like a recording of prison doors clanging shut, and background music played simultaneously with a spoken announcement over a p.a. system at the prison is distracting.)

Costumes are nicely done but, in the make-up department, some of the prison guards appear to have gotten a little heavy-handed.

She handles keyboard, lively pianobar crowd

By Chuck Moss
special writer

Kathy Morrow plays piano at the Kingsley Inn in Bloomfield Hills. She performed at the pavilion of the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island before coming to the Kingsley.

IT'S ONE O'CLOCK in the morning, somewhere between Saturday and Sunday, and the crowd is sparse. Snowdrifts and traveler's advisories daunt, but inside the lights are low, and the curved bar is still in business.

Intimates whisper in the darkness. A curl of cigarette smoke wafts lazily upward. A convivial crowd is gathered around a blonde figure seated at a piano. Someone makes a laughing request and the air fills with "As Time Goes By." The ceiling fans revolve slowly . . . . Of all the gin mills in the world, I hadda walk into this one.

Actually, the locale isn't Rick's, but the Kingsley Inn in Bloomfield Hills. Neither is the pianist Sam, but a lively and congenial performer named Kathy Morrow, who can handle a keyboard and a wee-hours singalong crowd with equal aplomb.

"It's a matter of rapport. When you get a number of people sitting around a piano, anything can happen." Morrow's voice is full of energy, and her eyes flash large and vivacious as she talks about her job.

"IT'S A MATTER of spontaneity. You never know from night to night . . . sometimes people are there for entertainment's sake, some people want music with dinner, others are just there to meet people. It's a different crowd every night and a different show."

Warm, animated and down to earth, Morrow in person is even more vibrant than her energetic stage presence.

"I haven't been doing this all that long," she grins frankly. "So it's still new, still a lot of fun."

Although sharp and professional, the slender Nebraska native actually has been in the piano bar business for only three years. "About three and a half," she laughingly admits. "I was a theater major at the University of Nebraska, and when I graduated did a lot of musical comedy." Her eyes sparkle. "A lot of musical comedy.

"I did rep, dinner theater, then got connected with a jazz band and sang with them. Moved to Minneapolis . . ." She counts on her fingers with mock seriousness. "Then I played piano at Vail, and got asked to play at the Grand Hotel on your Mackinac Island. From there I wound up here."

Morrow confesses she learned about Mackinac Island from the movie "Somewhere in Time." "I got turned on by the island, and the hotel is amazing. I was a little rowdy for the main dining room, so they put me in the pavilion. That was perfect."

ON A TYPICAL night, Morrow's act will run the gamut "from Cole Porter to anything." While she doesn't really know every song, Morrow will try any request. "If you can hum it, I can probably play it."

She's a self-described night owl, whose act runs from 8:30 p.m. to 1:15 a.m. Tuesdays-Saturdays in the Kingsley Inn bar. Look for the cheery crowd of folks, leaning on the piano, who appear to know each other.

"Don't get me wrong. Some days are easier than others, but it's all a matter of attitude. If you like what you're doing, it's not really a job," she says, flashing another blizzard-melting smile.

WINNERS CIRCLE

BY LAURIE KIPP

Last month, a Super Lotto Jackpot reached nearly $29 million and the drawing produced a record number of winners sharing Second and Third place awards. With many new players participating, questions came up on how to collect Lottery prizes. The following addresses such happy occasions.

Q: How does a Lottery winner collect prizes from the various Lottery games?

A: The process is easy, but varies by game and prize amount. Prizes of $600 or under from the instant games (the rub-off ones) can be claimed from ANY LOTTERY AGENT by presenting a signed, winning ticket. Prizes of $600 or under from the Daily 3, Daily 4 or Super Lotto can be collected from ANY AGENT SELLING THOSE GAMES.

Q: What if the prize is more than $600?

A: If a prize is over $600 but not a Super Lotto Jackpot winner, it can be claimed two ways. A winner can go to any Lottery agent who sells the game and fill out a claim form. The retailer forwards it to the Lansing Lottery office and a check is mailed to the winner in about 3-4 weeks.

Q: What's the second way?

A: To get the prize check faster, a winner of more than $600 can go to any of seven Lottery offices located in Bridgeport, Detroit, Grayling, Lansing, Marquette, Southfield and Wyoming. The claim is usually processed immediately and a check is given on the spot.

Q: What if I'm a Jackpot winner?

A: Should you win a Jackpot prize, contact Lottery headquarters in Lansing to make arrangements to claim your prize. The phone number is (517) 887-6840. Jackpot winners generally receive their first payments within a day or so, with many check presentations made at the retailer's store where the winning ticket was purchased.

Q: How long do I have to claim my prize?

A: All winners have up to one year to claim their prizes. After that, the money reverts back to the Lottery's state School Aid Fund contributions, which aid K-12 education.

Q: Are taxes taken out of winnings?

A: There are no state or local taxes on Michigan Lottery prizes. For prizes over $5,000, the Internal Revenue Service requires a 20 percent Federal income tax withholding.

For asking the question leading to this column, Dorothy Erickson of Manistee will receive 50 free tickets for the Lottery's current instant game, "3 Cards Up."

If you have a question not yet covered in these columns, send it to: "Winners Circle," Michigan Lottery, P.O. Box 30077, Lansing, MI 48909.

CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH
BOARD OF TRUSTEES - REGULAR MEETING
February 9, 1988

Supervisor Breen called the meeting to order at 7:30 p.m. and led in the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag. All members were present (Smith, Horton arrived at 7:35 and Abe Munfakh arrived at 8:40).

Mrs. Hulsing requested the following correction to the minutes of the regular meeting of January 26, 1988.

Page 4, Item 5 - the motion reads:

"Mr. Pruner moved Resolution No. 88-1-26-7 regarding cash advance funds from the County Work Program Account No. 2." Supported by Mr. Munfakh.

The correction to the motion is:

"from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to Plymouth Township to be transferred to Wayne County Work Program Account No. 2."

The corrected motion will now read:

"Mr. Pruner moved Resolution No. 88-1-26-7 regarding cash advance funds from Michigan Department of Natural Resources to Plymouth Township to be transferred to Wayne County Work Program Account No. 2." Supported by Mr. Munfakh.

Mr. Pruner moved to approve the minutes of the regular meeting of January 26, 1988 with the one correction as noted. Supported by Mr. Irvine. Ayes all.

Mr. Irvine moved to approve the agenda for the regular meeting of February 9, 1988 as submitted. Supported by Mrs. Hulsing. Ayes all.

Supervisor Breen presented a proclamation proclaiming the week of March 21, 1988 through March 27, 1988 as "Help the Mentally Retarded Week" to Mr. James P. Phillips of the Knights of Columbus.

Mr. Irvine moved to approve the concept of the Cluster Housing Option requested by David Sibbold, Joanne Hulce, Application No. 876, subject to final approval on satisfactory detailed plans and arrangements being presented, the paving of McClumpha Road and consolidation of proposed 31 units or reduction of said units. IF DIABETES IS A DISEASE YOU CAN LIVE WITH, WHY DID 150,000 DIE LAST YEAR?

Since 1 out of every 20 people has diabetes, you probably know someone who lives with it.

But what you probably don't know is what it's like to deal with diabetes: to have to stick to a diet every single day; to constantly monitor your blood sugar level; or to take insulin injections several times daily.

And you probably didn't know that diabetes can lead to other diseases, like heart disease, kidney disease and blindness.

Or, that every year 150,000 die.

Help us find a cure for diabetes. Before you know someone who dies from it.

Local biochemist examines why some drugs don't work

By Phillip A. Sherman
staff writer

Larry Matherly is a biochemist for the Michigan Cancer Foundation.

The Livonia resident rotates leukemia-filled test tubes in his lab with the same nonchalance as a garage mechanic rotating tires.

As the tubes spin, he thinks aloud and says the public has false hopes about cancer cures, largely perpetuated by the press.

And tacked to the side of his lab refrigerator is a photocopy of an article from the Weekly World News, an Enquirer-type tabloid.

The headline says "Photo of Elvis Cured My Cancer." The handwriting in the margin belongs to one of Matherly's colleagues and says "Possible project material here."

"We're trying to ask some very basic questions about how drugs work — how they accumulate in tumor cells," Matherly said.

'We're trying to ask some very basic questions about how drugs work — how they accumulate in tumor cells.'

—Larry Matherly
biochemist
Michigan Cancer Foundation

It's not necessarily his job to discover new cancer-fighting drugs. Instead, he's charged with finding out why some drugs don't work.

THIS TAKES time. It can take years to gather sufficient information about the way a drug works to warrant lab and animal studies, which must be completed before clinical work with humans can begin, Matherly said.

It took Matherly, 33, years to learn to fight cancer. He graduated from New Mexico State University with a bachelor of science degree in biology in 1976.

By 1981, he had completed doctorate work in biochemistry at Pennsylvania State University. He has been honored for his work by several groups, including the American Association of Cancer Research and the Leukemia Society of America.

"AZT (the most promising AIDS drug to date) was an exception. It was pushed through very rapidly but that is not the norm," Matherly said, explaining that public outcry almost forced the release of a drug for AIDS treatment.

"We're sort of at the tip of the iceberg to understand what cancer's all about and what our science is all about," he said. He cited several examples about research for neoplastic disease — the clinical name for cancer.

A common misconception is that one drug, once discovered and developed, will kill all types of cancer without hurting normal, healthy cells.

"And the media has a tendency to portray it that way — that it will be cured by one fell swoop."

In fact, Matherly and his colleagues develop one drug with the idea that it will fight one particular type of cancer.

"THE PUBLIC needs to know it (cancer) can't be grouped in one category. It is a diverse and heterogeneous disease.

"The best approach is to hone therapy to individual cases, which is a monumental task because the disease can become immune to therapy," he said.

