LIVONIA — The Wayne County Road Commission has agreed to a widening and paving plan on Merriman Rd. for the mile between Schoolcraft and Plymouth this year. It set aside $400,000 for its share of the work. Commercial development, and a year's delay in the Farmington widening program between Schoolcraft and Plymouth, with Merriman providing a detour next year, figured in the revised plans.

GARDEN CITY — Three former city officials, indicted by Grand Juror Bowles 18 months ago on a Civic Center land purchase controversy, have a May 3 date in Circuit Court. On that day, Judge Joseph Rashid will rule on an attorney's motion to discuss the case on the grounds that the defendants are entitled to a speedy trial and haven't been given one.

* * *

WESTLAND — The Planning Commission has approved the city's new master plan and revised zoning map and sent its recommendation to the City Council for final approval. The council faces a May 16 deadline in approving the new zoning map and will hold a public hearing on the map and master plan next Monday.

LIVONIA — A proposed open housing ordinance, which would make any form of discrimination in renting or selling a dwelling punishable by either a $500 fine or jail sentence, or both, was introduced in City Council Monday night. Its opponents, however, are expected to include Mayor Harvey Moelke, longtime foe of open housing legislation. His veto is predicted if the proposed ordinance reaches his desk.

FARMINGTON — A proposal to increase the schools' operating millage by four mills over a 10 year period was placed on the June 10 school ballot Monday night by the Farmington Board of Education. The board stated it would simply maintain the existing educational level in the system. Last November, a proposal to increase the levy by five mills was defeated.

REDFORD — Civil warfare in the suburbs is less of a threat now, according to Redford Township Police Chief Edwin Gleza, but he feels his township board should set up a Human Relations Commission to educate the community on the civil rights movement. Township Supervisor Aldrick Bellaire doesn't want a commission under ordinance, but said he will appoint a supervisor's Community Relations Committee.

Dunn Steel Company Opens First Phase Of Big Expansion

A three phase expansion program which eventually will result in an investment of $350,000 in buildings and more than $1 million in equipment was announced Monday by John Spruhan, vice president and general manager of the Townsend Division of the Dunn Steel Company.

One of Plymouth's oldest manufacturing concerns, the plant will not only add considerable to the tax base of the city, but increase its payroll at least 25 per cent when the modern additions are completed.

"We are working on the first phase now," General Manager Spruhan explained, "and just making a study of the other two. Just when we will take final action on them is not known at this time."

Included in the first phase is construction of a new building, 120 by 60 feet--or 7,200 square feet immediately west of the present building.

* * *

THIS WILL be erected at a cost of approximately $100,000 and will be used to house two cold forming prime movers to augment the company's production.

In the second phase, according to Spruhan, extreme consideration is being given to additions on the north and south side for the processing of raw materials at a cost of $150,000.

And phase No. 3, will include another building for the storing of raw material and is to cost about $100,000.

Along the way there will be an enlargement of the machine department and tool room.

"When the last two phases are completed," Spruhan pointed out, "we also will have a new spur of the C & O railroad and an especially high domed building to take care of the huge cranes that are necessary in the work."

In announcing the work on the start of the first phase, General Manager Spruhan also let it be known that the entire plant was being converted to what is known as primary electric, which is the conversion from 220 to 440 volts.

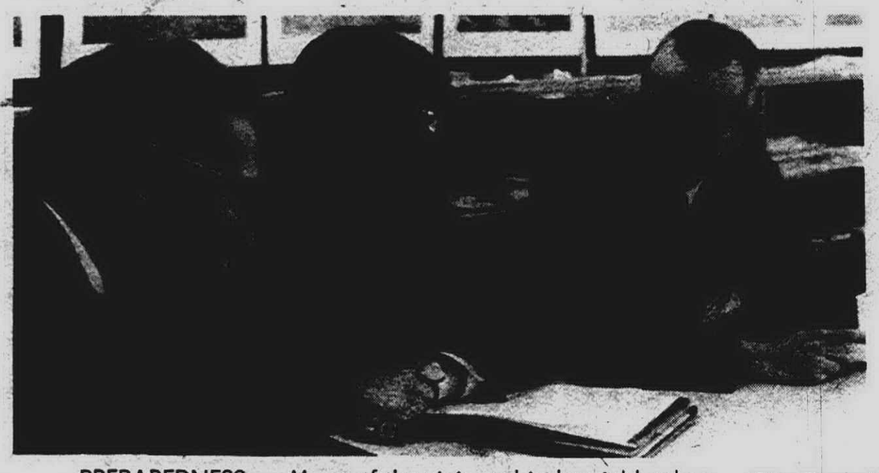

The expansion program marks another interesting chapter in the history of a plant that has its roots deep in Plymouth. It has been one of the main industries for more than 60 years and has been a mark of pride through the past half century.

* * *

AS IT is constituted now the plant is known as the Townsend Division of the Dunn Steel Company, which, in turn is owned by Texdran, Inc.

Plans for the addition came as welcome news to the Plymouth Community that only a week ago was shocked to learn that Evans Products Company was laying off 500 workers and virtually suspending operation of its rail car plant.

"The Townsend expansion certainly is welcome news," Carl Pursell, president of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce commented. "It is quite a thing for the city to have such large amounts added to the tax base at this time."

PREPAREDNESS — Many of the civic and industrial leaders, along with top citizens, joined hands last Saturday at a pilot conference in Plymouth High School to set up priorities just in case of civil disorders some time in the future. In the picture at the left, (left to right) are Retired School Superintendent Russell Isbister, City Commissioner James McKeon and John Kamego, former Plymouth manager for Michigan Bell. At the right, shown left to right, are Dr. Cliff McClumpha, and Earl Gibson, of the Plymouth Community School system.

Plymouth Pilot Conference Sets Priorities In Case Of Civil Disorder Throughout Area

Community leaders today zeroed in on an eight-point action program to establish racial harmony in Plymouth in advance of any open confrontation that could lead to trouble in the streets.

The priorities were adopted Saturday in a four-hour pilot conference of civic and political leaders in Plymouth High School.

They called for steps to make Negroes welcome in Plymouth through human understanding while putting down the fears and tensions flowing from Detroit.

Former Mayor Harold Guenther climaxed the working session by citing the disturbances in Detroit, Baltimore, Boston, Chicago and Newark:

"We have an opportunity to stay ahead of this parade. We can handle this problem like all the rest--the tax base, good schools.

"We can set a path for others to follow. We are unique in this respect. I am proud of where we are now in Plymouth. I just hope we stay with it."

* * *

THE PRIORITIES established without reference to their ranking are:

- Immediate creation of a rumor checking and control center to be handled by city government generally or by The Plymouth Mail & Observer.
- Continuing conferences among civic and political leaders to refine or add to the program as developments dictate.
- Develop support for fair housing, without necessary reference to the city-wide vote on the issue April 29.
- Arrange for Negro spokesmen to write a column for the Plymouth Mail & Observer as a means to make citizens aware of their goals and aspirations, traditions and culture of the race.
- Reassure the community through newspaper articles and other means that the Plymouth Police and Fire Departments are capable of handling emergencies without citizens arming themselves.
- Invite Detroit Negro leaders to meetings in Plymouth for face-to-face discussions of the racial issue from both sides.
- Establish through business and industry job training and job finding programs.
- Build a bus shelter in Kellogg Park.

* * *

SPOKESMEN FOR the Saturday conference, entitled "Constructive Alternatives to Violence," said it was not called to build pressure for the Fair Housing issue and that the recommendation came independently during the course of the sessions.

"Our aim was to bring together the people of Plymouth to find ways we can solve the problem here in Plymouth--to define the issues, to set up some kind of structure in which we can work and come up with a solution," said Mail & Observer Publisher Philip H. Power.

"Plymouth is too mature, too sensitive, too thoughtful to allow a problem like this to go undealt with."

Power headed a steering committee which worked for weeks to arrange the conference. He urged frankness and openness in the conference workshops and general discussion sessions.

* * *

RUSSELL ISBISTER, former Superintendent of Schools now retired, said the city has been a sheltered oasis in a vast and growing metropolitan area and needed to tackle its own problems.

"There is a time in the scheme of things for people of mutual interest to come together and talk about a problem" he said. "This is a working conference on a subject many have been reluctant to talk about."

John Kamego, former Michigan Bell Telephone Co. manager in Plymouth, now on leave to the National Alliance of Businessmen, said early decisions turned the race problem over to government and the churches.

"They have failed miserably," he said. "The why of it I don't know, but we do know it is not going to be solved just by government and the churches.

"We feel we've been used. But the Negro feels that the brainwash of Korea was second to the brainwashing given to

Senior Housing Proposals Due By April 26

Another step toward the establishment of the senior housing project in Plymouth will be taken this month when the developers will present their plans and proposals for the building that is to be constructed on the site in the rear of the Christian Science Church.

City Clerk Gene Slider, who also serves as Secretary of the Housing Commission, has sent out invitations to the builders. Their proposals must be on file not later than 2 o'clock on the afternoon of April 26.

The invitation to the developers is being sent as part of the "Turnkey" plan which permits the city to assign the work to a developer and thus avoid the hiring of an architect.

Rep. Esch Due On Friday

Congressman Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor) will hold office hours from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. on Friday, April 26, at the Plymouth Post Office.

Anyone having any business with the Congressman are asked to note the time and be on hand promptly.

Plymouth Police Rank With Best

Speaking before the Plymouth Rotary Club last Friday, City Police Chief Robert Corrington who was speaking on "Crime in Plymouth" remarked: "If the City Commission grants our budget request our department will rank with the best departments in the country for cities our size."

Housing Ordinance Explained

An explanation of the City of Plymouth's open occupancy ordinance, to be voted upon in a referendum Monday, April 29, was issued this week by a well-known Plymouth attorney and concurred in by another.

Written in layman's language, the statement was drafted by former City Attorney Thomas H. Healy at the request of the Plymouth Fair Housing Committee.

It was reviewed and approved by Dunbar Davis, another Plymouth attorney and present municipal judge.

It notes, among other things, that violations would be heard at the local level, by the Municipal Court, and not by the state Civil Rights Commission as in proposed state legislation.

* * *

STATE CIVIL Rights Commission members have, in the past, noted that communities with workable, enforced local laws would probably not be subject to legal action under state law.

Here is the statement on the ordinance, passed by the City Commission last December:

"The ordinance exempts from its application rooming houses and apartment houses with more than five dwelling units where the owner or his family resides on the premises. Religious or charitable organizations such as the Salvation Army Home may also discriminate in favor of persons of their own denomination, or in favor of promoting their own religious beliefs.

* * *

"OF COURSE, any terms and conditions which the owner or seller wishes to impose are permissible provided the same terms and conditions are equally available to, or apply

Public Hearing Set On Budget

The public hearing of the 1968-69 budget for the City of Plymouth will be held on Monday evening, May 6, at 7:45 o'clock in the Commission chambers in City Hall.

The Commission after completing more than two weeks of intensive work on the budget, set the date Monday night.

New High School Cost Passes $10 Million

The Plymouth School Board Monday night awarded the last six of the base bids for the construction of High School #2--the first three were awarded one week ago--and it immediately turned to the question of financing the total project since the estimated construction cost is well over the original $8.5 million and may pass the $10 million mark.

The food service equipment contract was given to the low bidder of Great Lakes Hotel Supply Co. of Detroit for $111,492.

The bid for auditorium and balcony seating was awarded to the Imperial Equipment Co. of Farmington for $39,537.

The last four bids--science equipment, homemaking equipment, arts and crafts equipment and miscellaneous classroom and workroom equipment--were awarded to Classrooms Inc. of Lansing for the combined package bid of $160,000.

* * *

TOTAL BASE bid cost plus the architects' fee now adds up to $8,916,674.

The $10,390,335 figure is broken down as follows: $304,480 for nine alternates in construction and architects fees: $1,169,181 for installation of a fire hydrant loop and water and sewer lines to the site, site development, furniture and equipment and project contingency; and $8,916,674 for the total base bid.

The board said that it had to pay the $1,169,181 for the items listed just to be able to use the building--the cost was known in advance of the final awarding of base bids.

What it must decide now is which alternates to choose--each one would add to the total project cost--in order to arrive at a quality school with all the necessary equipment for instruction, according to the members.

* * *

THERE ARE eight alternates the board is considering.

They are: graphic arts room -$29,161; auxiliary gymnasium-

Mrs. Hulsing To Run Again

Mrs. Esther Hulsing, president of the Plymouth School Board announced Monday night that she will seek her fifth term as a member of the board at the June 10 election.

Mrs. Hulsing has been on the board for the past 14 years. She served as president nine years ago and was board secretary until being elected president again last year.

Also announcing his candidacy for the board Monday night was Robert C. Gilmore.

Gilmore will be seeking office for the first time. He was appointed to fill the unexpired term of Gerald Fischer last August. Fischer moved out of the district.

Also expected to run for election is appointee Donald Tripp who was appointed to the unexpired term of Carl Schultheiss who died last year.

Anchor Coupling Hits New High In Earnings

An all-time record for third quarter sales of $11,019,000, and a 1.7 per cent increase in net profits to $551,000 have been announced by Anchor Coupling Co., Inc., for the third fiscal quarter ended March 31. The company has a plant in Plymouth.

Nine-month sales of $30,250,000 were only 0.2 per cent below record sales of $30,320,000 a year ago; and profits of $1,509,000 were down from $1,748,000 in fiscal 1967, due primarily to production time losses caused by strikes in major customers' plants.

Three Escape Injury When Plane Crashes

Three men escaped injury when a light plane hit a ditch during an emergency landing Tuesday in a cornfield near Ann Arbor and Sheldon Roads.

The plane was flipped on its back at about 9 a.m. Tuesday, 10 minutes after takeoff from the Plymouth Aerial Co. airport.

The pilot was Marvin Mettetal, owner of the Aerial Company. He was on a demonstration flight with Donald Bidwell, 1465 Ross, Plymouth, also a pilot; and Harold Walker, of 46789 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth.

Mettetal said the single engine stalled at 1,000 feet shortly after takeoff. He glided to the field and prepared for the emergency landing.

"We were going 20 miles an hour on the ground when we hit the culvert," he said. "That's not too dangerous when you think of most automobile accidents.

"We hope to get the plane out in about a day and a half. It's pretty heavy and that field is pretty muddy."

The plane was a single engine, 230-horsepower Cessna Skyline.

WASHINGTON -- The United States Supreme Court took a new look at the First Amendment Monday in the context of a New York law that requires public school systems to lend textbooks to students in parochial schools. Two school boards, one in Albany and one in Long Island are asking the court to strike down the three-year-old law as in violation of the amendment's religious clauses.

They both share common spiritual and doctrinal traditions, going back to colonial times. The biggest difference between the two has been language--the Brethren spoke German while the larger church spoke English. The language difference has long since disappeared.

Schoolcraft Graduates Largest Class In 3rd Commencement

Schoolcraft College will set another record Sunday when an all time high 170 graduates will receive diplomas as features of the third annual commencement program.

As could be expected, each graduating class is the largest to that time and the trend will continue until the college has reached its maximum -- that isn't projected for another 10 years.

The first graduating class had less than 120 receiving sheepskins. The second, a year ago, boosted the total to more than 150 and this year's march across the platform will go as high as 170 and even higher, depending upon the outcome of final examinations this week.

THE THIRD COMMENCEMENT, scheduled for 2:30 p.m. in Waterman Student Center, will probably be the most colorful to date.

The 130 member faculty will highlight the processional march, wearing cowl and gowns with the colors of their alma mater and wide-ribbon collars with colors designating the degree of each.

The processional will be led by President Dr. Eric Bradner and Board Chairman Harold Fischer followed by members of the Board of Trustees, the faculty and the graduating class.

The Schoolcraft College Choir, under the direction of Wayne Dunlap, head of the Department of Music, will present a program prior to the start of the processional and also participate in the afternoon events.

Dr. Richard Cutler, vice president in charge of Student Affairs at the University of Michigan, will discuss "Challenge of Quality" in the commencement address.

Rev. Fr. Kean Cronin, chaplain of the Campus Newman Club, will open the commencement program with the benediction.

DR. BRADNER will introduce special guests, members of the Board of Trustees, and make a few remarks in regard to the progress of the college and its activities of the past college year.

Board Chairman Fischer will have the honor of introducing Dr. Cutler.

John Brinn, vice president of Instruction, will announce the honor students and present awards following the address of Dr. Cutler.

The degrees will be presented by Dr. Bradner assisted by the Deans of the various departments.

Rev. Carl Gunderson, of St. Timothy Presbyterian Church in Livonia, will give the benediction after which a reception for the graduates and honored guests will be held on the lower level of Waterman Hall.

Then with the commencement over, college officials will immediately begin making preparations for registration for the spring semester which opens the first week in May.

Present indications point to a record enrollment during the spring and even greater interest in the two sessions during the summer.

UNMASKED — Displaying paper-mache masks they made in an art education class at Schoolcraft College are, from the left, Mrs. Lucy Uxa, 20952 Meadowbrook, Farmington; Mary Ann Loughman, 35823 Parkdale, Livonia; Mrs. Margaret Capeneka, 9321 Florida, Livonia; and Mrs. Alva Brun, 35175 Oakdale, Livonia. The four students are working toward degrees as elementary and secondary teachers. The mask project was one of a number of class projects in which future teachers learn how to teach art in the public schools.

Area Communities Join In Day-Long Program

Milliken Tells Of Slum Problems

Nearly 200 official representatives of suburban communities in the tri-county region around Detroit Monday attended the Governor's Conference on The Suburban Stake in the Urban Crisis.

Held in the Mott Center for Community Affairs in Oakland University, the conference was a day-long session, including addresses by experts in the urban field and group discussions to get down to brass tack problems.

Observerland communities sent strong delegations. Among those present were: Livonia Board of Education Chairman Streisa Schreiber and Supt. Benton Yates; Plymouth Board of Education Chairman Esther Hulsing and Supt. James Rossman; Plymouth Township Supervisor John McEwen; Clarenceville School Supt. Dave McDowell; Supt. Merlin Rowe, South Redford Schools, and school board member Orlyn Lewis; and Redford Township Chief of Police Edwin Gleza.

* * *

THE KEYNOTE ADDRESS was delivered by Michigan Lieutenant Governor William G. Milliken, who co-sponsored the conference along with Oakland University Chancellor Durwood B. Varner.

"This conference will show the prosperous America that there are real problems in the slums, that we must revitalize the structure of our society, and that what we do now is just a beginning," Milliken said.

"The problem of the cities is that they must be rebuilt, and the suburbanites who live in prosperous suburbia and who work in the cities know it. This will take money and leadership, but it must be done...

"The Negro citizen wants jobs and housing. Most of all he wants dignity, justice and the opportunity to live a full life," Milliken said.

MILAN MISKOVSKY, director of investigation for the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders (the Kerner Commission) discussed at length the findings which the commission released in its report last month.

Stressing the fact that no evidence of widespread conspiracy had been found in the riots which hit the nation last summer, Miskovsky said, "It's easy to believe the conspiracy theory, but the facts just don't back it up. There may have been a few people who talked about looting, but we found no evidence to show that there was any nation-wide plot."

Turning to suburban fears, Miskovsky noted that "White America is overpowered by the thought of Negro hordes coming out of the big cities to the suburbs and trampling over everything. This is a Frankenstein idea, and there is no real evidence that anything like that is going to take place."

Following lunch, Rev. Paul Harbrecht, S.J., Dean of the University of Detroit Law School discussed black power, pointing out that the phrase is often misinterpreted.

In fact, Harbrecht said, it stands for the attempt of the Negro citizen to find dignity and a self-image in a society which has consistently downgraded him.

THE PROVISION OF 800 new jobs, which have the net effect of adding $6 million to the assets of the society, was discussed by Dwight Haven, president of the Greater Detroit Board of Commerce. Haven added that industry was working on programs to hire and train those previously thought to be unemployable.

State Senator Roger Craig, of Dearborn, discussed "Governmental Independence," pointing out that there had developed a tendency for suburban legislators to form an alliance with rural legislators on matters affecting the big cities.

Craig urged suburban residents to realize that their economic life was intimately bound up with that of the cities.

The final address of the conference was given by Mel Ravitz, City of Detroit Councilman, who discussed the hopes and fears in Detroit for future progress.

Form Group To Prevent 'Hot Summer' And Riots

A new organization designed to improve relations between people and communities was formed Sunday to prevent "a long hot summer" and future riots.

Attending the meeting and taking a leading role in the group's meeting, in the Inkster Public Schools board office, were Mayor Thomas H. Brown of Westland and Frank Blackford, of 34443 Grove Dr., Livonia, a former Michigan Insurance Commissioner under Gov. G. Mennen Williams.

Also attending were: Congressman William D. Ford and State Rep. Vincent Petitpren, of Westland. Their districts include Inkster and many communities in Western Wayne County.

The meeting was called by Edward Bivens, a member of the Inkster School Board, and chairman of the city's National Association for the Advancement of Colored People committee on human relations, which sponsored the event.

Bivens said that the meeting was strictly an "action planning meeting." Now that the group has defined the problem it faces, it can come up with solutions and implementations, he said.

* * *

"THE PROBLEM LIES in a lack of understanding and communication among mankind," Bivens said. "We don't know what the other man or community is doing or thinking."

Faced with numerous private citizens obtaining guns in their homes, "something had to be done to temper feelings," Bivens continued.

The NAACP official also stressed that he was "very encouraged" about the turnout of more than 25 persons from Western Wayne County cities and was "enthusiastic" about the proposed solutions for the implementation to the problem.

THE GROUP, which heeded Congressman Ford's advice and agreed to not select a formal name at the moment, spent part of the 90-minute meeting in four "task force" discussions.

The smaller groups met on the topics of young adults, institutions (including schools, churches, and the news media); adult attitudes (and the police, courts, and laws); and the hate rumors and arming of private citizens.

In the last task force was cited the need for a rumor control center, which was used by the Sheriff's Road Patrol in Westland during the recent civil disorders several weeks ago.

DIRECTING THE discussion was Robert Johnson, associate director of the Detroit Round Table of Catholics, Jews, and Protestants, a part of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

Also attending were officials and citizens from Wayne, Dearborn Heights, Inkster, and Taylor.

The next meeting will be held at 4 p.m. on Sunday, May 5, in the Inkster School Board office and will be open to the public.

Warshawsky To Prosecute Buback Ouster

Romney named Meyer Warshawsky, of the Michigan Employment Security Commission Appeal Board, to conduct the hearing.

He also instructed Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley to provide a "full and complete" report to Warshawsky. Romney was asked when the Buback case would be started.

Sgt. Mark J. Hyland, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Hyland, of 9109 Beatrice, Livonia, was wounded in action April 13 in Vietnam and is hospitalized there.

He arrived in Vietnam March 26 and was transferred from the 1st Air Cavalry to the 101st Airborne Division, 501st Infantry. Drafted in April, 1967, he completed basic training at Fort Knox and advanced infantry training at Fort Polk, La. He was sent to NCO school at Fort Benning, Ga., where he earned the rank of sergeant.

A 1966 graduate of St. Cecilia High School in Detroit, he was employed by Michigan Bell Telephone Co.

15 Set Seminar

Fifteen Livonia groups, including both political parties, will sponsor a May 4 seminar and workshop on Civil disturbances and their effect on the suburbs.

The workshop will last from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in Stevenson High School, Six Mile west of Farmington Rd.

Advance registrations can be made by sending checks to Mrs. Gloria Root, 18181 Floral, Livonia, 48152. The conference including lunch is $2.50; the conference alone, $1.

Co-chairmen Mrs. Hilda Varbedian and the Rev. C. Gunderson say the purposes are to present facts about unrest, evaluate the likelihood of future disturbances, outline the steps being taken to control what might occur, set up an anti-rumor machine, and consider how suburbs should react to the urban crisis.

The Livonia PTA Council; League of Women Voters, Federation of Civic Associations, Livonia Ministerial Association, Livonia Citizens for Better Human Relations, YMCA, Schoolcraft College, Livonia Education Association, Observer Newspapers, Madonna College, Ascension Lutheran Church, Catholic Archdiocese Project Summer Hope, and Holy Cross Lutheran Church.

the Negro. We've made him (the Negro) worthless."

Detroit, he said, is far ahead of other major cities because the Negro there knows what he deserves and "he wants it now."

"We (whites) have really emasculated the Negro male," Kamego said. "We're now trying to put him back together, to make him the head of his own household again."

* * *

KAMEGO SAID THE argument that the Irish, the Poles, the Germans and other minority groups of past tensions and rebellions were accepted in time does not apply to the Negro.

"The Negro has visibility," Kamego said. "This is a very important difference why he can't motivate himself."

Some ideas have been tried successfully in other cities, he said. Among them were practical nurse training for Negro women, industrial training for men, a pre-appointment indoctrination course to help job applicants.

He told of one group of angry Negroes called "The Committee," which obtained bowling privileges for Negroes in the Pontiac-Bloomfield Hills area.

"In my opinion, it's purely attitude at the heart of this problem," Kamego said.

CITY COMMISSIONER James McKeon said:

"History will look upon u. in wonderment -- the enslavement of Negroes, the apathy of the whites toward Negroes and the time it has taken this advanced democratic society to eliminate the inequities toward them.

"When people start to react to their consciences, leaders will emerge and we'll accomplish something. We are a small and very proud community in a vast metropolitan area.

"We can't lead Detroit but we can't leave the job (here) with the churches and the police force.

* * *

"The image of Plymouth has not been clearly defined," he said. "Our major problem is to be concerned about the attitudes of the Plymouth people."

Pursell urged that conferees take back to their organizations the feelings expressed in the meeting. He noted that the arming of private citizens has created more tension in the suburbs.

"I'm convinced this is not the right approach," he said. "It implies a lack of confidence in our leadership," he said.

"I am hopeful we can establish a posture for the community that is reasonable and mature. I believe we can. I believe we have the people and the leadership to do it."

* * *

WORKSHOP GROUPS established that Plymouth schools are more alert to the problem and that first steps have been taken to bring Negro teachers into the system.

It was stated that while large business and industry have already established hiring policies for Negroes, smaller businesses have not and "it will take fortitude to take the first step."

Negroes working in Plymouth are frightened and avoid being on the streets or in other public places at night, one workshop reported. Rumors, the report said, are not checked but are allowed to flourish.

Hostility and fear are more present in public areas and the streets than in the neighborhoods, one report said, adding that this could be diminished by more frequent Negro-white contact.

Another stated that whites should accept that the "Negro is a human being with the same abilities and the same aspirations, but different moral values."

The report pointed to the "unwritten law against the sale of homes in Plymouth to Negroes."

* * *

ONE WORKSHOP SAID a problem has developed with drinking parties at noon among both Negroes and whites near industrial plants. It said police do not respond quickly enough in these cases.

Kamego said a community should get "excited about this problem, like it does about a fall festival or a Community Chest campaign."

In the workshop on rumors, information and misinformation, Power said that, based on reports already available, a rumor control center should be established immediately.

"But we must remember that any rumor control center has to be credible to be effective," he said. "If it's not, it's no good."

In news coverage of racial issues, he said, information should be accurate and precise. He added: "We must have the policy of: 'don't cover it up, but don't play it up out of perspective'."

* * *

THERE WERE recommendations that communications be improved between communities in the area and between police departments and citizens of individual jurisdictions.

One suggestion was to invite Negroes who have excelled in their own field to address local audiences, another was to start student exchange programs with inner-city schools.

"We exchange students with Italy, France and England," said Isbister. "We might exchange students with Inkster."

Extending the thought, a workshop suggested exchange programs between service clubs and church groups as well as between school classes.

DON DAVIES, chairman of the Plymouth Human Relations Commission, noted late in the conference that nothing had been said about fair housing or the vote on the issue April 29.

He urged that the philosophy of fair housing be a key part of the conference recommendations, that it not be bypassed despite the nearness of the election.

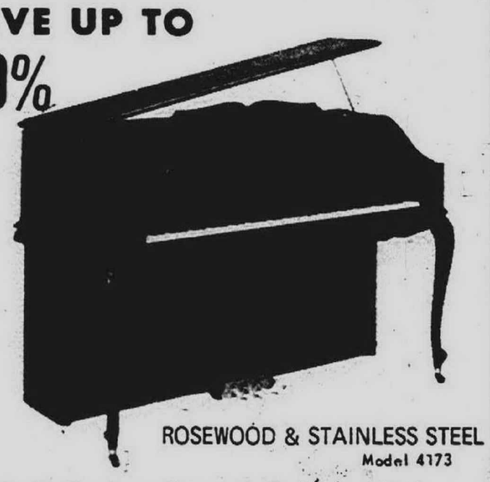

Guenther said Plymouth should take a responsible approach rather than "go into the problem emotionally and have it die out after a while."

"This is all simply a matter of human behavior," he said.

Guenther said that there must be something offered more than words before the efforts of Plymouth can be credible.

Seek Funds For King Professorship

ANN ARBOR--A fund-raising drive among faculty and students of The University of Michigan has been started to establish a Martin Luther King professorship.

Seventeen faculty members have constituted themselves as a volunteer committee to raise $50,000 or more for this purpose, and are soliciting individual contributions from faculty, staff, and students.

In a letter to the campus community, the committee members say they want to indicate the University's respect "for the cause which Martin Luther King served and to perpetuate his memory at The University of Michigan.

Although the academic field in which the professor would teach is not yet certain, the committee said it "should represent the broad social and human concerns to which Martin Luther King devoted his life." The committee hopes to be able to institute the professorship next fall.

Contributions may be directed to Prof. Deming Brown, Slavic Languages Department, Frieze Building, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. Checks should be made payable to The University of Michigan.

Missionary Joins State CROP Staff

A former director of the Church World Service Program in Ghana, Africa has joined the Michigan CROP staff as Assistant Director. The announcement was made today by Russell M. Hartzler, Michigan CROP Director.

The Rev. Harlan W. Stenger, a Baptist clergyman, completed three years of service in Ghana in October, 1967. Following their return to the States, Rev. Stenger and his wife, Janet, toured eight states, and 40 cities, going as far west as Colorado, telling of the work of CWS overseas and the use of CROP donated food.

While his principal task in CROP will be organizing communities in Michigan to help combat human hunger, Mr. Stenger will be available for public speaking engagements in churches, service clubs, women's groups, and farm organizations, Hartzler said.

Rev. Stenger will bring a wealth of experience, knowledge and understanding to Michigan CROP as it seeks to give all people of good-will the opportunity to share with the needy overseas.

Indicated net earnings for the three months ending March 31, were $6,231,000, compared with $5,152,000 in 1967. Earnings per share were 76 cents based on an average of 8,200,063 shares outstanding, contrasted with 63 cents last year on an average of 8,174,543 shares outstanding.

City Caught In Planning Tangle

The Plymouth City Commission admitted Monday night that its planning program has been tied in a hard knot.

After discussing the condition for the better part of an hour it was agreed that City Manager Richard Blodgett and City Attorney Charles Lowe make a study of the present contract with Vilican-Leman Associates and ascertain just what it covers.

The plight finally was admitted when Ezra Rotnour, chairman of the Planning Commission, asked the Commissioners to employ Michael Munson, a graduate student in the College of Architecture and Design at the University of Michigan, to up-date all of the plans into one workable package.

The cost, according to the Planning Head, would be $1,000 and "a real bargain", as he put it.

Immediately a howl went up from the various members of the Commission, who asked why another planner should be hired and a college student--when the city already had the firm of Vilican-Leman Associates under contract.

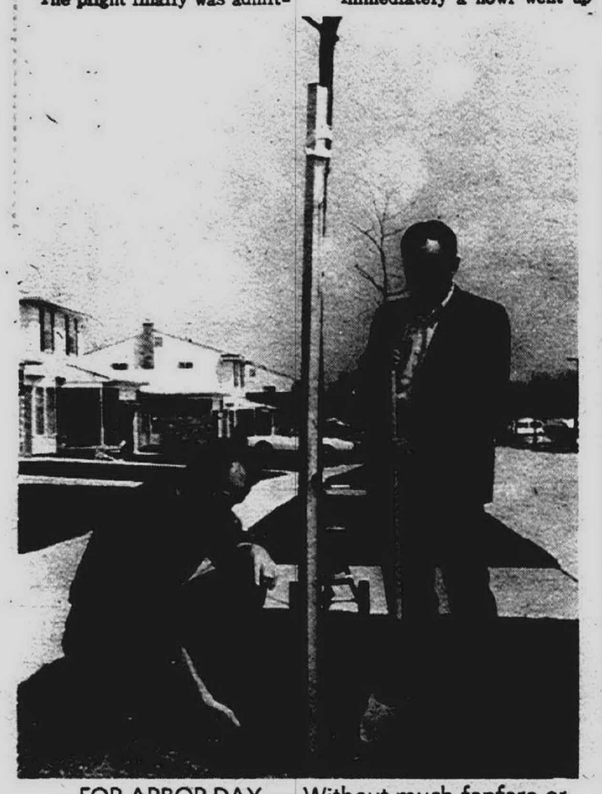

During the course of the discussion it was learned that the city's master plan was drawn by the firm of Waring and Johnson almost 10 years ago. Since then this firm has been succeeded by Vilican-Leman Associates. But, much to the surprise of everyone, it was learned that the Vilican-Leman plan never was approved and that this firm has been under contract only for specific jobs.

City Manager Blodgett pointed out that one of the questions raised by the federal authorities in the urban development department was the lack of an up-to-date master plan.

Finally, Commissioner Robert Smith moved, with the support of Commissioner Houk, that the Planning Commission's recommendation be approved.

Immediately, Commissioner Arch Vallier, with the support of Commissioner Peter Schweitzer, and a moral assist from Commissioner James McKeon, offered a motion to postpone action until the City Manager could study the present contract with Vilican-Leman Associates and report at the next meeting.

"I'm not going to spend $1,000 unless we have to,--and perhaps we'll find that we've already contracted for the work to be done," Commissioner Vallier commented at the conclusion.

FOR ARBOR DAY — Without much fanfare or bluster Arbor Day was celebrated quietly in Plymouth on Monday. Among those celebrating were Ken Vogras, head of the Department of Public Works, who is shown planting a tree at the home of Robert Jett, 1712 Nantucket.

These items total to $289,981 and would be added to an architects fee of $14,499 for a grand total of $304,480.

All of these items were bid upon but were listed as alternates so that the board could delete or include them as it saw fit.

It was pointed by Assistant Business Superintendent Melvin Blunk that the board will have to levy more taxes in order to be able to meet cost and the question then boils down to the plan that is in the best interest of tax payers.

The total project cost is approximately $1,900,000 more than the available $8.5 million.

* * *

HE SAID the board has the option of levying 4.5 mills for Building and Site Sinking Fund purposes. The millage was previously approved by the voters in 1964 and was to last for five years--from 1965 to 1969.

This millage would be levied for two years--until it expires in 1969--and would raise approximately $1,700,000--the specific amount depending upon the state equalized valuation of the school district for the next two years, he said.

This is the only "fast" money raising plan that is open to the board without any voter approval.

Among other financing plans, Blunk said, the board could incorporate other money that will be needed in the future.

Because projected enrollments show that the district will need more schools in the near future, it could submit a bond issue in the amount of $11,150,000 for consideration by district voters to perform the following projects:

Complete high school #2--$1,900,000; construct three elementary schools-$3 million; purchase school sites-$1 million; construct an academic wing of high school #3-$5 million; and remodel the present high school-$250,000.

Blunk said that such an issue would require a 4.1 mill tax increase for 29 years computed at $1,800,000 state equalized valuation.

He added that the board will decide next week what kind of a financing plan it will use.

It pays to be a Credit Union Family

Credit Unions are different. They are owned by their members — lock, stock and barrel. Because of this, credit union members enjoy benefits found nowhere else. SAVINGS benefits . . . BORROWING benefits . . . INSURANCE benefits.

ONLY IN A CREDIT UNION do all dividends go back to the members, with life insurance as an extra dividend on savings. Borrowers get a break, too, with loans insured at no extra cost, and often a year-end interest refund.

There are many other credit union advantages.

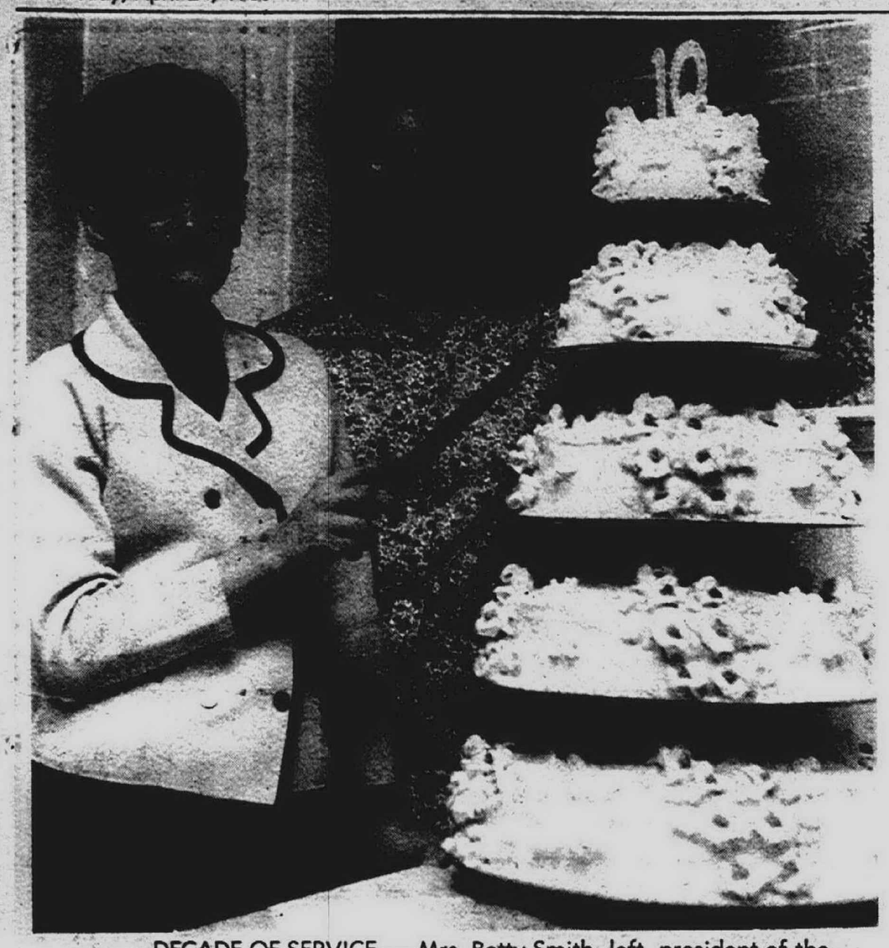

DO YOU KNOW that more than 1⅓ million people in Michigan are now credit union members? Come in and find out why.

