Promotions millage pondered

Downtown merchants are in favor of creating a new business association. Its purpose would be to promote downtown Plymouth. Its first question will be whether to levy a promotions millage.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Most downtown business people say they favor a plan to create a new business association to better promote downtown.

The first focus of the new group will likely be considering whether to levy a promotions millage downtown. It would raise $14,000 annually, and would cost individual business owners about $100 per month.

The downtown business association idea was presented at a breakfast meeting Tuesday at the Mayflower Hotel by Steve Guile, Downtown Development Authority director, and DDA board Chairman Lee Harrison.

Guile told more than 100 downtown business people that while the streetscape project will do its part to promote downtown, more is needed.

"We hear from various business concerns there is a vacuum in terms of addressing all the various issues downtown," Guile said.

He proposed that the DDA board and the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce jointly form a new board of directors to oversee a downtown business association. Unlike the chamber's business retail committee, the new group would represent all downtown business — including retail, financial, and restaurants.

■ DOWNTOWN

Some downtown business people have said that while the chamber does organize some downtown promotions such as trick or treating on Devil's Night, new and vigorous ideas are needed.

"I want this to be an organization that sets goals and completes goals," Guile said.

Chamber Executive Director Fran Toney supported creation of the downtown business association. "It's

Student smoking targeted

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

If it seems the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools have taken it easy on smokers and substance abusers, don't be surprised to see less tolerance in the future.

The Plymouth-Canton Board of Education is sending a letter this week to Judge Freddie G. Burton, chief of Wayne County Probate Court's juvenile division, asking that students cited for smoking "receive the maximum consequences that the court can impose."

The board also is inviting Judge Burton to attend a board meeting to discuss concerns regarding juveniles. One of those areas will be drugs.

Superintendent Charles Little notes that the district isn't complying with its own drug policy. "We would need a full-time person" to do so, he said.

Trustee Susan Davis, who works with youth at Growth Works, is in favor of doing whatever it takes. "I had a police officer tell me we are contributing to the delinquency of minors by giving them three chances," she said. "I think we have to do no less than hold people accountable if they're found with an open bottle of liquor or a bag of dope in their pocket. I think we're breaking the law by giving people three chances."

Board members told Burton they're disturbed about smoking tickets being dismissed in probate court. The board has the backing of Canton Township officials and school administration.

Captain Alex Wilson of the Canton Township Public Safety Department has met twice with county officials. The township has drafted an ordinance barring tobacco products on school property.

School administrators are cracking down on smokers. Last semester, 274 students were cited for smoking.

Plymouth-Canton policy reflects state statute. It's illegal under state law for persons of any age to smoke on school property.

"We are busting 30-40 kids, maybe 50, a week, easy," said Tom George, the district's chief of security. "But the point is, if we are not going to get

School officials worried about state grant cuts

BY TIM RICHARD
AND M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITERS

What once appeared to be bedrock — the per-pupil foundation grant given to school districts by the state — now appears to be part quicksand.

Rumor in Lansing has it that Superintendent of Public Instruction Art Ellis will announce a cut in per-pupil state aid this week.

The cuts are reportedly necessary because of growing enrollment. The "charterization" of private schools is draining the public school aid fund.

As of early Friday, the cut was projected to be a third of one percent, which would have amounted to $15 per student in Plymouth-Canton. By late Friday, the figure changed to a fifth of one percent, said John Birchler, Plymouth-Canton executive director of business and operations.

"They've found some other funding, so they might not even have to deduct the one-fifth. This thing changes by the day," Birchler said.

Plymouth-Canton can handle the deduction, should it materialize, added Birchler.

The Plymouth-Canton school district receives $5,153 for each of its 15,306 students.

Superintendent Charles Little said Monday the situation "is better than it was Friday.

"What concerns me is that this will affect how we plan. In the past, we thought the foundation was firm," Little said. "I'm not worried about this year, but it appears that what was promised isn't going to happen. There was quite an error in estimating the number of students, and the state is cutting back."

City officials seek replacement for closed bakery

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The Breadwinner Bakery on Forest Street closed Saturday, and city officials say they hope to recruit another bakery to take its place.

"This is a white bread community; whole grains didn't turn them on," said Val Jaroch, owner of the Breadwinner.

Jaroch said the streetscape project was mainly to blame for a drop in business, but downtown development advocates say the business occupancy rate is 98 percent — the highest in years, suggesting that businesses overall are succeeding downtown.

"I didn't find the city very helpful. I think the streetscape project could have been handled a lot better," said Nancy Kerr, manager of the bakery which survived nearly three years.

The streetscape project, which was nearly completed last fall, affected a lot of businesses on Forest, Kerr said.

"You never knew when it (Forest Street) would be open," she said. "It affected a lot of my regular customers; a lot didn't come back. I thought we had a good product."

Jaroch said, "We reached our projections the first year in sales. We increased it a little more the following year, then we were notified in April of last year the streetscape was going to take place."

"The only thing I heard was it would take eight weeks, it wasn't until November that it was completed," he said.

Jaroch said he would have liked to have some sort of sign on Ann Arbor Trail but city officials didn't approve. He was also displeased about losing three parking spaces in front of the business.

Volunteer lauded

Barb Weir, a parent volunteer at Gallimore Elementary School for 17 years, was presented with the District "Volunteer In Public Schools Award" at the Monday, Feb. 9, Plymouth-Canton school board meeting.

Gallimore principal Larry Cole said Weir's volunteer activities include serving as PTO vice president and secretary and helping in the classrooms and at special events, such as Field Day and the Ice Cream Social.

She has been an active participant with many committees, including the Playground Committee, Beautification Committee and Fund raiser Committee.

She also served as the Publishing Center chairperson.

Jan Jungquist, a PTO member at Gallimore Elementary School, described Weir as "one of the most selfless people I know when it comes to the needs of Gallimore school, staff and students."

The state underestimated the number of students by 6,000, Birchler said. "We're in danger of hitting the cap and going over it," he said.

Local school officials may be disappointed but shouldn't have been shocked at the state Supreme Court's costly decision in the so-called Musselman case.

"The state is pushing it (school retirees health benefits) off on the locals. There will be less dollars at the local level," said Justin King of the Michigan Association of School Boards.

"We estimate the annual payments will be up to 20 percent of salary. They're 15 percent now," said King. "You'd better budget for a minimum of 19 percent so you're not blindsided," he recalled telling the 562 school districts last May.

Those who budgeted accordingly will be safe. Those who didn't budget will be hurting. Total cost to the districts: $500,000 or more.

"I assume the educational community will argue to the Legislature, 'Look, there's a need for additional state resources,' " said King. But he didn't sound confident they'll get it.

Big winner in the Musselman case was state government — the governor and Legislature. They won't have to pre-pay retirees' health benefits, a practice started in the 1980s, pared back under Gov. James Blanchard and halted entirely by Gov. John Engler.

Still, Jaroch said of his decision to close the bakery, "It's not all the city's fault." Kerr, his daughter, said it was difficult taking care of three young children and managing the Plymouth business. Jaroch said with no other family members available to run the business, all the factors added up to closing the Plymouth bakery.

Downtown Development Authority Director Steve Guile said that only one other downtown business has closed since the start of streetscape construction last year — Sippapu Company at the corner of Main and Penniman.

The store owner said business was not a factor in closing the store, as she and a partner were moving so he could accept a job in state government in Arizona.

Guile said there have been inquiries about the storefront and someone will likely occupy it in the next few months.

Some business changes in recent months downtown involved a beauty shop moving from Westchester Mall to Wing Street, and the opening of Healthy Exposure Too and the Underground on Penniman.

"When people leave places they don't stay vacant for more than a month, we're still averaging about one new business a month," Guile said.

One type of business Guile said officials hope to lure downtown is another restaurant, yet no liquor licenses are available. He said city officials support a bill introduced in the Legislature that would increase the number of liquor licenses.

Tom's Oyster Bar owner Tom Brandel has bought a former bakery on Penniman and has said he plans to open an oyster bar — he already operates three in metro Detroit — at the site.

a way we can get more things done," she said.

A majority of business people attending the meeting showed their interest to create the business association, in a show of hands. Still, some had questions and concerns.

Rex Tubbs, owner of Engraving Connection, asked if the new group would be in conflict with the DDA board. "If the committee comes up with something and the DDA board doesn't like it, they could say 'We've got the money and you aren't doing that,'" he said.

"I don't see that happening," Guile said.

One business owner suggested that instead of raising a promotions millage, the DDA and chamber could cut money from their current budgets to fund promotions.

Guile responded, "To establish an effective promotions program you have to have a consistent stream of revenue."

Deni Englehart, owner of Chameleon Gallery, asked how much money downtown businesses contribute to the Preferred Customer Program. Guile said $21,000 annually, and she responded, "If the 2 (promotion) mills passes, no one will want to contribute additional revenue" to the customer program.

"I don't see it that way," Guile said.

Harrison said one advantage of levying a promotions millage is that all downtown businesses would participate rather than just some who participate in the Preferred Customer Program.

■ 'We hear from various business concerns there is a vacuum in terms of addressing all the various issues downtown.'

DDA director

Greg Goodman, owner of Cafe Bon Homme and former DDA chairman, said he didn't think the promotions millage would burden downtown business people. But he warned that once a downtown business association is formed "The potential is there for the DDA to step back from some of its responsibilities. It is kind of human nature, I've seen it happen."

Cathie Kessel, co-owner of Brass and Iron Beds, said she favored creation of the association. "Maybe it will get some representation involved outside the (chamber) retail committee."

Scott Smith, owner of Penniman Showcase gallery, said, "I like it because the emphasis will not be just on retail."

Guile asked business people interested serving on the association board to call him at city hall.

backing from the courts, what's the point?"

Board members acknowledge that Probate Court deals with offenses much more serious than smoking, yet they echo George's sentiments. "The school board and district personnel are attempting to implement policies and enforcement efforts as the law dictates," they wrote to Burton. "The recent court action trivializes and undermines this policy," rendering enforcement efforts an exercise in futility.

Trustees say Probate Court dismissed at least 28 tickets written by Canton police since December, 1995. Two students were caught with marijuana; 26 with tobacco. "Many of the offenders had up to five previous offenses for this same illegal activity," the board said.

Derrick Glass, traffic and ordinance referee with the juvenile division of Probate Court, disputes the district's claims. He says he's followed through on agreements reached with local officials at a meeting last May.

"As a result of the meeting, we started to schedule hearings at the beginning of June. For the time period of January, we had 29 tickets," said Glass. "Twenty-five of those persons appeared in court and were assessed court costs for possession of tobacco. Three persons didn't appear, and one ticket was withdrawn by an assistant principal.

■ Captain Alex Wilson of the Canton Township Public Safety Department has met twice with county officials. The township has drafted an ordinance barring tobacco products on school property.

"It's our policy, after an appearance, to dismiss a ticket with prejudice upon receipt of $25 in court costs, and that is what we did. We treat children differently than adults are treated in district court," he said. "We don't find them guilty; we assess court costs and require an appearance with their parents. We also require them to bring copies of their report cards. After they pay court costs, we dismiss the ticket."

Canton is considering an ordinance that would assess a fine "not limited to $50." Why is an ordinance is being discussed when a state law already exists? Davis said that oftentimes, "it's easier to enforce an ordinance than state law, especially with certain age groups." Plymouth enacted local ordinances curtailing skateboarding and trespassing, she recalled.

"No one is telling these kids they can't smoke. They're saying, 'Don't do it here,'" said Davis.

Davis says the battle is worth fighting. "Wayne County is a country of its own. But if we want to trace the problems of our adolescents, they're drugs, alcohol and truancy. This will be our downfall if we don't keep on top of this. I think it's time we stood up for what we want. I think our community will support what we are doing on this issue."

Students at the high schools say there's confusion about the policy (which until recently permitted smoking in designated areas), and that smokers will smoke no matter what.

"I'd say half to 75 percent of this high school smokes big time," said Beverly Palay, a Canton High School senior.

"I don't smoke, but I still think it's a stupid rule. Kids don't listen. They smoke in the parking lots, the restrooms; they're going to smoke anyway."

Public comment sought on plans for two new area codes

Six potential plans for two new area codes are being studied, and the public will be asked for input.

A new area code will be added in the 810 area in 1997 and another in 313 in 1998. Southeastern Michigan is depleting its supply of available telephone exchanges because of the growth of telecommunications services such as cellular phones, pagers, modems and fax machines.

The proposals to add another area code in the 810 area include:

- A new area code would be added to the southern portions of Macomb, Oakland, and Livingston counties. This plan includes the northern portion of Livonia, which is currently in the 810 area code.
- A new area code assigned to Oakland County. This plan also includes the northern portion of Livonia, which is currently in the 810 area code.
- Assign a new area code as an overlay to the existing 810 area, which includes northern Livonia. Both area codes would follow existing boundaries, with new service requests getting the new area code and all current 810 customers keeping their present numbers.

The proposals to add a new area code in the 313 area include:

- A new area code would be assigned to everything outside of Detroit, the Grosse Pointes and Dearborn. Redford Township would get the new area code.
- All of Detroit, Redford Township, the Grosse Pointes and Dearborn would receive a new area code. The rest of the area would remain 313.
- Assign a new area code as an overlay to the existing 313 area. This means there would be two area codes within the existing boundaries, with new service requests getting the new area code and all current 313 customers keeping their present numbers.

The plans are "very much preliminary at this point," Joe O'Connor, president of Consumer Market Analysts in Troy, said.

About 1,200 interviews will be conducted, as well as public meetings and the public meetings will be scheduled soon, he said. The phone interviews will be conducted, literally, with map in hand, O'Connor said.

At the end of March a report of the research will be completed. By early or mid-April phone customers will know which plan was chosen, O'Connor said.

None of the plans is a perfect solution, O'Connor said. "Someone is inconvenienced," he said.

The overlay plan is being implemented in Houston and Maryland, he said.

Adding new area codes should keep southeast Michigan in phone numbers for eight to 10 years, according to Harry Semerjian, vice president of corporate planning at Ameritech.

When the numbers run out, a new numbering system will have to be implemented, Semerjian said.

Planning for the area code is handled by two groups. The first is a nine-member citizens' advisory committee with representatives from Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties, the city of Detroit, SEMCOG, the Detroit Chamber of Commerce, Ameritech and the Michigan Public Service Commission. The citizens' group is facilitated by O'Connor.

The second group is a telecommunications industry team with representatives from local telephone companies, long distance providers, cellular and paging companies, and alarm companies.

These two groups studied more than 20 possible plans before selecting six. Four guidelines were followed:

- Plans must be technically and economically feasible, as telephone exchange boundaries don't necessarily follow municipal and county boundaries.
- Most, if not all, customers should be able to keep their current phone numbers.
- If the new area codes split the current geographic boundaries (as opposed to being an overlay) they must follow easily recognizable boundaries.
- The new design must allow all four area codes serving Southeast Michigan to exhaust their capacity at about the same time.

County to host health summit

The Wayne County Health Department (WCHD) will host a Health Summit to address the present and future health status of Wayne County residents from 8:30 a.m. to noon Monday, Feb. 26, at the Wyndham Garden Hotel, 8600 Merriman in Romulus.

The purpose of the event is to identify high priority health concerns and, to later, implement improvement strategies.

"A healthy county is the catalyst for economic development and prosperity," said Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara. "Well people can enjoy longevity and make invaluable contributions to their communities."

The event will bring together 200 people, representing all sectors of Wayne County including members of the health community, business and political leaders, key interest groups and grass roots individuals.

"Statewide improvement calls for local action," says Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk, Wayne County Public Health medical director. "The vision of health assessment programs is to empower communities to take charge of their health and influence health care."

For more information on the Health Summit and/or CHAP, call Esther Twitty, WCHD Planning manager at: (313) 467-3463.

The WCHD will provide leadership and guidance to communities involved in the CHAP, while serving as experts in public health practice. Regardless of the health department's programs, they can be more effective if residents work collectively to assure conditions in which individuals can be healthy, according to Steve Gold, WCHD Planning and Evaluations director.

"Public health is not only having the lack of disease, but it should include underlying social determinates that lead to unhealthy people, such as the lack of employment, food, housing and recreation," Gold said.

The health conference was organized as a direct result of a statewide effort to improve the health of Michigan residents through Conununity Health Assessment Programs (CHAP). CHAP is one of 12 regional health assessment programs initiated and supported by the Michigan Department of Public Health.

The WCHD is part of a consortium of health departments in Soptheastern Michigan participating in CHAP which includes: city of Detroit; Livingston County; Macomb County; Monroe County; Oakland County; St. Clair County and Washtenaw County. Additionally, CHAP is supported by the Southeastern Michigan Health Association.

Board mistake

Swimming needed in schools

The Plymouth-Canton schools made a serious mistake by dropping the swimming requirement for seniors who will graduate in the year 2000.

Instead of dropping it, board members should have turned the requirement into an opportunity to reinvent how physical education is taught in the schools. Swimming is a life skill and a good aerobic exercise that should be encouraged, not scrapped.

The swimming requirement has been under fire by a group of parents critical because it has been difficult for students to pass a swim test that would keep them out of a swimming class.

Board members overreacted. However, there is time for the board to reconsider its action and reinstate the swimming requirement.

Swimming and other physical fitness classes are needed now more than ever. One national study says that "more than 20 percent of children 6 to 9 years old have excess body fat." Another says that at least one-third of American children and possibly two-thirds are unfit.

There is some good news on the physical fitness front in the Plymouth-Canton schools. Under Superintendent Charles Little, the schools are looking at new ways to teach physical fitness that encourage lifelong fitness habits and good health. Let's hope the school board doesn't take aim at those new programs.

Dropping the swimming requirement gives Little and others charged with reinventing physical fitness one less tool to use in a new-style program. Swimming is an excellent aerobic exercise in which people can engage well into their old age.

There is the safety factor. Michigan residents are going to find themselves near water, and if they never learned how to swim, there will be the danger of drowning.

Also, high school students at some point become parents. And if they don't know how to swim, they will pass those fears on to their children.

The decision is disturbing for other reasons. Public eduction is founded on the idea of giving students a broad-based background.

That means exposing students to subjects and activities that may not be common in their homes. That includes swimming, art, music, math, science, foreign languages and computers.

When public education loses that idea, it has strayed too far from its basic mission.

School board members must remember that they are the guardians of a public education system and not simply there — as one board member noted — to treat students and parents as customers.

Times call for changes in programs and the way subjects and activities are taught, but school board members should take a leadership role to ensure that those changes aren't just a knee-jerk reaction to a few complaints.

Suburban school districts lose

There's an old joke in which the Lone Ranger says to Tonto, "We're surrounded by thousands of hostile Indians. What are we going to do?"

Tonto replies: "What you mean 'we,' white man?"

The joke is grimly real when communities ponder the reaction of state legislators and the governor to the Supreme Court decision in the Musselman case. In the late 1980s and early '90s, the state eliminated prefunding of school retirees' health benefits. The high court said the state didn't violate the Constitution, and that courts lacked power to mandate state expenditures.

"We won," said state officials.

Who are the "we" who lost?

The Michigan Education Association, the teachers union that filed the Musselman suit, says it lost on the question of constitutionally protecting members' benefits. Some loss. No other retirees have constitutionally protected benefits. MEA members aren't any worse off than anybody else. Politically, they actually may be better off by losing in court because their money is no longer a budget target in lean years.

The "we" who lost are local school districts. Lansing has effectively shifted a $400 million or so burden to local school districts.

It's no great burden in rural, poor, outstate districts, which are reaping huge rewards from Proposal A's school finance reforms. But it is a burden in Wayne County suburban districts — the old out-of-formula schools. Whatever increases in state aid they get are likely to be largely eaten up this year by the need to fund retirees' health benefits.

