Plymouth City Manager Gordon Jaeger plans to work part time after May 1. City commissioners said they'll begin looking for a successor.

City to look for new manager

By Kevin Brown
staff writer

Plymouth city commissioners plan to look for a new city manager, as current City Manager Gordon Jaeger wants to work part-time after May 1.

In a meeting Friday, the commission voted 7-0 to "begin a city manager search promptly" and meanwhile seek to negotiate a part-time agreement with Jaeger.

Commissioners Ralph (Jack) Kenyon and Ron Loiselle said such an agreement would be necessary, as it's unlikely the commission could find a new full-time manager to assume that post by May 1.

A part-time agreement proposed by Jaeger and presented to commissioners Friday would pay him $60 per hour.

'They need to see the city manager.'

— Mary Childs
Plymouth commissioner

While Commissioner Mary Childs voted for the commission action, she said she didn't favor having a part-time city manager.

"I think this community is small enough, they need to see the city manager. It's not good for the people in this building (city hall)," she added.

"They're here full time and somebody's coming in three days and getting good money."

But several commissioners said Jaeger has done a good job as city manager, adding he could do the job effectively part-time.

Some commissioners noted that the last city manager search took nearly a year. Childs urged the commission to conduct a quicker search. "We don't have to go through the psychological things, and find out if they were toilet trained at age 5," she said.

Mayor Dennis Bila and Kenyon were to meet over the weekend to outline a city manager search process, before presenting it to other commissioners.

Jaeger, who assumed the post May 1, 1990, said last month that a combination of factors caused him to consider how long he will continue as city manager.

Jaeger and his wife, Kay, maintain one home in Battle Creek, where Jaeger served 12 years as city manager. He also pays rent on the first floor of a Plymouth house.

He said Friday the commission has resolved some of his earlier concerns, that commissioners tended to put off decisions and had spent too much time dealing with matters pertaining to former city manager Henry Graper.

War wins resident support

By Wayne Peal and Todd Schneider
staff writers

From military families to the person on the street, area residents are expressing support for President George Bush's decision to begin a ground war in the Persian Gulf.

But the tension — and conflicting emotions — of this past weekend aren't likely to be forgotten.

"It really played on your emotions," said William Cole, whose U.S. Marine son is stationed in the gulf. "We were up, we were down. We really thought there would be peace, but I'm glad it finally got started and I hope it will be over soon."

"IT'S SCARY, maybe even more today than last night when it started," said Connie Hutchinson of Redford whose son, also a Marine, is believed to be stationed somewhere near the front. But while this weekend's Soviet peace proposal brought parents a few moments of hope, Hutchinson praised the president for rejecting further negotiations.

"It seemed like all the Russians wanted to do was position themselves," she said. "But you don't see them over there."

IN MANY WAYS, it was business as usual throughout the area Sunday — but the war clearly left its mark.

Many residents, like Bill Mayer of Livonia, headed for church.

"Although the U.N. initiatives don't indicate it, Hussein needs to be removed from power. It's now or never if that's our goal," said Mayer, a parishioner at St. Theodore Catholic Church, Westland.

But while churches were filled, other weekend retreats were empty.

"It's been kind of slow," said Lloyd Oliver, manager of the Penn Theater in downtown Plymouth. "I guess people wanted to stay home to see what was happening."

At the Redford Inn, war was as much on the breakfast menu as eggs and bacon.

"If the military continues to run it (the war), it should go smoothly," said J.B. Thompson of Canton, who said he was pleased with the free hand apparently given Allied commanders.

In Livonia, a troop support group continued assembling packages to be sent to the troops.

"Everybody's concerned, but we have a job to do, too," said Yvonne Zapinski, who directs the area chapter of Friends of Freedom.

At the same time, members of UAW Local 182 were busy decorating their Plymouth Road union hall with red, white and blue ribbons.

But while some residents were awash in patriotic fervor, others wondered whether more couldn't have been done to avoid the ground war.

Claudia French replaces the suit she wears during her daytime legal job for a belly dancing outfit at Mykonos in Greektown.

Office worker's 2nd job turns stereotypes belly-up

By Diane Gale
staff writer

It's Saturday night at Mykonos in Detroit's Greektown as Claudia French of Canton shimmies past the bar, through the crowd and onto the stage.

The place is packed and all eyes are on the pixie-faced belly dancer wearing a sheer blue and silver outfit with pearl shoulder pads.

For the next half hour she clicks her finger cymbals and keeps the tassels on her hips in constant motion. Shouts of "Opa" herald quick bursts of flaming cheese in the background.

The lights are dim and smoke wafts through the air in what looks like a colorized scene of an old movie shot in a 1940s dinner club as French jumps off the stage and mixes with the audience.

She laughs easily — as if to ensure that she's joking — as she playfully flirts with the men and talks to the women at their sides.

Back on the stage, French makes her dramatic finale, turning into a blur of colors twisting like a top until she gracefully floats to the floor.

BUT LIFE isn't all spotlights and dancing for French. By day she's a legal assistant at the Charfoos & Christensen law firm in the Penobscot Building.

And her life is as varied as her dance steps. For one thing, she's not even Greek, she's of German descent and lived in Germany until she was 11.

French also takes college classes twice a week. She plans to earn a minor in psychology and a major in criminology.

"I may go on to law school."

If that's not enough, she finds the time to work out three days a week.

She dances one night a week, but performs at birthday parties, weddings and charity fund-raisers. Depending on experience, belly dancing pays between $80 and $130 per show.

She started to belly dance 15 years ago while she was living in Hawaii. Her first teacher was in her mid-

Officials ponder push for tenant at vacant store

By Kevin Brown

Concerned that the former Farmer Jack's supermarket downtown remains vacant, city officials are talking about renewing efforts to pressure the lease holder to find a tenant.

City Commissioner John Vos, an attorney, also said he's directed his staff to research the matter, adding he's considering filing nuisance litigation against Borman Inc., owner of the Farmer Jack chain which leases the property, and the property owner, Stanley Dickson Jr.

Mayor Dennis Bila suggested that he might organize a letter-writing campaign along with the chamber of commerce "or do some other such effort to move Borman's to take some more definitive action."

City Manager Gordon Jaeger, who has said the site on Main Street is "standing vacant and deteriorating," said he's called Borman Inc. spokesman Ted Simon to seek a meeting.

'I want to see if I can get something going as a citizen.'

— John Vos
Plymouth commissioner

THE STORE, at 705 S. Main, was closed in December 1988 after nearly 30 years of operation. The site has the largest concentration of free parking of any single store in the city. The building has 16,855 square feet of floor space.

Vos said he's talked with a citizens group which plans to picket a Farmer Jack store in Canton, to draw attention to the vacant Plymouth storefront.

"They've offered to provide pickets and call the news media to get some public attention, because it (the Plymouth site) is an eyesore," Vos said.

Planners: Keep Tigers in Detroit

By Tim Richard
staff writer

The Detroit Tigers Baseball Club should reconstruct its 79-year-old stadium or build a new one in the city, leaders of a regional planning agency agreed.

The executive committee of the Southeast Michigan Council of Governments said Friday it favors using existing infrastructure over expanding into suburban meadows.

Some observers have speculated that Plymouth Township could be favored by the Tigers as a prime site for a new stadium, as I-96, I-275 and M-14 meet near the township's northwest border. While the club has said access to a new stadium is a consideration, officials decline to comment on potential stadium sites.

"Isn't there going to be any discussion?" asked a non-voting member, Rose Collins, an aide to state Sen. John Kelly, D-Detroit, as the top SEMCOG panel passed the resolution by unanimous voice vote.

Collins asked SEMCOG to pick one option — saving the existing stadium or building in Detroit — rather than two. She also asked that any public financing scheme consider the surrounding neighborhood at Michigan and Trumbull and not just the stadium project.

She moonlights as belly dancer

40s "and she looked like she was in her late 20s." The same could be said for French, who is 40 and looks much younger.

"Some of the new dancers are from the new school," she said. "I'm from the old school."

When asked what the difference is, she said: "The old school is the right school."

Through the years, French said, she noticed that some women took a few recreational classes and referred to themselves as professional belly dancers.

"That bothers most professional belly dancers, because we put so much into it. To call yourself a professional dancer you have to have experience and know the different types of dances."

WHEN SHE first started belly dancing she thought it would be good exercise.

"I was married at the time," she said. "I thought it would be intriguing for my husband as well."

French said she landed her first dancing job by accident.

She and a friend, who was visiting from Hawaii, went to an Arabic nightclub. They started to dance and the musicians called the two women on stage. The owner thought she was a professional dancer and that was the beginning of her dancing career.

When her son, Jerry, now 21 and in his third year at Eastern Michigan University, was a baby, belly dancing in the evening was convenient.

"He went to bed at 9 p.m. and my sister or neighbor would babysit," she said. "When he was about 12, I started working both jobs."

As her skills in the law offices increased, her salary also went up, so she cut down on the dancing. But she could never leave it.

"Dancing is like heavy-duty aerobics," she said. "When I come off stage, I feel rejuvenated."

When asked if she worries about unruly customers, she said: "When I get on stage, I look at all the people. I don't go to any table where I feel a coldness."

"Very rarely has it happened that someone has made a rude comment," she said. "When that happens I ignore that table — and usually the rest of the people at that table are embarrassed — as much as I would like to stop and kick that person.

"The men are usually very nice. I think they're more shy than aggressive. One time a guy said, 'When are you going to take your clothes off?' I stopped, bent over and said: 'You're in the wrong club. You want to go across the river.' "

FRENCH WEAVES a story about how belly dancing has a rich history that dates back thousands of years, originating in the Middle East. The Greeks and the Turks adopted the dance form.

Initially the dance was created by women entertaining women, she said. The stomach gyrations tell the story of life, love, marriage, happiness and childbearing.

"The sheiks were allowed to have more than one wife," she said. After they accumulated multiple wives, some of the women would be thrown out on the street and they danced for money.

"Through the years things have changed," French said. "It's one of the oldest cultural dances alive and it's thought of as a true art form."

French said another lesson in life has been the varied people she's met while dancing.

BILL BRESLER/staff photographer

Canton resident Claudia French works at her computer in her office in the Penobscot Building, which overlooks the sparkling Detroit River.

"I got married right out of high school, and I was very naive," she said. "I learned so much about life and people and how people are. I can read it a mile away when they're not being sincere."

AFTER HER first dance, on a recent Saturday night, French changed the blue outfit for gold and black. Another belly dancer joined her for the final act.

"The crowd really makes me want to dance more," she said when it was over. "It gives me energy.

"I didn't plan on (belly dancing). And I didn't think I'd be doing this all these years. But it keeps you going."

French ends her dances with a Greek greeting, "Opa," which translated means, "To the good life." And you can't help but think that she works on making the words come alive.

French also dances for charity. Her next fund-raiser is for the homeless held Friday, April 5, at the Roostertail in Detroit. The event is sponsored by the Salvation Army and Don Carlos restaurants.

SEMCOG committee wants Tigers to stay in Detroit

THE EXECUTIVE committee of SEMCOG, a seven-county regional planning body, acted after listening to two groups of architects not affiliated with the Tigers show how the stadium could be saved.

"You are about to receive a plan the Detroit Tigers have not seen, even though we have made 25 attempts," said Bob Buchta, president of the Tiger Stadium Fan Club.

Buchta accused Tigers owner Tom Monaghan of "pandering to perceptions" that the area is unsafe. "This is not leadership," Buchta said.

Architect John Davids, supporting the fan club, said stadium renovation could be paid for from 70 new executive box suites on the third tier, unused since a fire 15 years ago.

Adams proposed closing off Cochrane Street for an executive dining room and TV truck parking, new clubhouses, expanded toilet facilities, a doubling of the press box and removal of 40 percent of the columns which block fans' view in the second deck.

Tiger Stadium is superior because fans are closer to the field than in many other stadiums, Davids said.

He charged that Monaghan's desire for "controlled parking" would hurt the neighorhood and "you (fans) would pay what they (Tigers) want."

Monaghan reportedly wants a new stadium with a "controlled environment." He says it would increase attendance by one million.

BIRMINGHAM architect Gunnar Birkets proposed renovation by hydraulically raising and pushing back the second deck, ending pillars that obstruct seats.

His plan would result in 198 luxury suites (versus the existing one) and more than 5,000 new seats to a capacity of 57,584. Lavatory facilities would be tripled.

Birkets said Monaghan had seen his "self-appointed" group's plan but didn't comment.

Neither group gave a cost estimate for renovation. The stadium is now owned by the city. The Tigers' lease runs until 2008.

The Tigers have played on the same site since 1901 when the American League was formed. The original stands were replaced by Navin Field in 1912 (capacity 23,000). It was expanded in stages to 53,000 under Frank J. Navin and Walter O. Briggs. Monaghan bought the Tigers in 1982.

Empty supermarket discussed

"I want to see if I can get something going as a citizen," Vos said. He added the city doesn't have the money to file a suit on its own.

"We'll take another look at the contract" between Dickson Jr. and Borman Inc., Vos said The lease requires Borman Inc. to sell food at the site, but Dickson Jr. has said he'd accept a sublease to a business that doesn't sell food.

He said that Borman Inc. does not want to relinquish the lease, which has several years to run.

SIMON SAID on Friday that Borman Inc. has been trying to sub-lease the site. "We have nothing at this time," he said, declining further comment.

Last spring, the city began talking with Borman officials about the site, saying they were concerned that it had become an eyesore as weeds were growing in parking lot pavement cracks.

Borman Inc. re-sealed the lot in July and trimmed weeds.

Some city officials say Borman may not want to rent the building to a potential competitor.

In April 1990, two area business partners said they hoped to establish a teen club at the site, but those plans were scrapped.

Drivers, clerks agree to pact with schools

By M.B. Dillon
staff writer

School transportation and clerical workers have agreed to contract terms with Plymouth-Canton Community Schools.

The school board has ratified a three-year agreement that grants the district's 120 bus drivers, monitors and mechanics yearly increases of 5, 3 and 4 percent, with a maximum 2 percent annual cost-of-living adjustment. Contract language changes were made as well.

"It's basically the same rates the teachers received, just changed a little," said Alice Horstead, chief steward for the transportation union. "We're very happy with it given the economy."

Office personnel, who number 91, received increases of 5, 4 and 5 percent with maximum cost-of-living adjustments of 2 percent. Language changes were also made.

Superintendent John Hoben said both agreements "fall within the parameters that were given to the negotiating team."

Still unsettled are the para-professionals, or educational aides.

The para-professionals went to mediation Dec. 10, but no settlement was reached, said Maryann Ligato-Freydl, bargainer for the para-professionals and executive director of the Michigan Education Association.

"No further meetings were held until after vacation because Mr. (Errol) Goldman (executive director of employee relations) wanted to talk to the board of education. Several closed sessions were held."

Another session with a state mediator is scheduled for Tuesday.

"The biggest stumbling block is that the para-pros still are trying to get benefits similar to other school employees in the district, such as in effect, a designated work year," said Ligato-Freydl.

'It's basically the same rates the teachers received, just changed a little. We're very happy with it given the economy.'

— Alice Horstead, union steward

The district employs 135 para-professionals.

"Currently other part-time employees, including food service, who work less than 12 months get vacation time. Vacation increases with their number of years in service and may be used when school holidays occur. Para-pros are the only people not paid during that time," she said.

"We're trying to provide provisions similar to what other employees have."

The para-pros, working under an extended agreement, have been bargaining since the end of last school year. Their contract expired July 1.

Custodial-maintenance and food service workers reached tentative agreements with the school district in November after meeting with a state mediator.

The food service and custodial-maintenance three-year contracts call for increases of 7, 6 and 7 percent.

Custodial-maintenance workers received an improvement in their long term disability benefits, and an improvement in vision coverage effective next year.

Food service employees received an increase in longevity pay, and an increase in their uniform allowance effective next year.They also received an improvement in dental coverage from 50 percent to 80 percent effective the first year of the agreement.

Teen scouts for can tops

Canton teenager Matt Whittaker needs 4,990 more pounds of pop and beer tabs.

To complete one of the requirements for Eagle Scout status in the Boy Scouts, Matt, 13, decided to collect the tabs in order to buy a medical machine for the Detroit Children's Hospital.

Collecting since last June, he has 10 pounds now. But with aluminum going for 40 cents a pound, Matt needs 4,990 pounds more to reach his $2,000 goal.

"I might not get that far, but every little bit helps," he said.

The nuns at Matt's school, St. Raphael in Garden City, have been helpful, donating a small box of tabs to the boy. He's also arranged for some area stores to collect tabs for him.

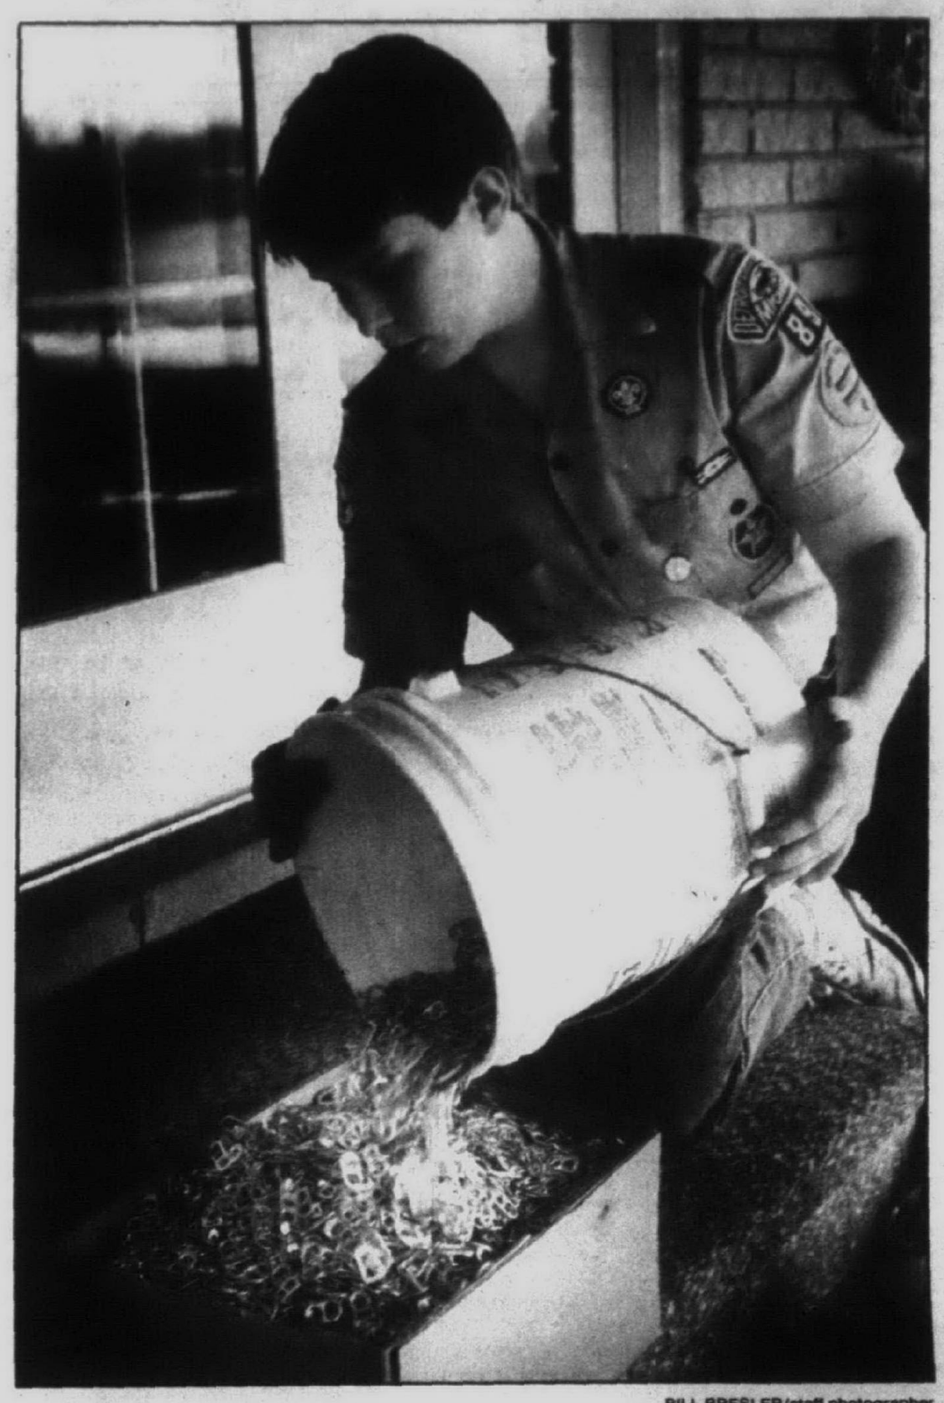

Matt's mother, Donna, assists him in his project. She's trying to get the library, police department or fire department to set up a drop box for tabs.

But it took some investigating on the mom's part to verify that tabs are in fact used to buy medical machines. At first Donna was told by a Detroit Children's Hospital employee that the dream is a myth. "She told me it was just a rumor," Donna said. "I thought that my son was going to die." But Donna continued to investigate.

She discovered that American Legion posts across the country routinely collect tabs to buy medical machines for children's hospitals. Michigan Legion posts acquired enough tabs to buy five medical machines for state children's hospitals last year, Donna said.

Realizing how large an undertaking this project is, Donna said Matt is "reaching out for people in the area to help him. We're hoping that we can get some help."

Anyone who wants to donate some tabs to Matt's cause can contact him or his mom at 981-0723.

Canton officials plan for road improvements

By Diane Gale
staff writer

If you had a million dollars to spend on road improvements in Canton what problems would you tackle first?

Canton trustees will make that decision this year, even though the payment is done relunctantly.

Since Canton is a township, thoroughfare construction and maintenance projects are Wayne County's responsibility. However, when the county refuses to pay for road improvements, Canton goes ahead without financial help.

"As citizens we need to pressure (Wayne County) to come out and do more things on our roads," said trustee Elaine Kirchgatter during a study session Feb. 19.

CANTON'S 1991 budget earmarks $1 million for road projects. Depending on how far the money goes, improvements will be made at the following intersections:

- Warren and Sheldon;
- Lilley and Ford;
- Haggerty and Ford;
- Sheldon and Ford;
- Canton Center and Ford;
- Canton Center and Saltz;
- Canton Center and Palmer; and
- Koppernick east of Haggerty.

Canton engineer Tom Casari said the most important project, after Ford Road improvements, is to install left turn and right turn lanes at Warren and Sheldon roads. The changes should reduce traffic snarls.

'As citizens we need to pressure (Wayne County) to come out and do more things on our roads.'

— Elaine Kirchgatter, Canton Township trustee

AFTER MORE than two years of prodding from Canton, the long awaited improvements on Ford Road intersections are underway and will be paid by the state and Wayne County. Left turn phase signals at Haggerty, Lilley and Sheldon should help traffic flow, Casari said.

