Water users to pay for expansion

■ None of them are exactly sure how, but Plymouth Township board members agreed Tuesday that water users are going to have to help pay for the expansion of the Ypsilanti wastewater treatment plant.

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM

hneedham@oe.homecomm.net

One thing's for certain: Plymouth Township residents are going to have to help pay $80 million toward the expansion of a wastewater treatment plant in Ypsilanti Township.

What's not so certain is how they will do it.

Plymouth Township trustees discussed possible options at a work session Tuesday, resulting in sometimes heated debate.

The two options tossed around included passing along the costs via a property tax increase, which would have to be approved by voters; and a rate increase based upon usage – meaning larger water users would pay more and smaller users would pay less.

At issue is a proposed $110 million expansion of the Ypsilanti Community Utilities Authority's wastewater treatment plant in Ypsilanti Township. The expanded plant would service Plymouth, Canton and Northville townships, which are included in the Western Townships Utilities Authority. The three townships will cover $80 million of the cost.

The expanded plant is scheduled to open next year.

Most trustees appeared to favor the rate increase.

Trustee Abe Munfakh said rate increases were the way to go.

"Bigger users would pay more money and smaller users would pay less," Munfakh said.

But Treasurer Ron Edwards disagreed.

"People are complaining that (rates) are too high now," he said. In addition, most users paying a millage would be eligible for a homestead tax credit. The millage would cost the average homeowner about $300 annually.

The city of Detroit, which provides water to township residents, is considering a rate increase, which would also be passed along to residents, Edwards added.

Scramblin' for eggs

Youngsters brave the cool to fill baskets

Scores of children braved cool temperatures and large crowds Saturday, all with their eyes on a single prize — Easter Eggs hidden in an event sponsored by the Plymouth-Canton Jaycees.

The Jaycees conducted the annual hunt at the Plymouth Township Park softball field. The participants were divided into four different age groups — 3-under, 4-6, 7-10 and 11-older — for the pursuit of the hidden treasures.

Not only were the eggs there, but the Easter Bunny himself also made an appearance, posing for photos with eager youngsters.

Possible budget shortfall could hinder contract talks

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

When the Plymouth-Canton Education Association resumes contract talks with Plymouth-Canton Schools officials in the coming weeks, is the deal that was turned down by educators April 11 the best the district has to offer, and will it be put back on the table?

The one-year contract called for a 3-percent wage hike for teachers at the very top of the 11-year pay scale, as well as for first-year teachers. Educators in the middle, who are in their second through 10th years, would have received pay increases of 1.75 percent. Rejection of the pact "stunned and disappointed" the PCEA leadership and bargaining team.

■ 'If their projections show they won't have the money, the amount they're currently offering could be different than what we end up with.'

Chuck Portelli
—PCEA President

However, teachers didn't like what they perceived as a two-tier wage scale.

The tentative agreement was put together before the district revealed initial budget forecasts indicating expenditures will begin to exceed revenues as early as the 2002-03 budget year. PCEA President Chuck Portelli said he's concerned recent financial forecasts could mean less money for teachers.

"If their projections show they won't have the money, the amount they're currently offering could be different than what we end up with," said Portelli. "The budget numbers weren't brought up at the bargaining table, but there was a concern over the budget."

Superintendent Kathleen Booher noted that 87 percent of the district's budget is salaries and benefits.

"It will be tough to negotiate," admitted Booher. "When a district operates on such a slim margin as this one, we have hard work ahead of us."

Portelli knows the district's spending is mostly on people

Township eyes 2nd water tower

BY HEATHER NEEDHAM
STAFF WRITER
hneedham@oe.homecomm.net

Plymouth Township trustees are looking into the possibility of installing a second water tower in the Five Mile/Beck area of the township.

A second tower could store water to be used during peak times and emergencies, said Mike Bailey, of Dietrich, Bailey & Associates, a Plymouth civil engineering firm. A 400,000-gallon water tower already stands near the Lake Pointe subdivision in northeast Plymouth. It was funded partially by Plymouth Township and partially by Lake Pointe's developer

A water tower might also help restore water pressure for Northwest township residents, who often see their pressure reduced to dangerous levels.

"When water pressure goes down to zero, we have no choice but to issue boil water advisories," Bailey said.

Ford Motor Co. in particular has complained about poor water pressure at its Sheldon Road plant, now operated by Visteon.

City commissioner denies accusations of misconduct

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

With less than four months before an anticipated Plymouth city commission primary in August, the posturing and political jabs have begun.

A Plymouth resident has called for the resignation of Commissioner David Byers for what he terms "misconduct in office."

Jonathon Grant, who has pulled petitions to run for one of four seats on the city commission, told commissioners at Monday's meeting that documents and e-mails which are considered privileged are being forwarded to the Crier news magazine by Byers.

The Crier is owned by Tom Prose, who currently has a $100 million civil rights lawsuit against the City of Plymouth and several other defendants.

"What I find appalling, unacceptable and a complete breach of the public trust, is that a lawful representative of this City ... sees no problem or conflict in cooperating with or providing internal communications about the administration of our city to the plaintiff in this lawsuit, which is undoubtedly the largest and potentially the most damaging lawsuit this city has ever faced," Grant said. "Tonight I call on you to tender your resignation from this commission immediately and further call upon you to withdraw your petition for re-election."

Byers vehemently denies the accusations.

■ 'It comes as no surprise when political candidates personally attack a strong incumbent.'

David Byers
—City commissioner

"I've always held myself in the highest ethical standards in how I operate with the city commission. And never have I released any confidential information, nor have I disclosed anything that would not otherwise be available under the Freedom of Information Act," said Byers. "If my colleagues, or any other appropriate body feels that further review of this matter is warranted, I would be more than happy to cooperate fully, and you will find I've never forwarded any e-mails that would not be available to any member of the press."

In a separate statement, Byers calls Grant's comments, "election year politics at its worst ... It comes as no surprise when political candidates personally attack a strong incumbent. I have always supported open government. I believe in full disclosure of any and all City business that is permitted and not prohibited from disclosure."

Many questions need to be answered, however. The first is whether the city of Detroit, which provides water to the township, will allow a tower to be built. Other questions include how much it would cost, how it would be financed and whether companies may be able to invest in advertising space or even rent the space to install antennas.

Jim Anulewicz, director of public services, said Detroit has indicated it may allow a second tower to be built.

"They're not going to pay for it," Anulewicz said.

■ 'Improving system reliability is great. But are we indirectly encouraging the use of water when we should be conserving it?'

Chuck Curmi
—Township trustee

Trustee Abe Munfakh said water towers are in the works for West Bloomfield and Northville townships.

Trustee Chuck Curmi said the issue of water conservation should be addressed.

"Improving system reliability is great," Curmi said. "But are we indirectly encouraging the use of water when we should be conserving it?"

The Five Mile/Beck site was pegged for a couple reasons. One, a 20-inch water main is on Five Mile, and two, the higher elevations mean a shorter — and thus cheaper — tower could be built.

and has concerns about the future.

"If you have to cut, where do you start?" he said. "Class size will go up, and that means layoffs. I don't want to see that."

Booher said it will come down to a partnership to resolve a new contract.

"The employee units in the district will need to be partners with us in figuring out how to maintain the quality of programs we offer, in a fashion that appropriately compensates our employees, but at a level the district can afford," she said. "Those parameters don't create simple answers."

The PCEA represents 1,000 teachers, including 950 at the district's 21 elementary, middle and high schools, along with 50 who teach adult education at Starkweather and English as a Second Language.

The current three-year pact expires in August. Both sides had agreed to a one-year extension, giving Booher time to get her executive director for human resources on board and involved in negotiations.

Local customers among those complaining about carpet company

BY ALICE ASHMORE
STAFF WRITER

A local carpet dealer has been accused of pulling the rug out from under a number of his customers.

Irate customers are alleging John McDonald of Absolute Carpet and Tile of Livonia failed to deliver the goods they ordered.

Kathy LeBlanc of Livonia is fuming over the situation.

"This guy's a jerk and I want him out of business," LeBlanc said. "I've got a judgment against him and I've not been paid." She was awarded $1,407 in general civil court.

LeBlanc said, "I am supposed to go into surgery, and I can't until I get my $1,400."

She said she got a copy of her canceled check and used it to contact McDonald's bank. "I put a lien on his account. I got a whole $37."

She noted that the store is still in business. "His sign says '100 percent guaranteed.'"

"I am just livid because of this idiot," LeBlanc said. "My lawyer and I are at a standstill."

Livonia 16th District Court records show 29 closed complaints filed against Absolute Carpet and Tile of Livonia.

Delores Cooner, 69, of Canton says she is owed $1,200 by the company.

"I'm really upset because I am a senior citizen," Cooner said.

Cooner had bought Pergo flooring through Absolute Carpet and Tile for her kitchen, dining and laundry rooms.

Cooner said she is embarrassed to have been taken inby McDonald. "He seemed so honest."

Patty Ziomek of Livonia said she is owed $700 by the company. She been waiting since Oct. 24 for her Mannington vinyl kitchen floor to show up.

"I wanted it in by last Thanksgiving," she said.

"I haven't yet filed in small claims court yet, but I intend to. I don't want him ripping off anybody else."

When contacted by phone, McDonald admitted, "I do have some situations. My better half just went through bypass surgery – her aorta was 97-percent blocked."

"I also had a couple of accounts go sour," he said.

He added, "I am trying to pull things together. I don't want to leave anyone out in the cold."

McDonald said he is putting together a program where everybody will be contacted and arrangements made to fulfill his obligations.

Plaintiffs said McDonald offered a myriad of excuses as to why he didn't perform the work that was promised.

"One time he told me his 'better half' was in the hospital," Ziomek said. "Another time he said all his guys were out deer hunting."

Diane Kilgore, 47, of Garden City is tired of the excuses. She ordered her carpet from McDonald on Jan. 15, 2000.

Kilgore said she took him to court to get her money back.

"One time he said he missed a court appearance because his girlfriend had a seizure in the parking lot," Kilgore said.

"I don't know how he gets away with this – he is a complete jerk.

"He's ripped off too many people. If they have gone through half of what I have gone through – I feel sorry for them," she said.

Court records in Livonia show that civil complaints were filed by residents or companies from Plymouth, Canton, Garden City, Redford, Westland, Livonia, Farmington Hills, West Bloomfield and Birmingham.

"This is not about money," Ziomek said. "This is my mother-in-law's house. She is a senior citizen and she is being ripped off."

McDonald said he's trying to rectify the situation.

"I'm sorry it got to this point. I have had some problems and I am trying to get things corrected," he said.

ers turned down the millage, they'd still have to pony up the cash some other way.

"Why give them a choice if we're going to (raise rates) anyway?" Massengill asked.

Trustee Ron Griffith said raising the water rates might encourage people to be more conservative with water.

"I think people should be more sensitive about water usage and the way to do that is to make them pay for it," Griffith said.

But, Edwards said, if enough people tighten water usage, rate increases alone still might not cover the plant expansion costs. He mentioned a water utility in California that had to raise rates to compensate for decreased usage, which caused customers to cry foul.

The average resident uses roughly 121,000 gallons annually, amounting to $416. The biggest water users are west of Sheldon Road, because of the Visteon plant, Hilltop Golf Course, industrial parks and expensive homes with lush lawns.

During the discussion Tuesday, trustees did not come up with a number showing exactly how much rates would increase for residents. But Jim Anulewicz, director of public services, said he may have a number at an upcoming meeting.

Wilcox project gets final approval from city

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

The five-story condominium project to be constructed on the Wilcox property in downtown Plymouth will not turn into another Mayflower debacle. That's the promise of D&P Ventures of Detroit, which Monday received final approval from the Plymouth city commission to begin construction on the 2.5 acre site.

"We target projects, and we'll go at this until we know it's finished," said Tom Pomarolli, co-owner of D&P Ventures. "We have tunnel vision, and work on a project until it's finished. We don't usually work on multiple projects."

Pomarolli, who will move from his Farmington Hills home to one of the 2,000-3,000 square foot condos in Plymouth, said he expects construction to begin sometime this summer.

"We're looking at 12-16 months to get the shell up, and the build out is another 10-12 months," said Pomarolli. "This will take more than two years to complete. When you get into underground parking, it becomes a very sophisticated design.

"We've done core drilling and the environmental work, so we're on a roll," he said. "If all goes well, we potentially could begin construction between now and September."

Pomarolli said the entire project, which also includes a second building containing another 10 condo units to be constructed at a later date, will cost between $24-28 million. That will go along with the $7 million D&P Ventures spent on the two-story structure on Main Street, commonly known at the old Farmer Jack site.

"We've got plans for other projects in the city, but I'm not at liberty to say because there's a lot of negotiations taking place," said Pomarolli. "It won't be condos, but something commercial and upscale. It's very nice, and I think the city will like it."

The first order of business on the Wilcox site will be to move the copper beech tree, which at 150-years-old is the second oldest in the state.

A Royal Oak firm is expected to move the tree to another location on the site sometime later this month or early May. The Wilcox Foundation is paying $35,000 to move the tree, as well as pay for a horticulturist to care for the tree during the next five years to insure that it survives.

Light speed: Julia Aldini, an eighth-grade student at Our Lady of Good Counsel in Plymouth, was the Grand Award Winner in Physics in the Science and Engineering Fair of Metropolitan Detroit at Cobo Hall. Her project is titled "Watt You See Is Not Always Watt You Get." The project was designed to measure the light output of various brands of 150-watt light bulbs. To do this, Julia devised a project where the bulb was subjected to a photovolteac panel converting the light into electrical energy. The electrical energy was then sent to a 9-volt electrical motor which would produce various RPM speeds based on the amount of light output. This motor shaft was connected using a rubberband pulley to a mechanical revolution counter which could then function as a means of measuring light output converted to mechanical energy in revolutions per minute. Julia is currently a "high honor" student at OLGC and will attend Divine Chlid High School this fall. She is very active in the school choir, baseball team and ballet, she plays piano and will be a camp assistant for the YMCA this summer.

TAKING A HIKE

As the hiking season approaches, hikers may want to take a cue from their European counterparts and use a hiking pole. Proponents of hiking poles, which look like extended ski poles, claim they reduce overuse injuries. To find out if this claim was valid, researchers recently put then test subjects on an inclined treadmill and measured their exertion as they spent an hour carrying a load equal to about a third of their body weight. It was found that the pole-aided hikers took longer strides and fewer steps, which reduced the energy being absorbed by leg joints. The poles also helped reduce the load being carried while muscles and tendons were at vulnerable angles.

Whether you hike, bike, run or walk, chances are, you'll experience an injury due to accident or overuse. At the HANDS ON CENTER FOR PHYSICAL THERAPY, conveniently located in Plymouth, at 470 Forest Avenue, Suite 20, we offer a complete range of services, including accurate diagnosis methods, sports medicine, and orthopedic and neurological rehabilitation. All basic treatment set-ups include an hour of manual therapy provided by physical and massage therapists. For more information, please call 455-8370. Day and evening treatment hours available.

P.S. Overall, hiking poles were found to improve hikers' balance, thereby reducing fall-related injuries.

OBITUARIES

POLICE BLOTTER

Larcenies

■ A construction trailer on Plymouth Valley Drive was broken into sometime before Friday, April 13. A police report stated someone had cut the padlock and removed several items.

■ A Ford F-150 pickup truck parked at James Fisher Builders on 42197 E. Ann Arbor was broken into sometime before Monday, April 16. Entry was reportedly gained by breaking a wing window. Taken were Carhartt work clothing and boots as well as a circular saw and chisels, which had been removed from a pried-open tool box.

Scavenger winners hunt down all 41 businesses

Erin Girard was named the Grand Prize winner in the 2001 Spring Scavenger Hunt.

The hunt was co-sponsored by the Downtown Development Authority and the Plymouth Observer.

Erin was one of five people who found all 41 businesses participating in the hunt.

The others — Mike and Michael Stacey, Al Krause and Nicholas Leone — were runners-up in the contest.

Elaine Houvey was chosen from among the remaining entrants for a special prize, according to Melanie Purcell, director of the DDA.

"This year's scavenger hunt was great fun for everyone," Purcell said. "We would like to thank all the businesses that participated, along with everyone else who joined in the hunt."

Purcell also singled out businesses who donated items for the prize baskets: Bed N' Stead, Frame works, Gabriala's, Kemnits Candies, Kids on the Grow, Little Book Shoppe on the Park, Looking Glass Antiques, Michigan Made, Muriel's Doll House, Native West and sideways.

Westland skate park could be regional benefit for Plymouth

BY DARRELL CLEM
STAFF WRITER
dclem@oe.homecomm.net

Westland will be home to a Wayne County skate park long sought by skateboarders who're tired of being chased off city streets and business parking lots.

The skate park, aimed at drawing a regional clientele, will likely open next spring, said Westland Parks and Recreation Director Robert Kosowski.

"Our goal is to create a state-of-the-art skate park, second to none," he said Tuesday. "I want it to be better than anybody's."

Kosowski will form a committee of about 15 people, including youngsters, to help plan a 15,000-square-foot skate park.

He said he envisions a concrete facility on the west end of the Bailey Recreation Center, behind City Hall on Ford Road.

"I think that would last a good 30 years or more," Kosowski said.

To build the skate park, the city will receive an estimated $275,000 to $325,000 from a quarter-mill parks tax that Wayne County voters renewed last year.

"The skate park is needed on a regional basis," county parks Director Larry Fitch said. "It couldn't just be for Westland, but the city of Westland was willing to partner with us. They are going to supply the property, and they will do the supervision and maintenance. That makes it a win-win situation for everybody."

The park will provide a place for skateboarders, in-line skaters and possibly BMX bicyclists to enjoy their hobbies, Kosowski said, adding that he hopes the facility will include a beginner's area.

"I think this is great," said 23-year-old Bradd Rigoni, a skateboarder who owns Simplicity Board Sports in Canton Township. "I think it's great that the city of Westland is acknowledging that skateboarding is a legitimate sport. It's here to stay."

The city of Westland, faced with budget-tightening measures, isn't expected to have to spend much money, if any, to build the skate park. County and city officials are drafting a formal agreement, Kosowski said.

Small user fees are likely.

Local skateboarders have pushed for a skate park for about two years now, and they appeared optimistic in January after city officials told Kosowski to start negotiations with the county.

Westland's park could be modeled after one in Midland, Kosowski has said. The facility will provide ramps, courses and other amenities for skateboarders, in-line skaters and bicyclists.

Kosowski has said park users will have to wear protective gear and possibly sign waiver forms to protect the city and the county.

Area skateboarders have said it is often difficult for them to find transportation to facilities in communities such as Roseville, Royal Oak and Brighton. They have criticized a Dearborn-area facility as too small.

Kosowski commended Fitch, former parks Director Hurley Coleman, County Executive Ed McNamara and Westland Mayor Robert Thomas, among other officials, for making the project happen.

In January, Kosowski said typical skateboarders are males, ages 8 to 26, although females now account for 3 percent of skaters.

Michigan ranks sixth in the nation in skateboarders, with over 1 million statewide, he said.

Even though the state recorded 26,000 skateboarding injuries in 2000, Kosowski said most were minor and occurred because people were skating on streets, sidewalks and other places rather than in specially designed skate parks.

McDowell's legacy: a humane college

BY HUGH GALLAGHER
STAFF WRITER
hgallagher@oe.homecomm.net

Dick McDowell grew up in the coal country around Pittsburgh, Pa.

It was there he learned the importance of education and formed the humane values that have guided his leadership as president of Schoolcraft College for the past 20 years.

On June 30, McDowell, 65, will turn over the presidency to Schoolcraft Vice President Conway Jeffress. He leaves behind a legacy of accomplishment that has put Schoolcraft in the forefront of community colleges nationally at a time when community colleges have assumed a growing importance in post-secondary education and the new economy.

"There is no perfect community college, but Schoolcraft is the closest you can come to it," McDowell said. "We try to do the ethical thing, make a decision because it's the right thing to do. We treat students right, we treat people right."

This was a running theme during an interview with McDowell as he prepares for a retirement that will find him still being an active participant in the life of Schoolcraft College and of Livonia, where he makes his home, and traveling to faraway places.

"My father was a coal miner. Neither he or my mother had ever been more than 50 miles from home," McDowell said.

McDowell's father quit school when he was 13 to work in the mines with his father. McDowell's mother started working at a glass bottle factory during the summer when she was 12, taking the hot new bottles off a line and placing them in cases.

She was making a dollar a day and when September came her father told her to keep the job since she'd never make any more by continuing in school.

"Well, needless to say, they became big supporters of education," McDowell said. "And I enjoyed school, I enjoyed people. I participated in a lot of activities at school. I played sports and was in the band and chorus. It was a small town, a small school."

When McDowell graduated, his family had no money to send him to college and he was too young to get a job in the steel mills in Pittsburgh, so he joined the Marines.

After two years in service that whetted his appetite for travel with trips to Japan and Hawaii, McDowell took advantage of the military's educational benefits and enrolled in college as a biology major.

He attended Indiana University of Pennsylvania where he received his bachelor's and master's degrees to become a science teacher, though he discovered his calling only when he actually started doing it.

"I had to do student teaching," he said. "I went and taught and said, 'This is the best thing anyone could ever do in their life.' I loved it."

It was while at Indiana University that he met his wife, Ann, a chemistry major.

He received his doctorate from Purdue University in Indiana. He came to Schoolcraft from Allegheny Community College in Pittsburgh where he was vice president for strategic planning.

When McDowell arrived at Schoolcraft in 1981, the college was involved in contract negotiations with its union personnel. McDowell said he has always emphasized "problem solving, not power bargaining." He said one of his first accomplishments was to put into effect programs for better relations on campus.

"We've improved our surroundings, worked to create a good learning environment," he said. "When people come on campus, they know they're in a caring environment."

McDowell is quick to emphasize that what Schoolcraft College has achieved over the past 20 years has been a collaborative process. But he is clearly proud of what has been accomplished.

He said the college has improved its fund-raising procedures, raising about $1.3 million a year and currently has a $10 million endowment that goes toward scholarships. College land was developed for the Seven Mile Crossing strip mall that has provided $27 million is additional funds from leasing. In addition the college holds golf outings, dinner theater and musical theater programs and its annual Culinary Extravaganza to raise money.

DIABETES
MORE THAN BLOOD SUGAR
Being short-sighted about diabetes can have lasting effects. Left untreated, it can cause kidney, nerve, heart and blood vessel disease. Not to mention taking away all or part of your sight. If you experience blurred vision, fatigue, frequent urination, extreme hunger, thirst or weight loss, see a doctor as soon as possible. When treated promptly, the complications caused by diabetes can be delayed or even totally prevented. So, if you're experiencing symptoms, the answer is in plain sight: get checked for diabetes right away. To find a U of M physician near you, call 1-800-211-6181. We accept a variety of health plans including BLUE CROSS.

Our fundamental purposes are to enhance the lives of our readers, nurture the hometowns we serve and contribute to the business success of our customers.

Letters give readers a voice in their community

Freedom of the press is guaranteed only to those who own one.
- A.J. Liebling, American journalist, author

Sorry, old A.J., but that's just not the case any more – if it ever was. Certainly not in the age of the Internet. And really, not in the history of this country.

The free exchange of ideas via the printed – and mass distributed – word dates back in the United States at least to the Federalist Papers. When Alexander Hamilton, James Madison and John Jay took their case for Constitutional ratification to the public, it was in a series of essays that appeared in several newspapers across New York state during 1787-88. So while the battles of the Revolutionary War won America her freedom, it was the people's press that cemented it.

Since then, the media has played many roles: conscience of America, agent for change, muckraker, social arbiter, political kingmaker, and yes, an occasional "hobby" for some of the country's wealthiest and most colorful entrepreneurs. Through it all, there has been one constant: the newspaper (broadcast outlet and Web site) as a sounding board for its readers, listeners and viewers.

