FARMINGTON — Oakland County's "Mr. Government" DeLos Hamlin has announced that he will seek election to the county board of supervisors on the Republican ticket from the Farmington area. In making the announcement, the chairman of the Oakland County Board of Supervisors asserted that the new board would need "experienced" members. Hamlin has served as the City of Farmington's appointee on the Board for 25 years.

* * *

FARMINGTON — The City Council repeated its stand that Salvador St. on the south-eastern boundary between the city and township would be closed when the construction work on Farmington Rd. between Eight and Nine Mile was completed. Township residents requested that the road be left open. The township people have wanted to keep the road open for their use during the spring thaw, while the city residents want the road closed because of the traffic problem in the subdivision.

* * *

WESTLAND — An estimated 100 Nankin Mills School District parents attended Monday's board meeting to hear the need outlined for the approval of a seven mill proposal for one year on the June 10 school ballot. If the millage proposal fails, all elementary school pupils would be placed on half-day sessions and the Perrinville Elementary School would be closed.

* * *

GARDEN CITY — Councilman James Lowe, completing his first term, became the first to announce his candidacy for the city's Aug. 6 primary election. In making the announcement, he pointed out his hopes for solutions to the city's problems.

* * *

LIVONIA — City Council is set for a showdown on an open housing ordinance at its meeting tonight. Enough members have shown sentiment to adopt it -- which is what Councilman Rudolf Kleinert had hoped would happen before state and federal laws were passed. But Mayor Harvey W. Moelke is opposed, thinks the local action unnecessary and that anyone with means should live where ever he can. He has indicated a veto.

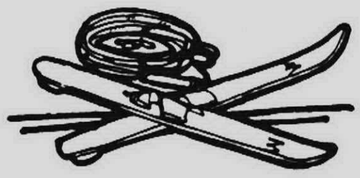

* * *

LIVONIA — The city's freshman council member, who also served as its vice-president, is pressing for support for organization of a juvenile court in Livonia or vicinity to catch kids before they become criminals. Robert E. McCann points to the probation department of Municipal Court, set up by his brother, Judge James R. McCann and staffed mostly by volunteers, as very effective but a little late, since many boys and girls under 17 have also become serious problems. It would require state legislation.

$290,000 Parking Plan Ignored

Bond Buyers Shun City

By W. W. EDGAR

Any hope the City of Plymouth had for the early establishment of a parking authority and an entirely new parking concept that would include two new areas in the central business district was given a setback Monday afternoon.

The setback came when the time arrived for the opening of bids for a $290,000 bond issue to finance the plan, and not a single bid was received.

Ironically, it was Mayor Exchange Day and the visiting officials were in the City Commission chambers when the disappointing news was announced.

It was known for the past several days that there was a hesitancy on the part of bond buyers across the country in taking on new projects. But it was felt that at least one bid would be received.

* * *

DURING A tour of the city Monday morning with the visiting officials City Manager Richard Blodgett and Mayor Pro Tem James McKeon kept wondering if there would be a bid when the advertised hour of two o'clock would arrive.

They hoped against hope.

There still was a bit of optimism after lunch. But hopes faded when the time arrived and no one stepped forth with a bid.

In a rather dramatic session, the Building Authority took its place at the table, with Chairman Harold Guenther and his mates on the authority--William Hartmann, Blodgett, Lou Borregard and John Moehle--watching the entrance, hopeful that someone would arrive at the last minute with the good news.

When the hour came and past, all chorused, "What do we do now?"

* * *

IT WAS quickly agreed to contact Strat Brown, bond counselor for the firm of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, and learn what moves to make.

Gene Slider, City Clerk, sighed, "Guess, we'll have to start over." And all agreed.

There were all kinds of speculation as to why the bond buyers ignored the sale.

Only one--Van Kampen Wanterlet and Co., of Chicago--showed any interest. And all it asked was additional information. Even this request didn't arrive until just before the bid opening deadline.

Some members of the Commission felt that the bond market had been down for the past week and Plymouth was just another victim.

Others were of the belief that the bond buyers were waiting for a change in the Michigan law that would boost the interest ceiling from five per cent to five and a half or six per cent.

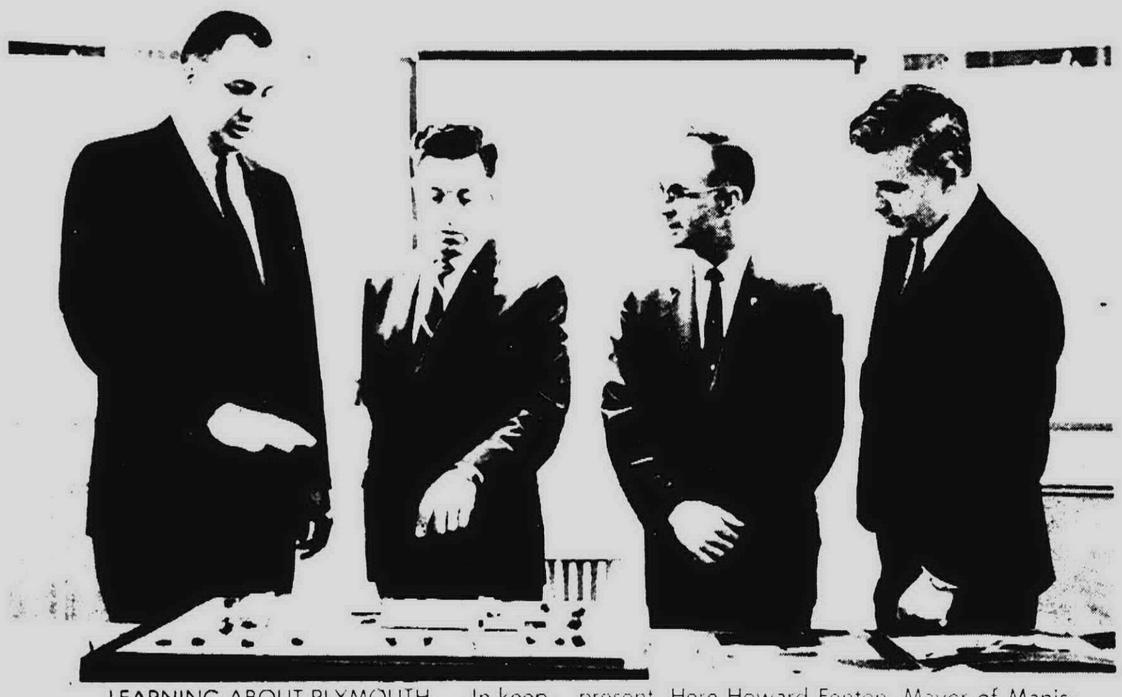

At any rate, there were no bidders, so the entire plan was setback.

* * *

INCLUDED IN the plan was the demolition of the Davis property on Penniman Avenue that long has been known as "the eyesore," and the Wiedman building in the rear of the Mayflower Hotel. After these two buildings are razed plans are approved for the construction of parking lots.

In both cases the downtown merchants have played a major role. All property owners on Penniman have agreed to a special assessment to help with the project. And a group of others has pledged $86,000 over the next 12 years to make the second projected lot a reality.

Now, all hands must wait, either for the new state law or some other move that will make the bonds more attractive in the market places.

Visiting Manistee Mayor's Party Amazed By Hospitality And Sights In Plymouth

"I never have experienced such hospitality or enjoyed a visit to any place more than I did to Plymouth."

These words were uttered by Mayor Howard Fenton, of Manistee, at the end of a gruelling day that officially marked Mayor's Exchange Day, a feature of Michigan Week, last Monday.

Tired, but happy after a whirlwind day that saw him and his official party that included his wife, and Mayor Pro Tem Les Bowling, of Manistee, and his wife, feted from a breakfast in city hall at 9 a.m. until long after the civic dinner at the Round Table Club in the evening, the visiting Mayor said:

Mayor Fenton stated his feelings at the dinner as he thanked the city officials for the manner in which they treated him and his party.

* * *

ONE OF THE things that amazed the Manistee group was the civic center complex with the City Hall and Library and the site not too far away that has been selected for the senior citizens housing.

"I was amazed, too," Mayor Fenton explained, "at the growth of the area and the plans you have made to meet the population explosion.

"We are just beginning to experience that type of growth in Manistee because of the coho salmon impact on our area."

The Manistee party arrived in Plymouth on Sunday evening and were feted a bit then in a get acquainted visit.

Then, promptly at 9 a.m. Monday morning, the official ceremonies began with a coffee hour at City Hall over which Mayor Pro Tem James McKeon and City Manager Richard Blodgett presided.

It was at this session that visitors of the city learned of the many activities in Plymouth dealing with future expansion.

A Fitting Tribute

Dudley's Memory Honored

A ceremony in his honor replaced the traditional opening day ceremonies for the Plymouth Community Junior Baseball League Saturday noon as a stone memorial with a bronze plaque was dedicated to his memory.

Dudley served with the league from its inception and managed teams through last year.

City and township officials were on hand for the tribute. Special guests were Mrs. Dudley, his widow, and his son, James.

* * *

RELATIVES and friends of Mr. Dudley wept openly at words of tribute from Carl Cederberg, Plymouth resident and well known TV newscaster, whose sons played with Dudley. Cederberg said:

"This opening day is different. . .and sadder, because the laugh of the tall, grey-haired man with the broad shoulders is not heard. Charlie knew how to tease. . .to cajole . . .to demand. . .and to convey his deep love to the boy who had just struck out. . .or had hit one over the fence.

A REAL TRIBUTE — An outstanding tribute was paid to the memory of Charles Dudley, one of the early sponsors of the Little League baseball program in Plymouth, when a monument was erected on the baseball field Saturday afternoon. His widow, and son, James, are shown here unveiling the memorial as the highlight of the ceremonies that opened another season.

Symphony Set For Meeting And Election

The Plymouth Symphony Society will hold its annual meeting Wednesday, May 22, at 6:30 p.m. in Junior High School--East, climaxing a month-long emphasis on Symphony activities including a yearly membership drive.

A pot luck dinner will be followed by a business meeting and the election of new members to the board of directors.

The program also will include the presentation of summer scholarships and entertainment directed by Wayne Dunlap, Symphony conductor.

Area Democrats Split On Race For Presidency

Viet Nam, the naming of delegates and a resolution condemning party members who failed to vote for major platform legislation highlighted Friday's 2nd District - Wayne Democratic convention. The convention was held in the Plymouth Credit Union.

Party delegates voted unanimously on a resolution urging withdrawal of support candidates failing to vote for major Democratic platform proposals.

This move was apparently aimed at Rep. James Tierney, D-Garden City, who voted no on both open housing and tax reform, key Democratic platform planks.

* * *

IN OTHER action 12 delegates to the June 2 state convention were named, including Dr. George Bennett, William Kinnard, Orville Tungate, Mrs. Don Bidwell, Robert Dwyer, Mrs. Joan Voytas, Mrs. Ruth Koepke, John Murawski, Mrs. Alice Woodruff, Irv Rozian, Doug Johnson and Richard Wernette.

The delegates are split between the top three presidential contenders. Kinnard, Mrs. Voytas, Mrs. Woodruff, and Wernette appeared to be in the camp of Sen. Eugene McCarthy. Johnson and Tungate are for Sen. Robert Kennedy. Others, including Mrs. Bidwell, George Bennett, Irv Rozian and John Murawski are in the Humphrey camp.

* * *

PARTY CHAIRMAN Robert Dwyer opened the convention with a call for the organization to actively register voters after the June 10 school election. He noted 33 per cent of the eligible voters in the City of Plymouth were not registered; that the figure climbs to 41 in Plymouth Township, and to 67 per cent in Northville Township.

"I am calling on all clerks to provide deputy registrars since now we can see the problem is acute," Dwyer said.

Deputy registrars, allowed by law, could conduct a door to door convass to get people registered. The city of Plymouth did this several years ago.

The survey could be made by party volunteers or members of the service clubs, Dwyer said.

Plymouth Band To Share Top Concert Role

Weather permitting, the Plymouth Community Band will join the Farmington Civic Band in a pre-summer concert in Kellogg Park this Sunday afternoon. Beginning at 4 p.m. in the bandshell, the combined group will present music ranging from the stirring marches of John Philip Sousa to the powerful works of J.S. Bach

In between, there will be selections from two Broadway musicals -- "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" and "West Side Story" plus many other light musical numbers.

Conducting duties will be shared by James Griffith of Plymouth and Paul Barber of Farmington. If attendance is similar to regular summer concerts there may not be enough benches, thus patrons are urged to bring their own lawn chairs.

There will be an opportunity for the public to contribute to the Plymouth Band's scholarship fund during the concert.

Three School Board Members Run Unopposed

The June 10 school elections will have only three candidates for the three positions on the school board--and all of them currently hold the posts they will be attempting to reclaim.

Esther Hulsing, board president, Robert Gilmore, board member, and Donald Tripp, member, are the only official candidates seeking the three vacant posts.

Monday, May 13, was the filing deadline for petitions to run for the school board and no other candidates stepped forward.

Rep. Esch Plans Hurried Visit

Congressman Marvin L. Esch will make some 18 stops in a three day trip back to the Second Congressional District May 24-26. The tour, which is his 16th this year and 41st since taking office in January, 1967, will take him to each of the four complete counties he represents.

Included on his schedule are office hours for meeting with citizens in Ann Arbor, Milan, Carleton and Brighton. He also has speaking dates in Ann Arbor Blissfield, Fowlerville, Plainfield and Riga.

College Finds Delay Costly; Bids Climb

Low bids totaling $2,701,136 for construction of a 97,000 square foot physical education plant at Schoolcraft College have been received and await a decision by the college board of trustees to award a construction contract.

The decision of the board, scheduled within the next four weeks, is contingent on the sale of a $3.7 million bond issue by mid-June. A portion of the proceeds of the issue will be used to supplement the college's share of the construction cost.

The project attracted a total of 31 bidders to the public opening at the college on Wednesday, May 15.

* * *

HYATT CONSTRUCTION CO. Wayne, was lowest among eight bidders on the general construction contract, with a price of $1,792,000. Bidding ranged up to $3,346,677 among the general contractors.

Gillies Mechanical Contractors, Inc., Livonia, was apparent low bidder among 11 contractors who bid on the plumbing, heating, and air-conditioning work, with a price of $611,880. Next low bidder was John F. McCarthy Co., Dearborn, with a price of $612,000. Bids ranged up to $682,200.

Fred W. Moote Electrical, Inc., Pontiac, was apparent low bidder among 12 electrical contractors, with a price of $297,256. The bids ranged up to $389,169.

The total of the low bids was about $170,000 below the pre-bidding estimate of project architect Eberle M. Smith Associates, Inc., Detroit. But the bids were $149,340 higher than those opened last September before the project stalled for lack of local funding.

* * *

ASSUMING AN AWARD OF construction controls next month, the project could get under way during the summer after striking construction trades return to work. An 18-month construction period is expected for the project, which could make the plant available for instructional use at the start of the winter term in January, 1970.

As designed by the architects, the plant will provide a main gymnasium which will seat about 2,500; an auxiliary gymnasium; a swimming pool with a diving area and balcony seating for 400; a wrestling and corrective exercise room, handball courts, a gymnastics room, classrooms, faculty offices, and other facilities for a complete physical education program.

* * *

THE COLLEGE has been conducting a limited physical education program in leased facilities in the college district since Schoolcraft opened in August, 1964. This year, and again in the fall, the college is housing the physical education program in the Northville Community Center under a lease with the Northville school district.

Cost will be shared by the college and the state, including a $1,178,500 total appropriation from the state. More than $1 million of the college's share was provided for in a $3 million bond issue sold in November, 1966.

The funds were banked last fall when construction bids exceeded available funds. Continued increases in building costs make necessary the use of about $600,000 from the $3.7 million bond issue which college trustees expect to sell next month.

When completed, the physical education plant will be the ninth building on the growing campus on Haggerty Road. Scheduled for completion late this summer is a 32-classroom Liberal Arts building.

Builders Resist Craft Unions' Wage Demands

A survey made Monday revealed that practically every building project in the Detroit area is strikebound or shut down because of a lockup by builders.

Gilbert B. Silverman, president of the Builders Association of Metropolitan Detroit, said:

"The whole building industry in this area is united to resist the unreasonable demands being made upon it by the unions. We have been forced against the wall; we have no alternative but to say 'no' to these latest demands for pay increases."

* * *

SILVERMAN ADDED that he felt that the position of the residential builders, who have upward of $50 million worth of single-home and apartment-house construction under way in the area, is essentially in the public interest.

He put it this way:

"These increased labor costs, if approved by us, would surely put most of the construction firms in the area out of business, many permanently.

"There is no profit in home building where you build houses only for the rich to buy, pay for and live in. The little man and his wife, with the average weekly paycheck, are the people that are the backbone of the home-building business. They always have been and always will be, unless we are forced to price ourselves into oblivion."

* * *

SILVERMAN CITED the demands of the carpenters' union as an example. They ask a continuation of the 35-hour week, vacations, holidays, pensions and insurance based on the shorter work week.

The package would mean an increase over present carpenter scales in the area of $100.-73 a week, not counting overtime which would be piling up on every building job.

The employers' proposal of increases, starting May 1, for the carpenters is a raise of $58.06 a week based on 40 hours. This ups the payments into pension, vacation, holiday and insurance funds. The present weekly wage of carpenters is $208.86.

* * *

BESIDES THE BAMD, the employer groups resisting the union demands in the building trades are the Associated General Contractors, Inc., Carpenter Contractors Association and the Michigan Carpenter Contractors Association.

"The two primary problems," Silverman concluded, "are the union money demands and the length of the work week. These are standing in the way of any agreement between employers and the carpenters' union."

Silverman predicted that Michigan would soon feel the economic impact of the tie-up brought about by the shutdown.

"Residential building now paralyzed in the Detroit area and outstate is estimated to be $96 million, based on contracts for construction as of May 1. Affected also are some $90 millions of nonresidential construction in the state. If this paralysis continues even a few weeks, it will be the most costly strike ever experienced in our industry, and the public will bear the brunt of it."

GM Executive Named Head Of UF Drive

A General Motors Corp. vice president, Calvin J. Werner, of Birmingham, was named general chairman of the 1968 Torch Drive.

CALVIN WERNER

The appointment of Werner, general manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Division, was announced by United Foundation President Wendell W. Anderson Jr.

Anderson said the UF officers chose Werner to direct the world's foremost united fund campaign "because of his outstanding leadership qualifications and his wholehearted efforts on behalf of the 1967 Torch Drive."

* * *

AT A PRESS conference called to announce the appointment, Anderson joined the new general chairman in paying tribute to Robert B. Semple, president of Wyandotte Chemicals Corp., who led the 1967 Torch Drive team to success despite an array of obstacles.

"According to the final report," Anderson said, "Semple's campaign raised $27,573,-109, an amount no other community has been able to approach in a single drive.

Semple set a record for fund raising that will be difficult to equal," declared Werner, who served as the General Motors group chairman for the 1967 campaign's automotive and suppliers unit.

* * *

THE NEW campaign general chairman said his first concern will be to select leadership for the Torch Drive's solicitation and promotion units.

He estimated that more than 150,000 volunteers will be needed to carry the campaign message to contributors in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb Counties.

Approximately 60,000 of these will be housewives needed to ring doorbells in the residential solicitation. Others will call on fellow workers in factories, offices and stores.

High School Mechanics To Compete

Teams from 32 Southeastern Michigan schools, including five Western Wayne County high schools, will compete for chances at college scholarships in the annual Plymouth Trouble Shooting contest Saturday at Henry Ford Community College.

The area schools competing include Plymouth, John Glenn, Garden City East, Thurston, and Franklin High schools.

The two winning teams and their instructors will represent Southeastern Michigan at the National Trouble Shooting Finals in Indianapolis June 18-20.

At Indianapolis they will compete with teams from other regional contests across the country for $100,000 in scholarships and prizes.

Competition will be in two divisions, Industrial and Vocational Arts. There will be two students to a team, each working on a new car supplied by area Plymouth dealers. But each car will have been deliberately tampered with.

Winners will be the first teams to solve all the problems and restore their cars to perfect order.

Garden City Girl Named Phi Beta Kappa

Norma J. Titter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Bentley, 30709 John Hauk St., Garden City, is among 158 students to be initiated into Michigan State University's newly established Phi Beta Kappa chapter.

Seventy-three members were selected from the College of Arts and Letters, 41 from the College of Natural Science, 40 from the College of Social Science and four from Justin Morrill College.

Selection was based solely on superior academic achievement.

Students were chosen from winter term graduates and those who will graduate spring term.

Miss Titter is a social science major.

Gov. Romney To Sign Open Housing Into Law

LANSING--Gov. Romney will give Michigan an open housing law with the stroke of his pen this week following Senate agreement to the House version.

Romney declined to discuss the measure, which is tougher than the new federal law, but an aide said:

The bill did not get immediate effect and will thus become effective 90 days after final adjournment of the Legislature.

* * *

HOUSE MEMBERS overrode conservative opposition to hang 21 major amendments on the bill which had been passed by the Senate. Conservatives fought to make the state act identical with the federal law.

Federal law exempts buildings accommodating four or fewer families and in which the owner lives. It also exempts single family houses sold without the services of a licensed real estate dealer.

Michigan's new law exempts buildings in which not more than two families live, including the owner and a single-family houses in which rooms are rented.

AREA SENATORS, George W. Kuhn (R-Birmingham) and N. Lorraine Beebe (R-Dearborn) both boted against the original open housing bill and the final version enacted by the House. Sen. William Faust (D-Westland) was absent.

Earlier area legislators split on the issue in the House.

Voting for it in the House were Reps. John Bennett (D-Redford) and Vincent J. Pettipren (D-Westland). Reps. James Tierney (D-Garden City) and Ray Baker (R-Farmington) voted against it and Rep. Louis E. Schmidt (R-Livonia) did not vote.

Schmidt had been called to Saginaw two days earlier by the sudden illness of his mother.

He said later that the major objections had been met with the provisions that the claimant must bear some responsibility for his charges and that cases can be taken directly to court rather than going through the administrative machinery of the Civil Rights Commission.

Area Units Share In Highway Funds

LANSING -- The State Highway Commission has started distributing first quarter Motor Vehicle Highway Fund collections to Michigan counties, cities and villages.

Henrik E. Stafseth, State Highway director, said net highway fund receipts during January, February and March totaled over $110 million, an increase of over $10 million compared to the same period of 1967.

Wayne County's share is $7,-189,285. Distribution to municipalities include: Garden City, $128,776; Farmington, $25,773; Livonia, $266,800; Plymouth, $30,659; Westland, $229,496; and Northville, $15,942.

The Highway Fund includes all state gasoline and diesel fuel taxes, and license plate fees. After deductions for collection costs and the State Waterways Commission's share, the money is distributed to the state, counties and 524 incorporated cities and villages for use on state and local highways and streets.

Under the formula, the Highway Commission will receive $51,284,185, counties $37,992,-389, and cities and villages $21,488,394.

Stafseth said first quarter collections includes only two months of the cent-a-gallon increase in the state gasoline tax enacted last year.

Distribution is based on one month under the old formula of 47 per cent to the state, 35 per cent to the counties and 18 per cent to the cities and villages, and two months under the new formula of 46, 34, and 20 per cent respectively.

MOST OF THE convention was spent discussing resolutions to take to the June 2 convention slated for Cobo Hall in Detroit.

Viet Nam topped the list in the debate. Irv Rozian, Democratic delegate to the pre-platform committee meetings, conducted a straw vote of those delegates and party members present at the convention. Here's the tally:

(1) Withdrawal from Viet Nam – all no.

(2) Withdrawal to Saigon and selected enclaves, or the Gavin proposal - 7 yes, 10 no.

(3) Negotiate a coalition government including the North Vietnamese - 15 yes, 9 no.

(4) Negotiate, including the Viet Cong - 20 yes, 2 no.

(5) Stop all military action north of the DMZ - 16 yes, 10 no.

(6) Maintain the current level of military action - 7 yes, 16 no.

(7) Resume bombing the north - 1 yes, 30 no.

The straw vote will be used to draft a formal resolution to be submitted at the Convention caucus June 1. Party members will get final draft copies before the convention convenes.

The convention also passed resolutions urging: admission of Red China into the United Nations; action on minimum wage coverage and bargaining rights for farm and migratory laborers; changes in automobile insurance practices; controls on campaign expenses, and making meaningful current civil rights laws while not proposing artificial solutions like busing large numbers of school children.

The convention also heard briefly from former Congressman Weston E. Vivian, who recently said he would seek the 2nd Congressional seat he lost two years ago to Republican Marvin Esch.

Vivian, who has been helping Robert Kennedy gain Michigan's delegate votes, said he "would be angry at himself if he did not try again."

Manistee Mayor Amazed

AFTER McKEON and Blodgett spoke, School Superintendent James Rossman dwelt at length on the plans for school expansion and the new high school complex at Centennial Park.

Speaking for the Mail & Observer, Editor Don Hoenshell told of the adoption of the open housing ordinance and the plans that have been discussed and decided on just in case of any civic disorder in the future.

At noon the entire group was the luncheon guests of the RCA Corporation where they met Township Supervisor John McEwen and were shown the Satellite call box that won the southeastern Michigan Product of the Year and is in the running for the state product of the year.

Throughout the afternoon the visitors were on a whirlwind trip through the entire community and the area that goes to make up the Plymouth Community School District.

* * *

THE CROWNING event was the official civic dinner in the evening where pleasantries were exchanged all around and the visitors told of their impressions of the visit.

"We were told Plymouth was a nice place to visit," they stated, "but now we know it. We had a grand time."

Then, to top the evening, the Manistee Mayor showed colored slides of coho salmon fishing in his home town area and whetted everybody's appetite for a trip to Manistee.

All told, it was a fine day, and in keeping with the spirit of Michigan Week.

Also being honored will be the "citizens of the year" at Plymouth High School. The awards will be made to Stephanie Sinocki and Dennis McVittie.

Included among the invited guests are various city, township and school officials in addition to the state commander of the American Legion, Miles Ansbaugh, of Reading.

Chairman of the Auxiliary's Girls State committee for this year was Marcella Miller and Ernest Koi served as Boys State chairman for Post No. 391.

The symposium is sponsored by the International Atomic Energy Agency located in Vienna, Austria, an agency of the United Nations. The meetings occur May 20 through May 26.

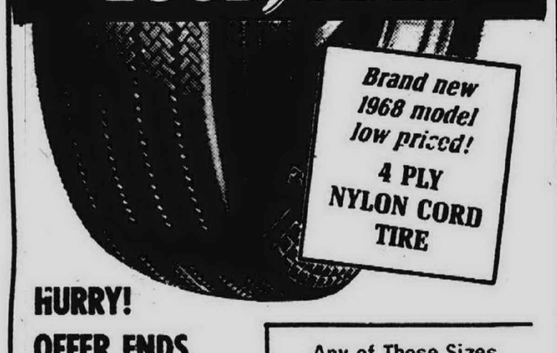

This is the fourth such symposium, the first held in Vienna in 1960, the second at Chalk River, Ontario, in 1962, and the third in Bombay, India in 1964. Papers were selected on a competitive basis and four were chosen from the University of Michigan Department of Nuclear Engineering.

Lee is a 1960 graduate of Plymouth High School and resides in Ann Arbor with his wife, Carolyn, and a son, Timothy. Lee is a candidate for his doctorate in nuclear engineering this fall and Carolyn is a doctoral candidate in biochemistry.

Colleges Face Staff Shortage

LANSING -- Michigan's network of community colleges, whose enrollments have doubled in the last four years and may double again in four, face "enormously difficult" staff recruitment challenges, State Superintendent of Public Instruction Ira Polley said Thursday.

"These growth figures are eloquent testimony of the acceptance that the community college has found in most parts of Michigan," Polley told a conference of recently appointed community college presidents at Michigan State University.

"It is clear too that Michigan could not be meeting its responsibilities in the area of higher education without the energetic community colleges," he said.

* * *

BUT POLLEY SAID that the colleges have found "severe and perplexing organizational problems" and that there are "difficult struggles for operating and capital outlay funds."

Among the "many items of unfinished business on the agenda," Polley cited the need for a community college to serve the Detroit metropolitan area, expansion of vocational and technical educational programs and greater educational opportunities to as many people as possible.

"Let there be no mistake about this point," he said. "Organized society is not meeting its responsibility to offer educational programs to the poor, to the Negro, to the Mexican-American. Money invested to redress this deficiency is money invested for the most soundly conservative reasons as well as for highly moral considerations."

* * *

"IN ONE OF the largest cities in the nation, there is no community college in operation," Polley said, referring to the proposed Wayne County Community College. "Here then, is an area that could be described as an 'educational wasteland.'"

Under a 1967 law, which he called of "supreme importance," Polley said an election will be held June 10 to choose seven trustees to organize the college and seek financial support for it.

ROBERT H. CAREY, 5623 Raven Court, Birmingham, president of Farmington's Thompson-Brown Company, real estate-development firm has been elected Secretary-Treasurer of the Michigan Society of Planning Officials. Carey, who has been a director for the past two years, also has served as chairman of the group's sustaining Membership Committee for the past year.

Schoolcraft To Teach Occupational Therapy

Want Course That Guarantees Job?

Interested in a career that virtually assures employment to qualified applicants after one year of training?

If so, a new program starting in the fall at Schoolcraft College to train occupational therapy assistants may be just the thing for you.

"We are excited about this program," said Mrs. Harriet Sattig, director of instruction for health careers at the college.

"Employment opportunities are practically unlimited. We have already received requests for three graduates from agencies which heard we were going to start the program."

What is an occupational therapy assistant?

"The OTA is a trained subprofessional who works under the direction of a registered occupational therapist assisting in the rehabilitation of patients with physical, emotional and psychological handicaps," Mrs. Sattig explains.

"The work involves teaching of skills that not only rehabilitate the patient, but provide him in many instances, with a means of livelihood."

Patient age, according to Mrs. Sattig, ranges from preschool youngsters to senior citizens and includes accident victims of all ages and other handicapped persons in general hospitals, nursing homes, and other institutions including outpatient rehabilitation centers.

THE SCHOOLCRAFT program is unique in Michigan, and evolved at the request of the Michigan Occupational Therapy Association. There is, at present, no other one-or two-year program being offered in the state to train the corps of OT assistants needed by Michigan hospitals and other institutions for the handicapped.

"The MOTA needed a program of high quality, and one that was short of duration and that encompassed sound educational principles," Mrs. Sattig said.

The one-year program was developed with the active assistance of Barbara Jewett, chairman of occupational therapy at Wayne State University, one of three Michigan universities offering a four-year program leading to a bachelor's degree in occupational therapy. Miss Jewett is chairman of the MOTA committee on assistants.

The Schoolcraft program will cover three semesters of work to complete 39 credit hours in classroom studies and practical experience. The course starts in the fall term, continues through the winter semester followed by a 12-week spring-summer session devoted exclusively to practical experience in both physical and psychiatric rehabilitation work.

* * *

ON COMPLETION of the course graduates will receive the Certificate of Program Completion and will be eligible for certification as a Certified Occupational Therapy Assistant by the American Occupational Therapy Association.

The course will be taught by a registered occupational therapist on the college's fulltime teaching faculty. Required courses in Biology, English, Psychology and similar program-related subjects will be taught by staff members on the campus.

The occupational therapy courses will be taught in the Activity Therapy Building classrooms leased by the college from the Northville State Hospital.

Details on the program are available at the college from Mrs. Sattig, or from the Admissions Office.

Schoolcraft Dean To Be Consultant

North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools has invited Schoolcraft College's dean of technical-vocational instruction, Jon P. Adams, to participate in a one-year program which will prepare him to serve the commission as an educational consultant and examiner for colleges and universities seeking accreditation.

As a participant in the NCACSS Consultant-Examiner Associate Program, Dean Adams will join commission accreditation examining teams on college and university campuses in three assignments during the 1968-69 academic year.

His association with the program will begin in Chicago on Sept. 23 when he attends the commission's orientation conference for about 15 new associates invited to participate during the coming year.

Adams will take part in a variety of visitation examinations next year. One will be an examination of an institution such as a liberal arts college or a community college which is seeking accreditation.

Another will be for a periodic accreditation review visit to an NCA member institution. A third visit might involve examination of an institution presently accredited through the bachelor's degree, but which is extending its program to include graduate work.

Adams joined the Schoolcraft staff in 1965. He is the first official of the college to be invited to participate in the North Central Association's associate program for training accreditation examiners since Schoolcraft received accreditation by the regional association in March.

Plymouth Writer Wins Honors

An English teacher at Schoolcraft Community College placed third in a one-act play contest sponsored by the Community Theatre Association of Michigan.

Ralph Kelley, a Plymouth resident, will receive $10 for his winning entry entitled "Tender Grass" at an awards convention in Manistee on June 15. The entry, which placed first, will be performed by the Wayne Civic Center Players at the Manistee convention.

REALTORS IN THE LIMELIGHT

B.F. "BUD" CHAMBERLAIN

Realtors are enjoying an enviable "place in the sun" of public notice this week -- for this is "Realtor Week."

Why Realtor Week? Why call attention to ourselves? Why not "let well enough alone," quietly go about our business, and hope the public will think about us only when it has some business to transact?

The answer is that the Realtor is proud of his calling. He is proud of the principles for which he stands. He seeks notice and public favor. He depends upon public good will. He must have public understanding of his position.

Why is this? Is the Realtor any different from the manufacturer, the grocer, the securities dealer, the hotel keeper, the banker, the automobile salesman?

His position is different from any of them. He has nothing of his own to sell. He offers only his technical knowledge and experience, his personal service and his reputation. The properties with which he deals are the properties of others. They are not of his own manufacture. They cannot bear his guarantee. Yet the people whom he serves expect him to protect them against a multitude of hazards--real or imaginary.

No practitioner of the arts and science needs more the confidence and good will of the public than does the practitioner in any phase of real estate work. No person need engage his services unless they so choose. While nearly everyone at sometime during a lifetime transacts some degree of business in real estate, whether it be the rental of a room, the purchase of a home, or the selection of an industrial site, he can choose to do so without the services of a Realtor. The Realtor's "reason to be" depends primarily upon his own talents, upon his abilities to serve.

Therefore, those who subject themselves to the high standards of the Realtor gladly expose themselves to the glaring searchlight of public opinion. This is the basis of their strength. Public confidence is created not from words or publicity alone but from performance in in accord with the word picture that may be painted by publicity and public attention.

To the extent that any Realtor fails to adhere to the standards to which he is pledged, and to which widespread public notice is drawn during Realtor Week, he thereupon weakens not only his own personal position but the favorable public conception of Realtors generally. Thus it is important that every Realtor not only openly subscribe to the principles of the Realtors Code of Ethics, but that he perform. This is where the local board of which he is a member comes into play--by inspiring him to such performance or, if he should fail, then by withdrawing his right to be a Realtor.

Realtor Week can, and does, help increase the public's confidence in the nation's more than 63,000 Realtors. Both Realtors and the public stand to gain.

Congressman Esch Reports

Congressional Youth Forum Proves Outstanding Success

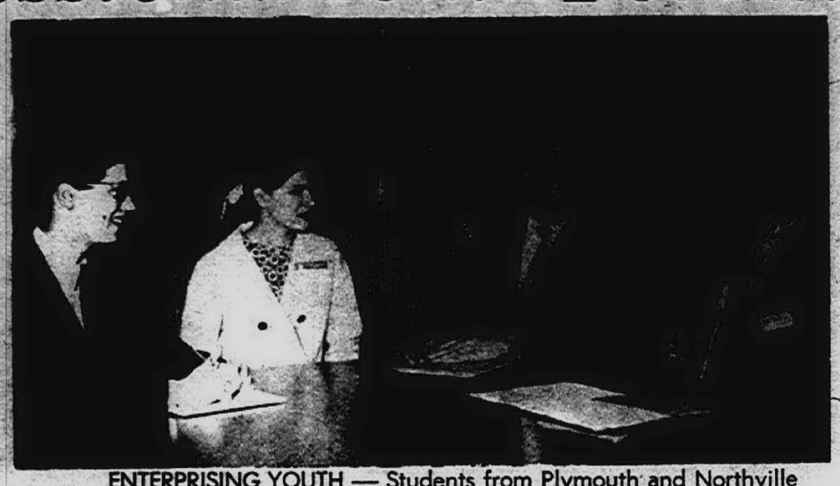

Recently it was my privilege to host some 100 students and teachers from 25 area high schools at the first annual Congressional Youth Forum held on the campus of Eastern Michigan University. I was very pleased at the response to this first effort and very encouraged and impressed by the intelligent and rational discussions these young people generated about our national problems.

Vietnam, the Selective Service, and the crises in our cities were the subjects of workshop sessions conducted by professional discussion leaders and addressed by expert source persons in each area. During the discussion periods the students examined and debated existing national policy in these areas and possible alternatives to be utilized in the future. Although no definite positions were taken or encouraged, the forum offered students an opportunity to become involved in our great national debates and gave me an opportunity to learn first hand the views of our young people.

ON VIETNAM, the students explored three alternatives -- stepped up military effort to achieve a military victory, immediate withdrawal, and gradual withdrawal. Most students agreed that this was the most publicized war in history and that more people know more about it than any other war involving this country. The sentiment was expressed by some, however, that we are being told only what the government wants us to hear. The need for better education for the South Vietnamese people and better communication between them and the people of the United States was stressed. Also mentioned was the desirability of channeling our efforts towards helping the South Vietnamese to help themselves.

The young people in the draft workshop heard the history of conscription in this country dating back to the Civil War and an explanation of how the present system works. Then they critiqued the Selective Service and brought forth various alternative policies of their own design. Among the alternatives discussed were the development of an all voluntary military, utilization of a lottery system, substitution of social service such as in VISTA or the Peace Corps for military service, self-determination by young men to serve their time prior to age 35, and the development of an all mechanized army.

Most of the students agreed in the need for better public dissemination of information about the draft and the benefits of a military career and for computerization of and uniformity in the functioning of local draft boards. Considerable interest was expressed in the idea of classifying young men according to ability and interest rather than physical condition or mentality and drafting individuals according to the need of specific tasks.

* * *

THE STUDENTS in the urban problems workshop were confronted with the over-whelming number of problems facing our cities. They concentrated their attention on the ghetto dweller, the causes of his problems and possible solutions. They generally agreed that his problems resulted from long standing social conditions which have brought on inhibitions to change and progress, plus the existence of a political system which tends to exclude the poor from representation and decision making.

Most agreed that an attack on our urban problems must be a cooperative venture involving the total community as opposed to government involvement alone. To accomplish this, it was expressed, would require a basic change of attitude toward others by most people. The objective of the effort would be to pull the ghetto dweller into the mainstream of American society.

The five hours we spent looking at this nation's pressing concerns were extremely worthwhile both for the students and for me in representing them in Congress and I intend to make the Youth Forum an annual event. In the meantime, the ideas generated by this year's forum are being summarized for insertion in the Congressional Record and submission to the appropriate House Committees. I have invited these young people, as I continue to invite all district residents, to let me know their views.

Plymouth Man To Study National Pollution

The burgeoning problem of water and air pollution is of major concern to everyone--from the local housewife to the big industrial complexes like Ford Motor Co.

Industry, possibly, may be the most sensitive to this problem because it has been accused of being the worst contributor to pollution.

Frank J. Kallin, of 344 Scituate, Plymouth, has recently been named chief of Ford's worldwide program to control air and water pollution in and around its manufacturing and assembly plants.

Ford has a number of plants in the Observer area:

* * *

HE EXPLAINED that all of these plants are called dry operations and consequently have little problems with wet waste materials.

Kallin said that sanitary sewage and water are directed into the area sewer lines and eventually end up in the Detroit system for processing.

Because all of these plants are relatively new there are no problems of pollution.

Fifty-years ago, when Ford built its Rouge complex, Kallin said, the buildings were not designed to protect against pollution.

Now, when Ford designs a building, pollution controls are made part of the total development and are built into the building.

* * *

KALLIN'S JOB is coordinating the total company effort in water and air pollution control.

Rather than plan a new building to meet only current regulations, he said, Ford tries to look into the future and incorporate upcoming regulations in designs.

It would be easier to meet only existing municipalities' codes but in the long run it may be more costly. This year the building would be fine, but three years from now it might have to be changed to meet new standards.

It seems foolish, he added, to not plan for the future so that changes would not have to be made. Every cost to the company ultimately ends up in the company's products' cost and a good way to keep product cost down is to plan well.

He said that the problem of water pollution is a seven day job.

It s administration belongs in the hands of the government, he said, but industry must work closely and lend its valuable advice.

This is a people understanding and communicating job, he said.

Kallin said that Ford was looking seriously into the incineration of wastes.

"If we can burn the wastes, and then save the heat which is normally lost in this process and convert it into steam for use again in the plant, then we would be eliminating wastes and getting a return on the process," he explained.

Would-Be Burglars Set Off Alarm

City of Plymouth Police are searching for a person or persons unknown who attempted a spectacular but empty-handed robbery of Beyer Rexall Drugs, 480 N. Main, sometime between 10 p.m. May 9 and 3:19 a.m. May 10 and made the mistake of tripping the burglar alarm.

The burglers, who were startled by two police officers, who heard the alarm in the drug store and investigated, fled in such a hurry that they left behind several tools believed to be those used to gain entry into the building.

The would-be thieves gained entry into the drug store by coming through a plastic skylight in Dr. Barry Alford's office next to the drug store.

Police said that the bandits dropped into an examination room. They then, broke a hole in the wall between the buildings and went into the basement of the drug store.

From there, they went up a flight of stairs and cut a hole in the floor and entered the main part of the store. This is where they set off the alarm and fled when police officers answered the alarm, according to police.

Robert Beyer, owner of the drug store, reported that nothing was stolen and Dr. Alford reported that nothing was missing from his office.

MICHIGAN TRANSPORTATION — As part of Michigan Week celebration Miss Mildred Field, teacher at Starkweather School had her students display products in keeping with the spirit of the state. Here Donald Fulkerson is shown displaying the various modes of transportation through the years in Michigan.

Tell It To Glenny

453-5500

Today marks the half-way point in our annual celebration of Michigan Week with Community Pride Day, Spiritual Foundations Day, Government Day and Heritage Day behind us.

Today happens to be Livelihood Day and Education Day; Hospitality Day and Youth Day are coming up fast.

I'd like to go back to that first day--Community Pride Day and add my wholehearted agreement to a statement made by Mrs. Marjorie Mackie, chairman of Community Pride Day:

"Our many community workers are concerned about one immediate situation that needs attention--the indiscriminate LITTER of our sidewalks, streets and grass plots.