Matherly narrows his clinical focus by trying to define how and why tumors are sensitive to drugs. He also tries to find out if a drug is converted to another drug when it hits a tumor.

"Methotrexate is one of the more promising drugs that is infused and goes into tumor and normal cells," Matherly said. However, Methotrexate doesn't easily penetrate a cell's membrane, or protective outer coating.

"The problem is that the cells become resistant. The cells mutate to forms not sensitive to the drug," Matherly said. Another drug, Trimetrexate, "isn't metabolized in cells and can get into cells more easily than Methotrexate.

"But the problem with Trimetrexate is that once the drug leaves the body, the effects are reversed, which means you must have sustained levels of the drug," he added.

In either case, Matherly said unless a drug can kill all tumor cells, the others will mutate and won't necessarily respond to the same drug.

Light helps cure winter blues

AP — Winter is a predictable time of year — a time of holidays, celebration and snowfall. For many people, it is also a time of depression.

As the days grow shorter, the moods turn blue. The "wintertime blues" are often resolved in springtime, with the return of extended daylight.

This phenomenon, known as "seasonal affective disorder," or SAD, is now recognized by the American Psychiatric Association as a psychiatric syndrome.

"SAD can last from fall until midspring, depending on the weather," said Dr. James Gaddy, a research psychologist at Thomas Jefferson University. "Studies show that SAD often results in substantial loss of productivity or difficulties in interpersonal relationships. In extreme cases, it can be severely incapacitating."

Seasonal affective disorder is characterized by withdrawal, social isolation, depression, a craving for carbohydrates, weight gain, a tendency to sleep longer, a loss of energy and decreased sexual drive.

Phototherapy, or exposure to bright light, has been shown to reverse the effects of SAD. At Jefferson, the majority of people treated last year have responded favorably to therapy, said Dr. Karl Doghramji, director of the Sleep Disorders Center.

PRIVATE ROAD CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE ORDINANCE

An Ordinance for the public health, safety and welfare to set minimum standards for the construction and maintenance of private roads within the Charter Township of Plymouth, which are not intended, now or in the future, to be dedicated to the public. In addition, the ordinance provides penalties for its violation.

The requirements of this ordinance shall apply to those vehicular accessways which, by definition of this ordinance, may be classified as private roads and may be required to obtain site plan approval under Plymouth Township Zoning Ordinance No. 87, such as multiple family projects, cluster housing projects, etc. as well as private roads which may be created as a result of the division of lots and/or parcels.

The ordinance requires that private roads are to be constructed in accordance with the latest addition of the Michigan Department of Transportation MDOT Standard Specifications with certain pavement, drainage and easement requirements based on the number of residences served by the road. In addition, testing requirements are set forth. Maintenance agreements, site plans and street signs are required. A FULL COPY OF THE ORDINANCE IS AVAILABLE IN THE OFFICES OF THE TOWNSHIP CLERK DURING NORMAL BUSINESS HOURS. 42350 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, Michigan 48170. Telephone No. 453-3840.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT PROGRAM

Notice is hereby given that a public hearing concerning the Community Development Block Grant Program will be held by the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth, at 7:30 p.m. in the assembly room of the township hall which is located at 42350 Ann Arbor Road, on March 8, 1988. Telephone No. 453-3167.

The purpose of the public hearing will be to afford the public the opportunity to place before the board any proposed use of the 1988 Community Development Block Grant Funds and to review the re-allocation of existing 1986 and 1987 funds.

Preliminary indications from the Wayne County Office of Block Grant, Wayne County Community Development Block Grant Program are that the 1988 funding could be reduced and may range from $92,000 to $80,000.

The Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth, upon completion of the Public Hearing, may determine the use of the 1988 funding and re-allocate the remaining 1986 and 1987 funds. The township is tentatively considering to utilize the 1988 Block Grant Funding and re-allocate the 1986 and 1987 funds in the following manner:

1. Administration of the Block Grant Program (10%) of base allocations — for 1988 Program Funds only.
2. Community development activities.

Any written comments regarding proposed use of 1988 funds and re-allocation of 1986 and 1987 funding, or comments regarding the tentative considered utilization of 1988 funds and re-allocation of remaining 1986 and 1987 funds, should be directed to James D. Anelewicz, Director of Planning, 42350 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth, Michigan 48170.

A defense against cancer can be cooked up in your kitchen.

There is evidence that diet and cancer are related. Follow these modifications in your daily diet to reduce chances of getting cancer:

1. Eat more high-fiber foods such as fruits and vegetables and whole grain cereals.
2. Include dark green and deep yellow fruits and vegetables rich in vitamins A and C.
3. Include cabbage, broccoli, brussels sprouts, kohlrabi and cauliflower.
4. Be moderate in consumption of salt-cured, smoked, and nitrite-cured foods.
5. Cut down on total fat intake from animal sources and fats and oils.
6. Avoid obesity.
7. Be moderate in consumption of alcoholic beverages.

Rocks reach peak in upset of Churchill

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Michelle Fortier bumps the ball to a teammate on this play, but she also is one of Canton's main attackers, having four kills in Monday's second game. Karen Keenan is the player in the background.

Coaches long for the time when their team plays the well-rounded, superb game for which they've practiced.

In the case of Plymouth Salem's volleyball team, that time was Monday night when the Rocks took on Livonia Churchill, the first-place team in the Western Division of the Western Lakes.

Salem knocked off the Chargers in three games, 15-13, 9-15, 15-11. The Rocks were down 5-10 in the first game before rallying to win.

"Everyone played well," Salem coach Betty Smith said. "Things started to come together last night. We played as well as we have all season."

Several players made key contributions as evidenced by the distribution of offensive statistics. Asaka Motoyama had 14 kills in 22 attempts, Roseann Sumpter was 12-for-21 and Laura Porterfield and Aimee Hayden had six kills apiece.

Kara Cummings had her best game as a setter, Smith said, and also scored five points on dumps when she hit the second ball over the net instead of setting it for an attacker. In addition, she served six aces, five of which came in the third game.

"We played real good defense, and everybody covered for each other," Smith said. "They did all the things we've been working for.

"The drills are beginning to pay off in the games. They're taking all the bits and pieces and putting them into the games."

The Rocks, 4-7 in the league and 10-10 overall, were not as successful Tuesday when they met Westland John Glenn, however. The Rockets scored a 15-7, 16-14 victory over Salem.

"I think we were a little stale after playing so hard and so well Monday," Smith said. "It's hard to pool all of your resources again the next day.

"We're working on that, and that's something that has to happen all the time now."

Sumpter and Motoyama had four kills apiece, Sue Stout and Hayden three each. Marci Thomas came off the bench in the second game to contribute two kills and two blocks.

Motoyama served for five points in the second game to bring Salem back from a 3-7 deficit into an 8-7 lead, and Stout rallied the Rocks to within 12-13 after Glenn had gone ahead again 13-8.

"Serve reception got to us," Smith said. "They didn't serve real hard, but it was in between the front and back row and the kids began guessing 'Is it my ball or your ball?' "

The Rocks were 2-2 in pool play and failed to make the playoffs Saturday in the Trenton Invitational. Salem lost to Clawson (4-15, 4-15), beat Detroit Central (15-3, 15-10), lost to Trenton (3-15, 14-16) and defeated Adrian (16-14, 15-9).

Sumpter had 31 kills out of 71 attempts, Motoyama was 17-of-48 and Hayden 8-of-40. Cummings made 52 assists, and Porterfield, Cummings and Sumpter had four aces apiece.

JOHN GLENN 15-15, CANTON 11-8: The Chiefs couldn't solve the John Glenn attack either, losing a league dual match Monday night.

"We came up against a real good team," Canton coach Allie Suffety said. "They don't make mistakes. They're not overpowering, but they return the ball and wait for you to make the mistakes."

The Chiefs, 5-5 in the league and overall, were 5-of-20 attacking in the first game and 6-of-16 in the second. Michelle Fortier had four kills in the second and Alissa Huth four assists.

Canton also competed in the Trenton tournament Saturday, losing two games and splitting two.

The Chiefs were beaten by Birmingham Seaholm (4-15, 11-15) and Saline (13-15, 0-15), and they split with Flushing (5-15, 15-13) and Gibraltar Carlson (15-7, 6-15).

CC looks tough to beat under either mat format

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

An awesome performance such as Catholic Central wrestlers displayed in last Saturday's district tournament is nothing new to the Shamrocks. But the ramifications are.

CC had seven champions in the Plymouth Salem district and qualified 10 wrestlers for the Class A regional, also to be contested at Salem, on Saturday.

In years past, such overwhelming numbers would have made the Shamrocks a solid contender for the state team championship, also. But that was when individuals wrestled for themselves and the team simultaneously.

The two are separate events this year, with Michigan conducting tournaments for individual wrestlers and another for teams.

The Shamrocks, rated No. 8 in the nation by USA Today and the top-ranked squad in the state, have made a good start on the road to individual success and should be favored to win the first team title under the new format.

"IT'S HARD TO get accustomed to it, because you're used to thinking your strength is in the numbers you take up (to state)," said CC coach Mike Rodriguez, a veteran of many seasons under the old combination system.

"But the dual meet is still to come. You used to figure it would take 10 to win (the state) and that number would get cut down on the way up."

The team competition began Wednesday with district tournaments, and the regionals will be Wednesday, Feb. 24.

With so many surviving the district, the Shamrocks, who have won nine of 10 tournaments, are certain to have a big impact on the individual tourney, too.

Heavyweight Toby Heaton, Jay Helm (119), Matt Helm (126), Brendon Rock (138), Mike Rodriguez (145), Chris Lemanski (167) and Lee Krueger (198) were the best in their respective weight classes at the district. Kevin Rowe (98) and Mike Gentile (112) were second and Ted Rieple (185) third.

