School union files unfair labor charge

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

'These people (PC Schools' educational aides) are way behind just in the area of economic benefits, let alone working conditions, overtime pay, layoff and recall procedures and the definition of seniority.'

— Maryann Ligato, executive director, PC Para-Professional Association, MEA-NEA

An unfair labor practice charge has been filed against Plymouth-Canton Community Schools by the educational aides union, the Plymouth-Canton Para-Professional Association, MEA-NEA.

"We have filed an unfair labor practice charge over the district's refusal to bargain and a petition for factfinding," said Maryann Ligato, the union's executive director.

"We had six meetings during the month of August, and during that time, the district refused to give us one counter proposal. They refused to explain specific objections to our proposals. Finally, in frustration, our team requested mediation."

A STATE-APPOINTED mediator said after a Sept. 15 bargaining session that "unless one party changes its position, there was nothing else for him to do, and he recommended factfinding," said Ligato.

Factfinding is a method of resolving contract disputes whereby the Michigan Employment Relations Commission appoints a neutral party to hear the facts in an open hearing. A recommendation is then issued as to what terms of the contract should be.

The Plymouth-Canton Para-Professional Association represents 120-130 educational and supervisory aides who assist teachers with classroom and clerical duties. All are high school graduates. Many have college credits or degrees.

Filing an unfair labor practice charge "is a standard kind of ploy used by unions everywhere," said Norm Kee, assistant superintendent for employee relations. "Are you familiar with the National Football League?

"What Mrs. Ligato is saying is that she is not being granted the things she wants for the aides. They've gone through mediation, and the mediator said the same thing to her," said Kee.

Few participants likely in gas balloon contest

By Doug Funke
staff writer

A gas balloon race from Plymouth, Mich., to Plymouth, Mass., scheduled to launch this weekend, may not be much of a race after all.

It all depends on how many balloonists show up at the 11th hour.

Only one team — Gordon Boring, a Walled Lake businessman, and Scott Lorenz, general manager of the Mayflower Hotel — had committed to participating as of Monday morning.

Boring was a little more optimistic Tuesday.

"It looks like were going to have Jonathon Elv from Far Hill, N.J., and I'm still getting a call back from a guy in Chicago, Bob Penny," he said.

A COMBINATION of factors has put the race aspect of the launch into limbo, Lorenz said.

"With only 25 licensed pilots in the country, with some in Europe, some with equipment problems, and some backing out for other reasons, I can understand it.

"There aren't that many pilots. It's not like you can pick up the Yellow Pages and look under G for gas balloon."

Boring and Lorenz still plan to fly — with or without competition.

"We're set to go no sooner than Friday after 6 p.m.," Lorenz said.

That's to avoid flying over the terminal control area at Detroit Metropolitan Airport during peak hours.

3 fund-raisers set for Geer

By Susan Buck
staff writer

Three fund-raisers are scheduled this month to benefit restoration of Geer School.

It's hoped that the one-room classic Americana school house, which was closed in 1982 by Plymouth-Canton Community Schools, will reopen in the fall of 1989.

It is a symbol of a bygone era.

Gone are the days when box socials were held there followed by dancing.

Gone are the days when children played "Kick the can" and "Red Rover."

Gone are the days when the social status of the early Geer teachers was on an equal with the minister and the doctor.

PRESERVING THE red brick structure that housed the memories and dreams of children who attended school there is the goal of the Geer School Preservation Committee.

"The uniqueness of this project is that the school is built on its original location with no plans to move it," said Kathryn Otto, a member of the Geer School Preservation Committee.

From 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, "The Sale of the Century' yard sale will usher in the first of the fund-raisers. Parents and former students of Geer School will sponsor the event that takes place at the school, on the corner of Gotfredson and Ann Arbor roads in Superior Township, Washtenaw County.

Antiques, a footed bathtub, collectibles and toys will be featured, according to Carol Guregian, another committee member. For more information, contact Guregian at 453-2893.

STARTING Thursday, Oct. 15, Geer School Commemorative Tiles may be bought for a donation of $25 at The Frameworks, 8833 Penniman, Plymouth and at Frameworks II, 44730 Ford in the New Towne Plaza, Canton.

The tiles, which are done in relief in clay, were fired at J.T. Abernathy Studio in Ann Arbor. A tile is on display at the Plymouth-Canton school board office on Harvey in Plymouth.

Limited editions, numbered and signed by artist Julie Bonhorst-Dodson, are available for a donation of $100 or more. Bonhorst-Dodson was

Parking ban lifted

By Doug Funke

A residents-only, on-street parking program, implemented last spring on a block-by-block basis as requested by homeowners to counteract cruisers in Plymouth, has been rescinded by the city commission.

At least for now.

The emergency measure, enacted last March, limited on-street parking to residents and their guests from 7 p.m. to 3 a.m.

Its purpose was to prevent cruisers from parking and creating dis-

By Todd Schneider
staff writer

Like a lot of recreational exercise buffs, Fred Heldmeyer of Plymouth will spend some time this weekend biking, swimming and running.

But the Wayne-Westland Community Schools teacher is planning on more than just a light workout in Hines Park. (The Wayne-Westland school district includes the southwest portion of Canton Township.)

After a 2.4-mile swim in the Pacific Ocean, Heldmeyer will hop on a bicycle and pedal 112 miles before jumping off to take part in a 26.2-mile marathon foot race.

The 33-year-old Plymouthite is one of 2,200 athletes entered in Saturday's Bud Light Ironman triathlon on Kona Island, Hawaii. The annual endurance contest is sponsored by Anheuser Busch Inc.

Heldmeyer was one of 150 amateurs selected (from about 4,000 applicants) to compete in the triathlon. Race officials hold the lottery each year so that the race can remain open to non-professionals.

Few balloonists sign up for race this weekend

A decision was made Wednesday night to launch from Central Middle School at Main and Church, Lorenz said.

Boring said he'd be surprised if they launched before 9 p.m. Rain or high winds here or weather problems anywhere along the route could cause launch delays.

It takes about five hours to prepare his balloon for flight, Boring said. That includes assembly and filling the balloon with helium.

BECAUSE THERE are so few gas balloon pilots, there isn't much for spectators to see at a launch site.

The excitement is for the crew to experience.

Boring's 3½-by-6½-foot gondola contains a seat and a bench. He anticipates flying at altitudes of 3,000 to 12,000 feet and taking 12 to 14 hours to make the 650 mile trip.

"We have a full complement of radio and navigation equipment just like an airplane would have. We take winter clothing, no doubt about that. Freezing level now is about 8,000 feet.

"To eat, we take some fruit and light foods. We have some food in a survival kit."

Boring said he's slept only about one hour total during 12 previous flights. "It's an adrenalin rush."

A ground crew will follow the balloon.

THE RACE, if one materializes, will be decided by who lands closest to Plymouth, Mass.

'There aren't that many pilots. It's not like you can pick up the Yellow Pages and look under G for gas balloon.'

— Scott Lorenz

Proceeds will be donated to Straight Inc., a substance abuse care program with its Michigan headquarters in Plymouth.

LIGATO DID a study comparing pay and benefits received by aides in Plymouth-Canton to those of their area counterparts.

"These people are way behind, just in the area of economic benefits, let alone working conditions, overtime pay, layoff and recall procedures and the definition of seniority," Ligato.

"We have a very incomplete contract and are seeking to strengthen it. The law requires that parties meet, confer and bargain. We believe the district's team has engaged in surface bargaining. They're just going through the motions, and they're not even doing that very well."

"That's her opinion," said Kee. "The district is bargaining in good faith. We've made counter proposals that don't happen to be the things she wants, therefore, she's unhappy.

"I don't think the aides are being treated unfairly as Mrs. Ligato would like to portray it. We still want them to have an equitable contract."

WITH THE exception of transportation workers, all school employee groups have new contracts granting 5 percent increases.

The schools' 65 bus drivers and mechanics, who like the aides are working under a contract extension, still are bargaining with the district.

Asked whether five percent also was offered to the aides, Kee said "I don't feel at liberty to discuss proposals at this time. We're trying to reach a settlement at the table, not through the public media."

Plymouth-Canton aides earn $4.61 - $6.17 hourly. They receive no vacation, and no dental or vision benefits. Aides are paid $900 a year toward a $2,500 health insurance plan. All other Plymouth-Canton employees are provided full health insurance, said Ligato, who also represents the district's teachers, food service, custodial and maintenance workers.

Aides "get only a $650 life insurance policy, no long term disability. And they have to work 30 hours a week to get the $900 toward health insurance, and five hours a week to get the life insurance," said Ligato.

Novi aides earn $7.31 to $8.59 hourly. They receive one to three weeks' vacation; a choice of full family health insurance or $40 a month toward tax-sheltered annuities; partial or full dental coverage depending on seniority; partial vision coverage; and $30,000 in life insurance.

Teacher prepares for triathlon

HELDMEYER, who teaches physical education to handicapped children throughout the district, is approaching the race seriously but not as a life-or-death proposition.

"It's exciting for me just to be competing alongside the pros, even if I only see them at the start of the race," Heldmeyer quipped.

Actually, he does have a goal in mind for the race. Heldmeyer said he would like to finish the grueling competition in less than 12 hours.

Heldmeyer, who said his job keeps him in good physical shape, has been training for the triathlon since early last summer.

Dusk to dawn training stints were often the order of the day in July and August. Since the start of school Heldmeyer said he has been putting in four to five hours a day.

Because the swimming part of the competition will be in rough Pacific waters, the local pool just doesn't cut it for training, according to Heldmeyer. The teacher has spent a number of days swimming across local lakes and also swam in the Atlantic Ocean, off Hilton Head, S.C.

"I think the hardest part will be the marathon," Heldmeyer said. "Normally, that's no piece of cake anyway. But when you have to run after riding a bicycle, your legs are kind of rubber-like at the start."

The teacher said he trained in solitude so that he would be used to the feeling of being in an event "where you might not see any other competitors for miles."

WHEN COLLEAGUES and friends found out Heldmeyer had been selected for the triathlon, they formed "Friends of Fred" and held bake sales to help raise money for the trip.

Heldmeyer has also picked up a corporate sponsor, B-Dry Waterproofing Systems of Wayne.

"Before, I felt like I was just doing this for myself — to see if I could make the grade," Heldmeyer said. "Now though, I don't want to let the teachers and everybody else down."

Heldmeyer has been teaching in Wayne-Westland for two years. Before that he taught physical education in Lansing.

The teacher/triathlete said he has gotten encouragement from some of his older students, particularly at the junior high level.

He said he is touched by the interest from kids who deal daily with being confined to a wheelchair or with other disabilities.

"Here they are worried about how I will hold up during this thing," he said. "I find that really amazing."

Scholastic Olympics tests students

OUR LADY Of Good Counsel Catholic School in Plymouth captured first place in last week's Scholastic Olympics, sponsored in this area by Bishop Borgess High in Redford.

It may be a recruitment tool for Bishop Borgess, but its annual Scholastic Olympics for eighth graders is proving to be popular with parochial grade schools throughout the metropolitan area.

Teams from 24 grade schools converged on the high school Tuesday afternoon to test their skills in seven subject areas — social studies, current events, science, mathematics, computers, religion and English.

The teams came from St. Dunstan and St. Raphael schools in Garden City, St. Edith and St. Michael schools in Livonia, St. Valentine and Our Lady of Loretto schools in Redford and Our Lady of Good Counsel School in Plymouth to name a few.

Our Lady of Good Counsel racked up the most points by placing first, second or third in the individual competition to become the overall champion.

Individual winners, who received $500 Bishop Borgess scholarships, included Russ Curcuru of St. Raphael's for social studies, Benjamin Grix of St. Hilary's for current events, Charles Esser of Our Lady of Good Counsel for science, Gerald Pepper of Divine Child for mathematics, Michael Franks of Our Lady of Good Counsel for computers, Meghan O'Keefe of Our Lady of Good Counsel for religion, and Elena Tislerics of St. Valentine's for English.

This is the third year the high school has hosted the scholastic olympics.

"IT'S A chance for eighth graders from throughout western Wayne County to get together and spend time in a high school," co-organizer Linda Benger said.

"It also gives us contact with junior high teachers and to see what students are learning and not learning in school.

"It's good for us and it's good for the kids."

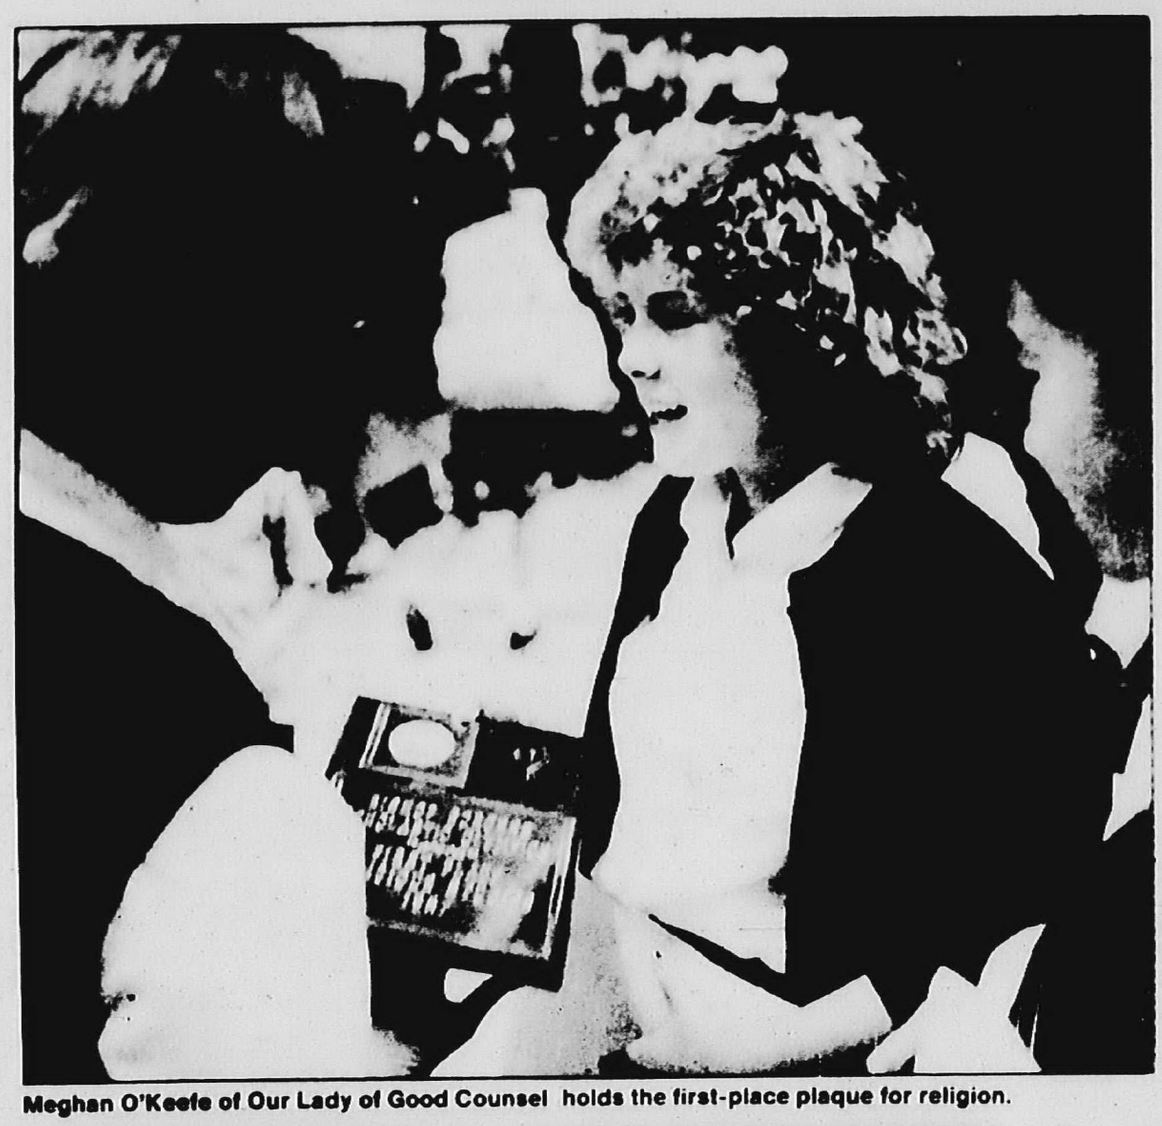
Benger teaches English at Bishop Borgess and works with social studies teacher Jan Hubacher on the competition.

The Scholastic Olympic lasts about 2½ hours, including the popular awards ceremony.

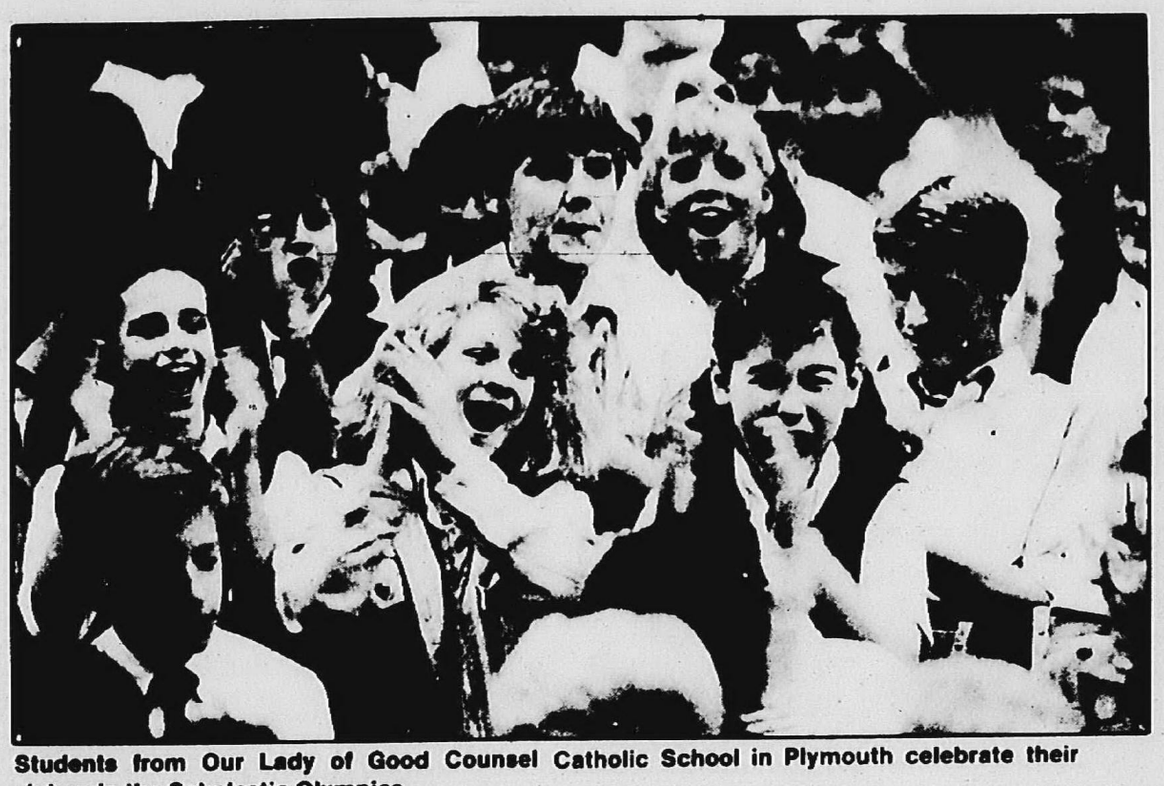
Four students compete in each category and the 45-minute long tests are multiple choice so that they can be scored quickly with a Scantron, an automatic test-checking machine.

While the tests are being scored, the teams are treated to lunch in the school cafeteria.

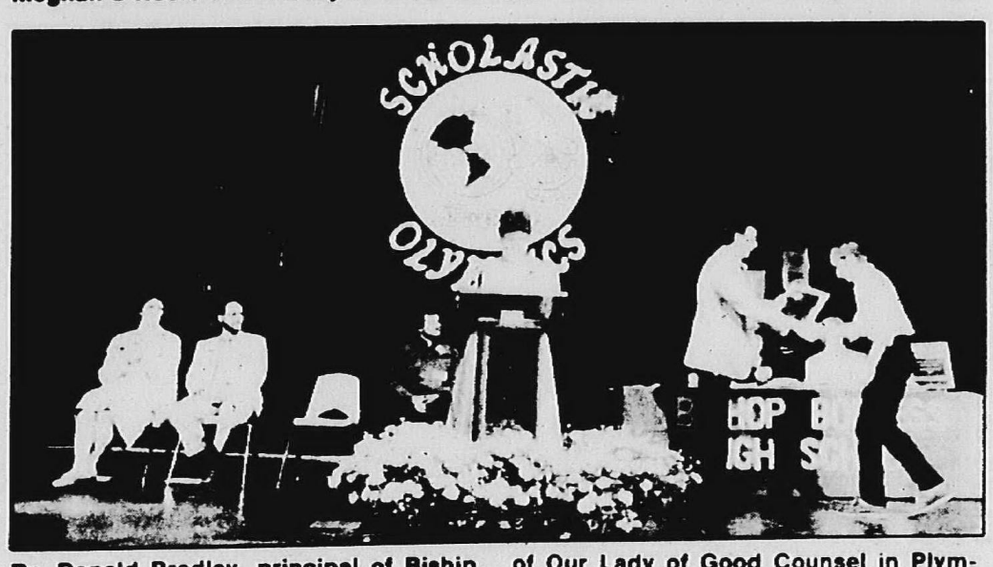
"The reaction has been fantastic," Benger said. "We've gotten letters on what a positive experience it was for these kids and we've had a number of kids write and say they had a wonderful time. And those are the ones who didn't win."



Meghan O'Keefe of Our Lady of Good Counsel holds the first-place plaque for religion.



Students from Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic School in Plymouth celebrate their victory in the Scholastic Olympics.



Dr. Donald Bradley, principal of Bishop Borgess High School in Redford, hands the first-place plaque to Michael Franks of Our Lady of Good Counsel in Plymouth.

Woman sentenced in fatal drunk driving accident

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

A Westland woman was sentenced to five to 15 years in prison last week after being found guilty of manslaughter in connection with the traffic death of Dorcas Ruth Aumann, 67, of Canton Township.

Yvonne Marie Hillier, 20, was convicted in a jury trial before Detroit Recorder's Court Judge Vera Massey Jones. She plans to file an appeal, according to her attorney, William Necker.

Aumann, a retired teacher, died at the scene of the head-on collision, which took place about 7:30 p.m. Dec. 13 on Joy Road at the I-275 overpass. Her husband, Bruce, who was driving, sustained facial, shoulder and wrist injuries.

ACCORDING TO testimony, Hillier drove her car from the parking lot of the Plymouth Rock Saloon on Joy west of Haggerty.

Hillier turned east onto Joy and sideswiped the Aumanns' westbound car. Hillier was driving on the wrong side of the road in the dark with the lights off, officers said.

Hillier's blood alcohol level was .20, a Michigan State Police lab analyst testified. A level of .10 is considered legally drunk.

Judge Jones ordered that Hillier undergo alcohol rehabilitation and counseling while in prison, despite a probation department report recommending no jail time for Hillier.

"The judge went outside the guidelines and pre-sentence report to give her enough time to get some type of alcohol treatment," said a court spokesman.

"Hillier felt like she should do some time but she thought five years was too much. The judge pointed out that Mr. Aumann's wife had been taken away from him, and that Hillier has a drinking past," the spokesman said.

Necker said his client "had no recollection of leaving the bar" and the only evidence establishing Hillier as the driver was the testimony of one police officer. Hillier was traveling with a friend, Kathy Paananen of Westland, who also is blonde and 20 years old, Necker said.

"The prosecutor felt some incarceration was necessary," said Necker. "Supreme Court guidelines recommend a sentence of zero to 36 months. I felt it was a pretty stiff sentence. It's a tragic thing for a young person.

