Street silence could be golden

■ City residents tired of having to plug their ears against the wailing noise of loud car radios could be in for some relief if the city's interim police chief gets his way with a new noise ordinance.

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

Paulette Longe at one time considered moving out of downtown Plymouth because of the deafening noise from the cruisers who converge in town every summer.

"I just want the kids to keep from cranking up their music. The windows shake from the noise of their radios," said Longe, who lives on Forest Street. "I turn up the fans or something to tune it out. I just don't like the kids being rude, and playing the loud music late at night is rude."

Longe, and other city residents, may soon get some relief. If Police Chief Steve Hundersmarck has his way Monday night, city commissioners will adopt a new noise ordinance that can result in fines up to $500.

"The current ordinance is vague and ineffective," said Hundersmarck. "The new ordinance is fair, with the fines starting out low. It states that if the radio is clearly audible from 50 feet away, the officer can write a civil infraction."

The first ticket will cost a motorist $70, with subsequent tickets costing $100, $200 and then $500.

"The fine isn't excessive for the person who makes a first-time mistake," Hundersmarck said. "But, by the time the person is up to a fourth offense, it becomes a purposeful act. I'm hoping the ordinance, in and of itself, will be a deterrent."

Hundersmarck said the new ordinance, unlike the current statute, will also govern those who park their cars

A 22-year-old Plymouth Township woman is being charged with sexually assaulting a 22-month-old Redford Township toddler for whom she babysat last September.

Plymouth Township police say Victoria Marie Jagosz, who lived at the Heritage Apartments, is charged with first degree criminal sexual conduct for reportedly performing oral sex on the boy.

Jagosz was arraigned July 7 in Plymouth's 35th District Court. Her preliminary exam on Friday was postponed until the suspect undergoes psychological testing at the state forensic center in Ypsilanti for evaluation of competency and criminal responsibility.

Trustee hopefuls face off

Eight of the nine candidates seeking the four, four-year seats on the Plymouth Township Board of Trustees were together for the first time Wednesday at a candidate forum held at the Plymouth District Library.

The taped public forum, sponsored by the Plymouth Observer and the League of Women voters, will be shown on Channel 25 at a later date. No dates were set at press time.

The Aug. 8 primary will decide who sits on the board, as all the candidates are Republicans. The polls are open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Incumbent trustees Chuck Curmi, Kay Arnold and Ron Griffith as well as challengers Jim Karrell, Jerry Trumpka, John Morrison, Clayton (Pete) Stacey and former township Trustee Abe Munfakh were there. Challenger Charlene Berry did not attend.

Topics of discussion included the township's surplus fund balance, recreation, development, the number of police officers needed, whether Hilltop golf course should be developed as a residential site, the amount of campaign funds and township administration.

All candidates cited a need for extra recreation, which turned out to be the forum's most talked-about topic. Here's some of what the candidates said:

■ "Everything is somewhere else," said Karrell. "We have no recreation for our kids and we have no senior programs anymore."

■ "We have neglected recreation," Munfakh said. "We have enough

Mom, baby fine after wild ride

BY BRAD KADRICH

At first, there was just enough discomfort to warn Marcia Caron she might be going into labor with her first child some time in the next few hours. But nothing in the early pains prepared Caron and her husband, Andre, for what would happen in the next few hours.

The cramps started coming shortly after 11 p.m. June 28, and Marcia, an OB-GYN doctor who was 39 weeks pregnant, figured the baby was on its way. The pains were no big deal, and she and Andre went to bed.

Three hours later, Caron awoke with an intense labor pain and jostled her husband awake. Since the pains had lasted just a few minutes, Caron was a little hesitant to head to the hospital.

"I was a little gun shy, because there was only 10 minutes of strong labor," Marcia said. "But we got our things together and went."

Good thing. Marcia's water broke while walking to their Chevy Blazer. Halfway into what is generally about a 22-minute drive to the hospital, it became clear the baby would arrive before the hospital.

"We were about two miles from the house and Marcia said, 'I don't think we're going to make it.'" Andre recalled. "I didn't know whether she was in so much pain she was saying crazy things, or we really weren't going to make it."

It was the latter. Andre used his cell phone to dial 911. The operator told Andre to pull over; Marcia was saying not to pull over. That left a husband with a pregnant wife wondering to whom to listen. Despite the matrimonial bond, the 911 operator won.

"I knew I had to make the call," Andre said. "She wanted to make it to the hospital, and I've got the 911 operator screaming in my ear to pull over."

As Marcia waited in the Blazer at Prospect and Ford Road, Andre got out to flag down the fire department truck. After what seemed to him an eternity but was in reality, according to her, perhaps five minutes, help arrived. But for the hard part, it wasn't necessary.

"I was like, 'where the heck is the ambulance?'" Andre said. "I pulled over for nothing if they don't get here."

The 911 operator wanted Marcia in the back seat. She didn't want to move, but agreed to recline the seat. Since the infant car seat was in the way, Andre got out to remove it.

He got out of the car still an expectant father, and by the time he moved the seat and came back around to the driver's side, he was a daddy to Graham McDougal Caron.

"I went back to the car and Marcia said, 'Here he comes,'" Andre remembered.

Prenatal tests had told the Carons to expect a small baby. When he came out, Marcia checked his heart rate through the umbilical cord and made sure he was breathing.

A firefighter had a baggie tie, which they used to clamp the umbilical cord.

Both new parents were obviously concerned for the newborn. Marcia, who has helped deliver maybe 1,000 babies in her life, was most concerned with getting him to the hospital in case problems developed.

"As soon as he came out, her whole demeanor changed," Andre said of his wife. "She was the calm, confident physician. Once she started smiling, I knew (Graham) was OK."

The mobile delivery did deprive Caron of something to which she'd actually been looking forward: the chance to go through the whole labor process, the way she'd helped countless patients before.

"This is my first baby," Marcia said. "I wanted to go through it all and see what my patients feel like. I didn't get that far."

On the other hand, Andre said with a smile, "We didn't have to go through 13 hours of labor."

All's well that ends well. Graham, born 19 inches long and 5 pounds, 2 ounces, is eating well and growing.

Mom and dad are adjusting to the new addition; mom will head back to work in a couple of months.

"I've delivered so many (in her practice); still, every time you think, "God, what a miracle!" Marcia said. "It happened so fast for me, it wasn't until a little later that I processed it all. I'm a little awestruck that's how it happened. It was amazing."

and listen to radios. He said similar ordinances have worked to control noise in both Ypsilanti and Troy.

According to statistics presented by Hundersmarck to city commissioners, of the 242 cruising tickets that were analyzed from June through September of last year, 35.1 percent were for excessive noise. Most of the violators were 17 years old (31 percent) or 18 (21.5 percent).

According to the computer breakdown, 19.8 percent of the violators were residents of Canton Township, 17.4 percent were from Livonia, and 17.9 percent from Plymouth Township. Violators from the city of Plymouth comprised only 4.5 percent of the tickets issued. Oddly enough, 9.5 percent of the violations were issued to Redford Township residents.

■ 'My son better save his pop bottles, or turn his radio off.'

Dave McDonald
—Plymouth Mayor

Hundersmarck reports 39.7 percent of the violations occurred on Main Street, between Ann Arbor Road and Wing Street. Another 31.4 percent of the tickets were issued on Main between Wing and Ann Arbor Trail.

"We get a lot of calls from residents, especially about the problems around Main and Wing," said Hundersmarck. "There are people who live in apartments in the downtown area, and they shouldn't have to put up with the loud noise."

"I think the kids should go somewhere else," said Patti Pettit, who lives on Forest. "It comes down to respect for others."

The city commission, with a background of loud music from cars at its July 5 meeting in Kellogg Park, voted unanimously to pass the first reading of the new noise ordinance. Final passage is expected at Monday's session.

"Hooray! This is something we've needed for months," said Commissioner Michele Potter.

"This is long in coming. I don't enjoy the summer cruise," added Commissioner Bill Graham. "We need the police department to actively enforce it."

With a big smile, Mayor Dave McDonald had some words of wisdom.

money in the budget to pay for recreation."

■ "I support some pay-for-play," Griffith said. "I think the township has the responsibility to look what the need is. We have the city, the schools and we also have Schoolcraft College. We need to see what we can do together."

■ "There's a need for a little bit of everything," Trumpka said. "I think that you have to look at what is the definition of recreation. You have to look at the schools. What does the private sector and the YMCA offer?"

■ "I believe the younger generation needs a place to entertain themselves and play," Stacey said. "If you live in Plymouth all you can do is walk around downtown and sit on the sidewalk." He suggested sending out a survey to determine in order ranking the three things residents want to see in recreation.

■ Arnold said she paid for her sons to play sports. "There is a recreation plan and the township has received grant money from the state to develop Miller Family Park," she said. She would like to see the YMCA supported by the whole community and possibly close Central Middle School for a recreation facility. "We could do infrastructure with the city and the schools to make this happen."

■ "We need to work with the city and the schools," Morrison said. "The city is the core of Plymouth Township. The township surrounds the city. Maybe we could do something with the township's current fund balance. We could work some creative measures."

■ "I have four children and I am interested in keeping them in a recreation program," Curmi said. "First of all, that is my responsibility and I have done that. Plymouth has always been a community that leverages both private and public resources. So I believe in a blend on some kind."

Answers to many of the questions sounded similar, a fact that didn't escape the people in the audience.

"Most of the answers were kind of carbon copy," said Roy Hart, a Plymouth Township resident. "I really didn't see a great disparity between the challengers and the incumbents. The incumbents were the most knowledgeable and positive. I think Chuck Curmi was outstanding. He answered everything. I don't think the challengers were well-prepared. I don't think they did their homework."

THE RACE FOR TOWNSHIP TRUSTEE

Curmi seeks 3rd board term

BY SUE BUCK
STAFF WRITER
sbuck@oe.homecomm.net

Plymouth Township Trustee Charles Curmi, who is seeking his third term, wants to ensure the township isn't "taken over by forces that will redirect it."

"The township could change direction," said Curmi, 45. "Some people think that it is lethargic as it is. It could become more lethargic."

Curmi, 45, has lived in Plymouth Township since he was a few days old. He graduated from Plymouth Salem High School. He has a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering from Michigan Technological University and a master of business administration degree in finance and marketing from the University of Detroit. He's married with four children.

He's most concerned about the implementation of the Western Townships Utilities Authority sewage-capacity increase.

"It's a great agreement," he said. "I was the only person on all three township boards – Canton, Plymouth, and Northville – who objected to the original recommendation from WTUA that we build our own sewage treatment plant. That was in September 1999. I asked to be allowed to personally visit and negotiate with YCUA and that resulted in a fabulous agreement that saves $40 million in three years and all kinds of litigation grief, especially to achieve the EPA permit. I was a prime mover on that one, the lone voice. I led that coup."

He was accompanied by Jim Anulewicz, Plymouth Township director of public services.

"Once we broke the logjam, our attorneys and staff people were able to come up with the details of that agreement," said Curmi. He then convinced Plymouth Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen McCarthy to put into the motion at WTUA that Plymouth Township wanted the option to look at it one more time, he said. "The plan was to break off all negotiation with WTUA."

Curmi is used to negotiating. He is the director of sales and program management at Johnson Controls in Plymouth Township. Johnson Controls is an automotive supplier that makes interior systems and seats, consoles, anything that goes inside a car. He worked there more than five years. He's held positions at Ford and Exxon ranging from engineering and product management to marketing.

■ 'I was the only person on all three township boards who objected to the original recommendation from WTUA.'

Chuck Curmi
—Township trustee

He served on the Plymouth Township planning commission as the board representative from 1993 through 1996.

Curmi said he didn't support putting the 1998 property tax requests on the ballot. He only agreed to back the request once other board members said they wanted it. "I was never convinced it was necessary," Curmi said. "People thought the building boom would drop off."

Looking for votes: Township Trustee Chuck Curmi is trying for a third term on the board.

Some other thoughts:

■ There's lack of a coordinated community-wide recreation initiative with the city of Plymouth, the YMCA, the school district and anyone else who provides recreation services. "We're just not connected. We need to do a cooperative effort. We don't necessarily need our own department. I would support an increase in taxes for this only if the money couldn't be found elsewhere."

■ The Nov. 1 dispatch merger is satisfactory. "Long-term, the staffing will improve. Look at the benefits. The fire department that services both communities is better connected from a communication standpoint. Before, the township policemen and city policemen couldn't communicate. The staffing issue may be a 'union-grandstanding, power play thing.' Once people feel they belong, we will be OK."

■ Cable TV coverage should be coming. "We have the money in the pot."

He's disappointed that clerical employees joined AFSCME this year. "We have other unions and

Arnold pushes for reasoned choices

BY SUE BUCK
STAFF WRITER
sbuck@oe.homecomm.net

Plymouth Township Trustee Kay Arnold wants the township to retain the same "community" feeling it has now even as it grows.

"My heart is in the community," she said. "Local government gives you the most hands-on in what is happening around you."

Arnold, 60, an 11-year resident, seeks her third term as Plymouth Township trustee. She said her methods are basic: agree on the need, decide on the direction and move steadily toward a solution.

Arnold, business manager of Colonial Collision in Plymouth, has been the township board's liaison on the planning commission for the last four years.

"My pulse is on the community," Arnold said. "I'm not running against anybody, I am running for a seat. I don't have issues. We're doing the best we can do with what we have. We have kept taxes low."

Staffing is at a bare bones level, Arnold said. People who move from Dearborn or other cities with a lot of services are shocked when they come to Plymouth Township, she said. Services kept low result in low taxes, she added.

Community planning runs in Arnold's family. Her mother was one of the first library commissioners in Livonia and her father was on the traffic commission that studied traffic lights as farmland was developing.

Arnold has served on the board of directors of the Community Federal Credit Union for eight years, the Plymouth Community Arts Council, the Schoolcraft College Foundation and is a United Way volunteer.

Among her priorities is the completion of Miller Park. She was instrumental in getting the land deeded over when the Miller Family wanted to donate the land, resulting in the township getting a state grant to develop the land.

Seeking re-election: Township Trustee Kay Arnold hopes to sway voters in the Aug. 8 primary.

Her thoughts:

■ She wants a new township hall. "We keep putting Band-Aids on it," she said. "It is not something to be proud of. It should all be under one roof. I would like to see it stay right where it is, and look at different sites for the fire station."

■ The agreement with the Western Townships Utilities Authority to expand the Ypsilanti facility. "The WTUA agreement is good because building our own would (cost) twice as much."

■ Recreation. There's no need to fund a recreation director like they do at the Plymouth Cultural Center, according to Arnold. "We are funding improvements to the park, Miller Park, the golf course, the soccer fields," she said. "We're doing more."

■ 'I'm an incumbent but there are a whole lot of residents who have moved in. You can't sit and rest on your laurels.'

Kay Arnold
—Township trustee

■ Communicate with the city. "Some of the communication difficulty between the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township was that the Plymouth city manager wasn't giving the city commissioners all the information. I think misunderstanding and miscommunication is the problem," she said. "I don't think it is because we are butting heads. If you don't have communication, you hear things through the grapevine."

■ Communicate to residents. "It's vital for residents who live near impending projects to see the whole picture and get all the information. They should understand what could be there and what is proposed."

■ A good relationship with the press. "A lot of people don't come to the meetings but if they can read the information that helps us."

■ Cablecasting board meetings. "I thought we would start doing it again but we haven't. I demanded and I got my way to have our agendas for the planning commission and board meetings on cable."

Campaigning could get expensive. "There're nine people running for four seats; I'm not assuming anything," she said

Griffith pins hopes on experience

BY SUE BUCK
STAFF WRITER
sbuck@oe.homecomm.net

With his background in industrial technology, Plymouth Township Trustee Ron Griffith, who is seeking his fourth term on the board, is a staunch supporter of business.

"People can't believe I vote for tax abatements because it takes money out of the community," Griffith said. "It enables the township to attract industries that are high-tech and clean. Our industrial park is well thought out, segregated from housing, and along the interstate and rail lines. It has kept our taxes low. Plymouth has little in the way of an industrial base."

Griffith has a home-grown appreciation of what businesses go through to operate. "Dad was in small business so I appreciate that side of things," he said. "We won't be able to live on the growth anymore but we will have to live on what we have."

Continuity

He says he's seeking re-election to provide continuity, understanding and experience to the board.

"I enjoy it," Griffith said. "There are bad times but there are rewarding times. There are some times when you wish that you weren't in front of the microphone to take some of the heat. The key is not to take criticism personally and not get personal with the person who disagrees."

Griffith knows citizens in parts of the township near the proposed Five Mile-Haggerty Road planned unit development and the Sunshine Honda rezoning on Ann Arbor Road are ruffled about development and traffic.

"That comes as no surprise to me," he said. "Traffic is always one of the major things. The problem there (Haggerty) is that Wayne County is in charge of the road in terms of improving that road from Five Mile south. Until that happens there will have to be some provision as they turn in and out."

He's in favor of the Ann Arbor Road corridor project because it is good for the businesses in the long run.

"It's hard to convince anybody initially," he said. "The people who sell their property, zoned commercial, will get twice their money for it. They stand to benefit financially. Homes are small on small lots. Property lines were drawn 50-60 years ago."

Longest-running: Township Trustee Ron Griffith seeks his fourth term on the board.

The Sheldon Road project is controversial in terms of closing that road. "Fortunately for some that has been delayed," he said. MDOT started construction on Ann Arbor Road this week.

The WTUA/YCUA agreement is a good one because it's the best alternative, he maintains. "There's a rapidly deteriorating infrastructure with the Detroit system," he said.

Recreation needs

He believes recreation could be a joint effort.

"The people are opposed to raising taxes for any type of recreation program," Griffith said. "We could come up with some cooperative planning with the city and the schools. We should do an inventory of what we have, provide the infrastructure and let groups organize themselves and build their own programs. We have never had anybody come before the board and complain about not enough recreation. They may not be getting it in the township but they are getting it."

He suggested investigating if the school district has any land. "We could look to see what they are doing with the land near the prison that belongs to the city of Detroit," Griffith said. "There are acres out there."

Schoolcraft College had property like that and land-leased it to a developer who put two big office buildings on it with a restaurant, he said. "We are getting royalties from it," he said. "We didn't need it, it was just sitting there. Now we have an income stream from there."

Good neighbors

The relationship between the city of Plymouth and the township is like a roller coaster and can be better, he said. "Given the personalities and changes on the board, I am not sure we will ever see a day where those two boards walk hand-in-hand," he said. "The city elected new people who don't have a history."

Griffith served on the zoning board of appeals for more than eight years. The most common issues are fence heights, setbacks, and decks, he said.

"Somebody has to carry the banner for the township," Griffith said. "Otherwise we would have eight-foot fences around these houses. We'd have people building houses all the way up to the street with no vegetation or grass."

Meet the press

He believes in an open relationship with the press unless it infringes on the rights of something they deal with in closed session. "We're dealing with personnel matters and land purchases."

Griffith plans to campaign in group settings and by making personal contacts. "The township is getting quite large now to walk door-to-door," he said. "I go on my record as a responsible person who cares about the township. I'm the most experienced and the most qualified. I would [illegible] my [illegible] my we will work with them. Surrounding communities are all unionized. It's more the norm to be unionized. But you have more flexibility if you are not unionized. You can redeploy people."

Curmi supported advanced life support with the law change requiring more training. He does not support city crews driving injured people to the hospital "There was not enough communication with the city on this issue. If they would just communicate directly, there wouldn't be this friction and animosity."

There's active development in the township, according to Curmi.

"Traffic is exploding in Wayne County because everybody wants to live here."

A former planning commissioner, Curmi sometimes attends those meetings.

"Our attorney and our supervisor don't like us going to planning commission meetings because they feel it is disruptive if we are there. Sometimes I go anyway. Sometimes there's bureaucratic paranoia that goes on.

■ 'There was not enough communication with the city.'

Chuck Curmi
—Trustee candidate

He supports an open relationship with the press, though the press at study session meetings at first made him uncomfortable.

"The discussion is not as freewheeling and as in-depth as I would like because I think people hold back because they are just in the planning stages. It's like having a family meeting published in the paper. Sometimes it can be a little embarrassing. It suppresses some of the discussion that's required."

Wayne County Assistant Prosecutor Dan Less said the incident occurred Sept. 28, with the parents reporting the incident to police immediately after finding a bruise on the boy's genitals. The child was taken to University of Michigan Hospitals for an examination, where it was determined child abuse was suspected.

Reading from a hospital report, Less said the boy had a significant bruise on his penis.

Plymouth Township police, along with Redford Township and Michigan State Police, conducted an extensive nine-month-long investigation before charging the woman.

"It was a very good job of investigating," said Less, who is a member of the county's child abuse prosecuting unit. "Plymouth Township did most of the work, and polygraphs were given. It ultimately led to the baby-sitter."