Contact the CU where you work — or the one in your parish or neighborhood — or write Michigan Credit Union League, P. O. Box 5210, Detroit, Michigan 48235.

Lady Jaycees Celebrate Decade Of Service

Generally they're working for the future.

Sunday, from 2-4 p.m. in the Rosedale Gardens Clubhouse, 9611 Hubbard Rd., the group will commemorate the 10th anniversary of its founding at a gala birthday party--cake and all.

* * *

Honored will be: Dixie Parks of Milford, president of the Michigan Jaycee Auxiliary; Pat Bechtel of Westland and Beth Clary, formerly of Redford, both past presidents of the M.J.A.; Barbara Tylman of Redford, district vice president, and Betty Smith, president of the Livonia Jaycettes.

Livonia's charter was presented in April, 1958, by the State Auxiliary. Charter officers were the Mesdames Marion Carlson, president; and Pat Brooks, Denise Brumm, Betty Markwardt and Nancy Gruber.

Prime purpose of the group has been to assist the Livonia Jaycees in their program of community service.

* * *

THE WOMEN helped Jaycees paint murals to brighten the wards at Plymouth State Home, manned the sales booth at the Jaycee Seat Belt Clinics, did clerical work at the State Teen-Age Road-e-o, and made telephone surveys to aid the Jaycees in their plans for community development.

When the auxiliary isn't busy helping their male counterparts, the group finds time for its own community projects. Highlighting the ten years have been its Accidental Poison Prevention Clinic and its Helping Hands Program. The former won the women a $1,000 award and the latter, Project of the Year Award in 1967 from the Michigan Jaycee Auxiliary.

Besides service, the group also raises funds for worthwhile causes, including Hawthorne Center, Northwest Child Guidance Center, Livonia Public Library and individual deserving families.

The auxiliary's most recent community project finds them seeking tape recorders for use in their Tapes for the Blind project, and endeavor to record textbooks for blind students.

Livonia's organization has grown from 15 members when it began to an active membership of 32 this tenth-anniversary year.

Italian School Named After Dr. King

The Christopher Columbus old home port of Genoa, Italy, has decided to name a high school being built there after Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., the assassinated American civil rights leader. The Milan municipality a few days earlier decided to name a new school in that industrial city for him.

Alaska has only four cities of more than 5,000 people. Each of its population of 272,000 has a theoretical two square miles of space, but most live along the coastline.

Loser Of The Day? Jean Sheds 50 Pounds

And why not?

A member of the Merri-Bowl Trimmers, a Buxom Belle Club devoted to weight loss, Jean is 50 pounds lighter this day than she was in January, 1967, when she joined the organization. She has lost more weight than 45 fellow members.

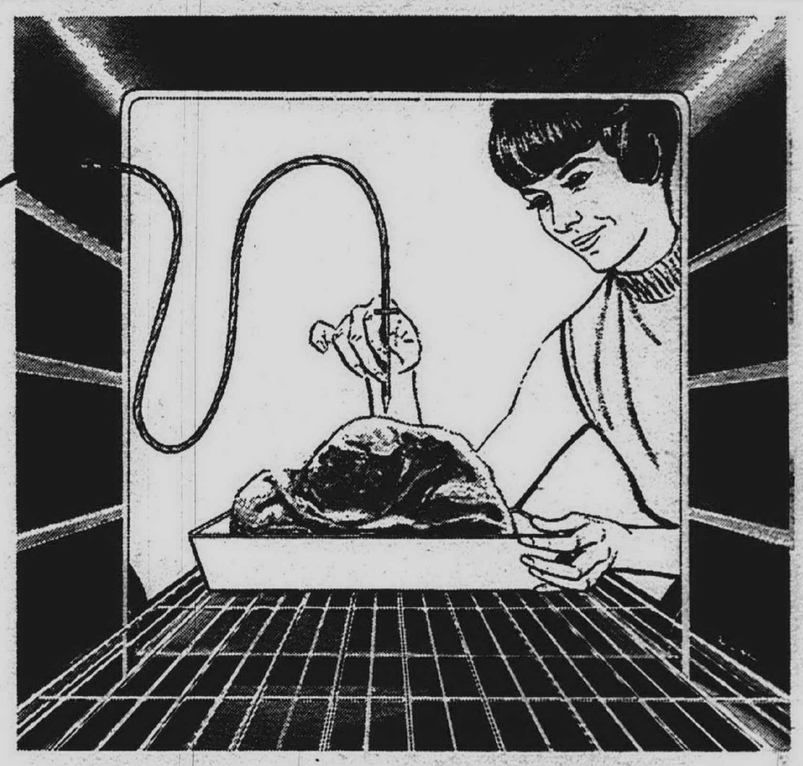

Mrs. Trongo, along with other "best losers" from Buxom Belle Clubs in the Detroit area, will be honored at a dinner May 21 at the Latin Quarter. Other honorees are Gertie Dallas, Irene Lubig and Gerry Munday.

Speakers will be from the Michigan Heart Association, the Diabetes Association and Zerbo's Health Food stores.

Prospective members may call Mrs. Delores Smith, 425-3508, or Mrs. Marion Nuznoff, 427-9740. The group meets Wednesday evenings at the Alfred Noble Branch Library, Plymouth Road.

The Informer
...MAKES YOU A BETTER COOK!
Here's an "informer" that not only gives you the facts but does something about it! How does it work? Simple. Into the center of the meat you put a thermostatic probe, one end of which is plugged into the oven wall. Slide the roast into the oven and turn the indicator to the exact degree of doneness you want. When the meat probe gets the right "inside" information, it signals you—then automatically and instantly shuts the oven off. Takes all the anxious guesswork out of roasting.
What other magical things can a 1968 Gas range do? Everything from starting dinner while you're gone to keeping a complete meal deliciously ready-to-serve when you're late.

Council Asked To Tighten Apartment Code

City Council has been asked by Mayor Harvey W. Moelke to amend the Building Code ordinance (No. 449) to add a section that would tighten regulations for the construction of Multiple Housing Class A.

* * *

AIMED AT apartment buildings, which he has fought to limit in Livonia while council considers rezoning petitions by promoters and developers intent on building more units, the proposal says that "Multiple family dwellings must be constructed to conform with the following requirements:

(a). All bearing partitions and all walls separating individual dwelling units and stair halls shall be constructed of masonry not less than eight inches (8") thick.

(b). All interior partitions within the units may be of frame construction, but shall be fire rated at not less than 3/4 hours.

(c). All floors and ceilings shall be not less than 2A construction with not less than two hour fire protection.

(d). The uppermost ceiling below the roof and the roof construction may be of frame construction with not less than one (1) hour fire protection of the ceiling.

Moelke also plans to send to the council requirements for garages to be built in connection with future apartment projects.

He has asked the City Planning Department, through Director Don Hull, to submit code changes or regulations that would require enclosed garages for tenants.

* * *

THE MAYOR wants buildings to provide one enclosed garage for each apartment with one bedroom, two enclosed garages for apartments with two or more bedrooms, and an extra open parking space for each apartment. Those requirements, he believes, would provide off-street parking for apartments occupied by two or more persons, on the theory that "every apartment brings two cars to the area."

The mayor contends that Livonia must be a city of private residences, on large lots, compared to neighboring communities, and that apartments add to the cost of city and school upkeep beyond their contributions to the community's economy.

Councilmen have disagreed with the mayor, contending that apartments aid the tax revenue, and that residents increase the city's economy, through rent and buying power.

Council Updating Laws To Fit New Suburbia

When your growing kid hits his head on the basement ceiling or your neighbor is caught in his bathroom shower when it suddenly turns into an icy torrent, the reverberations are sometimes felt as far away as Livonia City Hall.

It's the trials and tribulations of suburban life that make people say "there ought'a be a law."

MORE OFTEN than not when they say it loud enough for the mayor and the city council to hear then, sure enough, there is a law.

A proposed amendment, for example, to the city's building code ordinance will require builders to use only insulated windows in new home construction because of numerous complaints from homeowners about windows in their present homes.

Six months after moving into their homes, the windows stick, cold drafts blow across floors, water seeps through in puddles, and when people clean windows they come apart in their hands. Added to the grief is at least another $300 new homeowners are having to spend for storm windows and screens.

The new type insulated windows which builders will be required to use in the future when the amendment is adopted is a big budget savings for the new home buyer.

THE INSULATED glass will be only a $22 item in his new house compared to $19.50 for the old type conventional glass window, a slight hike in cost but a substantial sum saved otherwise.

He won't need storms so instead of spending $300 or more, for example, he'll have to pay only about $50 for screens.

And he won't be replacing the windows six months after he moves in.

By making it a law, the council assures the homeowner of a quality window for at least 50 per cent less than one bought as a replacement. That's the price an item drops when it is used in stock by the builder.

Before Livonia had an ordinance requiring builders to include garbage disposals in homes they constructed, the future owner who wanted one had to pay around $125 for the unit and installation. Nowadays, installed when the house is being constructed, the cost to the home buyer is $65.

ANOTHER PROPOSED amendment to the building code even takes cognizance of the bathing habits of 20th century suburbia.

Saturday night is no longer set aside as it was by another generation for the family's bath night. Instead, most families take a shower every day and that along with the operation of the family dishwasher and washing machine, overtaxes the water heater, if it's the smaller type that once was sufficient before modern day living habits and gadgets changed.

The amendment will require a minimum 40-gallon capacity for water heaters to make sure there's enough hot water to go around for an average family of five. But money, being a prime consideration for most families of five, takes top priority in the new amendment, also.

Most water heaters in new homes today must be replaced in three to four years but the builder, with the passage of the amendment, will have to provide a ten-year warranty in the future.

Even the physical characteristics of each new generation are covered by new laws that go into the books or are being considered by the lawmakers.

AN AMENDMENT now up for adoption to the city building code raises the height of basements from today's minimum requirement of 6 feet, 10 inches to 7 feet, 6 inches, an 8-inch increase.

"Every generation needs more room to grow in," explains Kerby, who stands 5 feet 8-1/2 inches and whose wife, Jeanne, is 5 foot 5.

He should know. His three sons, Frank, 20, Mike, 18, and Steve, 17, are all six feet tall.

Today's average height is 5 foot 11 inches; twenty years ago it was 5 foot 8-1/2 inches.

Thus a new law will raise the height of basements so the ceilings will be higher for the next generation of giants.

Mayor Hails 2-Way Week

The week of May 12-18 will have a double meaning in Livonia.

Mayor Harvey W. Moelke has proclaimed the seven days as both Small Business Week, saluting small businesses and their owners, and as Women for the United Foundation Health-O-Rama Week.

The latter celebration will be an attempt to focus public attention on the importance of annual physical examinations and to familiarize Livonians with the work of Torch Drive and other health agencies.

On display May 16-18 at Westland Shopping Center will be more than 30 educational and scientific exhibits on modern medicine.

Also offered will be 12 free medical tests "to promote and safeguard the health of the total community."

MD Month Proclaimed

May 15-June 15 has been proclaimed Muscular Dystrophy Month in Livonia by Mayor Harvey W. Moelke.

The annual appeal for funds will be conducted throughout the city to support research against the crippling disease and to provide clinic and patient services to its victims.

Statistics show some 250,000 Americans have muscular dystrophy, most of them children for whom the disease generally proves fatal. As yet neither the cause of the disease nor an effective treatment has been discovered.

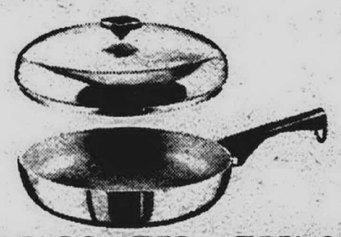

Livonia's volunteer chairmen for a house-to-house fund drive are Mrs. Willis Fenn, 33050 Myrna Dr., and Mrs. Robert Champe, 9907 Cranston.

Anyone wishing to join in the campaign, called "March Against Time," are asked to contact either of these women.

Police Want $10,000 Salary

EDITOR:

The Livonia Police Officers Association has been negotiating with the city for the past eight months for a new contract which expired on Dec. 1, 1967. In August of 1967, we expressed the desire for a salary increase to $10,000. This was some six months prior to Councilman McNamara's suggestion that was reported in the Livonia Observer.

The LPOA had a golden opportunity to play politics in the recent mayoral election. Instead of work slowdowns and picket lines in front of city hall, the membership decided to continue collective bargaining in hopes of achieving an equitable contract. I wonder how many other citizens of Livonia would continue to work at their present jobs without a contract.

Along with Detroit's salary increase to $10,300 for patrolmen, the Wayne County Sheriff's Department has succeeded in gaining an increase to $10,000-plus. Garden City police officers are already being paid $9,000 for 1968 with a sizeable increase scheduled for 1969.

By the time Livonia settles a contract, we will again be $2,000 behind neighboring departments as we are now. Livonia patrolmen currently earn $8,216 annually.

It is unfair to compare salaries of police officers with those of elected officials. If the mayor's salary is not commensurative with the office, raise the salary; don't use this as a feeble excuse to keep other employes' salaries at a basement level. The taxpayers of Livonia voted an additional mill for police in 1965. By so voting, the citizens have shown they desire a professional police department second to none.

Highly prepared officers in any quantity can never by attracted by offering a low salary. High capacity officers will not remain with the police vocation for any length of time if they cannot maintain a decent and honorable standard of living.

In answer to the hiring of civilian help in the police department: There are already eight civilians doing clerical work in the police department as well as two civilians doing technical work. We also have four civilians doing police dispatching in the communications division.

In conclusion, may we say that your editorial statement that "a police officer should not be paid $10,000 to sit straddle a motorcycle while writing parking tickets" might be just a shade partial. This statement probably stems from a parking violation that was issued to one of the Observer employes at the Livonia office on Five Mile Rd. on March 28.

The violation was written by one of our motorcycle officers for improper parking. What you did not include in your editorial was the insults that the cycle officer had to endure while carrying out his sworn duty. It is the duty and obligation of every police officer to enforce the ordinances of the City of Livonia impartially and without prejudice. It is our firm belief that no one should be granted special privileges when it comes to enforcing the law.

CPL. FRED BENSON,
President, LPOA

Speaks Out Against Rezoning In Redford

EDITOR:

I have never before written to the editor of a newspaper, but after attending the public hearing at Lola Valley Junior High I feel compelled to speak out against the need to approve a high rise zoning classification. I am definitely opposed to such zoning for the township as a whole, and Glenhurst in particular.

To me, it appeared to be the first step toward forcing high rise building upon us. The Planning Commission made it sound as though every community should prepare for this eventuality, but, rather, I feel we should eliminate any possibility of it ever becoming an actuality by enacting whatever legislation necessary to bar forever that possibility.

To threaten the folk gathered at Lola Valley with the court forcing this upon us is ridiculous from my point of view. I cannot conceive of the court forcing Redford Township to eliminate a recreation area in order to accommodate high rise buildings.

Top dollar would be paid for Glenhurst only if rezoning can be achieved there! First the will of a few must be forced on many! After all we are the community, and we support and maintain it!

My impression tonight was that we are a community of people willing to tax ourselves enough to provide adequate police and fire protection, schools, good government, and recreational facilities for our families.

I feel that the township could and should purchase Glenhurst as it is currently classified. As R1, single-family residential. Or let it be sold at that classification and utilized accordingly (money doesn't grow on trees or golf courses).

If it is feasible I would like to see Glenhurst become a recreational facility for the township, but under no circumstances do I want high rise buildings in the township!

Letter To The Plymouth Editor

EDITOR:

This letter should be properly addressed to the honorable lady, President of the Plymouth Community School System, Mrs. Esther Hulsing.

Madam, as a taxpaying citizen and a teacher, with 20 years experience in the metropolitan area, I would be very grateful to you, and I am sure other citizens would be equally appreciative, if you would be good enough to explain what pleased you with the "union's proposal for next year salary increases?"

No doubt every intelligent citizen would grant to the teachers the right to attain economic status in our society commensurate with their training and responsibility. However, teachers as well as all the rest of the community must first look at the teaching profession as deserving of its place in the high ranks of the skilled craftsman and not simply demanding more money.

To quote a ridiculous paragraph: The salary negotiator explained that with the rising cost of living and with increasing enrollment, the salary increases were absolutely necessary. To this the negotiator added "that his goal was to improve the quality of education of every child in the district".

Please let me repeat. I, too, am a taxpayer and a teacher. But I would like very much an honest teacher to explain how we are going to get "quality" in education by paying quantity in salary?

The second thing that certainly needs even more urgent look into, is the Bird School PTA Safety Committee demands.

Mrs. Hulsing dismisses the entire matter by a simple comment that the group has done a fine job.

Please, Madam, please, let's stop passing the buck and let's get some action behind these people who do the leg work.

Are we going to wait till some child is killed? Sidewalks are needed now! The usual lame explanations should be thrown out of the window, now that you have the research accomplished.

Please cut out the flowery speeches to the citizens and act forthwith to their dignity and next, economics.

Teachers are licensed by society for the improvement of society. Therefore, let them take honest means to attain their rightful place in the society they so ably endeavor to build.

Lansing Eyes Switchover To Pushbutton Statutes

From a Staff Correspondent

LANSING--Michigan is toying with computers as a way to write better laws faster and provide instant research into volumes reaching back to its early days as a state.

The study, underway for three years, is now reaching the point of decision.

Under the plan, all of Michigan's laws would be placed in a memory bank of a computer, recallable in minutes from tape. It would end weeks of research time now required.

"If we were completely automated, it might cost $15,000 a month," reported House Clerk T. Thomas Thatcher.

The Legislative Council has named a six-man committee of House and Senate members to study the feasibility of automating the legislative process.

"The biggest thing that could be done with the system would be in the budget field," Thatcher notes. "For other phases, it would result in improved services."

The move toward computerizing Michigan's legislative processes came after a month-long test during last fall's special session.

Four telereaders and a teletype were set up in the House and Senate, tied to the Florida Legislature's computer in Tallahassee.

Information on bills introduced in the special session was fed into the Florida computer, making statutes and an outline of the bill's purpose instantly available in the Capitol.

Going into a permanent system would result in complete services, with information on amendments and current standing of the bill instantly available.

"I didn't have any objections to it during the test, or any kickback," Thatcher said.

However, he urged the special Legislative Council committee to take a careful look before deciding on adopting a computer system in Michigan.

"This building may not be suitable for the type of equipment we might want," he said.

Talk of building a new Capitol that probably would cost well over $40 million would delay a final decision on computerizing. Some officials and legislators may be reluctant to install such equipment in the existing Capitol with construction of a new one looming.

But, should the Legislature decide to build a new Capitol, actual work on such a structure may be five years off.

Besides Florida, Pennsylvania and Iowa have gone to computers to aid their legislatures. Thatcher said the Pennsylvania legislature is fully automated.

Feasibility of tying the Michigan Legislature into the state's existing computers--possibly the one operated by the State Social Services Department--is being considered.

"Social services has one that might work...and it might not," Thatcher said. "That's something the committee will have to study."

By using a state-owned computer, a considerable savings on the monthly lease of automation equipment might be possible, he added.

Bulk of the $15,000-a-month estimated lease cost for a fully automated program would be for purchasing time on a computer, he explained.

Screens on which reports are flashed, and other such equipment would be only a fraction of the cost, he said.

Should the Legislature decide on automating, receivers probably would also be installed in the offices of some key state officials.

Among them would be Gov. George Romney, Atty. Gen. Frank J. Kelley and Secretary of State James M. Hare. Some other might possibly be included.

Through the equipment, the officials could punch in questions about particular legislation and have an answer flashed back almost instantly.

Biggest use of the system probably would be made by the Legislative Service Bureau, the agency responsible for taking requests from legislators and drafting the bills.

"We could store all our state laws, those of other states and federal statutes into the computers for instant retrieval," Thatcher said.

The computer could be programed so that it would retrieve information on any subject by punching in one word, such as crime, pollution, kidnaping, water.

Taking the word, the computer would provide typed information on all statutes and sections of laws dealing with that one particular subject.

Bengals Haven't Lost Since Opening Game

Tigers Gain Lead With Ninth In Row

CLEVELAND --- A start to top all starts!

That's the record the Detroit Tigers brought here for a two-game set with the Cleveland Indians that is slated to end Wednesday night before the Tigers move on to New York and three games with the Yankees over the weekend.

It was back in 1961 the Tigers lost their opener, then won eight in a row. In the summer of '65, the Tigers also won eight straight. Back in the '40's the Tigers won 14 in succession.

They surpassed that string Sunday with a double triumph over the collapsed Chicago White Sox as Earl Wilson and Denny McLain turned in masterpieces to down the Chisox, 4-1 and 4-2.

In their spree, the Tigers have been capitalists. They have taken advantage of defects in rival defenses to pull out victories.

What's more, the Tigers three times have been carried into extra innings and each time they have left the field a winner.

* * *

A TYPICAL overtime triumph was the 4-1 conquest of Chicago on Saturday.

Mickey Lolich and Tommy John duelled scoreless ball for eight innings. Each had left the scene by the time Bill Freehan doubled in Mickey Stanley in the top of the ninth and Chicago got even on a single by Tommy Davis, an error and two walks.

The Chisox had the bases loaded with one out and appeared to have rookie Tiger pitcher Jon Warden on the ropes. But he got Clete Boyer to line into an inning-ending double play.

Came the tenth, Ray Oyler hoisted a fly to left which Walt Williams misjudged and Oyler checked in at second with a double. Although Oyler then was forced at second, Stanley followed with a fly that the Chisox rightfielder Russ Snyder lost in the sun for another double.

That put two on and Dick McAuliffe knocked them in with a single and Al Kaline followed with another hit to score McAuliffe.

And, who was the winner? Nobody else but Warden who now stands 3-0 in relief this season, although he has worked a total of only three innings.

* * *

ON SUNDAY, the Tigers again were capitalists in the opening game.

There were two out in the fourth with the scoreboard reading 0-0. Freehan walked and Jim Northrup beat out a hit. Oyler tapped to Ward at third, who fumbled the ball to load the bases.

Wilson promptly singled over two runs and McAuliffe tripled in two more and that's all Wilson needed as he checked Chicago on five hits --- one a fifth inning homer by Ward. None of the Detroit runs was earned.

It marked the second straight game that Wilson had gone the distance to up his record for the season to 2-1.

In Sunday's nightcap, Detroit broke a scoreless tie in the fourth when Cash walked, Freehan beat out a bunt single, Oyler dribbled a single to third and McLain looped a hit to center.

In the fifth, McAuliffe singled, Kaline walked and Horton was safe at first on another Ward miscue. With the bases loaded, Cash unloaded a two-run single.

DETROIT'S FOURTH run came in the seventh when Horton reached first on a wild throw. Stanley ran for him and stole second before cruising home on Freehan's single. Thus only two Detroit runs in this game were earned.

McLain, going the distance for the first time this season to pick up his initial decision -- either victory or defeat -- ran into little trouble from the Chisox, who were going down to their ninth straight setback without a victory this season.

Chicago had a chance in the second when Ken Barry doubled and Wayne Causey singled with two out, but McLain got the next man on strikes.

Finally in the ninth Tommy Davis singled and Ward socked his second homer of the afternoon to ruin McLain's shutout bid. But Farmington's Denny retired the next two with ease.

McLain gave up seven hits and fanned eight as the Tigers rattled out nine hits and enjoyed seven walks. But they left 14 men on base.

As a result the Tigers entered this week leading the American League by a 1 1/2 games over second-place Minnesota.

Area Caddies Win Evans Scholarships

Eight youths from the area covered by Observer Newspapers are listed among 31 Michigan boys receiving Chick Evans College scholarships by the Golf Association of Michigan--15 to the University of Michigan and 16 to Michigan State University.

That was the announcement of Frank Kenney Jr., of Detroit, chairman of the GAM's caddie-scholarship committee.

The awards bring to 455 the number of scholarships given by the GAM since it affiliated in 1948 with the nationwide Evans Scholars Foundation, administered by the Western Golf Association in Golf, Ill.

The 31 Michigan winners are part of the 220 new Evans scholars announced nation-wide at the conclusion of the 11 selection meetings held throughout the nation.

There will be more than 100 GAM Evans Scholars enrolled this fall at Michigan and Michigan State. These are two of the 11 midwest universities at which the Foundation owns chapter houses which are managed and maintained by the Scholars.

Each scholarship is valued at approximately $3,500.

* * *

FINANCIAL SUPPORT for the program comes from more than 75,000 golfers, including 12,200 in Michigan, who contribute annually to the James D. Standish Jr. Fund.

To qualify for a scholarship, a boy must caddie at least two years, must rank in the upper 25 per cent of his high school graduating class and must require financial aid to attend college. The scholarships were awarded on a competitive basis using these factors.

Of the eight Observerland winners, six were caddies at Western Golf Club in Redford Township, one from Meadowbrook Country Club in Northville and one from Franklin Hills Country Club.

* * *

Faces Riverside In League Opener

Unbeaten GC West Eyes Baseball Crown

If pre-league play means anything, Garden City West figures as a top contender for conference baseball honors this spring.

West opens its title bid Wednesday against Riverside and will be protecting a record of four victories without a loss in "tuneup" action.

But two of the West victories hardly fell in the "tuneup" category. They came at the expense of Garden City East, West's arch crosstown rival.

West made it a sweep for the season over East by winning 7-5 with a three-run rally in which Jerry LaCross' second homer of the game drove in three runs to settle the issue.

Earlier the same LaCross had socked a two-run circuit. As a result he wound up the afternoon with five RBI's.

* * *

JIM FURAY went the route for West against East and escaped despite the fact he was tagged for 12 hits. Rick Orlandoni worked four innings while Greg Pike finished and was the victim of LaCross' winning clout.

Furay had singled in the fifth before LaCross connected for the first time in the game. In the seventh inning it was Furay with another single and Al Poland with a hit before LaCross strolled to the plate and parked another.

Craig Wilkinson singled in Chuck Evans with West's first run while Evans' fly followed three walks in the fourth to account for West's other run.

Larry Shanks doubled over the East run, Hackman and Nault combined for the second, Miley and Shanks for the third, errors for run No. 4 and hits by Hackman, Nault and Chute for the final counter.

Ron Michaud worked the distance for West Friday in a 6-2 triumph over Wayne. He allowed six hits, fanned nine and walked two.

West counted three times in the first inning on a walk, a single by Bob Chiedster, an error and a triple by Wilson.

In the second, Furay's single followed two errors to up West's run total to four. A walk, a single by Randy Williams and double by Bill Harrison wrapped up West's score in the sixth

* * *

Tim Whitson was tagged for all four Wayne runs in the first five innings, while Orlandoni finished up with a scoreless effort.

Nault walked, stole second and came over on Shanks' sixth for East's opening run. In the fifth, Bob Crowell walked, Mike Miley was safe on an error, Shanks walked and two men scored when Ken Wilkinson grounded out.

Shanks went three for three in the game to up his hitting for the season to seven for nine--a fantastic .778 average.

RU Trackmen Top Weekly Area Ratings

Redford Union high's track team dominates the weekly Observer ratings. The Townshippers hold down 19 spots on the 14-event list and appear in each category except the 220-yard dash.

Leading the way for RU are Dennis Fifield and John Morrison, who this past week chalked up respective times of 19.4 and 19.6 seconds in the 180-yard low hurdles to rank with the best in the state.

Other highlights during the week included a 4:29.7 mile by Bryan Kent of Clarenceville and a leap of 21 feet, 3¼ inches by Stevenson's Dave Mastny in the long jump.

Franklin, NF Lose

Thurston, Glenn Off 'n Running

Thurston and John Glenn jumped off on the right foot in the Northwest Suburban League's baseball chase Monday.

While Thurston rallied in the seventh inning to score six times and beat Oak Park, 9-4, Glenn blanked Franklin, 2-0. The loop's third game saw North Farmington bow to Groves, 4-1.

The team trailed 4-3 when the seventh inning opened. Ron Barringer drilled a double and went to third on Tom Roy's single. Joe Kowal, a pinch-hitter, delivered a single to send in Barringer and even the score.

Greg Dunney then walked to load the bases. That brought up Sersen and his mighty wallop followed. Not to be outdone, teammate ChickSherfey followed with another homer, only his came with nobody aboard.

Two errors had accounted for two earlier Thurston runs while Marty Ingesoulian knocked in another.

* * *

FOUR-HIT pitching by Kerry Webb enabled Glenn to blank Franklin. Only Dennis Fisher was able to get more than one safety off Webb, who fanned six and walked one.

Singles by Len Anderson and Webb, a double by Bob Russ and a perfect squeeze bunt by Rick Bergeron produced the two Glenn rallies.

Jim Davies suffered the loss for Franklin.

North Farmington garnered only three singles---one each by Scott Jentz, Jay Hazelroth and John Thomas--in falling to Groves.

The only North run came without the benefit of a hit. Rick Knock walked and eventually hit home after a play by Doug Drapalsky.

Hot Rally Wins For Celtics

BOSTON -- Having written history by overcoming a 1-3 deficit to oust Philadelphia in the Eastern Division finals, the Boston Celtics now are off and running to regain the National Basketball Association world title they yielded to the 76'ers last season.

The Celtics climaxed the greatest comeback ever in NBA playoffs by downing Philadelphia, 100-96, Friday night to take the series, four games to three.

Then on Sunday, Boston rebounded from a 15-point deficit in the third period to down the Los Angeles Lakers, 107-101.

Led by John Havlicek and Larry Siegfried, Boston cut the Lakers' edge to 85-81 after the period, then tied it at 90-90 on a basket by player-coach Bill Russell.

Then the score was tied at 95-95 before the Celtics ripped off three straight baskets by Siegfried, Bailey Howell and John Havlicek to lead, 101-95, with 3:30 remaining.

The Lakers bounced back on a basket and two free throws by Jerry West to pull within three points (102-99) of a tie before a charity by Don Nelson and a layup by Howell wrapped it up.

Sorrows Victim In Track Rout

Our Lady of Sorrows High School track team garnered only two first places in losing to St. Francis Xavier, 87-30, in a Catholic League meet.

Bill Hartsock won the 440-yard run for Sorrows in 56.5 seconds while Bob Batchelor took the long jump with a leap of 18 feet, 6 inches.

Sorrows Star Hurls No-Hitter

Greg Main of Our Lady of Sorrows retired the first 11 men he faced when sorrows battled St. Agatha last Thursday.

Then after an error broke the string, Main came back and got the next nine St. Agatha players out in order before two walks and an error cost him a shutout as Sorrows engineered a 4-1 victory.

But Main still finished without allowing a hit.

He struck out nine batters in the great effort and didn't issue a walk until Bob Blackmore was passed with two out in the seventh. Carl Camm then also was walked after which a grounder was muffed to give St. Agatha its rally.

* * *

DENNIS PERRY singled and came around on a sacrifice and error for Sorrows' opening run in the first inning.

In the fifth, Sorrows cashed two more marks. Main singled. Then three straight walks and a rundown led to the Sorrows' markers.

In the sixth inning, Tom Webster walked, stole second and third and then stole home on the front end of a double steal after Main walked.

Canadiens Rip Hawks Again, 4-1

CHICAGO -- The Montreal Canadiens are booming along in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

After knocking out Boston in four straight in the first round, the Canadiens have started in high against Chicago in the second round by downing the Hawks in the first two encounters of the best-of-seven series.

But Jean Beliveau evened the count before the first period was over. Then in the second period Beliveau scored twice more and passed to Jacques LeMaire for another tally as Montreal boomed on to a 4-1 triumph.

The series was to resume Tuesday in Chicago and the fourth game will be in Chicago on Thursday with Channel 9 the Detroit area station for the telecast to begin at 9 p.m.

Honors For 6 Tigers

Six Detroit Tiger players will be saluted for a variety of achievements at another awards night ceremony preceding the Tigers' night game with the California Angels at Tiger Stadium Friday, May 3.

A distinguished group--including American League President Joseph E. Cronin and former Tiger stars Vic Wertz, Billy Bruton and Steve Gromek--will participate with George Kell, Tiger television broadcaster and former star, acting as emcee.

* * *

KALINE WILL receive a special gift from the American League marking his 2,000th game in Tiger uniform, with Cronin due to make the presentation; his 10th Gold Glove trophy (out of a possible 11) for fielding excellence; and a plaque marking his fifth selection for the league's post-season all-star team selected by the players.

Freehan will get the Detroit Baseball Writers "Tiger of the Year" plaque, with Watson Spoelstra of the Detroit News making the presentation; his third straight Gold Glove trophy; and an all-star selection plaque.

Wilson also will receive an all-star plaque.

* * *

SPARMA, a Livonia resident, will be honored as the American Amateur Baseball Congress' 1967 "Graduate of the Year" with the presentation by Lincoln Hackim, of Akron, president of the AABC.

Matchick is to receive a silver bowl emblematic of his selection for the Class AAA minor league all-star team for a fine season in 1967 at Toledo.

The Gold Glove trophies are posted by the Rawlings Sporting Goods Co.; the all-star plaques by The Sporting News; Matchick's all-star trophy by the Topps Chewing Gum Co.; and Horton's portrait by Michigan Sportscene.

PLYMOUTH HIGH'S centerfielder Russ Carlson smashes the ball to rightfield for a hit against Ann Arbor High. Observer Photographer Jim Hubbard caught the ball just as it left the bat

CROSSING THE PLATE is Plymouth's Walter Lee (10) as he scores against Ann Arbor while the Rocks recorded their first win of the season. That's catcher Steve Moore awaiting the relay while pitcher Rick Deller goes down first base line for the wild throw.

Rocks Win On 4-Hitter

Four-hit pitching by Rick Fillmore enabled Plymouth High to nose out Ann Arbor Huron, 3-2, in a final warmup for the start of Suburban Six League play.

Fillmore fanned five and walked two as he had his rivals popping up most of the game.

Walter Lee singled in Russ Carlson with Plymouth's first run. Two more markers came across when Mike Cederberg walked, Lee singled and Ken Olds drilled another hit.

Jawor Takes Post

Johnny Jawor, personable pro-manager of the San Marino Golf Course in Farmington Township for the past two years, has taken the post of pro-manager of the Bonnie Brook course.

Jawor, one of the members of the well-known Detroit golfing family and brother of Chet, who has charge of the Detroit Municipal courses, accepted the Bonnie Brook position a week ago.

He had a hand in the development of the San Marino course and had built up excellent play there during the two years of operation.

* * *

JOHNNY STARTED his career as a public parks golfer where he was one of the best and then turned pro as an assistant at the Redford Golf Course, one of the City of Detroit's system.

He was elevated to the pro job there and then left to accept the professional's post at Ann Arbor Country Club. After several years there, he returned to the Detroit area to operate a driving range on W. Six Mile Road, in Livonia.

Former Tiger Great Tommy Bridges Dies

Despite the happy moments the Detroit Tigers have been creating on the field, there was sadness among them and their older fans this past weekend.

Tommy Bridges, 61, was dead.

Bridges, one of the most distinguished of all Tiger hurlers, had been ill for several weeks until he passed away in Nashville, Tenn.

Few pitchers boasted a better curve ball than "Little T." He spent 16 seasons with the Tigers and compiled a record of 194 victories to rate fourth on the club's all-time list.

He was beaten in 138 contests.

Bridges began his career with Detroit in 1930 and hit his best campaigns in 1934-35-36 when he chalked up respective records of 22-11, 21-10 and 23-11 and posted a 4-2 record for the Tigers in the 1934 and 1935 World Series.

THERE WERE moments involving Bridges which "old" Tiger fans never will forget.

There was the day he set down 26 straight Washington batters in a row. All that stood between Bridges and a perfect game was a pinch-hitter, a guy named Dave Harris.

But Harris rapped a single and that was that.

An equally memorable moment came in the sixth and final game of the 1935 World Series.

The score was tied, 3-3, in the ninth inning as the Tigers led the Chicago Cubs, three games to two, Stan Hack greeted Bridges with a triple to start the ninth.

But Bridges fanned Bill Jurges, got Larry French on a roll out and Augie Galen to fly out. Then Goose Goslin singled home Mickey Cochrane with the winning runs.

Bridges starred at the University of Tennessee before coming to the Tigers. He ended his playing days with the team in 1946.

Final Decision Rests With Competing Nations

IOC Board Votes Against S. Africa In Olympics

It appears now that South Africa may not be permitted to compete in the 1968 Olympic Games at Mexico City.

The nine-man executive committee of the Games has voted against South Africa and it's now up to all countries to vote--a vote which is expected to support the committee.

When South Africa was readmitted recently and told it could send an entry as long as it was an inter-racial team, nation after nation promptly announced it would not go to the Games.

More than 40 countries had taken the action. Most now are expected to announce they'll be back in the Games, scheduled for mid-October.

DON JANUARY, fighting the flu, emerged as the winner in the Tournament of Champions golf tournament at Las Vegas with an eight under par 276. He beat out Julius Boros by a single stroke to pick up first prize money of $30,000.

THE DETROIT PISTONS wasted little time in signing 6-11 Otto Moore, their No. 1 draft choice from Pan American College.

He signed a three-year contract, but no salary terms were announced.

At Pan American Moore set point and rebounding records previously held at the school by Lucius Jackson, a star now with the Philadelphia 76ers.

