Police set for cruisers

More city police on downtown Plymouth streets lately?

That's right.

With the onset of Easter break and warm weather drawing young people to Main Street, some officers have been working overtime during evening and early-morning hours to establish a presence early in the "cruising season."

The city also is in the process of hiring up to six temporary police officers to work May 1 through Fall Festival in September, said Police Chief Richard Myers.

"We do promote high visibility patrols," he said.

"We know what the problem has been in the past. We've taken steps to address the problem. We'll continue to monitor as problems develop and take appropriate enforcement action," Myers said.

The chief said he heard rumors of a "cruise-in" last weekend, but the throngs never materialized.

Still, 58 traffic tickets and 20 ordinance violations were handed out Thursday through Sunday, Myers said.

Last spring and summer, police ticketed hundreds of young people for traffic and parking offenses and ordinance violations including trespassing, loitering, minors in possession of alcoholic beverages and urinating in public.

Residents and business people complained about noise and traffic flow.

Limiting traffic to one lane in each direction on Main more than anything seemed to dissipate traffic — and problems.

Brett Burleson lets out some string as his kite becomes airborne. The youngster was spotted enjoying balmy spring temperatures in Plymouth Township Park.

Holbrook Street will get crossing gates

Warning gates and flashing signals will be installed at the railroad tracks on Holbrook Street in Old Village — but probably not very soon.

One state bureaucrat said he'd be surprised if the safety devices were up and functioning some time this calendar year.

Paperwork authorizing the $154,000 project has yet to clear state channels, said Al Chritz, railroad programs engineer for the transportation department.

The earliest that could happen is May — June if Plymouth city officials are slow submitting contract forms, Chritz said.

The railroad can order materials after the state gives its blessing. That takes 6-9 months, said Sue Page, assistant supetintendent of operations for the railroad.

Depending on where railroad gangs are working, installation can take another month.

"THE WHOLE thing is timing," Page said.

Funding already has been worked out. Federal coffers will be tapped for about $138,500, the city treasury for nearly $15,500.

The city commission Monday authorized its share of the project — to be paid from state gas and weight taxes.

The gates and signals, themselves, are the least expensive elements of the project, said Tom Tipi, construction engineer for the railroad.

"It has a lot of relays, a lot of sensitive machinery. It has to be fail safe," he said.

The York Street crossing will be the only one in that section of Old Village without crossing gates and flashing signals once they're installed at Holbrook.

Such safety devices are already up on Mill and Starkweather.

Both city and railroad officials say they expect the state eventually will require the devices on York. Traffic counts don't indicate that need now, they said.

Road work near CEP could end up in court

By M.B. Dillon

Plymouth-Canton Superintendent John Hoben and trustee Dean Swartzwelter want to get even, not mad, in court.

Hoben is upset about the timing of work on a new Joy Road water main, expected to snarl traffic near Centennial Educational Park beginning April 18.

In the wake of the district's millage defeat, Swartzwelter would like to pursue a lawsuit charging the government with failure to provide students with equal educational opportunities.

Hoben and Swartzwelter vented their spleens at last week's school board meeting.

"Work is to start in April and be completed in August," Hoben said of the water main. "We have serious concerns regarding the safety of students (getting in and out of CEP). It appears there will be a continual disruption for some time to come.

'I've directed counsel to pursue a restraining order or an intervention of some sort to see if work can't be scheduled for June through November.'

"I've directed counsel to pursue a restraining order or an intervention of some sort to see if work can't be scheduled for June through November."

INSTALLATION OF the 48-inch main will start at Sheldon and proceed west to Napier. If construction were started later, the area near CEP would be completed while school is out.

Tornado season is at hand

By Doug Funke

The winds of spring have sprung.

And they're not always gentle breezes, either.

Wind can cause substantial damage by itself. Wind also can blow in severe thunderstorms and give rise to tornadoes.

April through July are prime tornado months in Michigan.

Tornadoes are rare in metropolitan Detroit, but they do happen. Like last year in Novi and 1976 in West Bloomfield. Death and destruction accompanied each.

So why don't people take cover when the warning sirens sound?

"It's human nature to disregard safety warnings of things we don't think will immediately impact us," said Richard Myers, police chief in the city of Plymouth.

"I GUESS it's apathy," said Chuck VanVleck, deputy emergency preparedness director in Plymouth Township. "They don't seem to think it's going to affect them."

Warning sirens will sound in Plymouth and Canton whenever a tornado has been sighted or is strongly indicated by radar.

Warnings, according to the Michigan State Police, can cover several counties and usually are in effect no longer than 1½ hours.

The warning signal is a continuous monotone blast of three to five minutes.

Good evening, Mr. and Mrs. Plymouth.

City officials say they've had enough of illegal signs, especially in commercial districts.

So starting this month, they won't waste time writing ordinance violations. DPW employees will just haul them away — again.

The signs may be retrieved at the DPW yard on Arthur Street the first time they're confiscated.

"The second time, they're going right in our compactor," said Ken Vogras, public works director.

Temporary signs promoting sales on private property are illegal — unless permission is received for a limited time from the city manager.

For-sale signs and campaign signs in front of homes are allowed.

Frame signs in front of businesses, advertising banners and flags and garage sale signs attached to telephone poles aren't.

Vogras said his crews will go after illegal signs one day a month on an unannounced, rotating basis.

Why not on a more regular basis and why not issue tickets instead?

"I've got better things to do — a whole lot of work to do," Vogras said.

Processing a ticket through the system takes too much time, he added.

"Let them challenge me. I'm not going to challenge them (in court)."

The first enforcement sweep will occur soon, Vogras said.

And so, promoters, you may want to keep the DPW telephone number (453-7737) handy just in case your sign "disappears."

Doug Funke, signing off.

Local teacher brings history to life

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Army life in the 1870s becomes part of the present as "living historian" Ron Jones describes what it's like to fight Indians in post-Civil War America.

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

This guy goes all out to teach history — all the way out to Fort Laramie in Wyoming and the Oregon Trail.

Folks visiting the circa 1849 fort have seen Ron Jones of Plymouth portraying, in authentic dress and settings, a cavalry man, pioneer, fur trader and old-time storekeeper.

For six weeks every summer, Jones volunteers as a "living historian" for the National Park Service.

Jones, a history teacher at Thomas Behan Junior High School in Farmington, sometimes speaks to students and community groups in full costume.

Looking like he'd just walked out of the 1870s, Jones recently addressed Pioneer Middle School students.

He wore a beard, wire-rimmed spectacles and a belted, navy blue officer's uniform replete with brass buttons and epaulets, wool cap and glistening leather boots.

ARMY-ISSUED attire isn't bad, but "in the Southwest where it's 115 degrees and you're fighting Apaches in wool uniforms, it can get uncomfortable," said Jones.

"Of course you could be at Fort Lincoln where it's 40 below in the Dakota Territory," added Jones, who has a master's degree in history from Eastern Michigan University.

Many soldiers quickly end up out of uniform.

"One third of the men desert before the five-year enlistment period is up," said Jones, flanked by a genuine red and white Company K Army flag.

"We have no way of checking on men's criminal record. Most of our recruits sign up for patriotic reasons. They want to make something of themselves.

"But a lot of men enlist because they want a free ride to the Black Hills. As soon as someone hears about a gold strike, they think about deserting," said Jones, who learned much of what he knows from books he's found out west.

His favorite is "Forty Miles a Day on Beans and Hay," a collection of first-person accounts of life in the 1800s.

WOULD-BE DESERTERS pay dearly for the offense, though not like they did during the Civil War when soldiers on the run were shot after they were caught.

"They'll have you carry 40 lb. sacks of rock until you faint and drop. Then you get up until you drop again. You do that all day.

Angelo DiPonio dies

Angelo DiPonio

Angelo DiPonio, who built from scratch an international reputation in the construction business, died Wednesday in his Plymouth Township home.

For the past year, DiPonio, 71, had been under treatment at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor for cancer.

Last fall, DiPonio celebrated his 50th year at the helm of Greenfield Construction Co. Inc. in Livonia. DiPonio started the company in 1937, two years after graduating from Cooley High School in Detroit.

He first began digging basements for many of the prominent home builders of that time. In the 1950s he expanded into highway construction. Tunnel construction came in the 1960s. By the 1970s the company's reputation had spread across the United States into Canada and Mexico.

"He had an outstanding reputation and was held in high esteem by his colleagues," Livonia city planner John Nagy said. "He was a stickler for meticulous details, for keeping his construction equipment in top-notch order. He was a tireless worker, reviewing every project."

AS OF Wednesday funeral arrangements were incomplete. The Lambert-Vermeulen Funeral Home, 46401 Ann Arbor Road, is handling the arrangements. A devout Catholic, DiPonio went to church every morning at Our Lady of Good Counsel in Plymouth.

DiPonio is best known in Livonia for his home development in Laurel Park. Another subdivision planned by Greenfield, Rennolds Ravine, is almost complete. DiPonio was in the beginning stages of building a third subdivision, Willow Woods.

In an interview in October with the Observer Newspapers, DiPonio attributed his success in the construction business to his mother.

"I had so much respect for her that I knew I couldn't let her down," DiPonio was quoted as saying.

DiPonio also attributed his success to never "giving up."

"I've never given up on a project," he said. "I also had the good fortune of having to learn this business from the ground floor up by physically being involved. If you don't know how to do something, you can't tell another what to do."

Officials give tips on what to do when sirens sound

"Don't make it a frightening experience, but take it seriously," Myers said. "The least you should do is have everyone ready to take cover and watch the sky."

The best place to take cover is in a basement.

"A GOOD AREA is under the stairs if you can get under them," VanVleck said. "That's usually a well-supported area. If there is no basement, go to a small interior room, a closet. Stay away from outside walls."

Parents should talk about severe weather and safety with children in advance so there is no panic when the siren inevitably sounds.

"You start training early, especially with young kids," said Capt. Art Winkel of the Canton Fire Department. "When they know what they do, they do it."

"For heaven's sake, don't wait until the warning is going to decide where the shelter is going to be," VanVleck said.

It's a good idea to keep a battery-operated radio and flashlight in the designated shelter area at all times, Myers said. Don't forget to check the batteries from time to time.

A MOBILE HOME is one place not to be during a tornado warning.

"My suggestion to them is when there's a tornado watch (conditions exist for severe weather to develop), think about visiting someone with a nice strong basement or a shelter," said VanVleck.

Tornado and severe storm season in Michigan has started and residents should be prepared to take cover when bad weather approaches.

"There's no safe place in a mobile home," he said. "It's not tied down. It's not structurally built like a house."

If danger is imminent, find a depression in the ground or a ditch and lie down, advised Winkel.

The last thing emergency preparedness officials need when the sirens sound a tornado warning is a lot of telephone calls.

"That's the time for action," Winkel said.

Both Plymouths and Canton test their sirens at 1 p.m. the first Saturday of the month.

There is no all-clear signal during a test or an emergency.

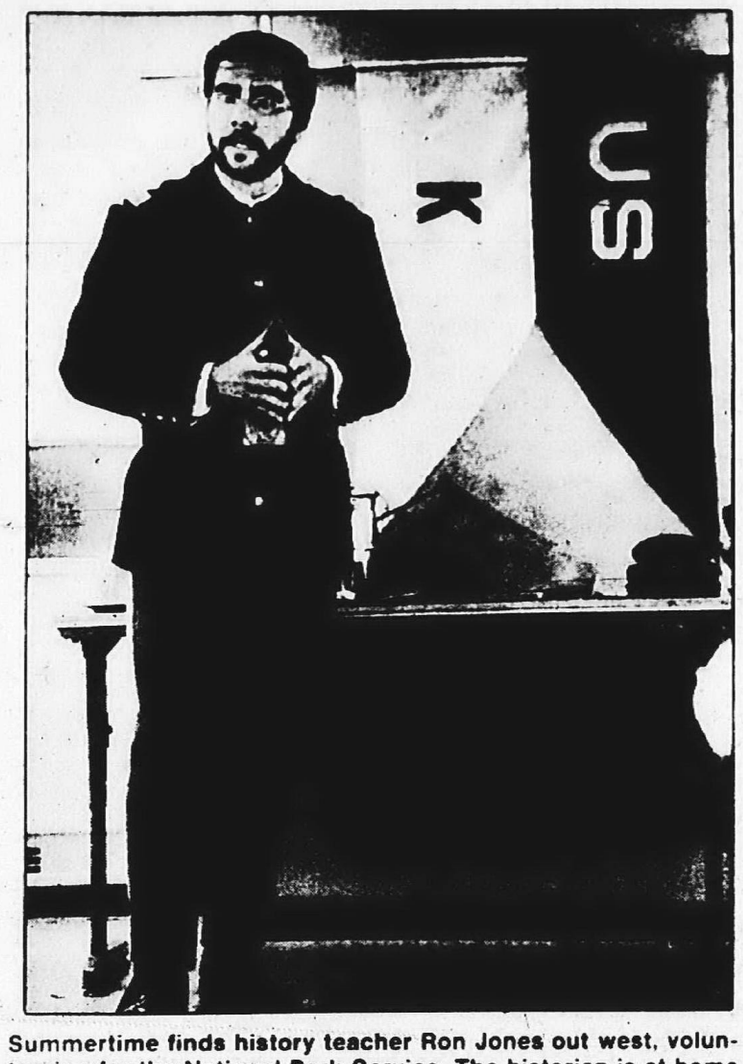
Weapons have come a long way since the Civil War when even the best marksmen got off only two shots a minute using muzzle-loading rifles, said history teacher Ron Jones.

Army food — salt pork or beef, bread, beans and coffee — will keep you full, but not necessarily healthy, said history teacher Ron Jones. So treasured was a tomato plant that once sprouted two tomatoes in the 1870s at Fort Laramie "that the Army posted a guard" to protect it.



Summertime finds history teacher Ron Jones out west, volunteering for the National Park Service. The historian is at home dressed in buckskins, trading goods on the Oregon Trail, or outfitted as a pioneer in wool trousers, cotton shirt and white brimmed hat, inviting visitors to look over his Conestoga wagon.

"Or they shackle you with leg irons, a chain and a 15-25 pound ball. Either you pick it up and carry it, or it chews your leg all up," said Jones.

"The worst thing the service could do to you was flog you. In 1861, they decided it was too cruel."

Now the Army's biggest violators are hogtied. While on their backs, lye soap is stuffed into their mouths.

"They gag them with a rag, and let them stay there for eight hours. They'll choke and gag; they might suffocate and die.

"If they die, they die. This is the last resort. No one gets it done unless they know it's coming. If a soldier dies, no blame is attached to the officer who orders it," said Jones.

WHILE ARMY life can be dull and the food is always lousy, things pick up when you're out on campaign fighting the Indians.

One of the most memorable was after "the second of two great treaties was signed with the Sioux in 1868. The Sioux gave up most of their land in the Dakota Territory except the Black Hills, which they consider sacred," said Jones.

"The treaty said, 'The land shall be yours as long as the grass grows and the water flows.'

"In 1874, gold was discovered. In 1875, the Army said, 'Forget it. If they want to go in, let them go in. Thousands of Indians got angry and jumped the reservation. In 1876 there were Army orders to go after them in the Centennial campaign. The Indians took on Custer and annihilated him."

Army-issued weapons can be useless fighting Indians, Jones said.

"Sabers are fine if Indians will stand and fight. But they won't. They never read our manual. They don't know how to fight our way. They're masters at guerrilla warfare, and we're just learning to fight their way."

"WHEN MY STUDENTS see me dressed as a mountain man, that's when it comes alive for them," said Jones after his talk.

"This is as close as you can get to going back in time and seeing what it was like. To teach history well, you have to know something about it. Otherwise, you're just teaching out of books, and that's how kids get bored."

Local retailers hold on

By Neal Haldane
staff writer

In the past 10 years, Plymouth community retailers have retained their market share in the face of increasing commercial competition.

But the retail businesses in Plymouth and Plymouth Township must be concerned about variety and price in order to attract more customers.

Those were some of the findings contained in a survey conducted recently for the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

"The main purpose was to get a scorecard for ourselves," said Mike Ball, president of The Advertising Group, which worked on the survey.

A similar survey was conducted 10 years ago.

The chamber, which spent about $1,300 for the survey, plans to use the information to target areas that need improvement while promoting those programs and services that received high marks, said Mary Roehr, executive director of the chamber.

"PLYMOUTH IS doing well in the face of its competition," Ball said. "We need to stress and build on the service, friendliness and convenience to continue to grow. We need to improve communications and encourage development of more retail in the community so buyers have more options."

Of the 100 people surveyed, 97 percent said they shopped in either downtown Plymouth, Old Village or along Ann Arbor Road. That was up 4 percent over 1977 when a similar survey was conducted.

The biggest competition for retail dollars comes from the larger malls such as Westland Center and 12 Oaks Mall.

The most commonly purchased item in the Plymouth community was gifts or jewelry, according to the survey.

"They did fantastic in gifts and jewelry, an 11 percent increase over 1977," said Kris Olszewski, also of The Advertising Group.

But the major reason why some shoppers left Plymouth empty-handed was because they could not find the item they sought. Fifty percent of those responding said Plymouth is worse than the malls in the variety selection area.

THIS CAN be corrected by expanding the retail mix within stores or by encouraging other firms to come into the area, Ball said.

The community also needs to maintain the level of friendliness. Of those surveyed, 89 percent said friendliness was an important ingredient in their purchase decision.

In addition to detailing retail trends, the survey provided retailes a peek at who spends money in their businesses.

Ninety percent of those responding own their own homes and 77 percent make more than $35,000 a year. All of the male respondents and a third of the females worked full-time.

That means, Olszewski said, 67 percent of the shoppers cannot come to Plymouth between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. weekdays, prime shopping hours in this area.

"Retailers may have to change their store hours to more reflect the community," she said.

Service aids job seekers

If you ask Jim Grimmer, there's too little of a good thing when it comes to Growth Works Inc.'s employment service.

Not enough employers are taking advantage of a program set up recently to benefit area businesses and job seekers, said Grimmer, business liaison and job developer for Growth Works' Community Employment Service.

Growth Works is a non-profit community agency offering alternative education, substance abuse counseling and job services.

Grimmer witnesses enough success stories to know there could be more, if additional people used the job service.

Bill Ryan of Westland "had a lot of tool and die and milling machine experience," said Grimmer. Ryan is one of 68 former Growth Works job applicants now working.

"FOR ONE reason or another, he hadn't been working since 1985. A past participant (in the employment service) called and said a Farmington Hills company was looking for a tool and die maker.

"The company ended up hiring Bill, and subsidizing him for training under the federal Job Training Partnership Act," said Grimmer.

Companies from throughout western Wayne County and Detroit may register with the service at no charge. Openings usually are in areas including skilled trades, sales, food service, material handling, maintenance and factory and clerical work.

Jobs pay anywhere from minimum wage to $15 an hour for management positions.

Growth Works has referred more than 272 job seekers to the 27 Plymouth Township businesses registered.

Job placement services are free for Plymouth Township residents and open to others for a $2 fee. There is no charge for employers.

Anyone interested in more information may call 455-4093 or stop by Growth Works at 271 S. Main in Plymouth.

"BESIDES JOB referral, we also offer a resume service," said Grimmer.

"We talk with applicants about their job seeking techniques and employability skills and offer counseling," said Grimmer.

"We help anyone from age 16 on up. I see so many ads in the paper. It's just a matter of people not knowing about our service and how we can help them."

Employers may be unaware that "we can provide specialized service," added Grimmer.

"We don't send anyone (to an employer) who doesn't meet qualifications.

"We conduct pre-screenings and do interviewing. Usually the cost is free to employers."

Growth Works also offers other services. Project College Bound targets students from local school districts and alternative education programs, helping them get into college and find employment.

"On the job training" helps the jobless get into a federally subsidized employment program. Growth Works also works with a United Community Services job placement program, providing leads to clients.

Grimmer said it's rewarding to work with them all.

"I've been here 11 years; I have to find it enjoyable. It's definitely satisfying seeing people getting placed — seeing people who are educationally or economically disadvantaged get through their first semester of college. Growth Works is a unique organization with real flexibility for employers."

2 hurt in accident

Two people were treated at area hospitals then released Monday after the car in which they were passengers was involved in an accident at Evergreen and Palmer in the city of Plymouth.

Elised Menchca, 58, of Plymouth was taken by ambulance to Garden City Osteopathic Hospital.

Amy Sanderson, 14, also of Plymouth, was transported to Oakwood Hospital-Canton Center.

They were passengers in a 1977 Buick driven by Clayton Wyatt, 16, of Canton. Neither Wyatt nor a third passenger in the vehicle was injured, police reported.

Michael Connell, 18, of Canton was the driver and only occupant of the other vehicle involved in the collision, a 1970 Pontiac.

He wasn't injured, police reported.

No one was wearing a seat belt, police said, and no one was ticketed.

Wyatt was northbound on Evergreen. Connell westbound on Palmer when the accident occurred, police said. There are no traffic control devices at that intersection.

Man pleads guilty to armed robbery

An 18-year-old man has pleaded guilty to armed robbery and possession of a firearm during the commission of a felony in connection with an incident last January in Plymouth Township.

Jay M. Willard, whose last known address was Taylor, last week pleaded guilty before Judge John M. Shamo in Recorders Court just as he was about to go to trial.

The prosecutor dropped an additional charge of auto theft.

Willard was returned to the Wayne County Jail where he's been held since his arrest. Sentencing was scheduled for Wednesday, April 13.

Willard could receive anything from probation to life in prison for the armed robbery plea. He will receive a mandatory two years in prison for the firearm possession.

A customer at the Quik Pik at Lilley and Ann Arbor Road had left his pickup truck engine running as he stepped into the convenience store shortly before midnight Jan. 6, police said.

The customer left the store and jumped into the bed of the truck when he saw it being driven away.

Willard then crashed the truck into a tree and fled the scene. He was arrested by officers Marty Bugbee and Erik Mayernick a few minutes later in a car on General Drive, police reported.

He had told the car's occupants he was injured in a fight and wanted a ride to Taylor, police said.

School officials may go to court formed the district about the project.

"The first indication we had was when some of those (pipes) were dropped off along Joy," Swartzwelter said. "No one talked to the school district about it. It's going to be a mess.

"It's a county project. They're supposed to work with municipalities. But as you know, the county never has been very good at dealing with local communities."

PONDERING BUDGET cuts that might be needed following the failure of the millage proposal "just bothered me more and more over the weekend," Swartzwelter told fellow trustees.

"I'm certainly not an expert, but each child is guaranteed by the Constitution the right to an equal education. And presently, students not only in Michigan but across the U.S. are not getting an equal education.

"I'd propose not going through the state system, but to go through the federal system, to the Supreme Court if necessary, to make it a national decision as opposed to a state decision.

"I'm not a lawyer, but it seems there should be some mechanism to do that, with all the other equalities guaranteed in the Constitution. It's being opened more and more to to cover more and more areas. There should be a way to legally open up the area of equal education, and relate it to this."

TRUSTEE E.J. McClendon said Romulus public schools twice tried and failed to sue the state over school funding.

"Unless we can go about it an a manner markedly different, I don't see much point in pursuing (a suit)," McClendon said.

Romulus Superintendent Bill Bedell was unavailable for comment. But Romulus administrator Bill Smith said the district's suits charged that because of the way the state finances education, students from districts like Romulus and Plymouth don't receive the same opportunities other students do.

"The suits were dismissed, but they served notice to the state that it had to address school finance," Smith said.

Library to honor volunteers

The Dunning-Hough Library will host a special recognition luncheon to honor 28 volunteers.

The luncheon is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. Thursday, April 21, upstairs at the library, 223 S. Main.

The volunteers, some who have been with the library five years, process books, file business reports, hand out magazines, shelf read, repair books, handle mailings, and take care of any small or large task that needs to be done, said Gerry Barlage, librarian.

The following volunteers will be honored for their efforts:

Gail Atkinson, Margi Bake, Virginia Bencks, Helen Bowen, Frank Bowen, Marion Breed, Peggy Clogg, Celeste Cook, Jean Curtiss, Mary Faulds, Rosanne Hafeli and Florence Hallam.

Lois Hansen, Vera Hill, Leah Huppenbauer, Jack Jones, Phyllis Lenaghan, Barbara Lockwood, Lydia Marcum, Judy Morgan, Joe Rackle, Ruby Rudnick, Jean Schultheiss, Helen Seaberg, Chet Solowiej, Ken Spear, Virginia Tornga, Karen Volk, Cheryl Zepp.