No where is that more true than at the Plymouth Observer. There's a reason we call ourselves a community newspaper — and it starts with you, the community.

The formula is easy, really. We write, you respond, we print your response. Or you respond to something someone else has said in their response and we print that. Or you tell us about a local issue or achievement of a family member, friend or neighbor and — you guessed it — we print that.

It doesn't have to be heavy-duty political analysis or some earth-shattering scientific revelation, either. For example, in recent weeks we've run a series of letters from Canton moms about the behavior of children in public, lighthearted missives from frustrated drivers about traffic and road construction and a thank-you note from members of the Plymouth-Canton Kiwanians for a story on their recent sweat suit drive to benefit First Step.

There are just a few rules. Letters should be 400 words or less and include your name, address and phone number for verification. With rare exceptions, we won't run an unsigned letter. We may edit for clarity, space and content.

As for how you get it to us, there are options galore:

- Drop it in the mail to the Plymouth Observer, 794 S. Main St., Plymouth, MI 48170
- Fax it to us at (734) 459-4224
- E-mail it to us as a textfile at bkadrich@ oe. homecomm. net

Orange cones shouldn't make drivers see red

The orange cones are proliferating everywhere. It's road construction season again in Michigan, the perfect time to practice patience, consideration and concern for others.

While motorists often experience delays, inconvenient detours and confusion about what to do, road crews often risk their personal safety to complete their work.

Every year road workers, who must brave the elements and the usual dangers of their work, also must deal with impatient, obnoxious and reckless drivers.

The Wayne County Department of Public Services, the Road Commission for Oakland County and Macomb County Road Commission are alerting area motorists to slow down and be alert around construction sites. According to a joint release, during a recent 10-day period motorists on three area freeways slammed into moving road maintenance crews, causing thousands of dollars in damage to equipment and sending one worker to the hospital for minor head injuries.

"Unfortunately, the only way to maintain our busy roads is to get out in the roads and perform the work that needs to be done," said Brent Bair, managing director for the Oakland County Road Commission. "And while we try to do this work at the times when crews will least disrupt traffic, we would all be a lot better off if motorists would just slow down and pay attention."

And, note that whenever you violate a traffic law in a construction site, your fine will be doubled.

Public safety workers face similar dangers from reckless or inattentive drivers. A new law requires that motorists slow down and move over when they come upon a police or rescue vehicle with its lights flashing.

The message is the same: Pay attention, slow down and be considerate of those who are working in our behalf.

GUEST OPINION

■ Malott misleading

I would like to address several misleading statements made in Mike Malott's April 5 opinion column entitled "Lawmakers need not align religion and science." I helped create the anti-cloning legislation Malott "predicts" will stymie cancer cures and send Michigan scientists packing. The anti-cloning bills signed into law in 1998 will do neither of those things.

Michigan's anti-cloning law bans the cloning of human beings, plain and simple. This law will not in any way, shape or form prohibit the type of research that could lead to a cure for diseases such as cancer. Nor will it prevent the cloning of human organs, as Malott wrote. This law only applies to research designed to produce a human embryo through cloning.

Throughout the process of creating this bill, I worked very closely with Michigan's research community to ensure that this ban prevents atrocities and abominations while protecting the rights of scientists to conduct legitimate research into cellular growth and cures for diseases. I also worked with the Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers of America (PhRMA) in creating this law. PhRMA represents many of the largest research companies in the world.

Malott wrote that the anti-cloning law is permanent. This, too, is false. Future lawmakers could amend the law or repeal the law entirely, should they choose to do so.

He also wrote that the drafters of our Constitution "understood that when religion and politics mix, bad things happen." I assert that the drafters of our Constitution did not intend that our government exist or operate in a religious vacuum or void, but rather it did not support any one religion over another. In so doing, they hoped to encourage the spread of all religions and to ensure that we continued to be a Godly nation.

This law was put into effect following the cloning of Dolly the Sheep. Scientists made more than 400 attempts to create just one seemingly healthy offspring. Many of the initial attempts that did not fail in the womb resulted in grossly deformed lambs that either did not survive naturally or had to be put to death. Those few clones which do exist are not the success they were once thought to be. Many have developed symptoms of early aging and other side effects.

Without this legislation, human infants could be subjected to the same process of trial and error for the mere sake of scientific or pop-culture curiosity.

The anti-cloning legislation Malott deems unnecessary was created to protect the sanctity and preciousness of human life. If anyone has any questions about this law, please feel free to call my office at 517-373-7350.

■ Runway safety

Mettetal Airport's active runway ends approximately 40 feet from Joy Road. To improve safety, the FAA, MDOT, and the Airport Advisory Board recommended shifting the runway approximately 240 feet to the south, away from Joy Road.

Doing so will give aircraft landing and departing to the north additional stopping distance, critical in an emergency situation.

The closest residential complex is approximately 1/3-mile to the south.

Funding to add 240 feet of pavement to the south end and remove same from the north end (or reconfigure it as a hard surface overrun) will be provided by the Federal and State Governments.

However, this safety improvement is subject to Canton Township's approval.

Canton Supervisor Tom Yack has scheduled a one-time, UP or DOWN vote for the April 24th Township Board Meeting.

For those who travel Joy Road, I would urge you to support the recommendation.

Carl L. Schultz
Member, Airport Advisory Board

■ Road woes

Help, help! Sheldon north of Warren is a parking lot. Morton Taylor is not scheduled to open until mid-May at the earliest because shoulder work must be completed and the township wants to plant trees before opening the road.

Canton Center is not completely closed yet. When the bridge work closes Canton Center what happens on Sheldon? I can see major traffic jams especially around Gallimore School, which is a problem during regular traffic patterns.

Morton Taylor was supposed to be opened years ago but delays caused by special interest groups put us in this situation. We need someone from the township to exercise some authority and get Morton Taylor opened ASAP. North Canton (remember us) and Sheldon Road users need that north-south access to Ford Road now. The grooming of Morton Taylor can wait until Canton Center is completed.

■ Bill is fair

I am compelled to respond to a column written by Mike Malott regarding Senate Bill 651, an amendment to the state law regulating the control of soil erosion and the resulting sediment pollution, which can severely impact water quality during construction activity.

First, these revisions to the law were not pushed through the back door. Rather, at least two public hearings were held in Lansing. Both well attended by builder and developer representatives as well as local units of government from across the state. Extensive testimony was given by county and local agencies documenting how frequent abuses of the existing law have led to widespread degradation of state waters. Yet, not a single enforcing agency that testified had brought a developer to court within the past year, specifically because of the ridiculously small fines associated with a violation of the statute.

Second, I would suggest that Mr. Malott could have contacted Sen. Ken Sikkema, the sponsor of the bill, to discuss what the new amendments actually say prior to writing a column for a major newspaper chain. Yes, SB 651 does substantially increase the fines for violators. It does not, however, in any way transfer local authority from county or local government to the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality. In fact, the law is designed to be implemented exclusively at the county, township, or municipal level. The new amendments simply clarify a previously existing jumble of confusing language pertaining to local jurisdictions.

Additionally, it mandates that MDEQ perform regularly scheduled audits on every local agency to ensure that they have a viable program in place. SB 651 has absolutely nothing to do with expanding MDEQ authority over wetlands onto dry land as the column would suggest.

As buildable land disappears throughout the state, land developers must find ways to squeeze new projects onto parcels of land that are increasingly difficult to build on without destroying natural features such as the lakes, streams, and wetlands. As landowners, these developers have every legal right to do so. However, I believe that most responsible people, including the majority of land developers, recognize that local communities must have the tools with which to protect environmentally sensitive areas from those who would not otherwise be concerned about their preservation.

■ Where was opposition?

While I will admit to not being the most learned on political matters, I would like to respond to the opinion of Phil Power and his introductory paragraphs of "Folly and wickedness in the state Legislature" that, in part, concern the new CCW legislation. Mr. Power says that this was passed in a lame duck session of Legislature. To the best of my knowledge, this legislation had to pass through both bodies of our legislature and then across the Governor's desk. While passed in the lame duck days this bill was over a year and a half in the making with many concessions made on both sides.

Mr. Power also states that that the law "requires local gun boards to issue permits to applicants who do not have a criminal record or a history of mental illness." This is not true.

There are over 50 things that can prevent an applicant from receiving a permit and it does not "require" anything. Also, the new legislation is actually MORE restrictive as to where a permit holder can legally carry a sidearm.

Mr. Power also mentions the Million Moms March group. This is a group that has no formal structure as it has laid off 80 percent of its staff and is going through some legal and financial woes.

The "People Who Care About Kids Committee" has indeed filed petitions to have this bill put to a vote in 2002, but has been called to task due to the inappropriate and/or illegal manner it collected some of these signatures. Do they have enough valid signatures? Probably. Is a referendum the correct vehicle to accomplish what they wanted? No.

I need to ask where the opposition was when this bill was being legislated? We put our senators and representatives in power by voting to look after our best interests. Why is there now a question about this bill. Did our elected officials not listen to their constituents and follow their own agenda?

■ Resource needed

The proposed closing of Wayne County's REMC (Regional Education Media Center) by Livonia Public Schools would have a strong impact on the many area schools, PTAs, preschools and other organizations who have utilized this tremendous service over the years.

Having convenient, one-stop and inexpensive access to services such as laminating, binding, copying, die-cutting equipment, teaching aids and classroom supplies would be a burden on the parents, teachers and group leaders who are already dedicating their precious time and energy to making their students academic and recreational experiences richer.

The dependable staff at REMC also provides a valuable service to customers with their knowledge of the equipment, years of experience and creative ideas in helping "amateurs" make their projects look professionally completed.

A possible compromise could be to have the communities within Wayne County, who use REMC, share the financial burden in order to keep it in operation. Or the communities outside of Wayne County, who also use REMC, could share in the cost of running such a worthwhile service.

State better off now that Schwarz is in race for gov

Everybody's better off now that state Sen. John (Joe) Schwarz has jumped into the race for the Republican nomination for governor.

The Republican Party is better off because Schwarz looks like the kind of candidate who can actually attract votes from moderates and suburbanites. A former mayor of Battle Creek, the 63-year-old physician has served four terms in the Senate and has a solid reputation among the most far-seeing and sensible politicians in the state.

Phil Power

A self-described "radical middle of the roader," Schwarz opposes abortion but believes the U.S. Supreme Court settled the matter with Roe vs. Wade. He also voted against the new law requiring local gun boards to issue concealed weapons permits to practically anybody who isn't a felon and has doubts about charter schools.

Of course, Republican nominee presumptive, Lt. Gov. Dick Posthumus, has the backing of the right-wing GOP establishment. But Posthumus has had trouble getting traction; early polls show him getting whomped by both main Democratic contenders, Attorney General Jennifer Granholm (47 percent to 26 percent) and former Gov. Jim Blanchard (44 percent to 31 percent).

Posthumus will be better off with Schwarz's entry into the race because he'll actually have a fight on his hands in the primary, which should toughen him up for the general. Schwarz isn't afraid to take on anybody, including the GOP leadership and Gov. John Engler; he managed U.S. Sen. John McCain's upset victory in the Michigan presidential primary last year. Schwarz says McCain encouraged him and promised to come to Michigan to campaign for him.

Certainly, the people of Michigan will be better off with Schwarz in the race. He represents a distinguished tradition of moderate and thoughtful Republicanism that flowered when William G. Milliken was governor and has been savagely suppressed by the folks who now run the Michigan Republican party.

I've known Joe Schwarz for a long time. We haven't always agreed, but over the years I've come to respect him deeply both for the kind of man he is and the principles he stands for.

He isn't your standard-issue political careerist, mostly because he's got far more important and interesting things to do. He's a physician who maintains an active practice when the Senate isn't in session. He served with honor in naval intelligence in Vietnam and Indonesia. He is literate and — get this, for a politician! — cultured. I see him periodically at concerts (he's a great advocate of the Battle Creek Brass Band) and even at the recent Royal Shakespeare Company performances at the University of Michigan.

He's independent, sometimes quick-tempered and refreshingly candid. When we talked about the possibility of a race for governor, he said: "What the heck. I'm term limited out of the Senate in 2002. I'm not interested in running for some dumb office just to get elected. I believe I have something to say that needs saying, especially in the Republican Party. I think I'd be a pretty good governor. Besides, I'll have the time of my life running in a statewide campaign."

Schwarz has been the major advocate for Michigan's colleges and universities.

For years, Schwarz has been the major advocate for Michigan's colleges and universities and, as chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Appropriations that finances higher education, a powerful one. "We've got the best university system in the country," he says, "one that provides a great education for our kids, contributes to our economic prosperity and helps make Michigan a wonderful place to live and raise a family. It would be crazy to starve this system of higher education now when the economy isn't so hot, because our colleges and universities are ultimately the things that will bring our economy back."

Insiders wonder whether Schwarz will be able to overcome the advantages that Posthumus has as the designated heir of Gov. Engler. But the longer Posthumus keeps trailing in the polls, the more persuasive will Schwarz be in arguing that the Republican Party needs a nominee who has a chance of winning next November.

As to ordinary voters not particularly interested in insider baseball — a recent poll indicated more are Independent than either Republican or Democratic — a Schwarz candidacy will offer a real choice and a quality one, as well.

Intelligent Design theory called an 'insult to God'

Mike Malott

"Let me start with the human jaw, just to take one obvious example. The human jaw has too many teeth. That is why they have to remove the wisdom teeth for most of us, and then they have to straighten the rest, because they don't fit. God designing a jaw and not knowing that he is putting too many teeth there? A human engineer could have done better ...

"Some say (the theory of Intelligent Design) is an insult to science, but my concern is different. This idea of Intelligent Design is an insult to religion. In fact, it's blasphemy. It insults God by pretending that God has designed creatures ...

"It's blasphemy because we are accusing God of being a very clumsy, stupid, ignorant, ill-functioning engineer."

This from a Catholic priest. Dr. Francisco Ayala, who is now a professor of molecular biology at the University of California-Irvine, is also ordained in the church. In fact, he's advised the Pope on this topic.

He was in Southfield recently to speak at Lawrence Technological University. He took a few moments to talk about House Bill 4382, sponsored by state Rep. Robert Gosselin (R-Troy). Now before the House Education Committee, the bill proposes to change science standards within the state model school code to indicate that evolution is "an unproven theory." The bill would add the phrase: "All students will explain the competing theories of evolution and natural selection based on random mutation, and the theory that life is the result of the purposeful, intelligent design of a Creator."

Ayala would disagree: "Evolution is a theory of science as well-confirmed as any, including the helio-centric theory, the theory that the Earth revolves around the sun."

Evolution accounts quite nicely for that poorly designed jaw.

"The head got bigger because the brain got bigger. It could not get much bigger because it has to come through the birth canal, so what happened is gradually the jaw became reduced. In order to accommodate the larger brain without making the head much bigger, the jaw had to become small," Ayala said.

Other animals do not suffer through childbirth as human females do, he pointed out. The reason is that the brain has grown too large and birth canal remains too small.

"Thousands and thousands of innocent children die because the birth canal was not designed big enough," he said. "Are you going to blame God for doing that? Again, a human engineer could have done better."

But that is not his main concern. Rather, he worries about the education system in this country.

Miseducating youngsters can have very detrimental consequences for them later in life if they try to make use of incorrect information they were given in school.

Take that helio-centric theory for instance. It matters little to most of us whether the Earth is round or flat or whether it revolves around the sun or vice versa. But, Ayala pointed out, if you try to plot the path of an airplane flight or an ocean-going ship, it matters a great deal. Bad information can get you very lost, or worse.

Being misinformed about genetics and evolution might not leave you falling out of the sky when your plane runs out of gas, but there are other likely effects.

Being misinformed about genetics and evolution might not leave you falling out of the sky when your plane runs out of gas, but there are other likely effects. It has implications for the study of agriculture and medicine. Good jobs for our students depends on their getting a good science education, Ayala said.

Gosselin admits Intelligent Design is a religious concept but defends it as a "big tent" theory, something that could be accepted by all, from microbiologists to fundamentalist Christians.

Ayala counters that most religions other than fundamentalist Christianity see no conflict with evolutionary theory. The Catholic Church doesn't disavow evolution. Nor does Buddism or Hinduism.

So the addition of the Intelligent Design theory to the curriculum does indeed involve bringing a religious component into science classrooms. It does indeed favor one religion over another.

It's a fine topic for Sunday school or sermons during services, but not in science classrooms.

Real Christians do not fear in-depth study of our faith

I am writing in response to Mike Malott's commentary of April 5 (Lawmakers need not align religion and science) regarding Intelligent Design being taught in public schools along with the theory of evolution.

While I am not a fan of Gov. John Engler, his endorsement of the Intelligent Design bill is one I strongly appreciate. I was raised and educated in Farmington Public Schools and was taught evolution throughout as a foregone fact. I assumed there was evidence to support this theory. Because I was also a Christian, I struggled with the opposing viewpoints of creation presented in Genesis and the evolutionary theory.

Carol Lucas

I grew up feeling embarrassed by my faith, thinking that science had proven evolution correct and thereby the Bible wrong. The book of Genesis was nothing more than a fairy tale. Twenty years later, after much study and investigation, I find it was my science teachers who had presented the fairy tale. In fact, the evidence found in the fossil record is far more aligned with the biblical account of creation and the subsequent world-wide flood.

Just one example of many, where there should be thousands of intermediate fossils showing the progression of evolution there appear to be few if any at all. Darwin, himself, expressed concern over the lack of evidentiary fossils but presumed they would eventually be discovered. We are still waiting.

In answer to this lack of [illegible] scientist theorized [illegible] equilibrium; change [illegible] essence, this theory [illegible] late in a species [illegible] chicken lay an egg [illegible] takes a great deal [illegible] this has [illegible]

Persons [illegible] more leap of [illegible] lutionary [illegible] much for [illegible]

The [illegible] to students [illegible]

This would allow students the opportunity to weigh the facts and decide for themselves which has more merit. Mr. Malott states that Intelligent Design is "not provable or disprovable by scientific method" and therefore should not be taught to students. Scientific method would require hypothesis with observation of repeatable experiments proving or disproving the hypothesis. Both the evolutionary theory and Intelligent Design stop at the hypothesis phase of this method since neither can be observed or repeated. Both views require faith and investigation of evidence, both are religious concepts, one of which requires a great deal more faith than I am capable of.

My son will be attending Harrison High School next fall. I have expressed to the school my disapproval of his continuing to be taught evolution. In the biology class he needs to take, evolution is the only theory taught to students throughout the class. The other science classes offered also employ evolution. As Christians, we see this as nothing short of religious persecution. This has so angered me that I have been considering legal action against the board of education, though I wonder if there are any attorneys brave enough to take on this controversial issue.

So, Mr. Malott, though you presume to speak for "most Christians," you do not speak for this one. Not all Christians have compromised their faith unnecessarily to the altar of bad science. This Christian has examined the facts, spoken with scientists, investigated the claims and found God to be the most rational explanation for our existence. I would encourage others to investigate for themselves, after all, the Bible instructs us to "love your God with all your heart, with all your soul, with all your strength, and with all your MINDS."

They will no doubt find that science and Christianity do not present "two very different aspects of reality." I challenge the reader to check it out and decide rationally and without prejudice to which conclusion the evidence leads. A great place to start is on the Internet, go to a search engine, type in Creation (www.equip.org is a good [illegible]

Madonna University names new president

Sister Rose Marie

Sister Rose Marie Kujawa will become Madonna University's sixth president beginning July 1. Sister Mary Francilene Van de Vyver, Madonna's president since 1976, will step down June 30.

Sister Rose Marie's appointment was unanimously ratified by Madonna University's Board of Trustees Wednesday.

As a member of the Felician Sisters, who sponsor the university in Livonia, Sister Rose Marie's experience includes more than 23 years of full-time ministry at Madonna as professor, academic dean and academic vice president. She is currently acting dean of the college of science and mathematics. Sister Rose Marie has served as a member of the board of trustees during her recent six-year tenure in the provincial administration of the Felician Sisters of Livonia.

"I have accepted the challenge with the hope and the confidence that the abiding dedication and support of the entire university community is the key to its current and future strength," said Sister Rose Marie.

Sister Mary Francilene is stepping down because of health problems.

"It has been a joy, blessing and privilege to have served Madonna University for the past 27 years; 25 as its president," said Sister Mary Francilene. "God-willing, my personal 'transitional plan' will include a strong ongoing battle against pancreatic cancer. Having been a survivor the past 10 years of colon cancer, I trust in the power of the Divine Physician, prayer and the medical protocals and dedicated doctors and health staff as regards the current challenge.

"It is important to give more attention nationally to pancreatic cancer in order to provide public awareness, research, effective treatment, prevention programs and early detection methods. I plan to be active in this regard."

Sister Mary Francilene will continue as an administrative adviser at the university.

"It will be a pleasure to assist the new president as she is both a friend and colleague," Sister Mary Francilene said.

Sister Mary Renetta Rumpf, president of the corporate board of the Felician Sisters of Livonia, praised the work of the outgoing president.

"Under the vision and direction of Sister Mary Francilene, Madonna University has become one of the hallmarks of the Felician Sisters ministry in Catholic higher education. Sister Rose Marie is a well prepared, qualified administrator and we congratulate her in assuming her new position as the sixth president of Madonna University."

for the college and part of McDowell's mission to make the college relevant to student and community needs.

"We have a fine reputation among our colleagues and we have a fine reputation in the community that people who come here and are educated here are well prepared for jobs or will do well when they transfer to a four-year college," McDowell said.

"That's not us saying that but other agencies who look at us and say we're doing a good job and often the state comes in to look at our programs and they leave in a kind of awe. They say our experience here is the criteria for when we visit the next place."

McDowell says he loves being president of Schoolcraft College, "There are so many things that buoy up our spirits that I wasn't anxious to leave," he said.

But, now was the opportune time for him to retire, as two key events came to fruition. In January, Gov. Engler signed off on state funding for the $27 million addition to the Waterman Center and in February the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools approved another 10-year accreditation.

"Those were two big events in the life of the college and I had to decide whether I should just get the ball rolling and let other people deal with that and I decided I would stay one more year and see that through," McDowell said.

The Waterman Campus Center expansion will continue Schoolcraft's leadership in technology, business and culinary arts programs. McDowell said the largest need for business today is in information technology. The new center will have state-of-the-art computer facilities.

"We are continually being told that the jobs that will exist 10 years from now are jobs that don't exist now. A lot of them will be in information technology, systems administration and the like. I think somehow we have to keep the technology and caring part together," McDowell said.

The culinary arts program will have new expanded quarters to meet a growing need for food service personnel.

The center will also have a multi-purpose room and an auditorium for more on-campus conferences.

McDowell said he will continue to be a part of both the Schoolcraft and Livonia communities. He said he knows he will be asked to volunteer his time and is looking forward to helping raise matching funds for the new campus center. But he will also be enjoying his family.

All three of his daughters attended Schoolcraft. The oldest, Sue, is a chef. Karen works as a marketing director for Ford. Kathy is a Novi teacher and mother of McDowell's three grandchildren.

"We love Livonia," he said. "We don't plan to move anywhere in winter but might rent someplace for a month or so."

McDowell tells a story that whenever his 7-year-old granddaughter comes over she runs to a bookcase and grabs a book. Just a while ago, she would ask her grandfather to read to her but now she wants to read to him.

McDowell tells the story to show the continuing love of books that is part of his family heritage. That love of books has carried McDowell a long way in a life dedicated to providing an education for everyone.

'Ghosts of a Paris past' haunt audience

Art and music meet at the Scarab Club in Detroit where violinist Velda Kelly of Farmington and cellist Nadine Deleury of Birmingham have been hosting a chamber music series for the past three years.

On Sunday, April 29, they're presenting "Ghosts of a Paris Past," a melodrama written by Randy Svendsen that combines music, drama and literature.

