Prostitution takes hit from city

By KEVIN BROWN

To keep prostitution out of Plymouth, city commissioners on Monday approved a tougher ordinance restricting massage parlors. Their action came nearly three months after the May 19 raids on two city massage parlors.

After undercover police found that a range of different sex acts were being solicited, arrests were made at the Rainbow Tan & Spa Inc. 265 N. Main and the Yong Health Spa, 995 N. Mill.

Six women ranging in age from their mid 20s to 45, all of Korean descent, were each arrested on a charge of soliciting and accosting, police said. The two establishments were not owned or managed jointly. Three women were arrested at each locale.

Larry Roberts, Wayne County assistant prosecutor, said the women are cooperating in the case against the managers of the two establishments.

"In each case they've agreed to testify," Roberts said. "The charges will be dismissed after sentencing or conclusion of the cases against the principal defendants."

court against the managers of the Rainbow Spa, Kazuo Iwata, 46, of West Bloomfield and Un Cha Choe, who Roberts said lived with Iwata. They each face four felony charges related to operating a house of prostitution.

Facing four felony charges in circuit court of operating the Yong Spa as a house of prostitution is Wyong Teak Choe.

The prosecutor's office has also filed civil suits related to the arrests, to seek to keep the three managers out of their former establishments for at least one

Deadline extended by DNR

By KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

In the continuing saga of the city's effort to save as much as $500,000 in the cost to do a state-mandated project, the Department of Natural Resources has extended a crucial deadline.

The DNR had set a Nov. 1 deadline for the city to close a former Plymouth landfill in Salem Township.

The city has a plan, which involves digging a lake for a developer in Salem Township, so the city can have the clay.

The clay would then be used to cover the former landfill, to meet DNR requirements.

But while the city expected quick acceptance of the lake-digging plan by Salem Township, that didn't happen.

But after talking with the DNR last week, "We have a reasonable expectation the DNR will work with us despite the deadline," city manager Steve Walters said.

While city officials had expected that only a building permit would be needed to dig the lake, the Salem Township planning commission said no.

"We have a public hearing Aug. 31 to consider a conditional use permit," Walters said.

At the hearing before the Salem Township planning commission, the city will seek approval for the permit to allow them to remove the clay.

City officials say that should Salem Township reject or significantly delay efforts to dig the lake, the city could be forced to return to an original plan to buy clay from an out-state source.

But to do so would push up the cost to close the former city landfill.

Mayor Robert Jones said that in the meantime, the city is trying to find another close-by source of clay — in case Salem Township rejects the city attempt to dig a lake there.

The city closed the landfill on Chubb Road according to DNR guidelines in the 1960s.

'Mother Goose' concerned over plight of injured birds

STAFF WRITER

For most birds hanging out at Hines park, it's summertime and the livin' is easy.

But the plight of two injured Canada geese has sparked the concern of Mary Mozurkewich of Livonia.

It was nearly three weeks ago that she noticed the first goose. "He was dragging his wing, like he had just got hit by a car."

Mozurkewich, a fourth-year student at Lawrence Technological University, said she routinely drives the stretch of Hines Drive from her home in Livonia to Northville, where her horse Kelga is stabled.

Not long after noticing the first goose, she noticed a second smaller, struggling goose — possibly a female — with string or netting wrapped around its legs, causing it to limp heavily.

What she's looking for is a group of people to help her catch the birds, so they can be treated.

"I just need more manpower," Mozurkewich said.

"It's a wild animal and maybe I can't help it, but at least I'm going to try."

She's called the Department of Natural Resources "and about 20 other places" about them coming out to help the birds.

Election board OKs recount in supervisor race

STAFF WRITER

There will be a recount of the Aug. 4 Republican primary.

The Wayne County board of canvassers agreed Tuesday that a recount of the election — in which Kathleen Keen-McCarthy won the supervisor's race by 21 votes — should happen.

The actual recount of township ballots would likely happen the week of Sept. 8.

The recount was requested by township building director Charles McIlhargey, who finished second to Keen-McCarthy.

"The next step will be for us to notify all the candidates," a county elections office spokesman said.

Then, the state board of canvassers must approve the recount. That approval is a formality.

What happens in a recount?

"Usually what happens is changes occur for all the candidates. It's almost an even distribution of changes across the board," said the elections office spokesman, who declined to be named.

"Usually it's not enough to change the election results unless it's very close."

While the Plymouth Township clerk's office counted the punch-card ballots by machine, the county year. "to abate the nuisance," Roberts said.

The managers of the Rainbow Spa face a hearing related to the civil suit Aug. 28 before circuit judge Richard Kaufman.

Roberts stressed that the owners of both businesses, who were landlords renting to the respective business managers, were unaware of illegal activity.

"The landlords will cooperate,"

Roberts said.

"Our first goal is to abate the nuisance, our second is to bring charges against the principals and educate people you can't do that," Roberts said.

Much of the language used to make up the city's new ordinance was taken from ordinances used in several communities.

Ordinance provisions call for:

- Licensing — To work as a masseuse in Plymouth, an application must be submitted to the city clerk who will refer it to the county health department, city engineer and the police and fire chiefs. They investigate background and report back with a recommendation.

- Prohibiting unlawful acts — Acts deemed as grounds for revoking a license include those "performed for primarily sexual gratification," and the intentional exposing of erogenous areas.

- Closing — Establishments deemed to be operated contrary to the ordinance are deemed unlawful. The ordinance "permits the city to commence civil proceedings," to end unlawful activity.
- Penalties — People found in violation of the ordinance will be guilty of a misdemeanor, punishable by up to $500 and 90 days in jail.

Cop attacked while breaking up a fight

Plymouth Township Police arrested a man on a charge of assaulting a police officer Friday, after the man punched an officer called to break up a fight.

The officer was called at 3:14 a.m. to a home on Gold Arbor.

On arriving, he found two brothers fighting on the front lawn, according to the police report filed on the incident.

After getting the brother on top to release the brother on the bottom, the brother on the bottom ran toward the officer and struck him, according to the police report.

The officer was able to restrain the man, handcuff him, and place him in the squad car for transport back to the police station, the report continued.

The report did not state the age of the brother charged. The other brother was listed as 18 years old.

Smash and grab

The driver's side window of a 1992 Pontiac Sunbird was found broken Monday and a radar detector missing from inside, its owner told Plymouth Township police.

The car was parked at the curb outside a house on Firwood near Haggerty.

The damage was estimated at $100. The owner valued the radar detector at $150.

Police have no suspects in the incident.

elections office staff will count the ballots by hand, when the recount is performed.

"We never know what we're going to find," said the elections office spokesman.

At the board of trustees meeting

Tuesday, township resident James D. Irvine criticized the township clerk's office, saying it was shameful that 758 ballots were voided.

The number was "so many hundreds of ballots that the outcome of the election would have been quite different," Irvine said.

The ballots were voided when voters voted in both the Republican and Democratic primaries on their ballots.

"They (these voters) should have been cautioned twice to vote on only one part," clerk Esther Hulsing said. Written instructions at the polls were that voters were to vote in just one party primary, she said.

"I can't take and lead any voter by the hand,"

Accident under investigation

A blood alcohol test was administered to the 35-year-old Garden City man who was driving an auto that struck and killed a 14-year-old on Palmer west of Haggerty on Friday.

Police are awaiting the results of the test to determine if charges will be filed, said Capt. Alex Wilson, of the Canton police.

The youth, Samuel E. Hubbell, of Wayne, was dead at the scene after being struck at 5:12 p.m. by a 1985 Lincoln Continental, Wilson said.

The boy had been crossing Palmer Road when the Lincoln hit him, according to the police report.

But in recent years, the DNR told the city more money would have to be spent, to close the dump in a way deemed proper by the DNR.

Earlier this year, the federal government awarded a $600,000 grant to Plymouth to help pay to clean up the former dump.

That helped, but the city still has to come up with another $1 million to cover the dump with clay and soil as the DNR requires.

Raising dust: A crew from Federal Salvage turned the winch on a truck and down came the tower.

Tanks for the memories

It wasn't an easy job, controlling the crash of the 140-foot tall, 150-ton water tower. There were some anxious moments at the end when the legs of the water tower were cut. But everything came down on schedule, and in the right place.

The tower at the former Evans Products plant site on Eckles Road in Plymouth Township had been a landmark since it was erected in the late 1930s, as part of a defense plant. Evans produced bicycles and later rail box cars.

The tower came down to make room for a new building at the site.

Although the job looked daunting, it was really much simpler than it appeared.

"We just went up there and tied cables to it," said Preston Hill, co-owner of Federal Salvage of Livonia. "Then we just pulled it down with a tow truck."

The steel will be sent to a scrap yard, said Hill, who said his firm bid on the project.

"We put one down before, this is our second," he said.

As it was coming down Tracy Callis, of Federal Salvage, was whooping and jumping up and down and screaming: "The son-of-a-bitch is coming down."

But before that could happen, Jeff Schultz took a cutting torch to the tower's legs to weaken the structure so that B&B Towing's two wreckers could make it all happen.

And the crash? It was "wonderful" reports Bill Bresler, Observer photographer, who shot his pictures from a nearby roof top.

Towering job: Preston Hill of Federal Salvage of Livonia climbs the tower to prepare cables used to pull it down.

Tow needed: Workers from B&B Towing hook up a cable to the tower.

Measuring: Tracy Callis and Jeff Schultz measure the tower's height, 145 feet, to determine where it will fall.

Bolt cutting: Jeff Schultz cuts bolts on the tower's leg, getting it ready for the big tip over.

Hazard for geese: Mary Mozurkewich, far left, spotted two injured Canada geese along Hines Drive, one limping because netting placed along a roadside had wound itself around the goose's leg. She noticed this Canada goose struggling with a broken wing, and she's looking for volunteers to help it.

"They say 'we can't do anything, you have to catch it,'" Mozurkewich said. "The DNR said it'll die, let nature take its course."
 She didn't accept that.
 "My boyfriend says you can't save every injured animal. But I've always had pets — birds, rabbits, dogs, turtles, hermit crabs," and more.
 On a recent weekday, she visited both birds — along Phoenix Lake just north of Five Mile — feeding them bits of bread from a plastic bag.
 The bird with the broken wing, who hangs out by the waterfall on the east side of the road, eagerly gobbles up bits of bread.
 "Usually there's other birds out here and they won't let him have any," she said.

 Farther north, Mozurkewich approaches the smaller goose with the leg problem. Along with two other Canada geese, it makes its way up a hillside as Mozurkewich shoos it away from the road. They also get a few pieces of bread.
 The hillside is covered with a netting used by road crews to protect new grass. Mozurkewich said she suspects this is the material binding the small goose's legs.
 "I don't think it's right for them to be putting this stuff out."
 "She'll be fine if we can get it taken care of," Mozurkewich said.
 She can be reached at 464-9263.

Buchanan and Reagan wow local delegates

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

HOUSTON — The Gipper and Pat Buchanan wowed Michigan Republicans more than they had expected.

"The best is yet to come" is the Ronald Reagan closing line that stuck in the mind of Abe Munfakh, Plymouth Township trustee and alternate delegate from the 13th Congressional District.

"There has been a lot of talk about negativism, but I was impressed with the way Reagan put together a program for the upcoming election," said Munfakh, a first-time delegate.

He and Lewis Beaver of Westland enjoyed the way the 81-year-old former president turned some of the Democrats' favorite lines back on them. "You're no Thomas Jefferson," Reagan said to Democratic nominee Bill Clinton.

Beaver, another first time delegate, enjoyed Reagan's reference to the Democrats' show in New York last month — "And they said I was an actor."

"It was superb for a man of his age and stature," Beaver said.

If the national press corps is dwelling on the platform battle over the anti-abortion plank, you can't hear it in the Michigan delegation.

"I'm impressed by the unity. I don't hear the bickering and complaining," said Beaver. A self-employed builder of homes and commercial structures, Beaver thinks the economy will come up, adding about himself: "I stay busy."

Sean Cox, a Livonia attorney and first-time delegate, admitted he was "much more impressed than I thought I would be." The Astrodome, appearing huge on a television screen, is much smaller when you're part of it, he said.

He enjoyed the Pat Buchanan speech about the fundamentals of foreign policy, family life and "cross dressing" by the Democrats — liberals talking like moderates and conservatives.

Pat Anderson

Talk about tax cuts all you want. Economist-delegate Patrick Anderson says NAFTA (the North American Free Trade Agreement) is "the crowning achievement for George Bush. But it won't get the same press as a tax cut," which Bush is expected to propose in tonight's acceptance speech.

"It will mean more jobs, better goods at lower prices for the consumer," said Anderson, who works at Alexander Hamilton Life Insurance Co. in Farmington Hills.

"It's really a triumph of the general interests of Americans over special interests and lobbyists."

In the Astrodome media center next to the Astrodome, reporters were picking up very few copies of the Bush-Quayle team's background sheets on the pact that will tie the U.S., Canada and Mexico over 15 years into a common market even bigger than the European Economic Community. It says NAFTA will "create a market that will extend from the Yukon to the Yucatan," and the U.S. will be the "centerpiece of a $6 trillion market with 360 million customers."

Anderson enjoyed Buchanan's denunciation of Democrats' condoning of "same sex marriages that can adopt children. Most Americans would not say that's an embodiment of family values."

Sheila Starghill

The Grand Old Party of the Rich? Don't say that to Sheila Starghill, chair of the Michigan Black Republican Council.

The Southfield resident and first-time delegate said, "I'm one of those small businesspeople that President Reagan was talking about last night. His speech brought back memories of how minorities and women received the type of help to get us onto the economic playing field."

After 15 years as executive director of the Michigan Minority Business Development Council, a corporate effort to assist minority business, Starghill said she's leaving soon to become part owner of Arrow Products, an industrial safety products firm in Taylor.

Gov. John Engler and state party chair David Doyle recruited her for the at-large delegate post.

Nanig Manoukian

"Last year I recruited Matt Bergstrom for the John Jamian campaign (Jamian is a state representative seeking a second term).

"And this year I recruited Vahé Tazian for Barbara Smith's campaign (for state representative in the 39th House District).

"These kids put in 80 hours a week," she said as she escorted them into delegation parties and got them guest passes for the convention.

Bergstrom, a 20-year-old student at Michigan State's James Madison College, said the work is "demanding, but it pays off in experience that most people can't get." More of his views will be in the Detroit Legal News.

Tazian, a 17-year-old Groves High graduate, will attend the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus in the fall.

Bill Lucas keeps eye on Houston

HOUSTON — Watch the demonstrators outside the Astrodome. Watch the Houston police. Bill Lucas will be studying them.

"The reason I'm here is dealing with those who are demonstrating and planning the best possible ways to let them fulfill their First Amendment rights and be non-confrontational with the police," said the former Wayne County sheriff (1969-82) and executive (1983-86).

"They will have complete access to the media, bathrooms, water, first aid. That should eliminate the kind of frustration that causes them to overreact. If this works and everybody's happy, this may be a prototype," said Lucas, adding, "The NOW people have a section all to themselves."

Lucas is in the U.S. Justice Department as director of liaison services, a job that involves dealing with many police chiefs, other federal departments and social agencies across the country. He helps them deal with influxes of people who may be under stress, without losing their own cool.

"We offer technical assistance to police departments in those techniques of interrelating with community groups," said "Cool Hand Luke," as some called him. Lucas was pressing the flesh with delegates from Michigan at a house party Sunday night in the palatial section of Houston.

"We've worked on the settlement of Haitians and Cubans. The Immigration and Naturalization Service contracts with us, and we contract with community health and service organizations, like Catholic Relief Services, hospitals in the District of Columbia and Miami.

"We also care for unattended youngsters because many times parents put them on a boat to get them out of Haiti and expect to meet them later. There are 10,000 Haitians coming in. We try to place the children with relatives.

"Many are sick with AIDS. This is a very sensitive area." Lucas has bounced — or been bounced — in jobs since switching to the Republican Party in 1984 and being the GOP standardbearer for governor in 1986.

For years he has been close to President Bush, but a U.S. Senate committee deadline 7-7 on a civil rights post for Lucas and his nomination was withdrawn. For a spell he had a job with the Republican National Committee until the Justice Department post came his way.

"It's a very interesting assignment. It brings together everything I know about law and law enforcement. I have to pick up the phone and deal with police chiefs all over the country.

"It all ties together very neatly."

Delegating

Views from inside the dome

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

HOUSTON — "I met my ultimate boss," said Bob Gosselin of Troy, a Michigan delegate from the new 12th Congressional District.

Gosselin works for General Motors designing electrical systems and he met board chairman Bob Stempel at a GM reception for delegates from several states.

It's Gosselin's first national convention after 10 years of party work and state conventions, precinct delegate work and district committee work.

"We strategize," he said after chats with Gov. John Engler and state chair David Doyle, "on how to best help congressional district candidates."

His target: Democrat Sander Levin, a congressman from the 17th Congressional District for the past 10 years but now in a district that is 60 percent in Macomb County and 40 percent in Oakland, with the old Detroit-Redford-Inkster base gone.

"I think Levin is beatable. John Pappageorge (former military officer and current Oakland County commissioner) has the credentials. It has a lot to do with how Bush is perceived in the next couple of months. I think Bush will come back. (Democratic nominee Bill) Clinton peaked too early."

Elaine Donnelly

"Year of the Woman"? What women?" asked Elaine Donnelly.

"For liberal women, it's the same," said the Livonia Republican who rose to public attention in the early 1980s arguing against the Equal Rights Amendment. She cited pro-choice Maureen Reagan's loss in a California congressional race and pro-life Megan O'Neill's win in Michigan's 9th Congressional District.

Donnelly stopped in Houston for pre-convention parties after trips around the country as a member of

DOUG ASHLEY

Houston stopover: Elaine Donnelly of Livonia, although not a delegate to this year's convention, stopped in Houston for pre-convention parties after traveling around the country as a member of President Bush's Commission on the Assignment of Women in the Armed Forces.

President Bush's Commission on the Assignment of Women in the Armed Forces.

"Thursday I debated Mary Crisp — remember Mary Crisp. She left the party in 1980 when pro-life language was put into the platform and ERA language was taken out. She made a big media event. Now she's saying Republican women will leave the party again. How can you leave twice?"

"I debated her before a Rotary Club in Houston on behalf of the Republican National Coalition for Life, which is specifically devoted to seeing that the platform (opposing abortion) stayed the same. We won 84 to 16 (in the platform committee) Not bad. it

A Jack Kemp supporter in 1988, Donnelly wasn't a delegate this year. But she made the rounds of the Michigan delegation's activities, especially the dance floor of the Black-Eyed Pea, a country-western spot where Michiganders held a Saturday night party hosted by Senate majority leader Dick Posthumus.

Judy Riedlinger

At Houston, Judy Riedlinger was practically home.