Neither Less nor Plymouth Township police would comment on a report that Jagosz confessed to authorities on tape.

In describing the relationship between Jagosz and the Redford Township family, Less said the "child's mother may have been married to a family member" of the suspect. None of the law enforcement agencies involved is identifying the Redford Township family.

According to Less, the defense is claiming Jagosz isn't competent to stand trial because she doesn't understand the charge and can't assist in her defense.

Jagosz is currently being held in the Wayne County jail in lieu of $50,000 cash bond. Less said he wanted a higher bond, but Judge John MacDonald refused to increase it. However, the judge denied Jagosz the opportunity to post only 10 percent, or $5,000, as is done in many cases.

If convicted, Jagosz could face life in prison.

Less said there are no other suspects in the case.

School board elects new set of officers

BY TONY BRUSCATO

Plymouth-Canton Schools Trustee Darwin Watts said being elected president of the board of education means nothing more than "operating as efficiently as we have in the past."

Watts said the biggest issues facing the board are the same ones that have been challenges in the recent past: "making sure the new buildings are constructed on time and continuing to look at school policy and make refinements."

Watts is in his third year on the board, and doesn't foresee any major issues facing trustees.

"Everything is pretty well on target," said Watts. "However, we're committed to dealing with any issues that come our way.

"We've got good people in the system, from the janitors to teachers to administrators," said Watts. We need to have a clear vision of what the board is telling them so we can get things done in an effective manner."

Watts was elected president at last Tuesday's meeting. Other officers elected were Sue Davis as vice president, Judy Mardigian as secretary, and Steve Guile treasurer.

"I'm an incumbent but there are a whole lot of residents who have moved in. You can't sit and rest on your laurels."

She knows there are people in the Green Meadows subdivision who opposed the Sunshine Honda rezoning on Ann Arbor Road. It was recently rezoned to the Ann Arbor Road corridor under an amended master plan that all present board members passed in 1997.

"They wanted the roads paved but also didn't want cut-through traffic so they wanted the roads closed," she said. "The biggest problem there is the lack of knowledge of the people who have moved in."

Arnold attended Central University. She has four children and five grandchildren.

Construction project forces shifting of Ann Arbor Road traffic pattern

Changes in traffic flows are expected on Ann Arbor Road, an MDOT road under reconstruction from General Drive to Canton Center.

The contractor will shift all traffic to the north side of Ann Arbor Road beginning Monday.

This means that traffic will be limited to one lane in each direction with a left turn lane starting early next week, according to Paul Sincock, assistant city manager of Plymouth, and Jim Anulewicz, Plymouth Township director of public services.

This traffic shift will have a dramatic impact on businesses and traffic flow.

The contractor will have crews working on moving traffic signals over to the new traffic lanes, they said. Traffic signals will have to be shifted along with the traffic to the north half of Ann Arbor Road.

Tickets going fast for golf outing

BY ALICE ASHMORE
STAFF WRITER

Tee times are going fast for the 21st annual Gary Lyman Golf outing to benefit the Burger Center.

"We still have openings for about 40 golfers left in the afternoon," said Burger teacher Rebecca Viola. "Our maximum is 260 golfers."

The golf outing is scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 12, at the Hickory Creek Golf Course in Superior Township. The cost is $90 per person.

Located in Garden City, the Burger Center serves autistic students from 35 school districts within Wayne County.

"We have 270 students and quite a waiting list," said Viola.

Autism is a neurological disorder that interferes with the development of reasoning, social interaction and communication. It is a life-long disability that makes learning difficult and can lead to behavioral excesses.

The Burger Center has programs for students ranging in age from preschool age to young adult.

"It is the largest (school of its type) in Michigan, and possibly in the country," Viola said. "This is our biggest fund-raiser of the year. We use the money for program enhancement in about 60 classrooms."

The money also allows children to become involved in the community and participate in enrichment programs.

"Many of our students are able to hold down jobs in the community after they leave here," she said.

Each classroom gets about $100 allocated to it from the golf outing proceeds.

"I don't know what we'd do without it – it is very badly needed." said Sharon Lundie, a teaching assistant at Burger.

Even with the extra money provided by the golf outing, teachers often dip into their own pockets to pay for classroom extras, she said.

The golf outing has many prizes for participating golfers.

"We have a $10,000 cash prize for a hole-in-one on the 17th hole," Viola said. That prize is sponsored by John Flaming of Lincoln Financial.

Other hole-in-one prizes include a set of Callow irons, a Sony camcorder, and round-trip airline tickets for two. "These are for the par-three holes," Viola said.

Golfers are also provided with a continental breakfast, lunch at "the turn," and a full dinner after the outing.

"We have lots of stuff for the golfers – it is a fun, fun day," Luanda said.

The golf course itself has some entertaining features for the participants, including a prize holes, a game hole, and a "Vegas" hole.

"A lot of our money raised by these special holes," Luanda said.

The fund-raiser honors the memory of Gary Lyman, a Garden City police officer who died 21 years ago of a heart attack. He was 29 years old at the time of his death.

"Officer Lyman had started the outing prior to his death," said Peggy Burklow, secretary to the Garden City police chief. "He participated in it for at least five years."

The Burger Center was chosen for the fund-raiser because it benefited local children, said Burklow.

The school eventually took over the operation of the fund-raiser, said Lundie.

"This is the fourth year we have been doing it on our own," she said. "The parents are very heavily involved."

For non-golfers there is a raffle, as well as a "silent raffle."

"We get a lot of donated items," Lundie said.

This year's prizes include an overnight trip to Marsh Ridge, overnight getaways at local hotels, a donation from Orin Jewelers, an autographed Detroit Red Wings hockey puck, a Detroit Tigers autographed All-star photo, and a ladies golf basket.

For more information, or to register for the golf outing, call the Burger Center at 762-8420.

Groups team for child ID

North Brothers Ford, Allstate Insurance and the Westland Police Department will team up for a child ID program on Saturday, July 29, from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m.

The Safe Wise Kids program is free and will give each participant safety information and an individual child identification file.

The program will be held at the dealership.

The police will fingerprint children and a record of the prints will go in the back of the folder. Police are often stymied in their search for missing children and lose time because parents do not have updated photos, immunization records or fingerprints.

Records are also needed when the missing child has been found. Parents will receive a child safety workbook, and kids will get a coloring book with information about being a safe kid.

North Brothers Ford is located at 33300 Ford Road between Wayne and Venoy.

Voters will decide on 2 tax issues in Aug. 8 primary

BY RICHARD PEARL
STAFF WRITER
rpearl@oe.homecomm.net

Besides choosing local candidates for this fall's general election, Wayne County voters in the Aug. 8 primary will decide two property tax issues.

The larger of the two proposed renewals – 1 mill – is a general-fund operating millage supporting a variety of existing services. It began in 1984, was renewed for 10 years in 1990 and is up for another 10-year renewal.

The smaller levy, the controversial 0.25-mill parks millage which got a majority in 1996 only from voters in Detroit, Highland Park and Trenton, is up for a five-year renewal.

According to county officials, the owner of a $100,000 home with a state taxable value of $50,000 would pay $40.43 per year for the 1-mill operating levy and $10.44 per year for the 0.25-mill parks levy.

The figures are based on the Proposal A cap which county assessors say is currently rolling back the tax rate by about 16 percent.

The decision process actually is under way: Absentee ballots have been or soon will be mailed to qualified voters in the western Wayne County communities of Garden City, Livonia, Plymouth, Westland and Wayne and the townships of Redford, Canton and Plymouth.

All other registered voters go to the polls on Aug. 8 from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. to make their decisions known.

County officials said the operating millage, "Proposition O" on the ballot, is expected to raise $35.9 million for such programs as providing for the arrest, detention and prosecution of criminals; juvenile court and related services; public health services; recreation programs and county parks operations; job training; and senior citizen services and medical programs for the poor, the disabled and the aged.

Hurley Coleman: Wayne County Parks director.

Largest amount

Budget Director Pat McKinnon said the courts, prosecuting attorney's office and sheriff's department take "the largest expenditure" of revenue, followed by health and welfare programs, general government operations and the funding of elected officials and their offices.

If the millage renewal fails, "the $35 million reduction in services would be a major blow to the county," McKinnon said.

The parks millage renewal, "Proposition P," would allow the county's parks department "to continue what we have done," said Director Hurley Coleman.

He said the millage gave the county about $7 million per year for the nine major parks in its system, plus "15 major recreation areas along Hines Drive."

Coleman said $5 million per year went into upgrading restrooms, picnic areas and other improvements such as the paving of inline skating and bicycle paths and the installation of signage, plus $2 million for "people programs and promotions," such as evening movies and concerts in the parks.

While Chandler Park on Detroit's east side was a major beneficiary, getting an $8-million waterpark and wave pool, Coleman said western Wayne County benefited also.

He cited improvements to the Bell Creek and Lola Valley parks in Redford, Newburgh Pointe in Livonia, Nankin Mills and Merriman in Westland, Wilcox Park in Plymouth Township, Riverside and Haggerty in the city of Plymouth, and Northville and Cass Benton Parks in Northville Township.

New shelter

In particular, Coleman said Plymouth Riverside got a $182,000 shelter and playscape and Haggerty Park got a new soccer field and rebuilt baseball diamonds.

Bill McSween, Redford parks director, said Bell Creek got $390,000 in capital improvements alone. "It's been a good thing for Redford," he said.

Coleman said the county has "almost $57 million worth of projects we'd like to engage in" for the future, including roller hockey courts, skate parks, a lake with beachfront swimming and a possible western Wayne County waterpark. Historic Fort Wayne also could be included, he said.

"We want to stay on the path we've been going on," said Coleman, noting that about 98 percent of the picnic shelter permits are taken before summer gets under way and that each Saturday five miles of Hines Park Drive is closed for inline skating.

According to county parks figures, as of June 1, some 1,037 picnic reservations had been issued. Of these, Canton residents accounted for 27, Garden City residents 22, Livonia 150, Plymouth 46, Redford 88, City of Wayne 9 and Westland 70. Residents of Farmington and Farmington Hills had 11 reservations.

However, not all western Wayne County officials were solidly behind the millage renewals.

Livonia Mayor Jack Kirksey said he was staying neutral. "There really isn't much in either proposal for Livonia," he said. As for the parks, if the proposals had provisions "that would allow us to piggyback" on them with Livonia city parks, "we would be more willing to actively support it."

Melissa McLaughlin, Canton Township trustee, said residents there pay about $300,000-$400,000 in park tax but that none of it is spent in Canton, where the county has no parks.

She said in general, Wayne County residents are paying "about twice" the taxes paid by residents in neighboring counties, yet "there doesn't seem to be any willingness on the part of the county to look for ways to be more efficient with the funds that they have."

Ballot issue sets stage for a state-local power struggle

By Mike Malott
HomeTown News Service
mmalott@homecomm.net

The stage is set for a power struggle between state and local governments – which voters will be asked to decide in the November general election.

"Let Local Votes Count" – a campaign by mayors, municipal officials across the state and the Michigan Municipal League to place a constitutional amendment on the ballot strengthening home rule – turned in its signed petitions to the Secretary of State Monday.

State officials have until Sept. 7 to certify the signatures, but it is almost certain the petition drive will succeed. The Let Local Votes Count group turned in 467,179 signatures, far more than the 303,000 needed to make the ballot.

That has proponents saying it is "one of the most successful voter petition drives in state history."

It is a reaction to a number of local control issues that have come up in the state Legislature over the past year – overriding local residency rules, prohibitions of local lawsuits against gun manufacturers, limits on local fines for truck violations, and the controversial House Bill 4777, which would have overruled many local business regulations.

If approved by voters in November, the amendment would require a two-thirds vote in the state House and Senate on bills that eliminate or pre-empt local ordinances or charter provisions. The wording specifies it would apply to bills enacted by the Legislature after March 1 of this year.

"Michigan has a long, proud history of home rule the voters of this state want to preserve," Troy Mayor Jeanne Stine said.

"Folks across the state are tired of powerful special interests in Lansing pushing to eliminate local laws that reflect the wishes, desires and values of home town residents," Nancy Crandall, mayor of Norton Shores, said. Even before the petitions were turned in, a coalition was forming to oppose it. Citizens for Common Sense Government, a group of business, taxpayer and labor organizations, announced its formation Thursday, July 6, to fight passage of the proposal.

"This proposed constitutional amendment has sweeping implications for the state's governmental structure, the role of majority rule in our state and an almost-endless number of legislative policy matters," Michigan Chamber of Commerce President Jim Barrett said. "This proposal is dangerous and clearly would have a negative impact on job providers, taxpayers and Michigan government."

The coalition unveiled a legal analysis – put together for the Michigan Chamber by the Dykema Gossett law firm – outlining problems with the proposal:

■ The proposal would give disproportionate power to legislators elected by a minority of the state's voters, the law firm concluded.

■ Laws enacted during the 2000 legislative session with a majority, but not a two-thirds majority, would apparently be repealed automatically because of the March 1 effective date.

"This provision alone would lead to years of litigation and uncertainty concerning laws validly on the books. The state's new telecommunications and electric restructuring acts are just a few of the laws that could be challenged under this proposal," according to the coalition.

■ The proposal ignores the number of interests competing on major legislative issues. These interests must negotiate and compromise to achieve the legislative best result.

"The MML proposal is designed to give the MML and its members extra votes in the legislative process because they will no longer need a majority to prevail, just one third plus one," the coalition concluded.

Among the organizations that have so far joined the coalition in opposition to the proposal are the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, the Detroit Regional Chamber, the Small Business Association of Michigan, the Macomb County Taxpayers Association, the Michigan Fraternal Order of Police, the Michigan Police Legislative Coalition, the Michigan Professional Fire Fighters Union, the Michigan Restaurant Association and the Michigan Manufacturers Association.

Pot petition goes up in smoke

HomeTown News Service
mmalott@homecomm.net

Chances of a question appearing on the ballot this fall to legalize marijuana in Michigan went up in smoke Monday, July 10, as proponents missed the deadline for submission of petitions.

Circulators had gathered just 150,000 signatures, well shy of the 330,000 mark needed to make the ballot, said Saginaw attorney Greg Schmid, the leading proponent of the amendment.

"Am I disappointed? Yes, but it went as well as I could have expected," he said. "We went from a group that was totally green to a disciplined and efficient group of petition circulators. There has not been an all-volunteer signature petition drive in this state in 22 years."

The Personal Responsibility Amendment 2000 Marijuana Initiative ballot committee consists of 3,000 circulators. The group did not use paid petition passers. And it won't when it again attempts to put the issue on the ballot beginning next April for the 2002 election.

The proposed amendment stated: "No person shall suffer punishment, forfeiture, license sanction or legal consequence in connection with the limited personal use and possession of marijuana (genus cannabis) so long as it is a personal amount not to exceed three mature plants, seedlings, and three ounces of dried usable marijuana preparation, within the curtilage of a person's private residence."

The proposed amendment also would have legalized medicinal use of marijuana to control nausea from chemotherapy or treatment of AIDS, or for glaucoma or the controlling of seizures. Further, it would have prohibited the use of seized drug sales money for any purpose other than "voluntary Personal Responsibility Education Programs for domestic violence, gambling, drug, alcohol, and tobacco abuse awareness and treatment."

The group had also been collecting signatures for an amendment for a part-time legislature, but that drive fell even further short of the mark. More information about the initiative drives can be found at www. ballot2000. net

Whalers make changes

The Plymouth Whalers have made a few organizational changes, promoting Mike Vellucci to the position of president and governor for the organization.

Previously, Vellucci had served as the director of Compuware Arena and as the head coach/general manager of the Compuware Ambassadors, one of the top teams in the North American Hockey League.

Vellucci's position with the Ambassadors will be filled by Todd Watson, who had served as Vellucci's assistant coach. Also Steve St. John, formerly the director of Arena maintenance, has been promoted to the office of general manager of Arena Operations.

Pete DeBoer remains as head coach/general manager of the Whalers, with Steve Spott serving as his assistant coach.

"These changes will allow Mike to focus on business operations within our organization, which will free Pete to concentrate on his general manager and coaching duties with the Whalers," said Peter Karmanos Jr., owner of the Whalers.

"Mike will report directly to me, and I'm confident that this new structure will enable us to continue our run as one of the premier organizations within both the Ontario and North American hockey leagues."

Port Huron-to-Mackinac race is anything but easy

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjrisak@oe.homecomm.net

For some, the annual Bacardi Bayview Yacht Club Mackinac Island Yacht Race is just a fun thing to do — just a chance to get out on the open water and enjoy it.

For others, it's exactly what the name indicates: a race. They compete with a losing-is-not-an-option type of attitude.

"We race, but we're not out there like the America's Cup racers," said Charlie. "Each class has a real dedicated group of sailors.

"We're out there to have a good experience. That said, we always do pretty well — sixth or eighth out of 18 (in our class)."

Just before noon Saturday, the Antals and seven other crew members aboard their 38-foot sloop "Querencia" embarked on their fourth Port Huron-to-Mackinac race, a journey that will take about 2 1/2 days to complete.

Make no mistake: This is no pleasure cruise, no sightseeing fun event. Crew members work four-hours-on, four-hours-off shifts through the duration of the race.

And this year it won't end when the Querencia reaches Mackinac Island. This year's race will actually be two-in-one. Or maybe three-in-two.

In year's past, boats sailed to Mackinac, then on to Chicago to take part in the Chicago Yacht Club-to-Mackinac Island race.

This year nearly 40 boats — including the Antals — of the 280 that leave Port Huron will take part in the Millennium 600, a Port Huron-to-Chicago race. Instead of stopping at Mackinac, they'll keep on sailing to Chicago, a total of 600 nautical miles.

After a short stay in Chicago (and a couple of changes in their crew due to time constraints), they'll turn about and sail back to Mackinac in the Chicago Yacht Club-to-Mackinac race.

That's three races in about 11 days.

"It's great," was how Charlie Antal described the competition ahead. "I've always enjoyed sailing and racing. I kind of enjoy being around boats. This is one of the races I haven't won yet.

"But we're working on that."

Charlie, originally from Lincoln Park, first got interested in the sport as a collegiate sailor at Eastern Michigan in 1970. He's been sailing ever since, on all kinds of boats: Flying Juniors, Hobie Cats and Catalinas. His current craft is the biggest he's competed in.

A member of the North Cape Yacht Club in La Salle, where he has won numerous racing awards, the Antals best effort in the 253-nautical mile Port Huron-to-Mackinac race is 64 hours. The record for the race, set by Heidi Schultz in 1993, is 39 hours.

Although not an easy voyage — they've had troubles, as all sailors do, but minor ones — it's not all drudgery. Peggy helps in that aspect with her "gourmet cruising class", a menu that includes such tasty items as pork roast, meatloaf and ravioli.

"It's like having nine house guests for 15 days, all living in your kitchen," she said. "Other crews end up taking something like 70 sandwiches. That would get pretty boring to me. We have a full oven, so we take advantage of it."

The problems that have occasionally plagued the Antals range from bumps and bruises from a swinging boom to torn sails.

Please see ANTALS, B2

The Querencia: The Antals' best finish in the Port Huron-to-Mackinac race aboard their 38-foot sloop was 64 hours.

Bulldogs close in on Huskies

SUMMER HOCKEY

Three goals in the final 4:55 broke a 4-4 tie and propelled the Bulldogs to a 7-4 triumph over the previously unbeaten Huskies in a Metro Summer Hockey League game Wednesday at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

Brent Wishart (from Canton) scored two goals for the 'Dogs and Troy Milam, Corey Swider (Livonia), John Munshaw (Westland), Matt Grant (Livonia) and Ryan Lukiewski (Livonia) each added single scores. John Picklo and Matt Swanson were in goal for the winners.

The Huskies got two goals from Mark Pietila and single markers from Trent Daavettila and Dwight Helminen. Brandon Tucker was in goal for the Huskies.

Wildcats 9, Broncos 7: It was the Broncos game, all the way — their first victory of the season was within sight.

A goal by Chris Morelli (Livonia) put them up 7-5 with 11:36 left in the game. All they had to do was hold on.

But the 'Cats got their offense in gear, with two goals from Brent Bessey (Canton) and single scores from John Fritz (Plymouth) and Vic DeCina (Garden City), in the final 10:35 to get the win Wednesday at the Cultural Center.

Fritz finished with four goals while DeCina got three. The Broncos were paced by Erik Hawkins (Redford) and James Crank (West Bloomfield) with two goals apiece. Ryan Gauthier (Canton) and Jeremy Majsczk (Canton) added one each.

Dan Dobrowski (Southfield) and Will Hamele were in goal for the Wildcats. Brenden McMahon was in the net for the Broncos.

Bulldogs 13, Wildcats 2: The 'Dogs are rolling.