"He came to our concerts and we had a contest going for people to figure out what the perfect program would be," said Kelly, explaining how she and Deleury met Svendsen. "I love the idea of drama and focusing on music of American composers."

"Ghosts of a Paris Past" is a story about American expatriate writers and composers, most notably Aaron Copland, who went to Paris in the 1920s to study with Nadia Boulanger, a renowned composition teacher.

"It's basically conversations between the characters, and how they were influenced by each other," said Kelly.

Local actors will portray Gertrude Stein, Nadia Boulanger, Ernest Hemingway, Aaron Copland and Virgil Thomson as ghosts chatting with one another in Stein's living room.

The melodrama is a form of entertainment that preceded motion pictures where a story is performed live and accompanied by music similar to what followed in the silent films.

"Melodramas are a dead art form," said Svendsen who works for Lear Corporation in Southfield as a purchasing manager. "It's a little bit of a play, and a little bit of a concert."

Musical selections by Copland, Thomson, Gershwin and others will be performed at various points throughout the melodrama.

"We have the freedom to pick the music and instrumentation," said Kelly. "We'll be doing 'Gershwin Lullaby,' as well as a medley of Gershwin that includes 'Embraceable You,' and a couple of others. It's really accessible music, people will enjoy it."

Svendsen will introduce the characters.

"As Gertrude comes up they will turn on a tape of a 1952 speech Ernest Hemingway gave to accept the Nobel prize so you'll actually hear how Ernest Hemingway's voice sounded." Then Gertrude says, 'I knew Hemingway would come back to haunt me.'"

Then the musicians will play something pertinent to the story. The characters will speak to the audience about each other.

"It's like a play, it's a historical enactment of what was going on with the arts in Paris in the 1920s accompanied by relevant music."

What: Chamber Music at the Scarab Club presents "Ghosts of Paris Past," a melodrama
When: 7 p.m. Sunday, April 29
Where: The Scarab Club, 217 Farnsworth, Detroit
Tickets: $15, available at Harmony House in Royal Oak and the Scarab Club, or call (248) 474-8800

The evening will feature performances by soprano Pamela Jordon Schiffer, pianist Jacqueline Csurgai-Schmitt, Deleury, violist Scott Stefanko, and violinists Kelly and Margolis.

Actors Karen Landers, Margaret Thomas, Kris Christian, Thomas Ball and Matt McGuire will depict the ghosts.

"Ghosts of Paris Past" was first performed in Hartford, Conn., by Chamber Music Plus on July 11, 1995.

"I'm very excited about 'Ghosts' being done for the first time as I wrote it," said Svendsen. "It will be the best performance in its little life. We used a narrator, not actors when we did it in Hartford."

Svendson plans to write other melodramas about Chopin, and Robert and Clara Schumann and their relationship with Johannes Brahms.

"I'm a corporate manager type, but I love classical music and literature," he said. "I'm going to continue writing more and more bigger things. It's fun for me, it's very exciting for me. I moved here three years ago and wouldn't think of leaving now. My stuff wouldn't get performed in Boston or New Haven."

Deleury got acquainted with the Scarab Club after her son, a photographer, entered a competition and became a member. She then introduced Kelly. Both are members of the Michigan Opera Theatre Orchestra.

Feinstein to play benefit for jazz fest

"Hello, this is Michael Feinstein."

"Hi, how are you?"

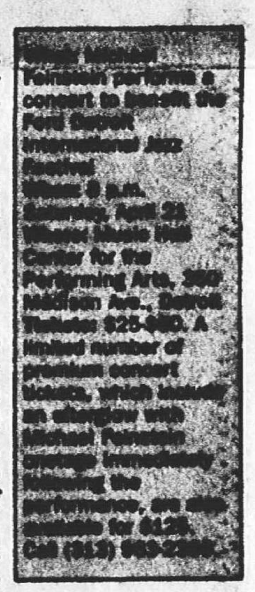
"Fine, and you?"

"I'm great. How could I not be? I started my day listening to your new CD."

"You flatterer," he replies with a smile in his voice, and I laugh, guilty as charged, and loving every moment.

The last time we talked Feinstein was on his way to Livonia to perform at the George Burns Theatre. He has family in the area, and is looking forward to his April 21 concert at Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts to benefit the Ford Detroit International Jazz Festival. He'll be playing the piano and performing with a sextet so he can actually get up from behind the piano and show the audience he has feet.

Michael Feinstein



Feinstein performs a concert to benefit the Ford Detroit International Jazz Festival. When: 8 p.m. Saturday, April 21 Where: Music Hall Center for the Performing Arts, 350 Madison Ave., Detroit Tickets: $25-$50. A limited number of premium concert tickets, which include pre-show dinner and post-performance cocktails with the artist, are also available for $125 each. Call (313) 993-2000.

A man with a sense of humor and a passion for popular American music, Feinstein will make you fall in love all over again with love songs like "Taking a Chance on Love."

"Oh, here I go again, I hear those trumpets blow again, all aglow again, takin' a chance on love..." and "If This Isn't Love."

"If this isn't love, the whole world is crazy. If this isn't love I'm daft as a daisy, with moons all around and cows jumping over...."

They don't write lyrics like those anymore, which is one of the reasons Feinstein enjoys them so much.

Heartfelt music

"There's a resonance from these songs that's unique and deeply affecting," he said. "These songs have energy you feel, it's the kind of music that goes

The Flying Karamazov Brothers ready to electrify audiences

If physics were taught by the Flying Karamazov Brothers, everyone would get an A.

"We're really trying in our silly way to tell the story of physics in a way that's entertaining," said Paul Magid, "Dmitri," one of the four brothers. "We know we can't get into physics too heavily. We talk about physics concepts, and the shear joy of it by laughing."

The Flying Karamazov Brothers, aren't really brothers, but rather four entertainers who defy explanation. They're bringing their "L'Universe" to the Music Hall Center for Performing Arts in Detroit, April 24-29.

It's a show that combines comedy, music, theater and juggling with some spectacular special effects.

"We had been working on electronic music ideas on our own," said Magid. "We did a show in Portland, Ore. and someone in the audience approached us and asked if we'd ever thought of working with magnetic fields."

Collaboration

They had, and the conversation led to a collaboration with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology's Media Lab in Boston.

When you're watching jugglers, you don't usually say to yourself, "these guys are really into math and science," but that's exactly what juggling is – a mathematical pattern.

straight to the heart. It's a view of the world that's idealistic that's wonderful, and essential for our survival."

Sharing songs

He also gets a kick out of discovering these songs and sharing them with his audience. Feinstein apprenticed for six years as secretary and archivist to one of the world's greatest songwriters – Ira Gershwin, George's brother.

"When I'm passionate about something I become obsessed," said Feinstein. "I became interested in this material when I was very young. It's always fun to discover a new aspect of a song."

"Taking a Chance on Love" music by Vernon Duke, lyrics by Ted Fetter and John LaTouche, one of the songs on his newest release "Michael Feinstein – Romance on Film, Romance on Broadway," is from the 1940 musical/1943 MGM film – "Cabin in the Sky."

"If This Isn't Love" comes from "Finian's Rainbow" with music by Burton Lane and lyrics by Yip Harburg.

Feinstein doesn't just sing a song he tries to bring it to life by going inside the song and paying attention to every word.

He gets miffed when people change songs imagining how much effort the lyricist put into every syllable. "You better have a good reason for changing a song," he said.

On April 21 he'll be performing a sequence of love songs, and "things people love to hear me do," he said. "Gershwin, Irving Berlin, and what I feel like doing. I can be as spontaneous as I want to be with the sextet."

Discovered by Liza Minnelli in 1986, Feinstein has recorded 20 albums and been nominated for two Grammy awards. He used to think his audience was older but it's become quite diverse as a new generation gets acquainted with classics like "All the Way," "When I Fall in Love," and "The Second Time Around."

On the road

Last year he opened a nightclub – Feinstein's at the Regency – but still enjoys touring.

"I love performing simply because it gives me the chance to bring these songs back to life," he said. "When I find a new song and play it through and say 'oh my God this is so good' it's that passion, I have to save it.

"I'm looking forward to being back in Detroit. I'm grateful to share the music with people."

planets as well as juggling clubs that change color as they fly through the air.

Musical moments

There's lots of music too such as the electrifying improvisational club passing called "Jazz."

During the show the brothers wear sport sonar tranducers and accelerometers, which by measuring the position of the juggler on the floor, allows them to play and "shape" music with their bodies.

"The computer knows where and who we are," said Magid. "We have six octaves, when we make a swift movement, a note sounds. We can control volume and pitch with our left hand. By moving and dancing we make music."

■ 'People who have seen us before are in for a wonderful surprise. Those who haven't seen us before will be wowed.'

Multi-media experience

A large screen projects the Brother's silly antics to the audience creating a multi-media experience.

Magid says the show, which premiered in January 2000 is constantly evolving. Of course there's audience involvement so be prepared to be surprised when it's time to learn about gravitational force – things that attract and don't attract.

Jugglers

The Flying Karamazov Brothers got their start 27 years ago-juggling on the streets of San Francisco. Since then they have performed around the world, made numerous TV appearances, including an episode of "Seinfeld" as the Flying Sandos Brothers. They were also featured in the movie "The Jewel of the Nile."

"People who have seen us before are in for a wonderful surprise," said Magid. "Those who haven't seen us before will be wowed."

derful space the Scarab Club would be to do chamber music," said Kelly. "We started out with an informal series of concerts and discovered that people really enjoyed them. The atmosphere is nice, and the acoustics are wonderful."

Another bonus is the art that hangs on the walls. The Scarab Club is an art gallery, and Kelly enjoys the interaction between music and art.

Historic place

Founded in 1907 by a group of artists and art lovers, the Scarab Club moved to its present location on Farnsworth in 1928. The building was listed as a State Historic Site in 1974 and placed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1978.

Kelly has been teaching and performing in metro Detroit since 1983. She has degrees in music performance from Boston University and the University of Cincinnati College Conservatory of Music. She performs as an extra for the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, has a large class of private students, has been a faculty member for the Center for Creative Studies Institute of Music and Dance, Eastern Music Festival and the Lyric Chamber Ensemble Summer Chamber Music Camp.

Deleury was born in the north of France and entered the Paris conservatory when she was 16. She received her master's degree at Yale University and moved to Detroit in 1983 and became principal cellist of the Michigan Opera Theatre.

She is a faculty member at Oakland University and has appeared as a soloist with the Pontiac-Oakland and Livonia Symphony Orchestra.

"The Scarab Club is a great place for the arts," said Svendsen. It allows people like me who aren't primary artists to do our stuff."

Madonna Chorale to perform at area churches

BY CHRISTINE FERRETTI
SPECIAL WRITER

David Wagner is an inspirational leader in the eyes of Madonna Chorale members. He pushes them to project their best voices, yet still keeps the processes entertaining.

"The most rewarding experience for me is having the singers interested," said Wagner who began directing the group in 1998.

The chorale sings mainly sacred music, which they perform at different churches in the area.

Each year the group works on several programs that are performed during Christmas season and in the spring. "Everyone commits to two concerts, which is a good size commitment," said Wagner.

Mark these dates

Madonna Chorale's next two performances are Sunday, April 22 and April 29.

The 3 p.m. Sunday, April 22 concert will take place at St. Anne's Church in Detroit. Built in 1701, St. Anne's is the second oldest church in the U.S. The church is between Howard and West Lafayette, near the Ambassador Bridge.

At 3 p.m. Sunday, April 29 the chorale will perform at Christ Our Savior Lutheran Church, 14175 Farmington Road, just north of I-96, in Livonia.

The program will include Mass in G Minor by Ralph Vaughan Williams, a Welsh hymn tune arrangement, and "Athene" by John Tavener, a piece sung at Princess Diana's funeral.

"They're all 20th century pieces, very accessible and melodic," said Wagner. "They were inspired by the great tradition of church music."

Wagner has a strong work ethic, which has inspired the members of the chorale.

Heart and soul

"David Wagner puts his heart and soul into it. He doesn't give up," said Dolores Barrett.

Susan Knighton, music major adds, "He provides a massive variety of music."

Wagner says that his favorite piece of music is the one he is working on at that moment. "My focus is always on what is coming, the past is gone forever," he said.

The chorale is open to all community members and students. They are always seeking people who love music.

"It has been 16 years since I have sung in a group. I like to sing and I was looking for something fun to do," said Anita Tucker, nursing major.

If you are interested in joining the chorale, it is offered for credit to students enrolled at the university, but all others are equally as welcome to unite with the group. The Chorale practices 7-8 p.m. Tuesday. Wagner encourages those interested to contact him at (734) 432-5708. You can also find out more information by contacting the Madonna University music department.

Christine Ferretti is a student at Madonna University and a member of the chorale.

Guitarist Jesse Cook borrows styles to create sound all his own

ANN DELISI

■ Although he brings a wealth of experiences, training, and influences, it isn't as if you need to be a student of music theory to get the most out of Jesse's work.

Accolades are pouring in...but you're still not buying it. Sometimes a marketing effort that is put forth to get you to listen to a new recording artist reminds me of playing charades. The emerging music phenom always supposedly "sounds like" (tug your ear) the current platinum-selling band and "played with" a long list of musicians everyone has heard of and probably likes.

These approaches to the masses may in fact boost sales, but they really don't capture the uniqueness of the artist. That's something we have to do on our own.

Oddly, what enticed me to explore the music of guitarist Jesse Cook was the tag that was bestowed on him by the press and even his own publicist...the champion of rumba flamenco. Cook's four albums are found in the world music section of your favorite record store, which is not exactly a hot spot. But location, location, location isn't everything in the music business. Otherwise, Jesse would never have sold over half a million albums. His route to success was has been in large part through word of mouth.

He was born in 1964 in Paris to flamenco-loving Canadian parents, and was exposed during a series of trips to Spain to many of the great old flamenco heavyweights. His travel experiences contribute greatly to his exhilarating acoustic sound and our appreciation.

You may have never heard of such instruments as the ehru, darbouka and ney, but they're there on his current Free Fall release. You may not seek an Afro-Cuban or Middle Eastern sound when you consider adding to your music collection, but borrowing from a variety of styles and world influences is a strength of Cook's unique sound.

Jesse simply doesn't "sound like" anyone else, as you may discover as you watch his performance on an edition of Detroit Public TV's BACKSTAGE PASS, airing 7:30 p.m. Sunday, April 22.

Although he brings a wealth of experiences, training, and influences, it isn't as if you need to be a student of music theory to get the most out of Jesse's work. He seems to understand that when music is at its best, it is more about how it makes the listener feel than how it was created.

Freeman returns in sequel

BY JAY M. GROSSMAN
STAFF WRITER
jgrossman@oe.homecomm.net

■ Easily one of the most gifted actors on the big screen today, Freeman reprises a role he originally played in the 1997 thriller 'Kiss The Girls,' another Patterson novel.

A criminal detective gets caught in a web of intrigue while hunting down a daring kidnapper in Along Came a Spider, a psychological thriller based on a novel by suspense writer James Patterson.

Morgan Freeman plays Dr. Alex Cross, a Washington, D.C., investigator and best-selling author on profiling serial killers, who's lured out of retirement when a senator's daughter is kidnapped from a posh private school.

A piece of evidence is placed in his mailbox by the kidnapper, who wants Cross to chronicle the abduction and compare it to the 1932 kidnapping of the Charles Lindbergh baby, dubbed by many as the "Crime of the Century."

Easily one of the most gifted actors on the big screen today, Freeman reprises a role he originally played in the 1997 thriller Kiss The Girls, another Patterson novel that landed in Hollywood.

"Cross is a well-trained, well-educated writer as well as a policeman," Freeman said about his role. "But, his particular strength is he's a mind hunter. It's fun to play because it's more cerebral than active."

In Along Came a Spider, you'll want to arrive at the theater on time as the movie begins with a bang when Cross loses his partner in the opening sequence during a sting operation that goes terribly wrong. It's a scene you won't want to miss.

The movie takes several plot twists, some of which don't make any sense at all. Nevertheless, see if you can follow along and guess the real villain before the final climax.

The strength in Along Came a Spider comes from Freeman's performance. Whether playing a hit man in Nurse Betty or the President of the United States in Deep Impact, Freeman always fits into his characters like a comfortable suit. The man could film a commercial for used car batteries and convince you to buy one. He's that good.

I give the movie two and a half boxes of popcorn out of five.

On the run: Morgan Freeman returns as Dr. Alex Cross in "Along Came a Spider" the sequel to 1997's thriller "Kiss The Girls."

He's still money, baby

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA
STAFF WRITER
scasola@oe.homecomm.net

Decades before the film Swingers coined the phrase 'money' to mean all things hot, one Eddie Mahoney took it as his surname and burned up the Top 40 charts.

The singer and songwriter that held '80s radio hostage with hits like Take Me Home Tonight, Two Tickets to Paradise and Shakin, Eddie Money still manages to rock the Motor City on a regular basis. It looks like he'll keep coming around as long as he's welcomed.

This week that raspy growl can be heard 5-9 a.m. on 94.7 FM, WCSX Radio in Southfield, as Eddie Money guest hosts the Classic Rock Morning Show while Jim Johnson and Lynne Woodison are on vacation.

"JJ and Lynne, I do a lot of radio with them, I have for a long time," said Money, during a brief visit at the station Tuesday morning. "A lot of the people at the station go back to WRIF."

He rattles off names and references like a true Detroiter, though he lives with his wife and five children in Los Angeles. While he'll openly profess he's a fan of the Red Wings, the MC5, The Grand Prix, and his guitarist, Tommy Girvin, is from Dearborn – the true connection Money has to this area are his fans.

Eddie Money

"Detroit has always been great to me," he said. "I'm really big in Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Ohio – out here in the Midwest – where it's Bob Seger and rock n' roll."

While his radio gig is fleeting, it's a sure sign of spring when Money comes around. He's been the official opener at DTE Energy Music Theatre, formerly Pine Knob Music Theatre, in Independence Township since 1992, according to Palace Sports and Entertainment's Jeff Corey. Though in 1995, he performed in July.

"Most years he has been the first show, other years -- due to various tours' schedules – we have had to add a show or two before his. In those cases we still say he is our 'official' opening show," said Corey. "As of now, his May 27 show is the first show scheduled for the 2001 DTE Energy Music Theatre season."

What keeps Eddie Money coming back?

"I think this town is the best in the U.S. and I know that because I live in L.A.," said Money, with a laugh.

See Eddie Money, with openers Burning Candles, 7:30 p.m. Sunday, May 27 at DTE Energy Music Theatre in Independence Township. Tickets are $12.50-$20.50. Call (248) 645-6666 or see www.palacenet.com.

Harry Chronic Jr. has some surprises in store

STEPHANIE A. CASOLA

Lew Echlin knew at age 7 he was going to be a rock star. It's as simple as that.

According to the Royal Oak resident, three defining childhood moments led to this conclusion. First, there was the regular after-dinner trip he and his brother Ray took to the park, where they would listen to music. One taste of David Bowie's Ziggy Stardust and the Spiders From Mars and the boys were hooked.

Then of course, Lew recalls the little league parade that marked his first encounter with The Beatles. Revolver brought him to tears, but he blamed his emotional outpouring on the fact that the little blue hat blew right out of the window of the van they were traveling in. "I couldn't tell them it was because of The Beatles," he said.

During a trip Up North, Lew later discovered the magic of The Who' s Baba O'Riley. "These three things together convinced me that I loved rock and roll."

Chronic pop habit

These days Lew Echlin is living out those childhood fantasies – along with his brother Ray Echlin on keys, John "Elvis" Emmert on bass and Pete Ulbrich on lead guitar – by fronting Harry Chronic Jr. The tongue-in-cheek name was inspired by a former roommate who once left his Harry Connick Jr. Christmas CD out on a table next to Lew's copy of The Chronic by Dr. Dre.

Nearly seven years since Harry Chronic Jr. played its first show, an opening gig at Detroit's Majestic Theatre, the band known for its infrequent-but-memorable appearances, constant rotation of drummers and unpredictable antics is about to hit the stage again. The "Dirty 30" show will feature performances by Crome Mali and Centrifuge at Ferndale's Magic Bag. Though the band is the headlining act, expect Harry Chronic Jr. to go onstage around 11 p.m., before Centrifuge.

The formation of Harry Chronic Jr. was inspired by a third Echlin brother, Hobey – who originally played drums. He helped arrange the band's first show, at the largest venue to have the Chronic to date. Lew still remembers the feeling of being backstage at The Majestic, more nervous than excited – he and Elvis were doing push ups.

Meet them at the bar

These days, the band has traded in preparatory push ups for wacky costumes (the rule is, it has to be as silly and stupid as possible) and memorable cover songs snuck in amid a fury of boy-verses-girl pop tunes, penned and arranged by Lew Echlin. The songs deal with some combination of the following ingredients: The apprehensive or shy behavior of a 20-something guy frequenting bars to meet girls, what to do when he finds one, and "all the rotten things" that can happen once he's got one.

It's all easily explained in the lyrics of Chronic songs like Smart Boy and I'm With Stupid, which appear on the band's E.P., When You See Me At The Bar.

"I think the songs reflect more of Lew's personal life," joked Elvis during an interview Monday morning at Royal Oak's Caribou Coffee shop.

Each bandmate adds a personal touch to the music. Not having one regular drummer, Harry Chronic Jr. brings in some of the Detroit area's finest for live performance, each adding their own style to the sound. For the Magic Bag show, the band will be joined by Jerome Day of Howling Diablos fame. It will also mark the first appearance of The Chronettes – backup singers Dawn New, Amy Wefel, Jessica Starr and Judi Barrett.

"They exceeded our expectations," said Elvis, happy about the addition.

Being brothers

Ray Echlin is credited for keeping the band going, encouraging and setting up shows. "He's really challenging," said Lew of his brother.

Ray joined the band on bass four years ago, filling in when Elvis had been transferred out of town. He stayed on and switched to keys shortly after Elvis returned to the metro area. He said working with Lew gives them "a rare opportunity to be more than brothers."

"We put on our 'musician' hats over the Echlin Standard Issue and do what bandmates do – argue and agree. When our older brother Hobey played drums, and it was just the three of us crazies, more than just musical notes floated through the air. But seriously, it is a labor of love. Lew writes some poignant songs that I think deserve an air of professional presentation. So I feel I bring that element to the fold."

Harry Chronic Jr.'s sound holds tight to its influences – which, if you ask Lew Echlin, blends the musical style of Afghan Whigs, with Radiohead-whiny harmonies and the attitude of The Allman Brothers all into one shiny, happy package. They stray from usual formats, leaving out guitar solos and sometimes bridges, stripping songs down in their own way. "There's an appropriate complexity to it," said Lew Echlin.

From the first note, it's evident these musicians are in it for fun. The focus, said Elvis, has always been to "keep it upbeat." Though he admits he wouldn't turn away a chance at fame if it stopped by and tapped on his door.

Happy Birthday to Lew

Harry Chronic Jr. will record Friday's show for live tracks which are likely to appear on an upcoming CD. Ray Echlin can't wait to capture that sound. "Lew loves being an entertainer, bringing joy to people, fostering an air of 'let's smile and have a great time,' he said. "If we can touch just one person with our show – our job is done.

"Well, and then our other job is to dodge objects being hucked at the stage."

The band also plans on revealing a surprise guest and inviting the audience to hop onstage for a grand finale.

If that isn't reason enough to get over to the Magic Bag for the Chronic, come down to celebrate Lew Echlin's 30th birthday, Harry Chronic-style.

Spend the night with Harry Chronic Jr.,, Centrifuge and Crome Mali, 8 p.m. Friday, April 20, Magic Bag, Ferndale. Tickets are $7. Call (248) 544-3030. Check them out on the Web at www.harrychronicjr.com.