"The first campaign I worked on was George Bush's 1970 Senate campaign," said the chair of Michigan's old 18th Congressional District Republican organization. That was when Bush, a two-term congressman from Houston, lost a Senate bid to Democrat Lloyd Bentsen.

"I grew up 100 miles southwest of Houston along the coast — a little town called Victoria," she said. "I was in high school. My mother was involved in the party. I got on the phone banks. It was an underdog campaign."

Ken and Judy Riedlinger came north in 1984 with Electronic Data Services, now part of General Motors.

It's Judy Riedlinger's first convention as a delegate. The Bloomfield Hills resident went to Kansas City in 1976 and Dallas in 1984 as a guest. By 1988 she was assisting Jackie Stewart in New Orleans on Michigan delegation arrangements.

Heintz spends 'vacation' working the convention

STAFF WRITER

HOUSTON — Some vacation. Susan Heintz traveled from Northville to the Republican National Convention at her own expense. She used vacation time — and has worked constantly.

"I'm actually getting a lot of work done," said Heintz, who runs Gov. John Engler's southeastern Michigan office in Detroit as her full-time job.

Technically, Engler isn't governor when he's out of the state. But press secretary John Truscott said his hotel suite has two telephones, two computers and a modem connecting them to his Olds Tower office in Lansing.

Lt. Gov. Connie Binsfeld also was supposed to be a delegate, but she stayed in Michigan when her husband, John, had to undergo surgery. (He's fine.) Binsfeld is acting governor, under the state constitution.

Heintz, who left the Wayne County Commission early in 1991 to work for Engler, served with state party chairman David Doyle on the rules committee.

"We were very Republican. We cut down the number of rules. We had 41. Now we'll have 40," she said.

The rules Doyle and Heintz worked on are for the 1996 convention. "We think Michigan did quite well despite losing two congressmen," Heintz said. The formula is complicated, and much will depend on how well the state GOP delivers for Bush. This year Michigan sent 72 of the 2,210 delegates — 3.3 percent of the total.

The chief change, according to Wisconsin Gov. Tommy Thompson, chairman of the rules committee, is that states may not change their rules and laws governing delegate selection more than seven days after the convention call is issued.

"It means that once the call is put," said Heintz, "you can't change the rules in mid-stream."

Among Heintz's convention duties:

- Filling tote bags for delegates with gifts from Michigan companies and universities: trail mix from Wilhelm Kast's American Spoon Foods, toiletries from Amway, pens from Meijer and Michigan State University, a key-case from Little Caesars, body lotion from the Grand Hotel on Mackinac Island, golf tees from Kmart, promotional items from the Detroit Pistons and Northern Michigan University.

• Meeting delegates from other Great Lakes states with similar interests.

• Talking to other government staffers with jobs similar to hers.

• Setting up a meeting with Monroe County people interested in a Defense Department project.

• Setting up still another meeting on the regional transportation system.

• Talking to General Motors brass about their plants in the Detroit area.

"I paid my own way. I'm taking vacation time for this," she said.

Topless women ticketed at tee

After getting calls Aug. 10 that some women were walking around topless, Plymouth Township police were called to the Mission Hills golf course at 14830 Sheldon.

Upon arriving, an investigator and officer headed to the 13th green-14th tee area, according to the report on the incident filed by township police.

Police learned that a bar on Eight Mile Road in Detroit, Trump's, was sponsoring the golf outing and some female employees were acting as caddies.

On the 13th green police spotted a topless woman. As the investigator was writing a ticket for indecent exposure to the 38-year-old Keego Harbor woman, "she exposed her vagina," the report continued.

Also getting tickets for indecent exposure were a Detroit woman, 23, and a Westland woman, 21, both for exposing their breasts. The incidents occurred between 2-3:30 p.m.

The three women were scheduled to appear Sept. 8 in Plymouth district court.

Professor studies self image

BY SUSAN STEINMUELLER
STAFF WRITER

Three years ago, an Oakland University sociology instructor noticed that men and women given an assignment on body image answered questions differently depending on their gender.

"They were worlds apart. I was really surprised," said Susan Haworth-Hoepfner, a Rochester Hills resident.

"The female would describe body image in terms of transformation, lack, or need for improvement. Even when by cultural standards they were classically beautiful they still described their feet as too big, or their pores as too large.

"This was in contrast to male responses. A response I have which was typical of males was, 'tall, dark, medium build, chest larger than most, and I don't lift weights, it's a natural body build.'"

From that point, Haworth-Hoepfner decided to pursue the topic for her dissertation. The result is an ongoing research project on body image and eating disorders. She hopes to receive her Ph.D. from Wayne State University based on her research.

Haworth-Hoepfner's study examines the relationship between the "construction of femininity and the predisposition towards eating disorders."

It's significant for instance that in anorexia nervosa, in which a person pursues thinness through self-starvation, 90 to 95 percent of sufferers are women, she said. The age range of victims is generally 14 to 18.

"My question was, what is it that makes it seem to be predominantly a female phenomenon," she said.

There are no easy answers, she said.

Her findings did seem to indicate, however, that its normal for females to distort their body image - but not for men.

In medical literature she found when those women with distorted body images were compared with normal women, even the "normal" women overestimated their sizes. The fact that normal women did so was not recognized.

Greenleaf campaigning in Houston

HOUSTON — Harry Greenleaf is campaigning hard at the Republican National Convention — but not for vice president or even a change in the platform.

The longtime Schoolcraft College trustee from Livonia is seeking the GOP nomination for state Board of Education.

"It's going well. I've picked up a lot of endorsements — Chuck Yob (national committeeman), Dave Doyle, some district chairs," he said. "I expect to talk to some people tonight."

And he did. On a delegation bus trip to Michigan's Saturday night party, he got a favorable reception from state Rep. Susan Munsell of Howell. She's a member of the House Education Committee.

Greenleaf's race actually will be decided Aug. 29 at the Republican State Convention when two candidates will be nominated for each of five bodies — the Supreme Court, State Board of Education, and the boards of the University of Michigan, Michigan State and Wayne State universities.

Meanwhile, Houston is a good place to meet a lot of the decision makers. Michigan has 72 delegates, 72 alternates and perhaps 250 of the faithful such as Max Fisher, Michigan Bell lobbyist Jack Dempsey and top state staff people.

"I sent out letters and resumes — my qualifications in the educational arena and political arena," said Greenleaf, who has been chair frequently of the old 2nd Congressional District GOP organization.

"One of the first things was to be sure I had the support of my company, which I have," Greenleaf, 56, an engineer originally, works in personnel and staff development at Ford Motor Co., where he has been since Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in New York, 1958. His alma mater named him an outstanding alumnus earlier this year.

Wife Audrey is the delegate this year, and Harry is the companion. "I recall several years ago," she said, "when Harry ran for city council and you (the writer) said he should be running for State Board of Education. Now he is."

othy Beardmore of Rochester Hills, is seeking re-election to an eight-year term. "Sixteen years," she marvelled last week as she considered her prospects. "That's a long commitment."

Her 1984 running mate, Cherry Jacobus, of Grand Rapids, is dropping out. The Beardmore-Jacobus team dominated the board politically, winning approval of PA 25, the reform code that requires annual reports and five-year plans in school districts; forcing out ex-Gov. James Blanchard's choice as superintendent of public instruction, Don Bemis; and bringing in Robert Schiller as the now superintendent on a bipartisan vote.

Greenleaf said he can bring another asset to the ticket, "the concept of partnering and consortium." He was a board member or president for three years of the Detroit Area Pre-College Engineering Program, an effort to "motivate and prepare students for careers in science and engineering."

"We had 800 students from 16 middle schools in 1986 and now have 3,800 in grades 6-12."

B's, by golly

The Plymouth city commission approved an application Monday for transfer of a liquor license to allow a Mr. B's pub to open in the Ann Arbor Road building formerly occupied by Holly By Golly restaurant.

Commissioners earlier this month delayed approval until they found out what sort of entertainment the bar-restaurant owners wanted to bring there. But after determining that the metro Detroit chain would not be bringing in topless female entertainment, local approval was given.

The bar owners plan to bring in a karaoke machine, commissioners said.

Used truck

Have they got a deal for you.

The city of Plymouth is offering a 1981 Ford Bronco, with 70,000 miles, to the highest bidder.

The city had recently offered the Bronco along with a 1969 semi-truck, 1966 Ford tractor, and 1987 Caprice. But when the highest bid made was just $400 — city officials were hoping for at least $800 — they decided to try again.

Anyone interested in buying the Bronco can call Carol Stone at Plymouth city hall, 453-1234.

Travel team

He's still going strong at 95

Dean Saxton has long been a fixture in Plymouth, owning and operating Saxtons, now a garden store but once a feed store for farmers. Saxton, whose roots are rural and who served in World War I, recently turned 95.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Born at the end of the last century, Dean Saxton still has a mind as keen as a kid's.

Preparing to celebrate his 95th birthday earlier this month with his wife Vicky, also 95, children, grandchildren and great-grandchildren, Saxton recounted in rich detail what it was like to lose his mother when he was 6; move from Traverse City to attend a Detroit high school with 3,000 students; fight in World War I and marry the girl he left behind; have a family; and start a business during the Depression.

Saxton's face and easy smile probably are familiar to many local residents. He was honored as grand marshal at Plymouth's Memorial Day parade in May, and until a few years ago, worked at Saxton's Garden Center on Ann Arbor Trail. He opened the business in 1934 and operated it for 54 years before turning it over to his children.

In an era when few things seem to last, Saxton is a study in finding what's best in life and hanging onto it. What's more, he's a wonderful storyteller.

Born in Grand Rapids, Saxton moved up north to live with his grandparents after his mother died giving birth. Life in Traverse City was eventful. Saxton worked in his grandfather's cherry and peach orchards; fought in do-or-die snowball fights with ice-coated ammunition; and watched the Michigan State Baseball League in action. Through it all, he felt his mother's eyes upon him.

"She was a wonderful woman," said Saxton, sitting in his living room on Coolidge St., his wife of 72 years gazing up at him. "I loved her. For years she kept me on the straight and narrow. I knew she was in heaven, and I thought she could see what I was doing."

Saxton, who attended Central High School (now Old Main at Wayne State University), spent time while in his late teens at an uncle's in South Dakota. He learned, among other things, to ride a horse. The skill was to come in handy overseas.

World War I

On his way back to Detroit, Saxton got as far as Chicago when war was declared on the 6th of April. "I came home and wanted to enlist. I was afraid my dad wouldn't let me, because I wasn't old enough. But I investigated and enlisted in the National Guard" at 19, he said.

In the service — where he saw duty in France as a runner on the front line for several months — Saxton "wrote to every girl I knew, and got a reply from most, but not from her," he said, nodding in Mrs. Saxton's direction.

Saxton had lived for a time in Detroit with an aunt across the street from Margaret Victoria Van Fleet. The young lady lived with her mother, a professional photographer, in a large home at the corner of East Grand Boulevard and Lafayette. The couple met "and went out together two or three times," before Saxton went off to war, he said.

"I was mixed up in a sorority at the University of Michigan," says Mrs. Saxton, explaining why she never returned

Daughter meets long-lost mom

BY CASEY HANS
STAFF WRITER

Marcia Nieport never felt like she quite fit in. Her adoptive family on the farm in Ohio cared for and loved her, but that didn't stop the longing she felt to know about her roots.

Then, two years ago, a letter arrived from Nieport's birth mother, a Farmington Hills woman who had been searching for her daughter for 15 years. It was 20 years after a single, pregnant 17-year-old Marcia Berg gave her daughter up for adoption, sight unseen.

The final piece of the family puzzle was put into place in August of 1990 when birth mother and daughter — and extended families — were united.

"I was holding Levi (her then 10-month old son) and I fainted on the bed," said Nieport, describing her reaction upon hearing the news. "I couldn't have been happier — it came at a perfect time."

Today, Nieport and her son Levi live in Farmington Hills with Berg and her husband. With birth mom at her side, Nieport gave birth this month to her second baby, a little girl named Morgan, at Providence Hospital in Southfield. The family has gone through counseling to cope with all the changes which have come into their lives.

Unlike some adoption search cases, their story has a happy ending. But their lives weren't always happy.

Search is on

The Farmington Hills woman began searching for her child five years after giving birth to her in Ohio, after coming to a full realization of what she had done.

Berg already had one child when she became pregnant with Marcia. She offered her for adoption because of her strict family upbringing and the hurt she felt she had brought to them.

"My family was distraught when I had my first daughter — I was afraid to talk to them about it," she explained.

Berg eventually married, and her husband became father to her first daughter, Traci. But she never forgot the child she gave up.

Her search carried her back to Ohio, through a maze of hospital records and detailed letters to the attorney who handled the adoption and who would not release any information. Letter after letter, and through discussions with others around the country who faced similar problems, she kept hoping one day something would surface.

She believes that God finally took over.

In 1989, Berg was diagnosed with a curable form of thyroid cancer, and realized that contacting her daughter became even more important because of the genetics.

"I thought 'this is my opening — God works in mysterious ways,'" she said.

She re-contacted the attorney, explained the situation, and the attorney offered the clue that all his adoptions were in an area around Dayton.

A contact Berg had made in New York sent her to a California man who did a search and eventually found her daughter. "I never met him — I don't even know his name," she added.

Because the younger Marcia was taken away at birth, Marcia Berg never knew for a long time whether her child was a girl or boy. Once Berg found her daughter, she was eager to meet face-to-face. "I kept saying 'this kid is going to know I love her — that I've looked for her forever,'" she said.

There are parallels between mother and daughter — and even between Nieport and her older sister Traci.

Both mother and daughter carry the same first name spelled the same way, something the younger Marcia said she never asked her adoptive family about. Both have borne two children as single parents.

Her mother's experience played in a part in the younger Marcia deciding to have her daughter. "I wasn't going to have the baby," she said. "I'm glad it worked out this way."

Berg said she offered her support freely. "If you decide to have that baby I told her 'you can't give it up. I will help you in any way possible,'" she added.

Why adoption?

Nieport said her experience as a single parent helped her to understand why her mother offered her up for adoption years ago. "If I didn't have (her son) Levi, I wouldn't have understood why she gave me up," she said. "Once I read her letter, I understood."

Although growing up apart and never knowing each other, the younger Marcia and her sister Traci hold many of the same interests. In high school, both ran track, were avid swimmers and participated in band and cheerleading. Their high school colors and mascots were even the same.

Throughout her childhood, Nieport had dreams about her birth mother, though she didn't realize at the time what they meant. "I dreamed for years I was at the top of a ladder and a blonde lady was trying to get me," she said.

What about her adoptive family in Ohio? Nieport still visits and talks with them often. And they gave Nieport the letter from her birth mother which opened up this whole, new world.

"We try to look at it as one, big extended family," Berg added.

her future husband's letters. A Mayflower descendant, Van Fleet also was busy with photography and teaching folk dancing.

"They gave me a job as a runner with the artillery division and a horse," recalls Saxton. "They had radio and telephones, but they were always afraid orders wouldn't be right. So they were duplicated by messenger."

Saxton never saw a soldier killed, but saw his share shortly afterward. "They buried them with their arms and feet sticking out. It was terrible," he said.

Saxton carried a pistol at all times, but never fired one until word came on Nov. 7 that the war had ended.

"I shot mine off. But I was so mad I shot it, because I had to clean it before I could turn it in," he said.

Back home

By the time Saxton got home, Vicky was graduating from U of M. "We got engaged that summer, in 1920," said Saxton. "We were up in Harrisville. We got down to the beach, and I said, 'I've got something I want to ask you, but I don't have any money.' "She said, 'I know what you are going to ask me, and you don't need any money.' She says she'd do it again," says Saxton with a laugh.

Saxton went to work for Ford Motor, "tying little bundles" and working his way up to locomotive crane repair.

The Saxtons — who raised their children Bill, Margaret, Molly and Dean in a rambling farm house in Southfield, decided to go into business.

In the late '20's, they opened feed stores in Northville and Redford, supplying farmers with oats, hay, straw, corn stalks and the like. In 1934, they opened a feed store in Plymouth that evolved into the garden store still doing business on Ann Arbor Trail at Deer.

Depression years

How did they get through the Depression? "They were rough years. The family lived on $15 a week in groceries," said Saxton. "The trick was, we didn't spend more than we took in."

Saxton says owning your own business isn't for everyone. "People would say to you, 'take a few days off.' Well you can't. If you are your own boss, you're working harder.

"I'd say I enjoyed it, but I wouldn't recommend it. It takes a lot of capital. If you don't have it, you have to worry about it all the time. As your business grows, you have to have more stuff on hand, so you have to have even more capital."

Downtown parking Ordinances scare business

When a motorist turns down Forrest Street in Plymouth, the first sight is of two empty buildings, one on each corner. It's unexpected. The culprits are the city's complex maze of parking ordinances and the most dreaded of all, the parking credit.

One restaurant owner wanted to set up shop recently in one of the vacant buildings but was driven away by the way the city handles parking. And it's not the only case. Local real estate people have tales of woe when it comes to trying to get restaurants to locate in Plymouth.

The irony here is that this is happening even before the dust is settling on a new downtown study that suggested that more restaurants are needed downtown.

But there is hope. Doug Miller, a city commission member, is working on coming up with a solution. Miller is a hard worker who has the skills to come up with a compromise.

Such a compromise is much needed to solve the parking credit situation. There is a move to eliminate the credits, but scrapping them will anger longtime merchants who have paid them for years.

The parking credit system requires that businesses pay the city thousands of dollars for parking spaces. These aren't spaces on the street in front of the building but spaces in lots and parking structures.

To be solved is the question of fairness for those who have paid the credits, which amount to thousands of dollars for each space.

These people have a point of view. However, so does the other side. The start-up costs of business is high, and when you toss paying parking credits into the stew, this makes the location on Ford Road look much better.

Bluntly put, Plymouth is competing for new businesses with Canton, Northville and Livonia. And competition means coming up with the right price.

The idea of changing the parking ordinances would be moot if there weren't any parking or if all commercial buildings downtown were filled.

The buildings aren't filled. And there is parking available, and it's public parking in structures or in lots. Parking need not be right in front of each business. Just look at the malls: Shoppers are accustomed to walking, if they think it's worth it.

The city needs to come up with a compromise on the issue. Older businesses can benefit from more foot traffic in the downtown area. And that idea should be stressed in any compromise plan.

It's time for it to happen before shoppers park Plymouth permanently.

Appointment recognizes trend

Gov. John Engler has done the right thing by appointing the first black judge to the Oakland County Circuit bench.

The historic appointment of Denise Langford-Morris is testimony to the growing number of minority residents in Oakland County.

Langford-Morris, a West Bloomfield resident, took office Aug. 3. She is the third black judge appointed by Engler to courts throughout Michigan in the last few months.

Langford-Morris fills the unexpired term of Alice Gilbert who resigned from the circuit bench after 16 years to run for Congress.