HEATON IS 51-1, Krueger 51-1-1, Matt Helm 47-2, Gentile 43-6-1, Rodriguez 40-5, Rieple 44-10, Jay Helm 40-6, Rock 33-6, Rowe 35-17 and Lemanski 28-3-1.

"It's conceivable seven guys could win it by themselves," said Rodriguez, adding Gentile has an excellent shot, too. "This year we're very, very strong."

While Heaton is the defending state champion, Matt Helm was fifth at 126 last year and Krueger sixth at 167. Furthermore, CC is a young team; Heaton, Rock and Lemanski are the only seniors among the 10 going to the regional.

Livonia Stevenson will take six wrestlers to the regional, Salem five, Plymouth Canton three, Redford Union two, Farmington and Livonia Franklin one apiece. In addition, North Farmington qualified one at the Walled Lake Western district.

Stevenson's Mike Schrock (119), Kurt Will (145), Mike Farr (155) and Jarrod Wilkinson (167) took second place, Dave Wojciechowski (105) was third and Brandon Mardossian (98) fourth. Six is the most the Spartans have qualified since Don Berg became coach in 1981.

"I'VE GONE TO a couple regionals with only one kid," Berg said. "It's going to be different being there with so many.

"It was the culmination of a good effort by some boys who've been with me for three years and some newcomers. They decided to wrestle on Saturday."

While the Spartans were excluded from the winner's circle, they had four who took runner-up honors after close calls against excellent opponents.

Wojciechowski narrowly missed getting to the championship round when he lost a 2-1 decision in overtime to the eventual winner from Southfield Lathrup. Will battled CC's Rodriguez, the Catholic League champ, for three periods in the final before losing a 4-3 decision.

"They all could have been first," said Berg of the four runners-up, "which really would have blown my mind."

CANTON'S TOM Flores, ranked among the top five in the state and a bonafide contender at 105 pounds, won the district title over Rowe, and Farmington's Rob Woodbeck was the 132-pound champ, winning a decision over Canton freshman Liam Rentz in the final.

Salem did well in the lower weights, with Jeff Delbeke (105) taking second, Dave Mang (112) third, Todd Bourlier (119) fourth, Mike Shumate (126) third and Steve Burlison (155) fourth.

The Rocks might have qualified six, also, had 98-pound Matt Konenski not suffered torn ligaments in a shoulder. He won his first two bouts, including the one in which he was injured, but had to withdraw.

"We felt we had some other kids who could have gotten through," Salem coach Ron Krueger said, "but it seems we met up with CC at every turn and got clobbered.

"I felt we could have gotten 8-9 or out had we not run into CC at the times that we did."

KRUEGER ADDED the district competition was above average and there were "no weak people there" with teams such as South Lyon, Novi and Ann Arbor Pioneer complementing the Observerland teams. The finals didn't get under way until 8 p.m., because there were so few pins and many of the matches went into overtime.

Others advancing from the Salem district included Canton's Jerry French (heavyweight) and Rentz; Redford Union's John Nicholas (132) and Chris Woodbeck (138); and Livonia Franklin heavyweight Frank Johnson.

North's Zaim Cummalaj was second at 198 pounds in the WLW district, losing a decision to Oakland County champion Curt Phillips of Lake Orion. Cummalaj goes on to the regional at Clio.

The survivors of the Temperance Bedford district come to Salem for the regional, which should make for quite a competitive event, Krueger said.

"It's the second weekend of the year we'll see fireworks in Plymouth," he said. "We won't see them outside, but they'll be just as big, I'm sure."

Salem victim of Falcons' playoff drive

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

After a disappointing loss a week ago to cross-town rival Harrison, Farmington basketball coach Bob Kaump mapped out the do or die strategy for his Falcons.

Farmington would have to win its last three regular season games against Lakes Division foes to finish among the top four and qualify for the Western Lakes Activities Association playoffs.

With one hurdle remaining, the Falcons are where they want to be after beating Plymouth Salem 77-69 Tuesday and Livonia Stevenson 65-59 in overtime Monday.

Farmington, 3-6 in the division and 5-11 overall, needs a win Friday night when it travels to North Farmington to nail down a berth in post-season play. The Rocks, 4-5 and 5-10, remain in the running for one of the last two playoffs spots, also.

The Falcons capitalized on their free throw opportunities and, unlike the game with Harrison, shot very well, especially from the perimeter where Chris Cahill, Steve Quenneville and Darin Magera gave Farmington a huge lift with their three-point shooting.

"I DON'T KNOW how to explain it," Kaump said, adding the Falcons made four triples in the fourth quarter against Stevenson.

"The three-pointers enabled us to put the ball down inside to Jason Brown (13 points) a lot, and our big guys were able to take it inside and dump it back outside for open shots."

Farmington was 35-of-49 from the free-throw line as the officials played a dominant role in the game and exerted excessive control at times.

The fouls, however, were virtually even, with Salem being called for 28 and the Falcons 26. An incredible total of 85 free throws were attempted as the Rocks sank 19 of 38.

"It's tough to get into a flow when the whistle is being blown all the time," said Salem coach Bob Brodie, who refused to make the officials the scapegoat for the outcome.

"SOME OF THOSE fouls were legitimate. You can't blame the game on free-throw shooting. (The Falcons) were going to the line and knocking them down, and we weren't converting."

Quenneville led all scorers with 16 points, including 11-of-14 shooting at the free-throw line, and Magera and Drew McDougall had 14 apiece.

Cahill, scoring all of his points on triples, and Mike Myers added nine each. In addition to Quenneville, Brown was nine-of-12 at the line, McDougall eight-of-11 and Magera six-of-9.

"Salem's style of play is physical," Kaump said. "Tonight my kids were able to hold their own — square up and be strong when they were being moved."

M.J. Ewald's 15 points paced the Rocks, Jeff Elliott scored 13 and Keith Smith tossed in nine.

Salem shot out to an early lead, but the Falcons came to life and moved in front when Magera and Quenneville hit back-to-back triples.

THE ROCKS weren't getting many offensive rebounds in the first half and shot nine-of-32. Farmington wasn't much better from the field at 10-of-31, but four triples and 15-of-22 accuracy at the line helped the Falcons to a 39-28 halftime lead.

"Our objective was to make them shoot the outside jump shot and contest them, and they were knocking them down," Brodie said.

"It gets a little frustrating and the kids start to press when (the Falcons are) making threes and we're not hitting."

Smith controlled the defensive boards in the third quarter as the Rocks turned the tables and rallied to pull within 41-40 on Smith's putback. But Farmington's triples were well timed as Cahill answered with one that made it 44-40 and another at the end of the quarter for a 53-44 lead.

The Rocks stayed with 62-55 when Bill Anderson scored off a rebound, and there was still time for Salem to make a move with almost five minutes to play.

BUT A FOUL and a technical against the Rocks sent Quenneville to the line where he dropped in four straight free throws. Myers hit a turnaround, and McDougall made a free throw for a 69-55 lead with 3½ minutes left.

The Falcons were able to protect their lead and prevent Salem from making a serious challenge after that.

Vitti's 22 points guide CC to win

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

basketball

Bill Vitti couldn't have picked a better occasion — for both himself and Redford Catholic Central Tuesday night — to star in a basketball game.

Vitti, playing in front of a Fresno State assistant coach, scored 22 points in leading CC to a 67-47 win over host Redford St. Mary in the first round of the Catholic League A-B Division playoffs.

The win vaults CC (12-4 overall) into the quarterfinal round Sunday against Redford Bishop Borgess at the University of Detroit's Calihan Hall (game time is 7:45 p.m.).

But Vitti would like to savor Tuesday's performance before having to worry about facing Borgess standout Parish Hickman and a supporting cast that includes Dwayne Kelley and Da Juan Smith.

VITTI, WHO scored 14 of his points in the fourth quarter, also grabbed 12 rebounds and blocked four shots. He knew Fresno assistant Don Beck was watching in the stands. Last year, Beck tried to lure Vitti's teammate Lance Vaccarelli to the California school.

"I was kind of nervous, but I think it kind of pumped me up a bit," said Vitti, a 6-foot-5 center. "That's the first real big-time coach who's come to watch me play."

St. Mary's did most of the watching early in the game, turning the ball over 11 times in the first quarter. CC jumped out to a 17-4 lead after one quarter, and a two-handed slam dunk by Vitti with 1:53 left in the half gave the Shamrocks a commanding 33-15 lead.

Dunks don't come often for Vitti, who didn't hesitate when asked how many he had before the St. Mary's game.

"THAT WAS MY second one," said Vitti. "The guys like it when I dunk."

"I liked it," said point guard Terry Boykin, who was trying to imitate Vitti's dunk in the locker room. "I saw him on the wing, passed him the ball and he just went up and boom."

CC again played without starting guard Anthony Arrington, who remained out with a thigh injury. But guard Brian Dugas, who sat out last Friday's game at Warren DeLaSalle with a sprained ankle, returned to the lineup to score 10 points.

Sophomore center Ray Richards also played a key role for CC, scoring 12 points. Boykin added 10 points for CC to tie Dugas in the scoring department.

DUGAS AND Vitti were the only seniors in the starting lineup for CC, and both earned praise from coach Bernie Holowicki.

"Brian gave us great leadership, he handled a little bit of everything out there," Holowicki said. "And Billy is playing more confidently now. He wanted the ball more, he wasn't invisible out there, and that dunk was a great lift for us."

Also earning praise was Scott Hauncher, who was asked to perform a less-glamorous job than the quarterback position he usually handles in the fall for CC's football team.

Hauncher (starting for Arrington) drew St. Mary's best player, Cichon Robinson, for a defensive assignment. He scored only seven points, but held Robinson to six.

"THEIR BEST player was No. 32 (Robinson), so we thought we'd put our football quarterback (Hauncher) on him," Holowicki said. "Scott is a hard-nosed kid, and we thought he could do a job on him."