Anyone interested in joining the volunteer program can call Barlage, 453-0750.

Awards event slated for young authors

Young authors in the Plymouth-Canton area will be honored at the Laureate Awards Night celebration at Field School.

The ceremony is set for 7 p.m. Wednesday, April 20. Administrators, families and students will attend the event.

The Laureate Awards are presented each year to elementary school authors whose work has been judged outstanding.

The students' work will be published in the "Laureate Anthology — Our Best in 1987." These anthologies are then displayed in the libraries of elementary schools throughout the district.

MEDAL WINNERS in the primary division are Derek Rafalski and Rebecca Knight from Field, and Albert Hamood from Allen.

A special award for narrative poetry is being presented to Kelli Knight from Field. In addition, special recognition for a poem will go to Jason Dwarzski.

Medal winners in the intermediate division are David Knight from Field; Amber Lancaster from Farrand, and Derek Clemens from Allen.

A special award for this division will be given to Marie Wilson from Allen for an alphabet book.

RUNNERS-UP INCLUDE Kelly Boyd, Paul Koppin, Melanie Van Hoeck and Lucas Woodcock in the primary division. In the intermediate division, runners-up are Piyush Bharti, Cara Stillings and Jason Summers.

Honorable mentions go to Curt Davidson, Erin Vaquera and David Rousseau in the primary division; and to Katherine Garard, Andrea Tripp, Ben Davidson, Lisa Soash, Harry Lee and Kelly Proctor.

Commission expenses: bargain or burden?

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

No one disputes that Wayne County is in tough times — after all, it needed a bailout from Lansing and can't afford to keep all its felons in jail. So, it might seem as if some of its part-time help is overpaid at $26,426 a year.

The part-timers who make that kind of money — and who will make $29,750 a year in 1989 — are 14 county commissioners. The 15th commissioner, Arthur Carter, makes an extra $6,000 a year for heading the legislative body. Commissioners also receive medical benefits.

Commissioners are required to attend meetings twice a month and most are members of at least three committees with varying meeting schedules.

The commissioners, however, say they are not overpaid for their elected, two-year terms, that the job is part time in name only and full time in reality.

THE BUDGET for the commission is nearly $3.6 million for 1988, which includes individual office budgets of about $66,000 a year to cover staff assistants, travel expenses, printing costs and miscellaneous needs.

In comparison, the 27 commissioners in Oakland County make a base salary of $17,191 a year with the chairperson at $18,719. There is no office allowance.

The 25 Macomb commissioners make $14,453 a year with a $35 per diem meeting allowance that has a cap of $3,000 a year, and the chairperson makes $24,117 with an unlimited per diem. There is no office allowance.

SUSAN HEINTZ, Wayne County's sole Republican commissioner, defends the pay rate, as well as the $34,000 salary she pays her chief aide, former state representative Robert Law.

Heintz, in the second year of her first term, is on the ways and means committee, the committee on roads, airports and public services and is chairwoman of the economic development committee.

She represents the 10th District, which includes the cities of Livonia, Plymouth and Northville and the townships of Plymouth and Northville.

"I represent one of the fastest growing districts; there's lots of involvement with the county on issues like sewage connection (and) utilities," said Heintz, who describes herself as a workaholic. She said she works 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays, plus some night work.

"It can't be a part-time job — there's too much work. I'm on three committees, they're all important. I spend lots of time in the district. I usually spend three weeknights out of five working, and there is usually a weekend function to attend . . . We have to be held accountable."

Heintz maintains an office in Plymouth, where she does most of her work "because constituents prefer coming here over going downtown." The office is funded by campaign contributions, not tax dollars, she stressed. It is in the same building where Law practices law.

Her other full-time aide, Dolores Newell, a former Westland city council member, is paid $14,700 annually.

"Some (commissioners) hire one aide for up to $40,000 and others hire several, including college students," said Carter. "You can have one aide or 10, depending on how you want to break it down."

"He (Law) used to be Gov. Milliken's chief legislative aide," said Heintz. "He serves as a liaison between myself and state officials. He spent a tremendous amount of time on the Wayne County solvency plan. I feel fortunate to have such a reputable staff. He is probably worth three times more than I am. He is an attorney with a tremendous amount of government experience. I couldn't pay him enough."

MILTON MACK represents nine communities in the 11th District, including Canton Township. He has one aide and shares a secretary with commissioner William O'Neil of the 14th District. He publishes an annual directory out of his office budget.

"I guess I've spent about $50,000 of the allotment," he said in a telephone interview from Washington, D.C., where he recently attended a conference as a representative of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG).

Mack is an attorney with what he described as a "flexible practice." He said he spends between 40 and 50 hours a week on county commission work, including meetings with city councils and township boards and visits with constituents.

He is chairman of the Solid Waste Implementation Commission, which is writing the solid waste policy for the county; vice chairman of the special task force on drains; and a member of the audit and economic development committees.

His aide is Jerry Higgs, a retired Wayne County Road Commission employee whose duties include checking complaints about roads and ditches and attending meetings Mack can't make.

"With nine communities and 200 square miles to cover, he's really a valuable resource," said Mack. "If you're going to be effective, you can't do it alone. My feeling is based on the reaction I've received — (constituents) are happy with the way my office is set up."

KAY BEARD, who represents the 12th District, which includes Garden City and Westland, also said she considers the job of commissioner as full time.

"You're expected to be involved in lots of things outside of commission work," she said.

Beard is chairwoman of the committee that deals with the owners of the newly renovated old County Building, which is leased to the county; vice chair of the audit committee and a member of the special enhanced 911 and human services committees. She is also active with the National Association of Counties and the Michigan Association of Counties.

Her staff aide is David Keith, son of state Rep. William Keith, D-Garden City.

RICHARD MANNING is in his ninth term representing the 9th District, which includes Redford Township. An attorney with a practice in Redford, he said he is busiest on commission work during budget time, from August through December, when he said meetings are called daily.

"The balance of the year it consumes 2½ to three days formally. Informally, it's many nights with citizen groups. The lifeblood of politics is finding out what people want," he said.

Manning is vice chairman of the health and human services committee and a member of the public safety and judiciary committees. He has a secretary, an aide, Clem Bykowski, and two part-time staffers who work about eight hours a month attending meetings, working on constituent complaints and doing research.

State legislators say pay is good, but hours long

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

Rep. Lyn Bankes
Livonia

Rep. Justine Barns
Westland

Rep. John Bennett
Redford

The pay is good, but the life isn't glamorous, say area representatives and senators. The hours are long, as are the frequent commutes between home and Lansing.

Lyn Bankes' home in Lansing is a Red Roof Inn — where she retires after working in her office until 10 p.m., she said. If she has business in the district, she makes the commute. She holds five committee appointments, including minority vice chairman of urban affairs.

"I don't think there is such a thing as a 40-hour work week in government," she said. "A public servant must always be available."

Justine Barns, a third term Democrat from Westland, agrees. "I haven't stopped to count, but I'd say I put in a minimum 60 hours a week between things in the district and in Lansing."

Barns is majority caucus vice chairwoman, serves on seven committees including chairwoman of senior citizens and retirement, and several public health subcommittees. She is also on the advocacy council for the Reuther State Mental Health facility in Westland.

Redford Township Democrat John Bennett is a 24-year veteran of the state House. As majority whip, he helps the House speaker pass the Democratic program. Bennett serves on four committees and chairs two of them, corporations and finance, and legislative retirement.

"I drive up (to Lansing) every Monday morning whether we're in session or not," Bennett said. "There are too many things to do. Sometimes, I drive down midweek for appointments, like explaining something to senior citizens groups."

GERALD LAW worked 11 years for the Ford Motor Co. before he was elected state representative six years ago. A Republican, his district includes Plymouth, Northville and part of Canton Township.

Legislators' salary benefits explained

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

With statements of earnings forms in hand, taxpayers this time of year can see clearly the amount of money they've contributed to the running of the state of Michigan.

What they can't see is how much of that goes to pay their state representatives and senators and to staff and run their offices.

The base salary for representatives and senators is $39,881. Special allowances, which are set by the State Officers Compensation Commission, include things like $7,700 annually for lodging and meals, and 26 cents a mile for one round trip to Lansing from the lawmaker's district each week.

In the state House of Representatives, each lawmaker has a secretary, paid on a standard state scale based on seniority. Aides are assigned by House Speaker Gary Owen, a Democrat.

The eight minority representatives with the least seniority do not have aides, including Lyn Bankes, R-Livonia, who is in her second term. "But I'm hoping to get one," she said.

A SPOKESMAN for Owens said that until his tenure, no minority representativess had aides, and that as monies become available, those eight may end up with staff help.

State senators receive a lump sum to fill staff positions — approximately $152,315 to fill five staff positions for majority members and $110,000 for three full-time staffers for minority members. Benefit packages equal 30 percent of the base salary and cover such items as 11 paid state holidays, sick and personal leave, insurance for health, life, accidental death and disability and a retirement program.

Majority senators get extra staff help because they chair committees, which increases the work load, said a spokesman for Sen. Majority Leader John Engler.

A senator may choose to have a larger, part-time staff, but benefits are limited. There is also a $45,000 office operations budget for things like printing, postage, telephones and stationery. Monies can be shifted from this budget for additional staff.

Legislators say they earn their keep

"I made more money six years ago at Ford Motor Co. than today. But I enjoy this more than my other job. For $39,000, they're getting a bargain. My salary becomes insignificant for (the) responsibility," he said.

Law, who has a master's degree in business and a law degree, serves on four committees including minority vice chairman of state affairs and numerous subcommittees.

State Rep. Bill Keith, D-Garden City, is personnel officer, chairs the House Education Committee and serves on three others. He also is on a special committee on school finance reform, serves as Michigan delegate on a national education committee and is a member of the governor's literacy task force.

James Kosteva, a second-term Democrat from Canton Township, serves on six standing committees, the Library of Michigan Board of Trustees, House Committee on School Finance, and a joint committee on school finance and property tax reform. He said he works 50 to 60 hours a week.

State Sen. Robert Geake, R-Northville, first served two terms in the state House, then completed the term of Washington-bound Carl Pursell, and has since served two terms in the state Senate. He is in his 15th year in state government.

He serves as vice chairman of both the appropriations and human resources and senior citizens committees and is an alternate on another committee. He is chairman of subcommittees on mental health and social services, plus a member of numerous other subcommittees.

"Ten hours a day, seven days a week — 50 percent in Lansing, 50 percent in the district" is how he describes his work week. In addition to a regular work day schedule, the job takes up "almost every night and weekends," he said.

'I made more money six years ago at Ford Motor Co. than today.'
— Rep. Gerald Law R-Plymouth

Veteran lawmaker William Faust, a Westland Democrat with 22 years in the state Senate, says time spent on the job "depends on how aggressive you are and how involved you become. It's not the type of job you can put hours on. A function may be social but you're invited because you hold (public) office."

Faust said he spends about 30 hours a week in Lansing and 20 hours a week in the district. When the budget comes up I'll spend 50 hours in Lansing and none in the district."

Faust is vice chairman of commerce and technology and a member of three other committees.

Sen. George Hart, D-Dearborn, is assistant Senate minority cacus chairman. He is minority vice-chairperson of the Senate energy and local government and veterans committees. He also serves on the state affairs, tourism and transportation committees. His district includes Garden City.

CHANG CHENG-KUN HSU

Memorial services for Chang Cheng-Kun Hsu of Canton were held April 5 in Kaoshrung Hsien, Taiwan.

Mrs. Hsu, 78, was born March 6, 1910, in China. She died March 31 in Ypsilanti.

A homemaker, Mrs. Hsu is survived by daughters, Chung-Yu Ko and Chong-Ming Sung of Canton, sons, Chung-Chi Hsu of Canton and Ta-Chung Fu of Taiwan, three brothers, one sister, and eight grandchildren.

Arrangments for burial at Sun-She Cemetery in Kaoshiung Hsien, Taiwan, were made by Lambert-Vermeulen Funeral Home.

LOUISE ANN STORBECK

Funeral services for Louise Ann Storbeck, 92, of Canton were held April 5 in St. John Neumann Church with the Rev. Thomas Belczak officiating.

Mrs. Storbeck died April 2 in West Branch. She was born Feb. 10, 1896, in Michigan.

A homemaker and a member of St. John Neumann Church, Mrs. Storbeck is survived by a son, Herbert of Canton, and grandchildren, Scott, Tracy, Douglas and Mark Storbeck of Canton.

Arrangements were made by Lambert-Vermeulen Funeral Home. Memorial contributions may be made to St. John Neumann Church.

RICHARD N. BREWINGTON

Services for Richard N. Brewington of Plymouth were held April 4 at the Buena Vista Funeral Home in Nashville, Tenn.

Mr. Brewington, 49, died March 31 at Oakwood Hospital-Canton Center. He was born Jan. 25, 1939, in Tennessee.

Mr. Brewington, who worked for Skills Inc. of Ann Arbor, is survived by his mother, Elizabeth Appleton of Nashville; sister, Joyce Meriwether of Plymouth; and niece, Brenda Watts of Nashville.

Interment was at Woodlawn Memorial Park of Nasvhille with arrangements by Lambert-Vermeulen Funeral Home.

Services for Richard L. Bourque of Canton were held April 5 at Lambert-Vermeulen Funeral Home with the Rev. Thomas Belczak officiating.

Mr. Bourque, 51, worked for 30 years as a maintenance welder with Rouge Steel.

He was born Oct. 8, 1936, in Michigan. He died April 2 at home.

Mr. Bourque is survived by his wife, Susann Ellerholz Bourque; parents, Joseph and Rita Bourque of Dearborn Heights; son, Adam; and sister, Noela; and brother, Daniel, both of California.

Mr. Bourque belonged to St. John Neumann Church in Canton. He was a member of the Mariner Prop Riders of Region No. 6, Grand Prix Hydroplane Inc. of Canada and the American Drag Boat Association.

LAURA M. CROCKETT

Services for Laura M. Crockett of Plymouth are scheduled for 11 a.m. Saturday, April 9, at the Cathedral of St. Paul in Detroit with Canon Frederic Brunson officiating.

Mrs. Crockett, a longtime member of the Plymouth community, was born Oct. 25, 1897. She died April 4 at Plymouth Court.

Mrs. Crockett is survived by sons, David M. Crockett of Plymouth and Richard R. Crockett of Flint; daughter, Laura McCamman of Livonia; 16 grandchildren and 21 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Crockett was a social worker with the Detroit Orthopedic Clinic and Goodwill Industries. A member of the Cathedral of St. Paul, she retired in 1972.

Interment was at Evergreen Cemetery in Detroit.

Memorials may be made to "The Crossroads" at the Cathedral of St. Paul.

Arrangements were by the Ross B. Northrop & Son Funeral Home of Northville.

1st-grade teacher named extra-miler

Nominated by the entire Bird School staff, first grade teacher Sharon Belobraidich was bestowed with an "Extra-Miler" award by the Plymouth-Canton school board Monday night.

"It's fitting that Mrs. Belobraidich be recognized for the good she is doing. The atmosphere she provides nurtures personal as well as academic growth," said trustee Dean Swartzwelter.

"She's a delightful person we're happy to know."

Swartzwelter commended the 21-year employee for her all-around involvement in, among many other things, school plays and concerts, the Plymouth-Canton Education Association, American Association of University Women, Michigan Diabetes Association board, and the First United Methodist Church.

"Mrs. Belobraidich is a loving, caring, sharing person, and that sentiment comes not only from the board, but her staff and peers in the building, children in her classroom and anyone in the community who knows her."

Belobraidich said, "It's very easy to be an extra-miler at a school like Bird. The staff is super and the children are wonderful."

Belobraidich earned her bachelor's degree at Michigan State University and her master's at Eastern Michigan.

She was given a framed extra-miler certificate, a cloisonne enamel pin of the Flag of Learning and Liberty. She'll be treated to a meal for two by the Mayflower Hotel.

Top scores

Orchestras rank high

Plymouth-Canton Community School orchestras scored first-division rankings in recent competitions sponsored by the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association.

The 12-member Plymouth Centennial Park String ensemble earned an "A" rating for a first-division performance at the State Chamber Orchestra Festival March 26 at Eastern Michigan University.

The CEP String Quartet also received a first division rating for its performance of a Haydn Quartet.

"This represents a great deal of hard work on the part of everyone involved," said H. Michael Endres, orchestra director.

Earlier in March, the 24-member combined Middle School Orchestra received an overall Division I rating at the District 12 Junior High Orchestra festival in Dearborn.

And the 25-member Plymouth Centennial Park Orchestra also received a first division rating at the District 12 MSBOA's Senior High Orchestra Festival in Saline.

Rouge cleanup seeks helpers

Though Rouge Rescue '88 won't be held until June, Friends of the Rouge has already begun looking for volunteers and equipment.

"What we'd like is for companies to offer us winches and cranes for a day," new Friends of the Rouge executive director William Jakeway said. "We're also looking for chain saws."

In addition to individual volunteers, Friends of the Rouge seeks help from corporations, retailers and other businesses, Jakeway said.

The third annual Rouge Rescue is scheduled for Saturday, June 4.

This month, the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments (SEMCOG) will present the Michigan Water Resources Commission with a 20-year remedial action plan designed to restore the Rouge.

The plan will identify major sources of pollution, propose solutions and assign responsibility for the cleanup.

Last year, more than 2,000 volunteers participated at 22 sites stretching from Canton Township north to Birmingham.

MORE COMMUNITY involvement is sought for this year's cleanup.

"Many of the communities along the Rouge River basin are participating," Jakeway said. "But we don't yet have all of them."

Twenty-two municipalities participated in last year's cleanup.

The 126-mile-long river runs through 36 communities in Wayne, Oakland and eastern Washtenaw counties.

An estimated 1.5 million people live and work within the 467-square-mile river basin. The Rouge is considered Michigan's most heavily polluted river.

Items pulled from the river during last year's cleanup included 19 cars, two motorcycles, an estimated 150 tires and a 14-foot steel boat.

Other items pulled from the river included 75 grocery carts, a safe, four refrigerators, two dishwashers, two couches, and a manure spreader.

In addition, more than 54,000 gallons of trash was taken out of the river, including three-quarters of a ton worth of shingles. Volunteers also cleared 72 log jams.

The Rouge River yielded many surprises during last year's cleanup, among them an old motorcycle.

Reps split on veto override

Area representatives split along party lines recently as Congress overrode President Reagan's veto of civil rights legislation.

Democrats Sander Levin and William Ford voted for the override. Republican Carl Pursell voted against it.

"It's not one of those votes you agonize over," said Levin, whose district includes Southfield and Redford Township. "A vote to override the president's veto was another step forward for the preservation and protection of civil rights."

Pursell, who represents northern Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township, differed.

"My vote on the veto was aimed at allowing us the opportunity to reconsider, and thus improve, this civil rights measure," Pursell said. "While I support the enforcement of our basic civil rights laws, I am concerned about expanding the scope of federal authority into the daily business of private organizations."

Ford, who represents Westland, Garden City, Canton Township and southern Livonia, was unavailable for comment.

BOTH HOUSES of Congress voted to override the president's veto of a bill reversing a Supreme Court decision that narrowed the scope of federal anti-discrimination laws.

The court had said that in the case of institutions receiving federal aid, anti-discrimination rules applied only to the unit receiving the money. The bill applies the rules to the entire organization.

Opponents charged the legislation was a power-grab by Washington that would intrude on religious freedom because of its application to church-connected schools and colleges.

Supporters argued discrimination must not be allowed.

The Senate voted 73-24 to override the veto. Both Michigan senators, Carl Levin, D-Detroit and Donald Riegle, D-Flint.

The civil rights bill was sent to the House immediately after the Senate vote. There, representatives voted 292-133 to override the president's veto.

Michigan's representatives supported the override by a 13-5 margin.

Levin and Ford joined with Democrats David Bonior, Bob Carr, John Conyers, George Crockett, John Dingell, Dennis Hertel, Dale Kildee, Bob Traxler and Howard Wolpe and Republicans Robert Davis and Bill Schuette in voting for the override.

Pursell and fellow Republicans William Broomfield, Paul Henry, Fred Upton and Guy Vander Jagt voted against the override.

The Associated Press contributed to this story. 30

'A vote to override the president's veto was another step forward for the preservation and protection of civil rights.'

— Sander Levin D-Southfield

Barsamian will seek seat on appeals court

Judge Y. Gladys Barsamian of the Wayne County Probate Court has announced her candidacy for one of two newly created Michigan Court of Appeals seats.

Barsamian is running for one of two new seats in the court's First District, including Wayne, Washtenaw, Jackson, Lenawee, Livingston and Monroe counties.

Barsamian lists helping develop the Wayne County Juvenile Justice Plan, as well as programs dealing with serious and violent offenders, probation and docket management reform among her career accomplishments.

First elected to the probate court in 1974, Barsamian has served six years as presiding judge of the court's juvenile division and two years as probate court Chief Judge Pro Tempore.

The Plymouth resident is a past president of the Women Lawyers Association of Michigan and the Women's Economic Club.

She received her law degree from Wayne State University.

Before election to the probate bench, Barsamian practiced law for 17 years.

Barsamian is vice president of the Michigan Probate Judges Association and chairwoman of the Michigan Bar Juvenile Law Committee. She also serves on the Michigan Supreme Court Juvenile Court Rules Committee, the Michigan Committee on Juvenile Justice and the Probate Juvenile Bench Book Committee of the Michigan Judicial Institute.

She serves on the boards of the Metropolitan Detroit Youth Foundation, Michigan Association for Emotionally Disturbed Children, Aurora Hospital, Children's Charter of the Courts of Michigan Inc. and the Downtown YMCA.

Barsamian was named a Metropolitan Detroit YMCA "Woman in Perspective" in 1981.

She is also a member of the Detroit Bar and vice president of the Michigan Probate Judges Association.

In addition, she has served on the Detroit Strategic Planning Project Crime Task Force, the Junior League of Detroit Initiative Advisory Board and the United Community Services Public Affairs Committee.

Y. Gladys Barsamian appeals court candidate

Arab-Israeli forum set

Peace activists Hillel Schenker and Dr. Anan Jabara will address peaceful solutions to strife in Gaza and the West Bank in a public forum 7:30 p.m. Monday, in Barth Hall, St. Paul's Cathedral, 4800 Woodward, Detroit.

The forum, titled "An Israeli-Palestinian Dialogue on the West Bank and Gaza Uprising," is co-sponsored by the New Jewish Agenda of Metropolitan Detroit and the Palestine Aid Society.

Schenker, a U.S. citizen who emigrated to Israel in 1963, is a graduate of Tel Aviv University. He is senior editor of the New Outlook, an English language magazine published by the Israeli peace movement.

Jabara, a Palestinian who is a naturalized U.S. citizen, holds a doctorate in sociology from Wayne State University. She is national president of the Palestine Aid Society.

The program will be moderated by the Rev. Erwin Brown of Christ Church in Detroit.

Admission is $3 each or $2 each for students and senior citizens. For more information, call 674-4321 or 548-7370.

Madonna to award honorary degrees

Interim state Superintendent of Public Instruction Gary Hawks and Sister Rosemary Donley, executive vice president of Catholic University of America, will receive honorary degrees during spring commencement activities at Madonna College, Livonia.

Sister Donley is also president of the National League of Nursing.

Commencement activities are Saturday, May 7, in Ford Auditorium, Detroit.

It is Madonna's 41st annual commencement.

It's time to go fly a kite but follow safety rules

As kite-flying season begins, Consumers Power Co. warns youngsters against flying kites near utility lines.

Kite flying should be done in open fields, away from power lines, trees and other obstructions, West Wayne district manager John Robbins said.

Electricity travels along the path of least resistance, Robbins said, and could travel down the string and cause injury. No one should consider climbing utility poles, trees or broadcast towers to retrieve lost kites, Robbins said.

Children shouldn't climb tress, he added, unless they make sure there are no power lines near.

Basic safety rules for kite-flyers and tree-climbers include:

- Stay away from power lines.
- Stay away from fallen power lines.
- Fly kites made of wood, plastic or paper — not metal.
- Use dry string when flying a kite — not wire or anything metallic.
- Fly kits only in open areas and in dry weather. Avoid roadways and television or radio antennas.

Schools and community groups interested in presenting a film on electrical safety can call Consumers Power representative Patrice Kadlechik, 549-5000, Ext. 267.