Also, Canton trustees last week indefinitely postponed plans to spend more than $35,000 for a master plan outlining Canton traffic conditions and service levels.

"This is discretionary spending, said trustee John Preniczky.

"Until we evaluate spending ability, I would like to say put it on hold. I don't think this is necessary right now."

Signs of Canton's maturity can be seen in future road improvement projects. In the past projects concentrated on paving dirt and gravel roads.

"We have a new problem, said Canton supervisor Tom Yack.

"Sheldon Road and Lilley Road need overlays. They're breaking up badly."

New $4 million post office expected to open in June

By Kevin Brown and Ralph R. Echtinaw
staff writers

The new $4 million post office in Plymouth Township is expected to be ready for action in June.

The 26,000-square-foot building, located on Beck north of M-14, will replace the Penniman Avenue post office in downtown Plymouth, a 22,000-square-foot building put up in 1935.

After the postal service vacates the Penniman Avenue facility and the building is assessed, federal and state agencies will get first crack at purchasing it. "My guess is that neither of them will want it," Plymouth city manager Gordon Jaeger said.

Neither the federal or state government is expanding at present, so it's unlikely they'll need the space, he added. It's also unlikely the city will be interested in the property.

'It could very easily become office or even commercial space without too much work.'

— Gordon Jaeger, Plymouth city manager

But Jaeger said the city commission will take a look at the situation in an upcoming meeting.

"I don't know that we need it," he said. "That's why we ought to discuss it." The city has no real need for additional space either for administrative or community purposes, Jaeger said, so the building is likely to end up in private hands.

"It could very easily become office or even commercial space without too much work," Jaeger said.

One possibility, however, is that the city or the downtown development authority could buy the property and sell it later.

"We do not want to end up with another big empty building downtown if we can avoid it." Jaeger said.

The Postal Service also plans to maintain a small office downtown. Postal officials told Plymouth officials that they want to lease a building of about 3,600 square feet.

Susan Moore, communications manager for the Postal Service's Detroit division, said the new post office is necessary because there are more customers in the Plymouth area than there used to be.

New post offices are also being built in Garden City, Livonia and Ann Arbor, Moore said. In the last few years, other new post offices were built in Rochester, Birmingham and Belleville.

Red, white and blue to fly again at local house

By Diane Gale
staff writer

The owner of a Canton company tried to right a wrong last week when he learned Jean and John Zoda of Canton had a flag stolen from in front of the family's house.

Tom Sayles, owner of A-1 Michigan Flag Pole in Canton, decided to act when he read an Observer article last week that reported an American flag was stolen from the Zoda house on Leeann Lane.

"I was at the gas station when I saw the newspaper, and the story caught my attention. I thought I would donate the flag to her," Sayles said.

JEAN ZODA said she was "flabbergasted" when a representative from the company called.

The Zoda's flag was stolen Feb. 18. Jean Zoda replaced the flag with a message on a bedsheet that said: "On this spot, Old Glory Flew, Our patriotism in full view, Presidents Day: Flag Stolen Away. We'll miss you Red, White and Blue."

'When the guys and girls come home I would like them to see the flags up and down Ford Road.'
— Tom Sayles

The family hung the flag, she said, because they wanted to show their patriotism and "let people in the subdivision know there were these kinds of people in the subdivision."

Zoda said the family will likely buy a new flag and "turn around and donate (the donated flag) to someone else."

Sayles said he also wanted to donate American flags to Canton so that they can be raised on Ford Road.

"I haven't told (township officials) that, but that's what I plan on doing," Sayles said. "When the guys and girls come home I would like them to see the flags up and down Ford Road in Canton."

THE COMPANY moved six months ago from its Plymouth Township location on Eckles to a location on Haggerty Road between Joy and Warren roads with exposure overlooking the I-275 expressway.

The Zodas will receive a four- by six-foot nylon American flag, valued at $37 and is the same size as the one that was stolen. The standard flag size is three- by five-foot. However, the original flag was a momento from John Zoda's Navy days.

Sayles said flag sales have increased more than 100 percent since the war started. The company sells about 100 flags weekly.

"The hardest thing now is that people are having a difficult time finding the flags," Sayles said. "It takes us about one week to order them. People are coming from all over. The hardest thing right now is finding these flags. All major manufacturers are up to six months behind right now on U.S. flags."

Zoda said Friday afternoon that drivers continued to pull into the driveway to read the message on the bedsheet.

Job applicant suspected of swiping 5 videotapes

A man who left his name, address and phone number at a video store in hopes of getting a job is suspected of stealing five videotapes during his job-hunting visit.

A clerk at a business near Video Amusement at 521 Mill told police Thursday that a man, described as more than six feet tall, came into the business and asked for a paper bag at about 1 p.m. She gave him the bag, then watched him take five video tapes from his clothing and put them in the bag, according to the report filed with Plymouth police.

The woman then told another clerk about the incident, and the two saw the man — who earlier had applied for a job at the video store — run behind a building. Five tapes valued at a total of $270 had been taken, the report said.

BREAK IN: Several items, their value yet undetermined, were discovered stolen Thursday from the house of a Plymouth Township man who is out of town.

Police said a thief smashed a sliding glass patio door to get into the house on Hackberry. Drawers were ransacked and the thief searched closets, the police report continued.

Police are investigating the breaking and entering.

SMASH AND GRAB: A purse valued at $57 was stolen Thursday from a 23-year-old Detroit woman's car, which was parked at Figel school, according to a report filed with Plymouth Township police.

To get the purse, someone smashed the $75 rear side window of the woman's 1990 Ford Escort sometime between 11:30 a.m. and 12:10 p.m., the report continued. Police said there were no suspects.

RADIO MISSING: A car radio valued at $100 was taken sometime late Tuesday or early Wednesday from a 1983 Chevrolet parked at Rockwell International on Five Mile Road, according to a report filed with Plymouth Township police.

OFFICER INJURED: A Plymouth police officer was treated for cuts sustained when he scaled a fence to get away from a dog Wednesday after officers responded to a dog-bite complaint.

Officers were told a dog bit a female, whose age not listed in the report, near Palmer and McKinley streets. Two officers succeeded in luring the dog to a fenced-in yard, but one officer trying to scale a fence to get away from the charging dog sustained cuts to his left leg and right hand in the incident, at about 4:30 p.m.

The dog owner was cited for leaving the animal loose.

"I'm not sure they really gave him (Hussein) a chance to get out of Kuwait," said Jane Reese of Garden City. "That bothers me a little. It's like we said one thing but we really meant something else."

While protest was non-existent this weekend, area peace groups are now mobilizing for action.

The Committee for a Peaceful Resolution to the Gulf Crisis is continuing its call for a cease fire and has scheduled a protest for 4:30 p.m. today at the McNamara Building, downtown Detroit.

"What's upsetting is that they apparently set the invasion date so far in advance," said group member Jackie Victor. "It seems they didn't give negotiations a chance."

But others said they doubted whether Saddam Hussein would live up to the terms of any agreed-upon settlement.

"He proven time and again he's not going to listen," said Mike Forester of Redford.

Immigrant founded nursery

By Ralph R. Echtinaw
staff writer

A farmer, a blacksmith, a tireless worker and a Danish immigrant to the United States, Peter Christensen made his name as a Plymouth-area nursery owner, founding what became Christensen's Plant Center.

Mr. Christensen, 92, died Feb. 15 in his Ann Arbor house. He had been retired since 1963, leaving the family business to son Lee, who sold it last year.

Born in Holmsland, Denmark, on Oct. 16, 1898, Mr. Christensen grew up on a farm and learned to be a blacksmith before coming to this country at the age of 25 in 1923, settling in Detroit.

Working for several auto companies at first, Mr. Christensen went on to work for his brother-in-law's landscaping business. In 1927 he established his own business, Fairmont Garden Service.

Four years later, Mr. Christensen bought 19 acres on Ann Arbor Road and began the business that started life as Plymouth Nursery and celebrated its 50th anniversary in 1981 as Christensen's Plant Center.

"I liked the idea of growing stuff instead of working in other people's gardens," Mr. Christensen said in a 1981 Observer article.

Mr. Christensen became a United States citizen in 1936. Two years later, he moved his family out of Detroit and into a house he'd built on the nursery grounds.

His wife, Rena, who married Mr. Christensen in 1927, was busy with the children but pitched in when necessary in the family business.

Mr. Christensen often toiled more than 80 hours a week to make the nascent nursery a going concern, working at the same time for his brother-in-law's landscaping business. Ten years went by before Mr. Christensen's nursery made enough money to support the family.

Operating out of a barn at first, Mr. Christensen built a store on the nursery grounds in 1955 and added a storage building a year later. Business was primarily retail in the beginning, but the most numerous customers now are contractors and landscapers.

Describing his father as "a very caring individual, a taskmaster certainly (and) a perfectionist," Lee said he was surprised the hard-working Mr. Christensen took so easily to retirement.

Mr. and Mrs. Christensen moved to a Plymouth Township condominium after his retirement and lived there until 1989, when they moved to Ann Arbor.

He is survived by his wife; sons Allen R. of Grand Rapids and Lee R. of South Lyon; daughter Kathyrn A. Tuer of Ann Arbor; nine grandchildren; 10 great grandchildren; and brother Niels Christensen and sister Sigrid Jacobsen, both of Denmark.

Friends and acquaintances are invited to join the family in a celebration of Mr. Christensen's life at the First Unitarian Universalist Church of Ann Arbor, 1917 Washtenaw, at noon Tuesday. In lieu of flowers, the family requests that donations be made to C.S. Mott Childrens Hospital, 301 East Liberty, Suite 300, Ann Arbor 48104.

Mr. Christensen donated his body to the University of Michigan.

Help us make steps in the fight against SIDS

If you knew a healthy, happy baby had died suddenly without reason, you'd want to help. There are over 7,000 babies who die from a cruel, mysterious killer. It's called SIDS: Sudden Infant Death Syndrome.

Perhaps you've heard SIDS referred to as "Crib Death." But maybe you didn't hear that SIDS is the number one cause of death in infants from one week to one year.

A SIDS baby dies within seconds, usually during sleep. He suffers no pain. And contrary to belief, a SIDS baby doesn't suffocate or choke. There are no symptoms.

SIDS picks its victims randomly, paying no attention to social or economic levels. It kills babies of all races and religions. And it's not hereditary.

Donations of your time and dollars will make a difference. And we can make bigger steps to fighting SIDS.

Recycling problems in Canton

To the editor:

How is recycling going in Canton? I do not live in one of the subdivisions which is testing recycling. I think it's a good idea and long overdue. However, I have one major problem with it.

I am the co-owner of a small business in Canton. Ever since the recycling program began, our dumpster behind our business is constantly full. It is not from our business, but from outside sources.

In the four years we have been in business in Canton, we have had occasional dumping of this nature. But, since the recycling program has begun, it has gotten way out of hand.

We pay dearly for dumpster service as do all other businesses in Canton and think that it is about time that people stop and think twice before stealing a service that does not belong to them.

Protesters safe at home

To the editor:

I just finished reading Kevin Brown's piece "Against the War" on the front page of your Feb. 18 edition.

These anti-war, protest type persons of the sort quoted in the article make me want to ask a few questions of my own.

For example, where were these people before our country took the lead in confronting that reincarnation of evil that everybody calls Saddam Hussein?

Where were they when unarmed Armenians were being hacked to death in 1915 by the tens of thousands? Where were these concerned citizens when the German Government forced 24,000 Hungarian men, women and children into some gas chambers on one fine October day in 1944? Where were they when the Vietnamese communists excavated a trench and buried 3,000 of their own perfectly healthy people?

And, finally, where were the conscientious objectors when Saddam Hussein turned his murdering, raping, pillaging hordes loose on the peaceful, unarmed population of Kuwait? The answer of course is that they were right here in the safe, well-protected U S of A, warm and well fed and declining "to be named to protect her business."

I guess there isn't much that we can do with these protesters, somebody said that's the price we pay for a free society. But doesn't it make you nauseous to hear this "I'm against the war but I support our troops" stuff? How about this little diddy, "To be against the war doesn't mean you're for Saddam Hussein." That's a relief.

You could probably say that the difference between these protesters and our sons and daughters on the front lines in Saudi Arabia isn't that one is for war and one is against it. The difference is that some are willing to sit by the TV, giving sanctions a chance to work, boycotting the Olympics or some other such ineffectual nonsense and some are willing to stand up and actually confront the matter.

Let's fact it, the only authority on earth today that is feared and respected by the enemies of humanity is the Armed Forces of the United States of America and the resolve of the American people (most of us) to marshal those forces for the defense of freedom and the containment of evil.

God Bless President Bush, our troops and their just and righteous mission.

Vorva listens to the voters

To the editor:

I read with great dismay letters from a couple of your out of town readers criticizing Commissioner Jerry Vorva for his attention to the wishes of his constituents. I don't know the educational background of these readers but I was taught that the first duty of a public official was to serve the people who live and pay taxes in the area he represents.

We are thankful that we citizens who merely live in Plymouth without further personal interest have a commissioner who is interested in us.

Put ballot in paper

To the editor:

Received the people, our priority paper put out by the Township Board of Trustees.

Would you believe there was no mention of the Hussein Breen takeover of the Kuwait Mettetal Airport or the surrounding acreage. How come?

If they wanted to know how people of the township felt on this subject, a small tearout ballot on the people — our priority paper would have brought a cross section opinion. The same ballot in the Observer will give Plymouth city people and Plymouth Township people a chance to respond.

Attacks hurt her pride

To the editor:

The anti-Arab acts in the United States make me less proud of being a citizen.

I thought this was the land of opportunity, where the Constitution states that all men are created equal. Does this mean all men except for Arabs, or all men except for blacks? No. It means that everyone here in America has the same rights as the next guy.

Just because we happen to be in a war with an Arab country doesn't mean that we should be enemies with all the people of Arabic descent.

Americans shouldn't discriminate against the Arabs because of their nationality. Many Arab-Americans have never been in the Middle East. They don't support Saddam Hussein. So, what's the reason for the protests against the Arab population?

Support helped Marine's family

To the editor:

Bruce, the girls and I would like to express our heartfelt thanks to all the wonderful people who gave us so much love and support during our time of need.

Without this help we never could have made it through the past two weeks. The love and support has been overwhelming from the cards, the visitors at our home and the funeral home, from family, friends, coworkers, from school, the community and from strangers who just care. It is truly overwhelming.

We only hear on the news about the bad things that people do to each other but let me say this is not the case. Good people far outweigh the bad. We cannot ever express in words how we feel about all of you wonderful people.

Kurt was always our "hero" and I'm glad he is also a hero to all of you. I also admired his enthusiasm for life and in everything he did. He will be greatly missed.

God bless all of you and all our troops. You and they are the best.

Thank you again.

Winner likes her apron

To the editor:

Thank you for the Winner Dinner Winner apron which I recently received for being the winner of December 31, 1990. I have received many comments from the story and have had fun with all the attention.

I would like to take this opportunity to tell you how much I have enjoyed the Winner Dinner column. My recipe book is packed with the menus I've saved. I sent in my menu in order to support the column because I feel I've gained so much from it. All the recipes are tasty and practical, using ordinary ingredients with short preparation times specified.

Many years ago, I began subscribing to the Observer & Eccentric because neighbors recommended it. My carpoolers in particular mentioned what good recipes it contained. Thanks for publishing such a good food section and including me in it.

Stewart called 'bad seed'

To the editor:

The first and foremost job of a politician is to serve the people.

John Stewart, a Plymouth Township trustee, is your "typical politician" from the empty suit subculture of the "me" generation. They developed their morality during the Vietnam protests and pattern their legal values from Watergate.

I was first exposed to John Stewart at a township meeting late last year. The meeting was superbly run by Supervisor Maurice Breen. It was efficient and well organized. This was a meeting our forefathers would have been proud of — except for one flaw — John Stewart. This so-called representative came into the meeting in a rude manner and very late. He was ignorant of all subjects. When he voted, his behavior was strange and future orientated — his future, not ours. He did not make a good first impression.

Now I read in the papers that John Stewart submitted the recall petitions for the Township Supervisor and five Plymouth City Commissioners. Is this the future he orients his votes toward, to seek a higher office? It certainly seems so.

As citizens who want an improved future for our community, let us stand strong together and eliminate this bad seed from Plymouth. Let us do this by electing a person for us, like Supervisor Breen, and not one like Stewart whose campaign slogan should have been "Let us not ask what I can do for you, but ask what you can do for me and my future."

Yack loses credibility on airport

To the editor:

Mr. Yack, your credibility slip is showing again.

In your recent campaign leaflet, you say that Canton never showed any interest in keeping Mettetal. A few lines later, you point out that your own committees voted in its favor. You explain that you are deadset against keeping it, claiming it has only recreational value, then go on to say that recreational facilities are one of Canton's most important assets.

Contrary to your statements, the pro-airport people did justify and document their position. Your airport study committee told you so, and voted in favor of it, even though you seeded the committee with naysayers.

You vow not to let Plymouth succeed with running Mettetal, even after you were quoted in the newspapers as saying if any other community wanted to take the offer, it was okay with you.

You say that Canton should not be involved with running an airport of any kind, yet your assistant, Dan Calabraise, ended up returning a call placed to New Hudson airport by an official of the Michigan Aeronautics Commission. The principal stockholder of that airport, which would stand to benefit from Mettetal's closure, is the same fellow who was nice enough to loan you his CPA for the "impartial" airport study committee. You accepted the offer, remember?

You have repeatedly parroted the same tired statements and misstatements (11 operations per day? Get real!) and objections of the community (to Plymouth's controlling the facility)? You must be joking. Your constituents, Mr. Yack, your committees, and your boards have consistently shown they favor Mettetal's preservation. Canton isn't against preserving the airport. Tom Yack is.

"If arguments to save the airport were compelling and documented," you ask, why wouldn't you have voted for it? Good question, Mr. Yack.

We were all wondering that, too.

Engler tax plan

Exemption for senior citizens draws criticism from both sides

By Tim Richard
staff writer

Both the political left and right have doubts about Gov. John Engler's proposal to exempt senior citizens from school operating property taxes.

"Why is it good policy for senior citizens to have no stake in the school system?" state-Sen. Debbie Stabenow, D-Lansing, asked fellow members of the Senate Finance Committee as it opened hearings on the 12-bill package.

And a Michigan State Chamber of Commerce spokesman told the panel, "We question whether it's good public policy to exempt people on the basis of age."

Otherwise, Richard K. Studley, a chamber vice president, praised the Republican governor's plan for a 20 percent cut in school property taxes and a cap on assessments while Stabenow criticized it.

SENATE BILL 70 would exempt the elderly from 50 percent of school operating taxes in 1991, 75 percent in 1992 and 100 percent in 1993 and beyond.

That credit would be phased out where household incomes exceed $73,650. That, Stabenow said in an interview afterwards, is hardly a person who can't afford school taxes. She would reduce the tax relief for higher income home owners.

Currently, senior citizens can take advantage of the "circuit breaker" — the state reimburses all property taxes on their homes in excess of 3.5 percent of household income.

Chris Chirio, an unemployed Lansing homeowner, called Engler's proposal "not fair to lower and middle incomes . . . To the average homeowner, it (property tax) is not that big of a deal," said Chirio, who said his winter tax bill was $689.

ENGLER'S proposal is embodied in Senate Bill 70. Co-sponsor Dave Honigman, R-West Bloomfield, made its case in a news release:

"The property tax is unfair because it forces many residents who have lived much of their lives in a home to sell it and abandon a lifetime of social and emotional investment in their home and community because they can no longer afford to pay the tax on their home.

"Senior citizens on fixed incomes often fall victim to this trap, especially in my community where the value of residential property has increased dramatically over the years. There's something wrong with a sytem that's forcing people from their homes," said Honigman, whose district includes the lakes area of western Oakland County.

THE BIG argument is shaping up over whether all property should get a 20 percent break (Engler) or business and higher income homes should be excluded (House Democrats).

Said chamber spokesman Studley: "The House Democratic plan would provide no property tax relief for Michigan's job providers. We think it is unfair to exclude farmers, small business and other employers.

"Worse yet, more than half the funding for the House Democratic plan is based on eliminating a key provision of the single business tax and eliminating industrial property tax abatements.

"These two measures would in effect raise taxes on Michigan's job providers by $615 million.

"The House Democratic plan has sent a very negative message to job providers."

Countered Stabenow: "We have no guarantee capital will be invested in this state (if property taxes are cut)."

The Senate Finance Committee, chaired by Republican Nick Smith of Hillsdale County, last week held hearings in several outstate cities.

Sen. Doug Carl, R-Utica, whose northern Macomb County district is a hotbed of anti-tax sentiment, said people at the Saginaw hearing thought "it's not time for tax relief because of the recession."

Carl thinks they were wrong: "The message hasn't got out that high taxes destroy economic growth."

Tax-cut plans outlined

- Cut school operating taxes by 20 percent over three years — by reducing assessment ratio from 50 percent to 40 percent of market value. Schools would be reimbursed by the state.
- Eliminate school operating property taxes for senior citizens over three years. State would pay rebates to seniors.
- Assess property every second year.
- Limit assessment increases to 5 percent a year. Voters must approve a constitutional amendment.
- Raise homestead property tax credit limits from the present $1,200 to $2,500 over time.

Engler's plan is embodied in Senate Bills 70 through 80 and Senate Joint Resolution D.

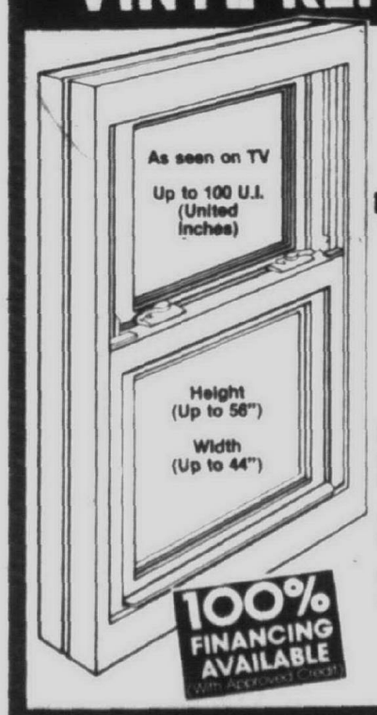

Dems' plan

- Exempt the first $30,000 of a home's market value ($15,000 of SEV) from school operating taxes — up to 50 percent.
- Index the $30,000 to inflation.
- Limit assessment increases to the rate of inflation until the home is sold — through constitutional amendment.
- Provide additional homestead tax credits to renters, low-income seniors and disabled.
- Eliminate capital acquisition deduction from single business tax and business tax abatements — an estimated $615 million business tax increase.