"It seems that many young people, as well as some adults, just drop that candy wrapper or paper bag wherever they happen to be, instead of finding proper disposal.

"Unfortunately many soft drink bottles, most of them shattered, are found on our sidewalks and streets. We kindly request parents of school children, and all citizens to help remedy this litter problem."

She's right, you know. Plymouth IS a pretty community, with a charm that makes it one of the nicest in the state. (Editor's Note: The Nicest).

Like so many other issues of this century, littering has been legislated. There are fines imposed on anyone caught in the act, but the responsibility for an unlittered city actually rests with each one of us--law or no law.

If you've read this column with any regularity, you are by now aware that this writer has a sense of humor about most everything that happens to come my way, and litter is not exempt.

A friend of mine has a habit, formed over the years, that would surely solve any city's litter problems. Each time she finds herself clutching something that would look unsightly on the ground or blowing in the wind, she automatically deposits it in her purse.

Occasionally she sets a record. Like the week her purse, which had grown uncomfortably heavy, yielded; five grocery lists, four candy bar wrappers, 17 unlucky gas station game cards, one no-deposit pop bottle, and a very brown banana peel. We call her the litter "bag."

It's true that small children and men don't usually carry purses but maybe they could use their pockets, Oh well, it's a thought.

* * *

WHILE WE'RE on the subjects of Plymouth, pride and responsibility let's congratulate Larry Waterhouse's Cub Scout Pack No. 293.

The boys worked last Saturday planting trees in the Bird School Nature Park, which is to become a nature study area.

It must be a great feeling for the boys to think that years from now those trees will be tall and sturdy and a living testimony of what scouting is all about.

High Tribute Paid Dudley

"And to those who forge ahead now and in the years to come and who at times may wonder if it was worth it, may reflect upon the memory of Charles Dudley, and know that it was."

* * *

FOLLOWING Cederberg's remarks, James Dudley spoke briefly and thanked the community.

"It was not a big sacrifice, this baseball business. Make no mistake about that. He loved every minute of it. He thoroughly, totally enjoyed what he was doing."

After the brief remarks, which were made at the city's portable bandshell, League President Ken Vogras led James Dudley and Mrs. Dudley to the stone memorial, which was draped in canvas.

The memorial was built by Don Bidwell, who has done much of the construction work at the field on Plymouth Rd.

* * *

THE PLAQUE READS:

"In dedication to the founders of the league who have served and the boys who have played the wonderful game of baseball, let Charlie's spirit of fair play be the rule to guide these youngsters to manhood."

Rev. Canon David T. Davies gave the benediction.

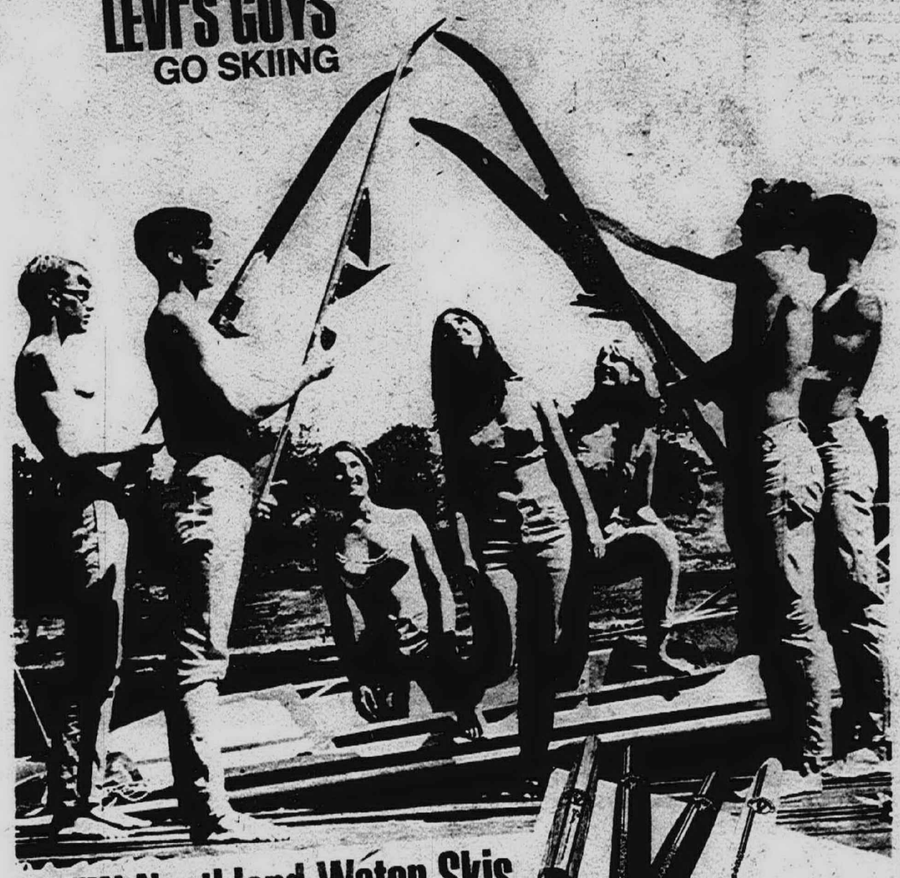

After the service, the league turned to lighter matters as Township Supervisor Jack McEwen hurled the opening pitch to City Mayor James Jabara.

Major league teams then began first day contests.

DISCUSSING HER THRILL — It isn't everyone who can have a school named in their honor and the fact that it happened to Miss Gertrude Fiegel last Sunday was a real thrill. She is shown here discussing the big moment with some of the students after the dedication ceremonies.

Naming Of New School Thrills Miss Fiegel

The Plymouth Community's eighth elementary school was dedicated to veteran teacher Miss Gertrude K. Fiegel, Sunday and it provided her with one of the most satisfying thrills of her life.

In a program held at Plymouth's newest school at 39750 Joy Rd. just opposite Holiday Park subdivision, school officials honored Miss Fiegel.

Superintendent of Schools James Rossman cited her long years of service to the district.

Miss Fiegel retired from her position as teacher at Plymouth High School in 1965 to close out a career in Plymouth schools that had lasted 36 years.

Beginning in 1929--she taught four years elsewhere--she instructed classes in world history and geography, and during later years taught U.S. government and international relations. She now lives in Ann Arbor, where she was born.

Henry Haberkorn, of the architectural firm of O'Dell, Hewlett and Lukenbach, presented the building to the district's school board president, Mrs. Esther Hulsing.

The invocation and benediction were given by Rev. John Walasky, of the Assembly of God Church.

The building is designed for team teaching, and has two central areas which may be opened into one. The arrangement makes it possible to combine as many as four regular classroom for certain phases of the instructional program.

The school has 13 classrooms, a multi-purpose room and office areas; designed to handle 420, it now houses nearly that, 418 and was built at a cost of $735,125.

"There are many opportunities for creative teaching here," Miss Fiegel said. She said she was surprised by the tribute:

"It was the last thing in the world I expected."

Miss Fiegel said school must teach information as well as values.

"People aren't born with them. We must teach values. They won't get them themselves."

A special surprise to Miss Fiegel was the discovery that a former pupil (now Mrs. Phyllis Mitchell) is a teacher at the school named in her honor.

Plymouth BPOE Pledges Aid In Disorders

The members of Plymouth Lodge #1780, BPOE, have gone on record, by resolution, to lend their services to local, state or federal governments in case of any type of disorder or unlawful acts, such as defacing the flag or burning of draft cards.

"As true and loyal Americans we hereby condemn all persons who riot and/or commit seditious acts against the government of the United States;

"As true and loyal Americans, we here condemn all persons who deface the flag of the country, the American Flag.

"As true and loyal Americans, we hereby condemn all persons who burn their draft cards and/or otherwise refuse to serve in the armed forces of the United states of America;

"As true and loyal Americans, we hereby support our men in uniform and pray for their safety and well being;

"Above all, as true and loyal Americans, we believe in God and support the constitution and laws of the United States of America;

"And by proclamation, we pledge our services to the local, state and federal governments in the event of riots or any other unlawful acts that may endanger our nation."

Sweatshirts Make Camping Trip A Reality

Sweatshirts are a comfortable thing to wear when playing football or riding a mini-bike, but they are not usually thought of as "tickets."

If, however, you happen to be a member of one of the two Allen School sixth grades, you might think of a sweatshirt as a ticket—a ticket to a week of camping at Proud Lake.

The sixth graders sold more than $1,000 worth of sweatshirts to finance five days of camping for each child. Their total profit was $360.

In the corridors and across the polished tables at the Caucus Room, the people who make things run here are spelling out the facts.

And the facts are as convincing as a poke in the nose.

Romney will go to the national Republican convention in Miami with 46 votes in his pocket from Michigan and with enclaves of people around the nation who couldn't believe it when he quit.

* * *

REPORTERS QUIZZED him when Lt. Gov. William G. Milliken signed on as Nelson Rockefeller's Michigan manager, with State Senator Emil Lockwood working the same job for Richard Nixon.

Romney concurred that he and Milliken had "a complete understanding" before he took the Rockefeller job and had approved Lockwood's role with the Nixon camp. Here's Romney:

"They (Milliken and Lockwood) will be helpful to me in carrying out my role as a genuine — not a pro forma — favorite son candidate and as leader of the Michigan delegation."

That means Romney will be carrying the big stick to Miami. He has a few people to pay off—like Rockefeller, Nixon and most of the GOP governors who gazed at the ceiling while Romney agonized.

Now he has Milliken and Lockwood, both loyalists who owe their careers to him, in strategic spots at the convention.

* * *

IT WAS NO SECRET that Romney ran out of money in the New Hampshire campaign. Rocky's vocal support was beginning to sound like a small lad shilling for spinach.

Two weeks before the Romney pullout, Rocky in Detroit allowed as how he could be drafted. It was like the best man flirting with the bride.

The pullout was the act of an embittered and disillusioned Romney. Now he knew how Gov. William Scranton felt four years earlier when he walked the plank for the governors against Barry Goldwater.

OK, but what would you do, Bunky, with the kind of clout Romney is building for Miami? The very least Romney can expect if a Republican wins is a choice appointment — to anything.

* * *

HIS SECRET MEETING with delegates last week was merely to keep their thoughts from straying to Nixon or Rockefeller just yet. A "genuine favorite son" thinks about the second ballot and beyond.

Romney said his permission for Milliken and Lockwood to work for their tigers didn't commit him personally to support either one. Of course not.

Back across the eons come the words of George Romney when the polls started showing his slippage in New Hampshire, those dark days just before the end.

He remembered going to American Motors Corp. and breathing life into an economic corpse, of leading the Detroit school study which is still being used, of helping force the state to call a constitutional convention, of winning the governorship.

There were smarties who said Romney couldn't hold the GOP lines firm in the legislature. He held every vote

He said in New Hampshire:

"People have told me I was going to lose in everything I've tried."

So if you like Rockefeller or Nixon at Miami, watch yourself at all times.

Another Willkie could happen.

From the Publisher's Desk
OBSERVATION POINT

By Philip H. Power

"Rockefeller Making Big Surge in Michigan."

"Michigan Delegation Swinging To Bobby."

"Nixon In Control Of Michigan Delegation."

"Humphrey Visit To Michigan Brings Delegates."

There then follows a scholarly article designed to show that today's highly accurate count of the Michigan delegates to the national conventions clearly demonstrates that, for example, Bobby Kennedy has a 61-85% support from the Michigan delegation.

The next day, sometimes even in the same publication, a similar story appears, with a similarly precise count of the delegate votes, showing that Bobby is now out of it and HHH is in charge.

RUBBISH.

Not only rubbish but bad journalism.

For it was only this past weekend that the Democratic organizations in Wayne County held their district conventions to pick delegates to go to the state convention on June 1-2.

So how in the name of all that's supposed to be holy in this racket did those smart reporters have the slightest idea of how many votes Bobby had or Hubert controlled, when the delegates had not even been elected yet?

And then to write something like Bobby has 34 votes, Hubert 30 and Senator McCarthy has 8! My sweet, sainted aunt Hepzebah!

If the Kennedy or Humphrey organizations knew as much about what the delegates are going to do as the news magazines claim they know, everyone could quit doing a lot of very hard and troublesome work and go home. The issue would have been settled already.

* * *

LAST WEEK, I had lunch with a guy whose party and candidate choice shall go unnamed. But it's enough to say that he's involved in one of those byzantine political fights that constitute so much of party activity in the 19th Congressional District.

Not only was he unsure about which slate would be elected, he didn't even have a clear idea about who was going to wind up on his side's slate. He added that because of local feuds and jealousies, a precinct delegate might vote for a slate committed to presidential candidate X, while in fact preferring candidate Y.

Later that afternoon, I came across an article in a well respected news magazine taping down to the last vote exactly how Michigan would stack up.

All I wonder is who the reporters who write these stories talk to. Their astrologist? A palm reader?

If they would come right out in the open and say they had to write something to satisfy the New York office and, over the third drink in the neighborhood bar, they decided that today was Bobby's day since Hubert beat the pants off him yesterday, I'd feel a lot better.

But they don't.

* * *

WHY?

Very simple.

It's partly because reporters who are asked to do these silly stories know very well that such honesty would not go down very well with the boss. It's his interest, after all, in generating the overpowering image of sharp accuracy that will keep the circulation figures up.

It's also partly a need in the American reading public: They love speculation and the excitement of a close political race, but at the same time they demand mathematical certainty in the material they read or hear about that race.

This explains the delegate count charts that some magazines are running now. It explains the passion for filling up the TV screen with some dumb looking computer calmly spitting out projections like, "On the basis of one interview with one delegate in Michigan we project a Kennedy victory in the Michigan delegation by 81.2% margin."

And everybody sops it up.

There's the excitement, but there's the mathematics just to make sure the excitement does not get too red-blooded.

* * *

IN THE INTERESTS, then, of strict honesty about the delegate line-up in Michigan on both Democratic and Republican sides, the Observer proudly presents its own exclusive vote count.

It's called BIDVP, which stands for Bar-Indicated Delegate Vote Projections, and that sounds almost as good as UNICAC or Voter Profile Analysis.

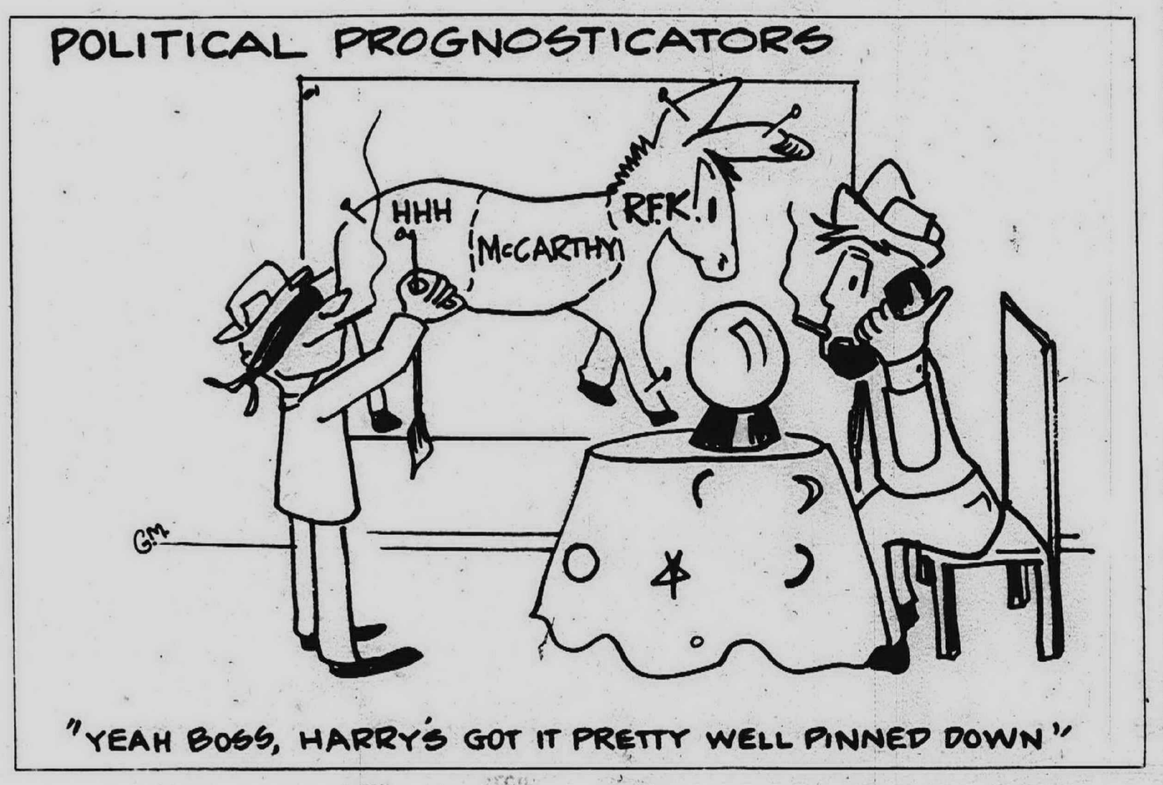

It's obtained by taking a random (and therefore scientific) sample of people in randomly selected bars and asking them how they expect their precinct delegate will vote.

Republican Results: Nixon got six "Hish good guy," 11 "Whosh he?" and four "Havvanother, buddy." Rockefeller picked up eight "Hesh gottolotta money," five "Thash my man," and one snort that I can't spell. Romney got gales of laughter and two broken glasses of beer.

Democratic Results: Kennedy got four "Hesh got a pretty wife," 12 "Hish hair's too long," and one Breakthrough picket supporting the war in Viet Nam. Humphrey got six "He talksh too much," 11 "Whosh he?" and a hippie who pinned an End The War in Viet Nam on my coat. Senator McCarthy produced four women who thought he "looksh cute," and four men who said he "looks too schmart."

These figures don't add up to the entire delegate count, but we're still working out the bugs in our system.

Maybe NBC will give us a call. We look just as good as any other system.

The Poor Hear 2 Different Voices

Does Plymouth Township like poor people, or doesn't it?

It depends on whom you hear—and whether they're in or out of government.

We're not singling out Plymouth or saying that it's any different in this respect from any other suburb out this way. It's just that a couple of incidents occurred recently which make Plymouth a good example to work with.

* * *

QUIETLY, WITH NO fanfare, some two dozen Plymouth residents — city and township — made preparations to welcome participants from the Poor People's March into their homes a week ago.

They chartered a bus to bring their contingent of marchers from Detroit's Cobo Hall to their suburban homes. It's unlikely any of the Plymouthites had ever met any of the poor people. They were taking in total strangers. It was intended as both an act of kindness and a political endorsement of the poor's attempt to improve their lot.

The plans to house the marchers in Plymouth, Livonia and other suburbs were summarily canceled after a melee involving a stalled car and mounted Detroit police. But the intentions were there.

* * *

ONLY A FEW DAYS before that, however, the Township Planning Commission met for more work on a revision of its subdivision ordinance.

Reporter Henry Teutsch quoted a member of the Planning Commission as saying he'd like to attract homes in the $35,000 range — something the "junior executive" could afford — in the area west of Sheldon Road.

This would be accomplished by zoning lots in sizes of a half-acre or an acre. The costs of developing land being what they are, it's unlikely anyone would put a modest home on lots that large or that expensive.

And so, while Plymouth's church groups and civil rights zealots are moving in one direction, an official agency of the township portion of the community is moving in exactly the opposite direction.

* * *

THE TOWNSHIP PLANNERS' move is also at odds with township policy of attracting new industry — and not just light, research-type industry, but heavy industry.

The township policy amounts to a "gravy only" system — it will accept industrial tax money and the men who manage the systems, but will systematically exclude the guys who work in the plant.

There are suburbs which attempt to attract only high-price homes; the Village of Wood Creek Farms, in Farmington Township, is a notable example. But Wood Creek Farms hasn't attempted to attract industry, too.

Remember, too, that with industrial workers, one is talking about the middle-class, not the poor. It is the middle-class that is to be kept out of Plymouth Township's undeveloped land.

Maybe we ought to have a moratorium on debates about black power and Vietnam and arrange a real corker between Plymouth's benefactors of the downtrodden and its township planners. They haven't met on the same platform. It would be enlightening to see them battle it out.

Garden City School Vote

Raising Irrelevant Issues

The Garden City Board of Education has two millage proposals, including one for a 7.5 mill increase, on the June 10 ballot.

A proposed school tax increase is controversial by itself, and the public explanations of the many and complicated details of school finance are confusing enough without interjecting other issues which are totally unrelated.

However, there are some persons in the community who insist on throwing in one or two emotional issues which have nothing to do about the primary question of whether the extra dollars are needed or not.

* * *

THIS QUESTION has to do with the percentage of school administrators and teachers who do not live in Garden City.

When asked this question by two city officials on successive days last week, this writer's first response was to ask:

"What does that have to do with the millage need?"

In case anyone else is giving serious consideration to the point, we should emphasize that the question interjected into the campaign on a quiet basis has nothing to do with the question at hand and should be rejected completely.

This is urged for several reasons.

A person's place of residence is based on a number of factors, some personal, and others which the teacher or administrator have little control over.

FOR EXAMPLE, a single girl just out of college and teaching in Garden City usually does not have the money to buy a single-family home. Even if she did, she probably wouldn't need a home for herself.

Other women teachers are married and are bound to live near their husband's place of employment.

In addition, Garden City does not have enough vacant homes or homes for sale anywhere near the number of school persons on the faculty.

Let's forget about the nonsensical, semi-emotional type issues and stick to the main question on whether the extra funds for operating the public school system are needed or not needed.

Feud Hits Secretaries

Tucked away in the files of the Livonia City Council, and forgotten for about a year, is a recommendation by Mayor Harvey W. Moelke that his executive secretary be granted a $50 a month allowance to help cover the use of her private automobile on city business.

Contained in the same communication was a request for a similar allowance for Henry G. Sieferd, the city assessor.

Council, after considerable delay, acted on the Sieferd recommendation and approved the allowance.

Meantime, Mrs. Eleanor Jacobs, as the mayor's administrative assistant, still buys gasoline and oil and tires for use on the city errands for the executive office.

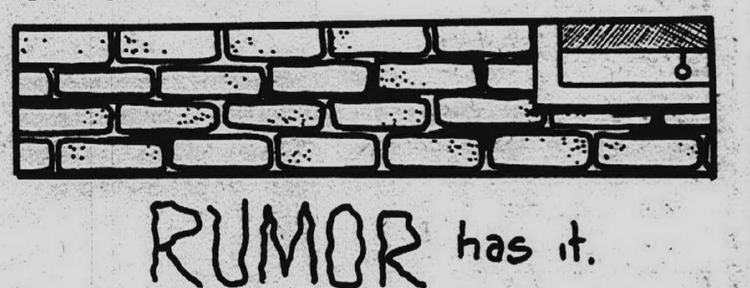

A $50 car allowance is given to the deputy city clerk, the court clerk, and others.

Council recently increased its own individual expense allowance from $150 to $200 a month, and raised the allowance for the mayor, the city clerk and the city treasurer $100 each to $250 a month.

Around Livonia City Hall, it is believed that Council's failure to grant the Jacobs allowance is the result of the feud with Civil Service, which has refused to raise the council secretary's salary to the equal of the executive secretary of the mayor—who now makes about $8,400 a year.

Vendors Bring Litter

EDITOR:

It's this time of year again when the ice-cream vendors become a familiar sight in the residential areas of Livonia, attracting 20 to 30 children at one stop, only to finally drive on, leaving the streets and lawns littered with discarded wrappers and whatever else it takes to hold the various concoctions together.

The Mayor says: "Keep Livonia Beautiful," and I agree wholeheartedly, but the parents, the children, and the vendors seem to think otherwise.

It seems little enough for a parent to teach a child respect for property, whether it be their own their neighbors, or the city's.

MRS. RUTH GENOVA

Ashamed Of Actions

EDITOR:

Our thanks to the Observer staff in seeking to inform and promote better human relations in the community.

Being a relatively recent arrival to Redford Township, we had not been aware of a racially mixed family's presence in the community. Now, to hear that the Colemans have been denied the opportunity to live in a decent area because of their racial character the spirit of nauseating disgust is ours.

It is interesting to note the reactions of fear that prevailed. Animals possess a fear instinct that either prompts them to react violently or try to avoid the confrontation. Thankfully, the former reaction did not take place.

Rather, the ostrich approach of hiding one's head in the sand seemed to prevail. The people of that neighborhood hid their heads hoping that the "menace" would be removed. They played the game of social ostracism and won. Hooray, the "problem" is gone and now "I won't have to worry about my conscience."

How shallow! How irrational! Is not a man a man regardless of his color? The attitudes of our white racist society have caused men to tab those not bearing similar characteristics as "different" and therefore to be avoided. What makes a man different? Humanity was created with a unique quality of unity in a human nature endowed with an intellect and a will.

But, leave it to man to distort that unity with his fear and preconceived ideas. "They say" becomes a criterion for forming judgments. Rather than actively seeking understanding men hide their heads, ruminate on their thoughts, and compound their fears. Knowledge is generally considered the remedy for fear. And yet, there was no attempt to know, to understand, and finally, to accept the Colemans.

Time is running out for racial justice. White society must come to accept the concept of equal rights and equal opportunity for all men or face a destruction that will shiver the fiber of American society.

Praise For Stevenson

EDITOR,

What does your sports writer have against Stevenson High? Why the negative almost contemtuous attitude about their accomplishments and successes?

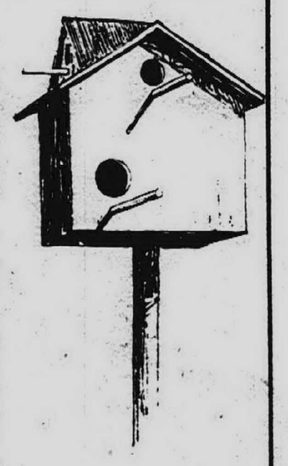

Quote: "Fumbles helpful to Stevenson. There's a saying in sports, you're not fussy how you score. Barring a collapse Stevenson High's baseball team would appear to have the Interlakes League Championship in the bag." Unquote.

I hardly think all of their wins were the result of fumbles. It just might be that they are the better team.

I am well aware that Stevenson has acquired an unfavorable reputation, deserved and undeserved. Unfortunately there is a small group of students (as there are in all high schools), who have caused some trouble, but there is also a large group of young people at Stevenson who deserve a great deal of praise and encouragement.

State And Local Roundup

New State Capitol Backed By Building Agency

LANSING -- The State Building Commission recommended to Gov. Romney and the Legislature that Michigan construct a new capitol building and retain the present building for other purposes. As the new capitol site, it recommended a spot about three blocks west of the present building.

The proposed new building would house all legislative offices, committee rooms, Senate and House chambers, the governor's office and his executive staff.

The Joint Capital Outlay Committee Subcommittee of the Legislature has recommended a half-million dollars be spent to get the new capitol building project under way before 1970.

☆

DETROIT -- City Councilman Louis C. Miriani was convicted in federal court of four counts of income tax evasion. The former mayor faces up to 20 years in prison and $40,000 in fines. The government charged he owed $154,000 in taxes and penalties and failed to report $261,000 in income.

☆

MELVINDALE -- Police charged Ronald R. Price, 22, of Southgate, with manslaughter in the case of two motorcyclists who were struck and killed at a traffic light Saturday.

☆

DETROIT -- Some Michigan Bell Telephone Co. employes continued to strike easly in the week after the Communications workers of America voted last weekend to ratify a new contract.

☆

LANSING -- Michigan's gasoline tax, which was raised a penny a gallon Jan. 1, is producing more revenue. It will bring in $110.7 million for the first quarter of the year, some $10.9 million more than in the same period of 1967.

The money will be distributed differently as of March 1. The state will get 46 per cent instead of 47, counties 34 per cent instead of 35, and cities 20 per cent instead of 18.

☆

LANSING -- The Senate has passed a bill permitting resorts to sell liquor 12 months of the year instead of the previous 10. The bill applies to resorts with Class C licenses and also permits public golf courses to sell liquor. The bill goes to the House.

The Senate, however, defeated an amended bill to give counties the option of selling liquor on Sunday.

☆

GRAYLING -- Five persons were killed in a three-vehicle smashup late last week near this northern lower peninsula town. Mack McLeod, 28, driver of a pickup truck; Mr. and Mrs. James Forsang, of Los Angeles, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Demo, of Standish, were the victims.

☆

LANSING -- The Senate has passed one of the so-called tenants' rights bills. It would require minimum room temperatures of 70 degrees in winter and prohibit anyone except authorized utility personnel and repair services to disconnect gas, electricity, water or telephone service. If rental properties fail to meet standards, rent money can be withheld and placed in escrow to insure compliance.

☆

EAST LANSING -- The Michigan State University Board has approved a report calling for efforts to recruit more Negro students, instructors and administrators. The report was made by an assigned "Committee of 16."

☆

ANN ARBOR -- The Chamber of Commerce thinks this university city is well on its way to becoming a convention town. The Michigan Elks with 1,500 conventioneers, the National Secretaries state chapter with 70, Delta Kappa Gamma with 500, and Trinity Lutheran Synod with 275, and Great Lakes chapter of Civitans with 200 are among the groups that will meet here in May.

☆

ANN ARBOR -- University of Michigan President Robben W. Fleming has condemned violence and the threat of violence on university campuses. "The status quo in many ways must be changed in recognition of new times," said the new U-M president, "but I am totally and unalterably opposed to the use of violence. It is essentially totalitarian."

☆

BENTON HARBOR -- Voters in the 44th House District will hold a primary July 9 and special election Aug. 6 to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of State Rep. Lionel Stacey, R-Benton Harbor. Gov. Romney called the special election.

A first-termer, Stacey quit the Legislature to become principal of the problem-ridden Benton Harbor High School.

☆

LANSING -- Gov. Romney has signed two bills to expand Michigan's role in international trade. Both were sponsored by Sen. Gilbert Bursley, R-Ann Arbor.

One will create an international trade branch in the Agriculture Department's marketing section to seek foreign markets.

The other will create a division of international commerce in the Commerce Department. It will extend trade assistance to Michigan businesses and attract foreign investments into the state.

☆

LANSING -- State Rep. Stanley J. Davis, D-Grand Rapids, has offered a concurrent resolution that would compel state colleges to maintain order on campus--or face cut-offs of appropriations.

"Such colleges and universities (lacking discipline) shall be penalized by a reduction in their appropriation in proportion to the number of riotous and undisciplined students on the campuses of our state-supported colleges and universities," the resolution says.

The resolution would also require colleges to expel disorderly students. The resolution is being studied by the House Policy Committee. Both houses would have to approve it to make it part of legislative practice.

☆

EAST LANSING -- The Academic Senate of Michigan State University this week will consider a proposal that MSU adopt a grading system that will end the traditional A-B-C-D-E-F markings.

Under a committee proposal, markings would be in these categories: (1) grades from 0 to 4.5 with increments of 0.5; (2) grades of "Cr" for "credit" and "Nc" for "no credit" would be given to students taking courses not in their major areas--for example, to a philosophy student taking a chemistry course.

☆

DETROIT -- Black militants and white financiers will team up to form an integrated corporation this week aimed at building low-cost housing in inner city areas where last summer's riots were worst.

By selling stock to the public at $1 a share, the group hopes to raise $10 million. Among the leaders are Dr. Carl Gregory, a Wayne State University economist, and black militant Rev. Albert Cleage.

LNB Asks Stock Sale

Livonia National Bank shareholders will be asked to approve the sale of 4,000 additional shares of common stock at a special shareholder's meeting.

Current stockholders will have the opportunity to subscribe for the additional shares at a price of $50 a share, on the basis of one new share for each 12.5 held.

The additional capital will provide a broader equity base for the Livonia bank whose deposits have grown to $40 million and whose loans total $31 million, from $10 million deposits and $5 million loans only four years earlier.

Its capital account at $2.2 million on April 30 was up only 100 per cent from the $1.1 million at the end of 1963, while the bank's size was quadrupling.

According to Elvin D. Dougherty, president of the local bank, preliminary approval has been received from the Administrator of National Banks, William Camp, in Washington, D.C., and the bank's board of directors.

Receive Degrees At NMU

Three Observerland residents will be among 513 students receiving degrees at Northern Michigan University's commencement ceremonies June 2.

Dr. Robben Fleming, president of the University of Michigan, will deliver the commencement address and will be awarded an honorary degree.

Area Prep Track Stars Seek State Titles

A sparkling array of talent will carry Observerland hopes Saturday in the state high school track championships.

The Class A teams will contest for Michigan honors at the University of Michigan, while Class B hopefuls perform at Michigan State and Class C at Central Michigan.

In Saturday's regionals, area teams were spread over several sites and emerged with flying colors.

Redford Union led the team parade by winning the "A" championship at Redford with 36 points to runnerup Redford's 25. Thurston also competed at Redford and wound up with 12 points.

At Madison Heights, team honors went to Ferndale with 45 points while Farmington took second with 25 and North Farmington lagged in the field with 10.

* * *

THE AREA'S other "A" teams all were assigned to Belleville where Romulus took the crown with 26 1/2 points, followed by Wayne with 25, Plymouth 24 and Stevenson and Garden City West with 21 each.

Franklin came up with 12 points, Bentley 11, Glenn 6 and Garden City East 4.

Clarenceville contesting in a Class B regional at home settled for only nine points while Our Lady of Sorrows scored seven and St. Agatha two in the Class C regional action at Clarenceville.

Here's a school-by-school list of qualifying for the state meet:

REDFORD UNION -- John Morrison paved the way by winning the high hurdles in 14.6 seconds and the lows in 20.3 seconds. The RU mile relay of George Corombos, Bill Mieras, Jim Childress turned in a school record of 3:25.7 in placing first.

Bob Junk qualified with a second in the two mile as did

"WE'RE CHAMPS". This is what happened after Stevenson High's baseballers clinched the league championship. The players mobbed winning pitcher Paul Tonnemacher and grabbed everyone else that happened to be around. It was the school's first league title.

Baseball Meet Opens Friday

It's play ball Friday in the fifth annual Les Anders Memorial Invitational baseball tournament for Observerland prep teams.

The scene of action will be Ford Field on Farmington Road with 14 schools to battle away for the crown won last year by Bentley.

First round play is slated this weekend with two games each on Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings. The quarterfinals will be held on May 30, the semifinals on May 31 and the final on June 1.

The annual classic, dedicated to the one-time Livonia coach and athletic director who originated the meet, is sponsored by the Livonia Optimist Club, the Livonia Recreation Department and the Observer newspapers.

INDICATIONS ARE that this year's tournament will be wide-open. At least seven or eight teams rate a good chance to emerge the victor.

Stevenson's Interlakes League champs are strong. So are Redford Union, Bentley and Plymouth.

The meet will be conducted on a one-defeat-and-out basis.

This week's opening schedule:

Friday--Thurston vs. John Glenn, 6 p.m.; Garden City East vs. Franklin, 8:30 p.m.

Saturday--Redford Union vs. Northville, 6 p.m.; Plymouth vs. Stevenson, 8:30 p.m.

Sunday--Our Lady of Sorrows vs. Garden City West, 6 p.m.; Wayne Memorial vs. St. Agatha, 8:30 p.m.

First League Championship

Orchids For Stevenson

History has been made by the baseball team at Stevenson High.

In capturing the Interlakes League crown, the diamond forces became Stevenson's first champion in any sport.

Stevenson wrapped up the flag by crushing Farmington, 8-1, last Friday to up the Livonians' record to 6-0 in loop play and 11-1 overall.

The final two league contests against Waterford and Pontiac Northern this week could have no bearing on the chase for the crown.

"This was a real team victory," declared Stevenson coach George Van Wagner.

"True, it's great to have a pitcher around like Paul Tonnemacher (who's 7-0 on the season), but the other fellows have done their parts, too."

* * *

VAN WAGNER noted that because of the rough conditions of the diamond behind the school, he often has conducted infield drills in the gym.

"This wasn't easy for the boys," he added. "But they have worked away and the results have to be most gratifying for us."

The Stevenson drive to the title didn't surprise the experts. The Livonians were picked before the campaign to mow down their opposition.

And they have!

Tonnemacher fittingly hurled the title clincher. He allowed one hit--a triple to Farmington's Tony Himmelspach--and set down eight on strikes while walking only one man.

Himmelspach's triple came in the third inning when he led off. After two infield outs, Flynn of Farmington walked and then he pulled off a double steal with Himmelspach for the Falcons' only run.

Stevenson rallied twice in the top half of the third when Chuck Sobczak singled, Rock Horstman was safe on an error and Phil Camp unloaded a triple.

* * *

IN THE SIXTH, Stevenson cashed two more runs. A single to Jerry Detter, a walk to Greg Wilkinson, a sacrifice and a single by Tonnemacher himself did the damage against Farmington.

The final four Stevenson runs came in the seventh. Sobczak again singled and Horstman walked. They moved up on a bunt and came in on a single by Detter.

Stevenson ends its league schedule against Pontiac Northern Friday while Farmington hosts Kettering Friday and then engages North Farmington next Monday.

GC West Heads To Baseball Championship

West held a two-game lead with three games left on the schedule after sweeping to successive wins over Cherry Hill, 9-6; Kennedy, 2-1, and Crestwood, 8-1, during the past week.

All that West had to do was win one of its remaining games to be assured no worse than a title share. Two conquests would settle the race in West's favor.

Sparkling pitching by Bob Chidester and Jim Furay, plus some solid hitting, marked the West parade to three straight victories.

Chidester came in with Cherry Hill leading, 6-2, and hurled scoreless ball for 6 1/3 innings. He permitted only one hit and fanned six.

It was Furay who beat Kennedy on four hits and then Chidester came back with a neat seven-hitter to knock off Crestwood.

* * *

WEST CAPPED its comeback against Cherry Hill with a four-run splurge in the sixth inning. Two walks, followed by hits by Bill Harrison and Craig Wilson did the job. It was Wilson's third safety of the game.

Furay, who fanned 10 and walked one against Kennedy, was locked in a shutout until the sixth inning when Chuck Evans walked. After Bill Harrison singled, Evans scored on an error. Furay then walked and with Harrison pulled off a double steal on which the latter scored.

West pulled off two four-run innings against Crestwood as Chidester fanned eight and walked only two.

In the first inning, Evans, Chidester, Jerry LaCross and Randy Williams singled while Furay popped in with a double.

In the fifth, two errors, along with hits by Williams and Craig Sylvester helped up the West total to eight runs.

West now has a 9-2 record in the league and stands 13-2 overall to make the team one of the favorites in the Les Anders Invitational tournament which starts Friday at Ford Field in Livonia.

Hazel Park Breeds Its Champions

The Hazel Park Race Track has been a proving ground for many outstanding young riders over the years, including such able apprentice champions as Chuck Baltazar, Derry Snyder, Kenny Knapp, Jeff Anderson and Don Holmes, but rarely has the popular suburban oval had as many promising apprentices as this year.

The list includes Jose Cruz, James Warren Curry, Walter Layland, Rip Van Winkle, Bill Wood and the hottest young saddle prospect in North America today--Mike McDowell, the sensational 19-year-old saddlesmith from Guestville, Ky.

McDowell is not only the leading apprentice rider in North America, but he has a chance of becoming the overall champion. The latest national jockey standings show McDowell as the second winningest rider in the nation, second only to Angelo Cordero, Jr., the darling of the New York tracks.

McDOWELL BEGAN to find himself in Chicago last summer, when he became a familiar figure in the winner's circle. Then he traveled to the Fair Grounds in New Orleans, where he really broke loose, bringing in 92 winners in 98 days for one of the great efforts by an apprentice on any track.

He picked up a few more victories in Kentucky en route to Hazel Park, where he has lost no time in establishing himself as a rider to be reckoned with. This kid is something else.

RU Tops Bentley, 2-1, To Seize Lead By Game

The stretch drive in the Suburban Six League's baseball race has developed into "a honey."

With the curtain due to drop next Monday, Redford Union has grabbed the driver's seat with a 5-3 record, while Bentley has a 3-3 mark in some circles and a 4-3 standing in others.

It seems that the athletic directors of the league must still rule on what to do with a situation in which no umpires showed up for a Bentley game at Allen Park. Some insist that Bentley is entitled to a forfeited victory, others say no.

Redford Union soared ahead of the pack on Monday by whipping Bentley, 7-1, in a showdown, while Plymouth helped out by handing Belleville a 2-1 setback. It was Belleville's fourth loss in loop play.

Plymouth also has lost four times, which means that the Rocks still have a chance to cash in on the glory.

* * *

REDFORD UNION'S Dale Bjerke faced only 24 Bentley batters as he gave up three hits and walked one.

He was staked to a two-run lead in the first inning on a walk to Bill Fahey, a walk to Kevin Fox, a single by Bill Howe and a double steal.

RU made it 4-0 in the third when Neal Thomas singled, Fox doubled and Howe singled. Bentley got one run back in the fourth when Bob Cascaden singled and circled the bases when the ball rolled through the centerfielder's legs.

Came the fifth inning and RU scored its final three tallies on a walk to Thomas, a single by Bjerke, triple by Fahey and single by Fox.

* * *

PRIOR TO beating Bentley, RU lost at Allen Park, 5-4, when the Parkers notched the winning run in the eighth inning with two gone on a walk, single, error and double.

Allen Park had broken a scoreless deadlock in the fifth inning by scoring four times. RU came right back to get even with two out when Kirk Taylor was safe on an error, Fahey singled, Bjerke walked, and Fox and Howe singled.

Redford Union also boasted a pair of shutout wins on Saturday over Cranbrook, 1-0 and 7-0, in non-league action.

Jeff Cominskey hurled the first game. It was his second start of the season and he now has tossed two shutouts. Jack Scheele worked in the nightcap.

* * *

PLYMOUTH RECEIVED five-hit pitching from Jeff Gillespie in turning back Belleville in a mound thriller. Gillespie fanned five and also scored the winning run in the sixth inning.

The Rocks had counted first in the fourth inning when Russ Carlson singled, stole second and came home on Nick Darmogray's single.

After Belleville evened the score in the fifth, Gillespie was safe on an error in the sixth. Larry Wasalaski singled after which walks to Walter Lee and Rick Fillmore pushed in the deciding run.

By George Blaske

Since the Little League baseball season already has—or is about—to break open all around us, we'd like to recommend something new that Joe Falls has put together in cooperation with the Detroit Tigers and the Stroh's Brewery.

Available free all around the area is a book entitled: "Tips from the Tigers."