The Baltimore Bullets also signed their No. 1 pick, in inking Westley Unseld, 6-8 star from Louisville. Unseld reportedly received upwards of $200,000 for the next three seasons.

Wolverine Daily Double Pays Record High $1045

Although satisfied with the turnout for its two experimental matinee-night programs on Wednesday and Saturday, Wolverine Raceway officials realize there is quite a job ahead in selling afternoon racing in the Detroit area.

Permission for the unprecedented day-night double bills was granted by Racing Commissioner Leo Shirley after Wolverine lost four nights of racing due to the curfew in the Detroit area imposed after demonstrations in the wake of the assassination of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.

The Wednesday daylight program attracted 2,315 paid customers with 4,595 turning out for the evening half for a total of 6,910 for the doubleheader.

The weather conditions were anything but favorable Saturday with a dull, overcast afternoon that found a drizzling rain adding woe to the early races. Even then a crowd of 3,541 was in the stands and 8,665 went through the turnstiles in the evening.

* * *

NEITHER WAS A record but the crowd had hardly settled into seats Saturday night before Wolverine's 12-year-old record for a daily double payoff went by the boards.

It came about when Roger L, a five-year-old who was overlooked by bettors even though showing four wins in 18 previous starts, turned in a wire-to-wire victory in the opener and paid $34.80.

That was just a sample of what was in store in the second race when Ridge Valley Duke, a six-year-old who had shown nothing in six outings, came storming down the middle of the track in the stretch drive and hit the wire with a length and a half margin at better than 38-1 odds.

The crowd roared when the mutuel board flashed the prices of $78, $17.40 and $6.80 across the board. It roared even louder when the daily double payoff was announced as $1,045.20--biggest in Wolverine history and believed to be the most ever paid on a daily double at a Michigan harness track.

It bettered the previous mark of $865.80 set in 1956.

PHILIP BRIAN, a seven-year-old speedster from the Mijal Stable of Westland, who has been stopping in the stretch after setting sizzling paces in the weekly Open Pace, didn't stop Saturday. With Jim Merriman in the sulky, Philip Brian took the lead on the first turn and stayed in front all the way, winning by a length in 2.04.3, fastest mile of the meeting.

Sudan's Comet, who whipped Philip a week earlier, couldn't catch the leader this time. He was flying in the final furlong but Merriman had things well in hand and kept Philip Brian going all the way.

RU Faces Rocks In Opener

It'll be kickoff time Thursday in the Suburban Six League's baseball race and they couldn't have arranged a more fitting opener.

Redford Union and Plymouth, co-champs last season, are billed for a head-on collision right off the bat when they meet at RU's diamond at 4 p.m.

Bentley meantime will be host to Trenton while Belleville faces Allen Park in other loop inaugurals.

Redford Union will carry a 7-0 record into Thursday's contest against the Rocks who stood 2-2 prior to a Wednesday tune-up with Ypsilanti.

But Plymouth appears to have found itself after a slow start beating Walled Lake, 7-6, Monday as Redford Union downed Stevenson, 6-0, as Tom Booker uncorked a no-hit pitching gem.

* * *

BOOKER PERMITTED only three Stevenson batters to reach first--two on walks and the other on a fielder's choice. He fanned six.

Redford Union put together a pair of three-run innings. In the third Booker walked, Dale Bjerke singled, Bill Fahey was safe on a fielder's choice. Kevin Fox hit a sacrifice and Plymouth was guilty of an error.

In the fifth inning, Bjerke, Fahey, Fox and Bill Howe singled and they were helped by a Stevenson error.

The whitewashing of Stevenson followed a RU sweep over Berkley, 7-3 and 7-0, as Rick Taylor and Jeff Caminsky fashioned a six and one-hitter, respectively. Caminsky fanned 11 and walked three.

Taylor helped his own cause with two hits, one a triple. Fox also had a pair of hits.

* * *

PLYMOUTH OVERCAME a 2-0 deficit to down Walled Lake with Rick Fillmore's homer in the seventh inning the deciding blow.

The Rocks had scored twice in the fourth without the benefit of a hit. In the fifth, they cashed three runs on hits by Bob Kellman, Walter Lee and Nick Darmogray, along with a fielder's choice and error.

Kellman's double netted another run in the sixth. Kellman wound up with four hits in as many trips to the plate. Lee had three-for-four in the game.

Alma Gridders Scholars

ALMA -- Aided by the scholarship of two Livonians, the Alma College 1967 football team, undefeated and untied on the gridiron, didn't do too badly in the classroom either.

Of the 37 lettermen, 20--including Dave Kosteva and Roger Frayer of Livonia--posted B averages (3.0 of a possible 4.0) or better during the recently completed winter term.

* * *

FOUR OF THE Scot gridders had straight A (4.0) records for the term. They are senior center Curt Chadwick of Saranac and sophomores Ken Mitchell, guard from Dearborn; Chris VanSickle, back from Perrinton; and Chris Clark, halfback from Lansing.

The four Scot gridders with straight A averages constitute more than 10 per cent of the 1967 football lettermen. Of the entire Alma College student body, four per cent achieved straight A's.

Other top academic performances were turned in by Bruce Haines, senior Wingback from Roscommon, with a 3.85 average; Jim Ogg, senior defensive end from Gladwin, 3.7; and Steve List, freshman halfback from Frankenmuth, 3.4.

* * *

DR. JOHN ROGERS, prominent Detroit physician, visited Wolverine Raceway a few nights back and Vice President and General Manager Orlow Owen thought it would be a good time for the good doctor to meet his counterpart, Doc Rogers, a speedy pacer. For a gag, Dr. Rogers donned silks and a plastic cap to meet Doc Rogers (the horse).

By George Maskin

observing sports

Should one feel sorry for Roberto deVicenzo and the way he lost out on a chance to play off with Bob Goalby for the Masters golf championship?

In one sense, "yes;" in another, "no."

DeVicenzo was the victim of an archaic rule. He was the victim, too, of the added pressure that television brings on a modern-day performer.

For this reason you have to sympathize with the happy-go-lucky man from Argentina.

But as he himself admitted:

"I'm a professional. I know the rules. I made a mistake — a stupid mistake."

Considering his own remarks, you can't feel too sorry for DeVicenzo. Regardless of what some others may have said, rules and laws aren't made to be blinked at under certain circumstances.

If the speed sign reads 35 m.p.h., for you and for me, then it means the same for the mayor or the governor, if they're shooting down the street.

Granted many of us cheat on the rules and the laws and get away with it some of the time. But, when we're caught, we have no reason to scream.

* * *

IT HAPPENED to us the other week, parking our car in a "no standing zone" behind Cobo Arena. For game after game, the police had ignored all cars whose drivers ignored the signs.

But then one night, the police came along with tow trucks and hauled the cars out of there and left tickets calling for a $25 fine.

Like others, we shouted. How come the police suddenly were changing the rules?

The commissioner was polite:

"The sign was there, wasn't it? And you figured you could get away with it, huh?"

Well, what could we say?

And what could DeVicenzo say other than what he did in showing he was a man of class?

It was rather sickening to hear the next day that, when somebody suggested that the various tournaments hire scorers to check on the various players, the gent who runs the Masters said it couldn't be done because of the expense, etc.

If memory serves us, there were something like 75 starters in the Masters. A scorer assigned to each entry and paid $10 per round would have produced a bill for something like $3,000.

Television kicks in something like $13,000 for almost every minute the cameras are glued to the proceedings.

* * *

PERHAPS, THE MASTERS and other tourneys could ease the situation by waiting until the last two rounds of play — when the pressure has thickened and then put official scorers on the heels of the various leaders.

Such a cost would be minute . . . perhaps, it would cost nothing since there always are those who would "love" to be handed such an assignment for the glory that's attached.

But don't bet on this happening.

From what we understand, the big brains of golf are thinking of establishing what they call an "isolation chamber."

When a player finishes his round in a major meet with thousands standing around at the final green and the TV cameras burning away at him, he's to be grabbed and rushed into a room all by himself.

There with his partner or partners, the idea is to have the golfer go over the card to make certain there is no goof.

But what happens if as DeVicenzo said:

"I look and I look and can't see anything."

How many times has it happened to you? You'll check a letter or a note or some figures. Five times . . . 10 times . . . there's a mistake there . . . but you don't see it . . .

It happens to us all the time and were it not for some sharp copy editors and proofreaders on the Observer, our goofs would hit these sports pages with regularity.

Sometimes they still do, like listing on our all-area Observer basketball team a few weeks ago a player who no longer is in high school. He's in college now.

We're all subjects to mistakes. Any help would be appreciated.

Trojans Drop 3d Straight

Clarenceville High's baseball team continues to have its problems in the Wayne-Oakland League.

The Trojans suffered their third loss in as many starts when blanked by Bloomfield Hills Andover, 7-0, Monday.

Bob Duman and Kerry Rifkin had two hits each for the Trojans, the only safeties the losers made.

Home hopefully will be sweeter for the Trojans this week. They host West Bloomfield Thursday and Clarkston Saturday.

Raiders Squeeze Tennis Victory

North Farmington's tennis team chalked up a 4-3 1/2 victory over Groves Monday. Mike Lesser beat Bruce Foreman, 10-4, for the Raider's only win in singles.

Doubles winners were Dave Bjurstom-Mike Pastor by a 10-9 score; John Bouza-Rich Leebove by a 10-1 count and Dave Kubitskey-Bill Marberg by a 10-5 tally.

NL Will Expand To 12 Teams

TO THE SURPRISE of few the National League has voted to expand to 12 teams next season and thus follow the American League which already has added Kansas City and Seattle for the 1969 campaign.

The NL, however, still isn't decided where the new franchises will go. Bidding for teams are Milwaukee, San Diego, Dallas-Fort Worth, Buffalo and Montreal.

Both the leagues will split their teams into six-team divisions and will hold divisional playoffs to decide which enters the world series.

Thurston Cops Low Honors In Golf Tourney

Thurston High's golf team finished with low honors in a triangular meet with Franklin and North Farmington. Thurston had 168, Franklin 171 and North Farmington 172 in the tough meet at Western Country Club.

Eric Liplay with a par 36 paced Thurston while Campee had 43, Tom Proben 44 and Chet Proctor 45.

Chris Roy and Tom Cash each had 41, Ron Cripp 42 and Mitch Montville 43 for Franklin. Doug Lamb's 41 topped North Farmington. Doug Gilmore shot 43 and Lee Cornfield and Jack Kaahal 44 each.

$700,000 In Diamonds Lost In African Air Crash

WINDHOEK, South-West Africa--A search is on for $700,000 worth of diamonds missing after the South African jetliner carrying it crashed Saturday night.

Death toll in the crash was 122 persons. Only six persons, including Thomas Taylor, an American diplomatic courier, survived. Taylor's papers were recovered.

The plane, a Boeing 707 delivered less than a month ago, shattered into four large pieces. The plane was enroute from Johannesburg to London.

☆

LORIENT, France -- The Breton autonomy movement, French citizens of Celtic descent who want more autonomy in the northwest province, has been blamed for setting off the second bomb in less than a week here.

The bomb demolished the tax office of a nearby town and plunged the area into darkness. Police found leaflets at the scene declaring the bomb was set "against the abuse of the French civil servants in Brittany. . ."

World News Round Up

The four snowmobilers drank champagne toasts in 23-below-zero weather, which seemed to them like a warm streak compared to 50-below temperatures during the 474 mile journey.

The team included three Americans from Minnesota and a Canadian.

OTTAWA -- Pierre Elliott Trudeau, 48, has succeeded retiring Lester B. Pearson, 70, as prime minister of Canada.

Trudeau is expected to announce a date for general elections soon in an effort to get a mandate for the Liberal Party, which has the largest bloc but no majority in Canada's parliament.

A French-Canadian, Trudeau is a bachelor with a reputation as a swinger. He is a Quebec resident but has fought the separatist movement there.

☆

LONDON -- Costain & Press, Ltd., a British firm, has signed a $33.6 million contract with the National Iranian Oil Co. to build a gas treating plant in southern Iran. The project is expected to be completed to deliver gas to the Soviet Union by 1970.

☆

MOSCOW -- The Soviet Union may plan another manned launching soon, observers believe on the basis of recent evidence.

The craft Cosmos 212 was brought down Saturday. It had linked up and separated in orbit with Cosmos 213, which was brought down Friday.

Meanwhile, the Soviets on Saturday launched Cosmos 216, its mission undisclosed. Its orbit was similar to the one of a space ship that crashed last April 24, killing the cosmonaut.

See Some Good Coming Out Of Garbage Piles

ANN ARBOR -- Some good may yet come out of our growing mountains of garbage, suggests University of Michigan business economist Ross Wilhelm.

Instead of eyesores and sanitary fills, it is possible that we might be obtaining from our refuse such valuables as heat and power, gold, silver, and other minerals, he maintains.

Wilhelm, an associate professor in the U-M Graduate School of Business Administration, notes that we tend to think of garbage as not only valueless, but as costly, since it must be hauled away at a price.

* * *

THE USUAL PRACTICE in the United States is to create an unsightly and unsanitary garbage dump, or to create a sanitary fill, which is really a garbage dump evemually covered over, or to burn garbage in an incinerator. About 200 municipalities burn about 25 per cent of the 200 million tons of garbage we produce each year.

Each of these methods of garbage collection and disposal is an expense item for most cities without an offsetting non-tax revenue, Wilhelm explains. And costs have been rising faster than the population and income growth.

"We are throwing away more stuff and paying more to have it eliminated," the economist commented.

Wilhelm says that in many European cities, and a few North American cities, garbage is being used as a fuel, instead of coal or oil, to produce steam for heating and for generating electricity.

Paris, Munich, Geneva, Montreal, San Francisco, and Norfolk have found out that it costs a great deal to build and maintain steam plants to utilize garbage this way. But they have also found that the plants begin to pay for themselves quickly, the economist adds.

* * *

PARIS NOW BURNS about 1.5 million tons of garbage a year to produce steam and electricity, while Munich obtains about 10 per cent of its power needs in this fashion, Wilhelm reports.

Montreal expects to gross about $500,000 this year from steam produced by burning garbage. Geneva reports about 300 kilowatt-hours of electricity from each ton of garbage burned. Such garbage-burning plants can be designed to result in less air pollution than comparable coal or oil plants, it is reported.

"Recent studies indicate also that garbage plants and incinerators might also be able to realize an additional source of revenue," the U-M economist points out.

The studies indicate that the fly ash of garbage incinerators is a rich source of recoverable gold and silver as well as other metals. It estimates that some $7 million in gold and silver could be recovered each year from the fly ash of garbage incinerators. It estimates that there are between two ounces and nine ounces of silver per ton of fly ash and between .02 and .05 per cent an ounce of gold.

The gold and silver come from photographic chemicals, the solder in electrical equipment, plated articles, and even the sparkle dust used on Christmas and birthday cards. It is indicated that the silver and gold can be recovered from the fly ash with a cyanide solution to dissolve them before precipitation by adding zinc compounds to the solution.

Fly ash also contains about 30 per cent iron, 44 per cent glass, and about 1.5 per cent of nonferrous metals.

Day Of Decision Nears For Livonians

Livonia's finest hour or its time of shame is rapidly approaching its citizens. If the people living in this city are equipped with enough intelligent acceptance, Christian devotion, and realistic foresight to understand that the civil rights problem is not everyone else's but ours, too, and that something must be done to make Negroes feel welcome in this community, then it is Livonia's finest hour. However, if its citizenry are too narrow in their viewpoints, bigoted beyond reason, and filled with illusions of white supremacy, then Livonia's hour of shame will stretch into infinity.

Today people must begin to understand that the racial problem that so heavily divides our great country is not the "Negro problem" but the White problem. The mere fact that Livonia has no Negro population is proof that a problem does exist in Livonia.

Its citizens have incarcerated themselves in a white ghetto, feeling very safe in their associations with people who think, act, and look just like themselves and rearing offspring who undoubtedly grow up with these same attitudes.

The fact that the Livonia Council is ready to start a civil rights push is one note of truth and beauty in this community, but they cannot break through the barriers alone. My one small voice of protest reverberating against the wall of prejudice is not going to thrust through either, but there must be more of you out there who think as I do.

If you feel that America's entire destiny hangs in the balance, please make your voice heard in this city so that the administration, the citizens of Livonia, and the citizens of all America understand that all races are welcome here. Open housing is here to stay!

ELAINE MILLER

Praises Shirley

EDITOR:

This is my first letter ever written to a newspaper. I have often read and wanted to comment on articles, but this time I felt compelled to voice my agreement with Mr. and Mrs. Shirley whose protest against citizens arming themselves was recently on your front page in the Livonia Observer.

I am so much in agreement with these compassionate, intelligent people. It is disgraceful to see fellow Livonians and even close neighbors buying guns, rifles, shotguns, and talking about how they will shoot anyone who comes near their home.

It is not only disgraceful, disappointing, and sad, it is also very frightening to a mother who does not want to see her children hurt seriously or even killed in an unfortunate shooting accident.

I want to commend Mr. and Mrs. Shirley for taking an outward and positive step to voice their beliefs on this matter by posting their sign saying "This home is NOT armed." My home is also unarmed and will remain so for I believe we are living in a free and democratic country and not in an iron-curtain "fear" state. I hope others who feel the same will not be afraid to speak out.

Thank you for reading a mother's thoughts.

MRS. JOHN A. BETTEGA

Disagrees

EDITOR:

After Mr. Shirley's heroic act, it sounds as if he is preparing to run for some public office. (In Detroit, I hope!)

Shirley was right on one account. He didn't accomplish anything great. I would say that if anything did happen in Livonia, the intruders could care less about the sign (he put in the window after giving the police his two guns.)

Stop and frisk, the gun school, and needed additional police equipment saddened Shirley. Well, ask him why they call the National Guard and the U.S. Army to subdue the acts of destroying innocent people's property?

In Mayor Hubbard's city of Dearborn and in ours the clean streets refer to crime which is a joke in Detroit.

As Roy Wilkins of the N.A.A.C.P. said, "These black rioters are not mourning Dr. King's death. They are breaking the law. They do not belong to my race."

I have lived and (or) worked with Negroes for 29 years, a lifetime to me. At the present time I have 43 Negroes working for me. Ninety per cent of these people have been afraid all of their lives, afraid not of the white man, but afraid of what their own people will do to them.

Many have told me that they would not let their wife or daughter walk down their street after six o'clock because of the raping and molesting that nobody ever hears about.

At the time of the end of the riot, Mr. Ford hired the Hard Core. A general foreman (a respectable Negro) said it would never work out because these people just do not want to work. He was right. Our plant took on about 1,000. There are less than 100 left. Quite a few were discharged for carrying firearms on company property.

I have been chased with a knife at Ford, by them, with nothing in my hand or pockets to defend myself. Believe me, Mr. Shirley, you get a feeling you'll never forget. I hope it's a feeling you and your family will never experience.

I have never owned a gun but now I am seriously concerned with buying one.

Shirley said, "I am not a brave man." I disagree with him. He is a very brave man or he is ignorant and believes it could never happen to his family.

I wouldn't give up the majority of Negroes working for me. I have been invited to their weddings, birthdays and other social functions. Even though my men promised no trouble, they knew why I had to turn them down. I doubt that you will ever see these men breaking the law.

If and when Shirley moves to Detroit, I will be more than happy to help him move. I know of a house on the Boulevard that was decent eight years ago. (The Shirley sign says, "This house is not armed).

Open Housing Vote Revives Old Memories

EDITOR:

With the Open Housing vote coming up next Monday in Plymouth I would like to suggest that all Plymouth residents read David Strang's "Top Side of Life" column in last Sunday's paper...and please read it thoughtfully and with an open mind.

I have heard so much comment about what will happen if the measure is passed that I would like to relate an incident which occurred when our family moved here over 25 years ago. The real estate people made it clear to us that we could have colored help in during the day but that it was not permitted to have them stay overnight in Plymouth.

We had moved to Plymouth from a large industrial city with a large foreign (and colored) population. We had come to Plymouth, not to get away from the minority groups, but because my husband's new job was in Plymouth. I was amazed to find out how many of the residents felt about the Negro.

I mentioned this to my next door neighbor, who incidentally was a Catholic. She told me that it was explainable in Plymouth. . .and that when her in-laws had moved to Plymouth years before and were one of the first Catholic families here, that the people walking along the street crossed to the other side rather than walk in front of a Catholic home.

Now I am living in an apartment in Plymouth and I've heard it said by many Plymouth taxpayers that only property owners should be allowed to vote on the Open Housing issue. I would remind all who feel this way that I'm sure my landlord, being an honest man, will have paid his property taxes, a part of which came from my rent. And incidentally, not one child has been added to the school district by these 16 families living in this apartment complex.

Is 'Oracle' Wrong

EDITOR:

The latest literary effort of the "Oracle of the Observer" is far beyond those that preceded it. The Reverend Strang's observations can indeed be called revolutionary in that they go in circles.

His statement that television may be the most revolutionary force in society today is his opening mistake. Obviously, he has not watched the tube of late. Such epics as "Bonanza," "Hogan's Heroes," and "Peyton Place" still reign supreme.

And so to the racial revolution. Ah, TV and its influence, again. The poor Negro sees how white America lives, via the tube. A short time ago the down-trodden black man (according to the Reverend Strang) only saw the white man's house or world first hand as a servant or domestic.

The Reverend Strang is a typical Liberal preacher. He further underestimates Negro intelligence when he says that TV only shows the shining things that the Negro wants.

BEATING THE BUGS

Because mosquitoes are not only a nuisance, but also can carry disease, American homes and businesses use well over 500 million square feet of wire screening each year. In choosing your screening, according to the Gromley & Larsen Screening Company, look not only for material and price, but also for quality construction and uniformity. There are differences in screening quality, and local hardware dealers will be happy to explain what they are.

Trainmen Call In 'Sick'

YOUNGSTOWN — About 100 members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Local 952, failed to report for work Monday, leaving Erie Lackawanna Railroad without a work force in the Youngstown district. C.E. Gogan, railroad district superintendent, said the men had called in sick. A spokesman for the union said the men were protesting new work assignments involving railroad crews.

Plymouth-Made Safety Device Is County's 'Product Of Year'

One of the most unusual products of the space age—a highway call box or safety satellite that is manufactured by RCA in Plymouth—has been named Wayne County's entry in the annual "product of the year" contest that is a feature of Michigan Week.

The selection of the Wayne County product was made last Friday following the report of the judges, who included Gerald Harris, of Westland, chairman of the county; Mayor Thomas H. Brown, of Westland; Mike Gaujanian, of Bank of the Commonwealth; Jack McMaster, National Bank of Detroit, and Fred Speer of the National Bank of Detroit.

* * *

THE SATELLITE is an unusual piece of equipment in that it is a 14-inch cast aluminum sphere divided into halves. It is powered by solar battery, and therefore needs no wires.

The battery has a capacity of at least 1,000 consecutive transmissions without recharging. The machine also has the ability to transmit a complete message in one second.

Up to five labeled buttons can be located behind the top-hinged, self-closing door, each of them capable of transmitting a message.

These satellites, considered the last word for those who need them on the highways, are expected to be installed on alternate half-mile positions along the major state highways for the convenience of the motorist in trouble.

* * *

SHOULD SOME misfortune transpire, the owner or driver of the car can go to any of these satellites and report his trouble to headquarters in a few seconds. Each message is in code and the headquarters staff can trace the call by the signal. In this way, help can be on the way shortly.

Aside from use on the highways, the satellite also can be used for police or fire calls.

Norm A. Amberg, general manager of RCA, announced his appreciation of the choice of the satellite as the Wayne County winner. Within the next few weeks, the statewide contest will be judged and from those who have seen the entries, the satellite is considered a leading candidate.

Aside from the amazing work it does, the ability to install it with only a pole and lunar battery--eliminating all wires--makes it all the more attractive to the highway departments and city officials.

RCA OFFICIALS show their safety satellite to Plymouth Mayor James Jabara after learning it had been selected as Wayne County's product of the year in the statewide Michigan Week competition. The group includes: (from left) RCA Marketing Manager Gordon McAlpine, Mayor Jabara, General Manager Norman Amberg and Gerald Harris, chairman of Michigan Week in Wayne County.

THIS IS a small scale of the call box which has a capacity of 1,000 transmissions without recharging. The boxes will be installed at half-mile positions on the freeways.

THE CALL BOX will look like this when installed alongside the highway where it can be used by anyone in need of assistance.

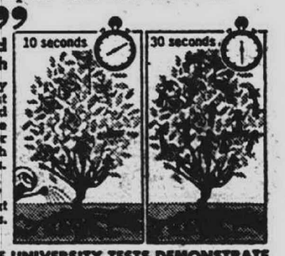

Income Tax Increase Nearer

WASHINGTON -- The long debated increase in income taxes appeared Monday to have the best prospects yet of enactment. Key members of Congress are near agreement in principle on a combination of tax increase and limitation of government spending. But working out the details--including amounts--is expected to take at least until mid-May.

LOS ANGELES -- The Storer Broadcasting Co., said it has sold radio stations KGBS-AM and FM in Los Angeles to Norwood J. Patterson, a west coast broadcasting executive. The announcement was made in Miami, headquarters of Storer. Storer said the sale price was $1.8 million plus "a non-competing agreement" in the amount of $500,000.

Final Plymouth Concert Sunday Stars Pianist

Pianist Benning Dexter will be guest soloist when the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra presents its final concert of the 1967-68 regular season.

The free concert will begin at 4 p.m. Sunday in Plymouth High School, Church at Main streets.

Dexter will be heard with the orchestra in Rachmaninoff's second piano concerto.

The orchestra, conducted by Wayne Dunlap, will perform Mozart's overture to "The Marriage of Figaro" and Franz Schubert's seventh symphony.

Theme of the concert will be "the heroic summing up," says Conductor Dunlap.

* * *

PIANIST DEXTER joined the University of Michigan faculty in 1949 and has been chairman of the piano department in the School of Music since 1961.

A native of California, Dexter received his major training in New York during five years of Juilliard Fellowship study under Alexander Siloti, who was the teacher of Rachmaninoff.

He has given concerts and recitals in the U.S., Canada and the Orient, and has also made radio and educational television appearances.

While stationed with American occupation forces in Japan following World War II, Dexter had his own radio program and made recordings for Columbia.

* * *

BENNING DEXTER

'Pop' Tickets Go On Sale

Tickets for the May 11 "pop concert" sponsored by the Plymouth Symphony League will go on sale at this Sunday's regular concert of the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

There is a limit of one table to a customer; price for table reservations is $3 a person. In addition, bleacher seats will be available for the first time for $1.50 a person.

After this Sunday's concerts, tickets for the pop concert will be available at Melody House in Plymouth or from Mrs. Robert Webber, 453-3046, or Mrs. Jerry Williams, 453-5368.

Headlining the concert will be "Fat Bob" Taylor, the singing plumber from Ann Arbor.

Lutist To Play April 28

Herb David, well known lutist and guitarist, will appear in an evening of music making and making music Sunday, April 28, in Livonia's Alfred Nobel Library on Plymouth Rd.

Concert time is 8:15 p.m. The evening is sponsored by the Livonia Entertainment Guild.

David, who makes his own instruments, will present a demonstration-lecture showing the unique art of lute making and will perform many of the classic and folk pieces he has adapted for lute and guitar.

The ancient lute was the instrument of Shakespeare's day and the traveling minstrel and is the forerunner of the folk sound we know today.

Tickets priced at $1 are on sale at both branches of the Livonia library or may be purchased at the door the night of the performance.

'CURTAIN GOING UP

"Cabaret," a musical with a message, arrived at the Fisher Theatre last week for a four-week stay. Standing-room only signs are being dusted off as the crush at the box office increases.

Detroit wants to see this smash musical comedy. "Cabaret" is wild, hysterical, great fun, a shimmering explosion of creative ingenuity, and best of all, it has a sardonic streak of witty intelligence coursing through its veins.

Berlin on the eve of the Nazi regime and the gay Kit Kat Club where Berliners spend their lonely hours trying to forget their troubles, is the setting for "Cabaret". Hardly the setting you'd expect for an entertaining musical comedy, but let's face it, Producer-Director Harold Prince has fashioned a great musical out of such stern material.

* * *

PRODUCER PRINCE has the reputation over the years for taking unusual themes and making them into great musicals. "Pajama Game," his first big hit, dealt with strikes and unions. "Fiddler On The Roof," the struggle of the Jews versus the Czar, is still packing them in on Broadway.

Berlin at its bawdy height occupies center stage during most of the evening's song and dance numbers. The choreography stresses the sensual and hits a lascivious peak in the staging of the "Money Song." The master of ceremonies gets away with actions that would have brought the police on the run back a few years ago in respectable burlesque houses.

In "Cabaret," however, all the sexuality that pervades the songs, dances and the script is there for a purpose. Berlin is pictured as a sick decadent society slowly suffocating in its desperate attempt to forget the Third Reich in a mad, gay whirl. That old devil Hitler is about to take over and they might as well be happy while there is still time.

Many folks see a reflection of our own affluent times in this highly provocative musical. The bawdiness at first so comic in "Cabaret", begins to turn inward. The laughter subsides. Suddenly, you do realize that when society becomes so little concerned about its political life, it is very easy for a dictator to gain control.

* * *

"CABARET" has a strong cast of performers. Signe Hasso belts her songs out brilliantly. Miss Hasso plays Fraulein Schneider wistfully and adds terrific impact to all her difficult songs. Leo Fuchs is a perfect Herr Schultz. His dramatization of "Meeskite" stops the show.

Melissa Hart gives an infectious quality to the ammoral Sally Bowles. Her sleeping-around habits almost take on a moral quality in her hands. Gene Rupert, as the visiting American author, provides a sensitive characterization. Incidentally, Rupert, a short 10 years ago, was appearing at the Bonstelle Theatre in the Wayne State University productions. Old Wally remembers seeing him as Benedict in "Much Ado About Nothing."

You'll like everything about "Cabaret." It has some melodic songs, fascinating dance numbers, and a well-conceived story-line. If the ticket situation is on the sparse side, be sure to catch "Cabaret" the second time around.

* * *

SPEAKING of the Nazis, they are making an amusing appearance at the Quo Vadis Penthouse Theatre I in "The Secret War of Harry Frigg." You chortle with glee as Paul Newman makes monkeys of them as he masterminds an escape for five generals. To tell you any more would spoil the fun.

A NEW TYPE ROLE — Elvis Presley stars in the title role of "Stay Away Joe" and appears as a brawling, half Navajo cowboy. The film is currently showing at the Algiers and Dearborn Drive-Ins. Also appearing in the film are Burgess Meredith, Joan Blondell and Katy Jurado.

Christie Film At Quo Vadis

Also starring in the film, which is adapted from the Thomas Hardy novel, are: Terence Stamp, Peter Finch and Alan Bates.

Sponsor Cabaret 'Pops' Concert

The Detroit Alumnae Chapter of Mu Phi Epsilon is co-sponsoring the Detroit Symphony Orchestra in a Cabaret "Pops" concert Saturday, April 27, at 8:30 p.m. in the Detroit Light Guard Armory.

Gordon Staples, violinist, new concert master of the symphony will be featured in the Tchaikovsky Violin Concerto in D major. Arthur Fiedler is the conductor.

Galleries Display Poster Art

Currently on display in Cranbrook Academy of Art Galleries is an exhibition of the List Art Posters. The show will continue through May 5.

Teen-agers and the younger "oldsters" will enjoy these popular posters, some with wild colors in patterns that seem to dissolve and revolve before the eyes, some frankly sentimental, some sophisticated reproductions that carry famous names like Chagall, Vasarely, Albers and Stella.

The List Art Program was established in 1963 to stimulate the creative use and appreciation of the poster as an art form. The program commissions major artists to design posters for important events sponsored by cultural institutions.

Continuing exhibitions in the galleries for this period are "Metal: Germany" and the works of students from Brookside School Cranbrook, Cranbrook School, Kingswood School Cranbrook and the Young People's Art Center, which is sponsored by the galleries.

Gallery hours are 1 to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays, except for major holidays. There is an admission charge.

Redford Symphony In Cabaret Concert

The Redford Civic Symphony will present its annual "cabaret concert" of lighter music Sunday at 4 p.m. in the Thurston High School cafeteria.

Refreshments will be served as the orchestra offers such popular favorites as the overture from Bernstein's "West Side Story" and Lara's theme from "Dr. Zhivago."

Admission is $1.25 for adult non-members of the Symphony Society and 50 cents for youngsters age 12 and under.

The Society will hold its annual meeting Wednesday, May 15, at 8 p.m. in Redford Union High School following a 6 p.m. smorgasbord at the Skipper's Table in Livonia.

Chamber Concert Slated

Now making its debut tour of the United States, the Sonata da Camera from Amsterdam will appear Friday, May 3, at 8:30 p.m. in the Detroit Institute of Arts Founders Society Concert Series.

The four virtuoso musicians in this chamber music group are renowned for their interpretation of 17th and 18th century works. Concert goers are showing an increasing interest and enjoyment of baroque and rococo music. With vitality and vigor, Sonata de Camera presents rarely-heard trio and quartet sonatas of these eras.

Tickets for this final concert of the 1967-68 series at the Detroit Institute of Arts are available at the museum ticket office (832-2730), J.L. Hudson ticket services and Grinnell's.

Israeli Art Exhibition Set

An outstanding exhibition of original Israeli art and graphics will be on display daily at the Jewish Community Center, 18100 Meyers Rd. at Curtis, Detroit, from Sunday, April 28, through Sunday, May 5, as part of the Center's celebration of Israel Independence Week.

Oil paintings, water colors, gouaches, woodcuts, etchings, lithos, pastels and contis will be exhibited.

All art on display will be for sale.

Residents Cast In EMU Play

Observerland residents will be on stage when the Eastern Michigan University Players' production of "Brigadoon" opens in the Quirk Theatre May 17.

Cast as members of the chorus are Marilyn Campbell of Westland; and Wayne Strang and Lewis Jimines of Livonia.

The musical fantasy will be directed by EMU Professor Parker R. Zellers. Professor O. Blaine Ballard will be the musical director, while Professor Jeanne Bostian will direct the choreography.

Cast as Tommy and Jeff, the two Americans who stumbled onto the old Scottish village of Brigadoon while vacationing, are Russell Howes and Donald Jones. Fiona, the young girl from Brigadoon with whom Tommy falls in love, has been double-cast and will be played on alternate nights by Kay Seitz and Katherine Wiederkehr.

The production is scheduled to run through May 25.

Farmington Players

Good Cast, Mediocre Play

"Barefoot In The Park" by Neil Simon. Farmington Players Production directed by Howard McFarland. Farmington Players Barn, 12 Mile Rd. west of Orchard Lake Rd., Farmington Township, 474-9787, tickets $2 (special student price $1 on April 28). Curtain 8:30 p.m. Performances April 26, 27, 28, May 3 and 4.

THE CAST
(in order of appearance)

Corie Bratter	Eileen Waldecker
Telephone Man	Al Stutson
Delivery Man	George Nahstoll
Paul Bratter	Norm Hosking
Mrs. Banks	Dorothy Millerd
Victor Velasco	Ted Budgen

By SUE SHAUGHNESSY

The comedy "Barefoot In The Park" is a situation comedy with the basic joke being about the perils of living in a fifth-floor walkup in Manhattan for a pair of newlyweds.

For some obscure reason, the comedy was a smash hit on Broadway and is now a favorite on the community theater circuit. (The Livonia-Redford Theatre "did" the play this season, and the Wayne Civic Players have an opening next weekend.)

The Farmington Players chose the play for its 39th production which opened last Friday in the Players Barn.

* * *

THAT DOESN'T mean that the leads, as played by Eileen Waldecker and Norm Hosking, didn't turn in creditable performances. It simply means that the antics of Miss Millerd and Hosking saved the day in the production of a mediocre play.

Miss Millerd, who is no stranger to the stage at the Barn, was especially enchanting when she dominated the scene as the mother who is determined to try to roll with the punches delivered by her somewhat wacky daughter, Corrie.

Budgen evoked just the right type of response as the way-out neighbor who wangles an invitation to dinner from the newlyweds with the observation that "Friday is fine, I hadn't planned to eat on Thursday."

The leads--Miss Waldecker and Hosking--picked up the pace as the play progressed and hit their peak in the "first fight" scene between the newlyweds.

* * *

Al Stutson deserves recognition for his role as the telephone repair man, and we hope to see more of him on the Players stage.

The man who deserves the outstanding pantomime award for the year, however, is George Nahstoll, who uttered nary a word but succeeded in having the audience in gales of laughter as he portrayed a not-so-fit delivery man after negotiating six (counting the front stoop) flights of stairs.

The comedy runs for two more weekends in the Players Barn on 12 Mile Rd. in Farmington Township. If you like situation comedies--with a New York twist--for your theater fare, the production is recommended.

Appearing in the cast are: Paul Dufault as El Gallo; Brian Miller as Matt; Mary MacIntosh as Luisa; Hal Waller as Bellomy; Ernest Wendt as Hucklebb; David Hirvela as Henry; Harold Jurkiewicz as Mortimer; and Jim Gotch as the Mute.

For ticket information call KE 7-8109.

Top Mime Artist Sets Play Date

Tony Montanaro is a skilled mime artist. He uses no props, no words, yet convinces his young audience that he is a piano mover, a toothbrush, fighting clowns, a lion tamer or a dozen other people and activities.

Saturday, May 4, Montanaro will populate the auditorium stage of the Detroit Institute of Arts with characters and situations when he appears in the Detroit Junior Town Hall program at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Montanaro will also demonstrate the "how" of mime--the mechanics of using his body and the space around it to express any theme, character or thing.

This past season he was featured on CBS-TV presentation of "Sound and Silence."

Field Trips Planned

Young people interested in the study of birds, reptiles, mammals, and amphibians, plants, fossils and minerals may join student members of Cranbrook Institute of Science in Saturday field trips beginning May 4 through June 1.

There is a $2 charge for members. Non-student members may join the institute and register for the trips at the same time.