"I didn't agree with the judge's conclusion but you don't argue with Judge Jones."

PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP Police filed violations against the Plymouth Rock with the Liquor Control Commission.

A hearing before Commissioner Alex Laggis is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. Monday, Oct. 12, in Lincoln Park.

Saloon owners Donald Vargo and Peter Elefterio are charged with 12 counts including selling alcohol to minors, serving visibly intoxicated persons, and allowing intoxicated individuals to consume and loiter, said Verna Foote of the Liquor Control Commission.

The saloon owners face a possible suspension or revocation of their liquor license and fines of up to $12,000, Foote said.

Bruce Aumann is suing Vargo and Elefterio, owners of Var-Ken Inc. Var-Ken had no liability insurance at the time of the incident. Also being sued are attorney Norman Farhat, a Var-Ken director, Hillier and Jacqueline Shaff, the bar manager on duty Dec. 13.

"According to the statements of the young lady and her friend, no one checked their ID" at Plymouth Rock, said John Nora, Aumann's attorney.

"They became visibly intoxicated and proceeded on Joy toward 275. They had one accident (sideswiping a car) prior to hitting the Aumanns head-on."

Vargo, part owner of Detroit's 1940s Chop House and former owner of Vargo's restaurant on Six Mile in Livonia, tried before the traffic fatality to transfer his interest in Plymouth Rock, Nora said.

He was unsuccessful because he failed to obtain approval from the Liquor Control Commission and Plymouth Township, Nora said. Vargo couldn't have transferred his shares anyway, due to earlier LCC charges of selling to a minor, added Nora.

City rescinds parking ban

turbances in neighborhoods near Main Street while walking to or from downtown gathering spots.

"The situation, the problem, the ban was initially instituted for has been downsized dramatically," said Paul Sincock, assistant to the city manager.

"It's a nuisance for us to maintain a program, computer files."

THE CITY is taking action to save residents the bother of going around to remove the parking ban, Sincock added.

According to the ordinance adopted last year, parking restrictions would apply only if at least 60 percent of the residents on a street were to petition.

The restrictions, once in effect, could be lifted by either the city commission or resident petition.

Residents on seven streets — Ross, Forest, Palmer, Sutherland, Simpson, Hartsough and Dewey — chose to participate this year.

Participants received stickers for all their vehicles. More than 400 vehicles were registered, Sincock said. Guest passes were issued on a need basis.

Dewey residents were first on line May 8. Twelve tickets were issued for violations there that first weekend.

THE RESIDENTS-only, on-street parking program, the temporary hiring of eight additional police officers, and limiting traffic on Main to one lane in each direction were cited as the three key elements in dealing with cruising problems.

Main has been opened for normal traffic patterns since July and the temporary officers were laid off late last month.

Everyone involved in the residential parking program was notified of the city administration's proposal to cancel it before the commission's decision Monday to do so, Sincock said.

He said he's heard a few comments from residents both against and for the parking ban since it took effect.

"If they want to put it back into effect, we can do that," he said.

It's likely that cruising will resurface next spring, and that's exactly what will happen, Sincock projected.

Child molesting suspected

A Canton Township couple filed a criminal sexual conduct report with police after suspecting their 3-year-old daughter had been sexually molested.

After picking their daughter up at the babysitter's home Oct. 1, the couple said the little girl complained of aching in her genital area.

The 3-year-old was taken to Oakwood Canton Center Hospital where she was examined.

A FARMINGTON man told Canton police he was robbed at gunpoint at 11:10 p.m. Oct. 3 while hitch-hiking on Michigan Avenue west of Beech.

A man armed with a 38-caliber snub-nosed revolver exited a 1976 brown Malibu, grabbing the victim by the hair, throwing him to the ground and demanding "everything."

The suspect, about 25 years old, five-foot-six, and 160 pounds, escaped with $280.

A CANTON WOMAN might be surprised to learn the roses she received recently were purchased with a stolen credit card.

Sparr's Florist of Canton told police a $22 order for a dozen white sweetheart roses was placed under a false name. Police said their suspect already has been charged with a similar offense by Plymouth Township police.

DINO'S PIZZA delivery man Patrick Trainor is out $17. Trainor told police that while delivering a pizza to a home on Chalmette Court in Canton, someone entered his car and removed two large pizzas. Believing someone from the Chalmette residence was responsible, Trainor went back up to the door but no one would answer.

Landfill space — going, going, gone?

Waste recycling touted as solution

By Tom Henderson
staff writer

According to Robert Beckley, the director of public works in Livonia, Wayne County's current landfills will be filled and out of business in six years. Then what? That's the perplexing question facing area municipalities. Towing it around the world on a barge won't work, as they found out in New York.

A state commission has recommended that the problem of waste disposal be solved by recycling up to 85 percent of the garbage produced, but area experts say that such a figure is unrealistic.

They say you can burn some, you can compost some and you can recycle some, but other than that, they're not sure how to solve the garbage problem. They agree that the time has come to study the options and do something quick, before unwanted and undisposable garbage becomes a lot more than just a running gag on the Tonight Show.

They say that communities in Wayne County currently recycle no more than 5 percent of their garbage and that they will be happy if eventually 25 percent of the solid waste is recycled and another 10 percent turned into compost for agriculture.

"The problem is that there isn't a market for recycled products," said Ann Bollin, executive director of the Conference of Western Wayne, a consortium of 17 western Wayne County communities, including Redford, Garden City, Livonia, Westland, Wayne, Plymouth and Canton.

"Look at the card shops. People don't choose to buy the recycled paper, they buy the new new cards," said Bollin.

"Eighty-five percent isn't realistic in this generation. Maybe in the next," said Fred Clinton, director of the resource-recovery division of the state's Department of Natural Resources. He said the DNR's goal was to get 25 percent of the state's trash recycled and 10 percent composted, and that a 16-person team was leaving Oct. 10 for two weeks in Europe to study recycling and composting in the Netherlands, Belgium and West Germany.

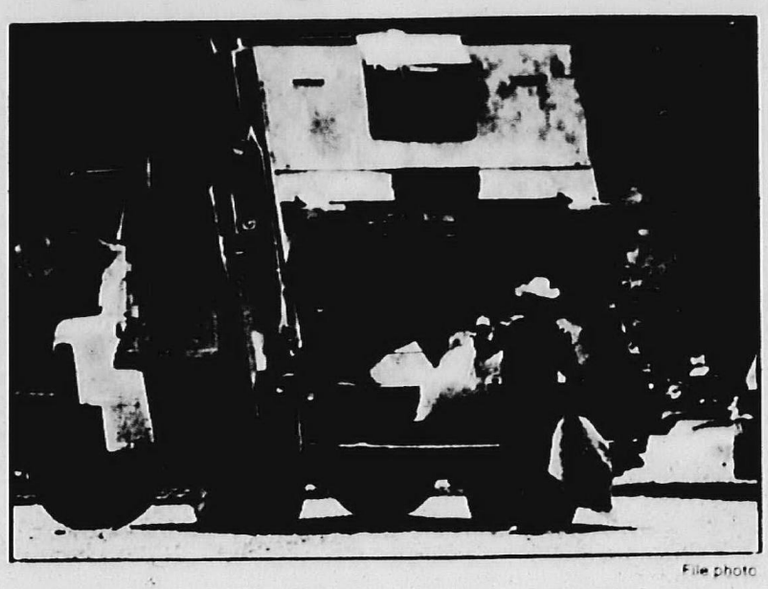
"If you got 10 percent recycled, you'd be fortunate," said Ulrich Bauser, director of the Central Wayne Sanitation Authority, which disposes of 500 tons of garbage a day for Wayne, Westland, Inkster, Garden City and Dearborn Heights.

"It can be done in another world war or something. I remember taking paper off the sides of cans in World War II and washing the can and squashing it flat.

"But today? We're a throwaway society."

ROBERT COOK is a member of the department of chemistry at Kalamazoo College and the vice chairman of the Michigan Toxic Substance Control Commission, which issued the report calling for recycling of 85 percent of garbage.

"Incineration may be harmful to the reduction and recycling effort," said Cook. He said the state currently is aiming at reducing garbage levels by 35 percent through composting and recycling but that with a stronger effort, levels could be reduced by 85 percent.



File photo

Wayne County isn't running out of garbage, but it is running out of places to store its waste.

The commission report said that a waste-disposal plan "that relies principally on incineration is inherently inefficient, is inflexible and costly and perpetuates rather than eliminates the need for large-scale landfilling."

Recycling sounds good, but hasn't worked so far, say area experts.

"I don't know of anything substantial being recycled out of residential waste," said Beckley, whose city produces 96,000 tons of garbage a year, all of it currently going to landfills.

"Recycling is going to be a long time coming. Eventually the home owner must realize where his waste is going," Beckley said.

Part of the problem, said Beckley, is that waste disposal is still relatively cheap. "It's costing us almost $5 per household per month. At this point, that doesn't scare people. But these prices are going to skyrocket in six years."

BEGINNING IN JANUARY, the Central Wayne Sanitation Authority will begin incinerating its garbage in two furnaces that are being upgraded, at the cost of $12 million, to meet EPA standards. The furnaces have been shut down since 1982. A third furnace will be upgraded when garbage volumes warrant.

Bauser said that incineration will reduce volumes by 90-92 percent, and that recycling metal out of the ash will reduce the remaining volume by half.

The ash that is left is toxic and the EPA hasn't decided the best way to dispose of it, according to Bollin.

The rest of the western communities are studying the garbage problem under the auspices of the Conference on Western Wayne, since any solution will be too costly for any one community to bear.

Tentative plans call for Wayne townships to join in one sanitation authority, with cities joining in a second.

"Any solution has got to be regional and it's got to be a combination of conventional landfill, recycling and burning," said Smith Horton, a Plymouth Township trustee who is liaison with the Conference on Western Wayne.

According to a timetable furnished by the conference, a sanitation authority or authorities will be established by December. State funds will be sought in January, when a public awareness campaign begins.

Next August, potential sites for new incinerators, landfills or recycling plants will be identified.

In December 1988, plans are to begin a recycling program with the help of state officials and to schedule planning and engineering activities for an incinerator.

Harden report: $200 million boost, shift to sales tax

Here are more excerpts from "Educational Quality in the 21st Century," the so-called Harden Commission report to the State Board of Education. Earlier installments were published Sept. 24 and Oct. 1 on page 5A.

The panel recommended a $1.38 billion tax shift — raising the sales tax from 4 percent to 6, cutting farm-residential property tax rate to 18 mills and cutting the business rate cut to 23 mills. All business property taxes would be shared in common by school districts.

$200 million asked for new state fund

"The commission recommends that the Legislature enact an 'Educational Trust Fund' (of $200 million in new revenue). The purpose is to ensure that the money is targeted to improving the quality of K-12 education.

"New dollars (should) be spent on specific programs and not be put into a general formula increase."

The commission suggested the Legislature spend the new money on:

- "Pre-school programs for 'at risk' children 4 years of age.
- "Reducing class size in grades K-3.
- "Providing a flat dollar amount per student to every school building in the state . . . (for) community involvement and staff improvement . . . .
- "Expanded testing and reporting . . . .
- "Funds to encourage open enrollment or choice within a public school district."

THE NEW $200 million increase could come from these sources:

"1. One-tenth of 1 percent of the income tax rate — 50 percent of the federal windfall." Thus, the panel suggests that Michigan not reduce its income tax rate from 4.6 percent to 4.4 percent, as proposed by Gov. James Blanchard and many senators.

"2. Prudent reductions in the state pension fund.

"3. Elimination of non-mandated categoricals and social security for out-of-formula districts." This would shift those costs from the state budget to many suburban school districts.

"4. . . . (A)n increase in the cigarette tax."

Case for shift to 6 pct. sales tax

"The commission recommends increasing the sales and use tax rate from 4 percent to 6 percent. This recommendation will require a vote of the people in order to amend the current state constitution.

" . . . A broad-based tax such as the sales tax is more politically acceptable than other forms of taxation.

"HOWEVER, THE increase in the sales tax does present two concerns:

"First, the sales tax is no longer deductible (for income tax purposes) at the federal level . . . . Approximately 37 percent of Michigan taxpayers itemize their federal tax return. The increase in the federal income tax liability is estimated to be between $140 million and $150 million.

"The second concern is 'regressivity' — a tax in which lower income households pay a higher percentage of their income tax than do higher income households . . . .

"(A) 6 percent sales tax would be clearly regressive. That is, families with an income of $6,000 would pay an effective rate of 2.9 percent while families with an income of $40,000 would pay only 1.7 percent.

"However, the regressivity is reduced if the sales tax is excluded from utility payments." Effective rates: 2.3 percent on a $6,000 income, 1.5 percent on a $40,000 income.

"Both (sales and property) taxes are regressive. Increasing the rate of one regressive tax while decreasing the rate of another regressive tax will approximately offset each other . . . . Specific cases will vary significantly."

Cap business tax rate at 23 mills

"Business property should be subject to a constitutionally fixed rate of tax (of 23 mills). Three reasons supported this position:

"First, if significant property tax relief were granted, then it is possible that several communities would vote to increase their local millage rate. If the local school district could keep the revenue from commercial and industrial property, then the fiscal disparities would continue to exist.

"The second reason concerns economic development. A fixed rate . . . would provide businesses with some degree of certainty about future costs of doing business. (Current statewide average is 32 mills.)

"The third reason concerns the overall business share of total taxes. It is estimated businesses pay 38 percent of the total property tax levy (and) 22 percent of the sales tax. Therefore, a shift from property taxes to sales tax, other things being equal, would reduce taxes borne by business and increase taxes paid by individuals.

"The 23-mill levy still provides some tax relief for businesses. For example, the business portion of the sales tax is estimated to be $304 million. The business property tax relief is estimated to be $393 million at 23 mills for a net tax reduction of $89 million."

CEP marching band wins top awards in state

The Centennial Educational Park Marching Band earned the Governor's Trophy signifying the grand championship Sunday at the 14th annual Michigan Invitational Marching Band Tournament.

The competition, hosted by Flushing High School and held in Atwood Stadium in Flint, featured some 20 bands from throughout Michigan.

The CEP band also was awarded trophies for best band in Flight I, best percussion, best brass and winds, and best color guard.

Band Director James R. Griffith said it was the second year in a row the band has earned the Governor's Trophy, and the fourth time since the CEP Marching Band began competing in 1979.

This Saturday, Oct. 10, the band will travel to Terre Haute, Ind., for a Bands of America Midwest Regional Competition involving 25 units from Tennessee, Indiana, Kentucky, Illinois and Michigan. Among the competitors will be four bands included in the top 12 in the nation last year.

The competition at Terre Haute will be an all-day event with both preliminary and final performances held at the Indiana State University stadium. More than 200 parents and boosters from Plymouth-Canton have made arrangements to attend.

On Saturday, Oct. 17, the band will participate in the Durand Invitational.

The Michigan Competing Band Directors State Championship Show will be held in Canton on Oct. 24 at the CEP Athletic Field, and the competing band season then will end on Nov. 14 at the Marching Bands of America National Championship at the Pontiac Silverdome.

Student count increases by 52

By Susan Buck
staff writer

Enrollment in Plymouth-Canton Community Schools has increased by 52 students.

An unaudited count obtained Oct. 2 — the traditional Fourth Friday date after Labor Day — turned up 7,105 pupils in the elementary schools, 4,048 in the middle schools and 4,415 students in the high school for a total of 15,568.

That enrollment compares to 15,516 last year.

In comparison to last year, there are 134 more elementary students, 103 less middle school students and 21 more high school students.

Administrators had projected 15,700 students would enroll in begindergarden (pre-kindergarten)-12 this year.

"We thought it would be up because of all the housing that was being built," said Geannie Murdock, the pupil accountant.

This is the third year in a row that there was a slight increase after four consecutive years of decline. The district's student population peaked at 16,913 during the 1980-81 school year.

"We increased up to the school year of 1980-81 then we began to drop because the economy was very bad and mortgage rates were very high," said Murdock.

From 1985-86, the begindergarten-12 student count was 15,338 and 1986-87 it was 15,516.

Statue stolen; front yard is vandalized

A two-foot high statue/fountain was stolen last week from the front lawn of a house on E. Normandy Court, according to a report filed with Plymouth Township Police.

The concrete statue of a man and woman was valued at $200.

A row of outdoor lights was pulled out of place there and several planters were moved.

The theft and vandalism occurred between 7:15 and 11:50 p.m. Saturday.

Radar detectors were reported stolen last weekend from a car at the Red Roof Inn on Ann Arbor Road and from another car at the Plymouth Hilton on Northville Road. Windows were broken in each instance to gain entry.

Nothing was reported missing in an attempted break-in of a house on Beck Road between 5 and 10 p.m. Sunday. Trim had been pried and a window broken on a rear door.

A sliding glass door 7-by-3 feet was broken on McKinley in the city of Plymouth. Damage was estimated at $200.

A BB was shot into a window of a mobile home at the Oak Haven Trailer Park in Plymouth Township. That damage was estimated at $100.

Plumbers' group assists those in need

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

Fred Richter was a plumber who left behind a legacy.

He was a member of the Western Wayne Plumbing and Mechanical Contractors Association, a fraternal organization that today represents 26 local companies.

So well liked was he within the trade that today, a dozen years after his death, Richter continues to be remembered annually by a day set aside to benefit a family in need of extensive plumbing repair work.

In memory of Fred Richter, a small army of plumbers — some moonlighting as carpenters — descended on a Wayne home in need of massive repair Saturday and literally rebuilt it from the bottom up.

The plumbers repiped, refitted, refloored and converted a back porch into a laundry room for the family of nine, who have lived in the two bedroom, single level house 14 years.

ART EMANUELE/staff photographer

Peter Fuoco (left) and Jerry Antczak were among some 25 members of the Western Wayne Plumbing and Mechanical Contractors Association who donated their time last Saturday to repipe and refit the home of a needy family.

Labor (generally $40 to $42 an hour) plus materials were donated by member companies.

"It makes you feel good," said Ed Belanger, association president, who estimates the job would have cost the family between $5,000 and $10,000.

THE PLUMBERS took on two projects this year. The smaller job involved replacing a sink faucet and hot water tank for an elderly man living alone in Wayne.

"He just got out of the hospital," said Belanger, who is president of Approved Plumbing in Southfield.

Wayne City Planner John J. Zech steered the association to this year's recipients. Previously, city officials and churches throughout western Wayne County have served as referral points for the association.

"One that was particularly emotionally rewarding was a social center for the retarded in Detroit, near Mt. Elliott and Jefferson," said Belanger.

"That was three years ago. We heard about it through a church. It had been firebombed twice by neighbors who didn't want it there. It was a converted two-family home. They (retarded adults who used the center) walked around carrying our tools."

The hardest part is finding a project to keep 25 to 30 plumbers busy for an entire day, Belanger said.

The family of nine cramped into a 700-square-foot house was getting new water pipes, drain system cleaned sewers, bathtub, water closet and lavatory replacement, complete kitchen, including upper and lower cabinets, complete floors in the kitchen and bathroom, and conversion of the back porch into a laundry room, which meant moving a water meter and a hot water tank.

"Right now the family has its washer and dryer in the kitchen on an extension cord," said Peter Fuoco, vice president of A&F Water Heater of Livonia, who with company president Jerry Antczak participated in Saturday's project.

New faucets were slated for the house, new walls for the bathroom and kitchen and a new fiberglass tub enclosure.

Belanger jokingly estimated the association would complete the job "in record time since it's free. If (the customers) were paying for our time that would be a different story."

Added Robyn Cowen of Westland, one of only three female master plumbers in Michigan and the association's secretary: "Everyone gets along so well together. We all enjoy contributing to the project. There's no rivalry."

Among the contributors, besides the member plumbing wholesalers, were Church's Lumber, Builders Square and Livonia Building Trades. Domino's Pizza in Wayne footed the bill for lunch.

Anyone who wishes to donate to the project, or suggest a house for consideration next spring, can call Fuoco at 421-9043.

Toolbox, saws lost in garage break-in

A red Craftsman toolbox containing tools valued at $1,000 was reported stolen last week from a garage on Barrington in Plymouth Township.

There were no signs of forced entry, leading the homeowner to conclude that someone used an automatic garage door opener tuned to the right frequency to gain entry, police accounts indicated.

Also reported stolen in that burglary were a chainsaw valued at $200 and a power saw worth $50.

A red Toro lawnmower valued at $400 was reported stolen from a garage on Parkview. A rear door had been left open.

A light post valued at $75 was reported stolen from in front of a house on Northampton. It had been damaged previously, police reports indicated.

A blue 10-speed bicycle valued at $120 was reported stolen from the Dunning-Hough Library on Main Street in the city of Plymouth. It hadn't been secured with a lock.

Church schools hold rally at state Capitol

(AP) — For the second time in a little more than six months, thousands of people rallied at the state Capitol last week to press for passage of a bill to ease state regulation of church-run schools.

More than 10,000 demonstrators blanketed the front lawn of the Capitol as their buses ringed the block. Most were young people bused in by churches.

Like their first rally in March, which attracted a similar crowd, they sang religious songs and waved signs, such as "Freedom from Humanism," "Victory in Jesus," and "Church School, Church Control." As if on cue, the drizzly skies cleared and the sun peeked out.

The March rally was attended by church representatives from Canton and Plymouth.

The target of their rally was a Senate-passed bill, now in the House Education Committee, to relax state control of private schools.

"WE WANT freedom for our parents to choose a Christian education for our children," declared the Rev. Rene Oullette, of the Bridgeport Baptist Academy in Saginaw, to cheers from the crowd.

"We want freedom for Christian teachers to teach students to obey God without getting a license."

The church schools object to a state requirement to employ state-certified teachers in their schools. Oullette's school and another school challenged the law in court but last year the state Supreme Court upheld it.

The Senate bill would permit school officials periodically to test their students to demonstrate they were learning, if the schools didn't hire certified teachers.

"We'll test our students and show you they're learning," Oullette said. "We would like a law that doesn't violate our conscience and guarantees a good education."

The House Education Committee is scheduled to discuss the bill tomorrow, according to Tom Greene, a consultant for an alliance of Christian churches that staged the rally.

Emergency device available

A pressing need exists for individuals who might not be able to receive assistance in an emergency at home, says Rick Parker of Advance Biomedical Inc. in Plymouth.

Advance offers a personal emergency response system.

The system invovles a wrist device which provides rapid response for those in need of emergency assistance. With the push of a button, trained dispatchers, on duty 24-hours-a-day, view computerized medical information and other pertinent data which is used to notify the appropriate responding parties.

The electronic equipment connects to any modular telephone jack and consists of a wireless pendant or handheld transmitter and home console.

Men, if you're about to turn 18, it's time to register with Selective Service at any U.S. Post Office. It's quick. It's easy. And it's the law.

MADD drive aims to keep drunks off roads

Drive for Life, sponsored by Volkswagen U.S. Inc., on behalf of MADD, will ask Americans to pledge not to drink and drive.

Motorists are being asked to drive with their headlights on Saturday, Oct. 24, in support of the first nationwide campaign by Mothers Against Drunk Driving and Volkswagen to keep drunks off the roads.

"It's our first national effort in what we hope will become an annual event," said Sandi Wolf, administrator of the Wayne County chapter of MADD, headquartered in Livonia.

Drive for Life, sponsored by Volkswagen U.S., Inc., on behalf of MADD, will ask Americans to pledge not to drink and drive as part of a campaign to reduce alcohol-related traffic fatalities. Across the country, 23,000 lives were lost last year due to drunk drivers.

Because lead time is scarce, the local chapter was unable to produce a more involved program.

"We are sponsoring a press conference Oct. 21 with Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano, county prosecutor John O'Hair, Detroit and Michigan State Police, AAA and Volkswagen to promote media awareness," Wolf said.

A proclamation by County Executive Edward McNamara also is being sought, she added.

Law enforcement groups will be on extra alert that day.