* * *

MANAGER MAYO SMITH — "If you want to be a good player, be willing to take criticism. Everyone makes mistakes. Even the great players. But only those who are willing to benefit from mistakes really ever improve."

"I have found that too many young players practice the things they do best. The good players will practice what they do worst."

* * *

TRAINER BILL BEHM — "You must be in the proper physical condition to play baseball. But also remember this — you are a ball player, not a weight lifter, so don't go to extremes in your exercising.

"The three parts of your body which are used the most to play baseball are your legs, arms and back. So pattern your exercises to strengthen these things."

* * *

AL KALINE — "The most important thing I can say is don't try and hit home runs! I really can't emphasize this enough. It's a natural instinct . . . It's foolish to swing for home runs. You're playing straight into the pitcher's hands when you try and hit the ball out of sight.

"Hitting isn't easy . . . All I know is that I have to work hard, day after day, week after week . . . A common mistake among youngsters is that they use a bat that's too heavy."

* * *

WILLIE HORTON — "The biggest mistake a young player can make is to turn his head when he's swinging. You've got to keep your head right in there so you can see the ball all the way until your bat comes in contact with it.

"You have to use your hands more than your arms in swinging. If you use your arms, you'll get a sweeping swing. There won't be any snap in your swing."

* * *

EARL WILSON — "I'm sure this may sound strange, but I'm a firm believer that a young pitcher should start throwing a curve ball as soon as possible . . . I think it's a mistake to wait too long, but, frankly, I feel that you can hurt your arm just as easily throwing a fast ball as throwing a curve . . .

"Before I pitch I try to get away from everybody for an hour or so, just to give my entire attention to the job ahead of me."

* * *

BILL FREEHAN — "Don't be a one-handed catcher. Learn to catch the ball with both hands, even while you are warming up on the sidelines . .

"When you give your pitcher the target, don't drop it just as he's releasing the ball. That's when he needs it the most . . .

"Important: Let your first baseman and third baseman catch every ball they can. It's up to them to make the call."

IN FRONT in his school's heat of the 880-yard relay is Bentley's Tom Spuller who crosses the finish line well ahead of an unidentified Romulus sprinter.

Tournament Extended

The Wonderland Lanes mixed doubles tournament, with a guaranteed first prize of $1,000, has been extended through May 26. The tournament officials received permission for the extension due to dates lost during the recent curfew.

Glenn, Franklin Battling To Wire For Pennant

The "they" being Glenn and Franklin Highs.

With the curtain falling on the pennant chase Wednesday, Glenn found itself with a 6-3 record after routing Thurston 10-1, while Franklin stood 5-3 following a 6-5 verdict over North Farmington in Monday play.

Franklin had a game to make up with Groves on Tuesday before finishing with Oak Park. Glenn's finale was against North Farmington.

Glenn, recovering from a brief slide, received six-hit pitching from Kerry Webb in thumping Thurston. Webb allowed six hits, fanned three and walked only one batter.

Meantime, Glenn jumped off to a fast start when Rick Bergeron walked, went to second on a balk and scored on Len Anderson's single. Glenn added three more runs on hits by Webb, Rick Martinez and Bill O'Connor, an error and wild pitch.

* * *

TWO MORE Glenn runs came in on a hit by Dennis Malaney, a walk and double by Webb.

Then in the fourth inning after singles to Steve McKolay and Anderson and a walk to Gary Rolland, Bob Russ cleared the bases with a double. The final Glenn run came across in the sixth inning.

Franklin had to come from behind after squandering a 4-0 lead to beat North Farmington in eight innings.

Jim Davies worked the first 6 1/3 innings for Franklin with Gary Miner finishing to receive credit for the victory. Mike McCoy worked the distance for the losers.

* * *

NORTH FARMINGTON counted twice in the sixth when Tom Snyder walked, went to third on Bob Graessle's double and scored on Norm DeCourcy's double.

In the seventh, singles by Bob Thomas and Snyder and a double by Graessle knotted the score at 4-4. Then in the eighth, after Ron Weber was safe for North Farmington on an error, Jay Hazelroth knocked him in to give the Raiders a 5-4 lead.

But Franklin struck right back to win on singles by Brad Lyons and Charles Wiggens and bunt hits by Frank Moore and Archie Leib which squeezed in the tieing and winning markers.

CLEARING BAR at 6' in the high jump is Plymouth High's Dave Derr. He did his best but failed to land one of the qualifying positions for the state finals Saturday in Ann Arbor.

Redford Duo Moves To Top In Pin Meet

With both bowlers firing well over their averages, the duo of Janice and James Sulecki, of Redford Township, climbed into the lead of the fifth annual Observer-Merri-Bowl Lanes mixed doubles tournament with a big 1338 count.

It was the first 1300 series of the tourney, coming on the third weekend, and gave the Suleckis a commanding lead over their closest rivals, Novella and Tim Rucker of Detroit, who wound up with a 1280 for their efforts.

The tourney continues through June 23 with more than 1,000 teams expected before the final ball is rolled.

* * *

TOURNAMENT DIRECTOR Mac Goldman indicated that there are still many choice dates remaining and urges all teams desiring to enter to make their choices now.

"The rules provide that bowlers may bowl twice with the same partner but cash only once. However, a bowler may enter as many times as he desires provided he changes partners and he can collect with each new partner."

The Suleckis had their best combined efforts of the entire season, picking an excellent spot for some brilliant rolling.

Janice, who carried a 125 average, had actually games of 151, 159 and 178 and with a 52 pin handicap in each game, wound up with a total of 644.

Jim, who entered with a 155 average had an actual 196 in the opener, winding up with four strikes. He had six perfect hits in the second game for 183 and then hit a hot streak in the finale when he registered six in a row and had a seventh in the 10th frame for an actual count of 232. He had a 33 pin handicap in each game and his card shows 227, 204 and 263 for a gross of 694.

* * *

THE RUCKERS turned in excellent efforts but couldn't match the scoring of the Redford Township duo.

Tom, with a 170 average, started with a net of 169, followed with 197 and then counted the highest actual single game of the tourney when he started with a strike, had two spares and then followed with seven in a row enroute to a big 255 count. He had a 21 pin handicap in each game and his gross scores were 190, 218 and 276 for 684.

Mrs. Novella Rucker, with a 145 average, fired 145 in the opener, came back with 167 and then wound up with 170, scoring five in a row in the finale. She picked up 38 pins per game and had gross scores of 183, 205 and 208 for 596.

Lorraine and Bill Thomsen, of Livonia, vaulted over the earlier leaders, Patricia and Morris Hirsch, with 639 and 633 for 1272. The Hirsches had to be content with fourth place in the unofficial standings with their 1259.

Trojans Sight A .500 Finish

Clarenceville high's baseball team needed victories in its final two games this week to finish its Wayne-Oakland League record at .500.

The Trojans lost a heartbreaker, 2-1, to Clarkston Friday, then rallied for a 4-3 win over Brighton on Monday to boost its record to five victories against seven reversals.

Bob Duman was the victim of a tough break against Clarkston. He led, 1-0, going into the final inning and pitched what appeared a third strike against Clarkston's first batter.

But the ball skipped away from the catcher and the batter reached first safely. Duman got the next two men, but two hits followed and he went down to defeat.

Clarenceville fell behind, 3-0, against Brighton before Croskey singled in McCammon in the fourth and Bob Ridley homered in the sixth with McCammon aboard to even the score.

In the seventh, Duman walked and McCammon lashed a double--his third hit--to break up the game and make Duman a winner, who hurled 6 1/3 innings of sparkling relief in which he allowed one run and fanned eight.

Doctors Jumping

First it was center Joe Strawder who underwent back surgery at Ford Hospital.

Rookie pivotman Otto Moore, the Pistons' No. 1 draft choice, now is recovering from a hernia operation.

Next to face the surgeon's knife will be veteran forward Harold (Happy) Hairston, who'll have loose bone structure in his nose repaired.

The surgery on Strawder concerns the Pistons the most. General Manager Ed Coil said it may be several weeks before the team knows whether the veteran will be able to play again.

"Joe will be in a cast for sometime," Coil said.

Flag Hopes Stay Alive For Sorrows

Five teams including Our Lady of Sorrows, still had a chance for the Northwest Division title in the Catholic League as the race entered its final week.

Sorrows split a pair of mound duels over the weekend, bowing to Royal Oak St. Mary's, 1-0, before nipping St. Francis de Sales, 3-2, to knock the latter from the top.

The results left Sorrows with a 4-3 record in a second place tie, a game off the pace.

Ron Greyerbiel tossed a six hitter to blank Sorrows as he shaded Ross Patton, who allowed only three hits. But two of the blows off Patton, plus a walk, came in the fifth inning to account for the game's lone run.

Greg Main held St. Francis to two hits and fanned 14 to keep Sorrows' hopes alive.

Sorrows scored in the second on a walk to Barry Walsh and hits by Tim LaFond and Patton. In the third Tom Webster singled, went all the way to third on an infield bunt and scored on Mike Hart's double.

West Loses To Schafer

The showdown between Garden City West and Schafer in track went down to the final two events--the pole and mile relay--before Schafer emerged with a 65-53 win.

It was Schafer's sixth triumph without a loss in the Tri Rivers League while West now stands 5-1 with one loop dual meet remaining before the conference championship is decided next Monday and Tuesday at Schafer.

Each team won seven events. Schafer gained its edge with more seconds.

The West winners:

Two Mile-- Mike Cunningham. Time--10:25.

Mile--Jim Rhoades. Time--4:44.9

440-yard: Wilson. Time--53.4 seconds.

100-yard: Herrick. Time--10.1 seconds.

220-yard: Herrick. Time--23.4 seconds.

KALAMAZOO -- Three Observerland track stars were among 30 Western Michigan University athletes who received freshman track awards from the school's athletic board.

Two former Livonia Bentley students receiving awards were Larry Grimm and Ken Jackson. Tom Harbourne, a graduate of Clarenceville High School, was the other award recipient.

In Golf, Too, It's RU The Champ In Regional

The linksmen also emerged as state Class A regional champs and will join Our Lady of Sorrows (Class C-D) as the area's only representatives in the state meet next Monday at Midland.

Two juniors and two seniors made up the Redford Union varsity which scored a combined total of 328 to annex the regional at Detroit Redford.

Larry Roy shot an 80, followed by Dennis Anderson and Bill Styles at 81 each and Dave Dubois at 86.

Thurston, also competing at Redford, came in with 346 to miss one of the three qualifying slots. Eric Liplang had an 83 to top Thurston. Chet Proctor and Tom Proben each tallied 85 and Jerry Shaffer 93.

* * *

PLYMOUTH TOOK sixth in the "A" regional at Brighton with 330 despite a 77 by Gary Robinson and a 79 by Don Woody. Tim Kennedy scored 86 and Don Waters 88.

Sorrows posted a 356 total in the C-D play at Brighton to wind up in second place and qualify for the state. Terry Doyle's 86 was low for Sorrows. Tom Strand shot 87, Bob Bremmer 90 and John Gadbaw 93.

The scores included a 356 by John Glenn, led by Bob Decker's 82, and a 369 by Garden City West, whose top individual was Ron Smith was an 83.

Tigers Plan Photo Day For Fans

There will be more camera clicking than ever at Tiger Stadium on Saturday, June 1, when photo fans take part again in another Gold Seal-Tiger Camera Day.

New arrangements have been worked out which will give the fans a better chance to shoot all of their favorite Tigers during a 30-minute period before the Tigers take on the New York Yankees at 2:15 p.m.

The camera brigade will be permitted on the field from 1:10 p.m. to 1:40 p.m. and this year will be allowed to use the entire warning track around the playing field--a move designed to eliminate congestion. The players will circulate inside a rope barrier enclosing the grassy playing surface.

Red Hot Tigers Risk League Lead In West

The Detroit Tigers went west this week--opening in Minnesota with other stops at Oakland and Anaheim before coming back home--after leaving their fans at Tiger Stadium something more to remember them by.

Four victories in six games last week not only helped the Tigers remain on top in the American League, but continued to produce additional reasons why this could be Detroit's year to dominate.

Like the Tiger bench!

If Mayo Smith had a weak spot last season it was on the category of reserves.

When something happened to one of his regulars, or when he wanted to give them a rest, Smith was in trouble. Of course, part of the difficulty stemmed from the fact that Willie Horton played with a bad heel and Gates Brown suffered a broken hand early in the year when he crashed into the fence chasing a fly.

But the Tigers have been on the healthy side so far and Smith has been able to juggle and he also has been able to go to his bench for help in pinches and getting some results.

* * *

CONSIDER SUNDAY'S first game against Washington in Tiger Stadium.

The Tigers had led, 4-0, before the Nats rallied to get even in the top half of the eighth inning.

One was Eddie Mathews, who walked. The next one was Brown, who popped a hit to send over the winning run in a 5-4 victory.

It marked the second time that a Brown pinch blow had won a game for the Tigers. Earlier in the season he socked a homer to break up a game.

His decision to use Brown as a starter in left and Mathews at first and Jim Price behind the bat didn't affect the Tigers. They zoomed on to win, 7-0.

Mathews blasted a three-run homer in the fourth inning to up his career total to 510, just one behind Mel Ott, who stands sixth on the all-time circuit list.

* * *

IN THE SIXTH, a now-rested Kaline was instructed to bat for Brown when the Nats went to a southpaw pitcher. Kaline pounded a two-run homer to make Tiger history.

It was No. 307 for his Detroit career to eclipse the former mark of 306 set by Hank Greenberg. Kaline's homer also was the 14th hit a Tiger has had put the Nats on top, 3-2.

Howard, who had come into Detroit on a homerun streak, slapped a two-run belt off Joe Sparma in the top of the ninth.

On Saturday, when the Nats won, 8-4, over Detroit, Howard delivered in a pinch role this season.

In both games Sunday, the Tigers received excellent relief pitching, just as they have most of the season.

drilled two more circuits to up his circuit output to ten in six games, a major league record.

They also gave him ten homers for the week, breaking the previous mark of nine held by Babe Ruth and Greenberg.

* * *

ONE OF Howard's smashes Saturday carried some 550 feet, sailing over the left-field stands. He thus became only the 11th player to hit one out of Tiger Stadium since the park was remodeled in 1938.

Only Harmon Killebrew ever before had socked one out in left field before Howard connected Saturday.

Howard's binge ended on Sunday and he thus fell short of the major league record of hitting homers in eight straight games set by Dale Long of Pittsburgh in 1956.

Sparma, who gained his third victory in six decisions in Friday's game, had a no-hitter going until Ken McMullin homered off him with two out in the seventh inning.

When McMullin connected, Sparma actually had toiled a no-hitter in reverse. In his previous start against the same Nats, he had finished up the game with three spotless innings of work.

The Tigers were to finish a three-game series in Minnesota Wednesday night. They'll make their first visit to Oakland to meet the A's Friday night.

The Tiger Schedule

Area Pilots Help Open Waterford

Drivers from Plymouth and Farmington are among those scheduled to race Saturday and Sunday when the 1968 sports car season opens at Waterford Hills.

The area pilots include Carl Harrington, Bob Acton, Frank Mueller, Bill McLean of Livonia; Jim Branem and Larry Clingman of Farmington and Doug Miller, Beverly Schuldt and Joe McNamara of Plymouth.

The first weekend of racing will consist of 10-lap races on Saturday and a combination of 10 and 15-lappers on Sunday over the 1 1/2 mile course located on the Oakland County Sportsmen's Club grounds, five miles north of Pontiac on U.S. 10.

There'll also be special ladies races both days.

Spartan Nine Leads Big 10

Michigan State or Minnesota? By Saturday it should be known which will reign as the Big Ten's 1968 baseball champ.

Entering the final weekend of action, the teams are in a deadlock with 12-2 records and the schedule maker couldn't have arranged for a more fitting finish.

The Spartans and Gophers collide in a doubleheader Saturday at Minneapolis after State plays two at Iowa Friday while the Gophers host Michigan in a twin bill.

State ran its Big Ten streak to 12 straight last weekend by knocking off Illinois, 9-0 and 3-2, and then beating Indiana twice in one-hitters, 9-0 and 1-0.

Michigan, which could help the Spartans Friday, fell from title contention. After beating Purdue, 1-0 and 4-0, the Wolverines split with Illinois, winning 4-1, before losing 5-3.

Motorcycle Stars Race Over DRC

The beat of trotting horses will give way to the roar of gasoline engines June 2, when Michigan's first national championship motorcycle races get underway at the Detroit Race Course.

Cycle-racing enthusiasts from all over the country, including many of the nation's top riders, are expected to compete for top honors, beginning at 2:30 p.m.

The races are sponsored by the Detroit-Area Associated Motorcycle Clubs and the Metroplitan Club of Livonia.

Net proceeds will be used for charitable purposes. The Livonia cycle unit recently donated $1,000 toward the purchase of a kidney machine for a Livonia woman.

Time trials begin at 11 a.m. Pre-sale tickets are available now at all Livonia fire stations and at the Montgomery Ward auto service center at Plymouth Road and Middlebelt.

The day's activities will be preceded by a parade of motorcycles driven by members of the Michigan chapter of the association's Motor Maids, an organization of women cyclists.

RU Golfers Annex Loop Crown, Too

Redford Union High's golf team climaxed a big weekend Monday by winning the Suburban Six League title with a four-man team score of 326 at the Grosse Ile Country Club.

The Townshippers, who had captured the Class A regional crown four days earlier, were led by Dennis Anderson who was the meet's low scorer with a 74. Larry Roy and Bill Styles had 81s for the winners with Dubois scoring a 90.

Plymouth took second with 336 as Don Woodie shot 79, Gary Robinson 82, Tim Kennedy 86 and Don Waters 89.

Third went to Trenton 345, followed by Bentley, 353, Belleville 360 and Allen Park 378. Bentley scorers were: Lawrence 85, Gibson 87, Eaton 90 and Wilkie 90.

Area Track Stars Seek State Titles

Corombos set a school mark of 50.1 seconds in the 440-yard dash, but had to settle for a fifth place, which didn't qualify. Lagona's 1:58 also set a school mark.

THURSTON -- Randy Tipton turned in a blazing 1:57 to set a school record and win the regional 880-yard and a trip to Ann Arbor. Ken Blaske was second in the high hurdles and fourth in the lows. He qualifies in the highs only.

* * *

FARMINGTON -- Gary Williams won the regional mile in 4:23.5 while twin brother Larry took second in the two-mile with a 9:30 effort. Russ LaFevre earned the state with a third in the high hurdles; Chris Brown with a third in the 220 and Dave Bush with a second in the pole vault with a fine jump of 11 feet, 9 inches.

Brown also was fourth in the long jump as was LeFevre in the low hurdles.

NORTH FARMINGTON--John Mann proved himself the state's premier high jumper by soaring to victory at six feet, seven inches. He's going to Ann Arbor alone for the Raiders whose Rick Randell and Craig Succop just missed with respective fourth-place efforts in the mile and 440.

PLYMOUTH -- Tom Elias with a winning toss of 53 feet, four inches in the shot put paced the Rocks. Terry Penny was third in the effort with a toss of 50 feet.

Bruce Cavender turned in a third in the 880, Dave Derr a second in the high hurdles and the mile relay a third with Terry Wagenschutz, Mark Whittaker, Jerry Latham and Cavender carrying the baton.

* * *

STEVENSON -- Dale Wendell qualified both in the high hurdles (third) and low hurdles (second). Dale Danver's fine toss of 50 feet, one inch placed second in the shot put, while the Stevenson 880-yard relay earned the state finals with Dave Loewe, Danver, Tom Sacharski and Wendell doing the job.

GARDEN CITY WEST -- A school record of 3:25 netted West's mile relay of Dave Wilson, Bob Herrick also gained a second in the 100-yard dash and Rhoades placed third in the mile.

GARDEN CITY EAST -- Bernie Wasilewski with a second in the two-mile will have to do it alone for his school at Ann Arbor.

BENTLEY -- The two-mile relay churned up a school record of 3:27 in placing second behind Garden City West. Dan Koch, Mark Freiderichs, Joe Chemello and Bill Warren raced on the quartet for Bentley.

Hurdler Fred Howell hit the wire third in the low and he'll go to Ann Arbor, too. A sparkling effort of 50.7 seconds in the 440 by Chemello was good for fourth, but it won't get him into the state meet.

* * *

FRANKLIN -- Dave Collins raced to second in the mile and Bob Kelsey a third in the two-mile to qualify. Ironically, the Franklin 880-yard relay was clocked in a school record of 1:32.6, but that won't get them into the state. Bob Rogalski, Mark Richardson, Jeff Kind and Ron Troia formed the relay.

JOHN GLENN -- Orchids to Steve Decker, the regional high jump champ with a leap of 6-1. He's the only Glenn entry to qualify.

CLARENCEVILLE -- Brian Kent sprinted to a varsity record of 1:57 in the 880-yard and in doing so won himself a trip to East Lansing. His other mates missed out as Tim Lolly was fifth in both hurdles and Jerry Graff fifth in the 440.

SORROWS -- Bill Hartsock goes to Central Michigan, thanks to a second in the 440 in 52.05 seconds. Jerry Horner placed fifth in the 880 to miss the state.

ST. AGATHA -- Dan Sweeney leaped 5-9 for a second in the high jump and a chance at gathering in more honors in the state meet.

At all the state meets, preliminaries begin at 9 a.m., with finals following at 1:30 p.m.

Showdown Lifts East Into Lead

The chips were down and Garden City East's baseball team rose to the occasion.

East had to beat Lutheran West on Monday. And win East did, 7-2, to pull into a tie with West for the league lead in the Mid-Wayne circuit.

Both teams have 5-3 records with two loop encounters remaining.

The victory over Lutheran followed on the heels of a 9-0 romp East scored at the expense of Inkster.

Greg Pike pitched both the victories. He fanned five in the shutout of Inkster as he allowed two hits. Against Lutheran he yielded five hits, fanned six and walked two.

* * *

EAST ERUPTED for three runs in the first inning against Inkster when Bob Krol walked, Russ Clark was safe on an error and Pike walked to fill the bases and John Chute knocked them in with a double.

To clinch matters, East scored three more times in the sixth in almost identical fashion. An error gave Larry Shanks life. Pike walked and Chute singled to jam the sacks until Larry Nault cleared them with another double.

East had its scoring problems against Lutheran until the fifth inning when a six-run barrage settled the issue.

Shanks walked and Pike tripled him over. Chute singled and Greg Wilkinson was safe on an error. Gary Spencer and Tim McCarrick followed with a single and Mike Miley and Krol then dropped perfect squeeze bunts to finish the scoring for East.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM

HOME GROWN TOMATOES: Every year about this time home gardeners ask me for the name of the "best" tomato for the home garden. There is no one tomato that will perform best in everybody's garden.

For that reason, we recommend trying two or three varieties, and after you find ones that do best for your area, stick to them. If frost comes early, better steer clear of late ones. Use early varieties such as Fireball or New Yorker, if frost is a problem, as these bear fruit two weeks or so ahead of the regular types.

We suggest you also use potted tomatoes if you want to get a quicker start. These are in peat pots and are probably in blossom or in fruit by the time you get around to setting them out. Plant pot and all.

Moreton Hybrid is a fine all purpose tomato for the home gardener. It makes husky growth and we've had vines so heavy that they actually protected the fruit against frosts.

Where space is a problem you might better try growing tomatoes on a wire fence or around a wire corset. Vines are trained on the wires, (and this makes picking, spraying, much easier.)

* * *

FREE: Want to have some real good tomatoes this year? Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for my guide, How To Grow Tomatoes On A Corset. My guide tells how to have early tomatoes and every gardener should have a copy.

* * *

A GOOD FLOWER: If you want something a bit unusual, try the Four O'Clock or Marvel of Peru. They come in mixed colors and get their name "Four O'Clocks" from the fact they open in afternoon.

These plants thrive even in poor soil and grow fast. Ideal for hedges or foundation plantings. Save seed from your own plants and sow them. Colors come in pink, salmon, red, yellow and white.

* * *

A GOOD BEAN: If you're looking for a good snap bean, try the Tendercrop, a great variety. I don't know of a bean with quality any better. It's highly product, delicious, and disease resistant. Pods are brittle, tender, stringless, and have high quality for a long time on the vines. You won't find a better one for freezing.

* * *

GREEN THUMB CLINIC: A reader writes: "About four years ago we built a new home as soon as we put in a lawn, we were plagued by tiny red clover mites. Is there a control for this pest?"

Answer: Clover mites are a nuisance only, and will not injure your plants or furniture. Try spraying the basement or foundation of your home with a mitcide such as Kelthane, found in farm supply stores.

Or you might try dusting with sulfur. You find clover mites invading homes owned by good housekeepers and where lawns are better kept.

* * *

FREE: Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a copy of my bulletin Timely Turf Tips. It's full of good hints on having a good lawn.

* * *

DAZZLERS FOR SHADY SPOTS: If you have a shady spot and want to grow flowers for color, try some of these: begonias, colleus, Impatiens (Sultanas) and if the shade isn't too dense, try geraniums and petunias. Alyssum, balsam, nicotiana, pansy, lobelia, forget-me-not are other possibilities.

Suburban Gardener

Perennial Borders Can Define Yard, Drive, Patio

By BETTY FRANKEL
Special Writer

Perennial borders are a popular feature in suburbia gardens. Strip plantings of various lengths and widths can edge a walk or drive, define a patio, or partially enclose the back yard.

These perennial borders are composed of "herbaceous perennials" whose tops die back each winter but whose roots live for many years, sending up new shoots each spring.

A well designed border gives a maximum of gardening pleasure with a minimum of effort and expense. Furthermore, a perennial border gives the gardener a unique opportunity for artistic creative expression, more than any other phase of gardening.

* * *

CHOOSE A SUNNY, well-drained area, but one with ample water. Prepare the soil and enrich it thoroughly and deeply because this is a long range project.

The border will be more effective if it has a background to set off the plantings. This may be the wall of the house or garage, a fence or screen, or a row of shrubs.

Arrange the plants with tall ones at the rear, medium ones in front of these and a border or edge of low plants.

However, don't be rigid about the arrangement. A fresher, more graceful effect results if here and there a taller clump is placed near the front.

New Fescue Is Answer For Lawns

A velvety green lawn is the carpet that frames your exterior decoration and a scruffy lawn will mar the appearance of your home just as a threadbare rug in your living room does.

Having the best looking lawn on the block is easy--good seed and good maintenance practices provide most of the answers, says R.C. Kuehner, manager of Oregon Fine Leaf Fescue Commission.

The use of Oregon fescue mixtures is an investment which pays dividends in easy maintenance and green beauty. A pound of fine leaf fescue provides 600,000 tiny seeds all bursting with energy and ready to crowd out the coarse hay grasses which detract from the velvety look.

* * *

FINE LEAF FESCUES require less mowing and watering than other types of grass, say the lawn experts at the commission. Fescue lawns should be maintained at heights of 1-1/2 to 2 inches. Be sure the mower is sharp and in good operating condition.

Frequent watering is a common mistake which encourages shallow root systems and stimulates weed growth. Fescues are drought-resistant, and should not be watered until they begin to wilt slightly. Then let the water run early in the day until the soil is wet to a depth of six to eight inches.

Look for the words Oregon Chewings Fescue, Fine Leaf Fescue or Creeping Red Fescue on the lawn mix you buy--plant, fertilize, and irrigate, and you will have won the green lawn battle without firing a shot.

GET UP TO 3 TIMES MORE ROSES

Famous University reports —

"Use of Miracle-Gro increased the general vigor of rose plants considerably, with many more stronger, longer shoots and branches, much more and greener foliage, as well as double to triple the number of more beautiful blooms."

University test proves 30-second "instant action" in 5-ft. rose bush

Famous University scientists added tiny quantities of radioactive tracers to test solution of Miracle-Gro. They then applied this solution to the roots of a 5-foot rose bush. Within 30 seconds, Geiger counter registered definite activity at top of bush—proof of how fast Miracle-Gro works.

MORE UNIVERSITY TESTS DEMONSTRATE AMAZING FAST ACTION WITH SAFETY
Plant Number 3 received most liquid plant food. Visible improvement was noticed within a few days. There were absolutely no signs of fertilizer burning or forcing.

SAFE—will not "burn" even in hot dry weather when used as directed. Excellent for lawns, trees, shrubs, all flowers. ECONOMICAL.

'Green Thumb' Author Knows By Experience

Doc Abraham signs his letters with green ink and there is speculation that if he nicked himself shaving he'd bleed the same color.

Doc writes The Green Thumb column for the Observer Newspapers and 110 other weeklies and dailies across the country.

Observer readers have responded with 114 letters for forwarding to Doc at his home in Naples, N. Y. Another 43 have been received and will be whisked off to Doc.

Doc and his wife, Katy, who assists him, attended Cornell University where they both specialized in horticulture and agricultural journalism.

Abraham is a garden writer who practices what he preaches. He and his wife have owned and operated a successful greenhouse and landscape business for nearly 25 years.

* * *

THIS HUSBAND and wife team performs experiments on soils, flowers, fruits and vegetables. They test all new varieties of plants, pesticides and plant foods, both in the greenhouse and in the nursery.

They pass their findings on to Observer readers firsthand. The Green Thumb has callouses on his fingers, evidence that he's no ivory tower dirt dobber.

Abraham was named No. 1 garden column writer in America three years ago in Chicago, and last July was given the same honor by the American Association of Nurserymen.

The Green Thumb radio program is a weekly feature on WHAM in Rochester, N. Y. where Doc and Katy have been broadcasting for 17 years.

* * *

ABRAHAM HAS BEEN cited by Editor and Publisher, trade magazine for the newspaper industry. The Saturday Evening Post ran a 10,000 word article on Doc and his family operation.

Last year, The Green Thumb drew 150,000 pieces of mail. Doc is also the author of the Green Thumb Garden Handbook, a garden encyclopedia published by Prentice-Hall Inc. It is now in its third printing.

Doc's column is up-to-date and also down-to-earth and his style is clear and to the point. Doc says:

"Gardening is America's No. 1 hobby. It soothes jangled nerves and maintains good health for everyone. If you're one of the 40 million gardeners in the U. S., let us give you a hand."

That's Doc and the mail response convinces us you like what you read. And here's Doc's promise:

Sheldon Widening Advances

The widening program for Sheldon Rd. south of Northville moved appreciably by the passage of House Bill 3740, introduced by State Rep. Louis E. Schmidt, R-Livonia.

The bill, when signed by Gov. Romney, will authorize the State Administrative Board's transfer of land along the Plymouth State Home and Training School property to the Wayne County Road Commission.

The property will be transferred without any monetary consideration on the basis that the Road Commission will bear the cost of construction.

Studies are in process regarding the routing of traffic from the south, through the Northville area to I-96 and U.S. 16. A special Northville committee has also been studying alternate routes to divert traffic from Main and Center streets and has met with the County Road Commission as well as other groups in an effort to resolve the traffic bottleneck. No definite plan has been accepted to date.

Schoolcraft Sets Plans For Summer Music School

Plans for the 1968 Schoolcraft College Summer Music School which will offer four weeks of classes in chamber music and orchestral literature to advanced high school and early college students, have been announced by Wayne Dunlap, school director.

Enlarging on last summer's highly successful inaugural season, the school this year will offer an expanded faculty of professional, performing musicians covering every orchestral instrumental except percussions for the classes from July 2 to July 31.

Dunlap also announced the second season for the Schoolcraft College Summer Music Festival which this year will offer a series of three Court Concerts on Wednesday evenings, July 17, 24, and 31.

* * *

MISCHA MISCHAKOFF, long-time concertmaster with the Detroit Symphony, will be soloist on the July 17 program, and Pianist William Doppmann will return to the Festival for a performance at the July 24 concert.

Dunlap said he hoped to engage the Kenneth Jewell Chorale again this year for the July 31 concert.

"A unique feature of the school again will be its concentration on small ensemble work," Dunlap said. "The instructional approach will again provide a lot of individual attention, in addition to exposure to the type of music literature not normally offered to young musicians.

"An example of this instructional approach is the attention given to music theory for performers," Dunlap continued. "The emphasis here is development of performing style: what do the dotted notes mean in the music of Haydn; the style of bowing in Handel's music; how the brass plays in the style of Liszt, and so on."

"And of course, the student has an opportunity to play in the Festival Orchestra, as well as in the student orchestra."

* * *

TUITION FOR THE four-week school is $50. College credit is available for students who can qualify for admission to the College and on payment of the college matriculation fee and $8.50 per credit hour, for district residents.

"Once again we are going to limit admission in instrumental areas to assure balance in the composition of the ensembles," Dunlap said.

Registration for the session is scheduled for July 1, from 9 a.m. to noon in the Waterman Campus Center.

"But," said Dunlap, "students must indicate by June 15, their intent to enroll."

DETAILS ARE AVAILABLE from Dunlap at the college. Daily sessions are scheduled, except for July 4 and 5, from 8 a.m. until noon on Mondays and Wednesdays and from 8 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. on the other days. "All classrooms are air conditioned," Dunlap said. In addition to the regular classwork, private lessons will be available from members of the faculty at $5 a lesson.

Returning to the Summer School faculty will be Emily Mutter Austin and Inez Hullinger Redman, violin; David Ireland, viola; Marilyn Jones, flute; Robert Cowart, oboe; James Tamburini, brass; and Allen Shaffer, music theory.

Why don't you settle that newspaper strike?

The letter reproduced here, while dated April 15, was received by The Detroit News on May 15, 1968. The letter accompanied by petitions signed by 251 News readers carries its own message. We urge you to read it and our reply.

April 15, 1968

Mr. Martin Hayden, Editor
Detroit News

Dear Mr. Hayden,

We, the undersigned, concerned by the continuing stalemate in your labor negotiations are civically and personally disturbed by the impact you are having on the economic, political, social, educational and entertainment fields of our community.

We do not know of the righteousness of either side's stand, but we do unanimously agree that your private positions must be subordinated to the greater common good of the public.

We believe that your inability to demonstrate the statesmanship required for leadership in our great metropolitan community demands action by those of us who are most affected, the public. Therefore, we the undersigned, hereby promise, if the strike is not settled by April 30, to enforce an economic boycott upon you and the unions to bring the most pressure possible to resolve the impasse and return normalcy to our city. We promise to cancel our subscriptions on that date for a period equal to the number of days you have been on strike since November 1967.

Your good will and concern proved by successful negotiations on or before April 30 is solicited.

A copy of this letter will be sent to the President of the newspaper unions.

Mayor of Detroit

Attachment

Dear Petitioner:

As a News reader, you deserve a serious response to your petition to Mr. Hayden.

We share your disturbance over the length of the strike and your wish to settle it promptly. We'd like also to share with you some of the problems that prevent a settlement.

But first may we comment on your last sentence? There is, unfortunately, no one president of the newspaper unions. A loose confederation of newspaper unions exists and meets from time to time. It has no power to negotiate for the 14 unions nor authority to ratify the 23 separate contracts involved. The two newspapers must deal with the individual unions.

Because each union's negotiators are elected by its members, something like a political atmosphere prevails. Each negotiator tries to outdo the other in securing an advantage for his membership. This is understandable—this is partly what each is elected to do. But the effect is a leap-frogging of demands that cannot be met and can result in a long strike by one or more unions.

For a number of years and several rounds of negotiations, Detroit newspaper bargaining has been "pattern" bargaining: the first union to settle a contract set the basic money package for the other unions. The other unions have found this acceptable, until this year.

This year the Teamsters settled first (as they did in the previous round of negotiations in 1965), and settled for a large pay increase. But some other unions want more. They still are competing with the Teamsters and with one another.

While this is not merely an economic strike over questions of wages and hours, the offer accepted by the Teamsters is impressive. It would bring weekly wage scales of craft unions to a much higher rate than the average for their fellow members in the top 20 cities. For example, Detroit printers already are paid a weekly base wage of $164.09. Acceptance by the printers of the newspapers' three-year settlement with the Teamsters would bring this scale up to $175.09 weekly during the first year of a new contract. The average of the top 20 cities as of May 1, 1968, is $160.33.

Some people ask us: "If you are willing to pay such high wages why not give a few dollars more and settle this?" The answer is that money alone is not the answer.

A few unions now are trying to take advantage of this prolonged and most damaging strike to extract fundamental changes in working conditions, management control, and employment procedures. If agreed to, these changes would be detrimental to the long range economic health of the newspapers and thus of their employes.

In short, we are trying to survive.

A number of daily metropolitan newspapers have died in recent years and others are barely alive. The Detroit News is subject to the same ills, pressures and demands that killed five newspapers in New York City in a very few years.

Here are some of the demands we consider unreasonable:

- A demand that a union will decide the number of its members to be assigned to certain jobs, whether or not that number is necessary to get the job done.
- A demand that a union be permitted to control hiring so that the available work force is restricted. This would lead to more shifts at premium rates, and hence to unjustified and unnecessary extra costs to the newspapers.
- A demand that supervisors, members of management, be subject to disciplining by the union members they supervise.
- A demand that a union have control over how many newspapers may be printed within a given time, and the times at which The News will be printed.

These are but a few of the many difficult demands that have been made. Some would dilute the right of management to manage. The result would be chaos.

Acceptance of reasonable demands is one thing. Surrender to unreasonable demands for the sake of peace now would be both short-sighted and temporary. We want not only to resume publication soon—we also want to stay in publication after we resume. We believe that you, as a News reader, want that, too.

Again, thank you for the concern expressed in your petition. We care very much about our readers. We are doing everything reasonable men can do to settle these disputes and return to you the newspapers you want—now and for the years to come.

Sincerely yours,

Peter B. Clark

Dem Delegates Lean To HHH--Inconclusively

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey appears to have plurality--but not majority--support of Observerland suburban Democrats who will attend the Michigan convention in Detroit June 1-2.

But it's hard to say for certain.

Supporters of Sens. Robert Kennedy and Eugene McCarthy made noises at some of the district conventions held last Friday night, but apparently failed to capture any.

The emphasis was on picking good party workers for the state convention delegations rather than on getting into open fights over the presidential aspirants.

Rep. James O'Hara, congressman from Macomb County, predicted the 96-vote Michigan delegation will go to Chicago Aug. 26 "substantially committed" to Humphrey.

* * *

IN A NUMBER of cases across the state, Kennedy and McCarthy delegates appeared to be working in concert to block Humphrey, considered the choice of many party and labor leaders.

In the 2nd District-Wayne convention in Plymouth, the state delegate count appeared to be four each for Humphrey and McCarthy and two for Kennedy.

In the union-flavored 15th Congressional District, where Congressman William Ford has publicly endorsed Humphrey, delegates lined up behind four national convention delegates--including Westland's Mayor Thomas Brown--who are officially neutral but privately for Humphrey.

Gerald Harris, a Westland promoter of the Kennedy campaign, had indicated he would make noises for the New York senator but failed to do so.

* * *

IN THE 19th District-Wayne convention, Kennedy-McCarthy supporters lost in their bids to elect a convention chairman and to pass an "open convention" rule that would have allowed them to swarm into the state convention contingent by paying party dues.

Jerry Raymond, 19th District-Wayne chairman and a Humphrey supporter, estimated his delegation will have a majority of Humphrey backers.

In the 19th District-Oakland convention, Democratic State Chairman Sander Levin helped steer the talk toward issues and away from candidates.

Nevertheless, a Farmington leader estimated that his area's representation to the state convention will be split about 40 per cent each for Humphrey and Kennedy and 20 per cent either for McCarthy or uncommitted.

* * *

ONLY PURPOSE of the district and county conventions was to elect delegates to the state convention. District caucuses the day before the state convention (June 1) will nominate delegates to the national convention and presidential electors.

* * *

A NUMBER OF the local conventions adopted resolutions prompted by Secretary of State James Hare, Michigan's senior state office holder, on auto insurance and limitation of campaign spending.

The 19th-Wayne convention, however, turned down the campaign spending resolution because it would have required disclosure of income and wealth.

Another popular resolution called for peace negotiations in Vietnam.

REP. WILLIAM FORD

Ford Will Seek Re-Election

Congressman William D. Ford will seek reelection as the Democratic representative for Michigan's 15th District, which includes Garden City, Westland and Canton Township.

Ford was elected in 1964 as the first representative of the newly created 15th District, and was reelected two years ago.

He was appointed to the House Education and Labor Committee shortly after taking office in 1965, and last year was given a second assignment to the Post Office and Civil Service Committee.

As a member of the Education and Labor Committee, Ford has participated in the drafting and passage of all the major education legislation that has emerged from Congress in the past three years.

* * *

"WE HAVE MADE a great deal of progress, particularly through the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, and amendments to the act in 1966 and 1967," Ford said.

"However, we still have a long way to go toward helping to solve the problems of suburban school districts, such as those I represent. We must find ways to ease the tax burden on the already hard-pressed property owners."

Ford began his career in 1955, when he was elected a justice of the peace in Taylor Township. He later served as township attorney for Taylor, and as city attorney for Melvindale. He was a member of the convention which drafted Michigan's new constitution in 1960-61 and was elected to the Michigan State Senate in 1962.

A Generation Gap

By EMORY DANIELS And TIM RICHARD

It didn't make a lot of difference whether a state representative is a Republican or a Democrat on the open housing issue.

But his age and education did make a difference on last week's 76 to 31 passage of one of the most controversial bills in legislative history.

* * *

REPUBLICANS split 41 to 13 on the bill, for a mark of 76 per cent in favor.

Democrats split 35 to 17, for a mark of 67 per cent.

The median age of those backing open housing was 47 years. (This means that half were younger, half older.)

The median age of those opposed was 52.5 years.

Broken down by parties, the median Republican vote in favor was 49 years and the median Democratic age 46.

Of those opposed, the median Republican age was 61 and the median Democratic 50.

Thus, if there's a generation gap in the Michigan House, it's more evident on the Republican side. The GOP had a 12-year gap between the "yes" and "no" vote median ages, while Democrats had only a four year gap.

* * *

YEARS IN college also seemed to be a factor.

Of the House members on whom information is available, there were 60 college graduates, 19 who attended but failed to complete college, and 28 who listed no college at all.

But of the 31 who voted "no" only 10--less than 33 per cent--were college graduates, and 12 never attended college.

* * *

OBVIOUSLY, the House-passed version would never have made it to the Senate without the support of the 29 representatives who opposed open housing last year.

Cited by some legislators as factors influencing their vote change were passage of the weaker federal open housing law; adoption of local ordinances by several major Michigan cities; and a ruling by the State Supreme Court that the Civil Rights Commission has the constitutional authority to enter housing discrimination cases.

Several said they searched their conscience and decided the moral issues involved overrode their objections.

