District sees red ink for 2004

The Plymouth-Canton school board passed the 2001-02 fiscal year budget Tuesday night, projecting the district will have a million dollars more in revenue than expenditures, and increasing the district's fund balance to more than $10 million.

While the financial projection for next year is positive, it's the outlook for the three subsequent years that's cause for concern among board members.

During the 2002-03 budget year, when new Plymouth High School is expected to open, expenditures are projected to exceed revenues by more than $2.1 million. Figures by the administration indicate a $3.6 million budget deficit in 2003-04, with another $5.3 million shortfall in 2004-05.

Fund balance projections for the same periods show the $10 million in total excess revenues dropping to $7.8 million, then $4.1 million, and finally a deficit of more than $1.1 million, throwing the district into red ink.

The figures don't include the $6.1

One of the items in next year's fiscal budget, passed by the Plymouth-Canton Board of Education, is a spending increase of $22,000 for school elections, as requested by the superintendent's office.

The description of the $41,000 item on page 20: "Projecting for two elections in 2001-02 fiscal year ... "

Generally, the school district has one annual election, the second Monday in June, to elect school board members.

Superintendent Kathleen Booher said the additional money could be used for a ballot proposal to decide if school buildings should be renovated, new buildings constructed and school buses purchased.

Fireman battling township to get job back

BY KURT KUBAN
STAFF WRITER
kkuban@oe.homecomm.net

An arbitrator is expected to be named this week to determine if the May firing of Plymouth Township firefighter and Flat Rock City Council member Ricky Tefend was justified.

Township officials fired the 41-year-old Flat Rock resident May 9 for allegedly working a second job at the same time he was collecting worker's compensation for an injury he sustained fighting a fire late last year.

The Plymouth Community Firefighters Association disagreed with the decision, and has filed for state arbitration, in hopes an arbitrator will reinstate Tefend.

According to Plymouth Township Supervisor Steve Mann, officials learned of Tefend's other job from the company that provides the township's disability insurance. The company conducted a video surveillance of Tefend while he worked at Tefend's Lake & Trail Powersports, a store he owns in Erie, Michigan.

Mann said the video shows Tefend physically moving around equipment, such as personal watercraft. Armed with that evidence, he said the decision to fire Tefend was easy, despite the possibility he might be reinstated.

"A lot of the firefighters have second jobs. The problem here is he was working a second job while he said he was hurt and couldn't work for us," Mann said.

"We knew when we fired him there was the possibility an arbitrator might reinstate him, but what else can we do? We weren't going to sit there and watch this guy work another job, watch it on the video, and just let it go."

Tefend, who is in his first term on the Flat Rock City Council, has a copy of the video tape, but has a very different opinion about what it shows and why he was fired.

"There's nothing on the video. I wasn't doing anything that I shouldn't have been. I didn't deserve to be fired. I have no doubts I will get my job back," he said.

Tefend, who was hired in August 1992,

Noontime music concerts return next week

BY TONY BRUSCATO

Wednesday resumes another Plymouth tradition ... Music in the Park ... which draws hundreds of kids, young and old, to Kellogg Park through August.

Some of the old favorites, like Marc Thomas & Max the Moose along with Guy Lewis' Chautauqua Express, will be back this year in noon concerts organized by the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

"The crowds are getting bigger, and not just for the favorites," said Jennifer Tobin, director of the arts council. "I think when families gather in the park, they have a sense of community while socializing in an informal setting."

IN KELLOGG PARK

Music in the Park has been around for nearly 20 years, with the last seven directed by PCAC volunteer and board member Debbie Madonna.

"People are looking for this type of entertainment for their families," said Madonna. "Mark and Guy have helped us grow over the years as they have a very loyal following. They perform twice a year, every year."

The crowds have grown in size, from approximately 300 seven years ago to more than a thousand for some of the most recent concerts.

Police arrest men in Hines Park for lewd conduct

Plymouth Township police officers, working undercover, arrested two men June 9 at Hines Park for alleged improper conduct.

The arrests were made at Gunsolly Mills, a parking area just north of Plymouth Road known "for narcotic use and lewd sexual conduct," according to the report. The two men were arrested in separate incidents.

At 5:45 p.m., a 59-year-old white male allegedly asked the plain clothes officer to go into a wooded area with him. Once there, he reportedly exposed himself and began to masturbate. He was arrested and his vehicle was impounded.

About an hour later, a 36-year-old Plymouth man approached the same officer, who was standing in the wooded area. After a brief conversation, the man similarly exposed himself and began to masturbate. He was arrested and his vehicle was impounded.

Teens in stolen car lead police on chase

While driving a stolen Ford Aerostar Monday evening, three teenagers led a Plymouth Township police officer on a high-speed chase that ended in the Trailwood subdivision shortly after 8 p.m.

The three teens – a 16-year-old female from Plymouth, a 16-year-old male from Wayne, and a 15-year-old Detroit male – face charges of fleeing and eluding and possessing stolen property worth more than $100. In addition, the Wayne resident, who was driving the vehicle, was charged with possession of narcotic paraphernalia.

According to police reports, an officer attempted to pull over the 1990 Aerostar near the intersection of Sheldon and Ann Arbor Road after noticing the passenger wasn't wearing a seatbelt. As the officer tried to approach the car, it sped up and fled.

According to the report, the teens were driving at speeds up to 60 m.p.h. and running stop signs through the Trailwood subdivision. At one point on Elliot Court, the driver allegedly jumped out of the vehicle as it was traveling about 20 m.p.h., and he skidded on the pavement face down for about 15 feet.

The officer continued to pursue the car, and a minor collision occurred between the two vehicles. With the Aerostar stopped, the officer ordered the two remaining occupants out at gunpoint and arrested them.

The department's K-9 unit arrived at the scene, and the dog tracked down the driver, who was hiding in a tree in a nearby backyard. When he was arrested, officers allegedly found a small container on him containing what appeared to be marijuana residue.

Back hoe stolen

The manager of a Clare-based construction company reported a stolen back hoe to township police.

According to the report, the yellow Caterpillar machine, worth more than $47,000, was taken sometime between June 2 and June 7 from an industrial complex on the 13000 block of Eckles. Along with the back hoe, a bucket and compactor were also stolen.

Police have no suspects or witnesses in the case.

Music from page A1

"We've found that about 30 percent of our crowds come from the Plymouth area, and 50 percent from Canton," she said. "The rest come from other communities around Plymouth."

The concerts are sponsored by Plymouth Township businessman Carl Schultz, who Madonna said "just wants to do something for the community."

This summer's Music in the Park 2001 series includes"

- June 20 & Aug. 22 Marc Thomas & Max the Moose.
- June 27 & Aug. 15 Guy Lewis' Chautauqua Express.
- July 11 Matt Watroba & Robert Jones.
- July 19 Josh White Jr.
- July 26 Liberty Brass Quintet of the Plymouth Symphony.
- Aug. 1 The Music Lady, Beverly Meyer.
- Aug. 8 Laz Slomovits of "Gemini."

All concerts begin at noon in Kellogg Park. In case of rain, the events are held under The Gathering.

Stewart will also speak on Wednesday, June 21 at 1:30 p.m. to 600 members of Boys' State on the front steps of the capitol. Stewart himself attended Boys State in 1966. CAN FEET CAUSE BACK PROBLEMS?

If you're having a problem with your back, it might surprise you to learn that poor foot function may be causing it. Poor foot function can also be the culprit in hip pain, stiff neck, knee problems and other aggravations.

Sometimes an abnormal shortening of the one leg develops. This can happen when one of your feet flattens out, dropping the ankle close to the ground. You can imagine what this does to the rest of your body. It throws it out of kilter.

The only way to be sure your feet are functioning properly is to have them examined by your podiatrist.

Plymouth dads are 'best, special, amazing, awesome'

woods. My dad has done many things for me. He takes me to skate early in the morning and drives my sister and me to school. My daddy likes to work in the outdoors. Last year he planted a garden with my mom full of tasty tomatoes, herbs, and squash. My dad is a nice guy and fun to be with. Even when my dad goes (which probably won't be for a while) I'll always remember his warm smile and cheerful way he greeted me every morning and the way he used to tuck me in bed at night. I love you, dad, and thanks for everything.

It's pretty amazing to have a father that has truly seen you through your journey of life. Our dad has been our teacher, basketball coach, our role model, and most importantly a loving father who has provided us with guidance from the time we were born. Whether it was a dance recital, sporting event, or school function, our dad never missed a moment of our childhood. This is what makes him so very special. Over the years he has given us many gifts, yet the two we will treasure forever are his time and his love. We can't begin to thank him enough for all of the wonderful family memories that will reside in our hearts forever. We can only hope that one day we will be able to bring as much joy to our children's lives as he has brought to ours. Happy Father's Day Dad!

Shelly & Ryan Williams

Our Daddy! We just want to say that our dad is the best dad in the whole world. We know that everyone says that about their dad, but it's true with our dad. How do we begin to write about how lucky we are to have him. Here are some of the things he does for us that make him so special: reads endless bedtime stories, helps us with our homework, trips to the doctor, dentist, soccer games, baseball games, piano lessons, chess lessons & tournaments, teaches us to fly fish, trips to the park to fly our kites, going to the movies and buying lots of candy and popcorn, acting like a kid and being really silly just to make us laugh. Our dad is always there for us. He is caring and always listens to us when we have something to say. That's why he is so special to us. Happy Father's Day Daddy! We love you!

Sarah & John Bills
Plymouth

Our dad, Michael Gregg, is the best dad because whenever we want him to play soccer or hockey, he never says no even if he is tired. He takes the challenge in soccer or hockey to beat 5 of us neighborhood kids. He also never misses any of our soccer games. That is why our dad is the best dad in the world!

Dexter & Andrew Gregg
Plymouth

My dad's name is Timothy Samuel Greenhalge. He is the best dad because he takes me places like UP North, to the zoo. He practices soccer with me. He takes me on bike rides and he's nice. He jokes me and teases me. He makes me stuff.

John T. Greenhalge

I know I have the best father and it happens to be my mother. I was 1 1/2 years old when my father left. This was in 1943. My mother had just come from Newfoundland at 17 and had no real family here in the USA. She worked as a maid, housekeeper, babysitter, crystal cutter in a factory and sales clerk in the 5 & 10 store, all my life. She was on her feet from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the store. But still found time to love and teach us right from wrong. Today I see children of single parents and they blame their problems on their upbringing. I credit my mom with mine and would hope I'd never shame her in anything I'd do. She lives in Florida today at 88 and keeps her own home. I've told her that I want to live to be 100 and when Willard Scott calls me for my birthday that she'll be there to answer the phone. Thank you for reading this letter and for giving my mother consideration as the Father of the Year.

John T. Farley
Plymouth

Our dad is the best because, he loves us very much and he cooks breakfast for us, and takes us to the park for picnics. He also plays Pokemon and Sorry with us. He built us a big swing set in our backyard. We love him very, very much.

Brittany and Courtney Galliers
Plymouth

My daddy is the best because I can trust him. He is always there to catch me and keep me safe. I am my dad's #1 priority. I feel loved because he spends his time with me. We play hide and seek, do art projects, go to the park, swim and he lets me take a shower instead of a bath. I can rely upon my daddy's love, it is unconditional and always will be.

Micala Marie Tafelski
Plymouth

I think my dad is the best because he was in the army in Georgia and we realy didn't get to see him. So he left the army and came back to michigan so he could see us more. I also think my dads the best because when were with him he trys to make our day the best. Now that hes in michigan he takes me to the daddy daughter dance and he watches me do my dance recital and he cheers me on at baseball. Those are the reasons why my dads the best but most of all why my dads the best because he loves me and I love him.

My dad is nice. He's sweet like sugar and spice. When I'm sick in bed or feel sore by the head, he is there by my side, then gives me a piggy back ride. He takes me out to breakfast, dinner and lunch and sometimes even brunch. Dad takes me to ski, just him and me. We cherish our times together, I hope forever. We take walks in the park, while watching squirrels race up some bark. To school he drives us, so we don't have to take a bus. When I look at dad, what I see is that he loves me. Friendship in our gaze, passing through the days. He takes us to the movies, then buys us some smoothies. Till the days of his life end, he'll always be my friend.

Valerie Stacey
Plymouth

My dad is special. He comes to my baseball games, sometimes straight from the airport after long international business trips. He tells me how important I am to him and that he cares about me! I really trust him! We talk together before I go to sleep. We do projects together. When dad and I go shopping he buys my mom the best flowers. He hugs her a lot and cares for all of us.

Christopher Kordick

My Father, The Hero
His faith in me makes him the best dad ever. Unquestionably, I can always go to him for advice, support, or encouragement and I am never afraid to. Certainly, I hate when my dad and I get into arguments, but I like the afterwards. He always tickles me to death, and even though I tell him that I hate when he does it, I really like it. Most of all, I love when he yells at me for putting my own self down when I am in a bad mood. It really shows me how important I must be and how much I mean to him. My dad is the best dad ever because he never gives up on me. He never has, and I know he never will.

Our dad's awesome! He's a lot of fun and always spends time with our family when he's not working. He sends us to a Catholic school because he wants us to be a good Christian. We like to go to the Fireside Inn where we Jet Ski, fish, play Frisbee Golf, tennis, and go to the Dairy Queen. Our dad works hard so the five of us go to college. We love our dad because he's special.

Save Central

Meeting shows emotions are running high over old school

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

"Save Central Middle School" was the impassioned plea of most who spoke at a town hall meeting organized by Plymouth City Commissioner David Byers Thursday night at the Plymouth District Library.

Byers, who said he plans to "carry the torch" of those who want to save the school, told nearly 70 in attendance that "Central Middle School property should be retained by the school district and permanently held for recreation and educational purposes."

The future of Central became an issue when Plymouth-Canton Schools unveiled a facilities report which indicated it will cost $17 million to refurbish the 85-year-old building and $22 million to replace it. While the school district hasn't made any decisions concerning its infrastructure, emotions are running high by those who are fearful the school will be demolished and condominiums put in its place.

"It gives kids character, and it has character," said Central teacher Arlene DeForest. "A new school isn't always better."

Earl Harrington, who taught for more than three decades at Central, said "It doesn't look pretty on the outside, but it's fantastic inside."

Lolah Schueder, who has lived in Plymouth for 80 years, is a 1935 graduate of the old Plymouth High School at the site and has three children who attended Central, wants the school to remain standing.

"How little green we have in Plymouth," she said. "Some officials feel we need tax dollars. I don't think we do."

Among Byers' critics in attendance was Commissioner Sean FitzGerald, who handed out packets that called Byers' "a campaign rally disguised as a town hall meeting" and explained "the real facts about Central Middle School." FitzGerald said the city planning commission is studying Central "to determine whether the existing land use master plan for that property is appropriate for current and potential land uses."

Byers said he'll take the comments, which were registered by a court reporter, to the school district and form a committee to take the next step.

"The goal is to reserve a seat at the table of the school board when a decision is made," he said.

The start of the meeting was contentious as Byers, FitzGerald and Jerry Vorva became involved in a shouting match. However, when residents threatened to leave, Byers regained control of his meeting, which then remained civil and to the point through the end.

Senators focus on cost overruns in 1994 airport contract

BY MIKE MALOTT
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

Senators honed in on one of the most questionable contracts found during the state Auditor General's two-year review of Detroit Metro Airport in the opening session of a new committee charged with the task of looking at airport finances Wednesday, June 13.

That contract, an $11 million agreement with American International Inc. for installation of new airfield lighting and signage back in 1994, caught the eye of lawmakers because of $8.8 million in cost overruns and because county commissioners were not asked to approve those extra costs.

Originally estimated at $21 million, the project was awarded for just over $11 million, to be done in 570 days. Overruns brought the price back up to $19.8 million, and although the airport attributed overruns to "acceleration" of the contract, it allowed an extra 288 days for completion.

FAA mandates

Airport director Lester Robinson explained that, while mandated by the Federal Aviation Administration, the FAA had not completed setting rules for airport lighting. Then, he said, the FAA rejected a deadline extension for Metro signage. The result was that the contract had to be split, portions accelerated and others delayed, causing the entire program to be re-engineered. Metro was not the only major airport to get caught in the trap, he said.

Shouldn't someone have sent the cost overruns to the county board of commissioners for review and approval? Sen. Leon Stille, R-Spring Lake, asked.

"It's hard for me to understand how $8 million in cost overruns can be assumed to be authorized," he said.

That was not the process in 1994, Robinson explained, although he has only recently become the director. At the time, overruns were assumed to be approved if the project was included in the facility's capital improvement program, which the county board did review and approve.

More questions

Those are the kinds of questions airport officials can expect from Michigan senators between now and September. Auditors have reviewed some 50 airport contracts over the past two years and the new committee, headed by Sen. Glenn Steil, R-Grand Rapids, wants to go over them one at a time with airport officials. Steil said he hopes to issue a final report then.

Of seven reviews on the agenda for that opening session, senators and airport officials managed to get through only one before running out of time, indicating it could be an arduous process.

Auditors have raised questions about a number of contracts.

"There's a consistent pattern of management practices that would not be acceptable in private business," Assistant Auditor General Michael Becker told the committee.

"The critics of the airport are giving an extremely distorted view of airport management," Robinson responded. "With nearly 700 active contracts, the auditors have focused in on only a few ... To date, there has been no statement that the airport has done anything illegal. There may have been mistakes in the execution of nearly 700 contracts, but there certainly is no attempt to break Wayne County's ordinances or rules of management."

Tom Naughton, chief financial officer for Wayne County, called for an end to the state review. He pointed out that state auditors are conducting reviews as opposed to official audits.

"The report letters issued to the committee might suggest that the reader beware. After you read the reports, you are left with the impression of a whole lot of minutia, a little bit of whining and very little balance."

"After two years," Naughton concluded, "there really are no findings of any consequence; there is no evidence of criminality; no evidence of widespread corruption ... It is time to move on. Thousands of contracts have been handled flawlessly since 1987."

Questions about engineer

Steil raised questions about Wilbourne Kelley, an engineer who worked on the project for the airport and later went to work for the contractor.

"I question the ethics of going to work for a vendor," Steil said. "It smells."