In the first half of 1986, 64 people were killed by drunk drivers in Wayne County, according to statistics provided by state police. From January through June last year, 1,710 personal injury accidents involving alcohol were reported. A total of 2,749 people were injured in those crashes.

"Obviously, drunk driving results in more than death. There's much personal suffering, repair bills; it's not just the person who gets killed," Wolf said.

Norma Phillips, national president of MADD, and Jim Fuller, vice president of Volkswagen, began a 24-city tour Oct. 1 to promote the campaign across America.

Although laws relating to drunk driving have gotten tougher, an average of 66 people still continue to be killed every day in alcohol-related crashes, Phillips said.

The goal of the Drive for Life campaign is to make Oct. 24 a day free of carnage and a day when all Americans can dedicate themselves to ending this terrible waste.

The Drive for Life campaign marks the first time a major automobile manufacturer has worked with MADD on a national level.

"As much as we appreciate Volkswagen's financial support, the thing we value most highly is the company's commitment of its manpower and dealer organization to this cause," she said.

Future Volkswagen programs will include distribution of an educational film on drunk driving sponsored by the company, and staging of fund-raising events to increase public awareness of the seriousness of drunk driving.

With more than 650,000 members and supporters, MADD is the largest victim assistance program in the world. The organization is dedicated to eliminating drunk driving as a nationwide dilemma through a range of programs aimed at mobilizing public opinion and affecting public policy.

The Wayne County MADD chapter is also sponsoring Project Graduation Oct. 22. The theme, "Don't let a friend drive drunk," will be presented to participants during a student leadership conference in Warren. More than 1,000 high school students from southeastern Michigan are expected to attend.

WSU women hear Thomas

Helen Thomas, the senior member of the White House Press Corps, will give the keynote address at the Dauris J. Jackson Memorial Seminar Friday, in the McGregor Memorial Conference Center at Wayne State University.

Thomas, a Wayne State alumna (1942) who has covered six U.S. presidents for United Press International, will speak on the theme of the conference, "Leadership Expertise with Sensitivity," at 9:30 a.m.

As dean of White House correspondents, Thomas opens and closes each presidential news conference.

The Dauris Jackson Seminar is designed for women administrators and managers. This year's daylong program will deal with economic, legal, social and political issues that influence women.

Bills may launch women pilots in combat soon

AP — Retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Jeanne Holm predicted that by the turn of the century, American women military pilots will be flying jet fighters and bombers in combat.

"I think there'll be a lot of chipping away at the public law that prohibits women from going into combat, but I expect the law will be changed by the end of the next decade," said Holm, who began her 30-year Air Force career in 1945.

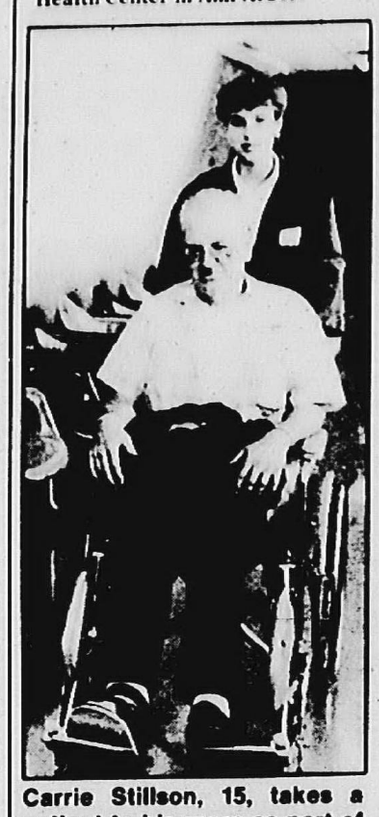
Plymouth teens work as volunteers at health center in Ann Arbor

Carrie Stillson, Keri Peterson and Debbie Drabek, all of Plymouth, worked this summer as teen volunteers at Catherine McAuley Health Center in Ann Arbor.



Carrie Stillson, 15, takes a patient to his room as part of her duties in admitting at St Joseph Mercy Hospital.

The three each volunteered at least four hours a week to do "something worthwhile" during during the long summer vacation to help others and to gain some firsthand experience in a medical setting.

The Plymouth residents were among 55 teens who volunteered 2,500 hours to the health center during the summer.

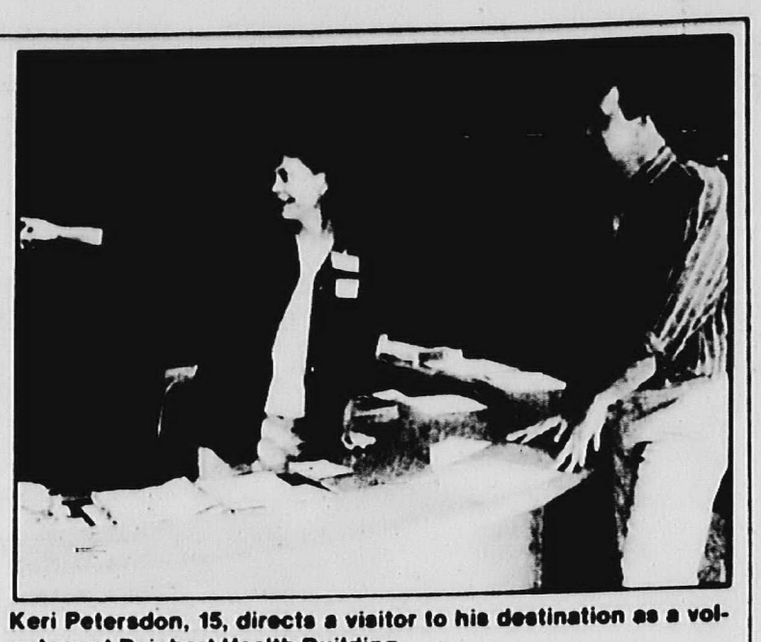
STILLSON, 15, a sophomore at Plymouth Salem High, worked Wednesdays in admitting, taking patients to their rooms and helping to make them comfortable and at home.

"I really enjoyed it. I like the patient contact. I tried to talk to each patient and make them feel a little better and not so nervous."

Although Stillson developed a compassionate bedside manner through her volunteer experience, she said she doesn't think the health field will be her ultimate career choice.

Instead she thinks she'll choose advertising, although she said community service will remain high on her list of priorities.

A SOPHOMORE at Plymouth Canton High, Peterson, 15, also volunteered in admitting as well as helping out in patient services at Reichert Health Building, directing patients to their destinations.



Keri Petersdon, 15, directs a visitor to his destination as a volunteer at Reichert Health Building.

The favorite part of the two jobs was meeting lots of people, "even running into people I know," she said.

Besides helping other people and keeping busy, Peterson said she also did some career exploration.

"I found out there are lots of other jobs you can do in a hospital besides being a doctor or nurse. I think it would be interesting to be a supervisor of one of the big departments, for example."

Peterson ranked her volunteer experience as a success.

"It was fun. I felt really good about myself because I was volunteering my time to help others. My mother says I must have had a good time because I was always full of stories on the drive home."

FOR DRABEK, 17, a senior at Plymouth Salem High, volunteering was a way "to help others" and to do some career investigation at the same time.

She worked at a patient unit, assisting nurses with making beds and running errands, and helping patients with baths, serving water and answering call lights.

She also assisted the physical therapist on the floor and thinks that is what she might like to do someday.

Signup for the fall program for adults and teens is under way. Volunteers help at Arbor Health Building at Ann Arbor Trail and Harvey in Plymouth, at the McAuley Health Center on Ford Road in Canton, St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Mercywood Health Building, Huron Oaks Chemical Dependency Treatment Facility, Reichert Health Building, and Maple Health Building, all in Ann Arbor.

To sign up or for more information, call the volunteer office at 572-4159.

County ordered to expand jail

Wayne County is now under court order to increase its jail space.

Chief Circuit Judge Richard Kaufman Monday ordered the county to add cells and prisoner recreation areas to the county jail.

The ruling, however, did little to clear controversy on whether a tax increase would be necessary to pay for the estimated $6 million expansion.

Judge Kaufman earlier indicated he would order jail additions if county commissioners failed to approve a jail expansion plan by Oct. 1.

County Executive Edward McNamara, Sheriff Robert Ficano and attorneys for jail prisoners all agreed the addition was necessary.

County commissioners tabled action on the jail expansion last week, claiming the county lacked money to build and staff the jail. At the time, several commissioners said they believed a tax increase was necessary to finance the project.

Disagreeing with commissioners, sheriff's department and county executive's staff members said they would seek a pair of federal grants and use money from the sale of the former Wayne County General Hospital, if necessary, to expand the jail. Staffing costs would be reduced through increased video prisoner monitoring, deputy county executive Michael Duggan said.

A new six-story jail wing would be built on Gratiot. An unused 13th floor gymnasium would be converted into cells.

As many as 470 new prisoners could be held, county officials said.

Monday's decision was prompted by a lawsuit dating back to the early 1970s. Prisoners sued the county in 1971, claiming the jail was overcrowded.

Judge Kaufman said he would order jail additions if commissioners failed to approve a plan by Oct. 1.

AIDS-ed requirement proposed for schools

By Wayne Pool
staff writer

AIDS education in schools would be mandatory under a bill being considered by the Michigan Senate.

The bill would add an AIDS (acquired immune deficiency syndrome) education requirement to a section of Michigan law dealing with instruction on communicable diseases.

While local school districts currently provide AIDS education to high school students, few provide it to younger students. Programs vary among the districts.

In Plymouth-Canton, AIDS education has been incorporated into standard sixth- through ninth-grade health classes.

"This year, we've added AIDS to our section on communicable diseases," assistant superintendent Michael Homes said.

Garden City students also discuss AIDS in junior and senior high health courses.

"There's been discussion of AIDS for the past year and a half or so," student services director Mark Gutman said. AIDS is also discussed in an optional high school course on family living, he added.

Livonia limits AIDS education to high school students, but will add a middle school program in the latter part of this school year.

"Essentially, it's a three-day period of study in our high school health classes," district science coordinator Dick Braun said. "The middle school program will also be a three-day program."

Redford Union Schools is developing an AIDS education program.

"OUR HEALTH advisory council is meeting right now, beginning discussions on a program for elementary school students," special education director Gus Kaselemis said.

Currently, district eighth- and ninth-grade students attend a one-time AIDS awareness session, featuring a movie and follow-up discussion.

Wayne-Westland Schools also is developing a program.

"We hope to have it operating by the second semester," associate superintendent William Harvey said. "Our study group is looking at making its recommendations available in November."

A "small pilot program" had been in effect at Adlai Stevenson Junior High and at district high schools, Harvey added.

South Redford is also reviewing AIDS education material.

"We're trying to look at what kind of material is appropriate and at what age level," assistant superintendent William Weber said.

AIDS is discussed in high school biology classes, Weber said, as well as in optional high school courses on family development and personal health.

The bill passed a key test last week, when it unanimously cleared a state Senate committee. It now goes to the full Senate.

As originally drafted, the bill would also have required schools to provide sex education. That provision was dropped, however, to move the bill out of committee.

Opinion

Consider that . . .

We seldom do what we should

FIRE PREVENTION Week is a good time for considering.

Consider that fire is one of the leading causes of accidental death in the home each year.

Consider that in the United States someone dies in a fire every 40 minutes — most often the victims being children and the elderly.

Consider that fire is responsible for more than $2 billion worth of damage to homes each year.

Consider that fire is the most likely disaster you and your family will experience. More than 80 percent of fires occur when there are people in homes, in apartments, in hotels, in motels and in mobile homes.

Consider that each year the American Red Cross responds to more than 60,000 disasters — most home and apartment fires.

WHEN YOU CONSIDER these things, the message of Fire Prevention Week (Oct. 4-10) should be clear — we all should be motivated to do what we can to avoid the human and economic loss caused by fire, often unnecessarily.

The two things most effective in preventing fire loss is fire exit drills in the home and installation of smoke alarms (one on each floor, near a heating appliance, and near the bedrooms)

These tips also can prevent unnecessary tragedy:

- Keep flammable liquids stored outside the home.
- Do not smoke in bed.
- Discard oily and paint-soaked rags.
- Do not overload electrical circuits.
- Keep matches away from children.
- Never use a gas range or an oven to heat your kitchen.
- Keep an appropriate fire extinguisher on a wall away from the stove.
- During snow storms, keep the snow shoveled away from the fire hydrant.
- If you suspect any part of your house is on fire, do not open the inside door without first placing your palm against it. If it feels hot, do not open it.
- If your clothing catches fire, wrap yourself in a blanket or rug and roll on the ground to extinguish the flame. Do not run.
- Devise a family escape plan and practice it until it becomes second nature.

WHEN USING space heaters and heating stoves:

- Make sure they are in good working condition. Never use fuel-burning appliances without proper vents.
- Maintain clearance in all directions around the space heater or heating stove. Surrounding surfaces should not be too hot to touch with your bare hand.
- Avoid overfilling an oil unit. Cold oil will expand when warmed and cause burner flooding. Don't fill your heater while it is burning.
- Turn off your bedroom space heater before going to bed. If you must leave it on, turn it down to its lowest setting.
- Use only the proper fuel for each heater. Never introduce a fuel into a unit not designed for that fuel.
- Keep young children away from space heaters. Clothing, such as nightgowns, can be sucked in by a draft created by the heater and ignited.

WHEN USING fireplaces:

- Do not use a flammable liquid to start the fire.
- Keep a metal screen in front of your fireplace. Flying embers start fire.
- Don't use an excessive amount of paper to start the fire. If possible, use kindling. Soot can be ignited in the chimney by overbuilding the fire.
- Never burn charcoal in the fireplace. Burning charcoal gives off deadly amounts of carbon monoxide.
- Make sure the fireplace is out when going to bed. Never close the damper with hot ashes in the fireplace.
- If you haven't used the fireplace in a while, have it and the chimney checked before using.

Competition

Free press key to free society

NATIONAL NEWSPAPER WEEK, Oct. 4-10, is particularly significant in the metropolitan Detroit area this year.

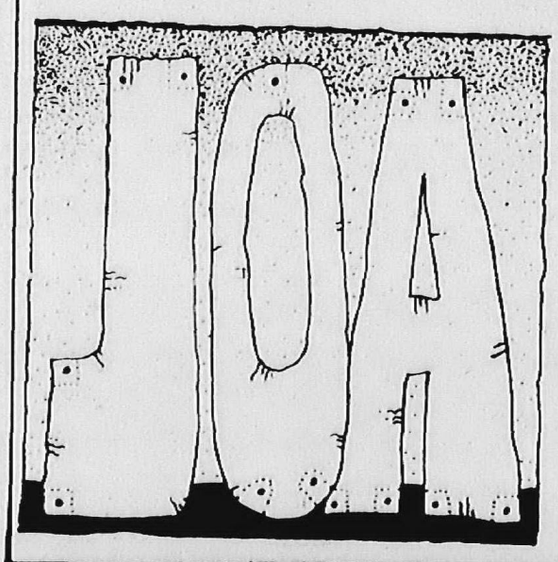
That's because this time next year Detroit's two largest daily newspapers may be in a Joint Operating Agreement that would end their financial competition and cut costs by combining circulation, advertising and production operations. If granted by U.S. Attorney General Edwin Meese III, the JOA here in metropolitan Detroit would be the largest of 21 nationwide.

Although the Detroit Free Press and Detroit News' editorial departments would remain separate, some functions would be combined, and they would publish combined editions on Saturdays and Sundays. It is hard to imagine that the competitive edge of two papers fighting for the same story wouldn't be dulled and, as a result, readers less informed.

IT'S PARTICULARLY galling that two of the nation's wealthiest publishing firms could spend wildly and then ask the government to reward them for their excess.

Newspapers in the suburbs, including the Observer & Eccentric, called for hearings on the JOA. Held in late summer, they contributed to the recent recommendation against a Detroit JOA by the antitrust division of the justice department. However, the decision, expected in about six months, is up to Attorney General Meese.

In the meantime, the suburban papers have taken steps of their own to mobilize against the prospect of a less vigorous press, a monopoly on advertising rates and added money to compete in the suburban market.



National Newspaper Week celebrates that strong, free press that is uniquely American, and which, when it does its job, helps insure a strong, free society.

The Observer & Eccentric has joined with some other suburban papers to offer advertisers a mutual buy. And, on the editorial side, the Observer & Eccentric has developed new sections and directly competed with the dailies on stories of significance to the metropolitan area such as the crash of Northwest Flight 255 and Pope John Paul II's visit to Detroit.

In addition, suburban newspapers continue their particular mission of providing hometown news from the city commission and school board meetings to the award winners and promotion-gainers in your family.

Granted, a newspaper isn't the only way you can get information. There is a lot of media competition. But we've tried to make our pages the best way for you to be informed.

You get lots of junk mail with advertising and promotional lures, but junk mail doesn't give you any news about your nation and community. Planes fall, rivers are polluted, taxes are raised, but junk mailers never tell you.

Your city hall and school board are on cable TV with soft-soap informational programs. But did you ever notice how they steer clear of the thorny zoning, administrator salary and test score controversies? The newspaper digs out those stories.

THE TV cameras were fast to the scene of the Flight 255 crash. But it was the newspaper that gave the biographies — despite resistance from the airline — of your neighbors and fellow residents who died or lost loved ones in that crash.

Come to think of it, when anyone dies, it's the newspaper that carries the obituary that you clip. The broadcasters don't bother with that.

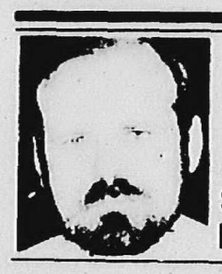
It's all part of the vigorous American press picture — and that picture includes more than 8,000 newspapers throughout the United States.

National Newspaper Week celebrates the strong, free press that is uniquely American, and which, when it does its job, helps ensure a strong, free society.

Any attempt to chip away at that press — particularly a step that requires government approval — weakens us all.

Rotary fights for kids others have forgotten

Rotary International has set a goal of $120 million to immunize 100 million children against polio by the turn of the decade. Each Rotary chapter is doing its part. The two districts making up Detroit, its suburbs and Windsor will contribute $1 million to the effort.



Steve Barnaby

FOR A NUMBER of years now service clubs have been taking their share of public criticism for prohibiting membership to females.

And certainly more than a bit of this column has been used to keep that issue in the public eye. Gratefully, the debate is coming to an end with the advent of court rulings and, in some cases, voluntary changes in regulations.

Barely a service club exists today that prohibits women as members.

Compliance is going to go a long way in helping to boost the many worthy causes service clubs help support through their fund-raising efforts.

With the inclusion of women, a veritable legion of volunteer troops now can be added to the ranks of service clubs in furthering worthy causes.

And a cause worth mentioning certainly is the most recent effort by Rotary International.

BLOOMFIELD Rotary member George Moore called the other day to tell the tale. Now I first met George when invited to a speaking engagement at that chapter.

It is highly unlikely that a more enthusiastic and vocal advocate of the Rotary cause exists on the face of this planet.

In short, George can get you pumped up.

At any rate the erstwhile advocate called to tell how Rotary is in the midst of a world campaign to annihilate some childhood diseases that have been nearly forgotten in this very prosperous and fortunate land.

Rotary's first target is polio. You remember that one. Well, some of us do. Thanks to a wonder drug we've just about eradicated polio in the U.S.

But in regions of Africa, the Philippines, Turkey, India and other Third World countries diseases like polio, measles, mumps, diphtheria and chicken pox are major cripplers and killers.

So the Rotary, in conjunction with the World Health Organization, is fighting back.

Rotary International has set a goal of $120 million to immunize 100 million children against polio by the end of the decade. Each Rotary chapter is doing its part. The two districts making up Detroit, its suburbs and Windsor will contribute $1 million to the effort.

The Bloomfield chapter, one of the smallest chapters, is contributing $12,000. This week they proudly present their first installment to Dr. Mav Sanghvi, the Rotary district governor.

It is especially appropriate. Now a successful professional, Dr. Sanghvi grew up in a Third World country and saw firsthand the ravages polio can bring.

That $12,000, by the way, will save a heck of a lot of kids. Each immunization costs only 12 cents.

Nice work fellas, ah, excuse me, I mean ladies and gentlemen.

Wonders about sale of land

To the editor:

Who's kidding who? Plymouth-Canton Board of Education president David Artley stated that the purchase of two lots by the board of education for $225,000 was a "good investment."

One of Plymouth's most notorious businessmen (three guesses) purchased both of these properties within the past year for a total of less than $165,000. In fact one of the properties he sold to the board less than two months after buying it. That's a cool $60,000 profit for both properties combined. Good speculating . . . to say the least.

But there is a bigger issue here. What is our board of education doing speculating in real estate? The school district already owns plenty of property at the Centennial Education Park and elsewhere. Land is available in many other locations at a far more reasonable cost.

Why is it then that the board finds it necessary to buy up expensive prime location real estate in the downtown area to develop as a parking lot? If the board was truly interested in saving money it could sell the present building, buy land in a more undeveloped location (or use its own land), and build a new facility. If this land is so valuable why not let it be privately developed. Then it would add to school tax revenue . . . instead of subtract from it.

Something smells funny here. Two small run-down houses suddenly worth so much more than they were only months before. A "good investment". . . says our board of education. Could it be that we have voted our school board too much money?

Roger Anderson,
Plymouth

Many drivers are insensitive

To the editor:

I am deeply upset about the handicapped parking situation in downtown Plymouth. Sunday, Sept. 13, I took my family down to the Fall Festival. I have a 6-year-old daughter, 7-year-old son and my husband who is disabled, paralyzed from the chest down. The only handicapped parking available (legally) is the two-level structure across from Kellogg Park.

We tried to find a spot on Sunday, but they were all taken on both levels. We finally ended up parking on the upper level way in the corner. Our van has a side lift, so in order to get my husband out, I had to block part of the driveway, get him out and then finish parking in that spot.

When we got over to where the handicapped parking was, which also is the location of the ramp heading down to Main Street, we found that two of the four or five handicapped spaces were taken by cars with no sticker or license plate to prove that they were handicapped.

I WAS very upset by this because it happens all the time. I took down the license plate numbers and the make of car and took it to the officers standing around the gazebo. They told me they would send someone over to look and issue a ticket if necessary.

After we left that information, we looked back, and they had continued on talking. We stayed there for a half hour, and they never did a thing!

So I went back up and wrote the information down again and took it to the officers who had a booth on Ann Arbor Trial and Main and was told the same thing. They also did nothing.

Two hours later, we left. The cars were still there and guess what . . . no ticket! I guess they get away with it.

I realize that parking illegally in a handicapped spot is not a federal offense, and I guess to most people it's no big deal. But for those of us who are restricted either by age, or disease or wheelchair-bound, it is a major issue.

It's hard enough to get around, especially in a crowd, and able-bodied people need not make it more difficult for us.

The insensitivity of those who illegally park in designated handicap spaces is disgusting. If only they were in our shoes . . . or chairs!

Tale of airline's good job

Fred DeLano

THANK YOU, United Airlines.

That expression of gratitude should be expanded to include Capt. Fred Harris and his crew of United flight No. 374, the Denver police department and the security staff at the Denver airport.

It was just one week ago today that the 131 passengers on this flight's Boeing 727 thought they were within moments of taking off from Denver right on schedule at 3:21 p.m. Mountain Daylight Time, for a non-stop trip to Detroit. Then over the intercom came the voice of Capt. Harris saying there would be a "slight delay."

In seats 7E and 7F, Mother Goose and I could hear a murmur of "Oh, no; what now?" from co-passengers undoubtedly familiar with the fact that we're in an era in which airline problems have become all too common.

BUT THAT murmur halted instantly when the aisle suddenly became alive with men whom any trained reporter could tell were law enforcement officers. They had "that look" even in civilian attire.

They had joined us because Capt. Harris had been alerted by a flight attendant that at the last possible moment, a young woman had left her seat and had rushed back toward the terminal without carrying so much as a purse. A search of the aircraft was ordered.