So when voices in the State Capitol say we're better off in school funding these days, you need to know whom they mean by "we."

Road money falls short of need

Wayne County's roads are going into reverse.

For several years, local drivers have seen billboards advising them that "short term inconvenience means long-term improvement" as county roads are resurfaced. Many county roads also got new lanes, drains and shoulders — especially since County Executives William Lucas and Ed McNamara took over the old Road Commission.

No more. Money is running out. The county found the $4.5 million it was getting from Lansing will shrivel to $2.1 million this year and barely top $3 million in 1998.

Two things have happened. First, the state has failed to hike the 15-cents-a-gallon fuel tax to meet revenue shortfalls caused by more fuel-efficient vehicles of the '80s. Second, the Michigan Department of Transportation has put a higher priority on its own projects than it has on Wayne County projects.

The result is that all the regional planning done by the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments has been knocked into a proverbial cocked hat. SEMCOG is trying to renegotiate a new plan with the state.

"Your project is beyond 1996," a county official told a Canton Township group last week.

We repeat what we've been saying since 1988: State road funds are woefully inadequate. The longer we postpone the inevitable tax increase, the more taxes we will need to catch up, let alone get ahead.

C'mon, Gov. Engler and the Legislature. We know you're following a "taxpayer's agenda," but we remind you that taxpayers need roads, too.

Educational choice

I was recently quoted in your paper and would like to clarify my statements and position. I stated at the Feb. 12 school board meeting that I don't believe that physical education (PE), as a high school graduation requirement, makes a significant impact on the lifelong health of students.

Consider that an overwhelming majority of Americans are overweight and that almost all of us have gone through PE in our high school years.

If it didn't help us, why would we think that it will help our kids? I also stated that two semesters of PE will not overcome 18 years of habit forming at home.

The examples set by moms and dads far outweigh any education that any school could hope to give. Someone commented that our kids "needed" high school PE to not become overweight and slothful. If that is true, then all of the time spent teaching PE in elementary and middle schools was wasted.

If the school system wants to impact kids' overall health, these are the years to focus on it, not high school where other concerns are on their minds.

I fail to understand why we place precedence on PE and not on art or music, other than "crowd control" at the PCEP. I watched as a young lady, Kellie, told the school board of her career goal: to enter the field of performing arts. She would not be able to participate in vocal music and take a foreign language in addition to her academic requirements, because she would have to take PE.

You might say that it would be good for her to get some exercise, except that she appeared to be in great physical condition, my guess would be from participating in dance.

The fact that some students need PE is indisputable, but that all students need it is ridiculous and totalitarian. A board member is quoted as saying that the board would no longer impose its views on the best methods of achieving cardiovascular fitness, yet it still does by requiring students to take PE.

Another board member, in voting to eliminate the swimming requirement, did it for students like Kellie, except that it didn't help Kellie, she still is required to take one year of PE and will not be able to take Spanish and vocal music.

I think most would agree that driving is a "life skill" that any effective member of society will need to possess in the coming years. It is, if not equal to one's health, very close in importance, as poor driving skills can end a person's life just as quickly as poor health.

Students can take driver's education through the school system. Or they can take it at a private driving school. The school system, the state and everyone else could not care less where driver's ed was administered, as long as it is completed.

Why can't we do the same with physical education? If students can show that they are participating in physical activities, in or out of school, they can be exempted from taking PE in school and instead, use the time for something more beneficial.

Other districts do it, why can't we? Since the goal is the students' health, why not let them choose the activity(ies) that will carry them toward this goal? They will enjoy physical activity more and will be more likely to continue it throughout their lives, rather than enduring it for two semesters in high school.

Jeff Phillips, Plymouth

Thanks

When we moved to our Canton home in the summer of 1994, we never anticipated that a life or death situation would occur that would enlist the need for a quick, professional response from our local police and fire departments.

On Jan. 15, my husband, Harold Hardeman, had a terrible accident causing him to bleed profusely from his left arm. With no first-aid background, and nerves that you could cut through with a butter knife, my first instinct was to try to help him stop the bleeding. When that attempt was unsuccessful, I managed to dial 9-1-1 and they dispatched an ambulance and a police car who were immediately en route to our home. In the meantime, I ran to my neighbor's door who I recalled is a nurse and he ran over and stopped the bleeding until the ambulance arrived. Within six minutes of my call, the rescue team was at my home and they transported my husband safely to the hospital.

My husband is resting at home and working on a speedy recovery thanks to the professional men and women of the Canton Police and Fire departments. On behalf of the Hardeman family, we would like to thank them for being so helpful and caring in our time of need. We would like to extend our most sincere thanks to each and every one of them.

POINTS OF VIEW

Constitution key to guaranteeing freedom

GUEST COLUMNIST

JOE WIRA

If certain people would take the time to study the Constitution, they would discover the founding fathers were aware the Constitution would have to be amended for clarification, to cover situations unforeseen by them or to make it more adaptable to changing times. They provided for such an eventuality, spelling out the exact procedure to be followed.

Someone's flimsy comments including stale, often-abused, apparently-overheard arguments prompted me to elaborate on my column printed in the Jan. 5 edition of the Observer.

If certain people would take the time to study the Constitution, they would discover the founding fathers were aware the Constitution would have to be amended for clarification, to cover situations unforeseen by them or to make it more adaptable to changing times.

They provided for such an eventuality, spelling out the exact procedure to be followed. The first 10 Amendments were proposed and ratified soon afterwards. Recently, two additional amendments were proposed.

The Constitution isn't an unyielding entity, but is flexible, friendly, and cooperative. There's nothing wrong with the First Amendment. What is wrong is the mistaken, abusive, devoid of common sense interpretation of it, and some laws based on such interpretations.

It says, Congress shall make no law restricting the establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof. Following its ratification, Congress made no law restricting the establishment of religion.

Everything was fine until Marxism begun sneaking in its evil ideas into the healthy fabric of our society.

Separation of state and church, ad absurdum, was established in the Soviet Union by godless Marxism, a small minority of 3 or so million communists held the vast majority of over 200 hundred million hostage to its perverted ideas for over 70 years, but the Soviet Union was, as President Reagan said "an Evil Empire."

We aren't an evil empire and should never become one. We should beware of evil, godless Marxism, the legacy of the notorious Karl Marx, sneaking up on us, even if it's bit by bit.

Being indoctrinated in bad ideology is like having a bad addiction to cigarette smoking, drugs, or alcohol. It's difficult to get rid of it. Some people never can. Even though the First Amendment says Congress shall make no law prohibiting the free exercise of religion, there were numerous instances in which our government did just that. It enacted such laws and otherwise prohibited the free exercise of religions, especially Christian religions, obviously catering to small, activist, self-serving factions, but against the majority, 95 percent-plus of the population of this country.

Some individuals don't understand the difference between laws enacted by the government and the Constitution. The Constitution is the system of fundamental principles according to which our nation is governed.

The dictionary defines the word "belief" as an opinion or conviction. When beliefs, especially those of deficient nature, of 5 percent of the population conflict with beliefs of those in the majority, and if that 5 percent succeeds in imposing its will on this majority, that is dictatorship Soviet-style.

When beliefs of the 95 percent majority conflict with the beliefs of the remaining 5 percent, the majority must prevail. This is the essence of our democracy.

Let us take, as an example, the situation in Washington. It's obvious that President Clinton and his Democrats' opinions regarding some social issues conflict with those of Republicans. But we know that in the end one side, the majority, will have its way, even if it conflicts with the opinions or convictions of the opposition. This is our democracy at work.

We want to keep it that way. Some people who spent most of their lives in undemocratic systems may find it hard to understand.

Ignoring white-collar workers harmful to candidates

TIM RICHARD

Buchanan is a protectionist — an opponent of free trade and documents like the North American Free Trade Agreement.

Brother Al wrote from Out West to back away from our joint March vacation plan. He's changing jobs, leaving Kmart after umpteen years, to join rival Wal-Mart.

"It wasn't just the money, although that was better. The benefit package was much better, insurance plans, stock options, profit-sharing, dental plan, etc.," he said.

His note arrived several days before Kmart, headquartered in Troy, announced it is "streamlining" management. Many salaried workers will be demoted to hourly status, without the opportunity to earn bonuses. Many will take sharp pay cuts. Some streamlining.

A retail consultant was quoted as saying Kmart's labor costs are higher than its rivals, though Kmart pays the same for goods, pays the same for shipping, and has some of the best leases in the world.

That doesn't add up: Al leaves Kmart for more money and better fringes; the expert says Kmart has higher labor costs.

One more bit of factual information: On employee bulletin boards all over the country is a Feb. 13 article from the New York Times about how AT&T is trashing 40,000 workers, or 13 percent of its workforce. The brass also are giving thousands of current non-union workers a two-page form on which to list their credentials.

"The idea is that everybody has been asked to step out into a parking lot," said AT&T spokesperson Adele Ambrose. Added an AT&T human resources veep: "People need to look at themselves as self-employed, as vendors who come to this company to sell their skills."

To me it sounds like current workers, who have been doing satisfactory jobs for decades, are being told to apply for their jobs all over again. As the Times writer put it, "Critics say the layoffs demonstrate how modern companies treat workers as disposable tools."

The point of this column is to heighten your political awareness. The trashing of the skilled American white-collar worker isn't being discussed by the mainstream presidential candidates — Clinton, Dole, Alexander and that crowd.

Only Pat Buchanan is talking about it. "When AT&T lops off 40,000 jobs," he said last week in New Hampshire, "the executioner that does it, he's a big hero on the cover of one of these magazines, and AT&T stock soars."

Buchanan is a protectionist — an opponent of free trade and documents like the North American Free Trade Agreement. His campaign announcement followed last year's revelation that most of the companies that said they would increase employment if NAFTA were ratified actually did the opposite — cut jobs.

Political columnists, however, are treating Buchanan like a Nazi. One said his speeches were more entertaining in the original German. Another quotes Speaker Newt Gingrich as saying he'd be comfortable with any of the GOP presidential hopefuls — except Buchanan.

Political columnists picture Buchanan as a hatemonger, 19th Century fundamentalist, Neanderthal, bigot — and that's when they're being nice to him.

I do not — repeat NOT — endorse Buchanan. I'm a policy wonk, an issues freak, a dealer in ideas like my hero Plato.

On March 19 Michigan Republicans face a presidential primary. The year's big issue is the nervousness of middle-class, middle-management, white-collar workers who fear being treated as disposable tools; that every economic indicator is sky-high with the exception of consumer confidence; and that only Pat Buchanan is talking about it.

Think about that in the four weeks ahead when presidential candidates come to town and bombard you with their inane commercials: What will they do about the long-time worker who is treated like a disposable tool and made to apply for his or her job all over again?

Governor blasts schools, overlooks basic realities

PHILIP POWER

Gov. John Engler was interviewed last week by a group of Michigan business leaders at a forum sponsored in part by Walsh College, a business school located in Troy.

His comments on Michigan kindergarten through 12th grade education make perfect sense and represent a slap in the face to some of the radicals who are busily trying to rip up a public school system that is trying to improve.

Engler quote: "As a nation, we spend $300 billion anually on K-12 education; it's not an area where we're underfunded. For that kind of investment, we have very little benchmarking, very little assessment . . . We don't really have an adequate way to tell how a Michigan student stacks up against an Ohio student, or a California student or a Canadian student or a German or a Japanese student."

My comment: Right on, Governor. So why did you let your friends in the state Legislature eliminate the mandatory curriculum from the Michigan School Code, making Michigan one of only two states in the nation without specific requirements about what kids should learn in school?

Engler quote: "I think there has to be a national test. We're talking about reading, writing, math and science. Presumably there's not a Texas way to learn math and a Michigan way to learn math. You either learn algebra or you don't."

My comment: Right again, Governor. A national system assessing what kids actually learn is the single most important device I know to get real school reform. Why, therefore, do you tolerate your chums on the State Board of Education arguing that each school district and each charter school ought to be free to use any assessment test they want?

Engler quote: "It (a national test) has been strongly resisted by many of the education groups, because they are fearful it will be used to make comparisons, or that it could become the tool by which we could compensate teachers."

My comment: That's wrong, Governor, and you know it. The resistance to a national assessment system has come primarily from politicians who are scared of losing "local control" and right-wing religious groups who want their kids to learn creationism, McGuffey's Readers and the three R's.

"Education groups," which in the governor's vocabulary means "teachers unions," have mixed feelings about national assessmement systems. The American Federation of Teachers, headed by Al Shanker, has been advocating national benchmarking for years. The National Education Association (parent of the Michigan Education Association, the largest teachers' union in Michigan) has been more muted on the subject.

Engler is right in asserting that much teacher concern about any objective system of assessing learning is the fear that individual pupil performance will get linked to individual teacher compensation.

Teachers assert — rightly, in my view — that there are a lot of variables involved in learning, and it's just not fair to make any one teacher responsible for all of them. Families may be dysfunctional or not care; kids may be truant or on drugs or dumb; school materials may be lacking or merely bad.

That's all true. But it should not be beyond human creativity to figure out a way to link some part of teacher compensation to student performance.

I cannot think of any one step which would more dramatically reverse the realities of today's politics, where teachers unions are demonized and teachers are demoralized and angry, than for school employees to put themselves firmly on the side of learning achievement. It's a fundamental way for teachers to reconnect with kids, parents, employers and with their ultimate customers: the taxpayers.

Funding cuts will delay 22 county road projects in '96

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

Cuts in funding of the county's road projects mean 22 projects planned for 1996, including two local ones, won't be completed this year.

At a meeting of the Federal Aid Committee in Livonia Tuesday, local road engineers and elected officials heard the bad news and voted on which road projects wouldn't make the cut for 1996. That comes after Wayne County officials found out in January that the federal money it receives from the state will be cut.

Funding slashed

Instead of $9.5 million in federal funds received from the Surface Transportation Program, the county expects to receive $2.1 million for 1996.

Instead of $4.6 million in federal funds from the Transportation Economic Development Fund Category C, the county expects to receive $1.8 million for 1996.

Also, under added state road funds from the Build Michigan program the county expects to receive $6.4 million instead of the $15.2 million it received last year.

Two local county projects are on the list to be completed in 1996: one is on Newburgh Road at the CSX Railroad tracks in Westland and the other is on Canton Center Road from Michigan Avenue to Geddes Road in Canton Township. A local paving project is also scheduled, on Schoolcraft Road in Plymouth Township.

Area projects cut

Two local county projects that won't be completed in 1996 unless more funding is found are Cherry Hill from Middlebelt to Inkster Road in Garden City and Inkster. The other is Seven Mile Road from I-275 to Newburgh in Livonia. The projects are on the list for 1997 and 1998, respectively.

The committee approved the revised list of county road projects for 1996-98 with Canton Township Engineer Tom Casari voting against.

Cuts came when the Michigan Department of Transportation had nine major projects that were to be funded by a gas tax increase, according to Ed Siemert, director of engineering for Wayne County.

When the gas tax increase didn't come about, these projects weren't funded, so the state diverted about $56 million over three-year period for use on its projects, Siemert said. The four projects in southeastern Michigan are the Davison in Detroit, M-59, the Haggerty Connector and I-96 in Livingston County.

Few alternatives

"There are a few rays of hope," Siemert said. The county can trade Congestion Mitigation and Air Quality money for road work money.

The county had been using those funds for the timed-traffic signal corridor projects, which involves installing new signals timed for optimum traffic flow.

See Editorial Opinion

But since the county is doing "a rearranging of deck chairs on the Titanic," according to Alan Richardson, the county's deputy director of engineering, more corridors won't be targeted for that project. "We don't want shiny yellow signals over potholed roads," he said.

Deadlines loom

The plan approved Tuesday will be forwarded to the Southeastern Michigan Council of Governments, which approves plans for road funding in southeast Michigan. SEMCOG must also meet a state deadline, so that the state can meet a federal deadline.

One reason these decisions must be made so late is that two pieces of legislation on funding weren't approved until late November, according to Christopher Mann, coordinator of transportation programs at SEMCOG.

The road funding cuts are hitting everywhere in the state, Mann said. SEMCOG officials considered not approving changes in road work plans, but that will mean projects will come to a halt, Mann said.

Washington: A family man

The man is everywhere. Children see him, adults see him. No one can get away from him. He has one of the most, if not the most, recognized faces in the United States. And today he celebrates his 264th birthday.

Well, he's not exactly celebrating it, that would be dumb. But we are, the "descendants" of this very recognizable man, the "father of our ~~country~~," George Washington.

I wonder what he'd think, that in 1996 we'd recognize him and remember him and even celebrate his birthday. I bet he had no idea way back when of how much of an impact he'd be making generations beyond.

I'm sure at the time with the country being so new and so little and always in peril and frequently at war, fame and huge historical significance were not even passing thoughts in George Washington's mind.

But fame and huge historical significance came to the man anyway. Mostly after his death. And now, of course, not only is his name a household word, but his face is a household face. All over those $1 bills. George is in your wallet, his face is right there near all the faces of the people you live for. You carry his picture along with their pictures every day.

Washington's very familiar, rather stern-looking face has always been a presence in our lives. His portrait is looked at jillions of times a day now, a couple hundred years after he died. I bet if he knew, he'd be mighty impressed.

And I'd bet he'd be impressed with the nation's capital being named after him. And a whole state. And bridges, towns, streets, monuments, mountains, universities. And the special, once-a-year sales at stores. I bet a smile would race across his stern, old face once he'd figured out what an impact he'd made.

So George, what can we say? You were quite a

There's 'Hope' for kids with cancer

When the doors at Laurel Manor open on March 2 for Leukemia, Life, Research, Inc.'s 15th annual "Evening of Hope," it will be a celebration of the work being done to find a cure for childhood cancers.

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

BILL BRESLER/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Hello there: Just the mention of his name is enough to attract a crowd, but for ex-Detroit Piston Vinnie Johnson, it was a challenge getting Nicole Williamson, 21/2, in his court. The Livonia youngster gladly held his hand, but preferred her mother, Brenda's, lap.

Nicole Williamson didn't want to sit in Vinnie Johnson's lap, so the former Detroit Pistons star did the next best thing. He sat on the floor with the 21/2-year-old Livonia resident.

"She's a bit of a Momma's girl," said her mother Brenda. "She won't even let my husband put her to bed, so I don't ever get a break."

But this break in the routine was an exciting one for Brenda and maybe Nicole who wrapped her small hand around one of Johnson's fingers.

Usually hard at work at Pistons Enterprise, a Detroit-based corrugated packaging manufacturer, Johnson took a timeout at the Williamson's home on Monday. Spending time with "the kids" is part of what he does at the honorary chair of Leukemia, Research, Life, Inc.'s 15th annual "Evening of Hope" benefit.

"When it comes to kids, I have a special place in my heart for them" said. Johnson. "This touches everyone who has kids, who has nieces or nephews."

The "this" is childhood cancer, and Nicole is one of the youngsters it has touched. In October 1994, at age 14 months, she was diagnosed as having neuroblastoma, a malignant hemorrhagic tumor, in her chest and abdomen.

After five months of chemotherapy, doctors at Children's Hospital of Michigan were able to remove the tumor along with 20 percent of her diaphragm and a small piece of her lung during a 41/8-hour operation.

That was followed by two more months of chemotherapy "to make sure they got it all." And since June 1995, Nicole has been in remission.

"She knows she has a scare and that she got it at the hospital," said Brenda. "She never liked the doctors, but she liked the nurses. When the doctors came in her room, she'd cover herself with her blanket, thinking they wouldn't see her."

Long-term commitment

Nicole has benefitted from the work of LRL which is committed to finding a cure for all childhood cancers. Founded in 1981, LRL has raised more than $2 million to finance childhood cancer research projects at Children's Hospital.

It has helped finance the PET scan at the hospital, the only one in the world, that can be used to detect in brain tumors are cancerous without invasive testing, said Sharon Dragan DeVore, the driving force behind LRL's founding.