Auditors said Kelley had processed the final change order to the contract, for $8,000, then signed off on it as an employee of the vendor.

Robinson said there had been an interim employer, Detroit schools, and Kelley did not go directly to the contractor's employment from the airport.

"This is not anything that I think is unusual, to go to work for a contractor," Sen. Robert Emerson, D-Flint, said. "If you are going to look at the this, you need to look at everybody. Have you ever looked at our own Department of Transportation?"

Emerson contended that government officials later going to work for contractors is not uncommon.

Schoolcraft welcomes 'Kids on Campus'

Summertime and the livin' is fun, especially if you're enrolled in Schoolcraft College's Kids on Campus program. The more than 100 classes range from Web Page Master, to Creative Dramatics Camp, to Detective School and Fire Academy for kids.

Classes are tailored to grade levels, but all students can participate in brown bag art seminar luncheons and supervised before- and after-care. The majority of classes last two weeks, and a second session of Kids on Campus begins July 23.

Students entering the first and second grade can get up close and personal with insects in Bugs on the Move; practice the beginnings of Japanese, Spanish or French; learn about the wonders of water; write and publish their own book; and explore how different cultures celebrate special events.

Third and fourth graders can perform a rescue drill, visit a fire station, and handle firefighting equipment in the Fire Academy for Kids; find out how to solve an imaginary crime in the detective school; learn sign language; become a Web page master; study severe and unusual weather; and discover the world of mythology and create their own legends.

Grades five and six can choose from producing their own video, using the latest in special effects; learn about and produce a newscast after gathering information, filming and writing news segments; explore and launch their own hot air balloon; study chess strategy; and create and publish a science fiction fantasy.

Seventh, eighth and ninth graders can make electronic music on a variety of electronic instruments in the College's computer music lab, and get a taste of editing and digital recording; build and launch their own rocket; and study advanced electronics.

The Kids on Campus catalog is available in the Continuing Education Services office, or you can download the catalog at www.schoolcraft.cc.mi.us under the category Continuing Education. Registration is by fax at 734-462-4572, by mail or in person at the McDowell Center. For information, call 734-462-4448.

New center is 1st step in Rouge River Gateway Plan

BY DIANE GALE ANDREASSI
SPECIAL WRITER

The opening recently of the Environmental Interpretive Center on the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus marks more than the beginning of a new program to promote research, educational and recreational opportunities delving into the ecology around the Rouge River.

Designed to resemble a flying bird, the $3.6 million, 13,000-square-foot building is one of the first steps in the Rouge River Gateway Master Plan, a massive, long-term program to study and appreciate nature in southeast Michigan.

The plan's goals include promoting fish life; developing a welcome center, a housing project along the waterway; adding Rouge River canoeing and cruise tours; and building a non-motorized trail that would ultimately reach to the Detroit River and link adjacent neighborhoods.

Work is also underway with the Army Corps of Engineers to investigate opportunities for the removal of portions of a concrete channel to re-naturalize the river's banks and enhance aquatic life habitat.

Realization of the center has been a long journey for UM-Dearborn Professor Orin G. Gelderloos, who has dreamed about it for the 31 years he's been on the 200-acre campus.

Learning experience: Patrick Bowers, 9, checks out an interactive display at the new Environmental Interpretive Center. Patrick's mother, Mary, looks on. Patrick of Dearborn is a student at the Plymouth New Morning School.

"We're able to do things now that we couldn't do before," said Gelderloos, director of natural areas of UM-Dearborn.

One-third of the campus includes the Rouge River and other nature areas.

Some 30,000 people come to the campus every year to observe birds and walk the nature trails.

"For the past three decades, these audiences have not had the benefit of a permanent gathering place to discuss their findings and experiences," said Gelderloos, a professor of biology and environmental studies.

The interpretive center is set 30 inches below ground level offering a direct child's eye view of the surrounding area.

The center will feature a visitors center; classrooms; offices; labs to study the environment; exhibits; and interactive displays for everyone from school children to university students.

It's fitting that much of center's design incorporates environmentally sound ideas from the roof that allows the rainwater to collect in a rock garden and percolate into the ground, to the solar panels that make electricity, to desks that are built from recycled materials.

Oversized windows allow easy observation of birds and mammals at feeding stations that dot much of the wooded area around the building.

Three laboratory classrooms are available for group activities; a field laboratory provides easy analysis of birds and wet labs in two classrooms are used to examine aquatic life from the pond, lake and river near the site.

What it means

A sheltered outdoor area will be used to stage programs, like making maple syrup in the fall. A quiet room offers a wide-angle view of the bird and feeding areas and running water is expected to attract wildlife. An auditorium will also be available for explanatory videos.

"We're able to incorporate the concept of a watershed and we can teach that in a very concrete way," Gelderloos said. "We're going to focus on the Rouge River watershed and what it means to the people who live near it."

There's no better way to make sure the Rouge River will stay clean than to teach children how to keep it clean and how the watershed affects their lives, explained Edward Bagale, vice chancellor for government relations at the UM-Dearborn.

Young people who visit the center will be invited to collect data to add to a computer base that will monitor the quality of the water.

The tiles are a welcoming sign along the walkway entrance that subtly shows how the children and the public in general play an important role in the environmental programs happening inside and outside the building.

"One of the things we're doing with the gateway partnership effort is that we're creating a habitat for fish and other wildlife," said Bagale, explaining there are currently 23 identified fish species in the Rouge River.

The campus, which was once the homestead of industrialist and naturalist Henry Ford and his wife Clara, has remained one of the best areas in southeast Michigan for siting birds, Bagale said.

The EIC is the first tangible milestone in the Rouge River Gateway Partnership that incorporates an intragovernmental effort to erase boundaries in terms of the communities we live in and the ethnic groups from which we descend, explained Terry Gallagher, UM-Dearborn director of public relations. The gateway is located between the upper and middle Rouge tributaries and the Detroit River.

Working together

Instead, it focuses on everyone working together for the ecological and commercial health of the area, Gallagher added.

The Rouge River Gateway Partnership includes Wayne County, UM-D, Rouge Steel Company, Michigan Consolidated Gas Company, Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village, Henry Ford Community College, Ford Motor Company and Edward C. Levy Company, as well as the cities of Allen Park, Dearborn, Detroit and Melvindale.

The EIC is open to the public from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday. School and scout groups may make appointments for guided tours of the EIC by calling Rick Simek, supervisor of the UM-D campus natural areas at (313) 593-5338.

million the district has set aside from the Durant lawsuit settlement, which is earning interest in a separate fund.

Projections

Despite the disastrous-looking projections, school officials say the outlook allows them to know where the district is headed, and that a lot of work is needed to keep the district solvent.

"This district is going to be faced with some severe choices over the next several years in terms of revenues and expenditures," said Trustee Steve Guile. "With a month-to-month expenditure report, we can move forward to sustain the district."

Board member Judy Mardigian lended her support by voting in favor of the budget, but not without some caveats.

"While we're adding a million dollars to the fund balance this year, I would have liked to see us do more," she said. "I think we're going to need to work harder next year."

Challenges

Board president Darwin Watts admitted the district has some tough challenges in the next five years.

"We started this budget when it looked pretty slim, and we've made some calculated improvements along the way," said Watts. "We're working with legislation and looking at revenue enhancement ideas, while still expecting a high return on our educational investment."

Former school board president Mark Horvath, who along with former board president Mike Maloney, has been critical of the budget process, telling board members the district is "speeding towards a wall ... this is our last year of the free ride."

■ 'This district is going to be faced with some severe choices...'

Trustee Steve Guile
P-C school board

"It's a shame we'll have to do something significant in the same year that our new high school opens," he said. "I hope we don't have to mothball the new high school, like when we couldn't open Tonda and Bentley when we couldn't come up with the funds."

Bond from page A1

for a sinking fund millage, which allows us to use money for capital improvements," said Booher. "That's still a millage the district can run under Proposal A.

"As the study began to unfold, the elementary boundaries committee recommended we build another elementary school," she added. "And, with our shoestring operating budget, we need to purchase buses through bonds, not through the operating budget."

Booher said it will be a while before there's enough useful information for the school board to determine what plan of action to take. However, all signs seem to be pointing in one direction.

"I would say this is definitely identifying that we're going to need a bond issue, or maybe a sinking fund," said Booher. "Those decisions and discussions will come out of more community participation."

Booher said there will be discussions to decide how many of the issues ... sinking fund, bond issue and bus purchase ... to tackle at one time.

The district is currently spending nearly $80 million in bonds passed by voters in 1997 to build Dodson Elementary and Plymouth High School, as well as paying on nearly $20 million in bonds for the construction of Discovery Middle School. However, Booher said it's not unusual for school districts to ask voters for a bond issue while paying off current debt.

"It's always tough to help members of a community understand why you need another bond issue while still paying off a previous one," she said. "Virtually everywhere you go, districts are paying off more than one bond, especially if they're growing districts."

believes the real reason he was fired, or "ambushed" as he refers to it, was an altercation between him and Fire Chief Larry Groth that took place April 4 when the department was fighting a fire at the Unisys Corporation in the township.

According to Tefend, Groth verbally assaulted him and then poked him in the chest with the antenna of a hand-held radio. Although he felt "extremely embarrassed and belittled" in front of fellow workers during the incident, Tefend didn't attempt to do anything about it until a day after he was fired (May 10), when he filed an assault and battery report against Groth with the Plymouth Township Police Department.

No action

The case was turned over to the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office, which decided not to press any charges against Groth.

"After reviewing the file, I didn't think any criminal charges were warranted. Based on the evidence, I didn't think criminal prosecution was in the best interest of justice," said Robert Donaldson, the principal attorney for cases concerning municipal employees for the prosecutor's office.

On advice from his attorney, Groth declined comment on either issue, referring all questions to Mann. However, he did tell police he yelled at, and then poked Tefend, because he was trying to get his attention over the loud noise of a fire engine. He also admitted to being upset because he incorrectly thought Tefend had committed some procedural violations while the department was fighting the fire.

According to the police report, when asked by the interviewing officer why he waited so long to report the incident, Tefend allegedly replied: "This is an incident you put in your pocket and bring out when you need to, and I need to."

Tefend, who is married and has three children, said the reason he waited was his fear of retaliation at work. He realizes how it looks, but he is undaunted.

"Do I have an ax to grind? You bet I do. When you don't have any income and you have a family of four to take care of, you do what you have to," he said. "You can't go around poking people in the chest. It's an unacceptable business practice. Battery is battery."

Tefend collected worker's compensation for about a three month period, which ended in February of this year. The video tape was allegedly shot during that time.

While he wouldn't discuss any specifics, Mike Moros, vice president of the PCFA, said the union is standing behind Tefend.

"We don't feel there was any legal justification for the firing, so we are backing him 100 percent," he said.

Mann said after an arbitrator is picked, a hearing will be set, and then a decision should be rendered within four to six weeks. If the arbitrator reinstates him, Tefend will receive back pay retroactive to the day he was fired. Top scale, which Tefend reportedly makes, is an annual salary of $47,877.

Canton stops Troy in title match

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS WRITER
cjrisak@oe.homecomm.net

As the final minute started to tick away in Saturday's Division I state soccer championship, the countdown in the stands began to build.

The seconds became fewer, the screaming grew louder, mirroring how Plymouth Canton had performed in this final against Troy — a sluggish start that wasn't reversed until late in the first half. The clock, fittingly, expired just as Canton's Anne Morrell unleashed a meaningless shot at an open net.

It didn't go in, and it didn't matter; Morrell had already scored three times, propelling the Chiefs to their third state title with a 3-1 victory at Canton HS.

Morrell, a senior and a strong candidate to repeat as the state's player of the year, scored her 38th, 39th and 40th goals of the season at a time when it counted most. She provided the difference in the Chiefs' run to the championship.

"No doubt about it," Canton coach Don Smith said, his team finishing at 18-3-1. "Every team has a player they go to. Ours is just a bit better than everyone else's."

Winning a state title was the only thing missing from Morrell's prep resume. In the fall, she'll be playing soccer for current NCAA champ University of North Carolina.

"This was good for her," said Smith. "Since mid-season, she's been bound and determined. I think she was saving herself for the end of the season. She's had a big goal in every game since (a 3-0 win over Plymouth Salem)."

The turning point in this match came with 12:01 left in the first half and Canton trailing 1-0. Morrell chased a pass into the box, in front of the Troy net, where she collided with Colts' keeper Katie Perz and defender Erin Geldhof (who was marking Morrell). Morrell got up, but Perz and Geldhof

SOCCER FINALS

Four years of scoring all types of goals in all types of situations and Anne Morrell's final kick lands in the back of the same net as her first?

The Plymouth Canton senior sniper did just that Saturday, winding up her stellar four-year varsity career by banging home all three goals in the Chiefs 3-1 skinning of the Colts in the Division I championship game.

"I don't remember who it was against, but it was in the back of that net," said Morrell, pointing to the end of Canton's field that saw her blast a pair of second-half markers by Troy goalkeeper Natalie Kotowski.

Morrell can be forgiven for her lack of detail considering 135 goals have been registered between her first and final tally. The 137 career goals, including 40 this season, is a Michigan High School Athletic Association record and one that may last for some time.

Morrell stepped into coach Don Smith's lineup during the spring of 1998 and promptly scored 26 goals and collected 15 assists. She increased her goal-scoring to 32 in '99 and knocked in 39 in 2000 as the Chiefs advanced all the way to the finals, only to fall to Troy Athens by a 4-1 margin.

Something rare: Morrell among all-time best

C.J. RISAK

It's over by now. Anne Morrell's days as one of the best female soccer players ever in this state are through. How they ended depends, at least partially, on what happened in yesterday's state final between her Plymouth Canton squad and its opponent, Troy.

It was Morrell's last chance to capture the only thing that has eluded her in her prep career: a state title. Not that it will make a difference in fashioning Morrell's legacy. That's been determined.

Not always fairly, mind you.

It's truly amazing how different people can watch her play and come away with totally different points of view. She is not the graceful type of athlete, slipping and sliding untouched through opponents' defenses.

Morrell is aggressive. She is physical. And she is the best. She was the best player in the state last year, when she scored 39 goals — 13 more than Troy Athens' Tiffany Laskowski, whom she shared the Miss Soccer honor with.

And she still is. Her state-record total of goals scored — 134 going into Saturday's final — is a testament to that. So is her team's return to the final.

Tough competitor

Unforgettable: Whatever opponents may think, Morrell (right) is appreciated by her teammates.

But she is not the most popular player. Far from it. In fact, considering the abuse she has been subjected to, one wonders why she came back for this season at all.

She didn't have to. Morrell is an honor student. She received an athletic scholarship to attend North Carolina, the current NCAA champion in women's soccer, when she was still a junior.

"I would have had to take one class (after January)," Morrell said. And she could have left Canton in January, gone off in pursuit of the next step on her ladder and enrolled at UNC.

"I could have left early," she admitted. "But I would have missed out on soccer, on prom. When I go to college, I'll have four years to get a (NCAA) championship.

"Here, I can play with all my close friends . . . When I play for a club team, it's more pressure. This is fun. It's a more relaxed atmosphere."

Imagine that. Morrell said this as we sat on the lawn in front of Canton's Phase III gym, the day before her final high school game — and it's for the state championship!

That isn't pressure?

Suddenly the message is clear. Morrell has been exposed to pressure situations, plenty of them, in all sorts of national settings, each time knowing she's required to prove herself once again.

At Canton, she has nothing left she needs to prove. There's no arrogance in her statement. Facts are facts. What many may see as an extremely pressure-filled situation is merely fun for her.

Physical style

But never think Morrell is without motivation. She is surrounded by factors that provide it.

If the Oakland Raiders, with their black-and-silver uniforms trimmed with Pirate logos, sponsored a women's soccer team, Morrell would be a perfect member. Not necessarily because she would want to be; it's just that perceptions make her a perfect fit.

Her aggressive, physical style frustrates opponents and shreds defenses. She'll field a Redford Catholic Central senior pitcher Charlie Haeger doesn't keep a diary.

But if he did, the emotional roller coaster of the last two weeks would make for some interesting reading.

Monday, June 4: CC plays in Division 1 district. I pitch. Am clocked at 84-87 mph by scouts on radar gun. Am happy. We lose to Farmington, I take loss. Not happy.

Wednesday, June 6: Am happy again; am drafted in 25th round of the Major League Baseball Amateur Draft by Chicago White Sox.

Sunday afternoon, June 10: Meet with Sox scout, sign pro contract.

Sunday evening: Host my own graduation party. All my friends were there. Am told it ran until 3:30 a.m. Was asleep by midnight. Am tired from the week, excited to start playing ball, sad to leave family and friends.

Monday, June 11: Open bank account and get cell phone. Fly to Arizona to start new job. Am very happy.

Tuesday, June 12: Learn how to use cell phone and change voice-mail message. Pick up gear at camp. Am excited, anxious and nervous. . .

Haeger, from Plymouth, figured the world as he knew it was going to end after high school, as he was headed for Central Michigan University in the fall on a baseball scholarship.

But when the White Sox came calling and gave him what he was looking for, he was more than happy to end his summer early.

"I'm so excited to be doing this," said Haeger from the Sox rookie minicamp in Tucson. "I just wanted to get started and go play ball. I just wanted to start doing this."

Haeger was content to head to CMU if he wasn't drafted. But when the White Sox drafted him, he wanted to hear what they had to say. And when they came up with a figure that he and his parents, Greg and Cindy, liked — $15,000 signing bonus and a college tuition package — he knew what he had to do.

"We talked about it and talked it over with (CC coach John Salter), (assistant coach) Kevin Walters," said Haeger. "I tried getting a hold of (CC grad) Casey Rogowski (playing with the Sox' Class A team in Kannapolis, N.C.) but I couldn't get a hold of him. In the end, this is what I wanted to do. I wanted to get started and I'm excited about it."

This season with CC, Haeger had a 7-2 record on the mound with a 1.88 earned run average. In 67 innings, he gave up 44 hits, 28 runs, 16 earned runs, 49 walks and had 101 strikeouts. He was 6-0 as a sophomore and 3-0 in 200, when shoulder troubles kept him from pitching effectively until last in the season. He also hit .364 with 36 hits, 34 RBI and three homers.