* * *

THE HOUSE version, in which the Senate concurred late last week, was somewhat weaker than the original Senate version. The House version, due to become law when signed by Gov. Romney would:

--Allow anyone charged with discrimination to have the case immediately transferred from the Michigan Civil Rights Commission to the local circuit courts.

--Permit only the court to issue orders for the sale or rental of property to a complainant.

--Guarantee that property could be transferred without future penalty to any party if the transaction was completed before a discrimination complaint was filed formally, and,

--Make it easier to find a person guilty of an unfair housing practice by requiring proof only by "the preponderance of the evidence" rather than "beyond reasonable doubt" as the Senate version read.

Space Program's Glamor Grows Dim In Congress

The space program has lost a lot of its glamour.

* * *

A $4 BILLION authorization for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) passed 262 to 105. The vote cut across party lines.

Among the Michigan supporters were the liberal Marvin Esch (R-Ann Arbor), Minority Leader Gerald Ford (R-Grand Rapids), William Broomfield (R-Royal Oak), Martha Griffiths (D-Northwest Detroit), John Dingell (D-Dearborn) and James O'Hara (D-Macomb County).

The opposition covers the whole political spectrum. There were the conservative Edward Hutchinson (R-Fennville); the moderately conservative Jack McDonald (R-Redford); GOP liverals like Garry Brown (R-Kalamazoo) and Donald Riegle (R-Flint); two liberal white Democrats, William Ford of Taylor and Lucien Nedzi of Detroit; and two Negro Democrats, John Conyers Jr. and Charles Diggs.

THEIR REASONS varied, but they boiled down to two.

For conservatives, it was a matter of holding down the budget by any means possible.

For liberals--in this case, including McDonald--it was a matter of setting up priorities for domestic spending--and space was taking second place behind the poverty program.

The poverty program has been getting appropriations in the $2 billion to $3 billion range. And so the space budget, at $4 billion, made a natural target for budget-conscious congressmen.

In McDonald's view, an item that ought to be getting more attention is oceanography--not simply the building of a bigger navy than Russia's but the scientific study of how to harvest food from the sea and feed the mushrooming world population.

School Calendar Law Starts In Fall

LANSING -- A law adopted last year requiring at least 180 days of instruction in Michigan schools, and not allowing state aid for days of teacher conferences or strikes, applies to the next school year and thereafter, State Supt. of Public Instruction Ira Polley says.

"I have been informed by the attorney general that the Legislature apparently did not intend that the law apply to the current school year," Polley said. The current school year ends in June.

The law was not given immediate effect and therefore became effective last November, several weeks after the 1967-68 school year began.

In a letter to Polley, Attorney General Frank Kelley said the Legislature gave no indication it intended the law to be retroactive to include the school year before November.

Kelley cited a Michigan Supreme Court decision which said: "It is a fundamental rule of law that the Legislature must give a clear, direct and unequivocal expression of its intent to that effect if a statute is to have retroactive effect..."

"Application of the law for this year was of deep concern for several school districts in Michigan," said State Board of Education President Edwin Novak. "Schools had their 1967-68 calendars established long before the law was effective in November and, if it were to apply to this school year, would require major adjustments for some districts.

"The attorney general's decision now clears up the issue about this year and makes it fully clear to schools that the law will apply to student instruction days beginning this fall," he said.

$ 1.6 Billion Of GI Insurance In Force

More than 210,000 Michigan veterans retain $1,557,545,000 in GI insurance.

Last year alone, insured Michigan veterans paid $24,753,000 in premiums. During the same period they collected $9,052,000 in dividends. Payments to veterans and beneficiaries totaled another $26,818,000, according to Robert M. FitzGerald, manager of the Veterans Administration regional office in Detroit.

Policies for these 210,000 veterans were divided into five groups with World War II National Service Insurance protecting 181,500 veterans. Insurance policies in effect by programs were:

PROGRAM	NATIONAL	MICHIGAN
USGLI (WWI)	224,122	7,300
NSLI (WW II)	4,632,170	181,500
VSLI (Korean vets without service disability)	629,717	21,500
SDVI (Vets discharged for service disability)	68,847	2,600
VRI (Veterans Reopened -- 1965)	199,766	7,100

In addition, more than 3,785,000 members of the military services now on active duty are insured under SGLI, which is supervised by VA but is apart from veterans insurance.

VA reports the death rate for WW I veterans was 42.5 per thousand last year. For World War II veterans it was shown as 6.1 per thousand, while Korean veterans died at the rate of 1.5 per thousand.

Some VA Loans Still Available

Some World War II veterans still have more than two years to obtain Veterans Administration guaranteed or insured loans, Robert M. Fitzgerald, Manager of the VA's Regional Office in Detroit said today.

Final deadline for World War II eligibility is July 25, 1970, he said. This applies particularly to veterans discharged from the service because of service connected disability.

Also retaining maximum eligibility to the final July 25, 1970, cutoff are widows of veterans who died from service connected disabilities.

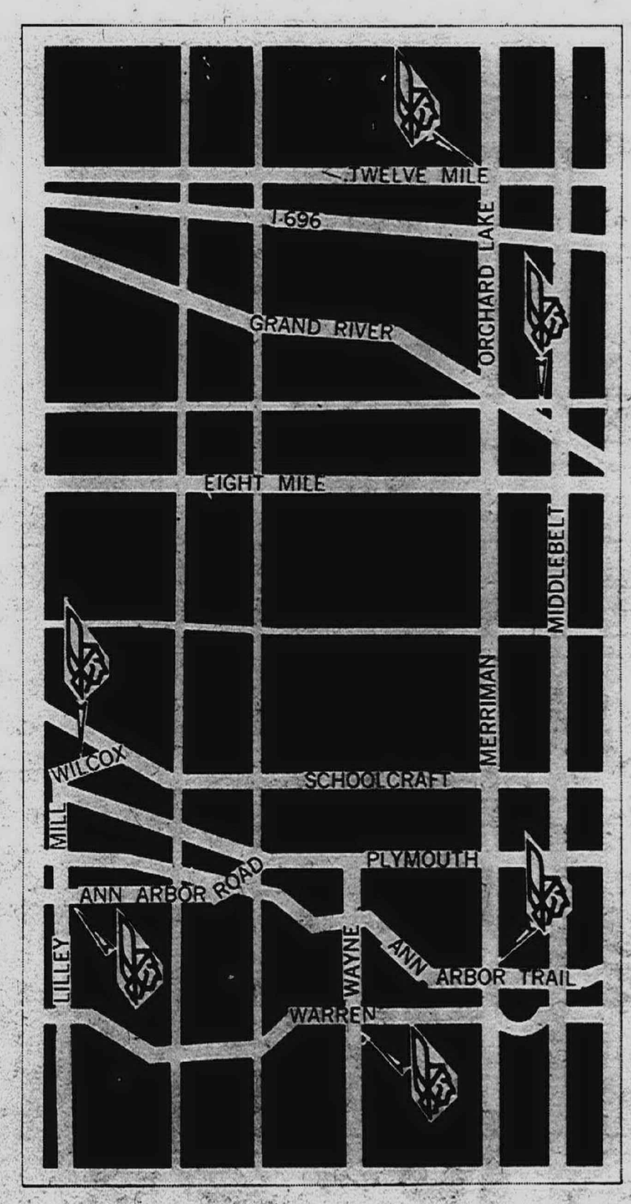

Actually, eligibility has been expiring for World War II veterans according to a formula that adds 10 years to the date of their service discharge, plus one year for each 90 days of service, plus four days for each additional day of active duty.

Thus, eligibility has already expired for many veterans and must terminate for all World War II veterans in 1970. The VA will process any loan application reaching it before entitlement expires. Since these loan applications usually are sent to the VA by private lenders, the veteran must take this into consideration.

'CURTAIN GOING UP

The 1967-68 theatrical season draws to a close in a couple of weeks. What kind of year on Broadway has it been?

Most producers, critics, and even the public will agree that it has been a sparse year creatively. The Pulitzer Prize committee couldn't find an American play that represented a noteworthy contribution to dramatic literature.

* * *

TENNESSEE WILLIAMS and his "Seven Descents of Myrtle" glowed only briefly. Critics and public alike agreed this was weak Williams. Arthur Miller's "The Price" has been mildly successful. Still "The Price" doesn't have the strength of "Death of A Salesman" or the classic power of "The Crucible". Miller seemed to be vacillating between the themes of good and evil in "The Price."

The musical stage suffered even more disasterously. "The Education of Hyman Kaplan" with Tom Bosley looked like a sure thing until after the opening. Critics bombed it.

"How Now, Dow Jones" and "The Happy Time" had lackluster musical scores. Even combining both shows you couldn't come up with three hummable tunes. And the storyline from each of them had the effect of two sleeping pills.

* * *

OFF-BROADWAY as always has been the only bright spot. "Hair," the tribal rock musical, has added a nude scene and moved to Broadway. Several new playwrights were discovered: Israel Horovitz, Matt Crowley, Bruce Friel, and Ed Bullins.

Matt Crowley's "The Boys in The Band" has attracted the most attention. "Boys In The Band" has nothing to do with music and has no connection with the weekly meeting of a normal group of tuba players.

No, "The Boys In The Band" lets you meet the normal abnormal world of the homosexual. Mr. Crowley contends that his play is not autobiographical. However, he does admit to experiencing whereof he writes.

New York critics have been lavish in their praise of this play about homosexuals since it is so realistic. It is not a squeamish presentation. Its frankness and genuine nature gives "The Boys In The Band" a fascinating, repulsive appeal.

* * *

THE APA Repertory group who will be returning to Ann Arbor for their seventh season has had a wonderful year on Broadway. They are prospering so markedly that they will be expanding their company to two units. One group will tour while the other will tend to be based more of the time in New York. The production of "The Cherry Orchard" (not seen at Ann Arbor), drew faint praise and damnation from many sides.

In Michigan the year was exciting in a controlled sort of way. While no great works of art emerged, we at least had the same copious number of theatrical attractions bombard us. The local universities and community groups continue to produce palatable fare.

In summary, while the 1967-68 theatrical season might not have been too successful artistically it, nevertheless, contained enough entertainment to make "life upon the wicked stage" quite provocative.

The Meadow Brook production of Chekhov's "The Sea Gull," final play of the Theatre's 1968-'69 Season, continues through June 2.

Performances are at 8:15 p.m. Wednesdays through Saturdays, at 6:30 p.m. Sundays, and at 1:30 p.m. each Wednesday.

African Art Group Plans Triple Event

An outstanding guest speaker, an African Art Gallery Walk and luncheon in the picturesque Rivera Court will highlight a membership-building program for the African Art Gallery Committee of the Founders Society Detroit Institute of Arts at 1 p.m. on May 25.

Participation in the African Art Gallery group is open to all interested individuals. The only requisite is membership in the museum's Founders Society.

Officers of the 34-member committee are Arthur D. Coar, Detroit; the Hon. G. Mennen Williams and Mrs. Williams, Grosse Pointe Farms; Phil C. Robinson, Detroit; and John Roundtree, Warren.

The art institute has received general commendation for its recent installation of the African Art Gallery, displaying some 150 objects. The collection was greatly embellished by the 1966 gift of Mr. and Mrs. Williams--more than 100 items collected during the former Michigan governor's service as assistant secretary of state for African affairs.

Anyone who wishes to attend the May 25 event and learn more about the gallery committee may call Mrs. Maxine Broyles Williams, 864-7594 or Mrs. Norma Gatleff, 868-0541. Tickets for the event are $5.

Luncheon guest speaker will be Miss Etta Moten, of Chicago, Ill., internationally known lecturer who will feature "Fashions and Fabrics of Africa." To illustrate her talk, she will show examples gathered on her extensive travels. The meal will be followed by a tour of the African Galleries in the museum's South Wing.

Show Opens May 31

The outstanding feature of the exhibition season at Cranbrook Academy of Art Galleries is the Student Summer Show which this year opens on May 31 and will remain up through mid-September.

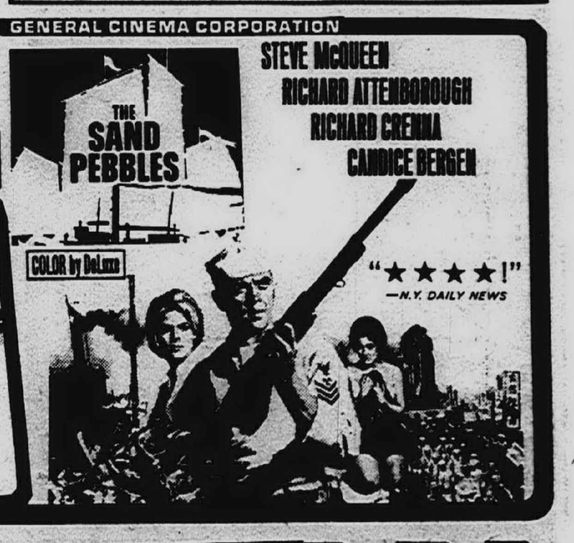

Students from all eight departments of Cranbrook Academy of Art will be represented in the exhibition. Most of these students will receive their Bachelor of Fine Arts, Master of Fine Arts or Master of Architecture degree on May 29.

All galleries, both upstairs and downstairs, will be used because of the size of the show. There are sketches and models of architectural projects; beautifully glazed ceramic pieces; design projects including furniture and paper ornaments, and pieces from the fabric design and fabric decoration departments.

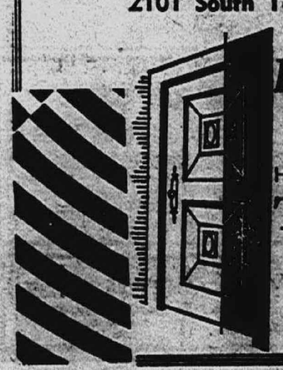

Woodcuts, etchings and prints, drawings and paintings, metalsmithing objects and large and small pieces of sculpture will round out the show.

SLEIGHT OF HAND — Karrell Fox, a new Farmington resident, is one of the nation's foremost magicians. His repertoire includes over 5,000 tricks, many of them card tricks which he rehearses for three months before performing in public.

Milky Performs Magic In A Variety Of Ways

Magician, author, clown, collector--it will be interesting to see by which of his trades Karrell Fox will be known locally after his new Farmington neighbors become acquainted with him.

In his clown makeup, Fox is instantly recognizable as Milky the Clown. He played the role for years on a children's television show and today makes numerous in-person appearances as Milky.

He may be known locally as Milky, but nationally Fox is known as one of the nation's foremost magicians. At the age of 35, Fox has 24 years of entertainment experience behind him.

* * *

It all started when an itinerant magician fled the West Virginia hotel owned by Fox's father, leaving behind a bill for room rent and a trunk full of magic equipment. Fox was then eight years old. By the time he was 11, he was appearing professionally on the strength of self-taught magic.

In his role of author--Fox has written three best-selling books on magic. "Kornfidentially Yours," which he wrote when he was 18, is considered a classic on magic.

* * *

IN HIS ROLE of collector--Fox is the owner of the largest private collection of W.C. Fields' memorabilia in the United States. His facial features are not unlike those of the late comedian and he has played Fields in three industrial movies.

The showman has also made numerous guest appearances on television including such shows as "Today" and the Sullivan show. He has also served as technical director for magic sequences in 25 films.

* * *

AND HE IS ALWAYS the showman.

He uses the cartoon figure of a fox as a trademark on his stationery, brochures and personal effects and answers the telephone at his new Farmington home with "Fox's Den."

Fox's home life is bounded by the stage. His wife, Lynn, is a dancer and has her own trio. His son, Karlin, 10, made his first stage appearance when he was five years old. Another son, Darin, two, has a few years to go before he takes his first bow.

Father Fox has over 5,000 tricks of magic in his repertoire. All of them tape recorded. This says Fox, helps him work up his routines.

The magician rehearses a new trick for three months before he tries it on stage. Performing magic on television presents problems. Fox works the bugs out of a TV trick by going through the routine inside a box surrounded on three sides by mirrors.

* * *

"The old time magicians used the big stage illusions," he explains. "They even traveled with their own railroad cars and trains. The modern magician uses a heavier dose of personality."

But Fox has not broken with one old line tradition. Like Houdini before him, Fox has "five or six tricks which nobody knows how they work," he claims. He continues, "Half of Harry Houdini's tricks went to the grave with him."

Fox explains the charm Houdini and men like himself work on an audience this way: "Magic appeals to all ages--six to 96, people enjoy a good trick. Everyone likes to be fooled."

Piano Festival June 9

Hundreds of piano students have been selected to perform in the 25th annual Michigan Music Festival, the world's largest mass piano concert, 2:30 p.m. Sunday, June 9, in Cobo Arena.

Free tickets are available at any Grinnell store.

Soloist for the program will be 21-year-old Miriam Gargarian, of Farmington, winner of the $1,000 Grinnell Foundation of Music scholarship award for 1968.

Eric Norris, Grinnell Music Stores staff organist, will conduct this year's concert. Grinnell, which supplies all the spinets, consoles, grand pianos and organs for the performance, co-sponsors the concert with the Festival Teachers Association.

The young pianists range in age from eight to 18 years and will be presented in three performing groups according to age and level of accomplishment.

LAURA KAHN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Kahn of 29545 Sugar Spring, Farmington, will be featured at a recital Tuesday, May 28, in Detroit's Baldwin Hall. On the program will be works of Chopin, DeBussy and Greig. A student at North Farmington High School, Miss Kahn has studied piano for 10 years. Robert Shulman is presenting the recital.

YWCA Sets Festival On Belle Isle

A Festival of Arts is the most apt description of this year's YWCA annual city-wide art show. For the first time, other art forms will be added to the painting and sculptures shown in previous YWCA exhibitions.

At 15 minute intervals there will be performances by two folk singing teen-aged groups, Scottish dancers, Indian dancers and demonstrations by several skilled in the art of yoga.

The Festival of Arts will be entirely free. It is scheduled to be held on the porches and grounds surrounding the Belle Isle Casino on Sunday, May 26, from 1 to 4:30 p.m.

The traditional Belle Isle pleasures of family picnicking and boat watching can be enhanced by the added attractions of the YWCA show. In the event of rain, the exhibition will still be held, since the casino will afford sufficient protection.

Many artists will demonstrate their techniques in the various media on display, such as watercolors, oils, pastels, clays, wood carving, etc. All of the over 100 entries in the show will have been executed this past season by students and teachers in YWCA art classes.

Plymouth's 'Arsenic' Postponed

"Arsenic and Old Lace," originally scheduled for presentation May 23-25, by the Plymouth Theatre Guild, has been postponed due to casting and production difficulties.

"Arsenic" has been tentatively scheduled as the guild's first 1968-69 season production in late September.

Advertisers, service clubs and patrons are being notified of the change.

The guild will hold an election of officers at its last meeting of the season Monday, May 27, at 8 p.m. in Plymouth High School.

The meeting is open to the public.

'Oh Dad' At OU

The Student Enterprise Theatre of Oakland University has begun production for "Oh Dad, Poor Dad, Mamma's Hung You in the Closet and I'm Feelin' So Sad." The avant-garde comedy by Arthur Kopit will be presented at the Barn Theatre on June 7,8, 14 and 15 at 8:30 p.m.

The story revolves around Madame Rosepettle, a slightly more than over-protective mother, who carts from country to country a stuttering, bewildered son and the stuffed body of her late husband.

Tom A. Aston, artistic director of the Student Enterprise Theatre, offers the following comments on the plot of the black comedy:

"Young Jonathon--America's youth--is a typical product of his mother's society, one in which the unreal myths and traditions about love and life have been so hammered into the ground that he seems unable to rise out of his destiny.

"He has been raised on collections of stamps, coins and intellectual books--preparation for his eventual greatness (which his mother constantly predicts). Until he achieves that status, however, he remains locked up in the Havana hotel suite, complete with black drapes to facilitate his mother's mourning.

"Madame Rosepettle wheels her point home by luring to her hotel suite wealthy lovers--Commodore Roseabove in this instance--and then destroying their amorous advances by describing her frustrated sexual experience with an ugly, inadequate husband whom she ultimately murdered.

"And when Jonathon falls in love with Rosalie, 'the girl next door,' his mother brings her to him, only to later expose her as a promiscuous seductress. This all ends drastically (involving the destruction of Mme. Rosepettle's pet piranha and carnivorous Venus flytraps) with Madame's innocent and ultimate question, 'What is the meaning of this?'"

France Nears Total Paralysis As Strikes Spread

PARIS -- France is sinking toward total paralysis as more workers occupy factories, mines, and offices.

Both government and strike leaders are striving to avoid a test of force, but the specter of popular hardship is growing.

Depositors staged a run on banks but some banks managed to serve their clients for the day by rationing withdrawals. However, their source of cash, the Bank of France, closed Tuesday.

Estimates of the number of strikers ranged from six to 10 million, the latter being half the nation's wage-earners. The strike began last week as a spontaneous expression of discontent with labor's share of French prosperity and developed into a direct political test of power.

Most of the nation's productive industry came to a stop Monday. Ports fell silent and barge traffic halted. General de Gaulle, who rushed home from Romania over the weekend, remains silent also.

WASHINGTON -- The United States is telling its NATO allies it cannot keep 300,000 American servicemen in Europe indefinitely. Our European allies are being asked to assume a greater share of their own defense and to help cure the U.S. balance of payments deficit caused by the outflow of dollars to sustain U.S. troops in Europe.

Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford has reportedly told NATO defense ministers that the extent of help on the payment deficit may be a determining factor in future U.S. troop support and expenditures on behalf of NATO.

Police report 38 persons killed, six missing, 246 injured, and 9,000 homeless, with damage estimates at hundreds of millions of dollars. At the nearby American Air Force Base in Misawa, the quake did $10 million damage and caused minor injury to 29 airmen and dependents.

★

SAIGON -- U.S. troops reported killing 107 enemy troops in S. Vietnam's northern sector last week as the allies braced for widespread attacks on Ho Chi Minh's birthday.

The fighting near Khe Sanh and south of Da Nang left 28 Americans dead and 135 wounded. Military officials report 22 U.S. Marines killed and 81 wounded in Operation Allen Brook, a drive aimed at rooting out enemy troops menacing Da Nang.

After several weeks of playing down anti-Jewish themes, the official news agency PAP published an article bitterly critical of the Judenrat government that ran the ghettos in Nazi-occupied Poland. The article claimed the Judenrats delivered valuable Jewish property to the Nazis and sent their own families to death.

★

PRAGUE -- Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin has assured Czech reformists their liberalizing moves will be "met with understanding" in the Kremlin and apparently gave them hope of receiving a Soviet loan.

Kosygin conferred with Czech leaders last week in the midst of their tense dispute over the Czech "democratic socialist revolution." Believed to be a main topic of discussion is a $400 million loan needed by the Czechs to rescue their floundering economy.

★

THE FORMER president of Ecuador, Galo Plaza Lasso, has been chosen as the new leader of the 22-nation Organization of American States. Plaza Lasso, who was born in New York and educated in the States, was installed in the $32,000-a-year-job in Washington over the weekend. He beat out five other diplomats for the job in the most prolonged and heated election in OAS history. He is the fourth secretary-general of the 20-year-old organization.

★

SANTIAGO, Chile -- Eduardo Frei has entered the slow political eclipse reserved for Chilean presidents. He cannot succeed himself and has two and a half years left in his six-year term and is faced with problems on all sides.

With his political leverage diminishing, Frei must grapple with: inflation; strikes by teachers, postal and telegraph workers; dissension from the left wing of his ruling party which is calling for a common front with the Communist party for the 1970 presidential election; and, political scene-stealing by candidates preparing for the 1969 congressional and 1970 presidential elections.

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic -- President Joaquin Balaguer's Reform party has apparently won last week's local elections but its victory margin will be smaller than in the 1966 presidential election that put Balaguer in office.

Opposition parties charging persecution by the government and military, called for a boycott of the balloting. An estimated 40 per cent of the voters stayed away from the polls.

★

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti -- A plane flew over the Haitian capital Monday and dropped several bombs, one of which exploded near the presidential palace. The local newspaper reported it was a small bomb and did not hit anyone and that the other bombs apparently did not explode.

Haiti's U.S. ambassador blames the attack on Haitian exiles and Cubans. The bombing came on the 66th anniversary of Cuba's independence.

★

MOSCOW -- The official Soviet newspaper, Izvestia, has accused U.S. Embassy Second Secretary Jon S. Lodeesen of being a spy. Izvestia charged Lodeesen's mission is "to carry out psychological undermining and intelligence activities." The attack came just six days before he was scheduled for transfer to Brussels.

★

BONN, Germany -- Chancellor Kurt Kiesinger called off a visit to Spain and Portugal next week, explaining that he had to tend to urgent affairs troubling his coalition government.

Kiesinger canceled the visits to attend the final reading of a controversial draft emergency bill which will appear before the parliament next Wednesday. The legislation would empower a special federal authority to act without parliamentary control during times of crisis which critics compare to Hitler's 1933 seizure of power.

ROME -- Early returns of Italy's parliamentary elections show a move away from Premier Aldo Moro's three-party coalition toward the far left. Italy's Communist party, the largest in the West, gained 30 per cent of the vote with help from Socialist dissidents, an increase from the 23.6 per cent the Communists won alone in 1963. The trend, however, was not considered decisive and the three parties have pledged to form another coalition government.

★

HAVANA -- Premier Fidel Castro plans to eliminate Cuba's military draft in a move to raise the quality of the armed forces. He said the draft will be replaced by a system where both sexes will get military training as part of their education.

Currently, males 15 to 27 are liable for three years' compulsory service with few deferments given. Castro hopes to get more qualified technical personnel in the regular armed forces, estimated at more than 200,000.

★

CAIRO -- Western diplomats reported last week that Cairo is ready to end the state of war with Israel and cede to Israeli shipping the right to use the Straits of Tiran if Israel agrees to withdraw troops from Arab territory conquered during last June's six-day war.

★

SAIGON -- President Nguyen Van Thieu announced the appointment of Tran Van Huong as S. Vietnam's new premier nine hours after accepting Nguyen Van Loc's resignation at an emergency cabinet meeting.

Loc is a close associate of Air Vice Marshal Nguyen Cao Ky who is strongly opposed to American efforts to end the war by negotiation and compromise. In his resignation statement, Loc declared his country faces grave danger from the Paris talks.

LONDON -- An agent for an anonymous American bought a 10-inch bronze figure of the goddess Juno for $76,800 at a Sotheby auction. It was cast from an original by Venevenuto Cellini in the 1540-45 period.

YOU CAN PLAY BRIDE OR MOMMY — Five-year-old Kara Dietrich (left) tells sister Sharlin, three, how it is when you dress up and play with dolls at nursery school. With them is their mother, Mrs. Marilyn Dietrich, who will be president of the Bulman Cooperative Nursery next year when Kara goes on to kindergarten and Sharlin begins her nursery school experience.

Nursery Orientation Planned

Parents who will enter a cooperative nursery for the first time will get special orientation in a program planned by Bulman Co-op, which has three groups of pre-schoolers meeting in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Redford Township.

An orientation tea is planned Sunday afternoon so parents can see the nursery's equipment and meet the teacher, Mrs. Joan Suda. Mrs. Suda will speak, along with president Marilyn Dietrich.

Later six coffee-hours are planned, when the new participants will have a chance to learn more of the nursery system and get to know each other. Those interested in enrolling their three or four-year-olds may call membership chairman Martha Wendell at 425-1611.

The present classes are winding up their year, with a trip to Upland Hills farm planned Friday, May 24, and final day picnics for each session the last week in May.

Foremans Mark 60th Anniversary

A Plymouth couple who began married life homesteading in the Oklahoma territory celebrated Anniversary No. 60 last weekend.

On hand to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Foreman at a Saturday dinner in Salem Hall, Salem, were 55 relatives, including all 21 of the couple's great grandchildren.

Delbert and Viola Foreman, married May 18, 1908, moved from Oklahoma to Kansas a few years after the wedding, and their seven children grew up there.

* * *

FOREMAN RAN a farm and also worked 25 years for the Katy Railroad.

As the children grew up, they began a migration to Plymouth. Daughter Ethel, now Mrs. Joe Skaggs, moved north first, and later sons Clinton, Dale and Cleo, came with their families, as did the other daughter, Mrs. Freda Groom.

Dale Foreman now lives in Livonia, and Cleo was killed in an accident four years ago.

MR. AND MRS. DELBERT FOREMAN

Two sons are still in the west, Alvin of Kansas City and Earl of Altamont, Kans.

THE ELDER FOREMANS joined the move to Plymouth 14 years ago.

All the Michigan contingent of the family, which includes 23 grandchildren, were present for the anniversary celebration at the Salem Hall.

m. m. memos

The dandelion season has been quieter than usual in our household.

There have been occasional yellow noses, and one bouquet of the earliest blooms came into the house.

But this year I haven't had the several-times-a-day offerings of yellow flowers that had to be put into water. And not nearly as many small fingers, blackened by the sticky juice, have needed scrubbing.

I've even had a little assistance in digging the things out of the lawn.

Usually, when I suggest ridding the lawn of its yellow polka-dots, I get all kinds of argument about how pretty they look there. Besides, they are so much fun to blow after they go to seed, and it's even more fun to watch Mother cringe when she thinks of how many more plants there will be after that blow.

The man of our house has always been a bit of a dandelion fancier himself, and has tended to side with the girls when it came to the question of whether the plant is a weed, as I contend, or a flower, as they argue.

This year, though, he seems to be on my side.

He must have done a bit of digging, because recently he came up with a fascinating theory on dandelions.

Those yellow heads poking up through the lawn, he says, are really Chinamen from the other side of the earth getting ready for the takeover.

Father knows best, so dig, girls, dig!

New Kellogg Foundation Grant Given Continuum

A $230,000 grant from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation to support a unique educational and service program for mature women has been accepted in behalf of Oakland University by the Michigan State University Board of Trustees.

The grant is for support over a four-year period of Oakland's Continuum Center for Women, which since its founding in 1965 has helped more than 1200 women find creative outlets outside the home for their talents and energies. The program was made possible originally by a two-year grant from the Kellogg Foundation.

In announcing the grant, an official of the Foundation said: "We have great respect for the fine program and the vital service being provided by the Continuum Center for Women. We are particularly pleased to assist the Center in aiding other educational institutions to develop similar programs.

* * *

THE CONTINUUM CENTER offers a multifaceted program designed to help women, as individuals in metropolitan areas, to discover and exploit their optimum roles in society beyond the traditional ones of homemaking and child-rearing.

Deploring the "empty-nest syndrome" which psychologists say affects most women after their children have left home, the university believes women want creative outlets for their talents and energies and that the nation needs feminine aptitudes often largely unused outside the home.

The program was begun after several years of planning conducted by the Division of Continuing Education at Oakland University, with aid from the American Association of University Women, the League of Women Voters, the Junior League, and other similar organizations. Educators, psychologists, and business and professional groups also are lending counsel and support.

* * *

SALIENT FEATURES of the program include psychological testing and counseling; a central site on the Rochester campus of Oakland University to offer counsel for the adult woman who needs guidance at a stage in life when either transition or stagnation beckons; and a permanent bureau of specialist advisers in the areas of education, volunteer placement and employment.

Two of the main aims of the center are to assist in aiding national replication of the Investigation Into Identity program, and to conduct a national invitational conference to share with other institutions the skills learned in the developmental years of the project.

New 'Identity' Program Will Begin June 18

For the first time, this year, the Oakland University Continuum Center will offer a summer edition of its "Investigation into Identity" series on the campus near Rochester.

The 11-session program designed to help women find their best roles in society has been given up to now in the fall and winter months.

The Center has announced it will be given from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays beginning June 18 and continuing through July 18.

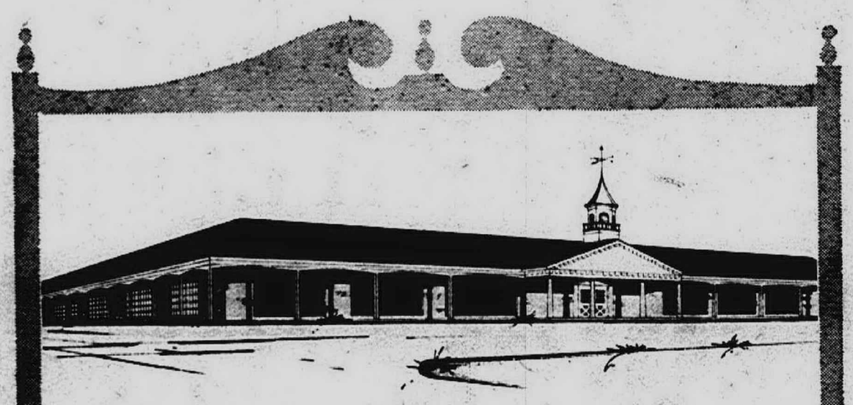

Women interested in registering may call 338-7211, extension 2146.

She's Selling School Needs To Plymouth

Joanne Hulce's big aim in life these days is to convince voters in the Plymouth Community School district that their school tax dollar buys a tremendous bargain.

The diminutive member of the school board is hurrying from one meeting and coffee hour to another to tell voters that the millage increase asked in the upcoming vote June 10 is one urgently needed. Other school leaders are doing the same.

"We're trying," Mrs. Ray Hulce explained between meetings, "to set up as many home gatherings as we can, to clarify issues, answer questions, help people see the total picture."

JOANNE HULCE realizes the whole question is a complicated one, and thinks it not surprising that many people are confused about it.

"There certainly was a lot I didn't understand before I got involved as I am," she said.

But one thing she does want the voters to know is that only part of the proposed increase in the tax bill--amounting to $4.20 per $1,000 valuation--represents the new millage request.

"A mill and a half was previously authorized and is only now being assessed," Mrs. Hulce said.

"THE SCHOOL BOARD realizes that the taxpayers' burden is large, and held off assessing the extra money until absolutely necessary.

"Now it is necessary for operation of our facilities, and we must ask the extra mill and a half and authorize bonds to build new schools and meet the needs of the great growth in the district."

SHE SAID conservative estimates indicate the next year will bring about 1000 new children into the system, and the year after that 1,200 more.

"We're searching constantly for more economical ways to good education," she said, "but we feel we must provide the best we can."

Joanne Hulce also wants to be sure Plymouth Community School District voters know the system they now are financing is not an expensive one as compared with other communities in the district.

Pointing to a brochure put out in connection with the election, she noted that only two of 20 districts listed have operating costs lower than Plymouth's, and at least five have current costs higher than Plymouth's projected cost if the millage increase is approved.

JOANNE REALIZES that somewhere along the line "we are going to have to explore different ways of financing schools--at the state and federal level as well as the local."

Mrs. Joanne Hulce

"But I would hate to see planning leave the local level," she added. "Every area has different needs."

Deep involvement in the school picture is a natural outgrowth of lots of community activity in a town picked deliberately by Joanne and Ray Hulce as a fine spot to raise their children.

They moved to Plymouth 14 years ago, coming from Dearborn and picking the area because it was a lot like Whitewater, Wis., the college town where botir lived as children.

JOANNE GREW UP with talent and appreciation for music, and had two years of music school before launching her career.

She had several roles in opera and other productions in Chicago and New York before becoming soprano soloist with Phil Spitalny's radio program "The Hour of Charm" during the 1940's.

At that point Ray Hulce was earning his master's degree at Columbia University. He and Joanne were married in 1947, he joined the Ford Motor Co. and the Hulces became Michigan residents.

THEIR FAMILY includes Susan, now 20 and studying physical therapy at the University of Michigan, Steven 19, a freshman at Northwestern University; Barbara, in the tenth grade at Plymouth High School, and Tom, a ninth-grader at East Junior High.

Their home is a rambling farmhouse--at least partly 100 years old--and beautifully remodeled according to Joanne's specifications.

"The remodeling is almost complete," she said, "but I suppose there always will be something else I want to do."

Joanne's activities in Plymouth were many prior to her appointment to the school board post two years ago and election to a three-year term last spring.

* * *

WITH HER MUSICAL background she gravitated to the Plymouth Symphony and served as a member of the board, president of the Symphony Women's League and chairman of the Symphony Balls. She also got off the ground such activities as the symphony's geranium sale and Fall Festival Antique Mart, and has worked on pop concerts and theater parties--as well as singing with the symphony on a few occasions.

Joanne Hulce also has been president of the Women's Study Club and the Plymouth Antique Club, an area captain for the Community Fund Drive, a cancer society and fall festival worker and has headed Plymouth committees for the Meadowbrook Festival and the Metropolitan Opera.

ACTIVE IN many PTA projects, she was appointed to a Citizens Committee to study a millage proposal in 1965, and the next year to the citizens facility study committee which resulted in the five-year facility plan now under way.

Her contribution to that study was analysis of present elementary and junior high facilities and projected needs.

Joanne Hulce is optimistic about the coming vote.

"I feel sure that if people in the area understand it's a minimum and necessary proposal," she said "they will support it."

Meet Set On Needs Of Women

Marygrove College will be the scene of an all-day conference on women's needs Saturday, May 25, beginning at 9:30 a.m.

The conference call was directed to organizations containing working women in all forms of employment, from domestic service to the professional-technical-managerial level. Unions, professional associations, social organizations and religious groups were among those being encouraged to attend.

The conference will have as its objective a common program for presentation to the new Occupational and Safety Standards Commission. One of the problems to be discussed will be whether there is a continued need for legal protection for working women in matters like maximum hours regulations and weight lifting limitations.

The conference will be headed by Eloise Spencer of the Metropolitan YWCA. The keynote speaker will be Dr. Ethelene Crockett, of Crittenton Hospital.

The conference will be divided into six workshops for specific on-the-job recommendations. Those workshops will cover the following occupational generalizations: (1) professional - technical - managerial; (2) clerical-sales-communications; (3) service; (4) manufacturing (auto); (5) manufacturing (non-auto); (6) processing.

Each workshop will be assigned a discussion leader, reporter and resource people to facilitate discussion and decision making. The workshops will report to an afternoon plenary session for full conference acceptance.

A $3.00 registration fee will include lunch. Advance reservations should be directed to Sister Mary Avila, Marygrove College.

Dance Will Fund PA For School

The Nankin Mills Parents Club will sponsor a dinner dance from 7 p.m. to 1 a.m. Friday, May 24 at Roma Hall.

Announcing the forthcoming dinner, at which will be established the Paul Zuckerman Family Forest in Israel, Lou Berry, chairman, said, "This is a momentous occasion for Detroit Jewry and the Jewish National Fund, and only fitting that a person of such fine humanitarian stature as Paul Zuckerman should be selected."

His present communal activities include, vice-president and executive board member, Jewish Welfare Federation; vice-president and executive vice-president, United Jewish Charities of Detroit; national chairman, United Jewish Appeal; director, United Foundation of Detroit; director, Sinai Hospital; director, National American ORT; director Detroit Round Table Catholics, Jews and Protestants; advisory board, Wayne State University Press; director, Franklin Hills Country Club; and member of the Hundred Club of Detroit and the United States Food for Peace Committee.

He has also received citations from the Jewish War Veterans and Fresh Air Camp Society, and a certificate of appreciation from the City of Detroit.

Among the many Paul and Helen Zuckerman benefactions is the gift of a library site to West Bloomfield Township and the new 300-seat auditorium Conference Center at Sinai Hospital, to be dedicated on June 17, 1968, which was described by Sinai President, Nate S. Shapero, as "a gift ranking with the largest ever made to the hospital."

In 1961 and 1962, Zuckerman headed the Allied Jewish Campaign of Detroit, raising almost $5 million each year to support local community agencies and to aid Jews in all parts of the world. When war broke out last year in the Middle-East, he was immediately made chairman of the vital Israel Emergency Foundation.

* * *

BORN MAY 31, 1912 in Istanbul, Turkey, Zuckerman has carved a deep niche in the world of culture, human relations and business.

Some of the many enterprises in which Zuckerman has been involved include owning a fishing fleet in the Red Sea, a meat packing plant in Ethiopia, an egg-cracking plant in Israel separating and exporting frozen yolks and whites, a hotel on Aruba off the coast of Venezuela, suburban housing and shopping centers in Florida and Michigan, cattle raising in California, golf courses, driving ranges, etc.

PAUL ZUCKERMAN

display the main Zuckerman product—the first time peanut butter ever was on official exhibit to interest European trade.

* * *

Bishop Loder Head Of Community Forum

Bishop Dwight L. Loder has accepted the permanent chairmanship of the Southeastern Michigan Community Forum and issued an immediate call for community interest and action.

The head of Michigan Methodism, who has been heading the Forum's executive committee on interim basis, cited the human relations project as a "first" in American history.

The Forum, a creation of the Interfaith Action Council, will seek through five Monday evening television programs to blunt white racist attitudes toward Negroes of inner-city ghettos.

* * *

THE PROGRAMS will be carried at 7:30 p.m. over WWJ-TV, Channel 4, with thousands of volunteer home conversation sponsors inviting friends and neighbors to view the documentary films on family television sets, discuss them according to an available Discussion Guide, then report back on their group findings.

One program already has been presented on Monday, May 20, and subsequent programs will be given May 27 and June 10, 17 and 24.

* * *

IN ACCEPTING the permanent chairmanship, Bishop Loder stressed the need for whites, through a change of attitudes, to open up ever more opportunities for black people in the areas of jobs, housing, financing and education.

"This is the first time, to our knowledge," he said, "that such a vast effort has been made to meet and deal with this human problem on a mass scale, yet stressing the individual person.

"After studying the content of the five projected programs, I am convinced we are approaching the question objectively and intelligently and rather than with emotion, with a deep sense of understanding and sensitivity."

THE REV. ROBERT L. JORDAN, a member of the executive committee and a spokesman for Detroit's Negro Clergy, praised the films' executive producer, Arthur Alpert, New York documentary specialist, for "avoiding the sordid side of ghetto life and its hopeless aspects."

"Rather, he is helping the people of the ghetto realize their potential," he said, "and helping to show them that within themselves they have the power and the ability to improve matters."

DEVELOPERS of the series, which bears the over-all title of "In Your Own Interest," estimate that more than 8,000 home conversation sponsors held group meetings in their homes and elsewhere involving more than 100,000 people.

The New Detroit Committee has pledged $50,000 toward the film production costs of the series, and at a meeting of the executive committee a resolution was passed asking New Detroit to up that figure to $90,000 to cover additional production costs, including $10,000 for a scientific evaluation of the "feed-back" questionnaires.

Witnesses Set Conclave In Livonia May 29-June 2

Some 2,000 members of the Jehovah's Witnesses, representing congregations in seven communities, will participate in the sect's semi-annual spring Bible conclave in Stevenson High School, Livonia, May 31 to June 2.

