Jolly St. Nick to arrive Sunday

The Christmas season officially arrives Sunday in Plymouth when Santa pulls into Kellogg Park for his annual visit. He will be in a new house in the park for the kids.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The holidays officially arrive Sunday in Plymouth, as several Christmas-related events and activities are planned:
 ■ At 5 p.m. Sunday in Kellogg Park, Santa arrives at his new house, and a family sing-along is scheduled.

 ■ Sunday also marks the Chamber of Commerce annual Employee Discount Day, as employees of city or township businesses can get discounts at 40 participating businesses.
 ■ Gift wrapping is being offered 1-5 p.m. Sunday at the Plymouth Coffee

Bean on Penniman Avenue by Plymouth's Praise Chapel Church of God. Donations are appreciated, as proceeds will be donated to the St. Vincent and Sarah Fisher Center for abused and neglected mothers and their babies.

Downtown Development Authority Director Steve Guile said that a new Santa House should be ready for Santa's arrival at Kellogg Park on Sunday, as the house built just last year proved too troublesome to move.

"It was too small and really too bulky, and it took five or more DPW workers to put it up and take it down. "It was a nightmare, every time you'd pull it apart something would pull off or fall off," Guile said.

The new house is on a trailer, so it can be easily moved to various places around Kellogg Park for events. It's 10-by-15 feet, bigger than the former house which was 8-by-10 feet. "There's more room for taking pictures, and more room for people to stand," Guile said.

Beitner dead at age 71

BY KEVIN BROWN

Fred Beitner, who founded Beitner Jewelry with brother Bill in 1952 in downtown Plymouth, died Friday at 71.

Beitner was known for his service to the city on boards, including the Board of Review, which reviews residents' complaints on assessments.

"He handled it very diplomatically. Fred always listened to what they had to say, then the board made their decision," said Ken Way, former city clerk who worked with Beitner.

"He was a very fine gentleman, always pleasant, never had anything bad to say about anybody," Way said.

Beitner was born Aug. 17, 1923, in Traverse City, and his family moved to Plymouth in 1925. After he and brother Bill worked a time for other jewelers, the two went into business together in 1952 at a site on Main Street.

Bill Beitner said his brother got involved in the jewelry business because he had to use a wheelchair, ever since a childhood illness left Fred without use of his legs.

'94 United Way drive on target

The Plymouth Community United Way campaign is on pace to reach its 1994 fund-raising goal.

Jim Malinowski, campaign co-chairman, said the campaign which began Sept. 7 has so far raised $455,491.

By year's end, campaign organizers hope to raise $750,000 to support agencies and programs in Plymouth.

"That goal is 44 percent above last year, basically because our human-service needs are higher in the Plymouth community than they have been in a long time," Malinowski said.

Some of the agencies traditionally getting money from the local United Way group are the Angela Hospice Care Center, the youth substance-abuse treatment agency Growth Works, the YMCA and more.

The Plymouth Community United Way traditionally has volunteers head committees in charge of soliciting donations from various sectors of the community.

This year, they are Douglass Wood of Ford Motor Co., general campaign chairman; Fran DeBasco of Detroit Edison, industrial division chairwoman; Jerry Trumpka of Midas Muffler, business division chairman; and Tim Tingstad of IDS Financial Services, professional division chairman.

Others are Larry Cole of Gallimore Elementary, education division chairman; Cathy Broadbent of Plymouth Township government, government division chairwoman; Denise King of Plymouth Opportunity House, clubs division chairwoman; Esther Hulsing, residential chairwoman; and John Blackwell of Blackwell Ford, peace officer chairman.

For more information on donating to Plymouth Community United Way, call 453-6879.

The campaign team reminds people that even if they work outside Plymouth, they can designate contributions to the Plymouth United Way. That way, donations stay with programs and agencies that help local folks.

The campaign theme this year is "With your help, the possibilities are endless."

Station sponsors blood drive

The day after Thanksgiving means more than cold turkey sandwiches and shop until you drop.

Friday, Nov. 25, also is a chance to give the first gift of the holiday season by donating blood at the WNIC seventh annual Thanksgiving blood drive.

The drive will be 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday, Nov. 25, at Wonderland Mall, Middlebelt at Plymouth Road.

"The WNIC blood drive always takes place the day after Thanksgiving because that is when blood needs are the greatest," said Dan Waxman, principal officer for the Southeastern Michigan Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross.

"On that day, most area businesses are closed and unable to sponsor employee blood drives. Red Cross relies on community blood drives like this to meet the blood needs of 54 hospitals in our region."