This plan is not yet in bill form.

Muffins pick up morning

My idea of breakfast is usually a cup of coffee. When I feel the need to be healthy, I down a glass of juice. When I'm "with the guys" and this usually means on a fishing trip, bring on the eggs over medium, hash browns, bacon, crisp and dry whole wheat toast.

When I'm constipated, it's a big bowl of Grape Nuts. But when I'm in the mood to create, nothing satisfies the morning taste buds like a batch of homemade muffins.

Even the airlines and Dunkin' Donuts are getting into the muffin swing of things. Gargantuan blueberry muffins with a streusel top adorn just about every doughnut shop shelf while their hockey-puck-hard cousins do their best at bringing on gut aches on red-eye flights.

Talk to just about anyone about muffins and you are likely to receive an earful on what they think makes the best muffin. Momma has been on an All-Bran kick ever since she discovered that bran was good for you, even if it is coupled with two cups of white granulated sugar.

GRANDMA LORY will always be remembered for making cake muffins that would give Betty Crocker a run for her money with her boxed cupcakes. These never needed frosting, although when we wanted to be decadent, a box of Jiffy chocolate frosting always suited the bill. If Grandma Lory knew this, she would probably roll over in her grave.

Contrary to popular belief, muffins need not be stuffed with $2.99-a-cup blueberries or inoculated with bran. Cinnamon and raisins add a morning/brunch feel while snack muffins could be made with a mixture of nuts, currants and other fruit. Plain muffins usually have the shortest life span and should be eaten immediately after baking.

Muffins with fruits and vegetables and those made with oil stay moist longer. Keep them out of the refrigerator as they will quickly dry out. Muffins freeze extremely well, especially when placed in a plastic bag and frozen. They are best reheated, wrapped in foil in a hot oven for 15 minutes or so. Microwaving will toughen them and should be used solely as a last resort.

The only problem I see when starting the morning with fresh-baked muffins is that you have to sit around and drink coffee for 30 minutes while they bake. This, of course, is in addition to the sink full of dirty dishes that usually accompany the recipe. One way to make muffins in a hurry is to freeze the batter unbaked and bake frozen just before serving.

Simply spoon muffin batter into muffin pans lined with foil-type cupcake liners. Freeze, uncovered, until solid (this usually takes 8-10 hours). Remove muffins from the pan and package airtight in foil or plastic bags. Label and date and freeze for up to two months.

TO BAKE, do not thaw. Return muffins to their prepared cupcake pans and bake at 375 degrees until they test done, about 30-35 minutes.

Muffins are quick bread batters and really are best when baked right after mixing. In addition to freezing, which works well, you also can whip up the batter the night before and simply omit the eggs. While the coffee is brewing, take the batter that was previously blended and well-covered in the refrigerator and simply beat in the eggs. Prepare as usual.

As far as most muffin recipes are concerned, the only thing you want to watch out for is overbeating. Muffins should have a breadlike texture but when overbeaten will have tunnels caused by the carbon dioxide and peaked tops.

SOUP

TAMMIE GRAVES

Homemade soups chase winter chills

By Ethel Simmons
staff writer

A WINTER SOUP PARTY brightens up February at the Observer & Eccentric each year. Everyone in the Livonia newsroom brings something for the party, which is highlighted by an assortment of delicious, hot soups.

All morning the soups that have been prepared the night before simmer in crockpots, hinting at the noon meal. One large table is spread with salads, homemade and store-bought breads of all kinds, and other food to accompany the soups.

On another table go the soft drinks, along with the desserts. When it's time to eat, the staffers serve themselves, buffet-style. Usually everyone samples more than one soup, so bowls or mugs may be only half-filled. Going back to the table several times is expected.

It's always a pleasure to see what the soups will be. There's a sign-up sheet, and those who choose to bring soup generally try to pick one different from the others.

THIS YEAR, one cook again made her favorite healthy and hearty black bean soup, which is always popular with staffers. Another cook made a minestrone soup she enjoys, taken from a recipe in a vegetarian cookbook.

An easy-to-make corn chowder, from a cookbook of microwave recipes, was tried for the first time by another cook. One cook said his recipe for potato soup also was a first-time effort, but he changed the recipe, as he always does.

In years past, the soup party was more of a soup-only effort. Those who didn't bring soup brought bread, and there was usually a salad and maybe a dessert or two. But each year, the fare has become more varied. The number of desserts seems to be on the rise, and this year a half dozen included everything from no-bake cheesecake to chocolate pound cake.

There are still many cold days ahead. Perhaps a soup party would be a way for you and your co-workers, or family and friends to share a warming meal. You could even make an interesting weekend family party by having members of the household make soups at their leisure, put all the soups into the fridge or freezer, then bring them out for sampling at the same time.

Coney Islands are Keros family tradition

By Anne R. Lehmann
special writer

To some they are franks, others weiners, some sausages and for most hot dogs. But for metropolitan Detroiters they are coney islands.

This Detroit-area phenomenon was the brainchild of Greek immigrants Gus and Bill Keros, who after visiting Coney Island amusement park in New York, recognized endless possibilities for this tasty and interestingly shaped blend of meat.

They left the mustard, eliminated New York's flavored sauerkraut, replaced it with onions and chili and christened it with the name of the place which inspired it. They opened the Lafayette and American Coney Islands downtown. The doors were open 24 hours a day, and people frequented the restaurant around the clock, including before and after games, theater or family outings.

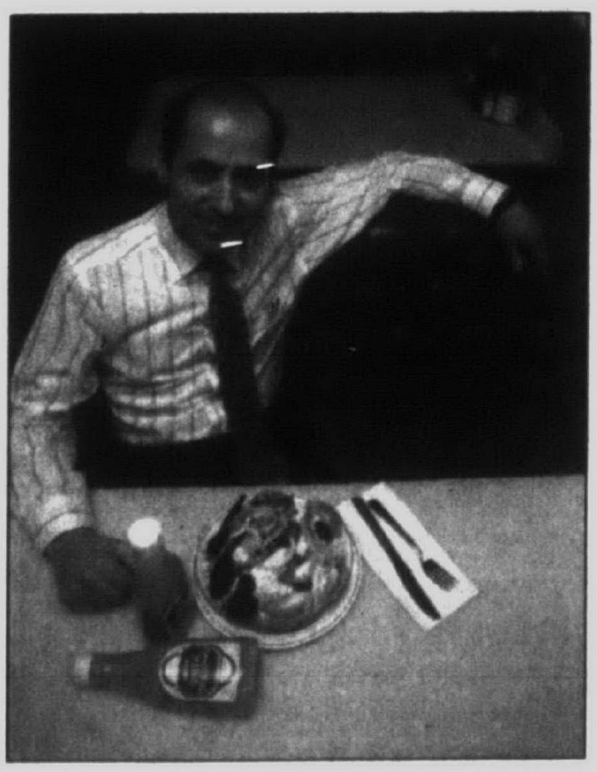

That was 80 years ago. Since then, coney islands have become as much a part of Detroit's restaurant landscape as fast-food burgers. It is Kerby's Koney Island, however, established in 1968, which many claim serves the Cadillac of coneys. This has become popular knowledge, so much so that many visiting celebrities, former Detroiters and out-of-towners alike, are known to wait in their cars while their chauffeurs come in to pick up an order of coneys.

A FAMILY BUSINESS run by three Keros brothers — Van, Tim and Bill (newphews of Gus and Bill) — Kerby's boasts 11 restaurants throughout Southeastern Michigan, with many located in area malls. They opened their first store at Tel-Twelve, in 1968. The business took off in unexpected ways, and the rest is history. "Coney islands," says Tim Keros, "are as Detroit as cars, Stroh's beer and Vernor's."

What many patrons don't know is that Kerby's makes quality its number one priority. Consequently, many of the items served in the restaurants are custom made. "We created the recipe for our hot dog, which we manufacture," says Keros. The chili, which is sold wholesale to other businesses, and Greek salad dressing, are homespun recipes, which they produce as well. Actually the Detroit Chili Co., the factory which manufactures the chili, is owned and operated by the Keros as well.

The only item they market to the public is the distinctive dressing, used on several Kerby's menu items besides the Greek salads. "The truth is we are not in the dressing manufacturing business, but as a courtesy to our customers who kept asking to buy dressing to take home, we started to bottle and sell the dressing at our restaurants," says Keros. A 16-ounce squeeze bottle sells for $1.75 and can be purchased at all Kerby locations.

The menu has grown, especially in recent years with a health-minded public asking for a wider variety of menu selections. "When we started out the options were koneys, bottled Coke and chili in a bowl," recalls Keros.

SHARON LeMIEUX/staff photographer

Tim Keros with Greek salad and their bottled Greek dressing, at Kerby's Koney Island in Farmington Hills.

Greek salads, soups, grilled chicken sandwiches, vegetable-stuffed pitas, as well as the ever-popular yeros, are some of the items growing in popularity. Yeros, referred to by others as gyros, are prepared by broiling specially prepared ground lamb and beef on a vertical rotiserrie.

ALMOST ALL the fat drips off the meat, which is then shaved and served with yogurt-cucumber dressing in a pocketless pita. Keros points out, "without the proper equipment, even my wife, one of the best Greek cooks I know, can't make this one at home."

Desserts including the famous Sanders' hot fudge sundae, another Detroit favorite, are becoming hot menu items for Kerby's, two of which are housed in former ice cream parlors. Greek desserts including baklava and rice pudding also are available.

Catering is another facet of the coney island business which has been developing over the last few years. Kerby's transports its restaurant wares to many catered affairs, including one held in the lobby of the Fisher Theatre in Detroit. "We once served 5,000 people coneys when the owners of an office complex held a tenant appreciation day," Keros says, beaming.

Besides being original and distinctive in their taste, Kerby's koneys are unique in their spelling. "My uncle coined the term 'coney island,' but everyone began using it. We wanted people to know that our koneys were different from all the rest so we recreated the spelling to convey the message," Keros explains.

The third generation has joined the Kerby team with many cousins already training and waiting in the wings to further the success of this growing family business. Will we be seeing Kerby's coneys and chili in supermarkets in the near future? "We don't have any immediate plans," says Keros, "but one thing I've learned in this business is never to say never."

Chasing winter chills

MINESTRONE ALLA MILANESE

This recipe makes enough soup for at least a dozen people, maybe more. Cut all amounts in half for a smaller group, or make it all and freeze half for another day. It is a meal in itself, served with just a good bread and cheese and fruit.

1 ½ cups dried kidney beans
3 to 4 cloves garlic
1 large onion, chopped
5 tablespoons olive oil
3 large potatoes, pale and clean-skinned
2 carrots
5 to 6 medium zucchini
1 to 1 ½ cups cut string beans
3 to 4 medium leeks, sliced (about ½ cup)
Salt and pepper to taste
Fresh parsley, chopped
Large pinch of celery seeds
1 to 2 teaspoons basil
1 teaspoon oregano
Large pinch of marjoram
½ head savory cabbage
½ cup long-grain rice
6 to 7 tomatoes
1 cup grated Parmesan
3 to 4 tablespoons butter

Soak the beans overnight in enough water to keep them covered, then drain them and put them in a giant kettle (2-gallon, or larger) with 4 quarts of water. Add the garlic cloves, peeled and put through a press, the onion, and the olive oil. Simmer the beans for about 1 ½ hours.

Choose 3 large potatoes with healthy skins and scrub them thoroughly under running water. Cut them into large pieces, without peeling, and add them to the pot. Slice the carrots and zucchini thickly and add them also, together with the cut string beans and sliced leeks. Season with some salt and pepper, a little chopped parsley, a good pinch of celery seed, some basil, oregano and a pinch of marjoram. Simmer again for about 45 minutes.

Slice thinly half a small head of savoy cabbage and add it to the soup along with the rice. If you can get the large, beautiful rice of the Lombardy region of Italy, you will truly have Minestrone alla Milanese. After adding the rice, simmer the soup another 20 minutes. If it is getting too thick for your taste, add a little more water as needed.

About 5 minutes before the soup is ready to serve, add the tomatoes (cut into large wedges), the Parmesan cheese, butter and a little more fresh parsley.

Serve steaming hot with a good bread and more Parmesan cheese if desired.

Hawaiian Haystack is a warm reminder

Betsy Brethen

Every year about this time I find myself wishing I could trade places with the Calgon lady and be transported to some exotic isle. Somehow, spring and warm weather seem at times tantalizingly close until Old Man Winter comes along to remind us that he still reigns supreme and blasts us with more cold weather.

Until those four magic words, "Calgon, take me away!" start working for you and me, we will have to be content with this week's Winner Dinner, which will bring a taste of Hawaii to your dinner table. So throw on your grass skirt, get out your ukulele and start beating the drums for "Hawaiian Haystack," a yummy, colorful dish that is bound to help chase away the winter dinner doldrums.

Katie Kish of Rochester Hills submitted this week's winning menu. Kish enjoys cooking and is known for the delicious and nutritious cookies and muffins she bakes for her children's lunches. Her recipe for Crazy Whole-Wheat Apple and Spice Cake is one of her family's favorites and is an easy dessert or snack to make.

The mother of three teenagers, Kish works part-time as a church secretary. She is also a very active volunteer and participant at Northfield Hills Baptist Church, the church that she, her husband and children attend. There, she works as the church clerk, keeping track of the records, and as accompanist for the children's choir. She sings solos and duets whenever she is asked and works as the wedding director for the church.

Her three children also keep her busy, and she always attends and supports the many athletic and musical events in which they participate. Currently, her children and their church youth groups are involved in putting together a high-school, youth-group musical that will be performed at their church.

Thank you, Katie Kish, for sharing your recipes with us and congratulations on being this week's Winner Dinner Winner. Your recipes will help us endure these last weeks of winter and give us the Hawaiian punch that we need.

Until next week, I'm off to give those four magic words one more try. "Calgon, take me away. Calgon, take me away. Calgon, take me" - oops, they worked. A-looo-ha!

Submit your recipes, to be considered for publication in this column or elsewhere, to: Winner Dinner, P.O. Box 3503, Birmingham 48012. All submissions become the property of the publisher. Each week's Winner Dinner Winner receives an apron with the words Winner Dinner Winner on it.

Recipes

HAWAIIAN HAYSTACK

Nutritious, flavorful and full of color and texture, this tasty recipe will help you stretch a chicken a long way. The chicken and the broth can be prepared ahead and frozen or refrigerated if there isn't enough time to do all the cooking in one day. Serves 6.

To Prepare the Chicken and Broth

1 whole chicken, skinned as much as possible
2 medium onions, peeled and quartered
2 stalks celery, cut up into a few large pieces
6 cups water
1-2 teaspoons thyme, depending on your flavor preference
Salt or pepper

OR

As a shortcut, use 4 generous cups prepared chicken with 2 cans chicken broth, 14½-ounce size

Cook chicken in a dutch oven with the 6 cups of water, the vegetables and the seasonings. When the chicken is done, remove to a bowl or tray to cool. Strain the broth to remove the vegetables and place in the refrigerator to cool so that the fat can be skimmed off. When the chicken has cooled, remove from the bones, in bite-sized pieces, and store in the refrigerator until ready to finish dinner preparations.

To finish the preparations for dinner, chop up the following and place in separate bowls on the table:

1 large green pepper
2 medium-sized tomatoes
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
1 cup sliced almonds
1 can pineapple chunks, 14½-16-ounce size
2 stalks celery
2 bunches green onion
1 large can Chinese noodles
Bottle of soy sauce

Skim off the fat from the broth and discard. Heat the broth in a large saucepan and remove 1 cup of the broth to combine it with the cornstarch to thicken. Taste the broth at this point to see if it needs any extra seasoning or chicken bouillon to boost the flavor. Add 2 tablespoons of cornstarch to the cup of broth you have set aside and stir until smooth. When the broth in the saucepan comes almost to a boil, stir in the broth/cornstarch mixture and keep stirring until it is smooth and beginning to thicken.

Reduce the heat to low and stir in the chicken pieces and allow to thoroughly warm through.

While the chicken mixture is warming, prepare the Minute Rice according to the package directions, using 3 cups of uncooked Minute Rice.

When the chicken and broth mixture is heated and ready, bring to the table and the family can layer it on their plates in the following order:

Rice
Chicken and broth
Remainder of the items
Sprinkle with soy sauce, if desired

½ teaspoon nutmeg

Carmel, apple flavors in pudding

AP — Remember how great caramel apples rolled in nuts tasted when you were a kid? Here are the same flavors, but now they're easier to eat.

CARAMEL-APPLE BREAD PUDDING

2¼ cups milk
½ cup sugar
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
½ teaspoon vanilla
⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 cups dry whole-wheat bread cubes (about 3 slices)
One 6-ounce package dried apples, snipped
Caramel-Nut Sauce (recipe follows)

In a large mixing bowl, use a rotary beater to beat together eggs, milk, sugar, cinnamon, vanilla and nutmeg. Set egg mixture aside. In an ungreased 8-by-1½-inch round baking dish, toss together dry bread cubes and dried apples. Pour the egg mixture evenly over the bread-apple mixture. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 40 to 45 minutes or until the bread pudding tests done. Serve warm with Caramel-Nut Sauce. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Caramel-Nut Sauce

In a small saucepan, melt ¼ cup margarine or butter. Stir in ½ cup packed brown sugar and 1 tablespoon light corn syrup. Cook and stir over medium heat until the mixture comes to a full boil. How to pair food and wine focus on wine

Eleanor and Ray Heald

Mary Evely, chef at Simi Winery in Healdsburg, Calif., grew up in Grosse Pointe Shores, where her mother still lives.

She has a sister who is professor of mathematics at Michigan State University. Mary's claim to fame is the food and wine program she created at Simi.

Believing that there were consumers who had an interest in both food and wine, she designed a series of affordable luncheons pairing food and wine. To preserve a group experience, encourage dialogue and reduce intimidation, participation is limited to 24 people.

"When people leave, they feel comfortable with wine and food because they realize there is no single correct matchup," Evely said. "They understand that personal choices are important. Simi wines are readily available, and people can repeat the experience in their home."

"I deliberately try to focus on food preparations that are traditionally considered difficult pairings with wine," Evely said. "Crudites, a simple appetizer, is not easily matched with a chenin blanc in the off-dry Simi style. An off-dry wine paired with vegetables loses its perceptible acidity and becomes flabby and finishes flat. You might consider using sweeter vegetables, but snow peas are sweet, and they make chenin blanc bitter.

"HOWEVER, IF YOU prepare a salad dressing or dip with mayonnaise base and tarragon, a sweet herb, you alter the flattening effect of the vegetables and complement the chenin blanc."

Evely specializes in simple recipe adaptations to make the preparation complementary with more than one wine. She uses palate trickery in her rice salad when she uses tarragon to pair with chenin blanc, then substitutes ground cumin for the tarragon to pair it with sauvignon blanc, or for a chardonnay matchup, she uses chopped fresh basil.

She finds the Foil Baked Chicken with Herbs recipe from "The Silver Palate Cookbook" (Rosso and Lukins, McLaughlin Workman Publishing Co., Inc. 1982) a reliable match to Simi-style chenin blanc. To make it complementary to sauvignon blanc, she substitutes thyme for the mint and dill; one red onion, thinly sliced, in place of the lemon, and uses two tablespoons virgin olive oil for half the butter.

The sauvignon blanc variation pairs with cabernet sauvignon when two ripe, peeled, seeded and finely chopped tomatoes are added and the pepper mill is adjusted to very coarse and used generously.

For pasta with olive-accented fresh tomato sauce, Evely demonstrates that the type of olive used defines the wine that pairs best. For cabernet sauvignon, she suggests oil-cured olives. Sauvignon blanc is well-served by Kalamata olives and chardonnay does best with generic canned olives.

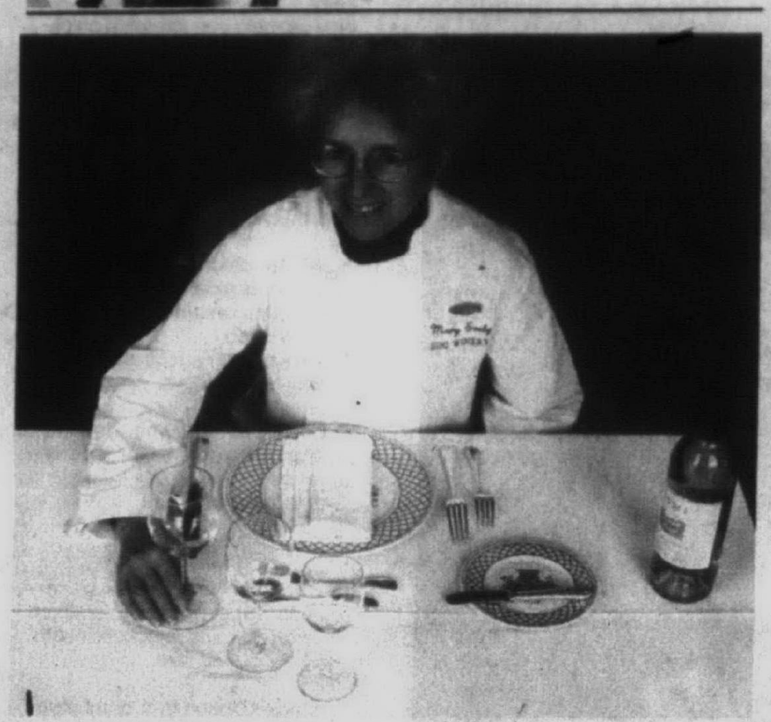

Evely says that with a mushroom risotto the type of mushroom determines the best wine combination. Shiitake and morels make the dish compatible with cabernet sauvignon, when a beef broth is used instead of chicken to prepare the rice.

Butter in the risotto echoes the butteriness in the Simi Chardonnay. "The delicate, earthy flavors of fresh porcini are well balanced by the delicate, toasty notes in the wine," she said. "Fresh parsley, or even better, fresh chervil, with its sweet note, accents the fresh fruit flavors of this chardonnay."

If you are traveling to California wine country and would like more information about Simi's wine and food program, write: Chef Mary Evely, Simi Winery, Box 698, Healdsburg, Calif. 95448.

WINE SELECTION OF THE WEEK

Simi Winery makes some of the best chardonnay year after year. The 1988 Simi Chardonnay ($16.50) is a blend of wines from Napa, Sonoma and Mendocino Counties. Aromas of buttered popcorn and toasty oak introduce a wine with rich fruit flavors. It is styled like a white Burgundy at half the price. Simi's 1988 Sauvignon Blanc ($9.30) is also a winner. Generous flavors highlight tropical fruit that is clean and crisp with a long aftertaste.

Chef Mary Evely talks with consumers during lunches at California's Simi Winery.

'When people leave, they feel comfortable with wine and food because they realize there is no single correct matchup.'