Gilbert has made a little history of her own. She was the first woman judge on the Oakland court — back in 1976. She paved the way for Hilda Gage, Jessica Cooper and Deborah Tyner, and now for Langford-Morris — four women on the 16-member court.

Langford-Morris comes with sterling credentials.

Welcome, Langford-Morris. Justice in Oakland County should be better for having you on board.

Suburbs need healthy core city

Suburban isolation. It's a concept western Wayne and Oakland County residents have honed to near perfection in the 25 years since "race riot" and "white flight" became part of our lexicon.

In fact, people out here wear it like a badge of honor. The more distance between suburban life and anything remotely connected to Detroit the better. We don't need them and they don't want us, the argument goes.

Sorry, but we do. The proof is in the numbers. A new study shows a distinct correlation between the economic health of cities and their suburbs.

Researchers at the University of Louisville looked at per capita income between 1979 and 1987 in 59 major metropolitan areas across the U.S. They found that strong or revitalized core cities spun off suburban wealth in greater proportion than decaying central cities.

Metro Detroit income slipped from sixth to 11th during the eight years, with future projections putting Detroit in 15th place.

To put it bluntly: Birmingham and Livonia residents aren't making as much as their counterparts in suburban Baltimore and Milwaukee.

Restoring Detroit's economic health is a regional concern. While suburban residents may be hard put to force changes in Detroit's political leadership, a little more interest in what happens in the city isn't too much to ask for.

Building bridges

Helping out: Successful suburbs can only be helped by a thriving core city, and only hurt by divisiveness and racism. For an explanation of what the suburbs and Detroit can do for one another, see today's editorial on the lower left portion of this page.

I, Charles R. Sullins, the son of the late Marie Schemmel would like for the readers of the Observer to know that there is a group of people who cares.

I am talking about Angela Hospice. When my mother had bone cancer and the hospitals told us that they could not do any more for my mother, I called Angela Hospice for help. Within two hours they were out to my home and for the next three weeks they helped make my mother's last days as peaceful and comfortable as they could. They were here when she passed away on April 9, 1992.

The three persons who gave their time to help my family are Gerry Patrask, Pat Ursette, and the one who cared the most about our family and came to the funeral home and still calls to see how my Dad and I are doing is Sue Ann Daniel.

The day my Mother passed away was Sue Ann's day off, but when I called Angela Hospice and told them that she was near the end, Sue Ann and Pat came right out, and if it wasn't for those caring nurses and staff of Hospice, we could have never made it through. With the caring and understanding and support they helped us. They are there whenever someone needs them.

Thank you for all that you did.

Charles R. Sullins, Canton

State needs politicians' wisdom

MARQUETTE COUNTY, MICH. — Up here, it's easy to feel mighty far away from things.

The wind does sing in the pines and the trout rises to the fly. The moon comes up, yet again, full and brilliant over the still lake. And the loon calls still float, haunting and shrill, on the quiet breeze.

Michigan, my Michigan. We so often get tangled up in the day to day aggravation of living in Michigan — especially "downstate" as the Yoopers say here — that we forget just how extraordinarily fortunate we are to live in this Pleasant Peninsula.

Consider.

Last week, the University of Michigan's Center for the Study of Youth Policy released a study showing that Detroit ranked number one and Flint number four for cities over 100,000 in the nation for the highest percentage of children growing up in poverty.

What a terrible place Michigan is, one wants to say.

True. But consider the same national rankings for lowest percentage of children growing up in poverty. Livonia ranked 11th. Sterling Heights came in eighth, while Ann Arbor was 16th.

What a fine state we live in, one wants to say. Or take economics.

It now seems clear the North American Free Trade Agreement, allowing companies to do business in the U.S., Canada and Mexico without customs duties on thousands of items and without masses of paperwork, will be completed by the trade negotiators. Congress will have to pass the final agreement before it goes into effect, which will likely take at least a year.

In the meantime, the Free Trade Agreement is either the greatest disaster to hit Michigan since Coleman Young or the best thing since the speckled trout.

"We see it as a prescription for massive job losses in auto and auto parts," says the UAW's Alan Reuther. "The United States is the only country left without any auto policy to keep any auto employment." He'll get a lot of agreement around the vicinity of the Willow Run plant.

In the face of a powerful economic competitor it the European Common Market, an American free trade zone could increase competition and new market economies and bring as many as 175,000 new jobs for U.S. exports, according to the Institute for International Economics, a Washington think tank advocating the pact.

So what do I make of all this from the peace and beauty of the U.P., where the air is clear and the water clean?

Just this. Michigan, like most places, only more so, has a remarkable mixture of the happy and the mad, of assets and deficits. Within our boundaries we go from the poverty of Detroit to the affluence of Livonia, from the fear of the auto industry to the opportunity of the entrepreneur and the visionary.

The trick is to make the most of the best while trying to fix the worst.

And what irks me is that, in the face of Michigan's mix of crisis and opportunity, our political leadership seems so inwardly turned and so fixated on gaining narrow partisan advantage.

Both Democratic and Republican state conventions take place this weekend. It would be nice to hear from both of them some sense of vision, some program describing how to take advantage of our assets and how to overcome our deficits, something higher than narrow posturing.

Maybe it's just the clear air up here. But I do wish somebody would cut through the fog.

Philip Power is chairman of the company that owns this newspaper.

State teacher competency test lacks credibility

QUESTION: I read that a large number of our future teachers who graduated last year could not pass a minimum competency basic skills test. Now the state has backed off and waived that simple requirement. I heard more than 500 didn't pass the test. What's the problem?

ANSWER: Dr. Scott Whitener, dean of the College of Education at Ferris Institute and chairman of the Michigan Teacher Competency Testing Advisory Committee said, "What could have been a national model for competency testing of future teachers is a national embarrassment for the State of Michigan."

Let's look at the steps taken in this effort and grade the state on teacher test development competency:

1. Pass legislation on a teacher competency test about 1986 for 1991 testing and discover in 1990 nothing been done yet. So put something together in nine months. Grade E (not enough time to develop and pilot test).

2. Have major, competent testing companies, including ETS (Educational Testing Services) reject bidding on the job and give it to the lone bidder, National Evaluation Systems Inc. Grade D- (Major companies don't bid on test development contracts with no time for determining key factors such as validity (is the test going to measure what it is suppose to measure).

3. Have original chairman, the respected Dr. Herber Rudman of MSU's testing department resign suddenly. Grade Incomplete (rumor was Rudman was not pleased with what was coming down).

4. Send out a statewide survey, have teachers rank and prioritize the skills future teachers should have to successfully teach in their major subject area. Have contracted company reject teacher and professor recommendations because their company's bank of test items "didn't cover many of the skills identified" by the experienced teachers and college profs, according to Dr. Whitener.

Use other test items in company's bank even though teachers and professor stated the test items don't match what is being taught in the field. Grade E. (Failure to be responsive to professional input)

5. Don't develop a study guide for the college students so that they have some idea as to what to expect on the test. Grade E (no caring teacher, from kindergarten through 12th grade, would give a test without sensitizing their students as to what to expect).

As a person who taught research, evaluation and testing at the university graduate level, I say this whole process was an educational Titanic.

The test questions, according to chairman Dr. Whitener, often were not aligned with the curriculum being taught at the universities. For instance, college and university social studies departments often emphasize different areas. Let's say a student graduates from College A in social studies which does not require geography and runs into 10 questions in this area on the competency test. The student should at least be advised of this prior to taking the test.

I believe in teacher competency tests. Anyone teaching our children must be knowledgeable in their subject area and obviously have basic reading, writing and math skills. But let's start with a level playing field. Future teachers should be sensitized in their freshman year as to what basic skills and knowledge they must have before student teaching.

There should be a teacher competency guide book stating the skills they can expect on their exit test, such as "Future teachers will demonstrate competencies in reading, writing and math. Future Social Studies teachers will demonstrate knowledge and competency in the areas of the constitution, civil war, world geography, etc.

Now we have a teacher competency test that rejected the input of teachers and professors because the "company" did not have test items available, which means there is no "face validity."

Face validity is determined by having experienced classroom teachers review the concepts and the questions being asked and then stating, "On the face of what I see (having been in the classroom for 20 plus years), these are good test items, and this is a true test of what future teachers should know."

This never occurred, from what I have been told; therefore, the State of Michigan teacher competency test — at this point — is a sham.

Ridiculing the veep's spelling mistake is flawed

Old-time trial lawyers used to say, "If the facts aren't on your side, and if the law isn't on your side, then pound the table."

A lot of table-pounding is going on over Vice President Dan Quayle's misspelling "potato," adding an "e" on the end. Playing the ridicule game for all it was worth, Democrats invited the student who caught the veep's error to lead the pledge to the flag at their national convention last month.

Let's be fair to the veep, even if that is unfashionable in the liberal media. A public official immersed in statecraft — specifically presiding over the Senate and the Council on Competitiveness — doesn't use the word "potato" every day. In the Agriculture Department's list of six sacred crops, the potato does not appear.

Now if Quayle had misspelled "ratification" or "appellate," words he might be expected to use on the job, we would have a better case for stomping on him.

One of our education columnists, a former public school administrator, was counseling a man in print about seeking a "nitch" in life. The correct word, of course, is "niche." This gaffe also got past at least two people on our copy desk.

A grocer might not know words like "appellate" and "niche," but he should know the names of the products he carries. Yet a popular produce market on Newburgh Road had signs for "man-go's" and "avacado."

Then there was a farmer's stand that featured "home groan" veggies. I was working the copy desk one day when a competent reporter submitted a feature story about kids studying fossils. The writer, with no background in geology, misspelled it "tribolite." I had studied the subject under the late professors John Dorr ("Geology of Michigan") and James Zumberge (Antarctic and hard rock expert), and I missed it completely, may their spirits forgive me.

A student wrote a scoffing letter at our blunder, pointing out that it was a "tribolite" — three lobes, tri-lobite. The student's letter contained a half-dozen errors of its own.

In the heat of writing, one can make typing mistakes. Ten times a week I catch myself using words that end in "ioin" and typing "ioin."

Lots of readers have told me newspapers in general are letting spelling go to the devil. They are correct, and there are two reasons.

First, we no longer have proofreaders — people in the shop who read stories after they were set in type. They were an extra layer of protection. Typically they were old-timers with strict academic upbringings in high school, and they were excellent. Today our type is set electronically — what the copy desk sends out is what gets in the paper.

True, computers have programs to check spelling, but they don't work because they check for the word you used, not the word you should have used.

Second, newspaper designs are using more and more gingerbread — boxes, borders, shaded backgrounds, different fonts of type, pull-out quotes, big initial letters, reverses and so on. Copy desk people are forced to give more of their attention to page layout and less to spelling and content.

Spelling is important, but it isn't worth pounding the table about. For proof, consult the works of Will Shakespeare. Er, Shakes-speare. I mean, Shackspeare. Uh, Shaxper. No, it's Shakespeare.

Engler's speech impresses local delegates

STAFF WRITER

HOUSTON — Michigan Republicans woke up Wednesday and found that good ol', folksy John Engler is a national figure.

"He gave lots of visibility to the state. Our governor was in the national spotlight," said Dennis Flessland of Huntington Woods, an alternate and district chairman.

"I was impressed that Michigan had that kind of firepower," said Art Sippola of Livonia, a state party officer. "How many speakers did we have up there — three?"

A tally of several delegates showed Michigan had no less than seven speakers on the Astrodome podium at this year's national convention: Engler talking autos, philanthropist Max Fisher on President Bush's friendship to Israel, Detroit Councilman Keith Butler on the platform, Teen Republican Michael Flory on youth, heritage leader Frank Stella on nationalities, Mary Fisher's testimonial on AIDS and lame duck Rep. Guy Vander-Jagt on Congress.

Michigan Democrats had no one on the podium at their convention, though former Gov. James Blanchard had a major role inside the Clinton campaign.

"He (Engler) has a lot of clout with Bush's campaign," said Sean Cox, a first-time delegate from Livonia. "He's building a national reputation." Cox noted network figures like Ed Bradley and Dan Rather have been seeking out Engler.

Engler's Tuesday night speech was literally and metaphorically about autos, in the analysis of one guest, Livonia city clerk Joan McCotter.

Said the governor: "Michigan leads the way in making cars, and making cars drives the American economy. Making cars means jobs for Americans in the steel foundries of Pennsylvania, the textile mills of the Carolinas, the rubber industry in Ohio and the electronics laboratories of California . . .

'He spoke to the working man and union man and not just to the capitalists.'

"Now let's look under the hood of the Clinton-Gore model. When you get past the slick paint job, here's what you find: $150 billion in higher taxes . . . fuel standards that will cost 40,000 autoworkers their jobs in my state alone. Talk about sticker shock!

"And for a model that only turns left? . . . And the Clinton model has already had a test drive — in Arkansas," he said, reciting Arkansas' low performance in workplace safety and school spending. "The 1992 Clinton-Gore model is no Lincoln; it's a lemon."

Yvonne Strother of Rochester

Hills said, "If you're grading speeches, it was one of the better ones." "Greatest speech he's ever given. He connected the different states," said Peg Sippola, a guest from Livonia.

Next morning Engler said he junked the first version of the speech. "When you've only got five minutes, you've gotta make every line work," he said. Communications director Rusty Hills said he, Engler and chief of staff Dan Pero worked on it, with Engler himself making major contributions.

"A sign of his respect at the national level," said state Rep. Susan Munsell of Howell.

"We're the ones who've been suffering," said Rep. Jan Dolan of Farmington Hills, pointing to the recession. "He was working for Michigan."

"Some of the others were not as interesting. His message was terrific," said Rep. Lyn Bankes of Livonia.

"He spoke to the working man and union man and not just to the capitalists," said Livonia clerk Joan McCotter, noting Engler's praise of Michigan quality.

Engler delivered for his home delegates again on Wednesday morning, bringing in Gov. William Weld of Massachusetts and three top Bush administration figures — most notably Carla Hills, his top trade negotiator.

Hills noted Engler serves on an intergovernmental advisory committee on trade. Her message: Michigan will be one of the big gainers from the new North American Free Trade Agreement.

"Fifty percent of our products going to Mexico will have a zero duty on day one," she said to great cheers.

AJ's wins league title

AJ's softball team, the runner-up in the Blue Division during the regular season with a 12-2 record, used a seven-run seventh inning to come from behind and defeat ASAP Machine 13-12 in the Canton Parks and Recreation playoffs.

AJ's defeated ASAP twice in the double-elimination tournament, earlier winning 7-2. En route to the championship, AJ's had victories over Embassy Square (10-4), Pogo's (22-16) and Exotic Metals (18-3). The team suffered its only loss, 10-5 against ASAP Machines. AJ's also beat American Yazaki 5-0 to reach the finals.

ASAP Machine took victories over Suds (7-4), Paulin Building (18-11), Holly's (16-15) and AJ's (10-5).

Keller takes prep post

Mike Keller, a longtime Livonia sandlot baseball coach, will take over the varsity program at Livonia Stevenson High, athletic director Roger Frayer announced Tuesday.

"This is a new challenge for me," said Keller, who spent one season (1981) as a volunteer coach at Stevenson. "It's something I've always wanted to do. We hope to be competitive in the Western Lakes (Activities Association) and bring baseball back to Livonia."

Keller, a 1972 Livonia Churchill High graduate currently employed by the Livonia Public Schools, succeeds Richard DeVries, who retired after four seasons.

The 38-year-old Keller most recently managed Walter's Home Appliances, which finished second Sunday to New Orleans in the prestigious All-American Amateur Baseball Association tournament in Johnstown, Pa. His 20-and-under summer team finished the year with a 27-13-2 overall record.

"I'm thrilled to death to have Mike," Frayer said. "He's the first player who played for me (at Churchill) that I've had a chance to hire into my program. He was an excellent baseball player (as a pitcher), both in high school and in the Livonia summer sandlot leagues. He knows baseball. I'm happy to have him."

Fraye said the Conrad Newman will remain as junior varsity coach.

Vegas night boxing

The Livonia Boxing Club will stage a benefit Las Vegas Night card, featuring top Detroit and suburban amateur boxers, from 7-11 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 2 at Laurel Manor, 39000 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia. The event is co-sponsored by Action Distributing Co. (Miller Genuine Draft) in Livonia.

Admission is $20 (includes $5 gaming chips). Prizes and cash bar will also be available.

Tickets are available at the Livonia Parks and Recreation Department, 33000 Civic Center Drive, Livonia.

For more information, call Paul Soucy at 525-1387.

Hartman to Siena Heights

Greg Hartman, a 6-foot-2 swingman from Wayne Memorial High, is one of five new recruits for Siena Heights College.

The second-team All-Observer pick was the Zebras' second leading scorer last season as Wayne won the Wolverine A League crown and reached the Class A regional before falling to Detroit Cooley.

Hartman joins 6-7 Joe Dettling of Clinton, 6-1 Ryan Orolowski of Tyler, Tex., 6-2 Tim Foster of East Kentwood, and 6-4 guard Ryan Sanford.

Chiefs have talent to be contenders

The appearance of greater parity among the WLAA boys soccer powers this year, a veteran Plymouth Canton team sees possibilities in the 1992 season.

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Canton returns 11 lettermen for a new boys soccer season, giving coach Don Smith the nucleus around which to build another winning team and possible title contender.

The Chiefs were 11-7-1 last year and finished third in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Canton defeated rival Plymouth Salem 2-1 in the WLAA consolation game, ending an eight-game winless streak versus the Rocks spanning three seasons, before losing to Livonia Churchill in the district tournament.

"I think we can improve on last year," Smith said, adding the Chiefs are "still pretty young" despite having seven seniors among the returnees. "We should be a pretty competitive team."

Three seniors who figure prominently in the Canton plans and will be the heart of the defense are defender Owen Crosby, midfielder Mike Wdodiak and goalie Ryan Henkel.

Crosby and Wdodiak begin their third seasons as starters, and Henkel, who split time with Jim Bradley last year, missed the last five games because of a knee injury but didn't need surgery.

"With those three, we'll be strong up the middle," Smith said. "We've gotta have a good year from those kids and, if the others follow suit, we could be pretty good."

Crosby should be one of the better sweepers in the area and leads by example as does Henkel, according to Smith.

The other defenders are likely to be senior Matt Daluisio at stopper, with junior Craig Provenzano and senior Joe Sisko at the fullback positions. All three had a lot of playing time last year, though Sisko's game experience was in the midfield.

The defense is supported by juniors Eric Stoecklein, Ryan Christenson and Mike Ratkewicz and sophomore Shaun Conway in reserve roles.

PCA has '12 guys who want to play soccer'

BY NEAL ZIPSER
STAFF WRITER

Youth and experience usually do not go hand-in-hand but don't tell that to Plymouth Christian Academy soccer coach Kyle Mavin.

Coming off his most successful season in his four years of coaching at PCA, Mavin will attempt to mix the two together and improve on last season's 9-5 mark.