Chefs help fight hunger

BY ELEANOR HEALD
SPECIAL WRITER

What: Share our Strength's Taste of the Nation strolling dinner
When: 7-10 p.m. Sunday, April 29
Where: Somerset Collection South, Troy (Big Beaver and Coolidge roads)
Why: Area chefs and restaurateurs fight hunger with taste in this annual event. It is the nation's largest culinary benefit in which restaurants share their strength in the fight against hunger and poverty. One hundred percent of the $75-per-ticket sales and all proceeds of the event go directly to fight hunger
Tickets: Call the Food Bank of Oakland County at (248) 332-1473 or Gleaners Community Food Bank at (313) 932-3535.

Looking for the area's best restaurants?

You'll find them all in one place from 7-10 p.m. on Sunday, April 29, at the Share our Strength's Taste of the Nation strolling dinner in Somerset Collection South, Troy.

It's one of 100 Share our Strength events held every spring.

Area chefs and restaurateurs fight hunger with taste annually by participating in the Share our Strength (SOS) event. Sponsored nationally by American Express and locally hosted by Mercedes-Benz and other area businesses, it is the nation's largest culinary benefit in which restaurants share their strength in the fight against hunger and poverty.

The dinners raise much needed money for each area's local anti-hunger and anti-poverty efforts. One hundred percent of the $75 per ticket sales and all proceeds of the event go directly to fight hunger.

Revealing statistics

Hunger affects nearly 35 million Americans. Local statistics are staggering. About 32 percent of Detroit residents live below the poverty level and nearly 30 percent of Michigan's children, under 12 years of age, go hungry or are at-risk.

Funds raised through Taste of the Nation allow everyone to make a difference for people working to attain economic independence and self-sufficiency.

Last year's metro-Detroit event raise more than $200,000 and facilitated the founding of The Variety Produce Rescue Program (VPRP), which regularly supplies fresh produce and vegetables to area food banks and anti-hunger organizations. During its first year of operation, VPRP, the first of its kind in Michigan, rescued more than 1 million pounds of produce that would have otherwise gone to waste.

Money raised from this year's SOS event will benefit four local charities: Gleaners Community Food Bank, Food Bank of Oakland County, Forgotten Harvest and Detroit Entrepreneurship Institute. Food Gatherers and Hunger Action Coalition will benefit on a state level.

What is SOS?

Share Our Strength is one of the nation's leading anti-hunger, anti-poverty organizations that began in the basement of a row house on Capitol Hill in 1984. Today, it mobilizes thousands of culinary professionals to organize events such as Taste of the Nation, among its other creative partnerships with a range of industries.

As a result, SOS has raised more than $90 million since its founding through the simple philosophy: It takes more than food to fight hunger. The "more" can be defined as a belief that it takes each one of us, sharing our strength to make a difference.

Tempting tastes

This year, Unique Restaurant Corporation's corporate chef Jim Barnett is culinary chair for Detroit's Taste of the Nation. Master Sommelier Madeline Triffon and Glen Thompson of Merchant of Vino in Farmington Hills serve as co-wine chairs. They will bring together more than 50 of the area's top chefs and wine purveyors for the event.

Chef/proprietor Steve Allen of Steve & Rocky's in Novi said he will be serving a warm, slightly smoked and poached Atlantic Salmon with a side of Vidalia onion and asparagus salad. This dish is a spin-off of a popular Steve & Rocky's lunch item.

Need a wine to pair with Chef Steve's salmon? Locate the Artisan Producers from Napa wine table hosted by McLean Wine Company or check out how this dish matches with a wine from Australia, or for that matter, just about anywhere in the world. Wine purveyors will be anxious to offer you a pour.

For charity: Sous chef Jeff Evans (left) and owner/chef Steve Allen of Steve & Rocky's restaurant in Novi, show a seafood dish they'll make for the Share Our Strength fund-raiser on April 29.

Chef/proprietor Luciano Del Signore of Livonia's Fonte d'Amore is a perennial participant in children's charities and those that fight hunger.

He will prepare Strozzapretti alla Norcini. Strozzapretti is a handmade two-inch coiled pasta. Norcini is a sauce made with homemade Italian sausage, white wine, tomatoes and black truffles, with a touch of cream to complement the truffles.

"I like this preparation," Chef Luciano said, "because it has a great balance of flavors and texture. It's a feel-good dish."

You can try your hand at matching a wine with this dish from a "Flavors of Italy" wine table hosted by AHD Vintners, based in Troy, the distributor for the famed Italian wines imported by Winebow.

Now everyone can afford star treatment.

MODERNISM

DESIGNS HAVE STYLE, STRENGTH IN LINE

Everything today is thoroughly modern..." To enthusiasts of the design style called modernism, those words are more than lyrics from a Julie Andrews movie.

Modernism is 20th century design clear of the ornamentation of the Victorian era.

It includes Art Nouveau, Art Deco, Streamline, Prairie School, Arts and Crafts, Industrial and Moderne styles. Among the designers are Frank Lloyd Wright, Louis Comfort Tiffany, Herman Miller, Heywood-Wakefield and the Sticklevs.

"There's an explosion of desire (for modernism) now," said Cary Skoglund of Decades, an antique shop at 8070 N. Territorial in Plymouth specializing in modernism.

Decades also does refinishing and restoration. Among its recent Moderne projects are an Eames chair originally designed for the Time-Life Building, and a Heywood-Wakefield bureau set.

The annual Michigan Modernism Exposition is one of the top four shows of its kind in the country.

This year's event will take place Saturday-Sunday, April 28-29, again at the Southfield Municipal Complex, 26000 Evergreen at Civic Center Drive (101/2 Mile). It will feature 78 of the nation's most prominent modernism merchants.

Nostalgia isn't the only element of modernism's appeal. The style's significance and strength are also involved.

"It's the combination of the industrial revolution and new and streamlined type processes," Skoglund said.

Skoglund's dining room contains a Mission style table and office chairs, he said.

"A lot of the modernism things are so very functional and so very durable," Skoglund said.

Going modern

Bob Kupfer has furnished his Bloomfield Hills residence with a variety of modernism pieces, some of which he bought at past Michigan modernism expositions.

"I've been drawn to it," said Kupfer, owner of Tiffany Florist in Birmingham.

"I tend to like symmetry and linear things."

A setting in Kupfer's living room features chrome and black leather Wassily lounge chairs by Marcel Breuer, laminate and metal oval side tables by Eero Saarinen, and a nickel and glass coffee table by Warren Plattner.

Here, as elsewhere throughout the house, a grouping of accessories in basic geometric shapes accents the clean, smooth lines of modernism.

Nearby is a Mies van der Rohe daybed and a side table by Plattner.

In another room, colorful Art Nouveau silkscreens by E.A. Seguy line the walls. Also here are a white Venetian glass lamp by Knoll and a "snail" table — its base in a gentle curve — by Vladimir Kagan.

Another art work is the bright Italian poster advertising a cleaning service. Smaller pieces include a lamp crowned with glass fruit that glows soft-

Detroit deco

The Detroit Area Art Deco Society is among the annual participants in the exposition. This year, the DAADS will have a booth in celebration of Detroit's 300th birthday, showcasing examples of the city's designs from the Art Deco era.

An example of this heritage is the Telenews theater, which opened on Woodward in 1942 and was featured in the DAADS newsletter, The Modern, last fall.

The Telenews had a Streamlined Moderne facade in orange and turquoise terra cotta. The theater was renamed the TeleArts in 1988 and closed three years later.

"It will surprise a lot of people," Susann Spilkin of DAADS said of the planned display. "People tend to think of Detroit as (just) the 'Car city.' "

The DAADS was founded in 1986 by a group of collectors and enthusiasts interested in the designs and preservation of the decorative objects, architecture and style of the Art Deco period.

The society's eighth annual gala preview party for the modernism exposition will take place April 27 (see related story).

Hours of the Michigan Modernism Exposition will be 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. April 28 and noon to 5 p.m. April 29.

Admission is $7 with any ads or listings of the event, $8 regular, free for ages 12 and under. One paid admission is good for both days.

Previews are available at www.antiqnet.com/M&M

The Detroit Area Art Deco Society's eighth annual Michigan Modernism Preview Party will take place 7-10 p.m. Friday, April 27, at the Southfield Civic Center, Evergreen at 10½ Mile Road.
The Satin Dolls will perform tunes of the 1930s, '40s and '50s.
Wine and hors d'oeuvres will also be featured.
Proceeds will benefit the DAADS, a private, not-for-profit corporation that provides education, documentation, monetary sponsorship, scholarships and design assistance to the community.

Watch pruning cuts on trees

Making proper pruning cuts helps trees protect themselves from dangerous diseases and wood decays.

These diseases and wood decays can lead to the premature death of the tree and can attack a tree much more easily when improper pruning cuts are made.

A proper pruning cut is called a collar cut. The arborist cuts just outside of, but as close as possible to, the branch collar.

The collar is a swollen region at the union of a branch and stem that has a natural protective zone. When it is not injured, the collar will protect the tree from disease invasion and will also help cover the pruning cut quickly with new tissue.

Sometimes the collar is not visible. When this is the case, the arborist estimates the approximate location of the collar before making the final cut.

Stub cuts are pruning cuts made too far outside of the branch collar. Disease organisms "incubate" on the dying stub that remains. Eventually the stub becomes a pathway for decay organisms to enter the tree trunk and cause serious wood decay.

Heading cuts are pruning cuts that shorten a branch or stem so far back that a large stub is created. In this case, the stub decays, creating health problems for the tree.

Flush cuts are cuts that are made right up against the trunk or branch. In this case, the protective collar is removed, opening up the wood beneath to disease and wood decay infections.

Homeowners can always hire a tree care professional to safely take down or prune damaged trees. Always check for the contractor's liability insurance.

For a list of professional arborists, contact the National Arborist Association, 1-800-733-2622 or by a zip code search on www.natlarb.com.

INTERIOR DESIGN

DESIGN CALENDAR

■ Michigan Design Center invites the public to meet and hear Lady Caroline Wrey, teacher, author and leading authority on window treatments and accessories, 6:30 p.m. Thursday, April 26, at MDC. Highlights of the lecture will include the basic reasons for curtaining a window; how to guarantee the success of a perfect window treatment; and a slide presentation of stunning window treatments. A book signing will follow. Light refreshments will be served. For reservations, send a check for $25, made payable to Michigan Design Center, to MDC, 1700 Stutz Drive, Suite 25, Troy, MI 48084, by Friday, April 20. Reservations will be held at the door. For more information, call (248) 649-4772.

■ Haberman Fabrics, 117 W. Fourth in Royal Oak, presents a variety of home decorating classes. They include the four-session "Duvet Cover," Wednesdays, April 25 to May 16, or Thursdays, April 26 to May 17 ($60). Pre-registration is required. Call (248) 541-0010 or visit www.habermanfabrics.com

■ Discover the principles of the ancient Chinese art of feng shui (pronounced "fung shway") at a free event 6:30 p.m. Thursday, April 26, Art Van Furniture, 5053 Dixie Highway in Waterford. Reservations are suggested; call (888) 619-2199. Find out what the excitement and fascination is about and how feng shui can transform your business, home and well-being. You will have the opportunity to ask questions of feng shui consultant Lynn Meadows.

■ Loëtitia Herbretau, from the Quimper workshop in France, will demonstrate the art of hand-painting Quimper's traditional patterns 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday, April 30, at La Belle Provence, 185 W. Maple in Birmingham (phone (248) 540-3876). Peter Janssens, one of the Quimper owners, will be on hand to discuss the two limited edition pieces specifically designed for the tour. These pieces, a 10-inch wall plate for $69.50 and a 5-inch flat heart for $35, will be on sale beginning Saturday, April 21, and may be signed by the artist April 30.

■ The Detroit Artists Market Sales Gallery, 4719 Woodward at Forest in Detroit, features tiles, vases and bowls by ceramic artist JoAnn Aquinto this month. Aquinto earned her bachelor of fine arts degree in 1990 from the Center for Creative Studies. She oversaw a large scale tile installation at the People Mover's Millender Center Station project for Pewabic Pottery. The prices of her tiles and vessels range between $12 and $100. Sales Gallery proceeds provide revenue for participating local artists and general operating support of DAM's exhibition and educational programs. Call (313) 832-8540, Ext. 13.

■ Homeowners may learn how to lay their own brick patios, walks and driveways in a one-hour class 3 p.m. every first and third Saturday of the month now through September at Brickscape Gardens in Northville. Registration fee is $5 per person, refundable with any brick purchase. Call (248) 348-2500 to reserve a spot and for more information. Brickscape Gardens is on Brickscape Drive, which runs north off Eight Mile just east of Novi Road.

■ Art Van Furniture is a local sponsor of the 2001 Detroit's Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer RACE FOR THE CURE®, presented by the Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute. It will take place Saturday, April 21, at Comerica Park. Entry forms for the race are available at all Art Van stores now through Friday, while supplies last.

■ Now through May 5, youngsters ages 7 to 14 may pick up an entry form at any Art Van Furniture store for a Mother's Day essay contest. Entrants are to write an essay, in 100 words or less, on "Why I Love My Mother." In the essay they should reiterate a special story, memory or time that highlights their mother. When children bring their completed form into a store, they will be given a rose pin that they may give to their mother on Mother's Day (while supplies last). All entries must be received by May 5. Essays will be judged on creativity in two groups: ages 7-10 and ages 11-14. One winner from each group will be chosen to receive a cedar chest.

■ Public tours at Oakland University's Meadow Brook Hall in Rochester are given year-round 1:30 p.m. Monday-Saturday, 1:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Sunday. The hall is closed most holidays, and tour hours may change during special events.

Admission is $8 for adults, $6 for ages 62 and over, $4 for ages 5-12, free for ages 4 and under. Reservations aren't required. Tours for groups of 20 or more may be scheduled for other times. Advance reservations are required for group tours. Group admission is $6 for adults, $4 for children.

HOME WORK

Appliance repair industry needs more oversight

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

JOE GAGNON

I'm working with our state senators in trying to get the Appliance Repair Act passed into law. Here's why.

Keep in mind that work in other occupational fields fall under some sort of guidelines except the appliance repair business. Do you know that the technician entering your home does not have any legal responsibility to give you the old part he or she replaced on your refrigerator?

That person may give you a song-and-dance about the "need" to return the part to the manufacturer or any other story regarding that "bad" part.

Paying unnecessarily

I remember a television exposé when a reporter insisted that he get the old part removed from the refrigerator. The service technician under the eye of the hidden camera told the supposed homeowner repeatedly that if he wanted the old part, they would have to pay an extra $30.

Can you imagine the nerve of this service man? He just replaced the fan motor on a refrigerator, charged an excessive amount to do so, and he won't leave the old motor with the homeowner. Why not? It's defective isn't it? Or, he wouldn't have changed it, would he?

I've got news for you, folks. In the past 15 years, I've worked with consumer fraud investigators in setting up these situations to show what some appliance service companies do to consumers. Often the stories are very shameful, but they also report that not all service companies act the same way. Most service companies are honest and more than reasonable. They change a part only when it is defective and they give you the old part before they leave your house.

■ You may never know the labor rate of a particular service company unless company employees break it down in writing. Some companies hide it so well in the way they write up an invoice, you as a consumer will never know.

Those who don't may have their own reason for not giving you the old part.

Breaking the law

Let us suppose that the guy changes a fan motor under the refrigerator and won't give you the old motor. The old motor may not defective at all. He doesn't want you to keep it in case you find a way to check out the part and see that it works just fine. If that were to happen, he certainly has done something which is illegal and he could be charged under the Michigan Consumer Protection Act. If he intentionally tampered with old part so that you could not effectively check it out, the same would apply.

How do you know that the new motor he installed in your refrigerator is a new one? Maybe the motor he's using on your refrigerator came from a previous call that day where he changed one that wasn't defective. Do you want to bet this happens? I've seen it many times. By the way, that's against the law as well.

A service technician may have a labor rate of $300 to $500 per hour. If you knew that, would you be willing to use that company? You may never know the labor rate of a particular service company unless company employees break it down in writing. Some companies hide it so well in the way they write up an invoice, you as a consumer will never know.

Imagine a service technician, hired off the street with no factory training, can charge up to $500 per hour in labor. It has happened to many of you who are now reading this column and you didn't realize it.

Do you really want to find out? Take that service invoice and send it to me at this newspaper. I will call every one of you back and explain exactly how they did it. If I could go on my radio show and broadcast the names of these ripoff companies or even print the names and locations in this newspaper column, do you think it would change their ways? I doubt it.

If the Appliance Repair Act went into effect, I believe it would help consumers better understand how much they are charged for service. I hope someday to find a way to make sure that consumers are paying an honest repair bill, until then, you have to be a smart homeowner. Stay tuned.

Joe Gagnon can be heard on Newstalk 760, WJR-AM, every Saturday and Sunday mornings. He is a past president of The Society of Consumer Professionals. His second book, "The Words and Wisdom of The Appliance Doctor" is available in book stores. His phone number is (313) 873-9789.

Got a question for the Appliance Doctor? Write Joe Gagnon c/o Ken Abramczyk, At Home Editor, Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia MI 48150 or e-mail kabramczyk@oe.homecomm.net.

Repairing that sprinkler supply line

ASK DAD

HARRY JACHYM

You turn on the sprinkler and suddenly there's a geyser on your lawn. You wake up and a crater forms in your yard after an early morning watering.

Has that happened to you? It's happened at our house a couple of times. Usually it means an underground sprinkler line is damaged.

Watch those lines

Underground irrigation system supply lines are normally buried only a few inches under the surface, sometimes as little as 6 inches. Garden work, winter freezes and thaws or a stake driven to hold a holiday decoration in the wrong spot of the yard can damage these lines. (I know about that last one firsthand.) Fortunately, it's not too difficult to repair these lines.

You'll need a shovel, a handsaw, screwdrivers, a blowtorch or other heat source (even a hairdryer will work in a pinch), an insert coupler and two hose clamps that fit your specific lines. (Residential supply lines are often 3/4 inch in diameter, but can be 1/2- or 1-inch. If you're not sure of the size of your lines, you'll find out when you dig.)

You should know specifically where your sprinkler lines are located and the locations of gas and electrical lines before you start shoveling.

Dig only what's necessary to repair the sprinkler lines and to work comfortably. The more you dig now, the harder the lawn repair will be later. If the damage isn't obvious, turn on the water to pinpoint the problem.

Using the handsaw, cut through the line at the damaged area.

Slip a hose clamp over each cut end. Gently heat the supply lines with the torch and insert the coupler into both cut ends. Use care not to melt the plastic. When the coupler has rejoined the line together, slide the hose clamps to the coupler and tighten.

Grit may collect

Anytime there is a break in an underground supply line, you'll likely find grit has plugged the heads. It's a good idea to dig a little soil from around the last sprinkle head in the zone and remove that sprinkler head. Turn the water on for about 30 to 60 seconds to flush any dirt and grit out of the line. Install the sprinkler head and charge the line, checking for leaks. Check the rest of the heads.

Turn on each zone, one at a time, and examine the direction, pressure and spray pattern of each head. Grit isn't the only culprit in wreaking havoc with sprinkler heads, our winters tend to do the same.

Clean the screens by removing the spray nozzle and cleaning the screen. Adjust the direction of spray heads by pushing down on the head while the water is on and turning. The spray pressure is usually adjusted with a small screw in the center of the nozzle. Complicated heads, like impact and gear drives, normally come with instructions how to adjust them.

When you've completed these repairs, your sprinkler system will water your yard while you relax. After I found out the hard way about holiday decorations and sprinkler line locations, I know I'll try to be more careful about where I drive stakes in my lawn.

CREATIVE LIVING

Learn about farm life at Greenfield Village

The coming of spring signals new beginnings for everyone.

Greenfield Village is no exception. Workers at the historical village are inviting everyone to pick up a broom, remove cobwebs and dust from nooks and crannies, wash a load of clothes, help plant the season's crops and clean the fields during Spring Farm Days, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. April 26-29, May 5-6, and May 12-13.

Head on over to Henry Ford's birthplace to watch Merino sheep sheared of their heavy winter coats during sheep shearing demonstrations.

Visitors can experience the shearing of Greenfield Village's wrinkly Merino sheep as they looked in the 1880s. After watching the shearing demonstrations, head on down to Daggett Farmhouse to see the next step during the "sheep to shirt" demonstration. Visitors can also purchase a "Wrinklee" sheep to take home with them to demonstrate sheep shearing.

In the 18th and 19th centuries, farmers were usually outnumbered by their livestock, making herding dogs a much needed commodity. Experience the dogs in action at Firestone Fields and see how odds were more evenly matched.

Listen at the Gristmill, as Harvey's father, Ben Firestone, negotiates the selling price of this herd of fine quality fleece in "Ben Firestone and the Wool Agent."

Stop by Logan County Courthouse and learn a quick lesson on plant science with the Wizard of Tuskegee, George Washington Carver. Visit the Mattox House, home to an African-American family who owned and worked a farmstead near Savannah, Ga. Visitors can also see Dominique chickens, the oldest breed in America and also learn of the travails of a rural southern household during the Great Depression.

GREENFIELD VILLAGE

Farm Days: Join in the fun at Spring Farm Days, April 26-29, May 5-6 and May 12-13, at Greenfield Village. Visitors are invited to pick up a broom, remove cobwebs and dust from nooks and crannies and wash a load of clothes in learning about cleaning methods of yesterday.

Pay a visit to the Edison Homestead to see how spring cleaning was done before the days of Windex, Clorox and Pledge. Learn how everyday household goods such as tea, vinegar, newspaper and soap were part of the innovator's household spring cleaning ritual.

While experiencing farm life of our ancestors, visitors can watch the farmers and presenters plow and plant the season's crops using an 1868 Oliver Chill Iron Plow with two "horse" power.

Visit the ladies of the Adams House, birthplace of columnist George Matthew Adams from Saline, Mich., while they cook up some home remedies to relieve the "sluggish and sickly nature" brought on from winter.

Stop by Town Hall on weekends for a little Contra Dancing by the New Old Stock String Band.

Kid's activities include making a pot out of recycled newspaper to plant their very own heirloom variety Wren's Egg bean to take home to watch and grow.

After watching, or helping, costumed presenters scrub floors, clean stoves, wash clothes and beat rugs all day, stop by the Edison Homestead and test your cleaning skills against family and friends in "On Your Mop, Set, Go!" and "sweep" the competition for the win!

Spring is the best time of year for kite flying, also a traditional rite of spring. Come on down to Town Hall for a few fun activities to welcome the season.

The Firestone farm house and barn will be closed through July 1 due to landscaping and drainage upgrades. However, Spring Farm Days activities will still take place out in the Firestone fields and throughout the rest of the village.

Admission is $14 for adults (13 and older), $13 for senior citizens (62 and older), and $9 for children aged 5-12. Children 4 and under are admitted free. Call (313) 271-1620 for information.

The couple will wed in May at St. Robert Bellarmine in Redford.

Lobb

Donald and Marcelene Lobb will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary April 22 with an open house at Newburgh United Methodist Church in Livonia. The couple wed April 14, 1951 at United Methodist Church in Linden.

The open house will be given by their children: Candace and Dick Glidden of Yorktown, Virginia; Steve and Becky Lobb of Commerce Township; David and Ellen Lobb of Westland; Julie and Mike Duckworth of Apex, North Carolina; and Douglas Lobb of Wayne.

They have eight grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Moon

On March 27, 1951 family and friends gathered for the wedding ceremony and reception of Benny and Claire Moon at Central Woodward Christian Church in Detroit. The couple honeymooned in Washington D.C.

For their 50th wedding anniversary Benny and Claire visited Little Rock Baptist (formerly C.W.C.C.) and had lunch at the Whitney in Detroit with their son Paul and Benny's sister Shirley Moon Koebbe.

The couple have lived in the Livonia area for 45 years and have three son's Brian and Andrea Moon of Bloomfield, Glen Moon of Livonia, and Marc and Julie Moon of St. Louis, Miss. The family also includes four grandchildren: Shayna, 10; Miles, 4; Tyler, 8; and Justin 3.