No cream, butter in Turkey Pot Pie

AP — You can have turkey pot pie without excess fat and cholesterol. Make this main dish without cream or butter. Fill with vegetables and leftover turkey.

TURKEY POT PIE

For the filling:
2 large carrots, peeled and cut into ½-inch slices (about 1 cup)
2 tablespoons oil
½ cup thinly sliced scallions (green onions)
1 clove garlic, minced
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1 cup hot chicken broth
2 cups cooked light turkey, skin removed and cut into ½-inch slices
1 cup diced celery, (½ inch)
½ cup frozen peas, thawed
½ cup frozen pearl onions, thawed
½ cup evaporated skim milk
2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
¼ teaspoon dried thyme
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper
For the crust:
1 and ⅓ cups all-purpose flour
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup oil
3 tablespoons skim milk

For the filling: Heat a small saucepan of water to boiling. Add carrots and blanch three minutes; drain and set aside.

In large saucepan, heat oil over medium heat. Add scallions and garlic. Cook about 3-5 minutes, until softened. Whisk in flour and cook 1 minute.

Gradually whisk in chicken broth and cook, stirring constantly, until thickened, 5-6 minutes. Stir in remaining filling ingredients. Spoon into nine-inch pie plate.

For the crust: combine flour and salt in a medium bowl. Blend oil and skim milk in small bowl; add to flour mixture. Stir with fork until dough forms a ball. Press dough ball between hands to form a 5-6 inch "pancake." Roll pancake between unfloured sheets of waxed paper or plastic wrap. (Pie crust can be made in advance and refrigerated in pie plate overnight.)

Peel off top sheet of waxed paper or plastic wrap and place pie crust on top of filling. Trim and flute edges. Bake in a 375-degree oven until pastry is golden brown, about 40-45 minutes. Serve hot. Makes six servings.

Grilled Marinated Quail is served with compote

These recipes are from Chef Gary Danko, chef/manager for The Restaurant at Chateau Souverain Winery in Sonoma County, Calif. He was the subject of a recent "Focus on Wine" column by Eleanor and Ray Heald. The column detailed Danko's participation in the Great Chefs program at the London Chop House in Detroit.

GRILLED MARINATED QUAIL WITH POLENTA CROUTONS AND CRANBERRY ONION COMPOTE
24 ounces veal or duck stock
6 quails, semi-boneless
Wing tips and necks from quails

Marinade:
¼ cup cabernet or red wine
¼ cup olive oil, extra virgin
1 teaspoon salt
1-½ tablespoons Dijon mustard
1-¼ teaspoons thyme
1-½ teaspoons ground coriander
6 small clusters of arugula or watercress

Marinade: combine wine, olive oil, salt, Dijon mustard, thyme and ground coriander. Brush on quails and place in glass bowl or stainless steel and marinate 1-3 days.

Quail essence: brown tips and necks in olive oil until golden brown. Discard excess fat. Ladle in 6 ounces veal stock and reduce to a glaze. Repeat twice more until 6 ounces brown sauce remains. Strain well and discard bones. Reserve. This may be done a day ahead.

Grilling Quails: let quails come to room temperature. Have grill heated. Grill quails for 2 minutes on each side. Remove legs from breast and continue grilling legs for 2 minutes longer, while you toss arugula with olive oil, vinegar, salt and pepper. Arrange on plate with slices of smoked pear and olives. Place breast on greens, arrange legs around and drizzle with 1 ounce of hot quail essence.

Cranberry Onion Compote
1 pound fresh cranberries
½ cup red wine
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons lime juice
3 tablespoons orange juice
¼ teaspoon salt
1 pint (1 pound) pearl onions, peeled
2 cups chicken stock
1 bay leaf
1 sprig thyme
4 tablespoons unsalted butter

In saucepan combine cranberries, wine, sugar, lime, orange juices and salt. Bring to a boil and simmer for 8 minutes. Set aside.

In saute pan melt butter, over medium-high heat, saute pearl onions until golden brown. Add stock and simmer until pearl onions are crisp tender. Add cranberry mixture and simmer until liquids have concentrated. Salt and pepper to taste. This may be made 3 days ahead and gently warmed before serving.

Oven Polenta
5 tablespoons olive oil
⅓ cup minced onion
1 cup large cracked polenta
4 cups water
2 teaspoons salt

Brush 12-inch cake pan with 1 tablespoon olive oil. Reserve.

In ovenproof saucepan heat 4 tablespoons olive oil, add onion and saute over medium heat until translucent. Stir in polenta and coat with olive oil, cooking long enough to heat through. Whisk in boiling water (measured after the boil) and return to a boil. Add salt. Place in a 350-degree oven for 25-30 minutes (or until most of the water is absorbed). Remove from oven and whisk until well blended. Pour into prepared cake pan, smooth top. Cool. Cut into wedges or desired shape (This may be made 1-2 days ahead).

To serve: brush polenta with olive oil and grill or pan fry until golden brown. (In effect sear the outside and warm the inside.)

Tasteful ways to take care of all those turkey leftovers

AP — You can't say "turkey" without "leftovers."

Chef Patrick Augustyn of New York's Samplings restaurant takes leftover turkey and transforms it into turkey hash, while Georgia's Homestyle Cooking, a takeout shop in New Haven, Conn., draws inspiration for its turkey tetrazzini from James Beard's "Beard on Pasta."

Margaret Fox, chef-owner of Cafe Beaujolais in Mendocino, Calif., combines turkey and spinach in a sauce and serves it over waffles. She prefers the flavor of smoked turkey, but says plain turkey or smoked pork can also be used.

TURKEY HASH
⅓ Spanish onion, diced
⅓ green pepper, diced
⅓ clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons butter
2 pounds cooked turkey, pureed in food processor
¾ cup processed American cheese (such as Velveeta cheese), softened
½ teaspoon curry powder
¼ cup heavy cream
1 cup leftover squash, mashed (or steam butter or acorn squash if no leftovers are available)

In large frying pan, saute onion, green pepper and garlic in the butter until onions are transparent. Add turkey and cook until hot. Remove from heat. Add cheese, curry powder, cream and squash. Stir well. Pour into a 6-inch baking dish. Bake in a 350-degree oven for 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings. Serve with rice and vegetables.

(Recipe from: Chef Patrick Augustyn, Samplings, New York)

TURKEY TETRAZZINI
6 tablespoons unsalted butter or margarine
6 tablespoons flour
2 ½ cups chicken stock
1 cup milk
¼ teaspoon Tabasco or hot pepper sauce
Salt and pepper to taste
½ cup sherry
4 cups cooked turkey
2 sweet red peppers, diced
1 pound spaghetti, cooked
¾ cup bread crumbs
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Melt the butter in a heavy saucepan; stir in flour. When cooked and bubbling, gradually stir in the stock, stirring until thickened. Add the milk, season with hot pepper sauce, salt, pepper and sherry; then add the turkey and red peppers. Arrange pasta in a buttered baking dish. Spoon the sauce over the pasta. Cover with the bread crumbs and cheese. Bake in a 475-degree oven until topping is glazed and bubbling. Serve hot. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

A year after the JOA went into effect, what's the Detroit newspaper situation in 1991?

A little more than a year ago, newspaper advertisers in Detroit got the shock of their lives. The JOA was approved, ad rates soared, and circulation dropped.

Now, a year later, overall circulation of the Free Press is down by 2,610. The News' overall circulation is down by 190,000. Yet both newspapers are raising rates again.

Meanwhile, largely because of all of this, a lot of newspaper advertisers are using SPRING.

SPRING (The Suburban Press RING) is the network of all 50 Detroit suburban newspapers published by the Adams, Associated, Heritage, Observer & Eccentric, and Hometown groups.

And we offer advertisers the opportunity to zero in on the customers who have the money to buy what you sell.

SPRING can deliver your newspaper ad to as many as 728,812 affluent Detroit suburban households, about twice as many as the daily edition of either The News or Free Press . . . and at a lower CPM. With just one rep, one order, one "slick," and one invoice.

And our flat rate for Free-Standing Inserts (FSIs) is only $23 per thousand!

The bottom line is this: a year after the JOA, it is clear that the newspaper situation in Detroit has changed significantly.

The newspaper situation in the SUBURBS is good.

Detroit's suburban market remains strong.

And SPRING delivers it.

Versatile chicken suits all kinds of dinners

Lois Thieleke
home economist, Cooperative Extension Service

Rock Cornish hens, broiler-fryers, roasters, capons and stewing hens — all rule the roost on America's dining tables.

Thanks to the versatility and economical status of chicken, it fits into a budget family meal or the most elegant formal dinner party. You can poach, roast, grill, broil, saute or simmer it, dress it up or down. Not only is chicken easy to prepare, but it's easy on the pocketbook and gentle on the waistline.

Who are these rulers of the roost? Rock Cornish hens are the smallest and youngest members of the chicken family. These are a cross between two breeds that usually weigh 1½ pounds or less. They are wonderful roasted whole, or split and grilled or broiled. Usually figure on one hen per person.

Broiler-fryers are all-purpose chickens. They are young meaty birds that weigh 3 to 4½ pounds. These tender birds are best broiled, fried or grilled but can be roasted, steamed or poached.

THE ROASTER is a little older and larger than the broiler-fryer. Generally, they weigh between 4½ and 8 pounds with more meat. These are perfect for roasting but also can be cut up and sauteed, broiled or poached. Look for plump-breasted birds with creamy white or yellow skins and short bodies.

Rock Cornish hens are the smallest and youngest members of the chicken family.

A capon lives a lazy life and grows big and fat. They have a delicate and tender abundance of white meat. Usually, a capon weighs between 8 and 10 pounds and is perfect for roasting.

Stewing hens are older birds and weigh between 3 and 7 pounds. These are basically soup chickens and sometimes are hard to find at the store. Because they are older the meat is stringy but loaded with flavor. They require slow, long moist cooking to tenderize the meat to produce a rich, wonderful broth.

Choose chicken with moist skin, tender flesh and fresh smell. Since many times you are unable to smell the chicken because of packaging, check the expiration date for freshness. The feed a chicken has been fed accounts for the skin color, but the taste is the same. Figure three-quarters to one pound of bone-in chicken for each serving. A 3½-pound bird will feed four comfortably, but a 1½-pound Rock Cornish hen will only serve one person. If you're serving chicken parts, a half breast or two drumsticks or thighs per person is a sufficient amount.

Small chickens (broilers and fryers) and Cornish game hens are the leanest poultry, as small young birds tend to be leaner than large, older ones. Chicken broilers have less than 10 percent fat, roasters have 12 to 18 percent and large hens have 20 to 30 percent, so you may want to use two small birds instead of one large. In poultry, the white meat has less fat and cholesterol than the dark.

LATELY, STORIES have surfaced regarding salmonella bacteria in chickens. Don't kick the chicken habit because of these stories. Instead, take extra precautions. At the grocery store, put chicken in a plastic bag, even though it is wrapped. Most meat counters will have a bag readily available. This way no drippings will contaminate other foods while you are shopping or while it is stored in the refrigerator. You may want to refresh the chicken by squeezing fresh lemon juice over the skin and into the cavity prior to cooking.

Refrigerate or freeze chicken as soon as possible. To keep it longer than two days, re-wrap and freeze. Defrost chicken in the refrigerator, never at room temperature. A 3½-pound bird will thaw in about a day in the refrigerator, or thaw quickly in the microwave and cook immediately. Make sure you clean everything that touches the raw meat: knives, cutting boards, countertops and especially your hands. Clean up thoroughly with soap and warm water.

Never eat chicken that is still pink in the center, whether you are eating out or in your kitchen. Since heat destroys salmonella, the chicken has to be cooked to at least 180-185 degrees Fahrenheit on a meat thermometer. Using a common-sense approach to handling chicken will give you a safe product. From drumstick to breast, chicken provides high-quality protein in your diet. Chicken also is kind to your diet (calories), easy to digest, requires no cooking fat and has a tender, flavorful taste.

PARKINSONS & ARTHRITIS

Arthritis is a 'movement disorder.' When your joints are swollen or aching, you cannot walk smoothly and your arms do not coordinate with your legs. If your ankles or knees ache you may take short, hesitant steps.

If you see someone with such a gait, your first guess is that the individual has arthritis.

You cannot be sure. Patients with Parkinson's Disease or other conditions of the brain and cerebellum have impairment of coordination that leads to a hesitant, awkward gait similar to the one considered to be 'arthritic.'

Furthermore, persons with Parkinson's Disease develop aching in their joints and muscles. Over time the stress on joints following the uncoordinated gait becomes more than the joint can accept. The individual develops a discomfort similar to the pain of joint inflammation.

Physicians are trained to distinguish the gait disorder arising out of arthritis from the impaired movement associated with Parkinson's Disease. As you well know, treatment of arthritis differs markedly from therapy for Parkinson's. Therefore, it is important to have confirmation that your walking problem represents an arthritic problem and not a neurologic one.

McDonald comes again to 'D' rescue

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Derrick McDonald's teammates call him 'D' for short, but not just because his first name begins with that letter.

McDonald, a junior guard, limited Livonia Franklin star guard Keith Roberts to seven points Friday as Canton overpowered the Patriots, 73-48, in a Western Lakes Activities Association first round playoff game.

"That's what they call me," said McDonald, when asked what the 'D' stands for. "Coach (Dave VanWagoner) says it stands for defense. The last time we played them, Roberts had like 28 against us and that really got on me — reading it in the paper and stuff.

"Coach stresses defense a lot on our team and I'm getting to like it. If we play 'D' like we did tonight, we're capable of beating anyone in the league."

Canton, which failed to qualify last year for the WLAA playoffs, hosts Livonia Stevenson in Tuesday's semifinal. The Spartans beat Livonia Churchill, 75-54, in another first round game Friday.

The Chiefs, who improved to 11-7 overall, were never threatened, as they scored the game's first 13 points and led 19-7 after one quarter. Canton took a 40-24 lead into the locker room at halftime and raised the margin to 59-32 after three quarters.

FIVE PLAYERS SCORED in double figures for the Chiefs, but Van Wagoner said defense was the key. The win avenged an earlier, 65-60 loss by Canton at Franklin during the regular season.

"We've been kind of pointing toward the tournaments all year and we got a good start tonight," Van Wagoner said. "We've got some guys who can really shoot the ball, but tonight the key was defense. We had

basketball

2½ hour to 3 hour practices every day this week and we didn't work on offense one minute. When tournament time comes around, defense wins for you.

"Derrick is our best defensive guard. He always likes to think of himself as an offensive player. We like to think of him as a defensive player — and the offense will come around."

Franklin fell to 10-8 overall.

"Canton played with intensity and we didn't," Franklin coach Rod Hanna said. "In sports, intensity is very important and we didn't show it tonight."

Senior forward Kevin Holmes led Canton with 13 points and junior center Tony Coshatt contributed 12 points and a game-high 15 rebounds. McDonald added 11 points and seven assists, while sophomore guard Mike Stafford and senior forward Brett Howell finished with 10 points apiece for the Chiefs.

Van Wagoner praised the balance of his team and also talked about Holmes, who takes care of all the intangibles for the Chiefs.

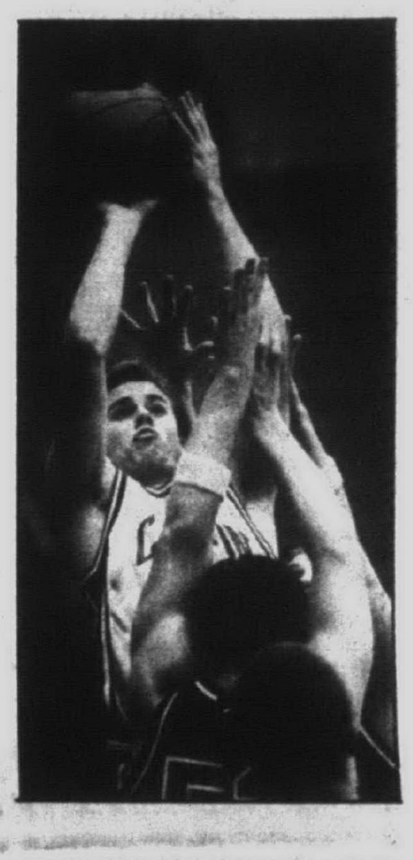

"HOLMES HAS BEEN our most consistent player," Van Wagoner said. "He's there every game, scoring 10 or 11 points and grabbing eight or nine rebounds."

Senior guard Dave Roman, who missed practice Wednesday because of illness, was the only Patriot in double figures with 10 points. Senior John Revels added nine points, but senior Steve McCool (eight points) and Roberts combined for only 15 points.

Roberts, who also was ill and missed practice Wednesday, managed only two field goals and said he was frustrated the entire night by Canton.

"They pressured me the whole length of the court and wore the hell out of me," Roberts said. "I was dead in the third and fourth quarters. I'm still not feeling great (because of the cold) but I can't blame it on that. They played great defense and have improved a lot."

Said Hanna: "He had shots he usually makes that just didn't go in. Hey, that happens in the NBA, college and high school."

Kevin Holmes gets off a shot through a bevy of Franklin defenders.

Offense suffers in SC defeat

Schoolcraft sports

The key ingredient for Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team — offense, and lots of it — was missing in the second half Wednesday against visiting Macomb CC. The results were predictable — an 85-75 loss.

The defeat left the Ocelots on the bubble for a Michigan Community College Athletic Association playoff berth (top six qualify). SC, Highland Park CC and Alpena CC were all 5-10 in the Eastern Conference entering Saturday's games, the last of the regular season. SC played at Highland Park; a victory would guarantee the Ocelots a spot.

Against Macomb, which is second in the conference (13-2, 19-8 overall), SC made it a battle for the first half, trailing 43-41 at the intermission. But the Monarchs' defense — a box-and-one with three different players taking turns hounding SC's Randy Watters, the Eastern Conference's leading scorer — proved pivotal in the second half.

Watters was limited to just 11 shots and 13 points in the game, both season lows, by Macomb's Marty Kohler, Mike Gurney and Ken Stanley. Kwesi McGill helped pick up some of the slack, scoring 26 points (including 6-of-10 on three-pointers).

BUT IT wasn't enough. "We still played them tough," said SC coach Dave Bogataj. "I thought both teams played good defense. They really did a number on Randy. And I thought we stunk offensively in the second half. We only scored 34 points."

The Ocelots (14-14 overall) trailed by 14 early in the second half before trimming the deficit to seven with 10 minutes left. They had three chances after that to trim it further, but McGill missed two free throws and a three-pointer and Watters also missed a triple-try. SC never got closer after that.

There was good news for SC, however. Mitch Fyke, who was thought to be lost for the season with a shoulder separation, returned and played 20 minutes. He scored 11 points.

Barry Quayle netted 16 points and pulled down seven rebounds for SC before fouling out with nine minutes left. Scott Meredith had six points and 11 boards.

For Macomb, Mike Moscato had 21 points, Kohler had 20 and Troy Wilcox chipped in with 18.

If SC defeated Highland Park last Saturday, then it will open the MCCAA tournament tonight at 7:30 p.m. at Oakland CC.

Nevi helps Canton win final dual meet

swimming

The Plymouth Canton boys swim team won its final dual meet of the season Thursday by defeating visiting Farmington Hills Harrison 117-66.

Doug Nevi led the Chiefs (6-4), winning the 100-yard backstroke (1:01.66) and assisting in two other Canton first-place finishes.

Nevi, Ron Trosin, Mark Ealovega and Craig Steshetz took first in the 200 medley relay at 1:56.72, and the team of Nevi, David Grubel, Jeff Brandenberg and Wes Shasko captured the 400 freestyle relay in 3:49.79.

Canton's Mike Orris took first in the 200 freestyle (1:56.72) and the 500 freestyle (5:14.63). Ealovega picked up his second win by taking the butterfly (58.52), and Steshetz won the 50 freestyle (23.62).

Jason Barringer was the highlight for the Hawks (2-5). Barringer captured the individual medley (2:08.86) and the breaststroke (1:02.91). Barringer teamed up with Jason Schwalm, Craig Dixson and Mike Wright to win the 200 freestyle relay in 1:39.59. Schwalm also took the 100 freestyle in 53.49.

Harrison's Ryan Koonce had a first place in diving by scoring 261.8 points.

Salem rocks North in WLAA opener

There wasn't much North Farmington could do. Just three days after the Raiders' emotional win over Farmington Harrison, a win that earned them a spot in the Western Lakes Activities Association playoffs, they provided little challenge to top-seed Plymouth Salem.

The Rocks ripped North 72-45 at Salem Friday to advance to the WLAA semifinals. Now 16-2, Salem will play at Harrison at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday; the winner will meet the Livonia Stevenson-Plymouth Canton victor for the conference championship Saturday at Salem.

"I don't know if it was a bad one for us," said North coach Tom Negoshian. "(Salem is) just a very good team defensively. Everyone thinks they're just a great offensive team, but they play great team defense."

That was evident in the first half. Salem limited the Raiders to 15 points in the first two quarters, taking a 34-15 lead at halftime.

"Our defense was real tough," conceded Salem coach Bob Brodie. "We created a lot of turnovers. I thought we played with a lot of intensity, and North had a lot of trouble getting into their offense. They were only getting one shot at the basket, which was critical."

THE GAME was nearly a repeat of the two teams' meeting a week earlier, which Salem won 84-63. This time it was even more lopsided; the Rocks expanded their 19-point halftime lead to 26, 50-24, entering the final quarter.

"Right now, every game's a critical one," said Brodie. "I'm real happy with the way we're playing. We've just got to keep focused."

More focus might not have helped North in this one. True, 6-foot-5 center Todd Pawlowski played sparingly; he was suffering from the flu and was replaced in the starting lineup by 6-1 Mark Temple.

"We were really small," said Negoshian. "(Pawlowski) would have helped us inside, but (Salem) still plays such great defense."

Only one player on either team reached double-figures in scoring — Salem's Jake Baker, who had 17 points and 10 rebounds. Chris Tebbin and John Hoffmeyer contributed nine points apiece and K.C. Kirkpatrick finished with eight for the Rocks.

Stevenson manhandles Churchill, 75-54

By Brad Emons
staff writer

If putting the ball in the basket is still the name of the game, then Livonia Stevenson is right on target.

The Spartans, shooting 53 percent from the floor (22 of 41) and 82 percent from the free throw line (23 of 28), opened the Western Lakes Activities Association playoffs Friday at home with a convincing 75-54 triumph over city rival Churchill.

Stevenson, now 12-6 overall, advances to Tuesday's semifinal round at Plymouth Canton (11-7).

"We don't have the overpowering kids, but we had some excellent passing (tonight) that gave us some inside shots before they (Churchill) could react," said Stevenson coach Jim McIntyre, whose team has won eight of its last nine games. "The kids are moving the ball well right now."