"Our strength should be our experience at the center-halfback position and on defense," Mavin said. "I think we should win half our games, but we might be able to win more."

"I told the team at the beginning of practice that I am looking for 12 guys who want to play soccer and I will develop them. I think I have found that. I have a team that wants to play, and I think as the season progresses the team will get more hungry for wins."

Lost from last year's squad to graduation are goalie Matt Cronin, sweeper Matt Ockerman, and center-forwards Jeff Nielsen and Paul Backman.

"Ockerman was the best sweeper ever to go through PCA, and he and Backman were our leading scorers," Mavin said. "It will be hard to replace them."

But Mavin has plenty of candidates to fill in the gaps. Sophomore Arthur Partain will start in the nets. He was the JV goalie last season and has improved through off-season playing. Mavin said he has no worries about Partain's abilities.

Senior Lynn Stephenson, a second-team, all-conference performer, will take over at sweeper for Ockerman, as well as the team leadership role.

"Lynn has some big shoes to fill, but I think he can step up to the challenge," Mavin said. "He's a silent leader."

Another second-team, all-conference performer is sophomore Ryan Thomason, who moves from the right-halfback position to the center halfback spot.

"He also accepted and stepped up to the challenge last year," Mavin said.

"He's probably my star player. He does a very good job of controlling the field."

Sophomore left halfback Dan House "is not known for his soccer abilities, but is a good athlete and someone you can count on," Mavin said.

The Eagles' roster is completed by a group of promising newcomers, transfers and returning soccer players who took last season off.

Olympian sets sights on '96 Games

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Jennifer O'Donnell, a member of the U.S. Olympic women's archery team, almost found out what it's like to be a target during the '92 Summer Games in Barcelona, Spain.

O'Donnell's life wasn't threatened but she was startled, to be sure.

"The police and army have these machine guns and they swing them around from shoulder to shoulder (while on patrol)," said O'Donnell, 18, of Farmington. "My friend (fellow Olympian) Denise Parker and I were walking around and all of a sudden we see these machine guns — it was weird. I should have been used to it because I've been to Europe so often but they're so open, more militant, with more security."

O'Donnell didn't bring home a medal but she left with many memories and a good feeling about returning and winning a medal at the 1996 Olympic Games in Atlanta, Ga. O'Donnell, who finished 17th in the 1991 World Championships, took 11th overall in Barcelona.

It's been a busy spring and summer for O'Donnell, beginning with a second place finish at the Olympic Trials in May and ending with a trip last week with other Olympians to the White House.

"I improved over the World Championships so I guess I'm happy but I still wanted to do better than I did," said O'Donnell, relaxing at her parents home last week in Farmington before heading to work as a waitress at Bill Knapps. "Except for not winning a medal it was real exciting."

O'Donnell's fondest memory away from competition at the '92 Games were the Opening Ceremonies. The athletes, except, of course, some of those on the Dream Team who are too big for that kind of stuff, got to walk around Estadi Olimpíic, wave to the huge crowd and watch the torch be lit by a guy carrying a bow and arrow.

"Everybody was holding their breath (hoping he wouldn't miss)," O'Donnell said.

Hitting the mark

O'Donnell didn't do bad herself with bow and arrow. She survived the first two rounds of qualifying with 1,295 points, good enough for 20th place and a berth in head-to-head competition in the field of 32.

O'Donnell upset Lioudmila Arjannikova of the Unified Team, 101-97, to reach the field of 16 before being eliminated by eventual bronze medalist Natalia Valeeva (Unified), 112-105.

Head-to-head competition was added to the archery competition for the first time in Olympic history to make the sport more appealing to a television audience. O'Donnell believes the rule change might allow archery to stay as an Olympic sport.

"It's not like we can compete (for fan appeal) with gymnastics and swimming but now each arrow counts and anything can happen, just like a gymnast can fall off a beam," O'Donnell said.

O'Donnell's parents, Jack and Diane, made the trip, stayed in a motel 1½ hours away and watched all of their daughter's competition.

'I improved over the World Championships so I guess I'm happy but I still wanted to do better than I did. Except for not winning a medal it was real exciting.'

Jennifer O'Donnell

Jack and Diane sat in the stands holding a sign with the words MGB written on it.

It had special meaning to O'Donnell.

"Since they're fixing up an MGB convertible my parents made a bet with me that if I took home the gold medal they'd let me have the MGB next summer," the younger O'Donnell said.

What if she won the silver or bronze?

"I'd get the car only if I got the gold — they weren't making any compromises," she said.

Feeling the heat

Jennifer adjusted well to the hot Spain weather and wore a Michigan State baseball cap during competition to keep the sun out of her eyes. Barcelona is near the Mediterranean Sea "so we got the breeze," O'Donnell said. "It was 10 to 15 degrees hotter in Madrid, so we got lucky."

The living accommodations at the Olympic Village included a two-bedroom apartment shared by O'Donnell and three other archery athletes. O'Donnell wasn't far from a beach — or free Pizza Hut stands. "We ate pizza quite a bit," O'Donnell said. "It was like, I come back home and now I have to pay for food?"

O'Donnell also got $200 in spending money and bought "tons of T-shirts."

The O'Donnells said they were treated fine by the Spaniards, although Diane noticed a rare form of animal cruelty.

"If the dogs don't want to go, (their owners) drag them," she said.

More royal treatment

O'Donnell returned to Metro Airport Saturday night and was in Washington D.C. less than 24 hours later to have lunch, a tour of the White House and hear a speech from President George Bush.

A rain storm forced the athletes to eat hamburgers, hot dogs and a Dove Bar inside on the White House floor and it was a visit O'Donnell will long remember.

O'Donnell wants to study interior design when she starts at Michigan State next January and she's got a head start on ideas with a tour of the White House.

"It was really neat," O'Donnell said. "All the rooms were done in a different color, real pretty and elegant — old-fashioned. And President Bush gave a pretty good speech."

"This year we have more back-up defenders," Smith said. "We couldn't sub as much on defense last year, so that will help to keep us fresh this year."

Sophomore Jeff Fliss returns with a full season of experience as a starting halfback, giving the Chiefs two veteran players along with Wdodiak.

The other regular midfielder will be one of two sophomores, Jeff Knysz or Jeff Cohen. Canton also has sophomores Matt Cruz and James Bossieux ready to play the midfield.

"Other than Wdodiak, we're real young, but they're a scrappy bunch," Smith said. "We have a lot of 10th graders who will get a lot of playing time. We're going to do a lot of subbing."

Smith has full confidence in Henkel as the last hope on defense. He is consistent and will use his 6-foot-2 frame to his advantage. Junior Bill Power and sophomore Keith Gniwek are reserve keepers.

"It's going to be hard to put the ball over the top," Smith said, adding Henkel has a lot of range. "I don't expect him to give up any easy goals. If you're going to score, you'll have to do it with a good shot."

Smith moved seniors Mike Hayes and Kirk Wahtera, starting halfbacks a year ago, to the attacking line where the Chiefs lost 27 goals with the graduation of Chris Hayes (the team leader with 12 goals and six assists), Brett Kearney and Jason Ripp.

Sophomore Graham Wilk is a returning starter, having scored six goals and made three assists last year. Wilk and Fliss are Olympic Development Players who have been invited to tryouts for the under-16 national team.

Hayes had three goals and nine assists. Canton also returns senior Alan Samouelian, who spent the last two-thirds of the '91 campaign on the varsity. Sophomore Chad Dale and senior Paul Gumber are reserve forwards.

"(Hayes) is a good shooter, is very quick and does a lot of things with the ball, so he can definitely help us up there," Smith said.

"Other teams lost a lot of ballplayers, too, so maybe this year we can get through with a younger team. But we have enough seniors to supply leadership for us."

The Chiefs begin the season Saturday, Aug. 29, in the annual Plymouth Invitational to be played at Griffin Park since the high school field won't be ready in time.

Two freshmen in particular, forward John Pugno and wing Shaun Walker, have impressed Mavin the most.

"Both of these players will be excellent and I believe both will have the ability to play collegiate soccer when they are done here," Mavin said. "Pugno is only 5-foot-5 and 95 pounds but is powerful."

Freshmen Jamie Wilson, Jamie Neil and sophomore Todd Burrell give the Eagles depth at the half-back positions.

Senior fullback Matt Sherwood returns to the team after taking two years off and concentrating on basketball. Senior Ryan Gaines returns from a year layoff due to a knee injury.

Freshman David Drake has transferred to PCA and, although he hasn't practiced yet, Mavin has heard only good things about him.

Mavin is concerned about the Eagles' opening game of the season Saturday, Aug. 29, at Southfield Christian.

PCA sisters hone hoop skills at home

STAFF WRITER

If the Plymouth Christian girls basketball team meets coach Dennis Horton's expectations this season, he might thank himself for being a careful house shopper six years ago.

"We were looking for a new house, and one of the criteria was that there was a basketball basket in the driveway, or the driveway was flat and had room for a hoop," Horton said.

Horton found a house with a hoop, and his daughters, Lyndsey and Lauren, have used it to improve their moves and skills.

"Our neighbors will tell you we're out practicing every day," Horton said. "I told our team's players and parents that I would help them put up a basket at their house, and some of them have taken me up on it."

Horton will rely on his daughters and four returning players to improve on last year's 14-7 mark.

But the Eagles will have to improve in a new conference. PCA will compete in the new Michigan Independent Athletic Conference, and Horton knows the competition will be stiffer.

"We have always had good, respectable records," Horton said. "But our competition hasn't been that great in the past. We have been trying to improve it the past couple of seasons, and that is the reason we will be playing in several tournaments this season."

"We're a small Class D school in a conference with large Class D schools, but I think we will surprise some people. Oakland Christian will be the class of our league like usual, and Birmingham Roper will also be good. I see us challenging for the next spot."

The biggest problem facing PCA is lack of height. The Eagles will try to counter that with a strong running and pressing style of game.

"We're a young and short team," Horton said. "Any team with height will give us problems. We will press a lot and we will run a lot. We will push the ball up court and hope to score a lot of points early in the game. Then we can settle into our offense."

The loss of center Jennifer Moore to graduation is PCA's biggest hurdle to overcome. Moore, the runner-up in the league's most valuable player voting, averaged 14 points and 14 rebounds per game last season.

Also lost to graduation was forward Jill Butler (10 points), forward Christin Thomason (nine points and nine rebounds) and point guard Robin Schram (six assists).

Lauren Horton, a 5-foot-9 sophomore who was PCA's junior varsity MVP, has the weighty task of replacing Moore at her old position.

"Jennifer will be old to replace, but we're letting Lauren take her uniform number (four) and I believe that by the time Lauren is done here she will be better than Jennifer," Horton said.

"Lauren is a good athlete and holds four track records here. She also was the national figure skating champion when she was 7 years old. She was a little behind in basketball when she reached high school, but she has always achieved well."

Lyndsey Horton is PCA's three-point specialist. The lone senior on this year's team averaged six points per game last season.

"I'm looking for her to provide leadership," Horton said.

Another returning player who will make an impact is point guard Kar- in Reed. Reed, who was voted a second team all-conference performer last season, will be remembered for her debut on the varsity last year as a freshman.

"She came into the league with a bang," Horton recalled. "In her first game up from the junior varsity, she played in the famous three-two game against Roper. Because of players fouling out, Roper only had three players left and we had two. Karin was one of them."

"It was a dogfight and the game wound up going into overtime before we lost by one point. She really matured after that game."

Starting at forwards will be juniors Kristina Tilly (seven points) and Nancy Kobernik.

"Nancy is 5-6 and lightening quick on her feet," Horton said. "She runs the floor well and can handle the ball, which puts a lot of pressure on the defense."

Sophomore forward Amy Jefferies will see a lot of time as the sixth player, as will freshman guard Lisa Erickson.

"I knew of Lisa as an eighth grader, but she has made a lot of strides since then," Horton said. "I'd say she has gone from the 11th player on the team to the seventh."

Rounding out the Eagle roster is sophomore guard Tonya Windle, sophomore forward Tina Williams and junior forwards Heidi Davis and Melissa Yoder.

"Our strength is our intelligence," Horton said. "I have taught them a lot of offensive sets and defensive plays, and they have picked up on them quick. Now we just have to see the execution. I'd say we are three to four weeks ahead of my schedule and we are almost ready to begin the season."

The younger players' ability to learn the plays is attributable to Horton's assistant and junior varsity coach Tom Guilfoyle.

"They are ready to coach for me after they are coached by him," Horton said.

The Eagles open their season next Thursday when they host Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes — the same team that knocked PCA out of the district playoffs last season.

It will be PCA's last season in its current fieldhouse. The Eagles will open next season in a new gym, scheduled to be completed by the end of the upcoming school year.

Grand Masters part of tennis tourney

STAFF WRITER

Roy Emerson can't remember the last time he was in Detroit.

It had to have been sometime during the '60s or early '70s, Emerson figures, when he was playing against soon-to-be legends like Rod Laver, John Newcombe and Stan Smith.

"All I know it was quite a while ago," said Emerson earlier this week via phone from his home in Newport Beach, Ca.

Well, Emerson's Detroit-area tennis fans will be able to catch another glimpse of him and his peers from yesteryear in a unique tournament slated for the Bloomfield Open Hunt Club.

The 1992 Ford Top Gun Grand Master's Tennis Classic will be held Aug. 28-30 on the BOH's spanking new Dantos Stadium clay courts. The round-robin tournament features eight masters players paired in a double format.

"There will be a lot of tennis people can relate to," said Emerson. "We may have lost a step or two, but everyone still has a good idea on how to stroke the ball. The people who come really will be able to relate to our type of tennis."

Despite having been out of competitive tennis for a number of years now, the 54-year-old Emerson retains a fairly busy schedule.

During the winter months he is director of tennis at a Florida resort on Williams Island. He also is involved with numerous corporate outings and runs a tennis camp in Switzerland.

In between, Emerson finds time to play a few senior tournaments here and there.

"It's nice to get together with the boys, plus it's a little incentive to stay in shape," he said.

Emerson, originally from Queensland in Australia, was a member of that country's Davis Cup squad from 1959-67. He won 36 of his 40 Davis Cup matches as he helped lead the Aussies to eight titles during his nine years on the team.

Emerson won a singles and doubles championship in every major international competition, including a personal high of six Australian singles titles. He won two singles titles at each of the three other majors — Wimbledon, the U.S. Open and French Open.

His last major singles title came in 1967 when he won in Australia and France. Emerson's last major doubles championship was 1971 at Wimbledon.

If he had to compare his style of play to any contemporary pro player, it would be Sweden's Stefan Edberg.

"Edberg serves and volleys a lot like me," said Emerson, a 6-foot, 185-pound righthander. "I always enjoyed being at the net than being at the base-line."

Other players slated to participate include 'Rocket' Laver, Bob Lutz, Owen Davidson, Marty Riessen, Ross Case, Sherwood Stewart and Alex Metreveli. The pairings will be made a couple days in advance of the tourney. Each team is scheduled to play four matches.

The previous Top Gun tournaments hosted by the BOH included local and regional professionals playing on hard surfaces.

However, because of the new stadium clay courts and the opportunity to attract some of the game's top masters players, BOH officials elected to institute a Grand Masters tourney this year.

Marty Heath of the International Management Group that is overseeing the tourney said the Grand Masters tournament is just one of several around the country this year. She added Detroit is a natural site for this kind of tournament.

"Detroit doesn't have a regular tour stop and this is a tennis starved area," said Heath. "This is a good area for this. It's upscale with a large base of tennis fans."

"This is a targeted audience for people who are familiar with Laver, Emerson and those types," she said.

A pro-am is scheduled for Aug. 27-29. A pro-am participant can buy an opportunity to meet and play with the legends for $1,200.

Ex-WBHS star tries to get Tartars turned around

BY C.J. RIBAK
STAFF WRITER

The problem with Wayne State University football is the same, year after year: The Tartars can see the corner, around which is nestled a winning season, but they can never quite reach it — let alone turn it.

Since 1984, WSU has labored to do just that. That was the last time the Tartars posted a winning record, going 6-5 overall and 4-2 in the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference. They haven't been winners since, either overall or in conference play.

Now they have a new coach — Brian VanGorder, a West Bloomfield HS graduate who played under Dominic Livedoti (now coaching at Olivet College). VanGorder served as defensive coordinator at Grand Valley State last year; to help turn the WSU program around, he brought with him three defensive coaches from Grand Valley.

The belief is the attitude has changed, that the Tartars can make that corner and get around it to become a perennial contender in the Midwest Intercollegiate Football Conference.

But can they? Do they have the personnel to do it?

Case for the defense

Eleven (of 12) defensive and five of 14 offensive starters return from last season's 4-6 team. That's a start.

Eric Ruth, for one, believes it might be more than that.

The Livonia Stevenson graduate was honorable mention all-MIFC as a freshman defensive tackle, but last year he was plagued by injuries. He broke a thumb in pre-season drills, returned for the second game of the season, played five games and then broke his other thumb on a similar play. The second injury sidelined him for the season.

He's back now, bigger, stronger and as good as ever. And Ruth believes this won't be a rebuilding season for the Tartars. His expectations are much higher.

"I think we're going to be a big surprise," predicted Ruth. "I think we'll have the defense for us to have a winning season."

Could be. If Ruth can stay healthy, he could be a dominant force in the middle for WSU. He had 50 tackles, 11 for loss, as a freshman and 38 in his five games last season.

Bigger and stronger

During that time, Ruth played at less than 230 pounds — hardly a suitable size for a defensive tackle. This year, it'll be different. Ruth enters the season at 6-foot-2, 255.

"It was a disappointing season (in '91)," Ruth said. "But I've had a lot of time to work out and it's helped."

"I really think this is the year for me. I've gained 30 pounds, and I'm so much stronger than I've ever been. And I'm actually quicker now than I was at 225. Looking at me, people asked how I could play that position at 225 and make 10 tackles a game."

The defensive line appears to be one of the strongest areas for WSU. Darrin King (6-2, 270) and Joe Golaszewski (6-1, 245, from Rochester) also return.

"We probably have one of the best defensive lines in the league," said Ruth — comparable to the line he played on as a junior at Stevenson. His teammates then were Mike Nettie, now an all-Mid-American Conference tackle at Central Michigan, and Alan Pitts, a team captain at Saginaw Valley State.

Is there depth enough?

A strong group of linebackers, led by Tom Beer, backs the WSU line, and the secondary, featuring Ebbie Herbert, a 6-foot, 188-pound Redford Bishop Borgessa graduate who moves from strong to free safety, is experienced. Herbert led WSU in tackles last season, recording 111 in 10 games, including five for loss.

The defense will be the key to a winning season for WSU. "I think so," said VanGorder. "Our intentions are to have a strong defense."

Of which Ruth would be a major contributor. "Our main concern right now is keeping him healthy," said VanGorder. "He's a heckuva football player."