Haeger spent his first day in camp going over the rules, working out, getting gear and getting settled. He's going to spend a few more days in Tucson in camp, and then begin play with the Sox' rookie league team in Phoenix.

"This is what I've always wanted to do," said Haeger. "I just wanted to get down and start doing it. They wanted me to come down and prove I can pitch. I'm excited about this."

ROCKERS SOCCER CAMPS

The Detroit Rockers will host a series of summer soccer cames for boys and girls ages 4-14.

The cost is $135 ($10 off for additional family members).

pass and post-up her foe, spinning and speeding toward the goal before anyone else can react.

Such play results in a lot of contact. For Morrell to survive and thrive, she has to fend off defenders — most teams assign two players to mark her — which requires her to be able to dish out as much contact as she receives.

Opponents don't like this. Their parents don't like it, either. And neither do losing coaches.

Feeling that way is one thing. Airing those viewpoints is another.

Some don't approve

Morrell hears it. All the time. In Wednesday's semifinal win over Brighton, tripping an opponent earned Morrell a yellow card, sending her to the sidelines for 10 minutes. As she headed to the bench, Brighton fans cheered her departure.

(Perhaps they were psychic. Morrell returned from her penalty to score two breakaway goals in Canton's 3-0 victory.)

That kind of stuff happens all the time. In the Chiefs' win over Northville in the regional final, shouts of "Overrated!" erupted from Mustang fans when Morrell missed a meaningless penalty kick in the final minute. Never mind that she had already scored twice and assisted on another in Canton's 4-2 victory.

It got uglier after the game. A parent of one of the Northville players confronted Morrell, she said, accusing her of dirty play (she had been involved in a three-player collision that sent a Mustang to the hospital). Morrell walked away, but when her teammates lashed out at him she stuck by them, joining in the heated exchange.

Morrell deserves better

At about the same time, I was outside the Novi field talking to Northville coach Ron Meteyer about the game. A mother of one of the players approached, interrupting our discussion and said, "I'd rather lose than have a player like Anne Morrell on our team."

I was shocked. As she walked away, I said most coaches would not agree. She never looked back, but Meteyer had a reply: "I think Anne Morrell is a dirty player."

Granted, he was still upset over the loss and the injury suffered by his player. But this was uncalled for.

And unfair. Morrell has learned to deal with it, however.

"From club ball, I get stuff from parents and people," she said. "They think I'm out to hurt.

"Some of it gets to me. I talk to my sister (Abi, who plays at Western Michigan), my teammates . . . They tell me I'm better than that.

"Usually I just blow it off. But I hear it."

And she uses it. Never mind the physical abuse she absorbs. After the Brighton match, Morrell showed Canton athletic director Sue Heinzman several holes near the tops of her knee-high socks.

Not much imagination needed to figure how they got there.

Still, she turns it to her advantage. Because opponents are so wary of her physical style, they seem to ignore her other abilities: her deft passing, great leaping ability and tremendous speed. She outran defenses in each of her last two games to score goals.

"(The criticism) makes me play harder," Morrell said. "I feel I have something to prove."

And that brings us to what has emerged as her greatest attribute through her four years at Canton. She has endured so much, on and off the field, and funneled it into a determination few can match.

Mental toughness will always be first among Morrell's legacy.

State champs lead Observer

By Dan O'Meara
Staff Writer
domeara@oe.homecomm.net

Farmington Hills Mercy did practically everything a team could possibly hope to do in girls golf this year.

The Marlins were Catholic League, Oakland County and Division I state champions. That's a trifecta few can match.

Furthermore, it was Mercy's 10th consecutive league title, fourth county title in five years and second state title in two years.

The Marlins had the best player in the state — Division I individual medalist Erin Borowiec — but coach Vicky Kowalski always puts together a strong supporting cast.

After finishing third in the state last year, Mercy lost a pair of all-area players in Lindsey Densmore and LaTanya Foster.

But sophomore Christina Cibrario, juniors Jackie Shinney and Kim Warzyniec and senior Maureen McFawn were ready to take on greater roles this year.

The result was another fine season for the Marlins, and Kowalski has been chosen Observerland Coach of the Year for a job well done.

In addition to Borowiec, a four-time mmeber of the All-Obserever team, other repeat, first-team picks are Livonia Stevenson senior Katie Carlson, Livonia Churvchill junior Heidi Aittama and Stevenson sophomore Kristen Polanski.

Cibrario and Churchill junior Kelley Parzuchowski were second-team selections last year, and Farmington Unified senior Sarah Laird made the jump from third team.

ALL-AREA FIRST TEAM

Erin Borowiec, senior, Mercy: Borowiec achieved her longtime goal of winning the individual state championship in Division I. She shot 81 the first day and was two strokes out of first place, but she rebounded with a 74 second day to claim first place.

Borowiec's dual-meet low of 33 is a school record, and her tournament low of 66 is a state record.

She averaged 74.5 strokes per tournament while winning medalist honors at Grosse Ile (72), East Lansing (73), Oakland County (82), Mercy Invitational (75), Traverse City two-day (77-71), Ann Arbor (78), Flint Powers (66), Catholic League (69), regional (73) and state.

Borowiec will follow in the footsteps of two former Mercy stars — LPGA Tour member Meg Mallon and her older sister, Jennifer — and continue her career at Ohio State University.

"Erin was unbeatable in her senior year," Kowalski said. "She leaves Mercy as one of the top golfers in state history.

"Every coach who has watched her play has said, 'She's such a good player and a nice girl.' The coaches think she really sets a good standard for what a high school female golfer should be like.

"She's a good student, a good person and a good golfer."

Heidi Aittama, junior, Churchill: The repeat All-Area selection came on strong at the end of the season, placing sixth as an individual qualifier in the Division I state meet with scores of 85-85/170.

It was the second time Aittama placed in the top ten in the state finals.

This season Aittama was runner-up in the regional and Western Lakes tournaments. She averaged 43.38 for nine holes.

"Heidi continues to be a dominant player in both the conference and state tourney," Churchill assistant coach Lou Bischoff said. "She is being very outgoing with both competitors and coaches."

Kristen Polanski, sophomore, Stevenson: The 10th-grader was medalist in six of Stevenson's nine dual matches and placed in the top ten of every tournament she played during the season.

Polanski averaged 42.8 per nine and 83.2 per 18 holes.

At the state finals, Polanski shot 96-79/175 to finish ninth.

She placed third in the WLAA meet with an 86 and was fifth at the regional with an 81 as the Spartans qualified as a team for the state meet.

Polanski also holds the Stevenson record at Fox Creek with a 1-under 35.

"Kristen has the self-direction and self-discipline of an exceptional athlet well beyond her sophomore year experiences," Stevenson coach John Wagner said. "Her skills increase continually and her course management has also improved. She is an individual of strong character and always sets a positive example for her teammates."

Polanski also excels in the classroom with a 4.0-plus grade-point average.

Christina Cibrario, sophomore, Mercy: Cibrario played a key role in Mercy winning another state title, finishing ninth in the two-day tournament with a 175 total. She dropped five strokes from her first-day score and shot 85 the second.

Cibrario, who averaged 88.5 in tournament play, also was fifth in Oakland County (94), sixth at Grosse Ile (86), East Lansing (83), Flint Powers (87) and Catholic League (87) and seventh in the regional (84).

"Christina improved in all areas of play from last year to this season," Kowalski said. "She was a solid No. 2 player for us and earned individual honors in four tournaments.

"Christina was named All-Catholic and topped a great sophomore season with a ninth-place medal at the state finals."

Katie Carlson, senior, Stevenson: Carlson's 38 against Plymouth Salem helped set a Stevenson dual match record this season (174).

During the season, she never finished below third in a dual meet and was medalist twice. Carlson averaged 44.7 per nine.

Carlson took All-WLAA honors with an 89, good enough for fourth place and tied for seventh at the regional and 14th at the Division I finals at Forest Akers West in East Lansing.

"Our team will miss Katie's low scoring and the example she set for four seasons on our team," Wagner said. "As Katie moves on to play for Indiana next season, she completes the eighth season of Carlson family involvement and dedication with the Stevenson High School girls golf program.

"She always contributed to the team integrity and succes. She will be remembered by her team and coaches."

Kelley Parzuchowski, junior, Churchill: The junior is making her first appearance on the first team after averaging 45.87 per nine holes.

Parzuchowski made All-Western Division in the WLAA after carding a 93 at Hudson Mills.

She also shot an 89 at the regional.

"Kelley is a solid player who continues to improve every year and will be one of our team leaders as a senior," Bischoff said.

Sarah Laird, senior, Farmington: Laird led Farmington Unified to a 8-3 record in dual meets, including a second-place, 7-2 mark in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

She earned All-Lakes Division honors while leading the Eagles to fourth place in the WLAA tournament with a 91 score.

Laird was 10th in the Division I regional at Carrington Golf Course with an 86 and 10th in the Oakland County Division I tournament.

A four-year member of the Farmington team, Laird will compete collegiately next year at the Division I level for Oakland University.

"Sarah was the backbone of the team with her 44.8 average and by consistently shooting in the low 40s," coach Anne Marie Sopha said. "Her game has matured majorly this year from her good work ethic and increased mental toughness."

Rachel Thomas, sophomore, Ladywood: Thomas finished first in the Division II regional at Pinckney with a 91 as the Blazers reached the state tournament for the second straight year.

Thomas took 16th overall in the state finals as the Blazers placed 10th. The team MVP also placed 11th at the Catholic League finals and fifth in the Pinckney Best Ball Tournament.

"Rachel has improved dramatically over last year," Ladywood first-year coach Kelliann Nagy said. "Last year I don't think she understood why I held her back, but the experience playing all the JV matches and the Junior Powerbilt Tour have developed her game to the next year and beyond.

"She is very dedicated to the game of golf and works hard to accomplish her goals. It is a pleasure to coach some with this type of work ethic and heart. She has a promising career ahead of her."

Finals from page B1

"Last year we came here and didn't know what to expect," said Morrell, who drew her teammates even late in the first half and booted home the eventual game-winner with 20:01 remaining in the game. "We didn't let their first goal bother us and then when they lost their keeper (Troy starter Katie Perz who was knocked out of the game in a collision with Morrell and Erin Geldhof of Troy), we kind of picked it up."

Part of Morrell's success in scoring goals this season can be attributed to facing another top-notch goalkeeper on a daily basis – teammate Briana Wolcott.

The Chiefs sophomore keeper has been a solid final line of defense throughout the season, and especially during the tournament. Against only Northville, did Wolcott allow goals in tournament play.

"Briana has definitely improved a lot," Morrell said. "It's fun going against her. She's going to have some great years coming up."

The praise and feelings are mutual.

"She's my hero," Wolcott described Morrell. "She gives us so much confidence as a team. Her energy radiates against us and makes us play hard the whole time."

Player losses hurt Troy

BY JIM TOTH
STAFF WRITER
jtoth@oe.homecomm.net

Two of Troy's premier postseason performers weren't on hand to see the final seconds tick down in Saturday's final.

Senior Catherine Le, a feisty and speedy forward who sparked the Colts offensive attack through their six previous wins, left for Vietnam early Saturday morning to be with family members. The trip had been planned for some time and the attempt to change flights wasn't possible.

All the Colts – players and staff alike – had Le's number 4 stitched to their shorts in tribute to their traveling teammate.

NOTES

Meanwhile, junior goalkeeper Katie Perz suffered an injury that sidelined her for the final 55 minutes of the game. Racing out from the crease, Perz banged into Canton forward Anne Morrell and bounced off teammate Erin Geldhof, both of who were in pursuit.

Morrell quickly got back up off the ground while Perz and Geldhof were helped off the field.

Geldhof was able to return moments later, while Perz was diagnosed with a concussion and taken by ambulance to the hospital.

State champs from B1

didn't.

Both were helped from the field; Geldhof returned after a short stay on the bench, but Perz, an all-Oakland Activities Association keeper, was transported to St. John's Hospital with a concussion and a split lip.

"I think the collision (Morrell) had with our goaltender set the tempo," said Troy coach Henry Steinwascher.

It certainly seemed to. Until that point, the Colts (they finished 18-5-2) had owned the play — and Morrell had rarely touched the ball.

With the first half nearing its midpoint, Troy's Lauren Skinner lined up a direct kick from 25 yards out, right in front of the Chiefs' net. Her shot was deflected by the defensive wall, spinning and changing direction, and fooling Canton keeper Briana Wolcott. The ball slipped through her hands, giving the Colts a 1-0 lead with 20:35 left.

The Chiefs, who were being outplayed to that point — "Our defense played great in the second half," Smith said, adding, "In the first half they scared me to death" — started to pick up the pace after Troy's goal. The collision took two more key players off the field, and it became apparent it was something the Colts could ill-afford (Catherine Le, a sparkplug on offense, missed the game due to a previously-scheduled plane flight she had to take Saturday morning).

Two minutes after the collision, Morrell fielded a pass from Janine Guastella on the left side of the field and threaded her way past a couple of defenders, angling to the right side, where she hooked a shot that went over reserve keeper Natalie Kotowski and into the left corner, tying the game with 9:23 left.

The tide was shifting.

Not that the Colts were on their heels through the first 30 minutes of the second half, the game still 1-1. But Canton's play was becoming more aggressive; openings were beginning to appear in the Colts' defense.

With the second half nearing its midpoint, the ball was served into the box area in front of the Troy goal. Canton's Stephanie Johnson got a foot on it, but her attempt was knocked away. Morrell got to the loose ball and drilled a shot that Kotowski stopped.

However, Kotowski couldn't control the rebound. Morrell followed her shot and knocked it into the net to give the Chiefs a 2-1 lead with 20:01 left.

"I think when we went down 2-1, the girls were a little deflated," said Steinwascher. "We came down after that and had two-three chances, but didn't put them away.

• "Then they got that third goal and we were totally deflated."

That came with 12:48 remaining, and it was vintage Morrell. Erica Aberns passed it into her; Morrell fielded it, shielding the defender, spinning and pounding the ball into the goal to make it 3-1.

And all but assuring her of a state title. "On the field, I don't show it much," said Morrell, whose team lost in the state finals last year to Troy Athens. "There was definitely a big difference — last year, we didn't know what to expect.

"This year, we showed we were the top team in the state."

That they did.

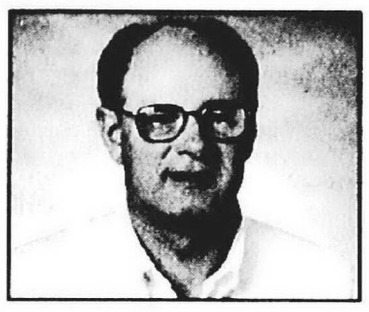
NATURE NOTES



TIM NOWICKI

Oak trees, maples live in harmony

Before the early settlers came to southeastern Michigan to establish homesteads, clear forests for farmland and graze meadows, the forests in this area were of two basic types.

In drier well-drained soils was a forest known as the Oak-Hickory community, while in slightly wetter areas grew a Beech-Maple community.

Both communities were self sustaining.

Oak-Hickory forests were prone to fires because of their drier conditions. Though many mature trees perish in a forest fire, oaks are very good at sprouting from stumps and root systems. This gave them an edge during early recovery. They could out complete any other tree species.

Beech and maple are very tolerant in the shade of taller trees. When an older tree dies creating an open space flushed with sunlight, the small beech and maple trees are able to grow rapidly toward the sunlight. Over time the forest becomes predominately beech and maple trees.

When referring to maple in the forest, sugar maple is the specific species which predominates. Red and silver maple are more likely to dominate in wetter soils.

The beech referred to is the American beech — the "elephant leg" tree. They have smooth silver bark complete with horizontal black markings that resemble the wrinkled skin around the knee of an elephant's leg.

In the Oak-Hickory community there are several oaks that grow.

As I have been surveying lands owned by Oakland County Parks and Recreation, I've come upon come of the oaks that predominated in pre-settlement time.

The most common are the white and red oaks. Red oaks with their pointed ends to the lobes, and white oaks with their rounded ends to the lobes. That is the basic difference between these two species and the two major groups of oak trees.

From this foundation come variations in the two families. Black oak look very much like red oak except for the difference in caps to their acorns. Black oak acorns have a cap that looks like a stocking cap pulled down to the eyebrows.

Red oak, on the other hand, has a cap that looks like a high riding beret.

Pin oaks were more likely seen in the Oak-Savanna of pre-settlement days, which were more open, and often the first areas to be cleared. They are around, but their deeply lobed leaves are not seen as commonly as the red and black oaks.

White oaks have variations in leaf structure and habitat. Swamp white oak has rounded tips to the leaf edge, but only minor lobes cut toward the middle.

In contrast, white oak has cut lobes that go more than halfway to the center of the leaf.

Burr oak, part of the white oak family, has fewer lobes which are as deep as the white, just not as many. Its name comes from the fringe that grows on the edge of the acorn cap.

An oak that does not look like an oak is the chinkapin. In fact, it looks like an American chestnut leaf.

This oak was a secondary species in the Oak-Hickory community. A large one grows at the Glen Oaks Golf Course in Farmington Hills. It prefers wet, moist soils, but drain tiles installed in southeastern Michigan drained much of its preferred habitat.

Now that forests have had some time to recover from the exploitation of the early settlers, they are growing back in much the same way as they were before settlers arrived.

Given time, and no major changes in soils and drainage, habitats will develop as they did before settlers arrived.

Bluegill fishing remains red-hot

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

Well before my float had a chance to right itself in the water, it disappeared beneath the surface. I flicked my wrist to set the hook, and reeled in a big, chunky bluegill.

Prior to this week, Mother Nature had served up a rather pleasant spring with cool temperatures and plenty of much-needed rainfall. With all the cooler temperatures, bluegills seemed to have stayed on their beds a little longer, possibly spawning later because the water was slow to reach the desired temperature.

Many gills are still on their beds, especially as you travel north. For those lakes already in the post-spawn stage, the best bites will come off the nearest drop-off adjacent to the spawning area, which is where I located the best bite on a recent trip to Lake Sixteen, at Oakland County's Orion Oaks Park.

Abundant in most inland lakes, bluegills are fun to catch and make outstanding table fare.