Forward Cedrick Van Hook led the Rustics with 17 points. He scored 10 of those points in the third quarter, when St. Mary's pulled to within 12, 43-31.

CC outscored St. Mary's 10-4 at the start of the fourth quarter, however, to tuck the game away.

Holowicki called Tuesday's game the best his team has played this season. The Shamrocks made 29-of-55 field goal attempts against St. Mary's, but Holowicki said CC will have to play even better Sunday against Borgess, the No. 1 team in Class B.

"It's no fluke that they're No. 1 in Class B," Holowicki said. "We played pretty good today, but we'll have to play at another level against Borgess. They do so much well. They shoot, board well and are quick."

Trice provides spark

Roger Trice scored a game-high 23 points Tuesday to lead visiting Plymouth Canton to a Western Division win over Livonia Franklin, 69-55.

The win pushes the Chiefs' division-leading record to 7-2, their overall mark to 13-3. Franklin falls to 3-5, 3-12.

Canton led 23-10 after one quarter, before the Patriots closed the gap to five, 32-27. The Chiefs outscored the Patriots 23-13 in the third quarter to solidify their lead.

J.J. Swindall paced Franklin with 22 points, while Mike McCool added 18.

In a make-up game played last Saturday because of last week's snowstorm, Franklin defeated Northville at home, 66-46.

Swindall led three Patriots in double figures with 25 points. Tom Shea added 14 points and McCool nearly had a triple double, scoring 10 points, grabbing 10 rebounds and dishing out nine assists.

Eagles topple top team

In its biggest basketball game in three seasons, St. Mary's College of Orchard Lake knocked off Siena Heights — the top team in the NAIA District 23 power ratings — 104-98 Saturday at St. Mary's Dombrowski Fieldhouse.

The win gave the Eagles a 19-12 record and kept their slim chances of overtaking Siena Heights alive. St. Mary's would have to win their final four games while the Saints lose two of their last three.

The win did, however, clinch a second-place berth in the district playoffs for the Eagles and assure them of hosting a first-round game.

The game was tied at 50 at the half, but St. Mary's scored the first 11 points of the second half to take the lead for good. The Eagles eventually built a 20-point bulge, 87-67 with eight minutes left.

SIENA HEIGHTS (22-6 overall) rallied, however, canning six three-pointers and pulling to within four with 20 seconds left. But Greg Spraggins sank both ends of a one-and-one free throw to insure the victory.

Jerome Washburn was unstoppable for the Eagles, hitting eight-of-eight floor shots and scoring 20 points. Spraggins finished with 15 points and six assists, Mike Belczak had 14 points and 13 rebounds, Bob Bringman scored 14 points and Safaa Qaisawa totaled 10 points.

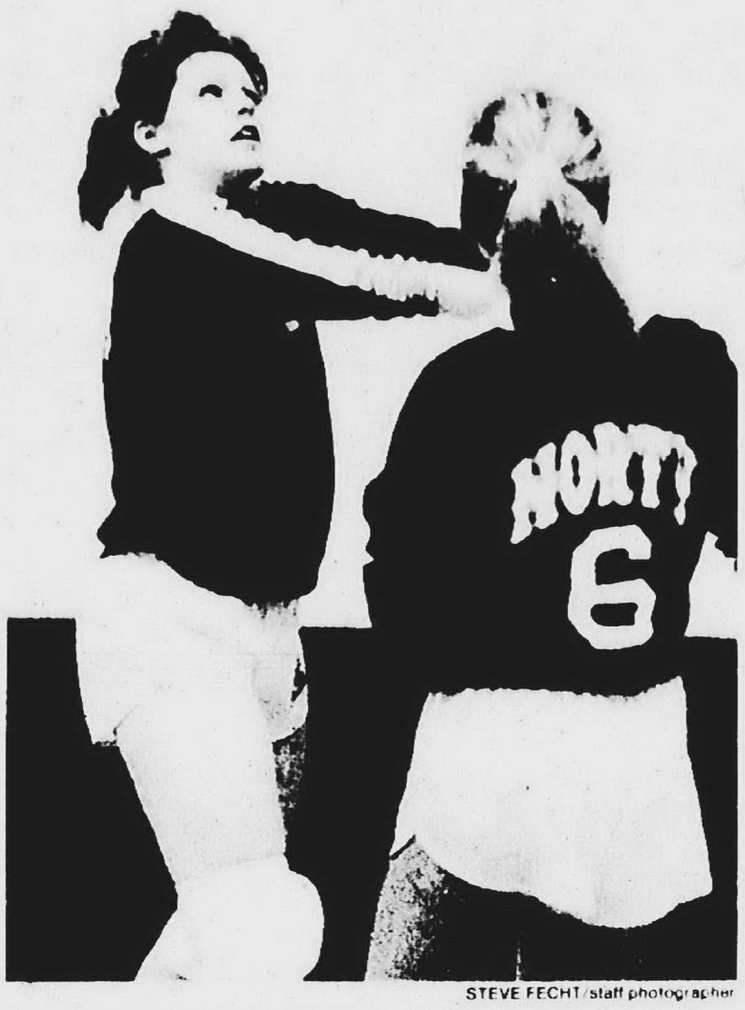
Blazers end Spartan reign



STEVE FECHT/staff photographer

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Ladywood's Tom Teeters has been running the Schoolcraft College volleyball tournament for years, but as a coach, he had never won it.

That all changed Saturday as the Blazers lived up to their No. 1 Class A ranking in the state polls, outlasting 29 other teams to win the coveted title.

It also ended Livonia Stevenson's four-year reign as champion.

Ladywood broke the Spartans' domination with a resounding 15-1, 15-6 victory in the quarterfinals in a rematch of last year's final. Ladywood then went on quickly to defeat Redford Bishop Borgess in the semifinals (15-6, 15-5) and Dearborn Edsel Ford in the championship match (15-8, 15-1) that only lasted 25 minutes. See statistical summary.

"It's been 15 years and I think we earned it," said Teeters, whose team is 40-2 overall. "But it took a lot of hard work and repetition."

Ladywood's play against Stevenson was nearly flawless. The Blazers frustrated the Spartans with their relentless digging. One big defensive play, in particular, led to a string of seven unanswered points.

"IT'S ALWAYS disappointing when the returning champion can't get past the quarterfinals," said Stevenson coach Lee Cagle. "But there's no question Ladywood is the better team this year. We lost two key people last year and they didn't lose any. There's no way we have the firepower or blocking that they have.

"What was disappointing was that we served terribly. We didn't help ourselves with good serving. We dug ourselves a hole and you can't play defense all the time against a team like Ladywood. Also, our set selections were terrible."

Stevenson's two top hitters, Laura Brown and Sue Zatorski, were stymied in their efforts, but so was everyone else who played against the Blazers.

Borgess coach Jerry Abraham gave his endorsement of the newly crowned champions.

"They're smart and they have experience," he said. "They block well and they dink well. We had a hard time putting the ball on the floor. They were really digging them up."

KEYING THE LADYWOOD attack was Mary Kelley and Corinne McNamara, whom Teeters calls "one of the best one-two combinations around."

"Mary Kelley's setting has improved drastically," said the Ladywood coach. "We don't have a lot of standout hitters, but Mary is also one of our best."

'It's always disappointing when the returning champion can't get past the quarterfinals. But there's no question Ladywood is the better team this year.'

— Lee Cagle
Stevenson coach

In the win over Edsel Ford, Teeters noted that the Thunderbirds' defensive scheme, employing a single blocker in the middle, "was great for our offense."

"Corinne and Nancy (Wagner) ate that up," Teeters said. "Against Borgess they always use a double blocker, but our system is designed well for the players. They're able to adjust to a complicated system with a few options thrown in."

During the day, Ladywood also received strong contributions from Kari Domanski, Moe Knittel, Stacey Girard, Sarah Adzima and Jenny Belcher.

"I see a lot of potential here, but we still have to improve," Teeters said. "But with all our players getting healthy, we're going to have a stronger bench now."

WAYNE MEMORIAL was eliminated in the semifinals of a tournament for the third time this season — all by the same team — Edsel Ford.

"We're getting closer," said Wayne first-year coach Ann Kolnitys, whose team was ousted, 15-10, 16-14. "But we can't let a team like that (Edsel Ford) dink on us like that. We need to play more aggressively."

Edsel Ford, paced by Lisa Haan, Deanna Lowe and Laura Squibbs, reached the semifinals by eliminating North Farmington in a close match, 16-14, 15-10.

Other Observerland schools making it out of pool play included Garden City and Livonia Churchill.

Cage rivals vie for net crown

Livonia Ladywood and Farmington Mercy, longtime rivals on the basketball court, will battle tonight for a title of a different kind.

The two teams meet at 7:30 p.m. at Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher to decide the volleyball title in the A-B Division of the Catholic League.

Both teams swept through the first two rounds of the Central Division playoffs Monday night to get to the finals.

Ladywood, the No. 1-ranked team in Class A, defeated Southgate Aquinas, 15-5 and 15-4 in the quarterfinals, before ousting Harper Woods Regina in three games, 13-15, 15-1 and 15-1.

Mercy got by Dearborn Divine Child, 15-1 and 15-5, and downed Harper Woods Bishop Foley in the semifinals, 15-12, 13-15 and 15-3.

"We split with them during the regular season, so it looks like it will be an exciting match tonight," Mercy coach Tim DeBeliso said. "I hope we play our best. I know my girls will be excited to get at them."

LADYWOOD, 42-2 overall, breezed to its opening-round win over Aquinas. Setter Mary Kelly's 15 assists led the rout and Corinne McNamara became the recipient of those passes, recording six kills.

Regina defeated Ladywood in the first game of the semifinal, but a key block by Maureen Knittel in the second game ignited the Blazers' charge.