New Ways to REMOVE CATARACTS

Reports of new ways to remove cataracts crop up from time to time in the newspapers. The first of the modern methods of removing cataracts was developed in 1962. A freezing probe was used to attach itself to a cataract and then gently remove it. Then in 1967 a method using ultrasound was introduced to break up and remove a cataract. Frequently a news report will errantly announce these as "new" methods of removing cataracts. Actually, they have been around for some time. However, recent advances in technology have made it possible for more eye surgeons to use advanced techniques to remove cataracts. Some of these new refinements are worth mentioning.

In all types of cataract operations a soft vacuum procedure is used to remove a cloudy cataract from the eye. Today eye surgeons are using computer controlled instruments to extract particles of cataracts. These instruments resemble the control panel of a Boeing 747. Lights and digital displays indicate eye pressure, vacuum pressure, fluid velocity, etc. The cataract, only about the size of an aspirin, is first detached from its skin, like the skin of a grape. Then its hard center is removed, like removing the peanut from the center of a piece of candy. Then milky portions of the lens are delicately removed. The cloudy material that was once blocking light rays from entering the eyes has now been removed. A clear artificial plastic lens is implanted to replace the cloudy one now removed. New refinements in cataract surgery are being developed every day. They are helping to make one of the safest and most effective operations in the history of medicine an even better surgical procedure for a growing generation of older adults who will undergo cataract surgery.

Communities consider own solid waste plans

By Wayne Peal
staff writer

Some area communities began considering solid waste disposal alternatives long before last week, when Wayne County executive Edward McNamara unveiled his proposed countywide plan.

But McNamara's plan, if adopted, could force those communities that lagged behind into a game of beat the clock.

The plan would prevent communities from dumping trash in county landfills by Jan. 1, 1991, unless they adopted plans to cut trash levels by 75 percent. It would give communities until the year 2000 to develop incinerators or other alternative disposal methods.

County landfill space will run out within four years unless communities begin making cuts, McNamara said. Incinerators and recycling plants are among suggested alternatives, but it would be up to individual communities, not the county, to develop them.

Officials in two local communities believe they won't have any difficulty meeting the deadline.

BOTH WESTLAND and Garden City are part of the Central Wayne Incinerator Authority. The authority's incinerator should resume operating within the next few weeks and begin burning up a sizable amount of waste materials, community leaders said.

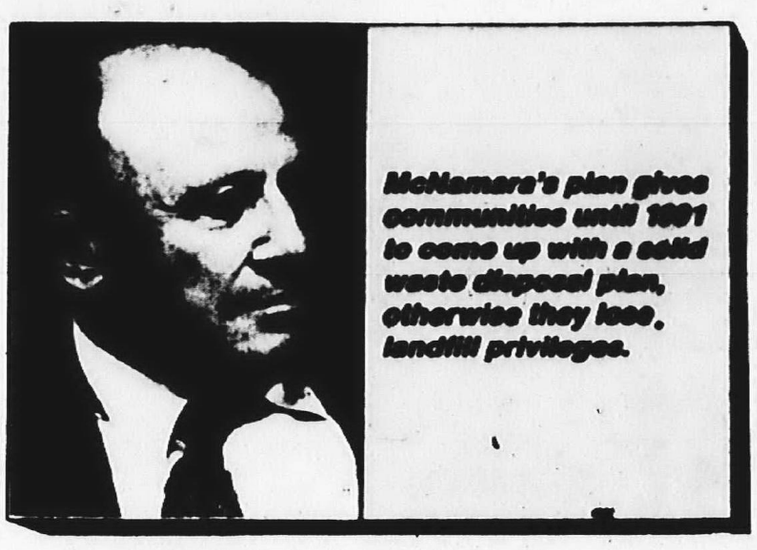
Voters in member communities agreed to a new 1-mill tax to modernize the facility, which had closed because of Environmental Protection Agency concerns.

"It (solid waste disposal) just hasn't been an issue," Garden City city manager Jon Austin said.

Westland mayor Charles Griffin, however, said other communities could have problems if they don't move quickly.

"Seventy-five percent — that's a hefty goal," Griffin said. "Let me tell you, I'm glad we're part of the Central Wayne Incinerator Authority."

Most local communities have been actively involved in drafting a Conference of Western Wayne (CWW) disposal plan, Griffin said. Griffin is the multi-community agency's chairman.



McNamara unveiled his plan to county mayors Tuesday night.

Livonia mayor Robert Bennett, who was present, said there wasn't an overwhelming reaction for or against the proposal.

"Reaction was pretty silent," Bennett said. "It's a lot to digest."

THOUGH LIVONIA has been involved with the CWW plan, Bennett said the city has no waste disposal plan of its own. All waste is taken to landfills by the city's private trash contractor.

Livonia may explore a contract with Detroit for space in the city's new, though controversial, incinerator, Bennett said.

Redford Township lacks a local plan and the ability to solve waste disposal problems locally, supervisor James Kelly said.

"We're not sure where to turn right now," Kelly said. "We're pretty built-up. We don't have space for a landfill and we're too residential for an incinerator."

Plymouth also lacks a local plan, but city manager Henry Graper said the city may decide to join a waste disposal authority being considered by neighboring Canton, Northville and Plymouth townships.

"When we joined together in a sewer disposal system, it was with the intent that we could go for a solid waste disposal system, too," Plymouth Township supervisor Maurice Breen said.

CANTON TOWNSHIP would be exempt from the 75-percent reduction if a pending private landfill within township boundaries was approved.

Township supervisor James Poole, however, said landfills shouldn't be approved until the county waste disposal plan is adopted.

"McNamara's plan is a good one, it's time somebody did something about solid waste," Poole said. "But if we approve this landfill (and three others pending in other nearby communities) it would give us 15 more years of dumping and that's going to cut the guts right out of it. If there's no emergency, nothing will be done."

Communities could block the county plan. A two-thirds vote among cities and townships, as well as county commission approval, is necessary to make it a reality.

Community leaders acknowledged that solid waste disposal problems would continue without a plan.

"No one over 21 believes in the tooth fairy, but they all believe in the garbage fairy," Poole said. "But when you put your garbage out on the curb it has to go somewhere. It doesn't just disappear."

Survey

Results should aid local retailers

A RECENT RETAIL survey conducted by the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce contained the proverbial good news, bad news mix.

The good news was that local shopping areas — downtown, Old Village and along Ann Arbor Road — have done very well since the last survey was taken 10 years ago.

The latest survey showed 97 percent of those contacted shop in Plymouth, compared to 93 percent 10 years ago.

That speaks well of the community and its attractiveness as a retail area, especially considering the huge amounts of competition from malls and the multitude of strip shopping areas popping up in neighboring communities.

But the bad news is that the retail community has to offer more variety and should consider changing the way it does business in order to retain and attract even more shoppers.

THIS SURVEY is an important tool that should be used to maintain Plymouth as a viable retail community in the years ahead.

The results should be used to correct perceived and actual deficiencies while promoting and expanding the positive characteristics associated with shopping in Plymouth.

The chamber has taken a strong step by conducting the survey. And it has started releasing the information to members through its Retail in Review newsletter.

But because the survey uncovered some interesting trends, the chamber may wish to consider doing a similar check of consumers attitudes on a more timely basis. That would give retailers a more up-to-date look at consumer views and desires.

The current survey provided that important glimpse into the minds of shoppers.

It showed that a majority of people, about 67 percent, cannot shop in Plymouth during the typical 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. business hours because of work commitments.

The results should be used to correct perceived and actual deficiencies while promoting and expanding the positive characteristics associated with shopping in Plymouth.

THIS IS an important point because large percentages of consumers rate convenience as an important item in their purchase decision.

Retailers who want to tap into this market should consider altering their hours to service this growing segment of the community.

Variety also was an area that needs improvement in the local community. The survey showed that 50 percent said Plymouth is worse than the malls in terms of selection and variety.

Improving product mix and attracting new business would help change that view and increase retail traffic.

Price is another area that must be addressed. Plymouth is worse than the shopping malls when it comes to prices, according to 56 percent of those responding. That's up 15 percent over the 1977 figure.

But Plymouth retailers still have an important edge in the service area, where 96 percent said local firms are better or the same as the malls.

Retailers should take a long look at the survey and determine how these results can be used to improve business.

The worst thing to do is to put this survey on the shelf and let it collect dust until 1998.

Tiger Stadium II

New park must be accessible

THERE'S A new baseball season underway and, as in the past, it will prompt hundreds of thousands of suburbanites and city-dwellers into joining together at Tiger Stadium.

This is a positive happening. In these days of self-contained suburbs and an increasingly isolated inner city, the old ballpark is one of a dwindling number of places where suburbanites and city dwellers routinely gather for a common cause.

But this isn't a long, teary tome on why Tiger Stadium should be preserved. The old ballpark is just that. Its oldest parts date back three-quarters of a century, its newest parts date back a half-century. A decision is clearly due on its future, or lack of one.

Given the advantages of modern architecture, we think there's considerable merit to building a replacement stadium — but only if the new stadium retains the best parts of the old.

Thus far, most talk has centered on artificial turf as well as whether Tiger Stadium II should be enclosed underneath a dome. These aren't bad issues, we ourselves have a preference for real grass and fresh air. But they just aren't the major issue.

THE MAJOR issue, as well as the best part of old Tiger Stadium, is the way it serves as a meeting place for people from throughout our region.

That should continue. Any new stadium should be easily accessible from all parts of metropolitan Detroit.

At first, that might appear to be a given. But it's not exactly guaranteed, despite statements by current Tiger and city management.

Real or imagined fears about downtown Detroit and its surrounding area, not to mention available land and lucrative tax deals, could make it entirely possible that a new stadium might not be centrally located.

It's not as if other teams haven't followed that lead. Neither the Pontiac Silverdome nor the new Auburn Hills Palace are located near the heart of our region. Both are a pretty far weeknight drive from Plymouth, Livonia and Farmington Hills — not to mention Garden City and Canton Township.

But basketball, football and hockey differ from baseball in terms of fan makeup. All three are more heavily dependent upon luxury boxes and season ticket sales, upon professionals and sales people who use access to sporting events to lure or reward customers.

Given the advantages of modern architecture, we think there's considerable merit to building a replacement stadium — but only if the new stadium retains the best parts of the old.

BASEBALL is different. It's more dependent upon people who walk up to the ticket window the day of the game.

That's going to be pretty difficult for suburbanites if the new ballpark is tucked away in a corner of Detroit — and difficult for city-dwellers if it's tucked away in some far flung suburb.

Old Tiger Stadium, despite its age and flaws is still close to a number of freeways. Access is easy from Grosse Pointe or Ann Arbor, from Rochester or Rockwood. Whoever builds the new stadium should keep that in mind.

Twice in the past five years, all of us — urban and suburban — have gathered together to cheer the Tigers on to the best record in baseball.

Who knows what we might accomplish if someday that spirit could extend to solving our area's problems?

Tiger Stadium is one of a dwindling number of places where suburbanites and city dwellers routinely gather for a common cause.

Steve Barnaby

Educational experts are at it once again — fighting over class size. You can bet some of your much-coveted property tax dollars that sometime during the next school year, the subject will raise its ugly head in your school district.

The most recent volley came in a report recently released by the U.S. Education Department.

The sum and substance boiled down to the concept that teachers really don't work all that hard right now and that reducing class size anymore would pretty much be a waste of your tax dollars.

Of course, the national bureaucrats were much more polite than the above paraphrase. Basically, the report said that secondary school teachers' work load "has never been lighter."

As mild as that language seems, it's enough to raise the hackles of teachers and their union officials. From their point of view, smaller class sizes have been offset by gnawing social problems which include, but are not limited to, rampant drug abuse among students, parental indifference, lack of financial support from taxpayers and, in some cases, student anarchy in both hallway and classroom.

And the problems aren't exclusive to large city school districts. Many suburban districts suffer from the same maladies.

The report, "Class Size and Public Policy: Politics and Panaceas," said efforts to boost students' test scores through smaller classes "will probably be a waste of money and effort."

INSTEAD, THE report suggests, teachers should do a better job of managing the children in their classrooms rather than to waste money on re-education of class size.

Wow, that's a pretty harsh indictment of this generation's educators — far too harsh.

Now it is true that reducing class size certainly hasn't been the panacea many thought it would be when teachers rallied to the cause back in the halcyon student enrollment days of the baby boom generation.

For the most part, the majority of us survived four people to a locker, classes in storage rooms and 45 kids in a room. Now don't get me wrong, it wasn't heaven. But we did survive and, in many cases, have done very well.

Since 1960 average classroom size in public high schools has decreased from 30 to 24. Secondary school size is down to 22, from 27.

The National Education Association (NEA), the largest teacher union, has set a national target of 15 students, certainly an ambitious, if not impossible and unecessary goal.

The government report labels the cost of such a program at $69 billion a year and the hiring of one million new teachers.

Now this comes at a time of overwhelming taxpayer protest and, believe it or not, a nationwide teacher shortage.

In truth, teachers do, in many aspects, have a much more difficult job than in previous decades because of social problems unheard of in 1960. But playing the numbers game will only detract from solving the real problems of social discontent and confusion about the role of education in this country.

Educational leaders, national and local, parents and administrators need to quit taking nasty swipes at one another and should put their heads together to work toward developing realistic solutions to very real problems.

And class size isn't one of them.

Church plan merits look

To the editor:

The uproar that the purchase of 179 Arthur St. by Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church has caused among concerned citizens should be taken seriously by all citizens of Plymouth and their elected representatives on the city commission.

It is more than just the fear of declining property values that motivates people to speak out strongly against the vague, but nevertheless determined plans of OLGC to "grow." It is the fear that the Plymouth we inhabit, love, and help support with our tax dollars could be vanishing rapidly.

With five churches in the immediate vicinity of the city center surrounded by or bordering on prime residential areas, the city commission should address the prospective growth needs of these churches head-on and with candor. It should not let developments take place unchecked.

The question should be asked whether accommodating the needs of large numbers of parishioners from outside Plymouth is compatible with the city's obligation to its tax-paying residents.

When these churches were founded and built in Plymouth, their viability was based on the population of Plymouth and the space available. Since then housing and population around Plymouth have exploded while the space available within the city limits of Plymouth has remained the same.

The churches, in this case Our Lady of Good Counsel, should acknowledge these changed realities rather than insist on their rights to grow on the basis of outdated zoning laws and codes. Their needs for growth may be better served outside Plymouth where the present and anticipated increase in parishioners really occurs, where land is available and encroachment upon residential areas less likely. Other alternatives to more blacktop in Plymouth have been suggested: the use of the centrally located city parking structure, the neighboring streets, more Masses and services on Sundays, etc.

Our Lady of Good Counsel was ill-advised to camouflage its identity while purchasing 179 Arthur for undetermined future use. Neighbors reacted with disbelief and outrage. It is easy to imagine the amount of uncertainty and suspicion created in the community when "For sale" signs are put up on properties in the vicinity of churches. Has my neighbor given up the fight or simply been bought out by a church? Will another "European corporation" be the buyer who later on turns out to be your friendly neighborhood church?

Since the city of Plymouth cannot stop churches from buying property, it should find ways to stop them from turning this property into parking lots. Responsible city planning involves conservation of the treasures you have.

Our tree-lined streets with well-maintained old homes are a vital contribution to the city's identity and the well-being of all citizens. I cannot see any reason why the city of Plymouth should commit urban suicide simply because one big non-tax-paying resident wants to grow.

Rainer Sell,
Plymouth

Brawl figure wasn't close

To the editor:

I am disturbed with the level of journalistic standards of the Plymouth Observer concerning the latest big local news story — the "Brawl" at the CEP/Plymouth/Canton High Schools.

My first exposure to the story was on March 17 when I read that no one was hurt or arrested in a "Brawl" that was estimated to exceed 2,000 people. To me, this was real big deal, and I was as confused as to how 2,000 people brawled and no one was hurt or arrested.

The following day, a Plymouth school official was on the David Newman show. The official said that the term "brawl' ' was ludicrous in this situation and that it was more of a media event than a "West Side Story." Other estimates of those actually involved in the "brawl" were less than 20.

Sure, a follow-up story was printed that disclaimed the earlier estimates of over 2,000 participants.

But why? Was the original figure of over 2,000 involved correct?

No.

Was it even close?

No.

Please — avoid the banner headlines and unsubstantiated stories to fill your valuable space.

Welfare supplements: more, more and more

Tim Richard

ONE FRIGID January evening three or four years ago, I parked on a Lansing street near the State Capitol to attend Gov. Jim Blanchard's budget briefing.

Who should bounce out of the car ahead of me but good ol' Dick McDowell, president of Schoolcraft College. He was headed to the same briefing.

Soon we found out why. The room had a few newsmen and scopes of university and community college officials. The governor was putting some big bucks into the higher education budget that season, and he wanted a cheering section.

AT THIS year's State of the State theatrics, Blanchard brought in George Perles, head coach of the Rose Bowl champs from Michigan State, and several players. It made for a lot of cheers and "photo opportunities," as the PR folks say.

There were no college presidents, however, because this time Blanchard was giving higher education only a scrawny 1 percent increase.

Shucks, that wouldn't even keep pace with inflation. The state appropriation was so small that Oakland University responded with a 9.67 percent tuition increase.

IN THE NEXT few days, there will be a bill signing in the governor's office, and I betcha he won't have any ceremony at all.

The Legislature had to vote an extra $110 million for welfare. They have a fancy name for it in Lansing — a "supplemental."

That has been the pattern in recent years: Blanchard presents a balanced budget with whatever fanfare his bright staff can drum up; the budget is passed; and then it has to be increased with "supplementals," preferably with as little attention drawn to it as possible.

"It's insane," lamented state Rep. Mat Dunaskiss, R-Lake Orion, "that you're passing a $110 million supplemental for DSS (Department of Social Services) just three months after we passed the budget."

What a party pooper. But Dunaskiss is right.

EVER SINCE the recession ended in 1983, unemployment rates have been dropping — not every month, but the overall trend has been down.

The state has seen the creation of 500,000 jobs, if you believe the MESC. Employment in Michigan is at an all-time high, if you believe Blanchard's Southfield speech last week. I believe.

Last week's tourism conference in Grand Rapids produced news that a "sunny season is predicted for state tourism" in 1988. Tourism will rise 6 percent this year to $15.7 billion, on top of last year's 11 percent increase to $14.8 billion.

That means jobs — doesn't it?

Some plant closings are occurring this year, to be sure, but those folks get unemployment compensation followed by supplemental unemployment benefits and then retraining grants to attend the GM-UAW school. Those folks aren't candidates for welfare already.

YET FOR SOME reason, the welfare caseload stays high.

In the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program, the magic number is 200,000 — Michigan just can't get that caseload below 200,000. The lowest was 203,000, and now it's back up to 212,000, which is why we need $22 million of that "supplemental."

On the general assistance (GA) side, the numbers are up from 91,000 to 101,900. Those are mainly adult males, not women with kids, and $14.9 million of the "supplemental" will go to them.

Conventional wisdom blames the welfare caseload on a lack of jobs. Not so. Our economy, blessed by the leadership of Reagan and Blanchard, has created jobs by the zillions.

But for nearly 30 years, the welfare caseload has been steady to rising without regard to the economy. Welfare dependency has a life of its own.

Jim Blanchard will be very quiet as he signs that bill throwing $110 million more at the welfare problem. Good ol' Dick McDowell, George Perles and I won't be invited to cheer that one.

Rape fear haunts women

Rich Perlberg

CAN ANY MAN comprehend the fear that rape strikes in women?

It's an important question to ask now that 11 women have been sexually assaulted within a year in a 15-square-mile area in Oakland County between Farmington Hills and Birmingham.

There are many women who think men cannot understand. One of them is a woman from Livonia who used to be active with the Western Wayne County chapter of the National Organization for Women.

I have forgotten her name, but I remember well an interview with her nearly a decade ago.

I was doing what I thought was a routine story about a controversial film used by some police departments to educate women about rape. Many groups opposed the film and persuaded police departments to quit using it. Critics said the film of a lecture by a self-proclaimed rape expert trivialized the crime, was too light-hearted and suggested a relax-and-enjoy-it defense if all else failed.

BACKERS OF THE film protested the last characterization of the film even though the speaker, a guy named Storaska, does say that at worst rape is a few minutes of unwanted sex. He made that statement in a context of preferring rape to death or serious injury if there were no other alternatives, but the comment served as a rallying point to those who dislike the entire presentation.

"How do you tell an 83-year-old woman to relax and enjoy it?" asked the Livonia woman, who pointed out that a large number of rape victims are elderly women and young children.

She also vigorously opposed the idea that rape had anything at all to do with sex. Power, rage, humiliation and hatred, perhaps, but not sex.

More than anything else, she claimed, rape was about depriving women of freedom.

WHEN SHE OPENS her car, the woman said she worries about someone hiding in the back seat. When she walks down the street or drives into her garage, the women would wonder, if only for a moment, if there was an attacker waiting for her. She worried if somewhere there was a man waiting to harm her, not for anything she had done, but for the mere fact that she was a woman.

"You will never understand that feeling," she said.

She may be right.

I recall being surprised when a female co-worker asked for an escort to walk her to her car after a late night at work at a small-town newspaper. What was there to fear? This was a sleepy little town.

The fact was that I didn't have much to fear. But she did. The 11 victims in Oakland County know that. And so, I suspect, do most other women. This fear is a fact of life that most women have learned to live with and that most men have yet to understand.

Paying a price for loyalty

Tim Smith

"DON'T YOU KNOW nice guys finish last?" blurted out a newsroom colleague the other day during a conversation with another co-worker.

His brash statement made my head spin. But maybe he's right about what it takes to succeed in today's society. Unfortunately.

Jimmy Carter was deemed too nice to be a president worth remembering. Not known as a tower of strength, that Carter. Perhaps a better choice for the Oval Office would have been a pit bull.

Remember former Tiger manager Les Moss? His easy-going manner was a hit with team management and players. But after only two months he was canned, to make room for fiery Sparky Anderson.

And why didn't Barry Manilow get the same red-carpet treatment Bruce Springsteen just got when he appeared recently in Detroit? Barry's just too nice, I guess.

Nice guys finish last, hmmm . . . That statement is taking a much more personal turn for me these days.

AFTER ALL, what did being nice do for someone I know very well, currently on the mend after a double-bypass open-heart surgery?

For many years, he preached to me the importance of doing right by the employer. In return, they would treat you good when the chips were down.

During those years, he worked his fingers to the bone, sometimes 50, 60 hours or more a week as a stock-hauling truck driver for a wholesale grocer.

Last November he was rushed unexpectedly into emergency surgery, two of his arteries almost totally blocked. Despite feeling discomfort and pain in the months preceding the operation, his loyalty never flinched.

He continued working marathon days, leaving home at 6 a.m. and not returning until sometimes midnight. Get the work done, he thought, do right by the employer.

Well he's been recuperating since early December, trying to get in good enough physical condition to return to work in some capacity.

GUESS WHAT? His employer can't find work for him now, despite his doctor's bill of health, albeit somewhat restricted.

Though there certainly must be some work duties he can perform ably, the company apparently will not make room for him.

So at age 56, the loyal nice guy is at a crossroads — blocked from working yet too young to retire.

I'm sure most of you know of somebody who has had to face such unfair and undeserved treatment.

That's the payback for back-breaking loyalty.

So, do nice guys really finish last? Though I certainly hope not, I'm beginning to wonder.

"And they're off" at the Easter egg hunt in Canton, held at Griffin Park.

Treasure

Park's the place for search

By Julie Brown
staff writer

HUNTING FOR treasure kept Plymouth-Canton youngsters busy Saturday morning.

Saturday, April 2, was the day for local Easter egg hunts. The Canton Parks and Recreation Department's annual hunt started at 10 a.m. at Griffin Park in Canton.

The Plymouth Jaycees' annual Easter egg hunt followed at 11 a.m. and was held at Plymouth Township Park.

At the Canton event, recreation supervisor Bob Dates used a megaphone to make announcements to the crowd.

"The voice doesn't quite carry over hundreds of people," he said. Dates also stood on a rock in the park, making him more visible to the gathering crowd.

The Easter egg hunt at Griffin Park was divided into three age groups: children age 4 and younger, 5-7 and 8-10. Different areas of the park were used for each age group.

AT THE ANNUAL Canton event, youngsters searched for candy and for eggs filled with prizes. There were four special eggs for each age group; those eggs were turned in for Easter baskets.

The crowd wasn't small at the Canton event.