If the fish are still holding in the shallows success depends largely upon your approach. Gills are skittish in the shallow water, so approach the shoreline quietly and slowly. Try to avoid casting your shadow on the water or stepping heavily on shore. Both of these actions will cause the fish to scatter.

Fly fishing for bluegills is a blast, and great for the beginner fly fisher. There is usually plenty of room for practicing your casting, and precision isn't nearly as important as on a stream.

Small poppers are rubber spiders are traditionally hot baits for bedding gills. Since the fish are in shallow, you can easily sight-fish for them. A pair of polarized fishing glasses will more than pay for themselves on the first trip to the lake.

Cast above an active bed and work your offering over the top of it. If the fish fail to respond to top-water presentations, a wet fly may entice a bite.

Another option is to attach a tiny split shot just above the popper or rubber spider. This added weight will bring your offering down into the water table where the fish are resting.

If a fly rod doesn't strike your fancy any spinning combo will work just fine. Use the lightest line possible (two or four-pound test if available) and a small hook. Thread on a couple red worms, a leech, or the end of a night crawler and rake your offering right through the beds.

If the fish have moved off the beds and into deeper water fishing can still be fantastic. The smaller fish will usually be suspended off the breaks and along nearby weedbeds. Larger fish will undoubtedly be found near the bottom of the drops.

Slip bobbers work exceptionally well in this situation because they enable you to cast freely, and to get your bait down to the exact same depth each time.

Just because bluegills happen to be abundant in your favorite lake you don't have to keep a 25-fish limit. Take enough for a decent meal and leave the rest for another day. Continually hammering a bluegill population will cause adverse effects in the future. Remember, you're not the only one fishing, and if several anglers are catching limit after limit of the bigger, mature fish, the results can be disastrous, especially on smaller lakes.

Long, Dobson win tourney

Clarkston's Kevin Long and Waterford's Scott Dobson have been on fire in the Anglers Choice Michigan East Division bass fishing circuit.

In the season-opening tournament three weeks ago on Saginaw Bay, the duo placed second out of 60 boats with a five-fish limit that weighed 16.54 pounds – just .30 pounds less than the winning catch. They split $824 for their efforts.

"We were fishing spinnerbaits in real shallow water," Long said. "The water was really muddy and no one could sight fish, so we went to spinnerbaits for the extra vibration. That's how we got our bites."

Last weekend, the two were back on Saginaw Bay for the second of seven Anglers Choice events and this time they didn't settle for second best. They again teamed up to catch a five-fish limit, but this one weighed 17.94 pounds, good enough for first place and a check for $1,660.

"It was clear water and they were in between four and seven feet of water," Long said. "We were sight-fishing with tubes and grubs, and we saw every fish we caught."

Long and Dobson are in great position to qualify for the Angler's Choice Regional, which will be held in October on Lake St. Clair. Teams earn points, depending on their finish in each of the qualifying tournaments. The top 15 teams in the point standings at the conclusion of the seven qualifiers advance to the regional, where the winners walk away with a pair of fully-equipped bass boats.

The next Angler's Choice Michigan East Division event will take place in July on Lake Erie.

(Bill Parker writes a weekly outdoor column for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. Hunters and anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to: Bill Parker, c/o Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009.)

Bowling proprietors tackle smoking

TEN PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

To smoke or not to smoke, that is the question.

There are quite a few people who stay away from bowling centers because of the smokers who bowl, or is it the bowlers who smoke?

How many do not bowl due to their sensitivity to cigarette smoke is not a clear-cut number, however, the bowling industry as a whole has not really taken much of a stance either way.

Do you deny bowlers the right to smoke? How many smoking bowlers would be lost if they were not permitted to light up?

Most bowling centers have signs posted on the scoring console with NO SMOKING in print.

Many smokers are considerate of others and at least will not blow smoke right in your face, others could care less.

The basic idea of whether smoking affects bowling is really more of an issue between leagues or individuals the local or national associations have no say, and except for places like the State of California, this is not an issue.

In California, there is no smoking allowed in any public buildings, so that would include all bowling houses.

Some bowling centers have set up non-smoking situations. Mark Voight, owner of Community Bowling Centers says: "It's a very significant problem with no easy answers."

He had installed smoke-eaters or air handlers at many of his sites and has mixed results.

Both types mix outside air with the inside air in a recycling action called "make up air."

This helps a lot, but only if the required maintenance is kept up.

As a proprietor, Voight realizes that to ban smoking would result in a loss of customers. Even if a local community were to ban smoking in public buildings, it would put him at a competitive disadvantage because the smokers would go to the next town.

A bowling league can ban smoking within their by-laws and a bowling center can request that smokers be considerate of others and ask them to smoke in the rear of the concourse.

Voight said cigar smoking is a worse problem, since the smell is more offensive than cigarettes, while the worst of all are the few who chew tobacco. They bring in a bottle or jar to spit into and this is one that really reeks.

Scott Bennett, Executive Director of the Bowling Centers of Michigan, which represents the majority of bowling houses in the Detroit area says: "We try to accommodate all of our customers. We also suggest that smokers show courtesy and consideration to others."

Woodland Lanes in Livonia has installed the latest technology in Honeywell smoke-eaters, a very expensive item.

Al Winkel, the proprietor along with his son Gary, have gone one step further.

They do not allow smoking after 7 p.m. on Mondays except in the cocktail lounges. This is the perfect test case scenario for the subject as it is precisely when the Woodland Guys and Dolls come in to bowl, a mixed league with 25 teams of young adults.

Many of them are smokers such as 22-year-old Debbie Antczak of Plymouth who enjoys bowling in this league with many of her friends, and even though she is a cigarette smoker, says, "It's inconvenient, but I can have a smoke in the cocktail lounge although I would prefer out near the lanes."

Her teammate, Christie, a 23-year-old from Westland, doesn't mind, but she says, "They crowd up the doorway to the bar and that makes it tough to have a puff or two between frames, but I enjoy bowling in this league."

As another bowler, Jimmy Hoffman, said "I do not smoke, and it really makes no difference to me, I'm used to smokers."

Jena Belleperche, 22, of Livonia, is a non-smoker and says, "It's nice that non-smokers can enjoy bowling with friends who do smoke and not smell like an ashtray when you get home."

Greg Glenn, 24, of Plymouth added "I am a smoker and I don't like it. I forgot about the no smoking when I signed up for the league."

A person who smokes a pack a day spends about $1,332.00 per year on cigarettes and that only makes the wealthy tobacco industry richer yet.

Recent scientific studies have proven that smoking cigarettes will reduce anyone's bowling average by eight pins. (If that were true, there would be a lot of bowlers who would give up the habit like, right now.)

The mechanical devices such as smoke-eaters help, but do not solve the problem.

There have been a few non-smokers leagues and there are certain times such as when there are youth leagues going on that smoking is not permitted in the building, that is a YABA rule which is in effect everywhere.

More and more smokers are quitting the habit, and that helps, but for all the good people who must smoke, please stay back from the settee area and help make this game a fun time for all.

(Comments on this topic are welcomed. Please write to the Observer Sports Department, C/O Al Harrison, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, 48150.)

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Author unveils the mystery of modern music

James McHard admits not all music lovers will appreciate the technical terminology he uses in the book The Future of Modern Music. The Livonia author freely talks about major-minor diatonicism in reference to Claude Debussy's Prelude to the Afternoon of a Faun, an orchestral work full of musical imagery. Debussy departs from this usual method of composing in favor of free tonality. But don't let the in-depth analysis stop you from following McHard as he journeys through a history of 20th century composers.

"Not everyone's going to understand it," said McHard. "But there's a way to select what you read because I break it up into style, philosophy and the story of the composer's life."

McHard uses the first half of the book to concentrate on some of the early composers of modern music like Gustav Mahler, Maurice Ravel, Igor Stravinsky, Bela Bartok and Arnold Schonberg before focusing on the avant garde Pierre Boulez, Iannis Xenakis and Julio Estrada. One of his pet peeves is these later composers receive little or no recognition because of the abstract nature of their compositions.

Even McHard didn't quite understand "what composers were trying to do" 30 years ago when he first came up with the idea for the book. McHard said, he "lacked a focus and perspective" on the subject until four years ago when he began writing the book in earnest.

Filling a gap

"I'm trying to fill a gap that existed between what we have in today's music and what we have in print," said McHard. "It's good covering composers with whom we're compatible. Most books address this history but not the others which merely mention them but in a cursory manner.

"Scelsi if you don't buy the CD you won't know about him or his music, why he wrote Aion, an orchestral work in 1961, because the only place this information is written is on the liner notes. Xenakis gets a small amount of recognition because as a modern composer he attempts to address listening in a different language that on first experience can shock listeners in a way. Earlier music addressed a psychological component in us. With these composers we have to do a little work. Sixties audiences rejected it because of abstraction. Not all modern music needs to be abstract and we don't have to step back and rewrite Mozart."

Classics

Don't get McHard wrong. He loves Bach and Tchaikovsky. He plays their compositions with the Southfield Philharmonic as well as lighter music with the Novi Concert Band and Troy Heritage Band. He says he grew up listening to the classics played as background for such popular TV shows as Captain Video (Wagner's Flying Dutchman Overture) and The Lone Ranger (Rossini's William Tell Overture and Liszt's Les Prelude). He would later go on to study French horn and compose music, electronic and symphonic. In July, McHard will lecture on the future of modern music in Paris at the Center for the Composition of Music Iannis Xenakis (formerly Le Ateliers UPIC). One of the topics he'll cover is "Order/Disorder, Discontinuum/Continuum, and Chaos: Perceptual Horizons at the Edge of Tone-Color Transformation."

"It's possible for everybody to like this music," said McHard, a budget analyst for Ford Motor Company for 30 years before retiring. "It's good to like the old but accommodate these later composers. The history books fall very short. Estrada, Schonberg and Xenakis – I put them in the same category as Beethoven but it's a compliment to both."

McHard has his own philosophies about modern music and its composers, and shares them in the book. "There are many ways a listener can prepare him or herself for the onslaught of sound so as to turn it

Fine Arts light up Liberty Fest

Hot stuff: Elaine Jeris doesn't fool around when she's melting glass over a flaming torch in her studio.

Visitors to Canton's Fine Art & Fine Craft Show won't have to worry about Elaine Jeris burning the tent down while demonstrating her lampworking skills over an open torch. Jeris points to the fire extinguisher behind the bench in her studio then jokes about always making sure she has it handy in case things get "too hot."

Jeris is a funny lady. She's sure to keep fellow artists laughing when she fires up her bead making equipment Saturday-Sunday, June 23-24 during the Liberty Fest at Heritage Park.

The Canton artist began making glass beads after taking a class with Peggy Prielozny at Plymouth Beading three years ago.

Playing with color

"With the beads I get to play with colors as compared to what I do as a crown and bridge technician," said Jeris who spends her day making teeth which are all white or shades thereof. "After making two front teeth, I'm neurotic trying to match the color."

Jeris sits down at her torch and the humor heats up. Slowly the glass rod begins to melt over the red-hot flame. This is where the skill comes in as Jeris winds the honey-like substance around a metal rod. Once Jeris is satisfied the size is just right she picks up a graphite paddle to shape the bead taking form before her eyes.

"I learned to work with torches for my day job," said Jeris, whose jewelry is offered for sale at the Bead Gallery in Ann Arbor, Max & Cloe's in Pentwater, and Salon 324 in Northville. "I just love melting and squishing things. The hardest part is not doing it, cleaning up and running out of supplies."

Whimsical to wonderful: Elaine Jeris creates a variety of jewelry from beads. Her glass beads are especially whimsical. The dots and swirls are produced from different techniques.

On the bench

Aside from running to Linden Art Glass in Plymouth for supplies, Jeris enjoys every minute of creating the glass bead bracelets she'll bring to the Canton show.

"I like it because it's portable," said Jeris who will also have a variety of amulet necklaces and earrings made with an off-loom weaving technique. "I just open the drawer and start playing with the different colors of glass rods, but never more than three different colors at a time plus clear or white. I've worked with every color but red. Red is tough to get in glass but I have done pink."

And yellow and robin's egg blue. Green beads are one of her favorites. They remind Jeris of the nature found on the 1-3/4 acres surrounding her home. It is here, sitting on the deck with her rottweiler Buddy, Jeris comes up with ideas for her work.

Deer, rabbits, raccoon drop by to lunch on a dozen different variety of vegetables only to find Jeris "got wise" and fenced the plot in.

"It's beautiful out here," said Jeris motioning to all the greenery around her. "The sky and trees give me inspiration for my work."

Jeris will more than likely find Heritage Park just as stimulating with its beautiful ponds that attract ducks, geese, great blue heron and egret. The setting provides a cool place to show and see paintings, ceramics, photography, and garden art in summer. Now in its 10th year, Canton's festival of the arts offers work by 80 exhibitors, about three-fourths of them new to the show.

Fine Art & Fine Craft Show

Children's book salutes America's history, people

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
STAFF WRITER
lchomin@oe.homecomm.net

A is for America, one of Devin Scillian's favorite topics. For anyone who knows him that comes as no surprise. For readers of his new children's book, that's another story – one he's only too happy to tell.

Scillian grew up in a military family. He moved 12 times and lived in 11 states, the Philippines and Germany by the time he was 18.

"I grew up with definite ideas about patriotism," said Scillian, an anchor for the 5 p.m. and 11 p.m. news on WDIV-TV. "I grew up on army bases and lived all over the country and world. I grew up with ideas of what our country's about. That's not always extended into my work as a journalist. It's great to get back in touch with things that make our country great."

A is for America: An American Alphabet gives 26 reasons to be proud. Coming up with the list was easy for Scillian who answered a call on a Monday from Sleeping Bear Press editor Heather Hughes. Scillian had worked previously with Hughes on his first children's book, Fibblestax. She was looking for authors to continue Sleeping Bear's successful alphabet book series, and Scillian was happy to help.

"By Wednesday, the verses were all done," said Scillian. "I couldn't think of anything else. I was obsessed. It turned into an intense crossword puzzle.

Poetic patriotism: Devin Scillian proudly displays his love of country in a new children's book "A is for America: An American Alphabet."

I turned it into a game of trying to pack in as many things as I could. Writing the verses came easy."

Coming up with all the historical facts and dates for sidebars wasn't as simple. Scillian spent a lot of time searching through books and on the Internet.

"It's a very personal book that touches on stories about Native Americans in World War II helping the U.S. military use the Navajo language as a code. I long thought that was fascinating," said Scillian. "A lot of people can identify with the same stories that resonate with me being American."

A is for America
What: Devin Scillian signs copies of his new children's book
When: Noon Wednesday, June 20
Where: Little Book Shoppe on the Park, 380 South Main St., Plymouth, (734) 455-5220

Making their mark

One of Scillian's favorite letters, X, relays one of the most important reasons for all the flag waving. Scillian uses it to remind us of a time when some people couldn't write their name so they just marked an X on the ballot to vote.

"I like B and M, but X means a lot in a patriotic sense," said Scillian. "When I was first trying to come up with something for X it was difficult. Q can be a hard, Y can be a chore, and of course Z, but the letter X separates the men from the boys. It takes a bit of ingenuity to use. Then I hit on tying it into the election."

"We have artists from Arizona, Arkansas, Minnesota, a native of Venezuela who does sculpture, tile art, and something different for kids, Sandy Candy by Carrie Waterstone of Farmington Hills. It's sugar art that's like sand art," said Joyce Murphy, co-chair of the show with Sharon Dillenbeck. "But we'll also have sand art and ceramic painting for children, and hand-made Teddy bears by Linda March of Plymouth."

But birdhouses, watercolors of old Detroit scenes by Jim Williams of Highland and Paul Adams of Brighton, and antique Michigan photographs by Paul Gilbert of Dearborn aren't the only attractions at Heritage Park during Liberty Fest week. Visitors will have fun watching demonstrations by the Canton Police Department's K-9 Unit, rocking to the sounds of MB2, a brother singing duo from Birmingham, and marveling at the fireworks display.

Smaller setting

"What sets it apart from other fairs is it's manageable, in a smaller setting," said Murphy.

■ Canton Project Arts is hoping visitors make a special effort to visit its cultural and ethnic festival celebrating the diversity of township residents.

"It's a very family oriented event with music, a car show, something for everybody for either participating or viewing."

Canton Project Arts is hoping visitors make a special effort to visit its cultural and ethnic festival celebrating the diversity of township residents. The idea for "Canton Celebrates its People" came about when members of the township's official arts organization were sitting in their informational booth at last year's Fine Art & Fine Craft Show.

"We thought it would bring another dimension to the rest of the Fest," said Dick Dionne, chairman of Canton Project Arts. "The demographics of the community has changed. It's important for people to be aware of culture of other people. We're hoping a person new to this country might visit a display of another country. It's educational in part as well as entertaining."

In addition to featuring costumes, handi-crafts, sculpture, art, and informational materials from China, Ecuador, India, Japan, Scotland, and Spain as well as Muslim culture, "Canton Celebrates its People" with a look at dance forms from India and the Middle East, and an African American group of drummers and dancers, noon to 4 p.m. Saturday, June 23 in the amphitheater in Heritage Park.

Events

Canton Project Arts hosts a variety of events throughout the year including its Canton Fine Arts Competition and Exhibition (Oct. 6-12) at Summit on the Park. Upcoming concerts include chamber music played by an ensemble from the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra 2 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 5 in Heritage Park.

into a productive and satisfying listening experience," said McHard in the book. He provides a discography at the back of the book for those willing to give it a try.

"I wanted to provide a means by which we'll understand modern music in a new light," said McHard. "Modern is an attitude. It addresses sound to work rather than as a method so music can be an avenue to discovery."

Pam Carroll likes X every bit as much as Scillian but struggled at first to find a way to portray its meaning. A is for America: An American Alphabet was the first book the California artist ever illustrated.

"I spent a lot of hours at the local children's library before doing thumbnail sketches," said Carroll. "A few were very hard like X because I was trying to show all of the booth and polling place. Once I narrowed it down to just the hand marking an X, it was easy."

Carroll spent four months capturing the patriotic scenes in acrylic. She usually works in oil creating realistic paintings to sell in galleries in Carmel and Pacific Grove.