The May 4 trip is to Horseshoe Lake for reptile and amphibian, and wildflower study. Beardslee Gravel Pit area will be the scene of the May 11 trip to collect rocks and minerals.

Spring bird migration and unusual tree and plant habitats will be the subject of study for the May 18 expedition to Point Pelee, while quaking bog and forest succession will be scrutinized on May 25 at Camp Ohiyesa. On June 1 there will be a trip to Arkona, Marsh's mill and Kettle Point, Ontario, for fossil collecting and mineral study.

Transportation must be provided by parents. Starting time for each tour is 9 a.m. prompt. The May 18 and June 1 expeditions will last all day; the others until approximately 1 p.m.

Registration may be made by mail or at the institute reception desk from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. weekdays. For additional information call 644-1600, ext. 285.

ART SHOW JUDGE — Jean Harding Brown, of the Bloomfield Art Association and Macomb Art Center, is one of two artists who will judge entries in the Farmington Artists Club spring exhibit and sale in the Farmington Masonic Temple. Dates of the event are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. April 26 and 27, noon to 8 p.m. April 28. Entries will also be judged by Dorothy Siddall.

Set Observance Of Israel's Independence

"Sallah," award-winning motion picture comedy from Israel, will be the centerpiece of a week-long celebration of the 20th anniversary of Israel's independence at the Jewish Community Center, 18100 Meyers Rd. at Curtis, Detroit.

"Sallah" will be shown at 8 p.m. Wednesday, May 1, in the center's Aaron DeRoy Theatre. A limited number of seats are now on sale at the center.

Israel Independence Week will be celebrated from April 28 through May 5 at the center.

* * *

AN ART SHOW featuring original Israel art will be open to the public daily throughout the week. The work of more than 20 prominent Israeli artists will be on display and for sale.

Opening event of the Independence Week celebration will be Sunday, April 28, when the Zionist Council of Detroit and the Jewish Community Council will co-sponsor a program in the DeRoy Theatre.

Moshe Leshem, an ambassador who is a member of Israel's permanent mission at the United Nations, will speak. Entertainment will be presented. The public is welcome.

The center's Hebrew Club will present an all-Hebrew program Thursday, May 2, at 8:30 p.m. in the DeRoy Theatre. Dramatic offerings, music and recordings will be part of the evening's entertainment.

An anniversary celebration will be conducted Saturday, May 4, starting at 8:30 p.m. in the DeRoy Theatre, by the Israeli Students Organization. A choir, instrumental ensemble and dance group will perform in a memorial ceremonial and pageant.

A program of Israeli folk dancing, ballroom dancing and refreshments in the center's Shiffman Hall will follow the theatre program.

* * *

THE THIRD Annual Youth Zimriya will be offered Sunday afternoon, May 5, in the DeRoy Theatre. This is a meeting of the Jewish community's youth choirs, who will sing in Hebrew and conduct a community sing.

A teach-in for high school students co-sponsored by Hadassah and the Jewish Community Center Sunday, May 5, will be the week's concluding event.

Purpose of the teach-in is to make Jewish youth aware of the Arab propaganda campaign which will confront them in college and in the community. On the program are a keynote address, buzz groups, Arab movies and analysis and a student panel.

Dr. A. Rabin, Michigan State University professor, will speak on "The Psychology of Propaganda."

Local Work In Show

Local artists will be represented when the annual American Association of University Women Art Fair opens May 5 in the Oakland University Center. Hours of the show are from 1 to 6 p.m.

Participating in the invitational show are: Electra Stamelos, Harriet Jones Kachensperger and Caroline L. Dunphy, all of Livonia. Approximately 70 artists will be represented in the show.

A variety of fine arts and crafts will be displayed, with demonstrations scheduled in the following: silk screen; ceramics; weaving; water color and art silhouettes.

A 25 cent admission will be charged to help support the AAUW Fellowship Fund which provides financial assistance to women seeking higher education.

Field Trips

The Detroit Audubon Society has arranged two Sunday field trips to areas of interesting natural features and native wildlife.

A trip will be made to the Baker Sanctuary near Bellevue in Calhoun County beginning at 8 a.m. April 28.

At 8 a.m. May 12, a trip will be made to Pt. Pelee National Park, Ontario.

"2001: A Space Odyssey stimulates one's thinking about space. Kuhn Asks Banking Law Study

A study of Michigan's financial institution laws is being sought by Sen. George W. Kuhn, R-West Bloomfield, chairman of the Senate Corporations Committee.

Sen. Kuhn has introduced a concurrent resolution asking for a "comprehensive study of the existing structures of various Michigan financial institutions, including banks, savings and loan institutions, small business investment companies, credit unions, mortgage banking companies and finance companies."

The committee would investigate "corporate ownership of bank stock, formation of bank holding companies, the concept of statewide branch banking, use of uniform limited partnerships in the banking and financial institutions' businesses, and extension of credit and free flow of money, various methods of financing or refinancing loans, and day-to-day purchases of the consumer."

The committee would comprise five senators and five representatives. Its findings and recommendations would be made to the 1969 Legislature.

NEW AMBASSADOR — Ambassador-designate to the Philippines and Mrs. G. Mennen Williams held their first reception for Filipinos at a Finnish-American club banquet in Detroit public affairs

New Job Revives Zip For Williams

By TIM RICHARD

A lot of the spark was gone from the six-foot-four frame that election night two years ago when, for the first time, he was beaten by a Republican.

But it was back last week as G. Mennen Williams and his wife Nancy got ready to go the Republic of the Philippines where the former governor will be U.S. ambassador--the third Michigander to hold that post.

The new and the old career were, by a neat coincidence, placed side by side when Filipinos and Finns honored him at a VFW hall in Detroit's factory district.

* * *

THE WAYNE County Finnish-American Democratic Women's Club had long before lined up Williams as a dinner speaker. When President Johnson announced last week he would name Williams to the embassy post, a Filipino-American society asked the chance to be the first to greet Williams on behalf of their Pacific native land. The Finns invited the Filipinos.

As a television camera crew herded people by the Williamses, Michigan's greatest electioneer of modern times was his old self, and the people were charmed.

Before the mad rush started, Williams was interviewed in a parking lot, and he talked about this state's past connections with the Philippines.

* * *

"FRANK MURPHY was the last governor general and first high commissioner or ambassador. He took some of our University of Michigan people there, and they've had a very close association ever since," Williams recalled.

Murphy was governor general from mid-1933 to late 1935 when the Philippines, which the U.S. had owned as a dependency since 1898, attained commonwealth status. Murphy had been a strong advocate of total independence, which the 7,100-island area attained after World War II, on July 4, 1946.

One of the Filipino-Americans explained the U. of M. Vice President Wilbur Stirton set up many of the contacts, and today Michigan is probably the best known university in the Philippines.

* * *

THE FILIPINOS themselves set up a system of college scholarships, with many students coming to this state, and the Filipino literacy rate of 65 per cent is the highest in southeast Asia.

Williams recalled that Murphy kept up his contacts with the Philippines after he was elected governor of Michigan in 1936 and later as Franklin Roosevelt's attorney general. Williams himself was aware of it in his work as a young depression-era Justice Department lawyer.

Another prominent Michigan politician, Homer Ferguson, U.S. senator until 1954, later served as ambassador in the Eisenhower Administration. Williams, however, doesn't mention Republican Ferguson unless asked, and then says a bit icily: "Yes, he was there also."

* * *

WILLIAMS WON'T be part of the politicking that will be going on this election. "I'll be in Manila at the time of the Democratic national convention," he said.

His favorite presidential candidate?

"I'm sitting with most of the Michigan Democrats, watching what's going on. We'll make a decision on the basis of what's proved," he said.

Assuming a Democrat is elected to succeed Lyndon Johnson, does Williams expect to keep his job?

"Well, I don't know. That's a matter of protocol. When there's a new administration, ambassadors all submit their resignations. For example, when President Kennedy was assassinated, everybody submitted their resignations," he recalled. (He was assistant secretary of state for African affairs from 1961 until 1966, when he left to run unsuccessfully for the U.S. Senate against incumbent Republican Robert Griffin.)

"I'd hate to speculate or bind the successor president," Williams said.

* * *

AS MICHIGAN'S only six-term (1949-60) governor, Williams learned a lot of phrases and sentences in the native tongues of this state's melting-pot population, but he admitted he hadn't yet picked up any Tagalog, the most widely-used language of the Philippines.

Nevertheless, he's looking forward to the job in the young nation of 36 million people which has been a strong ally of the U.S. since gaining its independence.

He expects to leave in "six or eight weeks."

"Our history goes back to the Spanish-American War, and I think there are many things in which we can take satisfaction in the development of the Philippines," Williams said.

"I don't think anyone can last very long being a ceremonial ambassador. Being an ambassador is a top profession.

McDonald Backs Travel Bars To Red Nations

Congressman Jack McDonald, R-19th District, says he favors a bill that would give the secretary of state clear authority to restrict travel of Americans when it might "seriously impair the conduct of foreign affairs."

The lawmaker from Redford said a bill, pending in the Senate, is aimed at restricting travel of Americans to such Communist nations as Cuba, Red China, North Korea and North Vietnam.

"Until last month," McDonald said in a newsletter this week, "the State Department had declared these countries 'off limits' to U.S. citizens as active enemy states.

"BUT ON MARCH 28, reacting to a Dec. 22 Supreme Court ruling, the State Department announced it would no longer try to punish those traveling to these four countries. Punishment actually amounted to no more than a slap on the wrist---passport revocation.

"The State Department said travel to the four Red nations would continue to be restricted, but there would be no attempt at passport revocation. At the same time, the department said new regulations governing issuance and revocation of passports had been drafted in line with the court ruling in the case of Staughton Lynd, a Yale professor whose passport was revoked after he traveled to Hanoi in 1966.

"The court ruled that while the State Department had the authority to say where a citizen might take his passport, it could not control his travel."

* * *

A BILL PENDING in the Senate would give the secretary of state specific authority to restrict travel when it was determined such travel might 'seriously impair the conduct of foreign affairs.'

The State Department previously had acted on a provision of the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 to take criminal action against anyone who violated its restrictions.

"The Supreme Court ruled in January 1967 that the provision---which held that a person could not leave the country in time of national emergency without a valid passport---did not apply to someone traveling to restricted countries.

"I favor the legislation pending in the Senate and would appreciate knowing you views," McDonald said.

State GOP To Pick National Delegates

They will also nominate 21 faithful partisans for the largely ceremonial role of serving in the Electoral College in December should Michigan voters back the GOP presidential nominee in November.

The convention will begin Saturday at 11 a.m. in Detroit's Cobo Hall. The 19th Congressional District will caucus at 11 that morning in room 3184 Cobo Hall.

Headquarters for the GOP State Central Committee and the credentials committee will be in the Sheraton Cadillac Hotel, and the 19th District hospitality suite will be in the Statler Hilton.

* * *

EACH OF THE 19 congressional district caucuses will nominate two delegates and two alternates for the national convention.

The full convention is expected to give routine approval to these choices and to add 10 at-large delegates.

The Michigan GOP delegation is expected to back Gov. George Romney as a favorite son, for the presidency at least until the political situation jells enough to indicate which way it should leap.

Moderates will be looking for Romney to make some sort of deal with someone of the political stripe of New York's Nelson Rockefeller; some conservatives are openly supporting California's Ronald Reagan.

* * *

THERE'S LIKELY to be a routine protest by a conservative group in the Oakland County portion of the 19th District, challenging the credentials of a moderate group headed by John Cartwright and recognized by the GOP State Central Committee.

The conservatives expect to lose at the state level, however, but they say they intend to carry their fight to the national convention.

The conservative group, loyal to Chairman Christian Powell and often helped by 14th District conservative Richard Durant, contends it was robbed of Oakland-19th offices when the 1967 state convention seated the Cartwright group.

* * *

OTHERWISE, the state convention this weekend is likely to be routine. There is little in the way of political battles compared to the late summer conventions when candidates for state offices are nominated.

Michigan Democrats will hold their county and district conventions May 17 and their state convention about a month later. The Democratic national convention will open Aug. 26 in Chicago.

Six GOP Representatives To Retire

Six state representatives--all Republicans--have announced they won't seek re-election this fall.

Only one is a relatively young man--Lionel Stacey, 39, of Berrien County. He wants to return to school administration.

Others are J. Harold Stevens, 73, of Saginaw, a two-termer; Cyril H. Root, 72, of rural Kalamazoo, a 19-year veteran; Carl O. Little, 68, of Saginaw, completing his fourth term; Lester J. Allen, 67, of Ithaca, finishing his sixth term; and Blair Woodman, 65, of Owosso, two terms.

Sen. Hart Rips 'Poisonous' Abuse Of LBJ On War

U.S. Senator Philip A. Hart had high praise for President Johnson in a speech delivered at the annual dinner given in Hart's honor by the Oakland County Democratic Committee.

At the same time, Hart was highly critical of what he called "poisonous, personal abuse" heaped on the President by some of his opponents. He made it clear, however, that his criticism was not aimed at rational dissent of presidential policies.

Hart said that time has shown the shrill critics of the President to be "shabby and cheap... You're diverted when harshness becomes so shrill," the Senator said.

* * *

"I've had reservations about Vietnam, and I've voiced them. But it never was rational to believe that President Johnson enjoyed presiding over...the Vietnam war.

"History is going to note that the Vietnam war was not the only event of the 1960's. I suggest that those who heartily disapprove of the President will not find history on their side."

Hart further praised Johnson's decision not to seek re-election as one which "put unity ahead of his own advancement and own self interest."

Hart referred to each of the Democratic party's presidential contenders -- Vice President Humphrey, Senator Kennedy and Senator McCarthy--as "a hearty endorser of almost every building block" in the achievements of the Kennedy-Johnson administrations.

* * *

HE LISTED these achievements as including the war on poverty, Medicare, Social Security increases, nuclear test ban treaty, elementary and secondary education act, and Peace Corps.

"It's a mistake to forget that the greatest (of the achievements) came to pass during the administration of Lyndon Johnson," Hart reminded his audience.

Hart was introduced by Oakland County Democratic Chairman George Googasian who hailed the recent U.S. Supreme Court decision calling for "one man, one-vote" makeup of county boards of supervisors.

"Once again the courts have found the Romney constitution to be unconstitutional," Googasian said.

Googasian called the ruling "the most significant development in the history of Oakland County. For the first time the board of supervisors will have meaning as a representative body."

McCarthy Backers To Solicit

Suburban supporters of presidential candidate Eugene McCarthy will knock on doors Friday evening in a "Dollars for McCarthy" drive to aid the Wisconsin Democrat.

Farmington area chairman is Frank Sullivan, 31805 Bond, according to an announcement from Calvin Lippitt, Citizens for McCarthy chairman.

The funds will be used for McCarthy's campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination in the Indiana primary, where for the first time he will be on the same ballot with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy of New York.

No other nearby area chairmen were listed in the CFM announcement.

Cook Sheriff To Speak

State Senator Robert J. Huber announced that Joseph Wood, the incumbent Republican sheriff of Cook County (Chicago), Ill., will be the featured speaker at the annual meeting of the Republican Citizens Committee of Oakland County.

Sheriff Woods will discuss the control of riotous situations he was confronted with last summer. He will also discuss the recent disorders and what can be expected this summer in the cities.

Huber said the sheriff will talk at the Republican Citizens Committee's annual meeting on Monday, May 13 at 8 p.m. in the Oakland County Service Center Auditorium in Pontiac.

NEW YORK--The American Insurance Association said that the 1967 summer riots in Newark and Detroit resulted in $80 million property loss. The association, which said it surveyed the two cities at federal government request, estimated loss in Newark at $15.9 million and in Detroit at $64.1 million.

New Season Set By Livonia Town Hall

Television's Barbara Walter, world traveler Grant C. Butler and speech expert Dorothy Sarnoff are among the speakers set for the Livonia Town Hall 1968-69 series.

The program was announced recently by the Livonia Town Hall, which is sponsored by the Livonia Chapters of the American Field Service.

* * *

ALL THE LECTURES will be held at 10:30 a.m. Wednesdays in the Terrace Theater, 30400 Plymouth, Livonia.

Tickets for the four lectures may be purchased by writing Livonia Town Hall, 27650 Terrence Drive, Livonia. The season price is $10, and no tickets to separate lectures will be sold.

Each lecture will be followed by a celebrity luncheon in the Mayflower Meeting House, Plymouth. Luncheon reservations will be taken this year by Mrs. John Layman.

* * *

PROCEEDS FROM the Town Hall series will go, as in other years, to help pay expenses of visits by foreign students to Livonia homes under the AFS program, and to help local students visit abroad.

The program follows:

Oct. 16-- Barbara Walters, star of the "Today" show on television and a daily radio show on the series "Emphasis."

Nov. 26--Grant C. Butler, director of international lectures for Pan American Airways.

Jan. 15--Dorothy Sarnoff, star of Broadway, opera, concert, TV and supper clubs, as well as developer of an unusual concept to develop beauty in speech.

March 19--Norman Garbo, who will combine humor with technique demonstration to illustrate his contention that art should be fun.

The logic of our fine telephone system continues to amaze me.

Its directors, for instance, know exactly how to keep customers in line in the matters of long distance calls.

If I forget to dial the number 1 before making an outside-the-area call, a stern masculine voice always comes on the line to tell me "PLEASE dial 1 when making long distance calls."

But if perchance I dial the 1 and it wasn't necessary, it's a feminine voice that says with an apologetic sigh, "I am sorry, you do not dial 1 for the number you are calling."

Not often, but sometimes, the telephone voices lose their impersonality. Like a few days ago, when I dialed the customary 411 to get a telephone number I needed.

"Directory assistance," said the pleasantly-modulated voice. That threw me. I told the voice I really wanted Information.

"Madame, you have Information," the voice came back. "We now are called Directory Assistance."

I was surprised just enough to ask the reason for such a momentous change. It was, explained the voice, because of the nature of the information available. Then suddenly the operator became a delightful young woman.

"We were always getting calls," she said, "like from little kids who thought they could call Information to find out how to make fudge."

Ball, Concert Coming For Livonia Youth Symphony

The merry, merry month of May holds two big dates for the Livonia Youth Symphony Orchestra and its sponsors.

On Sunday, May 5, the Youth Symphony Orchestra will highlight its Tenth Anniversary year by joining the Kenneth Jewell Chorale in a performance of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony.

The performance will be in the Cherry Hill High School auditorium, 28500 Avondale, Inkster, with Lester Farkas conducting.

* * *

AND THE YOUNG musicians' sponsors, the Livonia Youth Symphony Society, Inc., will hold its annual Symphony Ball Saturday, May 18, in the Meadowbrook Country Club.

Funds raised by the ball will be used to support three youth orchestras, so that young musicians in Livonia and the surrounding area have an opportunity to participate from fifth grade through college.

The Livonia program, which began with a high school orchestra a decade ago, now is one of the most extensive in the country.

* * *

JUDGE AND MRS. James R. McCann are honorary chairmen of the Symphony Ball, which will begin with a gourmet dinner to be served at 8 p.m. There will be dancing from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Aylsworth are chairmen, and committee members include Mrs. Kenneth Campbell, Mrs. Jack Kirksey, Mrs. Robert McCann and Mrs. Robert Nash.

The public is invited to attend the ball, and reservations must be made by May 10 by calling Mrs. Aylsworth, 427-7867, or Mrs. George Suttle, 261-7179.

Auxiliary For Deaf Sets Fair

The Lutheran Ladies' Auxiliary for the Deaf will sponsor its annual Spring Fair at the Lutheran School for the Deaf, 6861 E. Nevada, Detroit, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Tuesday, April 30.

Local business and professional groups who may want to attend may make reservation for quick service by calling 891-8477 on or before Monday, April 29.

Theater Benefit Is Set

The Farmington-Livonia club of Women of Wayne Alumni will sponsor a theater party in the Farmington Players Barn at 8:30 p.m. Friday, May 3.

The production will be the comedy "Barefoot in the Park" in a special performance by the Farmington Players.

The group, made of women in this area who are graduates of Wayne State University or have taken classes there, annually takes over performance at the theater to raise money for WSU scholarships.

Tickets may be obtained by writing or calling Mrs. J.T. Zann, 31718 Summers, Livonia, 48154, Ga. 2-9141. The Players Barn is located on 12 Mile at Powers in Farmington.

Panel On Learning Problems

Parents of children with school problems and teachers with a particularly troublesome child in the classroom are invited to attend a panel discussion on such youngsters at 8 p.m. Friday, April 26, in the Madonna College science lecture hall.

The meeting will be sponsored by the Western Wayne County chapter of the Michigan Association for Children with Learning Disabilities (MACLD).

The group has as its special concern children of average or above average intelligence who have difficulties learning easily or rapidly or retaining their knowledge.

Means by which children with learning disabilities are being identified in area schools and the special provisions being made for them is the topic set for the panel and open discussion.

Panel members will include Mrs. Chrystial Agre, social worker in the Garden City Board of Education; C. Gus Kaselemis, director of special education in the Redford Union Schools; Mrs. Margaret Naumes, Nankin Mills director of special education; Jack Salvadore, South Redford director of special education.

Findings reveal that about 20 per cent of all school children (of all ages) have some learning disability; children who are usually termed "lazy, immature or troublesome".

Education Conference Scheduled

The North Central Regional Conference of Pi Lambda Theta, a national honor and professional association for women in education, will be held Saturday, May 4, at McGregor Memorial, Wayne State University.

The Alpha Pi chapter and the Alumni Association will host the conference, which has as its theme "Responsible Evaluation: Quality Education."

Dr. Richard Wisniewski, assistant dean of the College of Education at Wayne, will speak on "Professionalism in Education" to keynote the conference. Following his talk each conference participant will take part in a small group discussion and react to the progressive ideas that have been presented.

Following luncheon, Johanna Bieleck, social worker for the Dearborn Public Schools, will speak on "The Use of Drugs by High School Students."

A discussion will follow on practical steps the teacher should consider in recognizing and dealing with the problem.

Reservations for the conference should be sent to Dorothy Sibley, 15498 Burt Road in Detroit (48223). All interested educators are invited.

Reporter Evaluates Presidential Prospects

Alistair Cooke, interpreter of the American scene to Britons, thinks Hubert Humphrey might well be this country's best presidential prospect and Ronald Reagan is definitely the worst.

"The nighmare of American television," the BBC and Manchester Guardian correspondent told a Farmington Town Hall audience Thursday, "is that it can bring into prominence a man who is so agreeable before the cameras and knows so little.

"I've spent some time with Reagan in California, and I know this is so."

* * *

THE MAN who gained some of his own fame on the television series "Omnibus" said he really couldn't feel sure of the leadership qualities of any of the men now considered prospects for the presidency. But he added:

"Hubert Humphrey, if he breaks out of the administration mold he has had to keep while vice-president, and returns to being the kind of leader he used to be, might be the best."

Cooke, whose talk was the last in the current Town Hall season, also had comments on the Vietnam conflict and possibilities for peace, the economy of his native England and French leader Charles DeGaulle while speaking at the celebrity luncheon in Glen Oaks Country Club.

* * *

HE SAID THAT possibly a third of the people in England may have approved of this country's motives in entering the Vietnam fighting, but the other two thirds "feel this is the maddest episode in American history."

"My own view," he went on, "is that it's nonsense to think of Vietnam as another Munich.

"I think a far closer parallel is Napoleon's experience with Haiti. He sent in a crack French regiment to put down a rebellion and it was riddled by a small native force that kept disappearing into the hills and attacking from the rear.

* * *

"NAPOLEON'S answer to the situation was to pull back the ragged remnants of his army and change his line about conquering America. And it was shortly after, that France sold the Louisiana territory to the United States."

As far as the peace talks go, Cooke said, this country will be disappointed if it expects a conclusive settlement.

"We've learned in Korea that the Communist strategy is to wear you down with talk--to argue every small point," he said. "But would we rather go back to shooting there?"

* * *

THE SPEAKER, who became an American citizen just before Pearl Harbor, said England's economic plight is serious because it can only maintain its standard of living through manufacturing "and the times are against the English--others are manufacturing too."

He called Charles DeGaulle "a throwback" in a historical sense.

"He's an immensely patriotic characterful man," Cooke went on, "but in these times we must look forward to a united states of Europe rather than backward to French nationalism."

* * *

ASKED IF the English have any civil rights problems, Cooke said emphatically, "You bet they do."

He added that Great Britain's so-called "dark million" now is outnumbered by whites about 55 to 1, but the percentage of Negroes is going up and a similar situation exists in the rest of Europe.

"But they are beginning to legislate early in this matter," Cooke said.

In this country, he stated, the long-range problem is one of "lifting up the Negro or facing the possibility of a second Civil War" and the short-range one involves "deciding what decent power we can give police that will keep order but not be police brutality."

* * *

IN HIS TALK in the Northland Theater, Cooke described the problems involved in reporting the scene in one country to another.

"The difficulties arise mainly with language when you try to get Americans and English together," he said. "Sometimes I almost wish I could translate explanations into French or German."

He said it's a small matter to learn two different words for the same object, like "spool of thread" or "reel of cotton," "elevator" or "lift," and "lawyer" or "solicitor."

"Americans can even get used to having a British hotel clerk say 'I'll knock you up at 7 a.m.,'" Cooke added.

* * *

"THE REAL PROBLEMS come when the same word means different things. It's hard for American to understand that a play that's a bomb in England is a smashing success.

"In politics, it's even harder for an Englishman to understand that the American President's cabinet has practically no political power."

And the word "corn" always causes problems, he said, because it's the word each country gives to its staple grain.

"So in America corn is maize in England it's wheat, in Scotland it's barley and in Australia it's oats."

TOWN HALL VISITOR — Commentator Alistair Cooke chats with Mrs. Nadine Cardwell, of the Soroptimist Club of Farmington, after last week's Farmington Town Hall lecture. The Soroptimists sponsor the series, which concluded its first season program with Cooke's talk.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thurman L. Merritt, of Glendora, Calif. Mr. and Mrs. T.E. Roberts, also of Glendora and formerly of Plymouth, are parents of the bridegroom.

Dr. V.B. Enselman officiated.

The bride's empire gown was fashioned on empire lines of peau de soie and lace, and featured a round neckline and chapel train. A single rose held her elbow-length veil, and she carried a cascade bouquet of stephanotis and butterfly orchids.

Janice Merritt, as her sister's maid of honor, wore a floor-length peach crepe sheath with matching headpiece and carried a cascade of peach spider mums.

A reception for 200 guests in the chapel followed the ceremony. The couple will live in Los Angeles after a motor trip up the California coast to Carmel and Monterey.

Both are graduates of Glendora High School, and Citrus Junior College. The bridegroom is currently enrolled as a political science major at U.C.L.A., Los Angeles.

Madonna Honors 21 Nurses, Technical Aides In Fete

The occasion was a ceremony, tea and social hour honoring 16 graduating nurses and three medical technologists from Madonna College; one tissue technology student and one senior x-ray technology student from St. Mary Hospital.

Pins went to: Celeste Banonis, Christine Brunet, Elaine Gaffke, Virginia Galanty, Anita Johnston, Arlene Musial, Sandra Peters, Jacqueline Strach, Sr. Mary Bernetta, Sr. Mary Eileen, Sandra Tebbe, Marilyn White, Mary Wierzbicki, Kathleen Winegar, Paulinda Zakrzewski and Geraldine Zdziepko.

Future medical technologists honored were Zenaida Bumanlag, Mercedes Miranda and Sr. Bozena Skorupka. Marsha Smigielski was the single girl graduate in tissue technology, and Sheila Anne Kane in x-ray technology.

Other officials on the program were: Dr. Donald Brock, laboratory director at St. Mary; Dr. Mitchell Salhaney, chief of the hospital's medical staff, and Sr. Mary Calasantia, chairman of the department of nursing at Madonna College.

Miss Virginia Galanty was presented the VanderKloot award as the "graduating senior nurse who cares the most and gives the most to her patients." The honor is named after Mrs. Robert VanderKloot, who was named the "Woman who Cares" by the Women's Advertising Club of Detroit. The award was presented Sunday by her husband.

* * *

MISS GALANTY was selected for the honor by the nursing faculty of Madonna and by the head nurses and supervisors group at St. Mary.

Guest speaker for the awards event was Mrs. John Shada, former Madonna College and University of Detroit teacher, who spoke on "The Wonderful World of Women."

Mrs. Shada, now engaged in volunteer activities, is a lecturer for the Detroit Roundtable of Christians and Jews and a guest lecturer for Oakland University and the Family Life Bureau of the Archdiocese of Detroit. She also is a board member of United Community Services and an officer of the Detroit Council of Catholic Women. Wife of an athletic coach at St. James High School in Ferndale, she is the mother of eight.

Mrs. Shada spoke on women in professional and volunteer posts and their ability "to make an impact on the modern world."

Marriage Matters

The Young Have Definite Ideas On Life Partners

By DR. ALFRED J. PRINCE

What do young people look for in a marriage partner? What characteristics do they consider important? What traits do they regard as most undesirable?

Both sexes tend to emphasize disposition and personality, intelligence, moral character, and understanding.

Men more often then women want someone who is physically attractive, neat, well-groomed and a good homemaker. Women, in contrast, want someone who is ambitious and industrious, has a sense of humor, wants a home and family and offers promise of being a good provider.

* * *

THESE FINDINGS are based on our study of hundreds of young people of marriageable age; and the findings are in substantial agreement with those reported in other studies of preference patterns in mate selection.

Traits men consider most undesirable in a mate are: selfishness and inconsiderateness, lacking personal cleanliness, lacking homemaking ability, low moral standards, and low intelligence.

Women find these traits more undesirable in a marriage partner: selfishness and inconsiderateness, lacking in ambition or lazy, conceitedness, self-centeredness, low moral standards.

* * *

A YOUNG MAN commented: "My ideal is a girl who can love me for what I am. One who can understand my problems and be a help and comfort to me. I want a home and family life different from the home I came from, and my ideal is one who can make this possible for me. She must have a pleasing personality and be of my religious faith. She must be sincere and not drink or smoke to excess. Naturally I could expect my wife to have the usual basic qualities: love for children, good homemaking ability, beauty, and the like. I may be asking for too much; but marriage is for a long time, and I want the best mate I can get."

Over half of the students reported their ideal was based primarily on their observation of both parents. Other sources of ideal-images were dating experience, and observation of married couples, personal cleanliness.

Men want a wife approximately two years younger than themselves, and women prefer a mate slightly more than two years older.

* * *

MEN TEND to prefer slightly longer engagements than women. Relatively few of both sexes, however, want the engagement to last more than 18 months.

One factor which seems to play a part in the choice of a marriage partner is the image of an ideal mate. Over 91 per cent of the men and 93 per cent of the women in our study had some image of the idealized characteristics of the person they wished to marry. One girl described her ideal mate as follows:

"The man I marry must first of all be of the Protestant faith. He must be intelligent, have a college education, be ambitious, and have a pretty good idea of what he plans to do with his life. I must feel he is superior to me--not that he should hold this over me--but I feel that the husband should be slightly superior to the wife and the wife should honestly feel that he is. My husband will also have to be kind and understanding and be able to cope with my occasional spells of moodiness. He must like children and want to have them. I would like him to be about 5'11" and be reasonably attractive and well-groomed."

* * *

APPROXIMATELY 75 per cent of the young people received some parental advice on the choice of a mate; and where only one parent gave the advice, that parent was usually the mother.

Men were most often advised to marry someone with these qualifications: same religious faith, someone who will be a good wife and homemaker, good family background, has a pleasing disposition and personality.

"My mother has given me very sound advice on the choice of a marriage partner. She has told me what it's like to marry someone with traits we both dislike. It has happened so often in marriage of my relations and friends, and she has carefully pointed this out to me. I know that her sound advice will help me choose a suitable mate."

* * *

SOME, HOWEVER, question the advice given by their parents. For example:

"My mother has told me to be sure to select a mate of the same religion, one who has a good job, and who is dependable. However, I feel that she is too interested in having me marry someone with money rather than someone I love. In this way, I don't feel that she is regarding me. She only wants prestige for herself. My father, on the other hand, wants me to marry whomever I fall in love with."

Another commented:

The advice my mother has always given me is to find someone who can give you security and a nice home. She doesn't seem to think love makes too much difference, just companionship should be enough. I don't feel that it is, because if you love someone, you would not need everything right away in order to be happy.

Economics Is Everyday Life, Says UD Educator

Taking the mystery out of the word "economics" and explaining it in terms of domestic help and drag racers on Woodward Avenue is Barbara Murray's missionary goal with residents of city and suburban alike.

She is also writing a book, working on a State project, getting her own children ready for school, and teaching at the University of Detroit.

Dr. Murray of 32208 Bonnet Hill, Farmington, is associate professor of economics at U. of D. has a favorite recipe: a "mulligan" of economics stewed together under the name of "urban surprise."

To her, economics takes in political trends, geography, the labor market, patterns of people, industrial organization and how much of the labor market is used, cities buying and selling from each other, all tools applied to city problems.

* * *

"ALL MY WORK is aimed at making average city and suburban men and women aware that urban economics is relevant to their way of life," says Dr. Murray.

"The problem of the cities is basically economic. The city must provide employment, goods and services. Its reason for being is as a marketplace for trading. The failure in the big city is a failure of economic function.

"For instance, problems of housing and labor, training and transportation help make it difficult to get domestic help in the suburbs. Lack of transportation is a contributor to poverty.

"Economics, when you relate it this way, is not the big mystery so many people think it is. It is everyday life.

"If we economists could only get across to everybody that one's self-interests are directly affected by other people's self-interest in urban life. We need to advertise the advantages of knowing urban economics principles. This is what I hope my new book will do. Ivory tower economists have killed all interest in the subject."

Dr. Murray's book is titled "Principles of Economics Applied to Urban-Regional Problems." Her research projects include "Gravity Models as a Tool For Hospital Location," and "Growth Components of the State of Michigan Labor Force, 1950-1960."

She is married to John M. Murray, who is currently authoring a book dealing with computers. They have two children.

'Women On The Go'
By MARGARET MILLER

Fair Lady Gives All For Handicapped

Scott and Kurt, the family's two young sons, and their dog Dutchess live there all the time.

Recently arrived are Butterscotch and Chipper, a couple of fluffy chicks who have almost convinced Dutchess that they're puppies.

And Heidi, a brown Nubian goat who needs a new home.

And Polly, a wounded guinea pig.

To say nothing of a dove that, in true television commercial form, flies around like hand lotion.

* * *

MOVING IN Friday, on loan from Jungle Jim pet shop in Royal Oak, will be a baby boa constrictor named Julius Wheezer, a toucan bird, a Mexican parrot guaranteed to swear only in Spanish, a South American monkey and a three-foot long lizard.

It's all for the glory of the Spring Fun Fair, to be put on by the Farmington Association for Handicapped Children, Inc., in East Junior High Saturday.

* * *

AS MIGHT be suspected, Nancy Zimmie is playing a big part in the fair. She hopes to have some of the animals well enough trained so young visitors can touch and play with them, because "most children don't have a chance to do that."

The 10:30 a.m. to 6 p.m. fair, likely to be the association's biggest project yet, is just the latest phase of Nancy's involvement with the handicapped.

That started with helping for years to care for an invalid younger sister.

Then, after marriage to Karl Zimmie and several unsuccessful pregnancies, the arrival of the two boys.

* * *

SCOTT, NOW SEVEN, was born with two club feet and a congenital hip defect. He also tested at birth as a hemophelic, though he doesn't now. But he's gone through ten sets of braces to reach his now-normal walking ability.

Kurt came on the scene 11 months later, and three and a half months premature. He was a hyaline membrane baby, one of the first to survive a drastic epsom salts treatment after birth. He couldn't see and had asthma.

Transplant surgery later gave him a good eye, but in the process one lung was damaged.

* * *

IT ISN'T just the boys.

Karl Zimmie lost his hearing in one ear in a motorcycle accident. And Nancy herself had a serious bout with nephritis that left considerable damage last summer.

All this has given a rather remarkable young woman some pretty remarkable ideas on the training of the handicapped.

* * *

"YOU HAVE TO accept them as just people," she believes.

So, at the fair, special education children will be right there, selling some of the things they have helped make in school for the purpose. Nancy can't go along with the old idea that they should be kept out of sight.

"You have to push and prod," she adds.

So she and her husband never have treated their sons as handicapped children. Nancy picked a house on a hill to make Scott work to overcome his walking problems, and made him get up so many times after falls "that the neighbors thought I didn't love him."

* * *

OF KURT, she added, "He had one eye, one ear and one lung, but he doesn't know he's handicapped, so it never has affected him."

Finally, with the handicapped Nancy insists that "you have to make them take their place in society, because society isn't just going to move over and make way for them."

So, one of the planned uses of the funds to be raised at the fair will be bus trips to the beach, the zoo, and nearby farms.

And if Nancy has anything to do with it, some non-handicapped children will go along on these jaunts.

* * *

"THE HANDICAPPED child and the regular child both have to learn the other doesn't bite," she insists. "A handicapped child who might ask special favors so learns he doesn't get anywhere, and the regular child who teases and gets socked with a crutch learns in the best way that's not the thing to do."

Nancy, who reluctantly admits that she once was a finalist in the Michigan contest to choose Miss Universe, probably puts in some of the wildest days anyone could imagine.

A neighbor dog attacked one of the young chicks last week, so she spent most of a day holding to keep it warm and setting a broken foot. The chick is just fine now, but the guinea pig is under Zimmie hospital care for a gashed side.

"And you really should have seen me driving home from the pet shop with a goat sitting on the seat and the dove flying around," she related.

* * *

SHE'S LINED up all kinds of attractions for the fair, like silhouettes by Shirley Ford of Farmington, pony rides, a calliope from Detroit Edison, baked goodies by the PTA of Highmeadow School.

More help is coming from other organizations, Our Lady of Sorrows Catholic Church, the Farmington Little League, Hill and Dale Garden Club and the Farmington Rotary, to mention a few.