DeVore began a parent's support group in 1981 after her son P.J. was diagnosed with leukemia. He died in 1983, but part of his legacy is the "Evening of Hope" dinner-dance.

"LRL was formed when I found out there was no funding for research for childhood cancers at Children's," said DeVore, a Farmington Hills resident. "P.J.'s 21/2-year battle is over, but his legacy has given other children the chance to win the war with cancer."

"Evening of Hope" is LRL's premier fund raiser, growing from an initially gathering of 100 people to the 1,600 people the group hopes to have at Laurel Manor in Livonia on Saturday, March 2. The date is a bittersweet one for Devore; it would have been P.J.'s 21st birthday.

But the gathering will be a celebration. With Johnson's help last year, the organization raised close to $65,000 that will be part of a $139,000 endowment for the research team at Children's Hospital.

"Vinnie was instrumental in helping us raise the $65,000," DeVore said. "And $15-20,000 of that was from the silent auction of items from his personal sports collection."

According to Johnson, it was Devore who attracted him to LRL. And after visiting Children's Hospital and seeing the kids, he wanted to do more — collecting items for the auction, going to the hospital to life spirits and the like.

"It's fun," Johnson said of the four-five times he has visited the hospital. "The kids get a kick out of it, and I get to shoot some hoops with the kids who can and visit those who are in rooms who can't play.

"It makes me feel good because it makes them feel good."

"I think it's as exciting for the parents," added Brenda. "It makes their day."

'Touched by an Angel'

This year's "Evening of Hope" theme is "Touched by an Angel." The evening will get underway with cocktails and the silent auction at 6:30 p.m. with the sit-down dinner and dessert table, featuring 50 pounds of Sander's sweets, at 8 p.m.

There will be a raffle with cash prizes, dancing to the music of Nights Creed, a cash cappuccino bar and a bevy of celebrity emcees — Rick Mayk of WDIV-TV, Huel Perkins of WJBK-TV and Dan Springer of WXYZ-TV — and special friends — Jim Fitzgerald, Greg St. James and Jo-Jo Shutty-MacGregor.

Tickets are $55 each, or $80 for benefactors. Silver star tickets are priced at $150 and include preferred seating with the celebrity emcees or special friends, while for die-hard Piston fans, there are Crystal Angel tickets priced at $200 each to sit with Vinnie Johnson. Tickets are available by calling Eileen Surma at (313) 581-5647.

Items for the silent auction read like a who's who of Detroit sports. Available to the highest bidder are such Detroit Red Wing items such as jerseys signed by Sergei Federov and Paul Coffey and an hockey stick autographed by Chris Draper, Little Caesars hockey cards signed by Draper and teammate Chris Osgood, and hockey puck and trading card signed by Vyacheslav Kozlov, donated by Bryan's All Sports.

Baseball bats autographed by Kirk Gibson and Cecil Fielder, a baseball signed by Dave Rozema, Dave Bergman and Dan Petry, and autographed Detroit Piston basketball, a copy of the book, "The Babe Signed My Shoe," autographed by Ernie Harwell who also is donating an autographed score card and "A Tribute to Ernie Harwell" cassette tape, not to mention University of Michigan and Michigan State University benches and autographed Red Wing and Piston benches also are among auction items.

While Nicole and her 14-month-old sister Hanna are oblivious to Johnson's visit, their mother isn't and asks for an autograph. Johnson obliges, something he did at last year's benefit.

"I signed a few autographs and posed for a few pictures," said the modest Johnson. "It was very exciting and I enjoyed the evening. I'm really looking forward to this year."

The visit is part of the changes that have taken place in Brenda and her Husband John's life since Nicole's diagnosis and treatment. The family returns to Children's Hospital every three months for checkups, and Brenda admits that it's weird walking in the door.

"It's like a different world now," she said. "You ask yourself, 'God, how did we get through those treatments?' But you do what you have to do.

"They told us in the beginning our lives would change forever, this is something that you're always going to have a fear of."

guy, wearing many hats during your lifetime, and all those hats quite impressive-looking.

One hat George wore, though, seems almost impossible to have been worn with any degree of success given all the other hats on Mr. Washington's head. And that hat would have been the one labeled "Family Man." But he was a family man, and by some accounts he was even described as a "dedicated" family man.

Now that may seem peculiar given the fact that the father of our country never actually fathered a child. But he did marry Martha and she was a widow who had two children of her own. So, you see, "family man" was an accurate label.

George and Martha got married when they were in their mid-20s and with that union became an instant family. George was already a colonel at the time. And then lots of military things happened to him. And they mostly happened far away from home and far away from Martha and the children.

There was even a stretch of eight years where George came back to Mount Vernon only once. Imagine that, coming home just once in eight years. Sure, he was fighting a war and winning important battles and organizing a navy and stuff like that, but poor Martha and the children. All those suppers without Dad. All those holidays without him. And the little daily things: the fence repairs, the school triumphs and trials, the flu season, the bugs on the cherry tree in the front yard, those things. She had to deal with everything, just like a modern-day single parent. She must have been a very understanding, patient woman.

And such patience and understanding to have stayed with George during that famously cold and severe winter in Valley Forge. I personally have to hand it to her for that feat. I honestly can say that I wouldn't have done that, especially if they were staying in tents.

Now in 1789, when George became America's first president, which of course made Martha Washington America's first first lady, he was wearing his family man hat even more securely than ever. He'd adopted two of Martha's grandchildren when their father, Martha's son, died. And that's a pretty neat thing, even in the 1990s.

That George Washington was a family man, one who clearly cared about his family and children, makes him a worthy symbol for America today. Sure, the man had his faults, and some of those faults were pretty bad, at least from our modern perspective. But he did devote himself to his family. He gathered the children in, he didn't push them away or forsake them. And having his picture on our $1 bills and commemorating his birthday every February is the least we can do in honor of this long-gone family man.

Word from the Meier household is no sister for Carmen. The newest addition to the family is 7-pound, 11-ounce Steven Anthony, born at 12:56 a.m. (that's Chevrolet Lumina time) Feb. 16, en route to St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. Details next week, according to the proud momma.

If you have a question or comment for Karen Meier, a Plymouth resident, call her at 953-2047, mailbox number 1883, on a Touch-Tone phone, or write her at The Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

How do writers get published?

A successful Hollywood screenwriter who lives in Plymouth, free-lance writers, editors and an agent will provide the answers at a one-day "To Market! To Market!" seminar Saturday, March 9, at Oakland University near Rochester.

The keynote speaker will be screenwriter and sports enthusiast Jim Burnstein, who will explain how to sell writing in any field from here in Michigan.

On the faculty of the University of Michigan, where he teaches screenwriting, Burnstein's movie credits include "Renaissance Man," with Penny Marshall and Danny DeVito, "Mighty Ducks III" for Disney and "D3," which is scheduled to premiere in March. His new sports screenplay, "Me and All," is being reviewed by Hollywood producers and directors.

Jim Burnstein

The seminar will focus on selling both fiction and nonfiction, with a range of presenters. An editor for Scribner Publishing in New York City will let participants know what editors are looking for, while an agent for The Literary Group International will discuss how writers can maximize chances of getting representation.

Other presenters include Mary Quinley of Livonia and Renee Skoglund of Canton.

Quinley, a member of Detroit Women Writers and the Midwest Travel Writers Association, will provide participants with a step-by-step procedure to successfully complete market contacts and how to write travel stories without ever leaving home. She will join with columnist Ellyce Field and free-lance writer Debra Darvick to present "Finding Your Way to Special Interest Markets."

Skoglund, a free-lance writer who recently won first place in a Detroit Women Writers fiction writing contest, will join Corinne Abatt, who worked for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers for many years, in presenting "Getting That First Byline."

Sessions on short stories and the regional market for fiction will be presented by Jack and Helen Zucker, editors of "The Bridge," with Pat Peart, associate editor of Detroit Monthly, focusing on the regional markets.

Co-sponsored by Detroit Women Writers, seminar will be 8:15 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and will conclude with a panel discussion on marketing strategies and answering questions from participants.

Deadline for registration is March 1. Tuition is $95 and includes the 1:30 p.m. keynote speaker. An optional lunch is available for $7.50. For information, call the Oakland University Continuing Education Office at (810) 370-3120 between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays.

The workshop uses puppets and games to instruct the children on how to use the telephone, who to call in an emergency, how and when to contact the police, and what to do in case of a fire. The workshop will also give children advice and tips on dealing with strangers.

It is scheduled for 9:15-10:30 a.m. Saturday, March 2, at the Providence Women's and Children's Center, 33133 W. 12 Mile Road, Farmington Hills. The fee is $5 per child, and registration is required. Call (800) 968-5595 to register or for more information.

Providence Hospital and Medical Centers also will present a class designed to prepare children for the new arrival to the family.

The class has been designed for children ages 3-7 and answers questions such as, "What happens to Mom in the hospital?" and "How long will the baby be staying with us?"

Two sessions of the class are available at 1 and 2:30 p.m. Sunday, March 3, at the Providence Medical Center-Providence Park, 47601 Grand River, Novi. There is a $10 per family charge. Space is limited, and registration is required. Call (800) 968-5595 for further information.

Students show off what they learn

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

At age 8, Sara Fry's too young to remember the heyday of Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy. That didn't stop Sara, a third-grader at New Morning School in Plymouth Township, from learning a thing or two about ventriloquism.

She and her classmates were busy Sunday, Feb. 11, at the school's Museum Day and open house. Sara chose the topic because it sounded interesting.

"I read a lot of books, and I looked at some pictures," the Plymouth resident said. "That's mostly it."

She had a Charlie McCarthy dummy on display and demonstrated its use. Sara also made a dummy out of papier-mache.

Seventh-grader Brooke Jabara, 14, chose to create an exhibit on women and children in the Civil War era.

"I just thought a lot of women were interested in this," the Plymouth resident said.

Her exhibit included information on Harriet Tubman, who led slaves north to freedom on the Underground Railroad, and on Elizabeth Blackwell, the first U.S. woman doctor. History is Brooke's favorite subject; when she grows up, she'd like to be a lawyer and help children.

The annual event includes parents, other family members, school staff and children.

"It kind of showcases what the children have been learning," said Claudia Thibodeau of Farmington Hills, a parent and office assistant at the parent cooperative school. Son Alexander, 6, is in the early primary program.

The open house also promotes the school's annual auction, set for 5 p.m. to midnight Saturday, March 23, at Laurel Manor in Livonia.

"We've historically had a preview during our open house, an auction preview," said Marti Chamberlain of Canton, auction co-chairwoman with Jane Fry and Ellen Arble. It gives those outside the school a chance to see the merchandise.

The open house was sponsored by Decision Consultants Inc. of Southfield, also an auction sponsor, said Chamberlain, who has two daughters, Anna, 6, in early primary and Casey, 4, in preschool at New Morning. The goal this year is $100,000.

"Last year, we made $97,000;" the goal was $85,000, so organizers were pleased, she said.

This year's offerings include a chance to be Red Wing Sergei Federov's guest at a practice. Area car dealers are donating $1,000 each toward the purchase of a new car at any of the dealerships; eight dealers signed up last year for the "Deal for Wheels." There's also an Olympics package for two, including tickets for sports and cultural events and accommodations.

"We're just real excited. It's going to be a great auction," Chamberlain said of the event, which attracts more than 600 people.

Tickets for the Saturday, March 23, auction are $50 per person. For more information, call 420-3331.

Charismatic Episcopalian Church celebrates its growth

The Charismatic Episcopal Church is one of the fastest growing denominations in the world. Started in June 1992 with three churches — two in California and one in Arizona — the CEC now has more than 200 churches worldwide and is growing at a rate of one new church each week.

The rapid growth experienced by the CEC worldwide is reflected in the Midwest and Michigan. Three new dioceses have been formed, including the Diocese of the Great Lakes, composed of the churches in Michigan, Indiana and Ohio.

With just one church in Michigan and one in Ohio two years ago, there now are nine churches including the Church of the Risen Lord in the Canton/Livonia area, Church of the Resurrection in the Brighton/Howell area and Church of the Holy Nativity in the Bay City/Midland/Saginaw area. New churches are being planned for Detroit, Lansing, Grand Rapids and Traverse City.

As part of the celebration of the CEC's growth in this area, the new Diocese of the Great Lakes will meet for worship and fellowship 3-6 p.m. Sunday, Feb 24, at Church of the Risen Lord, which meets in the Disabled American Veterans Chapter 114 chapel, 8850 Newburgh Road, Livonia.

There will be time for conversation, refreshments and a chance to meet the bishop-elect, Rev. Frederick G. Fick and Archbishop Randolph Sly.

Sly, Archbishop of the Eastern and Central Province, will preach and celebrate the Eucharist. He also will be at Church of the Risen Lord Sunday, Feb. 25, to receive new members into the CEC and for confirmation and baptism. Sunday worship is at 10 a.m.

Fick, Rector of Church of the Holy Redeemer in the Troy/Sterling Heights area and the first CEC church in Michigan, has been a minister for more than 20 years. A graduate of Concordia College and S.S. Cyril and Methodius Seminary, he has served at churches in Ohio and Michigan as a youth minister, Christian school principal and pastor.

He was ordained a priest in the CEC in 1993 and in 1994 was appointed Canon Missioner for the then Great Lakes Missionary District. He will be consecrated as a bishop in the Charismatic Episcopal Church on May 10.

Besides the mission churches being planned by the CEC, a wide spectrum of congregations, including Independent Charismatics, Pentecostals, Episcopalians, Methodists, Wesleyans and Lutherans, are coming into the movement. Christians in the United States, the Philippines, Europe and Africa are finding a home together in the new work of the Holy Spirit.

According to Rev. Kenneth Bieber, vicar of the Church of the Risen Lord, the birth and growth of the CEC is part of a larger Holy Spirit-inspired movement that seeks a convergence of the ancient streams of Catholicism with the equally ancient evangelical and charismatic streams.

The Catholic stream includes liturgy, sacraments, canon, creed and councils. The evangelical stream means personal conversion and witness to Jesus Christ and accepting the Bible as the word of God containing all things necessary for salvation. The charismatic stream includes the ongoing power of the Holy Spirit in the church's worship and ministry.

"All churches in the CEC combine elements of charismatic ministry, with sacramental worship and celebrate biblical values and orthodox, evangelical teaching," Bieber said. "The three streams of the church converge and form one mighty river of worship."

One important aspect of the CEC is the recovering of the early church government wherein all diocesan bishops also are parish priests. As the number of congregations increases, the geographic areas of dioceses are shrinking, he added.

Further information about the CEC is available by contacting Rev. Bieber at (313) 397-7132 or Rev. Fick at (810) 739-8639.

Alopecia victims press case before House panel

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

A Livonia woman is rallying to help people who, like her, suffer from Alopecia Areata, a disease which stops the growth of hair leaving the body exposed to the sun and bacteria.

On Tuesday, Feb. 27, Linda Cauley will testify in Lansing in front of the House Committee on Insurance in the hopes of persuading members to consider House Bills 5133-5135, which would require Michigan insurance companies to provide coverage for hair prosthesis.

The three different bills cover the three different kinds of services — HMOs (health maintenance organizations) and PPOs (preferred provider organizations), Blue Cross/Blue Shield and private insurers.

"The insurance companies routinely turn this down for payment because they say there's no medical necessity and to have medical necessity you need to have a function for the body part," Cauley explained. "There is a function of hair — regulation of body temperature and to protect you from the sun. We're trying to explain that there is a loss of a body part because there is a function to hair.

"Insurance companies have acknowledged medical necessity by paying for drug therapy for this disease. If they didn't think there was medical necessity, then why did they pay for drug therapy?"

Definite fit

According to Cauley, hair pieces fit the definition of prosthesis — the replacement of a missing part of the body by an artificial substitute.

"There's no criteria that describes prothesis that our hairpieces do not meet," Cauley said. "We're basically saying that this is a loss of a body part from a disease, and if there's a loss of a body part, it should be replaced by prothesis."

Covering a hair prosthesis, she added, is no different than paying for a breast prosthesis or an artificial eye.

"You could argue that there's the same amount of function in the breast as there is for hair," she said. "When you replace an eye, you don't have vision in that eye. It's just for cosmetic reasons."

Insurance companies also argue that it's too expensive to cover hair pieces, but Cauley counters that it actually is cost effective.

"New Hampshire had the law in effect since 1993; we got statistics on just what it's cost people since the law went into effect," she explained. "And by New Hampshire Blue Cross/Blue Shield statistics, it's cost people 3 cents per year to pay for these hairpieces."

Common condition

Alopecia Areata is a common condition that results in the loss of hair on the scalp and elsewhere. It usually starts with one or more small, round, smooth patches. It occurs in males and females of all ages, but young people are affected most often.

Normally, hair follicles on the scalp produce hair each day. With Alopecia Areata, the affected hair follicles slow down production drastically, becoming very small and growing no hair visible above the surface for months or years.

In some, the condition spreads and affects large areas of the scalp for long periods of time. In others, all hair on the scalp is lost (Alopecia Totalis) or all hair on the body is lost (Alopecia Universalis). Cauley has Alopecia Universalis.

The cause is unknown although current research suggests that in Alopecia Areata, something triggers the immune system to suppress the hair follicles. It isn't known what this trigger is, or whether it comes from outside the body like a virus or from inside like a hormone.

Cauley's campaign began two years ago when she and others who have Alopecia Areata began writing state senators and representatives. Her cause piqued the interest of her local representative, Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, vice-chairman of the Committee on Insurance, who agreed to sponsor the bill.

The bills were introduced in September after Law got nine members from the insurance committee to co-sponsor it. Once the bill was introduced, they called for the Feb. 27 public hearing during which Cauley, Dr. John Headington, professor of pathology and dermatology at the University of Michigan, and Sharon Giudice, head of the West Michigan Support Group in Muskegon, will testify.

The Committee on Insurance is not expected to vote on the bill, Cauley said. The passing passing of the bill is also a long shot since it will only affect 30 percent of the population. Many private insurers are located outside of the state.

"This is why the insurance companies are against it," she said. "They feel this bill isn't going to help very many people anyway, so why get it passed. But we feel that 30 percent is better than what was there before."

On the other hand, House and Senate members are being pressured by Gov. John Engler and President Bill Clinton not to allow states to mandate insurance companies, but that's not what she's asking, she said.

Feeling of responsibility is writer's daily companion

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene,

I've been very interested in your column and am quite curious what my handwriting analyses means.

Thank you for taking the time to do so.

A.S,
Bloomfield Hills

Today we are looking at the handwriting of a woman who wants to live life to the fullest. She appears to be a little restless and enjoys being busy. She would probably find a dull routine boring and unwelcome.

Feelings of responsibility and conscience are daily companions. A solid foundation was built in her early training and she continues to draw from it. A firm attitude toward ethics, morality and social responsibility cannot be missed.

The notion of "should" dominates her thinking much of the time. When she does not do what she knows is right, she begins to experience guilty feelings.

To her family, friends and beliefs, she is loyal. I think it would be very difficult to dissuade her from her beliefs.

Her thinking is clear and alert, which is an aid to her inborn intelligence. She can effectively direct herself to her goals because of her inner balance and sense of order. In addition, she is objective, has initiative and uses time efficiently.

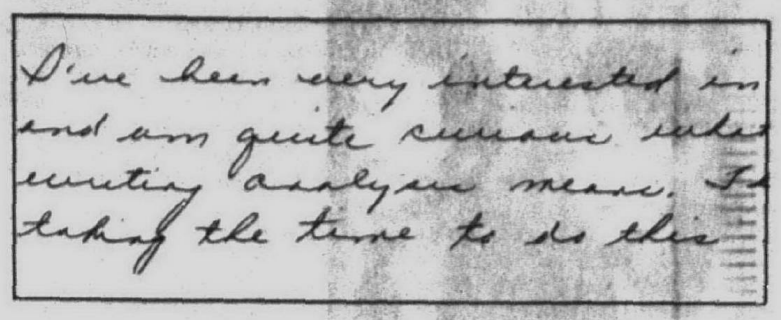
Our writer is self-disciplined and goal-directed. Work must meet her own high standards, which often verge on perfection.