"It's growing," Dates said. "People pull in right until 10 o'clock."

PLUS helps kids learn

By Julie Brown
staff writer

Connie Robbins is glad her 4-year-old daughter, Nicole, is participating in the PLUS preschool program.

PLUS — Pupils Learning Useful Skills — is a free preschool program offered by the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools for 4-year-olds and their parents.

Robbins, a Canton resident, also has an 8-year-old son who was in the program a few years ago.

"I like it," she said. Robbins spends part of each week at Central Middle School in Plymouth; she helps out with a variety of preschool activities.

"We try to get them interested in doing the activity for the day."

When her son was in the PLUS program, Robbins couldn't be as involved as she is now. Nicole was a baby at that time, which made it difficult for Robbins to be involved.

"I'm glad I had a second chance, though." Nicole will start kindergarten this fall at Field Elementary School in Canton.

WHEN NICOLE started in the PLUS program, such tasks as cutting out paper creations and writing her name were new challenges. Nicole can now do those tasks.

Robbins would encourage other parents to consider the PLUS program and "to get involved with their child's education at the beginning.

"The staff here's just great. They make you feel at home."

Parental involvement is a key part of the PLUS program, according to Mary Fritz. Fritz is director of Chapter I and Head Start for the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools; the PLUS program is part of her responsibilities.

The program is offered free of charge to those who are qualified. The preschool program is for 4-year-olds and their parents living in the attendance areas of Eriksson, Farrand, Field and Gallimore schools; those living in the attendance area of Hoben Elementary School, tentatively scheduled to open this fall, also are eligible.

"What you contribute is your time and interest," Fritz said. Parental involvement "is stressed and is an inherent part of the program."

Program helps children learn

Parents attend classes as part of the PLUS program. A group of parents and children take part in a home-based program, coordinated by parents and a PLUS teacher.

MANY WOMEN choose to take a few years off from paid employment when their children are young, Fritz said; doing so means they can participate in the PLUS program. Some mothers work part time and also can participate in PLUS. Some parents choose to attend on their days off.

"We have had a big increase in dads." Baby-sitters also participate in the PLUS program, based at Central Middle School in Plymouth.

Mary Fritz

"It's a real commitment, but they want to do it," Fritz said.

Recruitment is starting for the September 1988 to May 1989 classes. Orientation sessions are scheduled for June of this year.

The PLUS program has operated since 1974 and is scheduled to move to Tanger Elementary School, 40260 Five Mile Road in Plymouth, for the 1988-89 school year.

Registration forms may be picked up at Eriksson, Farrand, Field, Gallimore and Tanger schools.

The forms should be mailed to: PLUS Preschool, Central Middle School, 650 Church St., Plymouth 48170. Phone registrations will be taken at 451-6656. Children must be 4 on or before Dec. 1.

Language development, art activities and others are included. During the day, children move from one area of the classroom to another, participating in a variety of activities.

PLUS classes are taught by teachers who are early childhood specialists. The program emphasizes sound child development principles. A variety of activities geared toward acquiring readiness skills are included.

THE CURRICULUM used is one developed by the High/Scope Educational Research Foundation in Ypsilanti.

"So it's right in our backyard," Fritz said.

The curriculum includes opportunities for children to make choices.

"The children plan what they're going to do and do it." The curriculum emphasizes the "plan, do and review" process.

The curriculum was developed while many were considering what activities are appropriate for children ages 3-6, Fritz said.

"More is not necessarily best," Fritz added. The program revolves around key experiences.

"The emphasis is on process, rather than product. That is the powerful tool," he said.

Children in the program learn by doing.

"Play becomes one of the big ways the children learn. They're learning, more than a pressure kind of thing," Fritz said.

Fritz has found there's a great deal of interest in preschool programs in the Plymouth-Canton Community Schools district. In addition to PLUS, the district operates a Kiddie Kampus program, based at Plymouth Canton High School. There's also IPSEP, the Infant and Preschool Special Education Program.

"Yes, there is interest." There's also interest at the state level in increasing funding for preschool education; such funding for preschool children has become a hot legislative issue, Fritz said.

Current research done in preschool education tells educators there's a need for developmentally appropriate activities, she said.

"It's more significant than a lot of paper and pencil" activities.

"This is the age when they're so creative. They need to do what's appropriate for them at that age."

Hunt keeps kids hopping

Some candy was kept on hand at the Canton event for youngsters who didn't find any in the park.

"Not everyone finds something, so it works out good," Dates said.

Although the skies were cloudy on Saturday morning, there weren't too many complaints about the weather.

"At least it's not raining," the recreation supervisor said. "We've had it in rain and snow. A few times, we've even had sunny weather."

Circumstances tend to dictate that the annual event be held the day before Easter, Dates added.

"It's not very good to have an Easter egg hunt after Easter."

At Plymouth Township Park, the Plymouth Jaycees were keeping busy Saturday morning with their annual Easter egg hunt. Co-chairwomen for this year's event were Liz Johnson and Gail Scherer.

"It's a great event for the kids," Johnson said.

THE PLYMOUTH Easter egg hunt was divided into four age groups: children ages 1-3, 4-6, 7-9 and 10-12.

"So they're in with their own age group," Johnson said. Different areas of the park were used for each age group.

The children looked for candy and for numbered eggs, which were turned in for special prizes, donated by area merchants.

The Plymouth Jaycees enjoy the event, as do the many children who participate, Johnson said.

"We knew it was going to be good. I think it's a good crowd.

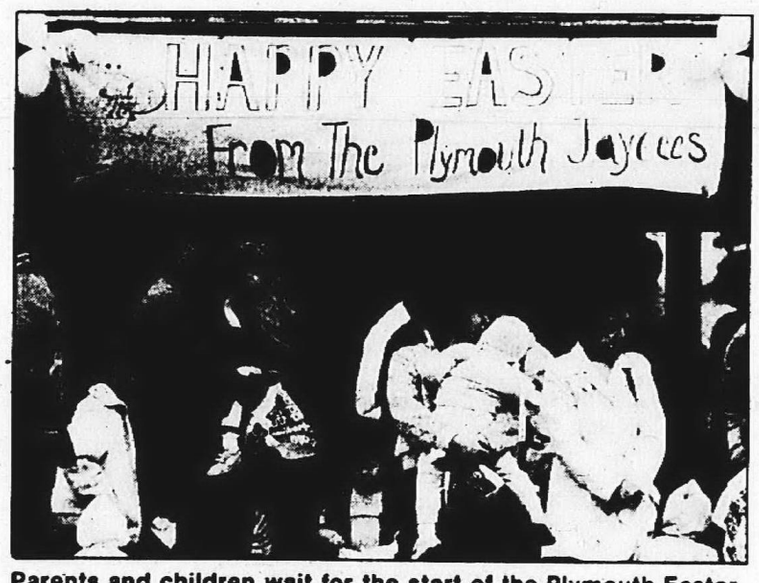
"The kids love it. We really have had no problems."

Co-chairwoman Gail Scherer was also enjoying her involvement in the annual event.

"We've had a good time," she said. "It wasn't too much work."

At Plymouth Township Park, the Easter bunny was among those visiting during the Easter egg hunt.

"That's the real Easter bunny," Johnson said. "We'd only have the real Easter bunny."



Parents and children wait for the start of the Plymouth Easter egg hunt, sponsored by the Plymouth Jaycees.

Williams-Kruger

Wendi Kruger of Canton and Daniel Williams of Plymouth were married Dec. 12 at Old St. Patrick's Church in Whitmore Lake. The Rev. Patrick Brennen performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Paul G. Kruger Sr. of Hamburg, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. John P. Williams of Redford.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Michigan, where she received a bachelor's degree in political science. She is employed as an account executive with Eczel Corp. in Livonia.

Her husband is a graduate of Lawrence Institute of Technology, where he received a bachelor's degree in electrical engineering. He is employed at Wel-bond in Livonia.

The sister of the bride, Stephanie Kruger, was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were sister of the bride Marci Kruger, sister of the bridegroom Sue Williams, Nancy Williams, Brenda Jedele, sister of the bridegroom Debbie Justin and sister of the bride Kristi Smith.

The brother of the bridegroom, Pat Williams, was the best man. The groomsmen were Russell Fasnacht, Clark Justin, brother of the bride Niles Kruger, Norm Roth, Sam Guido and John Toth.

For her wedding, the bride wore a white satin gown with maribou fur trim. The gown was hand-beaded with pearls and leaded Austrian crystal. She wore a cathedral-length train and veil and carried a bouquet of snowflake mums and holly.

A reception was held at the Windjammer Restaurant in Brighton.

After a wedding trip to Acapulco, the newlyweds are making their home in Plymouth.

Lowe-Petro

Carol Petro of Plymouth and John Andrew Lowe of Melbourne, Australia, were married Feb. 6 at the First Presbyterian Church of Plymouth. The Rev. Philip Rodgers Magee performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are George and Charlotte Petro of Plymouth and Edward Lowe of Melbourne, Australia.

The bride is a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School and of the University of Michigan, where she received a degree in political science.

Her husband is a graduate of the Australian Army Royal Military College, Duntroon, where he received a mechanical engineering degree. He is a major with the Australian Department of Defense.

Cara Noland was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Brenda Kullick and Sandra Pattock.

Bob Hendry was the best man. The ushers were brother of the bride Alan Petro, brother of the bride Gary Petro and Pat O'Connor.

For her wedding, the bride wore a white silk charmeuse gown. The gown had a diagonal insert at the waist, neck and end of the sleeves consisting of solid silver bugle beads and seed pearls. The gown had a cathedral train and veil. She carried a European cascade of white glamelias, white roses and stephanotis.

A reception was held at New Hawthorne Valley.

The newlyweds are making their home in Sydney, Australia.

Hershberger-Piper

Susan Elizabeth Piper and Mark Henry Hershberger were married Jan. 2 at St. Michael Lutheran Church in Canton. The Rev. Jerry Yarnell performed the ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Ann Piper of Canton, James Piper of Canton, Gerald Hershberger of East Tawas, and Lillian Hershberger of Lindsay, Ontario.

The bride is a student at Eastern Michigan University. She is employed at First of America Bank, Plymouth.

Her husband is a student at Eastern Michigan University. He is employed as a professional jazz saxophonist.

Patty Piper was the matron of honor. Becky Moscarello was the bridesmaid.

Andy Neilson was the best man.

Bobby Peterson was the bridegroom's attendant.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony.

LeRoy-Swanson

Thomas and Carol LeRoy of Canton announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathleen Ann, to Mark Hyde Swanson of Plymouth, son of Robert and Marjorie Swanson of Cincinnati, Ohio, formerly of Northville.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Plymouth Canton High School and of Eastern Michigan University. She is employed as a teacher at West Middle School, Plymouth.

Her fiance is a graduate of Northville High School and of the University of Michigan-Dearborn. He is employed as a manufacturing engineer at Lear Siegler Inc.

A late May wedding is planned at the Martha-Mary Chapel at Greenfield Village in Dearborn.

Edwards-Duncan

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Edwards of Plymouth announce the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth Ranae, to Eric Todd Duncan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Duncan of Saline.

The bride-elect is a student at Eastern Michigan University, where she is studying physical education.

Her fiance is a graduate of Central Michigan University, where he received a bachelor's degree in business management and hotel-restaurant management. He is employed with Burger Fresh of Ann Arbor.

A mid-July wedding is planned at the Faith Baptist Church in Dearborn Heights.

Westerholm-Grudzinsky

Dawn Westerholm and Randy Grudzinsky, both of Westland, plan a mid-April wedding at St. Michael's Church in Canton Township.

She is the daughter of Carrie Westerholm of Westland. He is the son of Dennis Grudzinsky and Kathy Stratelak of Canton.

The bride-to-be is a 1981 graduate of Cherry Hill High School and is employed as manager of the McDonalds Restaurant at Ford Road and Radcliff, Garden City.

Her fiance is a 1983 Plymouth Salem High School graduate and is a manager of the McDonalds Restaurant at Wayne and Warren roads, Westland.

"Jeremiah People," an outreach of Continental Ministries of Thousand Oaks, Calif., will perform "Family Outings and Family Room" Sunday evening at Ward Presbyterian Church in Livonia.

'People' perform at Ward Church

The "Jeremiah People," a Broadway-style musical comedy group, will be performing at Ward Presbyterian Church in Livonia Sunday, April 10.

The troupe will stage "Family Outings and Family Room" at 7 p.m. in the sanctuary of the church, 17000 Farmington Road, Livonia.

The theatrical production demonstrates the deep-rooted family values and realistic attributes of home centered in Jesus Christ.

"Every performance is a challenge to restore broken families — to let God heal the hurts, the pain and the differences," said Jim Custer, the group's director. "This is a program that examines true-to-life conflicts while remaining firmly grounded in scriptural principles."

"Jeremiah People" has been the country's premiere Christian theatrical touring group for more than 15 years. It uses comedy, drama and a blend of musical styles, Custer said.

An outreach of Continental Ministries, the troupe's touring season takes it throughout the United States and Canada and introduces them to thousands of people, he added.

Their touring season starts with extensive rehearsals in September and finishes up in May. They perform at churches, colleges and schools and before organizations.

Apart from their work on stage, "Jeremiah People" also has produced nine record albums, five published collections of their most popular sketches and four published musicals.

Faith and commitment can transform lives

Rabbi Irwin Groner

We live in two worlds.

One is the natural world of plants and animals, soil and water, which preceded us by millions of years.

The other is the world of institutions and artifacts, the world shaped by man's visions and tools.

The ecological crisis in America — indeed, the world — is obvious and challenging. Environmentalists say that we must clean up the atmosphere and live, or continue to pollute and thereby endanger life.

The atmosphere we breath is extremely important. In fact, individuals frequently move from one geographical area to another in search of more compatible, healthful conditions.

However, while many are so concerned about the physical environment, they forget moral and spiritual erosion, even more devastating than the forces of ecology.

Never have human beings been exposed to so many pollutants of mind, body and spirit. The American city is a bizarre scene, a stage of corruption, a weird marketplace of distorted values.

A CONGENIAL, spiritual climate is essential to total well being. If one lives in an atmosphere of conflicts, fault-finding, crime, harshness and brutality, these pollutants will eventually discolor, if not consume one's inner resources.

Whether it be physical or spiritual, to change the atmosphere may be difficult and costly. But it can be done. The first and most important step toward correction is acknowledgement that problems exist.

However desirable, corrections will not occur — in either world — until people change, until they are willing to change their minds and accept a new era.

A more perfect society cannot possibly emerge until people surrender their selfishness, live more openly, give more generously of themselves and their substance to assist the poor, the unfortunate and the disenfranchised.

The government can conduct studies, initiate programs and fund projects. But only the faith and will and commitment of decent, caring people can provide the initiative and integrity necessary to cleanse and transform our internal and external environments.

Rabbi Irwin Groner is with the Congregation Shaarey Zedek in Southfield.

Orthodox Easter services will begin at 11:30 p.m. Saturday, April 9.

● ST. THEODORE

St. Theodore Catholic Church will celebrate the opening of its new parish center Sunday, April 10.

The celebration will start with Mass at 12:15 p.m., followed by a ribbon-cutting ceremony at 2 p.m. There also will be a dedication presentation to the pastor, the Rev. Robert A. Goodrow, at 2:30 p.m. and entertainment by the Goldtones and refreshments until 4 p.m.

The celebration is a prelude to the church's observance of its 25th anniversary April 16. Church members are planning a dinner-dance that day.

● CANTON FREE METHODIST

"Focus on the Family," a film series featuring Dr. James Dobson, one of the country's leading psychologists and an expert in family counseling, will be shown at the Canton Free Methodist Church, 44815 Cherry Hill Road, beginning Sunday, April 10.

The seven-part series will be shown at 6 p.m. Sundays and will kick off with "The Strong-Willed Child." Future topics include "Shaping the Will Without Breaking the Spirit," "Christian Fathering" and "Preparing for Adolescence."

A nursery will be provided. For more information, call the church office at 981-5350.

● CROP RALLY

A rally, promoting the 10-mile walk for CROP, a local community hunger education and fund-raising event sponsored by Church World Service, will be held at 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 11, at Aldersgate Methodist Church, 10000 Beech Daly, Redford.

The churches of Redford are sponsoring the fourth annual walk in hopes of raising $5,000. Twenty-five percent of the money raised will be spent within the township.

For more information of the walk, call Scott Moore at 538-2677 or the Rev. John Wallace of Lola Valley United Methodist Church at 255-6330.

● ST. MATTHEW

The Peanut Butter Players of St. Matthew's United Methodist Church of Livonia will Stage "P.T.," the story of Phineas Taylor Barnum, the great showman, at 7 p.m. Saturday, April 23, in the church's fellowship hall.

A biographical show, it will include a continuous stream of colorfully dressed circus performers, singing spirited and cleverly worded songs. They also will perform magic tricks.

Tickets are $3.50 each and can be bought from Keith or Sharon Common at 476-2864.

Proceeds from the performance will benefit the church's Vacation Bible School. St. Matthew's is at 30900 W. Six Mile Road, Livonia.

● MEMORIAL CHURCH

Bob Girdwood will be preaching at the morning and evening services Sunday, April 10, at the Memorial Church of Christ, 35475 Five Mile Road, Livonia, while minister Mark McGilvrey is leading a revival meeting that day through April 13 at the Novesta Church of Christ in Cass City.

● HOLY SPIRIT

The Episcoal Church of the Holy Spirit will break ground for an addition to its building at [illegible] Newburgh Road at 4:30 p.m. Sunday, April 10.

The ceremony will be led by the Right Rev. H. Irving Mayson, suffragan bishop of the Diocese of Michigan, and the Rev. Emery F. Gravelle, vicar of the Church of the Holy Spirit.

The church, which has 10 families, is building a fellowship hall and classroom area, expected to be completed this fall.

'Hypoallergenic?' There's no guarantee

Terry Gibb

Q. I've been buying hypoallergenic cosmetics for my daughter. Are they worth the extra cost to prevent allergic reactions?

A. According to the Food and Drug Administration, the federal agency which oversees the safety and labeling of all cosmetics, being labeled "hypoallergenic" or "allergy-treated" does not guarantee there is no chance of an allergic reaction when these products are used.

The possibility of a reaction always exists — even when the product has been used reaction-free for months, or even years.

The prefix "hypo" in this usage means "less than." So, hypoallergenic on the label only means the product is less likely to cause an adverse reaction.

In addition, there are no standards on how a manufacturer determines when the product is hypoallergenic.

Hypoallergenic has a different meaning to different cosmetic manufacturers. For one, it may mean clinical testing has been done on the labeled products. To another manufacturer, it may mean only omitting fragrances or other problem-causing ingredients.

ANOTHER LABELING misconception is "dermatologist tested." This important sounding phrase only means that a doctor has tested the product to see if it will cause any allergic problems in generah However, that doesn't mean an individual won't react negatively to the product.

Another label claim to be aware of is "fragrance free" or "unscented." Fragrances are the number one ingredient for causing allergic reactions.

These two phrases do not always mean that the product contains no fragrance. They may contain small amounts of fragrances to cover up other unpleasant odors, such as the fatty odor of soap or the smells in antiperspirants.

To be sure the product is truly "fragrance free," read the ingredients label on the back of the package, not just the claims on the front label.

To reduce the chances of an allergic reaction, a product should always be tested on a small area on the forearm for 24 hours to see if a reaction occurs. If no reaction occurs after that time, the product should be safe to use.

If a reaction occurs during use when no reaction occurred in the patch test, stop using all cosmetic products until the reaction clears. This sudden reaction may be caused by one of two reasons:

(1) You have built up a sensitivity to a regularly used product and testing each product individually should identify the guilty product.

(2) Cross-sensitization may have occurred. Cross-sensitization involves closely related chemicals where a person sensitive to ingredient A may have an allergic reactions when chemically-related ingredient B is applied.

SINCE THE average consumer uses approximately 12 cosmetics at the same time, it may be difficult to sort out safe from unsafe products. And manufacturers are continuously reformulating cosmetics, so new ingredients may have been added to your regular cosmetics.

The top five product categories that cause reactions, according to FDA studies, are skin care products (lotions, creams, etc.), hair preparations (including color), facial makeup, nail preparations (polish, remover, etc.) and fragrance products (perfume, colognes).

Among cosmetics, the top four ingredients to cause allergic reactions, the FDA reports, are fragrance ingredients, preservatives (antibacterial), phenylenediamine, lanolin and derivatives.

Book, McNeil tape help widow to adjust

A. Jolayne Farrell

Dear Jo:

I read your column on widowhood and appreciated your suggestion about the new book on the subject — "To Live Again: Rebuilding Your Life After You've Become a Widow" by Genevieve Davis Ginsburg (St. Martin's Press). I can get it at the library.

My husband died more than a year ago, and the adjustment to my new state in life has been slow. I've received much help and support from my family and friends. Still, I feel I have a long way to go before I'll be comfortable with my loss.

I have always enjoyed music, and one tape in particular (a gift from a friend) has helped me to no end. I must play it eight to 10 times a day. It's "Flying on Your Own" by the folk singer Rita McNeil. It's about loss and recovery. She must have suffered much to be able to write and sing such an inspiring song.

I recommend it to anyone who has experienced unhappiness and loss — particularly widows.

Mrs. W.M.,
Border City reader

Dear Mrs. M.:

I bought the tape (it can be purchased or ordered through most music stores) and I agree with you. Thank you.

Dear Jo:

Is drinking bottled mineral water a good way to meet dietary mineral requirements?

Ms. D.Y.

Dear Ms. Y.:

To date, not enough research has been done to produce evidence that the body absorbs the minerals in water as well as it does those in food. So until there is more concrete proof available, the best way to meet dietary mineral requirements is simply to eat a balanced diet made up of a variety of foods, including whole grains, vegetables and fruits.

Dear Jo:

The older I get, the more forgetful I become. Please give me some tips on how to improve my memory.

Mr. W.L.,
Forgetful retiree

Dear Mr. L:

Forgetfulness can be an embarrassing and annoying problem for anyone at any age. With aging, however, forgetfulness for recently gained knowledge (short-term memory) is more of a problem than recalling past life events (long-term memory).

To improve your short-term memory, train yourself to concentrate on one important thing at a time and tune out less important data. Keep a daily reminder for appointments, and don't try to memorize any detail that can be easily found in an outside source.

You may want to make a memory improvement course through community college or seniors center.

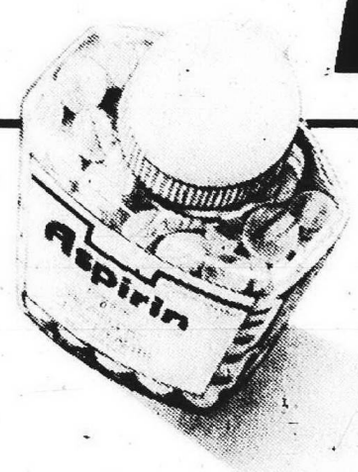
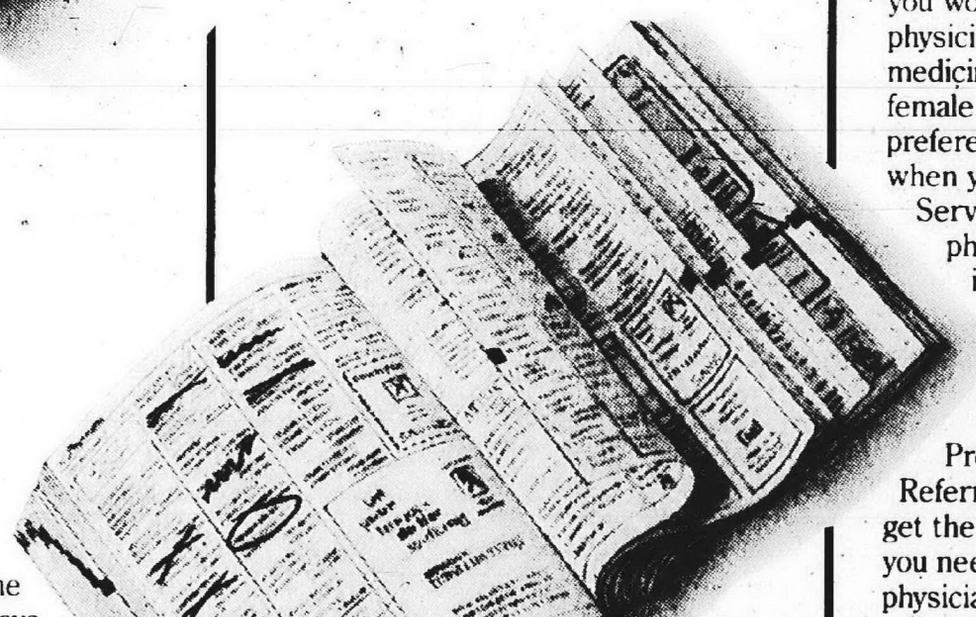
SOUND ADVICE.