It didn't take a wizard to see that these trained, efficient specialists were looking for anything in which an explosive device might be hidden. Luggage was examined and everything aboard, coats, purses, gift boxes et al, had to be identified by their owners. In due time, all were.

The experience so frightened two passengers near us that they took their belongings and left.

THE CONFIDENCE radiated by cooperative flight attendants was reinforced when Capt. Harris came on the speaker again and said the plan had been cleared for takeoff. In effect, he was saying that he was willing to bet his own life we would have a safe flight. All but the two people mentioned put our faith in his decision and when those wheels touched down at Metro, we knew it was the biggest bet we had ever won.

For us this was a first-in-a-lifetime experience. But for that matter, the entire week had been too. It had been spent at Lake Tahoe as a gift upon Mother Goose's retirement from our daughter and her husband, Betty and John, who live in Plymouth, and our son and his wife, Bob and Debb, who are making their home in the Tahoe area at Incline Village at the north end of the lake.

The scenic splendor of the majestic Sierra Mountains which surround the lake is awesome and so are the hotels and gambling casinos such as the Cal-Neva-Lodge, which straddles the California-Nevada border, the Hyatt, Del Webb's High Sierra Harrah's, Caesar's and others.

Sure, we left a few quarters in the slots and did a tourist "must" with the 76-mile drive around the lake, but Tahoe's greatest memories with us lie in the people we met.

IT WAS OUR good fortune to be able to peel back the glitter and tinsel and get acquainted with the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker, so to speak. In this we saw pride, respect and love at every turn, be it the restaurateur, engineer, sign painter, insurance salesman, secretary or priest.

A Boy Scout Court of Honor, Sunday services at St. Patrick's Episcopal Church, a surprise potluck with more than 30 guests to decorate a Christmas tree and exchange gifts, plus an ever-present community aura of good will blended to create the same sort of confidence we were to find later in that United Airlines pilot.

Yes, they debate the same local issues we do here and have about the same complaints: a paving job that wasn't up to snuff, zoning regulations, and, of course, taxes. Most everyone seems to have moved there from somewhere else and I doubt if their arguments last as long as ours; at 7,500 feet above sea level a guy can run out of breath in a hurry.

One last word: not only did we love every moment of it, particularly Bob and Debb's friends, but when we landed at Metro we had almost made up the time lost from the bomb scare. And United didn't lose a single piece of our luggage!

Exploding househubby myth

Chuck Moss

I WAS watching a TV show the other night. Funny show. A dad was in charge of the house. Watch out, whoo boy! Dad can't boil water, can't run a vacuum. His big-guy pal comes over and both pretend to yuk it up at "women's work," then destroy the house trying to diaper a baby. Like I said, funny show. Har-de-har.

I see this garbage. Meanwhile my wife is working late and the kids have been fed, bathed, washed, brushed, storied and tucked away, the dishes are in the dishwasher and coffee's on. Courtesy of yours truly. No big deal. Meanwhile, TV dads can't boil water.

That's what I like about TV: realism. I turned it off.

Who writes this garbage, anyway? And for whom? And why? Are there any fathers left who truly don't know how to diaper their babies? Are there any fathers who can't rustle up a meal in a pinch and put the kids to bed and who haven't had to make do at some time or another? Not in this era of two-career families.

SO WHY THE survival of Dumb ol' Dad? What purpose the stereotype of the Idiot Father? You know: "Duhhhhh, all yuh do is watch th' kids, how much work can that be? (sound of beer popping). Duhhh, now I'm left alone wit the kids, yup. Duhhhhhh, my pal's comin' over, better not let him see me, all da guys would laff, yup, yup."

Jeeze! The same people who would choke before they scripted a black man as Sambo or a Jew as Shylock or an Indian as Tonto see nothing wrong with perpetuating the absurd myth that men are incapable of housekeeping. They go bananas over the "househusband," da regular guy wearin' a frilly apron (do any women born after the Hoover administration wear aprons around the house?). They love the idea of Joe Everyman as boob.

Is there some sinister plot behind this? Is it a cabal by some organization to keep women feeling role-secure as they leave the home? Or is it done to make women think men shouldn't be trusted with the chores? If so, it isn't working.

MAYBE TV just hasn't caught up yet with society. Still caught in the 1950s, popular writers think the idea of poking fun at all-powerful Dad is somehow subversive. When the 1950s male stereotype is supreme, showing deficiencies, real or imagined, it is funny. Nowadays, the 1950s man is virtually extinct. Yet entertainers still feel compelled to present Dad-as-boob.

"Yeah," some folks are thinking. "So what? Didn't blacks and Indians and virtually everybody else have to endure this? You're just getting back what others have suffered." Point taken, but aren't all you reforming radicals trying to end repressive stereotypes, not perpetuate other ones that benefit you?

I think this is just the usual TV trash, not to be taken seriously. It's merely the fantasies of a small group of Californians who take too many lunches together and too little time out in the real world beyond Malibu.

But it's not hard to get annoyed at the barrage of anti-father propaganda that passes as comedy. It's clear that we haven't passed beyond that vicious limousine liberal-derived, anti-working class slander, "Archie Bunker."

Most fathers are juggling work, home and some sort of shared housekeeping/child-rearing arrangement — a far cry from the 1950s lord 'n' master. Men have responded to the needs of working women. Maybe it's time we got a little credit, too.

Gaps mark 15-year reunion

Rich Perlberg

IT DIDN'T SOUND like Dick Simmers. But I really didn't expect him to sound as he did nearly 20 years ago when I first met him at the University of Michigan.

At that time I astounded him with tales of my small northern Michigan home. Did it really have only one stoplight? Was the phone book really as thin as a greeting card?

In turn, he planted his tongue in his cheek and introduced me to the Birmingham-Bloomfield area where he grew up. Did I know, he once asked, that Bloomfield Hills named their schools Andover and Lahser because the folks thought Central and Western would sound too inner city?

Simmers and I got along pretty well, but we drifted apart after college. First I went to the west side of the state; then he left for points East and South.

Now he was calling from west of Chicago and telling me, incredulously, that it was 15 years since we left Ann Arbor. I should be at the fraternity house Saturday for a reunion of sorts before the football game.

Of course. I needed to know what happened to these guys.

IT WAS NOT like turning the clock back. The faces were familiar and the memories were shared, but there were huge gaps. How could Don Golding, the basketball-playing engineer from Rochester, have a daughter in junior high school? And when did he buy his own business?

Gary Glesser, a former swimmer for Birmingham Seaholm, is now a dentist in Algonac. It's not the end of the world, he said, but you can see it from there.

Dick Leasia, now a San Francisco attorney, is his lovable self. He told my wife she never would have made the mistake of marrying me if she had only consulted my fraternity brothers first.

Jeff Stoner is now in Farmington Hills and works for Chrysler. Jerry Spagnuolo crunches numbers in Southfield a few minutes from my office.

THE UNKNOWN proximity of these college chums was reason enough for a mental kick in the pants for missing the first get-together five years ago. We all agreed that we couldn't wait another five or 10 years for only a few minutes of conversation. We left with vague talk of a Big Chill weekend — either skiing at Boyne or a summer getaway to Lake Huron.

It may be more than just talk, not so much because of the people who were there, but because of one who wasn't.

When Dick first called, I was surprised that he hadn't mentioned Mike. They were high school classmates and pledged the fraternity together. He lived on the Atlantic Coast, last I heard, and I suspected it was inconvenient to come all the way to Ann Arbor.

But the nagging fear that the story was worse was confirmed. Mike — a strong, strapping type who wrestled in intramurals — had died of cancer. It was sudden, stunning and unbelievable. But it was true.

That's why I think we'll do more than talk about a reunion weekend someday. We all know that the thought of "looking Mike up someday" is gone forever.

Insurance tax
Senate deals blow to Blanchard bills

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The Michigan Senate dealt a bipartisan blow to Gov. James Blanchard's tax program Tuesday as it passed a pair of "revenue neutral" bills equalizing insurance taxes.

"The Senate can feel good about that," said Majority Leader John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant. The GOP chief accused Blanchard's state treasurer, Robert Bowman, of "putting his personal political agenda ahead of the public interest and persisting in a vendetta against Michigan employers in the insurance industry."

Area senators split within party ranks on the two bills, which go to the House of Representatives.

THE FIGHT erupted when the state Court of Appeals in August declared unconstitutional a premium tax on "foreign" insurers — companies whose headquarters are outside Michigan.

For two years, Blanchard had predicted such a ruling. He advocated also levying the premium tax on "domestic" insurers — those headquartered within Michigan. And he wanted to use the revenue from "closing this loophole" to pay for his homestead property tax rebate program.

Instead the Senate passed two bills which will:

- Lift the premium tax on foreign insurers (SB 447). It passed 20-10.
- Make foreign insurers liable for possible "retaliatory" taxes if their home states apply such taxes to Michigan companies (also SB 447).
- Apply the single business tax to both Michigan and foreign insurers (SB 448). It passed 28-6.

Republicans dropped a plan to tie the bills to a third bill reducing the state income tax.

BOTH BILLS were supported by Sens. Richard Fessler, R-Commerce, Robert Geake, R-Northville, Rudy Nichols, R-Waterford, and George Hart, D-Dearborn.

Sen. William Faust, D-Westland, opposed SB 447 lifting the premium tax on foreign companies but supported SB 448 placing all under the single business tax. Sen. Jack Faxon, D-Farmington Hills, missed the vote on SB 447 but supported SB 448.

Sen. Doug Cruce, R-Troy, joined a handful of senators in opposing both measures.

"The basic issue is increasing taxes," said Cruce, estimating they actually would increase total revenue $25 million. "We can't increase taxes to insurance people without increasing premiums to policy holders."

Cruce preferred to follow the Appeals Court order to lift the premium tax on foreign insurers, which would reduce revenue as much as $180 million, and cut spending.

OTHER SENATORS, however, argued "the state has significant revenue problems," in the words of Lana Pollack, D-Ann Arbor, a 1988 candidate for Congress in the 2nd District.

Like Faust, she supported one bill and opposed the other. And like Blanchard, Pollack argued "domestic insurance companies have a very, very sweet deal. Domestic insurance companies are not paying their fair share of taxes."

Treasurer Bowman contended domestic firms pay only about $1 million a year under the single business tax — 3 percent of what they would pay if the premium tax were levied.

But Michigan insurers argued they:

1) Pay heavy property taxes.

2) Create jobs for people who pay the state income tax.

3) Would be hit with a sudden increase — from $1 million to $21 million — if the premium tax were levied on them.

4) Aren't given the kind of tax credits in Michigan that foreign insurers get in their home states.

DEBATE WAS brief Tuesday. Much talk revolved around an amendment by Sen. John Cherry, D-Clio, to exempt the Michigan Accident Fund from the single business tax.

MAF writes about 10 percent of the state market's workers' comp insurance — covering 21,000 businesses.

For years state officials and the insurance industry argued whether MAF, created in 1912 when workers' comp was begun, is a private business or a state agency whose 380 employees should be covered by civil service rules.

But Monday Ingham Circuit Judge Carolyn Stell ruled MAF is a state agency.

While MAF officials intend to appeal, senators decided in the meantime to treat it like a state agency and exempt it from the single business tax. The Cherry amendment was adopted with support from all local senators except Cruce and Nichols.

Torch Drive sets goal of $59 million

The United Foundation has set a 1987 Torch Drive fund-raising goal of $59 million.

Meeting the goal requires "a substantial increase from all present, individual contributors and a positive response from past non-contributors," UF Chairman Walter McCarthy Jr. said.

Based upon employment projections, McCarthy said the organization's fund-raising base has shrunk by about $3.3 million from last year.

Torch Drive-supported agencies would have to cut back services if the goal isn't met, McCarthy said.

The Torch Drive will use $642,642 from its reserves toward meeting its goal.

The Torch Drive raises donations for 153 social service agencies in metropolitan Detroit.

Erikka and Camille Burden of Southfield were chosen Torchlighters for 1987. Erikka, 14, and Camille, 12, will represent metropolitan area residents who receive support from United Foundation agencies. The pair receives assistance from the Arthritis Foundation — Michigan Chapter.

He believes in this cause

By Diane Gale
staff writer

Sid Morris has a lot to lose talking about the possible effects of Agent Orange.

Going public with fears about his exposure could backfire on two long-term goals.

The Westland resident, who works as a Plymouth Township Police reserve, wants to become a full-time police officer. But it's unlikely he'd be hired if department officials believed he had serious physical problems.

Also, serving as a Marine reserve, his future pension could be jeopardized.

But, agreeing to the interview, he said: "If this in any way would help someone get what they deserve it wouldn't bother me at all. That's what I want to do.

"I believe in this research and cause and that someone should do something."

ON ONE HAND, Morris said his rashes and minor eye problems are miniscule compared to the life-threatening cancer conditions linked to the highly toxic herbicide, dioxin, sprayed in the jungles of Vietnam from 1965 to 1970.

On the other hand, he worries about his two children — both born with physical problems. And he wants to know if their conditions are a result of Agent Orange. "If my two kids' physical problems are a result of my exposure, they should have something to fall back on.

"It's not like we were running around looking for something to blame this on. We were trying to hunt for a reason why we had two children like this."

His second wife had two physically healthy children during her first marriage. Morris had another child — also physically healthy — during his first marriage, too.

But the children he had with his second wife after returning from Vietnam, a son, 16, and daughter, 12, have many physical problems.

Both children have extremely thin skin texture and are double jointed.

His daughter had a back operation for scoliosis.

Accidents, considered minor for most chidren, develop into major problems for them, Morris said. The boy, for instance, recently fell from a skateboard and was hospitalized almost a week.

He was born with severely crossed eyes and wears thick glasses.

"I don't really know whether it (Agent Orange) was the cause of this or not," Morris said.

"I was exposed to it, and I don't have many problems."

MORRIS WAS in the 1st Marine Division of the 1st Reconnaissance Battallion and patrolled jungles in North Danang, South Vietnam. He slept and drank water from the fields burnt out by the chemicals. He served for 14 months including a couple of months he was on sick leave.

When he was in Vietnam, Agent Orange was considered an aid that could save their lives, because it helped them fight the enemy.

Questions

Effects of Agent Orange unknown

"At that time you didn't know," Morris said. "Someone told me they sprayed this stuff on the foliage so the enemy couldn't hide. So you didn't think much about it."

After he returned home and was watching a television documentary about Agent Orange, Morris, 41, said he realized the dioxin could be linked to his son's and daughter's problems.

"When the controversy first came out it led us to believe that's why the children were like this," said Morris, who works at 3-D Industries, an automotive-styling studio for prototypes in Madison Heights.

Six or seven years ago, Morris said, he was very intereted in the effects of Agent Orange.

He was one of the 200,000 Vietnam vets claiming Agent Orange contamination in a class action lawsuit. There was a $180 million out-of-court settlement in 1984.

"But then there were people with a lot more problems than I had," Morris said. "I felt like I really shouldn't complain — even with the problems that the kids have, which are pretty big problems, but I'm well enough to take care of them."

There are problems with my children and I feel bad, but when I read about guys who are dying with different types of cancer, I don't feel as unfortunate."

Morris shudders when he talks about a Vietnam veteran who grumbled about filing a lawsuit linking athletes foot to Agent Orange.

"I wouldn't want my problem to sound like that," said Morris.

"But there are people with a lot more problems, and I don't feel like crying about it all the time."

Vietnam veteran Sid Morris worries about the effects of Agent Orange on veterans and their children.

Efforts assist Vietnam vets

By Diane Gale
staff writer

It's been a long time in coming, 20 years after the end of the Vietnam War.

Legislation was passed recently providing help for the 161,000 men and women Michigan residents who served during the war.

This summer, Gov. James Blanchard signed a law establishing a 14-member Agent Orange commission, and information and referral service.

The purpose of Public Act 48 and 49 of 1987 is to identify Vietnam War veterans in the state and to compile a study about their medical conditions, said Roy Klaviher, a Vietnam veteran answering the state Department of Public Health toll free information number.

Information about their children's health also will be recorded.

"It allows for testing of Vietnam vets to determine Agent Orange and birth defects," said Barry Cargill, legislative aid to Sen. Vernon J. Ehlers, R-Grand Rapids, who was one of the bill sponsors.

THE GOAL IS to register all 161,00 Vietnam veterans in Michigan and provide follow ups on exposure assessments.

"On the registration portion they're compiling information on vets and their offspring to find out if there's a link between Agent Orange-exposed veterans and the children they had since the Vietnam War," Cargill said.

Klaviher predicts this will be the largest state registry compiled. It's considered a model for other states, he added.

For information about Agent Orange or other problems experienced by Vietnam vets, call the toll free number — 1-800-648-6942 — from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday. After hours and holidays an answering service takes messages.

The toll free number is in effect as part of a Michigan Department of Public Health toxic and health information network and will be available indefinitely.

"Some (veterans who call) need medical help," he said. "Some need financial assistance or job training skills. We get them to a veteran medical facility or a veteran social worker, county counselor and we use whatever is available to help the person who is calling."

Those people who haven't registered will be sought by state agencies. However, the registry program is on a voluntary basis, Cargill said.

Patients can choose death

AP — A dying patient has a right to refuse or halt life-sustaining treatment, even medication and food, medical ethics experts said recently in releasing detailed guidelines on making such decisions.

A 150-page report published by The Hastings Center, a private New York research institute specializing in medical ethics was called the first comprehensive set of considerations for halting life-sustaining treatment and allowing patients to die.

The report said patients or their designated decision-makers should be able to refuse life-sustaining treatment if there is no reasonable prospect for recovery.

The 20-member panel, drawn from the fields of medicine, law, ethics, nursing and health care administration, defined life-sustaining treatment as any medical practice intended to forestall death, such as use of blood dialysis, breathing machines, antibiotics, transfusions and feeding tubes.

Ward Church plans 'Celebration' service

Ward Evangelical Presbyterian Church of Livonia will have a "Celebration" service from 10-11:30 a.m. in Bowen Field House at Eastern Michigan University in Ypsilanti.

It will mark the first time in many years that the entire congregation of almost 5,000 will be together for one service. Currently, Ward Presbyterian has four Sunday services to accommodate its members.

"Celebration" will commemorate the past, present and future of Ward Church. Fellowship, inspiration and information will also be part of the service.

The special service will be preceded by a continental breakfast at 9 a.m.

Jerry Smith, director of music, will lead the 200-member Chacel Choir in singing "Joyful, Joyful, We Adore Thee," arranged by Simeone. "Almight God of our Fathers," by James, and "Rise Up O Church of God," by Skillings.

Smith will also conduct the six brasses, drums, Steinway concert grand piano and Yamaha synthesizer-organ. Carole Halmekangas, organist, has written a special theme chorus for the occasion.

Bartlett Hess, senior pastor at Ward, will bring the message, "Praise the Lord!" Several pastors at Ward will participate in various segments of the service.

A slide presentation, featuring the history of the church, will also take place.

There will be a program for child care and one for children grade one through four during the last 45 minutes of the service.

Handbell choir to visit Plymouth First Baptist

The Judson College Handbell Choir will perform at 11 a.m. Sunday at the First Baptist Church in Plymouth.

In each performance, 15 students utilize the 61 Schulmerich handbells, which have a five and one-half octave range. The bells can be used in both transcriptions of familiar melodies and in carillon fashion or similar bell-like compositions.

"The variety of moods possible with a large number of bells is an especially attractive aspect of the music," said Alice Thompson, assistant professor of music at Judson College and director of the handbell choir. "Handbell music is really quite exciting."

The choir will also be playing choir chimes and Unkalungs, bamboo instruments from Thailand.

"The Unkalungs have been referred to as the 'bamboo organ,'" Thompson said. "For many, hearing them will be a new and interesting experience."

The Judson College Handbell Choir has within its ranks organists, pianists and soloists on instruments such as flute and oboe. This, plus the singing voices of the group, allows for a wide variety of experiences with bells.

Features of the program include solo ringing with choreography, changing ringing, use of mallets, processionals, vocal ensembles, singing and ringing in the round. The program is aural, sacred as well as secular.

Thompson, assistant professor of music at Judson, is founder and director of the handbell choir. She has taught at the college in Elgin, Ill., since 1964.

First Baptist of Plymouth is at 45000 N. Territorial.

St. Michael Church to mark 25th year

St. Michael Lutheran Church of Wayne, Glenwood and Hannan roads, will celebrate its 25th anniversary Saturday and Sunday.

The first service took place Oct. 22, 1961, at Schweitzer School on Glenwood in Wayne. The church received its official charter from the Michigan District, Missouri Synod, in February 1962.

At 7 p.m. Saturday, the fellowship hall will host a talent show, featuring fashions of the 60s. Former pastors will participate in both Sunday morning worship services at 8:15 and 10:45 a.m.

The Rev. Alan Braun, pastor at St. Michael Church from 1972-1985, will preach at a special 3 p.m. celebration on Sunday.

Three choirs and two handbell groups will perform. Kathy Taylor, organist since the church's inception, will be the accompanist. The service will be followed by a potluck and short program.

The church has 751 baptized members. St. Michael School (K-8) has an enrollment of 118 students with an additional 20 in a co-op preschool.

church bulletin

The church bulletin is published every Thursday in the Observer. Information for the church bulletin must be received in our office by noon the Monday preceding publication. Send information to Suburban Life section, Observer, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

moral perspectives

Rev. David Strong

A good family life doesn't come easy

MY NEPHEW recently visited our home. He told us about his trip to Sweden at the time of his mother's funeral and how he experienced his extended family there. He found his Swedish relatives very involved as families. They helped one another getting jobs. They shared and even traded vacation houses. They visited each other frequently, though several lived at a distance. The larger family was their support network.

During the same week I listened to a father in our community describe the extent to which he goes to spend some time with his teenage son and daughter. "They no longer want to do anything with the family," he said. This conversation reminded me of the description another parent made of a son who comes into the house about dinner time and eats while standing at the kitchen counter. Then he leaves.

The family in America is in crisis. Little thought is given to how the desire for freedom destroys the family network. Youth want freedom and mobility. How can they see what values are held alive through the family? According to an opinion survey conducted by the Wall Street Journal, the 18- to 29-year-olds state that their no. 1 fear is the declining quality of education. The first two priorities in all who were polled were "being a good parent" and "a happy marriage."

I FEAR many will grow up today wanting a good family life but not knowing how to make it a reality. Until people grapple with the contrary notions of freedom and loyalty to a family convenant, we will continue to have the dream of a stable family and a reality that is quite the opposite.

A convenant understanding of the family means that no matter what happens or what we want to do, we will still function as a family. Symbols and expressions of this convenant need to be kept. Our symbols have been eating together, no matter what happens and with few exceptions, and talking out issues. Rarely will I accept a telephone call when we are eating as a family. This is our time.

I remember one of our teenage neighbor boys. At a quarter to six at night, he would actually rush out of our house after a visit and run to his home. His family said to him that if you do not get home in time for dinner, you do not eat. You will eat nothing all night. For a hungry, growing boy this was a powerful motivation to be there when the family ate together.

In other ways he was afforded a great deal of freedom. At certain times the family came first and he had to participate or face the consequences. When out-of-town relatives came, he was to be there for a time to relate to them. I still think of this family as one of the best examples of a healthy, strong family.

THE PROBLEM is that Americans still dream of a good family life but we too often are unwilling to pay the price. The price is not only love and trust. The price is paying attention to those things which make the family real. A family is no different than a marriage. We must plan time to do significant things together. We must make demands upon one another. This may require that we adjust our life so that we may come to the dinner table together.

We must make the family a unit which provides advantages and opportunities to its members. The family is no longer a unit that gathers its necessities by work as it was down on the farm. Beyond the obvious functions of caring, sharing and supporting one another, the family can be utilized for educational, economic and social growth. Our family has planned travel opportunities that have greatly enriched the lives of each person. I know of a couple who have just retired. They are selling their house to their daughter and her new husband.

The family can be a healing element in our lives. Nowhere is there more apt to be the potential for forgiveness, caring and love than within families. However, we can hurt the people we love the most. Healing elements of love, support and especially forgiveness must be emphasized as necessary elements of family life. We can be determined to heal hurts when they occur. A philosophy and a problem-solving method needs to be constructed.