Both recruiting sergeants urged girls interested to apply as soon as possible to get the job assignments they prefer. After training, assignments may take them to many spots such as Alaska, Hawaii, Germany, Italy or Japan.

Those who may apply for enlistment include girls 17 years of age who will be 18 prior to June 29, or single women from 18 to 35 years of age, inclusive (with no dependents) who have a high school diploma or its equivalent and who are U.S. citizens or who have been lawfully admitted to the United States for permanent residence.

Applicants under the age of 21 must have the written consent of parents or guardians. Terms of enlistment are from two to six years.

THIS IS THE WEEK THAT...

by DON HOENSHELL

They tried but couldn't steal that brand new 1963 Impala which at the moment is listing slightly northward in the parking lot, as though braced against fate.

New? And 1963?

Yep. It has two new tires, a new universal joint, new shock absorbers, a new muffler and tailpipe, new water hoses, a new water pump, a new fan belt, a new gasoline tank cap and other items.

Now it needs a carburetor transplant and if it passes the rejection stage we'll have a coming out party. The thought of sending it to that great junkyard in the sky is appalling.

It's my bankie.

* * *

THE USED CAR MAN said it had been owned by a retired jews harp instructor who kept it on blocks in the garage and used it only to listen to the Saturday afternoon opera on WJR. I suspect the guy also listened to Karl Haas, since he had class and appeared to be alert.

This car is more than wheels and upholstery. It understands. On cold mornings it wheezes in empathy and a few of the sounds at this time of year suggest a terrible sinus condition. Like mine.

On happy days it sings, or at least something in the motor keeps the tune. Those thumps are pure Tiajuana Brass, a change from Sammy Kaye before the muffler clamps broke.

Like everybody else, it doesn't like to kick around in the snow. At such times it is necessary to apply some discipline, like a tow truck with a long chain and a persistent tug. After a few sobs, it is all right again.

* * *

FOR SOME REASON—maybe reflecting a broad and rich background — it enjoys opera, Haas, baseball games in season and, for roughage, Bud Guest. Neither of us likes soap operas.

Once while switching stations the dial hit Search for Tomorrow and the windshield wipers started going. Wiping away the tears, I'd guess.

It shimmies at high speeds and the mental image comes through of a sorrowful elder wagging his finger. And there are groans on fast takeoffs, like the tires have bunions.

But like an old lady, the car likes a quiet drive in the dusk and seems to murmur quietly of past longings. You expect at such times to see a tear — and sometimes you do. It's an oil leak.

On long trips this one is reminiscent of the horse at the head of a sleigh, sprightly sort of a gallop and showing a singleness of purpose. She'll never win a race but she'll get there with a plow.

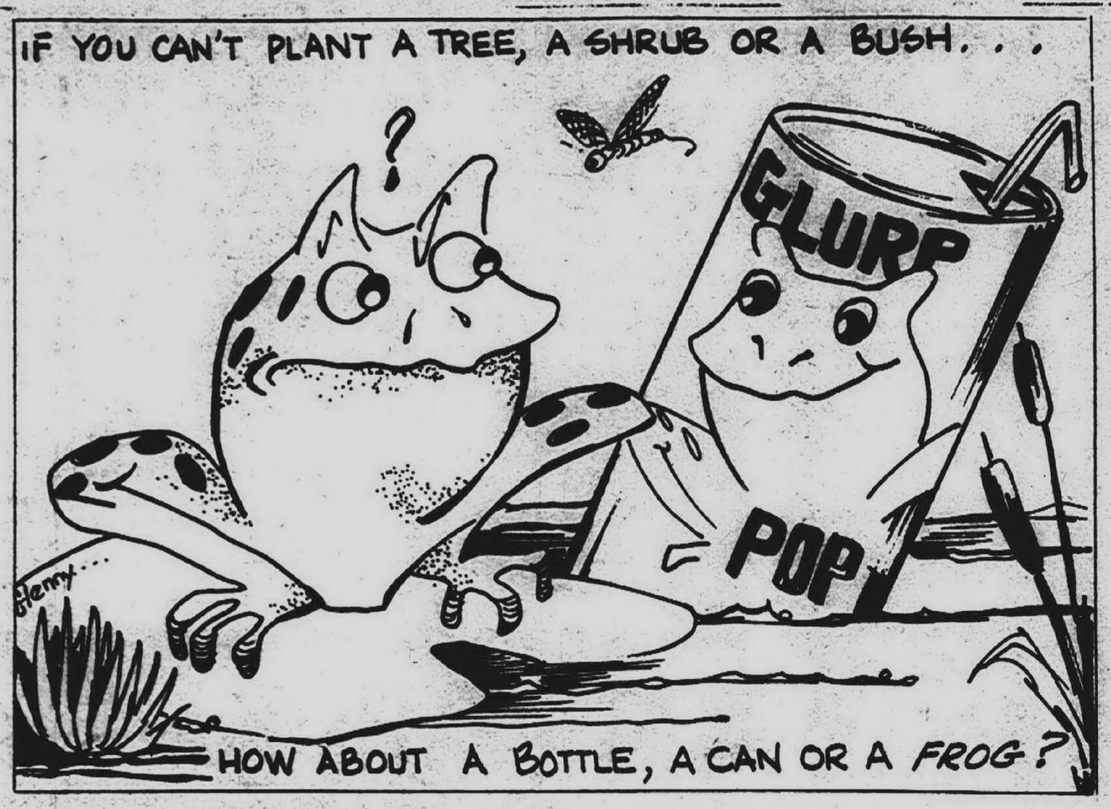

The car is always interrupting conversations with coughs and sputters, particularly when politics is the subject. The Vietnam war is a dangerous subject, since the car tends to swerve and lead to the right. Undoubtedly a dove.

Sense And Nonsense

There's something new on the market for fellows with thinning hair. So if you want fat hair, it's just the thing.

OBSERVATION POINT

By Philip H. Power

From time to time, people call this newspaper to give us heck for: a) running some story; b) not running some story; c) running a story, but with internal errors. Note, please, that option d) (not running a story, with internal errors) is impossible, although I was attacked once for thinking of running a story which the lady who called claimed would have been in error if it had been run.

Usually newspapermen like to have people call them, either to complain or to praise. Even if people have a big beef, the fact that they call or write means they have at least read the story in question and have reacted to it. And that's better than no response at all, which suggests that people have merely used the paper to wrap up the day's garbage.

The following is a brief and inaccurate statistical survey, designed to show what the average newspaperman thinks the average reader would like to see in the paper, when the average newspaperman has had a hard day at the office, has gone home, had a drink, and is in the middle of a nightmare:

* * *

1) MY NAME. "Properly spelled, thank you." Our proofreaders are amazing at this. The phone books in the office are dog-eared from use, and only the new ones recently distributed by Michigan Bell have saved us from having to leave out of the paper any names beginning with "AAA" through "Aberbach."

2) A FRONT PAGE article showing how crooked the city government is most of the time. (Sometimes, we print articles showing how honest the city government is. That is, according to our sources in city government, all too rare. Sometimes we wonder.)

3) MY WIFE'S NAME. (See note with item one, and let's hear it again for the proofreaders. Also our linotype and justowriter machine operators, all of whom would have taken first place in any spelling bee they might have entered when in high school.)

4) A FEATURE article showing 25 ways on how to cheat on income tax forms. (We thought of this, but a man in a trench coat and pork pie hat showed up at the office about three weeks before income tax time. He flashed some kind of fancy identification, introduced himself as Agent Jones, and advised against this course of action. Evidently section something-or-another of the Federal Tax Code takes a dim view of this. We will contact our congressman, and maybe there's hope for next year.)

5) MY KID'S NAME. (See items one and three. Renewed cheers for proofreaders and linotype and justowriter operators. Maybe we should get them a dictionary.)

6) A LOCAL NEWS ITEM about "the affair my neighbor is having." (We keep consulting with our lawyer on stories like this, and he keeps talking about lawsuits. It isn't that we aren't interested about the affair your neighbor is having, but we have the old fashioned attitude that that's his business until his wife sues him and it gets into the public domain. And besides, we can't afford a whole lot of libel suits.)

7) A CLASSIFIED AD offering a new home for sale for $4,000. (Talk to our classified advertising manager, Fred Levine, about this one. We can't put an ad like this in unless someone actually has such a home for sale. We suspect that after the construction strike scheduled for this summer, such an ad will be even less likely than it is right now. So look hard for the next couple of weeks; you may get lucky.)

8) NEWS ABOUT LAWBREAKERS. (Occasionally, civic minded ladies call up to complain about stories about lawbreakers. They say such things hurt the civic image. "But these things actually happen, lady. They're news." "That's just too bad, young man. You have a responsibility to suppress the news in such cases.")

9) LESS NEWS ABOUT LAWBREAKERS. I was picked up last night and shouldn't have to pay a fine. (Usually this caller is the husband of the civic minded lady. Occasionally, he is the lady's neighbor, driven to a criminal act through rage at her civic mindedness.)

10) A WEDDING PICTURE of the groom instead of the bride when he is more handsome than she is pretty. (I talked to our women's editor, Margaret Miller, about this one. She says all brides are pretty and deserve to have their picture and theirs alone printed. "Suppose we get Warren Beatty?" "He would marry a pretty girl. Her picture goes in." I think she's missed the point, but she's in charge.)

11) A SPORTS PICTURE of me when I bowled 183. (We have a whole file of these. Evidently, the bowlers out in Observerland all are bowling 183's, and such scores are no longer news, according to our bowling consultant, Eddie Edgar. If you bowl 258, give us a ring.)

12) MORE ADVERTISEMENTS ON things that merchants are giving away. (You'll have to talk to Rudy Mazurosky, our advertising director, about this. I mentioned it to him the other day, and he said that it seemed like a good idea in principle, although the advertisers might not like it too much. They are anxious to build traffic in their stores, he explained, but not at that kind of profit margin.)

13) MORE LETTERS TO the editor naming the crooks we have in town. (See item two, which is closely related. We print all letters which are signed, although we sometimes withhold names with reason upon request. Evidently, most letter writers think that all the crooks in town have access to our files and so don't include their names on letters to the editor. We wish they did.)

Sense And Nonsense

Marketing specialists determine what items are stocked in the stores at which time. The man in the supermarket reported that insecticides "are carried only during the summer." Maybe the specialists should talk to the crop of flies currently inhabiting Observerland.

* * *

The public has been led to expect a certain level of imagination and intelligence from the academic community.

That's why it is disappointing for the visitor to the Oakland Community College campus in Farmington Township to discover that the buildings have no names —just letters.

How prosaic can one be?

* * *

One of the best quotable quotes we've heard recently came from the state chairman of the Michigan For McCarthy organization, who observed that:

"President Johnson's visits to the people, which consist of stops at armed forces bases under heavy guard, are somewhat akin to Louis XIV asking the nobles at Versailles about the state of French public opinion."

Even though the speaker has an ax to grind, the observation has some validity.

* * *

It doesn't make much sense to us and sounds like so much nonsense . . . after reading a report on the financial condition of the City of Plymouth and discovering that $1,010 was spent last year for a new furnace at Riverside Cemetery.

Beautify Trash For A More Beautiful Country

They are the beer and pop cans and bottles that loyal, patriotic, progressive Americans discard by the millions every day, with twice as many being discarded on Sundays, as they travel and picnic in places of natural beauty.

* * *

THIS IS NOT another plea for people to throw their trash into trashcans. No one pays attention to those any more. Rather, this is an idea on the theory that "if you can't lick 'em, join 'em."

It is based on the assumption that people who ought to know better will continue to discard their trash in defiance of Lady Bird's national beautification program and good manners.

Instead of trying to beautify the countryside by not littering it, let's beautify the cans and bottles.

You see, cans and bottles are now designed to attract the eye on the shelf of a store.

But it would be a whole lot better to decorate them with pictures of wildflowers.

* * *

STROH'S BEER wouldn't have to give up its yellow-red-brown label; it would simply substitute, maybe, black-eyed susans.

Hamm's beer could keep its northern pine tree theme; but instead of the blue tree on an aluminum background, it could try a pine cone on a green needle background.

The makers of Coca-Cola could adopt the mountain laurel; the Pepsi boys could keep their off-blue color scheme by using the iris.

Faygo pop cans' colors are pretty much at odds with the colors of nature, so that manufacturer would have to shift to entirely different colors. Crocuses would be pretty.

People who drink Hires root beer seem to have an affinity for grassy lakeshores. If that manufacturer would like to keep its dark color scheme, it could decorate its cans with bullfrog pictures; otherwise, it might consider a shift to the water lily.

* * *

UNDER THIS system of national beautification, there would be no interference with private enterprise, beyond the first change of label, which companies are always doing anyway.

There would be no interference with the swinish habits of the American picnicker.

The driver barreling along the highway at 70 would have a prettier landscape to look at, and he wouldn't need to know whether he's looking at bleeding hearts or red pop cans.

This system would not, of course, protect kids and animals from getting cut up on busted bottles or rusty cans. Nothing can prevent that.

But since we can't beautify our landscape with the existing state of manners, our only alternative is to beautify the stuff we leave as trash.

Westland Plan

Apartments Can Help Tax Base

Two public hearings have been held on the proposed master plan and revision for the Westland community, and a third is scheduled for next Monday (April 29) before the City Council.

The Planning Commission, which held the first two hearings, heard an overwhelming citizens' reaction in opposition to more land allocated for apartments and industrial lands.

But this observer feels that the master plan and zoning ordinance as drafted by City Planning Director Eugene Katz and the planning commission should be adopted by the council, which faces a May 16 deadline for adoption.

* * *

ALTHOUGH ONE MAY quibble with the land use designation on one lot or another in the city of more than 20 square miles, it is obvious that Westland, primarily a residential community, needs more tax-producing development than just more single-family homes, which do not come close to paying their fair share for municipal services.

Residents in single-family homes generally receive $3 in services for every $1 they pay in property taxes. This ratio is reversed with multiple family developments, commercial and industrial facilities.

Obviously, Westland needs more development of apartments (including high-rise buildings and townhouses), shopping centers, and industrial plants if it is to slow down the ever-increasing city tax rate. The proposed budget now under study by the council has the rate now at the charter maximum of eight mills.

Barring a change in the charter to allow a higher millage rate or more aid from the state, the only way the city can realize more tax revenue is through a higher assessed valuation on property.

Those residents who want to "keep Westland strictly a suburban community of single-family homes" are leaning too heavily on the past when the annual property tax bill was only $200. But those days are long gone.

* * *

SUBDIVISIONS OF single-family homes have brought more children into public schools and resulted in the need for more firemen and policemen, rubbish pick-up services, parks and recreational programs.

These, especially in the public school area, cost money and the chief source of a local government's income is the property tax and the state sales tax receipts.

If the municipal government and local school districts are to provide the essential services demanded by the public, then the land will have to be developed.

An excellent and sensible guide for this development is provided in the master plan and new zoning ordinance now before the City Council.

Time is short, and we hope the council will adopt the master plan and ordinance as soon as possible after Monday's hearing so the community can get on with the business of keeping up with the future.

Sense And Nonsense

ONE ABOUT-TO-BE-married member of the Garden City Chamber of Commerce received a badge with a meaningful slogan at a recent chamber meeting. Just two days before the big day, the member received the badge with the words, "It Takes Two."

A WESTLAND RESIDENT recently applied for a marriage license at the County Building. The clerk who waited on him was Miss Grace Kelley.

Southfield city officials have announced the opening of bids for carpeting for a new library. The rule of silence is enforced in libraries throughout the land, but controlling the sound of people walking is something new.

Inner-City Pastor Will Talk On Race Tension

A well-known pastor from Detroit's inner-city will speak in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Middle Belt at Eight Mile, Farmington, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 28.

He is the Rev. David Eberhard, pastor of the Riverside Lutheran Church on the lower East Side of Detroit.

In his talk, he will discuss the Christian attitude toward the Negro, especially during riots, and give his own answers to the question of whether Christians should bear arms for self-protection during rioting.

* * *

PASTOR EBERHARD also will tell what happened in Riverside parish during the rioting last summer and during the recent crisis.

Pastor Eberhard has received "The Liberty Bell Award" for leadership in community life. His name appears in the annual biographical publication of "Outstanding Civic Leaders of America."

Riverside Parish has expanded to include an inner city community clinic, Lutheran Peace Corps workers, a welfare center for clothing and food, the Riverside Neighborhood Youth Services, the Lutheran Youth Village and Riverside Day Care Center.

REV. DAVID EBERHARD

HE HAS BEEN acclaimed as responsible for developing a dynamic parish program, which is thoroughly community-oriented. He has appeared in Life magazine, on the Mike Douglas show, and in July of 1967 CBS presented a nationwide documentary on his work.

This program has been arranged by St. Paul's Women's League.

The program is open to the public.

Fellowship Day Set By Church Women

With the theme "Human Values in a Technological Society" Church Women United in Livonia will observe May Fellowship Day on Friday, May 3, in Riverside Park Church of God, Plymouth and Newburgh. Brunch will begin at 10 a.m., with Mrs. Hershel Ping presiding.

"Anonymity and Community" will be the sub-theme, with a panel discussion led by three Livonia ministers: the Rev. Edward Reinhardt, of the Nativity United Church of Christ; the Rev. Laird Allan Thomason, Livonia Christian Church (Disciples of Christ); and Rev. Arthur Beumler, associate minister, Rosedale Gardens United Presbyterian Church.

Devotions will be led by Mrs. Horace Smith, of Alpha Baptist Church.

Chairman of the day, Mrs. Robert Supplee, said the meeting would present "a call to all women who want to seek ways of solving the dilemmas of our day; a search for meaning and identity." Babysitting is provided. For reservations, women may call Riverside Church between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. by Wednesday, May 1.

Will Discuss Varied Faiths

"Faiths of Men" will be the topic of discussion to be presented by the Women's Association of the First Presbyterian Church of Farmington in Fellowship Hall at 9:30 a.m., Tuesday, April 30.

Guest speakers will include Mrs. Subrata Ghosh, from India, on Hinduism; Mrs. Michael Karoub on Islam; and Mrs. Martin Gordon, wife of Rabbi Gordon, Livonia Jewish Congregation on Judaism.

Each woman will describe the role of women in their particular faith and discuss the various celebrations, festivals, rites etc. which are part of their faith's tradition.

Coffee and rolls will be served preceding the presentation and babysitting will be provided. Reservations must be made by Friday, April 26, to circle leaders or Mrs. Ann Somerville 626-7168. Guests are welcome.

Mother-Daughter Banquet Planned At Newburg

The annual Mother-Daughter Banquet given by the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Newburg Methodist Church will be held on Friday, May 10, at 6:30 p.m.

A puppet show, "Sleeping Beauty," will be given by Mrs. Andrew Good. Prizes will be awarded to special mothers and daughters.

Livonians Will Attend Christian Church Meet

Seven members will represent the Livonia Christian Church as the Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) of Michigan mark their 100th annual state convention in Lansing--Friday to Sunday, April 26 to 28.

The first state convention of the churches was held 100 years ago in December in Detroit when the communion had some 40 congregations.

Disciples of Christ churches in Michigan now total 50, and total membership is about 10,000.

* * *

WHILE INTEREST focused on early church organization in that 1868 session, concern this year in Lansing will center on such contemporary issues as the war in Vietnam and civil rights in America, carrying out the convention theme, "Century of Challenge and Fulfillment."

A resolution on the Vietnam issue will call for detailed study and discussion on the war and ask that each of the churches in Michigan develop a special committee to direct study of the war.

Civil rights is expected to gain attention in a resolution urging convention delegates to commend a National Council of Churches move of last September which emphasized what it called "the crisis in the nation," referring to riots and the other ills of urban areas.

* * *

ANOTHER RESOLUTION scheduled for convention action opposes the so-called "parochaid" effort in which parochial schools this year sought to have a law enacted in the Michigan Legislature which would provide some $21 million to parents of children attending private schools.

Leaders of the Livonia church met this week with Dr. Franklin E. Rector, study committee-research consultant for the Board of Church Extension.

The Livonia congregation currently is meeting in the Pierson Elementary School and is purchasing property in northwest Livonia. The Rev. Laird Thomason currently serves as pastor.

The board is a non-profit agency charged with assisting local congregations and their organizations in the sound planning and financing of expansion projects.

Dr. Rector travels extensively to assist local congregations as well as state and area associations in research preliminary to new church establishment and capital expansion projects.

St. Raphael Plans Fiesta

"La Fiesta de Primavera" will be presented by St. Raphael's Rosary Altar Society at 7:30 p.m. Sunday, April 28, in the church hall, 5875 Merriman, Garden City.

The annual spring party will have a Spanish theme. The public is invited, and tickets may be purchased at the door.

'Probation After Death-' Is Topic

This verse from First Thessalonians is part of the Responsive Reading from the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Christian Science churches Sunday. The subject is "Probation After Death."

Passages will be included from the denominational textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

Services at Eighth Church of Christ, Scientist, 20011 Grand River, begin at 9 and 10:30 a.m. The public is invited.

Loretto Honors Fr. Ryan For 25 Years As Priest

The Rev. Robert Vincent Ryan, pastor of Our Lady of Loretto parish, celebrates the 25th anniversary of his ordination to the Catholic priesthood with a parish concelebrated Mass of thanksgiving at 5 p.m. Sunday, April 28.

The Most Reverend Walter Joseph Schoenherr, Auxiliary Bishop of Detroit, will preach the homily. A reception honoring Father Ryan will follow in the parish hall.

Ryan undertook his studies for the priesthood at the College of Sacred Heart Seminary in Detroit. Upon graduation, he attended Mt. St. Mary's Seminary in Cincinnati for four years of theological training.

He was ordained to the priesthood at Blessed Sacrament Cathedral, Detroit, on April 17, 1943 by the late Edward Cardinal Mooney, Archbishop of Detroit.

* * *

NEWLY ORDAINED, Father Ryan pursued graduate studies at Pius X School of Liturgical Music in New York City. His first parochial assignment was as assistant pastor at St. Raymond's parish in Detroit. It was here Father Ryan founded what has become one of the finest men and boys choirs in the Archidocese.

In 1950, Father Ryan began eight years of service to the people of St. Vincent de Paul's parish, Detroit, as their assistant pastor. From 1958 to 1961, he was chaplain at Dominican High School.

* * *

ARCHBISHOP JOHN F. DEARDEN appointed Father Ryan Director of the Archdiocesan Music Commission in 1961. Concurrent with this appointment until 1966, Father engaged in pastoral work at St. Aloysius Church, downtown Detroit.

On December 14, 1966, Father Ryan came to his new post as pastor of Our Lady of Loretto Parish, succeeding the late Rev. Clair J. Berry, founder and first pastor of the parish.

Father Ryan has also served as Director of Studies at the Palestrina Institute for the training of organists in the Archdiocese since 1943, and was named Director of the same Institute in 1961. In March of this year, he undertook additional duties as a member of the Board of Education for the Archdiocese of Detroit.

REV. ROBERT RYAN

Red Cross Announces New Hours

The American Red Cross Blood Donor Center in downtown Detroit began operating on a new time schedule April 15 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. to accommodate the thousands who wish to donate blood.

Red Cross officials also issued an appeal for more blood donors and more volunteer workers.

Mrs. Gerald E. Warren, chairman of the area's volunteer workers, said that increased demands for blood have created the need for more donors and workers.

"In addition to the growing population and the increasing number of hospitals, new surgical techniques are making possible operations that were rarely attempted until recently," she said.

Up to 90,000 men and women give "the gift of life"--a pint of their blood--each year through the Southeastern Michigan Red Cross Blood program. The donations are made either at mobile units sponsored annually by some of the 2,000 donor groups or at the Blood Donor Center.

"Hospital calls for blood keep our center telephones ringing around the clock," Mrs. Warren said. "As a result, there is never a surplus of blood in the bank."

The program is administered by a staff of dedicated men and women--many of them unpaid volunteer workers. Mrs. Warren called the work "the most gratifying to be found anywhere!"

Prospective donors and volunteer workers may obtain more information by telephoning the center, at Wo. 1-3900.

Westland Parish Explores New Education Idea

The Catechetical Center, or Religious Education Center, a new concept in Catholic religious education, will be discussed at an open forum at 8 p.m. Thursday, May 2, in the Social Hall of St. Bernardine of Siena Parish, Ann Arbor Trail and Merriman Road, in Westland.

Appearing as panel speakers will be the Rev. Thomas Lumpkin, assistant pastor of Our Lady Queen of All Saints Parish in Fraser, Mich. Sister James Matilda, a Dominican nun on the staff of the Fraser catechetical center, a layman, and Sister Rose, staff member of the catechetical center at St. Alexander's in Farmington.

Presently there are three catechetical centers in operation in the Archdiocese of Detroit. In addition to the Fraser and Farmington Religious Education Centers, there is St. Cletus parish in Warren.

Instead of operating a full-time parochial school for a select few, the Religious Education Centers open their doors to all children within the parish boundaries for religious education only. Under Michigan's released time law, the children may leave the public school twice a week for religious instruction.

HONORED BY C.Y.O. — Gerald Redoutey, Livonia resident and scoutmaster for the Boy Scout Troop 499 at St. Robert Bellarmine Catholic Church, is first recipient of an award set up by the Catholic Youth Organization to honor its founder and first director, Ed Crowe. The award was presented to Redoutey during a recent dinner at Mercy College.

LJC Sets Social Hall Dedication

The Livonia Jewish Congregation's social hall will be dedicated formally at 3 p.m. Sunday, April 28, by Dr. and Mrs. Richard Bayles and their son and daughter, Kenneth and Sharon.

The hall will be dedicated in honor of Dr. Bayles' parents, Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Bayles.

Marking the occasion will be a concert by Cantor Serensen, of Congregation Beth Aaron. Afterwards the LJC Sisterhood will serve refreshments.

Plan Interfaith Workshop On Libraries

The third library workshop sponsored by the Interfaith Library Committee of Metropolitan Detroit will take place Thursday, April 25, from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in the St. Alphonsus High School gym, Warren at Schaefer, Dearborn.

The theme will be "Library Know-How"; techniques of classification, cataloging, filing and mending of books will be discussed and demonstrated. In addition, there will be a number of exhibits by publishers, and suppliers of library equipment.

This occasion offers a unique opportunity for those interested in church or synagogue library work to sharpen their skills. New volunteers without experience are especially welcome. Coffee will be served. Registration fee: $1 payable at the door.

Ample parking is available in front of and behind St. Alphonsus Church.

MRS. SIDNEY EVA

Mrs. Eva Ends 43 Years Of Service

A busy lady who has given 43 years of service to the Methodist church will retire soon, and her Farmington friends are preparing a suitable farewell.

Mrs. Sidney Eva will be guest of honor at a reception to be given by the Women's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist Church of Farmington from 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday, April 28.

Mrs. Eva, who has been parish visitor for the church for six years, will be leaving the area soon to make her home in Florida.

* * *

Born in a Mohawk Valley village in upstate New York, she graduated in 1925 from Folts Institute, a training school for Christian workers run under auspices of the Women's Society of the Methodist church.

For the next 10 years she was pastor's assistant and director of youth work in Centenary Methodist Church, Elmira, N.Y., and later worked in the Deaconess Home and settlement, a Methodist institution in the tenement section of Philadelphia.

* * *

SHE CAME to the Detroit area in 1937 as parish visitor and youth director for Boulevard Temple Methodist Church, and seven years later was married to Dr. Sidney D. Eva, former pastor of the Farmington church and then superintendent of the Detroit District of the Methodist Church.

Following Dr. Eva's death in 1954, his widow went to Adrian College as director of dormitories.

Later she was head resident in the junior dormitory at Longwood College, Farmville, Va., and superintendent of the Kings Daughters home in Detroit.

Since becoming parish visitor in Farmington, she has made more than 4,000 calls on newcomers and visitors, and the church has welcomed 657 new members during that time.

Five Special Speakers Set

While the Rev. H. Raymond Bayne, of the Southfield Community Church, visits the Holy Land, a series of special speakers will be featured at the church.

Duane Cuthbertson, family life specialist from Ann Arbor, will speak at 11 a.m. Sunday, April 28, with a special message for parents and teens. Harold Fife, of the Far Eastern Gospel Crusade, will speak in the evening on missions.

Fred Kendal, founder and director of the Israel's Remnant Mission in Detroit and Boston, will speak on current events in Israel in the light of Bible prophecy, at 11 a.m. May 5. A group of laymen will present the 7 p.m. service.

Mother's Day, May 12, will feature the Rev. Fred Renich of the Missionary Internship, who will have a special message for the home. Plants will be given to all mothers who attend. Rev. Earle Rosenberger will speak in the evening concerning family life.

Pastor Bayne will visit several of the Bible lands, including Babylon, Turkey, Lebanon, Israel, Egypt, Greece, and Rome.

Faith Lutheran Plans Card Party

Gymnasium equipment for Faith Lutheran Church, 30000 Five Mile, Livonia, will be purchased with proceeds of the church's annual card party, to be held at 8 p.m. Friday, April 26. Reservations may be made by calling Shirley Hart, 427-2442, or Lillian Tubbs, 261-3922.

Byzantine Ladies Plan Bake Sale

Homemade treats such as nut rolls, kolaches, kifli and bread will be offered at the "Goody Shoppe," to be sponsored by the Sacred Heart Byzantine Rite Catholic Church league from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Sunday, May 4, in the church at 29125 W. Six Mile, Livonia. A special shop also will be on hand for children.

Bnai Brith Sets Presidents Brunch

The second annual Bnai Brith Presidents' Brunch, held in cooperation with the Jewish National Fund, will honor Arthur C. Schott, president of the Metropolitan Detroit Bnai Brith Council and the 25 Bnai Brith lodge presidents.

It is scheduled at 11 a.m. Sunday, April 28, at the Labor Zionist Institute.

Missionary Conference Scheduled

The annual "Missionary Conference," sponsored by The Evangelical Alliance Mission society, is scheduled April 30-May 4 at Detroit Bible College. A comprehensive program on the efforts of missionaries throughout the world will be included in the five-day event, according to Dr. Charles H. Shaw, professor in Missions at DBC.

Of the featured speakers, the Rev. Nolan F. Ballman, TEAM Deputation Secretary, has selected "Now Is the Day" as the basic theme of the Conference. Two other society members who will present talks are the Rev. Edward Torjesen, a missionary who has served and traveled in Asia, and Mr. John Rathbun, acting president of Eastern Korea Christian College. They will be addressing groups throughout the sessions with four morning meetings scheduled at 10:30 a.m. in Walker Chapel, along with two evening meetings on Tuesday, April 30, and Thursday, May 2, at 7:45 p.m.

The public is invited to attend all activities planned during the Conference. There is no admission charge.

The Conference, designed to illustrate the varied work done by missionaries in foreign fields, will include colorful displays, films and exhibits depicting over 20 TEAM ministries abroad. The society has more than 890 members serving in Europe, the Near and Far East, South America, and Africa.

Other highlights of the program include two films which will be shown in DBC's Walker Chapel. "Carnival Monday," a motion picture set in an atmosphere of voodoo and heathenism, will be presented on April 30 at 7:45 p.m. A second film, "Our Changing World," which depicts the methods used to bring spiritual aid to various cultures, is slated for May 2 at 7:45 p.m.

Mt. Hope Sale Planned May 4

The women of Mt. Hope Congregational Church will sponsor a rummage sale at the church, 30330 Schoolcraft, from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, May 4.

'The Poor Can't Wait' Says Elevated Prelate

On the day his appointment as a bishop was announced, hundreds of parish priests sought vainly to offer personal congratulations to "one of our own", the Most. Rev. Walter J. Schoenherr, who on May 1 will be consecrated an auxiliary bishop to Archbishop John F. Dearden of Detroit.

But the new bishop was in New York, having flown off minutes after being informed of his elevation, in hot pursuit of a grant he learned might be obtained for the poor in his inner-city parish.

"The congratulations can wait but the people in my parish can't", he said.

* * *

WHAT WARMED his fellow priests was that an implied goal of the Vatican Council was being realized in the appointment of a "generalist" directly from parish life to the hierarchy of the Roman Catholic Church.

Usually bishops have come from a group of priests specially trained and given wide-spread experience as Chancery administrators. The Most Rev. Thomas J. Gumbleton, who will be consecrated with Bishop Schoenherr in a dual ceremony at 10 a.m. in Blessed Sacrament Cathedral, 484 A Woodward, has such a background. He was Vice Chancellor of the Archdiocese and held various other administrative posts when appointed.

Bishop Schoenherr's experiences lie completely in parish work. Hundreds of parish priests call him "the father of pastoral practice" in Detroit and happily admit that his parish policy, "We worship together but we also work together", has also become theirs.

* * *

WHEN IN June, 1965, the new bishop was appointed pastor of the parish surrounding Blessed Sacrament Cathedral he quickly set out to find out the needs of the people of the area, in keeping with his view that a pastor is the servant of everyone living within the boundaries of his parish, regardless of creed.

church edifices in the nation but the new pastor quickly learned that to the poor Negroes of the vicinity it was irreverently just "The Big Rock Pile."

Since the people wouldn't come to it, he took the Cathedral's resources to them. He became involved in block clubs; in the work of churches of other faiths; in recreational programs for children; in community action endeavors of every description.

* * *

ACCEPTANCE FOLLOWED and many in the area started to use the social halls and other facilities of the "Rock Pile". "We try to be the 'living room' for the community," Bishop Schoenherr said. "We try to offer some of the comforts lacking in the lives of our neighbors and we offer them, we hope without patronization, to everyone who is willing to accept our friendship."

The new bishop is not above using a "cover" to achieve his ends. In the Owen-Oakland area there was established the "Catholic Information Center". It is run by an order of nuns, the Home Visitors of Mary, who are trained social workers.

People of the community are invited in to examine its books but, once the ice is broken, are involved in many kinds of services designed to make ghetto life more bearable. As an example, they are enabled to place orders for groceries and other staples not at the inflated prices prevailing in poverty areas but at prices even lower than those posted in suburban supermarkets.

WHEN BISHOP SCHOENHERR took off for New York after his appointment, he went as president of the Interfaith Community Organization, a grass roots group designed to help each person in the area help himself. More affluent Detroit Catholic parishes had chipped in $15,000 through their Inter-Parish Sharing Program to help get the non-sectarian activity underway.

Despite the press of parish work, Bishop Schoenherr has always managed to find time for two activities. One is the Cursillo Movement, a once-in-a-lifetime course designed to awaken a full consciousness of what it means to live a Christian life. Many priests undertake the discipline in which laymen give the majority of talks and exercises. Bishop Schoenherr pioneered in the movement in Detroit.

Another great interest is in viewing the Creation first hand. His travels have taken Bishop Schoenherr to every continent ...when his Negro neighbors ask about African culture, he has first hand information.

His canoe has been in both the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans and in all the Great Lakes and in the principal streams of North America. Last fall he led some priest friends on a hiking trip in the Canadian Rockies. When they got home and examined their maps they found he had walked them over 75 miles, up mountain and down, in a few days.

* * *

BORN IN Detroit on Feb. 28, 1920, the bishop-to-be comes from the pioneer family that gave Schoenherr Road, in East side Detroit, its name.

He spent five years at St. David's Parish as assistant pastor and later filled the same role at St. Leo, St. Rose, and Presentation Parishes in Detroit and at St. Bede's in Birmingham, Mich.

The athletic world lost a potential star when he entered the seminary. He still holds the 1938 record for Sacred Heart Seminary in the 100-yard dash and the files are full of accounts of his feats in hockey, baseball and basketball.

Real Estate Groups Set 'Realtor Week' Theme

"Home is Where Security Starts--Don't Wait in '68" is the theme of this year's Realtor Week celebration by the 1,800 members of the United Northwestern Realty Association--Western Wayne-Oakland County Board of Realtors, William Y. Mathers, board president, announced Monday.

Beginning Sunday, May 19, Realtor Week will continue through Saturday, May 25. "The purpose is to direct public attention to the calling and special character of services rendered by a Realtor," Mathers said.

"Realtor, which is a coined term and a service mark registered in the U.S. Patent office under the trademark laws, designates a professional in real estate who earns the right to use the term only by completing professional training and adhering to a strict code of ethics as a member of a local board and the National Association of Real Estate Boards," he explained.

* * *

"OUR BOARD has two requirements which it makes of any prospective salesman. He must attend our Professional Standards class, consisting of one full week of instruction and an exam, and must successfully complete two college-level real estate courses within his first one-and-a-half years," he said.

The code of ethics of Real Estate Boards was one of the first adopted in the history of American business. Under its 30 articles, which cover all aspects of a real estate transaction, Realtors pledge their fair treatment and their total real estate knowledge to both parties of a contract--the buyer and seller.

"All members of our board have voluntarily subjected and obligated themselves to the internal policing by the organization, and as such, fully agree with its training standards and ethics. Improper conduct can result in fine and/or expulsion," Mathers noted.

* * *

MATHERS EXPLAINED that all members, as members of the National Association, receive the very latest information in real estate developments, market conditions, trends and new techniques, thus keeping them fully and knowledgeably informed.

"Two-thirds of American families own their homes," Mathers declared, "a proportion virtually unrivaled anywhere in the world. The advantages of home ownership, in security, convenience and as an investment, are boundless."

The slogan this year underscores the resourcefulness of Realtors in bringing together buyer and seller, in helping prospective buyers in securing financing, and in helping buyers to find exactly what is wanted with respect to size and cost.

"Last November marked a historic date for our organization, in that our computerized home multiple listing service was inaugurated. It allows us to request information via telephone from our computer, and immediately get an oral response from it. This totally new sales concept thus allows us more time for personal client service.

"We like to think this computer service, first of its kind anywhere, is also directly responsible for our board's record sales," Mathers said. Total sales for homes multi-listed by members reached an all-time high for 1967 of $178.6 million, a 19 per cent increase over 1966 sales. The first three months of this year offer even higher gains, Mathers said.

Founded in 1920, the UNRA-WWOCBR is the second largest multiple listing agency in this country.