The Spartans made easy shots and tough shots, including nine from three-point land.

CHURCHILL, meanwhile, was reeling from the start, falling behind 9-2 after Stevenson's 6-4 junior center Tony Stojov connected on a pair of three-pointers. Dan Gibbons also added another during the run.

The Chargers, however, trailed by only four after one period, 19-15, when 6-foot-7 center Randy Calcaterra converted a four-point play, two coming on free throws after McIntyre was assessed a technical foul for arguing a call (or lack of calls) from the bench.

But it was practically over by halftime, as the Spartans outscored Churchill 23-10.

Senior forward Dave Amey came off the bench to hit a pair of three-pointers for the Spartans, while junior guard Matt Grodzicki added six of his game-high 22 points during the assault.

And with Calcaterra sitting on the bench with three fouls for the latter stages of the second quarter, Churchill found itself facing an uphill climb, trailing 42-25 at intermission.

"We knew we were in trouble when they (Stevenson) were hitting from 22-to-23 feet out," Churchill

MAJOR TOURNAMENTS have begun locally with the 78th G.D.B.A. at Cloverlanes in Livonia and the American Legion event at Country Lanes in Farmington Lanes.

The competitors are running up some big scores at both events. In the G.D.B.A. tournament, Bob Chamberlain of Auburn Hills hit 804 with a block of 268-299-237 for a new tournament record. That stood for about 30 minutes when Ron Byrd came along and topped him by shooting a 300 game. Added with his 299 and 254, he finished with an amazing 853 series. Can anybody top that?

There has been a total of six perfect 300 games so far, including the gem from Byrd. Ryan Wilson (Livonia), David Mahaz (Westland), Kevin Miller and Joe Krajenke also recorded perfect games.

This is the first year for mixed league competition in the tournament and the top three teams currently are in order: P & D, Roshell's Team and Childress Four.

The top team in the classic division is Lewis Five, comprised of Dick Beattie, Greg Lewis, Doug Evans, Paul Grauzer and Jon Reed.

Leaders in the men's singles are, in order, Byrd, J.D. Bradley and Chamberlain.

The public is invited to come and watch these fine bowlers at Cloverlanes, located at Schoolcraft in Livonia, across from the Detroit Race Course. The tournament continues through March 3, so many things may happen which will influence the standings.

• The state of Michigan American Legion Tournament had its moments of glory as two local bowlers hurled perfect games in the opening round. Dave Matson of Farmington Groves-Walker Post fired a 300 game with a 730 series, while Bob Gibson Jr. of the Livonia Post also registered a 300 game.

The Farmington Post No. 1 has run out to an early lead, with Jim Hamlin leading the charge. Hamlin leads in the all-events as he had series of 694, 665 and 638 for a 1,997 pinfall.

The rest of the Farmington Post No. 1 team consists of Matson (Farmington Hills), Dave Tarbet (Livonia), Ed Bland (Redford) and Bob Murray (Novi).

The tournament runs through March, so plenty of more great scores are sure to come in.

Plum Hollow Lanes in Southfield established a new Michigan record on Feb. 15 by Team No. 7 of the Miller Lite Classic League with a team single game score of 1,335 actual!

This is out, the record adds: Doug Evans, 287; Graig Zarick, 248; Jon Heins, 245; John Bennett, 279; and John Putti, 276. This is the highest ever single game by a five-man team in Michigan.

Other star bowlers were on target that night as well: Doug Spicer, 275/762; Ken Paczas, 256/744; Larry Beaver, 267/707; Randy Pierce, 254/731; Lou O'Neal, 721; Dick Beattie, 245/727; Dave Eatmon, 246/707; and Ernest Segura, 277/751.

It was good to see someone from the area win on the TV Pro Bowlers Tour. John Mazza of Mt. Clemens took the top prize a couple of weeks ago and returned the following week as the number two seed. He did not win the second time around, but made a spectacular shot, by converting the rare 7-10 split.

coach Fred Price said. "They hit extremely well from the outside, let's give them credit."

STEVENSON CONTINUED to find holes in Churchill's zone defense during the third period. Gibbons and Grodzicki each hit three-pointers to give Stevenson a commanding 61-37 advantage before coasting home.

"We just didn't get things done, but we played hard," said Price, whose team fell to 10-8 overall. "I thought we played good defense, but if they (Stevenson) still stroke it and if they continue to hit like that, that will cause anybody problems from here on out."

The Spartans used a balanced scoring attack once again, led by Grodzicki's 22. Gibbons, the 6-2 senior, added 14, while Paul Rockwood and Phil Woods contributed nine and eight, respectively.

Brian D. Johnson, a junior guard, led Churchill with 17. Calcaterra, who endured a frustrating night before fouling out, added 16.

"We just figured if we compacted the middle enough, we'd make it difficult for him (Calcaterra) to take the kind of shot he wanted to take," McIntyre said. "And I think we were able to change their rhythm before they could get it to the big kid."

basketball

IT WAS THE third meeting between the two teams.

Churchill won the first encounter, Dec. 14 at Stevenson, 62-47.

On Jan. 29, Stevenson won at Churchill, 67-56.

"They (Stevenson) are playing more physical than they were before," Price said. "They play a hustling, aggressive defense."

Churchill made only 18 of 54 shots from the floor for 33 percent.

"We took good shots," Price said. "The difference was our inability to put those good shots down."

Stevenson, meanwhile, continue to ride the crest of a second-half season surge.

Spartan spikers perfect

Thanks to an all-around team effort, Livonia Stevenson wrapped up an unbeaten regular season in the Western Lakes Activities Association with a 15-8, 15-8, 15-4 volleyball win Wednesday at Farmington.

The Spartans finished 13-0 in the WLAA and 10-0 in the Lakes Division.

Laura Zatorski paced the winners with 21 assists in 52 sets.

Sue Bell made good on 22 of 25 hits, including 11 kills. Teammate Julie Martin recorded seven kills in 14 attacks with two errors. She also had two solo blocks and three assist-blocks.

Teresa Sarno contributed defensively with two solo blocks and nine digs.

Coach Lee Cagle, who used everybody, also singled out the strong efforts of Lisa Orleman and Lisa Braunscheidel.

North had three players score nine points — Bill Chwalik, Chris White and Temple.

The Raiders, who slipped to 6-12, play at Northville at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

S'FIELD CHRISTIAN 73, PLY. CHRISTIAN 56: The second quarter was the difference Friday at Southfield Christian, which outscored Plymouth Christian 24-11 in the period.

The win improved Southfield's record to 8-10; Plymouth slipped to 6-11.

A full-court press keyed Southfield's second-quarter surge. Christian Monea's 15 points paced the winners; Charles Ryle contributed 11 and Bill Boldt scored 10.

Plymouth was led by Keith McCants, who poured in 28 points. Manish Nandani chipped in with 11.

college sports

By Steve Kowalski
staff writer

Ever since deciding on Central Michigan University, Jenny Sproul has heard nothing but good things about the school in Mount Pleasant.

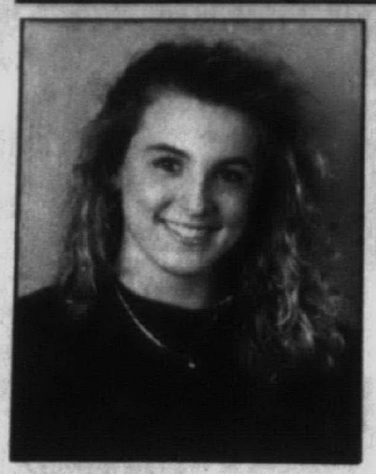

Sproul, a 1989 Livonia Churchill graduate, signed a national letter of intent Thursday to play volleyball for CMU, a Division I school that plays in the Mid-American Conference.

"I keep on running into people who are so pro-Central," said Sproul, who has played setter for Schoolcraft College the last two years. "It makes me feel good about my choice. I don't like a real big campus, but I don't like a real small one. Central is kind of in-between. I can still be away from school, but also can visit home."

Sproul also visited Southern Florida, a Division II power, and considered Grand Valley and Indiana before deciding on Central.

The 5-foot-9 Sproul earned All-Observer and All-Region honors as an outside hitter for Churchill before switching to setter at Schoolcraft under coach Tom Teeters. Sproul was the first Ocelot player ever to earn Most Valuable Player honors in both her years at the junior college, winning it by herself in 1989 and sharing the honor last fall with teammate Angellette Love.

SPROUL WAS the Region 12 MVP in 1989 and had a .305 hitting percentage last year. She averaged 12 assist kills per game with 1.2 serving aces per game as a sophomore.

Jenny Sproul
CMU bound

'Colleges didn't need outside hitters when I was graduating from high school, so I went to Schoolcraft to work on my skills and get used to college. Tom (Teeters, SC coach) taught me the skills and turned me into a setter. He knows volleyball.'

— Jenny Sproul headed to CMU

"She's a worker, one of the most enjoyable kids I've coached in 20 years," Teeters said. "She sets an example in dedication in both the weight room and on the gym floor, in practices and games.

"She gives speed, attitude, leadership, strength and height and in some ways is the most gifted (setter) I've had. She has great support from her parents (Jim and Julie). I'm glad she picked a good place to go to."

Sproul, who didn't attract many recruiters after high school, called it the best choice she ever made — on the court and in the classroom — to attend Schoolcraft for two years. She graduated from Churchill with a 3.0 grade point average and will leave Schoolcraft this spring with an associate's degree and a 3.6 GPA.

"It's nice, close to home and you get a lot of individual attention," she said. "Colleges didn't need outside hitters when I was graduating from high school, so I went to Schoolcraft to work on my skills and get used to college. Tom taught me the skills and turned me into a setter. He knows volleyball."

SPROUL SAID SHE plans to major in marketing or advertising. She is impressed with CMU's high job placement record for marketing and advertising graduates, and also was awed by the school's new state-of-the-art recreational center.

"That was one of the reasons I was set," Sproul said. "It's awesome."

In other recruiting news, Wayne Memorial senior middle blocker Brandy Caincross signed Wednesday with Ferris State University, a Division II school.

Caincross was sidelined all of January with a broken finger, but has found time to record 135 kills and a .324 kill percentage. She has 55 blocks, 57 digs and has recorded 13 service aces for the Zebras, one of Observerland's top teams with a 28-5 overall record.

"I think she'll do great," Wayne coach Ann Kolnitys said. "She has tons of power, and has shown a lot more guts and will. She jumps very well for a 6-footer."

Caincross turned down an offer from the University of South Carolina.

Stevenson falls

hockey

Livonia Stevenson ended the regular season Friday with a 10-10-2 record, falling to non-league foe Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook, 7-3, in a game played at Livonia's Edgar Arena.

The Spartans led 3-1 after one period, but ran into penalty problems in the second and third periods as the Cranes tallied six unanswered goals.

"We played short-handed a lot," Stevenson coach Paul Ferguson said. "We had seven penalties in the second period and six in the third. They had a couple of 5-on-3s. It was terrible."

Stevenson first-period goal scorers included: Frank Eupizi (from Scott Johnson and Chris Rennie); Rennie (from Kevin Bush); and Johnson (from Rennie and Eupizi).

REDFORD CC 5, CABRINI 0: Redford Catholic Central freshman goalie Mike Brusseau turned away 21 shots Wednesday, leading the Shamrocks past host Allen Park Cabrini.

Jesse Hubenschmidt tallied two goals and one assist for the winners, now 13-6-1 overall and 9-4-1 in the West Division of the Michigan Metro circuit.

Hubenschmidt opened the scoring at 4:39 of the second period. Paul Schloss and Bill Baaki assisted.

At 5:18 of the same period, Schloss scored from Hubenschmidt and Baaki.

At 9:30 of the second, Hubenschmidt struck again from Matt Surowiec and Baaki.

CC added a pair of third period goals — Mike Giordano from Tim Knoth at 3:25; and Dave Gallagher from Scott Johnson and Tom Vaquera at 12:35.

WYANDOTTE 6, FRANKLIN 2: Livonia Franklin couldn't recover Wednesday from a 4-0 deficit, falling to Wyandotte Roosevelt in a Suburban High School Hockey League finale Wednesday at Edgar Arena.

Wyandotte's Yea Yea Martinez scored the first four goals, including three in the opening period, before Franklin's Rick Bernard connected at 8:28 of the second period from Shawn Webb.

Mike Somerset added the Bears' final two goals, while Jeremy Klosowski had the other Franklin goal from Bob Baffy and Bernard.

FOOD LOVER'S DIET
To introduce a new approach to dieting, free diet pills were given to 50 people. With The Omicron Diet, one man lost 14 pounds in 5 days and one woman lost 18 pounds in 10 days. The average weight loss was over a pound a day for women and over 2 pounds a day for men. The Omicron Diet is a revolutionary new concept for unbelievably fast weight loss developed and clinically proven by National Dietary Research of Washington, D.C. This significant breakthrough in metabolic weight control was made possible by the utilization of biological information overlooked by other diet programs. With a formulation of natural enzymes along with real food, you shed unwanted pounds extremely rapidly and safely.
Maintain your new weight forever without dieting!!!!!!
With the special enzyme formula Metabolase, it is now possible to reduce your usual weight by up to 10% or to maintain the weight loss after dieting, without changing your normal lifestyle or eating habits. Available through physicians since 1982, the enzyme formula is now available in pharmacies without a prescription. Start enjoying the foods you love to eat without fear of gaining weight. One thousand birdhouses head for the city. . .

One of our 1990 contestants, Damien Fron, puts the finishing touches on his entry.

When the 1991 International Builders Home Flower and Furniture Show opens at Cobo Center this spring, more than one thousand birdhouses will be displayed.

Who built all of these houses? Seventh and eighth grade students from 36 area schools were busy this winter hammering, sawing and nailing together homes for eight species of birds. House Wrens, Bluebirds, Woods Ducks, Barred Owls, Great Crested Flycatchers, American Kestrels, American Robins and Tree Swallows will benefit from the efforts of these young people when, after the show, these houses go up in a thousand back yards.

The 1991 Best Birdhouse Builder Contest, sponsored by The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, the Builders Association of Southeastern Michigan and the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, challenges each young carpenter to not only build a winning birdhouse, but to learn about the bird that will call it "home."

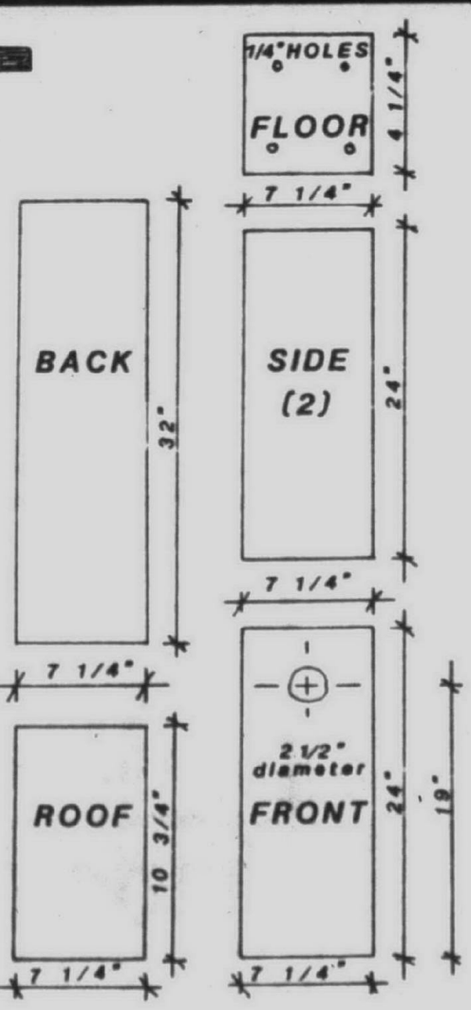

Contestants learned that the American Kestrel is our smallest falcon and that the tree swallow's eggs are white.

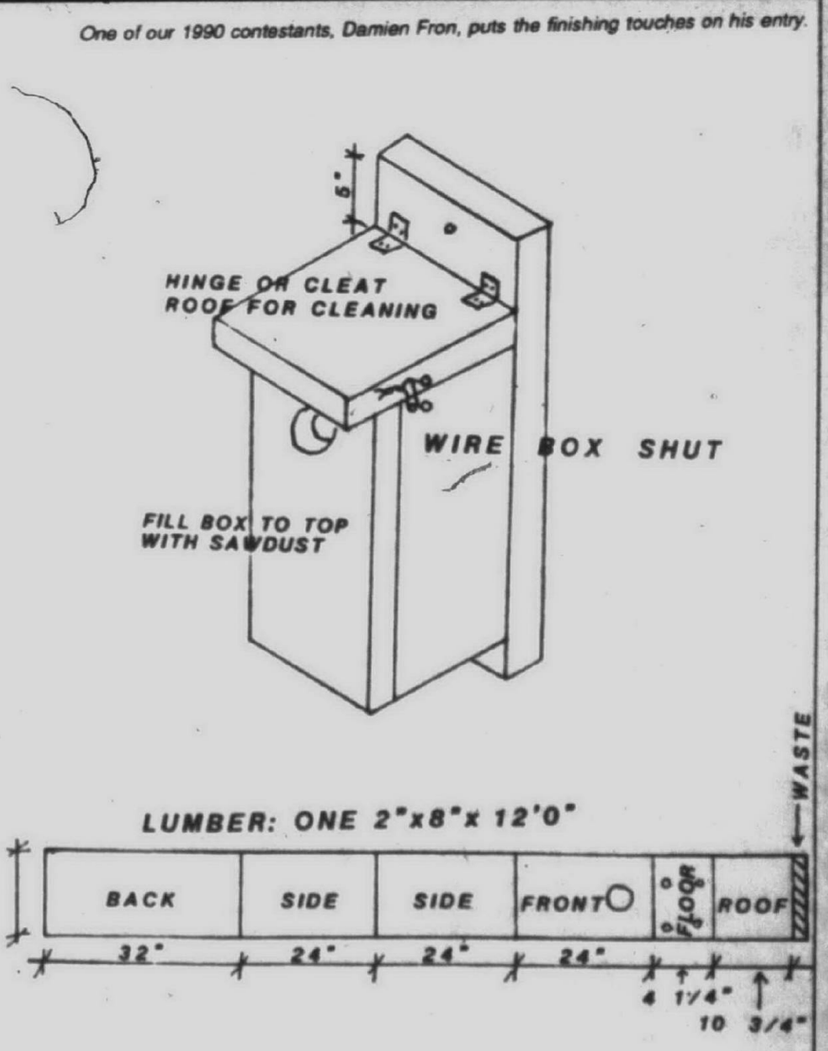

The actual building of these houses offered a challenge as well.

If you'd like to get the feel of this project, just follow the directions below and you'll have made a nest box for the Northern Flicker. In order to attract flickers, you should begin construction with 1½-inch thick cedar boards and fill the interior all the way to the top with sawdust; this imitates a dead limb with soft heartwood.

This is not a contest, but if you're really serious about testing your birdhouse building skills, you should have your construction finished by April 1 for the birds to nest.

Band of the Year

Who says a band whose sound has a touch of a country twang and a bit of punk spike to it can't make it in music? Goober & the Peas have cow poked their way to the top. Not bad for a gangly guy in a 10,000 gallon hat and a couple of Peas who used to play at barbecues on the Michigan State campus. Not bad for a band that's been selected for Street Scene's 1991 Band of the Year.

Bette Midler and Woody Allen star as a happily married couple who end up sharing the intimate details of their mutual infidelities while at a shopping mall in "Scenes from a Mall."

Midler and Allen fall flat in "Scenes from a Mall'

By the time Bette Midler sings "You Do Something to Me" halfway through "Scenes from a Mall" (C-, R, 85 minutes), it's too late for anybody to do anything for anyone.

Midler plays successful psychotherapist Deborah Feingold-Fifer to Woody Allen's Nick Fifer, her hotshot attorney-husband who specializes in licensing sports equipment. They spend the day of their 16th wedding anniversary at the Beverly Mall, picking up presents and sushi for a dinner party they're hosting that evening in their own honor.

It is really quite amazing that two such talented performers, neither of whom need a project so badly they'll accept anything, did not evaluate and reject this jumbled scenario which presents two poorly developed, shallow characters.

"Scenes" was produced and directed by Paul Mazursky ("Enemies: A Love Story") and co-written with Roger L. Simon who collaborated with Mazursky on the "Enemies" screenplay. Boy, did they strike out this time.

Deborah and Nick argue, fight, drink and make love in the mall — all in less than 1½ hours. That much action should be exciting and entertaining — and maybe funny considering the comic talents of Allen and Midler.

Not so, however, as the two of them shift behavior so quickly and to such extremes that it's all beyond belief. Even more astounding, all the action is condensed into a few moments while most of the film depicts two unpleasant, materialistic professionals indulging their marital problems in public with excessive and boring dialogue.

If this is supposed to be some filmic representation of marital fantasies, it misses the mark by several light-years.

STILL PLAYING:

"Alice" (B+, PG-13, 100 minutes). Woody Allen's latest, fanciful and romantic comedy about New York

'L'Atalante:' A masterpiece

By John Monaghan
special writer

Jean Vigo completed only two feature films before his untimely death of lung disease in 1934. "L'Atalante," playing this weekend at the Detroit Film Theatre, is considered the 29-year-old director's masterpiece.

Francois Truffaut, who called it "perfection," would have come up with an even better adjective to describe the new restored version. After years of restoration efforts and the discovery of a decent nitrate print, audiences will get as close to Vigo's original vision as they're ever likely to.

Vigo originally stirred some controversy over his first feature, "Zero for Conduct," in 1933. The story of an oppressive boys' boarding school showed the director's anarchist leanings. The producers of his second film thought they would tone him down with more comfortable material about a bargeman and his new wife.

They got another surprise with "L'Atalante," which became one of the most free form and wildly innovative of early French films. Shot on the moody waters of the Seine, the movie mixes naturalistic locations with poetic and often surreal imagery. A wedding procession opens the film as participants make dreaded and sarcastic comment about the new wedding. In the film's most haunting vision, the bride (played by German actress Dita Parlo) walks atop the barge, her new home, in her crisp white wedding dress.

MICHEL SIMON, the popular French character actor best known for his films with Jean Renoir, lends an unforgettable performance as the cat-loving first mate Pere Jules. He charms the young wife with his collection of exotic oddities, collected through the years at sea.

Trading on perceived social patterns always has been the media's stock-in-trade and videopics are the worst offenders when it comes to cloning theatrical successes dealing with current trends.

In this regard, albeit a bit late as international political strife goes, Prism Entertainment will release "The Endless Game" (1989, color, PG-13, 123 minutes) on Feb. 28. It's a slow but interesting, textured statement about Cold War espionage.

Albert Finney, whose performances always are pleasurable, stars as Alec Hillsden, a British intelligence agent whose wife — and the world — think he's a wine merchant, a convenient front which enables him to travel and stay out late.