"They sent me the text and I read it and read it," said Carroll who's currently working on paintings for Sleeping Bear's G is for the Golden State. "I didn't go alphabetically just with what would come to me. I did a lot of research for A because I felt having a Navajo girl holding the flag in her costume says it all.

"All the while I was working on the book it felt so incredibly patriotic. I had the responsibility to translate what Devin had written so kids would turn the pages and feel patriotic."

Chris Guy thinks many of her customers feel a tinge of warmth when thumbing through A is for America in the Little Book Shoppe on the Park in Plymouth. While she's had several purchase the book because they liked Scillian's Fibblestax, others appreciate the patriotic theme. She hopes many of them return for a signing with Scillian on Wednesday, June 20.

"It's an educational book for any age from 4 to 80. It's for everyone," said Guy who especially likes the letter F which "is for fireworks that fly on the Fourth of July." "It's a great gift, a history book, a book to be proud of."

Scillian hopes readers not only like the book but a companion CD as well when it's released in early July. A is for America is a departure from the country music Scillian usually records.

"I left out so many ideas when I was writing the book so when I was done I started writing kids songs about America," said Scillian who has four children ages 5 to 12. "'What's a Viking to Do' is about Vikings sitting around grousing about Christopher Columbus getting all the credit for discovering America. I wanted it to appeal to all of us musically. So many parents out there are listening to children's albums and they're about ready to snap them in half."

Stroll among the artists at festival in West Bloomfield

On display: Look for Calvin Walton's mixed media zebras at the show.

Sculpture: Judy Shields' mixed media sculpture will be featured at the art festival.

At least 50,000 local residents and tourists are expected to stroll through the parking fields of the Henry Ford Medical Center, on Maple in West Bloomfield, for the 7th Annual West Bloomfield Art Festival on June 23 and 24.

Touting itself as "more fun than Ann Arbor," the event is ranked in the top 100 for art festivals nationwide, according to Sunshine Artist magazine.

"Not only is the art festival a major event for the people of Oakland County, it's a major fund-raiser for the (West Bloomfield) Chamber of Commerce," said Betsy Schneider, executive director.

At least 200 national and international award-winning artists displaying mediums, including metal, woodworking, stained glass, jewelry, oils, Raku pottery, watercolor and more will be at the festival. Live music and food will also be the centers of entertainment.

Several West Bloomfield artists will display their work, including photography by Robert Bartley, Susan Cobb's fiber, Stan and Debbie Megdall's blown glass and Maureen Voorheis' metal and glass. The artists will also attend the event to answer questions.

Entertainment

Pianist Jeffrey Michael, sitarist Stephen Mikes and keyboard/vocalist Kayte Wolf will perform throughout the day.

Mikes' career began at age seven when he played the accordian and then switched to guitar. Through The Beatles, Mikes discovered the sitar. Also skilled on zither and mandolin, he now uses his Indian training to create a mix of Latin, Middle Eastern, Afro-Cuban and Carribean sounds and has performed for events sponsored by Giorgio Armani, Ivana Trump and former U.S. President Bill Clinton's 50th birthday.

Wolf has performed throughout the world as a keyboardist and singer and has sung in the background for several television shows. Michael, a Michigan-based composer, is a self-taught musician who began composing at age 11 and performing at 16. He too has performed worldwide and this summer is writing music for four independent films and plans to release a jazz piano album.

The festival benefits the West Bloomfield Chamber of Commerce.

Hours are 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. on June 23, 24. Admission is free. For more information call (248) 626-3636 or www.ARTFESTIVAL.com

Artist finds success in joys of fatherhood

What: Abelardo Morell and the Camera Eye
Where: The Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward Ave., Detroit
When: Through Sunday, July 22
Information: Call (313) 833-7900

BY ALICE RHEIN
STAFF WRITER

His children are 9 and 15 now, but Cuban-born photographer Abelardo Morell remembers when his son, Brady, was a newborn, and the former street photographer was adapting to life as a new father.

"Once he was born, everything changed," said Morell, whose work is in some of the finest collections in the United States including New York's Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Art Institute of Chicago. "I loved being a new father, but I also felt stuck inside. So I decided to make the apartment the subject."

For the artist who had become known for his large-scale camera obscura images, he said that crawling on the floor and viewing things from a child's angle was quite liberating for him.

Brand new world

"It was a brand new world. I think I became a better artist and father because of it," said Morell, who lives in Massachusetts where he works and teaches. "I tell my students that limitations can make you free to be totally creative. A milk bottle can be inspiration."

Through July 22, the Detroit Institute of Arts is featuring Morell's first major traveling exhibition of photographs entitled Abelardo Morell and the Camera Eye, which features more than 40 large-scale black and white photographs produced over the last decade.

The works explore three major themes, Domestic Objects and Optical Phenomena, The Camera Obscura and Books, Maps and Paintings.

The first theme highlights the world through a child's eye. Viewed from a child's perspective, the top of a playground slide becomes a visual free fall, which explains why many a toddler has to be coaxed down.

The alphabet magnets on a refrigerator look a world away viewed from the kitchen floor. A brown paper bag viewed from above is a monumental void. And pitter-patter footprints on the bathroom floor can't help but bring a small smile to even the most hardened adult.

The first photograph that the Museum of Modern Art in New York bought of Morell's was one of Brady sitting on a small chair. Even my 3-year-old said, "He's sitting in his calming chair," but Morell said his intention was not to make it look like punishment.

Now that his son is a teenager, Morell said he's thinking of taking a similar picture of his son, and placing the two side-by-side.

Ellen Sharp, the DIA's curator of graphic arts, said she's long been intrigued by Morell's work. "He's an important contemporary photographer. His most dramatic work is the camera obscura where he brings the image into a hotel room as if it were imbedded into the room," she said.

What Sharp is referring to are several images in the second major theme of the exhibit in which the artist puts a modern spin on an age-old photography method.

Camera obscura is Latin, meaning dark room or chamber. It reveals the optical phenomenon that occurs when a beam of light enters a darkened space through a small opening. The light projects an inverted image of the outside world onto the opposite wall.

For a photograph he did of Times Square for a 1997 issue of the New York Times Magazine, Morell said that he and his father found a hotel room with a great view. The two then proceeded to cover every square inch of the room with black plastic, made a 3/8-inch hole to record events, and left the room for 16 hours.

"What's curious to me is that millions of people pass through Times Square every day, and not one single person is in the photograph," said Morell.

The reason is because, with such a long camera exposure, a person would literally have to be in the same place for hours before the image would be retained. That's not likely to happen in New York, or anywhere where Morell has used camera obscura.

The final theme is this exhibit highlights Morell's ability to capture the texture and qualities of the printed surface.

Making the ordinary beautiful

Maps, books and paintings are the subject here, and by manipulating them, Morell is able to make these ordinary objects look astonishingly beautiful.

"He makes a page come alive," said Sharp. "It's an unusual feeling and a very original approach."

Morell said he's working on completing photography book for Bulfinch Press, and he'll be gearing up for the last stop on this tour's exhibit, which is scheduled to be at Eastman House in Rochester, New York.

But the past decade of success Morell owes to his children. "Fatherhood opened up a new world with new eyes to see through," he said.

A fitting Father's Day tribute, wouldn't you say?

New cream helps the fight against facial hair

DISCOVERING BEAUTY

MARY ANNE TOCCALINO

Lately, I've been inundated with questions about the prescription cream Vaniqa, which causes me to ask can a cream get rid of unwanted hair for good?

So, in order to learn more about the product, I had clients use the product for a few months and spoke with them about the results.

Many now swear by the cream, which slows – but doesn't completely stop – the growth of facial hair.

Rub a drop of Vaniqa on the hairy spots twice a day and in about one month, the hair will re-grow more sparsely and less noticeably, my clients tell me.

Karan, an insurance representative from Royal Oak and a client of mine, claims "I used to have enough hair on my upper lip that I would get a five o' clock shadow. Instead of waxing once a month, I would have to wax once a week. I viewed this as torture, so Vaniqa has been my knight in shining armor releasing me from my torturer." In this case, her torturer would be me Mary Anne.

Here's what else I've learned about the product.

Vaniqa contains eflornithine hydrochloride, a chemical that blocks the enzyme present in all hair follicles.

The cream, which is bleach and hormone free, works whether you have heavy, coarse hair growth or just a few strands.

Clinical studies have shown that about 60 percent of women who used the cream for 60 days had noticeably less hair re-growth. That not only means they have to tweeze less often but also raises their self-confidence about appearance.

Vaniqa costs about $50 for a month supply.

And because Vaniqa only slows hair growth, rather than stopping it, you'll need to continue with your traditional hair removal regime, whether it be waxing or tweezing.

However, you'll need to use that removal method much less frequently – hallelujah!

If you decide to stop applying Vaniqa – I can't imagine why – your facial hair will return to its normal rate of growth and texture in about one month.

That in mind, I've noticed as a make-up artist that clients who wax their skin have improved their complexion. With reduced waxing and tweezing, there is less tork to the skin.

Make-up also goes on more easily and smoothly when skin has been waxed.

Now, as an esthetician who is constantly chastised for the pain I cause by waxing clients' faces, it's nice to know there's a product out there that reduces the frequency of visits.

I'm going to miss our visits, but I'm pleased that the results are easier and less painful.

Birmingham designer still driving trends in women's golf apparel

STAFF PHOTO BY JERRY ZOLYNSKY

Looking ahead: Karen McCarty stands near the entrance of her Birmingham golf wear boutique Sugar Mag. The store does double duty as a showroom for prospective clothing buyers, but McCarty started her business in a cramped apartment in Birmingham.

BY NICOLE STAFFORD
STAFF WRITER
nstafford@oe.homecomm.net

Four years ago, Karen McCarty set out to create Sugar Mag women's golf wear because the offerings for female golfers did little to flatter the female form.

Traditional golf apparel did even less when it came to stroking a woman's fashion sense.

In other words, McCarty wanted to design clothing for the golf course that didn't look like golf wear. Shorts, skorts, polos and other pieces that could be mistaken for department store sportswear.

"When we started four years ago with doing a lifestyle golf line, we were a rarity, and it was kind of a hard sell," says McCarty from her downtown Birmingham boutique, which does double duty as a showroom for prospective clothing buyers.

Now, the philosophy behind Sugar Mag speaks to current trends in women's golf attire – clothing that can be worn both on and off the course.

So popular is the look that women who don't golf are purchasing the active apparel for their day-to-day wardrobes.

With well known clothing designers like Ralph Lauren and Liz Claiborne getting in on the action and golf's current popularity, it's no surprise that looks for the links are crossing over into everyday sportswear.

McCarty, whose Sugar Mag line is carried in more than 100 pro shops at private clubs and upscale resorts across the country including Arizona, California, Florida and Hawaii, says the competition validates her idea and work.

Preppy chic: Skorts or Capri pants in a print called Pineapple Aloha paired with a hot pink top is the most popular outfit in Sugar Mag's current line of golf apparel.

"Women don't want a separate wardrobe. And they don't need one," she says, pulling examples of separates in her collection that work as well off the greens as they do on them.

Bright colored polos, for instance, can be worn to the office under a suit. "We wear those to meetings with pants and heels," says McCarty.

Or, pair a golf pant with a dressy blouse and cute handbag for a lunch meeting. Other pieces work for a day at the beach or a weekend of camping.

And when a woman comes off the golf course, she simply need take off her cleats and put on a pair of shoes to be dressed for dinner and drinks in the clubhouse.

McCarty began Sugar Mag, which has been housed in its current location for nine months, designing in a cramped Birmingham apartment. Later she moved to a loft space in the city's downtown shopping district. With a little bit more success, including mentions in national magazines like Seventeen and InStyle, she pursued opening a retail store, which unlike most showrooms, enables buyers to see the collection merchandised on the floor.

Downstairs, there are offices where a staff of six attend to marketing, distribution and sales. McCarty's design office is on the first floor next to a meeting room.

Today, McCarty, who describes Sugar Mag as "preppy and kitschy" is designing resort-inspired clothing for everyday wear as well as golf apparel.

The resort-inspired look she's talking about surfaced last summer and was dubbed preppy chic.

But the trend only seems to be gaining in popularity.

"There's a classicism going on in fashion right now," says Gregg Andrews, central states fashion director for Nordstrom, which carries Liz Golf, Calloway and Izod golf wear lines in their Troy store's Active Wear department.

Next March, the retailer plans to add Nike women's golf apparel to the mix, says Andrews.

While Nordstrom's all-season Active Wear department is nothing new, what's changed is the retailer's golf wear customer, says Andrews. "Nordstrom has two types of golf wear shoppers. There's that woman who truly is a golfer. And there's the woman who isn't a golfer and she's buying the apparel because it's comfortable, casual, easy to wear and has the performance qualities of active wear. ... When we talk about Liz Sport and Izod, we're really talking about cross-over lines."

Get away to Stratford for a weekend of drama

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER
hgallagher@oe.homecomm.net

Embattled families seems to be the dominant theme this year at Ontario's Stratford Festival.

In "Merchant of Venice" and "Inherit the Wind" daughters defy their fathers. In "The Sound of Music," the von Trapp family flees the Nazis. Two plays make bitter comedy of marriage. And a cycle of plays – "Henry IV, Part 1," "Falstaff (Henry IV, Part 2)" and "Henry V" takes a desolute young man in conflict with his father from debauchery to heroism.

As usual Stratford offers a rich and varied program of theater in a pleasant small town environment, the perfect place to get away for a week or a weekend.

Here is a sampling of some of this year's productions:

Stratford Schedule

■ At the Festival Theatre
Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice," through Nov. 3
Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night," through Nov. 2
Rodgers & Hammerstein's "The Sound of Music," through Nov. 4
Lawrence & Lee's "Inherit the Wind," July 28 to Nov. 3

■ At the Avon
Shakespeare's "Henry V," through Nov. 4
Noel Coward's "Private Lives," through Nov. 2
Edward Albee's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" through Nov. 3
Anton Chekhov's "The Seagull," July 31 to Nov. 3
Dan Needles' "Wingfield on Ice," Aug. 14 to Oct. 12

■ At the Tom Patterson
Shakespeare's "Henry IV, Part 1," through Sept. 29
Shakespeare's "Henry IV, Part 2 (Falstaff)" through Sept. 29
Richard Rose's "Tempest-Tost," through Sept. 30
Timothy Findley's "The Trials of Ezra Pound," July 8 to Aug. 17
Damien Atkins' "Good Mother," Aug. 16 to Sept. 27

Planning your trip

Ticket information: Call 1(800)567-1600 or access the Web site at www.stratfordfestival.ca

Getting there: To reach Stratford from Detroit, take the Ambassador Bridge to Hwy. 401. Leave 401 at Exit 222, just past Ingersoll, then follow County Road 6 north to Stratford.

Private Lives

Marriage takes a hit in two plays. One, Noel Coward's "Private Lives" is a sparkling comedy with dark undertones. The other, Edward Albee's "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf" is a black comedy that often sparkles with savage wit.

Coward's high style take on the sophisticates of his day has been compared to dry champagne, bubbly but not sweet.

Elyot Chase and his former wife Amanda are anything but sweet. They are the couple "who can't live with each other or without each other." They are sparring partners in a constant game of one upmanship, trading cutting bon mots that escalate from sniping to pitched battles.

As the play opens, they have been divorced from each other for several years and are on their honeymoons with new, less challenging spouses. They show up at the same luxury hotel in adjoining suites and find the old spark is still there.

Theater master Brian Bedford directs and stars as Elyot in this stylish (tuxedos, gowns, drinks always in hand) production. He and Seana McKenna as Amanda are veterans at this sort of oh-so-adult sophisticated banter. They are a bit too old for the characters but make up for this with the snap and precision they bring to Coward's brittle dialogue. Youth could never give those lines the same dripping authority.

Wayne Best as the stolid Victor and Sarah Dodd as the dithery Sibyl dutifully play their parts as foils to their charmingly irresponsible new mates.

Designer John Lee Beatty has moved up the time period from the '20s to the '30s to use Art Deco design, which adds to the sleek style.

For all the play's lightness, Coward had a jaundiced view of marriage and fidelity. Everything seems to swim in an alcoholic haze.

Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf

Speaking of alcohol.

Edward Albee's celebrated laceration of marriage is a stiff drink compared to Coward's champagne. But for all the pain inflicted over a boozy night, this is a true love story, though one of infinite sadness.

This is the dream production of this year's Stratford Festival. Director William Carden takes four superb actors through Albee's hellish, hilarious romp. He never lets "directoral touchs" get in the way of Albee's language and the actors who deliver that language (and the many implied silences) with razor sharp intensity.

The setting is a small college town, early fall 1962. George, a middle-aged history professor, and his wife, Martha, the daughter of the college president, have just arrived home inebriated from the faculty "get-together." Martha has invited over a new, handsome, young biology instructor and his nervous, agitated wife. What follows is a long, alcoholic night of insults, games playing, seduction, betrayal and the shattering of time-honored illusions.

What is surprising and unsettling is how funny Albee makes this hell. His characters make nasty cracks that still reverberate with humor. It is only as the night slogs on to morning that we are drawn into the deep sorrow at the root of George and Martha's fantasy.

Stratford veterans Martha Henry and Peter Donaldson give riveting performances, graced with subtleties that underline the raw exchanges. Henry's is the more flamboyant role. Martha seems the nag from hell, constantly belittling George for his failure to reach her expectations, flaunting her sexuality, always making a scene to keep from breaking down. Donaldson's George is a difficult part. He can be nasty, self defensive and laser sharp with his attacks. Donaldson lacks the faded sexual charm that Richard Burton brought to the screen version, but he has a firm handle on Albee's language and a richly expressive face that projects humanity under all that scorn.

Sean Arbuckle brings strength to Nick, making him more than just a weak target for George's put-downs or Martha's seduction. Claire Jullien is a raw nerve as the timid but manipulative Honey.

Albee aligns himself with the absurdist movement and there is some of that in this work. But at heart, this is a bitterly realistic play, a cruel comedy of two people who love each other so much they destroy each other.