Ruth is optimistic. "I honestly think our defense will be rated in the (NCAA II rankings)," he said. "It's going to be different — very exciting. We have a new coach, and it's like a new team. This is a big step for Wayne State, and it's going to be positive."

Ruth is sold on the defensive coaches imported from Grand Valley: Tony Elliott, Mike Flannery and John Jancek. Combined with the number of returning players, he believes all the pieces are in place.

The question is, can those pieces be kept in one piece? WSU's defense was among the MIFC's best units last season until Ruth, and then several others, were injured. The Tartars finished eighth in the conference in defense and were next-to-last in points allowed.

"I think we lack depth, and that's a concern," said VanGorder. "But all Division II teams struggle with depth. One thing you learn in coaching is, you control the things you can control and go on from there."

If the Tartars can start well and stay healthy, they could turn that corner to a winning season. But in a conference that's tough top to bottom (six teams received first-place votes in the pre-season poll), it won't be easy.

Jolly jousting at Renaissance Festival

If the performers have their way, festival goers will have a great time at the Michigan Renaissance Festival. For many, working at the festival is a labor of love.

By BILL COUTANT
STAFF WRITER

For entertainers, as well as patrons, a day at the Michigan Renaissance Festival can be a journey into the fantasy of living in a magical time and place far removed from the everyday.

And although many of those musicians, "street people" and actors make their living as year-round professional entertainers, even they can get caught up in the festival spirit.

"The whole grounds, a huge area, is our stage," said Jim Perkins of Farmington Hills.

Perkins, a.k.a. Seamus the Rover, can usually be found playing his guitar and singing Irish folk songs, traditional ballads or join-along drinking songs at Watney's Pub, the festival's recreation of the real thing back in England.

Between sets, Perkins, in full costume, will often stroll the grounds and strike up a tune just to please passers-by, not like most gigs.

"They (festival goers) are going to be accosted by somebody," he said.

Since most festival goers expect to be chided by maids or "wenches," ogres, witches and magicians, even professional performers are challenged.

"I prefer improv," said Michaela "Misha" Dionne, who will play Luna the Gypsy Enchantress this year. "You can use your imagination. You're not bound by a script."

Dionne, a professional actress and singer, has played other parts during her 10-year stint with the festival. She keeps busy with the Michigan Opera Theatre, children's theater and other area productions.

Gary Burton of Garden City did not have a theater background when he first visited the festival, he just came to have a good time. He still does, but now he's on the performing end.

"I fell in love with the place," he said. "So I asked them how I could take part and they told me I'd have to audition."

As they say, the rest is history.

Festival minstrel: Jim Perkins, left, entertains festival goers at Watney's Pub with music and songs as Seamus the Rover.

"The first year, I came up with the idea of being an ogre. I'd come up to a group of people and put my face right behind someone who was talking and the others would crack up."

Gary Burton

Burton is one of the most crowd-pleasing acts at festival. At 6 foot 1 inch and 280 pounds, he can't pose as the nimble court jester.

"The first year, I came up with the idea of being an ogre," he said. "I'd come up to a group of people and put my face right behind someone who was talking and the others would crack up."

Another of Burton's trademark characters is his old woman with a baby. The gimmick? The old woman figure is carrying a baby, and Burton's head pops through his costume complete with bonnet, as the head of the baby. He's not too concerned with artistic virtuosity as the infant comes mustachioed.

"I can't walk 10 feet without people wanting to take a picture," he said.

For many, working festival is strictly amateur, for the love of it. Susan Pipper and her dad Bill make a family camping trip out of their weekends near Holly.

"Kids are the most fun," said Susan, who will be a senior at Rochester High School this fall. "But the training they give you is incredible. And you develop close friendships. We're like family."

Susan, like her father, is one of the many street entertainers at the festival. They both have found the patrons willing to go along with their gags.

"We're rude," said Bill, who is a plumber in his "day job." "We'll tell them, 'Get on your knees peasants,' and they'll usually laugh or giggle. You can tell if they're not going to want to be approached. But most people really go and expect to have a good time."

And if the entertainers have their way, festival goers will have a good time.

The Michigan Renaissance Festival in Holly began Aug. 15 and will run through Sept. 27 on Saturdays, Sundays and Labor Day from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. For more information, call (313)645-9640.

Oh baby! Gary Burton of Garden City usually draws a crowd when he walks the Renaissance Festival grounds as an old woman carrying a baby.

Chef Ernie cooks fine Italian food at Ernesto's

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

Under the watchful eye of Chef Ernesto DeMichele, affectionately called "Ernesto, the Maestro," Ernesto's in Plymouth is gaining a reputation for fine Italian food.

Ernesto's, formerly the Hillside Inn, is really three restaurants in one. The upstairs dining room is comfortable, yet formal and features classic Italian dishes.

Ernie's Trattoria downstairs is casual. You can go there in your jeans and feel comfortable. They serve nine different kinds of round, thin crust pizza and a square dish pizza with your choice of items, sandwiches, some pasta and Italian entrees. The crust and sauce is homemade. So are the sub rolls and hamburger buns.

My favorite pizza is Melanzana — grilled eggplant, loose sausage, onion, fresh chopped tomato and three cheese blend. I'll bet you never had a Petonchio — grilled scallops with sun-dried tomatoes, baked with fontina cheese and pesto sauce.

If the weather is nice, eat out on the deck. It seats 90 people and is accessible from Ernie's Trattoria.

Ernesto's also has banquet facilities for eight to 100 people.

Salvatore Antonino Messina, an investment relations director at Chrysler Corporation, bought the restaurant from the original owners, the Stremich family, and is slowly renovating it to resemble an Italian country inn.

But don't worry, the changes like new windows in one of the dining rooms, are for the better and enhance the homey, rustic atmosphere

Ernesto's
41661 Plymouth Road
Plymouth, (313) 453-2002
Hours: Lunch, Monday through Friday, 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.; Sunday, 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.; Dinner, Monday through Thursday, 5-10 p.m.; Friday-Saturday, 5-11 p.m.; Sunday, 3-8 p.m.
Menu: Classic Italian cuisine including gnocchi, lasagna, cannelloni, Fettuccini Alfredo, veal scaloppine, some seafood, steak, chicken, lamb chops. Casual dining with a menu that features pizza, sandwiches, burgers, pasta dishes, chicken and fish and chips offered downstairs in Ernie's Trattoria. Carryout menu available.

Highlights: Strolling musicians Tuesday through Saturday night.

Prices: Lunch entrees and sandwiches range from $3.50 to $9. Dinner entrees $9.95 to $17.95.

Credit cards: All major credit cards accepted of the inn. They're in the process of redoing the bar room.

DeMichele has worked at Ernesto's for three years. The restaurant was named Ernesto's to honor his talents.

"I love what I'm doing," said the former restaurant owner who has worked in the metropolitan area for nearly 50 years, and retired a couple of times.

DeMichele has a passion for Italian food. His office shelves are lined with cookbooks, and he is forever looking for new ideas.

Menu specialties include Pasta Rustica — quills of pasta, shrimp and scallops tossed with artichokes in a pesto sauce, and Vitello Saltimbocca — Scallopini sauteed and topped with prosciutto and cheese on a bed of spinach with sage and wine.

If beef is your bag, be adventurous, try Turnedo Forestiera — medallions of beef tenderloin presented with a sauce of mushrooms, mortadella, genoa salami and chianti wine or Tenero Siciliano — filet of tenderloin with seasoned Sicilian breadcrumbs and baked, served with amoggio sauce.

Seafood entrees include Fresh Norwegian salmon steamed with herbs served on a bed of greens and fresh pickerel baked in light Sicilian breading, served with lemon sauce.

After dinner, have a cup of espresso, cappuccino or Cappuccino Ernesto (frothed with egg nog, sweetened with Frangelica) and enjoy one of the fabulous desserts like hot apple cobbler, peanut butter pie, pineapple cheesecake, and, of course, cannoli.

Downstairs, the menu is more casual, but some items featured upstairs like Fettuccini Alfredo and Tortelloni Gamberetto — cheese filled pasta tossed with gulf shrimp, goat cheese, peas, sweet peppers in a cream sauce, are available too.

For heartier appetites there are pasta dishes including lasagna and Italian entrees like Pollo Parmigiano — breast of chicken baked with marinara sauce and three cheese blend, Vitello Parmigiano — breaded veal medallion baked with tomato basil sauce and mozzarella cheese.

Local actor one step closer to his dream

Boardwalk Productions presents "The Picture of Dorian Gray," 8 p.m. Aug. 21, 22, 28 and 29 at Oakland Community College, Orchard Ridge Campus in Farmington Hills. All tickets, $15. For information call 437-0447.

SALLY DUBATS

"If you really want something badly enough, if you work hard enough and it's in your soul, you just have to have patience. I mean it," said Fuad Kandah of Livonia who has been accepted to the American Musical & Dramatic Academy in New York City.

His acceptance was precipitated by a tense competition of auditions in New York with 1,200 other applicants from across the United States, of which only 85 were admitted to the program.

Kandah has worked throughout the metropolitan Detroit area in various community theaters, both behind the scenes and onstage. He is pursuing a professional career in film or theater.

The academy has been in existence for over 25 years and includes Richard Burton and Tyne Daly in its alumni repertoire.

Kandah said he believes the school will give him the tools necessary to seek professional status in performing arts.

"The academy concentrates less on the academic, and more on the practical side. You're constantly asked to perform. It's one of the reasons I chose the school," he said.

Kandah is currently working on Boardwalk Productions' musical version of "The Picture of Dorian Gray," written by Deanne Mayernik with music by John DeNicola. The show debuts at Oakland Community College's Orchard Ridge campus, 8 p.m. Friday, Aug. 21.

According to Kandah, Mayernik "is friends with Michael Crawford (originator of the title role of Broadway's 'Phantom of the Opera'). The videotape of this production is going to New York producers."

Kandah said he is excited about the show as it is an original work based on the book by Oscar Wilde, and it is the first effort for Boardwalk Productions.

"It's a very, very intense show. There are not many light moments at all, but it does delve into the psyche."

With a sound strategy for a career path including school and keeping busy with various productions, Fuad Kandah is optimistic about his future in the performing arts.

He said his goal is "to reach and affect people, and make them feel emotions that they didn't know were there."

Sally Dubats of Madison Heights is an actress, director and teacher, who teaches at community theaters in the metropolitan area. She is artistic director of West End Productions headquartered in Southfield.

Stargazing: Fuad Kandah of Livonia was accepted to the American Musical & Dramatic Academy in New York City. He is pursuing a professional career in film or theater.

Tour de Michigan winner will ride in new car

By MIKE ROSENBAUM
STAFF WRITER

Contestants in the sixth annual Blue Care Network Tour de Michigan bicycle race will come to Birmingham Sunday — but they'll be looking for Saturn.

Sunday's race is the seventh and final leg of the Tour. After the race, the Tour's Pro/Elite overall winner will be crowned, based on points won in the seven races. The overall winner will receive a 1992 Saturn automobile, courtesy of local Saturn dealers, co-sponsors of the Tour.

The Tour began in Muskegon on Aug. 14, then continued with races in Midland and Lansing. The fourth stage is today in Monroe, followed by races in Detroit on Friday and Flint Saturday.

The Tour races are criterium events, held on short, closed courses through city streets. There are four categories of riders, Beginners, Sport, Expert and Pro/Elite. The Beginners' races are eight miles long, while the Pro/Elite events are between 30 and 40 miles long.

The Pro/Elite winner of each race receives $3,000, plus 20 points toward the overall championship. For the Birmingham event only, the race winner will receive seven bonus points, making it more likely that the overall title will be decided in Birmingham.

Local bicycle racing fans will also see racers battling on the Tour's toughest course.

"It's the most challenging course because it's got six turns in it," explained Rochester's Dale Hughes, the race director. "The riders like the Birmingham course because it's a fast course. It's got a lot of turns so it's also a demanding course."

Hughes added that the Birmingham race has a "European" flavor, with stores close to the street and fans able to watch from sidewalks that are practically on top of the course.

Assistant race director Chris Hughes said that the racers like having the fans so close. "When there are spectators cheering and yelling it pumps up the racers," she said.

The course begins on Maple

Road and winds around the Shain Park area. The racers will travel west to Bates, for the first of the six left turns. The racers then pedal through Merrill, Martin and Pierce, then head back up Maple.

For those who are new to bicycle racing, Chris Hughes recommended Shain Park as a good viewpoint. From there, fans can see as much as three-quarters of the course.

She also suggests that bicycle racing neophytes shouldn't be shy about speaking with more experienced fans.

"There will be lots of people around who are familiar with cycling," Hughes said. "People that are into cycling love to talk about it." Birmingham fans will also have some local competitors to cheer for.

According to Chris Hughes, there are many local racers in the Beginners, Sport and Expert categories. The Pro/Elite division draws some of the world's top cyclists, but also includes some local competitors.

Jim Huff, of Bloomfield Hills, was 31st in the overall standings after the first two races. He rides with the local Wolverine Sports Club. At 45, Huff is one of the older riders in the Pro/Elite category. "He's competing against 22-year-old studs," said Dale Hughes. One of those younger riders is Robert Huff, Jim's son.

Other local racers in the Pro/Elite category include Chad Campbell of Rochester Hills, Rob Dakiewicz of Canton, Redford's Tim Swift and Livonia's Jeff Pierce and Chris Johnson.

Internationally-known competitors include 1992 U.S. Olympian Bob Mionske, 1984 Olympic Gold Medalist Steve Hegg, national Criterium champion Dave McCook and 1990-91 Tour de Michigan champion Roberto Gaggioli of Italy. Riders from 22 states and at least four other countries are competing.

"There's not a better field race in the U.S.," said Dale Hughes.

The field also includes four top national teams, sponsored by Saturn, Chevrolet, Coors Light and Spago's restaurant.

forward averaging; 3) five-year special averaging; and 4) allow the money to remain in the GM plan until a later date. The five- and 10-year averaging methods of taxing retirement distributions generally provide that such distributions are taxed at lower rates.

But for George, even the 10-year averaging calculation results in a significant $42,000 immediate income tax bill. Because it doesn't appear that George and Helen will need to use a significant lump sum amount for his GM plan at retirement, we would suggest that either the IRA rollover option or leaving it in the GM plan (with the intention of rolling it over to an IRA later) are his best strategies.

It is possible that the tax rate George will use in playing future IRA withdrawals will be higher than the rate paid using 10-year averaging, but the interest earned on the $42,000 of deferred taxes still in his account more than offsets the additional tax liability. In fact, over his life expectancy, we project that he will be able to generate at least $30,000 of additional after-tax income using the IRA rollover.

Allocation questioned

We are somewhat concerned about the placement of assets in George's 401(k) plan if he expects to take a lump sum distribution/IRA rollover option. At the time of distribution, George may receive the shares of GM stock in his 401(k) account, and he can then roll the shares over to an IRA.

But the rest of the account will be paid to him in cash. GM is required to liquidate his stock fund account (currently $73,000) at whatever the account value is as of his retirement date. If the stock market moves sharply downward the month before he retires, he faces a lower payout.

As a result, we recommend that George begin a program of moving assets from the 401(k) plan's diversified fund into the guaranteed income fund. This locks in the profits that he made in the strong stock market of the past several years. The potential risks of a weak market two years from now are far greater than the potential incremental returns of staying in the stock market. If George wants to hedge his bets, he might want to transfer perhaps half of that account now and the remainder at a later date, rather than making the switch all at once.

The Szabos' other assets are very well placed. But they might consider shifting their cash reserves, currently in a taxable money market fund, into a tax-free money market fund. They might even want to consider a Michigan tax-free money market fund, which would be especially appropriate if they are subject to Michigan intangibles taxes.

Long-term care

While the Szabos, in general, have good health insurance, they have no long-term care insurance. They might want to consider buying coverage. Health care and nursing costs continue to soar and can drain a significant amount of assets that would otherwise have been satisfactory for retirement needs. If George and Helen are both healthy, they should consider buying long-term care insurance to protect their substantial nest egg from deterioration due to health costs. Carefully review policies to determine expenses covered by the policy, any exclusions and applicable waiting periods.

George and Helen, like many couples we see, are overwithholding on their income taxes. They received a refund of almost $1,500 on their federal return and an additional refund on their state return. They should adjust their withholding so they receive more money in their paychecks rather than giving the federal and state governments an interest-free loan.

The Szabos have a mortgage with a balance of $16,000 at an interest rate of 7 percent, which will be paid off in 1998. They ask us, "Should we pay off this mortgage before retirement or just continue to pay the regular payments through 1998?"

We don't consider this a major issue in their planning. If they would feel more comfortable with the mortgage paid off, we don't oppose adding to their piece of mind by being debt free. Otherwise, we suggest simply continuing to make the mortgage payments each month as long as they can manage this payment within their retirement cash flow budget. The tax-deductible interest at 7 percent is not a high price to pay for being able to keep an additional $16,000 invested.

George and Helen have positioned themselves well for retirement. By refining the good planning done in the past, they will have the resources to do many of the things they didn't have time to do while they were working.

Dan Boyce, a certified financial planner at the Center for Financial Planning in Southfield, has been recognized by Money magazine as one of the top financial planners in the nation. Alan Ferrara is a partner in the Farmington Hills law firm of Couzens, Lansky, Feak, Ellis, Roeder & Lazar. Both have served in leadership roles in financial planning professional organizations.

"Generally, they have lower overhead, better exposure, specialization," he said. "Usually, they're less expensive to construct and generally less expensive to run."

George Warren has operated a fashion jewelry store at the only kiosk location in West Bloomfield's Orchard Mall for six years. He sees a couple of big benefits from both a customer's and retailer's perspective.

"A person doesn't have to feel funny if they want to look. They don't feel as trapped as when they walk into a store. It's not as confronting," Warren said.

"For me, I don't feel like I'm stuck inside. As people go by, there's always something different happening. I love it," he said.

The kiosk format even gets an endorsement from an unlikely source — Bob Taffs, a sales representative for Classic Door & Lite. He has a desk, phone and several door models in a corridor at Livonia Mall.

"We get a lot of response," he said. "We used to be in a showroom on Rochester Road in Troy. We'd get a few walk-ins a day. In a mall, you get hundreds of walk-ins a day."

"Being in a showroom in Troy, by the time they (customers) see you, they'd drive past," Taffs said. "Here, they're in the mall already. They walk by and say, 'Can I take some brochures?' They say, 'We're thinking about doors.'"

"Three or four months down the road, they realize they need one and say, 'I know where they are.'"

Taffs said seven sales calls were set up through his kiosk in a three-day period.

Kiosk operators can pay more per square foot than in-line store operators, said Frederick Marx, a Farmington Hills marketing consultant. Rents for kiosks generally are based on square footage and percentage of sales.

"They have much more visibility.

■ 'For entrepreneurs, it involves minimal risk and minimal capital. Developers are finding that these carts are a great way to increase the merchandise mix for shoppers. . . .'