Politicians Prove Best At Running Wars

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article, written by Averill J. Berman, who teaches U.S. History at Los Angeles City College, explores the much-debated problem of who really should run wars: generals or politicians. Despite common opinion that generals are the specialists, Dr. Berman comes up with some surprising conclusions.)

"One of the frequent rallying cries of a certain segment of the population is the call to 'turn the war over to the military and let them win it.' A corollary of this doctrine is the scorn heaped upon civilians who permit 'political' considerations to hinder the victory-minded generals and admirals. In almost ritualistic fashion the dictum of the late Gen. Douglas Mac Arthur 'In war, there is no substitute for victory' is cited as irrefutable proof. But history does not substantiate these contentions.

"It was the great Prussian military expert Von Clausewitz in his early 19th century classic 'On War' who declared for all time that 'war is merely the extension of politics by more violent means.' To the old master it was painfully apparent that the strategic decisions, apart from the narrower tactical moves, were inseparable from their political context. And the best commander, according to his logic, was an intelligent civilian informed of the total structure of any given situation and possessing the character to confront the issues realistically."

"THERE WAS indeed an echo of Von Clausewitz in the heartache of the late President Kennedy after the misadventure of the Bay of Pigs in April, 1961. 'I learned,' Mr. Kennedy remarked, 'that the judgment of a competent civilian aware of all aspects of the situation is often better than that of the best general.' He was referring to his own ability to gauge even better than the generals what was the principal political-military determinant for success in the operation--the sentiment of the Cuban people and their ability to join in any move for liberation."

Another president, Harry S. Truman, had been in a similar situation 11 years earlier. In October, 1950, U.S. forces had made what was to prove a fateful decision in crossing the 38th parallel leading to North Korea. The North Koreans had been routed after the battle of Inchon, a brilliant stroke by Gen. MacArthur which was to enhance his prestige and embolden him for more precipitous actions. At the time the President said the decision was a 'strategic' one and should be properly left to the military--a declaration he was later to rue."

"After a series of tragic events which led to the dismissal of the famous general, Mr. Truman remarked: 'He told me the Chinese wouldn't come into the war and I believed him.' The earlier decision was of course a momentary relinquishing of presidential responsibility for an assessment of Chinese intentions. The crucial point at issue rested with the President who is better prepared to make such evaluations than a man whose training and background are solely military."

* * *

"AND ABRAHAM LINCOLN who turned out to be a magnificent commander-in-chief, with all the qualities that would have delighted Von Clausewitz, had his problems with his generals, dismissing one after the other. Professor T. Harry Williams in his 'Lincoln and His Generals' writes that not only was Lincoln the President at war but he also functioned as the general-in-chief, even to the point of positioning troops and issuing detailed instructions on such tactical and narrowly military matters as scouting and patrolling. In terms of the larger design of the war, he told the errant Fighting Joe Hooker: 'I'll explain it to you again carefully, General; it's not Richmond that is your proper objective but Lee's army.'

"But it was the flamboyant Gen. George B. McLellan who caused Lincoln the most anguish. McLellan treated Lincoln with studied contempt and confided in his diary that he felt it a most malevolent dispensation of fate that a man as 'inferior' to him as Lincoln should have been vested with the supreme power. The President was willing to ignore the insults of his general if only to serve the Union cause. But Lincoln became convinced that McLellan 'had the slows' and sent him a message saying, 'If the general does not want to use the army, could I borrow it for a while?'

"The battle of Antietam in September, 1862, proved to be the last straw. McLellan, in the President's view, should have won more than a partial victory. With foreknowledge of the enemy's plans and with sufficient forces to do the job, McLellan should have pressed his advantage and disposed of Lee's armies."

"And Lincoln perceived more than any of his generals that the emancipation of the slaves was the essential ingredient for the forging of the mighty sword that would lead to the ultimate restoration of the union. It was only when this momentous political decision was taken that the advantage swung decisively to the union. More than 186,000 Negroes served in the Union Army, an incalculable addition to their forces. And the subtraction of the labor base from the South made it more difficult for the Confederacy to find the essential manpower to carry on the struggle."

"I did not control the events," the great emancipator said with characteristic humility, but "the events controlled me." He made it clear that he was not averse to the direction in which he was being propelled."

* * *

"THE DOCTRINE of military omnicompetence does not stand the test of World War I. Barbara Tuchman in "Guns of August" has drawn a melancholy picture of the sagacity of the generals on both sides. The specter of commanders ordering troops by the tens of thousands against fixed, strongly fortified positions without the slightest prospect of success was appalling. Nor could the military, especially on the German side, shift the blame to the civilians. After 1916, the German general staff under Hindenberg and Ludendorff was in control, unhindered by the slightest restriction from the virtually nonexistent civilian authority, and it did not fare well."

"On the allied side, after all the sorry contests for power and prestige of the generals, leadership improved markedly after the ascendancy of the civilian leaders David Lloyd George of Britain and Georges Clemenceau, "The Tiger" of France. In March, 1918, Clemenceau consulted Marshal Petain on the steps to be taken to counter the last great drive of the German Army. The marshal recommended a static defense but Clemenceau overruled him and demanded an Allied offensive and the "Tiger" proved to be right. It was he who remarked "war is too important to be left to the generals."

"In an almost parallel situation as revealed by Marshal Zhukov in his memoirs, the most famous of the Soviet commanders complained bitterly about Stalin's interference in his military plans. Moscow was under siege in December, 1941, and Zhukov thought it would be disastrous to mount an attack. He recommended letting the Germans come to him. To do otherwise, he warned, was to run the risk of squandering his precious reserves."

"At that point, according to the marshal, Stalin tried persuasion and when that wouldn't work, ordered a counter-offensive. It was then that 100,000 Russian women poured out of the city and undertook the back-breaking labor of digging the trenches, setting up the barbed wire and mounting the artillery emplacements. The result is history."

"THE CONCEPT OF civilian supremacy is embodied in the U.S. Constitution. The founding fathers were well-versed in history and they were all too aware of abuses on the part of the military. They ordained in Article II, Section II that the President shall be the commander-in-chief of the armed forces."

"In the War of 1812 and in the Mexican War, the President and his cabinet played a big part in the formulation of strategic plans."

"President Woodrow Wilson was adamant about the primacy of the Presidential authority, and Franklin Roosevelt, often disputed as to the judgment he displayed, could never be challenged in terms of his authority. The basic strategic decisions of World War II, like the invasion of Europe in 1944, were made by the civilian leaders of the big three powers."

* * *

"BUT IT IS THE war in Vietnam, the most agonizing and frustrating conflict in U.S. history, that raises the doctrine of Von Clausewitz to the nth power. Professor Bernard Fall, who died recently in Vietnam, was a man who knew his Vietnamese history. He wrote about the "infrastructure"--the parallel hierarchies of the National Liberation Front and the Viet Cong. He described at length the complexity of these social, political and economic structures and warned time and again of the absolute necessity for understanding that only a meaningful alternative to the front could create the conditions for ending the conflict."

"He argued that the bombing of the North was no substitute for such a massive political effort. He pointed out that Ho Chi Minh had prevailed over the French who in 1954 were in possession of Hanoi, Haiphong and every other populated center in the North. Any 'victory' achieved under purely military circumstances, Prof. Fall said, would come at a cost vastly disproportionate to the results."

"The immediate problem for the United States is the development of civilian leadership adequate to what Lincoln called 'the stormy present.'"

Migrants' Problems Of Health, Housing

A generation ago, author John Steinbeck described the plight of migrant workers as shameful in his novel "The Grapes of Wrath."

Recently, in Washington, a U.S. Senate subcommittee issued a report on migrant labor that said much the same thing:

"Despite their vital role in modern agriculture, particularly in filling the crucial needs at harvestime, our migrant citizens have been grossly neglected by society."

* * *

MORE OFTEN THAN not, in addition to low living standards, the influx of migrants to supplement local labor forces creates problems in the areas of health, education, sanitation and housing which the community is not equipped to meet.

"The statistics ... indicating the low wages, unemployment, lack of education, poor housing, malnutrition, disease and lack of adequate medical and dental care tell only part of the story of the shocking degree of impoverishment of the migrant."

By mid-summer, more than a million of these migrants will be on the move, picking foods and vegetables from coast to coast.

* * *

THESE WORKERS, the report continued, have been "expressly excluded or at best only minimally included" in worker-benefit legislation, both federal and state.

Cited were such things as unemployment insurance, workmen's compensation, Social Security insurance, general welfare assistance, minimum wage standards, child labor protection and coverage under the National Labor Relations Act.

The Senate subcommittee found the migrant stream flowing from three sources. The main stream of Mexican-Americans begins in Texas and flows north and west. It covers most of the north central, mountain and Pacific states.

* * *

A SMALLER STREAM starts in the southeastern United States. After the winter citrus and vegetable harvest in Florida, it runs northward along the Atlantic coast to New England. Negroes make up a large part of this stream.

The third major migratory route runs from Southern California up the Pacific coast. Many Mexican-Americans also are in this group.

Both the Senate subcommittee and its house counterpart are considering bills to permit migrant and stationary farm workers to organize under auspices of the National Labor Relations Board. The measures have the Johnson administration's backing.

* * *

THE AGRICULTURE Department also is trying to better the living standards of migrants through better housing. It plans to demonstrate its interest in ceremonies dedicating a housing project at Dimmitt, Tex., March 1.

The year's first migrants will find ready in Dimmitt a new complex of 192 modern family apartments completed over the winter as a replacement for crude shacks and barracks.

Dimmitt's Castro County agriculture housing project is a $966,820 development organized and built by a private nonprofit association of 37 farmers in the county surrounding the town and 25 business firms in Dimmitt.

Ford Sales Up Over '67 Period

Ford dealers sold a record number of cars and trucks during the final 10 days of March in both daily sales rates and total units. The daily sales rate for cars during the March 21-31 period was 8,527, up 41 per cent over a year ago, surpassing the previous record of 8,401 established in 1966.

The daily sales rate for trucks was 3,186, or 53 per cent over the same period last year.

MNB Shows Earnings Drop

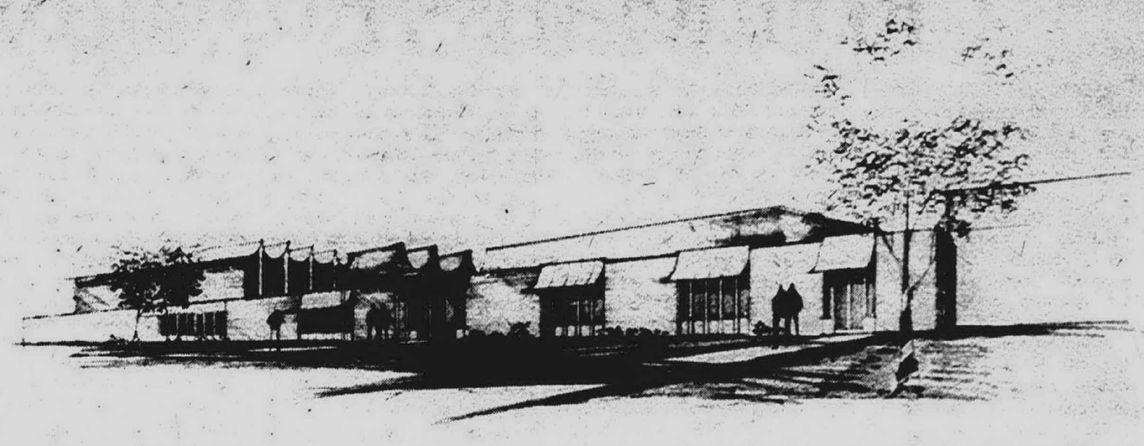

New operating earnings of Manufacturers National Bank of Detroit amounted to $2,214,320 or $1.30 per share on the 1,709,382 shares outstanding. Comparable figures for the same period in 1967 amounted to $2,232,255 or $1.31 per share after adjusting the number of shares for the 10 per cent stock dividend paid in 1968.

Gen. Kyro Retires

The retirement of Major Gen. Erick Kyro, commander, Headquarters of the Michigan Air National Guard, was announced by Major Gen. Clarence C. Schnipke, Adjutant General of Michigan.

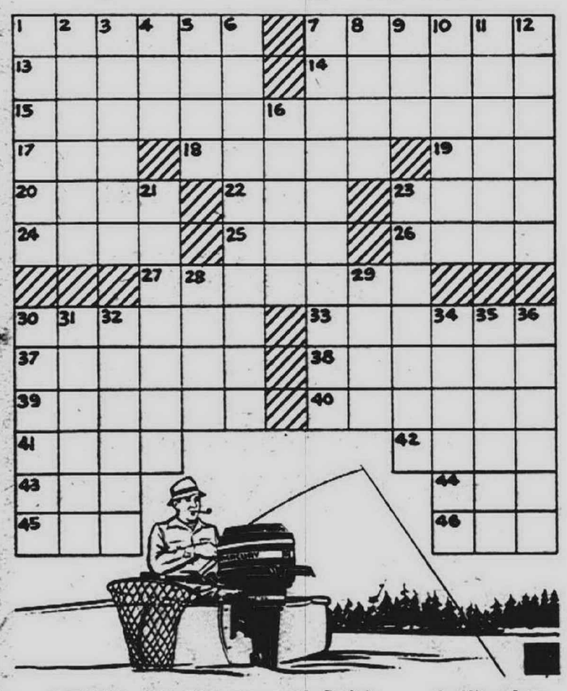

"The retirement closes a career of 27 years of Air Force service in combat, pilot training and aircraft evaluation, the like of which has rarely been found outside the adventure books," said Gen. Schnipke.

In civilian life, he is a management methods specialist for Chrysler Corporation. He resides with his family in Detroit.

NEW YWCA — This drawing shows the proposed expansion of the Northwest Branch YWCA, 25940 Grand River. The addition, which will more than double the size of the present facility, includes a swimming pool, locker and shower rooms, a multi-purpose room and several smaller meeting rooms. Architects are O'Dell, Hewlett and Luckenbach, Inc. of Birmingham. A fund raising campaign, led by Judge James N. Canham, of Redford Township, is seeking to help finance the new addition, valued at $900,000.

CMU Picks Its New President From Berkeley

DR. WILLIAM B. BOYD
New CMU President

Dr. William B. Boyd, vice chancellor for student affairs at the University of California at Berkeley, has been named president of Central Michigan University, Mt. Pleasant.

The appointment of Dr. Boyd as Central's seventh president was made by the University's board of trustees.

Dr. Boyd taught history at Michigan State University for five years and was faculty dean at Alma College for seven years.

Dr. Boyd, 45, a native of Mt. Pleasant, S.C., will assume his new duties July 1. He will succeed Dr. Judson W. Foust who is retiring June 30 after nine years as president and 39 years as a teacher and administrator here.

* * *

VICE CHANCELLOR at the Berkeley campus since July of 1966, Dr. Boyd was selected by Central's governing board after a presidential selection process which began with Dr. Foust's announcement of his retirement plans last June.

"Dr. Boyd comes to us with an outstanding record as a scholar, teacher and administrator in private and public institutions of many sizes and and in various sections of the country," Dr. Lloyd M. Cofer, Detroit, chairman of the board of trustees, said. "He is a man of highly significant scholarly activity and wide and successful administrative experience."

"The appointment of Dr. Boyd is the culmination of many months of effort by the faculty, administration, students, alumni, and board of trustees. It is evident today that these efforts have been successful and that Central has a president capable of leading it in this crucial period of its development, Dr. Cofer said.

* * *

FROM HIS BERKELEY office, Dr. Boyd said, "I am delighted to accept the appointment. The people of Michigan, through their Legislature, have long demonstrated a commitment to higher education. With their continued support, Central can have an exciting future.

"It is a threshold University--one of that emerging group to whom the future belongs."

In his present position at Berkeley, Dr. Boyd is responsible for policy formation in the student affairs area, including the integration of academic and student affairs. He is also administratively responsible for the operation of such major units as the registrar's office, admissions, health services, counseling service, dean of students and the placement center.

He joined the Berkeley staff after serving from July, 1965, to July, 1966, as associate dean in the College of Arts and Sciences at Ohio State University where he was director of the honors program.

PRIOR TO 1965, Dr. Boyd spent 12 years at two Michigan institutions of higher education.

He served as dean of the faculty and professor of history at Alma College from 1958-65, having gone there from the faculty of Michigan State University where he had taught since 1953.

He has also taught history at Emory University in Atlanta, Ga., and at Rutgers University, Camden, N.J.

Dr. Boyd earned the Ph.D. with a major in modern European history from the University of Pennsylvania in 1954, the M.A. with a major in history and political science from Emory University in 1947, and the A.B. with a major in history from Presbyterian College, Clinton, S.C.

Dr. Boyd served as an executive officer with the U.S. Navy from 1943-46. He was recalled for the period of 1951-53 and was assigned to the historical section of the Bureau of Ordnance.

Dr. Boyd and his wife, Louise, are the parents of two children: Marcie, 16, and Susan, 11.

Fear Privacy Act Will Put All At Mercy Of Computers

CHICAGO—The Johnson Administration's proposed Right of Privacy Act does little to allay the fear that unthinking electronic computers may make public confidential records about American citizens, a University of Michigan professor says.

Prof. Arthur R. Miller told a national symposium on privacy at the University of Chicago that "the computer, with its insatiable appetite for information, its image of infallibility, its inability to forget anything that has been put into it, may become the heart of a surveillance system that will turn society into a transparent world."

* * *

"That dubious statute," he said, "requires disclosure of a number of broad categories of government records to any person."

The proposed Right of Privacy Act, fails to come to grips with the problems thus posed. In the computer area it would protect against transmissions by wire, but not microwave relay systems. And it would not deal with problems of information gathering and processing or with direct intrusions on the computer systems themselves.

The existing Freedom of Information Act, Miller noted, was passed "in furtherance of the public's right to know—a marvelous cliche effectively manipulated by the mass communications media."

But it may have the effect "of forcing disclosure of a great deal of information that originally was given the government with the understanding that it would be kept confidential, and a considerable amount of personal data that many a sensitive citizen would consider private."

* * *

THE ACT, he said, represented a "complete reversal of our past presumption in favor of privacy" in that it requires disclosure of personal data within specified categories "unless it would constitute a clearly unwarranted invasion of personal privacy."

"If individual privacy is to be given any meaningful protection against the computer," Miller asserted, "it must be available at the point of information gathering. The key is appropriate limitations on input" rather than the development of legal remedies after the fact.

"What is essential is the development of a comprehensive set of rules of information gathering, disclosure and confidentiality, as well as legislative standards of care for information processing that will supplant, to the extent feasible, the existing crazy-quilt of regulations and fill the existing statutory gaps."

* * *

MILLER CALLED on Congress to establish "reasonably precise standards regarding the information that a federal data center can record...Information gathered without specific Congressional authorization should be denied access to a data center."

And without an absolutely overpowering demonstration that the preservation of sensitive highly personal information is essential to national policy, "the data should be permitted to be lost to man's memory or simply be retained on a decentralized confidential basis."

Miller cautioned that with a data center, information would be not only centralized but also more probing and sophisticated. Greater magnification and mechanization of information gathering, he said, would certainly increase the risk of errors in reporting, recording and indexing; the risk of information distortion, the risk of abuse and misuse of information by persons who have any access to it.

"Our success or failure in life," he said, "ultimately may turn on what other people put in our file and an unknown programmer's ability or inability—to evaluate, process, and interrelate information."

Until the quality of the center's operations and the risks to individual privacy are better perceived, "the center's activities should be restricted to processing purely factual data with no evaluation content."

Why Some People Are Always Late

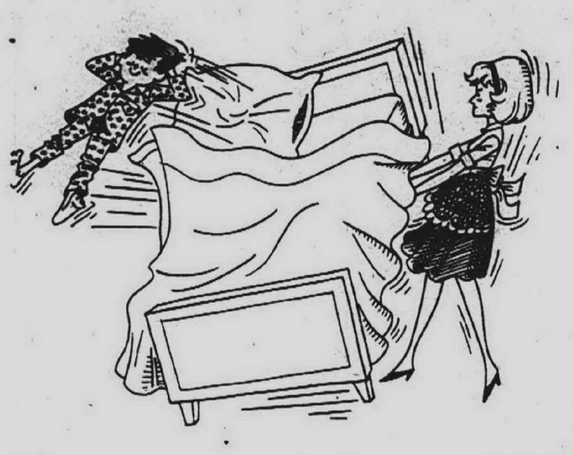

"That wife of mine! She's late again. She's always late. She's never on time. I think she does it on purpose!"

Psychologists who have studied the problem of chronic lateness agree with this harried husband--there are people who actually want to come late.

Most of the time, such Johnny (or Janey) Come Latelies are unaware that their tardiness is consistent, follows a pattern and is based on some deep seated need or desire.

* * *

COMING LATE to work, missing a luncheon date, or handing in a term paper after it's due is usually blamed on "unavoidable" outside factors: "The traffic was impossible this morning" or "There was a power failure on the subway" or "The library books I needed weren't returned until yesterday."

No one can really quarrel with these explanations, but when a person seems to be plagued by this kind of difficulty time after time, there's something more basic to his lateness.

Why do some people come late so often? Here are some of the reasons that leading psychologists like Dr. Theodore Rubin have discovered:

* * *

EXTREME SENSITIVITY to being "bossed around."

There are people who unconsciously feel that being on time or keeping an appointment means giving in to domination. In order to show their independence, they come late.

A desire to rebel against all symbols of authority. Teenagers often regard time schedules and definite appointments as symbols of "The Establishment" which they're already rebelling against.

* * *

A NEED TO TEST how others feel about you.

This explains why husbands are kept waiting on street corners for hours. Their tardy wives are really saying, "If you love me, show me how much you'll take."

Hidden feelings of anger.

A person who has an unconscious desire to "get even" with certain individuals or with the world in general often finds that it's "impossible" to get to a scheduled business meeting or keep a social engagement.

People who dislike themselves and feel the need to hurt themselves also find an outlet for their feelings by not coming on time. A history of tardiness puts them in the worst possible light -- which is what they unconsciously want.

Finally, habitual lateness might be due to an insufficiently developed sense of responsibility. The guilty party just doesn't realize the importance of coming on time and keeping appointments.

* * *

BUT WHILE COMING late may be satisfying for the moment, it's always destructive in the long run. Constant latecomers eventually lose friends, receive low grades in school, get docked for minutes lost at work, or find a pink slip in their pay envelopes.

What's the solution? It lies in searching out the cause of the problem, realizing that habitual lateness is not the answer to whatever's bothering you, and deciding to break the habit once and for all.

Psychologists tell us that to break any bad habit, you must replace it with a good one. In this case, the new one will be consistent punctuality -- being on time all the time.

Psychologists note that if you get out of bed late, you will start your day behind and will remain behind all day. When you start on time, you're set to be on time all day.

Of course, there will be days when life just doesn't seem to cooperate, and all sorts of delays threaten to interfere with your decision not to be late.

The thing to do about this problem is follow the old Boy Scout motto and "Be Prepared!"

How Cigarettes Slow Young Men's Reactions

A theory long held by athletic coaches and some doctors that smoking lowers muscle activity received recent support from University of Michigan researchers.

Two pharmacologists said the smoking of a high-nicotine-content cigarette by a young college student can depress his patellar reflex (knee jerk) up to 67 per cent.

The depression usually lasts 15 to 30 minutes from the beginning of smoking. Rarely, some subjects showed a depression for as long as 60 minutes.

Drs. Edward F. Domino and Alona M. von Baumgarten told the Federation of American Societies For Experimental Biology that the depressant effect on the human skeletal motor system seems to be directly related to the nicotine content of the cigarette.

* * *

SMOKING A low-nicotine tobacco cigarette lowered the reflex activity about 45 per cent. And no depression was produced when the students smoked cigarettes containing lettuce leaves and no nicotine.

The Michigan neuropsychopharmacology research program was supported by grants from the Council for Tobacco Research and the U.S. Public Health Service. Dr. Domino is a professor of pharmacology and Dr. von Baumgarten a postdoctoral fellow at the U-M Medical School.

The researchers found no significant differences between smokers and nonsmokers. In their experiment, involving 45 male students aged 19 to 29, the knee reflex was elicited automatically every two seconds by a reflex hammer.

The reflex traction was recorded mechanically by a strain gauge transducer before, during, and after smoking. An electromyogram (EMG) of the quadriceps (large thigh) was recorded on a ploygraph. Each subject smoked in a series of deep, inhaling puffs for four minutes. A second cigarette was smoked 25 minutes after the first.

Three cigarettes with varying nicotine content--high, low, and none--were used. The subjects were relaxed in a horizontal position. Smoking started after 10 minutes or when steady reflex responses were obtained.

* * *

"SMOKERS OF nicotine-containing cigarettes invariably obtained a marked depression of the patellar reflex as recorded mechanically and in the electromyographic response," Dr. von Baumgarten noted.

"The depressant action was observed about 30 seconds after an initial facilitation, was progressive, and reached its peak at the end of smoking. The depression was always steeper during the first minute than during the last three minutes of smoking."

The researchers found that after smoking the average subject's reflex depression stayed at the same level or slightly increased for a 30 to 120 seconds. Recovery was progressive, steeper within the first 10 minutes. Twenty-five minutes after smoking the reflex response returned toward control levels.

Twenty-nine of the subjects complained about slight to moderate dizziness during smoking, probably because most were nonsmokers. But even the habitual smokers were affected by the deep smoke inhalations.

FOLLOWING PATRICK will be Detroit Councilman Mel Ravitz, who was chairman of the Wayne County Board of Supervisors, and Richard Simmons, executive director of the Mayor's Committee on Total Action Against Poverty.

About 1,000 of the 3,000 teachers and administrators in the club are expected for the meeting and related conferences.

Afternoon meetings have been scheduled for administrators, guidance personnel, school librarians, the Association of Michigan Modern Language Teachers, and the Michigan Association of Women Deans and Counselors, along with conferences devoted to specific subject areas.

Lift License Of Death Drivers, Hare Proposes

In Michigan you can kill a person with your automobile and suffer no loss of your driving privileges unless convicted.

You can have a whole string of accidents and likewise maintain your driving rights--unless convictions push your point total to 12 or more. Then the secretary of state can demand a driver re-examination.

This is the problem of the accident-prone driver, which Secretary of State James M. Hare has termed one of the biggest loopholes in the state's traffic laws.

Hare seeks to plug the loophole through an amendment prepared for submission to the current Legislature.

* * *

UNDER THE PROPOSED amendment, a driver could face suspension or revocation of his operator's license if:

1. He has in one or more instances been involved in an accident resulting in the death of a person.

2. He has, within a two-year period, been involved in three accidents resulting in personal injury or property damage in excess of $200 and the subsequent police report indicates moving violations.

Twenty-eight states have laws providing for suspending or revoking driver licenses for accidents resulting in death, injury, or substantial property damage.

Some states have made accidents as well as a specified point total a basis for taking away driving rights.

CURIOUSLY, Michigan had a more stringent law governing the accident-prone driver before the point system went into effect in 1958.

Then the law provided that the department could suspend or revoke a driver's license if there was reason to believe that driver was incompetent, had disqualifying physical or mental disabilities, was habitually reckless or negligent, or had in one or more instances "driven a motor vehicle in a reckless or negligent manner and had thereby caused death or injury to any person or serious damage to property."

When the point system was adopted, the law retained the provisos as to incompetency and disabilities, but eliminated the neckless and negligent provisos and the death-injury-damage clause. In place of these items, lawmakers inserted the words: "Or whenever any person has charged against him a total of 12 or more points. . . within a period of two years."

* * *

A 1967 MICHIGAN study of 40,000 drivers, each with 12 or more points, showed that 83.6 per cent had been involved in only one or no accidents in the preceding two years.

Points do not necessarily mean accidents and accidents do not necessarily mean points. This is the reason for quicker action against accident-prone drivers without reference to their point totals.

What kind of person is the accident-prone driver? He is often the emotionally-disturbed, the angry, the inattentive driver.

He is many times aggressive, impulsive, intolerant.

He is the driver who has a lot of "near misses," which even careful drivers experience occasionally. He is the driver who makes more driving errors than most.

But there is really no adequate definition, except that an accident-prone driver is one who has more accidents than the average--and certainly more than he should.

Defines Condition

ANN ARBOR -- The University of Michigan Hospital has adopted standard definitions for describing the conditions of patients in information given to news reporters.

The University Hospital press guide, established several years ago, avoids calling any patient "satisfactory". Instead, it recommend "Good," "Fair," "Serious," or "Critical." Although these terms are fairly clear, they leave room for different interpretations by different people.

* * *

IN RECENT WEEKS, senior U-M physicians and administrators reviewed possible definitions of the terms and have agreed upon the following:

"Good": Vital signs are stable and within normal limits. Patient is conscious. He is uncomfortable or may have minor complications. Favorable prognosis.

"Serious": Acutely ill with questionable prognosis. Vital signs may be unstable or not within normal limits. A chance for improved prognosis.

"Critical": Questionable prognosis. Vital signs are unstable and not within normal limits. There are major complications; death may be imminent.

In recent years the number of press inquiries about newsworthy patients in University Hospital has risen from an average of 50 per month to a current average of 200. The record number in a single month was 448.

Canada Prefers Neat, Productive Draft-Dodgers

Toronto, a Canadian city of two million on Lake Ontario, is becoming a haven for American draft-dodgers.

It has an English language culture, a booming economy and a proximity to the U.S. border.

It's the headquarters for anti-draft programs that aid and advise young American men hoping to escape military service.

Canada is economically the richer for taking them in, it seems. If they've been hippies in the past, the draft-dodgers are advised to spruce up, get haircuts, find jobs and make their ways into the Canadian mainstream.

The estimates of draft-dodgers in Canada vary from 10,000 to 20,000, although Canadian immigration authorities say a more likely figure is 3,000.

* * *

"WE'RE UNIQUE, but what's happening in America is unique," says Bernard Jaffe, 22, co-director of the anti-draft program, the largest of more than 20 anti-draft organizations in Canada.

Jaffe, a bearded, articulate up-state New Yorker, sees his fellow draft dodgers as political exiles. "By the act of coming up here they've committed themselves politically...it's a movement," he said.

Jaffe says 1500 evaders have passed through the anti-draft program's tiny two-room, walk-up office in North Toronto during the past two years. He believes "at least that many got here on their own."

There are also concentrations of the evaders in Vancouver, B.C. on the West Coast and in Montreal, particularly at McGill University.

Jaffe favors a tight-knit "American" community but admits ruefully that most of the "emigres" quickly assimilate. "They go Canadian mainstream on us...they come to us when they arrive and we never see them again."

ACCORDING TO most draft dodgers here, the average Canadian's attitude toward them ranged from mild sympathy to indifference. "Most understand about us--a lot don't care," says Jaffe.

"It's very tolerant here," said Steve Kosloff, a 26-year-old New Yorker, who has been in Toronto for 21/2 years. Married with two children, he is a construction worker and, as do most draft evaders, plans to become a Canadian citizen.

"Canada is a little more wide open than the States, there is more opportunity," he said. Kosloff emigrated after receiving his induction notice because he opposed the Vietnam War. His family and friends are missed, "but to me it was the only solution."

Rudy Guy, 34, of Baton Rouge, La., said he was majoring in biology at Southern University--a Negro school--when he decided to come here six months ago. He now works as a mechanic.

Active in civil rights and anti-war groups, he feared being drafted despite his age as a form of "political harassment." He says he was "a bit apprehensive about Canada after being raised in the states...I find it more than I anticipated."

* * *

"I'M QUITE happy here. It's just like being in an American city," said John Phillips, a 22-year-old Iowan who works as a photographer.

Phillips, who is still appealing denial of an application for a conscientious objector deferment, is technically not a draft dodger--yet.

His draft board would not grant him C.O. status--"they couldn't see my life style"--and he expects draft orders this month.

He has already applied for Canadian citizenship and has no intention of reporting. "I feel so good now, it was a great feeling when I crossed the border."

* * *

MANY DRAFT dodgers resent recent articles in the U.S. and Canadian press that have depicted them as bearded, pot-smoking hippies living in Yorkville Village, a two-block mini-bohemia near Toronto University.

"I haven't seen a hippie draft dodger yet," said Phillips, who has been here seven months. "Eighty per cent of them go to college."

Kosloff agrees. "There are more graduate students than hippies," he said.

Prospective immigrants are now evaluated on a "point" system before they are admitted as "landed immigrants"--the first step toward citizenship. Applicants must get at least 50 out of a possible 100 points.

* * *

IMMIGRANTS ARE rated on age (10 points if you're under 35), education, whether they have a job or relatives in Canada, and the interviewing official's personal assessment (up to 15 points.)

The Toronto Anti-Draft Program issues a popular manual for would-be immigrants with information about Canada ("all Canadians don't live in caves or igloos") and tips about how to get through the border.

Becoming a New Canadian is "a suit and tie affair" the manual states,"...bathe, shave, and get a haircut. You must appear neat. Visitors with long hair untidy dress, or peace buttons are detained more often than others."

A first printing of 5000 copies of the manual is sold out and another 15,000--selling at $1 each--have been ordered, Jaffe said.

* * *

DRAFT DODGERS who led a free-wheeling life at Berkeley, Greenwich Village--or on Boston's Beacon Hill--are advised to cool it in Canada. A criminal conviction, say for marijuana smoking or possession, could result in deportation--right into the arms of the U.S. Justice Department.

The maximum penalty for draft offenses is five years in jail and a $10,000 fine. There is no statute of limitation.

"They have to be pretty straight," says John Pocock of the Canada Friends Service Committee. Pocock works with the Canadian committee supporting the anti-draft program with funds and which tries to provide housing and employment for newly-arrived draft-evaders.

"They're pretty good types ...we're getting the best of the deal," he said.

CANADA IS a draft dodger's heaven--since it has no draft law of its own, no one can be extradited for breaking the draft law of another country--but it's a circumscribed haven.

There are construction and laborers jobs available in large numbers but they appeal little to most draft dodgers, whose backgrounds are heavily white collar and college-educated.

HELICOPTER INSPECTION – Edward V. Offer, 30107 Bentley, Livonia, safety coordinator of the Michigan Heart Association's cardiopulmonary resuscitation committee, studies resuscitation equipment in a rescue helicopter. The owner of the aircraft, Superior Ambulance Co. of Wyandotte, has asked the CPR Committee to study and make recommendations on adequate training for personnel and proper equipment for ambulances and rescue helicopters, not only to bind up wounds, but to revive victims of heart stoppage, a primary cause of sudden death under many circumstances and in many places. The helicopter should be especially useful in reaching victims in normally inaccessible fields, woods or beaches, and should be equipped to apply revival techniques while transporting a victim to a hospital.

Red Boss Never Dies, He Just Fades Awa-a-a-y

PRAGUE—Communist Czechoslovakia will allow Antonin Novotny to drift quietly into obscurity after forcing his resignation as president.

He probably will not be tried for the purges of the 1950 despite evidence he was responsible for them.

Novotny was replaced last January by Alexander Dubeck as Communist Party chairman.

Novotny will not be permitted to make a farewell speech to the nation, informed sources said. He will simply disappear into retirement as did Soviet Premier Nikita S. Krushchev in 1964.

Kamil Winter, editor-in-chief of news on state-owned television, said Novotny would leave office "not as an accused, not on his way to the gallows.

"This was part of the process of democratization," Winter said in a commentary program, "and shows we are making progress."

Winter said it was to be hoped the rest of the reform and personnel shakeup could be conducted in the same way because "then we could be sure we are on the road to socialism."

Novotny, he said, had not proposed any farewell address, so that the only explanation of his action was contained in the brief letter of resignation.

"I have taken this decision after careful consideration," Novotny said in part. "In view of the present situation in this country and with the aim to help the further development of our socialist society, I am here-with offering my resignation."

Novotny resigned even as the Presidium of the National Assembly was meeting to vote him out of office.

The entire incident occurred peacefully, rare in eastern Europe.

No troops appeared with the change and the only police around were directing traffic when extra editions of newspapers announced the departure of the man who had ruled the Czech Communist party unchallenged since 1953.

The extras were quickly sold but there were no public demonstrations--probably because Novotny's ouster had been expected so long it was almost an anticlimax.

2.7 Million Coho, Chinook Planted

Plantings of nearly 2.7 million coho and chinook fingerlings were launched in Michigan's Great Lakes streams this week by the State Conservation Department with the main goal of boosting widespread salmon fishing in the big waters' offshore areas in 1969.

The releases, expected to continue through the first week of May, are targeted for 20 streams emptying into lakes Michigan, Superior, and Huron.

Of these, 16 are to be stocked with small salmon for the first time in the move to put more coastline area on this state's sportfishing map.

* * *

THE DEPARTMENT'S salmon-stocking program for this spring will send about 1.8 million coho yearlings and 850,000 young chinook on their way down to the big open waters of the Great Lakes.

It is scheduled to wind up early next month in Lake Superior streams where colder waters call for planting the fish later than in Lower Peninsula tributaries.

On the Lake Superior front, the department will make its first releases of four to five-inch coho in these waters: Anna River near Munising, 175,000; Falls River at L'Anse, 60,000; Ontonagon River, 50,000; Sucker River at Grand Marais, 40,000; and Cherry Creek near Marquette, 25,000.

New to its coho planting list on the Lake Michigan side are the following rivers: Boardman, 100,000; Whitefish near Escanaba, 100,000; Pere Marquette, 100,000; Big Manistee, 75,000; Bear at Petoskey, 50,000; and Boyne, 50,000.

Lake Michigan's Platte, Little Manistee, and Muskegon rivers and Thompson Creek--all stocked with salmon in recent years--will receive another batch of young coho this spring. The 1968 planting schedule will put 250,000 in the Platte, 200,000 in the Muskegon, 150,000 in the Little Manistee, and 25,000 in Thompson Creek.

* * *

IN EXPANDING its salmon program to cover Lake Huron streams, the department this spring will make initial releases of 175,000 coho in the Tawas River, 100,000 in the Thunder Bay River, 75,000 in the Au Sable River, and 50,000 in the Carp River.