There is enough stress and hurt in the world. The family needs to be a sure source of life, healing and connectedness.

The Rev. David Strong is the pastor of St. Matthew United Methodist Church.

John Sassak's latest fancy is "cosmic fantasies" like space cities and space probes, which simulate space experiences.

Dream weaver

Idea man turns concepts into products

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

John Sassak does what most other men only dream of.

Sassak takes ideas and translates them into marketable products, making lots of money in the process.

His litany of ideas run a wide gamut, from a tooling system for spin-lock screws in the 1960s, to computer logic and water deburring systems in the 1970s, to mechanical bulls and space flight simulators in the 1980s.

His latest product is a solid lubricant, time released by heat into automotive engines.

"I've always been able to take an idea and improve on it," Sassak said.

But invention and development are just part of Sassak's formula. He must also accurately gauge consumer mood.

"It's a matter of outguessing the market."

A METALURGICAL ENGINEER by training, Sassak, 66, owns Saker One Corp. in Livonia, where "we develop new ideas into products."

Presently, emphasis is on "cosmic fantasies" like space cities and space probes, which simulate space experiences.

The Saker One Space City is the ultimate in construction toys, a series of hollow plastic tubes from which customized cities are built. A capsule races through the tubes, a shuttle propelled by air.

Space City has been designated the official toy for a Japanese-sponsored space expo at Yokohama in 1989.

Air also fuels Sassak's improved amusement park ride, Space Probe III, a version of the first probe he designed in 1983. It was named outstanding new ride in 1986 by the International Association of Amusement Parks and Attractions.

Probe III blasts passengers seated in three separate, six-seat capsules some 75 feet into space.

An earlier version of the probe, Space Probe II, which has a 25-foot capacity, is used by NASA at the U.S. Space and Rocket Center in Huntsville, Ala.

Gallatic Battle, a "total space environment" containing a space probe and laser beams, will be part of the new Pandemonium Indoor Entertainmnt Park in North Carolina.

Using air as a means of fuel came to Sassak after realizing most accidents in amusement parks occur on mechanical rides.

"Air doesn't have a fatigue problem and it's available in unlimited quantities.

"IT SEEMS the Japanese are forerunners in space thinking," Sassek said, because the Japanese government spearheads space-related projects and involves private business in financing.

"The Japanese government gets manufacturers involved."

The space expo in Yokohama, where Sassak's space city will be exhibited, is expected to draw more than 25 million spectators. It is the second of two such events. The first is scheduled next year in Gifu.

Sassak is constructing a full-sized version of space shuttle Columbia for the event. Sassak's Columbia will contain Space Probe III rides in both rocket boosters.

Depending upon the success of the expos, the Japanese may build 10 space camps similar to the U.S. Space and Rocket Center, according to Sassak.

Sassak expects to earn some $200,000 from his space-related business this year. But, he points out, the industry is in its infancy, especially in the United States. Sassak expects earnings to jump to $10 million over the next five to 10 years.

It's a gamble and he knows it. Success in his business comes from being a half step ahead of current trends.

Sassak readily admits not all of his ideas are on the mark.

"I'm talking about the ones that are successful. But I've been off a lot too."

COMPUTER LOGIC GAMES in the early 1970s were "on."

Sassak developed and manufactured solid state games. The hottest item was a wall game called Intrigue. It enjoyed great popularity in bars and lounges both here and abroad.

"We started off with nothing. We were brand new in the market. It was the first time we marketed a product."

The market was so big, no one company could handle it all, Sassek said, adding he grossed $8-10 million annually from computer logic games between 1970-75.

When the video craze hit, computer logic became passe.

Sassak was prepared, with Safety-flow, a deburring process in which highly pressurized water cleans ragged edges left on metal objects.

As a sideline, in 1980 Sassak purchased the Urban Cowboy Saloon in Westland. The popular night spot had a capacity of 800 and featured a mechanical bull Sassak designed and built.

"It was about one year ahead of the cowboy craze that swept the country. My timing was perfect."

Watching saloon patrons ride the mechanical bull gave Sassack a new idea.

"It was dangerous. There were lots of accidents, even broken arms. I kept thinking there has got to be a safer product which the ordinary novice can actually experience and yet not get hurt."

Enter Saker One Space Probe, the ride into space.

SASSAK'S PENCHANT for invention was honed, he said, during 19 years in product development with Ford Motor Co. "We didn't produce just cars."

He left Ford in 1959 and founded his own company, becoming partners with Russell, Burtsel & Ward Inc., to market a tooling process for spin lock screws. While his inventions have earned millions of dollars over the years, "it takes millions to develop new products."

Most of Sassek's money is in investments, a 35,000-square-foot warehouse and office building on Schoolcraft Road, Center Stage concert hall in Canton and in 50 million shares of stock in Saker One Corp.

The company went public in 1983

Shredding secrets is secretive business

By Janice Brunson
staff writer

Most people know about the Iranian takeover of the U.S. embassy in Tehran in 1979 and about Ollie North's recent testimony before the U.S. Congressional Committee investigating the Iran-Contra affair.

People squirmed when Iranian captors broadcast the contents of reconstructed shredded memos left behind by U.S. embassy officials, memos the captors had painstakingly glued back together piece by piece.

Ollie North and the Reagan presidency 'fessed up to trading arms for hostages with Iran and diverting proceeds to the Contras only after government investigators located key documents on computer disks North thought he had erased from the White House electronic system.

Both incidents highlight issues of grave concern to Lynn Murphy, president of Document Services Inc. in Livonia.

The firm is in the business of destroying documents, and security and secrecy are its forte.

"If I'm handling your secrets, you want to be certain they are properly destroyed," Murphy said.

THE COMPANY practices what it sells.

Document Services office and warehouse on Schoolcraft Road are unmarked except for the street number.

Entry into the building is by appointment only. Otherwise, doors remain locked. Visitors are identified on a video security system prior to entry. Once in the building, visitors sign a security registrar and wear identification badges at all times.

"When interest in security is pushed like now, after the publicity surrounding the Iran-Contra affair, we go underground," Murphy said, explaining the locked doors, video system and ID badges.

"You could call this a bonded warehouse. Every employee has been given a security clearance and is bonded to the highest legal limit."

Some 75 employees work at the Livonia location. The facility serves as corporate headquarters. There are also offices in Atlanta, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Florida.

The firm, which uses a pulverizing process to destroy documents, was founded 20 years ago by John Thomas. Most of the machinery used in the pulverizing process was designed and patented by Thomas.

WHAT LOOKS LIKE coffee grounds are actually the remains of computer tapes, microfilm and the like after processing in one of Thomas' pulverizing machines.

The sawdust-like substance that lightly blankets machines and walls in the huge warehouse is all that's left of paper items subjected to a similar pulverizing process.

Materials headed for destruction travel slowly over a conveyer belt, raked by machine operators who periodically uncover more than computer disks and memo pads.

"It happens daily, finding things unintentionally headed for destruction," Murphy said. "We contact the appropriate people to see if they want them back."

The finds are varied, a silver-framed photo of a young couple, the bank deposit of a major corporation and six IBM personal computers from another corporation.

The young man in the picture did not want the portrait returned. He had thrown the picture away because he is getting a divorce. The bank deposit must have inadvertently been dropped into a waste basket and it was overlooked. The computers were probably an attempted employee theft, Murphy theorized.

"Technology has made things like computers so small, it's easy to steal."

ON OCCASION, the opposite occurs, with people frantically attempting to retrieve files before they are destroyed.

"They suddenly realize something is needed that was discarded," Murphy said, like projection reports, notepads or whatever.

Efforts to retrieve things are often unsuccessful.

"We guarantee 24-hour service and we deliver," Murphy said, unless otherwise arranged for by contract. Then the firm will store materials for up to 60 days.

At 20 years of age, Document Services is a seasoned firm in a relatively new industry.

When Thomas' uncle started a similar business 35 years ago, the primary method for disposal was hauling files to the local dump and burning them.

Corporate espionage, new freedom of information laws and an increased consciousness about security have changed things, according to Murphy.

"In the old days, companies saved everything. Today, that's dangerous."

"Just suppose an employer jotted unfavorable comments about an employee into the person's personnel file. Ten years later the employee is fired and his attorney requests the file. Now we've got problems. The employee could sue.

"Companies are very conscious about what they keep today."

DECISIONS BY corporations, government agencies and others over what to preserve and what to destroy involves major decisions which, in the event of a civil law suit or a government investigation, must not be judicially viewed as self-serving.

Incriminating evidence, for example, cannot be destroyed after a suit or investigation is initiated.

"The key to a successful destruction program . . . is that it eliminate whole classes of files, exand is traded over the counter.

Early next year, Saker will merge with City Wide Fuel in Texas, a fuel blending company that is manufacturing Sassak's latest product, Coledium automotive lubricant.

Daughter Dawn, office administrator for Saker One, perhaps best sums up the process.

Living in California, she returned to Livonia on a short visit in 1982 when Sassak was beginning production on the first space probe.

"The office was a mess. A group of disheveled men were bent over the project, looking like mad scientists, exactly what you think of as mad inventors.

"Eighteen months later, my father called (to California) and told me to watch the news. There was the space probe. It made national news," Dawn Sassak said.

cept those required by law or needed for business, as they reach a certain age, to avoid the suggestions that any were selectively destroyed," wrote Michael Allen in the The Wall Street Journal.

It must also include safeguards to stop destruction of relevant materials if necessary.

Document Services presently has some 800 clients in Michigan.

Many are financial institutions. "It was the first industry to recognize the need for security, and it remains the most security-conscious today," said Murphy who was in banking 15 years prior to joining the firm.

WHILE WORLD EVENTS like North's testimony account for "a surge of interest" in the business, few clients are acquired from the publicity. Most arrive by word of mouth, according to Murphy.

The majority are "solid, legitimate companies" that require services on a regular basis. Murphy declined to name clients because "they come to us for secrecy."

Other clients are one-time users, like school districts discarding dated test results or police departments discarding dated records. Murphy said the firm has provided services in both instances.

Costs for services begin at $30, but Murphy declined discussing additional costs or services. The reluctance, he said, is not unusual.

When phone calls are received by Document Services from potential clients, personal interviews are conducted prior to divulging such information.

"Once we are convinced of the legitimacy of the inquiry, then we'll talk about procedures and costs."

Ford overcame the myth to remain a man

Dan McCosh

For most of his life in a town where we have to drag out a television weatherman to fill a table of well-known celebrities, Henry Ford II was always the one we could point to when we tried to explain what this city is all about.

By now, the eulogies are about over, even the ones that belatedly noticed that, despite the way his neck never quite fit into an opening-night tux, Ford's name seemed to be on the check for about everything that passes for culture in this Paris of southeastern lower Michigan.

The scramble to say nice things about Ford seems to have been led by the folks who had been kicking him in the shins for the past 10 years, even while he eased the company that was his life into a shape that allowed it to flourish on its own without him.

HE HAS been admired for saving Ford from scoundrels at the end of World War II, envied or chided for a somewhat rocky sideline as a ladies' man, characterized as autocratic, earthy, sometimes overbearing or even erratic.

Had we thought a bit, we might have questioned why any company ruled with an iron hand, by someone allegedly defensive about his own power, seemed to have more than its share of tough, independent, articulate executives over the years, including a labor boss who rolled into the executive garage his first week on the job on a motorcycle. Or why Ford's "mistakes" seemed to work themselves out — even when he replaced Lee Iacocca with the bland organizational abilities of a Phil Caldwell.

GIVEN HIS treatment of the press, which went beyond disdain or distrust to a kind of whimsical fooling around, it's not surprising that he never managed to get the record straight.

At least twice, he spilled major news stories while chatting with a reporter in a public rest room. As easily, he would clam up in a scheduled interview.

Retiring, he never turned off the paper shredder, even in the presence of a would-be biographer.

As a result, we never got the real Ford, but we seemed to need somebody flesh and blood to offset the faceless power of the three corporate bureaucracies that dominate most people's lives around here, and he did some job as the symbol of the big industrialist in charge.

He was the postwar generation's Big Guy, spiritual leader of the entrepreneurs who turned everything from wheel covers to toilet seats into personal fortunes ovenight. He never sweated in his family's plants, but he seemed born with the kind of judgment that gets honed in an industry where a bad move can lose you a hand or dump a puddle of molten steel on the plant floor.

It was a generation that misspent its wealth, but also spread it around. The big money from Detroit invented the shopping center and bought a large piece of southern California, while the small paychecks redecorated basements.

Unlike the generation that followed, which seemed mildly embarrassed by anything connected with a factory, Ford never seemed to forget where it came from. You got the feeling that he didn't think being rich was a matter of having money, but of pushing it around, making it build buildings, factories and more cars.

FOR SOME reason, we seemed to get disenchanted with the Ford legend just when we became disenchanted with Detroit as an industrial Mecca. Aside from several derogatory books, the publicity from yet more family infighting began to dominate the Ford anecdotes.

But he stayed a step ahead. Biographers took a decade to begin showing John Kennedy in his underwear. More often than not, Ford did it for us, on the spot, coming up with a line like "never complain, never explain."

Still, today I wonder whether between the marches into the swimming pools and interviews in the flashing lights of a squad car, he was insisting on demolishing his own myth, making it understood that after all, he was just another man and you were better off standing on your own feet.

Just like he did.

Dan McCosh is the auto editor of Popular Science.

Booklets advise future franchisee

So you want to start a franchise. You're successful at what you do as an independent business owner and operator, you've been asked on several occasions if you've ever considered franchising, and you feel the time is right to take advantage of this prospective business opportunity.

If this scenario describes your current situation, then read on.

As a marketing consultant to independent business, I have worked with many business owners who have been asked to franchise at one time or another. After all, isn't an opportunity to franchise the ultimate compliment of a job well done?

IN MANY situations the subject comes up as the telephone calls start coming in from friends and strangers who want to begin businesses much like your own.

"Can you help me? I need some advice . . . . I'll pay you whatever you want." After receiving 10 or 20 telephone calls of the same type, you start to wonder if this is opportunity staring you in the face.

But every opportunity that arises to an independent business owner or manager may not represent the right opportunity over the long haul.

WHEN IT comes to franchising, there are several issues that must be dealt with and understood before taking the plunge.

Some food for thought includes, "Am I ready to take an active role in planning the future of someone else's business across all areas of the operation? What are the legal considerations, especially if my franchisee fails or a contract dispute comes up? How much will it cost me to get the franchise going?"

And that's just the beginning.

THERE ARE a number of publications that are available at minimal cost to assist potential franchisers with making the decision to franchise.

These include "Franchising in the Economy," which presents the Department of Commerce's statistics on the franchise industry. The booklet costs $4.50 and is available through the Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

"Twenty-One Questions," a 16-page booklet that presents the most commonly asked questions about franchising, is $1 from the International Franchise Association, 1025 Connecticut Ave. N.W, Suite 707, Washington, D.C. 20036.

"FRANCHISE INVESTIGATION and Contract Negotiation" is sold for $3.95 by Pilot Books, 103 Cooper Street, Babylon, N.Y. 11702.

A series of eight audio cassette tapes called "Is Franchising for You?" sells for $89.95 from the Franchise Learning Center, 20 Lottingtown Road, Glen Cove, N.Y. 11542.

Possibilities for investing shown Oct. 15

Corporate officers or investment relations directors from 75 publicly traded U.S. and Canadian companies will staff booths to field questions from individual investors Thursday through Saturday, Oct. 15-17, at the 37th Annual Investors Gallery.

Sponsored by the Royal Oak-based National Association of Investors Corp., the gallery is part of the NAIC's national convention at the Westin Hotel in the Renaissance Center. With the theme of "Take Stock of Your Future," the gallery encourages common stock investments and gives potential investors the chance to meet with company officials.

The gallery, billed as the largest display of stock investment information for the individual investor assembled in the U.S., is open to the public 2-6 p.m. Oct. 15, noon to 6 p.m. Oct. 16, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Oct. 17. There is no admission fee.

Corporate exhibitors also will present 15-minute "Corporate Management Speaks" sessions, providing company profiles.

In addition to providing information on investments, the gallery is a forum for NAIC staff members to help visitors learn about individual investing and forming investment clubs, according to Thomas O'Hara of Bloomfield Hills, chairman and founder of NAIC.

Veteran investors will find NAIC to be a valuable resource for information on proven methods to increase investment earnings potential," O'Hara said.

Visitors will also have the opportunity to participate in a drawing with prizes including a weekend on Wall Street, three weekends at the Westin and 25 subscriptions to Better Investing magazine, an NAIC publication. For an entry form, call NAIC at 543-0612.

NAIC was founded in 1951 as a non-profit corporation dedicated to providing investment education to individual investors and investment clubs. The organization has more than 7,200 clubs, 135,000 individual and club members with a total investment of more than $14 billion.

STEPHEN CANTRELL/staff photographer

Actor/comic Larry Peters puts on a few different faces for the photographer, during the interview. Peters has been studying comedy at Chicago's Second City, where he appears in a show Tuesday nights called "It's a Wonderful Shelf-Life!" The actor lives and works both in the Windy City and in the Motor City, where his parents reside in Beverly Hills.

Actor improvises with Second City

By Victor E. Swanson
special writer

IF YOU'VE BEEN to Chicago, you may have had time to enjoy an evening at Second City.

The nationally famous comedy club has been the spawning ground for many well-known actors, such as Betty Thomas, Ann Elder, Bill Murray and John Candy. If you've been to Second City recently, you may have caught Larry Peters of Beverly Hills performing what he really enjoys — improvisational comedy.

Peters was exposed to improvisational comedy in Los Angeles in the early 1980s. "We went to see a show and it was an improv group," Peters said at his parents' home in Beverly Hills. "And I just looked up there and saw those people and I said, 'That's exactly what I want to do.'

"That was just great — taking suggestions, thinking on your feet, creating stuff right on the spot and going with it."

"I consider myself an actor," Peters said earnestly.

He works as an actor in commercials, industrial films and sometimes movies, such as "The Rosary Murders." He has jobs and residences in the Detroit area and the Chicago area.

AT SECOND CITY, Peters is nearing the end of his studies in the five-step comedy training program, which began in August 1986 when he was lucky enough to be accepted into the program even though he missed his audition.

Now, he wants to become a member of one of two comedy troupes at Second City that tour the country, often appearing at colleges and universities.

In the training program, five classes or levels meet one night a week for three hours over an eight-week period. It takes about a year to complete the program. There's tuition but no formal accredited diploma.

"It has recently changed since when I started," said Peters. "The first class is basic improv, teaching you who, what and where, and how to make a scene — just some of the fundamental ingredients of a scene. The second class is on character work."

After the second level, students have another audition to see whether they may go on to level three or whether they should repeat a level or move on to something else.

"Level three, which is divided into two groups, is more focused on writing," Peters said. He gave examples of taking topics from everyday life and making funny comedy sketches. Level four is games.

Level five involves doing a show. "Sit down and write the material, rehearse it, and get up and do it in front of a paying audience," he said.

PETERS IS in level five and the show he is involved with is "It's a Wonderful Shelf-life!" presented Tuesday evenings in the E.T.C. theater at Second City.

Something is happening every night at Second City. The two current shows performed by regular Second City comedy members are "Catch-27," on the main stage, and "Kukla, Fawn and Ollie," on the E.T.C. stage. Monday night is reserved for members of the two touring companies. A special program is presented to children on Sunday.

"One of the things I certainly wanted to get out of it was to get into the comedy troupe," he said about the training program. "And that hasn't happened yet."

Besides taking classes during the week, Peters does what most actors do. "Once or twice a week you want to make the rounds, and that's to see your agents."

From time to time, he and friends get together to perform as an unnamed comedy troupe in Chicago. This summer, he had a leading role in Terrence McNally's "Ravenswood" at the Stage One Theatre.

In 1981, Peters received a bachelor of arts degree from the University of Michigan, in 1983, a master of fine arts degree from the California Institute of Arts.

He has performed on the stage in works by Shakespeare, Shaw and Chekov. He appeared in a video production of "Anthony and Cleopatra" with Lynn Redgrave and Timothy Dalton, and in the short film "Singing Birds," produced in the Detroit area a few years ago by Kim Connelly and Michelle Poulik. "Singing Birds" is about two rival Lithuanian families in Detroit. Peters played the drunken owner of a speakeasy.

HE MAKES his living working in industrial films and in commercials, such as for Art Van and Kellogg's. During the last two Christmas seasons, he was seen in a commercial for local malls, playing a man who brings a big Christmas list to Santa Claus' house.

"I just think I'm more 70 percent actor, 30 percent writer, right now. I would like to be able to write more. I respect it more than any other position in the arts."

Peters enjoys all sports. He also plays guitar and loves jazz. Really though, "I'm just very quiet, low-energy, sort of philosophical. When I get to know somebody more, when I'm with my friends and I'm more comfortable, some nights I'm really funny, and all of a sudden this charming side comes out."

Most of Peters' family, including his parents, lives in the Detroit area, as does his girlfriend.

"I wish I could live in Detroit and wake up in the morning and have my wife go to work to wherever she's going to work. And I could go down and be working on a film or work at a Second City in Detroit or do a commercial. It really hurts me that I have to leave."

Actresses excel in 'White Chicks'

Performances of "A Coupla White Chicks Sitting Around Talking" continue Fridays-Saturdays through Oct. 17 at the Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford playhouse in Redford. For ticket information call 522-8057.

By Lisa M. Newell
special writer

The Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford invites us into the prim-and-proper, perfect suburban kitchen of Maude Mix in "A Coupla White Chicks Sitting Around Talking" by John Ford Noonan.

Mix's outlandish next-door neighbor, Hannah Mae, newly arrived from Texas, is never formally invited in. She just makes herself at home. That's why the friendship that evolves is so much fun to watch.

This two-character play is superbly performed by actresses who bring a lot talent and experience to the stage. Maude is played by Lane Sabourin. Her every move in crisp Lands-End-style clothes is precise and specific. The character, Maude, is controlled and focused, as is Sabourin.

Her contrasting foil, Hannah Mae, is played by Cynthia Betlej with appropriate style and flair. She invades Maude's kitchen with her sincere, believably executed desire to have coffee klatches and be friends. About Betlej, we can safely say she came, she saw, she conquered.

Maude is played by Lane Sabourin. Her every move in crisp Lands-End-style clothes is precise and specific.

Her contrasting foil, Hannah Mae, is played by Cynthia Betlej with appropriate style and flair.

TECHNICAL ASPECTS of the play are handled well. Standouts are the Better Homes and Gardens kitchen table and chairs, set decoration and props. Costumes are just right throughout. We wonder what getup Hannah Mae will wear next. Music complements the action and keeps things moving between scenes.

This all happens under the guidance of director Mattie Wolf. She has a list of credits as long as your arm. Here is another she'll proudly add to her list.

Only weakness to be mentioned is the second act. It doesn't soar quite as high as it could. By then both characters have become "people of passion" and go on a semi-daring excursion to New York City. It would be even more fun for us to see them more joyously and exuberantly wallow in their delight. Perhaps this will come with a few more performances.

Rattlesnake Club

Jimmy Schmidt, former executive chef of the London Chop House in Detroit and cofounder of the world-famous Rattlesnake Club in Denver, will open a second Rattlesnake Club, this one in Detroit.

Schmidt's plans were unveiled recently at the site of the new restaurant, at Stroh River Place in downtown Detroit's Rivertown. The club, which will open next May, features a main dining room, an informal grill and private dining rooms. It afford views of the Detroit River, the Detroit skyline and Windsor. In warm weather, guests will be seated on the terrace overlooking the river.

Schmidt's original Rattlesnake Club opened in December 1985 in a historic redevelopment, the former Tivoli Brewery in downtown Denver. The Rattlesnake Club-Detroit is housed in the historic Detroit riverfront project that also houses the Stroh Brewery Co. corporate headquarters.