SEASONAL SENSATIONS

DIANE REYNOLDS

Sip iced tea, celebrate summertime

Anyone who knows me is aware that my absolute favorite beverage is tea. I start my day with several cups of hot black tea (Red Rose – or English Breakfast) with lemon, preferably freshly squeezed.

Iced tea is my favorite year-round cold beverage. Once all the research started pouring in about the health benefits of tea, I felt really smug knowing that something I drank and truly enjoyed for so many years was benefiting my health. Life is good.

Now that it's National Iced Tea Month, there's all the more reason to talk about tea. Did you know that 80 percent of the tea Americans drink is iced?

The scoop on tea

Tea is the second most popular beverage worldwide. Tea is a plant food with all varieties originating from the same evergreen plant, camellia sinensis.

Most of the tea harvest becomes black tea, made by exposing tea leaves to air to prompt fermentation. Pekoe and orange pekoe simply refer to the size and grade of a tea leaf, not to flavor. Green tea is the least fermented tea and oolong is a form halfway between green and black.

Herbal "tea" does not come from the camellia sinensis plant and therefore is actually not tea. Herbal teas are mixtures of plant leaves, flowers, roots, spices and flavorings. They vary widely in types and possible health benefits.

Health benefits of real tea

Current research indicates that drinking black, oolong or green tea reduces risk of cancer, heart disease and stroke.Tea contains protective flavonoid antioxidants. One cup of tea has three to five times the antioxidant power of a serving of fruit or vegetables. But by no means should fruits and vegetables be disregarded, as they contain a wealth of health-protective plant substances. Adding one or more daily cups of tea to your healthy food choices is the best approach.

A word about food safety

The true herald to summertime temperatures is the pitcher of sun tea brewing out on the deck. Did you know that all the hours at warm temperatures could actually breed bacteria? The best approach is to cut that outdoor brewing time to a minimum and refrigerate what won't be used.

Enjoy National Iced Tea Month in good health by trying one of the tea recipes that follow. Ahhhh!

HAPPY CAMPERS

Slow cooker helps you enjoy the great outdoors

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER
kabramczyk@oe.homecomm.net

Renee Welton of Plymouth enjoys camping, but completely roughing it isn't her style.

She laughs when you ask about her camping trips, readily admitting to bringing some comforts of home on annual family outings to Higgins Lake State Park.

For her, it's Tranquility Base.

"It's the peacefulness and forgetting about all your troubles, and there's no phone calls or worrying about what you have to do the next day," Welton said. "You just forget about everything."

Happy campers

Welton isn't alone. In a survey conducted by Wirthlin Worldwide for Coleman Co., 80 percent of people who camp three to five times a year feel satisfied with their personal lives compared to 65 percent of non-campers.

Nearly half of those who camp (42 percent) said they enjoy gathering around the campfire with family and friends more than any other aspect of camping.

"In these stressful times, many people treasure the simple pleasures of outdoor lifestyles," said Bill Phillips, Coleman president.

Welton camps with husband, Dan, and daughter, Amanda, 23, and son, Clay, 16, and Amanda's fiance, Mike Lehoczky. Then there's Dan's parents, Dale and Doris Welton, and Dan's brother, Doug and wife, Dawn, Welton, and Dan's sister's family, Diane and Ron Kingsbury, all of Plymouth. Friends Terry and Debby Wasalaski have camped with the family for many years.

Traveling there makes it easy for Renee to forget her troubles. Many diehard campers would prefer truly roughing it and use absolutely no electricity, but Higgins Lake does have electrical hook-ups, so she brings along her Crock-Pot.

"Two years ago, we had so much rain, and we couldn't go out, so I had a magazine with a lot of Crock-Pot recipes," said Welton.

She's made baked ham with pineapple, turkey breast with dressing and mashed potatoes and gravy, and two of the family favorites, Hobo Meatball Stew and Sunday Chicken Supper in the slow cooker.

"Since we usually eat breakfast, then get ready to go to the lake for the day, I can put dinner in the Crock-Pot in the morning, spend the day at the beach (where the families eat a packed lunch by the lake), then when we return, dinner is ready," Welton said.

Getting out

Beth Barnes of Farmington enjoys camping for its simplicity and for "just being out in the open."

"There are no distractions other than a beautiful lake or hiking paths or maybe an ice cream stand," Barnes said. "There aren't any 'To-Do' lists."

Barnes said food preparation is easier if she makes a list of meals beforehand. "I use a large Rubbermaid container or laundry basket to take all the non-perishables in," Barnes said.

Last year Barnes bought a small refrigerator to take camping. "It's a luxury, and people may smirk, but it's much easier and not noisy," Barnes said. Even a customs official teased the family about the refrigerator, stating that they were "roughing it in the great outdoors."

Still, Barnes has her share of recipes for the open flame of the barbecue pit.

Quesadillas and hobo dinners are easy to make, and can be "personalized."

Barnes loves onions in the hobo dinners. Others may not like onions as much, so campers can create their own variations rolled in tin foil, folding the foil, so you can tell it apart.

"The quesadillas are filling and taste good with lots of different condiments," Barnes said. "Barbecue sauce, salsa or sour cream, if you have it, or ketchup and mustard – you name it!"

Strawberries: Reviled, loved ....and sweet

CULINARY ADVENTURES

BRUCE KONOWALOW

Captain Queeg loved them so much he counted them. The Romans ate them. A French doctor by the name of Boteler often has been quoted as saying, "Doubtless God could have made a better berry, but doubtless God never did."

Conversely, they were reviled for many years as being a symbol of bad luck. They cause severe allergic reactions in some people and at the same time over 1 billion pounds of them are sold each year in the United States.

I speak of the strawberry.

This member of the rose family grows both wild and cultivated. It is the first fruit to ripen in the spring. Strawberries are grown in every state of the United States with California the largest producer of the luscious red berries, producing nearly 75 percent of the nation's crop.

Colorful and tasty

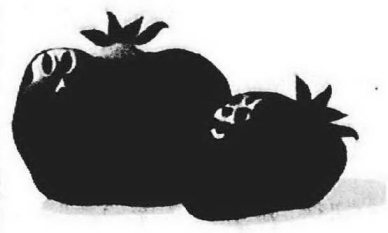
Strawberries are the only fruit with the seeds on the outside of the fruit rather than the inside. They are nutritious as well as colorful and tasty. Eight strawberries can provide 140 percent of the vitamin C requirements for children. One cup of berries provides only 55 calories. For diabetics, the sugar in strawberries is processed more effectively.



Unlike other fruits, strawberries will not ripen after they are picked. The best tasting strawberries tend to be the wild varieties that are smaller in size but packed with flavor. Strawberries can be easily grown by purchasing or transplanting strawberry plants. The plants send out little runners, which spread outward and create new plants.

It's versatile

It is believed that the name strawberry is derived from the Anglo-Saxon verb strew (to spread) combined with their word for fruit it was originally called a Streabergen but later pronounced "strawberry" in English. Whether that is true or not matters little to the true aficionado of the strawberry.

This versatile fruit can be used in savory dishes and dressings, jams and jellies, sweet desserts, and tangy confections using acidic counterpoints like vinegar and spicy accompaniments like black pepper.

If you can pick your own, you will have a superior product. Strawberries are fragile and should be consumed within two days of picking. Keep them unwashed and refrigerated until you are ready to eat them. They can be sandy, so rinse them well and dry them in some paper toweling. Try the recipes inside Taste for some unusual uses of this ubiquitous berry.

Use a strawberry vinaigrette as a salad dressing or a dipping sauce to serve with roasted chicken. If you want to be a little adventurous, I've used a recipe for a fresh fruit soufflé that I have been using for over 20 years. A soufflé is composed of a base and of egg whites beaten until stiff. The great Chef Eugene Bernard, who ruled over the Escoffier Room kitchen at the Culinary Institute of America, gave this recipe to me. Chef Bernard never made mistakes. Follow his recipe and you will have the perfect soufflé. A soufflé is composed of a base and of egg whites beaten until stiff.

In addition, the new in-store supermarket giveaways give children all across America lots of chances to win "blue bucks" scholarships at the local level.

"We're thrilled to be giving away more than $2 million in scholarships this year with the introduction of the new local in-store supermarket giveaways," said Ric Brockmeier, senior brand manager. "This is an excellent way to reward our loyal fans, kids, with even more opportunities for a chance to win a scholarship to help finance a top-notch education."

This year, kids 4-12 as of July 31, 2001, can enter the national "I Want the Blues!" contest in one of three ways. They can create any written entry, such as a poem, jingle or story (no more than 100 words); create a flat drawing on an 8-1/2-by-11-inch piece of paper; or make a video entry by performing through acting, singing, dancing or any other manner (maximum length of video is two minutes, and entry must be submitted on a standard VHS cassette videotape).

In all the entries, kids are asked to express how much they love Kraft Macaroni & Cheese.

Entries will be divided into three age groups: 4-6, 7-9 and 10-12. In each age group, there will be four winners (one written, one video, two drawings) for a total of 12 new Blue Box Kids. All entries will be judged on creativity and originality and appropriateness to contest theme.

Honorable mention prize packages will be awarded to 48 runners-up in the national contest. This prize includes a year's supply of Kraft Macaroni & Cheese (48 boxes), an honorable mention certificate and an "I'm a Blue Box Kid!" T-shirt.

STRAWBERRY VINAIGRETTE

Zest of one orange and 1/2 of lime
1 cup of water (or chicken stock, if you are using vinaigrette as a meat dipping sauce)
10 medium-sized strawberries with the stem removed
1 teaspoon raspberry vinegar (can substitute red wine vinegar)
1 teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon extra virgin olive oil
1/2 teaspoon fresh grated ginger
Kosher salt, to taste
Fresh ground black pepper, to taste

Combine the orange and lime zest in place in a saucepan with 1/2 cup of water. Bring the water to a boil and then reduce heat to a simmer for 3 minutes. Drain through a strainer and discard the water.

In a blender, add the berries and the zest. Blend briefly then add the vinegar, sugar, and 1/2 cup of water, oil and ginger. Blend until completely smooth. Season with salt and pepper.

STRAWBERRY SOUFFLÉ

12 ounces fresh strawberries
2 cups (10 ounces) sugar
3/4 cup (about 3 ounces) flour
1 teaspoon lemon juice
12 eggs, separated

Puree 10 ounces of strawberries, reserving 2 ounces for later use. Add the sugar, flour and lemon juice to the puree. Place the mixture in a saucepot and bring it to a boil until it forms a thick paste. Remove from the fire and let it cool.

When the mixture is just slightly warm, whisk in the 12 egg yolks, one at a time. Dice the remaining 2 ounces of reserved fruit.

Prepare a soufflé dish (2 quart) by buttering the inside of the dish and then sprinkling in some granulated sugar to coat the bottom and sides of the soufflé dish.

Beat the egg whites until stiff and gently fold the egg whites into the pureed strawberry base using a rubber spatula. Add the diced fruit and fold again.

Bake in a water bath in a 350° F oven for 20 minutes. (A water bath is a pan filled with enough water to come up 1/3 of the way up the side of the souffle dish.) Serve directly out of the oven. Serves 4-6 people.

Serve with a fruit sauce of your choice. You can make a simple fruit sauce by pureeing berries and adding just a little sugar to taste, boil the mixture and then strain it through a sieve, then if you'd like, add a liqueur or brandy to taste.

Ballymaloe brown: Molasses and wheat flour brown up this loaf of bread nicely.

Bread baking made simple with these tips to check yeast

BY DANA JACOBI
SPECIAL WRITER

There was a time when I would confidently make a three-layer devil's food cake from scratch, complete with marshmallow frosting but would hesitate at baking a simple loaf of bread. The cake tasted great even when it was not picture perfect. My bread-baking results, on the other hand, were sometimes inedible, adding insult to injury after hours of diligent work.

To master my fear of working with yeast, I selected a recipe for a loaf I liked enough to eat every day. I've now made this recipe often enough to promise that it will let you conquer bread-baking without fear of failing.

Equally important, it takes little time to make.

This is a batter bread, which doesn't require kneading. Instead, it is vigorously stirred then turned directly into the baking pan. This eliminates guessing about whether it is properly kneaded as well as the mess of a doughy board and flour strewn about. This loaf rises just once, so it takes about the same amount of time as your favorite zucchini or banana bread.

The recipe is adapted from Myrtle Allen's Cooking in Ballymaloe House, a cookbook from one of Ireland's great restaurants. This light and pleasant whole-grain loaf is delightful toasted, for sandwiches or to accompany soups and salads. It conquers any prejudice about whole wheat bread.

For success, always follow two suggestions. First, measure the yeast, which avoids the problem of active dry yeast packets whose weight can vary as much as 20 percent.

Second, go by visual cues during proofing (a test to ensure yeast is alive, "proven" if it swells and bubbles when steeped in a warm liquid) and the rising period. Set a timer for less than the recipe calls for and check how the yeast mixture, or the loaf, looks. This reduces the risk of the yeast losing power from sitting too long in a warm kitchen after it dissolves or the loaf collapsing during baking, as it does if it over-rises before going into the oven.

BALLYMALOE BROWN BREAD

- 1 teaspoon butter
- 3 1/3 cups (14 ounces) whole wheat flour, preferably stone-ground
- 1/2 cup (2 ounces) unbleached white bread flour
- 2 teaspoons salt
- 1 tablespoon unsulphured molasses
- 2 cups lukewarm water (100-115 degrees)
- 2 tablespoons dry active yeast (about 2 1/2 packages)

Use butter to generously grease light-colored 9-by-5-by-3-inch bread pan. Set pan aside. Set rack in center of oven.

In large bowl, combine whole wheat and white flour with salt. To warm flour and bowl, set in gas oven with pilot light or electric oven on lowest possible setting.

In small bowl, mix molasses into 1/2 cup of water. Sprinkle yeast over liquid. Set aside until yeast is dissolved and foamy, about 5 minutes.

Remove warmed bowl of flour from oven. Preheat oven to 450°F.

Using wooden spoon, mix yeast and remaining 1 1/2 cups water into flour until sticky dough forms. Mixture will seem dry at first but gets wetter as stirred. It will partially pull away from sides of bowl but remain sticky and too soft to knead. Turn dough into prepared baking pan.

Cover pan with dish towel. Set in warm, draft-free place until dough doubles in volume, 10 to 15 minutes, and is slightly below edge of pan.

Bake 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 425° F. Bake 20 minutes, or until loaf sounds hollow when tapped in center of top and bottom of pan.

Crust will be dark brown and hard. If loaf is very dark but still moist in center, turn off oven. Remove bread from pan and let it sit in oven 5 minutes. Remove and let cool completely on rack before slicing.

Makes one 9-inch loaf, or about 18 slices.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

New U-M affiliate

St. John Health System has signed an affiliation agreement with the University of Michigan Health System to become part of the University of Michigan Cancer Center Network, a growing group of select hospitals and physician practices throughout the region dedicated to improving cancer care.

"As one of the largest providers of cancer care in the state, we are excited to partner with the U-M, which is recognized nationally in cancer research and treatment. Together, we see over 14,000 new cancer cases every year, making us the leader in cancer care treatment in this region," says Elliot Joseph, president and CEO of St. John Health System.

"Our agreement with St. John Health System – one of the major providers of cancer care in the Detroit urban and suburban areas – increases the number of cancer patients who can benefit from these treatment advances. It allows patients to receive the latest care close to home and access, if needed, the specialized clinics of one of the top cancer care programs in the country," says Max S. Wicha, MD, director of the U-M Comprehensive Cancer Center.

The affiliation agreement involves all hospitals affiliated with St. John Health System. Providence Hospital and Medical Centers, SJHS's newest member, is already affiliated with the U-M. Meanwhile, talks will continue involving an expanded affiliation with the Michigan Region of Ascension Health, the parent organization of SJHS as well as Ascension Health, the largest Catholic health system in the country, spanning 15 states.

Swallowing disorders

Two new brochures focusing on swallowing disorders from the American Speech-Language-Hearing Association are available free of charge to consumers.

Feeding and Swallowing Problems in Children and Swallowing Problems in Adults discuss some of the causes and symptoms of swallowing disorders, or dysphagia, as well as how swallowing problems can lead to poor nutrition, dehydration, or pneumonia in both children and adults. The brochures also examine the different phases at which problems can occur in the swallowing process – from difficulty chewing or moving food or liquid from the mouth to the throat, to problems in squeezing food through the esophagus. In addition, the brochures address the role of the speech-language pathologist in evaluating and treating dysphagia.

Consumers can receive the brochures by calling ASHA's toll-free HELPLINE at 1-800-638-8255. Consumers may also view the brochures online, as well as obtain referrals to qualified speech-language pathologists and access additional information on speech, language and hearing development and disorders by visiting ASHA Web site at www.asha.org.

Brittle bone fractures

William Beaumont Hospital is the only Michigan site participating in a research study to test an experimental balloon technique to treat painful fractured back bones that result from osteoporosis. Research participants must have a compression fracture of eight weeks or less duration that is due to osteoporosis in the thoracic or lumbar area (chest level to lower back) of the spine. They must be at least 40 years old. Participation is for two years. Call Dr. Eeric Truumees at (248) 663-1900.

Daughter's kidney spares father life on dialysis

BY RENÉE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER
rskoglund@oe.homecomm.net

On a warm Sunday afternoon, Dan Andrew, 70, and his family gathered in his Livonia home for a celebratory dinner. There was his wife, Mary Lou, daughters Michelle Andrew-Bearman and Ann King, and Ann's husband, Steve. Dan planned to grill steaks and enjoy Steve's usual off-the-wall humor. The following Tuesday, May 22, he would undergo a kidney transplant at Henry Ford Hospital in Detroit. Ann would be the donor.

Hopefully, the surgery would mark the beginning of a new life for Dan, one free of dialysis. He was suffering from a rare kidney disease with a big name, membranous proliferative glomerular nephritis, that kept him on dialysis three times a week since August.

"I probably had the disease eight or 10 years and didn't know it," he said.

When it became clear late last year that Dan would need a kidney transplant from a live donor (he was not a candidate for a cadaver kidney), Ann didn't hesitate to offer one of her kidneys. She was young, strong and in very good health. And she had fully researched the laparoscopic surgery she would have – two search-and-find camera holes, two entry holes to detach the renal arteries, and one five-inch incision above the pelvic crest to remove the kidney. No big deal. She could do it.