She makes excellent use of all rule books. Authority figures are held in respect. She wants to establish a solid foundation in everything she undertakes. Instinctively, she senses the hierarchy in any group and will adhere to protocol with a passion. Her need for approval helps her make the "right" friends. In any involvement, she both expects and enjoys hard work.

She is a people person who seeks harmony in her relationships. Empathy is a strong trait of hers. At times she may be a little friendlier than she inwardly feels. When choosing her close friends, she appears to be a tad selective.

Self-consciousness and sensitivity to criticism are minor traits found in her handwriting.

Lest you get the feeling that she is all business, let me mention that she enjoys conversing. In addition, she has a nice little sense of humor which is an aid in keeping perspective in her busy life. Humor also brings sunshine into the home.



If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. Due to the volume of mail, personal replies are not possible. However, objective feedback is welcome.

TREASURES OF VENICE SURVEYS GOLDEN AGE

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Unless you're planning a trip to Hungary, the Detroit Institute of Arts "Treasures of Venice" exhibition may be your only chance to view 16th, 17th and 18th century Venetian paintings from the collection of the Museum of Fine Arts in Budapest.

Portraits, landscapes and genre scenes relay religious, mythological and allegorical themes by masters such as Titian, Tintoretto, Veronese, Tiepolo, Bellini, and Giorgione. The DIA is the last venue on the American tour before returning to Budapest May 12.

George Keyes, former curator of painting at the Minneapolis Institute of Arts, co-organized the 55 piece exhibition made possible, in large part, with a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts. Keyes is now the Elizabeth and Allan Shelden curator of European paintings at the DIA.

"It's a special opportunity. With two exceptions these paintings have never been seen before," said George Keyes during a tour of the exhibition prior to the Feb. 18 opening.

"Venetian painters were among the first to be exposed to oil. It allowed the artist to produce a depth of color and translucency, a symphonic quality of color. These are outstanding works underscoring the magic of Venetian colorism."

Like a row of dominoes, one generation of artists gives way to the next. Rubens, Van Dyck, Poussin and Velazquez assimilated elements of the Venetian golden age of painting. The colorism of Titian deeply affected Rembrandt.

"The tradition of Venetian painting is absolutely essential to European and American painting. So much of European and American portraits is derived from Venetian portraiture. This was a new way of looking at portraiture where someone was represented as a personality and not as an icon," said Keyes referring to Veronese's portrait of an aristocratic man.

"All art is very linked to history. It enhances our understanding of history. The 17th century, which has been the forgotten century, is well represented in the Budapest collection."

Much of the work is dramatic or psychologically intense. Inspired by Rubens, and influenced by Caravaggio and the colorism of Venice, Johann Liss captures the decapitation of an Assyrian general in "Judith with the Head of Holofernes." From the Apocryphal Book of Judith, the painting is much like a Rubens' with its splendid modeling of male musculature, and luminous flesh and beauty of a woman.

According to Madonna University art department chairperson Ralph F. Glenn who earned a master's degree in 17th century painting from Harvard University, the artworks reveal not only the influence of noble patrons and wealthy merchants who enjoyed the sensual pleasures but that of the Catholic Church which was trying to counteract Protestantism in the north by commissioning religious paintings.

Caravaggio influence: Sleeping Girl by Domenico Fetti (1588-1623) to have portrayed Mary Magdalene's conversion to Christianity. The dark background is reminiscent of Caravaggio. Tiepolo's spellbinding painting of St. James Conquering the Moors spans more than 10 feet in height.

"Venetian art had a far reaching influence. It grew out of Renaissance painting but added this exuberance and flair. Every gambit of human emotion is represented in 17th century painting: different moods and feelings and atmosphere. Color became very vivid," said Ralph F. Glenn, a Bloomfield Hills resident.

"It's really a high point of Western art history, the handling of subject matter. It's infused with all this energy in ways that never had been achieved before."

Prior to the tour one-third of the paintings underwent extensive cleaning and conservation. "Sleeping Shepherd" by Jacopo Bassano (1510-1592) was extensively overpainted. The genre scene depicts the longing for the simplicity of rural village life. Once thought to have been painted in dark tones, the cleaning brightened the shepherd, sheep, dogs, cows and horse.

"For the first time in more than 350 years, the American audience is seeing what the artist had in mind," said Keyes.

"Bassano worked in a small town in hill country. There was nothing like the Sleeping Shepeherd in painting before, a genre pastoral-rural setting. Bassano developed a palette all his own. The black raspberry across the shepherd's shirt, you see it and know it's a Bassano."

In the first gallery on panel in a microclimate controlled vitrine, where the 55 percent humidity maintains a stable environment, is Marco Basaiti's The Dead Christ and Vincenzo Catena's The Holy Family with a Female Saint. Both were influenced by Giovanni Bellini. Titian, the first to abandon panels for canvas, was a student of Bellini's. As official painter of the Venetian republic, Titian was obligated to render portraits of government officials for a series hung in the Palazzo Ducale. A fire in 1577 destroyed the entire series. Surviving portraits are replicas or variants of the paintings meant for the council hall.

"The masterpiece of the exhibit is Tiepolo's theatrical large scale painting of St. James Conquering the Moors. He was Spain's patron saint," Keyes said.

"Originally commissioned as an altarpiece for the Spanish embassy in London, it was never installed. It was thought the horse would offend the British's delicate sensibilities."

According to the exhibition catalog, co-edited by Keyes, during World War II this canvas was rolled up and taken with the rest of the collection to Germany. It only reached the Hungarian border where it was found lying in the snow in 1945. The damaged painting was repaired in 1988 with the aid of the Hungarian National Art Foundation in New York.

A series of lectures, videos, films, and workshops related to the exhibition are scheduled through May 12.

On March 9 Ensemble Ouabache performs music of the 17th and 18th centuries on authentic period instruments. April 20 Keyes will speak about Titian's genius and early impact. A video on April 27, "Paolo Veronese: Between Art and Inquisition" examines Veronese's controversial painting of the Last Supper.

"This is the first Old Masters' show we've done in 10 years. Each gallery invites you to go on," said Keyes.

"I hope people will take advantage of these Venetian highlights from the collection of the Museum of Fine Arts in Budapest, learn to enjoy this golden age of painting and b seduced by the color."

Hit comedy retains charm on 'Big' stage

"Big" is fun – colorful, spectacular, youthful fun.

The Broadway-bound musical version of Penny Marshall's hit comedy retains much of the movie's charm and adds some merriment of its own. The enduring movie image of Tom Hanks and Robert Loggia happily tapping out a tune on a giant keyboard at F.A.O. Swarz was inspiration enough that "Big" was perfect musical comedy material.

Perhaps wisely, the producers found a Tom Hanks' look-alike and sound-alike to play Josh Baskin. Fortunately, stage veteran Daniel Jenkins is a fine performer in his own right who sings, dances and clowns superbly and conveys the pathos of a boy too far from home. He never quite conveys Hanks' exquisite discomfort of being a boy in a man's body, but perhaps this is more a difference between stage and movie than between actors.

Josh, of course, takes the big trip across the river from suburban New Jersey to the Big Apple and gets a job at a toy company (cool). He finds that adults have a special talent for turning potentially enjoyable and fun work into dehumanizing drudgery, but he also finds out about love.

Love comes in the form of marketing expert Susan played and sung by Crista Moore, who moves from brittle sophisticate to warm, caring, child-again convincingly.

The young performers are notable. Brett Tabisel is Josh's more outgoing buddy Billy and Tabisel shows great confidence on stage. Patrick Levis plays the young Josh as a sweet, shy but charming young boy and he gives heart to a song about the mysteries of adult love. The youth chorus of break dancers, singers, skateboarders and mall rats is excellent.

John Weidman's book stays true to the movie and updates the lingo to keep it fresh. There are some slow serious moments and not enough of the movie's physical comedy. Richard Maltby's lyrics are alert to the language of the junior high set, though a few steps behind as adults always are. He also turns out some fine lyrics on parenthood and the agony of puberty.

The "musicals" biggest disappointment is the music. David Shire stays true to the traditions of American musical comedy, a relief from the currently popular operetta forms of Andrew Lloyd Webber. And he does break away for some fun with rap and hip-hop. But there aren't any knock-out memorable songs or fresh musical ideas or sense of adventure. Perhaps the best moments are Josh's plaintive "I Want to Go Home," and the young Josh's "I Want to Know."

Art auction benefits school

ARTISTIC EXPRESSIONS

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

On a recent afternoon in Plymouth, first graders at New Morning School were having fun creating ceramic tiles for a Shaker-style table, one of hundreds of items set to go on the auction block Saturday, March 23 at Laurel Manor in Livonia.

Tickets for the 20th annual auction, which includes dinner, are $50 per person. For information call, (313) 420-3331.

Garden City potter Judy Buresh supervised the production of clay relief to be installed in a glass-top coffee table crafted by David Keep. Forty early primary and middle school students took turns shaping the clay into cactuses, teepies toads and turtles.

The theme of this year's auction to benefit the non-profit parent pre-K through 8th grade cooperative school is a Beach Party. So, the kids chose their own Southwestern desert theme using a terra cotta and black color scheme. The project was not a new one for students who created a wall mural on an animal theme while on a trip to Pewabic Pottery in Detroit several years ago.

"The materials and colors we're using are all natural earth tone colors. Each student did a drawing to work from," said Diane Harrison who coordinated the tile workshop.

Camels were a popular choice of subject matter. Leah Brunk of Plymouth chose to create her humpbacked animal because "there are not that many of them in the desert." Beth Barrett, also of Plymouth, chose the camel because of her expertise on the subject. It seems she intensely studied the animal in a class last fall.

"They have feet as large as plates and two eyelids. The bactrianus camel I'm doing has two humps and lives in a desert that's really snowy," said Beth Barrett.

Nathan Musleh of Canton stuck to the theme by sculpting a horned toad. Bret Driscoll of Livonia created an entire landscape on the square of cardboard. As Driscoll formed a sun and teepie, Buresh reminded students to work large because the clay will shrink some 14 percent in the kiln.

Buresh, who exhibited her pottery in the school's arts and crafts show in November, took home the tiles for firing and finishing. She became involved in the project for a number of reasons after being invited to do so by art show chairperson Leslie Stolaruk.

"I'm doing it because of the chance to work with kids and to do something for the community," said Buresh.

A quilt made by students went for $1,000 in the auction last April. After costs, the students split the $662 profit with the school.

Founded in 1973, the state-certified New Morning School offers individualized academic instruction in small classes. Tuition covers only 70 percent of operating costs. Last year's fund raising auction brought in $97,000, about one-fifth of the school's operating budget. Many of this year's items, ranging from hand crafted jewelry to a trip to the Olympics, were donated by local businesses and artists.

"Bold Strokes: The Inventiveness of Rembrandt's Late Prints" will continue to April 28 at 525 S. State, Ann Arbor. Related events include a lecture by Clifford Ackley, curator of prints, drawings and photographs at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, 8 p.m. Friday, Feb. 23, in Auditorium B at Angell Hall; and tour 2 p.m. Sunday, Feb. 25. In the lecture, which will be followed by an opening celebration at the museum, Ackley will discuss Rembrandt's reverence for the picturesque qualities of venerable age and explore the artist's mature and deeply expressive etching style of the 1650s and 1660s as evidenced in his illustration of biblical subjects. This exhibit of 18 objects explores the extraordinary creative flowering that marked the end of Rembrandt's life. By juxtaposing late works with earlier prints on the same or a similar theme, the show looks at the evolution of the master's treatment of key subjects and allows viewers the opportunity to appreciate his innovative alterations to images of people, places and situations to which he kept returning. Two free art videos will be shown in the museum Media Room: "Trajan's Column" 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 22; and "Maya Lin: A Strong Clear Vision" 12:10 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 28, and 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 29. The history of the monumental and often copied column erected to memorialize the Roman victory over the Dacians in A.D. 113 is the center of the 50-minute "Trajan's Column." "Maya Lin" examines the life and work of the Asian-American sculptor and creator of the Vietnam War Memorial.

MIRAMAX FILMS

A sampling of what's playing at alternative movie theaters across metro Detroit as reviewed by John Monaghan

■ DETROIT FILM THEATRE
Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward Ave., Detroit. Call (313) 833-2323 for information. ($5; $4 students)

"Antonia's Line" (Netherlands - 1995). 7, 9:30 p.m. Feb. 23-24; 4, 7 p.m. Feb. 25. A 90-year-old woman, thinking this day will be her last, reflects on her life and time spent with the three generations that will carry on her legacy.

"Talk" (Australia - 1995). 7 p.m. Feb. 26. 7 p.m. Feb. 26. Stephanie and Julia, friends and comic book collaborators, spend a day in Sydney examining their love lives, sex lives, and work lives until a strange chain of events alters their lives forever.

MAIN ART THEATRE, 118 N. Main Street at 11 Mile, Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call 810- 542-0180 for information and showtimes. ($6.50; $4 students and matinee; $3 twilight)

"Sense and Sensibility" (Britain - 1995). In a superior film adaptation of the Jane Austen novel, tragedy changes a family's circumstances and alters the romantic aspirations of its daughters. Emma Thompson, Alan Rickman, and Hugh Grant star in a script written by Thompson and directed by Ang Lee ("The Wedding Banquet").

"Dead Man Walking" (USA - 1996). Sean Penn makes a welcome return in front of the camera as a condemned man who forms a controversial friendship with a Catholic nun (Susan Sarandon). A decidedly offbeat drama directed by Tim Robbins.

"Restoration" (Britain - 1995). In this long-promised period piece, Robert Downey, Jr. plays a notorious womanizer in the court of Charles II who may have been stung by true love. Sam Neill, Meg Ryan, and Sir Ian McKellan co-star.

■ MAPLE THEATRE
4135 W. Maple, Bloomfield. All titles play through at least next Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 855-9090 for information. ($6; $2.95 twilight)

"Mr. Holland's Opus" (USA - 1996). Richard Dreyfuss plays a high school music teacher who dreams of composing a symphony that will change the world.

"Leaving Las Vegas" (USA - 1995). In this uncompromisingly depressing drama, Nicolas Cage plays a hopeless alcoholic who finds true love too late in a Las Vegas prostitute (Elizabeth Shue). Tough going, but the kind of movie that haunts you long after seeing it.

"Georgia" (USA - 1995). Jennifer Jason-Leigh and Mare Winningham play sisters, respectively a struggling rocker and serene folk-rock superstar. Their tense relationship isn't helped by the one's popularity, the other's tendency for self- destruction.

■ MICHIGAN THEATRE
603 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor. Call (313) 668-8397 for information. ($6; $5 students/seniors)

"Wild Reeds" (France - 1995). 3:15 p.m. Feb. 25; 9:20 p.m. Feb. 26 - 27. Love and politics collide in this coming-of-age story from France. Set in 1962, shortly after the Algerian War, it centers around the relationships of teenagers, two of whom come together despite their opposing beliefs.

"Georgia" (USA - 1995). Feb. 26 - 28. See Maple Theatre listing above.

■ OSCAR MICHEAUX CINEMA
The Billiard Gallery, 417 E. Adams, Detroit. Call (313) 963-7665 for information. ($10)

"Films from the African Diaspora." Feb. 24 - 26 (call for showtimes). Among the titles: "Extra Change," a realistic portrayal of African-American youth; "Selbe, One Among Many," a Senegalese film about daily life in West Africa; "Saar," from Canada, about six women of diverse ancestry who gather for a night on the town; along with "Perfect Image?," "Nice Colored Girls," and the controversial "Warrior Marks."

■ STAR JOHN R
John R at 14 Mile, Madison Heights. Call (810) 585-2070 for information. ($6; $3.50 matinees/twilight)

"Richard III" (Britain - 1995). Sir Ian McKellen stars in this ambitious but uneven attempt at updating Shakespeare to the 1930s. Though the hunchbacked king seems at home in the era of Mussolini and Hitler, director Richard Loncraine doesn't know whether he wants the movie to be classical or over-the-top.

■ STATE THEATRE
2115 Woodward, Detroit. Call (313) 961-5450 for information. ($1)

"Hackers" (USA - 1995). 9 p.m. Feb. 26. A pair of misfit teenagers discover danger and love when they hack their way into the files of a major corporation, uncovering a money-shuffling scam.

■ REDFORD THEATRE
17360 Lahser, Detroit. Call (313) 537-2560 for information. ($2.50)

"The Sound of Music" (USA - 1965). 8 p.m. Feb. 23; 2, 8 p.m. Feb. 24 (organ overture begins a half hour before showtime). Local bands honor slain musician

CHRISTINA FUOCO

When Steve Krass of Feisty Cadavers died from a gunshot wound sustained during a robbery attempt in Detroit, it sent the Detroit local community into a tailspin. Now that some of the emotions are settling, a group of local bands will pay tribute to Krass during a nearly 10-hour concert beginning at 3 p.m. Saturday, Feb. 24, at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. Tickets are $10 for the all-ages show.

Among those schedule to perform are surviving members of Feisty Cadavers with guest vocalists, Hoarse, Trash Brats, Big Block, and Speed Machine, featuring members of Speedball and The Suicide Machines.

Krass, a Redford resident, was walking to his car after attending a Motorhead/Speedball concert in early January at Harpo's in Detroit. He and two friends were approached by the gunmen who wanted the car. Krass was shot as he tried to drive away and he died a few days later.

For more information about the show, call St. Andrew's at (313) 961-MELT.

■ Bush will begin working on its next album in early summer with a fall or winter release date, Bush bassist Dave Parsons said during a recent interview. After the tremendous success of Bush's debut album "Sixteen Stone," Parsons isn't worried that the band will suffer from the sophomore jinx with the new record, which will be produced by famed alternative rock producer Steve Albini.

"You can't be worried about things like that. You have to trust your instincts and trust your songs," he said.

The English quartet also doesn't worry about rumors that are spread about its members.

"The secret is, you don't read them. There are pieces of things that I hear quite often, like little bitchy comments about us. I think part of that is due to the fact that our success has come so quickly. No one expects to have a career like we've had."

The band plays The Palace of Auburn Hills on Wednesday, Feb. 28, with No Doubt and the Goo Goo Dolls. Tickets are still available. For more information, call (810) 377-0100 or (810) 645-6666.

■ Singer/Songwriter Matt Smith, His Name is Alive's Warren DeFever and Third Gear Records owner Joe Greenwald have collaborated to create "Detroit Electric," a compilation of underground music from Detroit. The Demolition Doll Rods, Outrageous Cherry, Medusa Cyclone, Rocket 455, Gravitar, Godzuki, and Princess Dragon-mom are among the acts that appear on the CD, available at most independent record stores. The CD release party will be held at 9 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 29, at Alvin's, 5756 Cass Ave., Detroit, and will feature performances by some of the groups on the record. For more information, call (313) 832-2355.

If you have a question or comment for Christina Fuoco, you can write to her at the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150, or via e-mail at CFuoco@aol.com. You can also leave her a message by calling, with a Touch-Tone phone, (313) 953-2047, mailbox No. 2130.

■ REVIEW

BY BOB WEIBEL
SPECIAL WRITER

The Plymouth Theatre Guild has a unique problem for community theaters. Too many talented performers. Director, James Morisi's solution for "Oklahoma!" is to double cast some of the leading roles. This may have complicated rehearsals, but the show doesn't appear to suffer.