Of the 850,000 small chinook smolts to be released in the next few weeks, 300,000 will go into the Little Manistee River, another 300,000 will be set free in the Muskegon River, 200,000 are slated for the Ocqueoc River on the Lake Huron side, and the remaining 50,000 are to be planted in Cherry Creek.

The department also will stock a small number of chinook in Thunder Bay River under a cooperative study with Alpena Community College.

* * *

IN WAKE OF the recent hatchery die-off of young coho which has been linked with DDT, the department has trimmed 200,000 chinook from its planting plans for the Little Manistee and shifted that total to the Ocqueoc River.

Troopers, Dogs In Training

Five teams of Michigan State Police trooper-handlers and German shepherd tracking dogs Monday have begun a 14 week training school.

As with recent schools, most of the training will be done in the Houghton Lake area with the officers and dogs quartered at the State Police post there.

The handlers and their dogs are Tpr. William W. Smith, East Lansing, and "Keeper"; Tpr. Richard E. Cooper, Sandusky, and "Satan"; Tpr. Richard C. Guthrie, Flint, and "Brandy"; Tpr. Clare Helms, a veteran handler, and "Thor" and Tpr. John M. McKenzie and "Mike", both of Houghton Lake.

Donors of the dogs were Terre Lorenzen, Traverse City for "Thor"; Richard Jerow, Hurley, Wis., for "Satan"; Mrs. Maurice Pittan, Rochester, for "Keeper"; Ruth Pattengill, Farmington, for "Mike." Guthrie provided his own dog, "Brandy."

Helms is training a replacement for his dog "Chip" that died last fall. Several teams will be replacements for some of the 13 teams now active while others will be assigned to posts not yet chosen.

The training again will be under the supervision of Sgt. Richard Abbott, East Lansing, who has had this responsibility since the tracking program started.

Foundation Offers 3 Scholarships

Open to public school 12A students in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb Counties, the contest will have one winner in each county.

Students should contact their principals or counsellors for details on how to enter the competition. Applications must be mailed no later than Thursday, May 9.

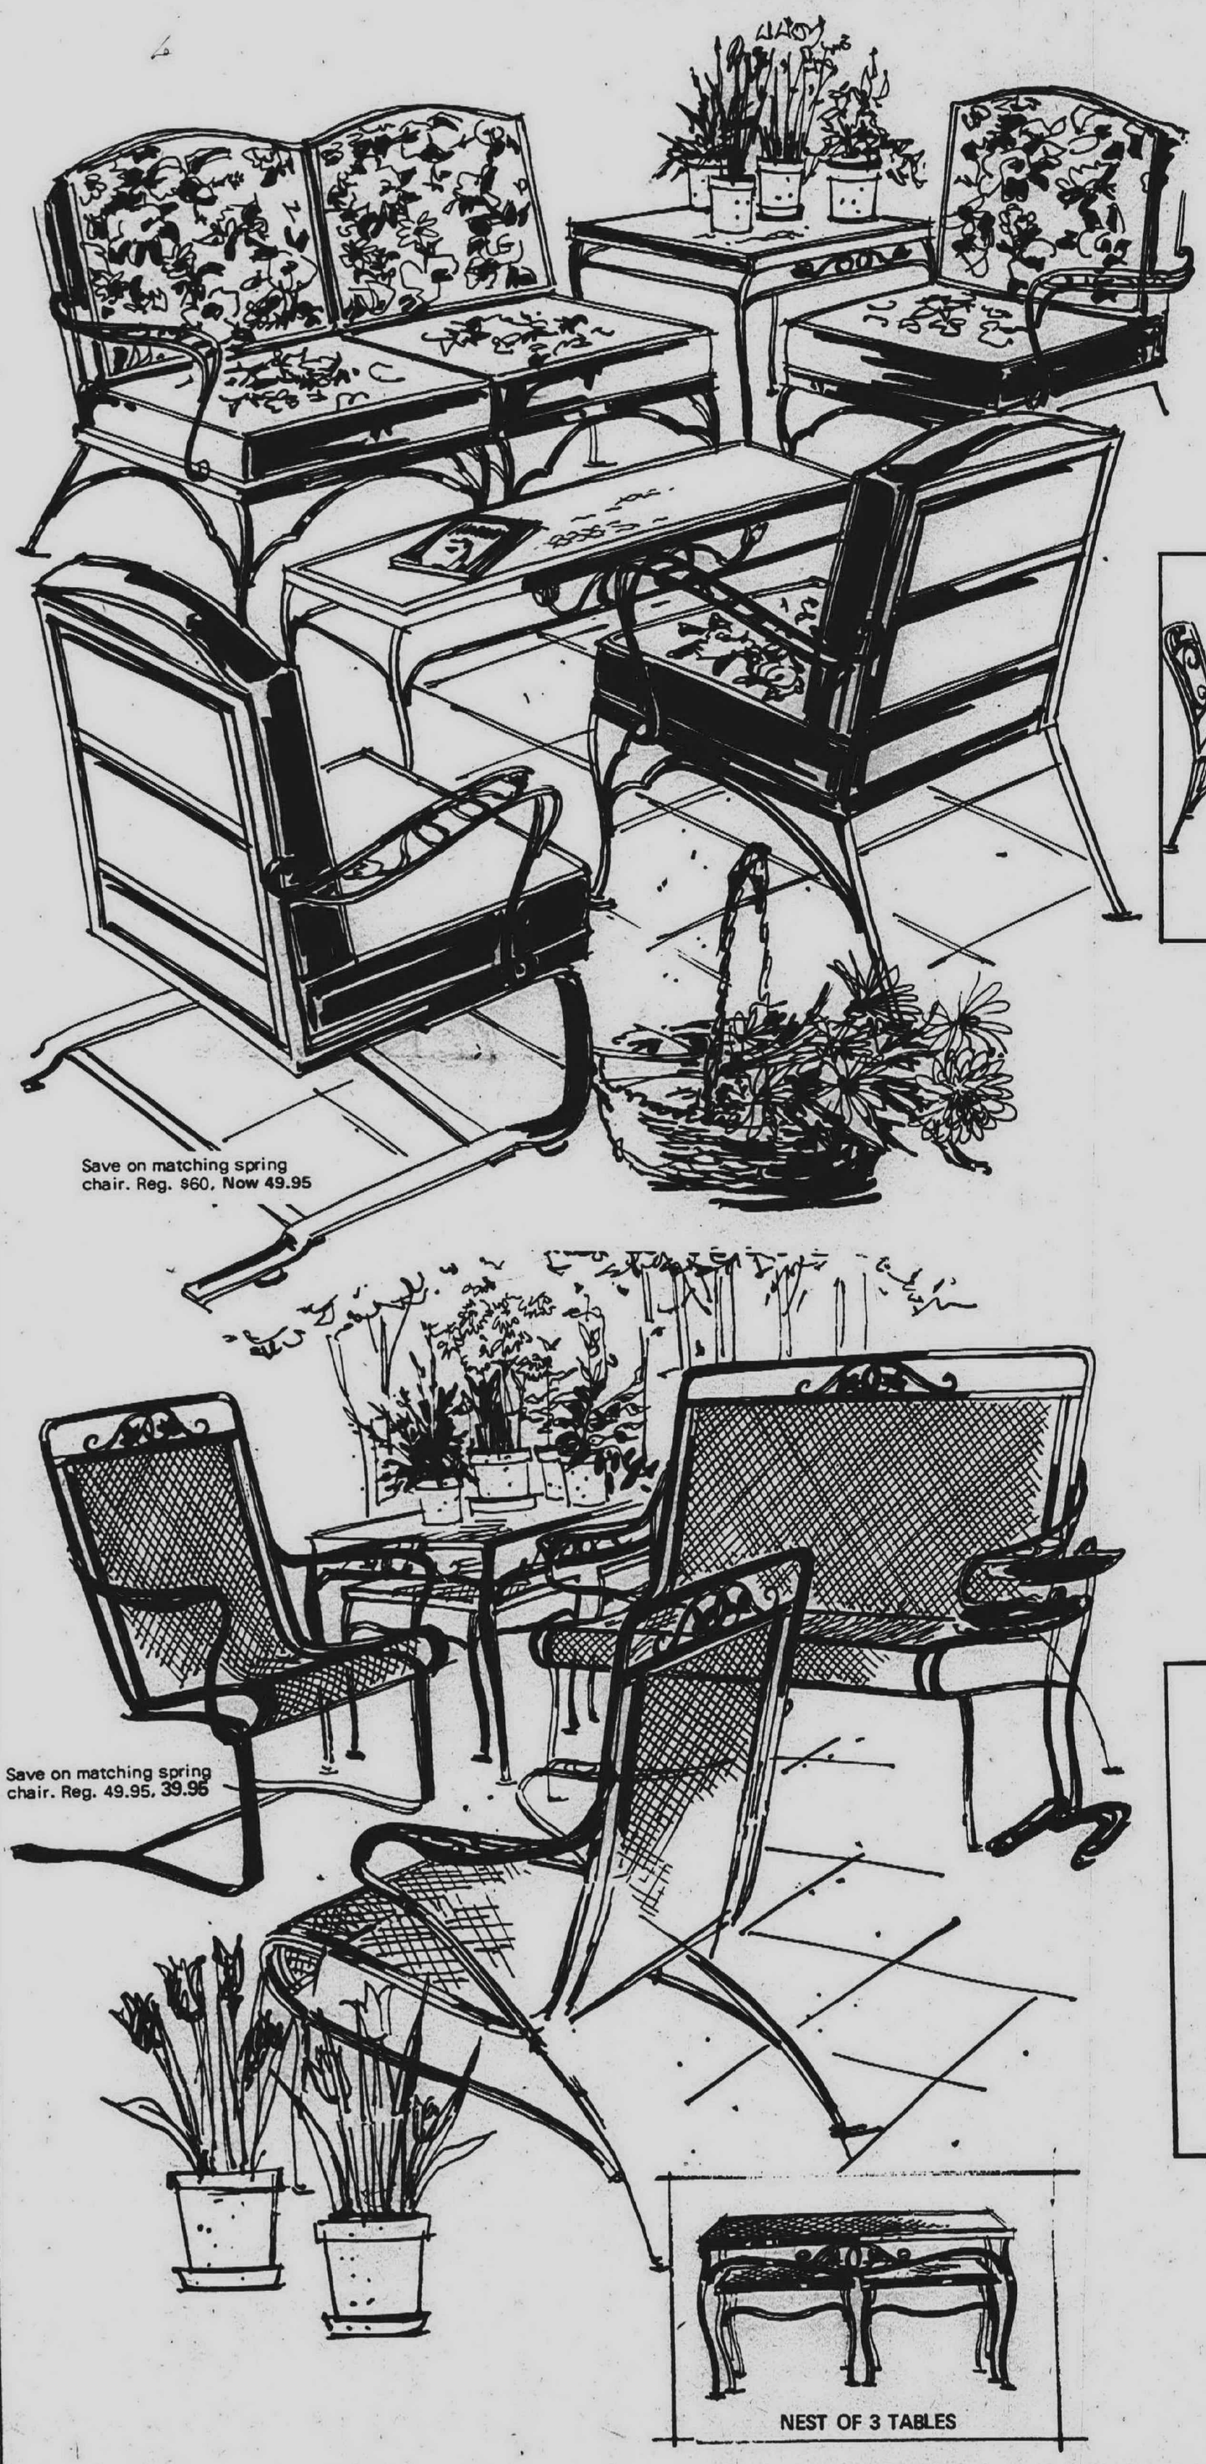

When Dr. Donald L. Golden, founder and director of the Detroit Optometric Centers, graduated from high school, finances curtailed his college plans. A benefactor helped finance him through college.

Dr. Golden said: "For years, I have been grateful to the man who gave me my chance to attend college. For this reason, I have started this foundation, to give others the same chance I had."

On the committee to select the winners will be Detroit City Councilman Nicholas Hood; Charles Gehringer, businessman and Detroit Tiger Hall of Famer; Dr. Richard Dresher, director of counseling for Detroit Public Schools, and Paul Winter, educator and radio personality.

Montgomery Ward To Expand Store

Montgomery Ward will expand its Livonia store in the Wonderland Shopping Center, but the two billion dollar retailer has no near-future plans for additional stores in Observerland.

And Ward's changes at its small Farmington outlet and catalog store are part of its nation-wide rejuvenation program under Board Chairman Robert Brooker.

Montgomery Ward, as an Illinois corporation, must hold its annual meeting in Chicago, but Brooker's administration scheduled a series of regional meetings in towns around the country with large numbers of company stockholders.

* * *

S.D. WARD, company midwest vice president, revealed that the Livonia store, one of the firm's best in the Detroit region, will be expanded in 1969-70.

Ward gave few details. He said there would be more selling area, new fixtures, and expanded auto service, but offered no other specifics.

Ward also said the company has specific ideas for one new retail outlet "north of Detroit" in its expansion program of 17 new stores in each of the next two years, but again he offered no details.

Chairman Brooker said the Livonia expansion and remodeling was one of two such projects in the immediate future; the other is a 40,000 square foot expansion in Ann Arbor.

ROBERT E. BROOKER

Regional Manager

FRED D. SCHUNCK
Detroit Manager

FRED D. SCHUNCK, Detroit metropolitan district manager, said the policy of the store in the Downtown Farmington Center is to shift from selling a few "big ticket" items, such as appliances, to greater volume items.

Ward has reduced its number of catalog stores from an all-time high of 864 in 1965 to 719, and another 20 will be closed this year, according to the annual report.

Some of the catalog stores with poor volume have been changed to license outlets, with other businessmen running them under an agreement with Montgomery Ward, but Schunck said this hadn't been done in the Farmington case.

Brooker explained that the firm, far from planning to get out of the catalog business entirely, expects greater things in the future from that phase.

WHAT'S HAPPENING, said Brooker, is that the old, small town catalog stores catering to a diminishing rural population, are being closed, but new types of catalog stores will be opened in urban areas.

The company's annual report showed an overall sales drop from the 1966 level of $1.894 billion to a 1967 level of $1.879 billion.

But Brooker pointed out that the decrease was accounted for entirely in the catalog area, and that retail store sales had actually increased.

Employment, which reached a record in 1966 of 105,000, was cut to a bit less than 101,000 during 1967.

While sales and employment were dropping, however, net earnings rose from 1966's performance of $16.5 million to last year's $17.4 million. On a per share basis, this was an increase from $1.24 to $1.31.

* * *

HOW DID IT happen?

Brooker attributed it to Montgomery Ward's new policy of handling fancier, higher-priced, better quality merchandise, along with better sales promotions and better inventory control.

Another reason, said the company, was more liberal credit terms.

In the catalog area, it's moving to "higher quality and higher (profit) margin items, thereby increasing the value of the average unit sale."

Low-profit items were eliminated from catalogs, and fewer catalogs were sent out, the company statement said.

Smelly Beach Woes Not So Bad In '68

Lake Michigan's alewife die-off this summer is expected to be only about one-third or one-half as serious as last year, but losses of these nuisance fish could balloon again to large-scale proportions in 1970.

That is the guarded prediction of A.L. McLain, investigations chief of the Lake Michigan-Lake Huron Program for the U.S. Bureau of Commercial Fisheries.

Reporting at a recent meeting of the Great Lakes Basin Commission, McLain pointed out that biological studies conducted by his agency have indicated that Lake Michigan's adult stock of alewives has dropped about 66 per cent since last year.

On the basis of that, he said: "It would be extremely unlikely that a die-off of last year's proportions will occur in 1968. In fact, I would predict that the die-off will be between one-third and one-half as serious as last year's."

* * *

ON THE DARKER side of this picture, the fisheries expert noted that the alewife problem may confront the Lake Michigan area with another massive clean-up chore in 1970 because last year's hatch of these fish was the third largest in history.

The Conservation Department views McLain's forecast for this summer as especially good news in view of how the Lake Michigan clean-up program is taking shape.

Although the department has made headway in beefing up that program, operations will not be totally geared to meet the clean-up load in 1968 because of fund shortages.

Among other things, the department's plans for this summer are keyed to a $65,000 supplemental appropriation in state funds to buy five tractors with beach-cleaning trailer units.

The machines would be "farmed out" to local units of government along the Lake Michigan front which would carry out their share of the workload by providing manpower to operate the beach-cleaning equipment and dispose of dead fish in sanitary land fills.

Conservation officials say this phase of the mop-up program will not do the entire job, but use of the five machines should enable local communities to stay pretty well on top of things at public beaches.

The department itself will man four of its own beach-cleaning machines to handle conditions at state park beaches on Lake Michigan.

* * *

UNDER ANOTHER arm of the summer program, Conservation planes will periodically fly over Lake Michigan offshore areas to pinpoint accumulations of dead alewives.

It is hoped, but somewhat doubtful at this point, that a project can be mobilized under which commercial fishermen will be contracted to skim dead alewives from the surface of the lake before these fish wash upon beaches.

Federal funds totaling $250,000 have been made available to Michigan, Illinois, Indiana, and Wisconsin on a matching basis to carry out this phase of work.

However, Michigan's share of this money would fall far short of its funding needs, and there is no indication that a state appropriation will be made to qualify this state for the federal amount.

Mums Are Asset In Gardens

Annual chrysanthemums are an asset to any garden for they bloom profusely during summer and early fall, especially when and where the weather is not too hot.

Extremely easy to grow, they need only a sunny place and, preferably, clay soil. Seeds of both single and double-flowered types are available and there also is a tetraploid variety with extra-large blooms.

Seeds of the double-flowered types will produce a high percentage of plants with fully double flowers, but there also will be some single-flowered plants. One of the interesting aspects of growing annual chrysanthemums is observing the variation in flowers, not only in form but also in color.

Most of the large flowers will be of a single color; white, yellow, orange, to brownish-red, but some of them will have rings or zones of one or several colors in sharp contrast to the ground hue. It's for this reason that they often are called "painted daisies".

All of the color combinations blend with one another so that flowers from a seed mixture may be used together in an arrangement if desired. The blooms have excellent keeping quality and are entirely satisfactory in both garden and house.

Strains available include Rainbow and Merry, mixtures of single-flowered forms, Double Monarch and Coronarium Double, and the tetrapoid variety, Polar Star, with white blooms centered yellow, each 4 to 5 inches in diameter, on stems 3 feet high.

Give Mother Well Planned Cedar Closet

It comes in the form of redoing your wife's closet in red cedar closet lining. And while you're at it, plan it for the utmost in convenience and efficiency in use. She'll love it.

In advance, analyze what she stores in the closet--shoes, hats, handbags, dresses, coats, sweaters, luggage and what-have-you. Then design the most efficient way of housing it.

Be sure to provide shelving for luggage, sweaters and hats while installing rods to accommodate dresses and coats as well as skirts and jackets. This can be done by placing the rods at various levels.

The backs of the closet doors can be fitted with slanting racks with heel stops for shoes and hooks for handbags and other items. Or you might consider installing a full-length mirror.

For moth repellency, the entire inside of the closet should be faced with aromatic red cedar which eliminates the need to send furs out to commercial storage during summer months.

Rebuilding a closet is a job a semi-skilled handyman can accomplish over a weekend. Instructions for installing the cedar come in every package of closet lining and the cedar panels themselves are tongue and grooved for fast, tight installation.

Cedar Closet Will Pay For Itself

When you have a red cedar closet, furs, cloth coats and what-have-you no longer need to be sent out for costly summer storage. These savings will actually pay the material cost of the closet in two or three years.

There's another advantage, too. When you sell your house, you will find the cedar closet has high appeal to prospective buyers. They'll pay a higher price for a house so equipped.

A cedar closet is easy to install and materials for an average closet should not cost over $50. Instructions are included in every package of cedar closet lining and panels come tongue and grooved for speedy, tight installation.

Cedar-Lined Amoire Gives Protection

If you're lucky enough to have one of those marvelous combination closet-dresser pieces of furniture that the French call an amoire, consider lining it with aromatic red cedar. This is the suggestion of one of New York's top interior designers.

Amoires make perfect places to store the fine furs and fabrics moths covet, and the inexpensive, cedar lining can be accomplished in no time.

While humans love the aromatic fragrance of cedar, moths hate it. So like a cedar closet, the lined amoire will safeguard your finest apparel and still retain its decorative appeal.

New Petunias Resist Weather Conditions

Remember what a mass of Petunias used to look like after a chilly night or a rainy day? Just a sodden heap. Well, that's no longer the case, for plant breeders have added a new plus to petunias--weather resistance.

Cherry Blossom: a relative of Apple Blossom and Peach Blossom, this is the brightest colored of the group. White in the center, shading outward to cherry red. Three inch diameter blooms of grandiflora type with slightly ruffled petals.

Happiness: large-flowered, rose-pink grandiflora, free-blooming and resistant to botrytis, a common plant disease.

Star Satin: a bi-colored, bright rose and white grandiflora, maintaining its pattern and color reliably. Resistant to both cold and wet weather.

Tickled Pink: the first true-pink grandiflora with early and profuse bloom. Flowers are upward facing, each one accented by a white throat. Plants grow 12 inches high.

Consider growing these varieties from seeds started indoors about eight weeks before the date of last killing frost in your area. Then you'll be certain to obtain for your garden that special quality of weather resistance.

Seeds may be planted in a flower pot, a left-over aluminum cake or pie pan or a similar container, but holes in the bottom are essential for drainage.

Sweet Peas Supreme In Mid-Season

For the past quarter century the Cuthbertson sweet peas have reigned supreme as a mid-season group. They include many named varieties in all the shades and tints that make sweet peas so attractive.

Now the Cuthbertsons are to be supplanted by a new series developed by the same company that is responsible for the Cuthbertsons. These newcomers, called the Royal series, are bigger and better in every way than the Cuthbertsons.

Their stems are heavier and longer, their blooms 20 per cent larger, and the plants on which they are borne are more vigorous and more heat resistant.

The Royal series of sweet peas are vines, tall and robust, therefore need to be supported on wire, a trellis or a fence. From these vines you can expect giant-size, shapely blooms.

Gear Highway Safety To Drivers: Havelock

NORTHBROOK, Ill. -- Highway safety seems to be particularly subject to a crisis approach to change rather than a natural approach, the auto insurance industry's second annual Traffic Safety Research Symposium was told here.

Ronald G. Havelock of the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research said public officials, "after years of slumber," will "suddenly be shocked by the 'carnage on our highways' and will strike out on solutions which later turn out to be erroneous, ineffective, or short-lived largely because they ignore the crucial aspects of the 'natural' process.

* * *

"NEVERTHELESS," Havelock said, "crises are often effective in unfreezing the status quo. We need to devise other speed-up approaches which do not have the same destructive consequences, particularly in disrupting social system relationships."

Havelock spoke to 300 traffic safety and behavioral scientists attending the final day of the three-day symposium sponsored by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety. Hosts are the Allstate and Travelers insurance companies. The symposium has been held at Allstate's new Northbrook home office.

Speaking for a team of five researchers on the subject of "Social Roadblocks in the Utilization of Highway Safety Research," Havelock noted that most dissemination and utilization efforts in highway safety have been based on 'seat-of-the-pants reasoning.

"Research is needed to tell us not only what kinds of safety communications are most effective for what kinds of audiences, but also what kinds of collaborative activities among researchers, safety experts, insurance representatives, and others are most effective in moving us closer to the goal of safer automotive transportation."

* * *

GOOD RESEARCH does not guarantee utilization, however. Even when detailed solutions to highway safety problems have been worked out by researchers and planners, a long and intricate path must still be traversed before such solutions reach operational reality.

Havelock included in this path public officials, lawmakers, families, employers, automotive engineers, and drivers and passengers in vehicles, themselves.

Utilization via this path is the "natural process," Dr. Havelock explained. But this natural process is so long and so often uncertain that pressures are sometimes exerted to speed it up or short-cut it in some way. Further research is needed to provide the basis for a third alternative to the natural process and the crisis process. "We might call it the 'planned change' approach."

With Havelock on the research team were Dr. Thomas Harford of the Veterans Administration; Dr. Marjorie J. Hill of Harvard University, Dr. Charles W. King of Purdue University, and Haldon L. Smith of the University of Michigan Institute of Science and Technology.

All seven research papers presented in the three-day symposium were prepared under the direction of the University of Michigan Highway Safety Research Institute in conjunction with leading traffic safety and behavioral science researchers from other institutions and universities.

Insecticide Cartridge Is Available

In line with sharing new garden items, there is a systemic insecticide cartridge designed to protect roses, shrubs and deep-rooted trees from sucking and mining insect damage.

Ross Daniels says its systemic cartridge, dissolved in the root zone where it is taken up into the plant, will provide protection for at least six weeks. As the plant grows, the insecticide even goes into the new growth to kill insects.

The producer says the systemic action lets the plant protect itself from within. The insecticide cannot be washed off and, he says, is not harmful to beneficial insects, bees or birds.

* * *

THE INSECTICIDE cartridge is placed in a root feeder point, which then goes into the ground to the proper depth. The water is turned on to dissolve the cartridge at the feeder roots. The feeder roots usually are in the shadow area around the outer rim of a shrub, 15 to 30 inches below the soil surface. The same method is used frequently for feeding plants.

Other benefits reported are a minimum handling of insecticides, no dust or drift, no spray to mix, no measuring, no unsightly residue or bad odor on leaves, flowers or soil surface.

Daniels says the chemical utilized, Di-Syston, may now be safely used by homeowners.

The system no doubt will be welcomed by antisprayers who fear for bees, birds, other wildlife and humans.

That won't solve anything. But we don't like to see you settle for anything but the best either. We just want you to be as successful as we think you could be.

We want you to find out how to go about it. To find out that success isn't as tough to get as you might think. Neither are all the good rewards that go with it . . . like money, prestige, independence, and all the things you probably want for your family.

It isn't going to cost you anything to find out about a great opportunity to get some success. Just fill in and mail the coupon. If you've got that much initiative, you've already got more going for you than you think.

So go ahead, make up your mind that you'll do it now. We want you to live a little.

Times, Permissive Parents Blamed For Restive Students

ANN ARBOR—Modern times and permissive parents both contribute to the restiveness of college students, according to Prof. Frederick Wyatt.

The 56-year-old head of the University of Michigan's Psychological Clinic acknowledges that the younger generation always strains at the yoke of the previous generation's mores and values. But he finds the current generation gap aggravated by the times and a unique generation of parents.

"Bureaucracy and impersonality tend to make us all feel uneasy, unsure that we have any control over our fate. Moreover, the Vietnam war and the specter of a nuclear war, the civil rights crisis, and the world's population squeeze tend to make us all more than a little restive.

"They may not be fully aware of it," Wyatt notes, "yet by dint of their place, halfway between adolescence and adulthood, and by the intellectual enterprise to which they are, for better or worse, committed, students may be more sensitive to the growing absurdity of our lives than the rest of us."

ALTHOUGH SOME alienation between adolescent and parent is natural and as old as time, Wyatt notes that "today's rebellious students are the children of a generation of parents first to rear their children according to new, more rational, and more permissive principles.

"Against a background of rapid social change and the encroachment of bureaucratic regulations unavoidable in a vast society, this liberal indulgence of parents has actually aggravated the natural generation gap."

Wyatt explains that rejection of the last generation's mores and values is necessary for each generation to come into its own. Out of this repudiation of the old, a new set of mores and values evolves.

* * *

"ONE OF THE silent problems is that permissive parents having been raised themselves in the old-fashioned way, are often unintentionally ambiguous about their permissiveness," he says.

"The child senses this and inherits some of the ambiguity as to what is right or wrong and as to what he should expect from life."

Owing to the rapidity of social change, the views of today's parents "are bound to be outdated quickly. This leads the child again to conclude, even though he is often not clearly aware of it, that their parents' intellectual and ethical authority is as ambiguous as their permissiveness."

In counseling students and in working with them as a therapist at U-M, Wyatt finds that they often "complain that their parents never disagree with their views. In order to become an individual, the adolescent has to set off his own views from those of his parents.

"Yet, because his parents are so tolerant of his views, he feels guilty about setting himself apart," he points out.

"The permissiveness, then, may work to make an adolescent's effort at defining his own identity futile and unmeaningful. It may also leave him with a feeling of guilt, difficult to recognize and manage.

"Those of us raised by an earlier generation had to rebel against a well-defined code of ethics. This made the job more difficult, but it helped us in the end to define ourselves more effectively as a new generation without being too much handicapped by guilt over it."

IN THE ABSENCE of a structure against which to measure himself, the student may have to raise the ante in order to find out who he is. He may have to seek for issues which he can fight and for rules which he can transgress.

"He wouldn't have to strain so much at opposition if he could be more assured of his identity as a new and self-contained person. Then he might say: 'Here I am, of course I am different and don't agree with the older generation on many things. Naturally, I must go my own way, and sometimes we have to clash. That's all there is to it, but there is no need to make so much of it!

"In the absence of such an attitude the young individual constantly has to raise the stakes in his arguments and in his acts. He must become more extreme, push the issue harder, overstep more rules--in order to test the limits both of the authority against which he has pitted himself and of his own personality, with the unconscious hope that it may yet all fall into a pattern and redeem him."

Money Request Delayed

Plans for Wayne County to apply for federal "Model Cities" funds on behalf of 10 communities in the downriver and southwest areas of the county, including Westland, have been delayed.

Mel Ravitz, as the chairman of the County Board of Supervisors, said it became apparent that all the data needed for the application could not be collected in time to meet the April 15 federal deadline for applications due to unavoidable delays.

* * *

"WE HAVE SET a September 1, target date for completion of a thorough data gathering and analysis of the scope of problems in Wayne County, and for preparation of plans for appropriate constructive projects," Ravitz said.

The county had invited six cities and four townships to participate in the proposed "Model Cities" project. The communities are Belleville, Dearborn Heights, Ecorse, Inkster, River Rouge, Westland, Huron, Romulus, Sumpter and Van Buren.

"The data we have collected so far, together with materials to be gathered before Sept. 1, will be used either for a third-round model cities grant, should it become available, or for applications under other federal programs," Ravitz stated.

Boy Killed When Saving His Dog

Michael Richards, 6, of Boston, was killed last week saving the life of his dog. Michael pushed the dog from the path of a diesel train bearing down on them but didn't manage to get off the railroad tracks himself.

Michael and his dog had been sitting on the tracks of the Boston & Maine Railroad when the boy heard the horn of the train, police said.

Industry Choruses Set Annual Sing

At 8 p.m. April 26, the five participating choruses and glee clubs of The Industry Sings Committee will present their annual concert in the Masonic Auditorium. There is no charge for admission.

The groups include the Edison Glee Club, the Ford Chorus, the Chevrolet Glee Club, the General Motors Chorus and the Great Lakes Steel Male Chorus.

A GROUP OF 30 employees and family members, the Edison Glee Club was founded 36 years ago by the secretary of Edison Company's first president, Alex Dow. Directed by Ken Hansen, the group rehearses weekly and gives about two concerts a month.

The Ford Chorus was organized in 1944 for employees of the company's administration building. It was incorporated in 1946 under the recreation department program of the company and this year includes 120 employees and members of their families. Ray Kohl is chorus director.

David B. Redwood has been conductor of the Chevrolet Glee Club since its organization 1932. The group has sung the Chicago World's Fair at the Great Lakes Exposition Cleveland. It also sang on the first show telecast on WXYZ TV and sang for 13 weeks over CKLW radio. The chorus has 1,500 male singers.

ORGANIZED in 1933, the General Motors Chorus is one of the oldest employee activities within the GM corporation. Its director is Franz Murch, graduate of the Toronto's Royal Conservatory of Music, director of the Detroit Harmonie Choruses and faculty member at Wayne State University and the Detroit Institute of Musical Arts. The chorus presents 12 to 15 concerts each season.

One of the original eight members of the Great Lakes Steel Male Chorus still sings with the group. Singers include IBM programmers, accountants, payroll supervisors, electrical construction men, operating foremen, production schedulers and office and technical employees.

Researchers Seek Vaccine Against Those Cold Viruses

Who sneezed first--Adam or Eve?

Nobody knows. But it seems reasonable that even the Garden of Eden was invaded by the coughs, sneezes and wheezes of man's most persistent affliction, the common cold.

Outnumbering other diseases by an estimated 25 to one, the cold has played a role in the economy, history and literature of all nations. An accurate description of its symptoms was written by Charles Dickens:

"I am at this moment deaf in the ears, hoarse in the throat, red in the nose, green in the gills, damp in the eyes, twitchy in the joints and fractious in temper from a most intolerant and oppressive cold."

According to American Medical Association reports, more than 20 million of us suffer similar discomforts on any given day. The cost to the national economy, in terms of time lost from work and wages paid for non-production, has been calculated as high as five billion dollars annually.

* * *

Since antibiotics are not effective against colds, scientists are continually to develop a vaccine, such as the ones that now work so effectively on polio, measles and smallpox.

Seven pharmaceutical firms, 11 universities and 12 research labs and hospitals are pursuing a vaccine that can help the red-eyed, swollen-nosed victims of this all-too-common woe.

But they face a big problem: there are at least 50, and possibly as many as 150, different cold-causing viruses and a vaccine that might work against one type of virus would be ineffective against another variety. It seems the experts are little further from where they started.

* * *

Since then, researchers have discovered how to synthesize this substance and have been looking into its mechanism as a possible clue to a cure for colds and more serious viral infections.

Many of us, accepting the common cold as a disagreeable but unavoidable fact of life, fail to follow certain simple precautions which can shorten its duration and protect us from more serious complications.

A cold, first of all, should be treated with respect. Certain symptoms, such as chills and fever, rapidly rising temperature, difficult breathing or pains in the chest or side, are danger signals that call for prompt investigation by your doctor.

Assuming no complications, your present or next cold will be identified by the usual miseries--a dry, scratchy, irritated feeling in the nose or back of the throat in the early stages, perhaps a slight rise in temperature and, in full bloom, the familiar sneezing, coughing and "stopped up" nose and head.

THOSE WITH a philosophical disposition may welcome the symptoms of the common cold because they represent the body's efforts to resist the infection.

The stuffy nose is suffused with extra blood for defensive purposes and its air passages are partially closed with an excess of mucus to wash out the invading virus. Sneezing and coughing are attempts to remove irritation from the respiratory tract.

Remember that colds are literally "caught," with the usual method of transmission by droplet infection spread by the sneezing, coughing or even talking of someone already infected.

Your chances of avoiding colds are best if you can avoid those who have one, and if you keep in good physical condition with a well-balanced diet, plenty of rest and proper protection against inclement weather.

* * *

ALTHOUGH THERE is no cure for a cold in this stage of vital organ transplants and space exploration, ways have been found to treat the symbeen found to treat the symptoms--making the condition more endurable and our biological defenses more effective.

Medically-approved nonprescription remedies for the symptoms of coughs and colds can be used judiciously.

It is always wise to consult your doctor if you are in doubt about the treatment of procedures to be followed, or if symptoms persist.

Rest in bed is recommended at least during the first few days to give your body a chance to mobilize its defenses--and also to prevent giving the infection to others. Aspirin may help.

You may find that one of the combination symptomatic remedies will ease the headache and stuffed feeling. Nose drops, steam or inhaled medications that shrink the membranes of the nose, and plenty of fluids--such as fruit juices--can be helpful.

* * *

THOUGH COMMOM, the cold is not a very democratic thing.

"Thinnies" have more colds than "fatties." Infants and older people have fewer colds than small fry from one to three and their mothers, who rack up the highest scores.

If yours is an average cold, it will run its course in five to 10 days. And if you make use of the modern medications and advice on treatment now available, the experience will be more tolerable that that of Adam or Eve--who had to find out for themselves.

36 U-M Students To Go Abroad

Returning to school next fall will mean traveling to France or Germany for 36 University of Michigan juniors. These students will take part in Junior Year Abroad programs jointly sponsored by U-M and other midwestern universities.

In a program administered by U-M and the University of Wisconsin, 21 of the students will attend classes at a branch of the University of Aix-Marseilles in Aix-en-Provence, France.

The other 15 will study at the University of Freiburg, Germany, in a program sponsored by U-M, Wayne State and Michigan State universities, and the University of Wisconsin.

Two-thirds of the students are language majors. The rest come from such diverse disciplines as anthropology, economics, English, history, journalism, political science, psychology, and speech.

Grades earned by the students in Germany and France will be credited at U-M as though the students were actually in residence at Ann Arbor.

Sponge Cake Trick

When making a cake with regular all-purpose flour instead of cake flour, an old-time trick is to add a little corn starch. It works as well today as it did in Grandmother's day.

- 1 cup sifted flour
- 4 teaspoons corn starch
- 6 eggs
- ⅔ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon vanilla
- 3 tablespoons margarine, melted and cooled

Sift together flour and corn starch; set aside. Place a 2½-quart bowl over a large pan of hot, not boiling water. Water should not touch bottom of bowl. Combine eggs and sugar in bowl. With electric mixer at high speed or with rotary beater, beat egg mixture until just slightly warm. Remove bowl from hot water. Continue beating until egg mixture comes to 1 inch from top of bowl. Beat in vanilla. Sift ⅓ of flour mixture at a time over egg mixture. Carefully fold in each addition until well blended, using a wire whisk or rubber spatula. Quickly fold in melted, cooled margarine. Turn into 2 greased and floured (8 x 1½-inch) layer pans. Bake in 350 degrees F. (moderate) over 20 minutes or until cake tests done when checked with a cake tester. Remove from pans immediately; cool on wire rack. Makes 2 (8-inch) layers.

Spring Fire Threat Worst In Years

With Michigan's spring season on wild fires off to a sizzling start and no immediate break seen in the high burning hazard, State Conservation Department officials are sounding a special "take-no-chances" alarm for landowners and outdoor users throughout the state.

Milton M. Bergman, the department's forest fire chief, stresses that scant snow and rainfall since January, the early spring breakup, and recent high winds plus low humidity have combined to make the current fire threat one of the most explosive in a good many years.

* * *

"WE REALIZE," he notes, "that many residents are anxious to spruce up their yards and cottage grounds by burning debris, but we can't over-emphasize that the lid could really blow off this spring unless these people take extra fire safety precautions."