Along with Michael McCarty of Santa Monica, Calif., Schmidt is a major partner in Schmidt Company Ltd., which owns the new club. Schmidt also joined with McCarty to open the Denver club.

The Detroit restaurant will have an elegant decor, furnishings and table settings. Chairs will be reproductions of the Kingswood chair from the Cranbrook collection of Finnish architect-designer Eliel Saarinen.

Food is expected to be unparalleled. "The menus will contain a broad representation of this country's finest food products, but our emphasis will be on Michigan resources," said Master Chef Schmidt.

Robin Leach's TV show "Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous" called the Denver Rattlesnake Club "ninth in the world of international restaurants." For Detroit's restaurant, Schmidt said, "I plan to do everything with upscale quality in a very contemporary setting that would be world class, while reflecting the flavors of the Midwest."

Raddison Plaza

Two tasteful restaurants are part of the new Raddison Plaza Hotel, which opened last month at Town Center in Southfield. The attractive, comfortable dining rooms are side by side on the main floor of the 385-room luxury hotel.

Guests may have breakfast, lunch or dinner in the informality of Tango's European bistro, or they may savor lunch or dinner in the special atmosphere of Bouquets. A comprehensive selection of domestic vintage wines is central to the decor at Bouquets, and the restaurant's name was chosen to indicate the bouquet of a fine wine. Private wine bins are available for customers to store their personal favorites.

Everything from pasta to pastries is prepared from scratch in the kitchen of Executive Chef Tom Meier. Fresh fish is flown in daily from the East and West coasts. Mesquite-grilled and smoked meats and poultry are among the entrees, along with 18 sauces, from classic to new creations.

Tango's cafe bistro, which serves seasonal cuisine, has a piano bar and lounge. It offers an "office party special," where groups of six or more receive party favors, balloons and free desserts from 5-7 p.m.

Sunday brunch, which began this week, is served in the hotel's ballroom.

Meier was chosen as Chef of the Year in 1985 for the Radisson Hotel Corporation, competing against counterparts in nearly 100 properties around the country. He encourages guests to make suggestions of favorite dishes, themes and special requests. "The motto is my kitchen is, 'Never say no,'" he said.

Maine lobster

An annual Lobsterrific dinner special, of steamed Maine lobster, continues through Sunday at D. Dennison's Seafood Tavern in Farmington Hills. Each lobster course, at $12.95, comes with choice of side dish, coleslaw, rolls and butter.

New menus

Steak and Ale Restaurants have introduced new lunch and dinner menus that are a commitment to beef lovers. The new dinner menu, a hardcover booklet type, features three new beef entrees: Chateau for One, a grilled tenderloin served with Hollandaise sauce, for $11.95; Bourbon Street Steak, a grilled 10-oz. strip marinated in brown sugar and bourbon, for $11.75, and a 16-oz. T-Bone steak, for $15.95.

All 10 beef dinner entrees now include a baked potato, as well as fresh-baked bread, vegetables and choice of salad bar or Caesar salad.

Additional dinner choices include several chicken and seafood combinations, from $7.45-$13.95, and combination entrees such as Lobster and Prime Rib at $16.95 and Shrimp Pilaf and Top Sirloin for $12.95.

The spirits menu has been expanded, to include 22 red, white and blush wine varieties and five champagnes. The new luncheon menu features five salads and eight sandwiches under $6 and four burgers under $5 served on fresh-baked onion rolls.

Lunch company

The Great Life Lunch Company in Ferndale prepares gourmet, macrobiotic-quality lunches, fresh daily, for delivery to home or office. Macrobiotics is a style of cooking using natural whole foods and no sugar, chemicals, meat or dairy products. Great Life recommends the macrobiotic diet for anyone striving for a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet, and anti-cancer. Purified drinking water is used for cooking at Great Life Lunch Company. The menu of 10 lunches, available on various days, changes monthly. Lunch includes a grain, soup du jour, vegetables, beans, sea vegetables, a pickle and fresh garnish, for $8.

Some changes

Now in its fifth month of operation, Key Largo waterfront restaurant in Walled Lake, has added a luncheon menu and new entries on its dinner menu. Reservations are taken for any size group.

House rejects forced spending on air safety

Roll Call Report

Here's how area members of Congress were recorded on major roll call votes in the week ending Oct. 2.

HOUSE

AVIATION TRUST FUND — By a vote of 197 for and 202 against, the House rejected an amendment to increase spending on the nation's air travel system by separating the aviation trust fund from the general budget.

The vote occurred as the House passed and sent to the Senate a bill (HR 2310) authorizing $28.5 billion over five years for purposes such as upgrading airport facilities, improving air safety, insuring that small cities continue to get minimal airline service and expanding the traffic controller force.

About $5.6 billion, raised mainly by a tax on passenger tickets, is in the aviation trust fund. This vote means it will remain unspent and counted against the annual deficit.

Supporter John Hammerschmidt, R-Ark., told his colleagues to support the amendment "if you want to do something to improve service, reduce delays and enhance safety."

Opponent Lawrence Coughlin, R-Pa., said "It is technical problems, not funding, that is holding up the modernization program of the Federal Aviation Agency."

Members voting yes wanted to force aviation trust fund expenditures. Voting yes: Dennis Hertel, D-Harper Woods; William Broomfield, R-Birmingham.

Voting no: Carl Pursell, R-Plymouth; William Ford, D-Taylor; Sander Levin, D-Southfield.

SENATE

AIDS ISSUE — By a vote of 44 for and 55 against, the Senate failed to sustain a District of Columbia law prohibiting insurance companies from denying life and health policies to persons who test positive for the AIDS virus.

Occurring during debate on D.C.'s fiscal 1988 appropriations bill (HR 2713), the vote failed to table an amendment to force the D.C. Council to abandon the 1986 law. The bill was sent to conference with the House.

Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, voted to table the amendment, which he called "an intrusion on the home rule of the District of Columbia."

Jesse Helms, R-N.C., said D.C. Council authors of the law were "more concerned with giving special preference to the homosexuals in this city" than with the D.C.'s general welfare.

Senators voting yes supported the D.C. law. Michigan Democrats Carl Levin and Donald Riegle voted yes.

ABORTION — By a vote of 60 for and 39 against, the Senate tabled an amendment to HR 2713 (above) to further limit publicly supported abortions in the District of Columbia.

Presently, no federal appropriations can be used for abortions in D.C. except when the mother's life is at stake. The tabled amendment sought to extend the ban to revenue the D.C. government raises on its own.

Senators voting yes were opposed to preventing the D.C. government from using its own revenues to pay for abortions. Levin and Riegle both voted yes.

LEGISLATIVE BUDGET — By a vote of 79 for and 19 against, the Senate approved a $1.8-billion legislative branch budget (HR 2714) for fiscal 1988. This is nearly $100 million over the fiscal 1987 authorization.

The bill's most disputed feature is a ban on lawmakers accepting pay raises until they vote approval of the extra money. Presently, they receive the hike automatically unless they vote to refuse it.

Because it is absent from the House version of the bill, the pay raise accountability language is unlikely to survive a House-Senate conference on HR 2714.

Charles Grassley, who sponsored the pay language, said "If members of Congress are to be paid more ... they ought to publicly vote on the matter, not try to sneak through a pay raise as we did early this year."

Opponents did not speak against the bill.

Senators voting yes favored the fiscal 1988 legislative branch appropriations bill. Levin and Riegle voted yes.

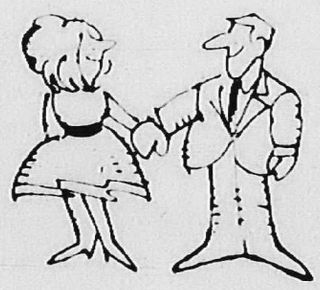
WRITE IT AND REAP!

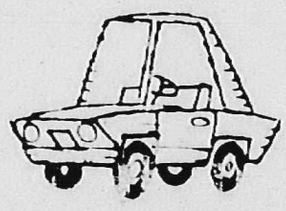
Writing a classified ad that gets results—whether it be for real estate, employment, the personals, transportation, or merchandise— is easy if you follow the guidelines below.

1. Give the reader specific information. Pretend you are someone reading the classifieds. What would you like to know about the item, service or job you are advertising? Be sure to add details such as color, size, condition, brand name, age, features and benefits. Be accurate! Don't embellish your ad with misleading information. Stick to the facts and reap the rewards!

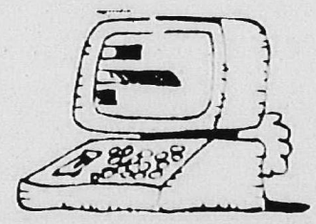
2. Include the price. Don't waste your time or a potential buyer's time. If you advertise the price of the item or service you offer, the people who respond to your ad will be those who are genuinely interested. Surveys show that readers are more interested in those items and services they know are within their price range.

3. Avoid abbreviations. Don't make a potential customer work too hard! Although you may be tempted to cut down on the cost of your ad by using abbreviations, surveys indicate that many people don't understand such abbreviations as Elk (eat in kitchen) or WSW (white side wall) tires and won't take the time to figure them out. A confused reader is a disinterested reader. Get the most for your money and use complete words.





4. Include phone number and specify hours. Be sure to let potential customers know when and where to call. Surveys show that even if a person is very interested in your item or service, he or she will not call back after the first attempt. Stay near the phone during the hours you indicate you will be available. Don't risk missing a sale!



5. Run on consecutive days. Your ad will not get results if people don't see it. Therefore, it is important to set up a consistent and consecutive ad schedule with your telephone salesperson or outside sales representative.

Rocks settle for 0-0 draw

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Livonia Stevenson's impressive streak remains in tact, while Plymouth Salem was left to ponder what might have been.

The Western Lakes soccer powers battled to a scoreless tie Monday after the host Rocks had an early goal nullified by a penalty.

The teams proceeded to frustrate each other's offensive attempts for the duration of the long, tense contest. And, as rain clouds hastened the onset of dusk, the No. 1-ranked Spartans' unbeaten streak had reached 57 games without a loss.

"We bring out the best of these teams," coach Pete Scerri said. "Every team gets psyched up for Stevenson.

"They're a very, very good team — the best we've played so far," he said of Salem. "We have nothing to be ashamed of."

THE SPARTANS, 6-0-2 in the league and 9-0-2 overall, have not lost since the 1985 state final. In the meantime, Stevenson has established a 52-0-5 record.

"When you've played 57 games without a loss, that's something," Scerri said.

The Rocks thought they had taken a 1-0 lead shortly after the start of the game, and it would have been the winning goal considering the way things went afterward.

Stevenson goalie Jeff Bencik scooped up a loose ball near the right corner of the goal. But the ball suddenly came loose again, and Salem's Marc Lipke was on the spot to tap it into the Spartan net.

That prompted an emotional, jubilant response from the Rocks, but it was quickly extinguished when the official ruled Lipke was offsides on the play.

SALEM COACH Ken Johnson said the goal should have counted, believing Lipke was not offsides.

For a player to be guilty of that infraction, he must be between the last defender and the goalie before the ball gets there, according to Johnson. Since the ball was already in Bencik's possession prior to Lipke kicking it into the net, Johnson believes his player could not have been called for offsides.

"The ball was in the net before the referee's flag went up," Johnson said. "It looked like a belated, indecisive play.

"In my opinion, it wasn't offsides. If I could protest, I would.

"That's one of those things in soccer," he said, noting there is no recourse. "Once (the call) is made, there's no going back. The milk is spilled now."

FROM HIS perspective, Scerri said he thought Lipke kicked the ball out of Bencik's hands after the goalie had taken possession of it.

"I guess the referee was there on the spot and had a better view of it," he said.

Despite having that call go against it, Salem dominated play for most of the game. The Rocks were pressing the attack in Stevenson's end with the Spartans breaking through to pose an occasional threat.

Randy Balconi's cross pass to Denny Reynolds resulted in a strong header that sailed just over the Stevenson goal as had other attempts. Then Don Koontz went 1-on-1 with a

Chiefs conquer Hawks

Hoping his soccer team can finish the 1987 season on a strong note, Plymouth Canton coach Mike Morgan saw promise in Wednesday's 5-3 victory over Farmington Harrison.

"They're a strong team," he said. "They beat Northville, and Stevenson only snuck by them 1-0.

"We're pretty much out of the league (race), but we have improved. We could go a long way in that state tournament, but we do have three of the best teams in the state in our district."

Plymouth Salem, Ann Arbor Huron and Brighton, all ranked in the top 10, will compete in the same district as the Chiefs, 4-4 in the Western Lakes and 5-7 overall.

Canton led 2-0 at halftime Wednesday after Jeff Tutor, who had a hat trick, scored on a cross from Steve Marshall and Rick Menary put a corner kick into the net. The Chiefs had a 13-3 advantage in first-half shots.

"We controlled play and that's our style," Morgan said. "It was windy and that helped us, because we were able to keep the ball down and keep possession."

HARRISON scored the first goal of the second half, but John Cortese and Tutor extended Canton's lead to 4-1. Menary and Doug Sobolak assisted on those goals.

The Hawks got a little help on their next goal. A Canton defender accidentally scored it on a header deflection.

"The wind came into play there," Morgan said. "Instead of (the ball) going straight up, the wind blew it back and took us by surprise.

"It happens once in a while. What can you do? The kid tried to get the ball, and it didn't go quite right."

Ferko scores 30 in Canton triumph

Sophomores usually don't start on varsity basketball squads much less make a contribution. But that's not the case with Plymouth Canton sophomore Susan Ferko.

The 5-foot-10 sophomore center scored a game-high 30 points Tuesday night in leading the Chiefs to a 58-34 victory over host Livonia Franklin.

"She played really well tonight," said Canton coach Rob Neu. "She's developing some real nice moves around the basket and taking better advantage of her scoring opportunities."

Canton, which improved to 7-4 overall and 4-0 in the Western Division, jumped out to a 13-6 lead after the first quarter and led 25-12 at the half. The Chiefs held a 16-5 advantage in the third quarter before Neu cleared his bench in the fourth.

Senior forward Karen Boluch added 11 for Canton, which connected on nine of 15 free throws.

Rose O'Bey led Franklin, 4-4 and 2-2, with 13 points and Leslie Szaflarski chipped in with 12.

SALEM 103, FARMINGTON 34: Dena Head scored a career-high 36 points Tuesday night in leading Plymouth Salem to an easy victory over visiting Farmington.

The Rocks took a 33-6 lead in the first quarter and never looked back. They increased the lead to 54-12 by the half and 91-14 after three quarters of play.

"We got off to a real good start and just kept it going," said Salem coach Fred Thomann.

Jill Estey added 26 points, 11 steals and 18 assists for the state-ranked Rocks, who improved to 9-1, 4-0 in the Lakes Division. Keri McBride chipped in 10 points for the winners.

Farmington, which dropped to 3-6 and 0-5, was paced by Stacy Swanderski with 12 points.

GLENN 63, NORTH 53: Westland John Glenn waited until the fourth quarter to take control of Tuesday's game at North Farmington. But the Rockets outscored North 16-5 in the final eight minutes as they improved to 3-1 in the WLAA, 7-2 overall.

girls basketball

"We ran out of gas in the fourth quarter and missed seven free throws," said North coach Greg Capling. "They're a good, aggressive team. They shut us down in the fourth quarter."

Denise Gumke pumped in 22 points to lead Glenn, and Beth Wilson added 19.

North, which fell to 5-4 overall and 1-3 in the WLAA, was paced by Kim Gurecki with 18 points, Suzi Butcher with 14 and Donna O'Brien with 11.

CHRISTIAN 44, LUTHERAN 32: Shelly Oxley netted 12 points Tuesday night while leading Plymouth Christian to a 12-point victory over host Rochester Lutheran Northwest.

With the score tied at 24-24 at the end of the third quarter, Christian began pressing and outscored Lutheran 20-8 in the final eight minutes.

With the win, the Eagles improve to 5-4 overall and 4-1 in the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference.

Ruth Bockmiller paced Lutheran Northwest with seven points.

CENTRAL 53, STEVENSON 44: Sue Zatorski scored a career-high 28 points Tuesday night, but it wasn't enough as Livonia Stevenson dropped this WLAA contest to visiting Walled Lake Central.

The Spartans led early, taking a 10-9 lead after the first quarter and a 23-21 lead at the half.

Central, led by Shannon Flood and Leah Vlisides with 18 points each, outscored Stevenson 17-8 in the third quarter, however, to take a commanding 39-30 lead.

Heather Bell added 10 for the winners, who improved to 6-2 overall, 3-1 in the WLAA. The loss left Stevenson at 4-5 overall, 0-4 in the league.

Lawmen run for Special Olympics

How much pizza can law enforcement officers eat while jogging from the Upper to the Lower Peninsula?

Little Caesars franchisees will find out this week, through Friday, during the Little Caesars Special Olympics Law Enforcement Torch Run.

Franchisees of the Farmington Hills-based pizza chain will support runners representing 100 law enforcement agencies by providing meals. This year's goal is to raise $75,000 for Michigan Special Olympics.

The Torch runners, comprised of Michigan law enforcement officials and organized by the Michigan Association of Chiefs of Police, will form two teams that will carry the Special Olympic Torch 1,600 miles.

The run started Monday in Copper Harbor and Ironwood in the Upper Peninsula, where the runners will join forces at the Mackinaw Bridge. Another team of runners will start in Whitehall (north of Muskegon) on Thursday.

The two teams of runners will meet at the General Motors Tech Center in Warren on Friday, for the concluding ceremony and the lighting of the Special Olympics Torch.

The Michigan Special Olympics Programs provide training and athletic opportunities for mentally impaired children and adults.

The Special Olympics receives no state or federal funding, but instead relies entirely on the donations of time, materials and money from businesses, individuals and organizations from throughout the state.

Vegetarian diet is 'like a plan for life'

Dear Myrna: Please provide a basic outline for a vegetarian eating program for improved weight control. Kindly address breads (bagels, croissants), yogurts and cheeses in particular. I exercise with you six times weekly and began a weight training program last week three times weekly, but am still 20 pounds overweight. Thank you.

— Lucy R.
Rochester

I am certainly happy that you are asking for a "vegetarian eating program" and not just another diet. With all the latest health studies disproving fad diets, we are starting to make headway. Fad diets are finally fading out, being replaced by "eating plans for life."

To many people, the word diet simply means temporary misery until the excess weight is lost. Many times after accomplishing the goal, we go back to the old routine: "A little ice cream or cake won't hurt. Maybe back to fried foods — but just once a day. Oh well."

Your exercise plan sounds great. Aerobic exercise classes six times a week plus weight training sounds perfect.

Here is what she told us:

"Vegetarian diets come in many varieties. It appears that Lucy is interested in a lacto-ovo-vegetarian plan, one that incorporates eggs (and food containing eggs), dairy products and plant foods but no meat, fish or poultry.

When well planned, a lacto-ovo-vegetarian diet can enhance weight loss efforts and allows all nutrients necessary to maintain a healthy body.

For example, one cup of vegetable bean soup, ½ cup of cottage cheese, one slice of whole grain bread and ½ cup of mixed fresh fruit contains fewer calories than a fast food quarter pounder or a fish filet sandwich.

In addition, the first meal is more nutrient dense, has more fiber and much less saturated fat and cholesterol than the second meal. The first meal also is very satisfying and filling.

A word of caution is needed. There are many overweight vegetarians — especially those who consume alcohol, high fat dairy products and pastries.

If weight control is a priority for you, follow these tips:

- Avoid high fat baked goods such as croissants and Danish. Choose instead whole grain bagels, pita and other breads.
- Plan meals around low fat dairy products like skim milk, cottage and mozzarella cheese or plain yogurt flavored with fresh fruit.
- Be creative. Use egg whites in your recipes instead of whole eggs. At least limit eggs in your diet to three per week.
- Include a wide variety of vegetables and fruit in your daily eating plan.
- Limit alcohol and concentrated sweets.
- Note that nuts and seeds are great foods but high in calories."

If you have any other questions or you need individual counseling, you can call Kristin Martin at 858-3155 or set up an appointment to meet with her at The Workout Company.

(Myrna Partrich, co-owner of The Workout Company of Bloomfield Township, is happy to answer any questions readers may have regarding exercise. Please send your signed letters to: Sports Department, Myrna Partrich, 1225 Bowers, Birmingham 48012.)

Bill Parker

I'VE BEEN ITCHING to write this column for nearly a week now. Literally itching to write it.

I was boasting, about a month or so ago, about how "I could identify poison ivy before I knew what a tulip was." I stand firm on that statement. I really could, and still can, but sometimes those nasty little plants just seem to find a way to get into your path.

No matter how watchful and cautious you are, the inevitable seems to happen every so often and my "every so often" happened along last week. On opening day of archery season no less.

Prior to opening day I was explaining to my hunting companion, Rochester resident Dean Caddick, about the dangers of coming in contact with poison ivy or poison sumac, the two toxicodendron plants native to Michigan.

I told him how direct contact with either plant would cause itching and redness on most people, and in severe cases even blisters and burning pain. I told him that if he thought he did touch a poisonous plant he should wash the contaminated area thoroughly with soap and water.

DEANO WAS ALL ears as I explained two simple rules (I had learned as a Cub Scout) which he should remember to help avoid contact: leaflets three, let it be and berries white is a poisonous sight. He memorized the rhymes and was always on the lookout. In fact, between his constant awareness of poisonous plants and his continual compass checks, I wondered when he found time to hunt. He swears he did though.

Anyway, Lady Luck was with me and I was fortunate enough to bag my first deer with a bow and arrow. It was a little button buck and I scored Thursday afternoon, about a half hour before sundown. As the daylight was fading fast I knew I'd have to track in the dark so I went and got Dean for some help.

Through patience and persistence we found the trail and the deer.

Naturally the animal ran into the thickest thicket on the property we were hunting. At times I was on my hands and knees following the trail while Dean, holding another flashlight and watching ahead, always seemed to find the easy way through. Somewhere along the trail I tangled with some infamous ivy.

THE SYMPTOMS didn't appear until Saturday and by Sunday, while sitting at Tiger Stadium watching the Bengals clinch the American East, I couldn't sit still in my seat despite a coating of Calamine lotion.

By Monday morning blisters on my arm indicated a trip to the dermatologist was in my future.

Calamine lotion works well on helping dry the blistered areas but to cure the itching and redness a perscription of Synalar and Hytone cream worked wonders. In less than 24 hours I already felt a big difference.

The experience has been an educational one. For starters, neither poison ivy nor poison sumac is as contagious as I once thought. Although the poison can be indirectly transmitted from person to person or animal to person, within four hours after contact the rash is no longer contagious. Secondly, drainage won't spread the rash. After the initial contact, the rash can be spread to another part of the body but again not after four hours, even as the blisters drain. Within the first few hours, however, it can be spread but the severity is usually worse at the point of contact with the plant.

AS FOR IDENTIFICATION, poison ivy grows as a shrub or a vine. Trees are often wrapped by the vine and an uncautious hunter who climbs the wrong tree in an attempt to gain a better vantage point can run into some serious problems.

Leaves are usually, but not always, in groups of three. They are green in the summer and turn to a dull red in the fall. The plant also produces a berry-type fruit. The berries are green in the summer and can be either smooth or rough-skinned and hairy. In the fall these berries turn to a waxy white or tan color.

Poison sumac grows as a shrub and always has an odd number of leaves which angle upward from the plant. The leaves are green in the summer and turn reddish yellow in the fall. Poison sumac also produces a berry-type fruit which is green in the summer and grows between the branch and the leaves. In the fall these berries turn to an off-white.

Mercy stuns Blazers, 51-46

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Farmington Mercy's girls basketball team had something to prove — to itself and the rest of the Catholic League's Central Division.

The Marlins have played well against some of the state's best teams only to come up short.

The latest was a near upset of Birmingham Marian a week ago. But, on the heels of that disappointment, Mercy stunned Livonia Ladywood 51-46 Tuesday night on the winner's floor.