*Michelle Shafir
Robert B. Aikens & Associates specialty leasing coordinator*

They show from four sides. You literally pass through their store (walking by)," Marx said.

But not all landlords want them, especially in upscale malls.

"I think there are reasons for not allowing them," said Jeffrey Green, president of a retail consulting firm in Troy. "Number one, it clutters public areas and number two, some retailers don't like the idea of competition."

Kahn doesn't believe that kiosks are accepted by in-line store operators. "They generally don't like kiosks because they take the impulse dollar away."

Other analysts don't see much cause for rivalry.

"I don't think in-line stores have a problem in that they (kiosks) are creating a larger relationship focus," Green said. "People see it as a larger center."

"They're a good point of entry," Marx said.

Kiosks tend to be fairly profitable, most analysts and operators agree.

"They're certainly much more effective at holiday times when there are more shoppers," Green said. "They're very highly specialized with much more impulse buying than destination stores."

Malls offer another sales dimension

■ Kiosks and carts found in shopping centers have appeal to shoppers seeking specialty items and to entrepreneurs looking to test the retail waters or provide themselves an additional selling outlet.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Some retail outlets in malls and shopping centers today aren't traditional stores.

Kiosk counters and, more recently, carts have mushroomed in corridors and courtyards, giving landlords the opportunity to lease more space, consumers more options for impulse buying and merchants an alternative way of selling their wares.

Michelle Shafir, specialty leasing coordinator for Robert B. Aikens & Associates, introduced carts 18 months ago at MeadowBrook Village Mall in Rochester Hills.

"For entrepreneurs, it involves minimal risk and minimal capital," she said. "Developers are finding that these carts are a great way to increase the merchandise mix for shoppers . . . and offer an opportunity to incubate a new in-line (traditional) tenant."

The carts can be rented for a week, month or longer. Most go for 10 days.

Chris Gardner, franchise owner for Wild Birds Unlimited, a nature shop, took a cart at MeadowBrook Village for 10 days this spring and plans to do so again during the holidays. She keeps her regular shop open at the same time.

"It gives us visibility in another area of Rochester Hills. It was a good experience," she said. And profitable, too.

Michael Kahn, who operates Tee's Plus Lotto, a combination state lottery sales outlet and novelty shop, and Tee's Plus, a customized T-shirt outlet at Livonia Mall, has been involved with kiosk stores for more than a decade.

Retailing option: Merchants at some malls can lease a cart or kiosk instead of traditional store space. Pictured is a cart at MeadowBrook Village Mall, Rochester Hills.

Couple asks about best choice for payout of retirement funds

In past articles, we have discussed ways in which couples can prepare for a solid financial future. This month, we discuss the situation of a couple less than two years from retirement.

George and Helen Szabo live in Farmington Hills. George, 60, is an engineer at General Motors who earns $60,000. Helen, 57, is a physical therapist who earns $15,000 working at a local hospital. Their family includes three sons, the youngest of whom will be starting his senior year at Purdue University.

The Szabos want to take a thorough inventory of their financial situation and prepare for their retirement in two years.

They have done very well up to this point and have accumulated a comfortable nest egg and have a comprehensive estate plan in place. They have generous health insurances now and in retirement. In addition to excellent auto and homeowners coverages, they have a $5 million umbrella liability policy. They also have prepared a detailed asset inventory and budget for the next two years and their first year of retirement.

When they retire in 1994, George and Helen will be in good financial shape. George will have a generous pension of $3,100 per month when retiring from GM after 37 years. Helen has no pension, but their combined Social Security will add another $1,400 to their monthly income.

Their projected budget shows them needing $6,500 of pre-tax monthly income at retirement, meaning they need to generate another $2,000 in monthly income from investments.

Presuming reasonable returns on their current portfolio of investments, we project that they should have in excess of $550,000 of investment assets at retirement. This should easily generate the needed income and still allow for some growth to offset future inflationary pressures.

Taxes a major concern

George must make some decisions as to distribution options for retirement savings from GM. He asks, "What is the smartest way for me to take my GM stock savings accumulation when I retire? I expect its value will be approximately $240,000 at that time."

George has four basic options: 1) an IRA rollover on the taxable portion of the distribution; 2) 10-year

Learning enriches summer

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Sally DeRoo and Marjane Baker are living proof that teachers don't while away their summer days eating bonbons.

They're among those who attended a recent workshop at Brock University in St. Catharines, Ontario, Canada. The 60-hour workshop, "A Journey for Tomorrow's Educators," was sponsored by The Great Lakes Environmental Education Institute of the International Joint Commission.

About 35 American and Canadian educators spent several days studying Great Lakes issues. DeRoo, a life science/environment teacher at Plymouth Canton High School, found the July 19-24 workshop rewarding, as did Baker, a fifth grade teacher at Allen Elementary School in Plymouth.

"Our Great Lakes are such a valuable resource," Baker said.

Baker, who's been with the Plymouth-Canton district for some 18 years, also participated in a July workshop on water conservation, held in California. That was sponsored by the National Geographic Society, which paid her way, and included two teachers from each state. She found it interesting to learn about water shortage problems in California.

On the lake

While in Ontario, DeRoo and Baker spent some time out on Lake Erie, examining both pristine and polluted portions. "We really looked over the area," said DeRoo, who's been with the Plymouth-Canton district for 28 years and serves on the advisory board for the International Joint Commission.

The commission works to educate the public, both American and Canadian, on the importance of protecting the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence ecosystem.

Young scientists discover fun

■ Learning about science can make for a fun-filled summer vacation. Students participating in a science camp last week at New Morning School discovered that's true. About 35 youngsters spent their mornings at the school, learning about "The Way We Work."

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Dissecting a pig heart may not be much of an appetite-booster, but it's a great learning opportunity.

That was just one of many activities during a science camp held Monday through Friday last week at New Morning School in Plymouth Township. About 35 campers ages 6-12 participated.

"These children really are turned on to science," said teacher Paul Baerwalde of Livonia, who coordinated lessons for "The Way We Work" science camp. During the first day, students learned about animals by playing a variety of games.

A "Who done it?" day followed, with young campers taking a list of suspects and trying to determine who committed an imaginary crime. On Wednesday, campers visited the nature center at the University of Michigan-Dearborn, studying pond life.

Thursday and Friday were devoted to study of the human body, including its systems — circulatory, respiratory, nervous, digestive, skeletal and muscular.

"Kids are actively involved in making things," said Baerwalde, who teaches third grade at Woodworth Elementary School in Dearborn. The goal of the camp was to present science in a fun, non-threatening way, heightening students' curiosity.

Students made models of the human heart, and also created stethoscopes. John Rauch, a fourth-grader at Hatherly Elementary School in Sterling Heights, gave the camp high marks.

"I like it," said John, 9, who's considering a career in science. "We do a lot of fun things." He liked doing experiments, and trying to discover things.

Camper Dan Payne, 11, was equally enthused. He's considering a career with the FBI, and enjoyed hearing an agency representative talk about criminal investigations one day.

"It's my second year here," said Dan, a fifth grader at Winchester Elementary School in Northville. "I like it. You learn a lot of things from it."

Baerwalde, fellow teacher Suzanne Rauch and parent aides kept things moving right along at camp each morning. Another science camp was offered earlier in August at New Morning, a parent cooperative school, and a math camp is being offered this week.

The camp's different from school-year science classes, in that it included more hands-on activities, he said. Sometimes in school, teachers don't have time to prepare materials for such activities. Some may lack a background

Sound of music: The Encore! vocal ensemble performs for an appreciative audience in Plymouth's Kellogg Park.

Downtown Plymouth's been alive with the sound of music

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Taking to the stage took on a new meaning recently for members of Encore!, a vocal ensemble.

Many of the musicians have performed with the chorus of the Michigan Opera Theatre, and some with the Ann Arbor Civic Theatre. Last week, their "stage" was Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth, in a Music in the Park concert sponsored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

sored by the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

"First time in Plymouth. Hopefully not our last time," said Paul Silver of Troy, ensemble coordinator.

The eight-member vocal ensemble will celebrate its first anniversary in September. In addition to performances such as the Wednesday, Aug. 12, concert in Plymouth, members perform at corporate functions, holiday parties and other events. Their specialty is four-part harmony selections, and they do some quartet performances.

The musicians come from throughout the Detroit-Ann Arbor area. Several are teachers, one a sales representative and one a homemaker. Silver, a baritone, is marketing director for RMS Inc. in Warren, which specializes in auto design and drafting.

The group's music director, Diane Calhoun of Plymouth Township, teaches music in the Farmington Public Schools. She also sings with the MOT's chorus, and enjoyed her recent hometown performance in Plymouth.

"I loved it. I just thought it was a perfect day," said Calhoun, a soprano. "The audience was nice and responsive."

The ensemble's performance included a number of Disney tunes, selections from "Phantom of the Opera" and other Broadway hits. Some audience members joined in on the singing.

"That's what we like to see, people singing along," Calhoun said.

The concert series, which ended this week, has been offered on summertime Wednesdays for many years by the Plymouth Community Arts Council. Weekly concerts feature a variety of vocal and instrumental music.

Encore! members tried to put together a performance to appeal to those of all ages. Other members of the group are: Louise Fisher, Roslyn Guastella, Judith Szefti, Charles Sutherland, Jay Smith and John Hopkins.

"We were first exposed to theater by community events like this," Silver said. Particularly during the recession, many people are hard-pressed to pay for expensive concert tickets, so such community events are much-appreciated.

"Detroit is exploding with theater growth," he said. Silver hopes those who attend such free events will consider attending other performances, "and hopefully go to the Michigan Opera Theatre or even the Marquis Theatre in Northville."

Sign of summer: The concert series has been offered for many years by the Plymouth Community Arts Council, and draws a number of music-lovers to Kellogg Park each Wednesday.

"The best way to do that is through our students," said DeRoo, who's also an instructor in science methods and curriculum at Eastern Michigan University. "The majority of people who live in Michigan, I think, take them for granted. I don't think people are really aware of the treasure they have here."

She also participated in a more recent workshop in Michigan's Thunder Bay/Alpena area, along the shore of Lake Huron. That workshop was sponsored by the Michigan Science Teachers Association, the Kellogg Foundation and Earthwatch Foundation.

Workshop participants spent time on research vessels, doing fish counts, water sampling and other aquatic research. Two days of research were provided on the University of Michigan's Laurentian, along with one day done on board the Grayling, a U.S. Interior Department vessel.

"We used sonar to map the bottom. We did all kinds of things," DeRoo said.

One day, she walked along the Lake Huron shoreline for 10 miles and saw only two sunbathers. Standing on a beach or bluff and finding that kind of peace and solitude is a wonderful experience, she said.

"It's next to heaven. That's the kind of thing that to me is a vacation," DeRoo said. "The Great Lakes are absolutely beautiful. These are the kinds of things we need to treasure."

Students enthused

Both educators have found students are interested in learning about the five Great Lakes — Huron, Superior, Michigan, Erie and Ontario. Even grade school students show an impressive understanding of the need to preserve water quality in the lakes, said Baker, a member of the Michigan Geographic Alliance.

Both plan to incorporate what they've learned this summer into their instruction this fall. The Plymouth-Canton district will have a Geography Awareness Week for students at all levels, and water conservation will be the theme, Baker said.

DeRoo, who is "very, very interested in water quality," finds her teenage students also enjoy learning about the Great Lakes.

"I like to overwhelm my kids every day." She finds that if students are kept on the edges of their seats in class, they're eager to learn and don't create discipline problems.

Baker and DeRoo also plan to share what they've learned this summer with other educators, in the Plymouth-Canton district and beyond. Both have a wealth of material on the Great Lakes, and are eager to share it.

"I think every teacher needs to refurbish their information," DeRoo said. "Teachers who care are very busy in the summer. Most if not all teachers are really concerned. They want to do a good job."

"I think teachers take advantage of this time to learn more," Baker said. "I know that's an important part of my summer."

in science, said Baerwalde, who earned a master's degree in science education from Wayne State University.

Once teachers have some in-service training with hands-on science methodology, however, he's found they do just fine.

"Their inhibitions are lessened to teaching that kind of science. They actually find it fun and non-threatening themselves. Your willingness to learn more about the subject grows as well."

Baerwalde has found in some cases grade school-age boys are more interested in science than girls are, "which is unfortunate." The New Morning science camp included a number of girls who were eager to learn.

He knows scientists don't have to be genius-level Albert Einsteins or Marie Curies. "I myself am not that." Curiosity about the world and its inhabitants is what's needed, along with a desire "to really understand fully what that topic is about."

Barreto-Panos

Nestor and Helen Barreto of Dearborn announce the engagement of their daughter, Debbie Sue, to James Panos Jr., son of James and Sandra Panos of Canton.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Edsel Ford High School. She is employed at a local hospital as a registered nurse and is also continuing her education.

Her fiance, a graduate of Livonia Franklin High School, is employed by the city of Plymouth. He will receive an electrical technician's degree and pursue a career in communications.

A November wedding is planned.

Walck-Horvath

Lois Burkhardt and Arnold Walck of Lockport, N.Y., announce the engagement of their daughter, Marlene Rose Walck of Dallas, Texas, to Scott Anthony Horvath of Dallas, son of Barbara and Philip Horvath of Plymouth.

The bride-elect is a graduate of East Texas State University. She is employed by Tracy-Locke Advertising in Dallas.

Her fiance is a graduate of Central Michigan University. He is employed by Young & Rubicam Advertising in Dallas.

planned at St. Peter's Lutheran Church in Sanborn, N.Y.

Young readers honored

Reading good books isn't something Canton students do only in the classroom. Even when they're busy with studies, many find time to do some reading outside of school.

Kids Club members at the Canton Public Library read a total of 103,079 pages between last Sept. 1 and June 5 of this year. That works out to about 60 books each for the 11 participants, "which is a lot considering this is an extracurricular activity," said Patrick Persons, youth services librarian and coordinator of the club. "For them, it was a huge accomplishment and they were very proud of it."

"They're a real motivated group. They come in and they've read tons and tons of books."

Kids Club readers who participated are: Rakhi Batra; Lisa Hanson; Amy Jain; Lori Krussel; Sean Lamborne; Kathy Mokienko; Joe Mueller; Stephanie Pruitt; Scott Richardson; Agam Shah; and Emily Zahm.

Persons had read about a school in Connecticut at which students had read 1,000,000 pages during the school year. He decided to set such a challenge for club members, choosing a goal of 100,000 pages.

The Kids Club includes about 20 students in fourth through sixth grades. They meet regularly at the library during the school year to discuss books and enjoy reading-related activities.

Those who participated in the 100,000 Hurdle read a variety of books, including some classics, lighter paperback fiction "and everything in between."

Ratcliffe-Ledford

Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Ratcliffe of Canton announce the engagement of their daughter, Jennifer Anne, to Daniel Thomas Ledford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ledford of Waterford.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Plymouth Salem High School. She is a senior at Grand Valley State University in Allendale, Mich.

Her fiance is a graduate of Ferndale High School and of Grand Valley State University, where he earned his undergraduate degree in sociology. In the fall, he will enter Western Theological Seminary in Holland, Mich.

A late July 1993 wedding is planned at the First United Methodist Church in Ferndale.

ANNIVERSARIES

LORENE GREEN

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES
Hi, Lorene Green. I am 18 years old and right handed. I always wanted to learn what my handwriting says about me so I will know what job interviewers will see. I wish my handwriting looked more sophisticated but I guess it cannot look sophisticated unless I am sophisticated! I am looking forward to your observation.

This is a rather typical teenage girl's handwriting. Through the nuances of departure from copybook training, however, we are able to see signs of rebellion against her early home life.

A vertical slant on most of her letters, the combination of lead-in strokes and omitted lead-ins at the beginning of words, and the shape of her personal pronoun I suggest a need to be independent of parental restraints but still needing family and friends.

While this probably started early in life she continues to vacillate between wanting her independence and needing the security that comes from family and friends. These ambivalent feelings tend to make her indecisive at times.

She appears to have difficulty releasing past disappointments and failures. The teen years can be extremely difficult for one pulled in two diametrically opposing directions.

Although sensitive, our young writer presents an aura of poise and control to protect herself. Behind the facade is a strong desire for status and acceptance, especially from her peer group. This in itself may not be too unusual. We all crave respect and affection to some degree and feel better when we receive it.

The roundness of her handwriting reflects a naive quality in her personality. She is susceptible to influence from those around her.

I am eighteen years old and right handed. I always wanted to learn what my handwriting says about me so I will know what job interviewers will see. I wish my handwriting looked more sophisticated but I guess

This is further enhanced by her strong desire to get along smoothly with them. She is not inclined to make waves nor to rock the proverbial boat.

Our writer wants to please others and enjoy friendly relationships. Still she is capable of dissent and protest at times. Needing to be part of the group can make her easy prey for some people, so it is important for her to use discretion in selecting friends.

Feelings of empathy are often experienced. Since she is not a very spontaneous person, she may not act on them quickly. She tends to resist emotionalism and is inclined to consider how her actions will affect her personally.

Most of her interests are focused in the here and now. What is happening each day — clothes, friends, appearance, sociability, etc. — are all important. She is neither a long range planner nor a strong goal setter. Some lack of inner esteem has her playing it safe. She may want to consider aiming higher as the potential is here. Pervasive in this handwriting, is a strong element of secrecy. Protection of her own interests is a priority item. She tends to calculate her responses so as to avoid situations which might threaten her personal privacy. This "on guard" behavior can be stressful, however.

Although graphology has found a viable place in personnel work, I doubt that this handwriting will be referred to a graphologist by a potential employer. This is primarily done when higher salaried positions or specialized ones are being considered. However, since she is curious I will mention some of the things an employer might find.

One of the first things is the organizational ability here. Tasks would be performed carefully and methodically. In a position where thoroughness was more important than speed she would be most valuable. A need for approval from both superiors as well as co-workers is important to her. She has a facility for details. She is sensitive, but probably would not show it outwardly.

I wonder if she is aware of her imagination, love of form and possible aptitude for art or design. She also appears to have a feeling for language and sound. I wonder if she has ever studied a foreign language. Our country has a great need of people who are trained in foreign languages to enable us to compete in the world market.

Note to K.C.: The letter you inquired about is usually written by one who is avoiding responsibility. It is, however, important to see all of the handwriting to be accurate. No trait stands alone. Each one must be considered with the total picture of handwriting.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, please write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. If you have two different styles please include samples of both. Age, handedness and signature are also important. And objective feedback is also welcome.

This bridge player deserves plenty of accolades

By Woody Boyd

Jim Perna of Highland is one of Western Oakland County's most active real estate developers. Yet he still has found time in the last 10 years to become a very fine bridge player too.

Many in our midst believe that if we were to pick a "Mr. Bridge" of Oakland County, Jim would be head and shoulders over anyone as the leading candidate. Note with veneration his administrative input since 1982, when he and his lovely wife Cheryl joined our Southeastern Michigan Unit 205, which is the largest in our Michigan, Northern Ohio District.