Bergman reports that with conditions being so hair-triggered, the slightest spark can touch off voracious fires which can spread like lightning and burn fiercely. Even if some rains do fall, no one should let his guard down, he adds.

The department's fire chief explains: "After rains fall, it just takes a few hours of high, drying winds at this time of the year to wipe out their moisture cushion and whip up another big threat for fast-moving fires."

* * *

THE FIRST and most important thing that residents can do to help keep the "lid down" on fires is to pick up free burning permits from their nearest conservation field office or local fire department before they touch a match to their clean-up projects.

These permits are issued only when burning conditions are not at a high risk level and this provides a built-in safety factor against breakaway fires.

* * *

ON DAYS WHEN it is safe to burn and these permits are issued, every debris burner can take three more simple but important steps to prevent fires:

1) After making sure that debris is a safe distance from buildings, burn trash in a covered incinerator.

2) Keep a shovel and water can at your side for emergencies and watch over your burn from start to finish.

3) Check what you have burned to make sure your fire is "dead out."

Underscoring Bergman's concern and the need for putting these steps into practice are figures which show that 122 wild fires have already blitzed nearly 4,000 acres in Michigan this spring.

That eclipses last year's record low total when fire losses were held to only 2,819 acres for the entire 1967 season. At this point last year, the statewide fire toll stood at 148 acres.

This year, wild fires have blistered 896 acres in the southern Lower Peninsula.

Oakland Bar Sets 'Law Day'

The Oakland County Bar Association will hold a ceremony to commemorate the 11th anniversary of "Law Day USA", established by presidential proclamation in 1958 and as a permanent national observance on May 1.

The theme for the 1968 annual observance of Law Day USA is "Only a Lawful Society Can Build A Better Society. The event is not a "lawyers' day", but rather is an occasion for honoring the place of law in American life.

The ceremony will take place on Wednesday, May 1, at 11 a.m. in the supervisors' auditorium of the Oakland County Court House, Telegraph Road, Pontiac. The principal speaker will be the Michael D. O'Hara, associate justice of the Michigan Supreme Court. James S. Thorburn will be presiding judge of the Oakland County Circuit Court.

The ceremony, including the presentation of Liberty Bell award plaques to three outstanding citizens of Oakland County, will be followed by a reception sponsored by the Oakland County Branch of the Lawyers' Wives of Michigan. The program is public.

A Barber Pole? It's Tony, M'Lord

Well, the black leather is no more--but the conservative business suit never was. And the way things are going sartorially with his lordship the folks at Buckingham Palace may be sighing for the return of the black leather days.

Recently the 37-year-old Earl appeared in public in a costume so extreme it awed even John Taylor, who as editor of "Tailor and Cutter" is somewhat of an arbiter on good taste in masculine dress.

The queen's brother-in-law turned up at London airport in a coat and matching trousers in a loud brown and white pinstripe--the material familiar (said one newspaper) to fans of gangster movies of the 30s.

The coat was cut knee length with a highwayman's collar and a box pleat at the back. The trousers were straight. He wore no jacket--just an orange and green striped shirt with a matching tie.

"Quite frankly," said Taylor, "it's so striking I can't see how he can wear it again. It's the sort of thing everybody remembers and they say, 'I see, old boy, you've got that suit on again.'

Buckingham Palace has no objection to a certain amount of originality in dress--Prince Charles, heir to the throne, is wearing his hair long at the moment and kings and princes before him have set many fashions. But the eyebrows are going up because of the type of gear favored by Snowden.

He pioneered the white polo-neck sweater for evening wear. This had a mild vogue now believed to be waning. At various times he has appeared in public in a John Lennon-type cap, a straw hat with a lively patterned band, a needlecord trench coat with big patch pockets, a linen suit with brass buttons and a velvet anorak.

Royalty has always led the way in men's dress in Britain. King Edward VII (great grandfather of the present queen) popularized the homburg hat and the double-breasted jacket. He unbuttoned the bottom button of his waistcoat after a heavy meal. Other male diners did the same and a custom was born.

There is a savile row legend that Edward VII, as Prince of Wales, was the first to have his trousers creased down the front of the legs.

His son, King George V, had his trousers creased down the side, navy fashion, but it never caught on. However, George V is credited with inventing the cuffs on trousers. The story is that he turned up his trousers while crossing a muddy field and forgot to turn them down again.

The major fashion setter of this century in the royal house was the Duke of Windsor, formerly King Edward VIII and before that Prince of Wales. He popularized the Windsor knot for neckties, the wide cut-away Windsor collar, the Fair Isle sweater, suede shoes, the Glen plaid check for suits, and double-breasted dinner jackets.

600 Students Register For OU Conference

ROCHESTER, Mich. -- More than 600 Michigan high school students and their advisers are expected at Oakland University on Wednesday, April 24, for the sixth annual Governor's Conference on Student Leadership.

The double-barrel program will involve approximately 550 student leaders at the same time that about 80 adult directors of student activities will meet to discuss their common problems and aims.

The conference is being sponsored by the Division of Continuing Education at Oakland University, in cooperation with Governor George Romney, for high school junior and senior students who are or have been officers of school clubs, government and related organizations or are preparing for leadership roles in their schools and post-school activities.

It was designed with a committee of students representing 20 area high schools who were brought to campus for a planning session by their directors of student activities.

State Road Toll Up 12 Percent

Michigan's traffic deaths for the first quarter this year numbered 420, which was 44 or almost 12 per cent higher than 376 the same period a year ago, according to State Police provisional figures.

The quarter total included 154 deaths recorded in March, up by 13 or nine per cent over the toll of 141 in that month in 1967. March's average for the five years, 1963-67, was 147.

Michigan's March traffic loss was increased by 10 in the last week in Tuscola county. One multiple fatal accident there claimed eight lives while two other accidents were single fatalities.

Presbyterian Men Of Cloth Good Drivers

The State Department of Motor Vehicles compared the driving records of 280 clergymen, representing 35 denominations, with a like number of drivers of comparable age. It found clergymen as a whole were better drivers than nonclergymen and that violation rates of Presbyterian ministers were less than one-third as high as the average.

HEALTH HINTS

® National Association Of Blue Shield Plans

SHORTNESS OF BREATH can result from a number of conditions. Asthma, emphysema, heart conditions, anxiety and others. If you experience shortness of breath, consult your physician so he can diagnose the problem and render the necessary treatment.

FAINTING

When you feel a fainting spell coming on, lie down or, if this is not possible, sit down and place your head between your knees. This helps relieve the nausea that frequently accompanies the fainting feeling. The application of smelling salts or cold water aids in reviving someone who has fainted. It is advisable not to get up immediately upon regaining consciousness. If a fainting victim does not regain consciousness immediately, secure medical assistance as rapidly as possible.

ACNE

One of the most effective methods of treating acne is frequent and thorough cleansing of the infected area. Washing keeps the skin clear of oils and clears plugged oil glands, lessening the risk of blackheads. A regulated diet and sufficient rest are also considered effective remedies. Scratching or picking at a blemish can lead to permanent scarring. Consult your family doctor for proper treatment.

Harlem Politics Makes 'Model' School A Mess

It was to be a "model school" when it was opened 18 months ago.

But Harlem's Intermediate School 201 has turned into a center of political and social controversy, largely because of Black Power politicking.

Stokely Carmichael has taught a class there. H. Rap Brown has talked there. LeRoi Jones' violently antiwhite plays have been presented there, and youngsters there have heard the United States described as "the Fourth Reich."

It still doesn't have a principal and teachers leave almost as fast as they are recruited. Pupil discipline is poor, and so is their academic performance.

And public opinion has been so inflamed over the Harlem community's efforts to gain control of the school that it threatens a city plan for decentralizing the city's million-pupil school system.

* * *

THE DREAM WAS of a $5 million, windowless, completely air-conditioned school with an "innovative curriculum" including courses in foreign languages, music, Negro and Puerto Rican culture, superior teachers and classes of no more than 24 pupils.

Harlem got the modern school. But it also got so much controversy and disorder that many openly say they wish it had never been built.

McGeorge Bundy, president of the Ford Foundation, drew up this plan. Ironically, the Ford Foundation helped seed the local control controversy with two grants totaling $77,000 for an experiment with it.

* * *

THERE IS disagreement about what started all the controversy.

Harlem parents say they were promised that IS 201 would be an integrated school, and that the Board of Education betrayed them by realigning the district and including more Negroes and Puerto Ricans.

The Board of Education denies that it promised integration. It did send out 10,000 leaflets suggesting to white parents that they might want to send their children to 201, but the response was nil.

At any rate, leaders emerged among the Negro parents. They organized. And they said if IS 201 was not going to be integrated, they wanted a black principal and they wanted a say in running the school.

When the school officials balked, parents declared a boycott--and few children answered the bell when IS 201 opened for the first time Sept. 12, 1966.

* * *

STANLEY LISER, 40 years old and white, was the school's first principal. He stepped down only to return briefly when a Negro assistant principal, Miss Beryl Banfield, refused the job because she felt she had been picked because of her race and not her competence.

Lisser eventually left to take a job as an educational consultant. Miss Banfield went on sick leave, and the district superintendent, Martin Frey, who is white, has been serving as school administrator.

Some 60 of the school's 77 teachers are new, and Frey says this unusual teacher turnover has made it difficult to give pupils uninterrupted, day-to-day instruction.

* * *

Violence, harassment and robberies among students have caused 40 parents--30 Negro and 10 Puerto Rican--to transfer their children to other schools.

Frey said many of the teachers have resigned because they were "disturbed by the publicity and didn't want to get involved." Some, he said, "were frightened away by militants."

After the United Federation of Teachers struck the city's school system last fall, the community's unofficial school governing board insisted on screening each of the teachers before they could return to the classroom. During the strike, they invited in such militants as Carmichael to teach classes.

* * *

UNDER A FORD Foundation grant, IS 201 comes under one of three demonstration projects aimed at testing community control over local school districts.

The board, composed of a supervisor, five teachers, ten parents and five community representatives, won't have official status until its program is approved by the Board of Education.

Speakers exhorted a crowd of about 600 persons--mostly young Negroes--to obtain weapons for "self-defense" against whites. The United States was described as the "Fourth Reich."

* * *

BOARD OF Education officials expressed shock and directed Schools Superintendent Bernard Donovan to "establish clear control" over the school.

The City Commission on Human Rights said it would begin a closed-door investigation into racism in public schools.

The turmoil growing out of the local board's activities could seriously affect the state legislature's attitude toward Mayor John V. Lindsay's decentralization plan, commonly known as the "Bundy Report."

The Bundy Report originally called for breaking up the present school system into 60 autonomous school districts. The Board of Education would continue to maintain central control, but the local boards would have fiscal responsibility and jurisdiction over programs and personnel.

Lindsay modified the plan somewhat, and the new version would establish 30 separate school districts with high schools excluded for the time being. One benefit of decentralization would be more school aid from the state, which aids smaller districts at a higher percentage rate.

The Board of Education opposes the decentralization plan. The teachers union does, too, citing the 201 experience and calling it "the one secret school in the city." Harlem leaders accused the UFT of declaring war on 201, and of urging teachers not to cooperate in the local control experiment.

And so it goes, with community, Board of Education, teachers and union all seemingly pulling in different directions--and the pupils themselves perhaps suffering most of all.

District Superintendent Frey, wistfully tossing his hand, told an interviewer: "The American Revolution must have been like this. Out of that came something good. I hope some good comes out of this for the sake of the kids."

NAACP DINNER SPEAKERS — Carl B. Stokes (left), mayor of Cleveland, and entertainer Sammy Davis Jr. will appear for the annual Detroit NAACP Freedom Fund Dinner to be held at 5 p.m. Sunday, April 28, in Exhibit Hall A of Cobo Hall. Some 3,000 are expected to attend.

High School To House Only Final Three Grades

School Supt. James Rossman revealed Monday night that high school #2 -- which is expected to be housing students by September 1969 -- will only have tenth, eleventh and twelfth graders for its first year.

This came as a surprise because original plans had called for the school to house grades nine through 12.

Rossman announced the present plans to the Plymouth Community School Council at Junior High School East. The council is composed of school district, civic and industrial leaders as well as school principals, teachers and administrators.

Projected enrollments, Rossman said, for 1969-1970 show that there will be 2,015 students in grades 10, 11, and 12 alone and the new high school is geared for a comfortable capacity of 2,000 youngsters.

The 844 ninth graders in 1969-70 will be housed in the old high school, he said, and will probably remain there until after the next school year, 1970-71.

He said that in 1970-71 it may be necessary to house part of that year's 10th grade students in the old high school because that year's enrollment is expected to reach 928.

Rossman added that it may also be necessary to shift some eight grade students to the old high school in 1970-71 since that enrollment will come to 975.

By putting part of the 10th grade in the old high school, he said it would be necessary to set up a shared learning program with the new high school for those students.

Rossman said the present plans were made with the idea of striving for community unity and he added that no final decisions have been made yet.

Fischer To Direct '68 Fund Drive

Harold Fischer, former director of the Area Planning Commission and present chairman of the Board at Schoolcraft College, has been named chairman of the annual Plymouth Community Fund Drive.

In his newest assignment Fischer will succeed James Thomas, of Consumers Power, who was the head of the drive last year that totaled more than $108,000 in contributions.

Within the next week Fischer is planning a meeting with Earl Gibson, chairman of the Fund Board of Directors to map plans and select the agencies that will share in the drive.

Attorneys Explain Housing Ordinance

"Any person, whether real estate broker, lending institution or private individual found guilty of any non-exempt act of discrimination is subject to a fine of up to $500. The ordinance is also double-edged. A similar penalty is applicable to any person who lodges a false charge of discrimination against another.

"As with any other city ordinance, alleged violations will be heard by the Plymouth Municipal Court. One of the open housing Bills before the state legislature had contemplated conferring jurisdiction on the State Civil Rights Commission. There is no such provision in the Plymouth ordinance.

* * *

"THE ORDINANCE does not specify which city department is charged with its enforcement. Therefore, it falls within the purview of the Police Department responsibility under the City Charter.

"If the Police Department fails to act on a complaint, any private citizen with personal knowledge of the facts, may make a complaint to the Municipal Court. Since the city attorney is charged with the duty of prosecuting offenses against the city ordinances, the court would probably want the city attorney's approval of the complaint before allowing warrant to issue.

"The complainant should, of course, be sure of his facts before he makes the complaint, because if he falsely accuses another, he is not only liable for the costs of the prosecution but is also subject to a charge of violating the ordinance himself."

The statement on the ordinance was asked for by the Fair Housing Committee, a group of private citizens working for passage of the referendum, to make the terms of the local law as clear as possible to city voters.

It was also requested, according to committee chairman Norman Thoburn of 1052 Harding, to offset rumors that were circulating about the ordinance and enforcement of it.

TELL IT TO Glenny

453-5500

This week's personal observation is a "natural" because 264 years ago today, on April 24, 1704, a fellow by the name of John Campbell published the first newspaper in Boston, Mass. (Where else?).

The name of this sheet, which measured 8x12 inches and was printed both front and back, was the "Boston Newsletter."

It's interesting to note that the first newspaper published in this country was truly American, even though the revolution was years away and Campbell was loyal to the crown.

It was American in this respect; Campbell was in the habit of writing each New England governor a letter at frequent intervals describing what was going on in Europe.

I imagine those feathery quill pens were a bit scratchy and although a Xerox machine would have handled the job nicely, Campbell couldn't wait around 250 years for its invention.

He did, however, gain official permission to have a newsletter printed weekly and copies of it distributed to everyone interested including the governors.

For the past two and one half centuries we have been benefiting from that kind of "American know-how." Let's hope we never stop.

HAVE YOU EVER wanted to roast marshmallows and found old man weather in a contrary mood? They tell me that a fireplace is the answer and now Plymouth can boast a shop devoted to just that--fireplaces.

The Flame Gallery, located in the Hillside Inn, has everything from electric logs to some mighty unusual gifts. So grab your husband and your marshmallows, in that order, and stop by the Gallery, it's open from 11 a.m. until 10 p.m. weekdays and Saturday.

IF I MAY, I'd like to go from fireplaces to fashions. If you're interested in what's new in styles--and what woman isn't--plan to attend the Plymouth Business and Professional Women's fashion show, tomorrow night in the Westland auditorium at 8 p.m.

MRS. BEVERLY BROOKS of the Mayflower Garden Club called me the other morning to say that this month's meeting place has been changed.

Mrs. Max Nichol will do the honors in her home on 1723 Old Salem.

MRS. WENDELL DICKINSON stopped in the office to tell me about a trip she and Mr. Dickinson and Miss Fay Kaiser had just taken to Fort Monmouth, N.J.

They spent the Easter holidays with Private Timothy Dickinson who is stationed there and has been selected for computer program schooling.

Mrs. Dickinson confided that her son, Tim, is a wee bit homesick. If anyone wants to drop him a line his address is RA 54974681 First BT Co. B, Fort Monmouth, N.J. 07703.

MRS. PATRICIA O'Reilly called the other day to say that lots of interesting books have been collected for the AAUW book sale, which will be held May 2-4 in the Plymouth Federal Credit Union, 500 South Harvey.

However, if you find yourself spring-cleaning a closet or an attic and discover a growing pile of books along with that broken tennis racket and those old love letters, give Mrs. Lorna Badendieck a call, 453-9052. She'll be glad to take the books off your hands--you can send me the love letters.

WHEN THE MAIL arrived the other day there was a letter "to Glenny" from all the way down in Nakomis, Fla.

It seems there is a Grandma, who wishes to remain anonymous, enjoying the sunny climes of that southern state. She often calls her son, who lives in our fair city, to say "hello" and be assured that all is well.

On April 8, Grandma called and almost immediately went into shock when she learned that her son will shortly marry and become the father of five!

The five children belong to the widowed bride-to-be. Grandma writes, "In August I'll be 'Grandma' to quintuplets. I'm now wondering if I should take to the rocking chair or go up north and get acquainted with the new family."

Well, Grandma, I'm no Ann Landers, but when does the next plane leave?

School Musicians Set For Parade Of Bands

The bands of the Plymouth Community School District will present the annual "Parade of Bands," starting at 7:30 p.m. on Thursday evening in the high school gymnasium.

This yearly event enables the Plymouth Community to view the entire band program of the school district in one evening under one roof.

Featuring more than 350 bandsmen, the program will begin with the all-city sixth grade band under the direction of Mr. Richard Roznoy. The "Varsity" and "Festival" bands from Junior High West will be conducted by Mr. James Griffith. Mr. Stanley Towers will direct the Junior High East "Rocket" band.

Climaxing the program will be the High School Wind Ensemble and Concert Band under the direction of James Griffith.

This event is an opportunity for parents of hopeful young musicians to see and hear what musical advantages are available to them in the Plymouth Band program. There is no admission charge.

Eye State Police Budget To Quell Unrest

From A Staff Correspondent

LANSING -- Legislative budget-makers are working on a proposed $5.5 million state police budget increase which carries the forecast of fresh needs to control civil unrest.

Gov. Romney asked for the boost in his budget message and pledged the state to "take such steps as are necessary.."

The governor asked for a $5.5 million increase in the general fund appropriation for State Police, up 23 per cent from the current year. The $29.38 million asked compared with $23.76 million appropriated for the current fiscal year. State Police had asked for $40.1 million for their department.

Romney said the increase would provide for adding 225 more State Police troopers in addition to more nonuniform police personnel. Present trooper strength is 1,352 men.

It also would provide for major expansion in the State Police law enforcement training program.

The governor said $1 million should be spent on the training program, at present financed only by $200,000 collected from fines.

Romney said the total could be made up from $250,000 from fines, $250,000 from a direct appropriation and $500,000 from a pending federal "safe streets" appropriation.

The governor said this could train 4,000 men for riot control--40 per cent of the local State Police forces.

Under the program, law enforcement officers from local police and sheriff's departments are given riot training with the state paying half the cost.

Romney noted there had been a court decision questioning the constitutionality of using the fine money for such training.

"Quite apart from this legal issue," he said, "this deserving program needs increased support, particularly to train local officers in riot control and crime prevention."

The increase asked for State Police also would be used for establishment of a State Police organized crime unit, for additional detectives for a juvenile program, for a criminal justice study system and for new communications equipment.

In a related move, $200,000 in additional funds was asked for the state attorney general's office. About $170,000, Romney said, would be earmarked for such purposes as investigation and prosecution of organized crime, protection of the public from fraud and illegal charitable solicitations as well as effective enforcement of new tax laws.

In a related move, the governor asked for $2.77 million for the State Civil Rights Commission, up from the current $1.39 million appropriation.

The governor said $300,000 more was needed to continue operations at a current level, plus $1.1 million for a substantial improvement.

Goals, the governor said, are reduction of the current backlog of cases, addition of seven new local offices to the current 12 and grants to local human relations councils or similar groups.

Added funds also would be used to strengthen the agency's education and housing programs.

Install Central Cooling Before Start Of Season

The seal displayed on air-conditioning equipment means that the manufacturer has adhered to an industry-wide set of standards, including the standard rating of units in British thermal units per hour (Btuh), the submission of specifications and the manufacturer's own test data for evaluation by ARI engineers and subjection of the equipment to a series of rigid capacity and performance tests conducted by the independent Electrical Testing Laboratories. Thus, certified equipment provides assurances of both dependability and accurately rated capacity.

After the system has been installed, the homeowner should expect to have the contractor make one or two "call backs" to adjust the system. Once this has been done, the system should require little maintenance or attention and it should give good service for many years.

In most of the United States, keeping cool is not a problem as yet. But if you've been thinking about getting a central air-conditioning system, and if you're a wise homeowner, you'll begin planning now.

Winter and very early spring is a good time to buy a central cooling system, the Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute said, because it is the "slack" season for air-conditioning contractors.

Contractors who have more work than they can handle in the hot months are often looking for jobs in cold weather.

ARI recommended, as a first step toward getting a dependable central air-conditioning system, that the homeowner find out the names of two or three contractors who have good reputations for installation and service and ask them to prepare written proposals.

Each of them should visit the home before submitting his bid, and each proposal should outline clearly what kind of system the contractor recommends, the size of cooling equipment that is needed, the layout of ductwork and room registers and the equipment warranties and service guarantees offered.

With two or three written proposals in hand, the homeowner is in a position to make a choice of a contractor. He should look beyond price--a central system is a permanent addition to a home, and it's seldom worthwhile to save a few dollars on installation if it will mean years of dissatisfaction.

ARI also suggested that the homeowner check to see if the equipment his contractor installs bears the Institute's Seal of Certification.

Girl Sends 'Cent In Tax

BALTIMORE--A young girl in Rockville, Md., sent an official Form 1040 to the Baltimore district office of the Internal Revenue Service in advance of the April 15 deadline. She listed her occupation as "kid," claimed her cat, Ebbie, as a dependent, and enclosed one penny in payment of her tax.

COLUMBUS, O.--Every Ohio National Guardsman called to riot control duty "will have a loaded weapon and will fire only aimed, individual shots," their state commander said last week. Adj. Gen. S.T. Del Corso commented that guardsmen on such duty will carry ammunition and noted that guardsmen called up recently for riot duty in Cincinnati and Youngstown carried loaded weapons.

WASHINGTON--All three companies involved in a fight for control of Westinghouse Air Brake Co. said they had received indications that the Justice Department is looking into the proposed transaction.

JUST "NERVES"

Isn't that the archaic time worn phrase used to dismiss many continuing complaints and symptoms.

As Doctors of Chiropractic, we have learned that nerves are far too important to be lightly dismissed.

Nerves control all body systems and balances . . . keep the temperature at 98.6 F . . . cause the heart to beat 72 times per minute forcing blood into 68,000 miles of blood vessels . . . cause the lungs to function 23,000 times per day and the body to throw off poisons through daily perspiration of 500 cc's. Nerves also control the digestion and elimination of all foods through the 30 feet of digestive tract contained in the body.

PARTICIPATING DOCTORS OF CHIROPRACTIC, WORKING FOR HEALTHIER NERVES THROUGH SPINAL ADJUSTMENTS, MAY CONTRIBUTE TO THE RELIEF OF MANY AILMENTS INCLUDING:

It'll Be A Great Day For The Arts

BEST IN ART — Mrs. Virginia Barc, vice president of the Livonia Artists' Club, shows her terra cotta bas relief, "Abstract Fish," which will be on display at the club's Festival of the Arts this Sunday.

MASTER OF MANDOLIN — At the age of 10, Rex White is one of the most enthusiastic members of the Library Folksingers, a group which will entertain with solos, sing-alongs and group numbers at Sunday's Festival of the Arts in Livonia.

The Carl Sandburg Library, 30100 W. Seven Mile Rd., Livonia, will be a place for the public to browse through works of art, listen to lilting songs--and even watch classical ballet --this Sunday, April 28.

Occasion is the Livonia Artists' Club's Seventh Annual "Festival of the Arts," open to the public from 1 to 9 p.m.

HIGHLIGHTED by a juried art show and sale by Artists' Club members, the day will include a 3 p.m. performance by the Rosedale School of Dance, a 5 p.m. concert by the Chamber Singers of Stevenson High School and, at 7:30 p.m., songs by the Library Folksingers.

To be awarded during the festival are three works of art: a base relief in terra cotta by Virginia Barc; a water color by Shirley Moser, and an oil by Caroline Dunphy. Mrs. Barc is club vice president, and Mrs. Dunphy, president.

Judge will be Sister Mary Angeline, director of Madonna College's art department and former professor of history and philosophy of art at Catholic University in Washington, D.C.

Sister Angeline received her master of fine arts degree from Catholic University and a doctorate from the University of Michigan. She has traveled extensively in this country and abroad, working in such diverse fields as card-designing and teaching gifted children.

Artists' Club members will be on hand throughout the festival to answer guests' questions. Flower arrangements will decorate the library rooms, courtesy of the Livonia Branch, Women's National Farm and Garden Association.

Adam Weissmuller is exhibit chairman and will supervise the hanging of art entries Saturday evening. Winners will be notified after the festival opens Sunday.

Rosedale School of Dance, a Livonia-based school, has performed at the festival for the past seven years. Dedicated to the teaching of classic dance and ballet, its director and choreographer is Charlotte Needham. The group will present a series of ballet vignettes at its 3 p.m. performance. Participating will be 15 students ranging in age from 14 to 20.

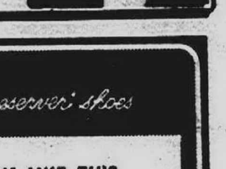

The Chamber Singers, appearing at 5 p.m., are a group of some 20 Stevenson High Students who began as a madrigal singing group and enlarged their repertoire to include modern works as well.

Singing without accompaniment, they will offer 16th and 17th Century madrigal works and both serious and light modern tunes. They are led by Lowell Everson, Stevenson vocal director.

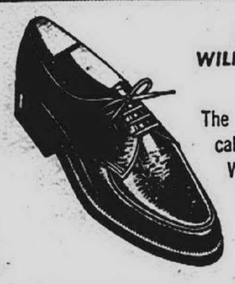

AN INFORMAL group which meets twice monthly at the Carl Sandburg Library out of a "pure joy to sing," the Library Folksingers will present their membership of teens and adults at 7:30 p.m. for a festival finale.

Members play instruments ranging from the guitar, banjo and mandolin to the dulcimer, washtub bass and bones. Numbers will include group arrangements, audience sing-alongs and solos.

Broad Mind, Range Of Friends

Broad-minded people have a broad range of friends.

Narrow-minded people are characterized by friends of similar ethnic, education, and economic backgrounds, according to evidence gathered to determine the relationship between a man's values and his friends.

Thirty-two pages of information on each of more than 1,000 native-born white males in Detroit was gathered by University of Michigan students as part of the 1965-66 Detroit area study.

* * *

U-M SOCIOLOGISTS Edward O. Laumann and Howard Schuman expect to keep a computer busy analyzing the data and testing sociological hypotheses for at least another year, but have already found that people whose friends make a "closed group" differ in many respects from people whose friends are socially unrelated to one another.

For example, if John is a close friend of Tom, Dick, and Harry and those three are close friends of one another, a sociologist says that John's friendship network is "interlocking."

Laumann reports that only one-third of the sample had radial patterns of friendship. Within given educational levels, the brighter the individual, the more likely he is to have a radial friendship pattern.

* * *

FURTHERMORE, Laumann reports, members of radial groups tend to choose friends for special purposes, such as a common interest in a hobby or sport. Members of interlocking groups tend to share many interests.

If your friendship pattern is radial, you are likely to be politically independent, open-minded, a Protestant, and a social comer.

You can enjoy yourself without the company of others and don't discuss your personal problems with friends. In fact, you are likely to report having few friends. You prefer the independence of your own business to the security of a job in a large bureaucracy.

If you are a member of an interlocking network (most of us are), you differ from all those characteristics of the man with a radial network. You are gregarious, feel an ethnic identity, have many friends, and see a great deal of your friends.

* * *

WHEN ALL the data has been analyzed, Laumann and Schuman plan to write a book dealing with the fundamental question the survey was designed to answer: Have ethnic groups been assimilated into the larger American society or do they continue to exist socially segregated?

As might be expected, early findings indicate that Protestants and Catholics are much less isolated than Jews.

Ultimately, the study is expected to reveal the conditions under which isolation and integration occur within and between ethnic groups.

The Detroit area study is a continuing project of U-M's department of sociology and its Survey Research Center. Since its establishment in 1951, the study has provided empirical information for numerous books and doctoral dissertations.

Ballet Plan Changed

The Romanian Folk Ballet, a company of 90 performers, will appear in the Dance Series in Hill Auditorium on Thursday, Oct. 24, replacing the Moldavian Dance Company, originally announced for Oct. 16.

This announcement from the University Musical Society of the University of Michigan, follows word received from the New York booking manager that the Moldavian group from Russia had canceled its entire United States tour next fall.

R & D Position Made At GM

Appointment of Eldon C. Henricks to the newly-created position of manager, service research and development, in the service section of the General Motors marketing staff, was announced by John C. Bates, director of the GM Service Section.

William DeRoo, former service manager for trucks at the GMC Truck & Coach Division, has been named to replace Henricks as manager, service policy, procedures and promotion.

Hachijo Island

Readers React To Shirleys' Unarmed Home

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Our Livonia edition recently reported that Charter Commissioner Fred Shirley and his wife were so appalled at racist attitudes in the suburbs following the death of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. that Mr. Shirley turned his weapons over to the police department and in his window placed a sign saying his home is unarmed. The first few letters today are reactions to that news story.)

Agrees With Shirleys

EDITOR:

This letter is a reply to the article written by Walli Schneider, "Guns" in your Sunday, April 14, issue.

I am another Livonian who feels the same way as Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shirley. I am so sick and tired of all the prejudices against the Negro.

If only the so-called almighty white race would open up their hearts and eyes and look at a Negro and see he is a man; not look and say he is a black man. All men are created equal; all men are born and all men die.

If the narrow-minded and bigoted people don't wake up soon, it seems the people in our country could be the cause of our nation falling. Why can't people treat others as they themselves want to be treated.

I very seldom go to church, but I am more Christian than some so-called Christians who go to church every day and twice on Sunday! If these people would only live by the Ten Commandments, there would be a lot less trouble within our nation and the world.

When a Negro family moves into my neighborhood, I will be one person who will offer them a hot cup of coffee or a cold glass of beer. Amen!

I pray that someday all men will shake hands and look into each other, and not at the color of our skin, outward appearances and foreign names.

Disagrees Entirely With The Shirleys

EDITOR:

We have just finished reading your article of Mr. and Mrs. Shirley giving up their guns.

To say the least, we are disgusted, all this publicity about guns and people being so very honorable! We have never had a gun in our home and do not feel it is necessary to paint signs in our window to tell the world our children have learned the word "nigger" from school but they have also learned many others which we have tried to teach them are wrong.

Our children will probably continue to learn many things we do not approve of and hope we can help them to learn that they are wrong, but as long as so much publicity is given to these very items, such as even having a gun in the house, we will have a difficult time helping them.

Is this the best you can do on your front page? Did you bother to find out how many people do not have guns, are not causing trouble in Livonia? So what if Mayor Hubbard endorsed Mayor Moelke, that made very little difference to us, he has his opinion and every right to voice it, so what!

We live down the street from the Shirleys and like them very much but we do not feel articles such as this help our community in any way. We feel we must teach our children now to treat all human beings, regardless of color or anything else, and this must be done everyday not with signs or marches or big headlines but just in everyday living.

MR. AND MRS. A. GRECK
37708 Howell,
Livonia

Congratulations To Shirleys

EDITOR:

Congratulations to Fred and Natalie Shirley on their action reported in The Observer.

The time is overdue for all who are against racism to speak up. We are guilty of a sin of omission when we remain silent and allow those opposed to human rights to be the voice of the community. As Christians and as citizens, we must not relapse into passive noninvolvement but must speak out, vote, and conduct ourselves in such a manner to show that we are against racism and the degradation of human dignity that accompanies it.

Appalled By Actions Of Livonia Teeners

EDITOR:

As I pause here for a moment of silence for Martin Luther King I cannot help recalling the appalling situation that one of our city's businessmen must endure every day.

I am speaking of the little old man who runs the Strohs ice-cream parlor at 5 mile and Newburg road.

A few weeks ago his business was almost demolished by a group of teen-age brats from Holmes Junior High School merely because he was trying to prevent rowdiness.

This could have been a nice place where mothers and their children could go for a sundae, or whatever, for a few minutes. But believe me they dare not.

I observed this disgusting situation myself. Upon entering I quickly discovered a place full of youths in black leather jackets wrestling and scuffling all over the place and in the process some of the owner's finer merchandise was knocked from the shelf and broken and the owner's efforts to stop this were completely ignored.

One of my children was also bumped and I quickly had to reprimand the youth, who, approached by an adult, quickly apologized.

I am writing this to voice my complaint and try to get help for this man and others like him. You parents sitting at home watching your color televisions should go take a look for yourselves. Your child might even be there.

DONALD W. HOPPE

King Memorial: Open Housing

EDITOR:

In cities throughout this country, the affairs of men have paused briefly during the past few days to honor the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

In Plymouth, however, there has been no pause; we have carried on the process of living almost as if Dr. King never existed. That first Sunday's sermons elegized him, of course, but, after all, the situation demanded it.

Almost everyone felt at least a little sorry, and it would have been awkward and embarrassing not to preach about him only three days after his death. With the exception of these comments, though, nothing has noted his passing or his contribution to American society. There have been no commemorative school assemblies, no memorial services.

This seems strange and, at the same time, understandable. How ironic, how inconsistent, how hypocritical it would be for us to honor the man in death when we systematically opposed his efforts in life.

Any elegies we might compose now would only ring hollow in the face of our past actions. Gilding will not hide our history. Therefore, let us make no speeches. Elegies cannot do justice to the men who inspire them, anyway. Great men always dwarf the words written about them.

Even Dr. King, eloquent as he was, will not be remembered primarily for his words, but for his deeds, his example of right-mindedness, justice, honor, and love.

However, we do not have to wait in embarrassed silence until the nation has finished lauding him. We can honor him without making hypocrites of ourselves. We can act. Plymouth can begin by enacting and enforcing an open housing ordinance. Anything less would be profane.

Horseowner Answers

EDITOR:

Disgusted isn't any more disgusted than we, the horseowners, are with people like you. You have plenty of nerve wanting to know why we don't move. Why do people like you move into a community like this and think you should take over?

As for the near accident, how do you know so much about it? Did you run out, when you saw it, hoping to find something to use to get things started? As for riding on lawns, I imagine if someone stepped one foot on a lawn, the whole thing would be torn up in your version. What really disgusts me is the way everything is so exaggerated by people like you. Life must be very miserable for people who try to make trouble for other people.

We love our horses. Most of us do our best not to hurt other peoples property when we ride, but people like you don't care who you hurt. As an excuse you act concerned, when all you really want is your own way, for us to either give up our homes or the horses we love. Livonia would do well to get rid of people who think like you do, instead of our horses.

If City Council is fair, which I think they are, we won't be discriminated against. We are willing to try and do something about any problems we have, but not to give up all together.

MRS. M. SEVERSON

Stevenson Choir Wins High Praise

EDITOR:

Our Livonia Woman's City Club had the pleasure of having the Stevenson High School Symphonic Choir at our President's Day Tea. The Choir is under the direction of Mr. Lowell Everson. About 100 strong, they did a wonderful job of entertaining the club and its guests. They were superb, to say the least. They conducted themselves as ladies and gentlemen all the time they were with us.

It is a sad thing for Stevenson High School to have such bad publicity, when they have such talented, well mannered, young people in the school.

MRS. PATRICK O'BRIEN

Praises Boys' Clubs

EDITOR:

The Boys Clubs of Metropolitan Detroit held their annual volunteer recognition dinner on April 1 in the Veteran's Memorial Building on W. Jefferson.

Due to the fact that I'm a comparatively new member in the Mother's Service Club of Redford Township and had never attended any of these functions, I must say I was very impressed with the vast united interest in our boys and young men.

Not only was the dinner superb and the entertainment excellent but I found the dedication and award ceremony to be both interesting and emotionally rewarding.

I would like to take this opportunity to give a personal tribute to all of the benefactors, board members and staff of the metropolitan area Boys Clubs. I consider it not only a privilege but an honor to be affiliated in any small way with this marvelous organization.

Income Tax For Schools

EDITOR:

I was pleased to learn about your House Bill #4095 in connection with adequately financing school needs from a tax depending on income rather than property.

Perhaps the property tax on homes should be replaced with a tax on income with no exemptions, even if it may mean raising the personal income tax substantially.

Those who derive the greatest benefit from good schools, the students and the employers, should assume the full burden for better education and ease the present tax burden of the old, the poor, and the underprivileged.

Since housing, food, and clothing are the basic needs for all people, rich and poor, educated and uneducated, there should be no objection to the bill either in its present form or in a form that would encourage home ownership and industrial expansion with equal opportunities for education.