PTG's "Oklahoma!" is a most entertaining production. The 1943 Rogers and Hammerstein fanciful musical about the love affair between a cowboy and country girl set the standard for modern musical theater as it successfully integrated dialogue, song and dance numbers.

Jason Corney (as Curley) and Kamryn Wolf (as Laurey) give splendid performances as the high-spirited cowboy and the headstrong farm girl. Neither will admit the obvious, they are meant for each other. And so each pursues the other in roundabout ways. Both are in fine voice for such memorable tunes as "Oh, What A Beautiful Morning," "Surrey With The Fringe On Top," and "People Will Say We're In Love."

William McCully is very good as Jud Fry, Curley's rival for Laurey. Not only does he sing well, ("Lonely Room") but McCully's sinister suitor contrasts nicely with Curley's upbeat attitude. Wendy Sielaff, as Aunt Eller Murphy, is graceful and skillful in her role as the calming influence over the affairs of the heart and soul.

Dawn Marie Turner (as Ado Annie) and Matthew Manuel (as Will Parker) are excellent as the second leads. Turner sparkles as the flirty Ado Annie. And her "I'm Just A Girl Who Can't Say No"is a show stopper.

Manual is rollicking good fun as a comic bumpkin. He does a nice job with "Everything Is Up To Date In Kansas City" and in his pursuit of Ado Annie. Trouble is she has eyes for a traveling peddler (Ali Hakim), played with great dexterity by Phillip Lukasik. There is one complication, however, The peddler isn't interested in marriage. Unless, of course, the father (played by Ed Cox) shows up with the moonlight shining on the barrel of a shotgun.

Well, around and around they go in one great song and dance after another. The second act opener, "Farmer and the Cowman" is especially good and the show's closing number "Oklahoma!" never fails to please. Eventually, of course, they all get paired off at a box social. Ali Hakim ends up with one Gertie Cummings (played by Jennifer Rembisz) who's bizarre comic laugh can only be described as something between a siren and a screech owl.

PTG put their unique revolving stage to good use, Mary Lynn Kuna's costumes are marvelous, Cindy Cooper's choreography is spirited and musical director/conductor Margaret Wunschl's orchestra never overpowers the performers. And kudos to producers Genevieve Terry and Al LaCroix for putting all the pieces together.

For alternate performances, Michelle Rae will appear as Laurey, Debbie Pletzer as Ado Annie, Judy Ryckman as Aunt Eller, and Peter Hathaway as Jud Fry.

The California band School of Fish was one of those groups that couldn't help but write a great pop song. Acts like Paul Westerberg, the Divinyls, Crowded House and Lloyd Cole recognized the band's talent on its self-titled debut and its follow-up "Human Cannonball" and invited the quartet along on tour.

From 1989-1993, lead singer/songwriter Josh Clayton-Felt rode high on his band's success that included the songs "Three Strange Days" and "Take Me Anywhere." But something didn't feel right to Clayton-Felt. Songwriting with fellow guitarist Michael Ward became more and more isolated and Clayton-Felt believed more and more like he was compromising his musical tastes.

"It's basically, being in a band sometimes you kind of have to write for the idea of what the band is. When Michael and I formed School of Fish, we were discovering what that sound was going to be. As time went on, the two of us started going in different directions," Clayton-Felt said during a recent phone interview.

"The first album, we wrote together in the same room. For the second, we'd just pass cassettes back and forth. For the third, I couldn't imagine what that would have been like. It got to the point where it made more sense to try to do something else. You have to follow your muse and if it's taking you in the direction (opposite) of the band, that's what you're gonna do the best."

He listened to his muse and created "Inarticulate Nature Boy," his debut solo album due out on A&M Records on March 19.

Except where hook-laden songs are concerned, "Inarticulate Nature Boy" is an about face from School of Fish.

PLYMOUTH SPORTS SCENE

Swim qualifiers

At least one obstacle is cleared for several Plymouth Salem swimmers, before the Western Lakes Activities Association championship meet.

Three individuals and two relays bettered the state qualifying cuts for the Rocks at the Michigan Interscholastic Swim Coaches Association meet, held Feb. 10 at Eastern Michigan University.

No team scores were kept. The sole purpose of the meet was to allow individuals to attempt to qualify for the Class A and Class B state finals.

The Rocks, ranked fourth in Class A, had no state qualifiers prior to the MISCA meet.

Both Salem freestyle relays, the 200-yard and 400-yard, bettered the state cut, and the Rocks' 200 medley team missed by just .04 of a second.

Qualifying in individual events for Salem were Kyle Petroskey in the 500 freestyle (4:57.57 — state cut is 4:58.29), and in the 50 free, both John McLenaghan (22.56) and Nick Corden (22.67 — state cut is 22.69).

Salem's 200 free relay qualifying team was Corden, Tim Buchanan, Pat Morgan and McLenaghan. The 400 free relay qualifiers were Petroskey, Buchanan, Corden and Mark Dettling.

Salem coach Chuck Olsen figures McLenaghan, Petroskey, Dettling and Morgan will better the state cut in the 200 medley relay at this week's WLAA meet. And several other Rocks will, too.

State tourney-bound

After 11 days and five games, the Stingrays — members of the Plymouth-Canton Hockey Association — found themselves in a sudden-death struggle with the Lakeland Chiefs, with a berth in the state finals at stake.

Tied at 2-2, the game finally came to a close in the second overtime when Chris Ryan and Ryan McKendry teamed up for the Stingrays' game-winner, scored by Ryan. The 3-2 victory gave the Stingrays the Michigan Amateur Hockey Association's District 4 title and assured them of a berth in the state final, March 8 in Ann Arbor.

Madonna guard honored

Madonna University sophomore guard Jeff Kennedy was named the player of the week for the NAIA's Great Lakes Section last week after averaging 30 points and nine rebounds in two games.

Kennedy scored 25 in the Crusaders' 98-78 victory over Concordia College Feb. 15, then came back the next night against Michigan Christian to pour in 35 more. Madonna lost that game, 100-94, to conclude their regular season with an 8-21 record.

Football tryouts

The Motor City Cougars semi-pro football team is looking for both players and coaches for the upcoming season.

Open tryouts for players will be at 1 p.m. March 2 at the Inkster Recreation Complex.

Anyone wishing further details should contact Mr. Tarrance at (313) 534-4478.

Sports auction

New Morning School in Plymouth Township will stage its 20th annual auction Saturday, March 23, at Laurel Manor in Livonia. The $50 ticket price includes hors d'oeuvres, dinner, open bar, silent and live auction bidding, as well as a late-night snack.

Among the items up for bid include an Olympic package for three sporting events in Atlanta (swimming, volleyball, field hockey); practice and meeting with Detroit Red Wing All-Star Sergei Federov (with autographed jersey); golf for two with Vladimir Konstantinov; golf for two and one night stay at Sugar Loaf Resort.

For more information, call Leslie Stolaruk at (313) 420-1214.

Softball meetings

Informational meetings for Canton Parks and Recreation's men's, women's and coed softball leagues will be Saturday at the Summit on the Park community center, 46000 Summit Parkway.

The men's league meeting will be at 10 a.m., with the coed league meeting at 10:30 a.m. and the women's league meeting at 11 a.m. For further information, call Canton Parks and Recreation Services at (313) 397-5110.

Purtan sports auctioneer

Dick Purtan of Q95 radio will serve as host for a celebrity auction to benefit The Institute for Preventative Sports Medicine in Ann Arbor 7-10 p.m. Friday, March 29, at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Dearborn.

The $10 admission at the door entitles participants to a raffle ticket for two round-trip airfares anywhere in the continental U.S. on Delta Airlines.

Anyone interested in submitting items to Sports Scene may send them to sports editor C.J. Risak, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, Mich. 48150, or may send them via fax to (313) 591-7279.

Salem picks Rockers' star as new coach

By C.J. Risak
Staff Writer

■ SOCCER

There's little doubt the person replacing the retired Ken Johnson as Plymouth Salem's girls soccer coach has an extensive knowledge of the sport.

Doug Landefeld, a longtime member of the Detroit Rockers, has more than playing experience, however. And it was that something else that convinced Salem administrative officials that he was their man.

"It was a combination of his experience, teaching abilities and how we believe he'll relate to the players and parents," were the reasons Landefeld was hired, according to Athletic Director Brian Wolcott.

"It was a win-win situation," Wolcott added, referring to the two other finalists for the job whom the selection committee considered. "There was not a huge gap between them, but you make a decision and move on."

Certainly Landefeld's reputation with the Rockers played a role in the decision. But his coaching capabilities were of more significance.

Landefeld has coached Ann Arbor Huron's girls team the past two seasons. Prior to that, he coached Albion College's men's team for five years and Mason High School's girls team for four years. Although Landefeld could be considered for the Salem boys job (Johnson filled both positions), Wolcott said it would be posted separately in April.

Landefeld is also director of coaching for the Hawks and Wolves soccer clubs.

But prior playing and coaching experience isn't the entire package Landefeld brings to the position, according to Wolcott. There's more. Landefeld is not a coach cemented to a particular style. Asked how he would approach the Salem job — one of the premier high school coaching positions in the state — Landefeld was noncommittal.

"We just started conditioning today, so I won't know that for a while," he replied. His decision on what style the team plays won't come "until I see where everyone is, see how it all fits together.

"Soccer in general is adjusting to so many different styles. You try to play to your strengths and hide your weaknesses."

Which means Landefeld will focus on the best style of play for his players and their abilities, rather than force them to play to a predetermined style.

At Salem, strengths are many and weaknesses few. The Rocks reached the Class A state finals last spring, losing to Birmingham Seaholm in the championship match. All starters but Kelly Lukasik and Sue Parrish return.

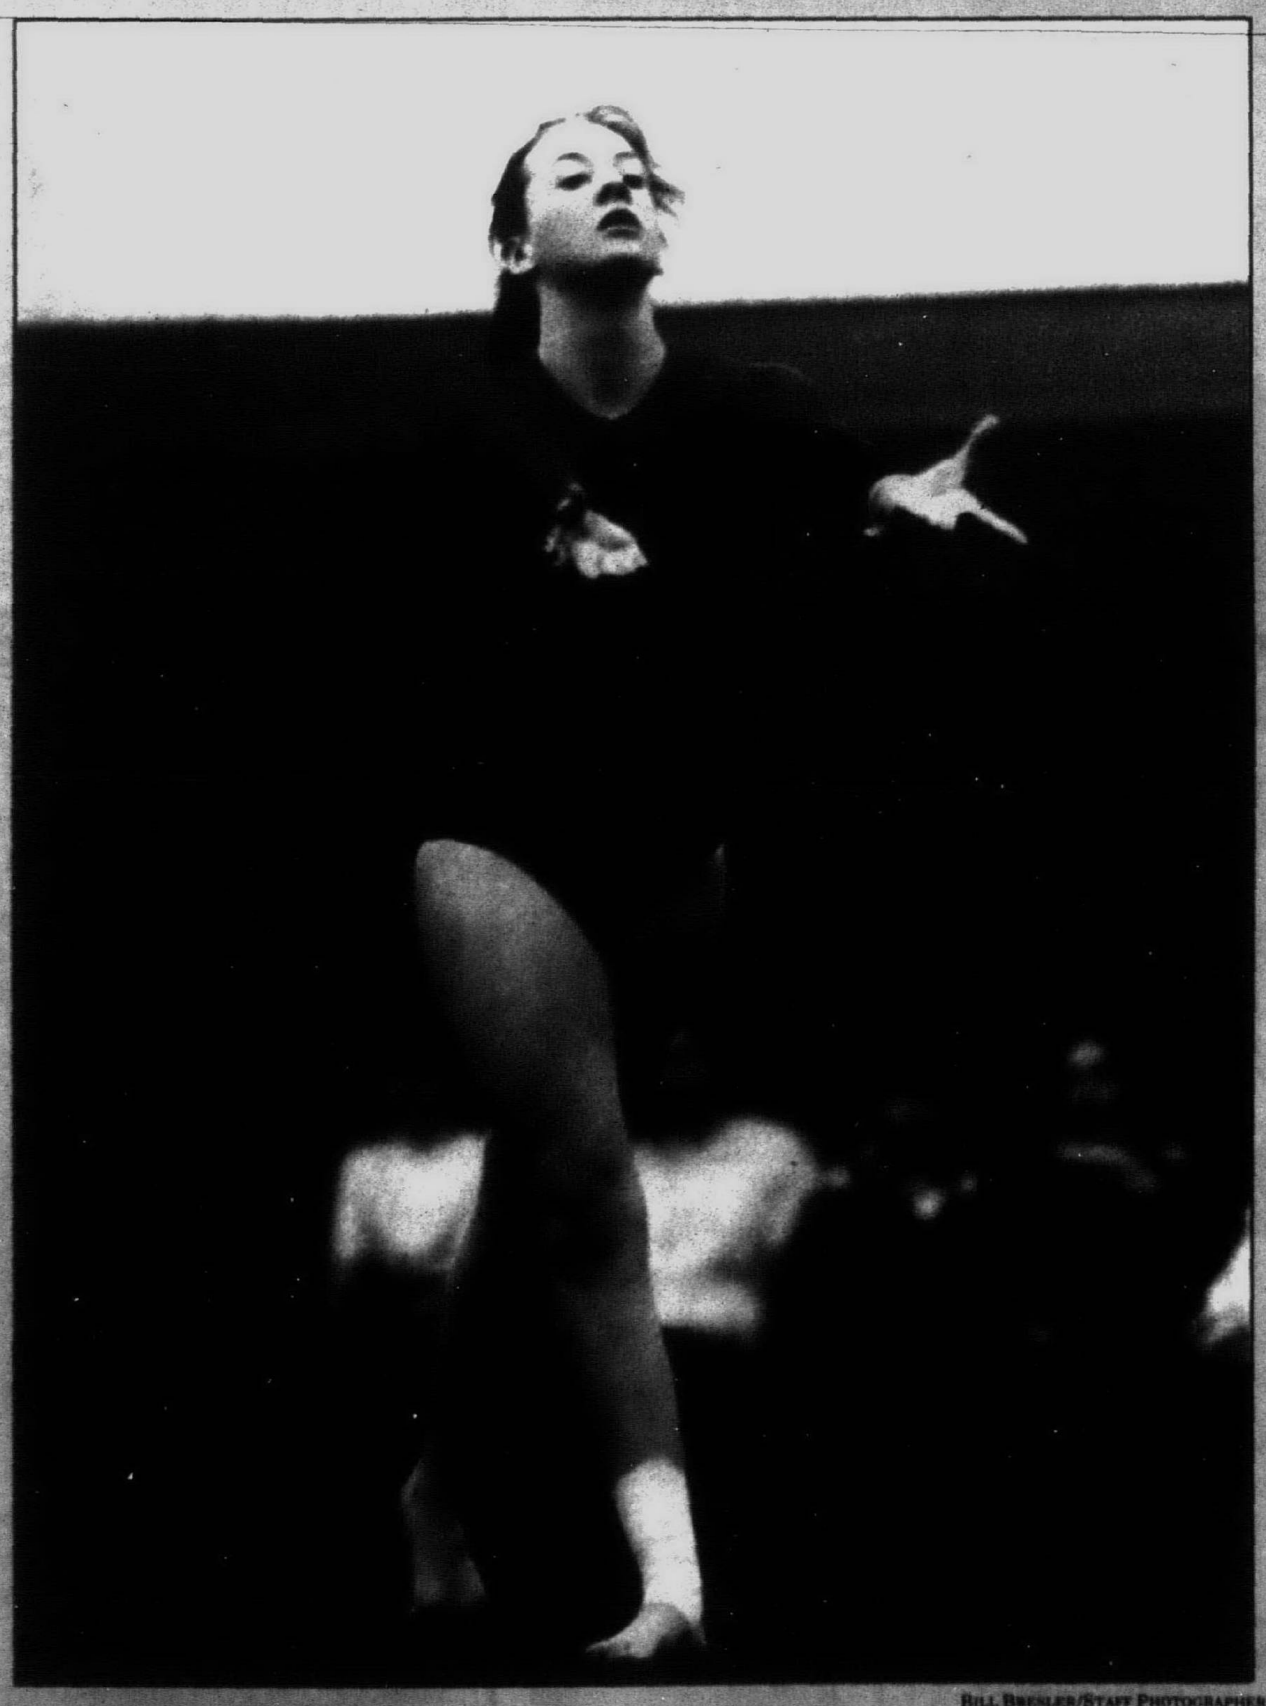
Which is what made the job so attractive. Wolcott estimated he received a dozen applications, a number kept low due to the quality of the applicants.

Landefeld was the best of the best, in a manner of speaking. "In particular, his knowledge of the game is top-notch," said Wolcott. "And the way he relates with students and people. He's going to be here a lot; he wants to work at all levels. He's really into skill development."

Landefeld will have a lot of skilled players to develop, that much is certain.

Chiefs outdistance Rocks

■ What Tuesday's meet between Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem proved was that, going into the Western Lakes Activities Association Tournament and the state playoffs, these two teams seemed headed in opposite directions.



Bill Bresler/Staff Photographer

Solid score: Canton's Brie Wall posted the third-best all-around total, tying Salem's Kristin Kosik for second in the floor exercise, in Tuesday's dual meet.

At the start of the gymnastics season, this end-of-the-season clash between city rivals loomed as a tightly-contested match that could make a psychological difference in the tournaments ahead.

On Tuesday, it was anything but.

For Canton, it was simply another day at the office. The Chiefs rolled up another 140-plus score to outdistance Salem, 140.15-132.35, at Canton.

Leading the Chiefs was Katey Gilles, with three individual firsts and a second. The firsts came in the vault (9.05), the uneven parallel bars (9.45) and the floor exercise (9.5); her second was in balance beam (8.9). Gilles' 36.9 all-around total was also a meet-high.

Kristin Kosik was Salem's best. Kosik won the beam (9.0), was second in the vault (9.0) and bars (8.7), and tied for second in the floor (9.3). Her 36.00 all-around was second.

The Chiefs also got a strong showing from Brie Wall, who tied Kosik for second in the floor (9.3) and was third in the vault (8.85), bars (8.65), beam (8.65) and all-around (35.45).

Other contributors: Canton's Kim Nowak, third in the bars (8.55), fourth in the floor (9.05), fifth in the beam (8.1), tied for sixth in the vault (8.45) and fourth in the all-around (34.15); Salem's Zoe Yockey, fourth in the bars (8.5) and fifth in the vault (8.65), floor (8.8) and all-around (33.65); and Canton's Brooke Larson, fourth in the vault (8.75), fifth in the bars (7.95) and sixth in the floor (8.7) and all-around (33.15).

The Chiefs conclude their dual-meet season with an 11-1 overall record, 6-1 in WLAA. The Rocks finish at 6-3 overall, 4-3 in the WLAA, with losses in their last two duals.

Last Saturday, Canton traveled to Traverse City to face the fifth-ranked Trojans. The Chiefs won a close one, 139.6-139.25. Gilles won the vault (9.1) and was second in the all-around (36.4).

■ WRESTLING

"What goes around, comes around" might best describe the latest tournament results for wrestlers Doug Cooper and Jeremy Breithaupt.

The two were crowned champions Saturday in the Division I individual district at Walled Lake Western by reversing past misfortunes.

Plymouth Canton's Cooper captured the heavyweight title by avenging a loss to Bob Fowler of Livonia Churchill.

Cooper, who lost an 11-7 decision to Fowler a week earlier in the Western Lakes Activities Association finals, pinned Fowler at 3:50 of the district championship bout.

"Basically, I've worked five years to become what I am now," Cooper said. "In the past month, I've been driving to be a champion, to go to regional and state.

"This is my senior year and pretty much my last chance. I have to do it now."

Cooper studied film of three previous bouts with Fowler and was able to use what he learned in the district rematch.