"I'm excited. I'm not scared," she said.

Some of her friends had mixed reactions. "Some people have really cried and acted as if it was my last dying day. Some are flabbergasted," she said.

Initially, Mary Lou was fearful for her daughter. What if something happened to Ann after she donated the kidney? What if her remaining kidney developed problems? However, Mary Lou knew Ann was determined.

"Ann is a giver," she said. "Some people are takers, but all her life she's been a giver. I was weepy at first knowing my daughter would lose a kidney, but Ann said, 'What's the difference if I pop out a kidney or a baby?'"

For Ann, donating a kidney would be a way of giving back to a man she and Michelle call "the best father in the universe."

Preparation

The first cross-matching tests done in January showed Ann would be a suitable donor. Both Ann and Michelle celebrated. "My biggest concern was to let Dad have that window of opportunity. For me, it was a miracle. My prayers had been answered," said Michelle.

Ann underwent a battery of additional tests, including a heart stress test, renalgram, CAT scan, blood tests to make sure she was infection-free, and a psychological exam. "They wanted to know if this was my choice, what my expectations were of giving a kidney, and how I'd feel if my father's body rejected it."

She was told that once her kidney was removed and transplanted into Dan's body, it would become "his" kidney. Ann understood. "I've been talking to this kidney, telling it you have been such a good kidney and now you must be good to Dad," she said.

While Steve had some concerns about his wife losing a kidney, he supported her decision. "I'm very proud of her. This is something she wants to do. My first thought was if it (the cross-match testing) doesn't work out, I'll be No. 2. Fortunately, God has blessed us in our bodies. We need only one kidney."

The surgery originally was scheduled for May 9, but Dan developed an infection in his colon. His white blood count soared. The family, strong believers in the healing power of positive thinking and prayer, went into action.

"Within three days he was healed," said Steve.

"That's the power of prayer," said Dan.

"His body went into gear and said, 'Whoa, cells. Get well," said Ann.

Dan joked that it's destiny he receive a new kidney. "I had my appendix removed when I was 9 years old because I knew I'd get this kidney. I now have space available. And the scar is practically gone, so I need a new one."

Less invasive kidney transplant procedure yields more donors

BY RENÉE SKOGLUND
STAFF WRITER
rskoglund@oe.homecomm.net

Besides having two healthy kidneys and a compatible blood group, the primary qualification for becoming a kidney donor is the willingness to donate, said Dr. John Ferrara, vice chairman of general surgery at Henry Ford Hospital. Body size doesn't matter.

"Heavier people are great candidates," said Ferrara. "People think they have to be small and have a pristine body. They don't."

Today, almost all living donor kidneys performed at Henry Ford Hospital are removed through laparoscopic surgery. It is less invasive and requires less recovery time than the standard open surgery, which involves a large incision on the flank and removal of a rib. (See illustration on page D5.)

"We can take it all out through three small holes," said Ferrara.

The laparoscope, a tiny telescope, allows the surgeon to see inside the body without needing to make the 6- or 7-inch-long cuts that are typical in open surgery. Specially designed small surgical instruments are inserted through 1/4- to 1/2-inch-long incisions, resulting in minimal tissue damage. With the laparoscopic method there is no need for the surgeon to cut through large amounts of skin and muscle.

"When a kidney is being extracted you make a very tiny incision that fits your hand. The incision is just above the pubic bone, like a cesarean section incision," said Ferrara. "Pain is minimal, recovery is fast and outcomes are very good."

The increase in laparoscopic, live donor nephrectomies is strongly patient-driven, said Ferrara. Until recently, disincentives for being a kidney donor included unattractive scarring (a concern for some female donors), a hospital stay of five to eight days, significant post-operative pain and up to six weeks of recovery.

"Many would-be donors who have commitments to work and other activities simply can't afford to take six weeks off from their job. With current surgical techniques, kidney donors are back to daily living, including returning to work, in two or three weeks," he said.

Donors should not worry about living life with one kidney. "Even when you go down to half a kidney, you still have more than you need," said Dr. Marwan Abouljoud, division head of transplant surgery at Henry Ford Hospital.

And then there's the component of giving a "gift of life." Renal transplantation, the only treatment for end-stage renal disease (ESRD) can give patients an independent lifestyle free from dialysis. Each year approximately 50,000 Americans are diagnosed with ESRD, which can result in death without constant dialysis or a kidney transplant.

"People who are of medium risk are still better with a kidney transplant than being on dialysis," said Abouljoud. And while the average age of a kidney recipient is the mid-40s, statistically, much older recipients as a group do better with a kidney transplant.

Transplant surgery of the future is only going to get better, said Ferrara. For a general surgeon, these are exciting times, he added. "I'm really doing something where I'm not just helping one life but two."

LAPAROSCOPIC OPERATION

With the Laparoscopic method, the incision is smaller and the hospital stay and recovery times are shorter.

| | LAPAROSCOPIC OPERATION | STANDARD OPERATION |
|---|---|---|
| INCISION SITE | Abdomen | Flank/Rib Removed |
| INCISION SIZE | Shorter (3 inches) | Longer (6 inches) |
| HOSPITAL STAY | 1 - 2 days | 4 days |
| RECOVERY | 2 - 3 weeks | 4-6 weeks |
| DISCOMFORT | Minimal | Moderate |

Persons who donate a kidney have to do so voluntarily, and under no pressure. They also have to be healthy and have a blood group compatible with that of the donor. Usually, the donor is related to the recipient. however, unrelated persons, such as spouses and close friends, can donate too.

Surgery day

Dan, Mary Lou, Ann and Steve arrive at Henry Ford Hospital by 6 a.m. Ann and Dan will each have their own surgical team. Dan's surgery will begin about an hour before Ann's is completed. It will be a long day for Mary Lou and Steve.

Ann is taken into surgery at 8 a.m. By 11 a.m. she is in recovery. She has one hole less than anticipated, and her incision is smaller than what Dr. John Ferrara, her surgeon, expected. Groggy, she complains of pain. Steve helps her find her self-medicate button.

"As soon as we saw Ann the sun broke through," said Steve. "And she's a break-through kind of person. That was God smiling at us."

"They said Ann's kidney was wonderful and her vessels were wonderful," says Mary Lou.

Steve is anxious for Ann to be transferred to her own room. Mary Lou warns him about making Ann laugh. No funny imitations, she says. Steve can't resist teasing his mother-in-law. "When Ann gets to her room, she's fair game," he jokes.

Mary Lou is relieved that at least one surgery is over. She is impatient for an update on her husband. At 1:30 p.m., he was half-way through surgery. At 3 p.m. she looks at the clock. "Come on, Danny boy," she says softly.

Sometime after 4 p.m. Dan's surgeon, Dr. Marwan S. Abouljoud, division head of transplant surgery, approaches the family. Surgery took a longer than expected, he says. Dan had some hardening of the arteries that made "hook-up" a bit more difficult.

Embrace: Ann and her dad give each other one last hug before she leaves the hospital after the transplant. It would be several days before Dan was able to leave the hospital and join his family at home.

"He was not the average John Doe," says Abouljoud.

When Mary Lou expresses concern, Abouljoud assures her that Dan is doing fine. His circulation is adequate. "We all rely on collateral arteries more than you think," says Abouljoud.

Once he recovers, Dan must start walking twice a day to build better circulation in his legs. "He has to work at that pace, not just strolling and looking at the roses," says Abouljoud.

At home

Ann came home three days after her surgery. Dan developed a complication with his bowel unrelated to the kidney transplant and needed additional surgery. He remained in the hospital several days.

Father and daughter are now doing well. Ann required more rest than she anticipated, but last week she began driving. "It's given her freedom back," said Dan.

Mary Lou, who always wanted to be a nurse, is busy taking care of Dan. He is getting stronger every day. He must avoid crowds for several weeks, but that's OK. Mary Lou prepares his favorite meals and makes sure the freezer is well-stocked with ice cream. She doesn't get as much housework done, but at least Dan is home. Last week they celebrated their 52nd wedding anniversary.

And Dan's new kidney is functioning just fine.

"That new kidney does better in me than in Ann," he joked.

Drug helps kidney transplant patients fare better long-term

ANN ARBOR - A reformulation of the "gold standard" drug against kidney transplant rejection not only costs less and gets absorbed better, it also helps transplant recipients keep their new organs longer.

That's the finding of a new University of Michigan Health System study that answers a question pondered by transplant physicians and tens of thousands of transplant patients for nearly six years: Was there any long-term advantage to using one form of cyclosporine or the other?

The new data suggest there was indeed. Patients who took the microemulsion form of the drug, introduced in 1995, had a significantly lower risk of suffering chronic failure of their transplanted kidney than those who used the older form of the same drug. The results, from one of the largest studies of its kind, was presented May 14 in Chicago at Transplant 2001, the annual meeting of the American Society of Transplantation.

"As the pharmaceutical industry continues to introduce new forms of established medications, we who care for patients must constantly ask the question, 'Is this really an improvement overall?'," says Dr. Bruce Kaplan, co-author of the study and associate professor of nephrology in the U-M Medical School and co-medical director of renal transplantation at UMHS.

"In the case of cyclosporine, it appears the answer is yes all around."

Study

The study looked back at the experiences of 29,786 people who received kidney transplants between 1994 and 1997, and whose medical histories were recorded anonymously by the United States Renal Data System.

Kaplan worked with co-author Herwig-Ulf Meier-Kriesche, M.D., an assistant professor of nephrology at UMMS, to sort out which patients had been treated with the older and newer forms of cyclosporine, and how they fared during the first four years after their transplant.

Since the new form of cyclosporine has already been shown to reduce acute rejection, the researchers were most interested in the issue of long- term kidney, or allograft, survival; patients who lost their new kidneys within 6 months of transplant were excluded. Differences in patient gender, race, use of other medications and other factors were corrected for.

In all, 92.4 percent of those who used the newer form of cyclosporine still had their new kidneys four years after their transplant, compared with 86.7 percent of those who took the older form. Those taking the newer drug had a 0.60 relative risk of chronic transplant failure when compared taking the older form.

Cyclosporine, derived from fungus and used for nearly two decades as the "gold standard" drug to prevent transplant recipients from rejecting their new organs and tissues, is the most widely used transplant drug in the world.

The effectiveness of the drug – and its tendency to cause side effects – varies with the amount that reaches the patient's bloodstream after being swallowed. The original form of cyclosporine was absorbed differently by different patients depending on their body's ability to produce digestive juices or even what they ate.

So, the newer formulation introduced in 1995 under the name Neoral was looked upon as an improvement because its microemulsion form made cyclosporine available in the body more consistently and in more patients. The lower cost of the new form was seen as an added benefit.

As a result, most transplant programs, including the U-M's, switched to the new form in the mid-1990s, making it part of the post-transplant regimen of nearly all organ recipients. More than 13,000 people receive a new kidney or kidney and pancreas each year.

A similar drug, tacrolimus, or FK506, also became available to patients during the same time period. Since then, generic versions of reformulated cyclosporine have come on the market.

Meanwhile, another medication, mycophenolate mofetil, or MMF, has reached widespread use as an anti-rejection drug to be taken along with cyclosporine.

New study

Kaplan and Meier-Kriesche embarked on the new study to assess the long-term effect of the trend toward using the newer drugs. They used the USRDS, which until 1999 was based at UMHS, and which collects, analyzes and distributes data on end-stage renal disease and provides a basis for research like the new U-M study.

The study's results, Kaplan and Meier-Kriesche say, offer "strong advocacy" for the use of the newer form of cyclosporine over the old for aiding long-term allograft survival, whether or not MMF is also taken.

"This reaffirms the important role of the calcineurin inhibitors, such as cyclosporine and tacrolimus, for long-term survival of a transplanted kidney," Kaplan concludes. "This is important because nearly all transplant recipients in the U.S. rely on these drugs to improve their chances of maintaining their new organs."

Disclosure: Although this study was not funded by Novartis, the manufacturer of Neoral, Dr. Kaplan received funding for other studies of anti-rejection medications from the company.

Make sure older children's immunizations are current

Every parent needs to be reminded of the importance of not just immunizing babies but older children, too.

By the age of two, children should have received vaccines to protect them against 11 diseases: Diphtheria, tetanus, pertussis, polio, measles, mumps, rubella, hepatitis B, chicken pox, Hib meningitis and rotavirus. But immunization does not end with toddlers. Another round of boosters is required as children enter kindergarten and again before seventh grade.

The chicken pox (varicella) vaccine, which has been in the U.S. only since 1995, can be given at any age. In fact, The American Academy of Pediatrics recommends anyone who has never had the vaccine or contracted chicken pox be immunized as soon as possible because the disease is much more severe in adolescents and adults. Those over age 13 need two doses.

What's the problem

The problem: Bigger kids are old enough to know that immunizations hurt. The fear of needles is stronger when it can be fully comprehended. However, there is a solution. Parents can ask their doctors to spray Gebauer's Ethyl Chloride on the skin immediately before they administer a vaccine. Instantly the injection site is cooled and numb, and shots are pain-free. The anesthetic wears off in about two minutes.

In addition to controlling illness, another compelling reason to keep kids' booster shots up to date is to keep them in class. State laws require that immunizations be current for every student or they cannot attend school.

DEALING WITH THE MUSCLE PAIN OF FIBROMYALGIA
If you have fibromyalgia, your goal should be to get your muscles before your muscles get to you. The same point holds for myofascial, and chronic fatigue syndrome.
In all three conditions, muscles are the source of pain. The reason for the aching and tenderness is unclear and makes rational treatment difficult. What is known is that anti-inflammatory drugs, muscle relaxants, anti-depressant, and anti-anxiety medications are inconsistent in their results.
What works best is exercise. However, the exercise needs to be consistent, vigorous enough to work up a sweat, and done early. That is the message in the statement: get to your muscles before your muscles get to you.
Physical therapy is often prescribed for fibromyalgia. However, if you schedule it for the end of the day, or even early in the morning but after chores, you compromise the good effect of activity. Even a few hours delay suffices to bring muscles to a state that leads to aching and discomfort. Once started, the pain will grab you through the day and disrupt restful sleep.
Success in overcoming this pain depends on being able to raise in the morning and immediately undertake the walking, jogging, bike riding, or exercise that suits your temperament and situation.
What if your responsibilities to family or work are such that you cannot undertake early exercise? You must either re-arrange your schedule, or accept that for the foreseeable future, you will be limited by your fibromyalgia.

It's buyer's choice at Carriage Club

Homestead model: This two story of 2,510 square feet with four bedrooms, great room and dining room is the largest offered by Healy Homes at Carriage Club.

Buyers may choose among ranches, two story and story-and-a-half in the second phase at Carriage Club, a platted community in Lyon Township.

Healy Homes is preparing to bring another 100 lots on line in the residential development at 11 Mile Road and Martindale.

(Healy and builder Mike Wickham, (248) 446-1070, each still have a handful of lots available in phase one at Carriage Club.)

"We're fairly price conscious," said Jack Healy. "We try to give moderate prices with a high value."

"Price for this area, Jack studies it carefully and tries to keep just under it," said Jill A. May, sales representative.

Healy offers eight floor plans at Carriage Club.

They range in price from $232,900 for a ranch of 1,750 square feet with three bedrooms and two baths to $268,900 for a two story of 2,510 square feet with four bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths.

"We do a lot of custom homes," Healy said. "People modify. They could add 100 feet in the master, a bay window. People may add a larger garage."

"Everyone wants something different," Way said. "We listen to what they want. We make those changes if we can."

"We give good service," Healy added. "It takes a long time to build. We want to make it enjoyable."

All Healy Homes at Carriage Club include at base price two-car garage, fireplace, first floor laundry, dishwasher, basement with brick-like face wall, wood flooring in the foyer, carpeting throughout and a $600 light fixture allowance.

Air conditioning ($2,500-$2,700) is an upgrade.

"We have a lot of good floor plans," Way said. "They (visitors) like the openness, love the fireplace, love the kitchen. It's big, open. They love the cabinetry."

Purchasers in Carriage Club will enjoy more than just their homes.

"We've attracted a lot of families with kids," Healy said. "We have quite a bit of open space. We have a community soccer field, playground equipment, some wetlands people enjoy for nature."

Several golf courses, Kensington Metropark and Island Lake State Recreation Area are a short drive away, as is access to I-96.

"It's close to the expressway but you still have a country feeling," Healy said.

Healy has constructed two models.

The Homestead, his largest at 2,510 square feet, features a two-story foyer, formal dining room, study/living room, great room with volume ceiling and kitchen/nook with island on the main floor.

The stairs leading to the second floor are fairly secluded from the main entrance.

All four bedrooms are upstairs. The master contains a separate tub and shower and walk-in closet. A full bath with combination tub and shower serves the secondary bedrooms.

Base price of the Homestead is $268,900, the model with upgrades about $315,000.

The Teakwood, 2,242 square feet, features a study, living room, dining room, kitchen/nook with island and a step-down family room with cathedral ceiling.

The master, with separate tub and shower and walk-in closet, is upstairs, as are three other bedrooms and a full bath.

Base price is $248,300, the model with upgrades about $265,000.

Carriage Club is served by an on-site community water well and sewers. It's within the South Lyon school boundaries. A sidewalk will go along the perimeter of the development.

The property tax rate is $27.76 per $1,000 of state taxable value, half of sales price for new construction. That means the owners of a $250,000 home there would pay about $3,500 the first year.

The annual association fee is projected at $130.

Shelley and Chuck Trask bought a story-and-a-half from Healy.

"It's pretty country out there," Shelley said. "He has a good value. His homes aren't cookie-cutter. He lets you change."

Shelley preferred a great room to a living room/dining room combination and put her computer in the study.

"I think his houses look nice driving down the street," Shelley added. "As far as warranty work, he's always there."

Living rooms: Gotta' have or wasted space?

STUART MICHAELSON

Have you noticed how living rooms aren't included in all homes today?

In some versions of the American dream, prospective home buyers have crossed the living room off their wish lists while others won't sacrifice the living room's elegant appeal.

Many builders offer "optional space" rooms that are suitable for almost anything but a kitchen. Some people use them as studies or home offices, some as spare bedrooms. Others use them as living rooms.