Benny and Claire received well wishes and gifts from their grandchildren and Benny's sister in George and Florida, Helen Bradley, Mary Fiorini and Sue Earp.

Benny retired from the Livonia Public School in 1986 as an elementary school band teacher and he currently enjoys performing in the dance band at Livonia Senior Center.

Claire worked as a clerk for the city of Detroit, Minnesota Fabrics (Hancock) and Anne's Fabrics of Northville.

To celebrate their anniversary they look forward to traveling to Washington D.C. in the spring.

Henry-Van DeWater

Edward and Bernadine Henry of Westland announce the marriage of their daughter, Jennifer, to David C. Van DeWater Jr.

The bride is a 2000 graduate of Madonna University, where she earned a bachelor's degree in nursing. She is a registered nurse at the University of Michigan Hospital in Ann Arbor.

Her husband, son of David and Jean Van DeWater of Garden City, is a 2000 graduate of Schoolcraft College, where he earned an associates degree in applied science and mechanical design. He is a computer-aided designer at Charlevoix Products Inc. in Plymouth.

The couple wed Feb. 23 at St. Dunstan's Catholic Church in Garden City before the Rev. Don Demmer.

The bride was attended by Julie Erickson, Kim Henry, Caroline Moore, Cheryl Tarnowski, Jodi McCarty and Julia Van DeWater.

The groom was attended by Jesse Popp, Andy Jaskolski, John Moore, Neil Marano, Dennis Proctor and Paul Fisher.

They received guests at Burton Manor in Livonia and took a trip to Montego Bay, Jamaica. The couple will make their home in Garden City.

Help your kids make smart choices

Jane meets John, a friend of a friend, at her youth group. They find they have a lot in common and enjoy each other's company. At the end of the evening, John invites Jane to his school's prom. During the prom Jane meets more of John's friends, one of whom invites them to a post-prom party at his house.

SUZANNE HAMILTON

When they get to the home they discover that the friend's parents are not home, that he didn't tell them he was going to have a party, and that there is alcohol and marijuana. John tells Jane he didn't know this was the case in advance but that it's OK with him because they'll just continue the good time they were having at the prom.

What should Jane do? Perhaps a more important question is what would your teen do? Would he or she know how to handle this unexpected situation?

Teen guidelines

According to the Michigan Resource Center, there are some guidelines for parents whose teens are attending parties during this busy social time which can help keep them safe. They are:

- Know the name, address, phone number and parents' names of the party-giver where your child will be.
- Be clear with the driving arrangements and make sure your teen knows you'd rather pick him/her up, no matter where or when, than drive with someone who's been drinking or using other drugs.
- Contact the parents of the party-giver to verify information, to make sure a parent will be present and that no alcohol or other drugs will be present.
- Explain that your teen won't be punished for others' behavior if the party gets out of hand and discuss what you expect him or her to do if the situation becomes unsafe or uncomfortable.
- Let your teen know that you must be informed if the party's location is changed – before he or she goes to the new location.
- Greet your teen when he or she returns home to ensure that he or she is all right.
- If your teen is invited to stay overnight, check with the host parents to confirm that it's OK with them and that they will be home.

Parties galore

There are many party opportunities going on now, beginning with proms through graduation. With just a little advance planning and sharing of your expectations, both parents and teens will have a better time when the teens are out with friends. Both parents and teens will feel more comfortable that they will be able to handle any situation that arises.

The Michigan Resource Center provides a Michigan Parent Handbook with more information, including a parent's job description, parents' legal responsibility, danger signs of problems with alcohol and other drugs and information on treatment.

Susanne Hamilton is a licensed professional counselor and family life educator who operates Impact Counseling in Farmington Hills. For a free copy of the parents' handbook, contact her at 473-3145.

Plymouth's NorthRidge Church caters to kids

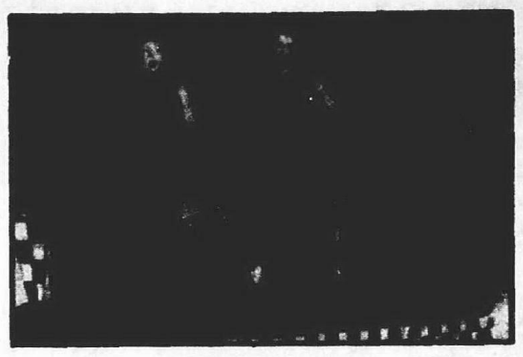
Just driving by the mammoth structure that comprises Plymouth's NorthRidge Church, it's easy to see the parish is growing.

Expanding beyond its former boundaries, church grounds are under construction to accommodate its core of parishioners, these days reaching up to 4,000 for a Saturday evening Mass. But ask Wayne Kurtycz, pastor of communications and front-line ministries, and he'll gladly tell you much of the expansion caters to children.

Each spring it becomes more and more evident — NorthRidge embraces families. Last week the church hosted two well-attended performances of the Kid's Choir's Amazing Memory Maze, a high-caliber musical production that enlists the efforts of 300 children, from kindergarten to sixth grade. The annual event brought in an audience of more than 2,000 to an auditorium that makes a perfect training ground for the Broadway-bound.



Modern facility

"It's state-of-the-art and it's in our community," said Kurtycz, a Canton resident who has worked at NorthRidge for 11 years.

He described it as a "Nickelodeon Bible game show brought to life." From characters like Batman and the Crocodile Hunter to impersonating the Motown sounds of The Supremes and The Temptations, the show incorporates biblical messages with a touch of humor and grace.

"I think they (learn) that church can be fun and relevant," said Kurtycz of the program.

Roxann Powell has been directing the children's choir for 10 years. She began with 10-20 kids who performed an annual pageant and turned it into a full-scale production. "It's got everything theatrical," she said. "You can't beat it."

Working with two additional directors and a staff of teachers and assistants for 12 weeks, Powell incorporated song, choreography, crafts and Bible study into an event that makes the congregation proud.

"Golly, she's a drill sergeant," said Kurtycz with a laugh. "The kids love her."

Powell and her staff reworked a concept from an older program to create Memory Maze, a behind-the-scenes look at a kids' television show. The participants made up members of three teams: Way, Truth and Life. The Special Friends Choir, seven developmentally challenged children, joined in song.

"The kids are just awesome," said Powell.

Kurtycz believes now more than ever church is an important component in the lives of children. "In a world where our children are afraid to go to school, we work hard to find a safe place for kids," he said. Kurtycz's own daughter is a member of the choir.

Children across the community may join this choir. The church requires that their families attend, but no one has to be a member to participate. Rehearsals for the spring performance will begin next year.

"It's just a great, wholesome way kids can learn about God," said Kurtycz. "They can also learn morals and what it takes to do a job professionally."

According to Powell, 350 children enrolled in the Kid's Choir and 286 sang in the show. "It gives them an outlet," she said. "Kids love to sing."

Children who want to be involved in next year's production can sign up in January 2001. For more information on children's programs at the church, call (734) 414-7777.

"The kids are lifted up here," said Kurtycz.

New Canton church starts small, has big aspirations

BY KIMBERLY A. MORTSON

The Rev. David Washington believes in affirmations. So much so that he found himself moving his wife and three children back to Michigan, from California last August, because there were so many signs from God it was the right thing to do.

A Ford Motor Co. employee, Washington has been ministering for two years after receiving guidance and leadership from Pastor John Wells of Temecula, Calif.

Wells, who started his own ministry from his West coast home with only seven people, boasts a congregation of more than 500 of which Washington and his family were once members.

> "While there are many great churches in town, we believe we are the most unique church that Canton has ever seen."

> — Canton Christian Fellowship

"Pastor Wells helped me understand that God had given me a vision to minister," said Washington. "I've been involved in everything from sports to being an entrepreneur. I have a real energy and passion for people."

The Canton resident said he eventually began to realize it was his mission to start a ministry. "I wanted to start somewhere warm and I was telling God some place like Dallas, Texas or [illegible]. I sensed the call that the time had [illegible] to return home to be near to our family[illegible]ton who was raised in Southfield. Jacquelyn Jackson, a Canton resident, heard about CCF through a friend. She said she had been looking for a new place to worship because the doctrine being taught at her previous church was "not in agreement" with what she was accustomed.

"In other words, there was conflict in what they were teaching and what I had been taught. And of course, what I have been taught was supported by scripture ... the Holy Bible," said Jackson.

Support system

Washington considers Pastor Ronald Arthur of Springhill Missionary Baptist Church in Detroit his spiritual leader and mentor. It was Arthur who expressed an interest in seeing a mission church of Springhill originate in Canton. Springhill now supports CCF both spiritually and financially, said the Canton pastor.

The Washington family: Rev. David Washington poses with his wife Errica, Gabriella, 5; Hannah, 3; and Faith, 9 months. The Southfield natives moved to Canton from California last year to found Canton Christian Fellowship.

"We look forward to being part of Canton and surrounding communities for a long time. While there are many great churches in town, we believe we are the most unique church that Canton has ever seen. While we welcome everyone who wants to become a part of this work that God has ordained, we believe that we will meet specific needs and interests of an ever-changing Canton population," stated Washington. "Erikseon will be our home for worship for quite some time."

The Canton pastor is the son of Liz and David Washington Sr. of Farmington Hills. "He is my greatest mentor and a huge supporter," said Washington of is father who is an associate minister at Davison Ave. Baptist Church in Detroit.

Time for a change

A 1989 graduate of Brother Rice High School, Washington attended Iowa State University on a basketball scholarship. Five years later he found himself graduating from Cornerstone University (formerly Grand Rapids Baptist) where he received a bachelor's degree in business/marketing in 1994. Later that year he was hired by Ford Motor Co. for a sales and marketing position. The company relocated him to California in 1996 where he lived until returning to Michigan last fall.

Currently Washington is pursuing a master's of Divinity at Michigan Theological Seminary in Plymouth, is married to his high school sweetheart Errica, and they are raising their three daughters Gabriella, 5; Hannah, 3; and Faith, 9 months.

Now that Washington has established the foundation of his ministry, he's focusing on finding ways to minister and teach in a way that's "relevant and applies to their daily lives." "I'm intent on building a ministry with a child and family focus," said Washington. "We also hope to focus on bringing men into the church. African American men, less today than in past history, are attending church. I hope to show them through bible study or the church setting that it's okay to be in church."

Jackson, 41, attends both Bible study and worship service.

"I feel that if I want to live a victorious Christian life, I need both services. Bible study, to do just that, spend time studying God's word so that I may know how to live — and worship service to praise Him and serve others. If there's a reader out there looking for a place of worship in the Canton area, I invite you to come and worship with us at Canton Christian Fellowship where you will be welcomed with open arms and loved unconditionally," said Jackson.

Canton Christian Fellowship has a non-denomination focus. If you are interested in attending call (734) 414-0856. Tuesday Bible Study begins at 7 p.m. Sunday worship service, 10:30 a.m. Sunday School and/or new members orientation 9 a.m. Eriksson Elementary School is located at 1275 Haggerty Road (between Ford Road and Cherry Hill) in Canton.

What We Need In Life...

For someone to be content, joyful and at peace in this life, they need the following: faith and trust in God, to love and be needed, meaningful work, and something to look forward to. One could argue that this is only the tip of the iceberg, and that there are many other things that should be included if we are to be content with our lives, such as good health, money etc. There are relatively few people in life with perfect health or a lot of money, but true happiness is indeed a blessing from God. Our awareness and gratitude for all the good things that have been given to us should bring joy and happiness to our hearts, and we should always give thanks to our Heavenly Father for how much He loves us..

May the God of hope fill you with joy and peace in believing, so that by the power of the holy spirit you may abound in hope. R.S.V. Romans 15:13

Prize package includes round trip coach air transportation (from major international airport nearest winner's U.S. residence) to London, England, accommodations for five (5) nights, two (2) five-day subway and bus passes in London, two (2) theatre tickets, city tours to select from, a day at a spa, and $4,250 cash. Travel must be booked at least sixty (60) days in advance through Sponsor's travel agency and travel must be completed by December 31, 2002. Theatre tickets, spa services and city tours are based on availability. Travel and accommodations are subject to change/availability and certain restrictions may apply. Winner and travel companion must travel on the same itinerary. If winner cannot take the trip as designated by the Sponsor the prize will be forfeited. Approximate retail value of the prize is $10,000. Winner may be required to execute an affidavit of eligibility and publicity release prior to receiving prize. Winner and travel companion must sign a release of liability prior to departure. Winner and travel companion will be required to show valid photo identification and proof of age at departure. Applicable taxes and all other expenses not specifically mentioned in these Official Rules are the responsibility of eligible winner and travel companion. If there are solely the winner's responsibility. 5. Conditions of Participation: By accepting the prize, winner releases and agrees to hold harmless Thomasville Furniture Industries, Inc., its parent subsidiaries, affiliated companies, advertising, promotion and production agencies and all of their officers, directors, employees and agents from any liability for any injury, loss, or damage to persons, including death, and property that occurs in connection with participation in any contest related to this sweepstakes. Winner grants [illegible] or publication in any contest related to this sweepstakes. Winner grants [illegible] as confirm this grant in writing. 6. Limitations of Liability: Sponsor is not responsible for any injury, loss or damage of any kind caused by prize or participation in this sweepstakes or use of any prize won, including but not limited to personal injury, death, property damage, or damages based on publicity rights, defamation or invasion of privacy. Sponsor is not responsible for any typographical or other error in the printing of the offer or administration of the sweepstakes or in the announcement of the prize. Sponsor reserves the right to cancel or suspend this sweepstakes should virus, bugs, tampering, unauthorized intervention, fraud, technical failures or any other causes beyond the control of Sponsor corrupt the administration, security or proper play of the sweepstakes. In such case, Sponsor may select the winner from all eligible entries received prior to the action taken by Sponsor. Any attempt by any person to deliberately undermine the legitimate operation of the sweepstakes may be a violation of criminal and civil law, and should such an attempt be made, Sponsor reserves the right to seek damages from any such person to the fullest extent permitted by law. Sponsor's failure to enforce any term of these Official Rules shall not constitute a waiver of that provision. 7. RELIGION CALENDAR

EARTH DAY
Universalist Unitarian Church of Farmington will welcome guest speaker Brett Levin, community education coordinator for the Clinton River Watershed Council will be sharing his first-hand experiences regarding the Clinton River ecosystem. His organization is dedicated to helping the river "turn the corner" from the damage it has sustained throughout the years. Join us Sunday, April 22 as we learn more about why our lives, so very often, go as the rivers flow. Services, Sunday school, and nursery at 9 and 11 am. 25301 Halsted Rd. (N. of Grand River). Call (248) 478-7272 or www.uufarmington.org

REGIMENT BAND
Sunday, April 22, "The 5th Michigan Regiment Band" will help lead worship with their music at the 8:45 a.m. and 11:00 a.m. worship services at First Presbyterian Church. The 5th Michigan Regiment Band was once known as the 5th Michigan Infantry Band. For 108 years, from 1865 - 1973, it was just a memory. Then as a State of Michigan Bicentennial project it was recreated in the form of the Fifth Michigan Regiment Band. In keeping with the authenticity of the Civil War "field" regimental bands, the present band consists of musicians, color guard, and support personnel. The band's repertoire of the 1860s includes marches, polkas, schottisches, waltzes, and songs arranged for the group by Lt. Col. Guy Smith, Conductor. Visitors are welcome. The Church is located at the northwest corner of Eleven Mile and Farmington Roads. Call (248) 474-6170.

JEWISH ACHIEVEMENTS
The sisterhood of Congregation Beit Kodesh will meet at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 24 at the synagogue (31840 W. Seven Mile) in Livonia. Guest speaker, Louis Schneider will speak on Jewish Achievements. The public is welcome. Refreshments will be served. Call Rae Offerman (248) 474-8051.

MOMS IN TOUCH INT'L
Moms In Touch International will host an informational/coffee meeting will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, April 26, for moms or grandmothers interested in meeting weekly to pray their children and schools. The interdenominational group meets at Grace Christian Fellowship on Munger Street in Livonia, west of Middlebelt and south of Six Mile. Call Linda (734) 762-7093 or Karen (734) 397-2771 for details.

FLOWER SALE
St. Maurice Parish (32765 Lyndon in Livonia) will host their annual flower sale. Orders are being taken from now through April 29. There is a wide variety of flats of flowers along with hanging baskets, patio tubs, and a hanging bag of flowers. Pickup of flowers is scheduled for May 11 and May 12, right before Mother's Day. These are great flowers from a quality nursery. Call Sharon for an order form (734) 261-3877 or fax (734) 421-5307.

REMARRIED MINISTRIES
The Remarried Ministries of Ward Presbyterian Church in Northville will offer an 8-week workshop equipping remarried and engaged couples with the tools to build successful marriages and families. Meets from 7-8:15 p.m. in room A102 beginning April 4th and every Wednesday after. There is no cost and free child care is provided. Call Stacy Cole (248) 374-5912 (40000 Six Mile Road).

BIBLE STUDY
A bible study on the book of Revelation will be offered at Timothy Lutheran Church (8820 Wayne Road, Livonia) over six Thursdays beginning April 19 using Augsburg Fortress curriculum written by Richard Jeske. Please register ahead of time so that we have enough materials. Call (734) 427-2290.

LET'S TALK
"Let's Talk" a five-part workshop series designed for interfaith couples where one partner is Jewish will be offered on Wednesdays from May 2-30 at the Max M. Fisher Federation Building (6735 Telegraph Road) in Bloomfield Hills. The charge is $5 per session. Childcare will be provided with advance reservations. Call (800) 397-4876 or (248) 645-7860.

Meteors blaze

The Livonia Meteors U-15 boys soccer team won the "Kick in the Bluegrass" soccer tournament held in Versailles, KY, March 23-25.

Team members include: Steven Abernethy, Brien Baumgartner and Jason Kliman of Livonia; Travis Augustine, Brian Kutnick and Brandon Ross of Canton; Dan Curmi and Ryan Ulfig of Plymouth; Jared Averbuch, Masato Kihira and Gustan Taylor of West Bloomfield; Derek Golla and Jeff Turk of Farmington Hills; Greg Ekmeian and Jerry Hall of Westland; Phil Kozlowski of Dearborn Heights; and Eric Meguiar of White Lake.

The team is coached by Nick Augustine and assisted by Chris Ross.

13 Elite wins

The Crusaders Juniors Volleyball 13 Elite team playing out of Madonna University went unbeaten in the Siena Heights 14 tournament on Saturday.

Team players include Marissa Bober, Katelin Bonk, Teresa Coppiellie, Emily Hunter, Madison McCoy, Lauren Price and Nicole Rotondo.

The team is coached by Kim Price.

Biniecki wins

Senior Jared Biniecki (Canton) of Central Michigan won the steeplechase with a time of 9:22.28 as the Chippewas finished second in the Michigan Triangular April 14 at the University of Michigan's Ferry Field.

T-ball registration

The City of Plymouth's Recreation Division continues registration for its 5 & 6-year-old T-Ball League through April 20 at the recreation office in the Plymouth Cultural Center.

Children must have birth dates between July, 1994, and July, 1996. Birth certificates are required.

Registration will be during office hours, 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

The season runs seven weeks, from June 23 through Aug. 11 with no games on July 7.

For more information, call the City Recreation Division at 455-6620 or visit the Web site: www. ci. plymouth.mi.us

Canton softball clinic

Plymouth Canton's softball team and coaches are hosting a clinic for girls ages seven and up from 12-4 p.m. Sat., May 5. Cost is $25.00.

The clinic features instruction in batting, fielding, throwing, base running, sliding and practice drills.

Participants are asked to arrive at Canton's softball field at 11:45 a.m. (Red dugouts, located behind Canton High School).

Gloves, softball cleats or athletic shoes and workout clothes (long pants if you plan to learn to slide) are necessary.

To register or for more information, call Colleen Brown 734-455-1614.

Golf season swinging open

On the way: The girls golf season is about to get into full swing, and Plymouth Canton's Christine Slupek, shown here making a shot last season, is one of several bright stars on the area scene. Salem and Canton's teams are both in action on Monday.

BY RICHARD L. BROOK

They were middle of the pack last season, but this year both Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem's golf coaches hope their teams can be leaders of the pack.

"I think we're going to be competitive," said coach Dan Riggs of Canton, whose squad is minus just one golfer from the team that went 6-6 last season and was seventh in the league. "I think we have a good chance of doing really well.

"It's a really competitive league. Livonia Stevenson, Northville and Livonia Churchill all figure to be strong. I think Churchill is ranked fourth in the state and they're in our division."

"We were above .500 last year (5-4)," Coach Rick Wilson of Salem said. "We were competitive. And I expect us to be competitive this year, I really do.

"I like the returning players we have. I like the freshmen."

Salem had a warmup match before this week's break, defeating Ann Arbor Huron, 218-222, April 9 at Leslie Park in Ann Arbor. Canton has not played but will open its season Monday against Farmington. Salem returns to action the same day at Fellows Creek against Westland John Glenn.

The Rocks' low shooter against the River Rats was junior Danielle March while senior captain Mollie Hedges and freshman Ashley Burgess each recorded 52s.

Hedges is a three-year starter following in the spikeprints of her sister Jessica, a recent Salem golf captain.

Wilson is pushing Hedges to set high goals for herself, such as All-Western Lakes and All-Area honors.

The coach of the Salem golf squad is pleased with the development of March and points to her as an example for others to follow.

"She has pretty good potential," Wilson said. "She played on the PowerBilt tour during the summer. She got pretty serious about golf last year.

"(Playing a lot in the summer) is always my pet peeve with the girls. She went out and did that, so I was pretty happy about that."

Another key Salem golfer is junior Kelly Tamme, whose sister Kim was the team's captain last season. Kelly Tamme is in her third season on the team.

Others Wilson is counting on to be main performers include junior Jenny Schwan, sophomore Lindsay Young and the freshman Burgess.

"She (Burgess) shot 52 in her first varsity match, so I'm pleased with that.

"Those are my top six golfers right now but it's early; there could be some movement in and out over the next few weeks. There are a couple other freshman I like and a couple of other returning players such as sophomore Doris Wu who are pushing for spots. Wu might play in the next varsity match."

It's a busy week for Salem as the Rocks host Farmington on their home course, St. Johns, on Wednesday and then play in the Brighton Invitational on Friday.

Canton is in a similar mode as far as competition is concerned. The Easter break backed up the schedule to where the team will have a match nearly every other day from here on out.

The Chiefs have four matches this week, three the following and four the week after that.

It wasn't just the success his team enjoyed that made Farmington Unified coach Jeff Dwyer enjoy the recent high school gymnastics season so much.

"A lot of it was the attitude of the team," Dwyer said, adding the girls on his team are serious, dedicated gymnasts committed to excellence.

Having good captains is necessary to provide leadership for their peers and to assist the coach, he said.

Farmington had three of them, according to Dwyer, in the persons of junior Chelsea Keesling, senior Anne Lieberman and junior Kristin Ulewicz.

"That made a big difference," he said. "If you're the only one coaching and motivating, it's like a parent who keeps yelling at his or her kids. Pretty soon they tune you out.

"It helps to have other girls who know what it takes to teach and motivate during practice. They set down some rules on how to dress, how to warm up and how to compete.

"It keeps everyone on the same page, and now you have four coaches in the gym."

The Farmington girls also won the team spirit award at the state championship meet at Rockford High School in March.

"That was a huge honor," Dwyer said, adding this year's team had a lot of chemistry. "We talked about those things a lot, how we portrayed ourselves and sportsmanship.

"We had a few parents come up to us at the state meet and say they enjoyed watching us, how we handled ourselves and clapped for other teams. It was a very nice compliment for the team."

Dwyer added he enjoyed this year thoroughly and for good reason.

Farmington was third in the state meet — the best finish by a Farmington team since North Farmington was the runner-up in 1986.