"We needed to get over the hump," said Mercy coach Larry Baker after his team improved to 2-1 in the division and 5-4 overall.

"We were tired of consoling ourselves after playing a top 10 close and losing by 2-5 points. We had to prove to ourselves we could beat one of those teams playing our game."

KATIE McNULTY scored a game-high 18 points for Ladywood, but the Marlins countered with four players in double figures. Jan Herberholz had 16 points to lead Mercy, Patty Chapp and Adrienne Clark 11 apiece and Jennifer Slosar 10.

The Blazers, who got 14 points from Yvonne Barnett and eight from Nancy Wagner, also are 2-1 in the division and 7-2 overall, but coach Ed Kavanaugh said he expected a tough game from the Marlins.

"It's unfortunate that we have so many good teams in this league and it affects our state rankings," he said.

"It's going to happen, you're going to lose some games in this league. We beat each other up all year."

With the score tied 42-all midway in the fourth quarter, Mercy's Jenny Clinton atoned for a turnover a few seconds earlier when she stole the ball and sank the go-ahead layup.

WHILE TURNOVERS held the Blazers at bay, Chapp and Clark combined for three free throws, and Herberholz extended the lead to 49-42 with 1:40 to play, going coast-to-coast for a layup.

Ladywood cut it 49-46 on a pair of Ann Marie Thomas free throws and Diana Novelli's basket with 50 seconds remaining.

But the Marlins went to their delay game, denying the Blazers the chance to rally, and Chapp added two free throws to cement the victory.

RANDY BORST/staff photographer

Mercy's Jan Herberholz drives around Ladywood opponent Nancy Wagner for two of her team-leading 16 points. The Marlins moved above .500 with a 5-4 record.

Free throws played a key role as Mercy made 10 of 11 in the third quarter to help steal Ladywood's halftime momentum. The Marlins were 17-of-22 for the game, the Blazers 10-of-12.

"The big difference was the foul shooting," Kavanaugh said. "They spent the night at the line, and we didn't have that many chances."

BOTH TEAMS pressed for much of the second half, but Mercy had to be selective in picking its spots, Baker said. The Marlins didn't substitute until early in the fourth quarter, going with their starting five most of the way.

"We have a fine pressing team, but we've watched others press us more because of the fatigue factor," said Baker, adding the pressure Mercy applied on the perimeter helped keep the 6-foot-2 McNulty from getting the ball more.

"(Assistant) coach (Jim) McKee had another excellent game plan, and we were able to execute it and minimize what McNulty could have done to us."

Kavanaugh, who saw his team rally at the end of the second and third quarters, said the tempo of the game was slower than what Ladywood is accustomed to playing.

"A low-scoring game was to their advantage," he said. "We usually try to create scoring opportunities off the defense, and we didn't get that tonight.

"WE ALWAYS have close games with Mercy. Most of the games we have with them are decided on several plays. That's not something that was unexpected."

The Marlins led 18-14 in the second quarter before the Blazers, getting six straight free throws from Barnett and a McNulty bucket, rallied for a 22-20 halftime lead.

"I tore into them at halftime," Baker said, "because I thought we were still suffering from the post-Marian game blues."

The Marlins responded in the third quarter, taking the ball to the basket and parading to the line after getting fouled. Mercy grabbed a 28-24 lead and later pushed it to 38-32 before the Blazers scored the last five points, cutting it to one on McNulty's turnaround shot.

Baker was especially pleased by Clinton's play at guard, and lauded her role in affecting the outcome.

"She just played flat-out, man-to-man, in-the-face defense on their point guard the whole night," he said, "and that was the key to stopping McNulty. Of course, I was pleased with the job Jennifer Slosar did reboudning with McNulty, also."

'We needed to get over the hump. We were tired of consoling ourselves after playing a top 10 close and losing by 2-5 points. We had to prove to ourselves we could beat one of those teams playing our game.'

Chiefs set swim records in loss

Plymouth Canton swimmers set two school records, but Farmington Mercy was a convincing winner in the team tally Tuesday, defeating the Chiefs 104-68 in the Canton pool.

The records were set in the 200-yard freestyle and 100 backstroke events won by Canton's Nicole Drake in 2:00.19 and Cassie Cummins in 1:05.14, respectively.

The Marlins were led by Mary Quinn, Liz DeMattia and Roberta Orr with two first places apiece.

Quinn won the 50 and 100 freestyles with 27.3 and 1:00.1 times. DeMattia and Orr were on the medley relay squad, but DeMattia also won the butterfly (1:04.93) and Orr the breaststroke (1:13.1).

Orr, Amy Cetnar, DeMattia and Karen Neyer captured the relay in 1:58.8. Other Mercy victories were turned in by Polly Tenuta in the individual medley (2:15.6) and Erica Campbell the diving with 217.65 points.

Drake was a triple winner for Canton, 2-2, taking the 500 freestyle in 5:15.5 and anchoring the freestyle relay team, which included Kristy Brugar, Kelly Rische and Jean McLenaghan. Their time was 4:05.7.

In addition, Cummins qualified for state in the individual medley with a 2:17.7 time.

SALEM 132, W.L. CENTRAL 39. The Rocks trounced their Lakes Division opponent as they won both relays and eight different swimmers won individual events. Salem is 3-1.

Heather Bunch, Erin Olson, Sarah Andrews and Dawn Shiek won the medley relay in 2:08.22, and Bunch, Shiek, Stacie Anderson and Tracy Meszaros won the freestyle relay in 4:07.06.

Three of the relay team members also had individual firsts. Andrews won the 500 freestyle (6:15.71), Anderson the 50 free (29.11) and Meszaros the individual medley (2:30.61).

In addition, Tammy Hickey was first in the 200 free (2:18.81), Jennifer Ezzo diving (155.25 points), Nicole Gillig the butterfly (1:16.02), Jennifer Barr the 100 free (1:04.18) and Carrie Vanderweele the backstroke (1:15.71).

Loss goes unavenged by S'craft

Schoolcraft College had a score to settle in men's soccer Saturday, but the issue remained unresolved.

Hoping to avenge a previous defeat, the Ocelots battled Cuyahoga (Ohio) Community College to a 3-3, overtime standoff in Ohio.

Cuyahoga is the only Eastern Conference team to have beaten Schoolcraft in the last two years, taking a 1-0 victory from the Ocelots in the final game of the 1986 season.

Schoolcraft dominated early in the game and took a 1-0 lead on Paul Burrill's unassisted goal at the 15-minute mark.

But Cuyahoga scored the next two goals, and the Ocelots found themselves battling from behind the rest of the day.

SCHOOLCRAFT'S Errol Parks tied the game at 35:00 in the second half with an assist from Kevin Kurkowski. Ron Hammer's goal, coming after a pass from Phil Neumaier, knotted the score at 3-3 with three minutes left in the second 10-minute overtime.

"The first half was totally ours," said Schoolcraft coach Van Dimitriou, adding the Ocelots had numerous chances they were unable to capitalize on.

Though Cuyahoga had the wind at its back in the second half, Schoolcraft was still the one pressing the attack.

"We were the team with the most opportunities, but they took better advantage of theirs," Dimitriou said.

Unlike the Schoolcraft team, foreign players comprised the majority of Cuyahoga's squad, which had only one American on its roster.

"We were still the more cohesive team, but they have a lot of individual talent," Dimitriou said.

The Ocelots will get another shot at Cuyahoga when it visits Livonia later this season, but the immediate concern for Schoolcraft is Delta College, whom the Ocelots play host to at 1 p.m. Saturday.

Stevenson's Peter Galea is tripped up by Salem's Rick Najarian in a struggle for the ball in the Lakes Division soccer game. The Rocks proved to be Stevenson's equal Monday afternoon, tying the Spartans 0-0.

Big games to decide area teams' futures

By Brad Emons and Dan O'Meara staff writers

CONSIDER THIS a "make or break" week for a couple of area football high school teams.

A possible division title and state playoff berth is on the line when Westland John Glenn (4-1) travels Saturday to meet unbeaten North Farmington (5-0) in a key Lakes Division game in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

The other big matchup will be played Sunday at Pontiac's Wisner Stadium when Catholic Central (4-1) bangs heads against Birmingham Brother Rice (5-0) in the annual Boys Bowl. The Central Division title is at stake.

Farmington Harrison (5-0), one of two unbeaten Observerland teams and the state's top-ranked team in Class B, can wrap up another Western Division title Saturday with a win over second place Livonia Churchill (3-2).

After five weeks of games, the "expert prognosticators" are deadlocked with a cumulative season total of 54-19 each. Emons closed the gap by going 11-3 last week, while O'Meara slipped to 10-4.

Here goes another week of picks:

FRIDAY GAMES

Lutheran North at Clarenceville: Avondale has all but wrapped up first place in the Metro Conference, but Clarenceville (3-2) could be vying for second with a win over Mount Clemens Lutheran North, which gained its first win of the year last week over Harper Woods, 35-0. Picks — Stick with Clarenceville for another week.

Walled Lake Central at Liv. Stevenson: The Spartans (3-2) seem to have found themselves of late and still have a chance to claim a share of the Lakes Division title. Picks — Beating winless Central appears to be money in the bank.

Farmington at Ply. Salem: The Rocks (3-2) have lost two straight against quality teams (Glenn and North). The Falcons (1-4) might have fared better if they were in the Western Division of the WLAA instead of the Lakes. Picks — Salem breaks out.

Dearborn at Garden City: GC (0-5) could avoid the cellar of the Northwest Suburban League with a win over the visiting Pioneers (2-3). Dearborn is reeling from a 14-0 loss to rival Edsel. The Cougars, coming off a 3-0 defeat to Redford Union, must avoid penalties. Picks — Dearborn escapes with a win.

Woodhaven at Redford Union: Woodhaven (4-1) is the Northwest Suburban League's most improved team. The Warriors, idle last week in NSL play, went out and thumped non-league foe Milford, 35-18. RU (1-4) will have upset on the mind. Picks — RU hands Woodhaven its first league loss, according to Emons, but O'Meara's crystal ball tells of a different ending.

Belleville at Wayne Memorial: Flanker Tom Faison was the only standout for Wayne last week in a 35-6 loss to state-ranked Fordson. The Zebras (3-2) should have no trouble against Belleville (1-4), which won for the first time last week against Southgate, 10-0. Picks — The Zebras regain their stripes.

SATURDAY GAMES
(all 1 p.m. unless noted)

Liv. Churchill at Farm. Harrison: Shades of 1983 when Churchill upset the Hawks? Nobody thought the Chargers could do it then. A repeat is unlikely, although Churchill's young crew appears to be coming of age. Picks — The Chargers suffer more growing pains. Harrison romps.

Ply. Canton at Liv. Franklin: The Patriots (2-3) self-destructed last week against previouly winless Northville. Canton (2-3), meanwhile, must regroup after getting blasted by Harrison, 35-0. Mistakes will determine this one. Picks — Take Franklin and the home field advantage.

Wsld. John Glenn at North Farmington: Two bruising defenses square off and both have decent passing attacks. A wierd bounce or two could figure prominently in the final outcome. Who will dare to open it up? Picks — It's Glenn's turn to return the favor after losing last year, 9-7, Emons says. The advantage seems to be with Glenn, but a hunch says North, according to O'Meara.

Taylor Kennedy at Redford Thurston: The Eagles (0-5) have yet to find themselves. They were shut out last week by Crestwood for the third time this season. Kennedy (2-3) is relying on the running of quarterback Ricardo Joaquin, who rushed for 138 yards in a 9-7 victory last week over Taylor Truman. Picks — The Eagles can't leave their familiar nest.

St. Agatha at Waterford Our Lady: Our Lady of Lakes coach Mike Boyd has another good team this season. The Lakers (4-1) appear to be the team to beat in the Catholic League's C-Section. Agatha (2-3) crushed Wyandotte Mount Carmel last week, 41-6, but the competition will be much stiffer this week. Picks — The Aggies can't head off the Lakers' trip to the Silverdome.

St. Hedwig at Lutheran Westland: The Warriors are 2-2, but Detroit St. Hedwig (4-1) is one of the better Class D teams in the metro area. They picked up a number of players Servite High closed. Picks — The Knights ride high into Westland.

Bishop Borgess vs. Bishop Gallagher (1:30 p.m. at Garden City Jr. High): The Spartans (2-3) are hurting, particularly on the offensive line. Two overtime losses this season haven't helped the team's morale. Gallagher (2-3) lost last week to Catholic Central. Picks — Gallagher spoils Borgess's homecoming.

SUNDAY'S GAME

Catholic Central vs. Brother Rice (1:30 p.m. at Pontiac's Wisner Stadium): Rice's outstanding halfback Jason Wolf will be a marked man. CC coach Tom Mach is 6-6 against Rice's Al Fracassa, a statistic nobody should overlook. CC has the better defense, but Rice can move the ball better. Picks — Wolf and Rice yell a victory cry, Emons says. O'Meara likes the Shamrocks in this one.

Showdown ends in 0-0 tie defender but missed a good shot as he charged in from the left side.

That was midway in the second half, and momentum swung the other way as the Spartans dominated play for the rest of the game. Stevenson sensed time was growing short and began pressing, but Salem goalie Dave O'Malley proved as formidable in goal as Bencik.

O'MALLEY went up to knock the ball out of the goalmouth on headers resulting from corner kicks and several times smothered the ball while being challenged by a Stevenson forward.

Scerri wished his team had played early the way it did in the late going. But the Spartans have not been scoring a lot of goals this year. They have less than 50 for the season, and "usually by this time we have 100 goals," Scerri said.

soccer

Things might have been different "if we didn't go to sleep like we did," he said. "When we wake up and start playing, there's not much time left.

"I THINK we have a solid defense," he added. "That's what has been keeping us in all the games. We're not getting the number of goals we should be getting."

Kurt Will and Derek Williford paced the Stevenson defense, according to Scerri, and Johnson cited Mike Ulaszek and O'Malley, whose goals-against average is down to 0.9 per game.

Though a victory was preferred, Johnson added the Rocks, 5-1-2 in the league and 9-2-2 overall, were happy to tie a team like the Spartans.

"Stevenson has that aura," he said. "They have some honor going; they don't want to be the first team to lose.

"Now if we had lost after having the goal disallowed, it would have been very disappointing," he said.

"I thought we'd beat them after playing Troy (a 3-1 victory last Thursday)," he added. "I had the feeling it was our time, but it wasn't. But the kids were confident they could."

Lions win 2 from Comets

The Plymouth-Canton Lions came up with two victories and a tie Sunday in games with the Westland Comets.

Jason Perko scored a touchdown and an extra point and Scott Soenen the other TD as the freshmen blanked Westland 13-0.

Scott Wilson passed to Dan Bonnett, and Pat Martinez and Mike Isbell ran for scores in the junior varsity's 18-7 defeat of the Comets.

The varsity game ended in a 6-6 deadlock with Boyd Rudy scoring the Lions' touchdown.

The Lions will be host to the Northville Colts at noon Sunday at Central Middle School. The theme for the homecoming celebration will be "Back to the 50s."

"When you're two goals up, I guess you can give away one of those," he added.

Tutor closed out the scoring with his third goal and an assist from Cortese. Canton outshot the Hawks 9-3 in the second half.

Brian L'Heureux was in goal for the Chiefs, and Morgan singled out his four fullbacks — Dan Nashlon, Tom Collins, Andy Shiner and Sobolak — for their play.

Canton plays Madison Heights Bishop Foley, ranked No. 3 in Class B, at home Friday.

● COED VOLLEYBALL

Plymouth and Canton Township parks and recreation departments are cosponsoring a 14-week, 16-team coed volleyball league beginning Nov. 13.

The fee is $140 per team plus $15 for each player who lives outside the Plymouth-Canton School District.

Returning teams should register Oct. 5-16, new teams Oct. 19-30 at the Canton or Plymouth recreation offices. Call 397-5110 or 455-6620 for information.

Games will be played Friday evenings at West Middle School.

● HOMECOMING

The Plymouth-Canton Lions will celebrate homecoming Sunday, Oct. 11, at Central Middle School when their freshman, junior varsity and varsity football teams play the Northville Colts.

This year's theme is "Back to the '50s," and a special tribute to that decade will include automobiles and music from that era. The homecoming events begin at noon.

● BADMINTON PLAY

Anyone interested in playing badminton is welcome to participate in Tuesday night competition at West Middle School, at the corner of Sheldon and Ann Arbor Trail.

The badminton players will meet every Tuesday 7:30-10 p.m. For further information, call Kit Henderson at 474-4992.

The standard of play varies from intermediate to advanced, according to Henderson, but beginners who have only previously played the game in their backyards are welcome. Coaching is available.

● SOCCER SIGN-UP

The Canton Soccerdome is accepting registration for its first season, which begins Nov. 1. Openings are available in youth, co-ed, adult men and adult women divisions.

The cost for the eight-game season is $575 per team ($325 for under-8 teams). Practice times will be available. For information, call 483-5624 between noon and 8 p.m.

● HOCKEY TOURNEY

The North American Junior Hockey League Invitational Tournament will be played Oct. 9-12 at Compuware-Oak Park Arena.

Competing te ams include Detroit Junior Red Wings, Bloomfield Jets, Redford Royals, Compuware Juniors, Chicago Young Americans, Mississauga Torspos, Oshawa Legionnaires and Windsor Bulldogs.

Tickets, good for an entire day, are $3 for adults, $2 for seniors and children. Four games will be played each of the first three days. The bronze- and gold-medal games are scheduled for the 12th. Call the arena at 543-2338 for schedule and information.

Steelers beat Romulus, win JV ballgame

The junior varsity rallied from an early deficit Sunday to give the Plymouth-Canton Steelers their only victory in games played with the Romulus Flyers.

The visitors scored in the opening minutes at Central Middle School, but Jason Krueger's 25-yard run set up his game-tying touchdown.

Steve Borke scored the winning TD as the Steeler JVs held on to beat Romulus 12-6.

The varsity teams battled to a 12-12 tie, and the Steeler freshmen lost 13-7.

Dan Burke scored two first-half TDs to give the varsity a 12-0 lead. The Flyers got on the scoreboard in the third quarter, and it looked as if the Steelers would hold on for the victory until Romulus added another score with two minutes left.

Ted Barker accounted for all of the Plymouth-Canton freshman team's points.

Transfer will miss most of season

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Cordell Robinson's senior basketball season may be over before it starts.

After transferring two weeks ago to Detroit Mackenzie from Redford Bishop Borgess High, the 6-foot-4 All-Observer and All-Central Division League guard learned he'll have to sit out one semester under Michigan High School Athletic Association transfer rules.

And because of the nearly four-week long Detroit teachers strike, Robinson is not eligible to start playing for Mackenzie until the first day of the second semester in Detroit Public Schools — Feb. 15, 1988.

"That's about when our city playoffs start," said Mackenzie coach Elbert Richmond. "The way it looks he'll miss quite a few games.

"But when he becomes eligible he'll fit right in. He played with us in the summer. He knows a lot of the guys because he only lives four blocks from Mackenzie. He's made a good adjustment."

Robinson helped lead Borgess last year to its best season ever, a 19-4 record and a Catholic League championship. He was among four starters slated to return this season for Borgess.

HE AVERAGED 16.7 points, 4.1 assists and 4.4 rebounds per game last season.

Borgess coach Mike Fusco declined comment on the transfer.

But Robinson's father James, a retired inspector from Chrysler, appears to have played a major role in the transfer move.

"There are some things that caused it (the transfer), but there are no hard feelings," said James Robinson. "Everything now is fine. It was hard for Cordell to accept it, but some better things came after he left.

"He's just going to have to sacrifice and deal with it (sitting out). He knows and I know now I did what's best for him."

Although James Robinson said the move was academic-related, he said "Cordell is a creative type of player who will be able to dish it off at Mackenzie."

"You know, he'll be able to do more of his own thing," Robinson said. "They could win the 'state' at Mackenzie. By going to a public school he'll be able to go to a better college."

JAMES ROBINSON said that letters coming into Borgess from such big-name schools as Syracuse and Providence "were pushed aside and not answered."

"The only places Cordell could go was a Bowling Green, Toledo or a junior college like Henry Ford," Robinson said. "After he left he started playing in the AAU tournaments and he started getting more letters."

Three other Borgess players have been made offers by Division I schools, including 6-foot-7 center Parrish Hickman, who reportedly has narrowed down his choices down to the University of Detroit, Michigan State, Xavier and Wisconsin. Hickman is expected to sign with one of the four next month.

Cordell Robinson, it appears, won't be signing in November. He'll have to wait until the April national letter-of-intent signing period under NCAA rules.

'The way it looks he'll miss quite a few games. But when he becomes eligible he'll fit right in. He played with us in the summer. He knows a lot of the guys because he only lives four blocks from Mackenzie. He's made a good adjustment.'

IT COSTS A LOT TO SAY YES TO SUICIDE PREVENTION.

BUT WE CAN'T AFFORD TO SAY NO.

An alarming number of teenagers find life too difficult to cope with. More and more of them are taking matters into their own hands. To prevent these suicides, the United Foundation Torch Drive supports 21 agencies in the tri-county area that offer help.

Last year, you helped fund suicide prevention services with $6.1 million. This year, the need has grown. Your contributions must help more teens in need of counseling, shelter and crisis intervention.

So please give more to the Torch Drive and help fund 153 health and human service agencies in the tri-county area. Agencies that not only help troubled teenagers, but also provide services to the handicapped, the elderly, the unemployed, the abused and much more. It costs a lot to say yes. But, when it comes to teenage suicide, we can't afford to say no. GIVE...FOR ALL THE GOOD YOU CAN DO.

Spartans play over mistakes in victory

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Bo Schembechler would have cringed at the number of turnovers committed by Farmington and Livonia Stevenson in Saturday's Lakes Division football game.

But he also would have been quite pleased with the visiting Spartans' ability to control the ball in the second half.

After capitalizing on one of six Falcon turnovers and having rid itself of fumbleitis, Stevenson's offense hogged the ball for the duration en route to a 20-0 victory.

"There's a rule in coaching football," Spartans coach Jack Reardon said. "When you get a punt blocked, fumble the ball and have interceptions, you've got to be very, very fortunate to win a ballgame."

The Spartans lost three first-half fumbles and had only 28 yards at halftime when the 49 gained on those plays was subtracted.

BUT FARMINGTON was unable to take advantage of those opportunities and, instead, gave it back to Stevenson each time. For the game, the Falcons had four passes intercepted and lost two fumbles.

It was a turnover that led to Stevenson's first touchdown. After the Spartans fumbled a pass at the Farmington 1, Nick Petouhoff intercepted and returned it 30-plus yards for the score.

It remained 7-0 through halftime as neither team's offense could sustain any drives.

"It was very disappointing after a great first half," Farmington coach Dave Catherman said. "We gave them one and played nice, inspiring football."

Before its offense got on track, the second half began the same way the first ended for Stevenson, 2-1 in the division and 3-2 overall.

THE SPARTANS had a punt blocked and a pass intercepted on their first two possessions of the third quarter. But then Stevenson's offense went to work, playing a decisive role in the time remaining.

As evidence, the Spartans ran 40 offensive plays to Farmington's 14 in the second half. Stevenson had 237 of its 314 yards in total offense in the second half. By contrast, the Falcons, with too few opportunities, had 23 of their 92 after halftime.

"The stats just tell the story," Catherman said. "They dominated the ball in the second half. Ball control — that's the name of the game.

"Coach Reardon always makes good halftime adjustments, and that's pretty obvious with their 200 yards in the second half."

After forcing a Falcon punt following their fourth and final turnover, the Spartans put together a 13-play, 62-yard march for a 13-0 lead.

EVEN 25 yards in penalties couldn't halt the drive. A clipping penalty put Stevenson back to the Farmington 29, but Joe Carter passed 24 yards to Mike Klassa to set up Petouhoff's second TD — a 1-yard plunge.

The Spartans moved the ball on their next possession, too, but three 15-yard penalties finally stopped the push. Stevenson, however, added a final TD on Rob Chanko's 36-yard run with 1:40 to play.