Knittel had four service aces in the second game against Regina, and Sarah Adzima recorded eight kills out of 17 attempts in the Regina match.

Serving took the spotlight for Mercy in its first-round win over Divine Child, but front-line and back-line play sparkled for the Marlins in the semi-final against Bishop Foley.

Meg Pinkerton registered five kills in 15 attacks in the three-game win over Foley. DeBeliso added that Mercy received fine play from backline performers Lynn Elliott, Christy Johnson and Kristin Orlandoni.

Redford Bishop Borgess, the other Observerland team in the Central Division playoffs, was ousted by Foley in the quarterfinals, 15-5 and 15-7.

LIVONIA STEVENSON raised its overall mark Monday to 27-4, defeating Walled Lake Western, 15-13, 6-15 and 15-4 in a crossover game in the Western Lakes Athletic Association.

Sue Zatorski led visiting Stevenson with seven kills, and Renee Bonser added two blocks and four kills. Jenny Sladewski, Sherry Jahns and Chris Slanaker excelled in the serving department, collecting a combined seven service aces.

In another key WLAA match, Plymouth Salem upset Western Division leader Livonia Churchill, 15-13, 9-15, 15-11.

Asaka Motowyma led the visiting Rocks with 14 kills.

Freshman paces Chiefs on road

Plymouth Canton freshman Heather Murphy scored third or higher in three events Friday in a triangular gymnastics meet that included statewide power Freeland.

The Chiefs traveled to Freeland, in the Saginaw area, without two of their top gymnasts, however. Illness sidelined Maureen McLean, and Mary Jo Charron was away on a vacation trip since semester break began with the cancellation of school last Friday.

Freeland, one of the top three teams in Michigan, scored 135.2 to win the meet, while Canton, 7-2 overall, recorded a 127.2 and Vassar a 121.5.

Murphy tied with Freeland's Kristie Kelly for first place on the balance beam, both receiving 8.1 scores. Murphy, who had Canton's best all-around score at 31.85, was third on the uneven bars (7.6) and the floor exercise (8.25). She also tied for ninth with teammate Sharon Moran for ninth on the vault with 7.9 each.

Kelly won the vault (9.1) and floor (8.6) to post the best all-round score of 33.70, and Freeland's Julie Boelter won the bars (8.5).

Darcy Gignac was Canton's top scorer on the vault with an 8.3 score, placed fifth on bars (7.45), seventh on beam (7.6) and tied teammate Jayne Jewell for eighth on floor (7.9). Gignac was third in the all-around at 31.25.

Moran had Canton's best performance on beam, taking third place with a 7.95. In addition, Shannon Connell was eighth on bars and ninth on beam, Katie Koch was 10th on bars, Lisa Kaufman seventh on floor and Jill Peneybaker 10th on beam.

Palastra gymnasts 2nd

Palastra Gymnastics Club's Class II team took second place at the Acronauts Club meet in Bloomfield Hills on Feb. 6-7.

In the compulsory competition, Kyna Morgan received first place on the balance beam with an 8.55 score and was third in floor exercise.

Charlotte Campbell earned third place on the balance beam, and Kimberly Miller took third on the uneven bars. At the optional meet, Kimberly Berres was second on the beam.

In the junior/senior division, Marie Buswinka captured first place on vault and first in the all-around competition.

Teammate Courtney Gonyea won the beam competition with an 8.45 score and was second in the all-around. Morgan also was third in floor and Campbell second on the beam.

In another meet Jan. 29-30 in Farmington, the Westland-based Palastra Club finished third in Class II competition.

At the compulsory meet, Berres received first place on the bars. In junior compulsories, Campbell was first on vault (9.05) and Miller second on bars (8.7).

In senior compulsories, Buswinka took first on vault (9.0), beam and the all-around. She also was second in floor exercise and third on bars.

At the optional meet, Berres received second on beam and third in floor exercise. Sweeping the Senior Division, Buswinka took top honors on vault, bars, beam and all-around. She placed second in floor exercise.

Berres, Buswinka, Campbell, Gonyea and Morgan earned enough points to qualify for the upcoming Class II state sectional meet.

Clarenceville downs Falcons

Livonia Clarenceville got out to an early lead Tuesday in gymnastics and stayed on top for a 117.25 to 110.5 victory over Farmington.

The Trojans, 8-3 overall, relied on their depth to overcome a strong, one-two performance by the Falcons' Jackie Daly and Julie Lawton.

Daly won the vault (8.8), beam (8.05) and floor exercise (8.35), and Lawton was second in floor (8.0), third on beam (7.7) and fourth on bars (8.45).

Clarenceville, led by Julie Mansell and Denise Ahnert, had four of the top six scorers on vault, four of five on bars.

Ahnert was second (first for the Trojans) on vault (8.7) and Mansell third (8.05), and Roberta Wiggle and Colleen Wood tied for fifth (7.85). Mansell won the bars event with a 7.4, Sue Dziak was second (7.15), Ahnert third (6.75) and Christie Nagorka fifth (5.95).

Mansell was second on beam (7.75) and fourth on floor (7.4), and Ahnert was fourth on beam (7.3) and third on floor (7.9). In addition, Wood was fifth on beam (7.0) and teammate Jennifer Kaipio fifth on floor (6.8).

In very close scoring for the all-around, Daly totaled 30.95, Ahnert 30.65, Mansell 30.60 and Lawton 29.35.

Five to represent WLAA mat champ

Westland John Glenn will be sending five wrestlers into Saturday's tough Class A individual state regional at Plymouth Salem.

The Rockets recorded two second-place finishes one third and a pair of fourths at last Saturday's Class A District tourney at Temperance Bedford.

"We could get all five through (to the state meet) and we're not thinking it's going to be the end of the season," said Glenn coach Tom Buckalew. "It's looking pretty tough (at the Salem regional). I think this regional stacks up well with the rest in the state."

Redford Catholic Central, which qualified 10 wrestlers for the regional, will also be at Salem for the second straight week.

Glenn's hopes will rest on 132-pounder Rob Mattgian and Detrick Tharp (185), both earning second-places at Bedford; third place finisher Chuck Lauber (167); and fourth-place finishers Mike Daniels (105) and Abe Zakhem (135).

MATTGIAN'S nemesis in the finals at Bedford was Southgate Anderson's Brian Eastman, who scored a 4-2 decision. It was only Mattgian's third loss in 40 matches.

wrestling

Another Southgate wrestler, Ed Sparks, proved worthy for Tharp, posting a narrow 3-0 overtime decision in the 185-pound finals. Tharp, 30-5 overall, scored a big win in the semifinals, defeating Gibraltar Carlson state qualifier Dennis Szymankewicz for the second time this season, 3-1.

At 105, Wayne Memorial's Brian Hunt became the only Observerland district champion at Bedford, defeating Daniels in the semifinals, followed by a win over Carlson's Andy Rossow in the championship match. (Hunt has defeated Daniels in two of three meetings this year.)

Wayne will also be sending Scott Lapere to the regional after he finished second to Henry Nieto of Adrian, 7-6, in the 145-pound class.

The only other Observerland regional qualifier from Bedford is Garden City's David Ferracciolo at 126. He slipped into fourth place after defeating two higher seeds.

Bedford, a perennial state power, qualified 10 for the regional, which begins at 10 a.m. Saturday at Salem. (See district results on page 5C.)

'We could get all five through (to the state meet), and we're not thinking it's going to be the end of the season.'

Rice grid star to attend SMU

By Marty Budner
staff writer

football

FOREST GREGG'S 11th-hour bid for Jason Wolf's services was successful.

Wolf, the blue-chip running back from Birmingham Brother Rice, said on Tuesday he will attend Southern Methodist University next fall to play football. The decision came on the heels of a weekend visit to the SMU campus in Highland Park, Texas, a suburb of Dallas.

"They have a beautiful campus," said Wolf, a few hours prior to his team's Catholic League playoff basketball game against Detroit St. Martin de Porres. "I've always wanted to go South to play football. Plus, I know I can get a good education down there," he said. "One of the main things is I love the coaching staff. (Gregg's) one of the best coaches around, and I'll enjoy playing for him."

Wolf is considered on of the state's top runners and was pursued by many major colleges. Earlier this year, Wolf whittled the list of schools he wanted to attend to three — Michigan State University, the University of Michigan and UCLA.

Wolf made the Bruins an early scratch. U-M and MSU still were in the running for his services two days before the Feb. 10 signing date for national binding letters of intent.

Wolf made a verbal commitment Feb. 8 to attend Michigan. But the following day, Wolf recieved a call from Gregg and changed his mind about the Wolverines.

HE OPTED not to sign an official letter until after he visited the SMU campus, well aware that a delay could hurt his chances of getting a scholarship at either U-M or MSU.

The Spartans, according to Wolf, held a scholarship for him while the Wolverines reportedly dropped their scholarship offer. It didn't matter.

Wolf made the decision to attend Southern Methodist University.

Al Fracassa, Wolf's high school coach, remained loyal concerning Wolf's choice of schools.

"I just hope he made the right choice and gets a chance to play," said Fracassa. "I'll back him all the way."

Wolf was Rice's main offensive weapon this past season.

The 6-foot, 190-pound All-Stater gained 1,372 yards on 245 carries (5.6 yard average). He scored 19 touchdowns rushing and two recieving and was voted to a number of post-season all-star squads.

Wolf is a hard runner who was very dependable in short-yardage situations. He was voted most valuable player by his teammates the past two seasons.

Wolf also played some defense last fall when Brother Rice posted an overall 10-2 record. The Warriors qualified for the state playoffs, advancing to the state semifinals before being eliminated by arch rival Redford Catholic Central.

WOLF WILL take his shifty running talents to an SMU program that is on probation through the 1988 season. The Mustangs were given the "death penalty," a ban on fielding a team, by the NCAA for repeated violations of policies.