Witnesses will be present from Livonia, Farmington, Wayne, Westland, Garden City, Redford and Belleville congregations, all part of the Michigan Circuit #5.

The convention theme will be "Being Strengthened in the Faith."

Several members of the local congregations will appear on the program. E. DeCarlo will speak Friday evening on the subject "Examine Your Work. Does It Make You Glad?"

Saturday afternoon R.W. Seibert, of Farmington, will address the audience on "Let Anyone Hearing Say 'Come' " based on Revelations 22:17.

The convention's main address will be "Why Does God Permit Wickedness?" by L.E. Reusch, district supervisor of Jehovah's witnesses in this area, on Sunday, June 2.

Reusch, a traveling representative of the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society will join ministers from the Livonia congregation in calling on residents in home missionary service before the convention begins.

Pre-convention activity for the Livonia group also will include showing of a film entitled "God Cannot Lie" at 7 p.m. Wednesday, May 29, in Kingdom Hall, 27484 Ann Arbor Trail. Reusch will narrate and the public is invited.

Church Leaders Join Calvary Services

Calvary Church will dedicate its new building, Sunday, May 26, at 3 p.m. The church is located at 29850 West Six Mile, Livonia.

Dr. Kenneth Geiger, of Elkhart, Ind., general superintendent of the United Missionary Church, will deliver the dedicatory address. Assisting in the dedication service will be the Rev. J.E. Tuckey, of Flint, superintendent of the church's Michigan District. The choir and William Balmer, soloist, will present the musical portion of the program.

Other guest speakers for the day will be Dr. R.P. Pannabecker, former pastor and presently president of Bethel College, Mishawaka, Ind., at the 10:45 a.m. worship service, and the Rev. Harry Dickerson, Wichita, Kan., a former pastor, at the 7 p.m. evening service.

Other features include a baptistry, new organ, new pianos, and spire speakers for playing of chimes outside before and after the services.

Pastor Arnold Schmidt and the Calvary congregation invite the public to attend the services and to tour the new church building Sunday and during the coming week.

Inner-City Pastor Will Speak

The Rev. David Eberhard, a well-known Pastor from Detroit's inner-city will speak in St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Middlebelt at Eight Mile, Farmington, at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, May 28.

Rev. Eberhard is pastor of the Riverside Lutheran Church on the Lower East Side of Detroit.

In his talk, he will discuss the Christian attitude toward the Negro, especially during riots, whether Christians should bear arms for self-protection during riots and he will also tell what happened in Riverside parish during the rioting last summer and during the recent crisis.

A question and answer period will follow.

Pastor Eberhard is well-known throughout the country for his leadership in community life and is classified as one of the outstanding civic leaders of America.

He has been acclaimed as responsible for developing a dynamic parish program, which is thoroughly community oriented. He has appeared in Life Magazine, on the Mike Douglas Show and in July of 1967 CBS presented a nation-wide documentary on his work.

This program has been arranged by St. Paul's Women's League and is open to the public.

Dinner Will Mark 'Six Days In June'

The first anniversary of the historic Six Days in June will be celebrated at a city-wide dinner being sponsored by the Detroit Committee for State of Israel Bonds on Tuesday, June 4 at 6:30 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of Cobo Hall, it was announced today.

Coming from Israel to address the gathering will be His Excellency Menachem Begin, member of the Cabinet of the State of Israel, founder and head of Israel's second largest political party, Herut, and a renowned pioneer Zionist figure.

Since shortly before the outbreak of the Six-Day War, Begin has been a minister without Portfolio in the "wall to wall" coalition Cabinet that was formed to meet the emergency.

A native of Poland, Begin has been in the forefront of the Zionist movement since his youth. After his graduation as a lawyer at Warsaw University in 1935, he helped to organize "illegal" immigration from Poland to Palestine.

Begin has traveled widely on a number of missions for Israel and has published many articles in the Israeli and foreign press. His experiences in the dramatic days before the proclamation of the State are recounted in his book "Revolt", which has been translated into major European languages.

The dinner on June 4 will symbolize Detroit's salute to the heroic defenders of Israel during the Six Days in June of 1967, and will also help to advance Israel's progress under freedom through the Israel Bond support of its economic development.

READY FOR DEDICATION — The First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Plymouth, will have its formal dedication ten years after its building. Christian Scientists hold off dedication until their churches are free of debt.

Built In 1958

Paid In Full 10 Years Later

Christian Scientists of the Plymouth area will hold special services on Sunday, May 26, marking the dedication of their church edifice at 1100 West Ann Arbor Trail.

Two services will be held, one at 10:30 a.m. and a second at 4 p.m. Sunday School will be held during morning services only, but the Infant's Room will be open during both services.

* * *

SERVICES IN THE present church were first held on October 19, 1958.

It is Plymouth's second Christian Science church. The first was the steepled brown shingle edifice which was razed to make way for the construction of the City Hall.

This building had the distinction of being the first one erected in Michigan as a Christian Science church.

The cornerstone of the first building was laid in July 1903, and dedication services were held on October 3 of that year.

* * *

Invitations to the dedication have been sent to all church denominations and the services are open to the public.

Basement Waterproofing Basement Waterproofing

End Basement Flooding!
Install an Automatic Backwater Valve
Prevents Water in Floor Drains
From Backing Up!

This is how "DRAIN GUARD" works:

In normal position, drain water is always free to flow through "Drain Guard" into the sewer.

BUT

the instant any sewer water starts to back up, the rubber float rises and acts as a check valve to prevent any water from flooding basement.

Insure against flood damage with

Drain-Guard

Anyone looking forward to celebrating The 2nd Annual Detroit Riot this summer...

The illness has nothing at all to do with skin color. It can affect whites just as potently as it can blacks. With the same ultimate results.

Rumor has it some people already have the bug. Their numbers are few. And they can be controlled.

We can stop them cold with some individual responsibility on the part of every sane citizen, black and white, in metropolitan Detroit.

You see, even the sickest minds in our community can't go anywhere unless a whole lot of healthy people help them out.

State Aide Urges 'Values' Courses

Appeal by a member of the State Board of Education for "the rapid development of a course that can be used in our public schools to teach our students about values and how these are important to our society" brought comments from a Livonia educator that the district's schools already are engaged in teaching values in many ways.

But the suggestion by Dr. LeRoy Augenstein that "Specifically, we need a course which at least will provide an intensive survey of comparative religions and ethical systems, and then show how our personal values, as well as those of our society and institutions have been built upon these," brought no promise of cooperation from Dr. Paul E. Johnson, assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum.

* * *

"UNFORTUNATELY," Augenstein said, "I am not aware of any school system that is doing this."

Dr. Johnson said he believed the "comparative religions" angle was stepping into a controversial area, and that he was skeptical of what degree of success could come from it.

DR. PAUL R. JOHNSON
'It's Been Tried . . . '

DR. LEROY AUGENSTEIN
'Needed: Values . . . '

He cited Indianapolis, where he was a top school executive 10 years ago before coming to Livonia, as having experienced the experimental program.

"We have many other areas requiring priority," Dr. Johnson said. He had not attended a recent meeting in Livonia addressed by Augenstein and at which some ideas were expressed as to teaching needs.

The session was held at Whittier Junior High School, where Dr. Bruce M. Hudson is principal, and was attended by junior high and elementary teachers and parents, but not by the administrative officials from the Central building.

The discussion was not called to headquarters' attention, but was reported in a news release from Lansing, apparently intended for the attention of educators throughout the state.

The State Board member emphasized:

"Actually, we need more than one text so that teachers can choose widely--because the public schools must never teach a single set of values.

"Rather, the course I hope to see will give a broad perspective of the various values available in the world. Ultimately, each youngster must be aided in his final choice of values by his parents and church."

Augenstein urged parents and teachers alike to insist that such material be taught as early as the eighth and ninth grades so that youngsters will have a basis from which to understand their later high school courses in history, social sciences and humanities.

* * *

"WE NEED SOMEBODY right now to take the lead in devising either a course outline or textbook which can be used by teachers in their classrooms," he said. "This is how the job will or will not be done, rather than by resolutions passed by me and my colleagues on the state board."

Augenstein pointed out that he has given over 1,000 speeches in the last five years urging that "we devote more of our teaching to giving our students a broader base for making value judgments: throughout this series I have emphasized that our values need to catch up with our scientific progress.

"The tragic events at Columbia University provide still another reason why we need to provide our students with a better set of values early in life. Both the protesters and those dealing with them sadly neglected fundamental principles when a small noisy minority was allowed to deprive 27,000 other students of an education.

* * *

"FORTUNATELY, I know from speaking to many, many groups that parents, educators and civic leaders throughout Michigan feel we must do much more in this area, and quickly. Thus, I am hopeful that a text or even better, a number of texts, may be available very soon."

Augenstein pointed out that "a group of educators have been working on the general outline of such a course. Dr. John Choltz, president of Lutheran College in Detroit, testified to this need at the Constitutional Convention in 1962, and others have also talked about it. What we need now, is to galvanize action so that teachers will have course material available this next academic year."

Telescope To Get 'Big Picture'

WASHINGTON -- The next giant step in astronomy should be the placing of a 120-inch telescope into orbit--where clarity of view should let it see a universe 1,000 times the size of that revealed by the largest earthbound telescopes.

This will be the recommendation of the committee on large space telescopes of the National Academy of Sciences, in a report to be made public soon.

Such a telescope could see objects 250 times fainter than the faintest now seen. Its range of view would be 10 times as far as the farthest galaxies now seen. The light from distant stars it might receive would be some tens of billions of years old.

Planning for the telescope, which would operate automatically but be tended by astronauts at need, should begin at once, the committee will say.

* * *

THE 120-INCH TELESCOPE would equal in size the world's second largest now in operation at Lick Observatory in California. The committee wants it to be in earth orbit within the next 10 years--hopefully by 1975. But by being above the atmosphere it should be much more accurate and far seeing.

Astronauts would have to tend such a telescope occasionally because all of its systems must be maintained, repaired or replaced in orbit.

The space capsule containing the telescope and its supporting equipment would therefore probably have to be pressurized so "the astronauts can work in shirt-sleeve environment."

The manned space station would also probably be needed for:

- The initial alignment and adjustment of the telescope and its scientific instrumentation.
- Maintenance of the equipment.
- Modifications of the system as required by technological advances.

* * *

WHEN IN OPERATION the telescope should be able to point precisely any desired object in the sky. Its accuracy of one arc-second matches the image of a typical star as seen through earth's atmosphere.

The world's largest telescope --the 200-inch on Mount Palomar--can detect stars as faint as magnitude 23 through the atmosphere. That is 17 magnitudes fainter than is visible to the naked eye.

From space the LST star image would have an area somewhat less than 1/100 the area of the same star seen from within the atmosphere.

This would mean that the 120-inch in space should be able to detect objects as faint as 29th magnitude, or 250 times fainter than from earth's surface, and 250 times as far away.

Doctor Lyman Spitzer, director of Princeton University Observatory, presented a preliminary report on the proposed large space telescope to the American Astronomical Society's 126th annual meeting at the University of Virginia.

* * *

THE 120-INCH SPACE telescope should be able to switch from one star to another in an entirely different part of the sky in less than 10 minutes and "preferably in about five minutes including acquisition and settling time."

Both the telescope and the auxiliary equipment of the LST, the report concludes, must be capable of continuous, effective and reliable operation and the transmission of data down to earth without appreciable degradation. Power supplies, data storage units and transmitting equipment are all required.

All components must be capable of operating for many years, including at least several months without attendance by astronauts.

Data from such a telescope could give answers to such questions as the rate of the expansion of the universe, the density of matter in the universe, the structure and evolution of galaxies and the space distribution of quasars, as well as lead to the discovery of "classes of objects quite unknown" at the time of its inception.

Meat Grading, Inspection Two Different Processes

Do you know the difference between inspection and grading of meat?

Responses to a series of questions in a recent nationwide survey show that the functions of USDA grading and inspection are not clear to some homemakers.

The study of "Homemakers' Opinions About Selected Meats" was financed jointly by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the National Live Stock and Meat Board. The preliminary report presents results based on the first-quarter interviewing of the year-long study.

Geraldine Acker, University of Illinois foods specialist, points out that inspection relates to wholesomeness while grading reflects quality.

* * *

USDA GRADES are a reliable guide to meat quality--its tenderness, juiciness and flavor. The grades, applied by USDA graders, are based on nationally uniform Federal standards of quality.

Meat grading is a voluntary service provided by USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service to meat packers and others who request it and pay a fee for the service. Although a large percentage of meat is graded, not all meat is graded as some homemakers assume.

When the carcass is graded, a purple shield-shaped grademark with the letters USDA and the grade name, such as Prime, Choice or Good, is applied with a roller-stamp. The grade shield is rolled on in a ribbon-like imprint along the length of the carcass and across both shoulders. When the carcass is divided into retail cuts, one or more of the grademarks will appear on most cuts.

Reshape Schools To Fit The Age, Urges Mel Ravitz

ANN ARBOR -- "If it were feasible, which I know it isn't, I would recommend that we scrap our present school system and even our concept of education, and begin anew," a member of the Detroit Common Council declared at The University of Michigan.

Mel Ravitz, former chairman of the Wayne County Board of Supervisors, told members of the Michigan Schoolmasters' Club at their 81st annual meeting that "it would be easier to start all over again rather than attempt to refashion our present educational structure to meet the needs of the present and the future."

Ravitz charged that on all counts the American school is among our most undemocratic agencies.

* * *

"DESPITE THE SUPREME Court decision of 1954 to desegregate our schools racially, they remain today more tightly segregated than ever before, with more black children learning apart from white children than 15 years ago.

"While it might be too extreme to say that most schools and most teachers continue to teach a value system of implicit white racial superiority, it is not too extreme to state that very little is being taught in most white schools to seek to eradicate racism from the minds of white children."

Ravitz maintained several basic things must be done--and the sooner the better:

- "We must review and revise drastically the present curriculum in just about every school in America' to relate it to today's and tomorrow's real world.
- "We must find ways to utilize the new electronic equipment such as television, computers, teaching machines, tape recorders ... to reinvigorate the current curricula"- and lower the dropout rate.
- "Colleges of education must raise their qualifications for teacher candidates and actively seek bright committed young people who like children. They must also revise their own curricula to produce teachers who are socially conditioned to the urgent realities of the contemporary situation."
- "School boards must understand that they must pay professional salaries and provide professional conditions for the high quality performance they must secure from their teachers."

Ravitz urged staffing schools with skilled organizers assigned to work with the people of the community.

* * *

"There is no reason either why the school should not take the lead in neighborhood improvement, whether it be street paving, lighting, police protection, sanitation, zoning or some other everyday matter that concerns the people."

"It boils down to this--the school must be a resource, a guide, a part of the daily life of the neighborhood to which people turn on any and every issue.

"Unless we can transform the people of its neighborhood, then the mere technical skills of its teachers will be of minor value.

Ravitz stressed the importance of providing a continuous education and re-education to adults. He called for teaching more in primary grades and revising secondary education to accommodate both high school students and adults and people's attitude toward it, we may be better off to save the expense of building new school buildings and staffing them. If the school cannot identify with who return to school for occupational, recreational, therapeutic, or intellectual reasons.

Ravitz said the school system must adapt itself to teach effectively all persons in the society, not just small children and a handful of middle-class and upper-class elite. "We are not even doing this at the primary level," he said.

"A MAJOR difficulty exists in our cities where, through segregation and exploration, we have assembled a significant youth population that requires massive compensatory education as well as the opportunity to participate in an entirely new school system that will equip them to function in a multiracial, urban, industrial society.

"Because we have hitherto thought so little of the people of the inner city that we really didn't bother to educate them to the limits of their native ability, we must now pay the enormous price that segregation and exploitation cost.

"We have no choice but to go back and educate these bypassed children and their older brothers and sisters and their parents as well. It may not even be possible to do this because we have delayed so long."

"We will be lucky to succeed at any price, yet most of us do not seem disposed to expend more than token amounts in rather ineffective ways in the inner city," he said. "We would like to be able to buy our way out of our educational crisis and we want to do it at a bargain basement price."

In conclusion, Ravitz said the role of parents and teachers must be redefined.

"I believe parents are confused as to what is expected of them in the whole matter of preparing their children for adulthood in this kind of society," he said. "As a consequence of their confusion and as a result of their being caught up in the frantic, materialistic race to acquire more of everything new, these parents tend to abdicate any responsibility for educating their children.

* * *

"THIS IS NOT to say that the children don't learn from them. They do. But what they learn is picked by accidentally overhearing and by observing parental example. The values they learn are not necessarily consistent or desirable."

He stressed that "We cannot continue to permit our children to make their own rules and to determine their own values. That way lies chaos and anarchy. We cannot afford to move much further in that direction without encountering disaster."

Plan Party

A cocktail party to raise money for a scholarship fund is planned by the Detroit Chapters of Phi Beta Sigma Social Action Fraternity. The party will be held Sunday, June 2, from 4:30 to 7:30 p.m. in the Driftwood Lounge, Detroit. The annual event will include entertainment and a men's fashion show.

Livonia Educator Elected To Board

Dr. Chandos Reid Rice (Mrs. Theodore D.), educational consultant and Livonia resident, was elected to the board of directors at the Michigan-Ohio Regional Educational Laboratory (MOREL) at the organization's annual meeting.

MOREL is a non-profit corporation involved in educational development in the two-state region, and is one of 20 such laboratories in the nation.

The Union Jack, one of the oldest national flags, combines the crosses of St. George, St. Andrew and St. Patrick. Adopted in 1801, it depicts the union of England, Ireland and Scotland.

Leftist Students Envision Cuban Society For Germany

They want to be heard, but their elders aren't willing to listen.

They want to remake German society, but they are not quite sure into what. They mistrust the older generation, calling it hypocritical.

* * *

THEY ARE LEFTISTS, strongly influenced by the Chinese and Cuban Communists, but they reject Communism on the Soviet or East German model.

They got a tremendous boost in 1966 when Foreign Minister Willy Brandt's Social Democratic Party decided to go into a coalition government with Chancellor Kurt George Kiesinger's Christian Democrats.

The disgruntled left wing of the Social Democrats, made-up mostly of students and young people, shifted their support to the students led by Dutschke's Socialistic Student Federation, the SDS.

The SDS had once been the official youth organization of the Social Democratic Party, but the party cut its ties with it some years ago because it considered it too radical. Since then, the SDS has been the organizer and moving force behind most student demonstrations.

* * *

PROMINENT AMONG the students' beefs is the antiquated West German university system. German professors have retained most of the authority they have held since medieval times. They lecture but don't like to have their theories challenged by students.

The universities are overcrowded despite the fact that there are only about 300,000 university students in West Germany, a country of 58 million.

The SDS does not actively seek violence in demonstrations but it does like to provoke the authorities. Its methods are the sit-in, the teach-in and discussions. It sent members into churches to try to get clergymen to discuss the Vietnam war, saying it is hypocritical to preach morality without dealing with such current moral issues.

But during periods of emotion, such as after the shooting of Dutschke, things tend to get out of hand.

"Too stupid to study and too lazy to work," was a comment heard over and over in West Berlin.

But there are signs that the government and the older generation plan at least to listen in the wake of the violence that has followed the attempted assassination of Dutschke.

Justice Minister Gustav Heinemann, a Social Democrat, went on television to caution against further outbursts. But he conceded that older Germans "have lost contact" with youth and added: "We must accept criticism, even if it comes from the younger generation."

A native of Saginaw, Sundeck holds a B.A. degree from Alma College and an M.S. from Central Michigan University. He has also studied at Michigan State University.

State Shares Coho Bonanza

LANSING -- Michigan's gift of 25,000 tiny coho salmon to Ohio which are now roaming the waters of Lake Erie for the first time has brought a personal "thank you" from Director Fred E. Morr of the Department of Natural Resources.

In a letter to Michigan Conservation Director Ralph A. MacMullan, he reported that the young fish supplied by this state "were stocked in a holding pond along the East Branch of the Chagrin River east of Cleveland where they did very well."

Morr added:

"On Wednesday, April 3, they were released down the Chagrin to find their way to Lake Erie. Needless to say, this is a big event for Ohio sportsmen and we're all looking forward to the fall of 1969."

Soo Bridge Traffic Up

SAULT STE. MARIE -- International Bridge traffic continued its record setting pace in April with 40,968 vehicles crossing the span, an increase of 11.8 per cent over April, 1967.

It was the fourth consecutive month of increased bridge traffic this year. Traffic for the first four months is up about 10 per cent over last year.

Garden Paths Go Ceramic

Ceramic tile may be just the material for that garden path you're planning, particularly if permanent steps are involved.

Ceramic mosaic tile or quarry tile will not be damaged by the elements and, being made from earthen materials, will blend well with your garden landscape.

They can be used for a patio also.

Japan Has Plastic With Iron Strength

The Japan Atomic Energy Research Institute claims it has developed a plastic material with a tensile strength and shock resistance equal to iron.

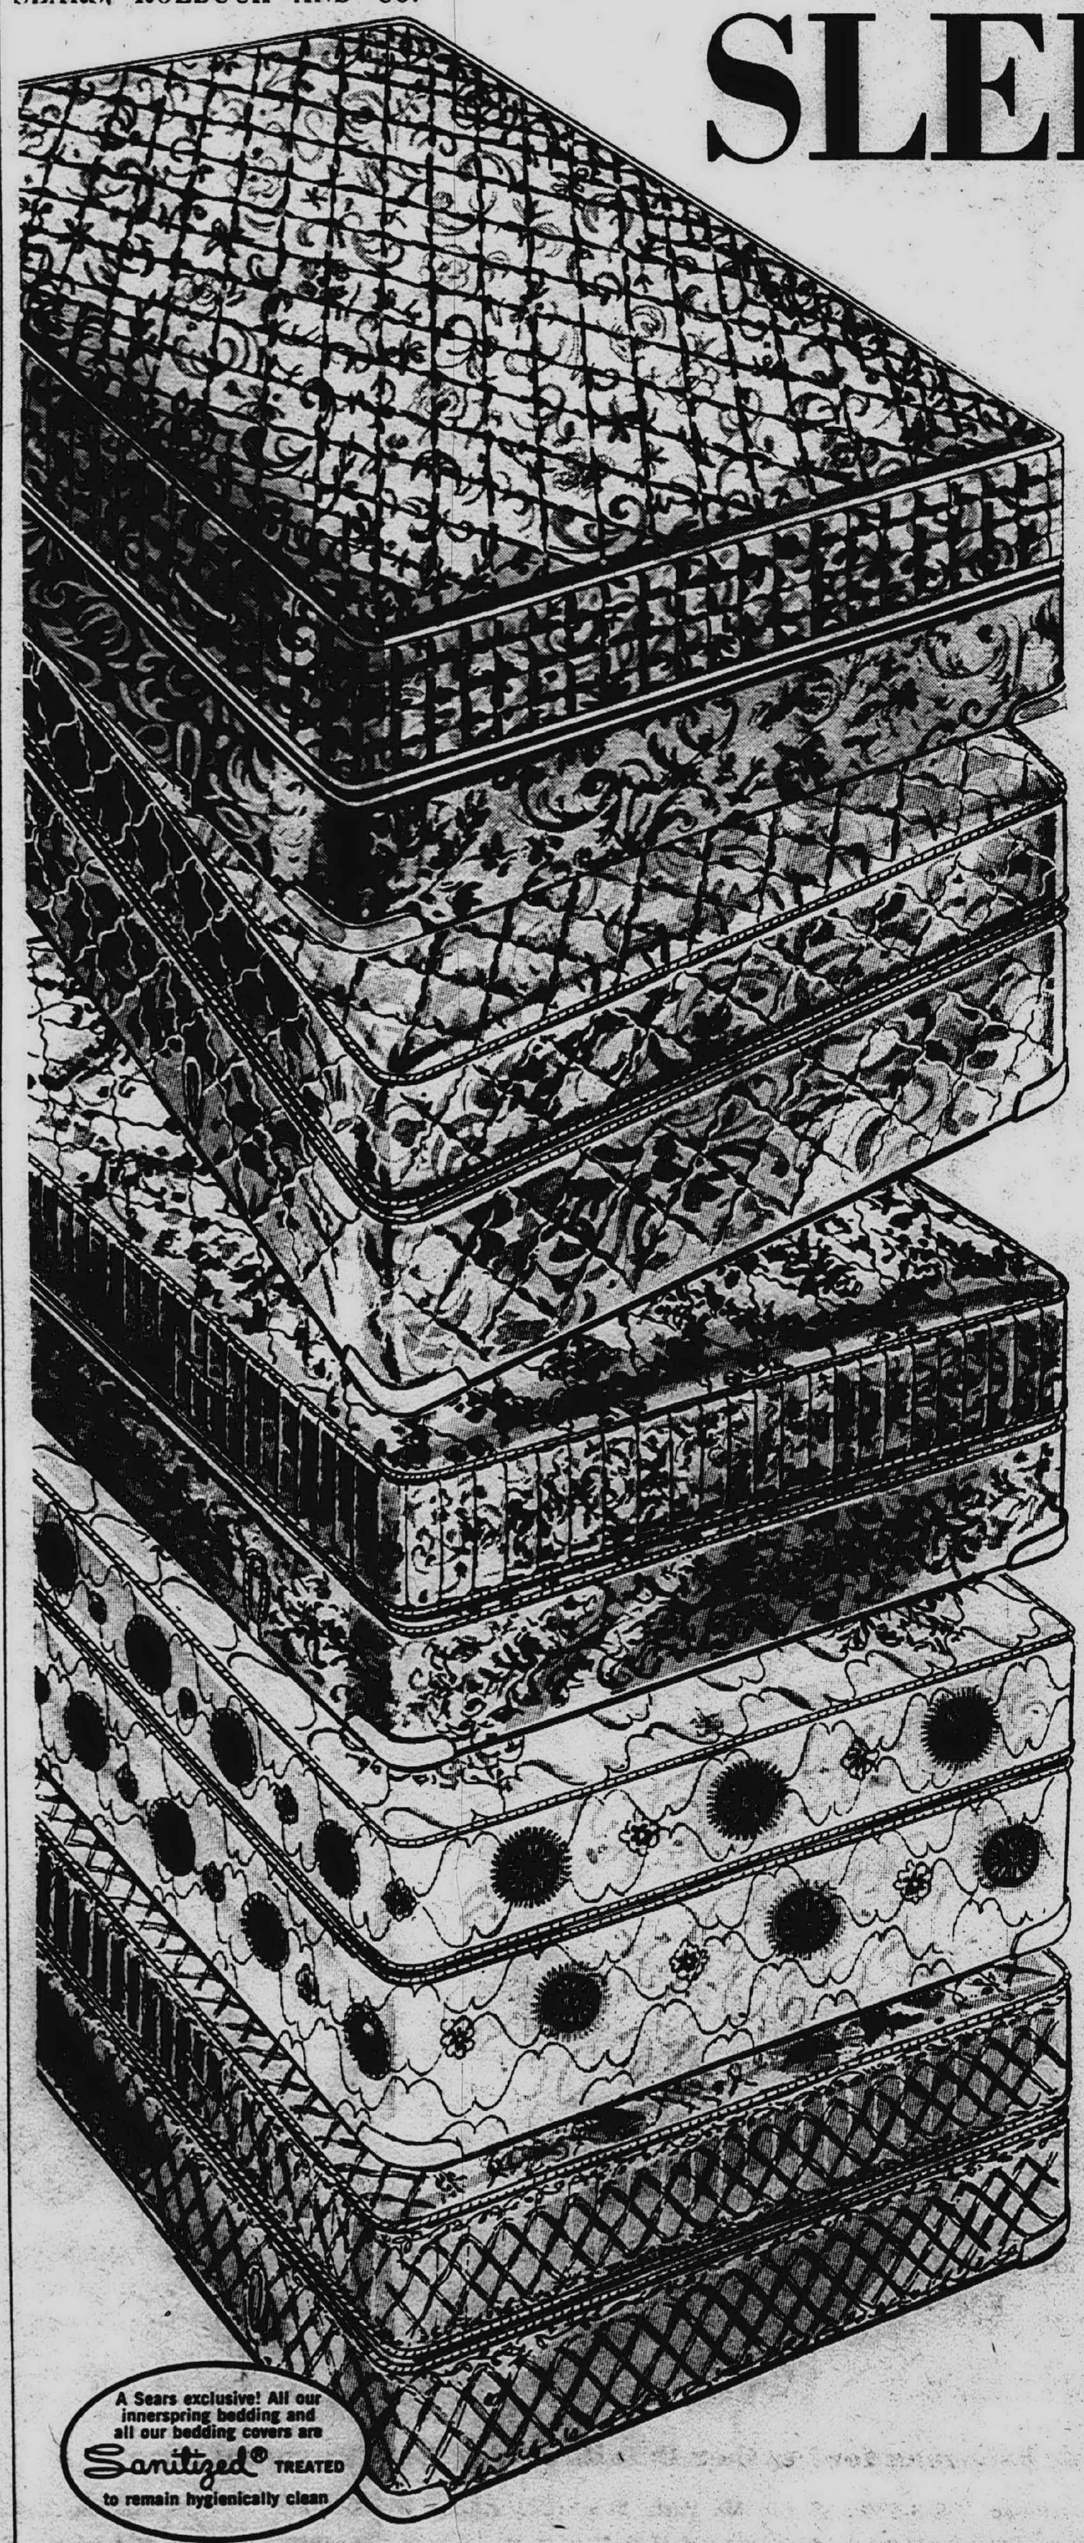

Scientists for the institute said the plastic, made from a solid organic substance called "trioxan," can be produced with X-rays "in a short time at low cost."

U-M Students Pick Heroes -- Good, Bad, But All Rich

ANN ARBOR -- If they had their druthers and could have lived the life of any great entrepreneur, business history at The University of Michigan would most have liked to have been J. Pierpont Morgan, Henry Ford, John D. Rockefeller, Bernard Baruch, or James "Jubilee Jim" Fisk.

Other businessmen whose shoes students would have like to have filled were George Washington, Andrew Carnegie, Peter Cooper, James J. Hill, A.P. Giannini, Charles M. Schwab, "a colonial mercantillist gentleman of Boston," and the "international Jew' who, in Henry Ford's imagination, profited from all wars."

* * *

Many students said that they would have liked to have been Morgan because of the "great power and influence which enabled him to organize or reorganize such firms as U.S. Steel, International Harvester, and General Electric." Others were impressed by Morgan's ability to lead the "good life"--taking trips to Europe and Africa, collecting art--while amassing a great fortune. "Anyone with all that money," said one student, "can't be all bad." Added another: "He had a cool middle name."

Ford was named by many because "his life was so full of accomplishment, excitement, and emotion that even the mistakes and heartbreaks which went with it would have made living his life well worth the privilege."

Other students lauded him as a "magnificent nonconformist" with "abundant self-confidence" and "great authority and respect."

Rockefeller's life appealed to students because, "using modern management tools, he had the ability to get people to accept his ideas." "Besides," added one student, "he was able, extremely successful, very rich, and liked to give money away."

Several admired Baruch because he was both a successful stock market speculator and public servant. "Just think of it," said one student, "his wits not only made him millions in Wall Street, but also earned him the privilege of advising every President from Wilson through Johnson. What more could one ask out of life?"

* * *

FISK, an improbable scamp who milked the Erie Railroad so successfully that it could not pay dividends on common stock for 69 years, appealed to a few students because of the "grandeur of his larceny and his uninhibited approach to life, whether in the boardroom or the boudoir." "Jubilee Jim receives my vote," bragged one student, "because we have a lot in common."

Washington was admired for his ability to launch and successfully manage diverse business enterprises, as well as for the high regard in which he was held by his countrymen.

Students wanted to have lived Carnegie's life "because he was one of the few highly successful businessmen who was cultured, intellectual, and altruistic." "I feel," commented one student, "that he had all of Henry Ford's strengths, with none of his weaknesses. And he was a true Christian."

* * *

PETER COOPER, one of the two businessmen elected to the Hall of Fame for Greater America's first successful commercial locomotive, the Tom Thumb, and for his philanthropy. Railroad magnate James J. Hill won votes for having done more to build the Northwest than any other man.

* * *

STUDENTS bent on banking careers said they would have liked to have been Giannini because of the "very worthwhile contribution he made to society by introducing banking services to the poorer classes." Schwab was admired for his administration of Bethlehem Steel, his government service during World War I, and for "selling business to the public."

"The relaxed pace" of the colonial gentleman-merchant appealed to several students. "Just think," said one, "even a 'busy merchant,' such as Thomas Hancock, handled an average of only 15 transactions per week--leaving most afternoons free to enjoy 'spirits' at the local coffeehouse."

Save Tags From New Clothing

Consumers who wear and care for clothing tend to ignore the manufacturer's recommendations, says Bernetta Kahabka textiles and clothing specialist with the Cooperative Extension Service at Michigan State University. The multitude of tags may be one of the reasons for this lack of interest.

"Labels and tags accompany a garment from its fiber stage to its retail stage with new information added at each step in the process," explains Miss Kahabka.

* * *

"FIBER MANUFACTURERS want to be sure their product names are recognized and bought. The same holds true for the yarn and fabric manufacturers who use the fibers. Retailers also want to project their store names, and legislative requirements are placed on manufacturers for such things as fiber content of articles.

"Most retailers simply add their own tags to the larger manufacturers' labels, because of the prestige and selling power added by nationally advertised trademarks."

Occasionally, a garment comes to the retailer with contradicting tags attached to it, Miss Kahabka admits. The clothing industry is working on ways of eliminating such problems, but a few slip by.

A fiber by itself may be able to withstand any type of washing but not be made into a washable fabric. The spinner of the yarns may mix other fibers with it or the weaver or knitter may use a construction which will shrink or change shape in washing.

* * *

DYES USED in printing fabrics can transform a washable fabric into an article which is "dry cleanable only." Trimming, lining, interfacings and other components also can have this same effect, the specialist explains.

The fiber maker labels his washable fiber, the weaver or knitter marks his washable fabric along with instructions on caring for it, the finisher tells how to care for his particular dye or perhaps water repellent process, and the garment maker changes the whole story by constructing an article which, to be safe, calls for a label that reads "dry clean only."

GOP Looks To 'Committee' For Unity In 1968

From a Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Republican party leaders today hailed their political coordinating committee as a unifying factor as they head into another election year.

The committee, melding both conservative and liberal elements, was formed to wrest national control away from Goldwater forces in 1964.

Operating like the "shadow cabinet" in Great Britain, the committee has blurred ideological differences among Republicans and allowed the party to speak with one voice during the Johnson administration.

Michigan Gov. George Romney and House Minority Leader Gerald R. Ford, charter members of the committee, joined in its praise.

"At a time when the party does not occupy the White House, the committee is an indispensable instrument," Romney said.

The task of writing a 1968 platform acceptable to all Republicans will be simplified because of policy positions taken by the committee, he declared.

Romney sought to influence GOP planks on civil rights and extremism at the 1964 Goldwater convention. Failing at this, he divorced himself from Goldwater and was re-elected governor with a plurality of 382,000 votes while Goldwater was losing Michigan by 1,076,000 votes.

Rep. Ford said it may be necessary to change the committee format if Republicans win the presidency. But he lined up with Bliss and Senate Minority Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois in favor of a permanent coordinating committee.

The committee's success has been attributed to its inclusion of all the sources of power within the Republican Party. Members include former GOP presidents and presidential nominees, plus representatives of the national committee, GOP governors and Republicans in Congress.

A similar committee which Democrats organized during the Eisenhower administration was viewed with suspicion by the then Democratic leaders of the Senate and House, Lyndon B. Johnson and the late Sam Rayburn.

The Democratic committee spoke mainly for the party's liberal wing and was never able to make its influence count with the party's more conservative leadership in Congress.

In contrast, the Republican Coordinating Committee includes as members such conservatives as Goldwater, Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., and House GOP whip Leslie C. Arends of Illinois. Among liberals on the committee are Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

Monday's session, the 13th since 1965, followed a self-established format.

Committee members and aides started assembling at 8:15 a.m. over breakfast in the Mayflower Hotel. At 9 the committee went behind closed doors to hear four task force reports.

At noon, Bliss, Ford, Dirksen and Rhode Island Gov. John H. Chafee, chairman of the Republican Governors Association, held a press conference.

In the afternoon, more reports were taken up, including one by John B. Martin of Grand Rapids, Michigan national committeeman and chairman of the task force on problems of aging.

Position papers adopted by the committee are released on a staggered basis in the weeks after the session.

In past months the meetings have provided an excellent forum for presidential hopefuls to meet the national press. Monday, Richard M. Nixon occupied the limelight. His chief opponent for the presidential nomination, Gov. Rockefeller, did not attend.

The meeting may have been the last one for Romney. Although he was instrumental in creating the committee, he will have served four years at the end of 1968 and there will be pressures from other governors who want a turn.

Among governors likely to seek a committee assignment are Ronald Reagan of California, Spiro T. Agnew of Maryland, Tim Babcok of Montana, James A. Rhodes, of Ohio and Harold Le Vander of Minnesota. Reagan, Agnew and Babcock presently are alternate representatives to the coordinating committee.

Bliss told newsmen he plans to appoint the temporary platform committee for the 1968 convention within 10 days. He reportedly still opposes a GOP governors association move to have one of its members serve as platform co-chairman with Dirksen.

The GOP governors today began a cross-country series of conferences designed to get suggestions for the Republican platform.

Gov. Chafee contended the hearings would not duplicate the work of Bliss' platform committee. "We need lots of fresh ideas," he said.

County Studies Student Learning

Thirty-seven Wayne County educators have begun to study "special learning disabilities" which affect an estimated 15 to 20 per cent of all school age children and severely impair their ability to function in school.

Headed by Dr. William B. Cansfield, assistant superintendent of the Nankin Mills Schools, these educators are serving with the Wayne County Study of Children With Special Learning Disabilities.

It is sponsored by the Wayne County Intermediate School District's Innovation Project, an ESEA Title III project.

Children with special learning disabilities are not "special education" children in the usual sense of the term; they do not have sensory or mental handicaps; they do not have motor disorders; they are not emotionally disturbed, nor are they culturally deprived.

* * *

THESE CHILDREN simply do not learn as adequately and as efficiently as most children. They need more "trials" than do most children and some don't seem capable of learning certain things at all.

Little is actually known about the disabilities from which these children suffer, but it is estimated that there are a minimum of 12,000 to 14,000 such children attending schools in Wayne County.

The study headed by Dr. Cansfield includes both public and non-public educators and will continue for two years. Its goals are to:

- Assemble, evaluate and disseminate research relating to learning disabilities.
- Locate and evaluate current programs and practices for children with learning disabilities.
- Encourage local public and non-public schools to establish services, practices and programs to benefit learning disability children.

Mrs. June England of the Wayne County Intermediate School District (WCISD), is executive secretary to the study committee. Five subcommittees have been formed. These are: 1) Responsible for survey of present programs and practices, Dr. Arlene Schindler (Detroit), chairman; 2) Responsible for evaluation of programs, and survey of diagnostic instruments and procedures, Dr. William Sosnowski (Grosse Pointe), chairman; 3) Responsible for establishing criteria for exemplary programs, and to arrange visits and demonstrations, Mrs. Bertha Lewis (Livonia), chairman; 4) Responsible for communication and dissemination, James House (WCISD), chairman; 5) Responsible for a county descriptive study of children with special learning disabilities, Dr. William Cansfield, chairman.

* * *

* * *

DR. E.J. McCLENDON (WCISD), Jim Mathieson (Redford Union), Dr. Arnold R. Meier (Region 9, Detroit), Dick Merrick (WCISD), Dr. William Miller (WCISD), William Myers (Taylor), George O'Brien (Wayne), Dr. Stuart Rankin (MOREL);

Phil Robinson (River Rouge), James H. Rossman (Plymouth), Mrs. Helen Shumate (Gibraltar), Ron Somers (Wayne), Mrs. Ruth Sprague (River Rouge), Mrs. Margaret Wareing (Taylor) and Dr. William Wattenberg (Detroit).

The study committee will communicate with the profession and with the public through mass media news releases, newsletters and conferences. The Wayne County Intermediate School District's ASSIST Center has established a section of its Information Services to collect and disseminate information relating to special learning disabilities.

Doctor in the Kitchen®

When someone mentions cheese, what pops into your mind?

Sandwiches? Hollandaise sauce? Souffle? Hors d'oeuvres? Cheeseburgers? Parmesan sauce? Stuffed frankfurters? Cheese dip? Macaroni and cheese? Au gratin casseroles? Cheesecake? You can go on from there.

Cheese is as nearly a universal food as the variety of milks from which it is made—cows', goats', mares', caribous', reindeer's, camels'. Distinctive cheeses from many parts of the world bear well-known names—Cheshire, Cheddar, Wensleydale, and Stilton from England; Brie, Camembert, and Roquefort from France; Provolone, Gorgonzola and Parmesan from Italy; Gruyere and Emmentaler from Switzerland; Edam and Gouda from Holland; Limburger from Belgium; whey and goats' milk from Scandanavia; and white Brick from the United States.

Happily, however, immigrant cheesemakers have brought their know-how and their bacterial cultures to this country. Every variety of cheese can be made, and many are made in the United States so skillfully that experts have difficulty in distinguishing the imported from the domestic.

Cheese is a gourmet item, but it is also a fine basic food, providing excellent protein, vitamins, and minerals. It is a useful alternate for meats, and a garnish for many tempting dishes.

Cheese is a low-residue food. It is almost fully digested and utilized. It has been regarded, mistakenly, as constipating or "binding." Actually, no single dietary factor can be regarded as constipating, although the diet as a whole may be, if there is insufficient roughage.

Distinctively American cheeses are the Cheddar-like "American," the white hard Brick, and the pineapple cheese, so named from its shape. Cottage cheese is of unknown origin.

In ancient times, cheese was made by storing milk in "bottles" of animal skin, where the warm climate soon produced curds. The word "cheese" comes from the Hebrew for "curdle." The Old Testament refers to "cuts of milk," which were, of course, cheese. Cheese is still made that way in the Near East.

Cheese, so valuable in the normal diet, may be particularly useful for those with gout who are limited in meats; and for those who require bland diets low in roughage. Cheese is so good to eat that these recommendations are superfluous, but they are nice extra dividends anyway.

Science Finds The Key To Bacterial Illness

A University of Michigan scientist has unlocked one mystery of recurrent bacterial infections, and may have opened the door for a cure.

The discovery could influence the treatment of listeriosis, habitual abortions, and many common infections such as acne and boils.