Ian Smith (Rochester) scored three goals and Brent Wishart (Canton), Eric Bratcher, Corey Swider (Livonia) and Matt Gossett got two goals apiece to lead the Bulldogs to a rout of the 'Cats Thursday at the Cultural Center.

The win pulled the Bulldogs to within three points of the MSHL leading Huskies, and the 'Dogs have played one fewer game. The Wildcats are in Missed connection: Chris Radu, from Madonna University, couldn't connect for a hit Wednesday. His team only had two hits, but won anyway.

For most of Wednesday's game between the Michigan Lake Area Rams and Decision Consultants, Inc. at Livonia's Ford Field, the pitchers dominated.

But two nub hits that didn't travel 60 feet between them made the difference as the Rams edged D.C.I., 2-1, in Livonia Collegiate League play.

D.C.I. (14-6) took a 1-0 lead in the third inning when Chris Kimball doubled to right, took third on an error and stole home.

Pitcher Bobby Lindsey kept D.C.I. in its tenuous lead with a no-hitter until the seventh inning, when the Rams' bats came alive — or at least woke up.

Mike Hayes (Redford Union) led off with a walk, then stole second. Mike Macek (Redford Union) then stubbed a hit down the first-base line to break up the no-hitter. Chris Rigley (Madonna/Redford Union) then dropped a sacrifice bunt to move the runners up to second and third.

After a shallow fly out, Peter Varon was intentionally walked to load the bases. Mike Patterson then dribbled the ball down the third base line, beat the throw to first while Hayes came home to tie the score at 1-all. Macek then stole home with what proved to be the winning run.

Lindsey took the loss, despite a two-hitter, facing 25 batters, with just three walks and striking out four. Shawn Morrison, who had no-hit D.C.I. earlier in the season, grabbed the win with a walk, four strikeouts and giving up just three hits — two to Kimball and another to Tony Palazzolo.

The Rams, who had been on a three-game losing streak, improved to 10-12 in the league and 11-12 overall.

Travel mercies Eagles

Livonia Travel, a Connie Mack Division team (ages 16-18), mercied the Detroit Eagles 16-5 in five innings Thursday at Wayne County Community College.

Brad Buckler pitched all five innings to earn the victory. Buckler struck out eight, walked two and allowed five runs (three earned).

Joe McCrohan paced Livonia offensively with three hits, including a home run. Pete Pinto also belted three hits, Shawn Casey, Ryan Krol, Bill Rabe, Buckler, Dan Ross and Ronnie Williams had one hit each.

Livonia is now 10-3 in the league and 18-5 overall.

Bulldog streak ends

The Livonia Bulldogs' 10-game win streak came to an end Tuesday against the Allen Park Legion team at Livonia Stevenson High School.

The Bulldogs, a 16-and-under Mantle Division team in the Little Caesars Amateur Baseball Federation, blew a 5-2 lead

Salem grad reaches final

Katie Murinas reached the first flight final of the 84th Michigan Women's State Amateur Golf Championship at Metamora Golf and Country Club when her match play opponent, Donna Benford, withdrew.

Murinas played Amanda Pettit of Clinton for the first flight title Friday.

The 1997 Plymouth Salem graduate qualified for the four rounds of match play by firing a 93 in Monday's 18-hole medal play tournament, finishing in a tie for 13th.

On Tuesday, she beat Anne Gajda of Ypsilanti 4-and-2 in a quarterfinal match.

Polanski wins division at state's PGA Junior

BY MONICA PUGNO
STAFF WRITER

Kristen Polanski of Livonia has some big shoes to fill. Her goal is to be as good a golfer as her older brother, Steve.

Just two weeks after her brother finished third at the Michigan Open, Polanski won the 2000 Michigan PGA Junior Championship for girls ages 14-15 Thursday at the Bedford Valley Golf Club in Battle Creek. She carded a two-day total of 166 (84-82) to finish two strokes ahead of Caitlin Carr of Portage.

"It was a really good field," the 14-year-old Livonia native said. "I played really strong. I was down two strokes after the first day. I didn't care how I placed, I just wanted to play well. I played well and everything worked out for me."

Polanski said the victory, her first at a two-day traveling tournament, gave her confidence a boost.

"What it means to me is now I can compete against anyone," she said. "It makes me believe I can win any tournament. It was a great experience and a lot of fun."

Polanski, who will be a sophomore at Livonia Stevenson, said the Bedford Valley course was "real tight."

"You needed your drive to go straight," she said. "On the first day, I was struggling with my drive. My drive was better on the second day. I made three birdies and pared the last five holes."

Erin Borowiec, a graduate of Farmington Hills Mercy, and Colby Beckstrom of North Muskegon won the boys' and girls' 16-17-year-old divisions, respectively, to qualify for the 25th national PGA Junior Championship, set for Aug. 23-26 at PGA National Golf Club's Champion Course in Palm Beach Gardens, Fla.

Borowiec posted a final round 76 for a two-day total of 155 and a 17-stroke victory over Ashley Gardener of South Lyon. Beckstrom carded a final round 67 for a total of 141 and a seven-stroke advantage over Matt Lee of Farmington and Danny Allen of Grand Rapids.

Polanski said her brother inspired her to become a golfer. Earlier this month, Steve almost became the first amateur to win the Michigan Open since 1975.

The Stevenson graduate led for the first three rounds of the tournament before bowing out to Scott Hebert, who won with a 10-under 278. Steve, who was the 1998 state Class A individual medalist and 1998 Michigan Amateur runner-up, carded a final round 76 to finish with 284.

"It's nice when your brother is good," Polanski said. "If I'm having a bad day, Steve tells me what I'm doing wrong. It's a big advantage. He motivates me. He's a very good role model."

Polanski has been golfing since the age of 10, but this is her first year of competitive play.

"Once he (Steve) left and went to college, I decided this was something I could do," she said. "I worked really hard last winter and dropped 15 strokes."

Polanski had a successful season at Stevenson as a freshman. She qualified for state as an individual and was the only freshman named to the All-Area Observerland Girls Golf first team.

"It was a big accomplishment," she said. "I qualified for state as an individual. That was my goal. I was also MVP of my team. It was a successful season. I learned a lot."

Polanski shot an 86 on the first day of the state tournament to miss the final cut by one place.

"There were only six individuals who qualified for state," she said. "I was 13th and they only took 12. It was hard to make the cut. Only one individual went on and she ended up winning it. It was good just to make it there."

Polanski plays in the Traverse City Junior Golf League, where her family is based in the summer, and also competes in the Michigan Power Built Junior Tour. She has already qualified for the Tour's Tournament of Champions, set for Aug. 11-12 at the Forest Akers West Course in East Lansing.

"Winning (the PGA Junior Championship) has boosted my confidence," Polanski said. "I now know I can go out there and play with the top players in the state."

in the sixth inning by walking in two runs and giving up a two-run double with the bases loaded.

Jeff Niemiec suffered the loss in relief for the Bulldogs. Billy Marsack belted two of Livonia's eight hits. Jake Ghannom and Andy MacKellar had two RBI each.

The loss came just one day after the Bulldogs extended their winning streak to 10 games with a 9-1 victory over the Michigan Travelers Monday at Stevenson.

Daniel Wilks and Marsack had three hits apiece, while MacKellar had two hits. Matt Humenay had four RBI and Josh Stack drove in three more runs.

Eddie Conz won his fourth game. He pitched six innings, giving up one run on four hits, striking out six and walking four.

The Bulldogs are now 18-8 overall and 13-3 in league play.

"We've never dismasted, we've never holed, we've never had anything break we couldn't fix," Charlie said. "And we've never had anyone seriously injured.

"We've had torn sails, and that will put you out of a race very quickly."

No big blows to rival the one depicted in this year's blockbuster film, "The Perfect Storm"?

"We had winds of 50 mph come on very suddenly in the last two races ," said Peggy.

Although thunderstorms have struck periodically, none of them lasted too long, Charlie said. "We've been very fortunate we haven't had any of those (extended storms)," he said.

"I read that book (The Perfect Storm), but I don't recommend any of the crew see that movie until after the race."

A sound approach. More seriously, proper readiness is something Charlie insists is usually the difference in a race of this magnitude.

"In sailboat racing, preparation is everything," he said. "One of my favorite quotes is from (former Ohio State football coach) Woody Hayes: 'The harder I work, the luckier I get.'"

The Antals don't plan on winning the Millennium 600. But they do plan to race well.

Junior Olympics are something to be savored

BY PAUL BEAUDRY
STAFF WRITER
pbeaudry@oe.homecomm.net

OLYMPICS

Jason Walser was walking to the track at Hilbert Jr. High on Wednesday morning when he stopped and asked the man behind him to help him pin his competitor number on the back of his Detroit Lions' T-shirt.

Out of the blue, Walser started reminiscing like all grizzled veterans do, when they know it's time to move on.

"Yeah, I'm pretty sad because I really like this," said the 12-year-old from Redford. "It's been pretty fun. I've been doing this for two years now. The high jump was my favorite. It was real fun. I'd do handstands and the kids would watch me flip over the bar.

"One year, I was first in a relay. And I was sixth in the high jump once and third in softball. But this is my last time. I'm gonna miss it."

It was the annual Redford Junior Olympics, held for the 42nd year; a community track meet of sorts for the children of the township — and any other kids who happen to show up. The athletes — ranging from 12-year-old veterans like Walser to youngsters four and five — competed in field events like the long jump, high jump and softball throw to running events from 35 meters and up.

In the evening, those from 13-years-old up to adults competed in the Redford Senior Olympics, both sponsored annually by the Redford Township Parks and Recreation Department. A more traditional track meet, the Senior Olympics drew 62 competitors from Redford, as well as places like Detroit, Southfield, Livonia and Canton .

"For the most part, everything went well," said township summer playground director Heather Miller. "A lot of parents and workers thought it went smoothly and the kids had fun. The Senior Olympics were more competitive, but the attendance was low. We need more experienced track people running it."

While competition was the name of the game at night (Note to Walser: Start practicing now for next year), fun was the word in the afternoon.

Some 178 kids from Redford, Livonia, Garden City, Plymouth, Holly, West Bloomfield and more competed against each other to win ribbons commemorating their achievements. The top six finishers in each heat and event earned their ribbons.

"I like getting the ribbons the best," said 10-year-old Karen Jackett of Redford. "I've got 15 at home and I'm going to earn one for from the high jump today. I did pretty good, except for the softball toss. I did kinda bad at that because I'm not good at tossing."

Jackett's style of high jumping was, well, a little bit different. Consider it the physical equivalent of the "Music Man's" Prof. Harold Hill using the "think method" in teaching how to play a musical instrument.

"All I do is say 'I'm going to do this' before I do it," Jackett said. "I know when I'm going to make it and when I'm going to miss beforehand."

She used that method to clear 3-6 on the bar, but it didn't work when she tried to clear 3-10.

"I said I was going to make it, but I missed. It happens."

Even when competitors did well, they weren't always sure why — even if they were having fun.

"I liked throwing the ball," said five-year-old Dwayne Scott of Redford between bites of a cookie. "I threw the ball far, but not far enough to win."

For the record, he did win his heat of the 35-meter-dash, which improved his disposition considerably. And his seven-year-old sister, Lea, liked "playing the long jump" best because she took third.

"This is why do this — because the kids have fun and we want to let our kids win something," said Miller. "This year, we moved the track clubs to their own heats in the running events for the kids. It gives the hometown kids a chance to win a ribbon and gives them a chance to be a little more competitive."

But it was a long afternoon for some — and not just for the 25-30 volunteers who helped run both ends of the Olympics.

"It's kind of cool because you get to do the softball and the long jump and now I'm gonna do the running and everything," said eight-year-old Jeremy Stover of Redford, his knees slightly bent and his hands squarely on his hips as he tried to catch his breath.

"It's tiring me out. Yeah, I'm a little tired. I'm probably not gonna do good."

He should savor that feeling now. He only has four more years until he becomes a veteran like Walser and then has to move on.

Young birds learning to eat and sing

TIM NOWICKI

The breeding season for 2000 is drawing to a close.

A few species of birds are still nesting, mourning doves, and American goldfinch for example, but most birds and mammals are caring for young outside the nest.

Our backyard hedge is a place were a Carolina wren has been caring for its young. We are attracted to the yard by the VERY loud singing of the adult.

Though this bird is only 6 inches long, it sounds like a bird 14 inches long, with a flared, bell shape at the end of its beak.

Teaching the kids

To some people the song of the Carolina wren sounds like tea-kettle, tea-kettle, tea-kettle in a loud clear tone.

It seems like such loud singing would attract predators to the adult and the young.

But the advantage of singing with the young close at hand is to teach the young bird how to sing.

Scientists have discovered in several species of birds, that young birds must listen to an adult sing during a critical period of time.

If they do not hear the polished song of an adult, they will sing the crude version of their song they developed as they left the nest.

Certainly the adult in our yard is doing its job very well.

At times we have approached close enough to see both the young and the adult in the dense branches.

If we get too close to the young, the adult boldly confronts us with a hissing sound reminiscent of a snake.

Let's eat

Adults are also very busy feeding young fledglings.

I have seen young cardinals with their dark colored bill being fed by adult males. If you cannot see the dark colored bill, young birds can be identified by watching for the wing fluttering.

Like the female fluttering while being fed by the male during courtship in spring, which serves to maintain the bond between the two individuals, young birds behave in the same manner.

This is the time of the year when adult birds bring their young to your yard or feeding station.

Adult birds show their young not only what to eat, how to eat it, but also where to find a bonanza of nutrition.

Nothing like "word of mouth" to increase business at your feeding station.

Watch and learn

Feeding during summer also provides an opportunity to see the young of birds that use your feeders.

It will allow you to watch the learning that occurs with young birds.

They learn directly by watching their adults catch certain insects, and they discover how to capture them.

Watching birds feeding in a flock from a distance at this time of year can reveal the amateur techniques of the young versus the polished moves of the adults.

Young will poke and stab at something with jerky movements, while the experienced adults often make one smooth move to get their food.

Young animals are all around us these days, take some time to enjoy their learning experiences in your yard.

Age trumps youth in Farmington road race

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER
domears@oe.homecomm.net

The annual Farmington Family Festival road race featured a pair of first-time winners, but both are well known and long established in the running community.

Nancy Cassel, 50, of Northville was the women's overall winner with a time of 25:21; Matt Schroeder, 29, of Birmingham captured the men's title while running a 20:53 time.

Cassel's win was impressive in that she outran a lot of women half her age, finishing nearly a minute ahead of 18-year-old Jessie Lair.

"I didn't catch her until about two miles (into the race)," Cassel said. "If it had been a shorter race, she definitely would've been the winner.

"I actually couldn't see her until about a mile. I caught a glimpse of a ponytail and wondered 'Is that a man with his hair tied back?' and I started to realize it was a girl up there.

"In many races, there are some my age and older who are better runners who have retained some of that speed. Saturday I was just kinda lucky."

Cassel, who has been running competitively for most of the last 19 years, said she wasn't out to prove anything, but hopes she is an inspiration to other women.

She would like her running prowess to serve as an example "that life doesn't end at 45 or 50. For me, it won't end at 60 or 65. I fully intend to run as long as I'm able.

"After having a burnout phase, I realized I was going to be slower and not able to train as intensely as I once did, but it's still a wonderful sport and social activity to be able to meet with other runners.

"Sometimes men do outnumber women at these races. I know women have families and a lot responsibilities, but I'd like to see them get out and be active, too."

Cassel, who entered the Farmington race with her husband, Ed, didn't begin running until the week of her 31st birthday in 1981.

We are the champions: Matt Schroeder, 29 (at left), and Nancy Cassel, 50, were the male and female winners of the Farmington Area Family Fest run.

The mirror doesn't lie

"You can imagine what my incentive was," she said. "I had a desk job for years and felt like I was out of shape, and the reflection in the mirror was not what I wanted it to be.

"At first it was a struggle. I probably didn't make it a quarter mile the first morning I went out. My goal at that point was to run a mile without stopping."

But it wasn't long before Cassel, who works as a database administrator, was making progress. She ran her first marathon 10 months after she started. By the time she was 40, she was ranked nationally.

"I had never done anything active in my life, so you can imagine what an entire lifestyle change that was," Cassel said.

"After about 10 weeks, I entered a 10K race, and that sorta sparked my interest. It made me so enthusiastic about racing I had to do it again and again.

"It brought out a competitive sense in me. I really found a love for it and have been running and racing ever since."

Cassel used to race 25-30 times a year, but she was feeling burned out a little over a year ago and took some time off but has come back with renewed energy.

It's different

"I guess, as we age, we expect to slow down a little bit," she said, "but it's different when it starts happening to you.

"I was still pushing as if I was 35 years old instead of being more conservative and wise in my running.

"I continued to run but at a less intense pace. About a year ago, I started racing again. Since last March, I've been racing fairly frequently."

Cassel, who was born in Louisiana, was raised in South Carolina and moved to Michigan in 1992, thought the course would be more hilly than it was, which was OK with her.

"I loved the fact the last mile and a quarter was a nice gentle downhill to the finish," she said. "You can just kinda let it all out and stretch your legs. Gravity is on your side."

Cassel caught up with Lair at the two-mile mark, held her ground through the uphill third mile and used the downhill fourth to cement her win.

"In the last mile, I was running as hard as I could, because I had edged in front of some guys and wanted to make sure I held that lead," she said.

They say that anything is possible. In any business, if properly operated, the reward is spelled S-U-C-C-E-S-S. In the business of bowling, one local name stands out, and it is spelled V-O-I-G-H-T.

Mark and Diane Voight of Farmington Hills own the Community Bowling Centers. If you are a Detroit area bowler, it is likely that you have, at some time or another, bowled in at least one of their centers.

With 17 bowling centers, Mark and Diane have the largest privately held bowling operation in the nation.

Their Detroit area locations include Super Bowl in Canton, Skore Lanes in Taylor, Century Bowl in Waterford, Plum Hollow Lanes in Southfield, Merri Bowl in Livonia, Universal Lanes, Bronco Lanes and Bonanza Lanes in Warren, Troy Lanes, Sterling Lanes in Sterling Heights and Oxford Lanes in Dearborn Heights.

One thing stands out in how the Voights run their centers: They are in touch with the bowlers. They have gotten to know a good number of them and run the business as it should be, with the needs of the customer first. They have a good feel for the needs of the customers and are able to react quickly to them.

With so many locations, though, they cannot be everywhere. So they have been selective in choosing managers and employees.

But "The picture is changing," Mark said. "No longer can we look at the leagues as the bedrock of bowling. More and more, recreational bowlers are coming along who just bowl for the fun of it, and do not want to commit for a long season."

To adjust to present-day reality, it is necessary "to model the business after short-term relationships, from the once-a-year open bowler to others who will come in 10 times a year for 10 different events," Mark said. "As the league base has shrunk, the open or casual bowling market has exploded, which includes parties and tournaments."

Community Bowling Centers short-term goals are to make sure that the operating specifics are in order, cost-to-sales ratios are maintained, wage levels are kept up and everything that makes this a successful operation is maintained well.

"Long-term goals are to grow at a steady rate as we have in the past, to get to 25 centers within the next five years," Mark said.

■ 'Long-term goals are to grow at a steady rate as we have in the past, to get to 25 centers within the next five years.'

Mark Voight
—Community Bowling Centers

He learned to bowl in Flint, where he grew up. He became a pretty good bowler by the time he was in high school and was sponsored into a couple of tournaments. He developed an early love for the game. "I love the game now, and just wish I could bowl more often, but unfortunately, I am too busy."

One of the items that keeps him so busy is getting up so many tournaments, such as the Michigan State Tournament, which was recently held at Bonanza and Sterling Lanes.

There are a lot of charity fundraisers, which raise about a half a million dollars every year, Mark said.

Community Bowling Centers are a great example of the spirit of American free enterprise at its finest.

Art camps bring music, dance closer to home

Unless you have plenty of disposable income and are willing to drive hundreds of miles north to Interlochen or Blue Lake arts camps, there are few opportunities for children to steep themselves in dance and music in southeast Michigan during summer.

But things are changing. Canton dance teacher Jan Sickle is offering students (ages 8-16) the chance to learn new steps and keep from getting rusty during the Michigan Dance Express Camp Sunday-Thursday, July 23-27 at Camp Copneconic in Fenton.

Summer Camps
- Flute Ensemble Camp with Deborah Malinowski-Podolka, 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday-Friday, Aug. 7-11 at Plymouth Community Arts Council, 774 N. Sheldon at Junction. To register, call (734) 416-4278
- Michigan Dance Express Camp Sunday-Thursday, July 23-27 at Camp Copneconic, Fenton. To register, call (734) 397-9755 or (313) 562-1203

The cost is $295 and includes instruction, lodging and food for 5 days/nights.