SMU has some outstanding alumni playing in the NFL, most notably Eric Dickerson of the Indianapolis Colts and Craig James of the New England Patriots.

Gregg recently quit as coach of the Green Bay Packers to take over the much-maligned SMU program. Gregg played in a Super Bowl for the Packers and was head coach of the Cincinnati Bengals when they played in Super Bowl XVI held in Detroit.

Wolf believes, by going to SMU which is virtually starting a new football program, he will get the chance to play immediately. Wolf said he might not get that same opportunity at another college like SMU.

Wolf also said waiting a full year while SMU sits out the last year of its probation is not much different than being red-shirted at another college.

"I just feel that by going to SMU it gives me a great opportunity to play (when the program restarts) because there aren't that many people around," said Wolf. "I think it will be to my advantage to have a year off. I'll lift weights, learn the SMU system and get ready for '89.

"I'm just glad everything's over, and I can't wait to go to school next year," he said.

Big game ends in draw

The state's No. 1 and 2 prep hockey teams battled to a 3-3 draw Saturday at the Redford Ice Arena.

Jim Hubenschmidt's goal in the final period gave second-ranked Redford Catholic Central the tie against No. 1 Ann Arbor Pioneer. Scott Lock and Larry Baharah assisted on the goal with 11:40 remaining.

Lock nearly won it for the Shamrocks in the final four seconds, but Pioneer goalie Jim Saxon knocked away his breakaway attempt.

Lock had a second-period power-play goal from Baharah and Hubenschmidt. He also assisted on another goal by Baharah.

Tim Helber paced Pioneer with two goals.

CC goalie Jim Dietrich made 21 saves.

Only two penalties were called in the game.

Both CC and Pioneer are 9-1-1 in the Michigan Metro High School Hockey League. The Shamrocks are 12-3-3 overall.

FRANKLIN 4, LAKELAND 2: In a non-league game Monday at the Lakeland Ice Arena, Livonia Franklin (11-7) turned back Milford Lakeland (10-9-1), avenging a loss earlier in the season. (The game was postponed from Saturday.)

Franklin opened up a 4-0 lead through two periods before holding a late Lakeland surge.

Bass fishermen swing into action

Bill Parker

IT MAY seem a little early to be thinking about bass fishing, but opening day is a little closer than you think. True, the traditional season opener, the Saturday before Memorial Day, is still 101 days away.

So what's the big deal, you ask. Why are local bass anglers so excited? The answer is simple now, and it's not because Bass-a-rama is coming to the Waterford Community Center March 4-6. The reason for all the excitement is because bass season opens nearly two months early this year ... well, sort of.

Through pressure and support from the Michigan Bass Chapter Federation (MBCF) and the Michigan United Conservation Clubs (MUCC), the Department of Natural Resources submitted a proposal for a catch and release bass season to the Natural Resource Commission. The NRC approved the proposal initiating an early bass season for catch and release (or no kill) bass fishing on six southern Michigan lakes, including three in Oakland County.

THROUGH THE proposal, the DNR will conduct a five-year experiment allowing catch and release bass fishing on Cass, Pontiac and Kent lakes in Oakland County, Muskegon Lake in Muskegon County, Hardy Pond in Newaygo County and the Holloway Reservoir in Genesee County, from April 1 to the Friday before Memorial Day each year.

The DNR will keep a close eye on the activity on each of the lakes through the use of a creel census and interviews with anglers and lake property owners.

The regular bass season remains the Saturday before Memorial Day (May 28 this year) to Dec. 31 on non-trout streams and inland lakes. The season runs the Saturday before Memorial Day to Sept. 30 on trout streams and designated trout lakes and the third Saturday in June to Dec. 31 on the Detroit and St. Clair Rivers and Lake St. Clair.

"WHAT WE'RE hoping the experiment will show is that the bass (in these lakes) will continue to grow and the bass population will continue to increase," said Lewis Borer Jr., vice president of MBCF. "If things go well maybe we can have an earlier season opener, like the first of April or May. Then, down the road, maybe we can have a season that's open year-round."

According to Borer, the MBCF has been trying to persuade the DNR to begin a catch and release program since MBCF's inception in 1976.

"We've been trying for years, but the DNR has always held fast to the old rule and wouldn't budge," said Borer. "Through the efforts of Dan Kimmell and the board of directors of the federation, we arranged a meeting with the directors of all the divisions of the DNR and presented our case. They finally came out and agreed to a catch and release program."

CURRENTLY 38 states are open to bass fishing year round. Indiana is one of those states and in past years bass clubs from Michigan have traveled to the Hoosier State in early spring to hold their bass tournaments. Borer feels this may have had some impact on the NRC's decision.

"Many, many bass clubs travel to Indiana in April and May for bass tournaments," said Borer. "With two people in each boat, 30-40 boats and each boat staying for two or three days, it provides quite a boost to the local economy. Maybe the State of Michigan realized this and wanted to keep some of those fishermen home."

Regardless of the reason, the decision was made and bass anglers will be able to enjoy an extended season for the next five years.

"The basic idea is that there will be no real harm to the fish," said Ron Spitler, fisheries biologist with the DNR. "Many bass fishermen use catch and release tactics year round anyway. The Bass Fereration and the MUCC promoted the idea and we decided, why not.

"We're encouraging artificial bait for catch and release fishing so the bass don't swallow the hooks. If they do swallow we recommend the anglers cut the line and release the fish. If they try to pull the hook out they may kill the fish. We're anticipating between 1 and 15 percent mortality, but we hope it won't be very high."

Myrna Partrich

This ailment is a heel of a problem

Dear Myrna: I have a pain at the bottom of my foot. I've been to a doctor — he calls it plantar fascitis. I've already heard his lengthy description. Can you describe it simply?

Being that I'm not a doctor, I can only describe it in simple terms.

We have what is called — plantar fascia — a band of tough connective tissue that supports the bottom of our feet. It starts at the base of your toes, runs along the bottom of your foot and attaches on a spot on the middle bottom of your heel bone.

The pain that your are feeling is usually due to the tearing away of the band where it attaches on the heel. This is called plantar fascitis. I'm sure the doctor has told you to rest your feet.

It will take some time to heal. Have patience.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company of Bloomfield Township, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Please send your signed letters to: Sports Department, Myrna Patrich, 1225 Bowers, Birmingham 48012.)

A STORY ABOUT BRIAN

This is the story of Brian.
Mr. Cool he was without tryin.
The hallways he owned.
His charms he but loaned.
Ah my, how he left the girls sighin.

Then a virus caught our Mr. C.
A bug with a long history.
He ached, and he sneezed.
He coughed, and he wheezed.
It was flu causing this misery.

Feeling so low was this guy.
He was set to give aspirin a try.
But remember he did.
A note on the lid.
That warned of a syndrome called Reye.

Rare is this trouble called Reye.
But permanent it might make you lie.
Kids with the flu.
Chicken pox, too.
May suffer when aspirin they try.

How did Brian reprise his cool?
Hey, remember this dude was no fool.
He just took it slow.
That's the best way to go.
When they need you so badly at school.

– A message from the Food and Drug Administration

Snow lets us see what animals do

nature

Timothy Nowicki

Forest and meadows after a new snowfall can be like a fairyland. Like The Nutcracker prince's kingdom, rolling hills look like mounds of sugar and snow resting on delicate branches creates a lacey network rivaling a single snowflake.

Sunlight glittering on the surface can remind one of a diamond's shimmering facets.

And like a diamond, winter is a hard season for wild animals. Yet it allows man to clearly see what animals are doing.

NEW SNOW is like the pages of a blank book. Animal tracks add words to those pages, and following those tracks tells a story.

Those animals that do not migrate, hibernate or sleep must continue to find food during the winter. Deep snow may make it hard for animals like squirrels to find nuts on the ground. But a deep snow can enable a rabbit to reach twigs and branches that were out of reach before.

Predators, like the fox, must hunt for the few animals that do remain active all winter. A fox trail is easy to recognize. Its tracks are in a straight line, one in front of the other. Following the necklace trail of a fox can tell the observer how difficult it is to survive in winter.

As the fox casually walked through the snow and jumped onto a fallen log, one can imagine its nose testing the air for the scent of an animal.

Or as the track parallels another fallen log, how it searched for an unsuspecting mouse. Its tracks may be in a single file, buts its trail seems to wander to every potential source of food.

THEN ALONG the trail the tracks become clustered together. All four feet are poised next to each other.

Just ahead was a mouse surrying under the snow. After a moment of orientation, the fox leaped two feet through the air and landed with all four feet and its face in the snow.

It looked as if the mouse escaped, because there are more tracks in the snow and more holes where the fox had pushed its nose in to find the mouse.

Though not a fairytale, the activities of wild animals are vividly exposed in the winter snow — if you take the time to read.

A fox's tracks in the snow tell the story of what kind of winter animals are having.

Your Own Children

An investment in a child's education can produce a type of wealth far more valuable than monetary gain. Enrollment in an independent school ensures that your son or daughter will receive a wealth of academic opportunities, a wealth of security, and a wealth of self-confidence and self-esteem.

How can we be sure these assets will accrue? Because each school listed below shares a dedication to certain fundamental principles, including:

• Emphasis on the student as an individual. Independent schools recognize that a child is special, an individual with unique talents, aptitudes, needs and interests. Our goal is to help children realize their full potential while fostering a sense of belonging within the group. Students build upon their own strengths and are encouraged to work to the best of their abilities.

• Academic challenge. Independent schools set the highest educational standards and challenge students to stretch to meet them. We stress a thorough preparation for college as well as opportunities to specialize in the arts, sciences, humanities, foreign languages, computer science and communications.