Dr. Antonina M. Brem (Ph.D) of the U-M School of Public Health traced the cause of these repetitious infections to "L-forms" of bacteria hibernating in healthy tissue.

* * *

IN A REPORT to the American Society for Microbiology, Dr. Brem said these "L-forms" do not cause disease. But under certain conditions they quickly change into disease-causing bacteria, sometimes in a few hours.

An "L-form" is a bacterium whose cell-wall has been destroyed. It can survive for months in this condition, but is apparently harmless.

Dr. Brem studied Listeria monocytogenes, a bacterium that can cause meningitis, septicemia, and abortions in humans. She obtained germ samples from diseased patients hospitalized at the University of Michigan Medical Center. After destroying the cell-wall with penicillin, she injected the surviving L-form into mice.

For months after this, the L-form could be detected by laboratory tests, but the mice were unharmed. However, Dr. Brem reported, once the L-form was removed from the mouse, it promptly regrew its cell wall and became virulent.

If injected into the mouse in this normal, bacterial form, it killed the mouse in three days.

Dr. Brem said her findings suggest that hospitals must provide new laboratory tests able to detect L-forms in patients. "We can then isolate the L-form and let it grow back its overcoat in order to find out just what it is and what to do about it."

* * *

AS PART OF HER research, she devised a new and more reliable technique for culturing L-forms, and offered this new technique as one means of speeding hospital tests of patients.

She also pointed out that penicillin treatment renders the bacteria harmless, but does not destroy it. "To get a complete cure, physicians will need to destroy the L-form, with antibiotics such as erythromycin or sulfa drugs."

Dr. Brem, who received her Ph.D. degree from the University of Michigan School of Public Health just 10 days ago, conducted her investigation for the past two years under the direction of Dr. Warren C. Eveland, professor of epidemiology.

Ex-Redford Stars Keep MSU Blazing In Baseball

Thanks to a pair of Redford Township products, Michigan State's baseball team is booming along in the midst of an eight-game Big Ten winning streak.

Catcher Harry (Spud) Kendrick from Redford Union and outfielder Rick Harlow helped the Spartans to bag four straight last weekend and climb within a half game of leading Minnesota.

The Spartans blasted Northwestern, 6-0 and 12-0, and then downed Wisconsin, 3-1 and 8-3. The bats of Kendrick and Harlow sparkled in both series, particularly against Wisconsin when each singled in the final inning as State staged a six-run rally to win the nightcap.

Kendrick, ranked one of the finest college catchers in the country, currently is hitting almost .450 in Big Ten play.

Michigan slipped over the weekend, losing two at Wisconsin, 2-0 and 3-2, and then losing at Northwestern, 4-3, before finally winning, 7-6. Michigan now stands 6-4 in the Big Ten.

* * *

THE WINNING WAYS of the Detroit Cougars finally ended at Tiger Stadium when Baltimore rallied for a 2-1 victory.

The Cougars had won three straight at home and held a 1-0 lead before Baltimore rallied. The Cougars now boast an overall 3-3 record. They're idle until next Tuesday when Dallas comes to Tiger Stadium.

* * *

TALK ABOUT long baseball duels, University of Detroit had to go 16 innings to nip Eastern Michigan, 4-3, with Larry Salci hurling the route for the Titans.

* * *

SPEAKING OF THE Titans, they still have hopes of landing All America prep ace Ralph Simpson from Detroit Pershing High.

Simpson has signed a Big Ten tender to play at Michigan State, but he still can sign a national tender which would permit him to enter the U. of D. He says he still hasn't decided where to go.

* * *

STAN MIKITA of the Chicago Black Hawks has been named the most valuable player in the National Hockey League.

Mikita also was named winner of the Lady Byng Trophy, which is awarded for clean play.

Bobby Orr of Boston was named the league's best defenseman while his teammate, Derek Sanderson, was voted the top rookie.

* * *

KEN BOYER is back in major league baseball. The veteran infielder, who last week was cut by the Chicago White Sox, has latched on with the Los Angeles Dodgers who plan to use him as pinch-hitter.

* * *

A VISITOR to Detroit this week was Rick Niemann, the Piston's seven-foot draft pick from St. Louis University.

Meantime, regular Piston center Joe Strawder was released from Ford Hospital, where he recently underwent back surgery.

* * *

THE QUALIFYING begins Saturday for the 500-mile race at Indianapolis on Memorial Day. The fastest qualifier on opening day of the tests gains the No. 1 pole position.

Modifications for the Turbine-powered cars have produced a considerable amount of problems. In addition several of the turbos already have been pulled out of the classic race.

Edwards Writes On Police-Negro Tension

NEW YORK — Policemen and Negroes in most cities live in a state of "intermittent warfare," Judge George Edwards of the United States Court of Appeals for the 6th district, said in a 100-page handbook.

The book outlines a 31-point program that would overhaul police practices and the professional status of policemen throughout the nation.

Edwards, who was Detroit police commissioner in 1962-63, said "hostility abounds on both sides, in the minds and hearts of unemployed Negro youths and in the minds and hearts of white policemen who may have to curb ghetto violence."

Noting that police-community relations were cited by the President's national advisory commission on civil disorders, headed by Gov. Otto Kerner of Illinois, as "a major and explosive source of grievance, tension, and disorder," Edwards said police in Negro areas "tended to act like any army of occupation...The depth of hostility may be measured by the great number of present-day police officers who invariably use the hated term 'Nigger,' in talking about (and sometimes to) Negro citizens."

* * *

AMONG EDWARDS' recommendations were:

To meet ghetto dwellers' demands for equal police protection, forces should be organized for faster response to ghetto calls.

Police departments and ghetto communities should seek to set up channels of communications with one another: thru continuous contact between police and neighborhood leaders, police open house programs, community workshops, neighborhood advisory councils, meetings with youth groups.

In handling demonstrations by potentially hostile groups, police should serve as an agency for serving, not curbing, the public, unless actual violence breaks out.

Policemen who are strongly prejudiced against Negroes, or sadistic, or who have shown lack of common sense in a crisis, should be assigned to desk jobs or other functions.

* * *

AS AN alternative to the use of lethal weapons, reliable new methods for temporarily immobilizing offenders should be devised.

Police job qualifications and training (including intergroup relations training) should be upgraded, and police pay increased. Forces should be enlarged to reduce excessive case loads. Public opinion should be mobilized to support the demand for the needed additional funds.

The federal government should play a major role in improving and equalizing police services—thru financial aid and thru a free national police college.

Elderly Like Nature

In the future, we may see more elderly persons engaging in more strenuous activities in the natural environment according to a University of Michigan psychologist.

Daniel H. Carson, assistant professor of psychology and associate research psychologist at the U-M Mental Health Research Institute, told a symposium in Ann Arbor that "attitudes can have a great effect on one's performance when environmental stress does not exceed physical tolerance. Early experience in the outdoors and increased expectancies of pleasure may extend outdoor activities of the aged."

The older people of today differ from the older people of tomorrow regarding experience with outdoor recreation in their youth, Prof. Carson notes.

"IN THE PRESENT generation, there are many people who never learned to swim or fish, and who never went camping in their youth. It is quite likely that the generation which will be 55 and over in 25 years was more actively engaged in outdoor recreation earlier in life."

Greater emphasis also is being placed today on conservation education at all grade levels, especially at the lower levels, with direct experience in the natural environment as part of the curriculum.

"One may suppose that many of these people will continue to engage in these activities as they grow older."

The present workday environment is not considered worth looking at, says the U-M psychologist. A 1962 Outdoor Recreation Resources Review Commission Report to the President emphasized that the most fruitful approach does not lay solely in parks and other recreation areas.

* * *

"The report asks: Can we walk or cycle safely over wooded paths? Are there streams for an afternoon's fishing, or have they been buried by concrete culverts? Are stands of woods all gone, or are a few left for a picnic or a stroll?"

4-H'ers Work On Big C -- For Conservation

What is conservation? If 10 people were asked the question, in all probability there would be 10 different answers.

But if they were asked who is responsible for conservation of the nation's natural resources, they would undoubtedly answer, "Everyone!" And they would be right.

Conservation is everyone's business, even youngsters. Proof of this is in the national 4-H Conservation of Natural Resources program which involves parents, children, educators, and conservation specialists. The 4-H members carry out projects in soil and water conservation, wildlife preservation, reforestation, and anti-pollution.

* * *

THE FARM BOY works to prevent soil erosion, water contamination, forest fires, drought and damage to crops and livestock. This boy wants to learn about soil testing, irrigation, land management, weed and insect control to insure profitable farming operations.

Urban 4-H'ers are concerned with protecting towns and cities from air and water pollution, blight and deterioration. They want to enjoy fishing and swimming in recreational areas where they can catch a prize fish instead of an old boot, or dive into a clean lake instead of one contaminated with rubbish or harmful bacteria.

All 4-H boys and girls want to enjoy the beauty of their own home grounds, parks, forests and countryside. The youths highlight conservation through club activities, community action programs and individual projects. They give talks, appear on television and radio, make exhibits and give out conservation information.

* * *

AMONG THE NATION'S leading 4-H conservationists last year was a teenage boy whose project included raising pheasants for the New Jersey State Division of Fish and Game in connection with wildlife preservation. Another lad perfected a conservation demonstration for television viewers in the West Central part of Colorado. Both boys were involved in county-wide conservation activities.

The 4-H Conservation club members now exceed a quarter million. They are guided and assisted in their individual projects by adult leaders, county extension agents and other qualified persons. Parents often team up with their offspring in tackling the large, long-range projects.

Another participator is John Deere, the 4-H Conservation program sponsor. For the fifth straight year, John Deere has provided funds for county, state and national awards given annually to 4-H'ers who have completed the best conservation projects in the three categories of competition.

The highest award is the $600 national scholarship presented to six national champions. State winners are delegates to the National 4-H Congress, in Chicago, and county winners receive the conservation medal.

Cold Cash Puts Poles In Cooler

WARSAW — Four former engineering company employes have been sentenced to prison up to three years for making mistakes that caused financial losses to Poland's economy, the Polish news agency PAP said yesterday. The four were convicted of making "wrong cost estimates" in construction at the Port of Famagusta in Cyprus that cost Poland $416,700.

Federal Control Of Health-Safety Is Unnecessary

Federal control of industrial health and safety would constitute unjustified interferences with the present activities of state and local governments, Raymond M. Lyons, Vice President of Industrial Relations of the Fruehauf Corporation, said in testimony before a Select Subcommittee of the House Labor Committee.

He indicated that federal control would "severely undermine all voluntary efforts to achieve ever better standards of health and safety."

"The fact is that industrial safety programs have been so effective that people are estimated to be ten times safer at work than they are off the job," Mr. Lyons said. "In addition to the significant accomplishments by private industry on a voluntary basis, a great deal has been accomplished by national, state and local health and safety organizations, as well as by state and local authorities charged with the responsibility of maintaining adequate industrial health and safety programs."

A-Frame Is Great For Cottage

Outer walls and roof are one and the same. Diagonally erected lumber beams converge at the roof apex under a sweeping canopy of wood roof decking.

Beams and decking can be beautifully finished and exposed to decorate the interior. Since the structural lumber does double duty as decor, there is little need for finishing materials other than the shingles on the exterior.

The A-frame is simple, economical and extremely dramatic. One or more stories may be provided as the family requires. The A-frame is an ideal medium for jointly utilizing the strength and beauty of preshrunk Southern Pine lumber.

Occasionally, the A-frame is utilized in combination with another structural system--the wood pole-frame--which incidentally is the most widely used method for farm buildings.

* * *

WITH THIS approach, the A-frame appears at the upper extremities of poles or timbers directly imbedded in soil or sand. Poles or timbers are pressure treated with chemical preservatives for immunity to insect attack and the elements.

* * *

THE A-FRAME, pole-frame combination is especially desirable at oceanshore or gulf-shore locales not only for its simplicity and beauty but also as a precaution against hurricanes.

With the pole-frame foundation, the base of the A-frame house is elevated well above ground or beach level. As a result, the house is spared the direct impact of hurricane-spawned tidal waves which may pass harmlessly beneath the dwelling.

Waterways Get New Job -- Finding Boat Sites

LANSING -- Michigan's public access site program, under the wing of the Conservation Department's Fish Division since its beginning in 1939, has been shifted to the agency's Waterways Division in a move to broaden its scope of management and development.

Keith Wilson, chief of the Waterways Division, reports that the 29-year-old program will ultimately be phased into a "boat launching site" system and re-designated as such, hopefully within the next two years.

* * *

THE NAME CHANGE, he explains, will more accurately reflect the actual use of most public access sites which in recent years have felt the resounding impact of the state's boating boom. "We will expand the concept of this program from simply providing walk-in access to waters so that major emphasis is pegged to laying out the type of facilities that will enable water users to get their boats afloat," says Wilson.

"In any case," he adds, "we still will be serving boat-using fishermen. As a matter of fact, under this new set-up, we will be serving them better than before because we will be able to develop more convenient and safer boat launching sites. In a nutshell, everyone who uses a boat is going to benefit more whether he wants to fish, take a pleasure cruise, or whatever."

BESIDES BUYING and building better-quality sites, the Waterways Division will be able to develop more of them than in recent years. Under the new program, development and acquisition of the sites will be financed from a state tax on marine fuel sales. This will provide much more money than the program has been able to squeeze out of the Department's tight Game and Fish Protection Fund.

For the balance of this fiscal year, which ends June 30, the Waterways Division will budget $140,000 from its marine fuel fund for field operations under the access site program. Most of this money will be used to buy equipment. The funds will also underwrite setting up 29 field positions which will come under the immediate direction of the Department's regional organization headquartered at Marquette, Roscommon, and Lansing.

DURING THE 1968-69 fiscal year beginning July 1, a total of $240,000 in marine fuel tax money will go for the acquisition of about 30 new access sites on inland lakes and streams. Another $200,000 will be allotted to develop six large sites with extremely good facilities or 12 to 25 smaller, more modest sites on interior waters.

The Waterways Division will also be responsible for improving existing sites and developing all new boat launching facilities within state game areas, state forest campgrounds, and state parks. It will inherit nearly 470 sites which were built under the Fish Division's command since 1939.

In addition to its own capital outlay program, the Waterways Division will provide $1.5 million in grants to local communities during the next fiscal year to help finance more facilities for the growing hordes of coho salmon fishermen on lakes Superior and Michigan.

In the Lake Michigan area, these state funds will carry much of the load in building boat launching and parking facilities to accommodate an additional 1,850 cars and trailers by June, 1969.

Spread Out, Live It Up

It's often possible to double the available living area in your home through attic or basement remodeling. For example--the conversion of an attic into a "dormitory" for school-age children.

Dingy attic or basement areas can be transformed into bright new rooms largely by adding finishing materials, such as wood paneling, to existing structures or surfaces.

EMU To Start Installment Plan

YPSILANTI -- A new plan under which Eastern Michigan University students will be able to pay charges in installments was approved by the Board of Regents.

It will go into effect for the fall semester of 1969.

At that time, students will be permitted to make an initial payment of approximately 40 per cent, followed by three additional payments of approximately 20 per cent at specified intervals. They may use the plan for tuition only, for room and board only, or for all of these items combined. A service charge, to be determined, will be added to the base amounts to compensate for the cost of handling installments.

Ingenious Building Feats Possible With Clay Bits

What's rectangular, square, round, or hexagonal? Has a surface texture that's smooth, rough, or in-between? Is white, black, red, blue, or one of a thousand other tones? Is a medium of art and a conveyor of history? Is found outside, or inside, the most modest and most extravagant buildings; and almost daily is looked at, stepped on, leaned against or sat upon by nearly everybody?

Give up? It's brick, the paradoxically humble lump of fired clay which British Architect Sir Basil Spence called "the best prefabricated building product ever devised by man," and which the Encyclopedia Britannica labeled the "most remarkable" structural material in use.

Brick is such an extraordinarily flexible and durable building product that, as Richard W. Otterson, executive director of the Structural Clay Products Institute, points out, "it's difficult to say anything about it that is untrue." It is, for example, made in dozens of different shapes, with scores of different textures, and in thousands of colors, hues, and tones.

Great art has been created in brick throughout history, and a great deal of what we know about some vanished civilizations has been learned by studying brick ruins.

* * *

RIGHT NOW, brick is enjoying a "renaissance" that is itself something of a paradox: Home owners are employing it in many different ways because of its ability to impart distinction and beauty, and owners and designers of large apartment and commercial buildings are using it because, while durable and extremely fire resistant, it's also inexpensive.

Never in its 9,000-year history has brick been put to wider or more varied use in the home. For example, SCPI notes that in addition to its use in outside walls, it's not at all unusual to find homes today which use brick in exposed interior walls, floors, patios, walks, garden walls, retaining walls, tree wells, lawn edgings, planters, play structures, fireplaces, hearths, benches, and even table tops and swimming pools.

One of the reasons for this popularity, of course, is that modern production techniques have put brick within the economic reach of nearly all home owners.

But another reason is that brick's natural and permanent color, its interesting texture, its durability, and its familiar scale all combine to give it exceptionally wide appeal. Still another reason, say psychologists, is that brick, drawn from the earth itself, has an unconscious, instinctive appeal to man. Further, home owners love to tinker with bricklaying; it gives them the satisfaction of personal accomplishment.

* * *

AN IMPORTANT PART of the brick "renaissance" is due to the product's resurgence as a structural material in tall buildings. Until half a century ago, nearly all tall buildings were supported by brick walls which, designed by "rule of the thumb," were thick at the bottom and tapering toward the top.

When steel and concrete skeleton frames were developed, brick was displaced as a structural material in tall buildings, although it continued to be used as an enclosure material. Today, however, a new concept of building design and construction has brought brick back as a structural, or "load bearing," material.

Development of a "contemporary brick-bearing wall concept" by engineers at SCPI has made it feasible to use relatively thin brick walls to support very tall buildings. Thus a 17-story apartment building in Denver is entirely supported by 11-inch-thick brick walls at a cost saving of $110,000 over a skeleton-frame design.

* * *

THIS CONCEPT has proved attractive to building owners and designers for several reasons. Perhaps the most important is that it can offer substantial construction economies. But it also can provide exceptional sound privacy in apartments separated by solid brick walls, it furnishes a high degree of fire protection, permits buildings to be constructed more rapidly, and can give to tenants of apartments the chic appeal of an exposed brick wall.

Hundreds of the new kind of brick bearing-wall buildings are being built all across the United States, and interest in this kind of building design and construction is growing.

Taken together, the popularity of brick in the home, and the utility and economy of brick in high-rise buildings, give reason to believe that this age-old building product has a future that may be as long, and as interesting, as its past.

Tornado Season Of Destruction

"Tornadoes are small but deadly storms that skip across the land cutting a swath of destruction," warns Donald C. Bolton, Michigan Director of the Allstate Safety Crusade.

They are violent local storms with winds that whirl at tremendous speeds. Many tornadoes are accompanied by thunderstorms, especially storms that deposit hailstones. Frequently two or more tornadoes appear in the same area, following more or less parallel paths.

BOLTON POINTS OUT that a tornado usually is seen as a rotating funnel-shaped cloud extending toward the ground from the base of a thundercloud. Tornadoes vary in color from gray to black, but all have one deadly characteristic: rapidly rotating winds that cause them to spin like a top. When close by, tornadoes sound like the roar of hundreds of airplanes.

The average tornado path is about 16 miles long and a quarter of a mile wide. Speeds range from 25 to 40 mph but can have speeds as high as 68 miles an hour. In most cases they move from a westerly direction, usually from the southwest.

Tornadoes occur in every state but most frequently in the central U.S. The number of tornadoes normally starts to increase in the Gulf states in February and reaches a peak there in March.

The number increases during the spring and spreads northward into the Midwest, occurring there most often in May and June.

Tornadoes do frightful damage, so precautions must be taken to minimize the storm's effects. Such objects as trees, building material and even cars are hurled through the air with awesome force. The sudden drop in pressure during tornadoes explodes buildings like punctured balloons and debris hurtles through the air like a javelin.

IN A CITY OR TOWN seek inside shelter, preferably in a strongly reinforced building. Stay Away From Windows!

In homes: The corner of the basement toward the tornado usually offers greatest safety, particularly in frame houses. People in houses without basements can sometimes be protected by taking cover under heavy furniture against inside walls.

Doors and windows on the sides of the house away from the tornado may be opened to equalize the air pressure inside and help reduce damage to the building. Standing against the inside wall on a lower floor of an office building offers some protection.

In factories and offices, on receiving a tornado warning, a lookout should be posted to keep safety officials advised of the tornado's approach. Advance preparation should be made for moving workers to sections of the plant offering the greatest protection.

AFTER THE STORM has passed, don't use the telephone except for an emergency and keep your radio or TV on for information and public instruction. Stay away from broken or low hanging power lines. Tell police or utility companies about them.

Teaching Gear Hikes Brain Input

ANN ARBOR -- The real significance of the continuing parade of new teaching "hardware" is in the improvement it has brought about in the instructional process, says Lewis H. Hodges, University of Michigan lecturer in vocational education and practical arts.

Change for change itself is not justified, he asserts. "Attempts to introduce computers and closed-circuit television must bring with them real and lasting benefits or they will not win acceptance," Hodges writes in the April issue of School Shop magazine.

* * *

HE NOTES that today's student is being exposed at an early age to an ever-increasing array of electronic media everyday. "It is the responsibility of educators, along with guidance personnel "to help the student harness this media know-how to effective learning," he says.

Manufacturers are making instructional hardware "user-oriented." Redesigned equipment is lighter, labeled with better instructions, more accessible to the student, and available at lower cost per unit.

"Most importantly," says Hodges, "the old inventory of complicated equipment is giving way to hardware which requires little training to use. Film loops, automatic-threading projectors, and cartridge tapes are examples.

"Once, use of the computer was considered a visionary idea for the school shop or classroom. Today it is a reality. Computers are being installed in schools across the country. It's up to us to learn to use them effectively.

"The computer has a vast power to catalog, sort, index, and store information. This capacity may be brought right into the classroom or shop by using a remote input-output device."

Hodges believes many benefits can be realized from the innovations:

For one thing, the teacher is freed from routine and trivia, he notes. He can spend more time planning, creating, and evaluating.

Devices such as dial-access systems, single-concept films, and video-tape recordings make possible presentation of material when and where it will be most efficient.

Hodges points out that the student is involved in interactive learning. "He can be brought into step-by-step programmed learning situations which require an active and immediate response."

Also he may learn faster and with greater interest. "Visual texts, using overlay pages, revelation pages, and multi-color movable pages can make improvements in the learning rate and quality."

* * *

INDEPENDENT study is emphasized, says Hodges. "Patterns of self-instruction develop an attitude of self-reliance and investigation in the student. He is permitted to take home A-V aids, slides, and tapes. He is encouraged to take initiative in his own learning experience."

Instruction is individualized. "The teacher is not required to follow a single mass presentation for the entire class. He may select books, programmed materials, tapes, films, slides in a pattern most desirable for each individual student."

"This increase in efficiency is due to the pre-planning and programming of the learning experience," he says.

State Gets Patent On Sign

LANSING -- The State of Michigan has been issued a patent on what traffic safety engineers describe as the most effective school speed limit sign ever used in Michigan.

Developed by the Traffic Research Section of the Department of State Highways Traffic and Safety Division, the sign was patented to enable sign producers to bid on and manufacture the sign for the Department.

More than 20 pairs of the signs have been erected on state highways near school crossings throughout Michigan and more are sure to follow.

The signs measure approximately four by six feet and display a black-on-white "school speed limit" message visible at all times. Below the message is the speed limit in 16-inch-high numerals which are blanked out through use of a louvered screen when the sign is not activated. The sign is surmounted by two alternately flashing amber lights designed as motorist attention-getters.

The sign is usually controlled by a crossing guard or school official and is activated only when children are near the school or road crossing. That way motorists become accustomed to children being present when the sign is lighted and reduce their vehicle speed.

Cost of erecting a set of the signs, plus installation of wiring and a control box, is approximately $2,600. The Highway Department, if it agrees with local officials that one is needed at a particular location, pays half the cost.

Traffic researchers say the signs are most needed on well-traveled highways which a good many children must cross on their way to and from school. An added advantage is that local lawmen can enforce the posted school speed limit, usually 10 miles below the normal limit.

Motorists are more familiar with a smaller diamond-shaped sign displaying the word "school" and flashing yellow lights mounted on the sign face. They have been erected by the hundreds and proved effective.

"The new sign on which we hold the patent is more effective than the presence of children in reducing speeds," said Charles L. Richard, Highway Department traffic engineer who directed a survey of the signs' effectiveness.

Cereals Good, Cheap Nutrition

Depending on the form you choose, cereal foods can be one of the least expensive foods for your family, says Louise W. Hamilton, extensions foods and nutrition specialist, the Pennsylvania State University.

Best buys in cereal foods include 100 per cent whole wheat or enriched breads; whole grain, enriched, or fortified cereal; and enriched rice, cornmeal, or grits. Many commonly used breads and cereals cost less than two and a half cents a serving.

How much you spend for cereal foods, such as these, depends on the extras you buy along with the basic food, Miss Hamilton points out. If you must have a special diet of bread or fancy rolls, you're getting into the higher priced bracket. If you choose ready-to-eat breakfast cereal, you're adding one to two cents more to each serving than if you used home-cooked cereal. When you buy sugar-coated or cocoa-coated cereals, you add another penny or two to the cost.

Size of package makes a difference. The smaller the package, the higher the per serving cost. Cereal packaged in individual serving boxes may cost twice as much as the regular size package of the same cereal, reminds Miss Hamilton.

Plain styles in macaroni, spaghetti, and noodles give you the same flavor for less money. Fancy shapes and cuts, such as shells or cartwheels, are priced higher.

BONN, Germany -- For the first time in two years there are more job openings than unemployed workers in West Germany.

The federal labor office reported Tuesday that the number of unemployed fell to 330,851 at the end of April while the number of unfilled jobs climbed to 443,254.

Solvents Help With Stains

Many different stains crop up around the house but probably the most difficult ones to deal with are those caused by oil and grease.

The trouble with grease and oil is that they are quickly absorbed by any porous materials and once absorbed they will leave a stain, and the quicker you take steps to get them out, the less trouble you will have. The longer the stain remains, the deeper it will penetrate into the material, making it more difficult to remove.

A good trick to remember in the kitchen is to pour cold water on hot grease that gets on the floor. This will congeal it so that it can't be absorbed too easily by the flooring.

If the stain is not too deep in a material, it can often be removed by wiping with a solvent such as a dry cleaning fluid. If this fails to do any good, you will have to draw the oil or grease out of the material with Fuller's earth, sold at most hardware stores. Sprinkle the earth over the stain and then dampen the earth with a solvent. The solvent will soften up the grease or oil so that as the Fuller's earth dries out, it will draw out the stain.

This method works on wood, masonry, fabrics, and even wallpaper. If the stain is very deep, several applications of Fuller's earth may be required. On large stains on masonry, you'll find that dry Portland cement is an inexpensive substitute for the Fuller's earth.

Offer Tips On Plywood

For hand-sawing, use a 10-point cross cut saw for best results, support the panel firmly and turn the best side up.

For hand power sawing, a sharp blade made especially for plywood works best. Be sure to turn the best side down.

New Survey Has Legs To Stand On

LONDON -- A scientific survey is under way in Britain needing someone to photograph 1,000 pairs of female legs -- and wouldn't you know it? -- the job's gone to a woman.

Dr. Elizabeth Coope of Birmingham's Aston University got started with a research grant of $1,920 and strong feelings that a leg can tell a lot about its owner.

* * *

"WHEN I complete this study of 1,000 pairs of legs by 1970, I think we shall find that legs show which part of the country a girl lives in and what social class she belongs to," Dr. Coope said in an interview. "In fact, the more intelligent a woman is, the better shaped legs she has."

Dr. Coope is a nice-looking brunette with pretty good legs herself. She's 30 years old and married.

"Women's legs are fascinating," she said. "Of course I look at them in a different way from men.

"No, we didn't consider photographing men's legs. They're not so interesting as women's, which have an extraordinary diversity of shape.

* * *

"WE WANT TO relate variations in shape to different regions. Do Welsh girls have different shaped legs than, say, Scottish girls? We want to find out.

"Perhaps the most interesting aspect will be the difference between social classes. Some people think girls with lovely slim legs come only from well-off families in the south of England."

Dr. Coope, a researcher in the biology department of Aston University, got her survey going by photographing and measuring the legs of some of her own girl students.

"The study will embrace 400 girls at universities throughout Britain and another 600 in shops, offices and factories," she said.

New Look In Kitchens..Clean, Cool, Sharp

Kitchens will take on a completely new look predicts designer John Van Koert.

The culinary center will look as if it has been premolded and will be so sanitary it will practically squeak, he says.

Van Koert, well-known for his improvisations in furniture design and interior decoration, illustrated his point with some kitchen vignettes using one of the new materials that makes his idea possible. New industrial achievements will further such interior innovations, he says.

He used a new nonslip highgloss surface flooring (ultra floor) with vinyl foam cushion that is "a descendant of poured floors" in one continuous sweep to include baseboard, wainscoting, countertop.

The poured floors required skilled technicians and there were problems in controlling patterns so that chips wouldn't scatter.

The new material of plasticized vinyl chips resembles the poured floor but it is easier to lay. Seams are welded on the job to give it a continuous look. It can be wrapped around anything that has some support, he says.

"There is a movement to greater integration of interior design in kitchens. For example, using this flooring around the wall eliminates cleaning baseboard and wainscoting.

"We are going to see a great deal of a new look that envelopes a room like a lining so that everything will be controlled and wear out at the same moment.

"The bathroom will become so prefabricated that one day everything will be stamped out with basins being set into the material, he says.

"The molded bathroom is a natural and certain materials lend themselves to the one-piece bathroom idea, he explains.

"Bathrooms will be a hard look; whereas kitchens will be soft, in Van Koert's opinion.

"We have been covered up with early American coziness too long but kitchen equipment will be so beautiful. We might actually choose to revert to kitchens that are obviously progressive," he explains. Kitchens should be light, airy, safe and maintenance-free.

"Services are expensive and many people cook and clean out of necessity. These things must be taken into consideration when designing a kitchen.

"How much work is it going to be? Fortunately, modern kitchen design is getting so good, we can enjoy its functionalism and get a warm feeling as well."

State Studies Traffic In UP

LANSING -- The State Highway Commission plans a comprehensive study of traffic this summer in the Iron Mountain, Kingsford and Norway area.

The Commission said the study will aid in planning for highways, streets, bridges and recreation facilities, and in appraising transportation facilities and parking needs.

Keep It Flat For Varnish

When varnishing an object, you can get better results if the surface is horizontal.

Always wait until the varnish is dry before turning the piece.

Whenever possible, keep turning the furniture that is being finished so that you have a horizontal surface on which to work.

Drying time will be indicated on the manufacturer's label. Runs or sags on vertical surfaces should be eliminated with a dry brush before the varnish dries.

Readers Speak Up On Controversial Issues

A Lowell Student Is Bit Perturbed

EDITOR:

I am a ninth grade student at Lowell Junior High School. As you know, the ninth grade class from Lowell and other schools will have to go on an extended session at Franklin High School (12:30 to 5:45) during the 1968-69 school year. This will be the third time in four years that we will have to go on the extended sessions.

Everyone at Lowell thought that we were going to go to Stevenson High during our high school years. Then when ground was broken for the new high school, I wondered about who would be going to it. It seemed that everyone was trying to keep it quiet about us going on the extended sessions.

After all, we were promised before that we would not have these extended sessions again. I talked to one of the counselors and found out that we would go on extended sessions again. The students then took up a petition and turned it over to the parents to show that they cared enough about this situation.

Then the parents became involved in this. They went to school board meetings and voiced their opinion. They found out that there wasn't enough room for us at the other high schools because we have tuition students in the schools.

These students are getting a full day of school next year at Bentley High. I feel that this is not right for the school board to take tuition students when they are not currently required by law and when there is not enough room for the regular students. If anyone should go on extended sessions, it should be the tuition students.

It seems that the school board is favoring the tuition students. I feel (as do many other students), that if the current school board cannot come up with a better solution, then, it might be time for a change of faces in the current school board. Of course, students cannot do anything about it, but the parents can do something about it. I wish to urge all parents and voters to look closely at what you are doing on June 10. But whether you vote or not, I hope that people will get more encouraged in the school system.

A Very Concerned Student

Tax Situation Is Hard To Understand

EDITOR:

I am writing to complain about the inadequate reporting by your newspaper relative to the tax assessment and the proposed school millage increase. I have read many articles in your newspaper lately and not one explains the situation so it can be easily understood.

Sue Shaughnessy in the May 8 issue says, "The schools have requested a four mill increase over a 10 year period. If approved this would cost the property owner of a house valued at $10,000 a total of $40 per year." Then at the end of the article she says that one mill equals $1 for each $1,000 of assessment on property value. This according to my computation means you would have to have a house assessed at $40,000 to pay a $40 tax.

Why don't you explain what state equalization figures of 2.1 and .93 mean relative to an actual house assessment. Then explain how this relates to the property tax the owner pays. Presently we have an assessed value placed on our property and a tax rate of so many dollars per one thousand dollars of assessment. What does the .93 have to do with this?

My 1968 assessment has gone up $4,000. If the tax rate remains the same I will have to pay about $180 more than 1967. How can I approve a millage increase under such circumstances.

THOMAS D. JOHNSON

Ode To Mod System

EDITOR:

Hippy, hippy, hooray for Patrick Williams (a senior in Stevenson High School). His letter appeared in the May 8 Observer.

No! No! Heavens to Betsy! Let's not cancel the Modular System. How else can a body earn bread and where else but in Livonia--watching the swaggering Roaming-Os and Julieless in their scholastic endeavors? The sweet lassies combing and brushing their stringy, greasy tresses and the virile laddies straining their biceps as they pitch paper wads to woo them! Ah! sweet wilderness!

We must not strangle these eager minds. We must not dampen their enthusiasm. On, on punks. Down, down ye old tymers!

YOUR SERVANT IN EDUCATION

Millage Is Needed

EDITOR:

As you know there is a new millage proposal on the June 10 Farmington School ballot.

The students of Farmington Junior High School are deeply concerned about this question because of the effect the outcome will have on the activities of the school.

The following will happen if the millage does not pass.

All athletics will be eliminated.

Driver's education will be cut in half.

There will be no field trips.

There will be a reduction in the funds for the purchase of library books and instructional materials.

Riots Top Vietnam In Griffin's Mail

A marked change has taken place in the content of letters pouring into the office of U.S. Senator Robert P. Griffin, the Michigan Republican said this week.

Mail expressing concern about the war in Vietnam--a consistent front runner in the 300 or more letters which he gets each day--has given way to letters generally related to law enforcement.

"Our Vietnam mail nearly always outdistances all other topics," Sen. Griffin said. "But it has dropped off considerably in the last two weeks.

"The main focus of the mail now is on the riots that continue to strike our nation's cities and other subjects related to law enforcement.

"Running a strong second are letters overwhelmingly in favor of cuts in federal spending and generally opposing enactment of a surtax."

Griffin said that of those persons who are writing to him about the riots and civil disorders, a majority are calling for stronger law enforcement.

"However, an increasing number are urging enactment of massive government-supported programs such as those set forth in the Kerner Commission report," he said.

Computers Can Aid Education

LOS ANGELES -- Computers can free professors and save higher education from becoming impersonal rather than making it more so, an educator said.

"Far from enslaving the student and professor, modern teaching tools and techniques can liberate them from the rigid compulsions of conventional instruction," Alvin C. Eurich told the seventh annual California Teachers Association. Eurich is president of the Academy for Educational Development in New York.

Skills Center GM Donates Engine To McNamara

C.W. Trurell, general manager of Detroit Diesel Engine Division, in Redford Township, recently presented one of the division's 6V-53 truck engines to the McNamara Skills Center of Detroit as a gift from General Motors Corporation.

The engine will be used in the Center's diesel maintenance training program to allow students to get firsthand experience in maintaining and overhauling an engine.

Accepting the engine on behalf of the Skills Center was Principal George McWatt. Also on hand were the 20 students who are currently enrolled in the Center's diesel program.

In making the presentation Trurell said, "Personally, I don't think enough good can be said about the men and women who return to school. Everyone who tries to elevate and improve their own standards of education and living deserves a special salute. It takes real character to return to the classroom and to you students I wish the greatest success in attaining your goals."

It began operation in 1964; and, since that time, 9,000 students have completed one of the 42 programs which are currently offered. Presently there are 800 students enrolled from Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

The school is sponsored by 90 per cent federal funds, and 10 per cent city funds and is administered by the Detroit Board of Education.

All prospective students are enrolled in the school by the Michigan Employment Security Commission. The only qualification for entrance is that they be unemployed. The diesel program runs 43 weeks, eight hours a day. More than 85 per cent of the people attending the school are later employed in the skill in which they were trained.

* * *

DETROIT DIESEL'S assistance to the Skills Center goes beyond the donation of the engine. A consultant has been assigned to assist in handling any problems that arise during the program.

Instructors from the division's factory training center on West Chicago Boulevard have worked with the Skills Center's instructors bringing them up to date on the latest teaching aids and techniques being successfully used in the Detroit Diesel school.

Medicare Guide In Mail

Within the coming weeks, older people in Northville will be receiving a new copy of "Your Medicare Handbook," a new up-to-date guidebook on their Medicare benefits, how the program works, and how payments are made.

Sam F. Test, social security district manager, said the new handbook highlights the changes enacted in the 1967 social security amendments, improving protection and simplifying medcare procedures.

It has also been made easier for older people to read and understand.

In developing the new edition of "Your Medicare Handbook," Test said, the SSA sought the suggestions of elderly readers as well as experts in the field of communications and representatives of professional organizations.

Delivery of the new red, white, and blue edition to the 19.6 million Americans 65 and over will be cycled over the next six weeks, Test said.

In an introductory letter on the inside front cover of the new Handbook, Robert M. Ball, commissioner of Social Security, reminds older people: "If you need further information or want help concerning your Medicare protection or any other social security matters, please get in touch with your social security office. The people there are always glad to help you."

GM Planning Staff Adds Four

Lowell A. Kintigh, newly-appointed director for forward planning for General Motors, has announced appointment of four managers to his staff.

They are: Carl C. Jakust, manager, forward planning-passenger cars; Francis C. Fleck, manager, forward planning -trucks; Jack R. Doidge, manager, forward planning-components, and Harlan R. Heinmiller, manager, forward planning-coordination and scheduling.

New longer-lived, better performing tires are being planned as standard equipment by Ford Motor Co. for some 1969 models.

The new "low-aspect ratio" tires provide improved traction, cooler running and longer tread life. Experience with racing vehicles is credited with playing a role in their development.

"These new tires are now undergoing final durability tests at Ford proving grounds," said Harold C. MacDonald, Ford vice president - Car Engineering. "We expect to offer them on next year's Mustangs and Cougars."

* * *

HE SAID THE new tires represent the first major original-equipment change in standard tires since the introduction of low-profile tires on the 1964 Ford Thunderbird and Lincoln Continental.

Low-aspect ratio tires utilize a flatter, wider cross-section. The tires run cooler because there is less change in shape as they roll along road surfaces. This gives better traction, improved directional stability and, because of reduced internal friction, longer tire life expectancy.

Technically, the tires are described as ".78-aspect ratio," a term derived from the squat shape of the tire cross-section. Tire aspect ratio is determined by dividing the tire section height by the width, so that the lower the number, the wider and lower the tire.

Though turtles appear to be unintelligent to the casual observer, as when they climb over an obstacle instead of going around it, experiments have shown them to have the ability to learn at least as quickly as the laboratory rat, the Encyclopedia Britannica reports.

Car Boom May Pass '65-Ford

BOSTON — Auto industry sales are going at a rate which even surprises Detroit optimists, a Ford Motor Company executive said here today.

"We may be on our way to a record year in automobile sales," M.S. (Matt) McLaughlin, Ford vice president and Lincoln-Mercury Division general manager, told the Massachusetts Automobile Dealers Association.

The biggest auto year in history was 1965, when 9.3 million U.S. and foreign cars were sold.

* * *

"I'M SURE YOU ALL know that the market is strong," he said, "and just how strong may surprise even the optimists. Industry sales in March—and I'll concede that sales contests inflated the total a bit—hit 847,000 units for an annual rate of better than 9.5 million.

March sales this year actually were more than 100,000 units ahead of the same month in 1967, which gives us some idea of the terrific bounce we are experiencing."

McLaughlin warned the dealers that while the auto market continues to grow, it also continues to change and dealers must adjust their operations accordingly.

* * *

CHIEF AMONG the challenges of the future will be dealers' physical capacity to accommodate a 25 per cent increase in new and used car sales which is anticipated in the 1970s, he stated.

Other challenges are the changes which occur in local trading areas and traffic routes, the increasing complexity of automobiles and the resultant need for better tools and service technicians, the popularization of leasing and daily rentals and the proliferation of new models.

Postscript To Historic Delivery

RICHMOND, Va. — Seventy years ago the world thrilled to the feat of Lt. Andrew S. Rowan of the U.S. Army who sent word to U.S. command forces in the Spanish-American War that he had successfully delivered his "message to Garcia."

Garcia was Cuban rebel Gen. Calixto Garcia and the message Rowan had delivered to him in his stronghold deep in the Cuban mountains was that the United States had joined him in his war against Spain.

* * *

AN IRONIC postscript to that historic incident was written here recently when a Richmond man was hurt in an accident and rushed to the emergency room of St. Mary's Hospital for treatment.

"What's your name?" asked the nurse who came to his aid.

"Carlos Garcia-Velez," he replied.

"Do you spell 'Garcia' the way it's spelled in 'a message to Garcia'?" she asked.

"Yes, the Garcia who received the message was my great-grandfather," he said.

"Well," said the surprised nurse, Mrs. Regina Rowan Hola, "the man who carried the message to your grandfather was my father's cousin."

U-M Prof Picked For Housing Study

WASHINGTON — A University of Michigan faculty member is among 23 persons appointed to a new national panel on housing problems of the elderly.

The group, known as the Advisory Committee on Housing for Senior Citizens, was appointed by Secretary Robert C. Weaver of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The U-M committee member is Dr. Wilma Donahue, chairman of the division of gerontology, Institute of Human Adjustment.

The Very Rev. Msgr. W.L. Suedkamp, secretary for charities, archdiocese of Detroit, was also named.

Members will serve for one year and may be reappointed, Secretary Weaver said. They include educators, public officials, builders, doctors, sociologists, clergymen, labor leaders, attorneys and businessmen.

The first committee meeting will take place in Washington.