In addition to Sickle, teachers Carol Jackson of the Dance Connection in Canton, and Tammy Nastev of the Robert Lee School of Dance in Garden City will show students the finer points of ballet, tap and jazz.

"We found a lot of camps for kids into soccer and cheerleading but no place for them to go if they wanted to dance," said Sickle, owner of the Dance Connection, and Jan's Dance Connection in Dearborn Heights. "What's really nice is they get to learn different styles from different teachers. And the last day they perform. It's a lot of fun. All the parents come and watch. It's laid back, non-competitive and they get to meet kids they wouldn't normally come in contact with."

Sickle has scheduled fun time into the young dancers days as well. Up at 8 a.m., campers have breakfast then warm up with a series of exercises that stretch their muscles and prepare them for a day of dance; morning and afternoon dance classes follow. Afterwards, there's swimming and boating then dinner and a chance to exchange stories around a campfire.

"The nice thing is there's a good lifeguard staff and parents don't have to worry," said Sickle. "They test children before they allow them to swim. There's also a nursing staff on hand 24 hours. It's a safe environment."

Flute Ensemble Camp

Closer to home, Deborah Malinowski-Podolka is preparing to teach the first ever Flute Ensemble Camp Monday-Friday, Aug. 7-11 at the Plymouth Community Arts Council. Flutists, age 10 through high school with at least one school year of experience, will learn in a relaxed setting. The cost is $150 plus a materials fee which varies according to level.

Malinowski-Podolka is an experienced teacher with a master's degree in flute performance from the University of Michigan. In addition to giving instruction at the Flute Specialist in Royal Oak and at her home in Plymouth, she'll be teaching at the University of Michigan, Wayne State University and Marygrove College in fall. She recently gave master classes at Interlochen. Ten of her students were accepted there this year. Four went to Blue Lake.

"There's no flute camp or ensemble in the area," said Malinowski-Podolka. "The goal is in fall to have an ongoing Plymouth Canton flute ensemble. There's a great need for it in the area. When students enter high school, there's only marching band. There's nothing wrong with that but there are students who want to play a different type of music. There's not a lot of concert opportunities unless you want to join one of the youth orchestras and with those it's very limited as far as the amount of positions available."

Sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council, the camp will allow students to work solo as well, playing flute choir literature with accompanist Cheryl March. A concert will take place 7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 11.

A week before the largest gathering of artists and craftsmen in the country, the rush is on as exhibitors work to stock booths before the arrival of some 500,000 fairgoers, Wednesday-Saturday, July 19-22. The artists barely had time to chat. Their speech was anxious as they talked about preparing for the four day extravaganza – actually three fairs in one – the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair, State Street Art Fair and Summer Art Fair.

Tom LeGault, a Plymouth painter, has come full circle since the early 70s when he first exhibited in the Summer Art Fair. Back then there were only 250 artists. Today, 30 years later, 554 artists exhibit in 540 booths which includes LeGault's at the corner of Main and Liberty.

Contemporary gold: Shari Cohen produces her jewelry using the lost wax casting method.

"I'm amazed at how many people block vacation time from all over the country. I'm working smarter not harder," said LeGault as he described his strategy for coping with all the madness. He begins painting the minute the fairs open.

"It's physical work to create the 5-foot paintings I have in the last few years. My arms feel like they're falling out of their sockets so I'm doing a smaller line of work – 24 by 24 and 24 by 32-inch. Norman Rockwell said he'd never paint anything bigger than he could get into a taxi cab, and for people coming in on a shuttle, this is just the right size. I'm also seeing a trend toward decorating in groupings. I'm also returning to painting lakefront scenes and harbor towns such as Leeland.

"Our information and high tech-driven society has revved up and people are looking to slow down. When they see the barns and lighthouses, they're drawn into a time when the pace wasn't so fast."

Bas relief: Claudia Tann brings clay tiles to the Ann Arbor Art Fairs.

Fast pace

Shari Cohen thrives on the fast pace of the art fairs. Drenching rains on opening day last year didn't prevent customers from making their way to Cohen's booth where gold contemporary and figurative jewelry abound. "It's an incredible experience there in Ann Arbor," said Cohen, a Farmington Hills jeweler. "It was pouring rain and people kept on coming. I took shelter on the steps of the Kelsey Archaeological Museum and was carrying out business there."

This year she's offering lapel pins that feature everything from dancers to hockey players created with the lost wax casting process. Look for her in Booth 269 on State Street. Cohen has exhibited her work in the Summer Art Fair since 1976.

While Claudia Tann welcomes the unending parade of visitors browsing her booth, the Farmington Hills ceramist is grateful fair hours were changed last year. Because the fair opens at 10 a.m. instead of 9 a.m., Tann has an extra hour to gear up for a day of selling tiles and ornaments in Booth 161 on State Street and South University in the Summer Art Fair. She began exhibiting in the fair, sponsored by the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans, in the late 80s. In addition to bas

B'ham songwriter's new CD creates a sweet-sounding landscape

Creating harmony: Michael King's A Thousand Faces showcases his talent as a lyricist, musician, arranger and producer.

BY FRANK PROVENZANO

On some nights, after a recording session or a club gig ends in the early morning hours, Michael King often unwinds by driving through suburbia, a landscape, he admits, that can be remarkably monotonous. Not too unlike the tedious mainstream sensibilities of major label record executives who decide Lolita-like lip-synching dolls and chest-thumping, hiccup ranting rappers are the music commodities of the day.

For King, 43, an accomplished guitarist, producer and songwriter in the 1970s easy-listening tradition, music isn't so much a product as it is a way of life. A passion, for King, that began when he first strummed a $100 Harmony acoustic guitar, and continues to this day with a boyish wonderment about what it'll take to buy a Pendulum Amp for his weekly Tuesday night gigs at Four Green Fields in Royal Oak.

This Friday and Saturday, King will perform original material and cover songs on the Tappan Street Stage at the Ann Arbor Art Fairs.

Hope & illusion

The last two decades have provided the sweet-sounding Billy Joel tenor with a life-defining lesson, which, of course, King has translated into an often-recited lyric in his song of hope and illusion, "Nevada."

Asked about the odds that his independently recorded CD, A Thousand Faces, released in April, will be picked up by a major label, King recites the line: "Destinations are the same as the ground that you're standing on."

The idea is the philosophical equivalent of the Indian notion of "Wherever you are, there you are." Music, for King, isn't based on marketplace trends, but an ethereal ambition "to be real."

In a cogent phrase, King nails the question and sums up a musical odyssey that began in the industrial cultural cauldron of Allen Park as a teenage guitarist in a dance band and culminated with an Atlantic Records deal and a shot at the proverbial "big time" as a member of Rebel Heels in the late 1980s. (The "deal" was worth about $200,000.)

Since the break with Rebel Heels in the early 1990s, King has pursued a career as a studio musician, and producer.

To keep up with the trend of the day, Atlantic Records demanded a "harder sound" from the band with lead singer Liz Laren taking on a sexier image.

relief tiles, she'll bring fruit-shaped ornaments including a pear glistening with a green mother of pearl finish.

"It's the biggest show in the country," said Tann who will also exhibit her work in the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Center in November, and the Oakland Community College Potters Market the first weekend in December. "The draw is great because you get a lot of exposure for wholesale accounts. That little hour makes a difference to straighten my booth and get up for the day."

New exhibitor

Paul Runde is exhibiting his blown glass sculptural vessels in the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair for the first time this year. He isn't quite sure what to expect. He's just proud to be accepted into one of the most prestigious art fairs in the country. Some 1,800 artists apply annually for 100 open spaces.

"I was very surprised I got in on my first shot," said Runde, a Pontiac artist who began blowing glass five years ago after taking an extension course at the Center for Creative Studies in Detroit. Later, he studied with Albert Young in a Birmingham Bloomfield Art Center class offered at the Michigan Hotglass Workshop where he now teaches. Runde will also display his work at Arts, Beats & Eats, Art n' Apples in Rochester and the Detroit Festival of the Arts in September.

"My work has been evolving," said Runde. "I'm not trying to lock myself into anything. Glass is a liquid form and with a little bit of direction, I let it take form."

Runde is just one of several new glass artists exhibiting at the fair that started it all 41 years ago. Among the more unusual offerings are hand-crafted kayaks by John Seitz of Pennsylvania, carved wood figures by Chris Donnelly, and Tom Haney's folk-style work. Five of the artists – Trent Bosch, Galen Carpenter, Michael Mode, Geoffrey Wilkes and Barry MacDonald – currently have work on display in The Fine Art of Wood: The Bohlen Collection at the Detroit Institute of Arts.

Among the 15 artists demonstrating their work at the corner of S. University and E. University is Patrick Dragon, one of 30 original artists selected for The White House Collection of American Crafts currently on exhibit at the University of Michigan Museum of Art.

"We have a lot of new artists – photography and jewelry because we re-jury categories every four years, and a lot of wood and glass; it's exciting for us to see young artists," said Shary Brown, director of the Ann Arbor Street Art Fair featuring 200 artists plus 12 exhibitors from the Ann Arbor Potters Guild. "We're seeing art that's more deliberative, content oriented instead of decorative, built on American tradition but done in new ways. In the past it's been colorful and abstract. Last year we saw a lot of realistic paintings, this year a lot of surrealistic, thoughtful and fun."

Selecting artists

Kathy Krick's spent over a year assessing and selecting the 330 artists appearing in the State Street Area Art Fair. Now in its 33rd year, the fair focuses on traditional and contemporary work including needleart by the Ann Arbor Fiber Arts Guild.

"We have a ton of new stuff – 3D, jewelry and fiber," said Krick. "So many new artists, a lot of new metal, sculpture and wood. A panel of nine juries the slides for entry. A street committee of 11 choose the awards after seeing the actual art."

The Summer Art Fair is returning to its roots to celebrate three decades of offering a wide range of media according to John Yanchula, art fair director for the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans. Founded 30 years ago by a group of 125 artists and students from the University of Michigan as the Free Arts Festival, this year's sprawling fair features artists from the U.S., Canada and Belgium.

"In a day and age when most visual art fairs have been turned into festivals we've kept our focus on the visual arts," said Yanchula.

After all, visual arts is what the Ann Arbor Art Fairs are all about.

"They were interested in putting out another Lita Ford, and I was interested in the Indigo Girls," he said. "It was a sexist stereotype that they thought they could sell. But really, we wanted to be more like R.E.M."

In the end, King realized a simple truth: "You can only be who you are."

Three years ago, he released his easy-listening compilation of songs, Nevada. And in April, King's A Thousand Faces was greeted with an enthusiastic response by the local music community.

"A good song, for me, is like a slice of life. Everyone can relate to it because of the melody and lyrics seem inevitable."

Be tough

Like many other ambitious local songwriters, King isn't sitting contentedly, waiting to be anointed by a major label. He's a sought-after performer, studio musician and producer, who has worked with an impressive lineup of artists, including Jill Jack, James Wailin and John D. Lamb.

"You have to be tough to be an artist," said King. "You have to fight for your art every step of the way. If you don't believe in it, then who will?"

And clearly, he isn't expecting any favors. The music, for King, should speak for itself.

"You hope the local radio stations will listen to determine if it's quality," he said. "But I'm not going to romanticize about their obligation to play my music because I'm from the area."

King's two CDs include a range of 23 songs with a sophisticated arrangement and impressive musicianship. Many of the themes are clearly about middle-age dilemmas.

"Today's music is so self-absorbed," said King, sitting at the mixing console at his in-home recording studio. "The whole part of music is about connecting with an audience."

Four years ago, King tread on unfamiliar ground — marriage. Admittedly, being married has refocused his life, and put his art in perspective. And about two years ago, King became a father. (He and his wife are expecting their second child in September.)

"Now I look at things through a lens," said King. "The thing about music and being married is that with both you're in a constant state of discovery."

Artistic makeup makes for better bridal pictures

Summertime is synonymous with wedding time.

The wedding day is the most important date in a woman's life and on that day she wants to look and feel her very best. The bride's image and the resulting memories are captured in the wedding pictures and videos, to be shared with friends and love ones throughout a lifetime.

DISCOVERING BEAUTY

MARY ANNE TOCCALINO

A makeup artist can positively impact wedding pictures and videos. There are makeup artists who even specialize in weddings. To understand why a wedding makeover requires a professional who understands the effects of the camera, it is important to consider how the lasting images are created.

The image, seen by the naked eye, is taken in by the retina and transferred to the brain. Cameras record a two-dimensional, flat image whereas the naked eye sees a three-dimensional image, which translates into photographs that exaggerate facial flaws. A wide full face will appear wider, close-set or a deep-set eyes photograph closer-set or deeper-set and sometimes may appear much smaller when the bride smiles.

To develop a photograph, the image is transferred to film where it is created chemically, while videos are electronic images recorded on magnetic tape. The trained professional understands these differences and uses the proper tools of their trade accordingly to adjust to these different mediums.

There are makeup solutions for those of us who have not been blessed with model bone structure. Because the camera has the effect of flattening the face, a professional makeup artist, through the skilled use of highlighting, contouring and placement of the proper color, creates the illusion of perfectly defined bone structure. The makeup artist can create the illusion of large upturned eyes, high cheekbones, a strong jaw line and the perfect mouth.

Lighting is another important element makeup artists have to consider. Wedding photography takes place in three types of lighting.

The first is natural light or the outdoor light produced by the sun, which is the harshest, purest type of light. Makeup must be soft and done in neutral shades to look natural. Dark or bright colors will look harsh and aging.

Another form of light is fluorescent. This light is often found in department stores and homes. To counter the green tones this cool white light casts, warmth must be added to the face through golden shades of makeup.

The incandescent light, typically seen in restaurants and hotel ballrooms, casts red undertones. Because this light is dimmer, a softer, rosier, makeup must be applied stronger and in more intense richer hues to show up.

It's important to consider if the photos will be taken with black-and-white film, color film or both. With color photography the camera is sensitive to red and blue hues. In this case, makeup artists and photographers advise that brides wear concealer and foundation to even out the irregular skin tones. Translucent powder is also important to set foundation and eliminate shine caused by perspiration. Perspiration will catch the flash and translate on film as blank white spots.

Black-and-white photography records on camera as extreme white to black and a spectrum of various shades of gray. It's especially important in this type of photography to consider the intensity and shades of colors when correcting a negative feature or emphasizing the positive. For example, a deep blue-red lipstick will photograph nearly black while a brown-pink will photograph neutral or medium gray. The techniques of contouring and highlighting may also vary from color photography. Darker shades are used to contour and create more contrasts in the face.

To eliminate any chance of poor photographic memories and to enhance the beauty of the bride, consider engaging a professional makeup artist trained in the specialized craft of photography and film makeup to insure a camera ready face.

Sprinting for bargains: Susan Bank of Novi takes off running after winning a 90-second shopping spree, valued up to $2,000. Nordstrom Rack employee Tina Reese is pushing the cart for her.

Steppin' up: A fourth generation Nordstrom, Blake, came from Seattle to be present at the grand opening of the retailer's discount store at the Troy Marketplace. Nordstrom Rack has 30,000 pairs of shoes in stock. Bargain shoppers who ran to the shoe racks found a variety of brand names, sizes and widths, just like the full-line department store.

RACKIN' EM UP

Nordstrom opens its 1st discount store in state

BY JANET SUGAMELI

This shoe fits bargain shoppers pretty good.

Friday morning, Nordstrom Inc. opened Nordstrom Rack, a discount retail store in Troy, carrying the transferred name brand and designer merchandise from the full-line department store, including 30,000 pairs of shoes.

"I love Nordstrom and I've never been to the Rack," said Angela Binkowski, of Auburn Hills who took the day off of work to shop. "Opening day is a great opportunity to get a good selection. But, the real reason I came is the shoes."

The store location is in the new Troy Marketplace shopping plaza on the southwest corner of Big Beaver and Rochester roads, just east of the Nordstrom full-line store at the Somerset Collection.

"It was very obvious for us that from the success of our Troy (department) store, we would eventually have a Rack store here too," said Blake Nordstrom, who came from the company headquarters in Seattle for the opening.

"In our other communities we see how much our customers like to cross-shop from the full-line to the discount," said Gemma Lionello, east coast/central states regional manager for Nordstrom Rack. "The response is just phenomenal when Nordstrom Rack is close to our full-line store."

Nordstrom, famous for its large shoe selection, has name-brand shoes in the new store as well as career and casual clothing for women in missy, petite and women's sizes. In addition, shoppers will find men's sportswear, active wear, casual wear, suits, ties coats, formal wear and accessories and infant, toddler, kids and preteen fashions at a discount of 30 to 75 percent off the retail prices.

"We are mainly a clearance center for the full-line stores that comes off the rack to make room for the fresh lines," Lionello said. "The clothes are in-season."

The 36,000-square foot store is the 32nd Nordstrom Rack location in the country and the first in Michigan.

Royal Oak resident Doug Bevington was looking at the men's shirts when he said "pretty good prices and good quality."

"Most department stores have outlets and it's about time Detroit got some," he added.

There are more than 100 employees, most of which have been hired from the local area. "The quality of the people we've been able to hire has been wonderful," Blake Nordstrom said.

The first Nordstrom Rack opened in the lower level of the downtown Seattle store in 1975 as a clearance center for the full-line store.

"I'm excited about the bargains," said Jan Kozowicz of Rochester who stood outside with hundreds of people prior to the opening Friday morning.

One Nordstrom Rack shopper, Susan Bank of Novi, got her chance to grab up to $2,000 in merchandise within 90 seconds when she was chosen in the "Race for Values" drawing. She went for the shoes, then the men's sport coats and finally women's special occasion apparel. "I'm very happy with what I got," Bank said. "I'm going to make everybody happy."

Get ready, set, go: At left, Troy resident Rudaina Kainaya holds the hand of her grandmother Martha Fakhoury as they run into the store together. The couple were the first shoppers to enter the store.

Entertaining story amplifies golden oldies in Detroit radio

My first radio was a pocket-size, teal-colored Japanese transistor.

It may have been the weakest radio ever built as it could only draw in the closest station to our home in Ferndale. The station was WEXL, at the time the only country music showcase in metro Detroit. So while other kids were listening to Elvis, Chuck and Little Richard, I was listening to George Jones, Porter Waggoner and Jim Reeves. Very uncool.

Of course, I heard the other music on other radios, including any time I could turn my mother's radio away from Bing, Nat and Rosemary and others on WJR or WWJ. Radio was awakening to teen culture and when I was in high school that meant a radio showdown between WKNR and CKLW.

But the story begins much earlier than that, as entertainingly chronicled in David Carson's book, "Rockin' Down the Dial" from Troy's Momentum Books. The story really begins in the late 1940s with Ed McKenzie, Jack the Bellboy, Detroit's first star disc jockey. It's the story of a medium forced to first reinvent itself and then tailor itself to the emerging dominant market, teenagers. It's a story set in a city that would help define the musical sound of a generation, in no small part because of the power of its local radio stations.

Pleasant memories

Carson has talked to a lot of people who helped make Detroit radio in those years, creating a flood of pleasant memories for those of us who grew up with our ears stuck to the radio whenever we weren't in a classroom. He offers perspective and insight as well as a strong, fairly complete and factual survey, with an emphasis, as the title suggests, on rock and rhythm and blues.

Detroit was already a radio powerhouse in the medium's golden era. Both WXYZ and WJR created nationally broadcast programs, most notably XYZ's famous trio: "The Lone Ranger," "The Green Hornet," and "Sgt. Preston of the Yukon." But by the end of World War II, that kind of radio was beginning its slow fadeout against the power of television. Radio had to become something different, and Ed McKenzie was one of the first to create that new style of radio.

WJBK began "Jack the Bellboy" in 1945, the title coming from a popular jazz tune of the period. McKenzie was given the freedom to pick his own music, tailoring it to a young audience. At that time, the music was a mixture of be-bop, pop, jump or "race" music. McKenzie's first love was jazz, but, ironically, his daring in playing "race" or rhythm and blues helped usher in the rock era. McKenzie's personal, humorous, low-key style was a perfect fit. His honest opinions on the records he played was also refreshing. He created a standard on which everything that followed was measured.

Others followed quickly, establishing their own unique styles including Eddie Chase and the comedy team of Gentile and Binge (the first of the manic morning crews, that are now a radio staple). The success of WJBK made other stations take note, especially WXYZ.

Disc jockeys

The first disc jockeys to catch my ears were noted for their jive, their noise, their over-the-top enthusiasm: "Frantic" Ernie Durham on WJLB and Mickey Shorr on XYZ. Here was rock and rhythm disc jockeying to match the music. Here was a whole new way of talkin' baby, dig it. With Ernie and Mickey, rock radio had arrived.