"My dad tapes all the matches," he said. "I watched the matches over and over again to see how he wrestles. I had people use his moves against me in practice, and the coaches told me how to counter them."

Cooper is 2-2 this season in matches with Fowler, and the two could meet again Saturday in the regional tournament at South Lyon. Cooper will be top seed this time and Fowler No. 2, the reverse of their district seeds.

Plymouth Salem's Breithaupt claimed the 152-pound district title by default when No. 1-seeded Mike Scappaticci of Northville withdrew because of illness.

Breithaupt said it was "poetic justice," the circumstances resulting in his first-place finish.

"I caught a bad break here last year," he said, recalling how he was disqualified when an official mistook a hard takedown for a slam. "That kept me out of the regional. It's nice to catch a break for once."

Breithaupt had lost a 9-3 decision to Scappaticci in the WLAA finals but was not reluctant to accept the district title.

"It would have been nice to be a district champion with a win in the finals," he said, "but I'm not going to look a gift horse in the mouth. I worked hard all year and feel I earned it."

Salem hunting for another WLAA championship

■ SWIMMING

The key word for Plymouth Salem's swim team this week is "repeat."

The key repeat, of course, is the Western Lakes Activities Association swim championship. The Rocks have owned the title, winning the past three, and they go into this week's meet as heavy favorites.

Salem will again serve as host to the final. Swimming preliminaries begin at 1 p.m. today, with diving prelims starting at 2:30 p.m. Friday. The finals get under way at noon Saturday.

To accomplish their goal, the Rocks need only "repeat" their performance of Feb. 10 at the Michigan Interscholastic Swim Coaches Association meet.

Salem swimmers bettered state qualifying standards five times in that meet, including both freestyle relays, and Salem's 200-yard medley relay barely missed.

"We didn't have too many bad swims that day," said Salem coach Chuck Olson.

Unfortunately for the Rocks, the MISCA meet had no bearing on the WLAA finals. MISCA serves simply as a chance for swimmers to reach state cuts. But a team that is unbeaten in dual meets over the past two seasons and is currently ranked fourth in Class A should manage to put together a strong enough performance to regain its title.

Olson won't dispute Salem's role as favorite, although he sees several challengers. "The biggest come from North Farmington and Livonia Stevenson," Olson said. "And Plymouth Canton did win the (WLAA) Relays meet. I'm not discounting those guys."

With so much success in its history, Olson realizes the best his team can do is equal past performances at league meets. The only other directional option is down — and submerging is not part of his plan.

Which is why the Rocks must guard against overconfidence. "Our problem is, if we're not ready to swim at the conference meet, we're not going to win it," he said.

The Rocks' depth is a major attribute. Olson figures his team should have at least one top-six finisher in every event, except perhaps the 100 breaststroke.

John McLenaghan (50 free, 100 backstroke), Tim Buchanan (all free events, 100 butterfly), Mark Dettling (100 fly, 200 and 500 free), Kyle Petroskey (all free events, 200 individual medley, 100 breast), Brent Mellis (200 IM, 100 back, 500 free), Otto Geiseman (diving), and Nick Corden and Pat Morgan (both sprint free) rank as Salem's leaders.

North is led by Jason Speer in the 50 and 100 free, Phil Zald in the 100 breast, Dan Gabriel in the 100 back and Patrick Duthie in the 100 fly. Stevenson has Keith Falk in the 200 individual medley and 500 free, Steve Domin in the 100 fly and all free events, Brian Butrico in the 100 back and Ted Burmeister in the 100 breast and 200 IM.

Canton should make its mark as well. Freshman Alex Rottgers could score well in the 200 IM and 100 breast; also look for Jason McMann in the free events and 100 fly, and Rob Brooks in diving.

Perfect ending

Rocks' WLAA win streak reaches 34

■ VOLLEYBALL

Plymouth Salem accentuated its volleyball season by leaving no doubt it was, indeed, the power of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

The Rocks finished their regular season with overpowering performances against Westland John Glenn Monday and at the Grand Rapids Creston Tournament Saturday. They won both, running their overall record to 38-6-2 as they prepare to defend their Western Lakes Activities Association Tournament title Saturday at Walled Lake Central.

The win over Glenn Monday — by scores of 15-0, 15-6, 15-1 — made it 34-straight WLAA regular-season victories for Salem. The 11-0 mark posted this season makes the Rocks 42-2 in WLAA matches over the last four years.

It also makes them the favorites to win the WLAA Tournament Saturday. Walled Lake Central, Livonia Stevenson, Livonia Churchill and Plymouth Canton are potential challengers.

But, as co-coach Allie Suffety noted, "This team's getting better. Our expectations are higher now than they were at the beginning of the season. I think we're peaking at the right time."

Doesn't sound too promising for the rest of the league. Against Glenn, Shellye Sills had nine kills in what was essentially a service fest for Salem. Sills also had five service aces and served nine points in the second game.

Karissa Socia added five kills, and Jennie Storm collected four digs and five aces, serving 13 straight points in game three. Kim Sheldon had four aces while serving 14 consecutive points in game one.

Agape total is a record

■ BASKETBALL

Plymouth Agape Christian Academy made its last game in its current home basketball facility a memorable one.

The Wolverines rolled up 135 points while holding Cornerstone Christian to just 80 Monday night to set a school record.

Senior guard Paul Salah scored 36 points and gathered in 17 rebounds, forward Cory Mullen added 28 points, and center Josh Thompson contributed 20 points and 10 rebounds.

And lest he be accused of running up the score, Agape coach Keith Anleitner pointed out he didn't play his starters the whole first half and pulled them early in the third period — although he did put them in for the final two minutes.

"It was their last home game and their last game in that facility," Anleitner explained. Still, Agape ran to quarters of 38, 34, 36 and 27 points as the Wolverines improved to 15-2 overall and 8-0 in their league. Cornerstone Christian is now 3-7 overall, 2-6 in the league.

Junior guard Matt Major had nine assists for Agape while Cornerstone received 22 points from junior center Will Doederline.

■ PCA 67, Southfield Christian 65: The last two of Jim Neil's 16 points, a pair of free throws with 39 seconds left, put Plymouth Christian Academy on top for good Tuesday at Southfield Christian.

Forward Mike Roose hit a season high 19 points, junior guard Chris DeRenzo scored 11 and Jeremy Hsia added 10 to lift PCA (10-8) to 3-5 in its league. Southfield Christian (5-11) is now 2-6 in the league.

Matt Ford scored 18 points for the losing host team, which made 12 of 18 free throws. PCA shot 21 free throws, making 15.

Mark Hovemale got two blocks in a row for PCA in the fourth quarter to spark his team to the win. PCA had a 21-13 margin in the fourth period.

CC, Rice battle to a 2-2 tie

■ HOCKEY

Detroit Catholic Central and Birmingham Brother Rice battled to another 2-2 draw Saturday in a Michigan Metro High School Hockey League game played at Oak Park's Compuware Arena.

The two teams also tied 2-2 on Jan. 6 at Redford Ice Arena.

With two regular season games left this week, CC is 11-4-3 overall.

Rice is 12-5-4.

It was 1-1 after one period.

Andrew Powrie opened the scoring for Rice on assists from Tom Oldham and Ryan McKindles.

Rice led 2-1 entering the final period on a goal from Andrew Cougrough from Oldham and Dominic Riggio.

Rice goalie Casey Osting made 22 saves, while CC's Rick Marnon had 21 stops.

The two teams could meet again, this time in the regional Wednesday, Feb. 28, at Redford.

Madonna wins its finale, will host playoff opener

■ BASKETBALL

Madonna University's Lady Crusaders tuned up for the NAIA basketball playoffs with a 63-53 victory Tuesday night over host Aquinas College.

Stacy Lamphere scored 18 points, Katie Cushman 14 and Francine Williams 11 as the Crusaders (18-12) finished second in the NAIA Great Lakes Sectional.

Madonna will host Wilberforce College of Ohio at 7 p.m. Thursday night in the first round of the eight-team playoffs.

Aquinas (16-10), which trailed 38-29 at halftime, got 19 points from Nikki Tuttle, but none of her teammates reached double figures.

Williams got nine rebounds to tie Tuttle for the game's high, while Lamphere got seven. Cushman had three assists, Williams, Mary Murray and Lamphere two apiece.

The Lady Crusaders shot 46 percent while holding their opponents to just 27 percent.

■ Mott CC 71, SC 68: In a tightly-contested game from start to finish, Schoolcraft College lost any chance of winning the MCCAA's Eastern Conference regular-season title by losing Saturday at Mott CC.

The defeat dropped the Lady Ocelots to 6-5 in the conference (16-9 overall) going into last night's game at Oakland CC. It was their third loss in their last four conference games.

The game was never out of reach for SC. The Bears were up at the half, but only by five (31-26).

The Ocelots were led by Sheilah Coulter's 17 points. Yvonne Malewski (from Redford Thurston) and Becky Bilicki (Livonia Ladywood) scored 11 apiece, and Julie Schmidt had nine with a team-best seven rebounds.

For Mott, Carey Garman netted 17, Amie Culver scored 16, Kristen Miller totaled 15 and Kathy Fain finished with 11.

Ocelots blasted by Mott

■ MEN'S HOOPS

Outgunned, outmanned from the start.

That's how Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team reacted Saturday at Mott CC, the No. 3-ranked team in the NJCAA. The Ocelots fell behind by 20 at the half and never got closer, losing 117-75.

The defeat left SC with a 3-10 record in the MCCAA's Eastern Conference, 8-17 overall. Mott improved to 22-2 overall and a perfect 13-0 in the conference.

Doug Walters paced the Ocelots with 17 points. Jason Maschke (from Livonia Franklin) had 13, Dave Pavlak scored 10, and Tim Burns got nine with a team-high six rebounds.

The Bears got 26 points (21 in the second half) and 14 rebounds from Maurice McCree, 20 points from Conya Robinson (16 in the second half), 17 from DeWayn Allen, 16 from Jamon Johnson and 13 from E.J. Haralson.

Mott opened up a 50-30 lead by halftime, thanks in great part to the scoring of Allen (15 points), Haralson (13) and Johnson (10). It only got worse for SC in Mott's 67-point second half.

The benefit is that Breithaupt also enters the regional tournament as a No. 1 seed and won't face Scappaticci until the finals.

"I'll definitely go to state," Breithaupt said. "I'm looking to place in the state."

Salem also qualified three others for the regional and Canton one. Salem's Eric Coburn (119) and Dave Popeney (145) were third in the district and Teono Wilson (171) fourth. Canton's Tom Keeling (145) was second.

Salem senior Clayton Walker, the WLAA champ at 215, was seeded third and drew a first-round bye at 189 in the regional. But he lost his first bout to West Bloomfield's Josh Hirsch 9-6 and was eliminated.

"(Hirsch) put me on my back in the first period, and that was five points from the beginning," Walker said. "It was an even match for the last two periods. But he had those first five points, and I couldn't get enough points to beat him.

"It's rough, thinking I'm done now. It was real hard after the match, but all in all I didn't do too bad this year."

Fishermen: A right answer can win you a prize

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

The ice is melting. The snow is gone (at least for now). Fair-weather anglers are starting to think warm thoughts. Now is the time to tune-up your equipment for the summer fishing season and there's no better place to begin that at the 8th Annual Greater Detroit Sportfishing Expo, Feb. 29-March 3, at the Palace of Auburn Hills.

Four lucky readers will win a new Plano model 6508 tackle box and four tickets each to the Sportfishing Expo by correctly answering our trivia question. A fifth reader will win four tickets to the Sportfishing Expo.

Here's how the contest works: Send in the correct answer to our trivia question on a post card or slip of paper and be sure to include your name, address and home phone number so we can notify you if you win. All entries must be received at our Birmingham office by 5 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 28, so don't delay in mailing your entry. Mail your entry to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. If there are more than five correct answers to the trivia question a random drawing will be held Wednesday night. The winners will be notified by 8 p.m. Wednesday. No purchase is necessary and copies of the question are available at the Eccentric office, 805 E. Maple in Birmingham, and the Observer office, 36251 Schoolcraft in Livonia.

A pure fishing show

The Sportfishing Expo is Michigan's biggest pure fishing show and features over 50 non-stop seminars by some of the nation's leading fishing authorities including Babe Winkelman, Tom Huggler, Steve Pennaz, Eric Sharp, Spence Petros, Rich Tauber and Bud Riser. Major retailers including Dunham's, Kelly's Outfitters, Lakeside Fishing Shop, Fishin' Hole, Best Chance and D&R Sports will be on hand with displays and equipment for sale. The show also features guides, outfitters and charter captains from throughout North America, a kids trout pond, direct factory exhibits and much more.

Tickets are priced at $6.95 for adults, $3.50 for children age 6-12 and children under six will be admitted free. Discount tickets at $1.25 off the regular price are available at Dunham's stores.

Show hours are 4-9:30 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 29; 2-9:30 p.m. Friday, March 1; 10 a.m.-9:30 p.m. Saturday, March 2; and 10 a.m.-6:30 p.m. Sunday, March 3.

Now for the question: What river is considered the drain plug for Lake St. Clair and is world-renown for its smallmouth bass and walleye fisheries? Here's a clue: This river is 32-miles long and at least 65 species of resident or migratory fish commonly use the river and 39 known species spawn there.

Get your entries in now. You don't have much time. Remember all entries must be received at our Birmingham office by 5 p.m. Wednesday, Feb. 28.

Salmon Stakes slated

The 18th running of the River Crab Salmon Stakes is scheduled for Saturday, April 27, in St. Clair. Michigan's longest-running fishing tournament annually raises funds to aid troubled children and their families statewide.

Money is raised through the sale of $10 raffle/entry tickets. The tickets not only entitle the bearer to compete in the tournament, but also enters the bearer into a raffle with a grand prize of a trip for two adults and two children to Walt Disney World. Other prizes include a weekend trip for two to Toronto, gift certificates and a charter fishing trip.

Last year the tournament raised $100,000 and it has raised over $700,000 to date.

Tickets are available at Chuck Muer Restaurants statewide and by calling the River Crab Restaurant at (800) 468-3727.

Hunters and anglers are urged to report their success. Questins and comments are also encouraged. Send information to outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

Company awarded ISO certification

A Livonia company, Harrison Piping Supply, has been awarded the highest global standard for quality — ISO 9002 certification.

"Our company has always prided itself on quality," said Jeffrey D. Harrison, president and CEO of Harrison Piping Supply Company. Harrison's father started the company in 1959. Jeffrey Harrison and his brother, Donald W. Harrison, executive vice president of corporate operations, run the company.

They started a drive last year to obtain ISO 9002 certification, which involves documenting procedures at the company.

A quality standard system created by the International Standardization Organization, ISO is based in Geneva, Switzerland, and is used to simplify the international exchange of goods and services by developing a common set of quality standards.

ISO 9002 is similar to ISO 9000, but applies to facilities with products that are designed and serviced by a subcontractor.

Certification is awarded once a company has implemented and proved through documentation and performance that it meets all technical quality system requirements.

"This puts us on a global standard for quality," Jeffrey Harrison said. "We're proud of carrying on a tradition that my father started."

The certification ensures that employees are fully trained and document the way they do things, according to Timothy Wilkins, corporate controller.

The employees have embraced the process, according to Donald Harrison. "I'm very proud of the fact we achieved this. I'm very proud of our employees," he said.

The company's corporate office and main warehouse are on Schoolcraft west of Newburgh Road in Livonia. It distributes and wholesales pipes, valves, fitting, boilers and heating products as well as industrial specialties, instrumentation and control products.

Scout plugs eagle project on Internet

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

Jeremy Nuanes, 17, of Golden, Colo., is raising money for his Eagle Scout project to build a monument in memory of federal workers who have been killed while doing their jobs.

Working with sculptor Joe Cipri, Jeremy wants to erect a monument on the grounds of the Denver Federal Center. The monument would pay tribute to members of the U.S. armed forces and other men and women who have died while performing their duties as federal workers, such as firefighters for the Bureau of Land Management or Forest Services, diplomats like the three who recently died in Bosnia, and members of the federal agencies who died in the Oklahoma bombing.

The monument's design is a globe sitting on an obelisk. Resting on the globe will be an American bald eagle and the American flag. The eagle and flag are draped over the globe as if to symbolize the protection and security America and its citizens have brought to the world. The monument will stand more than 8 feet tall and the outstretched wings of the eagle will have a span exceeding 5 feet.

The memorial and base are expected to cost about $24,000. He has organized and set up an account with the Credit Union of Denver, titled the "Eagle Project Memorial Fund" and has spent hundreds of hours promoting the project to individuals and groups. He sends a commemorative pin to anyone who donates $5 or more and will send a 22-inch replica of the memorial done by the artist to anyone donating $2,500 or more.

This is not a pitch for anyone to donate money because I cannot affirm the credibility of the project. What is interesting to this column's subject matter is that the high school student has selected the Internet as one of the major means to promote his Eagle Community Service Project.

Jeremy designed a home page about the project and has placed in on the World Wide Web at http://www.usa.net/(tilde mark)mtrevino/jnuanes.html. E-mail inquiries may be made to his mother, Sharon Nuanes, at snuanes@do.IUSBR.gov, or to the Scout himself at JNuanes504@aol.com.

■ Speaking of Scouts, the Girl Scouts of America have a home page on the Internet to promote the sale of Girl Scout cookies. Girl Scout councils nationwide are experimenting with supporting cookie sales on the World Wide Web. In fact, leaders nationwide can now download a program called Cookie Manager's Assistant by visiting http://www.cais.com/cwelch/loudoun.htm.

■ Clear With Computers Inc. has a new WWW site at http://www.cwcinc.com. CWC's home page greets users with easy-to-navigate screens of information on company background, an explanation of the sales automation industry and thorough descriptions of the company's sales system and support services. The site also features an electronic contact compatibility which allows interested viewers to send for more information. Also, prospective employees are able to create an "online resume" and send it directly to CWC's human resources department. A complete listing of job opportunities and descriptions of the company's many employment opportunities can be found online.

■ United Technologies Automotive's Website, possibly the most comprehensive available by an automotive component supplier, can be accessed at http://www.uta.com. This site offers highly graphical- or text-based information about the company, including articles by employees, news releases, downloadable photo images, information on key executives, media contacts with phone and fax numbers and e-mail addresses, job information with online job postings expected in the future. The site is expected to help provide product engineers and purchasing managers at customer companies with a broader understanding of what United Technologies offers.

■ Pharmacia and Upjohn Inc. have a Website to increase awareness about male impotence, a condition that affects an estimated 10 to 20 million men in the U.S. This site, which can be reached by pointing to http://www.impotent.com, offers facts about the incidence, causes and treatment options of impotence, an impotence quiz that will be updated regularly, and a toll-free 800 number for those wanting a free information kit, including the names of local physicians specializing in the treatment of impotence.

TAX HELP

■ FORMS BY FAX

The Michigan Department of Treasury has announced that taxpayers can now order and receive Michigan tax forms by fax. Callers must use a fax phone and may order up to six forms per call. This is an automated system that is available 24 hours per day. To obtain forms by fax, call (810) 754-0362.

Callers are provided with step-by-step instructions for using the fax system, including how to obtain a menu of the forms available by fax and how to select those forms. Callers should be aware that the transmission will begin immediately.

The fax service is available for forms only. Instructions can be ordered by calling 1-800-FORM-2-ME. The instructions will be sent within two weeks.

■ TAKE CREDIT

The Revenue Commissioner's Office of the Michigan Department of Treasury is asking taxpayers to be sure to take the Headlee Amendment Refund tax credit on their Michigan 1040 or Michigan 104OEZ income tax form. According to Department records, 7.5 percent of early filers have not taken this credit, which is available to every taxpayer.