Plastic Joints Aid Finger Movement

LONDON, – Mrs. Florence Hudson wept when doctors told her they would have to cut off the wedding ring she had worn for 34 years because her finger joints had become swollen and twisted with rheumatoid arthritis.

The ring has just been restored to her finger, and her hand restored to something like its old usefulness thru a revolutionary plastic finger joint designed and perfected by researchers at Hammersmith hospital in London.

* * *

DR. J.S. CALNAN, who led the research team, said the new joint--a strip of plastic that costs only 24 cents to make--has made it possible for sufferers to regain almost 90 per cent of the ordinary range of movement of a joint.

"The results of the operation have been dramatic," he said. "There has been no infection in any patients, and there is little pain even after a lengthy and traumatic experience."

The Arthritis and Rheumatism council, which gave Dr. Calnan a second $24,000 grant to continue his research, said the perfection of the joint would be good news to Britain's 1.5 million rheumatoid arthritis sufferers and, presumably, to millions of others around the world.

THE PLASTIC JOINT despite its cheapness, will last almost a lifetime, whereas one of the artificial joints it is expected to replace costs $96 and is vulnerable to damage.

Dr. Calnan tested his device on a special machine which showed it could be used the equivalent of moving the finger 23 million times. It is the first one-piece joint in the world and it is inserted into the marrow section of the finger bones with its flexible part where the joint normally would be.

One of the first patients, a young man, was able to go back to work as a travel courier after having had to resign because of rheumatoid arthritis.

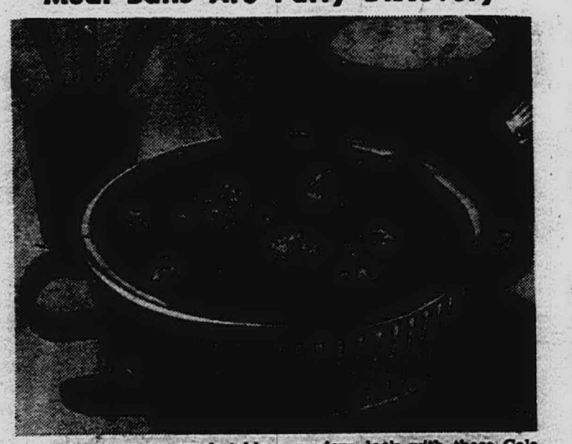

YOUR BREATHING PROBLEMS
Chest Specialist Answers Questions on Lung Ailments

By Gordon M. Meade, M.D.
Director of Medical Education
National Tuberculosis Association

Q. What is a Respiratory Disease?
A. The term refers to any ailment of the breathing organs: the nasal passages, throat, lungs and connecting passages.
Q. Are any of the Respiratory Diseases regarded as major illnesses?
A. Some are extremely serious. Tuberculosis, perhaps the best known, can cripple or kill if not diagnosed early enough and properly treated. Other chronic forms of RD, such as emphysema and chronic bronchitis, make breathing a desperate struggle in severe cases, and cause many deaths.
Q. What is emphysema?
A. The word, taken from the Greek, means literally, "inflation." Emphysema is characterized by a breakdown of the countless tiny air sacs and blood vessels of the lung. As the condition progresses, the lungs lose their elasticity and their ability to get rid of stale air is impaired. Breathing becomes increasingly difficult and the heart may be strained until it can no longer function—in which event death results.
Q. What causes emphysema?
A. The precise cause has not yet been ascertained; it is a subject for continued research. There may be several causes. However, it is a statistical fact that almost all those who have emphysema have been heavy cigarette smokers for a long period of time.
Q. Can emphysema be cured?
A. No cure is known at the present time. Symptoms can be relieved, and the progress of the disease often arrested, by the administration of drugs and the use of breathing exercises and other rehabilitation techniques. The first and most important measure is to stop smoking.
Q. What is chronic bronchitis?
A. An inflammation of the lining of the bronchial tubes, characterized by abnormal secretion of mucus. Its obvious symptom is a chronic or recurrent cough that produces mucus.
Q. What causes chronic bronchitis?
A. A variety of causes which produce irritation and often infection of the bronchial tubes. Chief among them is heavy and prolonged cigarette smoking.
Q. Can chronic bronchitis be cured?
A. It depends on the cause of a specific case. Antibiotic drugs plus a cessation of cigarette smoking can result in cure or satisfactory remission of symptoms.
Q. If a person has severe emphysema or chronic bronchitis, can it still help if he stops smoking?
A. Yes. No matter how advanced the disease, cessation of smoking will produce improvement.
Q. What are the prospects for controlling emphysema and chronic bronchitis?
A. Research and a campaign of public education, vigorously carried out through the joint efforts of the U.S. Public Health Service and the National Tuberculosis Association, are producing better methods of diagnosis, treatment and rehabilitation. These can stem the progress and ameliorate the effects of these diseases. Incidentally, efforts of the NTA and its state and local affiliates depend largely for their success on Christmas Seal contributions. The fight against nontuberculous respiratory disease has barely begun; judging by experience with other diseases, continued efforts should bring substantial results.

- 1 teaspoon onion juice
- ½ teaspoon dry shredded parsley

For meat balls, thoroughly combine all ingredients. Shape to form 48 meat balls using about 1 tablespoon meat mixture for each. Melt 2 tablespoons shortening in large skillet. Add meat balls; pan-fry about 15 minutes, turning frequently. Drain on absorbent paper.

For sauce, combine all ingredients; heat thoroughly. To serve, insert a toothpick in each meat ball. Dip meat balls into hot sauce.

Some Merchants Victimize The Disadvantaged

WASHINGTON -- Mr. and Mrs. George W. Lowry live in the Negro ghetto of the nation's capital. Their income hovers around $350 a month, and they paid a total of $400 including financing charges, for a used combination phonograph and television set that they thought was new. The set went on the blink a month after the purchase, they said. A recent check showed that a new set of the same brand with full warranty could be purchased for $244 cash.

The Lowrys bought their set from a furniture store in an area hard hit by looting and burning. The store's cost of the set was $90.

Gwendolyn Sellman, whose husband is an $80-a-week bartender, paid $313 for a sofa and chair set. The sofa started to collapse less than a month after purchase. A good sofa is available in Georgetown for $199.

A drab sun-bleached dacron and rayon suit, without label, was offered for $90 by a credit clothing store. A leading men's store on posh Connecticut Avenue was selling English wool suits for the same price that day.

The practices mentioned here are not unusual. Nor are the stores. If anything, they are commonplace in every major slum in America. Everywhere they operate in much the same way.

These are not the stores that middle-case housewives usually patronize. And they don't sell the same way as do stores that serve the general market. Prices, for instance, almost always are for the item including financing charges. Cash sales are not encouraged.

High-credit stores sell mainly to poor people, and are usually in poor neighborhoods. Their sales (at least 92.7 per cent of them) are on credit, whereas general-market stores do about 26.5 per cent of their trade on credit, according to a recent Federal Trade Commission (FTC) study of high-credit stores.

Because these stores deal mainly with the poor, they do only 16 per cent of the city's total retail credit business, but the way they affect those with whom they trade is causing great concern. Experts in urban matters feel that their methods aggravate the plight of the poor.

What these stores offer is convenience to people who cannot afford to pay cash for what they feel they need or who, for various reasons, cannot or will not buy at general-market stores, using charge accounts.

"They are paying;" one lawyer familiar with the situation says, "a poor tax. It's that simple."

The FTC's study points out that, in general, poor people pay more for inferior merchandise.

The merchants, when they will talk about it, defend their pricing and sales methods. They have to charge so much, they say, because they have to cover the high rate of loss incurred from bad debts.

A typical criterion for extending credit is whether a prospect has been employed for a year. How many other debts he has, how many mouths he has to feed with how much income, or other measures of his ability to pay are rarely examined. When, as often happens, the store payments are not met, the creditor can repossess the goods, sue the buyer for the unpaid balance of the debt, and garnishee his salary. The latter could cost the debtor his job. The item usually is sold again after repossession.

It began in May of 1965, Annie Lee Lowry remembers. She was home with her five children when a salesman came to the door.

Mrs. Lowry had not planned to buy a bedspread. She didn't need one. But a spread for only $1 a week.

It always starts that way. It has that subtle rhythm of a changing tide. Just a little at a time. Mrs. Lowry could not have foreseen then the day when she and her husband would owe the merchant more than $650 dollars.

George Lowry's take-home pay from his job as a cook at a drive-in restaurant was $66 a week. The rent was about $80 a month. Mr. Lowry now says, "A dollar. Why, anybody figures he can get a dollar anywhere."

Mrs. Lowry signed a piece of paper and the thing was hers. The price was $39 for the blue chenille spread and two matching pillows. It seemed a bargain.

She didn't see the salesman for a while, she said, maybe a few months. Meanwhile, a collection man was coming for her weekly dollar. She paid him faithfully.

The salesman came back a little later with a linen bundle, and there were other items; the weekly tithe was rising, slowly.

George and Annie Lee Lowry took the plunge in November, 1965. The salesman showed Mrs. Lowry a picture of a "home entertainment center." Television set, AM-FM radio, a stereo phonograph. They owed only $42 at that time.

Mrs. Lowry pondered the picture of the set--and she liked it. She and her husband talked it over. Their payments would go up to $7 a week--$7 out of $66 with seven mouths to feed. George Lowry wasn't so sure.

The salesman called the next day and invited Mr. Lowry to the store. Mr. Lowry signed the contract for the set. Although the contract states the set was used, Mr. Lowry said he thought it was new, a belief he and his wife were to have for months afterward.

"Why don't you come down and get a hide-a-bed set?" These are the words Mrs. Lowry remembers hearing in November, 1966.

By then, Mr. Lowry says, "we didn't want to get anything more from him because we knew he was too high, but we couldn't get any cash together, so. . ."

So Mr. Lowry's payments rose to $18 a week after he bought a convertible couch and chair for $449 including the financing charges. The wholesale cost of the two pieces to the store was $131.

Now the Lowrys were in trouble. They owed the store more than $650. And although they had been prompt in their payments, bad fortune struck, and a part-time job Mr. Lowry was holding as a cook had to be abandoned.

"It got down to the point where we couldn't pay the bills," Mr. Lowry says simply.

The Lowrys made their last payment to the store on April 20 of last year. By June 20, U.S. marshals were knocking at the door.

The store had sued for repossession of the sofa-bed and chair, a transistor radio, a television antenna and that $400 entertainment center.

The company's claim against the Lowrys at that point was that the couple owed $508. But the company got a court order to seize the other items, for which the Lowrys had already paid about $460.

As the Lowrys and others have learned, when a series of items are purchased from this store on credit, the sales contracts provide that no single item is paid until all have been paid for.

Eventually, George and Annie Lee Lowry recovered their television-phonograph set, with the aid of the neighborhood legal services project. The sofa-bed was useless by then because it had deteriorated.

The lawyer who worked on the Lowry's defense said afterward:

These high credit stores rely heavily on impulse buying. They also rely to a considerable extent on customers' ignorance of the market and the value of merchandise. As the FTC's study pointed out, there is little competition between the high-credit stores.

Prices can be astronomical.

Lawyers, social workers, and anti-poverty workers have tried to find out why the poor willingly pay so much for inferior goods.

William O'Brien, who runs a credit union program for the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, says the answer is psychological.

"That man in the credit stores treats people like princes," he said. "He makes a man feel like he's worth something when he is being sold. If that man went downtown to a department store in the old clothes he has, he feels he would be rejected."

There is, for many poor Negroes, a psychological barrier to "downtown."

The second floor of the New York Jewelry Co. looks something like a bargain basement. And the eagerness of the salesman to sign up the customer encourages the belief that it's easier on the customer to buy on credit.

Neither appearance is a true one, according to charges brought by the staff of the Federal Trade Commission that New York Jewelry's prices are unconscionably high and that it uses "easy credit" to obtain these prices. The staff was not upheld by a trial examiner and the issue is before the full commission.

Although New York Jewelry is only one of several stores facing FTC charges, the commission has studied all of Washington's high-credit stores.

According to the FTC's study, at some stores, credit sales constitute 100 per cent of their business.

STORES SELL DEBT

The FTC's study of the district, importantly, was used extensively by the National Advisory Commission on Civil Disorders in its discussion of credit practices.

Federal Trade Commission records indicate these are some of the more common methods of these easy credit stores:

- Inducing customers to sign blank contracts.
- Obtaining signatures on contracts by telling reluctant customers that they are signing receipts for merchandise left only for "free home trial."
- Refusing to disclose the full price of merchandise, telling the customer only how much he must pay each week.
- Selling used merchandise, saying it is new.

State Trims Road Mowing

LANSING -- The Department of State Highways has started trimming its roadside grass and weed control program in an effort to cut spending by $500,000 in the fiscal year ending June 30.

"Our 1967-68 budget calls for reduced maintenance expenditures and this program can be reduced without disrupting essential public service," said John P. Woodford, deputy state highway director.

The Department spent $1.7 million in fiscal 1966-67 for grass and weed control along 9,200 miles of state highways. The 1967-68 budget allocates $1.2 million for this purpose.

All but essential mowing is being delayed until July 1 when operations will be limited to two complete cuttings a year in the northern 40 counties and a maximum of three annually in the southern 43 counties. Mowing will also be limited in most instances to within 15 feet of the shoulder.

Previously, state roadsides have been mowed an average of three or four times a year, generally to the right-of-way line.

Essentially unaffected by the program cuts are urban parkways, depressed freeways and other areas where grass should be cut more often for safe highway operation.

Brides Must Remember Changes

Before her wedding day, a young woman should tell a few people other than her guests about this important event in her life.

INSURANCE POLICIES will need changes. If the father of the bride-to-be has owned a life insurance policy for her, she may want to change the ownership of the policy from his name to hers or her husband's name.

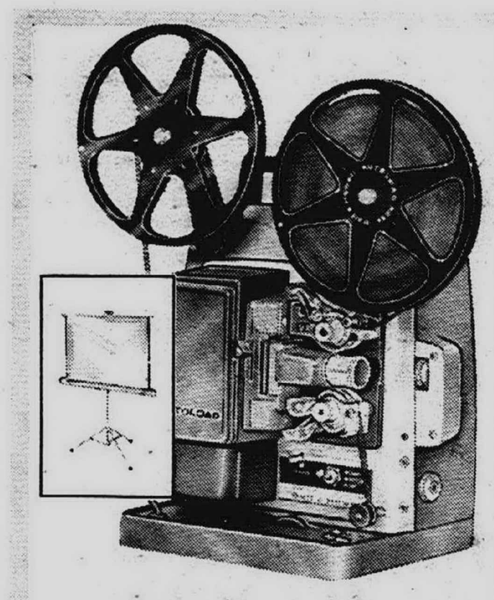

She'll probably want to change the beneficiary from her "old" family to her "new" one. But she should remember to name second and third beneficiaries, says Miss Bell. Tragic as it may seem, the possibility of an accident involving both husband and wife should not be overlooked. Without additional beneficiaries named, insurance money can be tied up in estate and not be available for immediate expenses.

Other name changes include bank records, driver's license, employment records, car title, credit and membership cards, identification card in billfold, hospital records, and bonds or other investments, Miss Bell points out.

Soviet Oceanography Equals U.S.

WASHINGTON -- "The important thing about the Soviet oceanography program is not how large or how good it is, but the fact that it grew to be roughly the equivalent of the U.S. effort in less than 20 years."

This is the conclusion of Capt. T. K. Treadwell, deputy commander, U.S. Naval Oceanographic Office, writing a 1967 appraisal of the United States' position in marine sciences, compared to other major nations.

Capt. Treadwell continued: "Their growth rate in this area clearly exceeds that of the United States. If they continue at the same rate and we continue at the same rate, they will clearly be the world's leader in oceanography in another 20 years."

* * *

IN SIMILAR VEIN, Dr. John P. Craven, chief scientist of the Navy's Deep Submergence Systems Project, has commented: "Based on studies by the Interagency Committee on Oceanography, President Kennedy in 1963 proposed a $2-billion, 10-year program to explore and develop the oceans. In four years, we have spent less than one-sixth of the amount President Kennedy estimated to be necessary to achieve the goals he set forth."

Interviews with leaders in the field generally reflect this feeling--that we are doing much more in oceanography than we were 10 years ago but we ought to be doing more, not only in terms of money, but man hours devoted to research, planning, education and tighter organization, as well.

The effort is inhibited, in part, by the costs of Vietnam. It also suffers from governmental red tape; interagency rivalries; lack of long range planning; too little cross-discipline scientific teamwork, and growing pains, according to the ocean scientists themselves.

Their concern stems from the fact that, for one thing, the submarine threat to the United States has been and is expected to remain a very serious consideration in defense planning. Yet, in the words of a presidential committee, we "hardly have sufficient information on the ocean environment for Navy antisubmarine warfare needs."

This is the conclusion of the Panel on Oceanography of the President's Science Advisory Committee.

* * *

AN IMPORTANT RESPONSE to this lack lies in a Navy program called ASWEPS--Adtisubmarine Warfare Environment Prediction Services--the purpose of which is to collect data on ocean surface and subsurface conditions affecting naval operations, and forecasting these conditions.

* * *

PSAC ALSO found that "the general level of research in the Navy's Man in the Sea Project, aimed at enabling man to live and work in the ocean depths for an extended period, is inadequate. Insufficient attention has been given to biomedical problems of survival in the wet, cold, dark, high-pressure environment and our efforts in this field lag well behind those of other countries."

An oceanographer of national reputation who works closely with the Navy was blunt in his evaluation: "The deep submergence search and rescue program is not adequately inegrated with the research program. The deep ocean research program is grossly underfunded."

It received $24 million for fiscal 1967. This was less than the amount sought by the Deep Submergence Rescue Group which, prompted by the loss of the submarine Thresher with all hands, urged development of Navy search and recovery capabilities through a program that would cost $300 million over a 10-year period.

* * *

MEANWHILE, Russia clearly is surpassing the U.S. in shipping and fishing, both closely related not only to economic health, but national security as well.

Donald L. McKiernan, special assistant to the secretary of state says: "Between 1955 and 1965, the Soviet Union increased its annual fish catch 140 per cent, and the U.S. annual catch remained stable. Since World War II, the U.S. has fallen from second to fifth place in world ocean food production and we are apt to fall lower."

Space satellite technology could revolutionize our task of learning about the oceans.

But lack of funds is preventing full use of satellite technology by ocean scientists. Dr. Richard C. Vetter, executive secretary, National Academy of Sciences' Committee on Oceanography, said: "The Navy has a marvelous satellite navigation system receiver, expected to cost only $20,000 to $30,000 apiece. We ought to have one on every oceanographic ship. The chances are slim that we will have even three or four in the next year. It is poor management to have this capacity and send ships to sea without it. There are many other instances of similar frustration."

State's Car Capital Crazy Over Horses

Rumors to the contrary, there's more to horsepower in Michigan than automobile engines.

Even in the auto capital of the world, the old reliable four-legged variety has an increasing number of dedicated followers. The 38 approved horse shows on Michigan's 1968 schedule attest to that.

Writing in the June issue of Ford Times magazine, Eleanor Pederson reports that interest in horses and horse shows is growing by leaps and bounds -- literally -- around Michigan. Miss Pederson cites as proof upcoming shows in Grosse Pointe, Bloomfield Hills, Kalamazoo, Traverse City, Owosso, Berrien Springs and Lowell.

"THEY HAVE been going on, in one way or another, since man and horse met," she says. But, she adds, they continue to attract big crowds..."the 11-day show held during the Michigan State Fair has proven to be the best-attended attraction at the fair."

In her article, Miss Pederson tells about the excitement of horse shows, how entries are judged; and even what should be worn to them--"starting with a wide-brimmed hat and sunglasses."

"Once you begin to share the owner's dejection or joy after a horse has performed," she concludes, "you will know you have joined the ranks of true horse show addicts." Miss Pederson obviously has.

Also in the Ford Times June issue is Dr. Irwin Ross' "Raymond, the Fish," a story of a once-talented and trusting red-eyed rock bass, his run-in with an angler's worm and his total disillusionment with the non-aquatic world thereafter. Dr. Ross is a noted lecturer, hypnotist, writer and editor of Real Life Guide Magazine.

Another Ford Times fish story in the June issue is actor Jimmy Stewart's tale of fishing for large-mouth bass in the St. Johns River in Florida. The way he tells the story makes even a non-fisher eager to pack up and head south to give it a try.

Scott Gets U-M Post At Dearborn

DEARBORN -- Norman R. Scott, associate dean of the College of Engineering at the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, is the new dean of the university's Dearborn Campus.

Scott will succeed Dr. William E. Stirton, who is retiring as director of the Dearborn Campus and vice president of the university.

Scott's appointment was announced to the Dearborn faculty.

Stirton, who had originally planned to retire June 30, will remain through July and August.

Scott will take over Sept. 1 when he returns from a sabbatical leave. Since Jan. 1 he has been doing research in the development of a computer language and computer algorithms at the computing center of the Technische Hochschule in Munich.

Stirton, 65, has been a U-M vice president since 1956 and director of the Dearborn campus since its conception in 1958. An electrical engineer turned teacher and administrator, Stirton received a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering and a master's degree in physics and mathematics from U-M.

He was on the faculty of Cass Technical High School in Detroit for many years and was principal there from 1944 to 1951. In 1951 Stirton went to Wayne State University as assistant to the president and director of the division of community relations. He was later appointed vice president of Wayne for university services and development.

* * *

STIRTON HAS GUIDED the Dearborn Campus from a pilot program in the fall of 1959 to its present level of educational service to 2,400 college juniors and seniors. When the new campus originally opened, it offered only pilot programs in mechanical and industrial engineering and in business administration.

The campus operated on a year-round basis and featured alternate terms of study on campus and actual experience on a job related to the student's educational progress. Once the pilot programs were completed, the engineering offerings were expanded to include electrical engineering.

The Division of Literature, Science, and the Arts was added in the fall of 1960. Since then some features of the co-op program have been included in the literary division.

As for future expansion, Stirton said recently that he foresees more bachelor's and master's programs in engineering, business administration, and liberal arts.

A chemical engineering bachelor's program will be the next step in engineering, Stirton predicted, along with a master's program in electrical engineering. Another contemplated program will offer a master's degree in industrial management.

In addition to its degree programs, U-M's Dearborn Campus offers a number of adult education courses.

Forests Tinder Dry, State Warns

LANSING—Recent rains temporarily dampened Michigan's scorching wild fire threat and held latest losses to 340 acres, but burning conditions have built back to the "touch and go" stage in most northern parts of the state, the Conservation Department warns.

Milton M. Bergman, the Department's forest fire chief reports: "We're not out of the woods with the high spring hazard in northern Michigan and we won't be until things turn completely green up there.

"Recreationists and property owners just can't be too careful when they go afield or plan burning projects."

He urges all residents to put safety first during this critical period by not starting any debris-burning chores before they get the green light from local department field offices or fire departments. By law, everyone must obtain a free permit from one of these offices as his official "O.K." to burn.

In the southern third of the state, rains and warm weather have given the countryside a lush, green look and lowered the fire threat considerably. However, the burning permit requirement remains firmly in effect for that lower region.

Statewide, Michigan's wild fire toll for 1968 had zoomed to 8,570 acres through April 21. The year-ago figure was only 313 acres.

LOS ANGELES -- The food supply available in every market is "the cleanest, the most wholesome and the healthiest food supply of any nation in the history of the world," a federal health official said.

Gordon Wood, director of the Los Angeles district of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, told a symposium on nutrition and health that Americans spend $500 million annually because of "nutritional quackery."

LANSING -- The haulers of household goods received permission from the Michigan Public Service Commission to raise their rates by six per cent.

The General Tariff Bureau, Inc., citing increased labor and equipment costs that are affecting motor carrier costs, petitioned for the rate increase.

Australia's northern region is so underdeveloped that the government may establish a new ministry to build the roads, airports and shipping outlets needed to exploit its natural resources.

Program For Summer Set At Mercy

Four summer sessions, three workshops, a special program for in-service teachers, and a lecture series on world religions, are offered by Mercy College of Detroit this year.

Registration for the first two sessions--a five week daytime program, May 27--June 28--and a ten week evening program, will take place Friday, May 24, in the Registration office, in the Main Administration Building, 8200 West Outer Drive.

Basic subjects--Fine Arts, Biology, English, French, Mathematics, Nursing, Psychology, Theology and Sociology are featured in the program for the first session.

The seventh pre-college summer session, a six week specialized program, begins June 24.

Registration for the second regular summer session will be June 28, with classes beginning July 11. Special courses in chemistry, education and Spanish, are scheduled for this session. The workshop program begins June 10, with a two week study on religious personnel management.

Other workshops are, one for regular classroom teachers and a one week study on college admission designed to assist high school counselors in their work.

GM
MARK OF EXCELLENCE

What would your wife say if you came home with an Olds tonight?

You've probably talked new cars, and shopped the low-priced names. So it's mainly the fact that it's an Olds she'll be reacting to, right? So . . .

If she's the practical type, she'll blow a gasket. Because she thinks an Olds is more car than you were planning to buy.

You'll have to talk fast and make the point that this Cutlass cost less than many of the low-priced "names" you looked at. (Even with the Tilt-Wheel you ordered just for her.)

Now, if she's the emotional type, she won't care about details. She'll take one look at Cutlass and kiss you. Then she'll look at that plush Cutlass interior, and kiss you again.

Either way, you'll be a hero by the hearth tonight.

Wages, Living Costs Compared

NEW YORK—The American mother has more for which to feel gratitude on Mother's Day than her counterpart in any other part of the world--if she measures gratitude in terms of family income.

"A single U. S. paycheck provides the American family with more food, clothing, shelter, education, appliances, automobiles and every other luxury that adds up to a better way of life than any other paycheck written. There is not even a close second."

This is the way a new publication puts it, after a 10-country survey of the cost of living.

In wages alone, in terms of U. S. dollars, she's budgeting a worker's salary that averages $2.74 per hour. In other countries, the average per work hour is: Canada, $2.43; Republic of South Africa (only white workers are reported on), $1.93; Australia, $1.68; Great Britain, $1.42; West Germany, $1; France, 80 cents; Russia, 55 cents, Argentina, 48 cents, and Japan, 46 cents.

Consider the work-wage rate for buying one food staple, bread. A loaf costs as little as three minutes in Australia, as high as 23 minutes in Russia and 16 in Japan. In the United States, it takes five minutes, in Argentina, nine, and in France, 15.

RECIPE

MAN'S DAIQUIRI

Most men seem to like their Daiquiris on-the-rocks, in a glass they can get a grip on.

½ oz. lime juice and 1 level tsp. sugar (or use a prepared mix), 1½ oz. white or silver Puerto Rican rum. Shake with ice and strain over ice cubes in a husky old-fashioned glass.

PUERTO RICAN RUM is light and dry and outsells all others 3 to 1

Students Weigh Moods Of March On Washington

Social scientists recently were given a profile of a rioter by the Kerner report. They will get a good look at the disciplined nonviolent in the "poor peoples' march" on Washington.

Ten University of Michigan student undergraduates plan to ask about 200 participants questions about civil disorders, public figures, and nonviolence.

Many of the questions will be the same ones asked of rioters in Newark and Detroit shortly after last summer's riots and used by the President's Commission on Civil Disorders to gather the profile of a rioter.

* * *

THE NEWARK and Detroit surveys found the typical rioter to be a life-long city resident, better educated and more politically sophisticated than his nonrioting neighbor.

The students, eight men and two women, spent much of the spring semester reading about nonviolence, listening to outside speakers on non-violence, and learning basic techniques for nonviolent defense against physical and tear gas attacks.

The U-M students' ex-teacher, Wallace Loh, will accompany them to Washington "for a week or so." He expects their exploratory survey to provide a particularly interesting profile since participants all were trained in nonviolence and all are strictly disciplined by the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

By contrast, the 1967 urban rioters were violent and unorganized.

Their findings will be of special interest to the Society for the Psychological Study of Social Issues (SPSSI), an Ann Arbor branch of the American Psychological Association, which is underwriting the students' expenses.

SPSSI was created to help social scientists observe such events as the Washington march, although, according to Loh, this is the first time such funds have been made available to students. Loh is a teaching fellow in U-M's psychology department.

* * *

THE STUDENTS are recent graduates of "Project Outreach," a voluntary adjunct to an introductory U-M course on psychology as a social science. Outreach gives each student a chance to follow his "real world" interests and relate his course work to those interests. Three hours are spent in the classroom each week but the student spends the fourth hour visiting the aged, tutoring elementary school children, working with mental hospital patients, or in another of the 36 Outreach projects.

Each of the 10 Washington-bound students elected to participate in a section of Outreach taught by Loh and dealing with nonviolence.

Loh's section had planned to participate in the march as the culmination of the spring semester course, but postponement of the march has meant that the students will be spending part of their summer vacation continuing their project.

But the students, who hope also to interview congressmen, don't seem to mind. As Loh said, its not often an undergraduate gets this kind of research experience.

Mac Traffic Up In April

ST. IGNACE -- Traffic over the Mackinac Bridge increased a whopping 32.8 per cent in April, a result of the Easter holiday and improved economic conditions.

The Bridge Authority said 68,322 vehicles crossed the span compared to 51,465 in April, 1967, and 31,179 for the last April of state ferry operations in 1957.

Can Predict Girl's Height At Age 10

It is possible to predict early --by nine or 10 years of age-- that a girl is going to be abnormally tall.

One clue is that her parents both approach six feet. Another can be found in her own bone growth.

Although estrogens are used by some pediatricians to keep a girl from getting taller than she wants to be, Dr. Gerald H. Homan, Medical College of Georgia, Augusta, believes the treatment should be approached with caution.

* * *

DR. HOLMAN finds that if he talks over the side effects with intelligent girls, the girls and their parents usually decide against treatment.

"The problem of the short boy is more difficult," Dr. Holman points out. "I have treated about 10 boys a year, whereas only a few girls each year decide to be treated. Much of the problem is psychological. The boy has been made to feel infantilized if he is short and can't play basketball."

Side effects for the girl include early menstruation if she is treated before the age of 12. More serious is the fact her uterus may require surgery later on because of changes brought about by the hormone treatment. Also, there may be excessive body pigmentation.

They'll Learn The Hard Way

LUCKNOW, India -- Every jail in Uttar Pradesh State soon will have a classroom for educating illiterate and semi-illiterate prisoners. A new regulation requires that all prisoners serving six months or more must study two hours a day. Long-term literates are being trained as teachers.

Combine For Safety Test

"What's your excuse," asks the National Safety Council in its 1968 advertising campaign advocating the use of lap and shoulder harnesses, now standard equipment in almost all new cars.

In an effort to graphically illustrate the reasons for using safety belts, the Council made use of American Safety Equipment Corporation's deceleration sled in a demonstration held in New York City's Bryant Park.

Kenneth Krasnow, president of American Safety which produces an extensive line of safety equipment, was a willing volunteer to demonstrate the use of a combination lap and shoulder harness, one of many produced by his firm this year for new car manufacturers and the aftermarket. An anthropomorphic dummy, weighing as much as a man, was used to show the dangerous results of not wearing restraints.

* * *

THE TEST simulated a barrier collision from a speed of about 16 mph, equal to a head-on collision at 34 mph. In the demonstration, the individual travels the short distance down the sled and comes to an abrupt stop, exerting a force of up to eight times his own weight on his body.

The dummy, without the belts, was given the first ride and was catapulted off the sled, illustrating the danger of not wearing restraints. Actually, only a real "dummy" would subject himself to serious injury or possible death by not utilizing the restraints provided in almost all late model vehicles and available for older cars.

Krasnow, wearing the safety harnesses, made three runs on the deceleration sled for the benefit of the newspaper and television press. Although Krasnow was shaken up, he was not injured because he was wearing the belts.

The National Safety Council suggests that an excuse for not wearing safety belts is no protection at all..."You may only need safety belts once, but do you know which ones?"

1968 FASHIONS: TRUTH AND BEAUTY

This is the year that fashion "cannot tell a lie"! If truth is beauty and beauty truth, this is the moment of truth in fashion. After the savage shocks of the past few years, the serenity of the new season as seen in the Spring-Summer issue of McCall's Fashionews Magazine, now at local newsstands, offers a sense of security.

The new fashions are beautiful, not because they are "happening", but because they're a natural. The emphasis is on the waist—whether it's a buttoned waistband on a gentle dirndl skirt, a smashing belt, or beautiful high-sashing reminiscent of Madame Recamier. Also to be noticed—the bosom, the leg, the face softly made-up —a total natural look!

It's the woman, not the little boy or the little girl or the little nothing that stands out in the new fashion picture. Very feminine is the gentle petticoat that peekaboos a dress. So too, is the shirtdress, the shirt, the belt, the long jacket and silken legs ending in a surprise: the new "great glunky"—a heavy-heeled shoe with two-inch risers.

The clothes picture for the new season as seen in McCall's Fashionews is new and uplifting. Despite efforts to push it back to The Thirties or thrust it into The Seventies, it's time-locked on the year 1968!

THE VERY BEST SERVICE IN THE WORLD FRETTER'S

Detroit-Industrial Town That Attracts Tourists

* * *

It's a sprawling city, constantly expanding from the grassy point by the Detroit River where French explorer Antoine de la Mothe Cadillac stepped ashore in 1701 to found Fort Pontchartrain.

Three flags have flown over Detroit--the Fleur de Lis of France, the Union Jack of Great Britain and the Stars and Stripes. Just across the river is Windsor, Ontario, Detroit's friendly Canadian neighbor.

The annual International Freedom Festival, jointly celebrating the United States' Independence Day and Canada's Dominion Day, brings the two Motor Cities closer together. A feature of the celebration is a gigantic fireworks display above the Detroit River that draws appreciative crowds of 500,000.

* * *

DETROIT IS A city of industrial muscle--the executive headquarters of American Motors, Chrysler, Ford and General Motors all are here; it's a steel, chemicals, tool and die and salt center.

Visitors are welcome at the auto plants where they can see a car made fom start to finish. They can tour the huge General Motors Tech Center, the corporation's research facility in suburban Warren set amid reflecting pools and fountains.

But Detroit is more than industry. While moving forward, it hasn't forgotten its past. The Fort Wayne Military Museum on the river recalls the days when the young United States and England were at war.

THE HENRY FORD Museum and Greenfield Village in suburban Dearborn is rightfully one of the nation's leading tourist attractions, showing how life was led in more leisurely--and more difficult--times.

Ford brought the workshop of his friend, Thomas Edison, from Menlo Park, N.J., and had it re-assembled in Greenfield Village. There's the country courthouse in which Abraham Lincoln practiced law...and the rocking chair in which he was sitting at Ford's Theater when John Wilkes Booth assassinated him.

* * *

THE DOSSIN GREAT Lakes Museum on Belle Isle, the island park in the Detroit River, is a tribute to the city's love affair with the water.

The river -- which funnels the waters of Lakes Superior, Michigan and Huron down toward Lake Erie, on over the Niagara Falls to Lake Ontario and on out the St. Lawrence Seaway -- is compelling for Detroiters and visitors alike.

There are numerous parks along the river to watch the 600 and 700-foot ore carriers glide smoothly up and down the channel or to catch the colors of a "salty," an ocean vessel that has sneaked in through the Seaway.

* * *

DETROIT IS MORE than this. It's the outstanding main zoo in Royal Oak where animals are exhibited in bar-less, natural settings, and the children's zoo on Belle Isle where youngsters can feed the animals.

New UD Class Set For Women

Registration is now open for the "Theology for Woman's Social Status" offered in summer session by the University of Detroit.

"In teaching of women's social status we must distinguish between revealed truth and cultural environment," said the Rev. Joseph A. Sommer, S.J. "This is a most vital topic, especially today, and it is important that both men and women explore it so that relationships between them may be bettered."

The three-credit graduate course will be taught by Father Sommer at 11:30 a.m. to 12:50 p.m. daily for six weeks from June 24 through August 2.

The course will cover the theological background for determining woman's status in civil society and the Church; woman's specific contribution and social action in civil society and in the Church.

For further information write the graduate school at the University of Detroit, Detroit, Michigan 48221.

MSU Archaeologists Uncover Historic Lore

Ships longer than two football fields now glide under the mighty Mackinac Bridge that joins Michigan's two peninsulas but in its shadow, where birch bark canoes once landed, archaeologists literally are turning back the sands of time.

They're uncovering two centuries of drifting sand to reconstruct a time of adventure, of treachery, of intrigue, of cannibalism--a time when the Straits of Mackinac was inhabited by voyageurs, French and British soldiers, fur trappers and traders, the Chippewa and Ottawa Indians.

Under the direction of the Mackinac Island State Park Commission, archaeologists from Michigan State University are rebuilding the fort as it was 200 years ago when it was a key western outpost for the lucrative fur trade.

Restoration began in 1959 and painstaking excavation has uncovered more than 300,000 artifacts that help tell the story of the fort and its inhabitants.

Coupled with the Fort Michilimackinac findings and research in Canadian and English archives, the archaeologists have pieced together precisely the plans of the fort, its buildings and the village outside its gates.

THE FORT was founded in 1715 by the French as both a fur outpost and jumping-off spot for further Great Lakes exploration. The British took control in 1761 at the conclusion of the French and Indian War.

The Indians, however, had their revenge on the British in the 1763 massacre when they gained entry to the fort by a ruse during a connived lacrosse game and slaughtered most of the English garrison, but spared the French-speaking traders. It was part of a general Great Lakes uprising inspired by Chief Pontiac.

The British retook the fort in 1764 and held it until the Revolutionary War when they abandoned it, moving to nearby Mackinac Island which offered a better defensive position. Fort Michilimackinac then was left to be covered by the drifting, blowing sand until 1959.

Through the intercession of an Indian friend, Henry's life was spared and he witnessed the cannibalism of a less fortunate prisoner who the Indians "chose as the fattest, cut off the head and divided the whole into five parts, one of which each was put into five kettles.."

MAJOR ROBERT ROGERS' fate was somewhat better--he was taken from the fort in chains, accused of being a traitor in 1767 and sent to Montreal for a court martial. He was acquitted but life wasn't the same again for him.

Rogers, a hero of the French and Indian War as leader of Rogers' Rangers, dreamed of finding a northwest passage to the Pacific while commandant of Fort Michilimackinac but the expedition was a failure and led to his arrest.

The commanding officer's house, where Rogers lived, is among the houses restored at the fort. The latest restoration is that of Charles Langlade's house. Langlade, a native of the Straits, helped lead an Indian war party that routed British General Braddock's western Pennsylvania expedition in 1775. And it was Langlade's house in which Henry sought refuge from the Indians during the massacre.

ARCHAEOLOGISTS ALSO have found the blacksmith's forge and the foundation of the priest's house next to the already reconstructed Chapel of St. Anne de Michilimackinac where Langlade's wedding is recreated electronically for visitors several times daily by means of spotlights, sequence lighting and stereophonic sound.

Fort Michilimackinac had a normal population of approximately 500 persons which rose to 2,000 to 3,000 during the peak of the fur trading season.

The fort is much more popular today--and more readily accessible--thanks to Michigan's excellent highway system; Interstate 75 runs right next to the fort.

Summer visitors can see history in the "un-covering." Excavation is in progress summer-long and an underground exhibit shows at what levels various artifacts were found. The ground now is five to six feet higher than it was two centuries ago.

In addition, the quarters are furnished as they were at the time of the American Revolution and dioramas depict life as it was then on the western frontier. Fort Michilimackinac is open throughout the summer months.

First Major Victory

Postal Law Lets Citizen Censor Mail

The broadly-written statute, enacted as part of the postal revenue and federal salary act of 1967, could present a big problem to post office officials here and throughout the country.

"It has the potential of making 100 million censors in the country," said one postoffice worker. "It is inviting a lot of correspondence."

Under the new law, the postmaster will prohibit the sending of "any pandering advertisement which offers for sale matter which the addressee in his sole discretion believes to be erotically arousing or sexually provocative."

* * *

THE DECISION is strictly the recipient's. The only determination to be made by the post office is whether the offensive mailing is an advertisement within the scope of the law.

When the proposed law was discussed in a Senate committee last November, the general counsel of the post office complained that customers in effect could prevent any mailer from sending any kind of matter.

A customer who decides he has received advertising for material that, in his opinion, is erotically arousing or sexually provocative can send the advertisement to the postoffice and ask that his name be removed from the sender's mailing list.

* * *

IF THE MAILER does not comply with the subsequent prohibition order of the postmaster, the case can be taken to federal District court and the mailer could be punished for contempt.

A special form for complaints will be available in post offices. Rep. Glenn Cunningham (R., Neb.), sponsor of the measure, said in urging passage that "the mailbox is part of my home, and it is an invasion of my privacy whenever unsolicited filth is dropped into my mailbox, addressed either to me or to my minor children."

'Rule Of Thumb' Accurate Fingerprint

A few centuries ago, King Charles of England stuck out his arm, measured the distance from his noble nose to his outstretched fingertips and pronounced that a yard. Means of measurement went to all lengths in those days.

The "rule of thumb" was no idle catch-phrase. In those times, an inch was the width of a man's thumb. The weight of things was just as loosely defined.

In early England, it was well known that bakers gave short measures to their customers because there was no way of checking weight. Consequently, a law was passed decreeing that any baker who sold 12 cakes to one person had to add a 13th (the original baker's dozen) to make up for the loss.

* * *

HOUSEWIVES WHO were determined to bake their own soon found themselves caught up in an avalanche of ambivalence when they tried to follow a recipe. To make one of Martha Washington's famous cakes, for instance, the First Lady advocated a "fistful of butter," a "nutshell of sugar" plus the proverbial "pinch of salt."

So it went, with one man's inch being another's foot, until the 1900's -- when measurements really came to grips with reality. The adoption of basic units of measurement that are standard throughout the United States, plus protection of consumers by frequent checking of scales have made weighs and means much easier.

Betty Furness' appointment as special assistant to the president for consumer affairs has further insured that the buyer will be protected -- from getting less than the full weight of a box of crackers to getting less than the full value of the car he pays for.

Science and research, too, have played an important part in the quality control of consumer products. Lederle Laboratories, a pharmaceutical house, believes that quality control is so important they use instruments delicate enough to measure a fingerprint or a period at the end of a sentence.

* * *

BECAUSE QUALITY control and research requirements are so precise that a mere millionth of an ounce can make a difference and often a critical one -- micro-balances are used in a specially designed new laboratory at the drug company's research center.

These micro-balances are a necessity in working on the development of any new drug. Since the supply of material is often so scarce, no work is practical without the balances to measure minute amounts for further study.