There are some very interesting ways you can find a doctor.

You can ask friends, relatives or co-workers for a recommendation. Since there are as many opinions as there are people, you may end up with a confusing collection of names and phone numbers. Without having the slightest idea of who the doctors are or where they're located.

You may also choose to open up your telephone book and, well – good luck.

Or you can call Providence Hospital's Physician Referral Service at 424-3999. It's quick, professional and personal.

When you call the Physician Referral Service, we'll help you find a doctor close to your home or where you work. We'll put you in touch with physicians specializing in all areas of medicine. And if you prefer a male or female doctor, we'll see to it your preference is met. Most importantly, when you call the Physician Referral Service, you'll be put in touch with physicians who have a strong affiliation with one of Michigan's leading hospitals - Providence.

Save yourself from the time-consuming frustration of finding a doctor. Call Providence Hospital's Physician Referral Service at 424-3999 and get the sound, professional advice you need in finding a qualified physician.

With new home, Ross Roy positions itself for the'90s

By Mary Rodrique
staff writer

Before Ross Roy Inc. moved into new executive headquarters in Bloomfield Hills last September, the ad agency was sprawled out in five different buildings in downtown Detroit.

We had so far outgrown our facility. We needed consolidation. We wanted to create an environment for productivity. We're prepared now," said Dan Lutzeier, vice president for public affairs.

Ross Roy's striking headquarters, a three-story, 220,000-square-foot building, befits its new image. Billing itself as "the agency of the '90s," it provides not only advertising, but merchandising, direct marketing, public relations, film production and research. The company believes the advertising and communications industries are headed toward the single source concept.

'No longer can you be just an ad agency but a provider of complete marketing services.'

— Dan Lutzeier

The figures provide justification for the forward thinking. Advertising Age pegs Ross Roy as the 22nd largest advertising agency in the nation, with $475.3 million in 1987 billings, an increase of 14 percent over 1986. In Canada, Toronto- and Windsor-based offices put Ross Roy among Canada's top 20 agencies.

"The growth rate has been remarkable over the past five or six years," Lutzeier said.

The firm, with clients like Chrysler Corp., K mart, the state of Michigan and Blue Cross and Blue Shield, has grown from a $191 million company in 1980 to its present standing under the leadership of CEO Glen Fortinberry.

FORTINBERRY, a J. Walter Thompson alumnus, has added clients like Clairol, Hoover and Toshiba by buying ad agencies already handling those accounts. The latest Canadian acquisition is Toronto's Nathan Fraser Agency, which bills at least $15 million annually. Fortinberry also has his eye on Ann Arbor-based Group 243, which has the $50 million Domino's Pizza account.

Ross Roy spokesman Frank Wilberding says the company originally had an option on riverfront property for expansion, but the city gave away that option, offering the 52-year-old company a less desireable site.

The company recently showed off its Bloomfield Hills building, which contains an advanced unified wiring plan capable of linking together telephones, computers and all other telecommunications devices in every office. There are 19 conference rooms for brainstorming sessions, including a couple of particularly snazzy rooms for formal presentations.

DAN DEAN/staff photographer

CEO Glen Fortinberry pauses in the atrium of Ross Roy's Bloomfield Hills headquarters, where the company has been brought together under one roof with the exception of a production department located in downtown Detroit.

Two hundred on-line computer terminals are presently operating, with 25 from remote subsidiary locations. More than half of current computer utilization is for Chrysler, processing 30,000 calls a month for Chrysler incentives, telemarketing and sales training. Workers track daily sales of more than 15,000 salespersons across the country.

THE 12½-ACRE site, near Woodward and Long Lake Road, has retained a "wetlands feel. We worked with the DNR to retain trees and save woods, to preserve ecology."

"It's really a woodlands paradise," Lutzeier added. "We're actually attracting wildlife out there."

Rather than level a large hill for an access road near the front of the building, the company decided to reroute the roadway and preserve the hill's mature stand of hardwood. Two wetland areas likewise were connected by the introduction of a new manmade riverbed flowing under the visitor parking area.

Most of the 550 permanent employees made the move north. A 35-person video unit is still housed in the Stroh Riverplace facility 1½ blocks from the old building.

The headquarters' central attraction is an atrium which provides views of glass-walled offices on all three levels. The main lobby features Italian marble floors, glass elevators and a brass railed staircase, mauve leather chairs, oak end tables and lots of plants.

"We want our creative people stimulated by the environment," Lutzeier said. "There's lots of natural light. It helps nurture the creative process."

Much of the ground floor is still vacant. Space is available for leasing to compatible businesses. Howard & Howard, a Kalamazoo-based law firm, leases about 40,000 square feet. The idea is to keep space available for expansion.

One Ross Roy division on the ground level is the incentives department, which is equipped to develop and carry out rebate programs.

"No longer can you be just an ad agency but a provider of complete marketing services," Lutzeier said.

Mediation franchise courts off-the-docket settlements

By Filip Fracassa
special writer

Non-binding mediation services that serve as alternatives to litigation are helping a fledgling Southfield firm's client base grow while saving insurance companies thousands of dollars in legal fees.

Launched as an adjunct to Goldsmith & Schavrien law firm, Michigan Arbitration Services has resolved more than 80 percent of its cases as an impartial mediator within 45 days and without going to court.

In two years of operation, the firm has gone from a handful to 40 clients.

Disputes have involved insurers, family squabbles and partnership, construction and landlord-tenant disputes.

Joel Schavrien, executive director of Michigan Arbitration and a partner in the law firm, said businesses can save $1,000 a day in court costs and legal fees by solving disputes with consumers through his company.

"I figure we save the company about 300 percent in legal fees when we're successful," he said. "And we usually are. The consumer benefits from quick resolution."

The idea of a privately-owned mediation company wasn't Schavrien's. He bought the Michigan franchise from Seattle-based U.S. Arbitration Inc., which has 25 affiliates across the country that provide binding arbitration and non-binding mediation services.

Other services at the Michigan franchise include development of custom programs, providing volunteer arbitrators to social service agencies, making educational presentations and carrying out consumer class-action suits brought by the state attorney general's office.

"IT IS USUALLY in everybody's best interest to resolve cases we hear without formal litigation," said Schavrien, whose chief clients are insurers whose customers are unhappy with settlement offers on claims.

"We're brought in when claims are filed and there's an impasse, which is more often than you might think. We mediate or negotiate as an informal third party between the two disputing parties. Or we can make a binding arbitration decision."

Michigan cases are settled 84 percent of the time without going to court. National cases had an 80-percent settlement rate during Michigan Arbitration's first year of operation.

The firm has four mediators, all of them lawyers or retired judges, and Schavrien has a bank of 200 lawyers statewide willing to mediate and arbitrate for the company as independent contractors.

Annual revenues have been under $100,000 during Michigan Arbitration Services' first two years in the market, but Schavrien expects at least a threefold surge in the next five years.

'Court costs and other expenses associated with litigation are outrageous.'

— Joel Schavrien

The company's growth rests on marketing, which is done statewide through seminars, conferences and referrals.

"The public is frustrated with our courts today," said Schavrien. "Court costs and other expenses associated with litigation are outrageous, so we're betting most people and companies will want an impartial mediator or arbitrator who can do the job inexpensively and swiftly."

Schavrien insists his firm is impartial even though the company always pays the $700-$800 fee for each mediation or arbitration.

"We're primarily here in most cases to negotiate, to open the line of communication," he said. "We're able to accomplish this in many cases when it couldn't have been accomplished in a courtroom. There's less pressure because of our informal approach."

Michael Gillie, founder of the U.S. Arbitration in Seattle, believes there's plenty of room for growth for firms such as Michigan Arbitration Services.

"TWENTY YEARS from now, most civil cases will go right to mediation and arbitration, bypassing the court system entirely. Arbitration is becoming a mainstream legal process and has a lot of room for growth.

"People are ready for this because they're tired of waiting forever for their dispute to get to court. Time is money, and faster resolution of a problem saves money for consumers and for companies."

Added Schavrien: "Mediation is being utilized by major insurance carriers to expedite resolution of their liability claims . . . and is proving to be an effective way for disputing parties to explore all possible settlement opportunities."

According to Schavrien, the mediator cannot impose a settlement on either party.

"The mediator helps the parties organize and structure negotiations," said Schavrien, "and because each party's settlement positions are known only to the mediator and are not revealed to the other side until authorized, the mediator can lead the parties to a realistic assessment of their cases."

Decline of affluence bites luxury-car makers

Dan McCosh

When my elbow poked through the right sleeve of my favorite, all-wool blue blazer the other day, my first reaction was to curse John Molloy, then BMW.

Molloy's sartorial advice convinced me that I could palm myself off as a er. I mean create an image of affluence by buying real wool, preferably dark blue. Aside from being mistaken for a security guard more often than I used to, nobody told me that real wool wears out about three times faster than good old reporter-grade polyester.

Mid-life affluence thus recedes further into the future, along with that equally elusive status symbol, the BMW, or some other equally unattainable member of the "High European Group," as automotive marketing types refer to yuppie cars.

ALTHOUGH ABOUT a million Americans are expected to buy luxury cars in 1988, sales have been declining for the past three years, even in the face of a relatively strong vehicle market. This is a highly unusual situation, since rich people historically get richer when everybody else does.

In fact, luxury car sales used to be more or less insulated from all kinds of economic turmoil, save a major depression or world war. In recent years, we've gotten smug about the troubles at Cadillac, while the sales declines at Audi have frequently been blamed on mechanical troubles, rather than that division being on the leeading edge of an overall decline in demand for European luxury cars.

But now Porsche and Volvo are leading the sales declines, with Mercedes and BMW not far behind.

AUDI RECENTLY reported a $120 million loss in the United States last year, and BMW's Mike Jackling, executive vice president of sales for North America, seems to be whistling in the dark when he says "demographics are shifting unerringly in favor of the luxury market," based on the observation the baby boomers are reaching their peak earning years.

Unfortunately, according to an analysis by economist Frank Levy, quoted in a recent article in Esquire magazine, the yuppie bible, the baby boomers are one of the poorest generations we've seen, and their peak earning years, while not exactly conducted selling pencils, mainly represents a struggle to maintain the standard of living achieved with relative ease by their parents in the 1950s and 1960s.

LEVY NOTES that, adjusted for inflation, even the median income of the upper 20 percent of U.S. families is declining, and that it now takes about 44 percent of a typical 30-year-old's earnings to buy a median-priced house, compared to 21 percent of his income in 1973.

Meanwhile the shining status symbols from Europe have been raising prices by as much as 30 percent annually, with a few of the latest examples such as BMW's new 750si selling for roughly triple the U.S. annual median income for a real-world baby boomer.

The strength of the American dollar since World War II has had the effect of giving Americans a huge discount on European luxury cars, allowing a relatively large number of only moderately rich Americans to buy cars reserved in Europe for the corporate and landed wealthy.

TODAY, WITH the currencies beginning to reflect a cost based more or less at parity, the market for luxury cars appears to be shifting away from the super-expensive range back to the $25,000-$30,000 range, where a monthly payment roughly matches the mortgage payment on a $100,000 house.

BMW is reacting to this new economic reality by introducing its new 5-series at price levels about 30 percent higher than the older models, a move guaranteed to enhance the popularity of Japanese cars entering the rarified upper-class field, not to mention the recent sales boom in domestic luxury cars.

Mercedes, on the other hand, is taking an aggressive approach, touting the affordability of a new 300-series model at about $49,000.

And now Mercedes is entering the rebate game, with the announcement it will give you a free ticket to Germany to pick up your car.

Maybe if I took a window seat, they wouldn't notice the hole in my sleeve.

Dan McCosh is the automotive editor of Popular Science.

Filing separate returns could reduce income tax bill finances and you

Sid Mittra

Recently, after I filed my tax return jointly, I attended a tax seminar where the speaker argued that there are important advantages to filing a tax return separately. Shortly thereafter I came across two articles making a similar argument. I hope that you will benefit from my newly acquired knowledge.

The tax table

Let me begin with an important tax fact: 1987 tax tables heavily favor joint returns. For instance, if you file jointly, you will pay a 35% tax on your income in excess of $45,000. However, if you file separately, any income over $22,500 will be subject to a marginal tax rate of 35%. Still, you may come out ahead by filing separately, as demonstrated below.

The new tax law

The New Tax Law has repealed some advantages of filing joint returns. In addition, it has created new opportunities for filing separately. Here are some pointers.

- The old law permitted a two-wage-earner deduction of as much as $3,000. This deduction is no longer available; that is, one advantage of filing jointly has been eliminated.
- Under the New Law, if you itemize your deductions, the miscellaneous deductions are limited to amounts over 2% of your adjusted gross income (AGI). If you file jointly and your miscellaneous deductions do not exceed 2% of AGI, you miss out on this deduction. However, you may be able to get this deduction if you file separately and apply the miscellaneous deductions against one person's AGI.
- The New Law limits your medical deductions to amounts over 7.5% of your AGI. Here again, the strategy of filing separately and applying the entire medical expense to one spouse might provide an important tax break.
- The contribution to an IRA provides another tax savings opportunity. If you file jointly, have an income of over $40,000, and can participate in a qualified plan, you are not allowed to deduct your full IRA contribution. The same rule applies even if only one spouse has access to a qualified plan. But if you file separately, the spouse without a qualified plan can deduct the full $2,000 IRA contribution, regardless of the size of income.

It's a trade-off

There are disadvantages of filing separately as well. For one thing, as explained, tax tables favor joint returns. For another, there are provisions under the New Law that are biased in favor of joint returns. For instance, on a joint return, if you have losses on rental real estate, you can deduct up to $25,000 against ordinary income. However, if you file separately, you are not allowed to reduce your ordinary income by your losses on rental property.

Before you sign on the dotted line, ask your tax preparer to determine which form of filing is best for you.

Vision and a failed experiment made Will rich

Mary DiPaolo

In their book "Entrepreneurs," Joseph and Suzy Fucini introduce us to the men and women behind famous brand names. Many of these entrepreneurial success stories resulted from long hours of arduous research conducted among devoted professionals; others proved that success can happen any time, any place and to anyone.

In the case of Will K. Kellogg becoming his brother's "flunky" and a botched food experiment led to his becoming one of the nation's richest breakfast cereal moguls.

By all accounts, Will K. Kellogg was a "loser" by the time he reached young adulthood in his hometown of Battle Creek. Proclaimed a "slow learner," he was removed from school at the age of 13 and sent to work at his father's broom-making shop. After years as an unsuccessful traveling salesman, Will's subsequent pursuits were equally ill-fated.

On the other hand, Will's older brother J.H. Kellogg was a prominent surgeon and superintendent of the Battle Creek Sanitarium. An author of several books on "biologic living," J.H. was well-recognized for his health and nutrition theory advocating exercise, hydrotherapy and a vegetarian diet to treat illness.

WHEN WILL WAS 20, J.H. offered him a job as the sanitarium's "bookkeeper, cashier, packing and shipping clerk, errand boy, and general utility man." In their book, the Fucinis wrote that Will wasn't at the sanitarium long before he began to resent the high-handed treatment he received from his older brother. In his more bitter moments, he referred to himself as "J.H.'s flunky."

Will was also bothered by his brother's excessive stinginess. The sanitarium grossed as much as $4 million a year, while J.H. never paid Will more than $87 a month. It wasn't until 14 years later than Will had a second chance at achieving personal and professional success.

While working with J.H. on an experiment to develop a new kind of easily digestible wheat meal, a batch of boiled dough was accidentally left to sit out overnight. The next day the dough was run through rollers and instead of forming the expected thin sheet, it broke up into small flakes. J.H. suggested grinding the flakes into small pieces, but Will recommended that they be toasted and served as is to patients.

The idea of flaked cereal was unknown at the time, but it was an immediate success in the sanitarium dining room. It wasn't long before the brothers were forced to set up a small mail-order business to satisfy the demands of former patients who wanted the flaked cereal at home. After 12 years of trying to convince his brother to distribute the product to grocery retailers, Will finally was able to buy J.H.'s share of their cereal patents. Will's commercial success followed although the brothers were estranged for nearly 40 years afterward.

● SUMMER FESTIVAL

The Ann Arbor Summer Festival is scheduled for Saturday, June 25, to Sunday, July 17, with international performers and premier presentations of dance, theater and music. Headlining the 1988 festival will be New York's Circle Repertory Company in the pre-New York premiere of "Reckless," a new play by Craig Lucas. In another Midwest premier, the festival welcomes the Earth Players of Johannesburg for an exclusive engagement of "Bopha!" written by Percy Mtwa.

Zoe Caldwell will present her one-woman tour-de-force, "Come a Waltzing with Me," a program drawn from her repertoire of stage and TV portrayals. Marcel Marceau will give a single performance, including several new pantomimes.

Dance programs will include the Pilobolus Dance Theatre, the Lar Lubovitch Dance Company, the J. Parker Copley Dance Company and Latin-American dance. In music, the Count Basie Orchestra under the direction of saxophonist Frank Foster will present the festival's opening night performance. Other music stars appearing at the festival are Sarah Vaughan, the Dukes of Dixieland, James Dapogyn and his Chicagoans, Uncle Bonsai and Western Wind. The festival also features classical music programs and children's events.

For more information, contact the Ann Arbor Summer Festival, P.O. Box 4070, Ann Arbor 48106, or call 747-2278.

New ventures

Two of the Detroit area's most popular entertainers have announced new ventures. Phil Marcus Esser of Farmington Hills (above) is opening a musical revue in cabaret format at Somerset Mall's lower level in Troy. "Somerset Strut" stars Esser, Barbara Bredius of Troy and Charlie Latimer of Detroit. Performances will be at 8:30 and 10:30 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays starting May 6. Featured will be songs by Cole Porter, Jacques Brel, Bob Dylan, Stephen Sondheim and Esser. Show and dinner at Sebastian's restaurant in the mall is $29.50 per person, show only is $14.95. Sebastian's also is providing cocktail service before the show. For reservations, call Sebastian's at 649-6825. (Right) Ron Coden brings his Ron Coden Show, with comedy and music, to Prock's in Clawson, for the new Prock's Comedy Showroom opening Friday. Coden will headline the performances each week. Shows are at 8:30 and 11 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays, on the lower level. A comic also will be on the bill each week. Stand-up comedienne Norma Zager appears the first three weeks. Cover charge is $5. For reservations, phone 280-2626.

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

Homemade pasta is a specialty at the new DePalma's Family Inn in Livonia.

Vito N. DePalma, chef and proprietor, runs the restaurant with his sous chef, John Paterra. It's at 31735 Plymouth Road, where Bobby T's lounge was located.

"I wanted to make it into a little Italian restaurant," DePalma said. "All pastas are made on the premises. We have a pasta machine that produces 70 pounds per hour."

He smiled. "We can't run short on pasta here."

All the pastas are made from 100 percent pure semolina and eggs, he said. Seven kinds of pasta are packaged to go, at $2.25 per pound.

The restaurant also makes its own pizza bread, called focaccia, and its own cracker bread, which DePalma said is great with salads. Both breads are in the bread basket on the table.

DePalma's seats 125 diners. Luncheon entrees range from $6-$7, sandwiches are $3.75 up, and there are salads, too. Dinner entrees are priced from $8-$10 and veal dishes, with provimi veal, from $12-$14. A selection of Italian and California wines is available.

AMONG THE most popular entrees is Veal Grand Marnier, with the liqueur, heavy cream and pine nuts. The biggest-selling pasta dish is Ravioli Fiorentina, with spinach, ricotta, delicate cream sauce, speck of tomato and imported parmigiano.

"That and Spaghetti DePalma," DePalma said.

His house specialty contains meat sauce and Italian sausage.

The restaurant also offers an Italian dinner feast, which DePalma describes as "an old-world tradition." A seven-course dinner at $14.95 per person is served Thursdays-Saturdays beginning at 6:30 p.m. Courses include antipasto, soup, salad, seafood, meat, pasta (also potatoes and vegetables) and dessert. Reservations are required.

"Soup is served out of big crocks imported from Europe," DePalma said. "The rest is served family-style on platters."

After-dinner entertainment is provided by DePalma's son, Paul, 17, a junior at Stevenson High School in Livonia. He plays keyboard for dinner music, which is followed by a disc jockey who plays for dancing, Thursdays-Saturdays.

THE RESTAURANT is owner DePalma's third venture. He was in partnership in Anton's of Grosse Pointe and had a restaurant, Clairpointe, in Grosse Pointe Village, which he sold to one of his employees.

"For the last six years I've lived in Livonia. I got tired of commuting," he said.

DePalma also has worked at many Detroit-area country clubs. He was sous chef at the Detroit Athletic Club and worked at the Recess Club.

"I served most of my apprenticeship at Italian restaurants in New York," he said.

DePalma's Family Inn is three blocks west of Merriman. Hours are 11 a.m. to midnight weekdays, 4 p.m. to 1 a.m. Saturdays. It is closed Sundays.

● BENEFIT NIGHT

Children's Center of Detroit is sponsoring a performance of the play "Morning's at Seven" at 8:30 p.m. Friday, April 15, at the Detroit Repertory Theatre. The comedy about senior citizens was a Broadway hit in 1980. Proceeds from the benefit performance will go to support the Children's Center Teen Age Parent Program, which helps teen parents and their babies. Tickets at $10 may be purchased by calling 924-5747.

● SPECIAL CONCERT

Entertainer Steve Allen will join the Ann Arbor Symphony and conductor Carl St. Clair in a special concert hosted by Jazz for Life at 8 p.m. Saturday, May 21, at Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor. Allen will perform his own compositions with the orchestra. Two young jazz artists on the CBS record label, Terence Blanchard and Donald Harrison, also will appear on the program. The concert will benefit children from low-income families in Washtenaw County. Tickets priced from $15 to $50 (patron) are on sale at all Ticketmaster locations.

● SPRING CONCERTS

Spring concerts by two Oakland University musical groups include everything from jazz to Top 40, in Varner Recital Hall in Rochester Hills. The group University Drive will perform Top 40 selections and other popular works at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 7. The 28-voice Oakland Chorale, directed by Lyle Nordstrom, will perform music by Virgil Thomson, Benjamin Britten, Henry Purcell and others at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 9. Tickets are $3 general admission and $2 for OU students. Proceeds from the concert will benefit the commercial music program scholarship fund. For more information, call the arts box office at 370-3013 from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays.

● SMITH THEATRE

Four programs have been scheduled for April at the Smith Theatre on the Orchard Ridge Campus at Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills. "An Evening with Mark Twain" is slated for 1 and 8 p.m. Friday, April 15, amd 8 p.m. Saturday, April 16. Tickets are $8 for the afternoon performance and $10 for evenings. Lunch and dinner packages are available at $15 and $21. The OCC Jazz Band performs at 8 p.m. Thursday-Friday, April 21-22. Tickets for April 21 are $3. "Swinging at OCC" on April 22 will feature music of the 1940s. Tickets are $16 or $6 if guests attend the dance only at Tirrell Hall, J305. Lawrence Simmons will direct the OCC Chorale, a community chorus, at 8 p.m. Tuesday, April 16. There is no charge. Discounts for all performances are available. Reservations must be made one week in advance. Call 471-7700.

Tim Curry is Bill Snibson, a young cockney from Lambeth who inherits an earldom, and Donna Bullock is Sally Smith, his spunky girlfriend, in the musical "Me and My Girl," through Sunday, April 24, at the Fisher Theatre in Detroit. The show is a revival of a London hit originally produced in 1937. For ticket information, call the Fisher box office at 872-1000.

You'll have a good time viewing 'La Bamba'

Louise Okrutsky

Running to the video shack as a diversionary measure yielded a victory, a draw and a tactical error.

Victory came in the form of Lou Diamond Phillips' performance as 1950s' rocker Ritchie Valens in 1986's "La Bamba." He, along with Esai Morales as Valens' ne'er-do-well brother, overcome the dumb lines rife in rock-film biographies.