Donors will meet WNIC personalities at the event and receive some special thank you gifts. The first 275 people who attempt to donate blood will receive a commemorative WNIC seventh annual Thanksgiving blood drive T-shirt, compliments of SelectCare.

Compliments of Wonderland Mall, drive attendees also may enter a drawing for a $100 gift certificate redeemable at any Wonderland store and select a gift from the WNIC grab bag.

"WNIC is proud to help meet such an important need in our community," said Jim Harper, a member of the WNIC Breakfast Club and a graduate of John Glenn High. "Every day, patients at area hospitals receive blood transfusions to aid in the treatment of illnesses like leukemia and cancer. Those patients rely on our blood donations, especially following the holiday, when blood inventories drop to such low levels."

The blood drive will offer a special arrangement for blood donors with children. While parents are donating, children can work on a holiday craft under the supervision of a Red Cross volunteer. Additionally, SelectCare's Cool Cat will visit the drive 2-4 p.m.

"Our goal is to make the drive as family-oriented and convenient for our listeners as possible," said Harper. "The day after Thanksgiving is a day many families spend together. The special children's craft table provides a way for listeners to do something important like donating blood and also spend time with their children."

To schedule an appointment to donate, call 1-800-582-4383.

The process of donating blood takes a little more than an hour and include registration, a brief medical history, and having pulse, temperature, blood pressure and hemoglobin checked. The actual blood donation takes about 10 minutes and is relatively painless.

After their donation, donors are asked to have juice and cookies to help restore fluid levels. Donors must be 17 or older, weigh at least 110 pounds, and be in general good health. Donors 72 or older may need a note from their doctor.

There goes the judge

James Garber roasted and toasted during his retirement dinner

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Judge James Garber was summoned to the Plymouth Manor the evening of Nov. 10 by more than 250 family members, friends and associates to commemorate his retirement after 16 years on the 35th District Court bench.

Welcomed by fellow Judge John MacDonald, well-wishers dined on prime rib, baked scrod and chicken breast with wine sauce, green beans almondine, rissole potatoes, salad, and creme de menthe sundaes.

Garber was toasted and roasted by guests ranging from his 96-year-old mother, Helen Garber, to Supreme Court Justice James Brickley.

Broadcaster Warren Pierce was master of ceremonies. The Rev. David Eberhard offered the invocation.

Among the first to congratulate the judge was his mother, known for her uncanny ability to memorize lengthy poems and her daily two-mile walks through Plymouth.

"One more touch of gladness at this special time for you, and although you've had much happiness in the years you've spent, may the years that still await you be the happiest of all," said Helen Garber.

A tribute from retired 35th District Court Judge Dunbar and Martha Davis, now living in Florida, was read to Garber.

"Congratulations for having completed 16 years of service to the 35th District Court. Well done, thou good and faithful servant," wrote the Davises.

Richard Padzieski, chief of operations with the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office, razzed Garber for becoming a bureaucrat, and thanked him for "extending me kindnesses when I was the new guy on the block" in the prosecutor's office.

Brickley — noting that Garber is younger (61) and should be attending his retirement party — said he was introduced to Garber by the late former prosecutor Bill Cahalan. "He nudged me one day and said, 'There is a young man whose father (Ralph Garber) was a great lawyer and served as chief assistant prosecutor." Cahalan noted that the acorn hadn't fallen far from the tree, as "it was very apparent he knew the law. Jim is a man of integrity who very quickly filled the breach in the prosecutor's office at a difficult time."

Attorney and former newsman Herb Levitt roasted Garber, thanked him for his guidance over the years, and observed that with his ability to clear up dockets, "his capabilities should be used on a statewide basis."

Garber received resolutions from state officials, including state representative and former Plymouth police officer Jerry Vorva.

Vorva credited Garber with "helping all of us become better police officers. He made us stick to the letter of the law."

Wayne County Commissioner Thaddeus McCotter said the resolutions "paled in comparison to the real tribute paid by the many friends and family who are here tonight."

Plymouth City Commissioner and Court Advisory Board chairperson Robert Jones commended Garber for his "outstanding vision and leadership that have made the 35th District Court a model for high standards of justice and efficiency."

Court administrator Marion Belding said, "It's been a pleasure to work for someone of Judge Garber's administrative ability. He is what you call thrifty," she said. "He treats the public's money as carefully, as frugally as his own. We will miss his booming voice, his photographic memory, his candy from Mr. Bulky, his fad diets and his perfect hair. We will also miss his obsessive belief in fairness, enthusiasm for his profession, and his faith and interest in all of us."