Eventually, free form disc jockey radio gave way to the Top 40 format, though some jockeys still created their own sound around the music. For a while JBK, XYZ and Windsor's CKLW battled for the white teen audience, while JLB and CHB battled for the black teen audience.

In 1963 small WKMH in Dearborn became WKNR, Keener, just as the British Invasion and Motown were about to change the sound of music. For a while Keener and CKLW would compete for the white teen audience. Of course, hip white teens were listening to CHB.

By the late '60s, college student reaction to the timidness of Top 40 led to the creation of underground radio, particularly WABX.

Carson covers it all from the payola scandal that unfairly doomed Mickey Shorr's radio career to the popular dance parties and Motown revues to the emergence of CKLW's aggressive and influential early '70s sound. He profiles the legends of Detroit radio: Tom Clay, Robin Seymour, Lee Alan, Joel Sebastian, Toby David, Casey Kasem (before he went national), Dick Purtan, Marc Avery, Dave Dixon, Martha Jean and the king of middle-of-the-road J.P. McCarthy.

This is a lively trip down memory lane.

New Zealand's cup runneth over

BY BEVERLY A. LEN
SPECIAL WRITER

■ For scenic beauty and adrenaline adventures, South Island cannot be surpassed. The West Coast has some of New Zealand's most isolated regions.

"We have your trophy," shouted a beaming Kiwi (New Zealander) as 250,000 people jostled for a good view of the parade. "That's OK," I shouted back, "We have your SOCKS!" The Kiwi laughed. "Goodonya, Mate!" he called as he melted into the crowd.

It was March 4 – two days after New Zealand won the America's Cup sailing trophy for the second time. The Host City of Auckland was ecstatic. Half of the crowd had bright red socks attached to hats, suspenders, crowns and banners.

Even the police had red socks tucked into their checkered hatbands. Loine Van Pelt of California and I were no exceptions. Someone in the crowd had given us socks that we tied on our hats, like long red ears, and looked just as goofy as everyone else. The sale of red socks helped support Team New Zealand's defense of their 1995 winning of the America's Cup, the oldest trophy in world sport (1848.) For a slide-show of the race, log on to www.americascup.org.

The sailing event isn't the only New Zealand challenge. Try driving on the left, or as they say it, on the "leeft." Truly, it isn't that difficult and driving is the best way to see the wonders New Zealand has to offer.

It's an easy three hours south of Auckland to Otorohanga. There, at the Kiwi House Native Bird Park you can see New Zealand's endemic national bird, the kiwi. The existence of this pear-shaped, flightless, nocturnal bird is precarious because of habitat destruction and introduced predators.

Fifteen minutes from Otorohanga are the Waitomo Glowworm Caves. You glide through a pitch-dark cave in a boat and see tiny dots of light on the cave's ceiling. Thousands of glowworm larvae are simply doing a little "fishing" with sticky silk lines. The larvae emit light to attract flying insects to the lines. The effect is ethereal. You can also tube through the caves, over waterfalls; or go repelling 150 feet down into the "Baby Grand" cave.

As for me and Loine, two middle-aged ladies, we thought the boat ride was heady enough.

Thirty minutes east of Waitomo is sensational Rotorua. Nestled in a geothermal valley, clouds of steam rise over boiling water pools and geysers. For hundreds of years, New Zealand's indigenous people, the Maori, have used the waters of these natural cauldrons for cooking, cleaning and bathing.

Although assimilated into the modern community, the Maori maintain their own thermal village, Whakarewarewa, within Rotorua. During the day, guides provide an overview of Maori history, culture, customs and beliefs through demonstrations and dance. Visit their Web site, www.whakarewarewa.com

Culture

In the evening, to participate in the spirit of ancestral Maori culture, we attended a Hangi (feast) offered by Tamaki Tours, Maori-owned and operated, and winner of the Supreme Award in Tourism.

During a 30-minute ride to a recreated village in the forest, our bus-driver guide educated his tribe (passengers) on manners, respect for traditional Maori greetings (pressing foreheads and noses together), warrior intimidation stances (bulged eyes, extended tongue), and protocol for visiting tribes. By the time five bus loads of tourists arrived at the village, everyone understood that this was not some hokey performance put on to amuse, but a sincere cross-cultural experience. The village visit culminated in the Hangi feast of foods cooked the traditional way on hot stones in an earthen oven.

We felt the Tamaki tour was the highlight of our North Island experiences. We Hangi'd to the fullest, preparing for the next day's crossing on the Interislander ferry, sailing from Wellington to Picton.

Scenic beauty

For scenic beauty and adrenaline adventures, South Island cannot be surpassed. The West Coast has some of New Zealand's most isolated regions. We drove through lush mountains where huge palms, ferns, evergreen and deciduous trees grow side by side in wild abundance.

With mountains in the rearview mirror, the topography changed drastically to flat savanna, then quickly to rolling vineyards and back to majestic mountains. The pattern repeated about every 80 kilometers (50 miles.)

Before reaching Fox Glacier, we stopped for "petrol." It was an abrupt stop against a pole. Now we would have to find a "panel beater" and get an "eestament" of repairs for the car rental agency. But, we still had three days left in New Zealand. We were headed for Fox Glacier, then Queenstown, Dunedin and Christchurch. Anything could happen before our time was up. And did.

Near Queenstown, we stopped to eat. The menu written on a board was limited, but the pub was the only place open. We settled for grilled cheese and onion sandwiches, "weegies" (potato wedges) and a pint each. Fortunately, only one pint.

As Loine pulled out of the pub's car park, lights flashed from a dark vehicle on the side of the road. We were pulled over by the local constable.

"Evening, Ma'am," said the officer. "We're doing raindom breethalyzer teests. Plaze spake yer nime into the devoiz." Loine stared at him with a deer-in-the-headlight look for several seconds. Then came the Ah-ha. She passed the breath test.

It would take more than a few pints to get either of us to bungy jump at the Kawarau Bridge, the world's first bungy site, near Queenstown. We preferred to get our stimulation skimming over three inches of water at 70 miles an hour in a jetboat making 360 degree turns on the Shotover River.

Using the town as a base, this is one of the most impressive resort and adventure areas in the Southern Hemisphere. Here, you'll find a full menu of exhilarating experiences such as white water rafting, bungy jumping, jet boating and world-class skiing on mountains and glaciers accessible by helicopter. There are also trips to Milford Sound, caves, wineries, fishing, golf and scenic flights over the Southern Alps.

Sharing culture: Maori performers share their culture through stories and dance.

Relax

Three hours east, the Scottish town of Dunedin is a perfect place to relax. This area is noted for its massive sheep and cattle farms as well as spectacular coastal and mountain scenery. A leisurely trip to a colony of rare Royal Albatross or yellow-eyed penguins is a must.

Sadly, we had only one day left before catching a plane in Christchurch. To raise our spirits, we took a tour of Speight's Brewery (1876), in the heart of Dunedin, and ate at Dicey O'Reilly's Irish pub, with live music and Riverdance performances.

The next day, at Christchurch airport, a friendly Kiwi asked where we were heading. I told him Australia. He asked, "American, are you?" I smiled, nodded and waited for the inevitable. He grinned from ear to ear.

"We have your trophy!" I reached into my bag and pulled out red socks.

"Yes," I said, "but will our trophy keep your feet warm?" He patted my shoulder.

"Goodonya, Mate. Have a good time in Australia."

And we did. But that's another story.

KITCHEN KAPERS

KEN ABRAMCZYK

Where there's smoke, there's flavored food

Your parents or siblings are visiting, and you haven't a clue what to prepare for them in terms of eating and entertaining.

For entertainment, you may want to get the woods and the irons out and head out to the golf course. But first, get the other woods out – the apple, cherry, mesquite and hickory.

Pull out that smoker and fire it up.

The smoker. What a great cooking tool.

Use it to add a little – or a lot – of flavor. It introduces a world of different flavors to food preparation.

Preserving history

Smoking is slow cooking of meats, poultry, fish or vegetables over hard woods. It allows you to sit in a hammock with a cold beverage and relax or work in the yard while the smoker does its stuff.

Historically, smoking was used to roast or preserve meats or fish and keep them edible for a longer time, Jane Butel writes in "Jane Butel's Southwestern Grill," (The Berkley Publishing Group, New York, 1996).

Often brines are used for roasts or fish to marinate them overnight before smoking, so sometimes there is some preparation required. (Brines are chock full of salt, and aren't healthy for those on sodium-restricted diets.) But Butel also points out that smoking does not require adding any fat and quite often, the process renders some fat out of the meat.

Time well spent

It takes time, but the process is worth it for a nice, offbeat change of pace and a heartier tasting meal. Smoking is all about variety and an adventure in food.

Steaks, chicken and ribs don't need brine, just a little a rub of herbs and spices. Garlic or onion powders, cayenne or black pepper can be rubbed and herbs are a natural to use on foods, such as a tarragon, thyme or rosemary on a chicken, the same herbs along with dill on fish. Keep in mind that if you plan to cook these foods over an open flame later, that fresh herbs tend to burn.

Woods

Apple and cherry woods really do sweeten chicken, ribs and delicate, less oily, fish. Use mesquite and hickory woods to flavor hearty beef roasts, pork chops and heavier oily fish, like salmon. (Mix combinations, according to personal taste preferences. You could also use cherry wood to smoke salmon.)

Larger chunks of wood create a steadier burn than the smaller chips and wood bits. The flavoring also occurs when the wood smolders into ashes, so you don't necessarily need to add wood constantly to your pan. Let the wood burn completely into ashes before adding fresh wood.

The extent of smoking depends on your mood or how much time you have to prepare these dishes. Extend the smoking time for smoked salmon and beef jerky. Shorten the smoking time for a delicate, subtle smoky taste.

While summertime seems like a natural time for smoking and barbecuing, you can also use your smoker in the winter, but the cooking time is longer. Holiday gatherings with my family often feature a good hearty salmon, brined in a soy-wine mix, then smoked for about 12 hours. I serve it as an appetizer, but it's one that can be served anytime. I've also smoked salmon for 30 minutes to an hour, then finished it on the grill for just a few short minutes for a more subtle taste. Halibut smokes much quicker than salmon.

My favorite is maple smoked turkey, brined overnight in a mixture of salt, brown sugar, white wine and maple syrup, then smoked for 3 to 3-1/2 hours or 30 minutes a pound.

Ribs are good partially smoked, then barbecued, but I've had them

It's Cool... It's Delicious... It's Homemade Ice Cream

BY PATSY LAFAVE
SPECIAL WRITER

There's no better way to cool off than with a dish of delicious ice cream. But not just any ice cream – homemade ice cream. Instead of going to the store and buying ice cream, why not whip up a batch of your own?

Growing up in Tennessee, I remember sitting under a big shade tree, barefoot, eating a big bowl of ice cream that had just come out of the freezer. And I don't mean the refrigerator freezer.

Sunday afternoons were a great time for families to get-together. While the women did whatever they did in the kitchen, the men would crank the ice cream freezer, and the kids would run up every five minutes and ask, "Is it ready yet?" Churches had ice cream socials where several families bring freezers filled with their favorite flavors of ice cream.

Watching the creation of homemade ice cream over the years, ice cream lovers can pick up a few tips.

As a friend found out several years ago at a church social, don't leave the paddles out of the freezer, especially if it's to be hand-cranked. People get testy after they've turned that handle for hours and the ice cream still isn't firm, and then they discovered someone forgot to put the paddles in. It does make a delicious milk shake, though.

Some people think homemade ice cream is a little less than perfect because it sometimes melts fast, and the coldness gives some people headaches. To slow the melting process, serve the ice cream in chilled bowls.

I like to eat the ice cream as soon as it's done, but if I had a little more patience and left it in the pail in the freezer for a while before eating it, it would get a lot harder. Some people say holding the filled dish in the palm of your hand will keep you from getting a headache. (Since ice cream doesn't give me a headache, I can't swear that works, but it's worth a try.) Those two problems solved, homemade ice cream is now perfect and a great treat to serve any time.

Beverly and Joe Arsenault of Garden City had their first taste of homemade ice cream last summer at a friend's house. Now they share it with their kids and grandkids.

"Its taste is excellent," Beverly said. "I like hard ice cream, so I have to make it ahead of time to give it time to freeze harder." Beverly used a Donvier maker, which doesn't need ice or salt, to make a treat for her grandchildren. Just freeze the cylinder, fill with the ice cream mixture, give it a few turns, and in about 20 minutes it's at the soft ice cream stage.

Since Beverly works for the Livonia Public Schools, she said, "I'll have to tell the people in Livonia Schools about this. They might want to make the uncooked ice cream for a class activity or school event."

Kathleen Frantz of Livonia said she prefers making her own ice cream "because I can get away from the stabilizers and artificial ingredients." She said she doesn't have a preference in flavor.

"We never make the same flavor twice. There's a lot more variety when you make it yourself. You're not stuck with the mass-market flavors."

The Frantz children, Kyle, 9, and Korynn, 6, said it was fun to help their mom make the ice cream, and "it tastes better," Kyle said. At home, Kathleen uses a White Mountain ice cream maker, but at the Golden Mushroom in Southfield, where she's the pastry chef, she uses an Italian maker.

Ice cream lovers can make new memories – or to bring back some old ones – by creating ice cream at the next get-together. It's easy. It's fun. It's delicious. No matter which you desire – vanilla, chocolate, strawberry, non-dairy, or sugar free – you can make a cool dessert that will delight everyone. It doesn't have to be a special day to make ice cream, but it can make any day special.

There are a lot of recipes to choose from. Some require cooking; others do not. You may have a favorite one that's been handed down through the family.

There are many recipes for different flavors on the Internet and in recipe books. If you have an ice cream maker, a recipe book probably came in the box.

Now, go out there and start making some memories of your own.

Hop to it, if you're interested in craft-brewed beers, circle Saturday, July 22, on your calendar. Participating Michigan Brewers Guild members will have their best pours on tap for sampling at the third annual Summer Festival at Greenmead Historical Park in Livonia. A highlight is live music presented by the popular local band, Twistin' Tarantulas, throughout the day.

At the festival, 30 Michigan microwbreweries and brewpubs will offer samples of their best lagers and ales. Up to 100 different beers will be on tap. Root beer and bottled water will also be available.

North Channel Brewing Co., Grand Rapids Brewing Col, and Lily's Seafood Restaurant and Brewery will offer food for sale. Farmington Bakery will serve one of its specialties – hot German-style pretzels.

"We sell them at local festivals and the Farmington Farmer's Market (Grand River Avenue three blocks east of Farmington Road, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.) on Saturday," said Becky Burns who owns Farmington Bakery with her husband Jeff Pavlik. "We're shooting for 1,000 pretzels. My husband's father and brother are flying in from Missouri to help out. It should be fun."

Summer Festival showcases the brewers of Michigan who make beer from all natural ingredients.

"This beer is fresh," said Doug Beedy, secretary of the Michigan Brewers Guild Board of Directors and brewmaster at North Channel Brewing Co. in Chesterfield Township.

"Beer is basically liquid bread. It's made from the same ingredients, barley, wheat, rye and yeast. Beer is a natural extension of bread."

At the festival you'll have the chance to meet Beedy and other brewmasters, learn about and taste craft-brewed beer.

"It's a chance to find out what beer choices are out there," said Beedy. "A lot of home brew club members will be also present."

Last year 1,500 people attended the beer tasting event. This year, the guild is expecting 3,000 people.

The Michigan Brewers Guild is a non-profit corporation that works to increase sales and public awareness of Michigan brewed beer. Money raised from the festival is used to fund promotional activities. The Michigan Brewers Guild is sponsoring some of the musical acts at the Ann Arbor Art Fairs, Wednesday-Saturday, July 19-22.

Stokin' smokin' wood flavors turkey, fish

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER
kabramczyk@oe.homecomm.net

See related story on Taste front.

I use these recipes in my Luhr-Jensen Little Chief Smoker, which needs about 15 or 20 minutes to preheat before placing the food over the wood.

The smoked salmon recipe can be used on trout or steelhead. The turkey recipe requires additional cooking in the oven, so adjust the cooking time in the oven accordingly for the turkey.

SMOKED SALMON

1/3 cup sugar
1/4 cup non-iodized salt
2 cups soy sauce
1 cup water
1/2 teaspoon onion powder
1/2 teaspoon garlic powder
1/2 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon Tabasco sauce
1 cup white wine
4 salmon steaks or fillets

Mix all ingredients. Brine salmon 8 or more hours. Fill flavor pan of smoker with a mix of 2/3 apple wood with 1/3 cherry wood, or a panful of hickory or alder wood.

Leave in the smoker until drying is complete, which takes anywhere from 8 to 12 hours, depending on the thickness of the fish. Use 2 to 3 panfuls. Place the largest and thickest pieces on the bottom rack of the smoker.

MAPLE FLAVORED TURKEY

1/2 cup salt
1/3 cup maple syrup
1 teaspoon onion powder
1 teaspoon celery salt
1 bay leaf, crushed
1 cup white wine
1 tablespoon pepper
3 cups water
Whole turkey or whole turkey breast

Combine ingredients. Clean and rinse turkey, including inside of it, then brine turkey overnight or 8 to 12 hours. Remove from brine, rinse and air dry.

Preheat smoker and place turkey on the rack. (If you are smoking an entire turkey, open the upper and lower cavities to expose insides to smoke flavor.) Smoke using hickory or cherry flavored wood chunks for 30 minutes per pound or three to 3 1/2 hours. Two panfuls of wood is usually sufficient; use no more than three.

Remove from the smoker and bake in the oven at 300° F about 15 minutes per pound. Base with maple syrup once during the last hour of baking.

without sauce – only a rub and smoked – and they're delicious.

If you have flavored woods, you can use your grill. Soak the wood pieces in water for at least 30 minutes, place in an old aluminum pie plate, then place over coals while the gas grill is preheating. Mesquite wood flavors steaks and chicken marvelously in this fashion as the wet wood steams the food. Last spring a friend gave me a box of apple wood, which I promptly used on salmon and chicken.

Don't worry about sauces with these smoked foods. They stand alone. A few julienned roasted red peppers, sliced tomatoes with basil and a smidge of oil, or cukes in dill and vinegar, and you're all set.

■ Soak wood pieces in water for at least 30 minutes and place in an old aluminum pie plate, then place over coals while the gas grill is preheating.

Now get those woods out. Stoke a few woods at the house, then stroke a few shots at the golf course. Take a break and enjoy this warm weather now with family and friends.

Can you do it?

Healthy family eating with lime-sauced fish

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Good taste and good health coexist perfectly well with just a little thought and the guidance of the right recipe.

Lime-Sauced Fish and Linguine is a low-fat main dish, with only 5 grams of fat per serving. It is among the wide selection of 250 recipes offered in "Better Homes and Gardens Big Book of Healthy Family Dinners" (Meredith Books, $24.95).

The recipes range from snacks and appetizers through main dishes to sides and desserts. They are all designed, the editors say, to trim fat, calories and sodium without sacrificing flavor. "For fish stir-fries such as this, select a firm fish," according to the cookbook. "Swordfish, shark, sea bass, cod or orange roughy all work well."

■ These recipes are designed to trim fat, calories and sodium without sacrificing flavor.

LIME-SAUCED FISH AND LINGUINE

(Preparation and cooking time 35 minutes)
12 ounces fresh or frozen skinless, boneless fish
1/4 cup dry white wine or chicken broth
1/4 cup chicken broth
2 tablespoons lime juice
2 teaspoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon honey
1/4 teaspoon ground ginger
1/4 teaspoon ground coriander
1/8 teaspoon black pepper
Nonstick spray coating
1 medium cucumber, seeded and cut into 2-by-1/2-inch sticks
1 medium zucchini, cut into 2-by-1/2-inch sticks
1 medium red or green sweet pepper, cut into 3/4-inch squares
1 teaspoon cooking oil
3 cups hot cooked linguine
Lime wedges, optional

Thaw fish if frozen. Rinse fish; pat dry with paper towels. Cut into 3/4-inch pieces. Set aside.

For sauce, in a small bowl stir together the wine, chicken broth, lime juice, cornstarch, honey, ginger, coriander and black pepper. Set aside.

Spray an unheated wok or large skillet with nonstick coating. Preheat over medium-high heat. Add the cucumber and zucchini; stir-fry for 1-1/2 minutes. Add the sweet pepper; stir-fry about 1-1/2 minutes more or until crisp-tender. Remove vegetables from wok.

Add the oil to hot wok. Add fish; stir-fry for 2 to 3 minutes or just until fish begins to flake easily with a fork. Push the fish from center of wok.

Stir sauce; add to center of wok. Cook and stir until thickened and bubbly. Return cooked vegetables to wok.

Cook and stir about 2 minutes or until heated through. Serve immediately with linguine.

If desired, garnish with lime wedges.