• A low student/teacher ratio. Your child is never lost in a crowd. A low student/teacher ratio opens up broad avenues of communication between student and teacher, ensuring individualized instruction and counseling at all grade levels. Small classes also allow teachers to recognize problems early and to provide supportive care and understanding when needed.

How to choose a school.

Parents are cordially invited to visit individual schools where they can compare programs and absorb the different atmospheres. We're sure that with 20 diverse schools, you'll find one ideally suited to your family's needs. For more information about the Independent Schools of Michigan as well as information about financial aid programs, write for a free brochure to AIMS, 31201 Dorchester, Madison Heights, MI 48071 or call 1-313-585-9151.

Friendship quilt is book material

By Mona Grigg
special writer

WEN BIRMINGHAM FIBER artist Carolyn Vosburg Hall teamed up with her artist friend, Leslie Masters, to design a wedding quilt for Hall's daughter, Claudia, they couldn't have known that that one project would spin off dozens of similar ones — friendship quilts with patches created and signed by friends and relatives for birthdays, babies, retirements, and holidays.

Though Hall notes that there seems to be a resurgence all across the country, friendship quilts are really nothing new. Claudia's wedding quilt was inspired by an 1892 crazy quilt Hall's mother had given her sometime before Claudia's September 1981 wedding.

Scattered about on the quilt face were names carefully embroidered by a group of ladies during the 1890s on colorful, rich fabrics," Hall said. "I like the idea of all those signatures on fabric still being around almost 100 years later."

Today's friendship quilts are a far cry from the elegant Victorian signature quilts of long ago. Today's quilts might pair hearts and flowers with a motorcyclist skimming along above the words, "Live Free or Die."

Hall says, "The fun of it is that you never know what you're going to get back when you send out invitations to make a square for a friend's quilt. It could be something simple but elegant, or it could be something wonderfully creative and so like the person giving the quilt piece."

It was Masters' idea to create a friendship quilt for Claudia Hall Stroud's wedding shower. Stroud, art supervisor on the FTD account at DMB&B Advertising, counts many artists among her friends and relatives. Hall and Masters guessed that many of the shower guests would come through with a clever appliqued quilt square.

To their surprise, all 24 friends and relatives included their individual squares in their gifts — enough squares for Hall and Masters to applique onto a full-size keepsake quilt.

"The quilt is on a bed in our guest room," Stroud said, "and every now and then I go in and study those squares, remembering how surprised and thrilled I was at finding one in each package. And each one really does seem to show off the giver's personality."

WITH FRIENDSHIP QUILTS, one thing leads to another. The young yet-to-be-married women guests at Stroud's shower wanted wedding quilts of their own — and got them.

Stroud cajoled nine male co-workers into helping her create a baby quilt for her secretary (an auto company logo, a Scotch bottle label and a fat yellow pencil compete for space among the teddy bears, lambs and puppies). And when a popular local minister retired, 80 members of the congregation contributed a menage of images, from the black and white hands of Focus Hope to candles, doves, musical notes, a chocolate kiss and even a real pocket ripped off of a pair of blue jeans.

After working on everyone else's quilts, Hall wanted one of her own. Mother and daughter sat down one day trying to come up with a theme, when Stroud said, "Why not do the obvious? A friends' ship? A ship of friends."

"Both of us instantly loved the play on words," Hall said, "so I designed a background of sailboat, sea, and shore, leaving spaces for little 'friends' figures."

Hall sent an instruction sheet, along with a bit of flesh-colored felt, requesting that her friends cut out bodies in any pose and dress the little figures to look like themselves. But leave it to an artist not to realize what terror a request like that might strike in the hearts of some of her all-thumbs friends.

Some had good intentions, but never could quite come up with anything. At least one shipmate was so embarrassed by her felt figure she waited until the dead of night to deposit it in the Hall's mailbox. But, in all, 19 friends and relatives (and one Siamese cat) cavort and wave on the SS Friendship.

Carolyn Hall, the artist, is also Carolyn Hall, the author. More than a dozen of her craft books have been published by major publishers. So with all those creative quilts around, the most natural spinoff would have to be a book on friendship quilts.

This month "Friendship Quilts by Hand & Machine" (Chilton, softbound, $14.95), featuring Claudia's Wedding Quilt, The Minister's Retirement Quilt, Carolyn's SS Friendship Quilt, and more than a dozen others is available at Border's and other local bookstores.

GRANDDAUGHTER HATTIE Stroud's birthday quilt graces the cover, and inside Hall takes the reader from the early planning stages to the finished product.

Hall includes the ambitious and technically difficult Birmingham Bicentennial Quilt, organized by Rosemary Squires and created by the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association for this country's 200th anniversary. (Each of its 42 squares depicts a historic scene.)

"I suppose you could say it's not really a friendship quilt," Hall said, "but a great many friends worked on it for the benefit of the community. That's friendship in the best sense of the word."

The Bicentennial quilt now hangs on the wall at the Birmingham Community House behind sheets of Plexiglas for protection.

Bee-ing together

THE NAME of the Canton Township subdivision they live in is a pretty good clue of the way things are.

It's called Country Acres and right away visions pop up of simpler way of life that once prevailed in the days when Canton Township was a quiet rural community that thrived on peace and tranquilty — a far cry from the booming area it has become in the last decade or so.

But shades of the past of those downright friendly ways and days are alive and well in the subdivision south of Palmer — all thanks to the efforts of a group of 10 or so women who have become involved in the the age-old craft of quilting.

AND IN SO DOING, have pieced together their own brand of neighborliness.

So much so that newcomers to the neighborhood will often take up quilting just to be part of the group -- although it isn't a requisite.

And those who move away never quite lose contact with their friends. "We still send patterns to three original members — one who lives in England (temporarily), another in New Hampshire and one in Pennsylvania (who often comes back to visit)," said Marianne Lamborne.

In fact, Lamborne said, the former neighbor who lives in New Hampshire recently wrote that she missed the group so much she was starting one in her neighborhood.

It all started out when the homemakers began taking various craft classes. "We all did crafty things," Lamborne commented. "Then about two years ago we decided to take an adult education evening quilting class."

That's when the group met instructor Doris Cross and therein began a strong kinship that takes them to Cross' Northville home one evening a month. They also meet once a month at each other's homes.

As you would expect, there's a lot of chatter that goes on at the monthly sessions — not all of it necessarily having to do with quilting.

Each week the women get one or two new patterns. Above, Peggy White (left) and Chris Finkelstein compare what they have. At the left, Maureen Hampton (left) and Marianne Lamborne keep updated by looking at a quilting magazine.

Quilting instructor Doris Cross has become more than their teacher, the women say. She has become a good friend. Cross, of Northville, teaches quilting at Schoolcraft College and the Golden Fleece in Farmington.

REALTOR

NO BALLGAME TODAY, GEORGE

If you've ever tried to sell your own home, I'm sure it didn't take long to discover that it's a full time job. "Sorry, George, but you can't go to the ballgame today, we have to show the house at 2 p.m." A familiar tune?

If you sell your home the professional way, through a Realtor, you'll not only get the best price for it, but you won't have to be a slave to it. Turn the keys over to me, George and go to the ballgame. No longer will you have to stay home all weekend. You won't be missing a beat. In fact, most realtors prefer NOT to have the owner about when they bring prospects by. Prospects feel freer to discuss the house when you aren't around.

The very fact that it's you who may be showing them around your home will inhibit prospects. They may not feel comfortable making a thorough inspection as they would with a Realtor. As a result, Mrs. Prospect might overlook the very feature she wants that could close the sale. Making sure nothing is overlooked is my job.

Realism not always the whole picture

David Messing

YOU CAN'T take realism too literally. My best example of taking something too literally happened back in 1982 when Adam, my youngest son was only three. All five of us were in the car heading to church. Adam was fussing and claimed he had a "stuffy nose."

Sandy, being the prepared mom, had some children's aspirin so she handed two of them to Adam in the back seat and said, "Here, these will help your nose."

Soon Adam was screaming and crying, so I reached back and scooped him up and laid him between Sandy and I on the front seat. His little head was on my lap and he lay there sobbing and looking up at me. When I stopped at a red light, I looked down and saw two orange aspirins, one in each nostril.

In realistic rendering or painting, you just can't take it too literally. You don't paint every detail. But you want to be realistic. So here are few more rules in my discussion on realism.

When attempting realism in a drawing or painting, one rule I have is: Never be limited by the model. In your artwork, you must be perfectly clear in your presentation. Viewers do not question photographs. They would never ask, "Don't the feet of this cardinal look too big?" Rather, they would comment, "I never realized a cardinal's feet were so large."

BUT WHEN VIEWING a painting or drawing, everyone questions anything unexpected. So you cannot be limited by your model. If your model is a butterfly and the tip of the wing is broken off, then you should fix it in your painting or be prepared to say at every inquiry, "It was that way in the photograph."

Perhaps the best way to be realistic is to verbalize what you are about to render. Pretend that you are describing the object to someone on the phone. Just sit there and whisper to yourself. (Not to worry about impression you're leaving — most people think artists are nuts anyway.) Is the reed of the basket smooth, shiny or dull? Is the weave of the basket tight or loose? How wide is the basket as compared to its height? If it has a broken weave or two, do you want to fix it or does it look better as it is. What color is the reed? Are there differences in the weave? Etcetera and etc.

So it is that you, the artist, must ask yourself all sorts of questions just to make your subject clear in your own mind. Then you may present it clearly on canvas or paper.

The danger in realism is that you look too close, see too much detail and lose all the expression in a deluge of detail. First, look close — really close. Let's say you are drawing an eagle's head. Notice the hair-like feathers around its beak. The feathers increase in size and become more coarse as you move away from the beak. So to realistically render the eagle does not mean that you have to show ever fibre of every feather.

I TELL MY STUDENTS to study the detail, then get the feeling of what you have studied, then render what you feel.