Such means of measurement are so ultra-sensitive that the tiniest speck of dust can affect them. Therefore, a highly effective laboratory air filtration system removes dust from all incoming air.

Direct sunlight, touching these balances, can also upset them because of the heat of the light. Room temperature, humidity, air movements and even door arrangements are other factors that must be rigidly controlled.

To screen the micro-balances from any movement of air caused by people moving about in the general laboratory area, opening and closing of doors, air conditioning currents, and even the currents and temperature from human breath, each measurement rests in a carefully designed cubicle of its own.

Check Medicine Cabinets

The National Safety Council advises families to check their medicine cabinets and retain only those medications that were purchased recently and are labeled for instant identification.

Always Check The Label

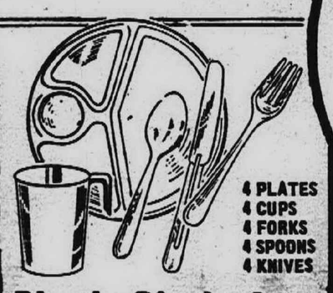

These young ladies at their kitchen tea party make sure the insecticide says "Non-Toxic to Humans and Pets" right on the aerosol. Even in the indoor season, insects can be a problem. It is especially important at this time to select an insecticide that is not harmful around children, food and pets. Sprays that say "Non-Toxic to Humans and Pets" boldly on the label contain pyrethrins, nature's own insecticide. Only insects are affected — and quickly. There is no need to worry about harm to children at play around the house, no matter where they choose to hold their next tea party.

King's Loss Is Tourist's Gain At Island Haven

It sounds like the plot of an historical novel and indeed, thousands of words have been written about "King" James Jesse Strang, Count Feodora Portar and Beaver Island.

The island is 32 miles offshore from Charlevoix in northeastern Lake Michigan. It's 14 miles long, six wide and is the largest island in Lake Michigan as well as being the main island in a group of 13.

* * *

BEAVER ISLAND originally was a haven for wild life and a target for Indian hunting parties until Strang led a small band of Mormon settlers to the island in 1847.

Strang splintered from the main Mormon group after losing a fight with Brigham Young for the sect's leadership. Young and the main body headed west to Utah and the Strangites journeyed to Beaver Island.

Strang proclaimed himself "king" and the island's only city, St. James, was named after the monarch.

Strang's flock grew and so did the power of the only monarchy in the continental United States. Despite the small size of the island, its population was greater than that of Emmet County on the mainland and Strang was able to control the county government.

Strang's autocratic rule and religious tenets didn't sit well with the mainlanders, mainly Irish settlers and fishermen, but it was two members of Strang's own colony who shot and killed him in 1856.

The colony disintegrated and the Irish gradually began taking over the island. They burned most of the Strangites' buildings but some still remain including the print shop which has been converted into a museum.

With the Irish takeover and because of its forestation, Beaver Island soon became known as the "Emerald Isle" and to this day the biggest holiday on the island is St. Patrick's Day.

* * *

BUT ANOTHER PATRON of the island was a Russian nobleman, Count Feodora Protar, who was banished by the czar because he freed his serfs. Protar, a doctor, spent 30 years on Beaver Island, taking care of the islanders' medical needs without charge.

Beaver Island today retains the rustic charm of the past and is an ideal vacation spot for people who want to slow down, discover the wildlife and see spectacular lake sunsets.

A trip to Beaver Island starts leisurely with a cruise on the modern motorship Beaver Islander out of Charlevoix. It's a two hour and 15 minute trip and you can take your car. The ship makes two round trips daily during the summer months. There's also air service from Charlevoix.

Beaver Island has 75 miles of improved highway, numerous bathing beaches, inland lakes and modern accommodations. There's a nine hole golf course, good fishing and hunting in season.

The island is a delight for photographers with weathered split rail fences, beached boats and the Beaver Head light house at the south tip of the island, third oldest light house on the Great Lakes.

'Pill' Cuts Cancer In Women

ANN ARBOR -- The birth control pill is more likely to reduce than to cause breast cancer in women, Dr. Charles B. Huggins, Nobel Prize winner, said at The University of Michigan.

The former U-M resident surgeon, who is director of the Ben May Laboratory for Cancer Research at the University of Chicago, predicted hormone regulation to be the future way to prevent cancer.

Dr. Huggins described experiments in which he has induced cancer in mice and then cured it with hormones. He was delivering the 1968 Donald E. Johnson Cancer Lecture, established by the U-M Cancer Research Institute in honor of a Flint publisher and civic leader.

* * *

DR. HUGGINS has been 100 per cent successful in producing mammary cancer in female rats and ovary cancer in mice by giving them a single dose of the hydrocarbon DNBA. He also has been successful in preventing cancer or curing it in animals with the administration of certain steroid hormones.

The process, he said, is analogous to the contraceptive pill, which contains the hormones estrogen and progesterone. The doctor has produced a regression of cancer in mice with these hormones, indicating that, experimentally and clinically, the pill is not a dangerous agent concerning mammary cancer.

Dr. Huggins, who won the 1966 Nobel Prize for his discoveries regarding the control of prostate cancer by the use of hormones, praised the work of the late U-M professor of chemistry, Dr. Werner E. Bachman, who synthesized the DNBA. The proper name of the hydrocarbon is 7, 12-dimethylbenzan thracene.

With Dr. Bachman's compound, Dr. Huggins has been able to study those hydrocarbon compounds which cause carcinoma in animals and those which do not. The compound is making possible considerable scientific research of cancer, and Dr. Huggins said the late chemistry professor's contribution "makes the U-M chemistry department a holy place."

* * *

DR. HUGGINS said the compound causes leukemia in male mice, which also can be prevented by hormones. The treatment has been effective in preventing the destruction of adrenal glands in animals.

The scientist predicted that someday parents will be able to give their children a massive dose of steroid hormones to cure leukemia, just as easily as administering vitamin pills.

Scholle Gets Honor For State Job

LANSING -- State Conservation Commissioners August School of Royal Oak and Harry H. Whiteley of Rogers City have received Michigan's annual Volunteer Leadership award from Governor Romney at a special joint session of the Legislature.

They were among 10 citizens honored for "especially distinguished community service in a strictly volunteer capacity."

School, president of the Michigan AFL-CIO, drew his award for leadership in statewide humanitarian programs. Whiteley, publisher of the Presque Isle County Advance and chairman of the Conservation Commission, was recognized for his leadership in programs keyed to the management of Michigan's natural resources.

Double Defense --Roger Kyes

Roger M. Kyes, an executive vice president of General Motors and former deputy Defense secretary in 1953-54, has called for more defense research and two "highly sophisticated defense systems."

Kyes made four recommendations in a Washington speech to the American Ordinance Association.

They were:

1. Accelerated peacetime research and development work by both industry and government on weapons and weapons systems. "We need the intensified efforts that can bring technological breakthroughs in exotic new equipment," he said.

* * *

KYES NOTED that history has examples of the improvement and refinement of weapons in peacetime, "but generally we have entered each new war with the basic weapons of the last one."

2. "We must recognize that to insure our future, two separate, specialized and highly sophisticated defense systems are required in place of the one general system that has met our needs in the past."

He defined these as "primary" and "secondary" defense systems. The first provides the necessary capability in the event of an all-out global war. It would include such items as nuclear weapons and their possible successors; intercontinental jet bombers and ballistic missiles; the orbital bomber and space bases, as well as weaponry yet to be conceived and developed.

"It is well known that both the United States and the Soviet Union maintain global capabilities, each controlling devastating power," Kyes said. "This very fact tends to neutralize the global effectiveness of both nations. As a result of this neutralization, we must be prepared for more specialized 'local, area wars.' "

* * *

BECAUSE THESE AREA wars require weapons and tactics so different from those of modern global warfare, he explained, a specialized secondary defense system is required...one that differs substantially in both organization and function from our past conception of "brushfire war" forces.

3. "We must also face the fact that it is no longer sufficient to fight with military weapons alone," Kyes continued. "In the case of today's local conflicts it often is necessary to fight politically, economically and psychologically. This calls for a new degree of sensitivity as well as a deeper understanding of the motivation for war.

"In probing the fundamental causes of war, the emphasis should be on study of the psychological and sociological factors involved."

4. Lastly, Kyes said there is a growing tendency, through policy and negotiation of defense contracts, to weaken the (contractor's) proprietary rights in patentable and nonpatentable items and information.

"Property rights are fundamental to our progress in defense," he said, for these rights provide a powerful incentive for individuals and companies to spend their efforts and substance on technological innovation.

"The most serious area of potential encroachment lies in the category of information not protected by patents. Congress recognized this possibility some time ago and passed a law protecting contractors against disclosure of information by government employes."

State Reviews Auto Dealers

Does a Michigan citizen have any protection against being flim-flammed when he buys a car?

The answer is yes. A little publicized consumer protection activity program of the Michigan Department of State is its Auto Dealer Review Board, which often takes disciplinary action against improper activities by certain unscrupulous auto dealers.

"We control dealers at two junctures," Secretary of State James M. Hare said. "We renew their licenses each year. And we have the option of bringing in for hearings dealers who may be guilty of violations against the buying public."

* * *

NEARLY 200 CASES were referred to the Dealer Record Review Board during the past fiscal year. Of these, 159 cases were referred for alleged violations of the vehicle code.

"Complaints from citizens cover a wide range. They include turning back the odometer (speedometer), which is alleged to be a wide-spread activity but one which is next to impossible to prove, to substituting a used tire as a spare in a new car sale.

"They also involve such things as withholding sales tax from the Revenue Department on paid transactions."

"Hearings divide into three general types: (1) formal hearings which often result in the dealer being tried in court for some type of fraud; (2) informal hearings at the district level conducted by a regional chief of the safety and enforcement division of the Michigan Department of State; and (3) informal hearings by the director of enforcement division.

* * *

"IF A DEALER is proven guilty, he can receive a suspension or revocation of his dealer's license," said Hare.

"Where the dealer has an otherwise clean record, he may be just warned. He then comes under the closer scrutiny of the field enforcement operations of the Department of State.

"While these hearings are designed to provide a better deal for the buyer, in many instances we find that the dealer was not at fault and wrongfully accused," said Hare. "This is actually a double-barreled protection program."

Hare said the best method of handling dishonest dealers is to keep them "out of business." In these situations, he noted fingerprints are important. Fingerprints of officers of incorporated auto dealers are taken, a program instituted about a year ago. They are checked through criminal files and in instances where there is a question about the individual...if he has a criminal record or has a bad dealer record...he is denied a license.

* * *

THE DEALER Review Board, began in 1960, is comprised of three executives of the Michigan Department of State. Currently serving on the board are Harley Neideffer, director of branch operations, chairman; Bernard Hammond, director of safety and enforcement division; and Gordon Alexander, assistant secretary of state.

"The system of weighing actions against dealers is based on points," says Hare. "Each infraction has a point weight on it just like the Michigan point system kept on the state's drivers. This is so that every dealer will get an equal shake.

"When a dealer reaches 80 points or when he is cited for a major infraction within a 24-month period, his file is reviewed and action takes place ranging from a warning to a formal hearing before the board."

There are three basic types of dealers registered by the Michigan Department of State. They are: (1) A-type new car dealers who may sell used cars and parts as well as new vehicles; (2) B-type dealers who may sell only used cars and parts; and (3) C-type junk dealers who may deal only in parts sales.

"Unfortunately, in many instances a buyer may be taken by a 'fast' dealer and there is absolutely nothing anyone can do about it," Hare stated.

JUST SAY "CHARGE IT" AT FEDERAL'S... TAKE MONTHS TO PAY

Government To Investigate Medicare

WASHINGTON -- The federal government is running an extensive check on the claims doctors have made on the number of persons treated under medicare, it was disclosed today.

"There have been a number of allegations" about the accuracy of bills submitted to the government under the program. Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Wilbur J. Cohen told a closed session of the House Appropriations subcommittee in testimony released earlier.

"We have enough to be very much concerned about it," Cohen said. "I don't want to say that where a man has submitted these bills they are improper-we feel we ought to look into it very carefully.

"A typical kind of allegation concerns a doctor who goes into a nursing home--I will be just hypothetical about this--and he is there for an hour and then he sends a bill for an injection or something for every one of 50 people in the institution.

"The popular criticism usually has to do with the individual fee. I really don't think that it is the major issue. The real issue is not so much the fee or price per unit, but the number of units that the person is saying he delivered."

PARTY IDEAS by Elmira Alberti

Home Service Director
The West Bend Company

Something Special For A "Hen Party"

THERE are many occasions for entertaining the girls in your home and inevitably there comes a time when you want to go all-out.

Having, if you will, a "hen party," no matter what the occasion, should be filled with an exciting flair that would be completely wasted on the men. Set your table with fancy pastel or white cloth, your daintiest china and glasses, and your best flatware. An all-feminine luncheon should be kept on the light side, but with everything pretty-pretty.

Plan color effects in your food as well as your table setting, by featuring a delightful party-perking onion soup as your main course and serving it from an elegant Buffet Perk that can be put right on your table for that ease in "help yourself."

To prepare Party Perk Onion

Soup you will need 6 to 8 large Bermuda onions, thinly sliced, one-fourth cup butter, melted, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, 15 beef bouillon cubes, melba toast rounds and grated Parmesan cheese.

Saute onions in butter till golden brown. Fill the percolator with water to 24-cup level. Add Worcestershire sauce. Place onions and bouillon cubes into basket assembly of coffeemaker. Plug in coffee maker and complete perking cycle. Remove basket assembly and serve hot. Place onions in chafing dish and serve with soup along with a floating melba toast round topped with cheese on each serving. Makes 18 servings.

We didn't have to twist his arm

...just reach his customers.

J. B. McCoy, store manager...

MONTGOMERY WARD

... is one man who didn't have to have his arm twisted. Mr. McCoy is an easy man to deal with ... not very demanding at all. He just wants customers, and according to Mr. McCoy ... customers are just what his ad in the Observer delivered.

To quote Mr. McCoy, "In regard to our Men's Suit Ad which ran in your newspapers ... your newspapers were responsible for making our Year-End Men's Suit Sale a tremendous success. In fact, it was the most successful Men's Suit Sale that Wards Livonia Store has experienced in our eight-year history at Wonderland Center."

Mr. McCoy goes on to say that "We know that it's important to promote the sale of the right product at the right time, but, just as vital to pick the right media. There have to be good reasons why our store is the number one Ward's store in sales throughout Michigan. We are confident that our consistent advertising in the Observer Newspapers has been a contributing factor to our sales success."

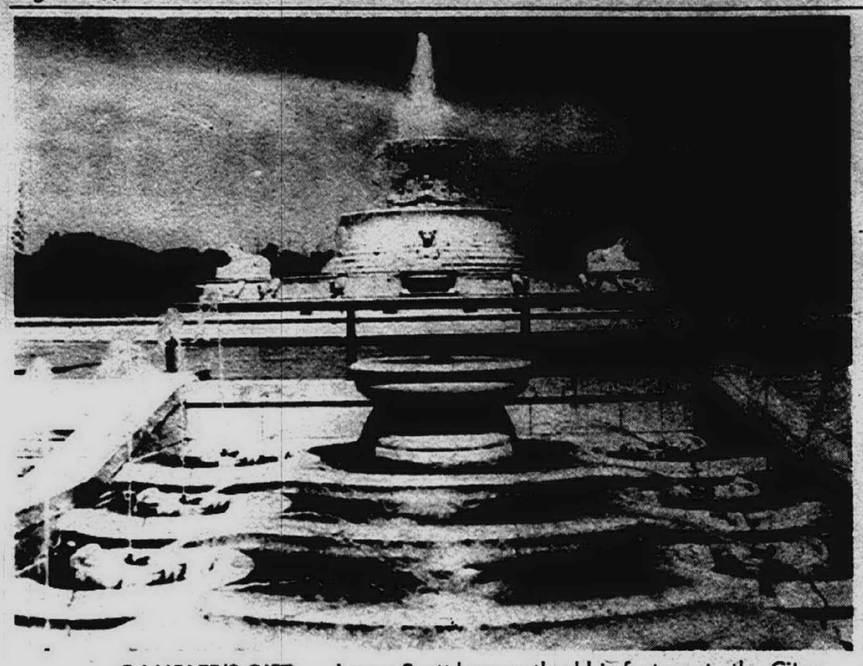

See, not an arm twist in a carload ... but a carload of customers for McCoy, store manager of Wards ... Wonderland.

GAMBLER'S GIFT — James Scott bequeathed his fortune to the City of Detroit when he died in 1910 with the stipulation it erect a statue of him. Since Scott had the reputation as a gambler, the city fathers hemmed and hawed and finally found a way out — they commissioned this beautiful fountain on Belle Isle, the island park in the Detroit River.

Spokesman Hits 'Futuristic' Transit

Success in urban transportation planning depends on identifying and building balanced and practical transportation systems--rather than on summarily rejecting the existing automotive network in favor of "vague, futuristic" transport techniques, a Ford Motor Company executive said.

Allen W. Merrell, vice president for civic and governmental affairs, said that the people's choice is clearly the automobile, but that the auto industry cannot afford to be smug about it.

* * *

MERRELL SAID IT is important to both the community and the industry to understand why the automobile is so heavily preferred.

"The real answer for most people is that they are attracted not so much to the automobile itself as to the combination of convenience, comfort, flexibility, privacy, speed and economy that it provides them," he explained, noting that this fact has important significance for transportation planners.

"It means that any transit alternative to travel by private automobile must approximate this combination of qualities if it is to gain public acceptance."

Merrell stressed the need for improved total transportation systems -- including public transit to serve city dwellers who cannot drive or afford a car--and added:

"This latter need is underscored by the ghetto poverty and racial strife that is rocking our cities and receiving tragically belated attention...It has become increasingly apparent that a basic factor in the sorry situation of the poor is that they do not have adequate transportation links with the industrial areas to seek and hold the jobs they need."

"In short, transit systems are a vital supplement to a city's transportation system," Merrell said, adding that "bus and rail transit alike offer many opportunities for modernization and improvement."

* * *

HE NOTED that clearly defined patterns of urban growth make it evident that transit can serve only a small fraction of the total transportation demands of urban areas, since only five to 10 per cent of all trips in metropolitan areas begin or end downtown.

The rest are spread over so large an area that few suburban routes have enough traffic to justify transit service.

"Our cities need better transit and better highways," he said. "Public and private transportation serve different needs, and are not interchangeable.

"The ideal transportation system would be a single mode that combines the high capacity of mass transit with the automobile's capability for serving low-density origin and destination points.

"The automated highway probably comes closer to these requirements than any other concept being examined in the light of today's technology.

"Dual-mode vehicles operating manually on conventional streets and automatically on the guideways would offer both the door-to-door service and the high-volume flow where needed. Similar vehicles could offer an economical taxi-like service to non-drivers."

* * *

HE POINTED OUT that the great advantage of the evolutionary approach represented by the automated highway is "the flexibility it permits in taking a new bearing on the future without losing all the ground you have gained."

Merrell hailed the modern technology that can and will lead to far better urban transportation systems, but added that "we may as well face up to the long lead times involved in generating widespread usage of new transportation concepts.

He said that "the question is not whether every metropolitan area needs a good expressway network. It does. The only question is what else may be needed."

Shapely Legs Reveal Active Brain-British

NEW YORK -- American women apparently don't think a beautiful brain and lovely limbs go together--even if a British researcher does say the more intelligent the girl, the shapelier the legs.

"Insane," said one woman about the suggestion. "Perfectly ridiculous," agreed another. "A bunch of baloney," concluded a third.

THE SUGGESTION came from Dr. Elizabeth Coope as she talked about her plan to photograph 1000 pairs of female legs to try to prove that a girl's personality and background are revealed by the shape of her stems.

The remark was greeted with disbelief by Helen Gurley Brown, author of "Sex and the Single Girl." "I think girls with unattractive legs are frequently smart because they use their brains to call attention away from their legs," she said.

In the minority, taking a wait-and-see attitude, was modeling director Eileen Ford. "If it's true," she said "it will be reassuring for a lot of men who have been judging women by the shape of their legs for years and years."

MOST WOMEN, however, felt there was no relation between gray matter and gams.

"It's a bunch of baloney," said Mary Ellen Myrene, a single girl from Seattle. "I would much rather have someone look at my mind when they want to judge it and look at my legs when they want to judge them. Mixing the two seems an extraordinarily complicated way of finding out what is so apparent."

Mrs. George Sanders, a state senator from Denver, said Dr. Coope's idea was "perfectly ridiculous," and added, "I've known beautiful girls with beautiful legs who weren't intelligent at all."

Plugging for brainy beauties was Mrs. Jane Byrne, Chicago's newly appointed commissioner of consumer sales, weights and measures.

"I'm for that if it turns out to be true," she said of the idea. "I like to believe that a woman can be attractive including nice legs, and still have a brain."

Gd. Haven Boast Musical Fountain

The brilliantly lighted water cascades up to 100-foot heights in time to popular and classical melodies. Twenty-minute programs are featured daily during the summer, beginning at 9 and 10 p.m.

Special features include Sunday, Easter and Christmas Programs.

MORE THAN 30 shows have been programmed on electronic tape, automatically synchronizing moving water, multi-colored lights and music in a variety of performances.

The fountain fills a basin the size of a football field on the side of a sand dune. During each performance, some 80,000 gallons of water are pumped through 8,000 feet of pipe and controlled by more than 300 valves and pressure regulators.

The lights use 100,000 watts of electricity, enough to supply a community of 1,000 persons, fed through more than 20,000 feet of wiring.

Seating is provided for about 2,000 persons and thousands more view the performances from the comfort of their automobiles or from boats.

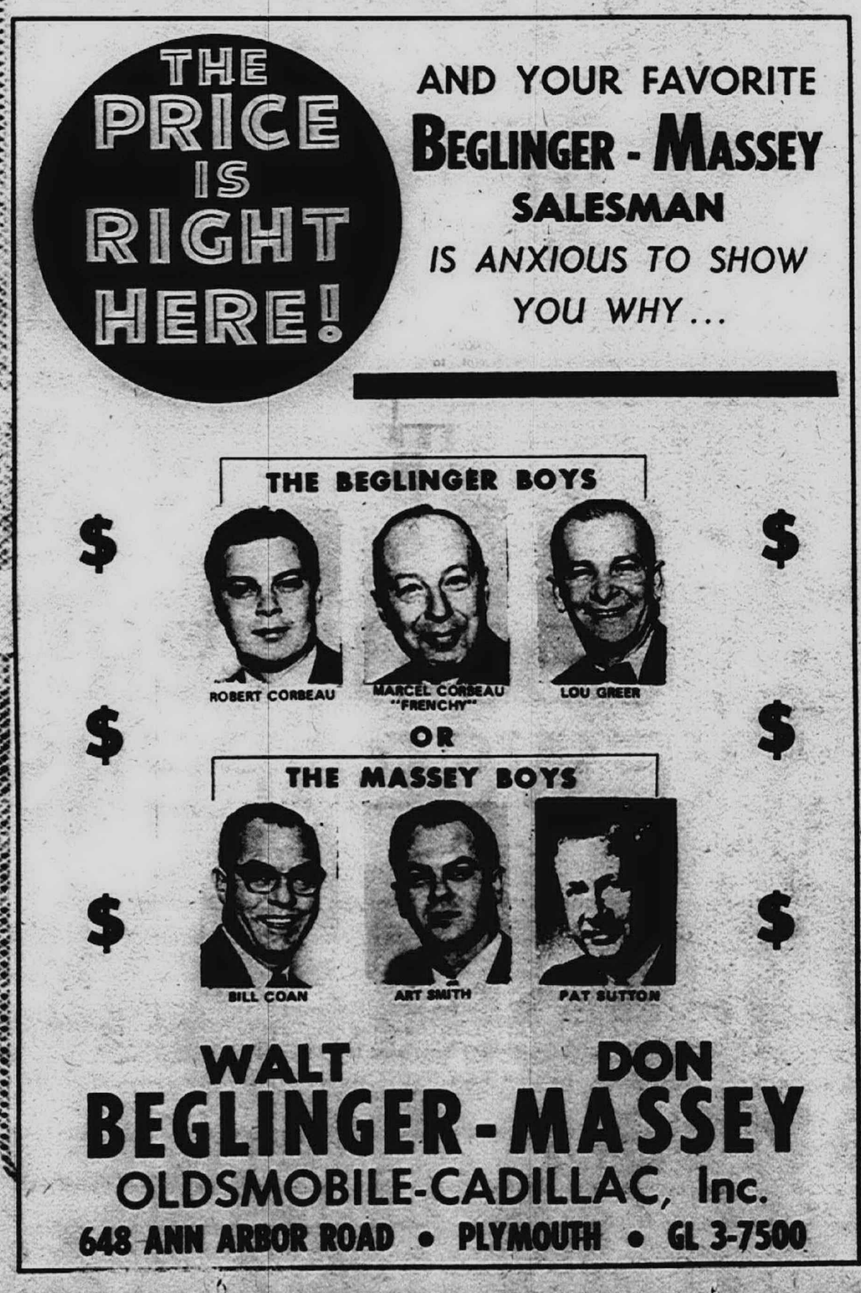

GRAND HAVEN area residents, aided by several industrial firms, built the fountain at a cost of $250,000 in an effort to improve the city's waterfront beauty.

It was completed in 1963 and has since been donated to the city.

Grand Haven is a popular resort community on the shore of Lake Michigan, about 14 miles south of Muskegon. It is served by several modern highways, including the Interstate 96 Freeway and US-31.

4-H Program Pushes Art Of Home Sewing

Home sewing may no longer be a necessity, but it is one of the fastest growing home arts. Making one's own clothes is a favorite hobby of more women today than ever before. What's more, there is a certain prestige attached to home sewing.

The machine itself has been so greatly improved during the past decade that it can do almost anything -- from embroidering and darning to buttonholes and invisible stitching.

Choice and design of fabrics provide a kaleidoscope of color and textures. Trimmings, fastenings and patterns help make home sewing easier, and give clothes the "custom-made" look.

* * *

INTO THIS exciting world of fashion have come young 4-H girls just learning to sew, and their older sisters who are well on their way to becoming amateur couturieres. Under the guidance of well qualified volunteer clothing leaders, some 700,000 girls between nine and 19 years of age are turning out school clothes, sports attire, formals and even suits and coats.

These girls represent every state, and annually compete for awards provided by Coats & Clark Inc., national sponsor of the 4-H Clothing program.

They qualify for an award by making a garment or garments of their choice, keeping in mind suitability of pattern and fabric to the individual figure. Sewing construction also is a very important part of the project.

They exhibit their work at local 4-H events and at the county fair. The four highest ranking members in the county receive a handsome gold-filled 4-H Clothing medal.

The best ones usually have a chance to show their outfits at the state fair where final judging is done for the state award: an expense paid trip to the National 4-H Congress in Chicago.

In November, a committee of judges representing the Cooperative Extension Service will review all the state winner's record books and select the six best.

Red Cross Water School Set In June

The National Aquatic School offers daily classes, evening seminars are recreational activities with qualified instructor-trainers in personal skills and teaching principles and methods.

Men and women 18 and over are eligible if they are certified by a physician and plan to use the training to teach others. Those wishing to apply may call the Red Cross Southeastern Michigan office, 961-3900, extension 254.

Camp For Crippled Children Sets Dates

The Michigan League for Crippled Children, a non-profit organization, has announced that its summer camp for crippled children is now accepting registrations.

Grace Bentley Camp is located on Lake Huron, 12 miles north of Port Huron, at Jeddo. It is open to children from 6 to 16 who have orthopedic or cardiac handicaps.

Four summer sessions are planned. The cost for a two-week period is $30. The sessions will run from June 26 to July 10; July 10 to 24; July 24 to Aug. 7; and Aug. 7 to 21.

Children will be transported on air conditioned buses from a central point in downtown Detroit, or parents may deliver and call for children at the camp.

Registration chairman is Florence M. Becker, 14375 Mansfield, Detroit, 48227.

Donations to sponsor children whose parents are unable to pay the camp fee may be sent to the League in care of Mrs. Mary Bauer, 18055 Schoenherr Road, Detroit, 48205.

Films of the camp are available to be shown to clubs and organizations on request.

State's Bridges Range From "Mac' To Covered

KISSING BRIDGES — Old wooden bridges were covered to provide protection for the structure, but the privacy also made them a favorite with courting couples back around the turn of the century. This is the Langley Bridge, crossing the St. Joseph River near Centreville in St. Joseph County. (Michigan Tourist Council Photo)

From the world-famous Mackinac Bridge to the covered bridge of a century ago, Michigan has more than 1,600 highway bridges serving commerce, industry and the traveling public.

Mightiest of them all, the Mackinac Bridge forms a five-mile long steel and concrete pathway high over the Straits of Mackinac, linking Michigan's upper and lower peninsulas.

Symbolic of the friendship between the United States and Canada are three structures spanning international waterways--the Blue Water Bridge at Port Huron, the International Bridge at Sault Ste. Marie, and the Ambassador Bridge at Detroit.

* * *

ANOTHER, LESS spectacular span--the weathered, wooden covered bridge--still holds its own as a sightseeing attraction in Michigan.

Tangible reminders of the past, they serve as a link between the present and the tranquility of the horse-and-buggy era.

At one time they creaked under the weight of ox-drawn carts when Michigan was largely a wilderness; they clattered to the pounding hooves of running mounts; and they rumbled beneath the wheels of horse-drawn wagons, stagecoaches and fancy carriages long before the coming of the automobile.

Today these same bridges--those that remain--are ready made subjects for camera fans and artists. For half a century they have excited the imagination of photographers, especially in the fall when the weather-worn timbers are framed by the crimson and gold of the surrounding trees.

And in summer, landscape artists place their easels to catch the light and shade on the weathered structures.

* * *

SIX COVERED bridges still stand in Michigan. They are located at:

1. Centreville, (Langley Bridge) crossing St. Joseph River, St. Joseph County.
2. Two miles northeast of Niles (private) on the farm of E.M. Morris, Berrien County (open to the public by appointment only).
3. At Smyrna (White's Bridge) crossing Flat River, Ionia County.
4. Fallasburg Park, crossing Flat River, Kent County.
5. Ada, crossing Thornapple River, Kent County.
6. Ackley Bridge at Greenfield Village, Dearborn.

* * *

THOUGH THE COVERED bridge traces its ancestry to the first such structure erected across the Euphrates River in Babylon in 783 B.C., it has become almost symbolic of early America. For they were built here on a scale never attempted in any other country, some of them more than a mile in length.

The earlier bridges in America were of a type popular in Switzerland in the 18th century. They consisted of a great number of timber arches braced and stiffened by a framework forming the sides of the enclosure. The covering, obviously, served as protection from the weather.

College Grads Like Business

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. — Contrary to popular belief, college graduates are interested in business careers, says M.E. Alvord, director of placement for the University of Minnesota College of Liberal Arts.

Although some liberal arts students don't know what they might do in the business world, industry is making an attempt to solve the problem through summer and part-time work programs.

Of those placed by Alvord's office, which arranges interviews on campus for nearly 1,000 companies, more than 90 per cent go into business.

$35 Billion Needed To Meet Housing Demands

"The seven-county metropolitan region encompassing Detroit will require $35 billion of residential construction to meet housing demands of the year 2000." This projection was made by Irving J. Rubin, director of TALUS, the Detroit regional Transportation and Land Use Study.

Rubin, analyzing the home buyer and population trends of tomorrow, was speaking before a luncheon gathering of the United Northwestern Realty Association—Western Wayne-Oakland County Board of Realtors.

"The building patterns of the next 10 years are determined," Rubin said, "as new housing developments are already underway or on the drawing boards."

He foresaw the continued growth of the northwestern portion of Oakland County and an acceleration of the buildup of Macomb County.

* * *

RUBIN EXPLAINED that planning decisions in the next 3-5 years will be critical in shaping post-1975 building trends—determining whether or not developments would be designed to offer housing for all income classes, and whether or not the "new town" approach takes hold.

"The demand for housing will rise even more sharply than the future population growth. The metropolitan region population is now 4.4 million, but by year 2000 will be 8.2 million," he said.

This population increase will require construction of an additional 1 1/2 million units in just 32 years—totaling approximately $35 billion of construction, based on present construction cost factors.

Rubin said that this would be an average of 50,000 housing units per year—a volume that so far has never been attained. Previous peak years were 1950 with 44,000 units and 1955 with 44,400 units.

* * *

RUBIN SAID that in the midst of this building pressure, the present and future housing needs of lower-income groups are being overlooked.

"Unless this housing demand is met," he said, "our society will continue to suffer from unequal education and other social ills."

"This gap must be closed," Rubin told his hearers. He urged the building of future communities for all classes—where all types of housing are offered and all types of people are able to live together.

TALUS is slated to complete its four-year study of the region by mid-1969, and will then recommend plans for the development of the entire region in terms of land utilization and resources, as well as a balanced transportation system.

Service Via A Recorder

The next time you take your car to your local dealership for servicing, you may find yourself talking to a tape recorder.

A new service program being evaluated by Ford Division at a company research facility calls for the use of a tape recorder by the service manager or service writer.

The customer explains what he wants done to the car, offering additional comments on various noises and actions of the car which may help in its diagnosis and repair. Then the service writer makes any necessary remarks and assigns the job.

* * *

THE AUTO TECHNICIAN listens to the tape and makes the indicated repairs, reporting on the tape exactly what he did and mentioning any other problems with the car that might need attention.

The taped repair order system was revealed in February by J.A. Kordick, Ford Motor Company service and research operations manager, during a meeting of the National Service Managers Advisory Committee to the Ford Dealer Council.

"We see this verbatim customer problem description as a potential asset in our continuing effort to diagnose and repair cars properly," Kordick said. "Often something is lost in the verbal communication from the customer to the service writer, and something more may be lost when the service writer diagnoses the problem before the technician examines affected components in detail.

"If results of this test indicate the procedure will benefit the customer, then the next step will be to try the plan in a dealership," Mr. Kordick concluded.

Colorful Parade Promised

"One of the most outstanding Memorial Day parades in the state" has been promised by the Allied Veterans Council of Western Wayne County, which is sponsoring the event and will include Westland marching units.

Making the promise was William R. Palmer, of the Steve Orris III Garrison of the Army-Navy Union, Westland, who reminded the community that this year's parade will mark the 100th anniversary of the Memorial Day holiday.

Palmer also pointed out that there is still time for groups or individuals to indicate that they want to take part in the parade. Interested persons may call him at 425-7139 or 728-5345.

He said that commitments so far have been made for six marching bands, numerous floats, many marching units from military units, veterans groups, scout troops, and others; Miss Flame of Westland; and Miss Spark of Garden City, queens sponsored by local fire departments.

Palmer also announced that Memorial services will be held at 10 a.m. Sunday in the Calvary Baptist Church, 31650 Van Born Rd., Wayne, and is open to the public.

That day will also have veterans groups assisting in the decoration of graves.

Murray Named To PCHA

Westland Council members Monday night appointed Kenneth Murray as the city's delegate to the People's Community Hospital Authority replacing Ralph Turco who resigned that position at the previous council meeting.

Murray, of 32127 Sandra Lane, Westland, said he will resign his present position on Westland's Board of Canvassers and devote full time to PCHA activities.

The PCHA operates a number of hospitals in Wayne County including Annapolis Hospital in Wayne. Westland has a total of three members on the PCHA Board of Directors.

Golf Balls Out Of Nowhere Can Hurt--Or Even Kill

Crazy antics on the golf course are taking an increasing accident toll, warns Donald C. Bolton, Michigan director of the Allstate "safety crusade."

* * *

MOST GOLFING injuries, Bolton says, are inflicted by the golf ball that drops from out of nowhere. Such injuries are often slight, for the ball has traveled far enough to lose its initial speed. But at close range a ball can deliver a fatal knockout blow.

"Generally these accidents are caused by a lack of common sense and courtesy. Golf is essentially not a dangerous sport, it's only the players who make it hazardous," Bolton points out.

"The rules of golfing etiquette provide the basis for personal conduct from tee to green, but they also help every player avoid the potential accident hazards which are present on all golf courses," says Bolton.

* * *

WITH MOST GOLF courses so crowded as a result of the great interest in the game today, Bolton urges golfers to observe the safety rules which are followed by the pros who spend much of their time on the fairways and greens of courses from coast to coast:

1. Know and obey the rules of golfing etiquette.
2. Respect your fellow players by allowing plenty of room when playing off the tee. Keep your distance and ask others to do the same when you are driving. Be careful when taking practice swings and remain in posted areas until ready to start play.
3. Never play until the fairway is clear. Allow players ahead to hit second shots or until they are out of driving range before making your shot.
4. Always follow the traditional practice of playing the ball that is farthest from the hole. Remain clear of others who are swinging clubs for fairway shots.
5. Always be alert for wild shots onto your fairway. Consider possible danger areas if your shot goes astray.
6. If you hit into another fairway, use special caution when retrieving your ball. Yield to persons playing that fairway. Return to your fairway as soon as you have played your shot.
7. Never shoot to a green until the players ahead of you have left the putting area. Once your group has "putted out", leave the green as quickly as possible. Players who remain on the green to tally their scores not only are discourteous but also increase their chances of being hit.
8. Power carts save time, effort and heart strain. But careless operation can cause an accident--if turned sharply or driven on steep inclines or in rough areas, they are prone to tip.
9. At the first signs of rain, Bolton warns, golfers should take shelter. Lightning strikes most often during the muggy lull preceding rain. Standing in the open, the golfer is often the highest object in the area--making him a perfect target for lightning. The nearest lone tree, the classic lightning target, is a booby trap. Take shelter in a building or crouch in a ditch or sand trap.

The above rules and golfing safety tips are listed in detail in a pamphlet called, "Course Sense, A Guide To Golfing Courtesy and Safety", which is available at Allstate's Regional Office, 16130 Northland Drive, Detroit, 48232.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS — These three high school musicians are winners of scholarships given by the Plymouth branch of the Business and Professional Women's Clubs. New Shopping Center Denied

Wednesday night the planning commission recommended the denial of a rezoning request from residential to commercial zoning of property on the south side of Ann Arbor Rd., near Haggerty Rd.

The applicant for rezoning, Daniel Arnold, had asked for a change to construct a shopping complex with a drug store, restaurant, grocery store, and shoe store.

The commission said that the township did not need two shopping centers of this kind and besides there are enough stores like these in nearby centers.

Commissioners expressed the fear that the proposed center may end up like others in the area and become abandoned shortly after they got underway.

They did not want to see empty stores, they said.

The commission also based its action on the recommendations of the Planning Consultant, W.C. Johnson, and area residents who said they didn't want the shopping center near their homes.

The planning commission's action is only a recommendation for action to the township board of trustees which has final say on all matters in the township.

However, the board usually follows the recommendations of the commission.

Two Plymouth Students Get U.M. Degrees

Two graduates from Plymouth were among the 171 who received doctor of philosophy (Ph. D.) degrees at the Spring commencement at the University of Michigan.

They were Glyn Peter Norton, 47100 Betty Hill, in the field of French, and John Henry Schaibly, 12907 Heritage Drive, in the field of nuclear engineering.

Township Approves Employe Pensions

The pension, known as the Michigan Township Association pension plan, was adopted as the official plan by the Board of Trustees.

Under the plan--the employe can refuse to participate--any participant pays half and the township matches the amount.

At the end of 20 months, the employe can take back his invested money only and the township withdraws its portion.

However, if at the end of the 20 months an employe leaves the township and still wants to receive his share plus the township's he must wait two years before he can collect.

The plan includes both salaried employes and elected officials.

Trustee Dick Lauterbach abstained from approving the plan saying he did not like the idea of an employe being able to benefit from it in only two years.

He said most traditional plans required that employes stay with their employer for at least 10 years before they would be eligible for a pension plan.

Trustee Gene Overholt said that he, in all good conscience, could not participate in the plan because he is an elected official and must stand for election every two years.

He also said that he was employed, full time in another job with a pension plan, anyhow.

Legion Invites Old Friends For Finale

In February of 1964 when the Passage-Gayde Post and Auxiliary of The American Legion of Plymouth inaugurated its informative series of the "Why Are We. . .?" it hosted the city and township officials as first guests.

Now, some 4 1/2 years later, the series will come to its close in June of 1968.

During the life of this series, 46 local organizations have been guests and some 1,670 people have been in attendance. The Post and Auxiliary feel we have learned to know these organizations and their objectives a little bit better and trust that they know us a little bit better.

Buffet supper will be served at 6:30 p.m. on Saturday, June 22, and there will be a short program to follow at 7:30 p.m. The location of the Legion Home is 888 Sheldon Road, Plymouth.

Township Justice Hears 32 Cases

Township Justice James E. McCarthy heard 32 cases and levied $782 in fines during the past week. The top fines of $115 were levied against Amos Davidson, of Detroit, for allowing an unlicensed minor to drive, and to Fred Blackwell of Westland, for impaired driving.

Coupling Firm Is Acquitted In U.S. Court

Anchor Coupling Co. Inc., which has a branch in Plymouth, six other hose assembly manufacturers, the National Hose Assembly Manufacturers Association, and four individuals were acquitted of charges made in an anti-trust indictment in U.S. District Court in Detroit this week.

Judge Thaddeus M. Machrowicz directed a verdict of acquittal on charges of conspiracy to secure a price advantage over competitors in the purchase of hydraulic hose, and to induce hydraulic hose manufacturers to prevent competitors from purchasing hydraulic hose at the lowest price.

Don F. Stranberg, Anchor president, said costs of defending the company against the suit have been far in excess of the maximum fine which could have been imposed under the law. "We end this three-year period of being under unjustified suspicion," he said, "with the rueful observation that pleading 'no contest' would have been less costly than defending our innocence."

Jr. High West Sponsors Fair

The entire school will put on displays.

School officials urge that parents of children attending the junior high and parents of children that will be attending next year attend also.

It pays to be a Credit Union Family

We'll take the credit for your vacation plans...at your CREDIT UNION

You can pay for a vacation in many ways. With credit cards. With savings. With a travel loan. But eventually you pay for it in just one way. With cash.

Lots of folks borrow cash. Some pay a higher price than others, and that runs up the cost of their vacation. The smart ones see their credit union.

A loan from your credit union usually costs less because credit unions are in business to help their members. They are owned by their members. And there's no point in charging yourself high interest rates.

So whether you're flying first class or roughing it in a state park, let your credit union take the credit for your vacation plans. It will probably cost you less money.

Contact the C.U. where you work — or the one in your parish or neighborhood — or write Michigan Credit Union League, P.O. Box 5210, Detroit, Mich. 48235.