Since 1986, he has been a board member and in 1989, by popular demand, was elevated to the presidency, perhaps the most rewardless and toiling experience he has ever stepped into. Jim is certainly to be applauded for this three-year effort, for the popularity and character of our game in this community has increased considerably. James Russell Lowell once wrote, "There are two kinds of weakness, that which breaks and that which bends." Jim has done a lot of bending during his tenure, insisting on entertaining everyone among GOMBA's extensive membership, and that has surely added to our unit's success. Last fall we named him board chairman, a much-deserved recognition for his years of considerable and patient input. How good is he or senior? Those who know will tell you he is yet a shade below the expert at play, but such mettle is certainly commendable. He gives his favorite partner, Cheryl, much of the glory for this, as they became life masters at almost the same moment some seven or eight years ago.

Seldom are they not seen together at play, for they just plain enjoy each other's style and technique at the table. I have dued with these two over the 52 dealt on many occasions, and it is a challenge and delight to do so. One such venture comes to mind that I will tell you about today, but I am hesitant because with half the deck in high cards I was unable to defeat their procedure.

One no trump is a seven trick contract that often seems simple, but in reality it is usually the most difficult demon in bridge to conquer. The 40 high card points are most often divided evenly between adversaries, and that means technique and experience have a heavy hand in the outcome. On today's hand, I had all of our side's high cards, and the chairman let me live to regret that holding.

My partner's hand was a graveyard of small cards, and it was instantly apparent that mine was a solo flight to defend successfully. Of course, this is a classic example why one should never make an informative double with 20 HCP when both opponents are bidding. James took fair advantage

Jim 1♣ 1♥ 1NT	West — — Passed Out	Cheryl 1♠ 1♠	East DBL —
Both Vulnerable		♠ A 10 9 4 ♥ 10 5 ♦ K J 10 3 ♣ 10 9 4
♠ 7 2 ♥ 6 4 3 2 ♦ 6 5 4 ♣ 6 5 3 2		Cheryl W E Jim	♠ Q 8 6 5 2 ♥ A K Q ♦ Q 9 7 ♣ A K
		♠ K J ♥ J 9 8 7 ♦ A 8 2 ♣ Q J 8 7	W. led ♠ 7

of my plight. It was unfortunate that West got off to a spade lead, but my partner was most sincere in his desire and not to be faulted. Declarer won the spade jack and then the spade king. At trick three, he played the diamond ace and I could see what was coming, but there was little I could do. At trick four, Jim threw me in with a heart and I could win two more and my ace, king of clubs, but then I was end played. At trick nine, I had the unattractive choice of playing either spades or diamonds to the dummy, and my distinguished opponent wrapped up a tie for top winning eight tricks. Most of the field was winning only seven which candidly displays how crucial the lead and technique are in such a contest.

Performance offers thrill of a lifetime

BY JULIE BROWN
STAFF WRITER

As a clinical psychologist, Dr. Thomas Clark knows how important it is to reduce stress.

"Music is particularly good therapy for me," said Clark, executive director of Alpha Psychological Services in Livonia. He knows that taking good care of himself helps his patients as well.

"Music and running are the ways I do that."

Clark has a Steinway concert grand piano at home, and plays a variety of music, from classical to rock. He plays any kind of keyboards, including the piano and organ. Now in his mid-40s, he's been playing for nearly 30 years and doesn't regret having made time for practicing in his younger days.

"It was certainly worth the time."

He's had a great deal of experience playing for audiences, but Sunday, Aug. 16, was a bit different. Clark presented a concert on the Great Organ of the Washington National Cathedral in the nation's capital.

"It's pretty exciting," he said. The concert was presented in conjunction with the American Psychological Association's centennial national convention.

Clark, a Plymouth Township resident, spoke at the national convention, as did his wife, Dr. Mary Franzen Clark. His late afternoon performance at the cathedral followed.

"I've dedicated the concert to police officers throughout the country," said Clark, who earned a doctorate in clinical psychology from the University of Windsor.

He does consulting work for a number of police and fire departments. Alpha Psychological Services provides counseling for people referred through area churches, and also includes a general secular practice.

A number of police officers and mental health professionals were in the audience for Clark's Aug. 16 performance, which lasted about an hour and 20 minutes.

Clark's Washington performance included works by Bach and several other composers. He also presented a piece he created, based on themes from the musical "Phantom of the Opera."

The concert featured instrumental music, including such special effects as digital thunder. It was designed to appeal to a lay audience.

"The music fits the room and is designed, really, to reach people."

Clark, who is listed in "Who's Who in America (Midwest)" and "Who's Who in the World," travels to present his research in various areas. He's presented concerts at churches and cathedrals in the United States and overseas, including the Notre Dame Cathedral in Paris.

"It's kind of unusual to have somebody in my field who's also a concert organist."

The idea for his Washington performance began with Clark and an American Psychological Association committee whose members were working on the APA's centennial celebration. "That's how it started off. It just kind of blossomed."

Officials at the Washington National Cathedral were receptive to the idea, and the concert was planned. Clark traveled to the capital a few weeks before his performance to check out the cathedral and pipe organ.

"It shakes the floor like an earthquake. The cathedral is so large. It really is a spectacular environment for something like this."

The organ's one of the largest in the world, and has more than 10,000

GARY GRACE

pipes. The Gothic cathedral was completed last year, following more than 80 years of construction.

Clark's performance generated some advance national publicity. The press room at the APA convention put out some concert information, and coverage in several national law enforcement and music publications followed.

"It is unique." He wasn't particularly nervous about performing before several thousand people at the cathedral, describing himself as "mildly keyed" rather than suffering from stage fright.

"No, none at all, as a matter of fact. Mild performance anxiety actually facilitates a good performance."

Plenty of room: The Washington National Cathedral is the sixth-largest Gothic cathedral in the world. Construction was recently completed following more than 80 years of work.

VICTORIA DIAZ

These books on tape are an excellent read

Head any good books lately? If not, get with it and check out the marvelous cornucopia of books on tape available at your favorite bookstore.

Listening to a great story is a fine way to while away the time, as you walk, bike, or drive all those miles this summer. (Remember, though some books are recorded and available in their entirety, most audio books are abridged. They average around 180 minutes in length.)

Just to get you started, here are a few hot sellers:
• "Toujours Provence," by Peter Mayle. Read by Patrick Macnee. Audio Renaissance, 180 mins., $15.95. Can't make it to Provence this year? This rendition of Mayle's delightful Provencal memoirs, read by English actor Macnee, may be one of the next best things to being there.

Experience Mayle's 50th birthday celebration, an outdoor affair, complete with the finest nappery and pink champagne, which somehow manages to become a first-class adventure, rain-soaked though it is. Drop in on Provence in August, when all those bottles of wine are "dozing silently toward maturity" and the mouth-watering foods are "humming with garlic."

Other events include the raging fires of a drought-stricken summer, a visit by the beloved Pavarotti, an adventure with a shaggy dog, and some misadventures with an ailing, American houseguest.

Mayle's lush, highly textured prose is a delight in itself, perfectly suited to its subject. Combine it with Macnee's crisp, oh-so-British narration, and this recorded paean to Provencal is an absolutely splendid treat. Five stars.

• "Waiting to Exhale," by Terry McMillan. Read by the author. Penguin/HighBridge, 180 mins., $15.95. Released earlier this year at the same time as the now bestselling novel, this entertaining audiobook tells the story of four middle-aged black women joined by their friendship and their search for Mr. Right.

As their searches meet with one problem and then another, it appears that perhaps McMillan should have included a subtitle: "A Good Man is Extremely Hard to Find." Apparently, he's either too fat or he's a miserable lover or a liar or a cheat or a fraud or a bum or married or looking for a younger woman, etc., etc.

No, this isn't the freshest, most original plot around. But what makes this story succeed is not a plot device, but its vibrant, honest-to-God leading characters. More than half the fun here is listening in on their lively, often ribald conversations. Reading her own work, McMillan enlivens the dialogue even more.

• "Black Water," by Joyce Carol Oates. Read by Amanda Plummer. Dove, 180 mins., $15.95. Based on the novel published earlier this year, this is vintage Oates gothic, with its doomed heroine, sexual undertones and riveting drama.

It isn't 19th-Century gothic, though. The time is now.

The heroine is an attractive young scholar named Kelly Kelleher. The male protagonist is referred to only as "The Senator." The two of them have spent a "long, hilarious day" celebrating the Fourth of July at a friend's home on Grayling Island, off the coast of Maine. Then, as they race to catch the last ferry of the day back to the mainland, the car in which they are riding plunges off an old bridge and into the cold, black water below. And the real story begins...

Amanda Plummer's lisp-y narration is a little distracting at first and as she reads The Senator's "lines," things sometimes sound awkwardly comical. Ultimately, though, her telling of Oates' Chappaquiddick-inspired story is taut and enthralling.

• "The Stranger Beside Me," by Ann Rule. Read by the author. Simon & Schuster, 180 mins., $16. Imagine working next to someone you consider a friend, someone you feel you can convey your innermost thoughts to, someone who listens to you with full attention, someone with whom you never argue, someone you believe to be brilliant, honest, kind-hearted, whose future appears to be filled with extraordinary promise.

Then, imagine discovering that your assessment of your "friend" was totally wrong. Imagine discovering that the "friend" beside you was, indeed, a stranger. Imagine discovering that the friend was a monstrous, raging serial killer.

That's exactly what happened to crime writer Ann Rule, who shared a small office with Ted Bundy at Seattle's Crisis Clinic in the early '70s and considered him, at the time, "almost the perfect man."

"He always insisted on seeing me safely to my car when my shift was over in the... dark hours of the morning," she remembers. "(His) treatment of me was a kind of old-world gallantry that he invariably showed toward any woman I ever saw him with."

If you're looking for relief from the everyday bustle, consider the fifth annual Americana Craft Show Saturday-Sunday, Aug. 22-23, at Livonia's Greenmead Historical Village, where time has stood still for the last 150 years.

The show, hosted by the Livonia Historical Commission, has grown to feature 83 craft exhibitors in four categories: wood, country, Victorian and textile.

"There will be more crafters. We've got a nice variety of crafts of nice quality, a lot of textiles this year," said Sue Daniel, Livonia Historical Commission chairwoman.

"The setting is nice. We have one more building done. The Shaw and Kingsley houses are going to be 150 years old next year. The Americana is our effort to focus on the crafts that

Youthful musician tunes into trumpet

BY BILL COUTANT
STAFF WRITER

Mention the trumpet and visions of Louis Armstrong, Chuck Mangione or some other jazz great come to mind. Or maybe, you see the light dancing off horns cocked high, playing in a rock 'n roll band.

Andy Gloster, a 1992 summa cum laude graduate of Livonia Churchill High School, doesn't share that vision. Since fifth grade, when Gloster first "picked up" the trumpet, he has pursued his love of music, always with the idea of playing as lead trumpet in an orchestra.

"I just picked the trumpet," he says matter-of-factly. "I enjoyed the sound. 'I started off in band with the trumpet and I fell in love with orchestra.'"

The soft-spoken Gloster hardly seems the type that craves the limelight, but his music ambitions leave no doubt that he wants to stand out from the crowd. Playing trumpet in a symphony is a sure way to be noticed, whether you play well or, heaven forbid, blow the wrong note.

"It's a majestic type of instrument," he said. "You can't hide when you're playing the trumpet. It sets the mood or tone because of its high register, its power."

And although violin and piano have the lion's share of solo and featured works, there's no shortage of music for trumpet.

"There is a lot of music for trumpet," he said. "But, in trumpet, everything is solo. You're exposed. You can't back off."

It's not exactly as if his desire to play the trumpet and excel was something Gloster just happened upon. Like his mentor, Irving Sarin, a former principal trumpet player for the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra, Gloster took his instrument seriously early on, studied piano and has become a well-schooled musician.

STUDY ORIGAMI

If you'd like to learn the ancient art of paper folding for fun, relaxation or simply to recycle newspapers and junk mail, Jorge Pezzat of West Bloomfield is taking calls for fall classes.

Origami hones concentration, creative and sequencing skills. Once the Chinese discovered paper, Buddhist monks brought origami's tranquility and magic to Japan in the sixth century, where today it plays an important part in Japan's educational system. Worldwide, educators use it to teach geometry.

Art Beat

A folder since 1965, Pezzat has taught origami at the Plymouth and West Bloomfield libraries, Roper City and Country School in Bloomfield Hills and Gibson School for the Gifted in Redford Township.

For an example of the ancient art form, visit an exhibit of traditional and modular origami by Pezzat and fellow members of the Ann Arbor Society 4 Origami, spotlighted through Aug. 27 in two Livonia Arts Commission showcases on the second floor of the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road and Five Mile.

"The one I tend to fold a lot is the turtle," Pezzat said. "In the beginning classes, we usually start out with a real simple frog or a cup in three folds."

For class information, call 682-7882.

UP WITH MUSIC

Hooked on making music? Schoolcraft College will offer professional level music instruction in voice, piano, classical guitar, violin and viola for high school and college students.

Professional teaching and peer involvement is offered in a private setting. All classes begin Aug. 27. Register now. Call the music department at 462-4400, ext. 5225.

Schoolcraft College is at 18600 Haggerty, between Six and Seven Mile, in Livonia.

Although he has excelled in his academic studies, Gloster has been active in many of his school's extracurricular groups, including Students Against Driving Drunk. He didn't shy away from athletics. But music has been the constant, says his mother Susan Gloster.

Boston bound: Andrew Gloster will take his trumpet-playing talents this fall to Boston University, where he'll study on a music scholarship.

"He tried soccer and other sports, but he stayed with music," she said. And as with anything Andy Gloster puts his mind to, he has excelled as a young musician, earning scholarships to music summer camps and playing with area orchestras, both youth and adult. And this fall, Gloster will attend Boston University on a music scholarship.

"I was really impressed with Boston, because there are so many symphonies there," Gloster said. "There are a lot of opportunities to play. It's a good place to study music."

One of the factors that helped Gloster decide on BU was the chance to study with Roger Vosin, a former principal trumpet player with the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Gloster's study habits and work ethic have helped him excel as much as his playing talent. Like his pupil, Sarin he asked if I'd like to play an instrument," Sarin said. "Like all kids, I liked the idea. Trumpet is appealing to most kids because they associate it with bugle, parades and pageantry."

The problem for any musician contemplating playing the trumpet is one of numbers — there aren't that many slots. The end of the big band era, which boasted some of the world's most talented trumpet players, closed another avenue for musicians, Sarin said. And for all his accomplishments, Gloster realizes that making a living as a professional musician is a long shot.

"There are not too many virtuosos," he said. "Maybe there are three trumpet players in an orchestra. But that's a goal. I'd love to play in an orchestra."

Whether he plays full-time with one of the country's premier symphonies or lends his talents to a community orchestra, Gloster will find a way to become a success in music, Sarin said.

"I don't know that he will end up playing trumpet in a large symphony for a living, but I do know he'll be a success," Sarin said.

"Ten years from now, I'd like to be teaching and playing," Gloster said.

took to the instrument at an early age. "When I was a young boy, my father and I were passing by a music store and have some kind of a heritage so that we tie into the whole history."

Weaver Peggy Lewis enjoys the country atmosphere of Greenmead. She brings traditional ash baskets in a variety of sizes, shapes and stains to the Americana show, including a wood base, Nantucket basket.

"I like the Greenmead show, the historical setting. It's kind of an event," Lewis said in an interview at her Livonia home.

In the front room sits a large hinged basket.

"They're functional. They're attractive. If you need a mitten or glove you know where to find it."

Lewis lifted the lid to reveal a basketful of winter wear. Here and there throughout the house, baskets held magazines, business cards, even bunnies. Others were simply displayed as accents.

"Someone just bought a basket for two kittens and a bride bought six for her bridesmaids to give as gifts," Lewis said.

"Baskets have been around since time began. In Nantucket when the fisherman went whaling, there was little else to do but weave baskets. If you go down the docks today, you can still see weavers."

A self-taught weaver, Lewis has seven years' experience weaving baskets from commercially prepared reed: flat, flat-oval, and round. Handles are made from hickory or white oak.

Lewis weaves 30 hours a week on average. With the help of her daughter, Rebecca, she exhibits at 12 crafts show a year. Lewis also fills special orders.

Basketmaking is a family affair at the Lewis home. Husband Michael makes all the lids and handles for Lewis' baskets. Rebecca and son Jeffrey have also been known to take turns at the jigsaw. Initially, Lewis soaks the reed in pans of water. Controlling the reed's wetness remains essential to the quality of the basket as she weaves.

"Everything has to remain wet. I know there are people who weave on ponds or docks. I use mist bottles," Lewis said.

To dress up the earthen tone baskets, she weaves Indian curls and flowers into some. On other baskets the former tote painter, quilter and cross stitcher paints hearts, apples, flowers, strawberries, ducks, houses — just about anything that your heart desires.

Basketry existed as an ancient art in lands from Egypt to China and everywhere in between that needed containers for storage. Egyptians stored corn in baskets as early as 5000 B.C. Techniques used in those baskets are found in African basketry today.

Native Americans have woven baskets from grasses and reeds for thousands of years but because the material perishes over time, history is difficult to trace.

"You can tell a Cherokee basket from a Choctaw by the weave, by the decorative curls or lack of them," Lewis said.

"I'm most impressed with Shaker baskets, they're strictly functional baskets."

Once a year, she bathes all of her baskets in a sink filled with water and Tvo-ry.

"You have to replace the moisture lost from the reeds because they are a plant material. They should be misted every so often, or bathed and never, never pack them in plastic," Lewis said.

Dulcimer music by The Felicity Strings will add festivity to the Americana show. Sodas and other refreshments can be had at the turn-of-the-century A.J. Geer General Store.

Visitors can tour the historical village 1-4 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 23. Tours is a regular Sunday afternoon attraction at Greenmead.

Greenmead is the former 19th-century farmstead of Joshua Simmons. The farm's centerpiece is the Simmons/Hill House Museum, Simmons' third residence on his 160-acre farm, Meadow Brooke. The house was built in 1841.

The village boasts 22 other historic buildings, although some aren't yet restored and reopened for public viewing. Tour admission is $2 for adults and $1 for seniors. School-age kids are admitted free.

The village includes a re-creation of the Ann Arbor Trail/Newburgh intersection circa 1910-25. The recreated village at the east end of Greenmead features a general store, an interurban waiting room, a church and parsonage, a one-room school and a newly restored bungalow.

The village's west end showcases structures from the 1840s and 1850s, including the Shaw and Kingsley houses.

Show hours are 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Aug. 22-23. The village is southwest of Eight Mile and Newburgh. Enter off Newburgh. Parking is free.