Today, living rooms are generally smaller. In 1978, the average living room in an "upscale" home was 20-by-14 feet. Now, a living room in a comparable home measures 15-by-13 feet. However, the typical great room today, which used to be more like a home entertainment area, now spans 20-by-15 feet.

The question is: do you want to live without a living room? Also, why do others decide whether or not to include the old standard in their new home? Before choosing, it helps to consider the living room's positives and negatives.

Advantages of the Living Room

Living rooms add an air of sophistication to your home.

They provide a quiet retreat away from the noisy television set and other distractions.

Living rooms provide space to display your finest pieces of furniture.

The living room is an American tradition.

Living rooms provide the appropriate setting to host your business associates and other visitors.

Living rooms are the perfect location for family and holiday celebrations. In the living room, you can take photographs of important special events for the people in your household.

Disadvantages of Living Room

Some consider living rooms too stuffy and unapproachable. Today, many Americans live more informally and casually, so living rooms don't fit their lifestyles.

Many home buyers don't appreciate the "museum-like" quality of the living room. If you don't want to use the living room as a retreat or a place to display fine furnishings, you may prefer that the space be used for other purposes.

An entertainment room or great room can serve the same basic functions for personal activities or entertaining guests.

In the end, you choose the formal appeal of the living room or the casual style of a great room or family room attached to the kitchen, which is where many guests seem to end up anyway.

Michigan Mortgage Reality Check

Consumer Mortgage Advisory #10: Know all of the fees.

Lender mortgage fees typically run $600 to $800, plus the cost of title insurance. However, some companies may charge $2,000 to $4,000 or even more. Higher fees should buy you a lower interest rate. Know what your true costs are; what you're getting for your money and whether it's worth it. Always check at least three lenders.

MEYERS ON MORTGAGES

YOUR CREDIT AND BUYING A HOME

by GARY S. MEYERS

Will bad credit two years ago keep you out of the housing market? Does a real estate agent have a right to see your credit application? Today The Meyers Report gets answers to readers questions from the experts.

Q. We are purchasing a home. The seller's real estate agent asked my bank for a copy of the mortgage loan application. Do they have a right to see that? Why would they want to look at it?

A. Usually the seller's agent asks for a pre-approval letter, not the application itself. It's against the law for a lender to disclose debt to a third party without the borrower's approval. Your loan application has information about your debt.

"We, as bankers, know how private this information is," Tom Drozdz, residential mortgage originator for Archer Bank, said. "If I was the borrower, I would say no and tell them to call my banker. My banker will tell the real estate agent whether or not he thinks the loan will go through."

Q. When I was a college student my credit rating went from good to bad. During the last two years, since I have been out of school, I have tried to keep current with all of my bills, such as telephone, rent and utilities. I want to buy a house in the next two to three years and was wondering if I continued my path of keeping my bills current, will my past credit problems have a big effect when I go looking for a mortgage? The credit card bills I got in school, I haven't paid in five years thus far.

A. You will have to pay off all your outstanding collections, Rick Deleon, branch manager for Allied Mortgage Capital Corporation, said. Most lenders look for 24 months of a clean history, providing you have no bankruptcies or foreclosures in your past. That is time enough to re-establish your good credit. If you have cleaned up your bills, you may qualify for an FHA loan. For more details, check out Allied Mortgage's web site: www.nolandlord.com.

Q. My wife and I had a bankruptcy that was discharged two and a half years ago. It was only on credit card debt. We reaffirmed our house and two car loans. We want to start looking at a new house, but are unsure how this will affect getting a new mortgage.

A. "The bankruptcy does not prevent you from getting a new mortgage," Jeff Bock, retail manager for North American Mortgage, said. "Your rate and loan to value will fluctuate depending on how the rest of your credit report looks." Lenders will be looking for stability — how you have repaid other creditors, your earnings, and if your mortgage has been paid on time.

Most lenders will not process a loan less than two years after a Chapter 7 bankruptcy is discharged. A few will take an application as little as one day later, but require the borrower have at least 20 percent down. If someone has filed for a Chapter 13 bankruptcy, the borrower will be required to pay off his/her debts out of the loan first.

Q. My husband and I are trying to get a mortgage to buy a new home in the Plainfield, IL area. We already own a home and plan on selling it. The money we make from the sale will be used toward a down payment on a new home. We have had credit problems — been late on our mortgage and car payment, but not all the time. My husband has been at his job for 23 years and earned $74,000 last year. I have been at my job for four years and earned $10,000 last year. We know we can afford a house, but our credit problems are holding us back.

A. There is some good news for you, said Michael Niecestro, sales manager at Midwest Funding and a 20 year veteran of the mortgage business. Your job stability and the location in which you are house hunting are on your side. Plainfield is an "FHA Municipality." If you are planning to borrow at least $209,000 you may qualify for an FHA new construction mortgage.

"FHA is more liberal when it comes to underwriting guidelines and doesn't look at credit scores," Niecestro said.

Instead it puts more emphasis on whether the buyer is current on credit debt, ability to pay back the mortgage, and the down payment.

You already know that your late payments can be a problem for other conventional loans. When lenders run a credit report, they look for a credit score of at least 620, Niecestro said. The score will take into account such things as the amount of open credit, as well as past judgments, bankruptcies, and collections. You said you were sometimes late on your mortgage payments. Lenders do not like to see 30 to 60 day late payments unless the borrower has had a clean history for the last 12 months. Credit scores do fluctuate month to month. Therefore, if for some reason you have a lower score, you can raise it fairly quickly by bringing credit balances down and keeping payments current.

Let's Talk About Real Estate

"THE SELLER'S ROLE IN SHOWINGS?"

Should the seller be at home during showings or conveniently absent? If at home, what should the seller say or not say, do or not do? These issues are not trivial and often affect the success or failure of a showing. Here are some specific suggestions:

BE HOME IF YOU CAN HELP

If the seller can provide timely information that may be asked by buyers when viewing the property, he or she may be able to quickly put to rest some concern the buyers might have about the property. If the seller is going to be present, the best approach is to greet the Realtor and buyer at the door and then excuse yourself and retire to a remote part of the house or step outside if the weather permits. Do not volunteer information and do not initiate conversations with the buyer.

BE GONE IF YOU FEEL UNCOMFORTABLE

Some sellers don't want to be home during showings. They say that they hired the real estate professional to handle everything. If this is how you feel, then it is best to be absent during showings.

BE GONE IS YOU MAY TEND TO INTERFERE

Some sellers, if at home, can't remain aloof while the showing is in progress. Because of their need to be in charge, they usually will take an active role in guiding the tour through the house because they are convinced that no one can show their home as well as they can. This may be true, but it could spell disaster. Most buyers would rather look at the house with their Realtor free of any pressure from the seller. If the buyer is alone with the Realtor, conversation and questions are more comfortable. If the seller is leading the tour, most buyers will remain respectfully quiet and anxious to get out of the house as soon as possible.

ADVICE: Let the Realtors conduct the showing. They know their buers and how to relate to them.

Plan puts 2 bedrooms, study area, bath upstairs

The Bantam is the ideal home for a narrow or elongated lot. It is two story and contains just under1,900 square feet of living space.

It doesn't have a garage, but if the lot is deep enough or pie shaped, a detached garage could be used.

The Bantam has two covered decks and a covered porch.

The entry opens facing the kitchen with the living room on the right and the dinette on the left. The living/dining room is very large and open, with patio doors opening onto the side deck. There is an eating bar in addition to the dinette area and the formal dining room.

The kitchen is U-shaped with a garden window over the sink and a large amount of kitchen counters. The dinette has built-in seats around a sleeve-shaped table.

Adjacent to the dinette are the stairs to the second floor or the basement.

Across the hall is the main bathroom and the master suite. Through a pocket door is the walk-in closet of the master suite with a closet containing the forced air unit and the water heater.

The master suite, itself, is very large with a door opening onto the rear deck area. A touch of luxury has been provided in a built-in entertainment center.

The second floor has two large bedrooms with a study center and a shared bathroom between. Both bedrooms have two skylights in the sloped ceilings and large wall closets. There is a storage closet across from the bath, which contains a large linen closet.

The study center is great for all ages as it has two work areas and an abundance of workspace.

The optional plan for the basement would provide an extra area of 1,070 square feet. This area could be left unfinished, or it could be used as a family room/recreation room. It would have many uses and provide extra space if it is needed.

The clean look of the Bantam makes it a great home, and being narrow makes it ideal for many of the new lots. With its many skylights and the dormer over the stair area, it will be a bright, cheerful home, full of sunlight and openness.

AIRPORT EMPLOYMENT

Applications being taken for new terminal

BY RICHARD PEARL
SPECIAL WRITER

Applications are already being taken for some of the hundreds of jobs needing to be filled by the time the new Northwest Airlines midfield terminal opens at Wayne County Detroit Metropolitan Airport in December.

"Most will be concessions jobs," said Len Singer, a Metro spokesman, who estimated there will be "several hundred new jobs in retail and food services," plus possible county jobs in such areas as customer service, maintenance and security.

A spokesman for Northwest said the airlines has no immediate plans for more hiring.

The $1.2-billion terminal will have 80 new shops and restaurants, most operating seven days a week. A few convenience shops and newsstands will operate around the clock.

Because the jobs situation is still developing, a definitive picture is not yet available. Singer noted that some operations will move from the Davey Terminal to the midfield and others will be closing, with their employees likely being hired by new businesses.

"There should be some net gain of concessions and employees, but exactly how many is the $64-dollar question," Singer said. It's also not clear how many jobs will be full- or part-time, he said.

Singer said 15 different entities will be hiring personnel, including four prime concessions companies – two

Temporary status should not hurt job search

JOB SEARCH

GEORGE HAYES

Q. Could working for a contract or temporary firm hurt my career?

A. Probably not. Any stigma that used to be attached to working on contract has largely disappeared.

Many years ago, a significant length of time spent as a "jobber" might have been viewed as a black mark on a resume in some disciplines.

People working on contract were sometimes considered second class employees, unable to get "real" jobs.

In those days, contract firms paid nice wages, but benefits were sparse or nonexistent. Also, short term assignments meant that you never knew where you were going to be working next week or even tomorrow.

Today, contract employers tend to pay very well and frequently offer competitive benefits. Temp isn't always so temp, either. Many people have worked in the same job through third-party employers for months or even years. The market has come to view contract work not as an aberration, but as a standard type of working arrangement. Contract employees are rarely considered less attractive when being considered for permanent jobs.

In some fields, there are usually more contract positions available than permanent jobs. Since contract work is more akin to dating than marriage, employers are less likely to be nit picky about issues that are not directly related to skills and experience. "Working contract" is a great way to try out various industries or employers, maintain cash flow between jobs, ensure continuity on a resume during transitions, or begin re-directing a career.

Both contract and direct placement firms are experiencing some challenges in today's tough market. But you shouldn't ignore this avenue because of outdated notions or assumptions.

retail, two food and beverage.

"They will hire for probably 70-75 percent" of the 80 shops and food/drink establishments. Another dozen individually owned concessions will do their own hiring.

One of the prime concessionaires is Paradies-Metro Ventures, which has been operating retail concessions such as the PGA golf shop and Nautica at Metro for years and will be opening new stores.

It is already advertising for applicants, said Debora Hawks, Paradies human resources manager, who said about 100 positions are open.

New stores Paradies will operate include Wilson's Leather, Michigan Marketplace, Ty-RRific Beanie Babies, Details women's accessories, Brooks Brothers clothing and Cap Hub, a sports cap outlet.

Melissa Martinez, who is directing the hiring effort, said applicants with at least a year of retail experience are desired, with a minimum of $7 per hour offered those with no experience.

Full-time and part-time positions are available as well as flex-time, seven days a week. The workday will have shifts from 5 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

And 1-10:30 p.m. Jobs range from warehouse supervisor, receptionist and cash office associate to merchandiser and sales associates.

Store managers and assistants will be hired later, Martinez said, adding that Paradies is also planning to host a job fair.

Applicants may fax their resumes to Martinez's attention at (734)-942-4680, or apply in person at Paradies-Metro Ventures office on the second level of the L.C. Smith Terminal at Metro.

"We'd like to have them all hired and trained" by December, Martinez said.

Another prime concessionaire, CA One Services of Buffalo, NY, will begin hiring shortly.

Andrew Beros, the human resources generalist directing the project, said he is working with Gary Hagen, the on-site general manager for CA One, to set up an office at or near Metro.

The company will operate Brookstone Luggage, Gail's Chocolates, the Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village store, Motown Music Review, the Detroit Institute of Arts store, Pangborn Design and three news and gift stores.

About 100-130 hourly associates will be hired, including retail cashiers, sales associates, warehouse personnel, store maintenance workers, supervisors and managers as well as office support personnel.

All are to be full-time positions, though part-time positions may be available.

Commissions on top of hourly wages are possible, Beros said, and the benefit package will include medical and dental insurance and paid holidays and vacations, with a 401k plan optional. The company also may pay for employees' parking, he said.

CA One plans to start hiring its management and office team in the next month, then the sales and cashier personnel, "probably this summer and fall," said Beros.

The company plans to start advertising its openings soon, he said.

Q. I ended up suing my last employer. Most interviewers seem understanding, but I haven't received any offers, either. Could my candor about these legal battles be hurting me?

A. I dunno. Does suicide hurt?

Any interviewer's operating assumption is that the past is the best predictor of the future. In fact, that's what screening is all about.

Interviewers also know that your side of the story is only one version, so that statements about who was right or wrong are heavily discounted in the telling.

Still, prospective employers tend regard looking for a job, quitting, or even being fired as standard resolutions to many employment-related problems. Ordinarily, the reason for your departure is only of mild interest. But legal action? Justified or not, it's considered extreme, unsavory and likely to be repeated. Mum's the word here. If forced to talk about your legal affairs, keep the conversation brief, honest and avoid the gory details.

Q. My job search got off to a slow start. Now I've been looking for almost four months. How will this stretch of unemployment look to potential employers?

A. Depending upon the market, a period of up to five or six months between jobs is unlikely to be of major concern to many employers.

Be prepared to answer questions about how you've been filling your day, no matter how long you have been out. You can assume that some concerns about motivation will arise after the sixth month and you can control to for a job. After seven or eight months, should seriously to some career related work at any level, even if it is part time and pays chickenfeed, while continuing to look.

Built in America's HEARTLAND

Dodge Neon an American Pocket Rocket Sport Sedan

BY STEVE SCHAEFER
© AutoWire.Net

There is another player in the growing youth vehicle market, and it's not a Honda or a Volkswagen. This one is built in Belvidere, Ill., America's heartland.

Challenging the Honda Civic, Volkswagen Jetta, Ford Focus, and a few others, is the new Dodge Neon R/T.

Now that Plymouth has been shown the door, Neons are sold only at Dodge dealers. The car comes exclusively as a four-door sedan, but spans four models, including the SE, ES, R/T and ACR (Automotive Club Racer). The Neon received a thorough redesign for the 2000 model year, so the 2001 models are tweaks upon the new overall package.

When it debuted in early 1994 as a 1995 model, the original Neon was one of Chrysler's first "cab forward" designs, from the enlightened team of designers who have penned some of the most beautiful and interesting cars of the last decade. That shape lives on in 2001, but the body panels have been tightened up, with sharper fender lines, turned-up taillights, and a more aggressive nose.

In early ads, the Neon said, "Hi." Today's car says, "How ya doin?"

The little Dodge is classified as a compact car by the EPA, so there is plenty of room inside for you and your friends. The upswept side windows convey coziness even as rear legroom exceeds many competitors. The SE model would make a pleasant commuter vehicle. But the R/T model is this week's test car, in bright silver metallic, and it stands out from the crowd with its full bag of goodies.

The most important, at least to the driver, is the 2.0-liter high-output Magnum engine. It puts out 150 horsepower versus the 132 horsepower of the standard engine. That's reasonably generous for a small car. The R/T comes with a sporting five-speed manual transmission, which enables drivers to keep the car in gear all the way up to redline rpm levels, where it can make a difference. Fuel mileage is a respectable 27 city, 33 highway, but the little rocket does opt for premium fuel.

The R/T follows the youth market hot sedan recipe with a sport suspension, which includes unique springs, struts, shocks and antiroll bars. These are just the things that young drivers love to add to their cars themselves, as are the Neon's 16-inch alloy wheels with low-aspect-ratio performance rubber. There is also a performance tuned exhaust system with bright exhaust pipe tips, and "Firm-feel" 16:1 steering.

All 2001 Neons get improved brakes, but the R/T sports four-wheel discs with antilock, traction control, and electronic brake proportioning.

If the Prowler is Chrysler's factory-made Hot Rod, then the Neon R/T is Dodge's factory compact Sports Sedan. The outside of the R/T wears unique front and rear fascias with air dams, a towering trunk lid-mounted spoiler, and side sill extensions. The pieces don't disturb the overall taut lines of the Neon, although some drivers may do a double take when they see a 48-year-old guy with a graying beard driving a Neon R/T.

Inside, the R/T package adds a leather-wrapped steering wheel and shift knob, a color-keyed instrument panel bezel with white gauge faces, and unique bucket seats.

The Neon starts out at just $12,715, but my test car was loaded with options. A $1,010 package delivers leather seats and supplemental side airbags. The power sunroof costs just $595 more. A four-disc CD changer is mounted very low in the dash, and along with the stereo system itself, it sounds full and resonant, with plenty of bass response. The extra 18 horsepower adds $250. That brings the grand total to $18,955 after a welcome $860 "Customer Preferred Discount."

By far the largest upgrade is Customer Preferred Package 25H. For $4,430, it adds the stuff most people apparently want, such as air conditioning, power windows, a 140-mph speedometer, power operated/fold away outside mirrors, central locking, fog lamps, illuminated vanity mirrors, lots of grab handles, and all those add-on pieces that make the car look so cool.

One oddity, however, is the Neon is the only car I have ever driven that combines power front windows and hand crank rear ones.

Overall the R/T walks the walk and talks the talk. In a world infatuated with lowered, tricked-out Honda Civics, an all-American entry is rising up to grab some attention.

The Neon R/T is an American Pocket Rocket Sports Sedan.