Some years earlier, his mistress and co-worker, Caroline (Kristen Scott Thomas), was captured and tortured by the KGB. After being exchanged for a British-held Russian spy, Caroline was institutionalized as a result of the experience.

As "The Endless Game" opens she is murdered by an unknown agent (George Segal) and that sets matters in motion as Hillsden tracks back through their life and love to discover who betrayed her.

This is one of those complicated character studies with limited action. The attraction of such films is puzzling out who is the KGB mole in British Intelligence.

HILLSDEN GOES underground to do so but the proceedings are telegraphed early on by a British minister's incredibly stupid comment about a Russian prison. As well, the

Gilmore: Keeping to his roots

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Jimmie Dale Gilmore doesn't sing, he warbles. At times, his voice aches with the desolation reminiscent of swirling soil in dust bowl times. Other occasions, Gilmore's sings with gitty-up of a honky-tonk troubadour where the two-step is in order.

A reincarnation of Hank Williams? Some have said that. A kin of Buddy Holly. Some have alluded to that as well.

One thing is for certain: Gilmore's nasally voice is his own.

"You can hear other influences in my singing, though," said Gilmore, who performs with longtime friend Butch Hancock tonight at Birmingham Unitarian Church. "I didn't try to . . . I think early on, people started commenting on it (his voice).

"A lot of people that don't like it initially, I think it grows on them. I take great pride in that."

Sometimes the voice is matched up with the precious lines, steeped in contradiction and paradox. Culled from "Dallas," a song that R.E.M.'s Michael Stipe and Natalie Merchant have taken up on stage: "Have you ever seen Dallas from a DC-9 at night?/Well, Dallas is a jewel, oh yeah, Dallas is a beautiful sight."

Those observations are syncopated with lines such as these: "Dallas is a beautiful lie . . . Dallas is rich man with a death wish in his eye."

WHILE POSSESSING a wordsmith quality to his songs, Gilmore doesn't play the role of tortured singer-songwriter holed up in some artistic enclave in New York, Los Angeles or Nashville.

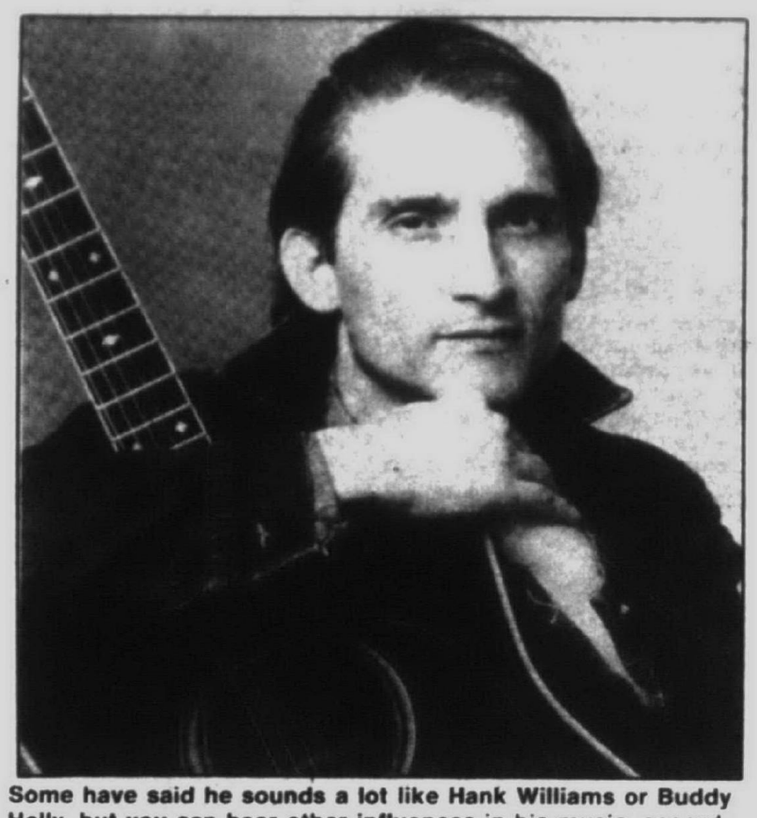

The Lubbock, Texas, native is as unpretentious as they come, unsoiled by a music industry that injects self-importance in mass doses upon its creators. One reason for Gilmore's down-to-earth demeanor— his residence.

In nearby Austin, there is a multitude of folk, blues, country and even rock'n'roll artists. Away from the music hubs of New York or L.A., they can experiment and utilize their creative talents before appreciative audiences.

Also, Gilmore has kept good company. Butch Hancock has been a friend since Atkins High School and Joe Ely was in one Gilmore's first bands.

All three formed the creative core of The Flatlanders, a group considered so far from mainstream country that its 1972 acoustic release, "More Legend Than a Band," was only available on eight-track tape. Rounder Records re-released the LP 18 years later on compact disc.

"WE WERE EACH other's only audience," Gilmore said. "We just played for each other. That set up a permanent quality control type of thing."

Some have said he sounds a lot like Hank Williams or Buddy Holly, but you can hear other influences in his music, according to Jimmie Dale Gilmore.

All three enjoyed artistically successful solo careers. Gilmore in particular, having released a pair solo LPs on Hightone Records, "Fair and Square" (1988) and "Jimmie Dale Gilmore" (1989).

Gilmore is putting the finishing touches on a new album to be released this the summer on Elektra as part of the label's American Explorer series. He knocked off the LP in 1½ weeks, working around the clock in the studio.

"The instructions from the people at Elektra was to make my own record, not to radio or to the critics," Gilmore said. "We made our record in tune to my roots, which is '50s and '60s radio — Hank Williams to the Beatles."

The yet-to-be titled album will span a wide variety of styles, delta blues, country and even some soft rock.

All of the songs on this LP are his own. In some ways, Gilmore is similar to his musical collaborator and longtime friend Hancock in terms of songwriting styles. Though, he defers to Hancock as the master of the craft.

"My songs tend more to be introspective and a description of feelings. Butch's tend to use description and imagery," he said. "To me, it's the only way. To me, it's the emotional attachment to music."

Trash Can Sinatras lift lid to snappy pop

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Let's talk some trash — as in Trash Can Sinatras.

Somehow upon extensive listens to the debut of the Scottish band on London/Go! Discs "Cake," trash and its accompanying images of filth, garbage and Tuesday pick-ups doesn't come to mind.

Rather the Trash Can Sinatras are wrought with all the trappings of a crystalline sounding pop band — gushing guitars, ether-induced harmonies and melodies ripe for the picking.

The lyrics? Well, they're a bit observational, somewhat introspective and a little thorny. And certainly not the type of wit, jaded perspective to be associated with a bunch of pouting Scottish lads who are supposed to be taking their craft seriously.

"It's no rules usually," said guitarist Paul Livingston, 20, whose faint voice coupled with a Scottish burr is hardly audible. "What makes a good pop song? Hmmm. I don't know really. A tambourine makes a good pop song."

Within a series of "I don't knows," this much is culled from a brief telephone conversation with Livingston about the Trash Can Sinatras:

Although Reader, 19, is considered the main songwriter "everyone chips in a little bit." The band has no goals in mind, except to write "a good pop song" and metal band Black Sabbath was a favorite of Livingston when he was 12.

"Everyone likes Black Sabbath when they're 12, don't they?" Livingston said. "I don't like them anymore."

A growing number of people are liking the Trash Can Sinatras.

"Obscurity Knocks" was released in March last year, earning the band "Single of the Week" honors by New Musical Express. A second cut, "Only Tongue Will Tell," followed and the Trash Can Sinatras began a tour of England.

Trash Can Sinatras soon headed into their own Shabby Road studio in Kilmarnock to record "Cake," which was released stateside in November. Already the LP is in heavy rotation on CIMX-FM's "The Cutting Edge."

ALONG WITH some gorgeous guitar melodies, the Trash Can Sinatras avoid the banal route traveled by many a band of their ilk on "Cake." Songs such as "Opportunity Knocks" burst with life while remaining crystalline.

The subtleties, be it the guitar interplay between Livingston and Douglas or the sometimes Morrissey-esque lyrics, reveal a band that has perhaps mastered their craft without realizing it. Or, more succinctly, the Trash Can Sinatras just may be on to something.

Livingston's probable answer to where Trash Can Sinatras' constellation sits in the mass galaxy of pop musical expression: "I don't know really."

REVIEWS

HOKEY SMOKE — Frank Allison and the Odd Sox

With James Brown still locked up, Frank Allison earns the title of the hardest-working man in show business, just edging out Wolf Blitzer.

Playing gigs almost daily, either solo acoustic or with the rocking Odd Sox, Allison remains the area's most active and least recognized musical talent.

The key word is talent. So little talent is out there, you'd think the bands with the most would rise to the top of the scene like green fruit in foreign beer.

This band, lauded by the New York Times, was everybody's band of the year in 1989, but two years later has yet to make it out of the garage. They've been plugging away at the loyal bar circuit, one of the few acts that packs the dance floor with its very first chords. Now they finally have another album to promote, and it's full of the stuff that made them so likable in the first place — good tunes and good times.

Allison's goofy pop tales are too well-crafted to be cooped up in bars. Tiresome comparisons aside, the guy writes songs like someone who was weaned on the Beatles, Monkees, "Green Acres," "The Beverly Hillbillies," "GetSmart!" and "Fractured Fairy Tales." Every family has a similar member. The Allisons just happened to get one who could make his weirdness rhyme, so they gave him a guitar.

"Hokey Smoke's" lyrical subjects range from unrequited love to personal recession to tedium in the minimum wage workplace, all packed with sharp shot observations like, "Got on my baseball hat/Cuz that is where it's at."

About a third of the LP is acoustically based, but when the band is turned loose, it cooks tightly and melodically, led by guitarist Dan Beckett. Beckett assaults a slide on "Finkentel Security" and lights up the sailing "Boat She's In" with his wailing gitbox.

The ever-churning rumor mill says that record label cronies are sniffing around Allison & Co. at the moment. They'll smell a rose in "Hokey Smoke," the multi-colored kind where water shoots out of the middle. By any other name . . .

BACK FROM RIO — Roger McGuinn

Here we go again, another Byrds rip-off.

But, for the first time in 10 years, it's brought to us by the man behind the word, "Byrdsy," Roger McGuinn, the guy with the groovy granny glasses and the original jangling 12-string.

He's back. He's 48. And he's wearing contacts. But the shaky vocal tones and twanging 12-string remain intact, thank God. McGuinn assembled ex-nestmates David Crosby and Chris Hillman, singer-songwriters Elvis Costello and Michael Penn, and Heartbreakers Mike Campbell, Stan Lynch and Benmont Tench, along with their boss, McGuinn-clone Tom Petty.

McGuinn and co-producer David Cole (of Richard Marx fame, but he's forgiven) have incorporated the Byrdsy jangles and slick harmonies into a modern sound. This is no nostalgia record. It's what all the Byrds wanna-bes have been trying to make since "Mr. Tambourine Man" hit No. 1 in 1965.

Most of the latest release from the folk-rock and later country-rock pioneer is straight-forward stuff, based around that omnipresent electric 12-string. Notable exceptions are the soft "Without Your Love," co-written with his wife, and the haunting "Your Love Is a Gold Mine."

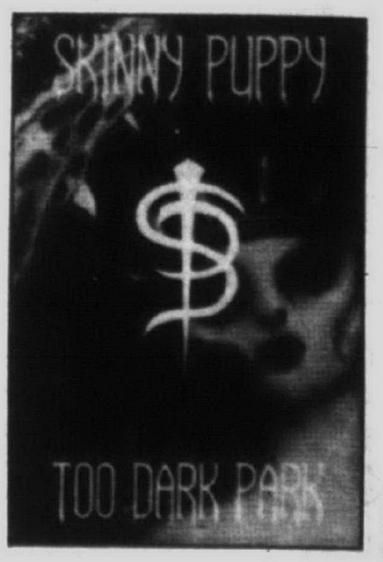

The Costello-penned "You Bowed Down" is another highlight, as is McGuinn's rendition of Jules Shear's "If We Never Meet Again." Another standout is the majestic McGuinn/Petty tune "King of the Hill," a tale from the dark side of L.A., the town McGuinn was the toast of 25 years ago.

Any new music fan with a sense of rock history should like "Back From Rio." Any oldtime Byrds fan with a sense of McGuinn's impact on today's rock should like it, too.

The only segment it won't appeal to are the fortysomethings who have lost their taste and tolerance en route to the middle of the road. Those who expected "Turn, Turn, Turn" with a string section will have to stick with George Winston, Bobby McFerrin and/or Kenny Rogers.

TOO DARK PARK — Skinny Puppy

Skinny Puppy is the band, if you remember, that had one of its show raided by the police in a Cincinnati club. Authorities were tipped off Skinny Puppy was going to perform a vivisection on a live animal during their show.

All they found was a stuffed dog backstage.

So, Skinny Puppy is already a legend as a dark, foreboding entity on the music scene without so much as playing a note. "Too Dark Park," the group's latest LP on Capitol/Nettwerk, only fortifies this image.

Screeching vocals, heartbeat murmurs, blood pulsating through the veins — ohhh, that's scary. Broken down, though, Skinny Puppy's sound can be rather repetitive with its drum machines and sometimes tedious lyrics. "Kick the habit" or "are you scared yet?" can become a little boring on a cursory listen.

Beneath the surface, though, there's more to experience. This Vancouver outfit's music is something of a brooding, nihilistic, if not futuristic, vision of gloom and doom. The images are stark and, at times, down right frightening.

In "Tormentor," we're greeted with this: "Walls trapped within yellow eyes the cutters drooling face rips apart cuts to the heart/disease shown/ let it out."

Skinny Puppy gets its message across about the environment in "Shoreline Poison" — "Trials administering tidal oil that suffocating base the fire gold pouring mercury giving river deformed." — and, ironically, animal rights in "T.F.W.O." — "Treason trapping animal hide in the vision of paradise . . ."

Skinny Puppy is a grand manipulator of sound. One can feel the voltage surge throughout this effort, but listen at your own risk.

STREET SENSE

As maturity goes, no 2 children are alike

Barbara Schiff

Dear Barbara,

Your response to the mother named Joan regarding her daughter's curfew distresses me. It seems as though you are encouraging the parent to neglect her duties and her daughter's needs, thus creating a very dangerous situation.

Parents of teenagers need to be awake, and up and functioning when their children come home. If a teenager only reports in to an alarm clock, she (or he) can be upset, intoxicated or injured, and the parent will not even be aware of the problem. Some very important parenting occurs late at night, and no one ever said the job would have 9-5 hours.

I can understand the parent's need for sleep — perhaps she should consider that 1 a.m. is really too late for a 16-year-old also. I hope you'll reconsider and tell her to keep the midnight curfew and for her husband (if he lives at home) to take turns staying up on weekend nights to meet their daughter.

I would also encourage her to set a much earlier weekday curfew. 16-year-olds who insist on keeping late hours may already by involved in undesirable behaviors.

Please carefully consider the impact of your answers to questions of this nature. As a parent, a teacher and a Talking With Your Kids About Alcohol instructor, I am perhaps more conservative than you are, but I may also be more aware of potential problems.

Sincerely,
Pat

Dear Pat,

Thank you for your interesting and informative letter. May I tell you that I am constantly worried about the impact of my answers to any of the letters that I receive.

I am quite aware that I will not be right all the time and that sometimes I will miss the mark by a wide margin. That is why I am so appreciative of letters from people like you who fill in parts of the answer that have been left out.

I wish that everything were so simple and that there was only one side to a problem. The reason that it is so complicated is that we talk as if all children are alike and all parents are alike.

There are some children who mature earlier than others. They are reliable and trustworthy. Parents of children like this have the opportunity of having an adult type relationship with them. Children of this type show and tell how important it was to their maturation to have their parents treat them with respect and dignity.

Other children may not even develop up to their age group and need to be handled with greater firmness and controls. This takes an individual approach to the child that is more difficult to do than having the same approach to all children.

Barbara

Dear Gary,

This is an acknowledgment of the reciept of your letter, as you desired. You cannot imagine how much pleasure I receive whenever a letter informs me that the writer is an avid reader of my column. It makes the work rewarding.

I am also happy that you were able to confide in someone for the first time. Should you need to express your feelings to someone again, feel free to write another informative letter.

"Mr. and Mrs. Bridge" (A-, PG-13, 127 minutes).

Finely textured portrait of the Bridges (Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward) as their marriage evolves during the '30s and '40s.

movie meanders around in a structurally confusing pattern and Segal's character is never well-explained or justified.

Devotees of this genre will be disappointed despite the attractive location photography in England, Austria and Finland. Even Finney's excellent acting and good support from Segal and the entire cast don't save this one from the scrap heap of Glasnost.

Another Prism release that day is on the subject of inter-racial marriage. "A Fight for Jenny" (1986, color, not rated, 95 minutes), is slow, predictable and better suited for the daytime soaps.

Kelsey (Leslie Ann Warren) is divorced and lives with her seven-year-old daughter, Jenny, in an apartment complex where a co-worker, David (Philip Michael Thomas), also lives. Kelsey is scattered but cute and David is black.

Kesley's husband, Ben, is not a nice person and not at all understanding as the Kelsey-David relationship flowers. Ben files suit for child custody in a case which reaches the Supreme Court.

Whatever the court's resolution of the case may be, "A Fight for Jenny" is not at all satisfying and leaves viewers out on a limb at the end.

ALTHOUGH IT'S another fairly major videopic production, it lacks a sufficiently well-developed screenplay to exploit properly the potential inherent in the basic situation.

It's just there as background sight and sound.

ALTERNATIVE MOVIE

He has a strange puppet conductor, various wind-up toys, an elephant tusk, even a jar containing a pair of hands — what remains of a long-lost friend. You can practically smell his cabins, which are constantly swarming with cats and newborn kittens.

Some of the nine minutes of restored footage contain Simon's best bits, including a bizarre scene where he strips to the waist to reveal a torso covered with crudely drawn tattoos. Then he sticks a cigarette in his navel and starts playing the accordion.

In one of the film's many cinematic tricks, Pere Jules demonstrates some Greek wrestling moves for the young couple. The camera double exposes two images which actually show him wrestling himself on deck.

And in another restored shot, the young groom (Jean Daste), half-crazy after his wife runs off to Paris, is seen licking a huge cake of ice. This segues into an evocative bit where the lovers toss and turn in their individual beds, miles away from each other.

DeGeneres finds there's life after 'Open House'

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

What can a bad TV series do for a career? One need look no further than McLean Stevenson.

"Hello Larry" had all the effect of an ankle bracelet adorned with a 75-pound weight attached to the actor's since plummeting fortunes.

Then there's someone like comedienne Ellen DeGeneres.

Not only did the New Orleans native manage to escape unscathed from her short tenure on a sinking sitcom, DeGeneres somehow seemed to swirl above the lameness of it all. Perhaps talent has something to do with it.

DeGeneres took the role of Margo Van Meter, a ditzy real estate office receptionist on Fox Television's "Open House" and turned it into one of the show's few redeeming qualities. One excruciatingly painful episode dealt with the funeral of Margo's dead cat.

DeGeneres pulled the debacle out of the hat, calling mourners to commence in a polka at the conclusion of the wake. "Open House" was laid to rest after one season. DeGeneres' reputation for wit lives on, though.

"There were some people who really liked the show," said DeGeneres, who appears Thursday through Saturday at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle. "So, I really don't like to do that (bad mouth the show). People come up to me and say, 'I love that show. I can't believe they took it off.'

"What I'm I going to say to them, 'Really?, I hated it.' "

THOUGH SHE admits "Open House" wasn't her "dream show," the sitcom allowed another creative outlet for the talented comic. Also, the TV experience gave her a brief taste of what she eventually wants to do regularly.

In the meantime, DeGeneres is busy auditioning for other TV parts and doing stand-up. Her act is a bit offbeat, something like her TV persona of Margo. She's been known to talk about getting flies drunk or putting toupees on lizards. She also snaps off a series of one-liners like twigs from a branch.

DeGeneres puts forth a low-key brand of humor — devoid of stereotypical female bits. It's not something one might expect from a blonde-haired, blue-eyed comedienne.

"They (audiences) do tend to expect a female comedian to be a caricature," DeGeneres said. "Someone who's demure; Someone who has a high squeaky voice or who is real abrasive and aggressive and talking about things only females can relate to.

Hers was not the standard path of a comic. She doesn't hark back to countless appearances in front of heckling audiences in small clubs.

Humor was something DeGeneres initially used to cope.

WHEN DeGENERES was 13, her parents divorced. She recalls somewhat fondly of perking up her mother's sagging spirits with laughter during the time.

DeGeneres' comedic sense humor also caffie in handy when her mom remarried and uprooted the family, moving from New Orleans to Atlanta, Texas (population 5,000), where she was "an outsider."

"I wasn't the class clown," she said. "Actually, I was kind of quiet."

As soon as she graduated from high school, DeGeneres high-tailed it back to New Orleans. She worked some non-descript jobs, one in sales at J.C. Penney and as a go-fer at a law firm.

Friends convinced her to give stand-up a try. Soon, DeGeneres was emceeing at a New Orleans comedy club.

Her career skyrocketed immediately, especially after earning the title of "Funniest Person in America" from Showtime in 1984. She headed to San Francisco and was making high profile appearances such as on the "Tonight Show" and HBO's "Women of the Night."

DeGeneres also turned her sights on acting. She auditioned for countless roles, reportedly turning down an offer on CBS's "Major Dad."

THEN "OPEN House" opened up. Despite her success on the short-lived sitcom, DeGeneres is back to square one. Mainly, that's because she doesn't fit the stereotypical mold as a dumb blonde or a brassy matron writers tend to call for when casting women on TV.

"Someone's going to have to take a chance on me, like 'Open House,' " she said. "They let me create that character.

"If someone is going to let me do that, then fine. But it's hard to walk in and to try and read lines that you know you're not right for."

Stand-up has taken precedent at the moment. DeGeneres said she's trying to cut back on an exhaustive schedule, preferring to work only weekend engagements.

But the Persian Gulf war has made trying to be funny difficult. She cancelled an engagement Jan. 16, the night the war started, at a San Francisco club, despite protests from management that the show go on.

"That's real hard for me when I start thinking about all that, I think, 'What I'm I doing?,' " she said. "Then I realize what I am doing, making people happy and forget about it for awhile."

Ellen DeGeneres will appear Thursday, Feb. 28, through Saturday, March 2, at Mark Ridley's Comedy Castle, 269 E. Fourth, Royal Oak. Show times are 8:30 p.m. Thursday and 8:30 and 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday. For reservations, call 542-9900.

The exposure from Fox Network's short-lived sitcom "Open House" has only helped Ellen DeGeneres' career as a comedian.