Crafters team up to share work, fun and profits

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Red, white and blue handpainted birdhouses, grapevine wreaths, magnets, beaded bracelets, lapel pins, hair bands, hand-embossed pictures and a variety of decorative home accents multiply like bunnies when crafters Janet Tjalsma of Farmington Hills and Konnie Boulet of Garden City get together.

The two happy crafters will exhibit the fruits of their labor at the Americana Craft Show for the first time Saturday-Sunday, Aug. 22-23, at Greenmead Historical Village, Eight Mile and Newburgh, in Livonia.

"We work good together," Tjalsma said. "I do most of the sewing. I make the bunnies and Konnie does most of the painting. Crafts are really time consuming. It's goes a lot faster when you share the work."

Tjalsma's stirrings to make crafts began 10-15 years ago after a divorce. She needed income to raise her three children, now teenagers.

"Back then I did sewing and candle wicking," Tjalsma said. "It's nice to be creative."

When time runs short preparing for a show, Tjalsma counts on daughter Audrey.

"My daughter and I sew the hair bands. The night before a show, I can say, 'Audrey, I need a hundred hair bands,' and she starts sewing," Tjalsma said. "She started to sew quilts when she was 7 or 8. I bought a sewing machine for her at age 12."

"Janet's Creations," her sole endeavor, and "J & K Etc.," the joint craft business with Boulet, gives Tjalsma a chance to hone her marketing skills. In fall, she'll return to school to pursue a degree in business administration.

"We make a variety of things. We make sure there's something for everyone," Tjalsma said. "We try to buy as much (supplies) as we can at one time so we can keep our costs low and our prices down. With the recession, people just don't have as much money as they used to buy things."

Boulet entered the world of crafts three years ago. "It's fun. I like being able to be creative and see the finished product. I started making refrigerator magnets and pins for weddings and showers. Then my daughter's friends saw the beaded bracelet that I make and wanted to know where she got it. It just took off from there."

Tjalsma and Boulet met eight months ago when they worked adjoining booths at a craft show. The time involved in the craft business, making the items and manning a booth for long hours, passes faster when two share the work.

"We decided to combine our crafts," Boulet said. "It's more fun this way and we're entertaining so we don't get bored."

Not all of their crafts maintain a red, white and blue theme. Victorian trimmings decorate candles. Birdhouses painted to look like red barns, English cottages, dress boutiques and hotels catch the eye and heart of the dullest soul.

"We started doing the red, white and blue things before Desert Storm because they were patriotic. I'm pretty patriotic myself so it came naturally," Tjalsma said.

Though Boulet and Tjalsma have worked other fairs, this is their first time in the American Craft Show at Greenmead. Both are looking forward to displaying their wares in the middle of a village, straight out of history.

"To have a craft show in a historical place like Greenmead, you couldn't have a nicer setting," Tjalsma said.

things that make people happy," while entertaining a genuine love for others.

"It's going to be exciting," Boulet said. "We love people. You meet the nicest people at craft shows."

Prices of crafts by J & K Etc. range from $1 for a magnet or hair band to $20 for a large wreath. Five-, eight- and 12-inch bunnies (soft sculpture) run from $2.50 to $10.

Madonna offers art seminars

Unlike ordinary art courses, Madonna University's weekend art workshops for teachers, to be held this fall, are designed to integrate multicultural art experiences and to weave art into teaching math.

The first workshop, "Multicultural Art Experiences for the Classroom," focuses on integration of multicultural art experiences into classroom content areas to enhance learning. Hands-on experiences will complement the slide/lecture format. The course will emphasize cooperative learning, discovery problem-solving and conceptualizing within the multicultural art framework. The seminar will be held over two non-consecutive weekends: Friday-Saturday, Sept. 11-12, and Friday-Saturday, Sept. 25-26. The workshop will meet 5:30-9:30 p.m. Fridays and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays.

The second workshop, "Weaving Art into Math Teaching," surveys use of art experiences and their integration into general education, with emphasis on math. Hands-on activities will complement the slide/lecture format; specific art experiences for mathematics will be stressed. The seminar will be held over two consecutive weekends: Friday-Saturday, Nov. 6-7, and Friday-Saturday, Nov. 13-14. The workshop will meet 5:30-9:30 p.m. Fridays and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays.

The cost per workshop is $290 for two hour academic credits or $170 for 2.4 continuing education units. Call 591-5103. Madonna University is at I-96 and Levan Road in Livonia.

Monday, Aug. 24 — The Livonia Arts Commission and Friends of the Library present an exhibit by the Michigan Friends of Photography Aug. 24 to Sept. 26 in the art gallery on the second floor of the Livonia Civic Center Library, Farmington Road at Five Mile. Livonia photographer Carlos Diaz displays a powerful montage of nine images: "Artifacts of the Working Class." Diaz, an associate photography professor at Center for Creative Studies in Detroit, photographed nine workman's gloves, some ripped and torn, others covered with dirt and grease, using a pristine white background to provide contrast. The most important part of a well-designed picture, he said, is content. Diaz is known for poignant images documenting the everyday struggles of the common man: unemployed auto worker, laborer, low man on the totem pole. BUILDING SCENE'S NAMES & PLACES

New president at Giffels

Richard A. Bither of West Bloomfield, was elected president of Giffels Associates, Southfield, succeeding Takayuki Maeda, who retired as president and director after 38 years with the firm.

Bither joined Giffels in 1973 as a mechanical engineer and most recently served as executive vice president and corporate secretary. He is a past president of the Detroit Chapter of the American Society of Heating, Refrigeration and Air Conditioning Engineers, and a member of the Engineering Society of Detroit, National Society of Professional Engineers, National Fire Protection Association, Society for Marketing Professional Services, Economic Club of Detroit, Detroit Society of Clubs and the Society of American Military Engineers.

The Giffels board also elected group vice president Loren L. Klevering corporate secretary. Senior vice president David P. Bourgeois was named to the board.

Sick building seminar

James L. Newman, vice president of the Southfield-based Thermal-Netics and an indoor air quality authority, will discuss contaminants and their sources, owning and operating costs, design considerations and legal ramifications for contractors, designers and facility owners and managers.

His speech will be part of a seminar and exhibit called "Sick Buildings — Whose Fault," sponsored by the Metro Detroit Air Conditioning Contractors of America from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 8, at the Michigan State University Management Center in Troy.

Tuition is $25. For more information, contact the Metro Detroit ACCA at 566-9210.

Stein to Neumann/Smith

Shari Stein will be responsible for overseeing space planning and interior design, and marketing to the health care industry in her position at Kenneth Neumann/Joel Smith, a Southfield architecture/interior design firm.

She had been manager of interior design for William Beaumont Hospital.

Building owner kudos

Three of the four buildings honored by the Building Owners and Managers Association of Metropolitan Detroit are within the Observer & Eccentric circulation area. BOMA, associated with the Greater Detroit Chamber of Commerce, sponsors an "In Pursuit of Excellence" office building of the year awards competition.

- Brookfield Office Park, 31500 Northwestern, Farmington Hills, was honored as top suburban office park.

- Timberland Office Building (Building III), 5445 Corporate Drive, Troy, was honored as corporate headquarters facility.

- City Center, 26999 Central Park Blvd., Southfield, was the standout in the 100,000- to 500,000-square-foot quality.

General partner for all three buildings is Etkin Equities; Equities Management Inc. manages all three properties.

- The Fisher Building, 3011 W. Grand Blvd., Detroit, was honored as the historical building. It is owned and managed by Trizec Properties Inc.

Coming up aces

Golfers have until Saturday to qualify for the Ronald McDonald Children's Charities/Cecil Fielder Hole-in-One Shootout that could win them $1 million, a $200,000 Pulte house or a Capri convertible. The competition is being held at Country Club Village on Haggerty, 1/8 mile south of Six Mile in Northville.

A $5 daily entry fee buys three shots at the 110-yard qualifyin holes. Additional balls can be bought for $1 each. The five participants closest to the pin will advance to the finals.

The finals will be on Sunday. The top prize is $1 million to the first golfer to hit a hole-in-one. Men will be shooting from 175-yard holes, women from 160 yards. If no one hits a hole-in-one, the closest finalist will win the Capri.

A bonus round will then be held for finalists who will have a chance to win a house. It will be awarded to the first to hit a hole-in-one in the bonus round. The winner can choose a house for immediate occupancy or build one. Possible home locations are: Keatington Cedars and Rolling Meadows in Lake Orion, North Fairview Farms in Rochester Hills, Country Club Village in Northville, Fox Run, Sunflower Village and Carrington Village in Canton, Carrington Farms in Monroe, Wellington Woods in West Bloomfield.

Standard Fed on top

Standard Federal Bank continues its leadership in home mortgage lending in Wayne, Oakland, Macomb and Washtenaw counties, outperforming the next three largest lenders combined.

According to Lawyer's Title Insurance Co., the bank recorded 2,972 single-family residential mortgages of $250,000 and less, totaling more than $196 million during May.

Standard Fed commanded 19.1 percent of the market; Comerica, 6.8 percent; Michigan National, 5.68 percent; and NBD Bank, 5.42 percent.

Builders play catch-up with technology

Innovations in the building industry face an uphill chance of acceptance thanks to a number of factors: the number of small players, a conservative attitude among builders and a cyclical industry.

BY GERALD FRAWLEY
STAFF WRITER

Builders stand by things that work. In Michigan, that means stick-built houses with few technological modifications from the houses of 50 years ago.

Michigan builders are not alone. According to a study by the National Association of Home Builders research center, builders in general are slow to embrace new technologies and materials that show promise of making homes more cost effective and easier to build.

Burton Goldberg, project manager for the Advanced Housing Technology Program, a joint effort between the National Association of Home Builders Research Center and the U.S. Department of Energy, said there are several obstacles to innovation within the building industry.

Goldberg stressed slowness should not be equated with a stagnant industry. "The home of today is not the home of 50 years ago."

Evolution, not revolution

Instead, home building has evolved in incremental steps.

"Homes of today have drywall, not plaster, better insulation — things that are better than what they had back then.

"What hasn't occurred are the major systems changes — those things haven't reached the market," he said.

A weak general economy, lower mortgage rates and a slimmer, more efficient housing industry all have combined to ease the average American's house-buying burden.

Those who bought houses in 1991 paid less per month, on average, than their counterparts in 1990, while monthly incomes rose. The result was a smaller share of income required for homebuying.

The building industry's greater emphasis on affordable houses kept the average price of conventionally financed new houses within 1 percent of the year before.

These are some of the findings of U.S. Housing Markets in its annual survey of the costs of housing in America. U.S. Housing Markets is a research publication of Lomas Mortgage USA, a Dallas financial firm.

"When figures come in for 1992, we will see a continuation of these trends," said Michael E. Patrick, president of Lomas Mortgage USA. "U.S. housing

"Our concern (and the reason for the study) is we're slow to adopt the major changes. We want to speed up the adoption."

While expensive at the onset, new technologies do improve the quality of houses and the efficiency of the building process, he said.

Goldberg said it takes 15 to 20 years before the industry adopts innovations. The reasons are many, and the culpability rests both within and outside the industry.

Don Pratt, president of Wake-Pratt Inc. in Troy, is the builder of the area's first smart house, which incorporates a high-tech, innovative wiring network that automatically activates appliances, utilities and security systems.

"We are just at the tip of the iceberg with this," he said.

Builders are naturally conservative and work from the premise that if it's not broken, don't fix it, he said.

Part of this conservative philosophy stems from what builders are selling. "Our commodity — it's not like building a $10,000 to $15,000 car — we can't take too many gambles."

A builder with a house that doesn't sell, a builder — especially small builders who make up the vast majority of the industry — is in a lot of trouble.

Although Pratt said he doesn't think buyers are unwilling to try new technology, he admits that people must first be exposed to it and educated in its use before they will embrace it.

"Moving from plaster to drywall was a big step for us, but now almost all homes are built with (drywall)."

Costly R&D

Goldberg of the NAHB research center said the blame doesn't rest only with builders and the buying public.

"One of the biggest reasons is (building) is such a cyclical industry."

Innovation can be costly and time consuming, and most builders can't afford long-term research and development, he said. Some years, a builder does very well, but others, he's lucky to stay afloat.

The opportunity for long-term product testing, research and development just isn't there when planning for the future is impossible.

This, in turn, leads to a fragmented industry with many small players (with limited resources).

"It's not like the auto industry where there are only a handful of (original equipment manufacturers).

Today, the builder acts as a project manager and hires subcontractors to do the actual work. This leads away from innovation, he explained.

One thing that drives innovation is the expectation it will lead to greater success — even a monopoly of sorts — in a given area, he said.

If a builder invests in an innovative material or way of doing business, and at considerable cost to himself, he must train subcontractors who can turn around and provide the service to another builder who has not incurred the training cost.

Michael C. Meldrum, president of the Rochester-based Michael C. Meldrum Architect and Associates Inc. and an independent agent for Deck House, said another obstacle to adopting innovative technologies is an inability on the part of manufacturers to reach builders and the regulations governing the building industry.

Deck House designs and sells high-end, upscale "kit homes," houses that are manufactured in components and shipped to job sites where they are assembled.

The very nature of the kit house, he said, allows new technology to be worked into designs more quickly than in conventional houses.

Few commonalities

Builders come from a variety of diverse backgrounds and approach the building process differently, he said. "In most cases, they want to do what they did in the past."

As a representative for a national kit home manufacturer, Meldrum said he has visited many areas of the country and Michigan is one of the most conservative when it comes to adopting new technology and ways of doing business.

Even when new technology is available, the builders in the field aren't always the best qualified to evaluate them. Is a manufactured wood I-beam, for instance, better than a typical floor joists?

Someone like Deck House has an advantage (when it comes to introducing new technology) because "it can bring in engineers and architects to evaluate them."

Because of the fragmentation of the building industry, "it's difficult for manufacturers to reach the builders," he said. The same applies to educating local building officials and communities on new technology.

Each community — not just state — has different codes governing building. Although many of these building regulations are based on uniform codes, they can still vary subtly from community to community. And, he added, enforcement can vary from community to community.

Downpayment biggest hurdle to home ownership has indeed become more affordable — for those who can clear the downpayment hurdle. The initial outlay in the homebuying process continues to rise, even as monthly payments become easier.

U.S. Housing Markets reported that the average buyer in the Detroit-Ann Arbor area in 1991 (including both new houses and resales) needed 23 percent of income to meet the monthly payments. That was down a single percentage point from 1989.

The buyer's initial outlay, including customary closing costs, was up $120, from $25,700 in 1990 to $25,820 in 1991. This coincided with the average house price that was up slightly in 1991 when the average price was $118,500. In 1990, it was $116,700.

Despite the bump in price of houses, the average monthly payment in the Detroit-Ann Arbor market was reduced in 1991 to $1,080, down from $1,120 in 1990. Monthly income rose to $4,650 in 1991 from $4,580 in 1990.

Figures were based on a 20-percent-down, 30-year fixed rate conventional mortgage.

Nationally, prospective buyers discovered that entry to the new home market, in 1991, relative to 1990, was much easier. The average up-front money requirements were less, and the monthly payment load was a bit lower than the year before.

Financial requirements for the average new home purchaser loosened a little more than for resale shoppers so that the economic gap between new and existing home deals narrowed slightly in 1991.

The report said the slide in new house sales since the mid-1980s, overlaid with last year's general economic weakness, put considerable downward pressure on builder profit margins and prices. The average new-home financed with a conventional mortgage sold for $155,200 last year, compared to $154,100 the year before. That represented a rise of less than 1 percent.

The U.S. homebuyer's initial out-of-pocket expenditure on the average new house deal actually declined by a few dollars in 1991. For a 20-percent-down purchase of the average new home, the initial outlay (including most customary closing fees) dipped to $33,710 — down from $160 the year before.

The required downpayment amount rose slightly, as the average new home sales price increased. But a reduction in average lender fees (excluding appraisal charges and options such as credit life insurance) more than made up the difference.

Because of a decline in the fixed rate mortgage contract interest rate, the average monthly payment on a new house purchased in 1991 went down by $50 from the comparable figure the year before. A new homebuyer making the average deal in 1991 saw a monthly mortgage payment of $1,240 compared to $1,290 for a similar new homebuyer in 1990.

House designed for active family

Naturally illuminated by skylights in three living areas, the Crystal is a bright ranch-style house designed for active family living.

A wide, arched multi-paned window with a planter shelf adds street appeal to the exterior and elegance to the spacious vaulted living room. The fireplace can be enjoyed from both the living room and the dining room.

The sun porch, to the right of the family room, is the brightest of these spaces. It has five skylights and could be either screened or glassed. Potted plants can't help but thrive here.

A spacious kitchen is at the heart of the home. Two more skylights bathe the area in natural light while its open design provides easy access from all directions.

Plenty of cabinets and counters line the room on three sides. If desired, a built-in desk could be included in the plan, either next to the sunny nook or back by the freezer. The kitchen sink faces across the family room to a view of the deck and the outdoors beyond. Face framing on one wall of shelves in the large walk-in pantry allows direct access from the kitchen.

Basement stairs, a small bathroom, and a utility room with a counter and fold-down ironing board are to the right. The utility room also can be entered from the two-car garage, which has windows and space for a small shop.

Bathrooms are clustered together on the left. The master bathroom and walk-in closet serve as sound buffers between adults' and children's bedrooms. Luxury features in the master bath include skylights, an oversized shower and twin basins.

The other two bedrooms share a bathroom. One of the bedrooms has a walk-in closet. This situation is sure to stir up sibling rivalry, especially if there are only two children.

On-screen architect to debut

AP — Imagine designing your own dream home on a computer in about the time it takes to mow your lawn. An innovative computer program created by Jack Simpson Jr. does just that and will soon be on the market. Unlike most other computer-aided design systems where basic components are lines and circles, Simpson's "Chief Architect" program uses a myriad of structural building blocks to design a floor plan. His company, Advanced Relational Technology Inc., is based in the San Francisco area and employs just three people. But with Chief Architect about to make its commercial debut, Simpson anticipates his company will have up to 40 employees by this time next year. Chief Architect is relatively simple to operate and much less expensive than other computer-aided design systems, Simpson said. "I think this will change the whole way residential architecture is done," he said. "It's really quite automatic. For example, it can produce all the dimensioning needed for a plan, or all the required electrical outlets for a room at the touch of one button." Very few residential homes are designed by a professional architect, Simpson says, because of the high costs. Chief Architect will allow a layman to "draw" expert designs. An architect may still be contracted as a consultant at a much lower cost, he added. Chief Architect has a library of many plans. Display options allow the computer operator, or "architect," to manipulate dimensions of floors, walls, doors and windows. There are also hundreds of styles for bathtubs, sinks, closet doors, appliances and cabinets. One key stroke will add finishing touches, such as changing a range to a dishwasher. If the operators make a design error, such as placing electrical outlets too far apart, or making doors that are too narrow, the computer alerts them. The system tests for compliance with common building codes.