Besides a winning dual-meet season, Farmington also was second in the Western Lakes Activities Association. Only Northville-Novi, the eventual state champion, was better.

As a fitting consequence of his team's success, Dwyer has been named Observerland Coach of the Year.

"We knew we had potential," he said. "When we got Sara (Hawkins) in January that put us in the top five.

"We would have been a few [off], and she made us a 145. We would've been a good team without her; Sara added the finishing touch."

Dwyer, 38, is a 1980 graduate of North Farmington who competed in gymnastics for the Raiders when they had a boys team, too.

After graduating from Western Michigan University, where he also was a member of the gymnastics team, Dwyer began coaching in 1986 and became the head coach at North in '96.

Dwyer, who teaches biology at Farmington High School, also credited assistant coaches Jenny Galbraith, Anne Jud, Erin Kaufman and Jeff Rubin for the success of this year's team.

"I had a team of real good people," Dwyer said, "and all that made it a great season."

Farmington is represented on the 2001 all-area team by three repeat selections — Keesling, Ulewicz and sophomore Clara Seymour — plus Hawkins.

Wayne-Westland Unified senior [illegible] and Plymouth Salem [illegible] also were named to the all-area team.

BY ED WRIGHT
STAFF WRITER

If the road to the 2001 Ontario Hockey League championship was a highway, the Plymouth Whalers would have been pulled over for speeding twice by now.

Like a Ferrari on cruise control, the Whalers swept their first two playoff series against Sarnia and Windsor, earning two weeks' worth of rest — and the respect of the remaining teams in the hunt for the trophy.

However, the road is about to get much steeper and treacherous as it leads to the home of Plymouth's opponent in the OHL Western Conference Finals, Erie, which earned home-ice advantage by racking up a league-high 102 points (43-11-10-6) during the regular season.

The Whalers compiled the second-highest point total (96) with their 43-15-5-5 record.

The best-of-seven series opens 7:30 p.m. Saturday at Erie. Game Two will be played Tuesday night at Compuware Arena (7:30 p.m.) before the series heads back to Erie for Game Three.

"That's the thing about the playoffs — the [illegible] you go, the tougher it gets," said Whalers coach Mike DeBoer. "Erie was the best team in the [illegible] during the regular season and they have [illegible]

Chelsea Keesling, Farmington Unified: A Division I gymnast, Keesling had an "awesome" state meet, according to Dwyer. She placed second on the balance beam (9.55) and ninth on bars (9.35), and she tied for 10th on floor exercise (9.25).

In all-around competition, Keesling was eighth at the Hartland regional (36.90) and eighth in the Western Lakes meet (35.925).

She averaged just under nine on vault and nine-plus in the other events; her average all-around score was 36.24.

"She really shines on beam," Dwyer said. "She makes it look like an art. She has a presence on the beam you can't teach. She has a style that's all her own.

"She's a great competitor who doesn't like to lose. It doesn't matter if she's hurting physically; when it comes time for the meet, she's always ready."

Clara Seymour, Farmington Unified: Seymour scored 9.2 on floor exercise and 9.0 on vault in the Division I state meet. At the regional, she was fifth in the all-around (36.875), third on beam and seventh on vault and bars.

In the WLAA championships, Seymour placed third on beam, sixth on bars and floor, seventh on vault; she tied for fifth in the all-around (36.975).

"When she walks in the gym, she lets the other girls know she's out for business," Dwyer said. "She's very intense and competitive. She's what I like think of as a warrior.

"Between her and Chelsea, the girls felt confident with them in the lineup. We always knew we were going to get quality attempts."

Sara Houchins, Farmington Unified: Houchins was a welcome addition when she joined the team in January upon her return from Texas where she had been training.

The Division I freshman was the highest-scoring all-arounder in the state team meet with a 37.65 total.

She scored 9.1 on vault, as did Keesling and Seymour, 9.45 on bars, 9.6 on beam and 9.5 on floor to lead Farmington to its third-place finish.

In the individual state meet, Houchins was sixth on bars (9.4), but an ankle injury kept her out of the floor exercise. She was Farmington's top all-arounder in the WLAA meet, finishing third (37.05).

"She has a ton of talent," Dwyer said. "She could challenge for the state title next year. She has more tricks up her sleeve that she just didn't throw this year."

Kristin Ulewicz, Farmington Unified: Ulewicz often provided the all-important fourth score that made Farmington a strong team.

A Division II gymnast, she placed sixth on beam and eighth on vault at the regional, qualifying for state in both events.

In the WLAA championships, Ulewicz was eighth in the all-around (34.025). She averaged mid eights on vault and low nines on beam and floor at the end of the season.

"You need four solid scores in each event, and she came through again," Dwyer said. "She's very consistent; she just does her job. We needed that score, or we wouldn't have been scoring in the 140s."

Nicole Simonian, Wayne-Westland: The John Glenn High senior was a Division II state all-around qualifier after finishing fourth in the Hartland regional with a score of 34.925.

She placed second at the regional in vault (9.0), fifth in the balance beam (8.775), and tied for seventh on floor exercise (8.9).

At the WLAA meet, Simonian took seventh in the all-around (34.025) after placing fifth on vault (8.75) and sixth on floor (8.95).

Her high scores for the year included all-around (35.35), floor (9.4), vault (9.0), uneven bars (8.9) and beam (8.85).

"Nicole puts her heart and soul into gymnastics," co-coach Katie Boogren said. "She is a very hard-working young lady.

"She is every coach's dream — a leader, a good listener and a responsible young lady. She was a big asset to the team for four years and will be missed by her teammates and coaches."

Michelle Wimberly, Livonia Unified: The senior was a Division I state qualifier in three events after finishing sixth at the regional in the uneven bars with an 8.725 and eighths in both the floor exercise (8.8) and vault (8.65).

She was seventh at the Hartland regional in the all-around (34.875).

In Division I at the WLAA meet, Wimberly took a 10th on floor (9.1).

Her best all-around showing came in a dual meet against Canton where she had a 35.65 with scores of 9.15 on bars, 9.1 on floor, and 8.7 on both beam and vault.

"Michelle is very dedicated to her sport and her team," Livonia Unified coach Christa Hinderliter said. "She always gave 110 percent. She's just a great role model. I never had to worry because she always gave a strong performance at every competition. She was very consistent."

Wimberly, headed to Eastern Michigan University, will be a part of the six-member Michigan National High School Gymnastics team, which will compete May 25-26 in Madison, Wis.

Mary Moreau, Livonia Unified: The sophomore did not compete in gymnastics for three years, but returned to the sport when the Livonia Public Schools formed a unified team.

And Moreau had squad a year as she earned Division II All-State honors with a ninth-place finish in the vault at the state meet with an 8.795.

At the Hartland regional, Moreau took fourth in the vault (8.8) and sixth on beam (8.725) to qualify for the state meet in those events.

In the Western Lakes meet, Moreau finished fifth in the all-around (35.1) after gaining third on vault (8.9), fifth on beam (8.95) and eighth on bars (8.5).

"Mary's a hard worker who is eager to improve her skills," Hinderliter said. "When she gets into the gym she develops a strong work ethic."

And old injury prevented Moreau's from straddling on the uneven bars, but she adjusted her routine to earn top 10 honors at both the regional and league meets.

"Once she got her strength back, she was phenomenal," Hinderliter said. "She'll come back next year and be able to do even more tricks."

Bethany Bartlett, Plymouth Salem: Bartlett's summer training paid off right from the start of the season.

She was the Rocks' only Division I gymnast and qualified for the state meet in the all-around.

"Bethany has become a great competitor over the years," Salem coach Melissa Hopson said. "She has beautiful dance and is a very hard-working gymnast."

She stood out at the regionals, placing fourth on vault at 9.15, third on bars at 8.90, fourth on the beam with a score of 9.25 and fourth on floor with a 9.20. Her all-around of 36.50 placed her third.

Her season highs were 9.20 in vault, 9.45 on bars, 9.40 on beam, 9.25 on floor and 36.90 all-around.

Melissa Drake, Plymouth Salem: Drake was unable to compete two seasons ago due to a foot injury that required surgery. She came back and qualified for the state meet in the all-around, where she finished sixth with a 35.70 score.

She scored a 9.05 on the bars in the state meet, was also at 9.05 on the beam and scored a 9.10 in floor exercise.

"She was such a focused gymnast this year," Hopson said. "She gave her all in practices and competitions. Melissa is one of our captains for 2001-2002."

Her high scores this season were 9.00 on vault, 9.25 on bars, 9.30 on the beam and 9.25 on floor. Her best all-around total was 38.85.

At regionals she was fifth on bars at 8.625, tied for seventh with an 8.90 on floor and sixth all-around at 34.55.

April Aquinto, Plymouth Salem: Aquinto came back from serious knee surgery to qualify for the state meet in the all-around. She finished seventh in the state in floor exercise with a 9.05 score.

At the regional, she was second on the beam with a 9.175, fourth on floor at 9.05 and fifth in all-around at 34.70.

Her high scores for the season were an 8.60 on vault, 8.80 on bars, 9.20 on beam, 9.45 on floor and 35.15 in the all-around.

"April is a talented, gutsy, hard-working gymnast who helped our team out greatly this season," Hopson said. "She will be our other captain for the 2001-2002 season."

Blasting out: Plymouth Canton's Meghan Stewart, a junior, will be one of the players coach Dan Riggs is relying upon this season. She's pictured in action last year.

"I'm looking forward to the season," Riggs said. "The girls have been working hard for five weeks."

His team was had more inside work than outside since practice began "but I think we're in the same position as every other team," he said. "I think we'll be okay."

Canton's two seniors are the captains, fourth-year player Christine Slupek, and Katie Herbeck.

"They have experience and I think they'll be the team leaders," Riggs said.

Juniors Jenn Travers and Meghan Stewart lend strength and future senior leadership while sophomore returnee Meghan Depp is also solid. Freshmen who have shown well for the Chiefs are Beth Treadwell and Heather Hugeshian.

Riggs believes Slupek, who missed making the All-Western Lakes team by one stroke last season, is showing good determination to make the team this season.

Both Riggs and Wilson see nothing but better times ahead for girls golf.

"It's real competitive (in the Western Lakes) and all that does is help all the schools," Riggs said. "I'm looking forward to it. It's going to be a nice season."

"Golf is a popular sport today," Wilson said. "We had 30-40 kids try out for our boys team in the fall. And a lot tried out for the girls team.

"The key thing is if kids participate and compete in the summer. The boys do, now the girls are starting to pick up on it."

who were number-one picks in the NHL draft.

"Our team has some confidence now after our success in the first two rounds, but we also know that we're going to have to play our best hockey if we're going to advance to the finals."

The two first-round picks DeBoer referred to are Erie forwards Brad Boyes (Toronto) and Nikita Alexeev (Tampa Bay).

Boyes paced the OHL in scoring during the regular season with 90 points (45 goals and 45 assists) despite playing in just 59 games.

He has continued his torrid scoring pace into the playoffs, lighting the lamp eight times to go along with 13 assists in 10 games.

Alexeev was the Otters' seventh-leading point-getter during the season, but he has stepped it up in the playoffs, accounting for six goals and seven helpers.

Erie's deep and potent offense also features forwards Jason Baird (30 goals, 58 assists) and Cory Pecker (41 goals, 38 assists).

When their offense did blow a fuse this season — something that rarely happened — the Otters relied on dependable goalie Adam Munro to bail them out.

Munro kick-saved his way to a 26-6-6 record thanks to a .920 save percentage.

The Whalers do have at least one thing going for them: They're the only team that managed to compile a winning record (3-2-1) against the Otters this season. Included in Plymouth's head-to-head success were two wins and a tie in Erie.

"It's a tough arena to play in if you're the visitor," DeBoer said. "It's an older building — probably 30 or 40 years old — and their fans can get pretty vocal."

If they plan on playing in the OHL's final series for the second-consecutive year, the Whalers will need a huge series from veteran center Stephen Weiss, who leads the team with 15 playoff points (five goals and 10 assists). Tomas Kurka (12 playoff points) and Chad Wiseman (10 points) will also be counted on heavily by DeBoer's well-rested team.

"When you have nine days off between series like we have now, it's up to the coaching staff to try something different things in practice to keep the players sharp," DeBoer said. "We had a similar lay-off (10 days) between our first and second series this year and I thought we came out a little flat in the first game against Windsor.

"Fortunately, Erie has been off quite a while, too.

"Neither team should have an advantage."

DeBoer said his team is as healthy as you can expect a team to be after 68 regular-season and 10 playoff games.

"I don't think you're ever going to be 100 percent healthy at this point in the season, but, other than a few bumps and bruises, we're doing all right healthwise," he confirmed.

Chiefs, Rocks finding out that baseball action is hard to find

BASEBALL

A split and a snafu was all Plymouth Canton could get out of a few days worth of baseball.

But that's better than Plymouth Salem could manage. All it got out of its weekend slate was the snafu.

Canton went to Dearborn on Saturday and split a doubleheader with the Pioneers.

Matt Staley pitched a three-hitter in a 12-2 first-game victory but the Chiefs were done in by an unearned run in dropping the second game, 2-1.

"The first game," Coach Scott Dickey said, "actually the whole day, that may have been the worst we've played in a couple of years. We just did not play very well.

"Our pitching was excellent, though. An error cost us an unearned run. Staley pitched a great game.

But the second game, in my opinion, it was embarrassing."

More than embarrassed, Dickey was annoyed by Allen Park's canceling its April 12 game, a contest designed to give the Chiefs some much-needed competition heading into Easter break.

"They canceled it because their field was unplayable," Dickey said. "However ours was playable.

"Yet they only sent their junior varsity here to play us instead of their varsity. We were upset about that because usually varsity sports take precedence over junior varsity.

"I think Salem had the same thing happen to them. They scheduled a doubleheader for the break, then (the other team) sent their kids away."

Coach Dale Rumberger of the Rocks confirmed that sad tale.

Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook-Kingswood begged out of its Saturday doubleheader with Salem because it couldn't field a team.

That ill-timed misfortune was compounded when Redford Union and Salem mutually agreed to call off Tuesday's scheduled doubleheader because of too-cold weather. That mean Salem went to its annual visit to Cincinnati not having played for more than a week.

"We'll reschedule the Redford Union games for later," Rumberger said. But he was annoyed with Cranbrook-Kingswood.

"They called and said they couldn't field a team," the Salem coach said. "Yet he was the one who called me to play the games some time ago. I wanted to play because we hadn't played since Monday (April 9).

"He called either Wednesday or Thursday to say too many of his guys were going on spring break."

Canton came out of its split at Dearborn with a 5-2 record.

Staley (2-0) survived four walks by allowing just three hits and striking out five. Good hitting support didn't hurt as Canton staked him to a 4-0 lead in the second and a 9-0 lead after the top of the fourth.

Jay Sofen went 2-for-4 with an RBI, a stolen base and two runs, Oliver Wolcott scored twice and drove in a run while Russ Caid had a double, drove in three runs and scored twice. Staley had a hit and an RBI.

Mark Hansen went 3-for-4 with a double and two runs while Nick Musselman went 2-for-5 with a double, a run scored and three RBI. Brian Rossow had an RBI, stole a base and scored a run.

In the second game, Dave Latin (0-1) started and drew the loss despite pitching well. He gave up four hits, walked three and struck out four. Only one of the two runs he gave up was earned.

"They scored two in the fifth," Dickey said. "We made one error and it cost us. We only had four hits and they were scattered."

The Chiefs scored in their fifth when Chris Pirch reached on an error, was bunted to second and eventually scored on Sofen's fielder's choice.

Dearborn came right back with a hit, an error, a sacrifice and a two-run base hit.

"We were just very unenthusiastic the second game," Dickey said. "That was discouraging for us because of the expectations we have for our team. Still, we're 5-2 overall and it was a non-league game."

Agape 15, BH Roeper 12: The Wolverines outslugged their opponent on April 12.

Josh Anthony picked up the victory with five innings of work in which he gave up just three earned runs. He struck out nine and walked three.

David Donaldson went 2-for-5 with a double, triple, walk, five stolen bases and a sacrifice. He scored three times and drove in two runs. Michael Bommarito went 3-for-5, scored three times and stole two bases.

Robert Hough went 3-for-5 and scored three runs, Paul Anleitner went 4-for-5 with a double plus an RBI while Mike Ossana went 2-for-5 with two runs and two RBI. Jenson Killgrove went 2-for-2 with a double.

Madonna baseball team has severe case of the splits

Madonna University put a nice finish on the first game of its baseball double-header, but couldn't get started in the second.

The result last Saturday was a 5-4 victory over visiting Spring Arbor in a 10-inning first game, but a 4-0 defeat in the second half of the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference twinbill.

The split left the Crusaders (10-19) with a 7-9 WHAC mark while the Cougars (20-12) were left at 10-6.

Joe Pruchnik (Lutheran Westland) opened the 10th inning of the first game with a single and moved to second on a sacrifice bunt. Eric Williamson pinch-ran for Pruchnik and Josh Odom (Livonia Churchill) was walked intentionally to set up a force.

With two outs, Mark Cole (Redford Catholic Central) grounded a ball up the middle that Spring Arbor's shortstop bobbled and Williamson alertly sprinted home from second to score the game-winner.

Garden City's Devin Cole (1-1) worked the final five outs to pick up the victory. He did not allow a hit or a walk.

Corey Farner started, allowing a run on four hits for his four innings, and was followed in relief by Jeremy Stevens and Mike Hayes (Westland John Glenn).

Madonna took a 2-0 lead in the third as Bryan DeCaire (Livonia Clarenceville) led off with a double and moved to third when Nick Dedeluk (Redford Thurston) legged out a double to left center. Odom lashed a two-run double two outs later.

Spring Arbor scored single runs in the fourth and fifth to tie the game at two and took a 4-2 lead in the top of the ninth. However Madonna scratched out the tying runs in the bottom half of the inning on hits, bunts, walks and a wild pitch.

In the second game, Spring Arbor jumped out to a 2-0 first-inning lead and added one more in the seventh for its four runs.

Westland John Glenn's Dale Hayes (2-4) went the distance and allowed six hits in the loss. He walked two and struck out four.

Greg Young had a pair of base hits for the Crusaders, who only managed four hits off Jason O'Neal.

On April 13, Madonna visited Tri-State University and earned another split.

The Thunder pounded out 11 hits to take a 9-2 decision in the opener but the Crusaders unleashed a 10-hit attack in the nightcap for a 12-2 victory.

Plymouth Salem's Ryan Andrzejewski (1-2) absorbed the loss in the opener, going all six innings and giving up nine earned runs. He walked one and struck out three.

Madonna had seven hits but was only able to turn them into two runs. Dave Kwaitkowski (Plymouth Canton) and Mark Cole each had two hits. Cole drove in both Crusader runs, one with a solo home run.

Redford Union's Joel Halliday (3-3) worked all five innings of the mercy shortened second game. He gave up seven hits but spaced them out. He struck out one and didn't walk a batter.

Mark Cole lead the offense with three hits, including a double, and three RBI. Greg Young had a pair of doubles and three RBI.

Lady Crusaders need to find shelter from Thunders' lightning

The Lady Crusaders visited the Thunder at Tri-State, Ind., and came home with two losses.

Tri-State out-battled Madonna, 6-5, in 10 innings the first game Saturday and ripped the Crusaders in the second, 7-1.

The double loss left the Crusaders 12-23 overall and 5-10 in the Wolverine-Hoosier Athletic Conference. The Thunder is 19-18 overall, 5-7 in league action.

Tri-State erased a 2-0 Madonna lead in the first game by scoring four times in the third.

First baseman Pam Konwinski and second baseman Candace Morgan doubled to give the Lady Crusaders a 1-0 lead in the top of the second.

Konwinski knocked in the second Madonna run, scoring Kristy McDonald (Redford Thurston) who singled and advanced to third on a single by Meghan Quinn.

Madonna added two in the fifth to tie the score at 4-4.

Konwinski, Quinn and McDonald all had base hits, with Konwinski and Morgan driving in the runs. In the top of the sixth, Madonna took the lead when Stacie Wilson singled, was sacrificed to second by Devon Fletcher and scored on a single by Angela Litwin (Plymouth Canton).

Tri-State tied it in the last of the seventh.

Jenny Tenyer, in relief of Kristie Givens who worked the first 4 2/3 innings, took the loss. Tenyer allowed three hits in five innings.

In the second game, Madonna took a 1-0 lead, but surrendered three in the third and four more in the sixth.

Angela Litwin singled home the Crusaders' lone run in the second. Missy VanDoorn went all six innings and was touched for 13 hits. However three errors meant only three of the runs she allowed were earned.

On Friday, the Crusaders host Cornerstone University in WHAC action.

Victoria is delightful, expensive

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

I've read your column on the Internet and am a Canadian citizen. I am wondering whether you have any notion as to what are the most expensive cities to live in here – from a residential standpoint? I'm not going to tell you where I live because I might be living in one of those cities.

Your e-mail address doesn't reveal your city of residence, but if you live in Victoria, British Columbia (as your question seems to indicate), your costs of living are the highest in Canada. It's not a cheap city to buy residential real estate in, either. Only Vancouver has more-expensive residential real estate than Victoria.

Victoria is heavily populated with retirees who enjoy the relatively moderate climate and the beautiful scenery. Victoria is part of Vancouver Island and is near the state of Washington.

Tourism is the city's No. 1 industry. As in any prime location, there are a number of beautiful high-rise condominiums and apartments accentuating the inner harbor of Victoria.

There are also severe limitations and preconditions on new construction in order to protect the environment and to maintain the natural beauty of the island. This probably is one of the reasons real estate is so dear: high demand and relatively low supply.

If you are a flower enthusiast, Victoria is your Nirvana.

Robert M. Meisner is an Oakland County area attorney concentrating his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate, corporate law and litigation. You are invited to submit topics that you would like to see discussed in this column, including questions about condominiums, by writing Robert M. Meisner, 30200 Telegraph, Suite 467, Bingham Farms MI 48025. His e-mail address is bmeisner@mich. com, and his Web site is www. meisner-law. com This column provides general information and should not be construed as legal opinion.

Land. Property. Home.

Real estate means different things to different people. Some take a narrower view, others a broader regard. There's the stewardship angle, versus mine, mine, mine.

You have developed and undeveloped. Also, the building structure, itself, and the memories lived there. Real estate gets analyzed as a lifestyle and an investment.

"For as long as I could remember in childhood, I had associated home and family as one and the same," said Teri Spiro, president of the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors.

"It represents stability and security on a personal level. I can't imagine not having my own back yard.

"On a professional level, most of my clients view home ownership, especially that first purchase, as a real landmark in life," added Spiro, an associate broker with Century 21 Town & Country in West Bloomfield.

"It's a benchmark of their success. In a social situation, people ask 'What do you do for a living' and 'Where do you live,' " Spiro said.

Bedrock of country

"Home ownership is what this country is built on," said Robert E. Taylor Jr., president of the Birmingham Bloomfield Rochester South Oakland Association of Realtors and a Realtor with Weir, Manuel, Snyder & Ranke in Birmingham.

"Home ownership, land ownership – the way we deal with it in acquisition, registration – is different from when before the New World was founded," Taylor said. "Before that, it was owned by a very select few.

"It's not a Republican issue or a Democratic issue. It's an everybody issue, part of the American Dream," Taylor said.

"Real estate is the greatest invention in the world," said Jim Newton, president of the North Oakland County Board of Realtors.

"What other thing can you live in, raise a family in, own it, then it's worth more than you bought it and you used someone else's money to do it."

Newton is vice president of Realtor relations at Standard Federal Bank and is a licensed Realtor, appraiser and builder.

"When people have a stake in the economy, when the guaranty of property rights is a fundamental right of the society, then they have a real stake in the society," said Stephen J. Taglione, president of the Building Industry Association of Southeastern Michigan.

"They will fight to preserve it for themselves and for others," added Taglione, president of Westminster & Abbey Homes in Bingham Farms.