On behalf of the gathering, Belding presented Garber with a gift: plastic golf clubs and dozens of used golf balls. Garber had a good laugh before he was given a set of real golf clubs.

A gracious Garber took the podium to say, "I'm not retiring; I just didn't run again. I was afraid I'd get beat. I'm not going to be sitting home watching 'All My Children.' I may sit a little bit (as a visiting judge) or hang out a shingle," he said. "Am I going to miss it? No, I will not miss being a judge. Yes, I will miss the court and the people."

Garber saluted his family and praised his staff, crediting them and Judges MacDonald and Davis for making the 35th District Court what it is. "It's been a memorable, eventful, interesting career; a pretty good life," he said. "I wouldn't trade what I have with anyone."

Officials tentatively deny Omnicom renewal request

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

Without discussion Monday, Canton officials tentatively denied Omnicom of Michigan's request for renewal of its franchise to provide cable television services to the community.

"We don't feel it is the best proposal you can get. We don't feel it is adequate," said Larry Monroe of Municon, a consultant for the consortium formed by Canton and Plymouth townships and the cities of Plymouth and Northville.

Omnicom and Canton's next step is a formal administrative hearing during which both sides may present evidence and testimony from experts. Canton officials will meet publicly with Omnicom representatives at 7 p.m. Nov. 29 to determine the hearing's parameters. Other consortium members have already scheduled administrative hearings.

Canton officials denied the preliminary assessment of Omnicom's proposed franchise agreement at a public hearing Monday night. Monroe recommended denial of Omnicom's request for a 10-year franchise with a five-year renewable option. Like other communities in the consortium, Canton wants a 3½-year franchise with potential for renewal.

The tentative decision was the second in a three-step process allowed under the Federal Cable Act. The administrative hearing is the third step. If Canton officials again deny the proposed agreement, it's likely cable and township officials will see each other in court.

"We are about to embark on a fairly lengthy process as well as an expensive one," said Omnicom's attorney Tom McNeill. He reminded township trustees that a journey through state or federal court could cost $200,000 in legal fees alone.

The consortium has been informally negotiating with Omnicom for the past 1½ years. Omnicom's franchise with Canton expires Feb. 14, 1995. With the deadline coming up, consortium members entered into formal negotiations, resulting in the proposed agreement. Canton officials denied Monday.

"At all times you can continue with informal negotiations," said Mike Ager, township resource development manager. "You can do them (formal and informal negotiations) simultaneously."

Among reasons for the denial was Municon's argument that Omnicom doesn't have the legal and technical abilities to provide services offered in the proposed franchise.

McNeill told trustees that Omnicom plans to build a fiber-optic system that will provide 77 channels by July 1995. "It's what we have to do to stay competitive," he said. "It's what your constituents want."

McNeill acknowledged that Ameritech has contacted consortium members about services it is able to provide the communities.

McNeill said a 3½ year franchise will not allow Omnicom to recoup the investment in such improvements. Monroe argued that Canton's 3½-year request has a presumption of renewal. "It (Omnicom) certainly can recover its investment from 3½ years to perpetuity."

Monroe also argued that Omnicom's proposal is excessive because the costs will be passed on to subscribers.

Monroe said Omnicom failed the last four Federal Communications Commission performance tests, as well as national electric safety codes.

But McNeill told township officials that over the last two years Omnicom received raw results of 97 percent. He said Omnicom was tested at seven locations at service area fringes. Yet no complaints have been received about the quality of the cable signal.

Omnicom will now test monthly as opposed to twice a year. "October is a pass across the board," McNeill said.

In 1957, they built their store on the north side of Ann Arbor Trail at Forest, the current site for the store.

"Fred was very active in city things; he worked very quietly but always accomplished the job," said Paul Sincock, assistant city manager.

Sharon Thomas, who worked with Beltner on the Plymouth Housing Commission, said, "He was a great commissioner, very concerned, very knowledgeable. He brought a lot of good ideas to the Housing Commission."

Survivors include brother Bill and a niece, Martha Beltner of Ypsilanti. Beltner's wife, Allie Mae, died March 14, 1993.

He was a member of Riverside Park Church of God; a Plymouth Rotary Club member for over 40 years; and a founding member of the Plymouth Symphony, playing the violin. Beltner had also been active with area Boy Scout groups.

Suit aims to end blackout of pay-TV NFL games

BY LARRY PALADINO
STAFF WRITER

Lawrence Stockler is upset that he can't watch blacked-out Detroit Lions home games on TV and he thinks many others feel the same way.

So the Southfield attorney is revising his lawsuit against the Lions, the National Football League and four television networks into a class-action suit.