Scream for these homemade ice cream recipes

NO-COOK HOMEMADE VANILLA ICE CREAM

4 eggs
1 cup Eagle Brand milk
1 1/2 cups sugar
1 1/2 quarts milk
1 1/2 tablespoons vanilla

Separate the eggs. Mix egg yolks, Eagle Brand milk, sugar, milk, and vanilla. Beat egg whites until fluffy. Fold egg whites into milk mixture and mix thoroughly. Freeze according to manufacturer's instructions.

Recipe used with permission of Kathleen Frantz.

VANILLA ICE CREAM

1 quart half and half
1-1/2 cups fine granulated sugar
1 vanilla bean, split in half lengthwise
10 egg yolks

Combine the half and half, 1-1/2 cups fine granulated sugar, and the vanilla bean into a double boiler. Mix thoroughly, and then bring to a simmer over medium heat. Turn the heat off and cover the pan with plastic wrap. Allow the half and half mixture to steep for 10 minutes. Remove the plastic wrap.

In a separate bowl, whisk the sugar and the egg yolks together. Gradually stir in one cup of the warm mixture into the egg yolk mixture. Pour the egg mixture into the double boiler with the remaining half and half mixture. Stirring constantly, continue to cook over medium heat until the mixture reaches 160-170 degrees or it coats the back of a spoon, approximately 5 minutes. Immediately place the pan into a pan of ice water and stir to cool to room temperature. Cover with plastic wrap, then refrigerate 8 hours, or overnight.

When you are ready to freeze the mixture, remove the vanilla pod. Freeze the ice cream base according to the manufacturer's instructions. Makes 1 1/4 quarts.

FOR STRAWBERRY ICE CREAM

Add 10 ounces frozen sliced strawberries in syrup, thawed.

Follow the above Vanilla Ice Cream recipe. After the mixture has cooled to room temperature, stir in the strawberries, then cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate 8 hours or overnight.

When you are ready to freeze the mixture, remove the vanilla pod. Freeze the ice cream base according to the manufacturer's instructions. Makes 1 1/2 quarts.

Recipe used with permission of Kathleen Frantz.

CHOCOLATE ICE CREAM

2 cups half-and-half
1-3/4 cups heavy cream
1 vanilla bean, split in half lengthwise
2 cups fine granulated sugar
8 egg yolks
1/2 cup cocoa powder
6 ounces bittersweet chocolate (chips are fine)
1 ounce brandy (optional)

Combine the half-and-half, heavy cream, and vanilla bean into a double boiler. Mix well, and then bring to a simmer over medium heat. Once the cream has reached a simmer, remove the pan from the heat and cover with plastic wrap. Allow the mixture to steep for 10 minutes. Remove the plastic wrap.

In a separate bowl, whisk the sugar and the egg yolks together. Gradually stir in one cup of the warm mixture into the egg yolk mixture. Pour the egg mixture into the remaining cream mixture. Stirring constantly, continue to cook over medium heat until the mixture reaches 160 degrees to 170 degrees or until it coats the back of a spoon, approximately 5 minutes.

Remove the pan from the heat. Combine the cocoa powder and the finely chopped chocolate in a 3-quart bowl. Slowly pour the hot mixture over the cocoa powder and chocolate. Allow mixture to stand for 5 minutes, and then stir until the chocolate is thoroughly melted.

Place the mixture into an ice bath and cool completely. When cool, stir in the brandy, cover with plastic wrap and refrigerate for an least 8 hours, or over night. When you are ready to freeze the mixture, remove the vanilla pod. Freeze the ice cream base according to the manufacturer's instructions. Makes 1 quart.

Here's some tips when making ice cream:

- To prevent crystallization, store ice cream in an airtight container, with plastic wrap directly on top of the ice cream, before placing the lid on top.
- "Aging" the ice cream base at least 8 hours will increase its richness.
- Place the ice cream in the freezer for at least one hour after finishing in the ice cream machine. This will allow the ice cream to "firm up" and the flavors blend.
- If you are using a hand-cranked ice cream machine, crank slowly at first, then faster as the base begins to thicken. This will maintain the temperature throughout and keep crystals small while beating air into the mixture.
- If by some chance you have some left over, fresh ice cream may be kept up to two weeks. But for best flavor, serve within a few days.

We're jammin'

Enter your jam or jelly in State Fair contest

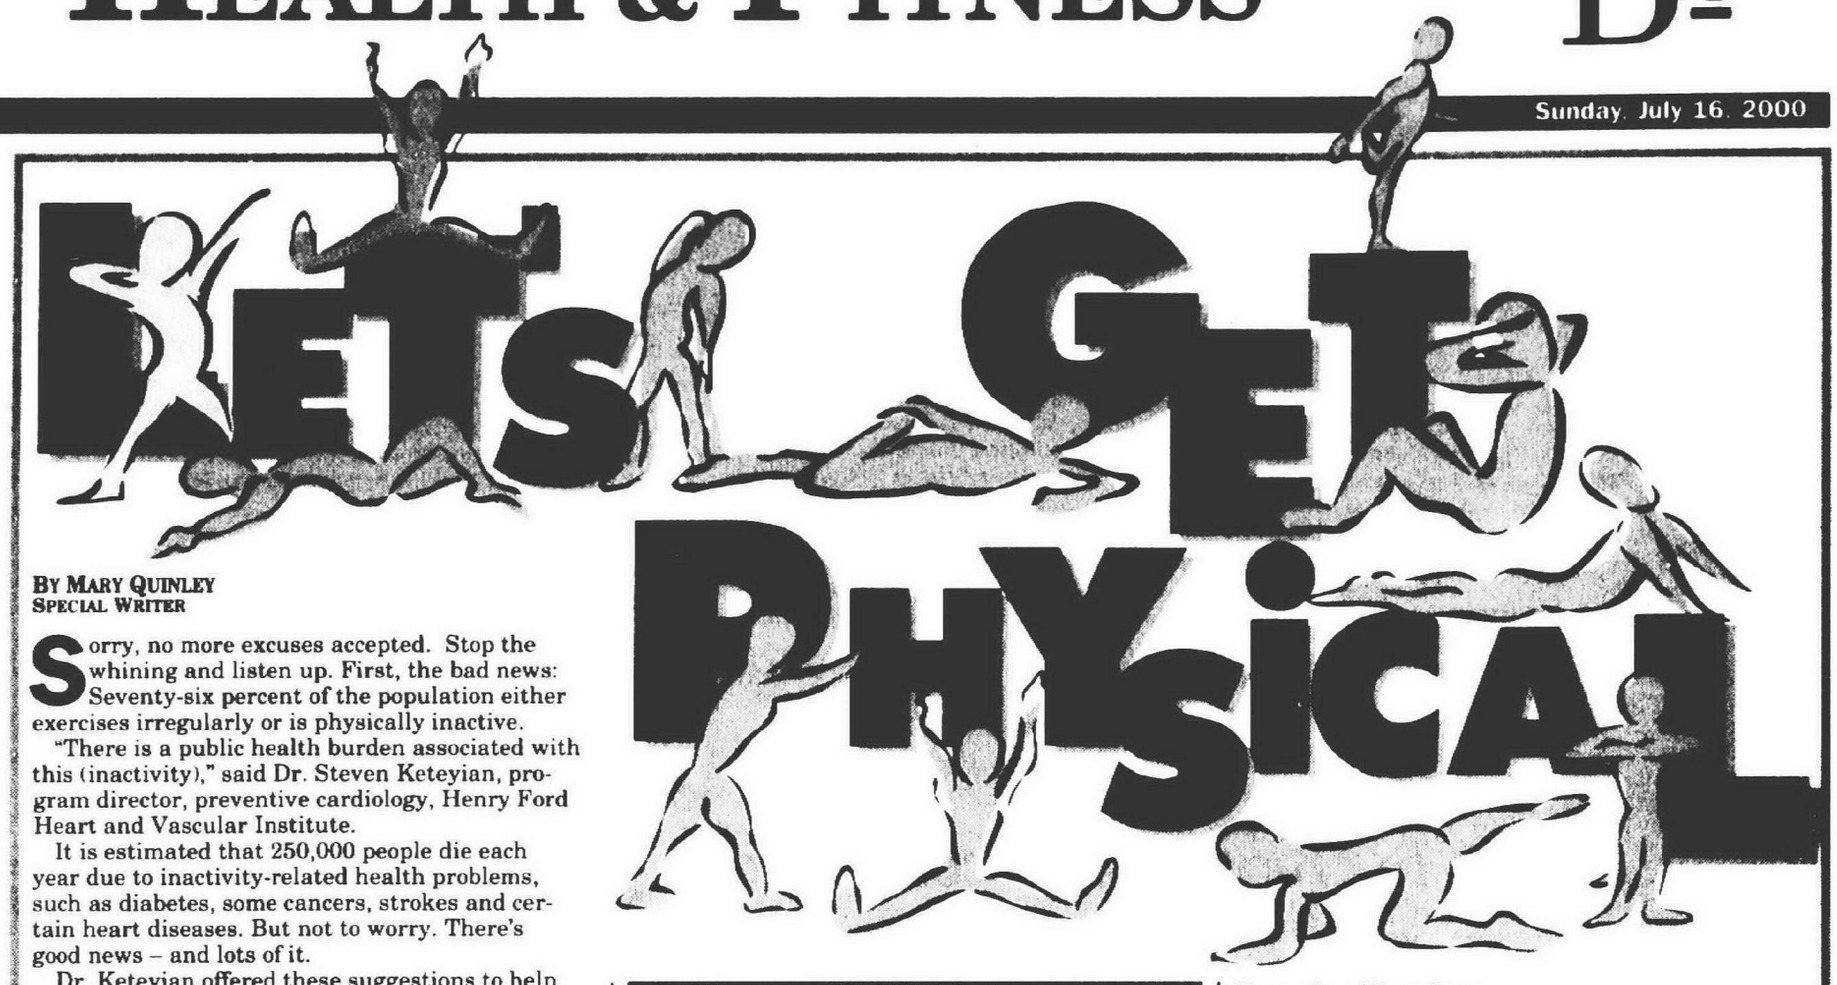
LET'S GET PHYSICAL



By Mary Quinley
Special Writer

Sorry, no more excuses accepted. Stop the whining and listen up. First, the bad news: Seventy-six percent of the population either exercises irregularly or is physically inactive.

"There is a public health burden associated with this (inactivity)," said Dr. Steven Keteyian, program director, preventive cardiology, Henry Ford Heart and Vascular Institute.

It is estimated that 250,000 people die each year due to inactivity-related health problems, such as diabetes, some cancers, strokes and certain heart diseases. But not to worry. There's good news – and lots of it.

Dr. Keteyian offered these suggestions to help "inactives" get started:

- Do a quick medical history. For example, if you have a history of chronic disease, such as lupus or acute stages of heart disease, consult with a doctor first before beginning an exercise program.
- Eliminate excuses. Some people use "check with your doctor before exercising" as a barrier. They will put off making an appointment, and that leads to putting off an activity.
- Begin some form of activity. In general, most people can start on their own.

Never too late

If you're under 45 with no known risk factors, such as smoking or obesity, Keteyian recommends starting on a mild program. If you're older than 45, touch base with your doctor if you're thinking about a moderate or vigorous workout. If you're 62 years old, overweight and smoking and considering walking as an activity, you can probably start right away.

"It's never too late to exercise," said Carla Schneider, fitness center supervisor at Oakwood Healthcare System. Studies show that even people who begin a physical activity in their 80s reap benefits, she said.

Doctors and exercise specialists agree that people of all ages who exercise reap benefits in the following areas: Increased muscle mass and muscle tone, cardiovascular and pulmonary function and bone density; lower cholesterol and blood pressure levels; and improved body composition and mental outlook.

But what if joint or lower back problems deter you from exercising? You might want to check out Silver Sneakers, a program provided by the Livonia Family YMCA.

"From a seated position, you can get a safe, low-impact aerobic workout which features some strength training," said Rick Rainville, executive director of the Y. "The program is designed to allow individuals to go at their own pace."

So what have you got to lose? Some inches or pounds? Perhaps some stiffness or feelings of fatigue? It really doesn't matter what form of exercise you choose – just do it.

With that in mind, let's take a look at five activities to consider:

Take a walk

"Walking is a good place to start (a fitness routine)," said Carla Schneider of Oakwood Healthcare System. So, call a buddy and go try one of these walking programs:

- Westland Shopping Center, 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday-Saturday; 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday. All ages; no fee. Call (734) 421-0291.

Walking

Just put one shoe on, then the other shoe and go for a walk! That's the advice from Dr. Keteyian. "You don't need fancy gyms or clothes," he said. "The only thing I might ask a person is to buy a pair of running shoes. They don't have to run, but the shoes provide support."

On Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings – oftentimes before the crack of dawn – Nancy Trubak ventures out to meet her friend, Patra Nakonezny. It's "their" time to walk.

"When the kids are in school, we walk at 5 a.m.," said Trubak. During the summer, the ladies begin their regiment around 7 a.m.

"If another person wasn't waiting, I bet I wouldn't be as faithful," she said. "(Walking is) sort of a therapy session and it's fun."

Since the two Livonia moms began walking the five-mile route, "we've changed shape (and that) makes us feel more comfortable with what we are wearing," said Trubak.

Fast Facts: On average, a person burns four calories per minute walking at a pace of 3 mph. Pushing a stroller 1 1/2 miles in 30 minutes is considered daily moderate exercise.

Swimming

"People don't realize, especially if you learn how to swim correctly, that there are so many benefits to swimming," said Jill Sell, aquatic director at the Livonia Family YMCA.

The sport strengthens the cardiovascular system, she said. It helps to build lung capacity, muscle strength and muscle tone, and increase flexibility and circulation.

If you're looking for an exercise that is less stressful on your joints, try swimming. "Most people can accept more (exercise) in the water rather than on land," explained Monica Pagels, exercise physiologist at Botsford Hospital's TRACC (Total Rehabilitation & Athletic Conditioning Center).

It's a great nonweight-bearing activity that uses upper and lower body muscles at the same time, she said.

Fast Facts: Doing the breast stroke, a 150-pound person burns 7.2 calories per minute. Swimming laps for 20 minutes or participating in water aerobics for 30 minutes equates to moderate exercise.

Running/Jogging

Danny Cytacki loves to run long distances. "I hope to qualify for next year's Boston Marathon," said the 20-year-old from Livonia, who runs to keep fit and to relax.

"To do that, I'll have to run a seven-minute mile in Detroit's (marathon) race this year."

Competition and/or belonging to a team are some of the reasons many high school and college students choose exercise. "Reasons vary for the different age groups," said Pagels.

In the post-college and childbearing years, individuals participate for weight loss and family togetherness. In group participation, the social benefits of exercise are important, especially in older adults.

Fast Fact: When you run or jog, you burn 9.1 calories per minute if you maintain an 11-minute mile pace.

Biking

Pat and Mary Latarski make a great pair when it comes to exercising. The mom and daughter combo from Livonia are often seen riding their bikes around the neighborhood.

"I enjoy bicycling with my 13-year-old daughter, Mary," said Latarski. "It gives the two of us time together. We get fresh air, it's great exercise, and it's fun."

Fast Facts: Bicycling five miles in 30 minutes is considered daily moderate exercise. Riding outdoors uses more muscle power than a stationary bike. A 150-pound person burns 8.2 calories per minute bicycling at a pace of 10 mph.

Golfing

How's your golf game? Whatever your answer, your body benefits from the activity.

"I walk the course a lot more than riding in a cart," said Tom Diroff, 42, of Livonia. The average course is 600 yards as the crow flies, he added. "Golfing is fun, it's competitive and it's a sport that you can do by yourself or with others."

Fast Fact: Nine holes of golf burn 5.4 calories per minute. If you walk and pull a cart or carry your bag, the benefits increase.

A good rule of thumb, whether you choose walking, biking, swimming or some other sport, is to try to exercise for 30 minutes or more three or more days a week.

Components of an exercise program

Oakwood Health Care Systems uses the following guidelines for a one-hour workout:

- Warm-up (prepares the muscles and cardiovascular system for more vigorous activity; use the major muscle groups of the body): 5 percent or 5 minutes.
- Aerobic Activity (increases cardiovascular fitness, burns calories, firms and strengthens muscles; use large muscle groups at a moderate pace): 65 percent or 20-30 minutes.
- Cool-down (prepares you for stretching by slowly tapering the vigorous activity; breathing should return to normal): 5 percent or 5 minutes

Exercise keeps blood vessels young, staves off clogged arteries

The blood vessels of older athletes behave like those of people half their age, according to a new study in Circulation: Journal of the American Heart Association.

Researchers studied sedentary individuals and athletes, both young and old. The athletes were long-distance runners, cyclists and triathletes (who combined running, cycling and swimming). The young people, sedentary and athletic, averaged 27. The average ages for the older groups were 63 for the sedentary participants and 66 for the athletes. The study found that the older athletes' blood vessels functioned as well as those of the participants in either of the two younger groups.

"This study demonstrates that regular physical activity can protect aging blood vessels," said the study's lead author, Dr. Stefano Taddei, an associate professor of internal medicine at the University of Pisa in Italy. "Long-term exercise protects the inner lining of the blood vessels from age-related changes and makes them behave more like those of a young person."

And it may not take a triathlon to reap benefits, Taddei added. A study by the Honolulu Heart Program published in Circulation last year showed that regularly walking more than 1.5 miles a day reduced heart disease risk in older individuals.

"You do not need to be an athlete to get these beneficial effects from exercise," he said. "Aerobic activity five days a week – rather than intensive training – might just do the trick."

Blood vessels

Blood vessels need to be able to expand in order to accommodate increases in blood flow. A protective layer of cells, called the endothelium, forms the inner lining of blood vessels and produces substances that help the vessels expand, or dilate.

In healthy blood vessels, the endothelium produces nitric oxide, which helps the vessels dilate

MEDICAL BRIEFS

Williams syndrome convention

The Williams Syndrome Association's 2000 National Convention, "Driving Toward a Millennium of Endless Opportunity," will be held Wednesday, July 19, to Sunday, July 23, at the Hyatt Regency Dearborn, Fairlane Town Center, Dearborn.

Local and national speakers will offer workshops on the latest techniques for management of medical symptoms and improvement of a child's educational opportunities.

Williams Syndrome, a rare genetic disability caused by a deletion of 15-20 genes on chromosome No. 7, was not identified until the 1960s. Many doctors are still unaware of it, which leads to a misdiagnosis or no diagnosis at all. Individuals with Williams syndrome commonly have cardiac and kidney disorders, feeding difficulties, developmental delays and mild to severe learning disabilities. However, they may exceed in verbal skills and have a proficiency for music.

when the heart needs more blood. Nitric oxide also protects the vessel walls from developing atherosclerosis – the build-up of fatty substances that thicken the artery walls and block blood flow – and thrombosis – the formation of blood clots that can block small or narrowed vessels and cause heart attacks.

Aging can cause alterations in the endothelium, making older individuals more prone to atherosclerosis and thrombosis, said Taddei.

Previous studies have linked aging to problems in endothelium responsiveness and have shown that exercise can make the endothelium dilate more efficiently, even for patients with chronic heart failure, said Taddei.

Study

Taddei's team studied 12 young and 12 older sedentary subjects and compared them to 11 young athletes and 14 older athletes.

The researchers gave the study subjects acetylcholine, which causes the blood vessels to dilate if the endothelium is producing nitic oxide properly. The young subjects, whether sedentary or active, had similar strong responses to acetylcholine and the vessels dilated. Among the older participants, athletes showed greater blood vessel dilation than the sedentary group.

■ For more information on exercise, visit the section of the American Heart Association's Web site on physical fitness at www. justmove. org

Another age-related change in the endothelium is increased free radicals in the blood. Free radicals are highly unstable, reactive oxygen molecules that circulate in the blood and can damage tissues. These reactive molecules play a major role in the formation of artery-blocking fatty build-up when they come in contact with LDL cholesterol – the "bad" cholesterol. Scientists believe that exercise and certain vitamins have antioxidants effects by blocking free radicals.

The researchers found in the study that older athletes had low blood levels of free radicals similar to the younger people. However, the older sedentary individuals had high levels of free radicals. Their blood vessels showed dilation only when the researchers administered high doses of antioxidant vitamin C.

What to do if you're stung by a busy bee

Now that summer is here we can expect to hear the humming of busy bees, which is why the Michigan State Medical Society wants to remind everyone what to do if stung.

■ Many people know they have an allergy to bee stings. They should wear a medical alert bracelet and carry a bee sting kit including epinephrine.

When a person is stung, the venom from the bee may cause local swelling, pain, itching, and redness. These symptoms should disappear within a few days if the wound is properly cared for. Sometime, however, a bee sting can cause a fatal allergic or toxic reaction.