When the Headlee Amendment Refund credit is not taken on an income tax return, the return is being "kicked out" of the system for further processing. "The return will be corrected within the department and will not require any additional information from the taxpayer," Revenue Commissioner Thomas Hoatlin said. "However, refunds to taxpayers who did not take the Headlee Amendment Refund credit will be delayed several weeks for the additional processing."

If taxpayers continue to miss claiming the credit in the same percentage as they are now missing it, more than 300,000 taxpayers could be affected by having their refund delayed to make the correction.

"We encourage taxpayers to carefully read their income tax forms and information booklets to avoid making errors that may delay their refunds," Hoatlin said. Last year, all error-free refunds were issued within three weeks.

The Headlee Amendment Refund credit is taken on Line 17a of the MI-1040 form and on Line 10 on the MI-104OEZ form.

— Oakwood Hospital and Medical Center-Dearborn has opened its new Infant Apnea Clinic.

Apnea is a pause in the respiratory pattern that lasts 15-20 seconds. Apnea can be normal in some infants, but can also lead to significant problems such as Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.

"New technology called 'smart' or 'memory' monitors enables us to utilize computer analysis of possible apnea events at home," said Dr. Thomas A. Malone, corporate director of Neonatology and director of the Apnea Clinic. "In the past, false alarms kept infants on monitors for a prolonged period of time, and led to parental anxiety. This new technology allows us to discontinue the monitor earlier and (use it) only on those who are the highest risk."

Patients are seen on Wednesday afternoons in Suite 202 of the Medical Office Building at Oakwood Hospital and Medical Center-Dearborn. For information, call (313) 593-7135.

While thousands of banks closed during the Depression, D&N never missed interest payments to customers.

Lines were long. Jobs, food and hope were in short supply. And while 3,646 banks failed during 1930 and 1931, D&N's doors remained open.

A conservative loan policy during the 1920s left D&N with strong cash reserves. An innovative withdrawal plan avoided a run on the bank. D&N survived.

As America's economic condition worsened, foreclosures averaged 1,000 a day nationally. Home prices declined 40% in 1933. Yet D&N's leadership moved forward to ease customers' fears of losing their homes. More than 20 years later, customers still remarked that if it were not for D&N, they would have lost their homes during the Depression.

For more than 100 years, D&N Bank has had a stake in helping people achieve their dreams. While many of our customers still remember us as Detroit & Northern, D&N is now a full service community bank. We provide a wide range of commercial and consumer financial services through our network of more than 40 offices throughout the state.

As we look to the future, we are reminded of our past. And of our valued employees, customers, managers and directors who are a successful part of the D&N family. Thank you for your continued confidence and trust.

D&N weathered the Depression and began building new offices in 1939.

INVITING IDEAS

Take the gingery approach to cooking

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

Traced back thousands of years, ginger has long been a favorite all over the world. This tropical rhizome usually associated with Asian cooking, has roots in ancient India as well. In the 14th century, ginger became so popular in Europe, it was comfortably placed with salt and pepper on most tables. Ginger is known for its medicinal qualities as a digestive aid.

GINGER NUT COOKIES

- 1½ cups marganne or unsalted butter
- 1¼ cups sugar
- 1¼ cups light brown sugar, firmly packed
- 2 teaspoons vanilla extract
- 3 extra large eggs
- 3½ cups all purpose flour
- 1½ teaspoons baking soda
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- 1½ cups pecans, coarsely chopped
- 1½ cups crystallized ginger, coarsely chopped

Preheat oven to 350 degrees F. In a large bowl of an electric mixer, cream the margarine or butter. On medium speed, add both the sugars and beat until fluffy. Add the vanilla and mix thoroughly. Add the eggs, one at a time, beating after the addition of each egg.

In a separate bowl sift together the flour, baking soda and salt. Add the dry ingredients to the creamy margarine and sugar mixture a little at a time, beating until well mixed.

Add the chopped pecans and crystallized ginger — mix only to incorporate all ingredients.

On a lightly greased or sprayed cookie sheet, drop the batter two inches apart and bake approximately 12 minutes or until lightly browned. Transfer the cookies to a cooling rack and cool.

Dip cooled cookies into melted bittersweet chocolate by holding and dipping only one half into the melted chocolate. Place dipped cookies onto a piece of waxed paper and let harden. Yield 90 to 100 two-inch cookies.

GARDEN SPOT

It's time to start planting garden seeds — indoors

MARTY FIGLEY

You can get a head start on the gardening season by sowing seeds indoors and now is the time to begin. The task is enjoyable and fascinating as new life comes from the seeds as they begin to sprout.

The seed package will indicate if the plant is a Half-Hardy annual (HHA) or Hardy annual (HA) — sometimes listed as "warm" or "cool season" plants. These can be started indoors four to eight weeks before planting out. Half-Hardy perennial (HHP) and Hardy perennial (HP) seeds can be started six to 10 weeks before planting out.

Almost any container at least three inches deep with drainage holes can be used to start seeds. Plastic milk jugs, egg cartons, clay flower pots, homemade pots from newspapers, or commercial peat pots or seed trays are all OK. Wash previously used containers in a 10-percent solution of bleach and water and rinse well. Moisten clay and peat pots before planting.

Medium

You can make your own growing medium or buy it ready-made. If you concoct your own medium it needs to drain freely, and be disease free and not too high in nutrients. Seeds started in a soil-based mixture that provides enough nutrients for life indoors allow the plants to stay in the same mixture until they're transplanted outdoors. A good commerical potting mixture mixed with vermiculite is fine.

If you use a soil-less nutrient-free medium, frequent feeding or transplanting to a container with potting soil (which contains nutrients) will be necessary to keep them healthy.

Before planting, moisten the medium and fill the containers to within ½-inch of the top of large pots and ¼-inch for small or shallow containers, tamping the sides and bottom so the soil is even. Sow the seeds the depth specified on the package — a rule of thumb is to

COVER STORY

Julian fashions for home

On the cover: Alexander Julian designed the Wing Tip Bed with detailed veneers and a diamond relief depicting the argyle for which he is famous.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN • SPECIAL WRITER

Fashion statement: Julian incorporates designs from his menswear into the Bow Tie Table with cherry veneers that connect with bowtie shapes in pine with pine borders. Chairs feature wingtip design in chair back and leg.

Coty Award-winning fashion designer Alexander Julian admits to having affairs with color.

His latest is with lichen, a gray-green moss he has incorporated into a new furniture line called "Alexander Julian Home Colours" available at Scott Shuptrine in Troy, Bloomfield Hills and Novi.

Recognized since 1981 for his use of color in men's fashion, he has designed the 162-piece collection of traditionally-inspired bedroom, dining, occassional and upholstery styles for Universal Furniture, a Masco company in North Carolina.

"There's a direct parallel between the fashion and furniture designs that benefits from 20 years experience of combining patterns and colors. What I'm doing is taking Old World tradition and making it more useful for the future," said Julian, whose own Connecticut home appeared on the cover of House Beautiful in November 1994.

"I want the pieces to have longevity. Something we in design have learned is that you can't dictate. That's why I've designed furniture now that's relaxed but elegant and traditional."

What sets the line apart is that Julian designs his own fabrics. With an eye for color, texture and detail, he mixes stripes with polka dots and pastel paisley in one-of-a-kind fabrics. A tweedy textile on a sofa combines lichen with the complementary colors yellow and purple. His watercolor and gouache paintings have surely played an influence here.

Julian's signature is evident throughout the collection as he infuses designs from his clothing such as argyle or diamond shapes, and bowties into wood veneers. Distressed finishes like blueberry, weathered pine and fresh cream give the wood a lived-in look.

"I'm not designing for a particular age group or price range but a taste level. It's people who want to have interesting expressions in their interiors. They want to combine fashion and intelligence in the same sentence," said Julian, the youngest designer ever to be inducted into the Coty Hall of Fame and to receive the Cutty Sark Career Achievement Award.Background

Julian, who sleeps on one of his own beds, grew up working in his father's clothing store in North Carolina. The first fashion designer to create his own fabrics, he worked with European mills to explore unusual color combinations. His textile design is part of the Cooper-Hewitt's permanent collection at the Smithsonian.

Julian has had a lot of firsts in his life, including being the first to design pro and college sports uniforms for the Charlotte Hornets NBA team and the University of North Carolina's men's and women's basketball teams. He also designed racing and crew suits for Mario and Michael Andretti, Nigel Mansell and Paul Tracy.

Alexander Julian

His fashions for celebrities include men notable in their respected fields from Bill Cosby, Harry Connick Jr. and Maury Povich to President Bill Clinton. Julian created the wardrobes for Robert Altman's film "The Player." This undertaking resulted in his newest collection, Couture Menswear, available only on a custom-made basis. A portion of the proceeds from the collection benefits various charities.

Besides men's fashions and furniture, Julian is also known for designing bed linens with Dan River, area rugs and eyewear.Comfortable and elegant

David VanElslander, vice president of merchandising for Scott Shuptrine, was familiar with Julian's men's fashion designs long before deciding to offer the furniture collection to customers. VanElslander is sold on its comfortable looking yet elegant styling.

"It's a casual living collection. We see more of the market headed in the direction of people furnishing a home where they can go and be relaxed. We're not seeing the formal dining or living room. Even the wood in the collection has a more casual finish, a matte finish. It has that lived in feel to it," VanElslander said.

"Alexander Julian is a good designer. It doesn't lack style. He uses a lot of the colors he incorporates into his clothing. Designing his own fabrics makes them unique with strong design and color palette. We went with it one, because of his name and second, the style of the furniture and the value, and because he ties it all together so well."

Retro Loveseat or Wicker Sleigh Bed, Julian says he designs with the body in mind because "without the human body there is no design." A master of color, Julian tops off contemporary floor and table lamps with shades in solid colors ranging from cranberry to slate. The beauty of the collection is that all of the pieces are interchangeable for an eclectic look.

"His fabrics are definitely the new direction in color, moss green mixed with the mauves, a very soothing color palette," said James Hostnik, interior designer for Scott Shuptrine in Troy.

"The line caters to younger couples who want a traditional look but not the formality of 18th century styles. They don't want something that's trendy. They want a look that blends across, a comfortable look. They want to be able to live with the furniture.

"They like a continuity of look not mismatched pieces. It mixes well with other styles because each one is beautifully unique. The distressed finish blends nicely with oaks but blends in with cherries."

plant the seeds at a depth equal to their diameter. Label the containers with the name of the plant and the date. No additional water should be necessary at this time.

Going for cover

Cover with a piece of glass or plastic bag — you'll need to open the bag to check on the germination process.

For seeds that don't require light, cover the container with cardboard, aluminum foil or newspaper in addition to the glass or plastic, and set them in a dark place. Those that require light should be placed in indirect light in an east or west window. If you use flourescent lights, place them three to six inches above the containers and keep them on all the time. Maintain a room temperature of 65 to 70 degrees. Bottom heat can be supplied by special heating cables and it does help some seeds to germinate.

Don't allow the growing medium to dry out — that is sure death for the seeds and seedlings! When watering is necessary, set the pots in a tray of tepid water until the soil surface is moistened. Let the container drain when the surface is damp, or water from above with a fine mist.

When you see the first signs of life, gradually remove the coverings — punch holes in the plastic, small at first, or lift the corner of the glass. This takes about a day. Gradually is the word — a too-sudden exposure to the air can cause damping off. The seedling can now be gradually put in bright light or four to five inches below lights, temperature a constant 60 degrees Fahrenheit is ideal.

Feeding

Water when the soil surface appears dry. As soon as the plant has developed three true leaves it will need to be fed. Apply a liquid fertilizer one-half the strength recommended twice a week for the first three weeks, then use full-strength about every 10 days. Feed after watering.

As soon as the first pair of true leaves has developed, thin the seedlings carefully (you can simply cut them off at soil level) or transplant them into individual pots. This process is called pricking out and is done by gently loosening a small clump of seedlings with a knife, fork or stick. Be careful that you don't damage the tiny roots. Poke a hole into the newly prepared pot and gently set the plant at the depth it originally grew.

INTERIOR MOTIVES

Fine furniture needs elegant surroundings

NAOMI STONE LEVY

Part II

Consult the prestigious magazines that have great colored illustrations. They will help you to envision the drama and "dernier cri" (last word) of very formal and elegant French interiors.

The architecture of the room must resonate the contents. It is useless to fill a home with extravagant furniture if the backgrounds are plain walls. Required is the detailing of panels, the crown mouldings, the columns, the pilasters, the height of the French doors, the fireplace surround and hearth, the candelabra wall sconces of crystal and bronze dore, and countless other details that evoke formal French.

As a designer I am obliged to design, and this is where I begin to develop a spatial and significant milieu. It is necessary to advise my client that the preliminary costs will be significant. There aren't many tradespeople out there to translate my ideas into reality, and these craftsmen are aware of their value. I am fortunate to know where these people can be located.

Floor plan

Having designed the architectural details for the required rooms, beginning with the foyer, I am ready to lay out a preliminary floor plan for the living areas.

Because this French is formal, the floor plan will have to conform. In most cases I oppose too many pairs. However, it is going to be obligatory to have more pairs than in an informal setting. A superb pair of Louis XVI consoles topped with a complimentary pair of sconces emanates the first refinement. An oil painting above the mantel is in order. Magnificently framed mirrors are also necessary to these French interiors.

Gilt in many forms prevailed in formal French. "Bronze dore" adorns much of their furniture. Other opulent adornments were "Ormolu mounts" encrusting cabinets, tables, a "bureau plat" (which we would call a flat-topped desk) and chairs.

In this aristocratic mixture master gilders and bronzemakers stamped an artist's mark. The burned off mercury vapors were deadly, so these men lived a perilous life. "Savoire vivre" means knowing how to live with this elegance. These artistic achievements were symptoms of an age sinking into decadence.

Exquisite

Surviving antiques of this era fetch a king's ransom. Much of the foregoing is in museums, but many fine reproductions can be found. They also are expensive beyond comprehension. I haven't discussed lacquered and "jappaned" cabinetry. There really aren't enough adjectives in my vocabulary to describe their beauty.

Once more, look through the prestige magazines to be apprised of their magnificence. In this day and age the finest apartments on Fifth Avenue in New York are furnished in this manner. Not all bad to be super-rich!

The above exquisite cabinetry was executed in exotic woods: maghogany and tulipwood were favorites. Marquetry (inlaid patterns) required prodigious skills of the ebenistes (cabinetmakers). The tops were inlaid to match the fronts. If irreparable damage took place over the years it was acceptable to add a marble top, because many of the pieces were marble topped in any case.

Louis ~~III, IV~~, V, VI, Regence and Napoleonic upholstered furniture is at its best in damasks, silks, satins and velvets. Cotton is too plebian. Bergere or fauteuil chairs may have wooden frames that are painted or gilded. Dining room furniture in any of the above periods can be seen in many local stores, and is much admired.

Light fantastic

Lighting fixtures are almost always crystal with bronze dore mountings. If "rock" crystal it is even more costly and dazzling. The uninformed might think these crystals have been cracked. They really are pieces of jewelry. Candleabra of the same ilk are wall-mounted throughout the premises. Lamps are again bronze dore with more crystal. If there is a shade to keep away the heat of candles it must be made of painted tole (tin).

Once more, appropriate accessories bespeak this elegance. Marble urns with bronze dore mountings are appropriate. So would be Nevers or Vincennes soft paste china. Sevres porcelain is even more formal.

Commercial real estate affects lifestyle

Why should anyone other than a building owner or top-executive tenant care whether the local office/industrial market is good or bad? Does it really matter?

You bet it does, maintain several real estate agents, members of the Society of Industrial and Office Realtors, who specialize in commercial transactions here.

A sizzling industrial market and rapidly improving office market which the association recently reported for southeastern Michigan touches peoples lives sociologically and economically on a daily basis.

Where you work and how you get there is a variation of the old saying, if you look sharp and feel sharp, you tend to work sharp.

"More than ever, people are concerned with quality of life," said L. Mason Capitani, a Troy broker. "You're seeing more corporate concern among higher ups. They're raising standards."

"In terms of developing office parks, they're into heavy landscaping and campus settings," said Joan R. Bassey, a vice president with Trerice Tosto in Bingham Farms.

"We're doing demographic maps where employees are," said David N. McNabnay, a Bloomfield Hills broker. "Now, it's not only who they're going to be calling on, but can they get to the office?"

And that goes beyond just top executives, Bassey added.

"Work is stressful," she said. "Corporations are looking at building health facilities. They're providing facilities for child care. They recognize that turnover is one of their greatest problems."

There's local property tax ramifications as vacancies decrease due to an improving economy, rents rise and the buildings increase in value.

"When taxing authorities catch up, a certain degree of revenue comes from real estate taxes to support communities," said Paul S. Hoge, an associate broker with Signature Associates in Southfield and president of the Michigan SIOR Chapter.

There are other tangible money benefits, too.

"As (vacancies) creep up to more normal levels, it drives up employment in the construction sector," Scott Elliott, managing officer for CB Commercial in Southfield.

That, in turn, has another a spinoff effect on residential construction.

"People want to be close to where they work," Hoge said, citing tremendous residential growth in communities like Auburn Hills and Clarkston along the I-75 corridor.

Office vacancy rates in quality Class A office buildings in southeastern Michigan not including Detroit's central business district decreased to 11.1 percent from 15.6 percent during 1995, SIOR reported.

The vacancy rate in less fancy Class B office buildings here also decreased by two percentage points to 15.7 percent.

An acceptable break-even point for landlords is about 15 percent, McNabnay said, although profits can be made at lower levels depending on what the owner paid for a building and current economic factors.

Except for Southfield and Troy, two large markets with higher than average office vacancies, landlord concessions to lure tenants have virtually stopped.

"Free rent is a thing of the past," Bassey said. "Landlords have reduced allowances for buildouts. It's definitely getting to be a stronger landlord market."

"Some of the tight markets are the I-275 corridor, Dearborn, Farmington Hills," Elliott said. "Auburn Hills is very tight. Although Southfield still has the highest vacancy rate, it's had the most absorption."

A strong local economy, which continues to be driven by the auto industry and a general lack of office construction in recent years has led to absorption.

"We're seeing growth in the entrepreneurial, middle market . . . 5,000 to 50,000 square feet, CPAs, engineering firms," McNabnay said.

The industrial market here is going great guns.

Only 5.4 percent of nearly 196.4 million square feet of available space was vacant here at the end of 1995, SIOR reported.

"We're seeing the strongest rental rates in 10 years, the Livonia market in particular," said Larry Emmons of Trerice Tosto.

"There's never been a tighter market than it is now," added Peter E. Kepic of Trerice Tosto.

Land apparently is becoming a scarce commodity for developers of industrial facilities, SIOR members report.

"The biggest shortage I see in the market now is land," said John M. Coury of Capitani Inc. "Lease rates are very strong. Land prices, when you find them, are very strong."

"I never expected ground prices would be as high as they are now," Capitani said.

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

Condo directors can be removed by members' vote

Q. I am a member of a condominium association. Lately, several fellow co-owners and I have become very displeased with the actions and attitudes of two members of the association's board of directors.

We feel that these particular individuals are no longer acting in the best interests of the association.

Is there anything that the co-owners can do to remove these directors?

A: Yes. The vast majority of condominium associations in Michigan are incorporated under Michigan's Nonprofit Corporation Act. As such, these associations and, in turn, their respective board of directors, are governed by the act, along with the association's articles of incorporation and bylaws.

The Nonprofit Corporation Act provides that (unless otherwise provided by the articles of incorporation or bylaws) a director or even the entire board of directors may be removed with or without cause by majority vote of the members who are entitled to vote at an election of directors.

Although the election of directors usually occurs at the annual meeting of the association, the Nonprofit Corporation Act provides that members may call a special meeting in accordance with the association's bylaws.