Considering the way his team played early, Reardon said he wasn't sure the issue was settled until late despite Farmington's offensive inability.

"Whenever we come here on a Saturday afternoon, we know we're going to be in a football game," he said. "I thought their defense did a very good job (early) against the run. We didn't move the ball on them real well."

Stevenson's problems were not the result of a letdown against the Falcons, 1-2 and 1-4, after an emotional win over Westland John Glenn the previous week, Reardon added.

"YOU DO worry about playing anybody after a game like last Friday," he said "Our kids were sky high, and I don't know if we'll ever get them back up there again. We certainly hope so."

Petouhoff, who intercepted two passes and recovered two fumbles, rushed 13 times for 88 yards, and Chanko had a game-high 119 yards on 23 carries. Carter was 3-of-9 passing for 68 yards.

Farmington's Dave Dunn managed 21 yards on 15 attempts, and quarterbacks Brad Campbell and Joe Johnston were 3-of-17 for 38 yards. Bill Lindbert had two fumble recoveries and one interception.

Images of a city

Friendship inspires 'Union Street Fresco'

By Brian Lysaght
staff writer

RICK AND Debby Zuccarini recall that they almost skipped out on the whole arrangement. They got the jitters and considered driving to California.

Instead they arrived at the Union Street tavern in Detroit at the appointed hour and began work as planned on a fresco mural. Artists and curious passersby dropped by the bar that first day.

"The first day was a panic," says Debby Zuccarini.

The following 12 days passed more smoothly as the husband-wife team finished the 7-by-18-foot fresco, he as technician, she as artist. They learned a great deal about technique along the way and were inspired to do more frescoes.

The Zuccazrinis' work, titled "Union Street Fresco," is a series of images of the city, some easily recognized, others more obscure: gray factories; the Big Dipper constellation, a guiding light of the Underground Railway; "The Lone Ranger" radio show, which originated from a studio a few blocks away on Woodward; Spot, the bar's dog-mascot. Swirling up, down and across the images is a stretch of familiar freeway.

RICK ZUCCARINI and the owners of the bar went to school together. A commercial painter by trade, he painted the building's interior for its new owners. They discussed how to give a Detroit look to the bar, which had a San Francisican air.

The Zuccarinis suggested a fresco and bar owners Tony Balsys and Greg Gedda agreed.

Balsys and Gedda offered a wall that looks out on Woodward Avenue in a room off the main section of the bar-restaurant. They are also planning an informal, unjudged gallery in the large room. The gallery is scheduled to open Oct. 24.

"We hope to find some good street artists, people who can't show their work anywhere else," said Rick Zuccarini.

HE APPLIED five coats of special lime plaster to the wall. The final two coats — the last coat is mixed finer than the others — were applied and the wall polished in the morning before Debby Zuccarini painted.

They divided the wall into 11 sections and painted one section each day. Timing is important in fresco. The wall must be properly prepared in order for paint to fuse with wall. The paints are a powdery natural pigment mixed with distilled water then ground to proper consistency.

Debby Zuccarini says she painted about six hours each day before the wall became too dry.

Fresco, they say, is difficult and time-consuming, but also rewarding.

"It's a long hard process," said Debby. "That's why it's not popular. People want immediate things."

FRESCO DATES back as far as 1500 B.C., and was most popular in the United States during the 1930s, when the federal Works Progress Administration commissioned artists to do fresco murals as part of building projects. Many Detroit area post offices built during that era feature frescos.

But the Zuccarinis had difficulty finding written material on fresco. And some of the writing they found was incorrect. Pigments were also difficult to obtain, they say.

They got help from Stephen Pope Dimitroff and Lucienne Bloch, two fresco artists who worked with Diego Rivera on "Detroit Industry" at the Detroit Institute of Arts 55 years ago.

The Zuccarinis, who became interested in fresco after hearing a Dimitroff-Bloch lecture in Detroit, telephoned their mentors when struggling.

The 7-by-18-foot Union Street Fresco features images of Detroit city as seen through eyes of a native artist.

"They were so supportive," said Debby. "They said the only thing we lacked was experience, and the only thing experience gave was confidence."

As a sidelight, the Zuccarinis have been teaching an art class for 7- to 13-year-olds at Oakland Community College, where Debby works, for four years. The idea, they say, is to teach youngsters the importance of creative thought.

The Union Street, 4145 Woodward, will host an opening for the fresco and gallery Saturday, Oct. 24, beginning at 5 p.m. Phone the tavern at 831-3965.

'Detroit' gets a going-over

By Brian Lysaght
staff writer

She is 78, and she bounds up stairs at the Detroit Institute of Arts two at a time.

He is 77, and says simply fresco is fun.

This husband-wife artist team was hired by the museum to clean Diego Rivera's "Detroit Industry," a fresco they helped create 55 years ago.

In the meantime, they lectured, gave interviews, talked of art and recalled their days with Rivera. They also refired the interest of some Detroit area artists in the form of fresco.

Bloch and Dimitroff used sponges dipped in buckets of tap water to clean the fresco. Dimitroff said the Kresge Court was at one time the only room in the museum for smokers, and sulfur from the smoke was culprit for most of the grime.

RIVERA PAINTED Dimitroff and Bloch in the Detroit mural. He often painted his helpers.

The mural itself is a tribute to workers, and perhaps a criticism of industrial society.

"He believed the machine controls us, not the other way around," Dimitroff said of the master Mexican muralist. "It's true. Look at the bomb. That's an example."

Dimitroff and Bloch take turns telling stories of the Detroit days of Rivera and Freda Kohl, the artist and wife of Rivera. Both are planning to write their memoirs. Dimitroff wrote a 31-page pamphlet in 1986 titled, "Apprentice to Diego Rivera in Detroit."

Dimitroff said Rivera liked to tell a story, sometimes stretching the truth where necessary. Dimitroff and Bloch would look to Kohl to determine the accuracy of the muralist's stories. If the story was true, she would nod, if untrue she would blink.

Pope and Dimitroff found two pepper seeds stuck to the wall high above the ground as they were cleaning. They recalled that Rivera often ate on the scaffolding as he painted and loved peppers.

POPE WAS born in Switzerland and met Rivera in New York. She is a painter and sculptor and met Dimitroff in New York. The pair have painted 55 murals, including 18 frescos. On the frescos, he prepares the walls that Pope paints, just as he did with Rivera. Dimitroff was born in Bulgaria but grew up in Flint and worked for a time in an auto factory.

Of their work, he said: "We do this because it's a lot of fun. When we get a fresco, it's play."

They were invited to teach and create a fresco at California college this month. Their friends in Detroit are trying to organize a show or fresco commission for the pair here in Detroit.

Writers raise their 'Voices'

Mona Grigg

I'M EXCITED about a new book — more excited than usual, if that's possible. I can get pretty excited about books.

But this book, "Voices on Writing Fiction" (DWW Press, $9.95 softbound), is a publication from Detroit Women Writers. It is authored by 28 members of the group — and here's the kicker — I'm one of them. (And do I think it's great? Of course, I do. But you don't have to take my word for it. See below.)

It's no secret that I am also president of DWW. I'll shout it from the rooftops. I'm so proud of that group. The range, the skills, the talents of the 130 professional writers who make up this organization constantly amazes me — even after five years in their company.

But beyond the obvious talents lies warmth and generosity in their dedication to quality writing — and nowhere is it more apparent than in the voluntary outreach programs they offer year after year through conferences, workshops and readings.

MORE THAN TWO years in the making, the book came about after a DWW-co-sponsored writer's conference at Oakland University. (This year's conference, Oct. 16-17, marks the 26th year for the DWW-Oakland event. Thirty-three writers, editors and agents will be on hand to speak at workshops and labs. Call the Continuing Education Department at 370-3120 for information.) The staffers found each year more and more conferees wanted transcripts or some written information on what they had just heard. After some brainstorming, the idea for "Voices" came about.

The book is divided in four sections.

- The Dream (where to get ideas, how to find the time, networking, collaborating, researching).
- The Choice (writing for children, young adults, stage, television, etc.).
- The Method (structure, character development, description, etc.).
- The Reality (marketing, publishing, grant-writing, etc.).

You might recognize some of the authors' names: Elinor K. Rose, Iris Sanderson Jones, Jeanne Duran, Jo Wunsch, Kathleen Ripley Leo, Margaret Hillert, Julia Grice, Lucille DeView, Ruth Ryan Langan, Cynthia King and many more who bring their own voices, suggest their own methods for beginners and advanced writers alike.

Frank Angelo, former Free Press managing editor and columnist, and currently president of the Cranbrook Writers Guild, says about "Voices:"

"It's an important book, tightly written by some of the best writers in the area, and should be tremendously helpful to any who aspires to a writing career. (Readers) can profit by example of the work itself, but more than that, each article contains important guidelines to good writing."

Come December, "Voices" will be listed as a Writer's Digest Book Club selection. It's available now at several area bookstores or by mail through the Friends of the Detroit Public Library, 5201 Woodward Avenue, Detroit 48202. Write "Book Order" on the evelope and include a $1 for postage.

Many of the authors will be at Borders Book Store, 13 Mile and Southfield in Birmingham, from 5:30 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 11. Come and meet them.

ERMA BOMBECK comes to Orchestra Hall at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 20 courtesy of the Cranbrook Writers Guild. Bombeck's latest book is "Family — The Ties that Bind — and Gag." Tickets are $15. Call Orchestra Hall, 833-3700.

The 31st Book and Author Luncheon, sponsored by the Detroit News and the Metro Detroit Book and Author Society, is slated for Monday, Oct. 19 in Fairlane Manor in Dearborn. The four authors will be George V. Higgins author of "The Friends of Eddie Coyle," with his latest book, "Outlaws"; Stephen Birmingham ("Our Crowd"), with "America's Secret Aristocracy"; Josephine Humphreys ("Dreams of Sleep") with her acclaimed novel, "Rich in Love"; and Dr. Paul Pearsall, director of the Problems of Daily Living Clinic at Sinai Hospital, with his book, "Super Marital Sex." Cash bar at 11 a.m., lunch at noon. Tickets are $14. Book and Author Luncheon, The Detroit News, P.O. Box 2318, Detroit 48231. Order by Monday, Oct. 12 and include a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Friends of the Southfield Public Library Book Sale take place in the Southfield Civic Center Tuesday-Thursday, Oct. 20-22. The first two days from 9:30 a.m. to 8:30 p.m., until 2 p.m. on the last day. Call 354-1000 for more information.

AT THE U-M, Ann Arbor, 4 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 13, Robert Kelly reads poetry in the Rackham East Conference Room.

At 4 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 15, Don Belton reads fiction in the Hopwood Room, 1006 Angell Hall.

condo queries

Robert M. Meisner

Q. My husband and I are in the middle of a divorce and I have possession of the unit. My husband refuses to acknowledge that fact and brings friends over who are disruptive and I have received complaints from the neighbors. What can I do?

A. You should first ascertain whether or not there is anything in the divorce papers by way of a restraining order or injunction precluding your husband from occupying or visiting the condominium unit. You should also determine whether or not an injunction is in order against your husband from interfering with your peaceful enjoyment of the premises and otherwise violating the condominium documents. No doubt the condominium association will be seeking recourse against your husband and perhaps you in the event that this problem is not corrected. Consult with your divorce lawyer on this matter as soon as possible.

Q. I am interested in buying a condominium that is used and believe that I should have the unit inspected. The seller is balking as he says that he is not prepared to make any repairs. Do you have an opinion?

A. In buying a condominium, since you are buying not only the interior of the unit but an individual interest in the common areas, you should be concerned about the physical condition, not only of the interior of your unit, but of all the common areas of the association since you are indirectly obligated to support the maintenance and or repair of the common areas by paying dues to the condominium association.

If your seller is unwilling to let you inspect the unit, I would be concerned about that fact, obviously, and insist upon a thorough inspection of your unit as well as the common areas as a condition to the purchase.

G-A Day, Ja!

It was quiet, but wait until next year

By C.L. Rugenstein
special writer

Tuesday marked the first German-American Day.

Italians have Columbus Day, the Irish have St. Patrick's. Now the first-ever German-American Day, recognizing contributions made to American life and culture by Americans of German descent, has come to pass.

It was Tuesday, but while the day was celebrated by community leaders and politicians locally at the Bavarian Chateau, (formerly the German-American Cultural Center), the day probably passed unmarked for many German-Americans.

Part of the reason for that is its timing. Passing of the joint resolution in August caught Michigan's German community off guard.

"Many of the clubs were on hiatus," explained Knut Beth, publisher-editor of Michigan's second oldest newspaper, the Detroiter Abend-Post. "It takes time to put together a program and many people were out of town then."

Also, for the moment, German-American Day is a one-time event. Backers of the resolution, including U. S. Rep. Tom Luken, D-Ohio, and U.S. Senators Richard Lugar, R-Ind, and Donald Riegle, D-Mich., have to take the proposal back to Congress and have it proclaimed an annual event.

There are other reasons, however, that many Americans of German descent failed to mark the day. The ease with which many German immigrants assimilated to American life is one of them.

"A LOT OF people, especially the Germans, came from Europe because they wanted to start a new life," Beth said. "And the Germans never had a problem with the language; they learned English very fast, and therefore spread out."

"German-Americans are not joiners, not ethnically minded like the Italians or Polish," added Ingrid Grotlow of the Abend-Post's circulation department. "They seem to like to blend into the woodwork, to be one of many."

Part of that desire for anonymity is a direct result of two world wars, Beth said.

"Between the wars I have heard that a lot of Detroit's judges and politicians were German-Americans," he said. "But with World War II, that all changed. Germans were the enemy again."

They felt that they shouldn't be involved in politics, Beth explained, so they held back.

The trend continues to the present, according to Beth. There is much representation of German-American young people in the fields of business and education, but very few future Lukens, Riegles and Gerhard Mennen Williamses.

Michigan's German heritage is well representated in the auto industry by men like the late Walter Reuther and UAW president Owen Bieber.

Other names of German origin stand out in Michigan's history.

For his contributions to the civil and political life of the city as well as his work in medicine, Dr. Hermann Kiefer has a hospital named in his honor. Few people realize that Hamtramck, heart of Detroit's Polish community, was named after a German. The parents of Col. John Francis Hamtramck, first governor of Hamtramck in 1812, hailed from Treves in the Rhineland.

Frankenmuth, one of Michigan's favorite tourist attractions noted for its German heritage, was founded in 1848 by German missionaries to the Chippewa Indians.

THE FIRST GERMAN settler to Michigan did not arrive willingly, however. Michael Yax came here via Kentucky as an Indian captive in 1720 and was ransomed by the French commander of Detroit. His family was granted land in what is now the Grosse Pointes where many Yax descendants remained into the 1960s.

But German immigration seemed to peak at the turn of this century and then begin to dwindle. Beth cites this as another factor in the diminished interest in their heritage by young German-Americans.

"The people are dying away and there are no more coming to replace them," Beth said. Most of the young people become Americanized quickly like their predecessors and lose interest in the German cultural community.

Clubs like Detroit's second largest German Club, Carpathia, try to counter this with programs geared to their youth. Folk dance groups, soccer clubs and choirs are some activities they offer.

Beth said plans are being developed to encourage more young Americans of German descent to consider law and politics as a profession. The German-American Cultural Center contributes to a student exchange program between Wayne State University and the University of Munich.

But should the day become an annual occurrence after this year, the German community will be ready for it, Beth promised.

After all, German-Americans are no different from any other ethnic group when it comes to enjoying a party — especially when it's in their honor.

Workshop schedule announced by VAAL

Six workshops will be offered to area artists by the Visual Arts Association of Livonia beginning this weekend and as late as Nov. 7.

"Color Me Fall," conducted by noted watercolorist Edee Joppich, will be held Saturday "on location" from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Artists may work in oil, watercolor, acrylic, pastel or make sketches and notes for studio painting this winter. Students are asked to bring a camera, if possible, and a picnic lunch.

A two-day workshop on watercolor and collage, "Flowers Plus," will be conducted by Joppich 7-10 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 29, and from 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 31.

Her "wet in wet" flower workshops have been a popular annual event. This fall, she will combine collage with watercolor techniques to create unique approaches to a popular subject.

Other workshops are "Mixed Water Media" on Saturdays Oct. 17 and 24; "Black and White," designed to explore a variety of techniques in charcoal, graphite pencil and pen and ink, on Fridays Oct. 23 and 30 and Fridays Nov. 6 and 13; "Watercolor Workshop," on Saturdays Nov. 7 and 14; "Realistic Still Life in Watercolor," on Wednesdays, Nov. 4 and 11.

Indoor classes are held at Jefferson Center, Room 24, 9501 Henry Ruff Road, Livonia, and taught by VAAL faculty members. For registration information, call Shirley Ceasar, 421-3207 or Marge Mase, 464-0772.

Miniature makers mark 'Dream' week

"Come Dream with Us" is the theme of the first National Dollhouse and Miniature Week, Oct. 10-17. The Miniature Makers' Workshop, 4515 N. Woodward, Royal Oak, will be celebrating all week and is hosting the annual Wee Bees' Miniature Show Oct. 16-18. Hours are 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and noon to 4 on Sunday.

Included in the exhibition are dollhouses, furnished with scaled miniatures, room boxes with both contemporary and traditional themes, collectible miniatures, hand crafted by recognized artists and dolls made to scale.

An imaginative room setting, in which the artist, Betsie Robinson of Birmingham, has placed hand sculpted, dressed and painted clowns; a collection of miniature horses, with intricately tooled leather bridles, pulling sleighs or carriages; and an old time miniature traveling puppet theater are among the treasures on display.

Twelve-year-old Melissa Welther has several pieces of needlepoint and plastic canvas furniture she made in the show. Her mother, Sue, is a charter member of the Wee Bees.

The Wee Bees, a local chapter of N.A.M.E. (National Association of Miniature Enthusiasts), is a non-profit organization. The admission charge is $1.50.

A portion of the money collected will go to the club's 1987 philanthropic endeavor, the Adam Walsh Fund. In addition, the Wee Bees offer their services to various museums and institutions, using their expertise to refurbish dollhouses and displays. For information, call 549-0633.

IMPROVEMENT CAN BE COSTLY

You can make a million mistakes trying to sell your own home. And one of them is making the wrong improvements. Many times, an expensive addition or repair can be the kind of thing that'll cost you far more than you get back.

True, the house should present a favorable appearance - mowed lawn, trimmed shrubs, and no obvious indications of neglect, but it's rare when a large financial undertaking will bring more than its cost in the final selling price.

There is always the financial risk of miscalculation too. Home repair costs frequently end up a lot higher than originally anticipated. You may end up with a faster sale and less inconvenience if you lower the selling price an equivalent amount.

Instead of guessing as to how much, if any, repair work, to undertake, see a Realtor. He can tell you what to do to make your home more salable. And what not to do so you won't lose money.

Keep mums sheltered at night

Marty Figley, O&E garden writer, makes her appearance today and will be a regular feature.

YOU ARE invited to a tea with an English country theme 12:30-2:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 16 at the First United Methodist Church, 1589 W. Maple, Birmingham.

Kay McNaul, author, lecturer and co-founder of the Kingwood Herb Society in Mansfield, Ohio, will be the speaker. Several varieties of sandwiches, condiments and desserts will be served.

The tea is being sponsored by The Southern Michigan Unit of The Herb Society of America. The unit planned, planted and maintains the formal and kitchen herb gardens at Cranbrook and the herb garden at the Moross House in Detroit. It also supports a scholarship fund.

The culinary portion of the National Herb Garden in Washington, D.C., was donated by this unit. The National Herb Garden in the Washington Arboretum is a must place to visit when you are in the area.

To reserve a place at the tea table, call 739-0435 or 645-0895. Donation is $6.

Come and introduce yourself to me — I like to meet our column readers.

Several weeks ago I attended my first Garden Writers Association of America annual meeting in Akron, Ohio. One of the many gardens visited was Kingwood. It is a lovely spot and well worth a stop when you are traveling in Ohio. The gardens and ponds are beautiful and serene. Many varieties of ducks and waterfowl make their home at Kingwood and are fun to watch.

Yoder Brothers, Inc., Barberton, Ohio, was another fascinating stop on the itinerary. The corporate headquarters is housed in a converted 75-year-old dairy barn on the former estate of O.C. Barber.

Fifty handmade quilts hang from the rafters and walls to add to the ambiance and warmth to the home of the world's largest scientific flowering and foliage plant producers. What a place to have an office.

We were privileged to see new varieties of hibiscus and garden mums which are constantly being developed. Look for them when you visit a garden center. We learned that hibiscus can be grown indoors as well as out. More about this lovely plant later.

Mums are now showing a prolific bloom in our gardens. To ensure continuous bloom until a hard frost appears to finish them off, a shelter of plastic, burlap, heavy cloth or thick paper may save the plant from early frost damage.

These shelters should be erected on sticks or poles as canopies or tents, a few inches above the flowers so that the material doesn't actually touch the blooms. If it touches the blooms, it acts as a frost conductor rather than an insulator. Drape the covers all the way to the ground and remove them in the morning.

If you have enjoyed a mum in a plastic pot and wish to plant it in your garden, do so at least a month before the first hard frost in a sunny, well-drained location. Water consistently from below. A soluble fertilizer applied ½ solution now is recommended. Dead-head flowers for continuous bloom.

After the mums are killed back, clip them to 4-5 inches. After the ground is frozen apply a straw, oak leaf, pine needle mulch or use pine bows. In the spring, after the second year of bloom, when the new plants are 4-6 inches out of the ground, lift and divide.

Spring planting of mums is a good way to ensure healthy, flowering plants for the following fall. A general purpose garden fertilizer, 5-10-5, is recommended at the time of planting ... about a tablespoon per plant is sufficient.

70 percent of homes to have VCPs by 1990

AP — There is an old saying that one picture is worth a thousand words. Perhaps that's why it is projected that 70 percent of American households will be equipped with videocassette players by 1990.

An estimated 40 percent of American homes are equipped with video players now.

Interest in video as a means of imparting decorating information already has surfaced.

Beyond the building how-tos which have been around for some time, we have been seeing more videos that have to do with decorating and remodeling recently," says Ellen Frankel, editor of 1001 Home Ideas.

In November, the magazine will inaugurate a column to review these videos.

"I see this as a trend partly because people are looking to television for all their information," the editor says. However, a special advantage of the format in decorating and bulding how-tos is the opportunity to observe a skilled individual's work. "It can be very helpful to have a pro show you the tricks of the trade," she says.

Many videos are accompanied with instruction sheets or booklets to make them more useful, she adds. This is the case with the recently released "Renovating: A Designer's View." The half-hour program released in June was created by Alex Pensis, former design director of Bloomingdale's and Cathy Crane, author of several decorating books.

The program follows Pensis room-by-room and step-by-step as he turns his own formerly nondescript weekend beach house into an attractive home.

One 15-minute videotape presentation with step-by-step instructions on hanging wallcoverings is available on loan from retailers who handle Easy Wallcoverings.

Once a year we ask, because every day people need.

There is even a private lending library. All on over 130 incomparable private acres for estate-like living.

Unquestionably the standard for beauty and luxury. For their size, design and breathtaking setting, YOU MUST SEE the 1, 2 and 3 bedroom terrace homes of ALDINGBROOKE.

GRAND OPENING

The New Breed

"I never saw anything like it. Handsome, distinctive buildings on terraced land, full of intriguing angles and architectural detail. A complete change from that old 'row-house' look.

Every apartment has its own private entrance, unusual layout, and surprising extras like a washer and dryer, vertical blinds, full kitchen with dishwasher, and plenty of closet and storage space.

Some even have cathedral ceilings, oversize patio, and a large eat-in kitchen.

I look out onto lush woods and ponds . . . a jogging path . . . swimming . . . tennis . . . and a comfortable clubhouse with exercise and aerobic rooms.

It's not just a place to live, it's a place I love coming home to. You'll see what I mean."