Anyone who can say, "My dreams are pure rock 'n' roll," without making you choke with laughter on the microwave popcorn deserves some kudos. Phillips plays the Mexican-American Valens as a gentle, straight-arrow type passionate about rock. He overcomes the movie's excesses.

And in the tradition of the rock-movie genre, there are excesses. It can't be helped. To an extent, rock 'n' roll is excess. However, the film contains too many references to plane crashes and fear of flying. We know before we see the film that Valens died at 17 in the plane crash that also took the lives of Buddy Holly and the Big Bopper.

WE DON'T need lines like, "Stars don't fall out of the sky, do they?" uttered by Phillips. Birmingham's Marshall Crenshaw, doing a nice turn as doomed Buddy Holly, gets saddled with such dialogue as, "Because the sky belongs to the stars, right?" This uttered moments before the ill-fated plane takes off.

Morales as Valens' half-brother turns a potentially unlikable character into one we may not love but whom we do understand. Bobby is a man not without his own talents, who succumbs to his own demons. Phillips and Morales together also make a striking study of those who easily assimilate into the American mainstreams and those who can't.

Music remains the heart of this movie and Los Lobos perform Valens' songs with style and spirit. Valens' original recordings weren't used because the masters were in such poor condition.

SR defies any home viewers to sit still through the performance scenes without getting on their feet and dancing across the living room floor.

It's not great art. It's flawed. But SR gives it a six out of 10. Go ahead, rent it. It's a good time.

NOT SUCH A GOOD time, and just about a draw in the video wars, is "Back to the Beach." Although SR, on principle, generally advises against judging a video by its cover, in this case, it's justified. We're in for some major-league silliness here.

Those old surfin' sweeties Frankie Avalon and Annette Funicello poke fun at their movie images. They may be the last people in America to get around to publicly laughing at the beach-party-blanket-bingo, wipe-out flicks.

Funicello wears dresses that match her luggage. Her kitchen shelves are stocked with peanut butter, Spam, ketchup and canned soup. Just your average family caught in a '60s time warp. Avalon's character evolves into one used car salesman joke. The kind of guy who buys his suits with reversible vests.

They're not the only ones laughing at their '60s selves. Don Adams delivers lines written expressly so he can use all of the catchphrases he popularized on the "Get Smart" series. They are all here, folks. "Missed by that much." "Would you believe?" And, of course, "Sorry about that."

Other cameo appearances include Connie Stevens, Edd "Kookie" Byrnes, Bob Denver and Alan Hale. It's an '80s cult hero that really kicks sand in everyone's face, though. Pee-Wee Herman, the Geekmaster himself, gives the movie a much-needed lift with his rendition of "Surfin' Bird." Too bad it comes so close to the end of the film. That's a lot of silliness to wade through to reach an island of stylish humor.

Remember, this is 92 minutes devoted to giggling about beach movies. It would have been funnier if they lopped off about an hour's worth of film.

SR gives it a three out of 10. It has a few tolerable moments. Rent it as background noise for your next get-together. And don't forget — SR warned you.

Just as SR warns you about the video version of last fall's Howdy Doody television anniversary show.

To rent this is to realize the agony of video defeat. Instead of concentrating on showing clips of the beloved kiddie show, the producers evidently thought it would be cute to have Buffalo Bob stage another, new Howdy Doody Show.

With all due respect to Peanut Gallery alumnae, this is a show that reeks of the '50s. It's a period piece. To do it again, with obvious seriousness in the '80s, constitutes a major miscalculation of the state of popular culture. SR wants more clips, less current Howdy Doody. We give it a two and advise viewers to save their money.

Lou Diamond Phillips plays Ritchie Valens in "La Bamba," a film about the rock star's meteoric rise to fame.

'St. John Passion' carries universal appeal

By Avigdor Zaromp
special writer

Avigdor Zaromp

One of Maestro Gunther Herbig's most important contributions to music is his attempt to restore Bach's music to a respectable place of honor in the concert hall, which it deserves.

Few choral works can approach the quality of Bach's two passions. The St. Matthew Passion, which is the more extensive and held in higher esteem, was performed here last season. The shorter St. John Passion tends to attract less attention, but nevertheless is a masterpiece in its own right.

It is hard to believe that this music has never been performed by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra before, but this is what reports indicate. Last week this rare musical treasure was on the program. Its shorter length turned out to be an advantage. It was performed in its entirety, unlike the other, less fortunate work which suffered from radical cuts in its performance last year.

Among the most important aspects of a high quality performance of Bach's music is the recognition of its intrinsic value and effect. This was done convincingly. To begin with, the integrity of the performance was enhanced by some baroque instruments, including the viola d'amore, played by violinist Bruce Smith. In addition, some measure of authentic sound was achieved even with the modern instruments. But, most importantly, this catering to authentic sound didn't hinder a lively, expressive and artistic performance.

Each of the solo singers proved extremely capable. John David de Haan, as the Evangelist, had the most extensive role. For many, recitatives tend to sound rather monotonous, with limited musical value. De Haan elevated Bach's recitatives to the level of high art, which, in this case, they definitely are. Michael Delos presented his role of Jesus with utmost clarity and candid expresiveness and without undue pomposity. Mezzo soprano Hilda Harris was weak in her aria in the first part, but very impressive in her other aria — "Es ist vollbracht".

Soprano Benita Valente was inspiring in both of her arias, as was tenor Jon Garrison in his two. With his rich voice, Ruud Van der Meer was impressive in his role as Pilate. His "Golgatha" aria, however, wasn't as effective as it could have been, many of the lower notes failed to carry through.

The work culminated with the refined, well-focused and disciplined presentation of the Detroit Symphony Chorus, augmented with the Boys' Choir from Christ Church, Grosse Pointe.

Maestro Herbig studied with Hermann Scherchen, one of the foremost interpreters of Bach. Fortunately, Herbig acquired the keen understanding and appreciation of the music without Scherchen's occasional tendency for strange, inconsistent tempi.

For the most part, the tempo in this performance was consistent and natural. Among the few exceptions was the "Lasset uns den nicht zerteilen" chorus, which describes the casting of lots among the soldiers for Jesus' coat. Bach must have visited Las Vegas to acquire a knack for such a fast pace. The choir proved equal to the task by executing every note with utmost clarity.

Many times I have heard the argument that the text of the New Testament, which is used in Bach's passions, is nothing more than religious dogma, whose main appeal is only to its believers. This attitude misses the point of Bach's music.

While the New Testament may have served as a vehicle and possibly an inspiration to Bach's music, his language of art is universal, a source of inspiration to any other artist of any faith. This was another aspect that this performance of the St. John Passion has conveyed.

Jennifer Marshall takes over at the sweeper position in place of Nicole Stojeba, an All-Area player who graduated following Salem's state championship season of 1987. Marshall is no stranger to the defense, having had a lot of playing time there last year.

'88 outlook bright for veteran Chiefs

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

Plymouth Salem is not the only girls soccer team in Plymouth/Canton anticipating a successful season in 1988.

Canton High School has as many experienced players coming back from a winning campaign as does its cross-campus rival.

And, while the Chiefs didn't win a state championship, they nearly prevented Salem from doing so, taking Salem into overtime in the district championship game.

Canton lost only one starter, All-Area defender Cheryl Nippa, from a team that posted an 11-3-3 record and was ranked sixth in Class A in the final statewide poll.

"We're looking forward to a good season," said second-year coach Don Smith, adding next Wednesday's game with Salem will be a good determination as to what the Chiefs can expect this year.

"WE SHOULD BE competitive. Anybody can be beaten, but we'll be tough to beat," he added.

Smith spent a lot of time early last season talking to his players about being competitive and believing in themselves. It wasn't until the season was more than half done that the light went on after Canton tied Livonia Churchill.

"Now they realize they not only can be competitive, but can beat the best teams," he said.

"Sometimes the players can sense something is stirring. They can tell when they're competitive and when they're not."

soccer

Smith is confident senior Lori Stoecklein can replace Nippa, who anchored the defense for three years. Stoecklein was an alternate starter at halfback last year and finished the season in strong fashion.

"I don't think they'll take too many prisoners," said Smith, referring to the group's aggressive and enthusiastic play. "I have to calm them down sometimes; they get very emotional back there."

The offense also is in good hands with three starters back, including junior Shannon Meath, who begins her third year on the varsity.

Julie Stabnick, the middle striker, was the team's leading scorer as a sophomore with 14 goals and three assists. Meath had 12 goals, many in key situations and against tough teams, and six assists.

Sophomore Jenny Russell played most of last season at halfback, but moved to left forward late in the season. She ended up scoring seven goals and having nine assists.

SENIOR MICHELLE Lonigro, who had eight goals and six assists, and freshman Ayana Nash, who has been impressive in early-season drills, will rotate into the lineup and provide front-line depth.

"We definitely have the possibility of being a good scoring team," Smith said. "We really don't have any super standouts; they're all pretty equal up front."

The Chiefs are solid at halfback where they have five returning players. Plus, Canton should be set at those positions for the following season, too, since four of the five are juniors.

Senior Renee Rice, who tallied three goals and four assists last year, is the veteran of the group. Juniors Candi Jones, Michelle Fortier, Molly Menard and Jenny Steinhebel all received considerable playing time.

"Even if we have girls get hurt, I think we can fill in adequately," Smith said, "although you would like to keep every position two deep and have fresh people on the field."

THE CHIEFS ALSO can call on freshman Lynne Nichols, who will play behind Rice and looks like a bonafide varsity prospect, according to Smith.

Canton has senior Jenny Saul in goal again, too. She was credited with nine shutouts and had a goals-against average of one for 17 games. The fact Canton's worst defeat was a 3-1 loss to Northville speaks of her ability in the net.

State champs

Rocks remain talented club, but opponents will be primed

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

'(Salem players) definitely have the passion to win it again . . . They have all the incentive to do it. But it will be tough, because we sneaked up on a couple people last year.'

— Ken Johnson, Salem soccer coach

Plymouth Salem no longer is just another good team in girls soccer.

The Rocks truly arrived in the sport last year, emerging from the shadow of other Western Lakes powers to win their first league and state championships.

To its WLAA opponents and Class A ballclubs across the state, Salem is no longer just Plymouth Salem. It's now PLYMOUTH SALEM.

As the defending state champs, the Rocks are certain to draw out the best in the opposition, and duplicating last year's feat won't be easy.

But no one doubts the fact Salem, 17-2-2 overall and 11-1-2 in the league, has the players and talent to possibly win it all again.

WITH MANY key players returning, including All-American junior Jill Estey, the possibility of another successful season would seem certain.

"They definitely have the passion to win it again," said coach Ken Johnson of his players. "They're proud of being champions; they're all returning players.

"They have all the incentive to do it. But it will be tough, because we sneaked up on a couple people last year."

The Rocks expect to be challenged by Plymouth Canton, Farmington and Livonia Churchill again in the league, and Canton will be in the same district tournament with Salem again.

The Chiefs gave Salem one of its toughest games en route to the state title when the Rocks eked out a 3-2, overtime victory in the district final.

"I SAID THEN, if Canton had beaten us, they would have gone all the way, too," Johnson said.

The Rocks will probably be ranked among the state's top five teams in the first statewide poll, and a major reason is Estey, who was named the best player in Michigan as a sophomore and then received All-American status last November.

She was slowed by a sore ankle in early practices, but she "hasn't lost anything," Johnson said. "Her footwork and ball control are right where they were last year."

Estey established school records with 32 goals and 28 assists last year, giving her two-year career totals of 57 and 43, respectively.

Estey is not Salem's only scoring threat. The front line returns intact with sophomore Michelle Minton and junior Teri King back at middle striker and right forward, respectively.

JOHNSON EXPECTS Minton, who scored 25 goals in her first year, and King to share the scoring load even more with Estey, and Minton could possibly become the primary scorer since Estey is likely to be a marked player.

"They're usually looking for Jill," Johnson said. "If you double team her, Michelle or Teri are going to get open.

"(Estey) will still have a ton of assists. She's always there when you need her, but she might be more of a playmaker, like a guard in basketball."

Estey, of course, has been the point guard on Salem's championship basketball teams for two years, and she has proved to be as adept at passing as she is at scoring in soccer.

King had 13 goals and nine assists last season and Minton, whom Johnson said has made a 150 percent improvement over her impressive debut, six assists. Junior Andre Overs has been moved from a halfback position and will provide back up at forward.

The midfield area suffered the most losses with the graduation of Jennifer Belhart and Lisa Hysko, but Salem has three who gained considerable experience last year.

SENIOR RACHEL Thiet, junior Missy Smith and sophomore Sarah Hayes contributed to last year's success, and junior Kim Larner went up to the varsity for the tournament.

"All of them were good last year, but all have improved, too," said Johnson, adding any three could start.

Junior Michelle Bright, another halfback, is temporarily sidelined after having arthroscopic knee surgery and is expected to miss the first two

Livonia's Tulley rates with top state bowlers

By Brad Emons
staff writer

All bowler Eric Tulley needed was a little competition.

And the Michigan Junior Masters Association circuit has provided just that and more.

Tulley, a senior at Franklin High School in Livonia, has become one of the state's most promising bowlers. Currently he is running fourth among the season points leaders and has been on a roll of late, winning the MJMA's last stop, March 5-6 at Southland Lanes in Flint.

"I wanted to test my ability against the better bowlers in the state," he said. "I figured once I got into it that I would improve. Last year I admired those other kids because they were so good."

To earn the right to enter a MJMA event, bowlers must average at least 165.

At each monthly tournament, Tulley competes against 65 to 90 bowlers. Each player will bowl eight qualifying games on Saturday with the top 16 or 24, depending on the size of the draw, returning for match play on Sunday. Match play is 12 games of head-to-head competition with the winner of each match receiving 30 bonus pins. After 12 games, the top five go on to TV-style stepladder format.

TULLEY HAS BEEN most impressive during the qualifying rounds.

He set a Junior Masters record by rolling 1,918 in eight games at the circuit's Feb. 6-7 stop at Southlanes in Southgate. (He eventually finished third overall.)

In Flint he scored 1,907, the second highest MJMA qualifying score ever. Tulley averaged 228 for 20 games en route to the title. He was also first sub-500 bowler in match play (5-6-1) to win the crown, defeating Leon Lusane of Flint in the finals.

Outside the Junior Masters, Tulley bowls in four leagues each week, carrying averages of 200, 210, 210 and 212. (His Junior Masters average is 205.)

Tulley practices whenever he can, often sandwiched between schooling and his job as a lumber sales and stock employee at Forest City. He often can be found practicing late in the evening at Merri-Bowl.

Eric Tulley
top junior bowler

> 'I wanted to test my ability against the better bowlers in the state . . . Last year I admired those other kids because they were so good.'
> — Eric Tulley
> Livonia youth bowler

"I used to be what they call a 'cranker,'" Tulley said. "I used to hook the ball with a lot of revolutions. I've changed my release and I haven't messed with it. I just work on mechanics."

ONE OF TULLEY'S mentors is Dan Ottman, also a Franklin grad (1974) and executive director of the MJMA.

Tulley says that Ottman has brought a professional attitude to the monthly tournaments.

"They levy fines for the dress code and for conduct," Tulley said. "Some kids have bad tempers and if they swear during a match, they'll have to pay a $2 fine."

Tulley would like to continue his bowling career after high school.

Saginaw Valley State, a powerhouse nationally among the collegiate teams, is high on Tulley's list.

"The coach has shown interest in me and he wants me to try out," Tulley said. "They offer scholarships on the team. It depends whether you're on the A or the B team.

"If I go away to school, that's where I'll go. Or, I may stay home and go to Schoolcraft (Community College) for a year and save some money."

THE JUNIOR MASTERS league also has a three-day scholarship tournament where competitors can earn money toward college tuition. Tulley also is planning a trip to Ohio for another scholarship event.

Beyond college, Tulley would like someday to be a professional. His idol on the pro tour is Rick Steelsmith, a recent graduate of Wichita State.

"I want to bowl in college and I'd like to try the pro tour, but I don't want to necessarily make it a career," he said.

Bowling has been Tulley's primary sport. He grew up watching his father Don, who has rolled a few frames in his day.

"I played baseball in the sixth and seventh grades, but I wasn't as interested in that as I was bowling," Tulley said. "I do play a little golf in the summer, but not on a regular basis."

ALL OF TULLEY'S energies have been funneled into the next tournament stop, April 16-17 at Airway Lanes in Kalamazoo.

He is only 50 points out of first place behind Dale Hofmeister of Bay City in the overall points standings.

"I'm not that far out of first," reminds Tulley, who has placed in the top five in four different MJMA tournaments this season.

On Saturday, Tulley competed in the state tournament at Flint where he was a member of a record-setting mixed Class A Senior team (four boys and one girl), which set a national mark for high game and made the top 10 nationally for high series.

Tulley bowled a 717 three-game series in that event and also tied for high series (728) at the Greater Detroit Bowlers Association Tournament, Sunday in Mount Clemens, where he was a member of the victorious mixed and boys teams squads.

Eagles short on numbers

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Judging by percentages alone, interest in the track programs at Plymouth Christian Academy is high.

Seventeen percent of Christian's student body participates on either the boys or girls track teams. Trouble is, there are only 100 students enrolled at Christian.

The boys team has 13 members, while the girls have four. Christian coach Steve Bauslaugh put the 17-percent student turnout into perspective.

"If (Plymouth) Canton had 17 percent of its enrollment out for track, how many would they have out?" he said. "Fortunately, the nice thing about track is we still can place individually, even though we probably won't win any dual meets."

track

SENIOR JENNY Yocum is the lone returnee on the girls team, Bauslaugh said. Yocum will run sprints and maybe the 400 meters. The other three girls, sophomore Erica Yocum and freshmen Kristy Howell and Anne Biberdorf also will run sprints.

Bauslaugh's greatest luxury is not having to pick his relay teams. With four runners making up each relay team, that's already decided.

Senior shot putter and discus thrower Kris Mavin leads the boys team. Off-season knee surgery has set Mavin back, but he went through extensive therapy and might be able to improve on last year's performances, Bauslaugh said.

Junior Kyle Mavin returns to run the 100 meters and compete in the long jump, where last year he leaped 18-6. Junior Randy Gauthier competed in the Class D cross country state meet last fall and will be Christian's best two-mile runner, Bauslaugh said.

ALSO RETURNING is senior Mike Allen, who runs the mile.

Aside from having limited numbers to work with, Christian also has no track facility. The Eagles will not host a meet this year.

Christian practices on the school parking lot, except for once a week when Lutheran Westland gives the team use of its track for practice.

Because of expense, Bauslaugh doesn't foresee Christian installing a track in the near future.

"If anyone wants to donate $100,000 we'll accept it," he said, half jokingly.

Canton girls 7th in Relays

Plymouth Canton's girls track team scored in six events and placed seventh in the Spartan Relays at Michigan State University last Saturday.

In the process, the Chiefs set five indoor school records.

Canton's highest individual finish was Lori Penland's fourth-place showing in the mile run, which she completed in 5:55.0.

Missy Jasnowski was fifth in the two-mile (12:45.7), and Susan Ferko was eighth in the shot put (30-8¼).

The distance medley relay team of Marne Smith, Tricia Carney, Kris Marquard and Cindy Spessard was fifth (14:03.1), the shuttle hurdle team of Tina Allman, Bobbi Conville, Kathy Stone and Melinda Yergin seventh (41.5) and the mile relay team of Carney, Amy VanBuhler, Kristy Brugar and Jenny Jarosz eighth (4:26.6).

Indoor records went to Jasnowski, Ferko, the shuttle hurdle and mile relay teams and Heather Miller, who was clocked at 7.7 in the 60-yard dash.

Canton's Angie Miller, the defending state champion in the high jump, was away on spring break and didn't compete.

"Everybody competed in one event except Carney," coach George Przygodski said. "It was low key. The idea was to take a lot of people and enjoy the experience."

The Chiefs have a triangular meet Thursday, April 14, with Ypsilanti and Livonia Stevenson.

"That's as good as any three teams you can get together in this area with the exception of the Ann Arbor schools," Przygodski said.

Chiefs minus top '87 golfer

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Plymouth Canton girls golf coach Dan Riggs expects improved team scores this year, despite losing last year's top performer, Kendell Foresterling, to graduation.

Foresterling's nine-hole average was 51, and the Chiefs as a team averaged about 245 per outing. Riggs said he'd be satisfied if Canton eliminated at least 10 strokes per match.

The Chiefs finished 8-8 in dual meets last year, placing sixth in the Central Eight Golf Conference. Canton's top returnee is senior Stacy Broschay, who has made "a 100-percent improvement" over 1987, when she averaged 53, Riggs said.

"I THINK we're going to be in the middle of the pack," he said. "We're still young, but we have one senior who's real good. If we could average between 220 and 235, I'd be real happy with the girls."

Broschay's sister, Sara, a sophomore, also returns after averaging 58. Other letter winners include juniors Kelly Theisen and Jeanette Measel.

Also on this year's roster are junior Lisa Togue, sophomores Meggan Olesky and Averill Pawlowski and freshmen Sarah Beckman and Kerri Kittleson.

The Chiefs open the 1988 season Tuesday against Livonia Churchill at Idyl Wild Golf Course in Livonia.

The Rocks will be solid in goal once again with junior Jamie Royston (above) backing up senior Ellen Schnackel. Defense and goalkeeping were team strengths, as well as offense, a year ago.

or three weeks of the season, Johnson said.

The Rocks also lost All-Area defender Nicole Stojeba to graduation, but they have plenty of experience on defense, too.

Sophomore Jennifer Marshall will replace Stojeba at sweeper, and senior Tracy Krajewski will mark the other team's best player from the stopper position.

Salem returns juniors Mellissa Uhl and Maria Wordhouse and sophomore Jennifer Degenhardt at fullback, and the Rocks have a key addition in sophomore Tracy Shough, a transfer from Churchill.

"ANY ONE OF those six can go in, so we'll have fresh legs out there," Johnson said.

Furthermore, and perhaps most importantly, Salem returns its goalkeeper, senior Ellen Schnackel, and her backup, junior Jamie Royston.

"(Schnackel) could be the edge in a lot of games," Johnson said. "She had a good fall and indoor season.

"A lot of coaches in the area have talked about how they admire her. She could be in the running for some honors."

Johnson will carry 17 players on his roster, three fewer field players, instead of 20 like last year. With such a veteran varsity team, Johnson thought it would be hard for underclassmen to get much playing time. Furthermore, Salem has many good young players who will get that playing time on the junior varsity, he said.

"We have ninth and 10th graders on the JV who could play on any other varsity," Johnson said. "To get a squad strong, I wanted them to get playing time.

"THE SQUAD WE have returning is so experienced they deserve to play a little more. So we're giving quality players more playing time, and we can bring JV players up in key situations."

Salem opens its season at 5:30 p.m. Monday with a home game against defending Catholic League champion Birmingham Marian.

Sarah Hayes (front) and Michelle Minton fight for the ball during practice. Hayes is a mid-fielder while Minton is expected to be one of Salem's top scorers again.

Scoring goals should be no problem for Falcons

By Dan O'Meara
staff writer

soccer

'We haven't given up a lot of goals the last couple years, but (defense) is the area we have the least amount of experience compared to years past.'

— Ed Bartram, Farmington coach

Farmington High School experienced its most successful season of girls soccer since taking up the sport last year, and the upcoming campaign holds promise of being even better.

The Falcons were 9-2-3 and finished second behind eventual state champion Plymouth Salem, a team they defeated once during the regular season, in the Lakes Division.

Like most teams, Farmington suffered some graduation losses, but it returns a number of quality players, including a solid group of forwards.

Coach Ed Bartram started three freshmen up front last year, and the trio produced excellent offensive results.

Sophomore Carrie Maier received all-Observer and second-team, all-state honors after scoring 30 goals and chalking up 18 assists. Maier, who also is a sprinter on the girls track team, has become better, according to Bartram.

"I THINK SHE'S matured some," he said. "She's picked up some speed on the ball, which is unbelievable. She was fast last year, but she's even faster this year."

Fellow sophomores Margaret Martin and Amy Trunk give the Falcons a young but experienced front line that returns intact. Martin scored 21 goals and had 15 assists, and Trunk registered numbers of 12 and 13, respectively.

"The three freshmen had some shooting potential and speed, and we wanted to take as much advantage of it as we could," Bartram said. The Falcons scored 93 goals, nearly doubling their total of the previous year.

Bartram, who remains undecided about certain positions, is thinking of moving Martin to halfback as a replacement for her sister, all-stater Leslie, who graduated last spring.