"They also proceed secure in the knowledge that because of these rights, their ambition will lead to a better quality of life for this generation as well as the next. There is purpose to their ambition."

What other's say

Here are some other voices and writings, a brief sampling of how land, property and home have been regarded over time:

■ "Men honor property above all else; it has the greatest power in human life." – Euripides, Greek dramatist, antiquity.

■ "Nor shall any person ... be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law... Nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law." – Amendments to U.S. Constitution, 1791 and 1868.

■ "Every man holds property subject to the general right of the community to regulate its use to whatever degree the public welfare may require it." –Theodore Roosevelt, U.S. president, speech, 1910.

■ "Every man has by nature the right to possess property as his own." – Pope Leo XIII, encyclical, 1891.

■ "The system of private property is the most important guaranty of freedom." – Friedrich August von Hayek, Austrian economist/author, 1944.

■ "When neither their property nor their honor is touched, the majority of men live content." – Nicolo Machiavelli, Italian philosopher/author, 1532.

■ "For a man's house is his castle." – Sir Edward Coke, English jurist/ statesman, 17th century.

■ "We abuse land because we regard it as a commodity belonging to us. When we see land as a community to which we belong, we may begin to use it with love and respect." – Aldo Leopold, naturalist, 1949.

■ "To own a bit of the ground, to scratch it with a hoe, to plant seeds and watch the renewal of life – this is ... the most satisfying thing a man can do." – Charles Dudley Warner, essayist, 1870.

■ " 'Mid pleasures and palaces though we may roam, Be it ever so humble, there's no place like home." – John Howard Payne, actor/ writer, 1823.

■ "If I were asked to name the chief benefit of a house, I should say: The house shelters daydreaming, the house protects the dreamer, the house allows one to dream in peace." – Gaston Bachelard, French scientist/ philosopher, 1958.

■ "A man travels the world over in search of what he needs and returns home to find it." – George A. Moore, novelist/critic, 1916.

■ "When someone tells you they've just bought a house, they might as well tell you they no longer have a personality. You can immediately assume so many things: that they're locked into jobs they hate; that they're broke; that they spend every night watching video; that they're 15 pounds overweight; that they no longer listen to new ideas. It's profoundly depressing." – Douglas Coupland, Canadian author, 1991.

■ "It takes a heap o' livin in a house t' make it a home." – Edgar A. Guest, poet, 1916.

■ "Home is the place where, when you have to go there, They have to take you in." – Robert Frost, poet, 1914.

MORTGAGE BYTE

TIM "TIMBO" PHILLIPS

In his book, "Seven Habits of Highly Successful People," Stephen Covey coaches his student readers to "Seek first to understand, then to be understood." This sage advice goes a long way in the mortgage loan origination business. Getting a clear picture of a client's objectives, desires and limitations can mean the difference between getting just a mortgage and acquiring a "perfect fit."

With today's vast array of mortgage products, a loan specialist can often tailor a loan to a borrower's specifications. Just as custom-fit clothing feels better and lasts longer than many off-the-rack selections, specialty loans can be a better investment. In many cases, having a broker tailor your loan to you can save you thousands of dollars.

Consider this common scenario. You are certain you will live in the new home you are buying for just five or six years because of a probable job transfer. You shop lenders like crazy, only to find the best-priced 30-year mortgages vary by just an eighth of a percent and by a couple hundred dollars on costs.

Luckily, you have a sharp loan officer who explains that since you won't need the loan for 30 years, you may benefit by opting for a seven-year ARM. You will have a 30-year loan that is fixed-rate for seven years then adjusts every year thereafter. Best of all, your interest rate beats the standard 30-year mortgages.

What if you have nearly perfect credit but you have little income. Go with a "stated income" loan. If you need to prove you make $80,000 per year to afford a home that suits you, we simply say (within reason) that's what you make. Lenders assess slightly higher interest rates for such loans, but if you are not otherwise able or willing to reveal income, it is a great product.

Lenders frequently promote niche products to stay competitive. Whether you have lousy credit, own your own business or lack money for a good down payment, specialty loan programs can work for you if you can find that "perfect fit."

Tim "Timbo" Phillips is a mortgage loan officer in Plymouth. You may contact him at PhillipsHQ@ yahoo. com or at (734) 797-5522 [24 hours]. Homebuyers should always consult a professional for guidance specific to their situation.

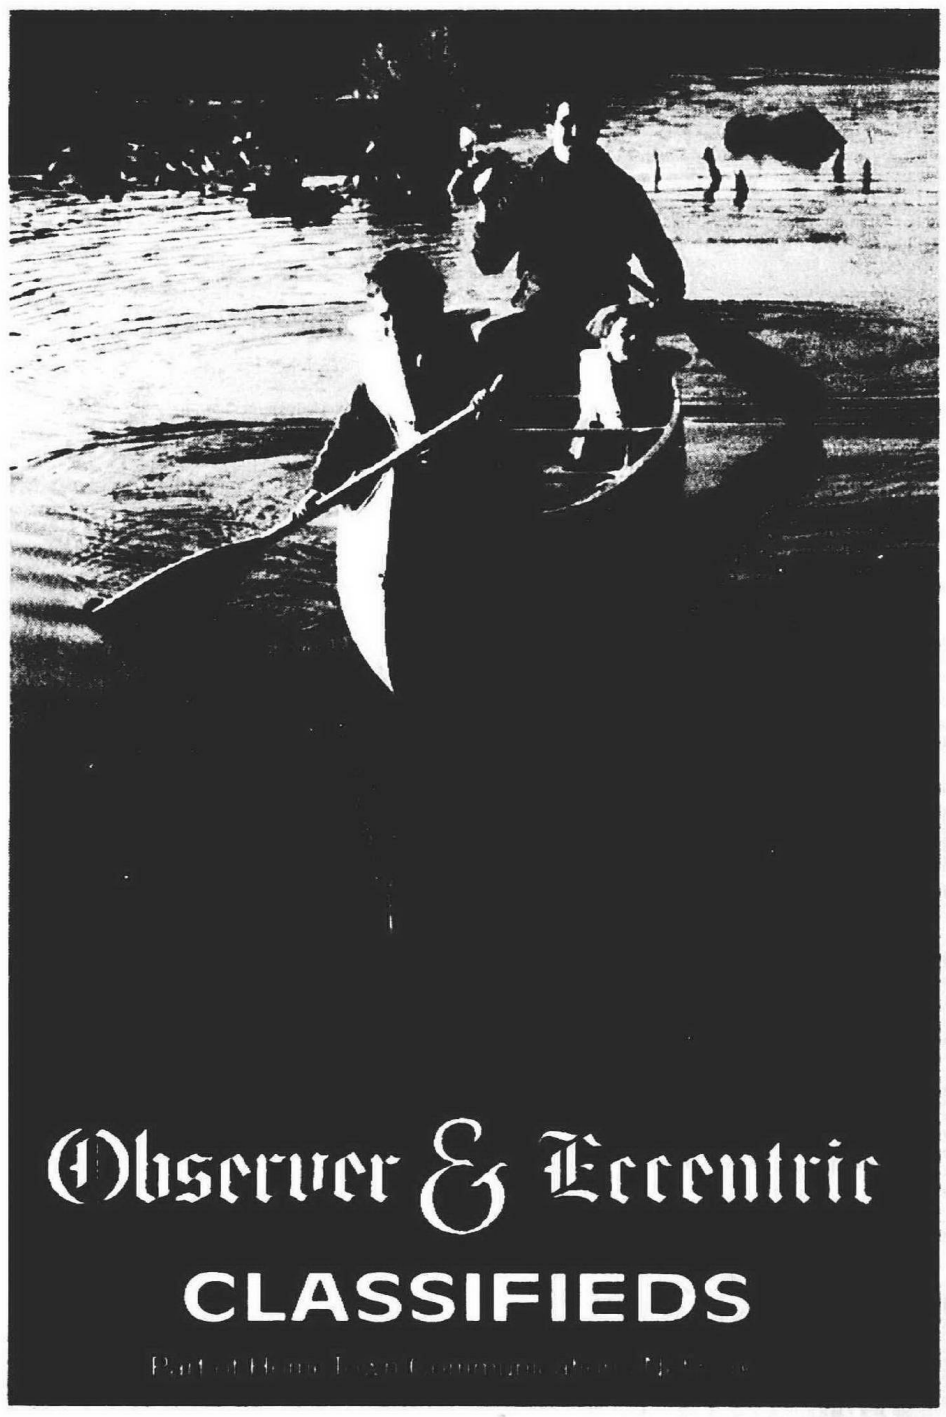
We're a whole lot closer to home.



Families have found some of the best things in our hometown classifieds. Like this really great canoe in the Birmingham Eccentric or that great big, loveable old dog, in the Canton Observer.

Folks take time to look for that special item advertised by a neighbor who sold his cottage or the woman who can't have a dog in her new apartment. They spend time shopping our friendly classified marketplace.

So, if you have something you're not using, or if you're looking for an item and want to buy it close to home, pick up your Observer & Eccentric Classifieds.

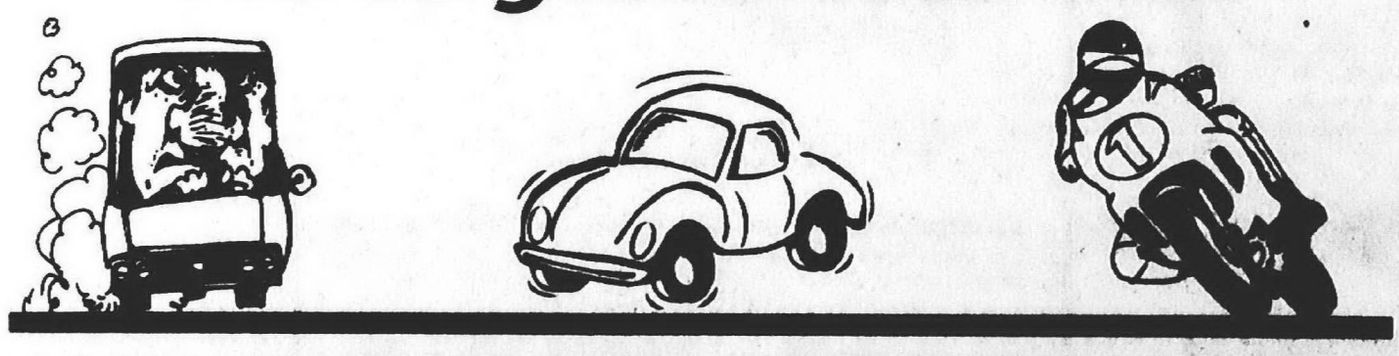
GREAT OFFER!

Attention Movers, Shakers, and Rumblers-

You're gonna love this!



Run a transportation ad in your hometown classified section - sell your van, boat, go-cart, RV, motorcycle, ATV, jet ski - whatever moves - and we'll run your classified ad until it does move....right on out of your garage!

Is this a great deal or what?

We'll keep running your classified transportation ad until it sells.

Limited time offer, two time minimum, private parties only, other restrictions may apply

So if you have a mover, shaker, floater, or rumbler, park it with us until it's sold.

COVER STORY: The living may not be free and easy, but it's certainly a lot less expensive across the border for a growing number of Americans who are purchasing properties. Two fine examples of how far the U.S. buck goes in Canada are Windsor's Glengarda condominiums (left cover photo and above) and Lakeside Town Homes in Kingsville..... SEE PG. 4

Don't fear the dentist
Marie Zyren of Westland was looking at a whopping dental bill after consulting three dentists in Michigan to correct problems with her teeth – until she visited Dr. David Pelka in Windsor 6

A hole-in-one
Rochester Place Resort and golf course offers a beautiful golf course, restaurant, campground, marina and banquet facilities and – for U.S. visitors – unbelievable value 9

Spring has sprung
Serious gardeners, backyard putterers and dedicated hammock swingers are ready for their private outdoors and Windsor Domestic Home and Garden is there to help you 10

Smooth sailing ahead
The Tall Ships of the American Sail Training Association's Great Lakes Challenge 2001 will be capturing the hearts, gazes and imaginations of thousands when they visit the area 11

Downtown goldmine
Windsor's City Centre's many shops and boutiques offers riches galore for treasures hunters, like the staggering selection of items at G & G Jewellery & Diamonds 12

Fashion sense
The 'peasant look' is hot, Regis Philbin's tone-on-tone look is not on the spring fashion scene. Windsor retailers give their views on what works and what doesn't 14,20

Gothic nuptials
A Royal Oak's Jennifer Payton and Michael Cotter will capture the splendour and beauty of Saints Peter and Paul Church in Detroit and Windsor's Willistead Manor when they tie the know 18

Small town charm
Ottawa Street offers quaint, old-world charm, good-old fashioned Canadian hospitality a great mix of stores, boutiques and restaurants and great deals for U.S. shoppers 20

Removal of foreign tax on recreational property has U.S. residents gobbling up land in Canada

BY SUSAN LEWIS

A great exchange rate, a friendly environment, and close proximity to home are the reasons why American buyers are increasingly purchasing property in Windsor-Essex County.

Roy Bertelli, vice president of sales for the Mady Development Corporation, says that one-third of his buyers for the luxury Gates of Glengarda condominium development in east Windsor are from the U.S.

"We have had U.S. interest in this from Day 1. We targeted U.S. clients in our marketing efforts," he says of the development which sits on the shores of the Detroit River.

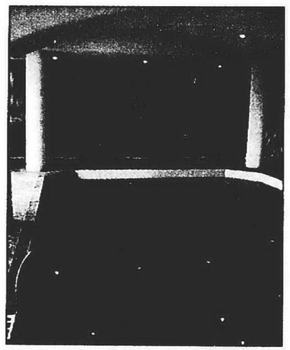
They are coming for four reasons, according to Bertelli: the quality of the properties available, the location, the low crime rate and the fabulous value they get for their dollar.

Roy Bertelli, of Glengarda condominiums, says U.S. buyers have been interested "from Day 1".
- Susan Lewis photo

The strong U.S. dollar means that an asking price of $150,000 Cdn is about a third less to a Michigander. Some Americans are taking the equity out of their existing homes and using it to purchase Canadian property.

That increases their mortgage in Michigan, but the interest on that mortgage is an income tax deduction. Furthermore, they can get long-term mortgages — 20 to 25 years —which reduces monthly payments.

Proximity is a selling point. It's a short hop from the Detroit suburbs to a place that Americans would have to travel four or five hours to reach.



A large mural overlooks the inground pool inside Glengarda.

But perhaps the biggest factor, besides exchange rate, was the removal of the 20 percent tax on foreign buyers of recreational property. (U.S. customers can only live in their Canadian properties for a maximum of six months per year, whether consecutive or not).

The elimination of the 20-per-cent tax was part of an omnibus bill that came into effect in May 1997 in an attempt by the province to level the playing field.

The removal of that tax has meant that the prices on Canadian real estate has become even more of a bargain for U.S. buyers. U.S. residents now pay the same land transfer tax as any Canadian: one per cent on purchases over $50,000 and less than $250,000.

Case in point: the Glengarda project.

Prices on the condos range from $250,000 Cdn to $750,000 Cdn for suites 1,400 square feet to 3,300 square feet. Convert that to U.S. dollars and you have luxury living a short drive from Casino Windsor, the downtown and tunnel ... all at a deep discount price.

The view from Lakeside Town Homes in Kingsville is as captivating outside as it is inside (above and left). The 12-unit development overlooks Lake Erie and is surrounded by mature woods, parkland, sandy beaches and a winding creek.

"We've sold all of the 52 West Tower suites with about 16 going to U.S. buyers," says Bertelli. Construction on the East Tower gets underway this spring to be ready for occupation in spring 2002.

Waterfront land is of particular interest to U.S. buyers, which is driving up the prices on such properties. In fact, Windsor-Essex County Real Estate Board figures show the rise in the average price of all housing over the past five years is half that of waterfront land.

What's adding to the price hikes is that there's little for sale, especially along Lake St. Clair. Property close to the city is the most desirable, but even on either side of Point Pelee and out to Wheatley the prices are rising.

In Kingsville, a scenic small town located southeast of Windsor, what's left of the 12 Lakeside Town Homes units are going fast. The development is nestled among 15 acres of treed, hilly parkland, a winding creek, sandy beaches and Lake Erie.

The developer of another condominium in Kingsville, Cross Winds, has seen the number of prospective U.S. buyers increase over the past few years.

"We haven't targeted Crosswinds to Americans, but we've had a great many come to the models," says Dan McCullough. "I think they are primarily attracted by the exchange rate, but there are other factors.

"For example, our low crime rates mean that they feel safer when they're here. And even though they aren't going to be living at their Canadian property full-time, they can be sure it will be fine when they aren't there."

Cross Winds CONDOMINIUMS

Crosswinds has almost completed its first two phases of bungalows and ranches, and is moving into Phases 3 and 4. The development is next to the Kingsville Golf and Curling Club, as well as the Chrysler Greenway.

"Crosswind residents are able to enjoy activities all year round," says McCullough. "Golf in the summer and curling in the winter, and with trails available all year round."

The final significant factor is demographics.

The leading edge of the baby boom, now in its early 50s, is at or near maximum earnings. They have grown children, more disposable income and are looking for an investment.

Others have children still at home or are looking for some place the family can spend time together. A second home in Canada at a very affordable price close to nightlife, cultural centres and shopping, or to the natural resources of Lakes St. Clair and Erie, or the Detroit River, is very attractive.

Figures from the Windsor-Essex County Real Estate Board show that the average selling price of lakeshore, excluding most of Windsor, has jumped to $220,066 from $167,775 in the past five years — a 31-per-cent increase at a time when housing sale prices generally have gone up only 15.6 per cent.

"We've had a good number of families who've purchased suites," says Bertelli. "It's a great vacation away with all the comforts of home — and more."

Smiling all the way to the dentist office

BY KAREN PATON-EVANS

Westland resident Marie Zyren sought the opinions of three dentists before crossing the border to meet with Dr. David Pelka.

For years, Zyren's lower teeth gradually wore against the back of her upper front teeth. Her teeth and her head ached. Periodic patching of the teeth offered temporary relief, but did not protect her from long-term damage.

When the first three dentists recommended further patching, Zyren was not satisfied. Her daughter, who lives just outside Windsor, suggested her own Canadian dentist.

Zyren was impressed from the outset. At the Windsor dental clinic operated by Dr. Pelka and Dr. Robert Laughland, Zyren first met with treatment coordinator Kim O'Neil, who asked what the patient hoped to achieve through dentistry.

"I needed a lot of dental work," Zyren says. "I needed someone to give me an overview of the whole problem and to handle the whole problem."

Dr. Pelka talked the matter over with O'Neil, then did a cursory exam to determine what was possible. After two consultations, Zyren and the dental staff had come up with a treatment plan that met the patient's expectations.

"I wanted to be well-informed before I made a decision," Zyren says.

Instead of doing spot repairs on the damaged teeth, Dr. Pelka recommended propping open the back teeth so the front ones would no longer rub against the bottom teeth. Then he would rebuild the front teeth. "We needed to rehabilitate her mouth," O'Neil says.

Recreated alignment

Through recreating the alignment of the teeth, the old, destructive problem will be resolved. When her treatments are completed in June, Zyren can expect to enjoy her own teeth for years to come.

The extensive procedures have had to be spread over approximately eight visits, but that is of no consequence to Zyren. She finds the commute to the dental clinic from her Westland home "very easy. I can be there in 45 minutes, so it is no further than my other dentist was."

As a senior without dental insurance, Zyren was pleased to discover the cost for such comprehensive, intricate work would actually be less than what she would have paid for patchwork closer to home.

"Money was a factor in my decision but not the only factor," Zyren says. "You can save money but if you don't have the work done by a caring dentist, there is no point in going at all."

"I wanted to seek out the best for the money I was going to invest," she says.

Zyren believes the clinic lives up to its motto, "Dentistry with Care."

Says O'Neil: "We are not only caring, but careful. And since we care, we operate differently." The dentistry team realizes the last thing most people want to do is visit the dentist. Unless their teeth hurt or are bad or are discoloured, "people don't know what is going on in their mouths. We want to participate in their care."

The clinic receives a wide mix of patients from the US, including those who need basic care and those who seek elective cosmetic dentistry to improve their appearance. Some American patients are covered by their independent insurance. Others, like Zyren, are uninsured and very relieved to see how much cheaper dental work is in Windsor compared to Michigan.

"We show everyone great respect," O'Neil says.

That respect is evident in the clinic's commitment to cleanliness. Every item that comes in contact with the patient during treatment is either disposed after a single use or sterilized with heat.

Dedicated to oral health

The dentistry team is dedicated to the oral health of its patients. Continuing education for all staff ensures patients will benefit from the best of groundbreaking procedures and technology.

Experience is key to delivering quality service, too.

Dr. Pelka completed two years in biology at the University of Windsor and four years in the faculty of dentistry at the University of Toronto. He has been practicing for more than 15 years.

Dr. Laughland graduated as a denture therapist from George Brown College, received his Doctorate of Dental Science from the University of Detroit-Mercy Dental School and served a year in residency at Sinai Hospital in Detroit and two years practice in general dentistry in Sterling Heights.

"Dentistry used to be where you were just fixing teeth. Now, we are on the front line of educating patients, teaching prevention, keeping healthy and improving smiles," Dr. Pelka says. "We incorporate the good traditions of historical dentistry with the new, effective technologies of today's dentistry."

Dr. David Pelka works on Marie Zyren from his office at 3288 Electricity Drive in Windsor. Zyren, a Westland resident, had a cat-lapped bite from years of wear on her back teeth. The back teeth had to be built up first. Her front teeth, which have been worn down (for life!), are the next project.

Tower takes shape

A building crane, that is.

Last month, Condor Crane Services Liebherr workers pieced together a 70-metre high tower crane that will be used to construct the new DaimlerChrysler headquarters.

by Claudio D'Andrea

It towers above the pit where the automaker will be building its new Canadian headquarters, immediately west of Ouellette Ave. and facing the Detroit skyline.

The crane can extend as far as 100 metres. It is so advanced that on-board computers prevent it from lifting anything too heavy or tilting too far in any direction.

Cable car plan floated

Windsor and Detroit residents will be able to ride cable cars over the Detroit River if a Quebec businessman gets his way.

Windsor city councillors have met with representatives of Niels B. Jorsenen's Skylink International to discuss a $25-million dollar proposal to link the two cities with an aerial gondola.

According to a March 16 Windsor Star report, the lands that housed the former city market, west of Casino Windsor, could become a terminus. The property, purchased by the Ontario Lottery and Gaming Commission for $6 million, was part of a three-way land swap several years ago involving the market land and some land west of the Art Gallery of Windsor and the former Ramada Inn site on the riverfront.

Skylink would need a similar amount of land in Detroit, east of the Renaissance Center, which is owned by General Motors Corp.

Second bridge studied

Officials on both sides of the Canada-U.S. border are studying the possibility of a new highway system connecting to a second international bridge.

A $23-million Cdn. "needs study" will soon get underway, the Ontario Government announced early last month. The other partners in the study are the Michigan Department of Transport, Transport Canada and the U.S. Federal Highway Administration.

The owners of the Ambassador Bridge are firmly behind the study. The company has said it would pay for a new bridge but not the connecting highways.

The study will look at linking 1-75 and Highway 401 as well as a second bridge.

Bigger bang for your buck

Knowing that the American dollar is worth more in Canada is one thing, but exchanging those greenbacks for Canada's more colourful currency is another matter.

In fact, the Convention and Visitors Bureau of Essex County urges American shoppers to consider using their credit cards first, followed by ATM cards, the border currency exchange sites or a bank, in order to receive the fairest exchange rates.

Definitely don't rely on retail establishments, says Elizabeth Hamel of the bureau, because they don't offer a guaranteed exchange rate.

In fact, it is entirely legal, if short-sighted, for merchants to offer no exchange at all. Such instances are rare, but Hamel's advice helps customers to avoid the possibility.