If the stinger is still in the wound, it should be removed as quickly as possible. If not removed, the stinger can continue to release venom into the body for as long as 20 minutes.

The Medical Society recommends these steps after a bee sting:

■ Gently scrape or 'flick" the stinger out using your fingernail, a credit card, or the edge of a knife. DO NOT use tweezers or pinch the stinger because you may squeeze out more venom.

■ Wash the affected area with soap and water and then thoroughly dry.

■ Apply an ice pack to relieve pain and swelling.

■ Apply Calamine lotion, a lotion containing Benadryl or a paste made of baking soda and water to relieve itching.

About 3 percent of people are especially sensitive to bee stings and can develop a life-threatening allergic reaction called anaphylaxis. When this occurs, painful hives and swelling may occur rapidly and block off airways. Allergic reactions are a serious matter and should be treated as a medical emergency.

If a person who is not allergic is stung by a swarm of 50 to 100 bees, a similar effect to anaphylactic shock may occur. About 50 people die each year from bee stings, so it is important to be alert for an allergic reaction.

Symptoms of an allergic reaction may include:

■ Rapid swelling around the eyes, lips, tongue or throat

■ Difficulty breathing, wheezing or hoarseness

■ Itching, cramping or numbness that is severe

■ Stomach cramps

■ A reddish rash, or hives

■ Dizziness or even loss of consciousness

Many people know they have an allergy to bee stings. They should wear a medical alert bracelet and carry a bee sting kit including epinephrine.

The Michigan State Medical Society reminds you to avoid areas where bees have nests. If a bee is near you, do not upset it by swatting at it. Just calmly and quietly turn and walk away.

For more health-related information, visit the Michigan State Medical Society's Web-site at www.msms.org

BONE SPURS

You may have undergone x-rays of your joints or back and been told you had bone spurs. The implication was that these spurs were the source of your pain. Physicians who deal with bone and joint problems usually are skeptical that such findings explain why you hurt.

One reason for being skeptical is that the x-ray projection of a thin line of bone ending in a knife-like point is typical of the radiological presentation of a calcified tendon. What appears to you on the x-ray film as something sharp like a sliver is usually calcified particles on tendons representing old injury or the natural aging of the tissue. Areas like the heel often acquire such changes with the majority of individuals with such heel spurs experiencing no difficulty in walking or running.

A painful tendinitis that results from injury shows on x-rays as patterns of calcium that has a fluffy, irregular shape, not at all like the form of a bone spur.

The bone findings on x-ray most often associated with pain in the joint come from outgrowths of bone called osteophytes. These are irregular bumpy additions to the ends of bone and represent the response of the bone to prolonged strain. The osteophytes themselves are not the cause of pain, though the spine they can press against nerves and cause sciatica. Rather, osteophyte formation indicates a joint under strain and, as a result, likely to be painful.

This problem of properly interpreting the finding of bone spurs is why physicians like to see x-rays and personally review the findings.

MIKE WENDLAND

Two Michigan furniture companies have found the increasing use of computers and the Internet have boosted their business to new heights because of a demand for high-cost, high-tech chairs. The Herman Miller Co. of Holland and Steelcase near Grand Rapids can't manufacture their adjustable, ergonomic chairs fast enough.

People are spending so much time on their rear ends looking at computer screens that they're now looking at ways to do it with more comfort. These chairs aren't cheap. Miller's "Aeron" is the industry's dominant luxury office chair, a black mesh model that sells for an average of around $1,000.

Steelcase, though, is quickly gaining in popularity with its new "Leap" chair. Steelcase is shipping 5,000 of them every week at an average price of around $1,200. The chairs can be precisely configured to fit the user's back, leg, arm and rear end. Companies are willing to spend that much on chairs for their workers because they reduce absenteeism by helping reduce back pain and headaches – which helps more people stay on the job and off their backs at home.

Online investors embrace slow and steady way

A lot of online investment sites have flocked to the Internet, but a nearly half-century-old group based in Madison Heights has quietly been building up a huge Internet following by espousing old and conservative investment advice.

The National Association of Investors Corp., which boasts some 700,000 members, started in 1951. As its immensely popular Better-Investing.org Web site shows, it's all about education, teaching everyday people how they can own a part of America by buying common stocks. The group may use technology and the Net to get the message out, but its unwavering approach is to teach investors to follow time-proven slow and steady investment practices.

The group has probably helped produce more millionaires than any other investment organization around. It says the key is to choose stocks carefully by looking at past performance and current management and then sticking with them – not buying and selling as the market goes up and down.

And in these turbulent times, that message is being embraced by more people everyday. The group has a free e-mail discussion list that is used by thousands for questions and answers and to share stock-picking techniques.

Here come "Internet appliances"

Do you have an "Internet appliance" yet? It could be a wireless phone with e-mail and Web-browsing capabilities. Maybe, as Detroit's automakers are working on a palm handheld that hooks up to your car dashboard.

But it may be a microwave oven that you can remotely turn on to thaw out the family dinner by connecting with it on the Internet; or the home security system; or an Internet screen that's mounted into the family fridge.

A new study by eTForecasts, a market research and consulting company for the computer and Internet industries, says that in the next five years the growth of Web/Internet appliances will skyrocket. By the end of 2005 over 71 percent of Internet users worldwide will be using Web appliances for part of their online activities.

The wireless Web phone will be a major factor in this rapid growth as it incorporates the functions of a PC, a pager, a Web browser and an e-mail client. Intel and Microsoft are working with companies like General Electric and a number of Detroit-area auto manufacturers and suppliers to show just how interconnected these Internet appliances can be. They have even set up special "homes of the future" to test and demonstrate how all this technology ties together.

■ Steelcase, though, is quickly gaining in popularity with its new 'Leap' chair. Steelcase is shipping 5,000 of them every week at an average price of around $1,200. The chairs can be precisely configured to fit the user's back, leg, arm and rear end. Companies are willing to spend that much on chairs for their workers because they reduce absenteeism by helping reduce back pain and headaches – which helps more people stay on the job and off their backs at home.

Digital divide hurts business

To hear the hype, you'd think we all have fast, broadband Internet access. But the fact is, for most of the U.S., dreams of that "fast pipe" Internet connection are only pipe dreams. Studies show about 86 percent of the Internet delivery capacity in the U.S. is concentrated in the 20 largest and richest cities. People and small businesses in rural areas or poor, older cities like Detroit are stuck with slow dial-up connections.

While about 90 percent of businesses with more than 500 employees have fast broadband Internet connections, among the 21 million smaller companies around the country only 5-7 percent have high-speed access.

"The entire Midwest is simply not part of the information highway," says Mitchell Moss of New York University's Taub Urban Research Center.

This digital divide hurts small business. FCC boss William Kennard recently told me this concerns him greatly. Kennard says in most communities, the fiber-optic rings circle the business district. If you're in a poor suburban neighborhood or the inner city or in a rural area, you face a distinct disadvantage in competing in the new economy of the Internet age.

Speed and simplicity key to online sales

Online retailers need to concentrate on making their Web sites quick and easy to use if they want to boost revenues, according to a new report from Creative Good. The online marketing firm just released a blistering study that blasts most Web sites for poor page design, site search features and a lengthy and often confusing checkout process.

Other faults included poor or non-existent product labeling, too much information on individual pages and forcing consumers to fill out long questionnaires before allowing them to browse through the site.

The study didn't name names, but as I look around the Net at the e-commerce sites of several well-known Detroit area corporations, it's clear that the findings are right on. We may be able to build cars in Detroit but we could use some help in building Web sites. Some of the auto sites, for example, are so confusing and ponderous that it's amazing anyone gets past the first couple of pages. Any site that makes people register to see information is an automatic loser. People want instant info and they're suspicious of sites that try to collect personal details.

By making pages less technical and faster loading, the study says visitor-to-buyer conversion rates could also be raised from the current average of 1.8 percent to a more satisfactory 2.6 percent.

Outdoor lighting is safe, cheap

JERRY GOETZ

Low-voltage lighting is safe and economical outdoors.

In my opinion, there is no better way to economically beautify and protect your home.

Low-voltage installations are gaining popularity because:

■ Low-voltage wiring is safer due to its reduced voltage. Installations near pools, ponds and whirlpool tubs are safe and appropriate.

■ You or a trained technician can install ta low-voltage system, rather than a licensed electrician. Local permits are not required.

■ Low-voltage outdoor fixtures can be installed in areas where 110-volt wiring does not exist

■ Low-voltage installations do not disturb existing landscaping – they do not require deep trenches or conduit.

Other applications include:

Post Lanterns – Low-voltage post lanterns can be installed at a fraction of the cost of line-voltage post lights. Many neighborhood groups have installed low-voltage post lights in front of each home to compensate for a lack of street lighting.

Gas Light Conversions – Existing gas post lanterns can be converted to low- voltage electric. This will cut operating and maintenance costs by 60 percent and it provides nearly twice the light.

Landscape Lighting – Transformers and automatic timers can be mounted on your home or in your garage for easy access.

Specialty Lighting – Lighted address signs, security lights and flagpoles are excellent candidates for low-voltage lighting installations.

Single-family homes stay in city

The three builders at Kenwood Meadows – brothers Michael and Marco Soave and Mario Digiandomenico – tout value for price at their platted, single-family community – plus all the amenities offered by living in Livonia.

All three have about a half dozen lots each in the small subdivision off Five Mile between Inkster and Middlebelt roads.

"The homes, there are no shortcuts," said Michael Soave. "Here, everything is top-of-the-line, as far as quality goes."

"Livonia is probably one of the best cities in the country to live in," said Digiandomenico. Parks, golf courses and recreational opportunities are abundant, and the schools enjoy a good reputation.

"This sub has wide appeal – to empty-nesters, young families and transferees – due to a variety of floor plans, location and affordable price," said Marco Soave.

"We're offering a lot if you compare apples to apples," Michael said. "I'll put my construction up against any other builder."

Paul Maceri, the sales representative, joins in with the accolades.

"This is the lowest price for single-family construction, not condos, now, that I can find in Farmington Hills, Novi, Northville, Plymouth/ Canton and Livonia.

"I walk them (visitors) through, show them what's standard and they can't believe it," Maceri added. "I think they're impressed with what we have to offer for the price ... standard features.

"Plus, openness of the floor plan, quality of construction and overall care we put into product," he said.

Ranch, colonial and Cape Cod styles of homes are available.

The ranch, three bedrooms, 2-1/2 baths, 1,500 square feet, carries a base price of $219,900.

A traditional colonial of 2,026 square feet with three bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths goes for $244,900, the four-bedroom model with an additional 193 square feet, $249,900.

A three-bedroom, 2 1/2-bath, 2,100-square-foot colonial with a great room is priced at $244,900.

Two different Cape Cod plans with first-floor master, each with two options, have been designed.

The smaller, 1,830 square feet with three bedrooms, 2-1/2 baths, goes for $239,900, or $249,900 for four bedrooms and 2,050 square feet.

Cape Cod: This story-and-a-half at Kenwood Meadows in Livonia features a first-floor master suite, two bedrooms and a full bath upstairs.

The larger, 2,050 square feet with three bedrooms, 2-1/2 baths, is priced at $259,900, or $269,900 for a fourth bedroom, loft and an additional 250 square feet of living space.

Standard features at base price in all plans include two-car garage, first-floor laundry, basement, fireplace, ceramic or wood flooring in the foyer, hall and half bath and carpeting throughout.

A white porcelain kitchen sink, beveled glass mirrors and semi-gloss, oil-base paint on exterior trim are also standard.

Air conditioning ($3,500) is an upgrade.

The model, the 1,830-square-foot Cape Cod, features a two-story foyer, dining room with cathedral ceiling, great room with sloped ceiling and kitchen/ nook with open wall and sink oriented toward the great room.

The first-floor master with sloped ceiling contains a separate tub and shower, two-sink vanity and walk-in closet.

A bridge on the second floor overlooks the great room and leads to two bedrooms and a second full bath upstairs.

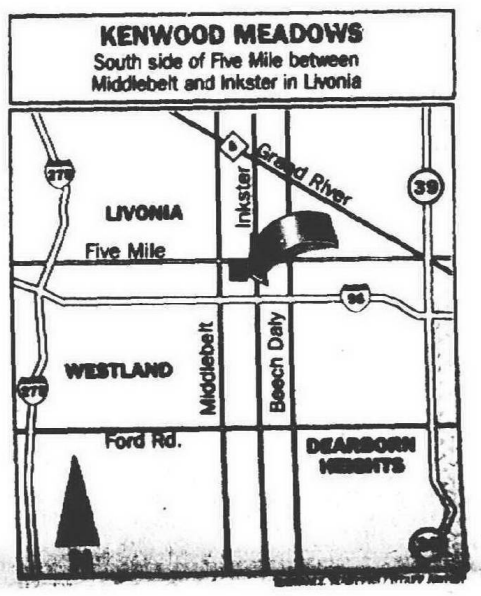
Base price is $239,900, the model as is, about $259,900 with extras and landscaping.

Kenwood Meadows is served by city water, sewers and sidewalks. It's within the Livonia school boundaries.

The property tax rate is $32.17 per $1,000 of state taxable value, sales price for new construction. That means the owners of a $250,000 house there would pay about $4,000 the first year.

Felicia and Jack Porco were impressed that Michael Soave was willing to build a custom-designed colonial for them and son, Silvio.

"We live only a couple of blocks away. We liked the area. We wanted something new, wanted something bigger," Felicia said. "He was very helpful, very patient. We really appreciate all his help to get our custom home."



The sales office/ model at Kenwood Meadows, is open 2-6 p.m. weekdays, 1-6 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays, closed Thursdays.

Good summer reading: house insurance policy

You're packing for your vacation, and pick up that new best seller for some leisurely reading at the beach. Put down that trashy novel and pick up your insurance policy instead.

"Summer time is supposed to be fun, not serious, but hurricanes, tornadoes and floods frequently strike during the summer months," says Richard Roll, president of American Homeowners Association. "Don't wait until disaster strikes to find out you're not covered by your hazard insurance policy."

Most homeowners don't check their hazard insurance policy until after an accident. By that time, it's too late to correct any deficiencies in your policy, and you'll be stuck with out-of-pocket expenses. Find out now before you are caught short.

Every policy is different. The major hazard that most policies don't cover is flooding. Flooding includes naturally caused floods as well as flooding that comes from a burst pipe. Flood insurance is something you need to buy separately, either through your insurance carrier or through the federal government.

If you have a lot of anything in the home, such as money, artworks, collections, etc., just a part of these are covered by a homeowners insurance policy. You need to buy a additional protection, a "floater," naming those items you want insured. You will pay extra for this extra coverage.

Policies usually cover:

1. - Your home in general and everything attached to it, including your garage. A detached storage shed, and your landscaping and lawn also are usually covered.

2 - Personal possessions within your home and other buildings on your property. Most policies even cover the personal belongings of any guest who is staying with you. But most insurance policies will not cover any tenants who are living on your premises at the time – They need to have their own insurance.

3. - Living expenses for you (and any of your tenants) if you are forced to live outside of the home during restoration.

4. - Legal fees, court expenses and medical fees for claims brought against you for property damage or bodily injury to others.

Read through your policy carefully and write down any questions. Then call your agent.

Do you have enough theft insurance? How much liability insurance do you have in case someone gets hurt on your property?

Review your homeowner's policy at least annually, any time you remodel or improve your home, or after major purchases such as computer or stereo equipment.

For more information on any aspect of buying or owning a home, go to www. ahahome. com or www. realhome. com, the Web sites for American Homeowners Association.

Rules of good lawn care

If crabgrass makes you crabby and brown spots make you burn, you can take steps to help ensure that the grass is always greener around your new home.

Trey Rogers, Briggs & Stratton's "Yard Doctor," offers several tips to make lawns green and neighbors green with envy, and it all starts with mowing.

■ Never cut more than one-third of the grass blade during any one mowing. By following this rule, the remaining two-thirds of the plant will develop deep roots and spread out, eventually creating a dense, healthy turf.

■ Alternate your mowing pattern. Try not to follow the same path each time.

■ Leave grass clippings on the lawn. You'll give your lawn valuable nutrients by grinding clippings (and leaves in the fall) with a mulching mower.

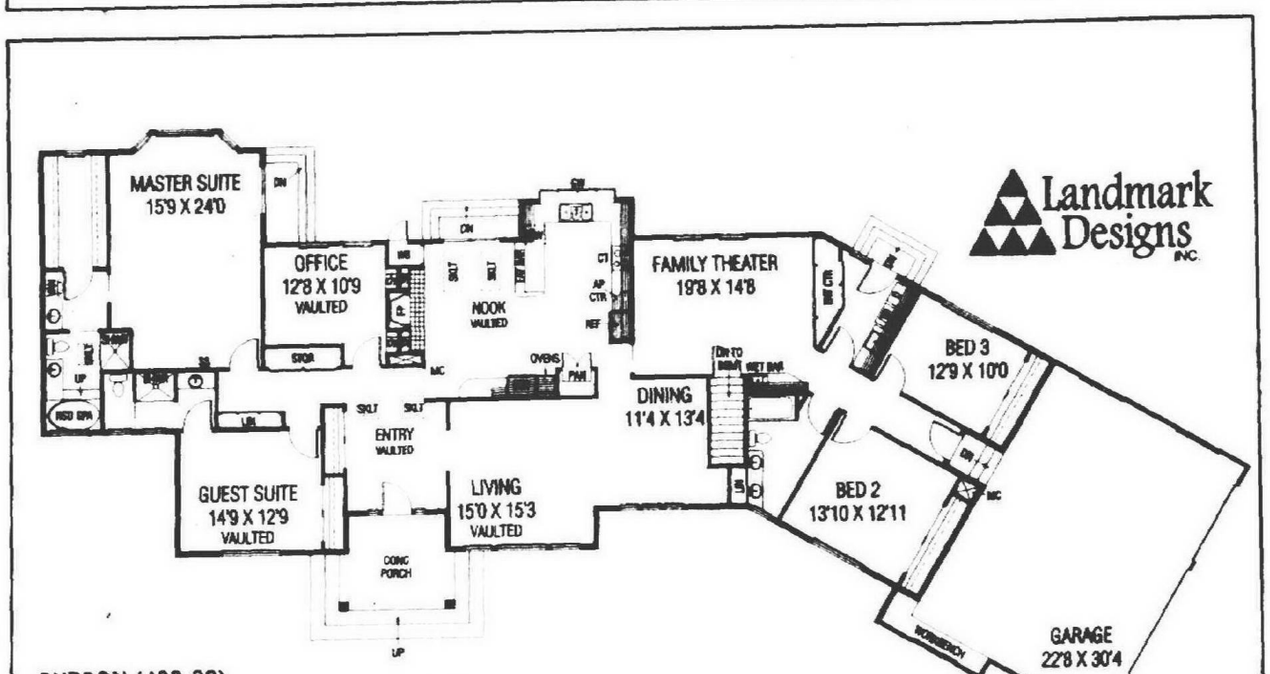
■ Control weeds while they're young. The best time to treat troublesome weeds is early in their life cycle. That means applying herbicide to grassy weeds, such as crabgrass, in early spring, and to broadleaf weeds, like dandelions, in the fall.

■ Give your mower a checkup. Have mower blades sharpened at least once a year. Periodically examine blades for damage, and adjust the wheel height for an even cut.

■ Water early in the day. Watering between 4 and 9 a.m. helps ensure that the sun won't rob moisture from your lawn. Most lawns need 1-2 inches of water a week to stay healthy. But wet grass at night can lead to disease.

■ Buy high-quality grass seed. The cheaper the seed, the more likely there are weed seeds in the bag that will be introduced to your lawn. Always look for a "seed label" with a seed-to-weed ratio.

■ Avoid a fertilizer overdose. Even good medicine causes harm when used improperly.



Family theater, 3-car garage make ranch plan stand out

A beautiful wooded lot with a long clearing would be ideal to hold the colonial looking Okeson (408-02).

This home requires space and openness to complement its elongated facade. It is regally colonial, with pillars on the covered porch, brick across the face, along with quoins on all corners.

The three-car garage is angled on the right and has one single door and a double door.

Numerous windows across the front and rear of this magnificent home add character to the home, along with bathing the interior with sunlight.

Once through the portals of the Okeson, the entry (with a closet for coats) branches off into three directions.

To the right is the living/dining room. This open area is vaulted in the living room. The dining area is simplistic yet ready to hold formal dining parties when needed.

Straight through the entry brings one into the kitchen/nook, which is also accessible from the dining room. For those cold winter mornings, the nook contains an open fireplace with a wood stove insert. There is a wood box accessible both from the backyard for filling and in the nook area.

Patio doors lead onto a concrete porch. The open kitchen is U-shaped with an eating bar facing the nook. There is a built-in dishwasher, a garden window over the double sink (which includes a vegetable sink), an enlarged cooktop and refrigerator.