"We've got a lot of talent up front and there's going to be some adjustments made as far as moving players around, depending on what's going on in the game," Bartram said.

JUNIOR JENNIFER Misaros, a co-captain, is Farmington's top returnee at halfback. She missed much of the season with a broken ankle, but returned in time to score nine goals and distribute 14 assists.

Seniors Heather Glennie and Missy Davis are other halfbacks who return, though Davis can also play forward. Bartram has thought of moving senior Stacy Shalm, who played defense last year, to midfield, but he might have to leave her where she was to meet a need at those positions.

The Falcons lost Amy Smith (stopper), Jennifer Cunningham (sweeper) and Karen Popyk, all of whom were three-year starters on defense. Farmington's ratio of goals scored and allowed was nearly 4-to-1 a year ago when the Falcons gave up a total of 26.

Junior Katie McDonald is the lone returning starter on defense, but sophomore Tanya Slicker, who played on the junior varsity, could help shore up some holes back there.

Bartram admits defense is the biggest question mark, but he is confident the players who eventually assume those roles will perform well and not lessen the effectiveness of what should be a potent offense.

"WE HAVEN'T GIVEN up a lot of goals the last couple years, but it's the area we have the least amount of experience compared to years past," he said.

"It's a little early to say if we can cover for those (graduation) losses, but I'm not doom-and-gloom right now."

Freshman Debbie Westerkamp replaces Cindi Rieden, another graduation loss, as the goalkeeper.

"We will need to build up her confidence and allow her to develop," Bartram said. "But she has played (the position) a long time (on youth league teams) and seems to be pretty confident in herself."

With several major talents on offense and despite the apparent weakness on defense, Bartram, who thinks the Farmington schools are overdue in girls soccer, believes the Falcons are headed for their best season.

"Last year the girls did real well, and I believe we're going to be even better this year," he said.

"Between (Maier) and the other girls, I think there will be some people looking at us.

"We beat Salem once and lost to them once," he added. "I'd like to see us at the top of the division and contending for the conference title."

State all-stars fare well

hockey

Team Michigan acquitted itself quite well last week in the U.S. High School Hockey Invitational at the Franklin Park (Ill.) Ice Arena.

Coached by A.J. Baker, Team Michigan reached the finals of the tournament before losing a heartbreaker Sunday to Buffalo, N.Y., 6-5. Thirty-two teams from across the country participated in the tournament.

"It was a week like I've never experienced and it will be tough to duplicate," said Baker. "I think the knock against high school hockey in Michigan will change. We're no longer a pencil dot on a piece of paper."

Buffalo scored three power-play goals capped by Jason Zent's game winner with five minutes left in the game. The goal gave Buffalo a 6-3 lead, but Michigan made it close down the stretch on goals by Kerry Franklin (East Lansing) and Chris Tamer (Dearborn Heights Crestwood).

Tony Molina (Allen Park Cabrini), Joel Stempien (Birmingham Brother Rice) and John Caliguire (East Lansing) also scored for Team Michigan.

TEAM MICHIGAN reached the final by defeating North Dakota on Saturday, 2-1, as Stempien tallied the game-winner just 12 seconds into overtime. Lee Genovese (Livonia Stevenson) assisted on the goal.

Meanwhile, Dennis Lang (Taylor Truman) sparkled in the Michigan nets, making 22 saves.

Team Michigan opened the tournament Tuesday, March 29, when Calumet's 6-foot-5 forward Gordie Frantti's hat trick helped them earn a 4-3 triumph over defending champion Minnesota.

On Thursday, Team Michigan defeated Ohio, 4-1, as Stempien and Frantti scored for the winners.

That earned Team Michigan a berth Friday against St. Louis. Mo. Frantti scored twice with Matt Britton (Alpena), Franz Herbert (Ann Arbor Pioneer) and Link Bessert (Grosse Pointe North) each scoring once. Molina added two assists.

"A LOT OF GUYS sacrificed their roles, but it was a great feeling to see all guys come together in just one week," Baker said. "Gordie Wilson (Livonia Stevenson) is normally a forward, but he played the entire tournament on defense and did a tremendous job."

Another Observerland player on the Michigan roster was Karl Moilanen of Detroit Country Day School.

Reigning Class A baseball champion Redford Catholic Central picked up where it left off from last season, sweeping a double-header Saturday from 1986 state champion Ypsilanti, 11-6 and 4-2.

"It was a good start . . . I was happy," said CC coach John Salter.

In the opener, senior shortstop Kevin Rogers capped a five-run rally with a game-winning RBI single in the top of the eighth. Mike Dorocak and John Gotts also singled in runs during the surge.

Rogers, Gotts and Dorocak each collected two hits as the Shamrocks out-hit the Braves, 11-6.

Host Ypsi had erased a 6-3 deficit with three runs in the bottom of the seventh to send the game into extra innings.

Chris Johnston, who pitched 1⅓ innings in relief of Mark Staniforth and starter Leo Hutchinson, picked up the win. Hutchinson gave up three runs over five innings.

In the nightcap, Dorocak took the mound and tossed a three-hitter, striking out eight and walking only two. The senior right-hander also went 2-for-4, including a triple to go along with runs batted in.

"He threw only 80 pitches," said Salter of Dorocak. "He threw quite well."

CC broke a 2-2 deadlock in the sixth when Rogers reached base on an error. He eventually scored on a wild pitch. Matt Cannon then singled in Gotts with an insurance run.

The Shamrocks return to action Saturday against Holt in a double-header at Redford's Capitol Park. Game time is 4 p.m.

BORGESS 2-4, DIVINE CHILD 0-5: Redford Bishop Borgess opened its regular season Tuesday by splitting a twin bill with Dearborn Divine Child at Capitol Park.

In the opener, right-hander Craig Karankiewicz struck out 14 and allowed just three hits as Borgess took a 2-0 victory.

The senior hurler had pinpoint control, walking only three while making only 56 pitches.

Junior designated hitter Loyd D'Angelo was the hitting star for Borgess, socking a 2-run homer in the fifth inning.

In the nightcap, Dennis Hamilton pitched a complete game and belted a 3-run homer in the third to lead the Falcons to a 5-4 triumph.

Hamilton scattered six hits over seven innings. He struck out 14 and walked nine.

Bob Elliott, the Borgess starter and loser, went the first 3⅓ innings. Paul Dreslinski came on to pitch 2⅔ innings of scoreless relief.

Borgess trailed 5-1 through four innings before picking up two in the fifth on a double by Steve Coffell. They added another in the seventh on a sacrifice fly by Coffell, who went 2-for-2 with three RBI.

Canton returns singles players

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

tennis

Plymouth Canton boys tennis coach Jim Hayes doesn't have a single dilemma to confront this year.

Single, as in "singles" play.

Canton's top four singles players return from last year's team that won the Western Division championship of the Western Lakes Conference.

There are some vacancies to fill in doubles play, however, where No. 1 doubles member Ehren Koelsch and No. 2 doubles performer Jim Allen graduated.

But because of Canton's depth in singles, Hayes believes the Chiefs can improve on last year's 10-2 dual-meet record. Foremost among the returnees is No. 1 singles player Mike Burt, a senior who won the division title in 1987.

Burt lost just two matches and, along with No. 2 singles returnee Dan Orlandi, advanced to the semifinal round of the state regionals.

ALSO BACK IS No. 3 singles player Jim Gallagher (junior) and No. 4 singles performer Steve Schmidt (senior). Both reached the regional finals, and Gallagher won the league individual crown.

"I'd like to think we're pretty solid all the way down," Hayes said. "Only the season will tell us that, though. With a bunch of high school kids you never know. But the kids worked hard over the winter."

Hayes is concerned about what he'll get out of his doubles tandems. The Number 1 and 2 teams have been decided, but Hayes is undecided about his Number 3 and 4 teams, where six players are vying for time.

Senior Rich Gurchak and Martin Kraft, a foreign exchange student from Germany, combine for No. 1 doubles. The No. 2 team is comprised of senior Dan Nowicki and freshman Brian Schmidt.

The six players battling for the final two teams are Tony Spagnoli, Chris Bloomenscheine, Jeff Williams, Jeff Binder, Chris Harper and Chris Arthur. Two freshmen, Scott Jones and Rod Jesena, might also letter, Hayes said.

Saving trout habitat TU's goal

Bill Parker

TROUT UNLIMITED and I have something in common. We were both born in Michigan in 1959. TU, however, has expanded to a nation-wide organization with 50,000 members including more than 3,000 right here in Michigan.

I've expanded, too, but we won't get into my weight, even though it could use a little reducing.

TU is the world's largest conservation organization dedicated to the preservation and conservation of cold-water habitat. Habitat in which trout reside.

"We started out primarily concerned with cold-water streams," said Bill Walker, vice president of the Birmingham-based Paul H. Young Chapter of TU. "Cold-water streams are still our major concern but we're also concerned with lakes."

What Trout Unlimited is concerned about is raising money for projects it has lined up for the coming year.

A non-profit organization, TU is broken into local chapters including four in the Metro Detroit area — Clinton Valley, based in Fraser; Paul H. Young, based in Birmingham; Challenge, based in Bloomfield Hills; and Muddler, based in Farmington Hills.

The local chapters of TU are supported by money raised at an annual fundraiser. The Clinton Valley Chapter and the Paul H. Young Chapter are holding those fund-raisers this month.

THE NATIONAL Conservation Banquet, hosted by the Clinton Valley Chapter, is scheduled for April 13 at American Legion Post 253 in Royal Oak. The banquet will include dinner, a cash bar, auctions, wildlife art, fishing gear, raffles, float trips, homeowners items and more. Proceeds from the banquet will be used to support the Paint Creek Project.

Initiated in 1985, the Paint Creek Project is a joint effort by TU and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources to restore Paint Creek.

A tributary of the Clinton River, Paint Creek originates at Lake Orion and connects with the Clinton River near Rochester. Brook and brown trout are planted annually in both Paint Creek and the Clinton River providing exciting fishing opportunities to area anglers.

Bank erosion, log jams and commercial developments have threatened the fishery in Paint Creek in recent years.

Members of the Clinton Valley Chapter of TU have been involved in protecting the creek by removing log jams and restoring stream banks. The Clinton Valley Chapter has also been involved in protecting Gallagher Creek, a brook trout holding tributary of Paint Creek, from a proposed Heather Ridge Golf Course, opposing and eventually forcing the denial of a permit for a rapid drawdown of Lake Orion, which would have threatened brown trout spawning and advocating and sponsoring the construction of a bottom-draw intake from Lake Orion into Paint Creek, which will provide colder, more oxygenated water for the creek.

JIM NORTHRUP, outfielder for the 1968 world champion Detroit Tigers, will emcee the Paul H. Young Chapter's fund-raiser, to be held April 21 at the Royalty House in Warren.

Ernie Schweibert, whose 1955 book "Matching the Hatch" revolutionized fly-fishing, will be the guest speaker.

Prizes will also be raffled off including a one-week fishing trip with Schweibert at the Alaska West Sportfishing Camp, a bird hunt with Tiger pitcher Jack Morris at the Huntsman Hunt Club in Dryden, Mich., a fishing trip with Red Wing goalie Glen Hanlon to the Rockwell Springs Trout Club in Castalia, Ohio, a one-week trip to Wentzloff's Lakeside Resort on Crystal Lake in Beulah, Mich., a duck hunt at an exclusive Canadian marsh and a two-day bonefish outing in Florida.

There will also be a prime-rib dinner, cocktails, wildlife art, fur coats, crystal and more.

The Paul H. Young Chapter has been active in habitat enhancement projects on the south branch of the AuSable River. The chapter also donates a $1,000 scholarship to the University of Michigan-Dearborn for a student majoring in natural resource management.

"We only have the one fund-raising activity each year," Walker said. "We target all our work throughout the year at this one fund-raiser. Most of our membership dues go to Trout Unlimited National so we have to go out and raise the money for our projects."

Tickets for the Clinton Valley Banquet are $18 and available by calling Alan Johnson at 649-6946 or Mel Anderson at 547-1498.

Tickets for the Paul H. Young Chapter fund-raiser are $30 and available by calling Rick Reid at 353-4565.

Smoking pot doesn't help running ability

Dear Myrna: I'm a "social" marijuana smoker. I am also an avid runner. I have been told that smoking a joint will increase a person's athletic capacity. Is this true?

I cannot imagine where you heard this (mis)information ... maybe a jealous non-athletic person. Have you ever run the morning after a "big" night out with pot (marijuana)? I'll bet you didn't run as well.

There are lots of things you can do to increase your athletic capacity for running. Smoking marijuana is not one of them.

Pot smoking can tire you more quickly while you run and can increase the time it takes for you to recover after you exercise. Marijuana can make you feel good temporarily. I know it can help you to relax but be aware that it can also damage your lungs and interfere with the process of oxygen intake and output during running.

Researchers say that one joint of marijuana will cause as much damage as 16 cigarettes. The pot smoker has to work much harder than the cigarette smoker to bring the active ingredient into their lungs. Therefore, the pot smokers take deeper breaths and hold the smoke in their lungs for longer periods of time.

If you try to run after smoking marijuana, your heart will beat faster than normal and it will take longer for your heart rate to return to normal. This is not healthy.

Marijuana speeds up the heart because it stimulates the nerves which speed up the heart rate. This does not cause more blood to return to the heart, so it does not make the heart beat with more force.

You gain nothing from this, except you tire out faster than usual.

Marijuana also can damage cell membranes so the muscle soreness you feel after running will last longer, and it will take longer to recover.

Smoking pot before a run might relax you and give you a mental high to start with, but what a fast come down! Remember that explosive, healthy high you get naturally from running.

Smoking marijuana, pot, grass, joints ... forget it! You can be a strong, healthy, avid runner without smoking marijuana. Why smoke anything at all?

Billiards event draws top players

By Marty Budner
staff writer

If everything is on cue this weekend, Paul Roberts hopes to chalk up quite a coup at the Troy Hilton Hotel.

Roberts, a 1974 graduate of Bloomfield Hills Andover High School, is the promoter/publicist for the McDermott Masters Midwest 9-Ball Billiards Championships. The single-elimination, 64-draw tournament begins today and is scheduled to conclude late Sunday.

Some of the biggest names in the sport — former world champion Steve Mizerak and the current No. 1 player Mike Sigel — are scheduled to shoot for the $50,000 purse in the four-day tournament.

Roberts hopes those names, plus the popularity of the game, will be enough to make the tournament — the first of its kind in the area — a success.

"This tournament will be like (the movie) 'The Color of Money' coming to life," said Roberts on Monday. "This is the real thing. A quarter of the guys who were in that film will be here playing in this tournament.

"I think it will be a lot of fun, and it will give people a chance to see the beauty and elegance of the game," he said. "I think the people should come out and see what the game of billiards has become."

THE TOURNAMENT is designed to appeal to the average spectator. Roberts is trying to transform the game's image from a sleazy, barroom thrill to a glitzy, competivive attraction for fans of all ages.

Players will be dressed in tuxedos while vying for the $15,000 first-place prize. And, with players like Mizerak and Sigel, plus the No. 1 women's player, Jean Balukas, Swedish champ Niclas Bergendorfer and Philippine national champion Efran Reyes among the participants, it should be highly competitive.

"Cornbread" Red from Melvindale and Edgar "Shake and Bake" White and Grady Matthews from Detroit also are scheduled to participate.

The idea, says Roberts, is to make the game — already one of the most popular participation sports in the country — even more appealing from a professional angle.

"We are trying to take the game out of the back rooms and make it is accessible as possible for the people," said Roberts. "The sport is big to everyone. It is big in blue collar areas and big in senior citizens areas like there are in Bloomfield Hills and Southfield."

This is the second such tournament Roberts has produced.

Roberts, 32, is president of Roberts and Co. — a sports-marketing company for professional billiards. Roberts' first venture into a tournament-type pro format was last year in Los Angeles.

ROBERTS FORSEES the day when he can stage a number of tournaments in different areas of the country, producing five or six champions en route to a "super-bowl" type championship. At the same time, Roberts hopes to package the sport to make it financially rewarding for both the players and the producers.

"We had 6,000 people over a four-day period (at the first tournament in Los Angeles.). I saw all of this opportunity out there," said Roberts, a University of Michigan graduate.

"Sunday they were scalping tickets to get into the finals," he said. "We saw that type of response and figured there was a demand for this type of format."

One of the more interesting aspects of this weekend's tournament is that the women will be competing cushion-to-cushion right alongside the men. Besides Balukas, the top two women from yesterday's women's championship tournament will participate in the Midwest Masters.

"Some people don't like it, but it is my belief that women should compete one-on-one with the men," said Roberts.

There will be four tables in the Troy Hilton's Gordon Ballroom. Bleachers will be set up for spectators at each end of the room.

Tickets are priced at $10 (general admission) and $20 (preferred admission) for Saturday's rounds and $15 and $30 for Sunday's finals. A five-day pass is $60 (general) and $120 (preferred). Tickets are available at Ticketmaster or at Saffron Billiard Supply — a tournament co-sponsor.

"We're trying to offer the sport to everyone," said Roberts. "We're trying to say it's a legitimate spectator sport where you'd want to bring your kids."

PGA members in charity tourney

By Brad Emons
staff writer

Some of the PGA's top money winners will be coming to the western suburbs.

On Monday, May 23, Meadowbrook Country Club in Northville will host the Metro Buick Dealers Charity Golf Classic.

Tournament director Roy Gaddey has lined up 14 pros, many of whom have already topped the $1 million mark in career earnings, including Payne Stewart, Hal Sutton, Dan Pohl, Fred Couples, Steve Pate (winner of two tourneys already this year), Chip Beck, Roger Maltbie and Wayne Levi.

"It will be a quality event," said Gaddey. "It will be good for the spectators. They'll be able to bring their cameras and obtain autographs.

"I know the area of Livonia, Plymouth and Northville will support the event."

"In trying to find the best location, the criteria we used was road access, parking and quality of the course," he said.

Proceeds from the tournament will benefit the St. Vincent Sarah Fisher Center and the Evans Caddie Scholarship Foundation.

Each foursome in the Pro-Am will be sponsored by a Detroit area corporation. One foursome is still available. Interested individuals should contact Gaddey at 540-8155.

Advance discount tickets are available through TicketMaster, J.L. Hudson and AAA outlets for $10. Tickets are also available at the gate the day of the tournament for $15. (Discount corporate ticket packages are also available by calling Gaddey.)

Planet Saturn just seems to orbit backwards

skywatch

Watch the motion of the moon during the next four mornings as it drifts through Scorpius, Sagittarius and into Capricornus.

Saturn, in Sagittarius, is six degrees north of (above) the moon on the morning of the 8th. The moon is just above the "spout" of the "teapot" that marks Sagittarius.

Saturn has slowly been drifting eastward through the constellation of Sagittarius all year. On the 10th it is stationary and begins retrograde (backward) motion.

During the next four months it will drift westward through Sagittarius, as if retracing its path.

PLANETS DON'T really stop and then orbit backwards. Retrograde motion is an optical illusion.

Earth orbits the sun faster than Saturn. As the earth's orbit carries it between the sun and Saturn, we overtake the slower moving planet. Saturn merely appears to move backward.

Once we are past the illusion point, Saturn will appear to go forward again.

THE MOON is at last quarter phase on April 9. On the 10th look for Mars, above and to the left of the moon.

Look back at Antares (an TAR ees, a bright orange-red star to the south (left) of the moon and the heart of Scorpius the scorpion, in the south-southwest, and compare it with Mars.

Antares means "rival of Mars." Do you think Antares rivals Mars in brightness and color?

Venus forms a large triangle with the Pleiades and Aldebaran (al DEB a ran), the "eye" of Taurus, on the evening of the 17th. Face west and you'll easily see brilliant Venus. To the left of Venus is Aldebaran.

Below and to the right of Venus is the Pleiades. (Notice how far Venus has moved from the Pleiades in just 12 days.)

Below the Pleiades, close to the horizon, is Jupiter. As Jupiter gets closer to the sun it will become more difficult to see. Can you still find it by week's end?

NEW MOON is at 8 a.m. April 16. The moon is between the earth and the sun and is not visible.

Notice the Venus-Aldebaran-Pleiades triangle again on the evening of the 17th. Below the Pleiades is the one-day old crescent moon. On the next night the crescent moon is directly over the Pleiades and will make a beautiful sight in binoculars.

Tuesday, April 19, will be your chance to locate Venus in the daytime sky, thanks to the moon. Look for the moon, high in the west, shortly before sunset. Immediately to the left of the moon will be Venus. If you have trouble seeing Venus with your naked eye, use binoculars. Once you find it with binoculars, try spotting it without.

If you are really ambitious, keep checking on the moon and Venus every 30 minutes and not how rapidly the moon's position changes with respect to Venus.

Mercury is at superior conjunction on the 20th. It is located behind the sun, as seen from the earth, and is not visible. With luck you might spot Mercury at the very end of the month.

The moon forms another triangle with the stars Castor and Pollux on the evening of the 21st. Castor is above the moon; Pollux is to the left of Castor. These two stars mark the "heads" of Gemini the twins. On the following evening, the moon is below and to the left of Pollux.

THE LYRID (LYE rid) meteor shower reaches its peak on the evening and morning of the 21st and 22nd.

This is a fairly weak meteor shower, an average of only 15 meteors ("falling stars") are seen each hour. The Lyrid shower is named for the constellation Lyra, from which the meteors appear to radiate.

Lyra is rising in the northeast around 9 p.m. and is overhead at 6 a.m. The moon sets around 10 p.m. on the 21st, which will help darken the sky.

What meteor activity there is should begin to pick up after 11 p.m. and last through dawn on the 22nd. You do not need a telescope to observe meteors. Just look up and be very patient.

First quarter moon occurs on April 23. The moon is one-quarter of its way around the earth.

THE MOON is directly above the star Regulus (REG u lus) on the evening of the 26th. Regulus is the "heart" of Leo the lion.

On the 29th the moon is approaching Spica for the second time this month. How does its position on the 29th compare with its position back on April 2? On the 30th the moon is below Spica.

Also on the 30th, 45 minutes after sunset, find Venus in the west northwest. Draw an imaginary line from Venus straight down toward the horizon and you'll see Aldebaran. Look to the north (right) of Aldebaran for the Pleiades. (Use binoculars if necessary.)

Directly below the Pleiades, just above the horizon is Mercury. Officially an "evening planet" now, Mercury will be very difficult to see. It will become easier to see during May.

An excellent aid for learning constellations and keeping up to date with the sky is the monthly "Sky Calendar." A one-year subscription is $6 and is available from: Abrams Planetarium, Michigan State University, East Lansing 48824.

We asked our branch managers, "What's the best thing about a Big E Home Equity Line of Credit?"

Lucien Dartmon, Orchard Lake, Michigan

"No Mortgage Closing Costs! You can save $600* on closing at Empire of America. You don't pay a penny."

Roberta Holder, French Road Office, New York

"Pay off your higher cost loans and charges, improve your home and lower your payments at the same time."

Helen Roche, DeBary Office, Florida

With our current low Annual Percentage Rate of 10.50% and our lifetime rate cap you can be assured of affordable payments.

William Pu, Warner Center Office, California

"You can get 24-hour turnaround on your credit approval."

Dolores Gocinski, Freeport Office, Long Island

"It's a revolving line of credit, so as you repay the outstanding balance, that money again becomes available for your use."

Sandra Decker, Kingston Office, New York

"You can go to your nearest Empire of America office to receive a free estimate of how much you are eligible to borrow."

As you can see, there are so many good things about a Big E Home Equity Line of Credit, it's difficult to single out just one. But there was one thing they all agreed on: a Big E Home Equity Line of Credit is, in many instances,

"STILL TAX-DEDUCTIBLE!"

See your tax advisor for details.

Come to any Empire of America branch to start saving now. Or call SMARTLINE* at 1-800-THE BIG E (1-800-843-4432). SMARTLINE is open seven days a week 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

"THESE BATTERIES HAVE A LOT GOING FOR YOU."

—Chuck Yeager

For starters, Delco Freedom, Dura Power and Voyager Batteries are maintenance-free.

That means you never have to give them a second thought. They start you fast and sure when you crank up your engine.

Thanks to Delco's design, early battery failure caused by low fluid levels is prevented. And the built-in "green eye" lets you know the state of charge at a glance.

Delco's got batteries for most cars and trucks, both domestic and imported. Plus batteries for boats and RVs. The limited warranty's good nationwide. Check it out where you shop for auto parts.