And using a credit card offers the added benefit of a written statement of the exchange rate once the bill arrives.

The proper conversion formula involves multiplying your American dollar by the rate of exchange as established on the currency markets.

Golf Canada and save some green

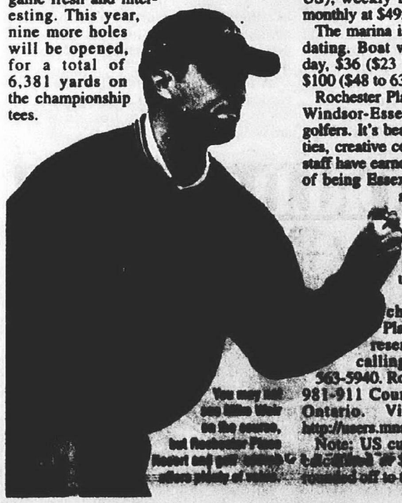
Rochester Place Resort and golf course can't guarantee you'll get a hole in one, but it can promise you won't leave with a hole in your pocket.

The recreational complex includes a beautiful golf course, restaurant, campground, marina and banquet facilities, all superbly situated on Essex County's lush and temperate North Shore. For US visitors, the resort is a scenic 40-minute drive from the Detroit-Windsor Tunnel to quiet, secluded Deerbrook. Power boaters can take the water route, traveling on Lake St. Clair and accessing Rochester Place's marina via the Ruscom River.

By land or by lake, the traveler is rewarded well for his time. The challenging nine-hole course has a lot to offer to everybody, from the beginner to the pro. Seven of the nine holes are doglegs, requiring accurate placement of tee and fairway shots. Water hazards keep the game fresh and interesting. This year, nine more holes will be opened, for a total of 6,381 yards on the championship tees.

border barrister

by Karen Paton-Evans



Green fees are exceptionally priced, especially when the favourable US exchange rate is factored in. On regular weekdays, a round of nine holes is $14.50 ($9 US) and 18 holes is $27 ($17 US). Seniors and juniors (17 years and under) get discounts of two to six dollars CDN. On Saturday, Sunday and Canadian holidays, the fee for nine holes is $17.50 ($11 US); 18 holes is $30 ($19 US). There are discounted rates for early bird and twilight play.

RP's restaurant features excellent breakfast, lunch and dinner service at reasonable prices. The licensed North Terrace Room comfortably seats 80. The main dining room accommodates an additional 100 people. The dining arrangement is ideal for a private golf tournament, field day, stag or wedding, as many Americans are quickly finding out for themselves.

The mature RV park and campground provides daily, weekly, monthly and seasonal sites. The shady sites are at least 1,500 square feet in size, each equipped with municipal water, electricity, sewer and telephone service. Amenities include lighted streets, garbage pick-up, recycling, a supervised swimming pool, a fenced playground, fishing holes, clean showers, a party room, picnic tables and fire rings. Rates fluctuate with high and low seasons. The daily rate starts at $22 ($14 US), weekly from $132 ($84 US) and monthly at $495 ($314 US).

The marina is sheltered and accommodating. Boat wells are $6 ($4 US) per day, $36 ($23 US) per week and $75 to $100 ($48 to 63 US) per month.

Rochester Place is a favourite amongst Windsor-Essex County's recreational golfers. It's beautifully maintained facilities, creative course and friendly, helpful staff have earned the resort the reputation of being Essex County's best-kept golf secret.

With a substantially discounted seasonal campsite and golf pass, what more could you ask of the ultimate golfer's summer?

If you're ready for the challenge of Rochester Place's golf course, you can reserve your tee-off time by calling 519-728-2361 or 800-563-5940. Rochester Place is located at 981-911 County Road 2, Deerbrook, Ontario. Visit the website at http://users.mssi.net/~rplace.

Breathe life into outdoor spaces

home style by Karen Paton-Evans

After an interminable winter, spring has finally got down to business.

With every passing day, the air becomes a little warmer, the wind is more playful and a growing number of tender green things push themselves up eagerly through the softening soil.

Though spring was a bit of a late bloomer this year, it seems all the more welcome. Serious gardeners, backyard putterers and dedicated hammock swingers are equally ready to get their private outdoor spaces in condition for warm weather pleasures.

During Michigan's' warm spring days and sultry summer nights, a well-appointed yard becomes a natural extension of the home. In today's garden rooms, the right furnishings and accents for al fresco living are just as important as the home's interior décor.

"People are looking to create an indoor environment outdoors," says Lorraine O'Neill, interior and architectural designer and co-owner of Windsor Domestic Home and Garden.

There are many wonderful and whimsical yard products available for spring 2001, each intended to personalize your paradise. The only limitations in achieving your dreamscape are the size of your yard, imagination and budget.

While you can't expropriate your neighbour's yard to make room for a new fishpond, Windsor Domestic Home and Garden can help you expand your imagination and budget. A visit to the store will get your creative juices flowing, as you discover the perfect ornaments, fountains and furniture for your yard. Many of these items are not available in the stores at home, so you know your selections will be unlike anything else in your neighbourhood.

As for your budget, the strength of the US dollar gives your money super buying power. Spending American money in Canada is like creating a personal two-for-one sale on the items you want!

So now that your wallet has been comfortably padded and your eyes have been opened, let's go shopping at Windsor Domestic Home and Garden.

All-weather wicker

The first priority is comfortable seating. All-weather outdoor wicker chairs, lounges, sofas and barstools by Lane Furniture are attractive anchor pieces to any room, within or without the house. The synthetic wicker resists fading, doesn't snag and lets water run through its weave.

Seat cushions are available in hundreds of fabrics to compliment the decorating theme.

Outdoor furniture can be enjoyed to full advantage when arranged inside a garden tent. Available in 10' x 12' and 10' x 18', a tent becomes an additional dining, family and playroom. It can be wired for lighting and a fan. The sides are protected with an acrylic rainproof layer, a mosquito net and a canvas layer. The anodized steel frame can be left outside in winter; the tent fabric is stored.

O'Neill believes no garden is complete without the soothing sights and sounds of a fountain. One popular version is a single 3' x 6' sheet of slate, mounted vertically on a wall or freestanding and lit from above, with water running down its surface.

More traditionally shaped fountains in lightweight fiberglass resemble stone but can be moved easily. The addition of cement or cast iron fountains "create a very restful oasis," O'Neill says.

Whimsical wrought iron butterflies and dragonflies and bronze-like fairies bring whimsy to the landscape. A hummingbird feeder in the form of a brilliant blown glass globe with a feeding tube and stand becomes outdoor art. A cast bronze heron, swan or duck not only adorns a pond, but also keeps hungry birds away from the koi.

"A lot of small items will make your garden interesting," O'Neill says. "It is fun to see a little hidden treasure as you are walking along."

Detroit 300 organizers are working hard to ensure their city's official tricentennial celebrations sail along smoothly.

Literally.

Sail Detroit, a banner event during the year-long Detroit 300 festivities, will herald the arrival of the Tall Ships of the American Sail Training Association's Great Lakes Challenge 2001.

The eye-catching vessels will sail into the Great Lakes and dock on both sides of the Detroit River from July 19-21.

Organizers have already set aside time for public tours of the vessels, between 10 am and 5 pm daily.

A highlight during the weekend will be two free nights of music at Hart Plaza, that will be simulcast at Windsor's Festival Plaza. On [illegible] perform at Hart Plaza during Friday's Sounds of Detroit and Saturday's Detroit Celebrity Homecoming.

Organizers promise a "spectacular finale" to the [illegible] border Saturday evening.

Windsor, a [illegible] festivities, will [illegible] Ouellette Ave. [illegible] Park [illegible]

The [illegible] stage, with a headline act coinciding with the end of the ship tours.

Food vendors and a small licensed area will also be available.

Sunday afternoon will be marked by a spectacular flotilla of ships during The Ford Parade of Ships. Huge crowds are expected along the riverfront to view this historic review of Detroit's nautical roots.

Windsor will also host two dance party nights. Dancers from both sides of the border will boogie with the best of them during the Detroit Dance 300 contest.

Downtown treasure trove

G & G Jewellery & Diamonds owner Jerry Ferrari displays several of the desirable items found in his University Ave. store.

Gold, coins, diamonds and more at G & G Jewellery

By Karen Paton-Evans

One of the best things about going to a different city is finding unexplored regions for treasure hunting. With its many shops and boutiques, Windsor's City Centre is ideally suited for such exciting explorations.

One spot not to be missed is G & G Jewellery & Diamonds. Owner Jerry Ferrari has operated his 28 University East business for 30 years and has come to know many loyal American customers.

Conveniently located beside the Greyhound bus depot, the shop is a favourite place to pour over glass cases filled with enticing trinkets. Gold is abundant, ranging from 10 to 24 karats. Chains, earrings, bracelets and anklets glitter temptingly. Rings and ropes of cultured pearls gleam seductively. Unique rings, bracelets and pendants are sprinkled liberally with diamonds and semiprecious stones. Men's diamond rings exude the confidence of the gentleman of style and taste.

Children's bangles, bracelets and earrings can be found here, too, along with baptism and first confirmation jewellery and gifts.

The staggering selection is an alluring mix of fashion-forward and estate pieces. G & G Jewellery is always on top of the latest trends. Ferrari also purchases and sells rare estate jewellery, which has become more desirable than ever.

The store is renowned for its coins, too. All Canadian mint products and proof sets are sold here, as well as US silver coins dated prior to 1967. "US silver dollars are the most popular with our American collectors," Ferrari says. "They also tend to buy Canadian mint products because there are fewer produced."

Coin collectors can find pocket pagers, catalogues and other supplies at G & G Jewellery.

In three decades, Ferrari has met many US visitors in his shop. They appreciate the selection and quality of the jewellery and coins, and they delight in discovering unusual and hard-to-find estate pieces.

American customers also like the buying power of their US currency. On in-store purchases, G & G Jewellery typically gives a cent or two more on the US dollar than the bank offers. In such a shop, it is only natural that the value of every coin is truly appreciated.

Colour it spring!

STORIES BY KAREN PATON-EVANS

It's been a long winter. We're sick of wool pants and turtlenecks. Point us in the direction of spring's new fashions and get out of our way. Just tell us what to put on and we'll wear it.

What do you mean it's not that simple? Hand me the March issue of InStyle magazine and let's see what its fashion gurus have to say about all this: "Spring 2001 is a syncopated, dazzling, sometimes anxiety-producing mix. Some looks do the trick. But some are really tricky." Oh, for the love of Pete! Here we are, all ready to shave our legs and show some skin. Give it to us straight. What's hot and what's not?

Hot

There is such a delectable shake-up of styles and eras that you'll probably be able to bring some of your old favourites out of retirement.

- ✔ Crisp, slim white pantsuits
- ✔ White jeans
- ✔ Romantic, flowing dresses that drape across the body and gently swirl over the hips, ending in hanky hems
- ✔ Preppy blazer teamed with blue jeans and white shirt
- ✔ Mini skirts
- ✔ Designer jeans
- ✔ Leather
- ✔ Military khaki separates that emphasize femininity
- ✔ Blouson tops with drawstring necklines and gathered wrists, in powder blue and coral silk. Look for this effect on dresses, too
- ✔ Large, exotic and colourful floral patterns, strewn over knee-length straight and full skirts and halter dresses
- ✔ Short fitted jackets
- ✔ Body-hugging ruching that gathers silky fabrics over your torso - tops, skirts and dresses
- ✔ Bold geometric patterns in vibrant turquoise, navy, fuschia and red. Especially effective over this season's favourite - the shirt dress. Leave lots of buttons undone
- ✔ Geometrics again, on halter tops, spaghetti-strapped dresses, sheaths and pants. Think 70's
- ✔ 80's glamour looks, without the giant shoulder pads
- ✔ Rock chic
- ✔ Black and white separates - white top, black bottom and vice versa
- ✔ Wide horizontal and diagonal stripes on skirts, shirts and dresses
- ✔ Ankle-length, flat front pants and Capri leggings
- ✔ Updated classic trench coats
- ✔ Natural or bare legs
- ✔ Wedge-heeled sandals, lace-up sandals, ankle straps and two-tone spectator pumps, pointed toes
- ✔ Really distinctive handbags with neat proportions, smart, modern handles and bold detailing
- ✔ Big bucket and clutch bags
- ✔ Studs and grommets
- ✔ Big wide belts, slung loose and low over the hips
- ✔ Ropes of pearls, lariat necklaces and gold hoop earrings
- ✔ Feather trim on collars and cuffs
- ✔ Aviator sunglasses

cut. colour. contour

Eye-popping colour and body-contouring stretch fabrics are waking up spring wardrobes for men and women.

Though his pink dress shirt and flat front designer pants complement her lilac zippered jacket and white and lilac striped crew neck sweater, the figure-flattering lines put an abrupt end to the nearly androgynous looks of past seasons.

At Freeds of Windsor, fresh pastels and tangy citrus shades are splashed on casual and dress wear by Kenneth Cole, Hugo Boss and Tommy Hilfiger for him and on Votre Nom Paris, Bandolero and Quick Reflex for her. The woman will be wearing a cool wool pant suit with zip front collarless blazer, a V-neck three-quarter sleeved top in purple or turquoise and a denim jacket with flat front, bootlegged pants in iridescent purple and blue. Capri and ankle-length pants have flat fronts, with wider legs for dress and average straight legs for casual. Knee-length skirts have mostly straight lines in subtle patterns. Tops are embellished with beads and embroidery.

Ari Freed says for men, flat front pants make high fashion statements. Stretch fabrics resist wrinkles and add movement to pants as well as pastel, pale green, orange and poppy red dress shirts. Regis' monochromatic shirt and tie look is over. Ties now pick up the shirt's colour in stripes and small, neat prints. A print using its blueberry are a lively contradiction to elegant solids: dove grey, brown, olive and hunter green, accenting wool suits. Designer shirts come in charcoal, pale grey, blue. The camp sports shirt, with its big print motifs, will be a spring and summer staple.

Brilliant colour and body-contouring stretch fabrics are waking up spring wardrobes for men and women.

Gothic nuptials

Royal Oak couple to start the day at a church that looks like a wedding cake and end it at a mansion built from whiskey

BY CHRISTINA FRIEDRICHSEN
SPECIAL TO THE STAR

Royal Oak residents Jennifer Payton and Michael Cotter catch a quiet moment alone in front of Willistead Manor in Windsor where they will celebrate their October 6 nuptials. The couple will hold their ceremony at Saints Peter and Paul Church in downtown Detroit (above right), which at 153 years is the oldest church building in continuous use in the city.
- Julie Sando photos

When Jennifer Payton saw Willistead Manor for the first time, she was wowed.

"I fell in love with the place," says Jennifer.

Not only were the wooded grounds gorgeous, the English manor was a true feast for the eyes.

"I liked how it was decorated. It's very pretty. It's elegant, and traditional," she says.

It didn't take long for Jennifer to convince her fiancé, Michael Cotter, that this was the perfect spot to have their October 6, 2001 wedding reception.

"I really liked its uniqueness. It has a lot of character," says Michael.

The fact that Michael and Jennifer are from Royal Oak, Michigan did not stop them from booking the event at the turn-of-the-century mansion.

Michael, 32, and Jennifer, 26, had heard about Willistead Manor from a family member living in Belle River.

They had checked out numerous venues in Michigan, and although they were impressed with the Grosse Pointe War Memorial, Willistead won them over.

The couple was not only awed by the beauty of the mansion, they liked the fact that its largest room could accommodate a maximum of only 120 guests.

"It's quaint," says Michael.

Americans booking

Alice Nemeth, manager of the Willistead complex, says more and more Americans are booking reception facilities on this side of the border.

"We've noticed an increase, and from what we are told it's because of the value of the U.S. dollar here in Canada," she explains.

American couples that want a setting that is unique are often charmed by the local landmark, she says.

"I don't think you can beat the setting," says Nemeth. "There are beautiful ethnic clubs on both sides of the border, but there are few heritage facilities such as Willistead that are available for this purpose."

The Willistead Manor was built in 1906 for Edward Chandler Walker, son of Hiram Walker. It was designed in the 16th century Tudor-Jacobean style of an English Manor house.

The property then, and now, included the Manor House, Coach House, Gate House and 15 acres of land enclosed by wrought iron and masonry fence.

The limestone used on the exterior was quarried in Amherstburg, and handcut by Scottish stonemasons.

In 1935, the City of Windsor became heir to this marvelous estate.

Willistead first opened its doors for public use in June of 1981, and since then it has averaged 1.03 events each day.

The décor of the manor, which includes original paintings, furniture, antiques and oriental rugs, is the same as it was when it was occupied by the Walkers.

"It's in its natural state," says Nemeth.

Nemeth says there are rooms that can accommodate wedding receptions from 20 to 120 people.

Because of the size of the rooms, wedding receptions at Willistead have an intimate charm.

"The bride and groom tend to share the evening with all of the guests, which is nice," says Nemeth.

Prime dates for the larger rooms are booked into next year. But there are still some openings available for the smaller rooms, says Nemeth.

Although several couples, including those from the U.S., can arrange to be married at Willistead, Michael and Jennifer have chosen to wed at Saints Peter and Paul Church, the oldest church building in continuous use in Detroit.

"We've been to a lot of weddings, and we didn't want to go to a big suburban church ... in a giant, brand new building. We wanted something with character," says Michael.

Saints Peter and Paul Church, which is located in downtown Detroit, near the Detroit Renaissance Centre, offers stunning architectural details and artwork.

The church's high ceilings, life-sized frescoes, and marble foyer are some of the details that captivated the couple.

'Breathtaking'

"It's just breathtaking," says Jennifer." The décor is simple, but it's beautiful."

Although the completion of the original structure was in 1848, the church has undergone a series of renovations that has succeeded in making the place of worship even more magnificent.

A major renovation in 1917 included the addition of a marble vestibule, marble floors, marble wainscoting, a marble pulpit, two spiral staircases leading to the balcony, and new windows.

Renovations in 1998 included a new altar and sanctuary chairs.

But the beauty of the church was not the only reason the couple chose it for their wedding ceremony; nostalgia also played a part.

"My grandparents got married there," says Michael.

Also, the church's location in downtown Detroit played an integral role in Michael and Jennifer's decision.

"We had decided on Willistead first, so we wanted

If it's a heavy dose of quaint, old-world charm and good old-fashioned Canadian hospitality you're looking for on your next shopping trip then head straight for Ottawa Street next time you come to Windsor.

"For a lot of Americans it's like stepping back in time," says Arnie Blain, president of the Ottawa Street Business Improvement Area. "It's outdoor shopping, instead of being inside a mall. We've got cobblestone sidewalks and benches and lots of trees. It's just a real small-town kind of atmosphere.

Many of the stores on Ottawa Street are independently owned, second and third-generation family operations which gives the whole area an undeniable sense of unique heritage.

"We've got Freed's, which is the largest independent retail clothing store in the country," says Blaine, who also owns Karen's 4 Kids clothing store. "More than half a dozen of the stores have been here for more than five decades, which speaks to the stability of the area. If you walk into a store and ask to see the owner you'll probably get that, which is something you wouldn't find at say, The Gap, for instance."

And just about anything you need can be found there: fine fashions for kids and adults at stores like Marvin's, footwear at stores like Arden Shoes and Diane Shoes, jewelry, computers, audio equipment, hardware, furniture, flowers and knitting and sewing supplies.

In the last few years, there has been the addition of a new lingerie store called Understatements as well as a proliferation of interesting little gift stores such as The Giving Tree, What's In Store, Christine's Collectibles, Judy's, The Burgundy Goose and Scratching the Surface.

"You can find a lot of really neat things in those stores," says Blaine.

One of the more interesting destinations is Canada Salvage; "if you can't find it at Canada Salvage, you just can't find it" is a well-known colloquialism in Windsor.

"For an American, it would be like going into one of those old 'everything' stores that just don't seem to exist anymore," says Blaine.

head to toe

If it has never crossed your mind to let loose in lime or mamba in mango, this season's irresistible fashions will have you clamouring for sassy citrus and naughty neon.

It's all in good taste and good fun at Windsor Crossings Premium Outlet Mall. Jennifer Rohrer, manager of NYCC and Apparel Depot, says men and women are ready to shake off winter blues, greys and blacks and shine in hot pink and turquoise.

There are neutrals, too. The designer fashions featured at NYCC and Apparel Depot are showing crisp combinations of navy and tan or khaki and coral separates.

Apparel Depot's spring collection is geared for the man and woman who like classic styling for work and play.

For the office, she can build a versatile suit from famous designer shells, skirts, jackets and pants in silky navy and khaki. The jacket this spring is single breasted with one button, hanging nicely to cover the regular-sized woman's derriere.

Women's casual wear addresses her many moods. Sleeveless and short-sleeved sundresses in romantic florals or 1970's bold geometrics are up for almost any situation. The skort, a sassy pair of shorts covered by a skirt in the front, is a good-looking alternative to shorts.

"And Capri pants are huge," Rohrer says. "They're for the woman who doesn't want to wear shorts. They're much dressier." Apparel Depot's Capris are available in different lengths for women of varying heights. In denim, white, tan, black, coral or khaki, the Capri pants are an extremely versatile wardrobe stretcher.

Women's wear is available in sizes 2 to 16. There is also a beautiful plus line, in sizes 14 to 24. Apparel Depot's men's wear department, resplendent in this season's suits, shirts, ties, casual and golf wear, could be considered the well-dressed man's fashion headquarters.

At NYCC, the fashions are fresh and forward. "They are very New York," Rohrer says. Fun t-shirts and jeans for him and her are spring fashion staples.

Designer active wear

The famous designer active line lets you look great while you're working out. Lightweight pants in jersey and cotton, bra tops that have supportive bras built right into the fitted, stomach-covering or midriff-baring tops, and light spring jackets in mauve, lime and baby blue will get you noticed.

Designer details, such as little flowers stitched onto the thin shoulder straps of a woman's tank top, are subtle indicators of the clothes' pedigree. "All of our designer wear is high fashion," Rohrer says.

One must-have piece is the tube top. Go bright or go neutral, but get at least one.

There are many terrific stores at Windsor Crossings Premium Outlet Mall, offering the latest in home and personal fashions at discounted prices.

Apparel Depot and NYCC clothing and accessories are always priced at 30 to 70 percent less than the suggested retail prices. When the savvy American shopper factors in the US currency into the great bargains become real steals. CONTD

If you want to fuel up and slake your thirst after all that shopping, there are plenty of places more than happy to help you out. There's Hungarian fare at The Blue Danube, Italian at Tony Macaroni's and Da Luciano, roadhouse fare at The Brick House tavern, Tops of Windsor and The Saloon, extraordinary burgers at Gilligan's, Chinese at Lee's Villa and something a little more upscale at Whiskey's. There are also outdoor patios, such as Tres Beans Cafe.

If you want to shoot a little pool, there's the Nine Ball Heaven arcade and there are two bowling alleys, one of which offers five-pin bowling. And if you get a nice day, take the kids to Lanspeary Park, where there's plenty of playground equipment — as well as a swimming pool in the summer and an outdoor ice rink in the winter — to keep the kids occupied for hours.

Worried about parking? Forget about it. There's more than plenty of it; in fact, during special promotions, it's free, when merchants pay the city in lieu of revenue generated by the lots and on-street meters so they can give their customers a break.

And of course there's the extremely favourable exchange rate on the American dollar, which comes in addition to the great bargains you'll find there.

There's the 12 hour madness sale on May 1 when stores will be open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. with plenty of bargains to be had.

And from June 21-23 is the huge sidewalk sale. There'll be street performers, musicians and buggy rides as well as fireworks on the evening of June 21.

Ottawa Street is only 10 minutes from the Detroit Windsor Tunnel. Just turn left on Wyandotte Street when you exit the tunnel, turn right at Walker Road and you'll come to Ottawa.