Across the room are a corner pantry, double ovens and the freezer. There is an enormous amount of counterspace around all the appliances.

Off the kitchen is a large family theater room with a wet bar in one corner and an entertainment center along the far wall. Stairs down to the optional unfinished basement opens from this room.

Just beyond the family theater is the utility room with a sink and access to the rear of the entertainment center. A door to the backyard opens at the end of this room.

Between the main house and the garage are two bedrooms side-by-side, separated only by a hall with a door leading to the garage.

To the left of the entry are the guest suite, master suite and an office.

The vaulted guest suite has its own private full bath with shower. The master suite has a bay window in the rear and patio doors opening onto a deck.

Hidden behind a pocket door are an elongated walk-in closet and the master bath containing a sink and vanity separated from the shower, another sink and a raised spa. Convenient to each suite is a linen closet.

The vaulted office has built-in shelves on each side of the fireplace wall.

For a study plan of the Okeson (408-02) send $24.95 to Landmark Designs, 33127 Saginaw Road E., Cottage Grove, OR 97424 (specify plan name and number for study plan). For a collection of plan books, send $20 or save by ordering the study plan and collection together for $34.95. Let's Talk About Real Estate

"THE COSTS OF HOLDING OUT"

When a home is overpriced, the owner has two choices. Reduce the asking price and enhance the appeal of the property to potential buyers. The other alternative is to hold out for a higher price without reducing the asking price. Here are some of the possible consequences of holding out:

A HIGHER SELLING

Sometimes a buyer is coming from an area where home prices are substantially higher. This person may feel that a certain price, although high when compared with local values, is reasonable in relation to the buyer's most recent experience in the previous location. Most people coming into a new area will acquaint themselves with local values and not pay more than the local market will bear. A very few, however, may pay more than they should.

DRIFTING FROM SELLER'S TO BUYER'S MARKET

It is not unusual for a property owner to decide not to reduce their asking price because they are in the midst of an active market with homes selling all around them. If they hold out too long, they can become the victim of a market that begins to slow down in activity and gradually drifts into a buyer's market with less demand and lower selling prices.

MISS THE IDEAL HOME

Some sellers miss the opportunity to buy the home of their choice because it gets sold to someone else before the seller can sell their present home. This occurs because the seller wants the sale price of their present home to cover the cost of the next one. This is almost always an unrealistic approach.

MISS A FAVORABLE INTEREST RATE

Interest rates are always in a state of flux. Many sellers who hold out during a period of favorable rates find themselves reluctantly selling during a time of higher and less attractive rates.

ADVICE: Your Realtor® wants you to get the highest possible price because he or she receives a percentage of your price. Sometimes, however, their advice to reduce your asking price may be the best advice you could get.

The Weekly Do-It-Yourselfer

Big deep-eave garage

This week's "Do-It-Yourselfer" garage features several design options. The package includes six sizes, ranging from 22' by 28' to 24' by 36'. Other choices that you have with this plan are that you may choose to attach it to your house or it can be built as a stand-along garage – if setback requirements allow. You may also choose from three foundation and roof styles. Also included in the package are options for a side window, many popular sidings, six garage door configurations and a side personnel door. Two complete sets of the plans are included: one for you or your builder and one for the building department. Plans include clearly labeled, detailed drawings along with full framing instructions. Illustrations are drawn three dimensionally with full elevations and cross sectional diagrams. Step-by-step comprehensive instructions are included to aid you in construction. A full materials list will make your trip to a local lumberyard for building materials another easy step toward the completion of your new project.

❒ Send me the Project Plan # 06006 Construction Package (ready-to-build blueprints). Includes 2 prints and complete materials list . . $32.

Your roof protects all; care for it

High winds and severe rainstorms can be rough on roofs. How new is yours?

The older your home, the more vulnerable it is to harsh weather. By giving roofs a thorough check-up, homeowners can catch minor problems before they become big, expensive ones.

Homeowners should watch out for the following warning signs that indicate a troubled roof, says Owens Corning, a manufacturer of roofing shingles and systems in North America:

■ Ceiling spots.

Problem: water leaking through roof.

Check for causes: attic or crawl space for leaks in roof deck; chimney and vents for cracks in flashing; rafters for leaks that travel away from the original source; gutters for water backup from ice dams or debris; rooftop for damaged shingles.

Solution: utilize roof cement products to seal small leaks; for major leaks, sections of shingles or the entire roof may need to be replaced; consider consulting a roofing contractor to determine the extent of the damage.

■ Damaged Flashing.

Problem: metal flashing material is cracked, bent or deteriorating.

Check for causes: improper installation on newer roofs; drying and cracking on an older roof.

Solution: flashing can sometimes be repaired without replacing the roof; consider consulting a roofing contractor to determine the extent of the damage.

■ Missing Shingles.

Problem: individual shingles or sections of a roof with missing shingles.

Check for causes: usually caused by improper fastening when initially installed; exposure to high winds.

Solution: shingles can usually be replaced individually.

■ Buckling and Curling.

Problem: shingles don't all lie flat; some are buckled up from underneath, or edges of shingles are curled.

Check for causes: improperly applied felt underlayment (buckling); movement in the roof deck (buckling); under-saturation of organic felt shingle (curling).

Solution: damage is more difficult to repair since it's caused from underneath the shingle or from the shingle, itself; consider consulting a roofing contractor to determine the extent of damage.

■ Blistering.

Problem: shingle seems to develop small bubbles or blisters where granules fall off.

Check for causes: application of shingles over a wet roof deck; moisture in the shingle itself; inadequate ventilation.

Solution: replace individual shingles; consider improving ventilation; consider consulting a roofing contractor to determine the extent of the damage.

■ Missing Granules.

Check for causes: aging shingles; poor granule adhesion.

Solution: a certain number of granules that will be lost in the initial application; excessive loss usually indicates the need to replace the existing roof; consider consulting a roofing contractor to determine the extent of the damage.

"It's important to understand that a roof is not just shingles," said Rhonda Brooks of Owens Corning. "It's a system of components that work effectively together to protect your home from the elements."

Adding ventilation and increasing the insulation in the attic are the most effective ways to protect a roof.

A ventilation system consisting of soffit panels and ridge vents is the ideal way to keep air moving through the attic to prevent harmful condensation in cold weather and, when the weather's hot, prevent superheating that can lead to a shortened roof life.

In addition, a waterproofing underlayment placed under shingles can help prevent leak-causing ice damage at the roof's eaves and valleys, and help keep wind-driven rain or collected water from seeping through the roof deck.

A great way to find a roofing contractor is a referral from a neighbor, friend, family member or the local chamber of commerce.

One of the easiest ways to find a qualified contractor is through Owens Corning's Do-It-For-M Service.

Clicking on the Do-It-For-Me icon on the Owens Corning Web site connects you to an Owens Corning Preferred Contractor in your area.

For more information, visit Owens Corning's Web site at www. owenscorning.com

Get to know air conditioning system

"Getting to know you," might be a tune you can hum, rather than having your air conditioner humming the wrong note and going on the fritz.

The more you know about your air conditioner, the cooler you'll be.

What are the warning signs that my cooling system may not be working properly?

Notice the sound your air conditioner makes when it is working and cooling properly. Machines often "tell" you before they are going to quit. Pay attention to changes and you might avoid costly repair.

What can I do in my home to make my cooling system be more cost-effective?

Maintain a tight seal on doors and windows to prevent air leakage. Also, keep the opening and closing of entrance and exit doors to a minimum. During the daylight, block direct sunlight. Close the blinds on the east side of your home in the morning; in the afternoon, close the blinds on the west side.

■ When no one is home, move the thermostat up five or six degrees. For every degree that you move it up, you save about 5 percent.

What criteria should I use when setting the temperature on my air conditioner?

When no one is home, move the thermostat up five or six degrees. For every degree that you move it up, you save about 5 percent.

When it cools down outside, can I turn off my air conditioner?

This is a question of preference. Shutting off the air conditioner never harms the equipment. Damage occurs when it is shut off and immediately turned on. This quick action could damage the compressor, especially in older systems.

Can I have landscaping around the outside of my air conditioning unit outside?

Yes, but make sure you do not obstruct air flow to the unit. Keep plants and shrubs about three feet away to assure proper air flow.

Does my air conditioning unit need to be covered in the winter?

The only reason to cover the air conditioning unit is to protect it from falling leaves or other debris. When the unit is properly serviced, nothing will damage it if it is left exposed during the off-season.

What should I do to winterize my cooling system?

Simply turn the unit off. Any debris that has gathered throughout the summer should be removed. Every few weeks when you mow the yard, make it a practice to remove debris that may have built up.

How often should my cooling system be checked by a certified technician?

Your cooling systems should be checked annually – before the season starts.

For more information, contact the North American Technician Excellence, a non-profit organization that works to raise the standard of excellence in the heating, ventilation, air conditioning/refrigeration industry through technician testing.

The ins and outs of estimated utility bills

The Michigan Public Service Commission has adopted administrative rules that govern utility company billing practices. For example, one rule states a utility company may estimate a customer's monthly bill every other month. Other rules include:

■ An estimated bill must be clearly identified as an "estimated bill."

■ Utilities may estimate a bill when certain conditions exist, such as extreme weather conditions, emergencies, work stoppages, or when other circumstances beyond the control of the utility prevent an actual reading.

■ A utility, unable to gain access to a customer's home or yard to read the meter, must use reasonable alternative measures to get an actual reading, including mailing or leaving a postage-paid, pre-addressed postcard for a customer to use to record the reading.

■ Utilities may render estimated bills to seasonally billed customers.

At a customer's request, a utility company is required to provide a customer with the opportunity to read and report energy usage as long as the customer reports energy usage on a regular and accurate basis.

The utility must also provide postage paid, pre-addressed meter read postcards upon request. And, at least once every 12 months, a utility must obtain an actual meter reading to verify the readings that have been reported by the customer.

Late-payment charges and service disconnection can result from failure to pay estimated bills.

Goodwill helps overcome job barriers

Goodwill; it's much more than thrift stores. Initially an innovative concept to help the jobless, immigrant population in Boston more than 100 years ago, Goodwill Industries was formally incorporated in 1902. Offering skills training and basic job placement services, Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit was established nearly 80 years ago.

Goodwill successfully provides people with disabilities and other employment barriers with training, support and opportunities to become independent and self-supporting. In addition to the six retail stores throughout the tri-county area, Goodwill operates three Career Centers in Oakland County (Holly, Highland and Oxford), a Career Center in Wayne County and another in their Detroit headquarters, located just northwest of the "old" Tiger stadium.

"We have broadened the population we serve to include not only those with disabilities, but also those with other barriers to employment, such as people coming off of welfare, individuals with HIV or AIDS, ex-offenders who have paid their debt to society and are re-entering the community, and in general – those who lack necessary skills and training," said Chris Sheldon, Goodwill's director of marketing and public relations.

Sheldon explained that often people are referred to their offices from Community Mental Health, Michigan Department of Career Development or other agencies, although they also accept walk-ins. Individuals are evaluated for appropriate services and training. In fact, the Detroit headquarters has an elaborate evaluation system and receives a number of referrals.

Sheldon described Goodwill's newest program, "A-plus Training Certification," funded in part through a state grant. It is a long-distance education and training program using state-of-the-art videoconferencing equipment. Large screen TVs enable an interactive classroom with instructors from the Michigan Career and Technical Institute in Plainwell, Michigan on the state's west side.

"Our program participants can benefit from that training without leaving home," said Sheldon. The 16-week course, which also includes a "hands-on" classroom component, prepares participants for careers in computer systems repair. Goodwill anticipates a great response to this new and innovative program based on favorable reports from the inaugural group

Other individuals gain work experience in the packaging center located in the Detroit headquarters, which is a tier one supplier to the automotive industry. They also attend classes and gain skills and confidence toward eventually working outside in the larger community setting.

At the North Oakland Career Center in Highland, they serve a diverse population from Milford, Commerce, Highland, White Lake and other surrounding areas, according to manager Jana Johann. In addition to assistance in writing resumes, developing interviewing skills, specific training, and job search and placement, Goodwill Industries helps with "soft skills" necessary to enter society in a work environment. Johann explained that it is important to help people put in order "other pieces of their life" such as linking them with child care and transportation resources, which can be major barriers to main-

Loose lips sometimes sink a job offer

Q. One interviewer told me I had talked myself out of the job. What does that mean?

A. It might mean you blew it by being too wordy or by boring the interviewer into a state of agony. Some candidates don't seem to have an off button. As a screener, I've solved this problem by allowing myself to hallucinate until the person starts winding down.

JOB SEARCH

GEORGE HAYES

Once you have made your point, stop. Overexplanation suggests that you are hiding something or overstating for effect. Remember, the goal is to walk out with an offer, not demonstrate your skills in oratory. Too much information can confuse the listener and set the stage for buyer'sremorse. You'll lose the points you've already won.

Watch and listen for cues to move on to a new subject. Don't return to a topic repeatedly when the interviewer has clearly left it. Set your internal alarm. Good conversation has a natural rhythm: You talk, then I talk, then you talk. By all means, pay attention to the interviewer's body language. If her eyes start darting to the clock or if she appears to be comatose, you are probably losing your audience.

Q. Friends have told me to avoid working for family-owned companies.
Why?

A. Some people have had negative experiences in privately held organiza-

DICK MORRIS 30th ANNIVERSARY

taining their jobs.

"Our resources are free and available to everyone," said Johann. That includes Internet services and computers to Fax machines and copiers. Although they do accommodate walk-ins with a self-service approach, most individuals are mandated to participate either as part of Gov. Engler's "Work First" program, or those receiving unemployment benefits who must post their resume with the Michigan Talent Bank. Consequently, the population of customers is diverse, from hourly workers to laid-off directors and managers.

"I wish more employers would utilize it (our services) we have many people from this area who are looking for jobs," said Johann. In this tight labor market, it is surprising that more employers don't look to these career centers for candidates.

A real gem is Goodwill's program known as Dreams Unlimited Clubhouse in Oak Park, specifically designed to accommodate those with severe or chronic mental disabilities. "We do everything," exclaimed Clubhouse manager Joyce Rupp. "Whatever the person needs, that's what we try to provide," she added.

It is a wellness model with participants as voluntary members of this community within the larger community. Members assist in running the facility – everything from answering telephones and clerical work, producing a newsletter, to food preparation and service, and social recreation activities.

"They learn by doing very real tasks," explained Rupp. It is a long-term program that builds self-esteem while offering skills and training with a pre-employment focus.

The hub of services reaches a diverse clientele including some pursuing college, others with degrees, or those looking for job upgrades, as well as those seeking entry level employment. While most Clubhouse members are referrals from Oakland County Community Mental Health, about 10 percent are self-referred or through doctor referrals.

At this equal opportunity environment, the professional mental health staff works side-by-side with members to accompliah whatever tasks are a priority. The Clubhouse annually sees between 100 to 150 individual new members, and has an average open caseload of about 70 individuals. Around 30 percent of the caseload are people out working independently. This doesn't include the very long list of active alumni who return regularly. The Goodwill thrift stores are not only a source of funding for training and placement programs, but recently they have become a "training venue" themselves. The Clubhouse started its own thrift shop that it uses as a retail training module for its members.

Those interested in pursuing a retail track undergo a three-week assessment at one of the Goodwill stores, followed by a three-month training program. An exciting partnership is in development with K-Mart Corp. to incorporate retail experience, including customer service, in preparation for jobs with their stores. Goodwill's Clubhouse is one of four similar Clubhouses in Oakland County, and one of 40 similar programs throughout Michigan reaching out to this population.

Goodwill Industries of Greater Detroit has placed over 950 participants in jobs in previous years. Since January of this year, all three Oakland County career centers alone have assisted over 690 people in the area. For more information about Goodwill Industries, call (313)964-3900.

tions, particularly those laden with relatives of the owner. One common complaint is the lack of promotional opportunities for non-family employees. And here's a classic: Junior, just having obtained a degree in French Horn, joins the firm as vice president while more qualified workers are stuck in the shipping department.

Another beef is the "us vs. them" atmosphere found in some of the smaller mom-and-pops. Closed door meetings for family members only, surprise policy changes and a tendency to hold non-family employees to a higher standard cause feelings of resentment and disenfranchisement.

With all of this in mind, I would rather work for a privately held company than a mega-corp. It's a matter of taste. I like the lean feel of a small company and the way decisions are made when the president's personal money is on the line. Frequently, there is little waste and absolutely no question about who is in charge. It's often as rule free and red tape free as possible. Also, it's not always true that family-owned companies pay less than the big guys.

Don't reject an opportunity just because the business is family owned.

But do beware. Ask tough questions. What percentage of the workforce is family? What are their qualifications? Is there a formal performance review? Be sure to talk with non-family employees about the company's culture before signing on.

Send questions or comments to George Hayes, Job Search, P.O. Box 2497, Southfield, MI 48037 or email george@emplexcorp.com. Hayes is president of Emplex Corp., a search and testing firm, and a regular columnist.

Life in The Slow Lane

Slow but steady: With foot fractured, but not her spirit, Eileen McCarville cruises the frozen food aisle, at her local Kroger grocery store located in Waterford.

When life gives you lemons...make lemonade

A column about electric grocery carts on the Automotive front page? Don't laugh. Electric grocery carts are vehicles, and I'm a shopper very much in need of one.

I had just fractured my left foot. Prognosis: Cast and crutches for the next two months. When I got the bad news, I saw the rest of the summer, clear as a bell. No swimming at the wave pool. Sit-down job only. And, worst of all, no walking to keep the pounds off.

I'd need help even with routine chores like walking to the fax machine and feeding the cat and dog.

However, I am a plucky person who usually manages to find some message in adversity and emerge, cheery. It would just be a little harder for awhile.

As they say, when life gives you lemons, make lemonade.

So, I began to amend my daily routine. A shoulder bag instead of my briefcase/purse (which prompted one colleague to quip, "Are you sure that didn't fall on your foot and break it?"), wrapping my foot in a plastic bag to take showers, and so on.

EILEEN McCARVILLE

But, there was one thing I would not change — and if I could have stamped my fractured foot when I said this to my husband, I would have done so:

"You will not do the grocery shopping. I will still find some way to manage that."

Sweet and helpful as he is, I could envision him returning from the grocery store with "sale" items like an institutional-sized bottle of catsup, buy-one-get-one-free white bread, three pounds of salami and a 12-roll pack of toilet paper.

Therefore, I took destiny into my own hands, remembering they have those electric shopping carts at the grocery store.

I boxed off two hours on my Sunday calendar, and called the Kroger people at the Highland Road store in Waterford. They were very nice, and told me I could just come to the customer service counter and drop off my crutches. They would deliver the cart to me.

Two of the carts had dead batteries, but a store employee managed to find one that was working. I climbed in, and with a little practice at the hand controls (forward and reverse), took off toward produce.

I was worried I might not be able to reach some items, but found most of them — even the two-liter pop bottles — were within easy reach. Sometimes I had to "nudge" items like ice cream to the edge, but with a gentle push, they usually dropped to the basket.

At one point, I boxed myself into a corner (before nearly crashing into a display of laundry detergent). I had to rev the cart back and forth like Mike Myers in the Austin Powers movie.

While shopping, I watched the reactions of the other customers. Some smiled in compassion (and pity), and others looked away, not knowing how to deal with a "disabled" person. A few children skirted out of my path, watching enviously. Some folks seemed irritated I was traveling down "their" aisle.

I realized that this is what permanently disabled people have to deal with every day. Perhaps this will make me more aware and sensitive to them.

I was grateful for folks like the kind lady who offered to pile the groceries in my car trunk.

There, I also identified with the permanently disabled, because I realized there is a fine balance between wanting some help and natural human pride. Even as a "temporarily disabled" person, I wanted to do as much as I could for myself.

By the end of the shopping spree, I was actually having fun, and feeling mightily independent. It's a good thing the carts go slow, because I might have been tempted to speed. Those carts — what a great invention!

I called up Ortho-Kinetics, Inc. in Waukesha, Wis., the company that manufactures the EZ Shopper cart I used.

Chris Lauterbach, a customer service representative, said the vehicles go only 1 mph, running on a quarter horsepower. The company has supplied carts to Kroger and other chains for 40 years, and is always working to improve them.

According to Lauterbach, basic maintenance consists of checking the tires to make sure they're filled with air. Store employees should also check for dead batteries daily. Each cart requires a 24-volt battery unit, which lasts "20 miles on a charge," Lauterbach said. Sometimes customers forget to turn off the cart, which starts with an ignition key.

However, according to Lauterbach, the day we'll see electric cars on the road is still a long way off.

"Electric cars still do use some fuel to charge up the battery — conventional gasoline," he said.

If they ever make it, however, what a savings on gas that will be.