Twang and pangs for Goober & the Peas

Fate is smiling on Goober & the Peas. The band has showcased a couple of times at CGGBs and MTV is calling about possibly doing an interview.

Goober, better known as Dan Miller of Birmingham, raises his hat in a southwestern style "howdy" during a recent performance at the Nectarine Ballroom in Ann Arbor.

By Larry O'Connor
staff writer

Girls, girls, girls . . . Goober & the Peas can't get enough of them.

Check that, Goober & the Peas can't get any of them.

And this is a concern, a dilemma, a crisis that threatens to tear at the fabric of this monstrosity of a musical force.

This mutant country/punk act bought into the rock'n'roll dream with no questions asked. For their undying passion and commitment, they have been left holding the straw — and a guitar pick instead of a Southern belle. Can life be so unfair?

"We have a hot line and 99.5 percent of the calls we get are from gentleman; the other half-percent are from mothers," opined guitarist Tom "Junior" Hendrickson. "When we started out that wasn't our goal."

Such artist suffering cannot go unnoticed. Goober & the Peas has been chosen 1991 Observer & Eccentric Street Scene Band of the Year by our music writers.

Other criteria have been met. Since the band's emergence on the music scene 2½ years ago, Goober & the Peas have cow poked their way to the top.

The band continually packs area venues and its self-produced EP, "The Complete Works of Goober & the Peas," is completely sold out. Another pressing will soon be available.

Goober & the Peas has the world eating oats out their rope-burned hands.

GOOBER & THE Peas was voted "Best Rock Band" in the 1990 Metro Times Detroit Music Awards, received "Critic's Choice" from the Chicago Reader and was chosen as a semifinalist in Musician magazine's "1990 Best Unsigned Band (BUB)" contest.

The pinnacle of local fame and fortune came in November when the band opened for Bob Dylan at the Fox Theatre. ("He (Dylan) probably has a worse woman problem than we do," Junior said.).

Not bad for a gangly guy in a 10,000-gallon hat and a couple of Peas who used to play at barbecues on the Michigan State campus. How do they do it?

Any attempt to get them to seriously analyze their success is a major faux paus in the presence of 7-foot (6-feet-4 without the hat and hairdo) Goober and his podner, Junior.

"We always knew there was a strong hillbilly following in Detroit," says Goober, a.k.a. Dan Miller of Birmingham.

"For a long time Detroit has been waiting for gentlemen who are classy dressers," adds Junior.

THE SECRET? Junior pulls out a Duracell transistor battery.

"This here is the battery for a guitar tuner," he says and adds while turning to Goober. "The problem is, though, they don't sell a battery to keep a voice in tune."

More than not, it may have something to do with cleverly written songs.

"Funky Cowboy," off of "The Complete Works of Goober & the Peas," is a lethally guitar-charged dance number that possesses the spirit of late '70s punk. By contrast, "Dear Grandpa" has Goober reincarnating Hank Williams Sr., in almost total reverence to the country great.

(Rumor has it when played backwards, "The Complete Works of Goober & the Peas" reveals Minnie Pearl singing Judas Priest songs in tongues. Confronted with this, Goober and Junior nervously decline to comment).

Michael "Boss Hoss" Miller handles bass, Doc is on drums, and Jim "Shorty" Currie joins Junior as one of the band's two guitarists.

Dressed in a white suit with hat and battered patent leather shoes to match, the singer commands the legion of Gooberites at a recent show at the Nectarine Ballroom in Ann Arbor.

Goober politely tips his hat after the opening number "Send Me the Pillow," beats his chest on "So Tuned" and picks up the sax and blows some John Coltrane smoke into another number.

HIS LANKY frame breaks into a seizure of contortions that David Byrne would gladly put his signature on. His facial expressions bear the resemblance of someone in the aftermath of downing a Milk of Magnesia shake and realizing there is no restroom within a 10-mile radius.

Goober's nadir, though, is reached when he kicks a half bale of hay (actually straw) onto the dance floor while launching into "Funky Cowboy." After the number concludes, Goober tips his hat again and looks incredulously at his audience.

"What is this 'ye haw?,'" Goober asks. "Is that some type of University of Michigan saying?"

Before the show, Goober and Junior shed some of myths about the Peas. They've never roped a calf or branded a steer. In fact, Goober has never ridden a horse.

The lead singer's only chaw is sugarless bubble gum.

"My smile is important," says Goober, explaining why he doesn't chew tobacco. "It's more important than the band, than the music . . . If we're going to get any women, it's going to be because of my smile."

Fate is smiling on Goober & the Peas. The band has showcased a couple of times at CBGBs and MTV is calling about possibly doing an interview.

Also in the works is a full-length album and a tour into Texas. The band's goal is to play in the Grand Ole Opry.

"THE OLD one," Junior says, "not the new one."

The ever-pending big record deal is just around the bend. At least that's what several people who "know someone in the industry" have been telling band members.

"We're not believing any of it," Junior says. "We're just having fun."

At this time, a guy in glasses and blond hair stumbles into the room. He introduces himself as "Bob from Boston" and proceeds to tell the band he saw them at Club Heidelberg and thought they were great.

After comparing Goober & the Peas to a cross between Led Zeppelin, Van Halen and Johnny Cash, he asks the band for a favor.

"Could you point me to the bathroom?"

Junior directs him around the corner. Off goes another Goober & the Peas fan, but not the kind the band yearns for.

But the ever resourceful tandem could have that riddle solved as well. The answer to lasso some lasses? Aqua-Velva.

"I try to fill up the whole palm of my hand," Junior says. "I get my hat, my coat and my trousers. That way you can smell me no matter where you are in the room."

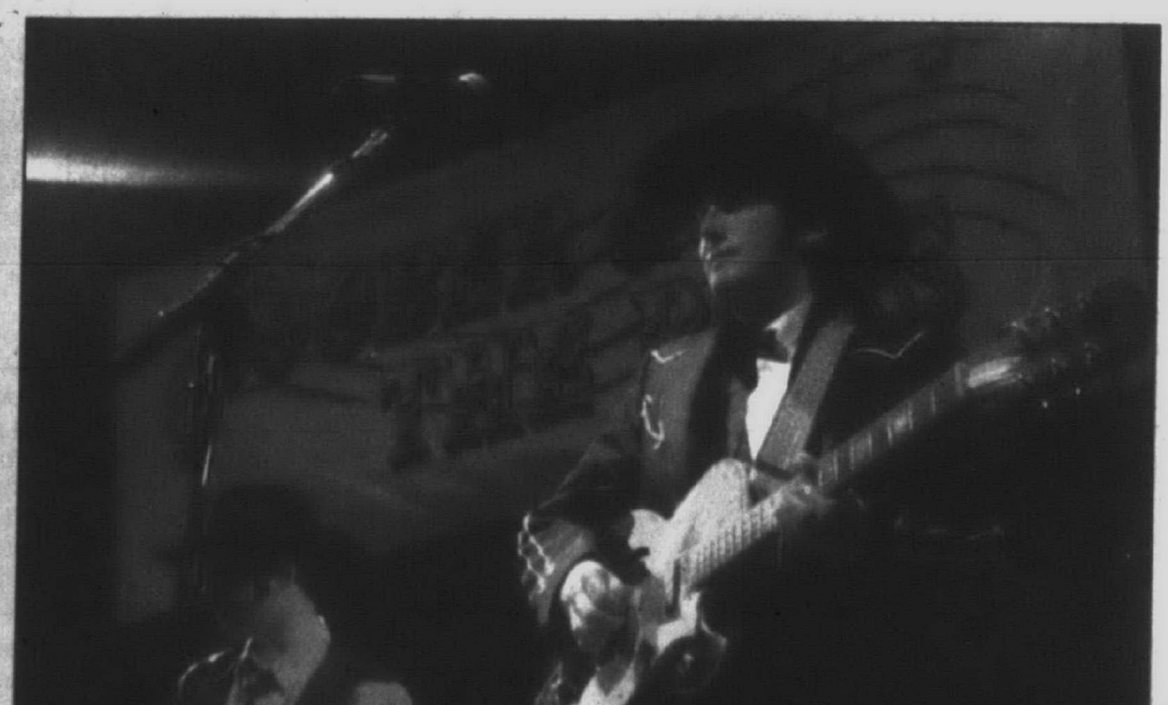

Goober & the Peas member Michael "Boss Hoss" Miller handles bass for the band.

Fitness fads not new, exhibit reveals

THE EXERCISE guru says, "Go for the burn." The surgeon general says, 'Don't smoke.'" Grandpa says, "Eat your oatmeal." Mom adds, "Chew your food." Health and fitness advice is everywhere, but that's nothing new.

Where did it all begin? According to a new exhibit at Henry Ford Museum in Dearborn called "Fit for America: Health, Fitness, Sport and American Society, 1830-1940," Americans have embraced almost every health and fitness craze that's come along in the last 150 years.

Using objects that range from a portable violet ray generator to a glass leech cup and an "electro-body belt," the exhibit shows what has changed and what hasn't in the American quest for perfect health.

Organized by The Strong Museum of Rochester, N.Y., and funded in part by the National Endowmeent for the Humanities, "Fit for America" reveals the beginnings of a fitness-conscious society.

The exhibit looks at how Americans thought about their health, the self cures they adopted and their desire to achieve the ideal physical form during the era of industrialization.

HEALTH REFORM began as a widespread movement in the 1830s and was most visible in the form of temperance campaigns against "demon alcohol." Those Americans who "stimulated" themselves with tobacco, strong drink and even table condiments, such as pepper and mustard, were castigated by religious reformers of the days.

The exhibit uses artifacts, including 19th-century whiskey bottles, tobacco tins and spice containers to depict the devils that plagued society.

The advocated alternatives to sloth and gluttony included renewal through diet, cleanliness and action. Advertisements for electrical notions and herbal potions, as well as some of the actual apparatus and containers, show how Americans were enticed into healthier behavior.

As concern grew for the fitness of a middle class performing less and less manual labor, calisthenics, gymnastics and recreational sports evolved as an important part of American daily life.

A set of "Indian clubs" and an 1875 baseball bat are among the items that represent fitness interests of late 19th-century everyday folk.

By the 1890s and through the 1940s, the contemporary American image of health and fitness began taking shape.

Teddy Roosevelt provided a rugged role model with his support of the "the strenuous life" while the rise of amateur and professional sports combined to embody the health reform movement of the early 20th century.

Photographs of football and bicycling teams depict fitness-minded Americans who sought a middle ground between fanaticism and neglect.

British soldiers stationed in India introduced Indian clubs to the western world, where they became popular in the mid 19th century. This reproduction of an 1866 drawing illustrates proper use of the clubs in a fitness workout.

A postcard, circa 1907-15, depicts the streamlined form that replaced the 19th-century hourglass figure as a feminine ideal.

"FIT FOR America" follows American fitness movements while reintroducing the health gurus of the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

Through photographs, magazine articles and written testimonials, visitors encounter such personalities as muscle man Charles Atlas, swimmer and "bathing beauty" Annette Kellerman and diet reform advocates Sylvester Graham (of cracker fame) and Horace Fletcher (who suggested chewing every mouthful of food 80 times).

Although perfection may have had a different look a century ago, "Fit for America" shows that the pursuit of physical perfection is nothing new.

A Jane Fonda workout kit and other modern fitness-related objects reflect all that has gone before and will probably come 'round again.

"Fit for America: Health, Fitness, Sport and American Society 1820-1930" is on view in Henry Ford Museum's special exhibits gallery through Oct. 31. A book of the same name accompanies the exhibit and is available in museum stores.

Using objects that range from a portable violet ray generator to a glass leech cup and an "electro-body belt," the exhibit shows what has changed and what hasn't in the American quest for perfect health.

One of Detroit's most valuable contributions is its legacy as one of the world's most prolific producers of jazz musicians and music.

The Detroit Historical Museum's 1991 exhibition in celebration of African American History Month in February will present "The Life and Photographs of Milt Hinton, Jazz Musician."

This traveling exhibition of more than 26 black and white photographs taken by the "dean" of jazz bassists, Milt Hinton, opened to the public this month.

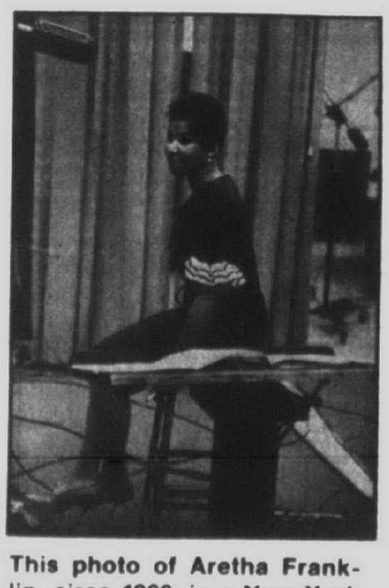

Extending through May, the exhibition will have special meaning for the Detroit area because nearly half of the photographs feature Detroit musicians.

"This exhibition has received a very enthusiastic response from Detroit's jazz community, even before it has opened," said Silvia L. Williams, museum education curator.

"We enlisted the assistance of several of Detroit's most respected and well-known jazz musicians and experts to present two days of symposia. Through lecture, demonstration and videos, we explored the origins of jazz, the Detroit jazz tradition and the future of jazz."

HINTON'S CAREER spans more than 60 years. He has photographed many of the giants of jazz for nearly as many years.

Some of the "jazz legends" pictured in the exhibition include Billie Holiday, Lester Young, Ron Carter, Kenny Burrell, Major Holley, Aretha Franklin, and Dinah Washington. Personal commentary by Hinton, providing anecdotes and an insider's view of jazz history accompanies the photographs.

This photo of Aretha Franklin, circa 1960, in a New York recording studio, was taken by Milt Hinton. It's included in "The Life and Photographs of Milt Hinton, Jazz Musician."

The exhibition is sponsored by the Aetna Life and Casualty Co., which also sponsored a private reception for the exhibition and Hinton, where he signed copies of his autobiography, "Bass Line."

He also was honored with a bass choir recital and induction into the Greystone International Jazz Museum Hall of Fame. The Greystone Jazz Museum is providing supplemental artifacts for the exhibition.

The Detroit Historical Museum is a Detroit Historical Department institution. It is at 5401 Woodward at Kirby in the University Cultural Center. The museum's hours are Wednesday through Friday, 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Milt Hinton is the dean of jazz bassists among African Americans.

Don't let weather make you blue

Q: With the holiday season over and fewer activities going on, I should be accomplishing more. Instead, these long winter months are getting me down and rather than getting caught up, I'm "losing it" organizationally!

Dorothy Lehmkuhl

A: There are two components of organization, mental and physical, and they are dependent on each other. It takes clear thinking to produce physical order. If you are sad, depressed or otherwise mentally "down," you aren't able to crystallize your thinking and your environment will suffer.

Science has proven people do, indeed, suffer from the "winter doldrums." I found from personal experience, however, that a positive mental attitude can help.

A few months after we moved to this part of the country, about 15 years ago, the newspaper confirmed what I had been loudly lamenting — in 90 days we had only six sunny ones. Having grown up in the Southewest with seemingly endless sunshine, I thought that winter was awful.

When it was over, however, I had a strange reaction: I was mad! I was angry that three months of my life had been spent so badly and I decided at that moment that I would never again allow the weather to affect my mood.

Since then I think that every day is a beautiful day. I love changes in the weather and think having only warm sunshine would be boring.

I welcome rain because it washes and freshens the outdoors and helps things grow. I find snow absolutely beautiful and cold weather invigorating. Fog brings a kind of hush over the world, clouds furnish a certain coziness and — well, they'll eventually clear away.

Now, I realize it's easier to be positive when I don't work outdoors. I don't even have to drive the expressways every day or walk long distances to catch a bus. I'm also not housebound as some folks are who must avoid icy air or sidewalks.

But I've done some of those things in the past and if I still did, I'd adopt the attitude that such experiences make me hearty — a survivor. I'd be proud of myself for "hanging in there" and "making it."

Good physical health aids mental health and exercise can help beat the doldrums, too. Force yourself to move. Do anything from going to a health club to scrubbing the floor or shoveling the sidewalk. What you do isn't as important as the fact that you are moving. Do something to get yourself puffing every day.

When you refuse to be lethargic or in a bad mood of your own making, you free yourself up to become interested in the world outside yourself. You'll be more vital and involved in what's going on around you. You'll think more clearly and concentrate on what you need to do. I can almost guarantee this combination of a good attitude and exercise will help you get more done and be better organized.

You can enroll in Dorothy Lehmkuhl's last two classes, "Organize Your Business Environment" and "Create a Paper Paradise!" at Schoolcraft College. Call 462-4448.

The Hills of Lone Pine — in addition to estates homes — features several contemporary style cluster homes like this one by Bloomfield Hills architect Robert Swanson. Home fronts are designed to be inconspicuous, but the rear views have open, natural vistas.

Family ties

Homestead makes way for upscale development

By Gerald Frawley
staff writer

Developers are often accused of raping the land because they purchase large tracts of natural, unspoiled land, cut down trees, fill in wetlands, lay down concrete, bury pipes, hang wires and slap up houses.

Developers say abuses are things of the past, but even the most environmentally concerned developers would have to admit their ties to the land are tenuous.

Not James Vanderkloot, vice president and general manager of Texel Land Co. He's developing right in his former backyard — literally.

Vanderkloot, along with his father, Robert, and mother, Tuttie, are transforming the former 150-acre Vanderkloot family farm into the Hills of Lone Pine.

James' brother William and sister Karen DiChiera, although not officers of Texel Land Co., are also closely involved in the development of the former family farm, James Vanderkloot said.

"We knew a time would come when the land would be developed," Vanderkloot said of the substantial tract of prime real estate in Bloomfield Township at Lone Pine and Telegraph roads.

"There was a fierce instinct in the family to see this done a certain way."

THE VANDERKLOOT family has a vested interest in how the development works out — and not only because they have lived there for nearly four decades. Robert and Tuttie Vanderkloot still live in the home they built in 1954.

If 150 acres of rolling, wooded hills and a posh Oakland County address isn't enough to make the average developer salivate, then throwing in a private lake completely surrounded by the property would.

Most developers are concerned about preserving the land, but few have the direct ties the Vanderkloot family had to the property. All of the now mature pine trees that dot the landscape were planted by the family long before the development.

Some, Vanderkloot said, were transplanted during construction, but many are still original plantings.

"There weren't any pine trees here when my family bought the property in 1952."

Prior to 1952, the land was owned by James Vernor Sr., founder of the Detroit soft drink company. The original Vernor farmhouse is slated for renovation this summer.

Vanderkloot said his family had no previous experience in development — they were formerly in industrial real estate and printing — so they toyed with the idea of selling the property or working out an arrangement with a developer.

"The more we considered the idea, the more we leaned toward developing it ourselves."

IF THE PROPERTY was going to be developed, so be it, but it was going to be developed by someone who knew and cared for it, Vanderkloot said. "Before all this started, we knew we wanted to create a theme in which the land would dominate the homes."

After beginning construction in 1984, the Hills of Lone Pine is two-thirds complete. Vanderkloot estimated it will be another two years before the final third is finished.

When finished, the Hills of Lone Pine will include 57 estate homes and 74 single residence, detached cluster homes. Only four estate homes sites and 35 cluster home sites remain.

Developing property — particularly for a first timer — is not an easy task. And that task is made no easier then when the goals are lofty ones.

When the last home is built and the last family has moved in, Vanderkloot said he would like the Hills of Lone Pine to stand as a benchmark for the industry.

"I want people to look at it and say, 'This is how it's supposed to be done.' "

Not being a developer, Vanderkloot said his chief source of information were those people he wanted to sell to.

"I tried to find out what people wanted, rather than give them what I thought they wanted."

WITH CLUSTER homes ranging from $650,000 to $1.2 million and estate homes costing as much as $2.25 million, he knew he was going to be working with a discriminating clientele, Vanderkloot said.

Vanderkloot admits he made some mistakes along the way, but his anxiety and conservatism probably helped the development.

"In the long run, I probably saved money by doing things the hard way," he continued. When excavating ponds, for example, he put the cranes and the trucks in the pond areas, dug out the dirt, and then drove out.

A far quicker way, he said, would have been to take out some of the trees and have several crews excavating from the sides of the ponds.

"But then I would have had to replace those older trees — that would have cost a lot and hurt the site."

The Hills of Lone Pine is, admittedly, an exclusive development, Vanderkloot concedes, but his intent was not to appeal to the pretentious. "What makes it exclusive is what makes it harmonious — its charm is in its understatement."

WHEN HE AND his family set out to develop the property, Vanderkloot said he was worried homes might overpower the site.

"I wanted a subtle, unobtrusive development."

But unobtrusive does not mean boring, Vanderkloot said. Every effort designed to make the home front inconspicuous is matched by an equal effort to make the home rear spectacular.

Just because his family is concerned with preserving the land it has owned for nearly 40 years in as close to a pristine state as possible, does not mean the land couldn't be improved, Vanderkloot said.

Texel Land Co. nearly doubled the size of Minnow Lake and formed an island in its middle, built two areas of ponds, turned two clearings into parks, created a brook, preserved a large on site wetland and created a nature area (although he did add several aerators in the area to prevent stagnation).

But his piece de resistance, Vanderkloot said, is his waterfalls. And all it took was several tons of granite slabs, two ponds, a pump house, and more engineering than he cares to go into, he said. But no matter how much a developer wishes to retain natural character, the whole development could be ruined by an odd assortment of homes.

"WE DECIDED all the homes should be a contemporary design with simple, clean lines that wouldn't compete with the (surroundings)," he said. "I think contemporary is also a bit more timeless."

The only option, Vanderkloot said, was to impose greater architectural controls — a practice becoming increasingly common in high-end developments.

All Hills of Lone Pine cluster homes are designed by three architects: Robert Saarinen Swanson and Jack Brown, both of Bloomfield Hills, and Dale Ferriby of Farmington Hills. Estate owners have more flexibility, but designs must be approved by an architectural committee made up of Texel Land Co. principals, the architects and a consultant from the Ann Arbor-based firm Johnson, Johnson and Roy.

Vanderkloot said he is not trying to be dictatorial, but the more control, the more consistent the development. "Plans can be modified — I don't think anyone (in the development) has used the exact designs we provide.

"Architectural controls are becoming more common because the public demands it," he said. "People want to feel comfortable about the development, they want to know that if they move in today, they know what's going next door."

Because of this, the Hills of Lone Pine is not for everyone, he admits. "I had one guy who wanted to put a French Provincial estate — I can't tell you how hard it is to turn down someone who wants to give you $2 million."

Robert M. Meisner

I was involved in an automobile accident while driving into my condominium project while on a city road. I have a broken arm and permanent scars on my face. Am I precluded by no-fault insurance laws from pursuing the person who caused the accident? And do I have any claim against the condominium association? My view of the intersection was blocked by some trees that were planted by the developer of the project.