Michigan Fine Arts '88

Juror talks about the process of selection

By Corinne Abatt
staff writer

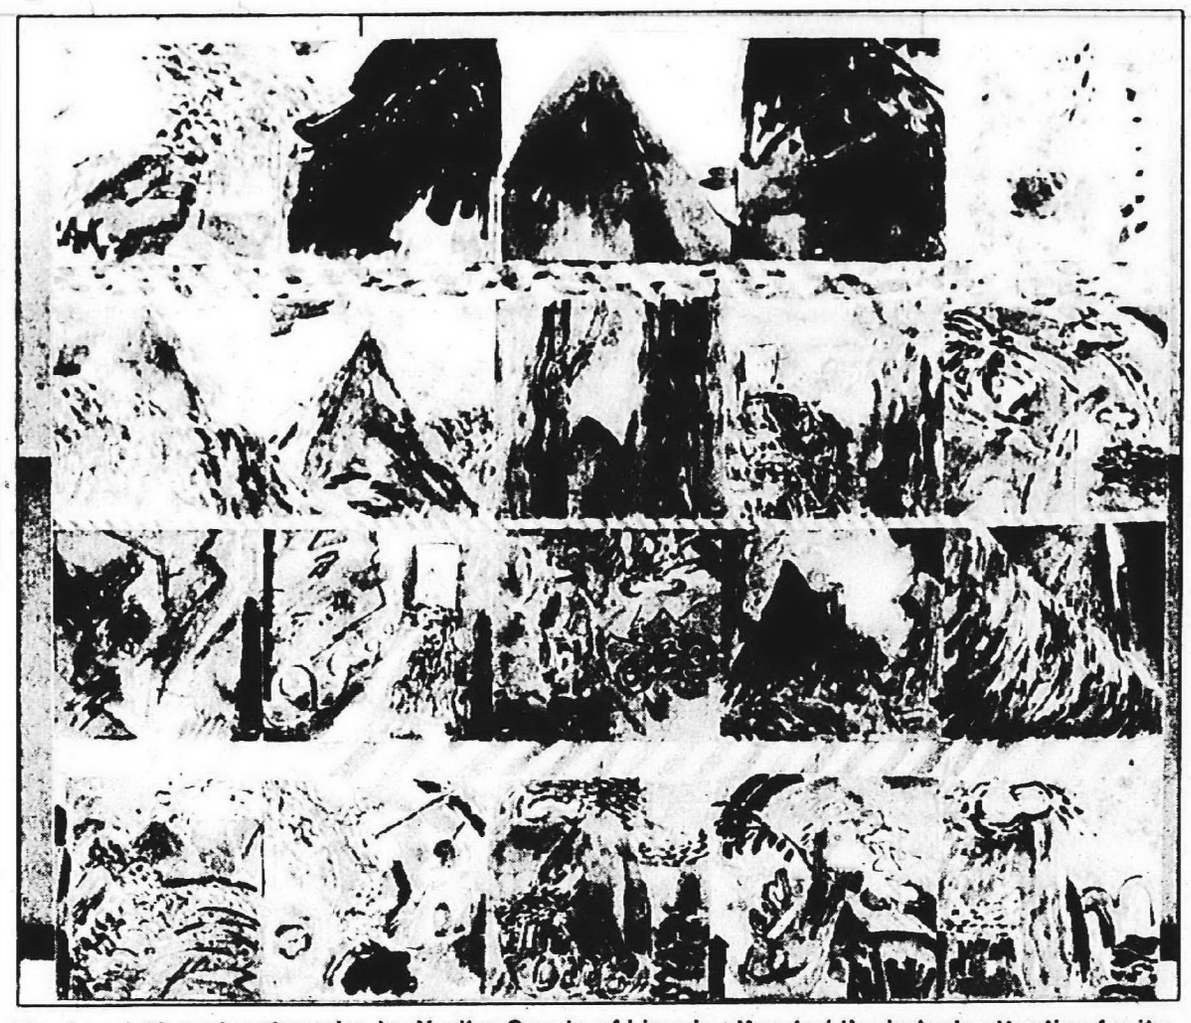
INTERNATIONALLY KNOWN SCULPTOR Alice Aycock has a vision that stretches far beyond the confines of the average non-artist's mind.

As juror for the Michigan Fine Arts Competition at Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association, Saturday, April 9, through Saturday, May 14, she chose works that suggested or incorporated that same long sweep. It is completely different from the competitions of other years. For while exhibitions of past years reflected the personalities of the judges to a substantial degree, none have done so more than this one.

Aycock comes out of a tradition of artists who work in, around, through and beyond images. Her take-off point for the group of outdoor wooden constructions that she created for Cranbrook in the mid '70s was the St. Bartholomew's Fair in 1133. Other sculptures and drawings have a relationship to farm machinery, kitchen equipment, war machines, architectural and battlegrounds. She draws from history, then filters and refines the reference, until it takes on an independent spirit that makes it a work or art with historical symbology with a ghostly image of once-upon-a-time function.

It is her own ability to push an idea beyond normal expectations, to move courageously along the narrow edge of the precipice that is mirrored in the show.

The painting by Jan Michael Field of Belleville, "Jungle Jim's," won the $1,000 first prize.



The large 12-part watercolor by Yoriko Cronin of Livonia attracted the judge's attention for its spontaneity and its visual appeal.

DURING A WORKSHOP at the Art Association, she led participants through the exhibition and explained why she chose each piece.

"My concerns were first of all, in the run-through, that the work holds up. I went back three or four times. I probably respond to work that has some level of content."

She gave a brief history of art citing artists such as Cezanne, Picasso and Pollock who "give one the sense of how the artist viewed the world," as examples. Then it ceased, "hard edge" became an intellectual exercise that had to be explained to be understood.

"The reintroduction of content was a marvelous thing . . . When image came back, it was a very exciting time for painting. In the '50s and '60s, all you had to know was how to put the tape on right. It was dry and boring."

The large painting, "Mozart" ($100 award) by Allegory (a.k.a. Nancy Nash) illustrated the interest that the use of image creates. As she stood before the $1,000 first-prize painting, "Jungle Jim's" by Jan Michael Field, she said, "There's a story going on . . . I like to look at that painting."

She said she had considered giving the first prize to a ceramic sculpture, "Rabbit Head" by Deborah McLellan ($750 second prize), but she was afraid people would assume "she only gives prizes to sculpture."

Of the rabbit she said, "It has a kind of iconic quality. It's very obdurate. It has a sacred stone quality."

Saying it has a little of the quality of the large sculpted heads (found in the wilds of Central America and Mexico), she added, "I really like the transformation of the material, you don't know it's clay."

THE EXHIBITION, in Aycock's mind, has a progression that begins with mark making and moves on to more personal handwriting, symbols and images. She commended Piper Shepard (a large three-dimensional multimedia work), Carolyn Smith Armatage (painting), James Fagan(two acrylics) and Benita Goldman (painted construction) for taking chances and pushing their work rather than playing it safe.

She liked Rita Dibert's two photographs because they are "about very mundane things. They have a very mundane quality."

She stopped for a long time to enjoy two paintings by Carolyn Zak of Rochester ($75 award). She said of one of them that, from a distance, looks like a blackboard with white scratches on it, "The scratches become very important. I like her color. I'd love to see this artist take on a larger canvas."

She commented on the pure beauty of the painting by Karen Bodycombe of Ann Arbor. "I would ask this person to tell us something more we don't know, and take a chance." The unexpected colors used by Vallerie Allen Loop in Rumzy's painting moved back and forth from symbol, mark and form.

She compared the two wrapped figures in the photographs by David Rayfield of Midland to the French sculptures called "pleurers" or mourners and said it would be interesting to see how much farther it could move.

She liked the way the shapes in Jessica Gondak's two paintings "hold that tension" and the "push-pull tension" in D'Ann deSimone's two paintings ($75 award).

SHE LABELED both the shaped canvas by Larry Butcher of Midland and the sculpture by Stephen Nesvacil of Traverse City "idiosyncratic" and was sorry in both cases that a second work wasn't available. Butcher had sold his other one and Nesvacil's second had been broken in transit.

Of one of two "not very pretty" large paintings by Audrey Leaman of Jackson (honorable mention), she said, "I like the way it holds its ground . . . it's more difficult art, that's what I respond to."

The three-dimensional construction by Robert Park, she said, "works very well with other pieces in the show. I wanted some pieces that talked to each other."

Of the large 16-square watercolor by Yoriko Cronin of Livonia, she said she would like to see the artist work in watercolor or acrylic, but she liked the "mistake-prone spontaneity," adding, "I like to look at it from a distance."

The two sculptures by Dwayne Szot (special category $500 award), "out of a Duchamp tradition," she compared to poetry and was reminded of the Belgian artist, Panarencko, who makes "machines that fly, but none ever have."

"Center — Self Center" is the title of this large wood-and-metal sculpture by Pieter Favier of Hamtramck. It won third prize.

Staff photos by Jerry Zolynsky

Juror Alice Aycock said the sculpture by Stephen Nesvacil of Traverse City looked as though it been hurled through space and just landed. It is wood with billboard paper laminated to some of the surfaces. Nesvacil used rawhide to secure the joints. He is a furniture maker as well as sculptor.

While touching the marks along the side of a small steel sculpture by Jim Melberg of Birmingham, she said, "This represents a certain point of view."

Looking at the red fish sticking out of a box on wheels by Wesley Curtis of Cranbrook she said, with a hint of a smile, "I'm not sure what it's about . . . I'm responding to the visualness of it — the zaniness."

She seemed most comfortable beside Pieter Favier's "Center — Self Center"($500 third prize), a large wheel sculpture, " . . . It siezes the space in an agressive way — the introduction of the figure, I liked that a lot."

As she completed the tour, she added almost as apology, "I did pare things down to what I wanted to see in this room."

When questioned about titles, she said, "Titles are very important — in Duchamp's work almost 50 percent. They can help the viewer."

Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association, 1516 S. Cranbrook at 14 Mile, Birmingham, is open 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday-Saturday.

More than one way to trap garden pests

Earl Aronson

FOR GARDENERS who don't like to use chemical pesticides, there are other ways to control some insects and diseases. However, before acting, you should identify the pests causing the damage.

Edwin D. Carpenter, professor of ornamental horticulture at the University of Connecticut, says gardeners can resort to direct methods for control. These include physical and mechanical controls, biological control agents, botanical spray materials, miscellaneous sprays and dusts, and insect-eating birds.

Physical and mechanical controls used to disrupt the life cycles of pests include traps and other devices such as hand-picking, caterpillar barriers, mulches, seedling collars, row covers and cold frames.

Predators such as praying mantis, cats and others can be introduced, but it may not be wise to keep them in the garden, Carpenter says.

You can attract some birds that are insect-eaters, Carpenter says, but others will enjoy your fruits, vegetables and ornamental plants. So you must determine how much damage you'll allow to your garden crops.

PARASITES — GENERALLY insects that lay eggs within other insects may be those that feed and develop in only one type of insect.

Pathogens such as Bacillus thuringiensis are effective against a variety of caterpillars such as cabbage worms, Japanese beetles and cankerworms.

Botanical pesticides, Carpenter explained, are sprays or dusts that are plant-derived, non-persistent materials. Rotenone, pyrethrum, sabadilla and ryanis are available at garden shops. The first two can be toxic, so handle carefully. Both may be artificially made and available as rotenoids or pyrethroides.

Other spray materials include insecticidal soap, dormant oil, insect and animal repellents, pheromones (sex attractants), diatomaceous earth and boric acid. Read labels carefully.

Indirect methods, also called cultural controls, include use of resistant plants, garden sanitation, crop rotation, soil management, timed plantings and harvesting, and habitat modification.

USE RESISTANT PLANT species and cultivars. Choosing plants subject to attack from fewer insects and diseases reduces time and maintenance expense.

Regarding sanitation, remove plant and weed materials infected by insects or diseases. Overwintering debris becomes a source of infection. Don't put it on the compost pile.

Crop rotation is recommended to control vegetable diseases. Grow tomatoes, squash and beans in different places each year to halt buildup of soil problems.

Manage the soil. Poor, unfertile, poorly drained, sandy soils and inadequate watering produce weak plants more susceptible to insect and disease attack. Healthy plants resist insects and diseases better.

Timed plantings and harvesting refers to planting crops early or late to miss heavy pest infestations without adversely affecting crop performance. So learn about the life of major pests in the area.

Grow a number of crops rather than just one. Monoculture encourages serious pest outbreaks. Many pests attack only specific groups.

Eliminate food and shelter sources for animal pests, including brush piles and other debris where they can nest and feed.

In short, your garden may need a combination of direct and indirect control.

Mona Grigg

But this is no dry history book. Far from it. This is a man clearly in love with his city.

MICHIGAN'S sesquicentennial is behind us now, but with the help of numerous good books, the memories linger on.

Four Corners Press marked the occasion by reprinting Frank Angelo's "Yesterday's Detroit," first published in 1974. Known affectionately as "Mr. Detroit," Angelo is a long-time journalist (over 50 years! Not possible, you'll say if you've ever met the dynamic Mr. Angelo) who was just recently inducted into the Michigan Journalist's Hall of Fame. The former managing editor of the Detroit Free Press, now retired, lives in Birmingham and is the president of the Cranbrook Writer's Guild.

"Yesterday's Detroit" begins in 1701 with Cadillac's decision to build a fort on the banks of the "deep, clear river of the straits" ("Le Detroit") and ends in 1951, when Detroit celebrated its 250th birthday.

On the right: Two smiling brothers — union advocates Walter and Victor Reuther. Victor is still wearing the bandages protecting the sightless eye shattered by a shotgun blast in (1947). Walter's right arm was smashed just 14 months earlier by a gunman. Walter Reuther had been bloodied before — as union official during the Battle of the Overpass at Ford's Rouge plant in 1937.

THIS IS NOT a definitive history book — and was not meant to be — but rather a compilation of events and people who helped to shape Frank Angelo's home town. The effects of the depression, the union strikes, the 1942 riots, the winning sports teams of those years, the building and shaping of the downtown district — they're all here, and if you think it's been done before, check again.

Last year Wayne State Unversity Press brought out numerous books dealing with Michigan history in one way or another. "Michigan Voices" compiled and edited by Joe Grimm, is subtitled "Our state's history in the words of the people who lived it". The chronicle begins with a poignant 1887 account by Andrew J. Blackbird, the son of an Ottawa chief who had been a student at Eastern Michigan University. (". . . I never knew my people to want for anything to eat or to wear. I thought, and yet I may be mistaken, that my people were very happy in those days.")

Throughout we hear the voices of soldiers, housewives, children, evangelists, radical radio priests, fishermen, miners, railroadmen, abolitionists, movers and shakers — in their own words, or through newspaper accounts. History becomes more intimate, more compelling, more real when the people directly involved tell the tales.

Bruce Catton's "Waiting for the Morning Train" has been re-issued by Wayne State U Press, and what a joy it is to read. First published in 1972, the book is subtitled, "An American Boyhood." Catton, the great Civil War chronicler, grew up in Benzonia, on Lake Michigan's eastern shore. He was born in 1899, when trains were the principal mode of transportation.

This is nostalgia at its best — with each chapter as funny and as sad as the one before. But I only have a little space, so listen: "Early youth is a baffling time. The present moment is nice but it does not last. Living in it is like waiting in a junction town for the morning limited: the junction may be interesting but some day you will have to leave it and you do know where the limited will take you. Sooner or later you must move down an unknown road that leads beyond the range of the imagination, and the only certainty is that the trip has to be made. In this respect early youth is exactly like old age: it is a time of waiting before a big trip to an unknown destination. The chief difference is that youth waits for the morning limited and age waits for the night train."

On April 19 from 7-8:15 p.m., during what Birmingham's Baldwin Library is billing as "An Evening for Adults Only," five local authors will talk about writing for children. Gail Boledovich ("Alpha-Pals"), Bettie Cannon ("A Bellsong for Sara Raines"), Harold Gottlieb ("Joshua and the Grandfather Clock"), Carolyn Hall ("Teddy Bear Craft Book"), and Patricia Hooper ("A Bundle of Beasts") will be available for book-signing afterward. The event is free. The Baldwin Library is at 300 W. Merrill. Telephone 647-1700.

Gloria Naylor, best-selling author of "Mama Day" "Linden Hills" and "The Women of Brewster Place" comes to the Detroit Institute of Arts as part of their LINES: New Writing Series. Sunday, April 17 at 3 p.m. in the Lecture-Recital Hall. Addmission is $3. Call 833-1858 or 833-9759.

briefly speaking

● THREE CITIES ART SHOW

The Three Cities Art Show will hold its annual spring judged show at The Gallery, 269 N. Main Street, in Charlestown Square, near the railroad on Plymouth, this weekend. Hours are 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Saturday and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Judge will be Marilyn Finkel, professor of art history and chairwoman of the art department at Oakland Community College, art consultant to architects and interior designers, and co-owner of Marilyn Finkel & Associates of Farmington Hills.

Door prizes will be awarded and a painting will be given away as part of a benefit drawing. Admission is free.

● REDFORD CIVIC SYMPHONY CABARET CONCERT

The Redford Civic Symphony Orchestra's cabaret concert will be held at 3 p.m. Sunday, April 17, in Thurston High School, Redford. Featured soloist will be Dr. Joseph Kaufman, concert pianist. Conductor is John Gajec. There is no admission charge.

● VAAL CLASS/WORKSHOPS

Registrations are being accepted for a Visual Arts Association of Livonia class in general photography, taught by award-winning photographer Norbert Davert, and three workshops: Pastels, Saturday, April 23, 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.; Play of Patterns, (watercolor and mixed media), 10 a.m.-3 p.m. Saturday, April 30; and the Big Picture (large scale watercolor), Friday-Saturday, May 20-21 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Classes are held in Jefferson Center, Room 24, 9501 Henry Ruff Road, Livonia. For more information, call Marge Masek, VAAL class chairwoman, 464-6772.

● FARMINGTON ARTISTS

The Farmington Artist's Club spring art exhibit will be held at Mercy Center the weekend of April 28-May 1. The show features approximately 100 juried art works and approximately 100 unjuried art works with budget-priced unframed section.

Mercy Center is located at 28890 Eleven Mile Road, east of Middlebelt, Gate 4 entrance. There is no admission charge.

● STUDENT ART EXHIBIT

A student art exhibit will be held at Madonna College, Livonia, through Sunday, April 17, in the Exhibit Gallery, Library Wing.

Art students will display charcoal and pencil drawings, oil and watercolors, commercial art, computer art, advertising, oriental brushwork and sculpture.

● CHORALE CONCERT

The Dearborn Community Chorale, under the direction of Nancy Cox, will present its spring concert, "We're Doing a Show," at 3 p.m. Sunday, April 17, in the Dearborn High School auditorium. Tickets are $4. For more information, call 943-2354.

● FORD TRIBUTE

The International Opera Theatre will present a concert at 4 p.m. Sunday, May 22, commemorating the 125th birthday anniversary of pioneer automaker Henry Ford and paying tribute to the Ford Dynasty.

The concert, in the Henry Ford Centennial Library, will focus on Ford, the agriculturist, the nature lover, the businessman and the music lover. Tickets are $10 and will include a chance in a benefit drawing for a getaway weekend for two at the Hyatt-Regency-Dearborn. For more information, call Dino Valle, 525-1111.

Woodcarvers exhibit

The Metro Carvers of Michigan, a group of 250 men and women woodcarvers from all over greater metropolitan Detroit, will hold its 8th annual woodcarving show this weekend at the United Food and Commercial Workers Hall, 876 Horace Brown Drive, Madison Heights. Show hours will be 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

One of the carvers taking part is Bob Brooks of Redford, a member of the Livonia Woodcarvers Club.

REALTOR

AVOID UNDERPRICING

If you want to sell your house fast, underprice it. If this sounds like silly advice—it is. Selling for less than market value will lose you thousands of dollars that could help pay for the cost of relocation and purchase of a new home.

No one would choose to make a sacrifice of this kind. But it can seem necessary when a sudden job transfer compresses the home selling process into too short a time. However, a hasty decision can be avoided if you use the services of a Realtor to show and sell the property in your absence.

If you must move out before the house is sold, the Realtor can use his or her ingenuity and resources to maintain its attractiveness during the selling process. Arrangements can be made to see that the yard as well as the house itself are kept in good condition. If necessary, the Realtor can even arrage for the rental and placement of furnishings to enhance the property.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at KENNELLY REALTY - 19500 Middlebelt - Ste. 201 E. Livonia, MI 48152 - 471-0404. We're here to help!

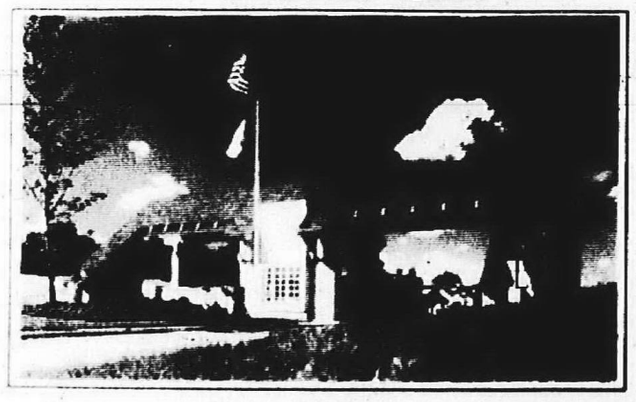
MORE



West Bloomfield's Best.

Enter Aldingbrooke through a private gate and you've entered a world that abounds with "more" of everything.

More Space...Up to 2,800 Square Feet.

Note the spaciousness of each of Aldingbrooke's 9 floor plans. The full living space, the generous storage space, the private patio or balcony, attached garages and the lush rolling terrain. Aldingbrooke residents demand spaciousness—so each Aldingbrooke unit is designed with their needs in mind.

More Community...130 Acres.

Aldingbrooke is more than an apartment—it's a community. A clubhouse with pool, tennis courts, walking/jogging trials, library, billiards and other activities galore. Aldingbrooke residents demand more than just a place to live, they demand a lifestyle—and Aldingbrooke provides it.

1, 2 and 3 Bedroom Terrace Homes. From $650-1525.

"The spirit of Detroit is gaining momentum. I'm glad to be a part of it."

Don Vargo
Restauranteur

Views on the Waterfront.

The future is unfolding for downtown Detroit . . . with business, entertainment, restaurants and a vital urban lifestyle. Don Vargo owns the 1940 Chophouse downtown, and he lives at Harbortown. "Harbortown epitomizes what's happening downtown — it's alive."

Apartments leasing at $700 - $1,175, including heat and air conditioning.

SPECIAL ONE WEEK PRE-LICENSE CLASS APRIL 14-21

We at Real Estate One Training Center think we offer the best pre-license and post-license real estate training.

OUR GUARANTEE!

We want you to pass the state real estate exam the first time. We prepare you to do just that, but here's our guarantee. We know that adults learn at different rates. Some people can sit through a 40 hour course and still need more help. We guarantee that if you don't pass our state approved course you can come back again for any or all of the classes until you do - at no extra charge. We also guarantee that you can still come back to any day or evening classes or review courses to enhance your ability to pass the state exam - again, at no extra charge to you. Our goal is to prepare you to pass the state exam the first time. If you need more help, we offer it and there's no extra charge. We are ready to help. Please join our class.

$99.00 Includes:

- 40 hours of class
- Quizzes every class
- Hours of extra help (review classes)
- 2 exams
- Completely new 617 page text-book covering all topics
- The best instructors anywhere

1. Approximately 1,900 people go through our 40 hour state-approved real estate pre-license course every year and we have taught this course for over 15 years.
2. We are the biggest and best school because we have established a teaching staff and policies to help each student.
3. We offer at no charge (extra) hours of review classes for people who just want a little extra time to study math, Michigan law, and general real estate topics.
4. We offer the students quizzes at each and every class to get them prepared for the state exam.
5. We have 2 exams which act as a help and study guide.
6. We offer all our classes in the Doner Building, conveniently located off of I-696 and Lahser Road.
7. We offer a chance for students to come to either day or evening classes or both if they want extra help.
8. Our instructors go through extra training themselves every month to keep up-to-date with new laws and details which affect real estate here in Michigan.
9. We have just published a new 617 page manual which each person receives in the course to enhance self study.
10. We genuinely care about every person who enters our pre-license course. We want you to complete and pass our course and pass the state real estate exam. Please join our class.