Soil-less mix boon for home gardener

AP Newsfeatures

weeder's guide

Earl Aronson

A SOIL LESS medium has been developed especially for plants in hanging baskets, window boxes and other outdoor containers where they need closer attention than garden soil plantings.

"A growing medium must perform three functions to ensure vigorous plant growth," says Dr. George Wuister of Rutgers University's Cook College of Agriculture and Environmental Science. "It must strike a balance between water, holding, air holding and nutrient holding properties. It must be a uniform commodity that the consumer can depend upon to perform the same way with each purpose."

The mix was formulated for A.H. Hoffman Inc. of Landisville, Pa. Hoffman, which was established in 1889 on a farm in Bamford, Pa., specializes in soil-improving products and farm seeds.

"TOPSOILS AND so-called composted natural products generally fail in one or all of the three categories I mentioned," Wuister said.

The Hoffman mix combines coarse sphagnum peat moss with a sedge peat to trap water and air, vermiculite to absorb water and furnish magnesium, sand, a wetting agent and lime to balance the pH.

Why substitute the soil-less mix for a good topsoil, which can perform growing functions admirably? Wuister gives the following reasons:

Good topsoil has become more scarce and more expensive. To ensure a pest-free product, topsoil must undergo expensive pasteurization to kill seeds, insects, nematodes and plant pathogens.

Often herbicide residues are found in topsoil that will kill plants as well as weeds.

Topsoil is highly variable in nutritional content and structure.

Topsoil is heavy to handle and ship.

Topsoil in containers will hold so little air that roots of seedlings and even established plants often suffocate, especially with soils containing large amounts of clay or silt.

George Ewing Jr., president of Hoffman, says the major problems of home gardeners are over-watering or under-watering of container plants. "Many times soil is the problem culprit. We know our mix is better in porosity and water retention. The average homeowner will neglect plants. Our mix allows the plant the best chance to survive."

WE ARE LOOKING for outdoor and indoor soil-less mixes to help the homeowner, so that with a self-watering container, he or she can go away for a week or so, his container can drain well, and can't be overwatered or underwatered. We call it the forgiving soil."

Wuister says there is a confining of the root system in containers. The medium can extract nutrients much faster than in soil where there is a constant steady supply. Containers are poorly drained. They don't have the deep source found in soil and the gravity source is not available.

He describes the container medium search. "We tried various formulations for annuals and perennials. We tested the durability of mixtures for two or three years. We created areas 1 foot wide and 2-3 feet long, using 30 different formulations. After the first season, we dug up those not suitable and tried others.

We ended up with 10 or 12 formulations with qualities we are looking for. Some had the appearance of organic vitality that gave reasonable plant growth for a variety of vegetables and flower plants. For containers, the physical aspects, structure of soil, is of primary concern."

When the Rubbermaid company produced a new plastic planter, "Anywhere Garden," which has a wick watering, one gallon reservoir system, it turned to Hoffman to furnish the planting medium.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office.

It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

Take time to create a mood

Monte Nagler

The appearance of a photographic subject will change significantly according to the light, weather and time of day.

An old castle photographed against a gathering storm will more readily evoke feelings of a medieval landscape than if it was photographed on a sunny afternoon.

Often, a stark, gnarled old tree shots from a distance will look more isolated and eerie than if photographed closeup.

The important thing is to become aware of how to create mood from the subject's locale and setting. To some extent, all photographs possess mood, but you, as a photographer, have the ability to add drama and mystery by balancing light, weather and point of view.

Rather than your photographs saying, "This is what I saw," try to get them to say, "This is what I felt."

Sometimes a building will look uninspiring until a particular light falls upon it. A row of trees may not excite you until lit by sunbeams emerging through the dark backdrop of a receding storm cloud. Early morning mist will enhance a cityscape, softening the sharp outlines the buildings and giving air of romance to your shot.

Direction of light is of utmost importance. The best light often falls from the side so that textures and shadows are intensified.

Even the effects of a heavy rain can be used to good advantage. Become responsive to light reflected off a wet roof or reflections in a newly formed puddle. You'll get creative, mood-filled photographs if you do.

In this photograph of a church in Mittelburg, Austria, I intentionally took advantage of the thick, contrasting foliage and mountain backdrop. I wanted a vantage point where I could isolate the church from the surrounding village. I wanted to produce a bit of mystery, to make the church appear to have grown right out of the ground and become an integral part of the landscape.

Develop your creativity by becoming more receptive to the elements that make up a photograph. Be patient, wait for the right conditions and shift your photographic thinking from the literal recording of a scene to an artistic expression of mood.

988, Monte Nagler

Monte Nagler's careful study of the surrounding elements and creative approach to composition resulted in a photograph that makes this church in Mittelburg, Austria appear to be an integral part of the landscape.

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

Q. Our condominium association is attempting to assess me for damages caused by me to the common elements because I supposedly ruined the grass in front of my unit with an insecticide. Can they levy an assessment against me?

A. It depends on the condominium documents. If the documents expressly provide for the levying of an assessment, either special or regular, against you, then the board of directors, if it properly levies the assessment in the right amount, can assess you and foreclose on a lien. On the other hand, if the documents do not expressly so provide for a special assessment, it can only sue you for money damages and cannot place a lien on your unit. Also the amount of the damage must be ascertainable.

Robert M. Meisner is a Birmingham attorney specializing in condominiums, real estate, and corporate law. Questions should be directed to him at 30200 Telegraph Road, Suite 467, Birmingham 48010. This column provides general information and should not be construed as legal opinion.

SPECIAL ONE WEEK PRE-LICENSE CLASS FEB. 22-26

We at Real Estate One Training Center think we offer the best pre-license and post-license real estate training.

OUR GUARANTEE!

We want you to pass the state real estate exam the first time. We prepare you to do just that, but here's our guarantee: We know that adults learn at different rates. Some people can sit through a 40 hour course and still need more help. We guarantee that if you don't pass our state approved course you can come back again for any or all of the classes until you do - at no extra charge. We also guarantee that you can still come back to any day or evening classes or review courses to enhance your ability to pass the state exam - again, at no extra charge to you. Our goal is to prepare you to pass the state exam the first time. If you need more help, we offer it and there's no extra charge.

We're ready to help. Please join our class.

$99.00 Includes:

- 40 hours of class
- Quizzes every class
- Hours of extra help (review classes)
- 2 exams
- Completely new 617 page text-book covering all topics
- The best instructors anywhere

1. Approximately 1,900 people go through our 40 hour state-approved real estate pre-license course every year and we have taught this course for over 15 years.
2. We are the biggest and best school because we have established a teaching staff and policies to help each student.
3. We offer at no charge (extra) hours of review classes for people who just want a little extra time to study math, Michigan law, and general real estate topics.
4. We offer the students quizzes at each and every class to get them prepared for the state exam.
5. We have 2 exams which act as a help and study guide.
6. We offer all our classes in the Doner Building, conveniently located off of I-696 and Lahser Road.
7. We offer a chance for students to come to either day or evening classes or both if they want extra help.
8. Our instructors go through extra training themselves every month to keep up-to-date with new laws and details which affect real estate here in Michigan.
9. We have just published a new 617 page manual which each person receives in the course to enhance self study.
10. We genuinely care about every person who enters our pre-license course. We want you to complete and pass our course and pass the state real estate exam. Please join our class.

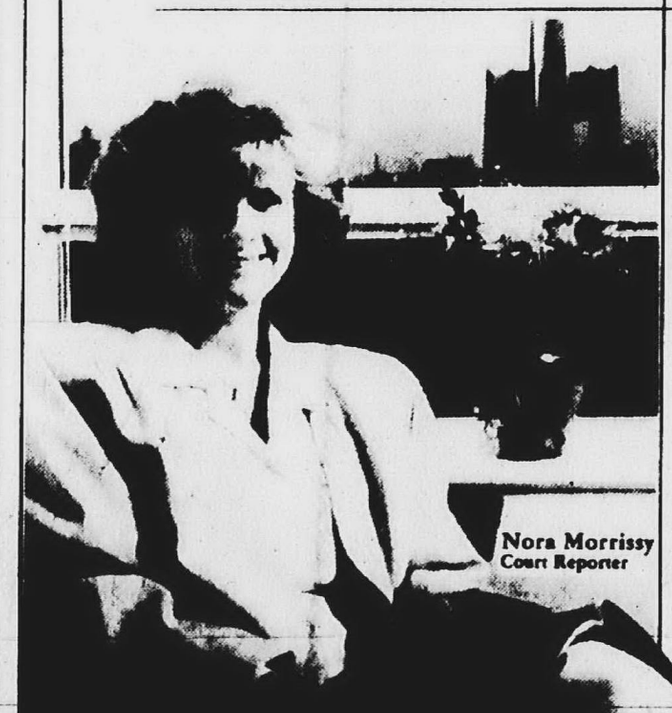
Views on the Waterfront.

"I love the city and I love the water. Harbortown gives me both."



Nora Morrissy
Court Reporter

People who live downtown always have plenty to look forward to. Nora Morrissy is a court reporter who works in downtown Detroit, and she lives at Harbortown. "I used to live in the suburbs. Living on the waterfront is such a change — I can walk to work, I watch the boats from my balcony, and I really enjoy the cultured diversity of urban living."

Apartments leasing at $700 - $1,175, including heat and air conditioning.

DEALER COST COMPUTATION: Invoice plus average new car & truck department expense per car as determined by dividing year-to-date department expenses by new vehicles sold to date.
NOTICE TO BUYER: The invoice total includes advertising association assessments and is not a net factory cost to dealer. The invoice may also not reflect the ultimate cost of the vehicle in view of the possibility of future rebate allowances, discounts, and incentive awards from the manufacturer to the dealer. Dealer installed options and dealer preparation not included and are extra.