Accordingly, you should review your association's bylaws to determine the procedure for calling a special meeting of the association. At that meeting, by a majority vote of all of the co-owners, the directors that you have complained of can be removed.

However, you should check your association's bylaws to determine whether they provide for a different procedure for removal of directors.

Q. I have heard about a case recently where a tenant who had a reporter first refusal in a commercial setting attempted to exercise it when the landlord corporation sold all of its stock.

Does such a sale, in your opinion, result in the right of the tenant to exercise his right for his refusal.

A. No, not based upon a recent court of appeals decision, which answered the question of first impression in this state. The court basically held – along with an overwhelming majority of courts in other jurisdictions – that the sale of all of the stock of a corporation does not constitute a "sale" of the corporation's real property triggering a lessee's right of first refusal to purchase the conveyed property.

A specific provision should be made in the lease to deal with this contingency in the future in order to clarify same in light of recent court decisions.

Industrial vacancies tighten

Western Wayne County had the lowest vacancy rate of industrial space in the greater metro Detroit as of the end of 1995, 2.8 percent, according to a market report prepared by Cushman & Wakefield.

This tight submarket, which includes Plymouth, Canton and Livonia, also saw the largest increase in average annual lease rates, from $4.16 per square foot to a year-end $5.22. That's also the highest rate in the area.

The greatest demand was for warehouse and distribution space by automotive suppliers and national retail chains.

Estimated overall industrial vacancy space for the metro area was 4.2 percent.

On the office side, overall vacancy rate for the metro area as a whole dropped to 16.6 percent at the end of the year, Cushman & Wakefield reported. That was the third consecutive quarterly decrease.

Troy rebounded strongly during the fourth quarter due to demand by large users. The vacancy rate fell by nearly four percentage points to a record low of 13.7 percent.

The vacancy rate also improved in Birmingham/Bloomfield Hills, ending the year at 8.8 percent.

In Southfield, the largest of the submarkets, the vacancy rate blipped up slightly to 20 percent as several firms placed sublease space on the market.

The vacancy rate rose to about 13 percent in Livonia/Novi. Just over half of the office buildings in that submarket offered new space and 100,000 square feet became available the last three months of the year.

Office leasing rates generally remained stable or increased.

New trend in bathroom faucets

We know what you want — in a faucet, that is.

A recent consumer research study conducted by Yankelovich Partners, Inc., an independent marketing company, shows that new trends in faucets reflect the lifestyle of today's savvy consumer.

First of all, there's style. What do you really want when it comes to faucet style?

Softer lines are returning — we're getting back to the basics in all aspects of our lives. Casual wear is replacing the stiff, formal business suit in the office, and loose, comfortable fabrics are used in everything from clothes to home furnishings. Formal living rooms are gradually becoming a thing of the past, replaced instead with one "great room," for an eye-pleasing, open feel. Automobiles are losing their hard edges and are becoming more and more "round" in form. And all of these changes tell us one thing: from fashion to cars to home furnishings, "soft" is the newest trend.

In faucets, that means elliptical shapes and smooth lines to fit today's lifestyle, abandoning the traditional "boxy" look. Round shapes are synonymous with a more upscale faucet look that can complement any decor. "The new smooth lines have a dual purpose," says R.C. Walker, business unit manager, Peerless Faucet Co. "Not only do they provide exceptional style, but they are also very low maintenance."

The "no fuss" faucet is another major trend right now. And it is one perfect example of function following form: the preferred smooth lines are conducive to easy cleanability. "One thing consumers made clear was that they don't have time to take a toothbrush and scrub the cracks and crevices of their faucets," says Walker. 'In this hectic day and age, consumers want to enjoy their free time — not spend hours cleaning household items!"

In a new line of bathroom faucets, Peerless presents options to complement any decor. Knob handles are available with two styles: clear or an attractive "smoked" finish. Newly styled lever handles are offered in an array of finishes, including white, almond, polished chrome, polished brass, or a combination of finishes. Coordinating tub/shower faucets also are available to create a complete 'family ensemble" for any bath.

Lever handles for the lavatory carry the elliptical theme of the other product components, becoming an integral design element of the faucet and enhancing the overall look with their grace. The universal design of the levers complies with guidelines set by the Americans with Disabilities Act and ANSI 1 17. 1, for accessibility and use by physically challenged individuals.

Faucet trends are not only moving toward easy maintenance, but easy in- stallation.

Choosing and installing a faucet yourself can be a tough experience. Re- search shows that consumers have four main concerns when buying a faucet: t aucet fit, warranty, durability and in- stallatien. When purchasing a faucet, be sure to check that it comes with com- plete instructions for easy installation, to make your job stress and worry free.

Peerless Faucet Company has gone a step further by providing a toll free customer assistance hot line — a 24-hour service staffed by multi-lingual representatives trained to answer immediate questions about installation and repair, repair parts and retailer locations in English, Spanish and French. Peerless' packaging also addresses these top four concerns consumers have when pur chasing a faucet right on the front of the box, for piece of mind.

A faucet is an extremely important pan of your kitchen and bath decor, and can make a significant difference in your overall look. "The faucet is the jewelry of the home," says Walker.

"The new faucet trends will be with us for a long, long time," Walker continues. "By choosing the most functional — and stylish — faucet you can be assured that you'll get your money's worth out of your next faucet purchase."

Cabinet storage uses vertical glide

Cabinets are great places to store things. One of the main reasons people love them is because you can throw lots of things in them and then close the door! This highlights, however, an important element to consider when buying storage products: access and function are just as important as providing the storage space.

Closet Maid, the Storage Authority, is capturing and maximizing the storage space inside cabinets. The Vertical Glide is a prime example. The product is a vertical wall of wire that pulls out of a cabinet for easy access. It is available with hanging baskets or hooks for quick, practical storage of lids, sponges, grill equipment, hanging items and just about anything else you can imagine. The product is ideal for capturing unused cabinet space under the sink or in very narrow cabinets.

Closet Maid has a complete line of storage products for the inside of your cabinet. There is the Upper Cabinet line of basket systems designed to capture the entire cabinet area from shelf to shelf. There is the Ladder Rack Kit line, which is designed capture the back of cabinet and pantry doors. This line is completely adjustable and holds either hooks or baskets.

The bottom line; stop using cabinets to pile up your items and start organizing the inside of cabinets to create a more effective and useful kitchen.

Who determines the selling price of your house?

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

As the prime selling season approaches, now is a good time to think about whether you would like to make a move. One big question you need to ask yourself is, How much is my home worth?

The answer to this question may not be as straightforward as you think. There are many factors that determine what kind of offer you can get for your home. In fact, when you think about it, almost everyone involved in the transaction will have some say over the final sale price.

Let's take a look at the players in our homebuying scenario and see how they can influence the price of your home.

The seller

Of course, you can decide what your asking price will be. You also have the option during the negotiation phase to make any concessions to the buyer. If you don't get the offer you want, you can always take your home off the market and wait for better times. But, realistically, your final price will eventually be in the hands of the buyer.

The buyer

Sometimes, we tend to overvalue our possessions based on our emotional ties to these items. The buyer, having no such connection, will offer what he or she feels the home is worth.

After all, every product or service is only worth what an able buyer is willing to pay. Your home is no different that any other commodity in this regard. However, that still shouldn't stop you from trying to get as much as you can.

The real estate professional

Does the real estate professional decide the price? Not really. But the real estate representative can provide information on the selling prices of comparable homes. He or she can also tell you about home that have recently sold in your area.

This crucial information can help you arrive at an asking price based on current market conditions. Some people expect the real estate professional to "deliver" a certain sale price. However, their primary role should be to provide effective marketing services that expose your home or property to the maximum number of qualified buyers.

The lender

You may wonder how the lender can influence the price of your home. In actuality, mortgage lenders don't set the price. However, they do appraise the house and set a limit on the amount of money they will lend based on the evaluation of your home's present value.

For this reason, you should not set a price on your home that is unrealistically high. It's true, you may find a naive buyer who will agree to pay more than the home is worth. But the mortgage lender will nullify the sale if it calls for financing a deal based on an over-inflated sale price.

The bottom line in any home transaction is to arm yourself with as much information as possible. To do this, you need to take into account all of these factors when setting the price for your home. The more objective and realistic you are, the better chance you have of finding a qualified buyer for your home.

Ceramic tile always has been good design

Through the years, ceramic tile has remained one of the most elegant structural and decorative materials. Not only does it serve a functional need, but it also reflects your personal sense of style.

Dramatic entryways. Elegant dining rooms. Distinctive bathrooms. Cheerful sunrooms. Classic kitchens. Use ceramic tile wherever you want outstanding beauty and durability.

Ceramic tile is also the most flexible of home decorating materials. It's available in a myriad of shapes, colors, textures and sizes providing extraordinary potential for custom design . . . in areas of your home that you may never have even considered!

Stair risers, for example, can carry a particular style or color from the foyer to a second-floor family room. Frame a window in one or more colors and see how quickly it becomes a work of art! Create your own design on a tub surround in the bath and repeat on the walls. Ceramic tile offers total flexibility that also allows color and design continuity from room to room.

American Olean tile company has an extensive palette of styles, colors and textures that can be intermingled . . . making it easy to create a theme of color and/or design.

Triad Granite and Marble Looks from American Olean were developed with color coordination in mind, making them perfect examples of how ceramic tile can accentuate your decorating theme.

For example, a kitchen and adjoining dining room feature beautiful marble look tile. To separate one area of the room from the other, a border of color coordinated Triad Granite look tile surrounds the eating area while coordinating Triad Decorative Accent Tiles provide a design element in both rooms. The end result . . . a perfectly color coordinated room yet two areas have been distinguished, easily, by intermingling patterns and decorative tiles.

Personalities accent strips offer 10 flavorful designs ranging from earthy, green Ivy to the bold, geometric pattern of Arc Deco. Sizzle Strips offer a subtle to bold color palette and are designed to coordinate with other glazed tiles such as Bright, Matte, Satinglo and Satinbrites. Both of these accent strips provide a wealth of design possibilities . . . from a creative backsplash design to colorful chair rail.

For coordinating floor and wall tile, look to Softwinds, Overtures, Traviata and Antiquity from American Olean. Each comes complete with a large size, 12 inch by 12 inch floor tile, coordinating 8 inch by 10 inch wall tile, decorative accent wall tile and accent strips. Simply choose your favorite color.

With a little help and creativity, you'll quickly see how ceramic tile for your home is a natural . . . a true reflection of you.

Meadowridge Glens has it all at a good price

So do the attached two-car garage, fireplace, air conditioning, first-floor laundry, oven, dishwasher and basement included in the base price.

And speaking of price, 15 of the 25 units at the six acre site on Seven Mile between Inkster and Middlebelt can be purchased for $130,000 or less.

That's for a two-bedroom, two-bath ranch of 1,420 square feet.

"These are some units," said Gidon Zaft, president of Bridgewall Construction, the developer/builder. "We open everything to the top."

Two similar ranch plans with the same basic layout are available.

Each has a family room with fireplace, kitchen/eating nook, two bedrooms and two baths. All of the rooms, including the baths, have a sloped or high ceiling.

The Glen, with windows along the kitchen and eating nook, has two skylights in the family room and one in the master bath. The Lodge, with windows along the family room and master suite, will have a skylight in the kitchen.

The kitchen in the Lodge is a little narrower, Zaft said, but has about 10 percent more cabinet space. Both kitchens have a half wall, serve-through and a long counter.

The Glen and Lodge each have a covered porch at the front door, an entrance through the garage and doorwall in the master suite.

"I wanted to come up with something nice, but was worried about the size (of the units)," Zaft said. "I thought it would look like an apartment. I put in skylights, volume ceilings. The transom window (over the front door) gives it a special look. Little stuff like kick plates on the door."

Exteriors are brick and wood siding.

Many visitors look at the units from the outside and mistakingly believe they're two-stories, said Dee Harden, sales rep.

"They're really surprised when they come in," she said. "They think it's a whole new world.

"They like the spaciousness, openness. Everyone is impressed by the basement, how well laid out and useable it is. They're really impressed by the bathrooms. And the fact this is a small community," Harden said.

Zaft said he's spent more than $100,000 on landscaping the site. "With the grounds, people already have a good idea what it will look like," he said. "The lights are gorgeous at night."

The typical buyer — retirees, people on the verge of retirement and people just starting their careers — probably won't have children, Zaft projected.

"For young couples, rather than an apartment, this is an extremely attractive place to live," he said.

Zaft explained how he was able to price units in the lower third of the $100,000 range.

"We bought the land right, developed everything in one shot, built everything in one shot. We got very lucky utilities were close by."

The subdivision, serviced by city water and sewers, is within the Clarenceville school boundaries. There are no sidewalks.

The property tax rate is $32.48 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $128,000 unit in Meadowridge Glens would pay about $2,080 the first year.

Meadowridge Glens: Ranch units at a small condominium community in Livonia feature plenty of volume space inside.

The monthly association fee is currently $58.

Eleanor and Robert Varty are nearing retirement.

"We bought because we're sizing down," she said. "We have property up north. We don't want outside work. We want everything convenient — first floor laundry, master on the first floor, a well-laid out kitchen area."

Convenience to nearby shopping amenities — "we never have to use a car" — also proved to be a draw, Eleanor Varty said.

Jackie Leiter and Robert Robinson also were impressed with Meadowridge Glens.

"We like the fact there's only two units per building. That gives a little more privacy," she said. "The interior was just what we were looking for — two bedrooms with great room and two baths.

"The price was right, too," said Leiter, adding that she was taken with the number of features included in the standard price. "We weren't nickled and dimed."

■ 'They like the spaciousness, openness. Everyone is impressed by the basement, how well laid out and useable it is. They're really impressed by the bathrooms.

Wayne stats: Home sales in Wayne County for 1995 topped the $1.7 billion mark, according to Advertising That Works.

1995 was a seller's market

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Was last year a seller's market in metro Detroit? The numbers help tell the story.

Sales of houses and condominiums in Oakland and Wayne counties were down 10 percent, according to a Bloomfield tracking service, but the average sales price increased in each jurisdiction by more than 7 percent.

There were 22,929 sales last year in Oakland County compared to 25,499 during 1994, reported Advertising That Works. The average sales price in 1995 was $140,856 compared to $131,214 the previous year.

In Wayne County last year, there were 19,050 sales compared to 21,202 for 1994. The average sales price in '95 was $94,781 compared to $88,229 the previous year.

The average sales price doesn't exactly mesh with number of sales and aggregate dollar value of total sales because sales obviously below market value were excluded from computations.

Figures were obtained from deed records. They include houses and condominiums, brand new and existing.

There can be no doubt that 1995 was a seller's market, said Steven Bartley, president of Advertising That Works.

"With all the refinancings going on, people might feel they were locked into their houses for a couple of years," he said.

Advertising That Works categorizes sales in $25,000 increments.

The largest number of sales in Oakland County, 3,681, fell in the range of $75,000 to $100,000. The next largest amount, 2,931, were between $100,000 and $125,000.

In Wayne County, 4,415 sales were in the $50,000-$75,000 range, with 4,235 between $25,000 and $50,000.

Look for dry hardwood to burn in the fireplace

AP — Your fire won't fizzle if your wood is dry.

Fireplace fires that fizzle, according to an article by John H. Ingersoll in the current issue of Country Living, are set, 99 times out of 100, with improperly seasoned "wet" wood.

In its natural setting, a tree may be 60 percent moisture, 40 percent wood fiber. A properly seasoned log is made up of no more than 15 percent to 25 percent moisture.

It takes at least a year of air drying outdoors to season hardwood logs, according to one woodsman, and three years to reduce the moisture in softwoods.

Fireplace fires that blaze up too high can be frightening. If flames fill the firebox and threaten to burst into the chimney, they could ignite creosote crusted on the chimney lining and lead to a chimney fire.

Runaway fires usually are the result of piling up too many logs, especially if the logs contain a high concentration of flammable resins, oils and tannins. Three split logs are plenty to build an attractive, warming fire.

Equally important is an annual chimney cleaning by a professional "sweep" trained to rid the chimney of dangerous blockages, creosote and debris.

If only softwoods — pine, spruce, cedar, etc. — are available in your area, then burn softwood carefully. It is packed with more natural chemicals than 95 percent of hardwoods. Among hardwoods, onlycottonwood, tupelo and sycamore contain as much flammable oil as softwoods.

■ Nearly all hardwoods are more dense than softwoods. They burn longer and deliver more heat than softwoods. Hardwoods hickory, oak, ash, maple, beech, birch and apple are at the top of the heat-producing list.

Softwoods make ideal kindling. Logs are easy to light if the wood is dry and they provide a quick burst of heat, ideal for a fire designed to last an hour or so before retiring or for a quick warm-up on a cold morning.

Resin-packed softwoods often contain pockets of creosote and water. In a fire this mixture can explode, emitting the sound of a pistol shot and sending a burning ember spinning away from the log. A fire screen that completely covers the hearth opening is your best protection.

Softwoods containing more than the ordinary reservoir of creosote include juniper, hemlock, tamarack, spruce and cedar. The densest and longest-burning softwoods are Douglas fir and eastern larch. One cord of either species delivers about the same heat value as 150-200 gallons of fuel oil or 250 cubic feet of natural gas.

Nearly all hardwoods are more dense than softwoods. They burn longer and deliver more heat than softwoods. Hardwoods hickory, oak, ash, maple, beech, birch and apple are at the top of the heat-producing list. A cord produces the same heat as 200-250 gallons of fuel oil or 250-300 cubic feet of natural gas.

Firewood usually is sold by the cord, with split and stacked logs filling a space 4 feet high, 8 feet long and 4 feet deep. Fire logs usually are available in 16-inch or 24-inch lengths — sometimes in 12-inch lengths. A cord provides you with between 280 and 375 pieces of firewood.

Check the cut ends. If there are radial cracks, the wood is seasoning, if not completely seasoned. The cut ends of wet wood show either no cracks or very fine ones.

Prices follow the law of supply and demand. Where forests are plentiful, $80 to $90 per cord is not unusual. In settled exurbs and suburbs, a cord ranges between $100 and $180. In our largest cities, firewood is often sold by the bundle. The price for a bundle of 10 split logs in New York City is as high as $10 — which works out to about $350 to $400 a cord.

Filing plugs can be dangerous

Q: Can I file down the wide tip on a polarized plug without bad effects?

A: No! Inserting a polarized plug the wrong way around, which becomes physically possible when you file down the wide prong, could cause a shock hazard by making the appliance cabinet live even when the switch is turned off. The slots in a polarized receptacle are different sizes to prevent this very thing. The wide slot is connected to the neutral wire and the narrow one to the hot wire. The polarized plug ensures that the inlet side of the appliance switch is connected to the hot lead. This keeps components beyond the switch inside the appliance from being electrically hot when the switch is turned off.

If you have nonpolarized outlets and need to plug in a polarized appliance such as a TV set, don't ever file down the wide plug prong. Instead, you should replace the receptacle with a polarized outlet and make sure it has been wired correctly with the neutral wire going to the terminal for the wide prong and the black hot lead going to the one for the narrow prong.

If you decide to do the job yourself, you can get the polarized outlet at any hardware store or home center. The copper-colored screw is the one to which you attach the black wire and the silver-colored one is for the white wire.

Q: We live in northern New England and are thinking of insulating the walls of our 100-year-old house. What are our options in a project like this, and is this something we can do ourselves?

A: Insulating above-grade wall cavities in existing houses is a high-ticket job. You should consider it after you've first insulated your attic and then weatherstripped all doors and windows and filled all cracks.

Product options here include loose fill or foamed-in-place insulation. Both jobs require expensive equipment and expertise making this a job for a professional contractor. Improperly installed loosefill settles leaving voids at the tops of the walls. Urea formaldehyde foam does not settle and seals gaps very well but its vapors are offensive and can be a carcinogen.