It appears that you may have sustained a serious disfigurement that would take you out from under the limitations of the no-fault statute and allow you to sue the person who caused the damage to you in the automobile, assuming they were at fault in regard to the accident. You would not be limited to economic losses under no fault but could sue for pain and suffering and the traditional other types of damages normally found in tort cases.

You may also have a claim against the condominium association because it maintained an arguable safety hazard, if you can establish it by an accident reconstruction expert. But it appears that the road on which you were traversing was a public dedicated road for which the condominium does not have any direct responsibility.

Your personal injury attorney will be in a position to determine whether the condominium association has any responsibility regarding the trees, against the city or county that maintains the road or the other driver.

There also may be other potential defendants concerning this personal injury, including the person who planted the bushes. You also should be obtaining first-party no fault benefits for medical bills and property damage from your own insurance carrier.

I have an employee of the association who is being paid straight time for overtime because he lives in the condominium project and is the son of one of the directors. As a member of the board, I am concerned about this procedure and wonder what comments you have in regard to it.

You have expressed concern regarding a state of facts, which creates at least two legal questions. First, is the employee being paid in violation of the wage and hour laws by receiving straight time for hours worked beyond 40 hours per week? Chances are the employee is entitled to time and a half. That should be confirmed as soon as possible with the appropriate adjustments being made.

The other aspect is the hiring of someone who is related to a board member. This is a bad idea in a number of respects. First, it is a bad idea for an association to hire employees who live in the complex for maintenance and other service-related tasks except in the context of a resident manager. Second, it becomes even more potentially a conflict of interest when the person hired is also affiliated with a member of the family of a member of the board. This creates, if not the actual, an apparent conflict of interest. You are best advised to terminate and pay the employee his back overtime as soon as possible.

Our developer had us sign a preliminary reservation agreement for the purchase of a condominium and told us we had 10 days from the time he notified us to sign a purchase agreement. We gave him a deposit when we signed the preliminary reservation agreement, and he also gave us a set of the condominium documents — master deed, disclosure statement, condominium buyer's handbook and the articles of incorporation.

We then went in approximately 15 days later and signed a purchase agreement. It said we should have nine business days to review the condominium documents from the time we received it. After signing the purchase agreement, we decided we did not want to go ahead with the purchase, but the developer balked at giving us our money back.

Our decision not to go ahead was within nine business days from the time we signed the purchase agreement, but the developer took the position that we had received the condominium documents at least 20 days prior and that therefore we had a binding purchase agreement. What can we do?

Your developer is not in compliance with the condominium act. One of the condominium documents that you are entitled to review over a period of nine business days is the purchase agreement. Accordingly, it is my view that the developer had no right to withhold your escrow funds from being refunded, and you should immediately pursue the developer by notifying the escrow agent holding the funds of your demand for a reimbursement.

It may be necessary for you to obtain an attorney to enlighten the developer as to his responsibilities. Apparently, this is a common practice that is occurring among some developers who are not only violating the express terms of the statute but certainly the spirit of the intent of the legislature in regard to giving purchasers a reasonable opportunity to review the condominium documents once they enter into a purchase agreement.

Today's shakes, shingles have history

(AP)— From the saltboxes that dot the Northeastern shoreline — especially in Cape Cod — to California's ornate Victorians, wood shakes and shingles are part of America's past.

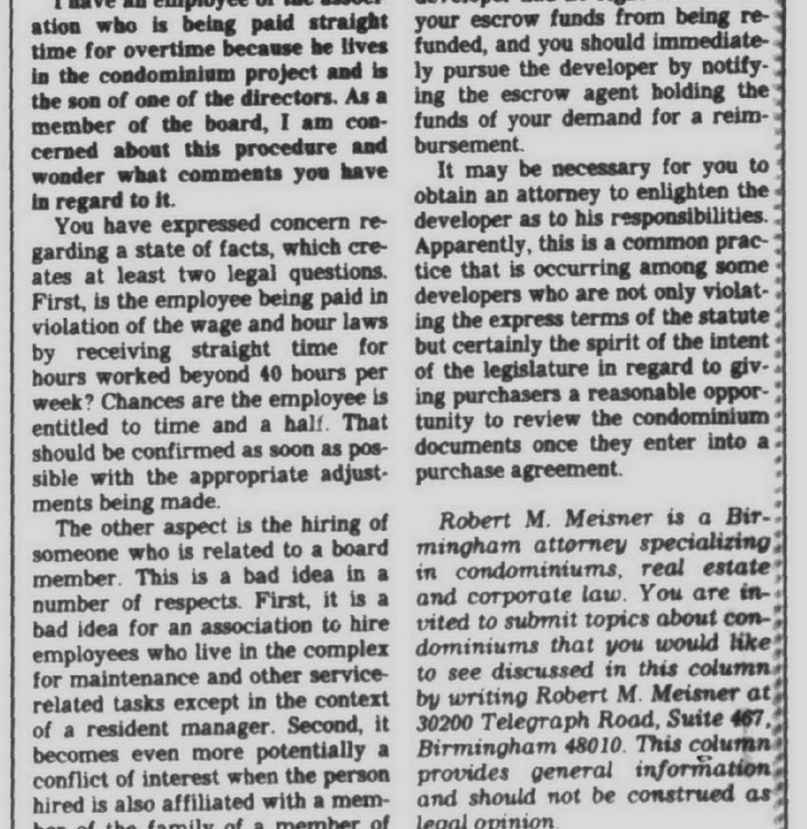

Whether the traditional square butt or the multipatterned fancy-cut variety, it's hard to beat the beauty of this natural, textured siding.

Historically, shakes and shingles were made from many types of wood, including cedar, redwood, oak, cypress, pine spruce and fir. Although they are still made from a variety of species — particularly on some of the more sophisticated architectural restoration jobs — cedar is the most common wood used for today's shakes and shingles.

What's the difference between a shingle and a shake? Shingles are machine-sawn into smooth, tapered boards that range in size from about 3 or 4 inches wide to more than 16 inches wide. Shakes, on the other hand, are hand-split with a steel-bladed froe, then sawn in half. This gives them their rough surface and flat, smooth back.

The traditional way to install shakes and shingles is called single coursing. Each piece of siding is attached so that it covers about half of the one below it. Only two nails are used to secure each shake or shingle and are spaced so that the following course covers them. This is the common way homes were shingled on the East Coast.

SIDING WITH double courses is the way to achieve deeper shadow lines and wide weather exposures, from 12 inches to 16 inches, depending on the shingle size you use. It can also be more economical, since a lesser-grade product is used for the undercoursing that is fastened with one nail at the top of each shake or shingle.

BOY DO WE LOVE KIDS! Looking for a church that welcomes your children? We invite you to visit the Royal Oak Swedenborgian Church Sunday morning at 11am. Our children have a special lesson (and sometimes some magic tricks too) from our pastor during the worship service, then have Sunday School activities just for them during the remainder of the service. We teach the importance of accepting others even if they're different from us, and that God always loves us. No shaming and blaming. We're located at the corner of W. Fourth and S. Pleasant. LET'S FACE IT...

We Know Time is Important to You, so...

RUSH NO MORE!

Now you can place, change or cancel your classified Ad 24 HOURS A DAY in the Observer & Eccentric

No, we didn't change our deadlines, we didn't even bend them, they're still the same* - we did something a whole lot better.

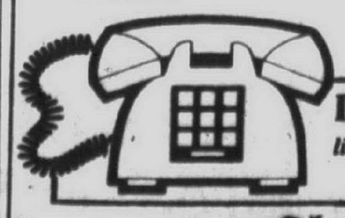

We installed an electronic answering system that's on the job 24 hours a day, every day.

Here's how it works:

First, you must have a touch-tone telephone.

Then, all you do is call us -remember, it doesn't make any difference if we're not here - to place an ad, cancel one or change something on one you've placed earlier.

Let's say it's three o'clock in the morning and you've just sat straight up in bed remembering that you forgot to place that classified ad for your snowmobile. No problem. Just punch up our classified number and wait for the operator to guide you through the steps for changing your ad. Have in mind the exact information you want to give us, speak clearly and a bit slower than you usually do. And that's it. If it's after 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, your changes will be made for the next Monday paper. Or, if it's after 5:00 p.m. on a Friday or the weekend, your changes will hit the Thursday papers. Pretty neat, huh? of course, our Classified Ad Takers are here every Monday through Friday from 8:00 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. But now, if you miss them, you can still do something about your ad - at your convenience.

Deadlines* For placing, cancelling or correcting line ads: Monday issue: 5:00 p.m. Friday
Thursday issue: 5:00 p.m. Tuesday

Cable Comments

By LARK L. SAMOUELIAN
Executive Director,
SW Oakland Cable Comm.

The Michigan Cable Television Association is the organization which enables the Cable Operators to gather to discuss and project how to meet todays market needs and plan for future technologies. They have appointed Colleen McNamara as their Executive Director. Her objective is to execute a more thorough plan for Public Relations throughout the state. The MCTA hosted the Winter Meeting and is now planning for Cable Day which is April 23, 1991 in Lansing, Michigan. On this day the Cable Companies throughout the state pool their resources to bring a closer view of the happenings at the Capitol. The Senate may be seen live in the morning and the House of Representatives may be seen in the afternoon. The transponder will be provided by 'PASS'.

Near the end of September they will host the Great Lakes Cable EXPO at COBO Hall in Detroit. The states involved will be Indiana, Illinois, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin.

The idea this year is to encourage a positive message. Throughout the State of Michigan the plan is to help expedite an understanding of how the cable operators may become even closer and more responsive to their Communities.

This year the MCTA named Hugh Jencks as Member of the year. Hugh is well known to most of us as the 'positive educator'. This philosophy toward learning has helped us all. Hugh feels that the organization has recognized him for his committee work, and sharing the message about cable through the state association in order to educate the legislature and consumers. One of the projects named the 'Drug Free Child' which included a study kit for schools and broadcast on HBO. The rest of the committee included Bill Wishman, Jack Leachman, Berry Harrison and Clare Kable.

The future is bright for Mr. Jancks who began his career in education in the Battle Creek School System. He taught English and Theatreuntil 1967 when he switched to television instruction. Hugh remarked that early people in television came from the theatre and that, theatrical personality also tended to be interested in the technical also.

In 1979 he attended a conference in East Lansing which hosted presenters from Omnicom. They had a vision of modern cable television which intrigued him. It included the marriage of program commercial offerings as well as Community Access. The Battle Creek system was an older system and didn't seem to have change dover a long period of time. Hugh Jencks was invited to join Omnicom in 1980. He remained there for eighteen months. He then transferred to Booth Cable Communications in April of 1983 after spending time in Independent Franchising. He became Program Director at Booth, then was promoted to General Manager.

Hugh reflects that it is interesting to note that people are the same no matter what the profession. There are the same challenges and rewards everywhere. "Management is management." I asked him what was his biggest challenge. "I know that every action will have an equal and opposite reaction. One must be very careful because it is hard to see all the ramifications, for every change there are five other unforeseen changes." He found that in business every time he would become enthusiastic and make a quick decision things became more complicated. He suggests that it is wise to "involve a lot of people in the decisions." On the subject of the cable industry, Hugh comments that "the industry suffers most from its immediacy!" He suggests that we should look back at the last 15 years and look at the impact and change cable has made on the lifestyle of every American. Even with all the options and his career in cable he still watches only one hour of television a day. (An interesting side note, many of us in the field practice the same.)

As to the business experience he has found that if the general public does not embrace a programming or technological option then the offering is not economically viable. "Frankly, we are not using much of the technology yet as the public has not been ready for it." Speaking as a true Cable General Manager Hugh responds in spirited tone, "the marketplace and free enterprise does dictate the needs." He sees in the not too distant future the combining of the Telephone Industry and Cable with the intent to get the best out of each.

The next step in our future he believes is collecting data directly from peoples homes.

Congratulations, Hugh Jencks! I, for one, have always appreciated your willingness to teach me one on one when I needed to have a quick understanding of complicated issues or technology!

The MCTA published a few interesting facts in their winter newsletter. Cable television homes in 1990 numbered 53,903,630 or 58.6% - There were 9,575 cable systems in operation - There are 93 programming services in operation - Ad revenue increased 26% over 1989.

Improved customer service is a major focus of improving industry image for 1991! We look forward to this particularly progressive outlook as consumers.

Curtis, Lewis are 'Anything But Canceled'

Marty and Hannah together at last

By Amy Schmidt

Last May after ABC decided to cancel the comedy "Anything But Love," comedian/star Richard Lewis was anything but happy. Not that he ever really is happy, mind you, his comic penchant being pain and melancholy.

"The two years I've had with Jamie Lee (Curtis) has been really an extraordinary experience for me," said Lewis fretfully of his "Anything But Love" co-star. "I mean, I really love her and the cast, and I'll miss being with her. You know, I'll come back, and if I do television in the next year, I'll produce my own show, and it'll be a different kind of show. I'll have more sex in my show. I'm the horniest costar that ever lived. You know, I told Jamie Lee, I said, 'If I ever do a movie with you, no matter what role I play, we're making love in three minutes of the movie. They tortured me for two years without having sex, so I'm really in a lot of pain and I'm angry.'"

Finally, the angst-ridden Lewis will have his way. Not only is "Anything But Love" back on ABC, but after two seasons of pent-up desire, this year Hannah (Curtis) and Marty (Lewis) consummate their relationship.

On "Anything But Love," Curtis and Lewis play a couple of writers working at a Chicago magazine. They oft forswore "getting involved" for fear it would ruin their great friendship. But promises were made to be broken, and Harry not only met Sally, but fell in love with her, too.

"It's beautifully done. And in fact, the number four show that we did, which is the culmination of their sexual experience, was really quite wonderful and very romantic and ver naturally insecure for both people," said Curtis. "Because, in fact, what you really need to do is verify each other's performance. It's lovely. It's done beautifully. It's great."

"So it was good for you, in other words," quipped Lewis, always the comic, to Curtis.

Sure, love is grand, but one has to wonder why "Anything But Love's creators decided to get Hannah and Mary together. Everybody knows that "Moonlighting" waned after Cybill Shepherd and Bruce Willis got married. And Sam and Diane's getting together never helped matters on "Cheers."

Opinions are mixed about whether "Anything But Love" will work or not. "Nine out of 10 chances it will fail," said one skeptical viewer we asked. But another was thrilled: "He's so nice, and she's so nice, and they deserve one another. There's good chemistry between the two."

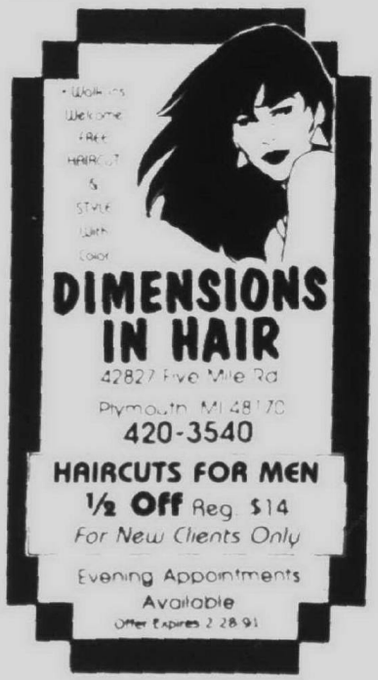

Will Hanna and Marty have to "make it" for "Anything But Love" to make it? As precariously positioned as the show has been, perhaps it is time to go for all the bananas.

Besides, said Lewis, the two aren't going to get along that well. "I mean, just because we are lovers, you know, we have ups and downs like, well...maybe Mother Teresa and her niece get along all the time. That's about it as far as I'm concerned," he joked.

Mark Harmon stars as a former rodeo rider who becomes a migrant worker in a desperate attempt to support his family during the Depression in Long Road Home, Monday on NBC.

Mark Harmon plays lead in Depression-era drama

Past more and more like the present

By Amy Schmidt

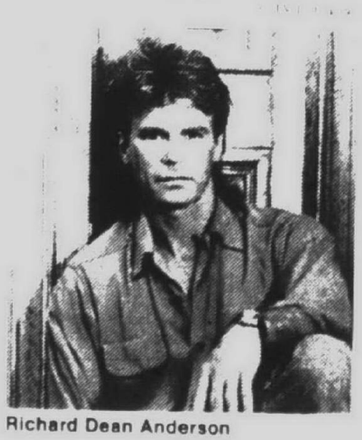

"When they need their crops picked they call us migrants. And when we have them all picked they call us bums and tell us to get the hell off," wrote Grapes of Wrath author John Steinbeck.

The year is 1937. Ertie Robertson is an injured rodeo rider who moves his family to California's San Joaquin Valley to harvest crops. The pickers are paid but a nickel a box and are so poor they have to live in tents. Ertie's son wants to join up with the union, but Ertie's only concern is to feed his family on a day-to-day basis. And he wants nothing to jeopardize that.

"I used to read a script and think, 'Gee, this is a great story and a great character, and I want to do this,'" said Harmon, the star of NBC's Dust Bowl drama Long Road Home, premiering Monday, Feb. 25. "You only have to do a few movies or a few projects that turn out very different from what you first read to when they eventually come out. My judgement now, I think, has a lot more to do with who's involved," continued Harmon. "I've admired John Korty for a long time, and I was thrilled to get the opportunity to work with him."

Long Road Home, co-starring Lee Purcell (To Heal a Nation) and Morgan Weisser (Extreme Close-Up) is a gritty drama directed by Korty. Korty has done a lot of movies looking back at topics of social importance including six-time Emmy winner The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman and Farewell to Manzanar.

"I think that we are definitely going into a very difficult period for America economically," said Korty, making the parallel between the Great Depression days and joblessness and homelessness today. "I think this story may strike chords in many Americans, whether they experienced the 1930s or not. I hope it will serve to remind us of the basic strengths that make it possible to survive depressions, wars and other calamities — family loyalty, pulling together, and helping one another."

SOAP TALK

Good times usually short-lived on soaps

By Candace Havens

Dear Candace: I have watched As the World Turns for the last nine years. It is one of, if not the No. 1 soap in my way of thinking. But the main thing I do not like at all is the fact they never let Lilly or Holden get married, and they never let them get serious about anyone else either. Is there any change for them in the future?

Another of the shows I watch is Days of Our Lives. Can you tell me if the actress who plays Hope will ever go to a different soap or ever act in a movie or something? Jack and Jennifer looked like they might actually get a good thing going together, but the way it has been going it makes me wonder if they ever will find happy lives, together or apart.

If you find out if any of the old stars that played any of the following will ever come back, please let me know: Nick Corelli, Steve Johnson or Guiding Light's Reva Shayne. —Samantha, Mt. Pleasant, Texas

Dear Samantha: It is impossible to predict what could happen to a character on a soap, but one thing is for sure, if Lilly and Holden ever find true happiness, it won't last for long. You're talking about the soaps, and good people on soaps just aren't allowed to be happy.

On Days, now that Jack is married to Eve, it will probably be a while before he and Jennifer can ever get together, although, of course they are still in love with one another. Here's another example of a good person who never gets to be happy. Poor Jennifer finally finds her man; he thinks he's not good enough for her and marries evil Eve. So goes the story of Jennifer.

Kristen Alfonso (ex-Hope) has had her baby and will most likely resume her acting career soon. As for returning to Days, there is no way to know.

It is doubtful that George Janesky (Nick, Days) or Stephen Nichols (Steve, Days) will ever return to the soap. After leaving the show, Nichols said he would never say never, but he was certain he had done all he could do with the character. Kim Zimmer (Reva, GL) is continuing to pursue prime-time roles.

I want to hear from you! If you have a favorite soap scenario you would like to sound off about, or a question about the soaps, write to Candace Havens, Soap Talk, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, TX 76102-0748.

LET'S TALK

Richard Dean Anderson comes from artistic background

By Polly Vonetes

Q: I can you tell me about Richard Dean Anderson? How old is he? I really love his show MacGyver. Can you send me his address? —Kathie Bunnell, Park Rapids, Minn

A: To Kathie and all MacGyver fans: I have recently received many letters asking about Richard Dean Anderson. So, all you loyal fans — this is for you. Richard Dean Anderson was born Jan. 23, 1950, in Minneapolis. His mother is an artist, and his father is a highly regarded jazz musician. He opted for an acting career only after his dream of a professional hockey career was shattered when he broke both his arms playing varsity hockey in high school. He studied drama at both St. Cloud State College and Ohio University. Anderson eventually migrated west to Los Angeles, where he "paid his dues" working as a street mime and juggler and as a writer/director performer for theme park shows at Marineland in Southern California. His big break into television came when he landed the part of Dr. Jeff Webber on General Hospital (1976-81). Then in quick succession he landed roles on prime time before landing the lead in his MacGyver series. He terms himself "your basic jock," and favorite active sports in his free time, ranging from motorcycling, sky- and scuba-diving and skiing to baseball and hockey. Whiskey, his 12-year-old Australian shepherd, is his constant companion and a permanent fixture on the MacGyver set. Write him c/o Paramount Television, 5555 Melrose Ave., Los Angeles, CA 90038.

Q: I recently read your column, and you answered a question about Linda Evans. It jump-started my memory back to My Favorite Uncle when she played a little girl niece to John Forsythe's "uncle" — the same man she was married to in Dynasty. Am I right? —M.S., Springfield, Mass

A: You are partially right. Linda Evans guest-starred in one episode of Bachelor Father in October 1960. The series starred John Forsythe as Uncle Bentley Gregg, a wealthy attorney who became the guardian of his teen-age niece Kelly (Noreen Corcoran) when her parents were killed in an auto accident. Linda played a friend of hers in an episode titled "A Crush on Bentley."

Q: I would like to know if Ron Perlman of Beauty and the Beast is married. Also could you include some background information on him? —Cathy Perin, Cottonwood, Ariz.

A: Ron Perlman, 39, was reared and educated in New York City. He earned a graduate degree in theater arts from the University of Minnesota. In his first starring motion picture role, in Quest for Fire, Perlman spent eight months filming barefoot and almost naked in the frozen bogs of Scotland portraying a prehistoric Ulam tribesman. However, this did not diminish his love for the theater or acting. He is married to fashion designer Opal Stone. They have a 6-year-old daughter, Blake Amanda. The family resides in New York City.

Q: Could you tell me anything about Jane White, who plays on Amen as Thelma's mother-in-law? I went to junior high with a Jane White who wanted to be an actress, and I was wondering if she was the one. It was in Morristown, Tenn. —B.M.W., Hawkins Co., Tenn.

A: Jane White was born in New York City, the daughter of the late Walter White, executive secretary of the NAACP. Primarily a stage actress, she is perhaps best known for the role of the Queen in Once Upon a Mattress, which she also did on TV. She has been on screen since the '50s. I am sorry I haven't more information for you.