Last week, he filed his own suit in U.S. District Court, Detroit, demanding elimination of football TV blackouts to those who have paid for cable or satellite transmissions.

"We're making the changes (to make it a class-action suit) now," Stockler said in his office in the Northland Towers building near Northland Center.

The 63-year-old Stockler thinks it could be a long, tough fight, perhaps taking up to 3½ years.

"It's going to be a slugfest," he said. "But that's what keeps me young."

Stockler said games that used to be blacked out in Detroit could be picked up for free off satellites from whatever city in which the Lions were playing. "Then, (the NFL) went with Fox and everything now is scrambled," he said. "Now, they charge, even if it's on ESPN or TNT."

The Fox network this year outbid CBS for the television rights to NFL National Conference games. A few games also are on cable stations ESPN and Turner Network Television. Stockler has included all three in his suit, as well as TVN, a network that specializes in movies, but which, he said, charges viewers either $135 or $99 for up to 187 NFL games over the season. If someone subscribes to that package, Stockler contends, they should not be prevented from getting certain games because of blackout restrictions.

The NFL's policy has been that home games that do not sell out more than 72 hours before game-time will be blacked out in the home team's area.

The Lions weren't available for comment, but an NFL spokesman has said the league would fight to protect the blackout rules.

Big stadium

With capacity of 80,368 at the Silverdome, however, the Lions — even when they are successful on the field — have much more difficulty selling out than most other teams, whose stadium capacities generally are in the 60,000 range.

"I don't feel like going to the Silverdome to watch the Lions,"

Stockler said. "I like to stay at home and I'm willing to pay for it."

The argument that the team would have difficulty selling tickets if home games are televised on pay TV is "bull," he said, "and I'll tell you why. Just look at (the University of) Michigan. They have sellouts every game and they're almost always televised."

None of the defendants in Stockler's suit have responded yet, he said. He is handling the legal work himself.

Stockler said no one has ever sued to lift NFL blackouts of pay TV games.

"This is not a battle over free TV," he said. "We're not looking for free TV. We're looking for subscription TV."

Several years ago, Stockler said, the National Basketball Association's Chicago Bulls sued the NBA to eliminate TV restrictions on their games being shown nationally over superstation WGN. The restrictions were found by the courts to be in violation of antitrust laws, Stockler said.

Bad marketing

He said the Lions "would have a valid argument" for blackouts "if they had parking and concession rights, but they don't. It's just terrible marketing. If it costs me $5 to watch their game on TV and if, say, 10,000 people sign up, that's $50,000 they're not getting. If they think people will stay home just because they can watch it on TV, it doesn't work that way. If they want to go, they'll go."

When the Silverdome was built in Pontiac, it effectively disenfranchised many fans from the downriver and other suburbs, Stockler said, who live too far away to regularly go to games and would be obvious candidates for pay-per-view Lions telecasts.

The suit isn't Stockler's first tweek at the NFL. Several years ago, he sued the Silverdome to get authorities to stop fans from smoking in the stands. Subsequently, "No Smoking" signs were posted and eventually that had repercussions at stadiums and arenas throughout the country, he said, with such signs springing up all over without suits having to be filed.

"We flew in experts from all over the country to testify about the damage (secondary) smoke can do," Stockler said. "And people sent in money, but I sent it all back."

That suit, he said, cost him $35,000 to prosecute, and he won't mind going through another such fight because, "you have to have a reason to get up in the morning."

St. Mary Hospital in Livonia recently acquired state-of-the-art pulmonary function testing equipment that provides superior diagnostic capabilities for patients with respiratory problems.

With the new $70,000 Benchmark Pulmonary Function Test with Body Plethysmography, a patient undergoes a battery of eight different tests that take about 90 minutes.

While a patient sits in a special breathing chamber, the equipment measures changes in breathing pressure.

"This equipment is far more sensitive to changes in a person's breathing than the standard pulmonary function testing devices," said Alan Birkett, RRT, director of Respiratory Care. "It measures smaller changes in lung function. Identifying changes in breathing early can lead to earlier treatment and resolution of breathing problems."

"This new equipment is the gold standard in pulmonary diagnostic testing," said Dr. Gregory Stone, pulmonary and critical care specialist.

Early diagnosis of pulmonary conditions means corrective action can be taken more quickly, whether it be getting the patient to stop smoking, changing his or her work environment or possibly treating the patient for asthma.

"There is no cure for chronic respiratory problems. But, with treatment, and the elimination of the cause of the problem, you can lessen the damage to the lungs," Birkett said.

Dr. Mark Villeveuve, pulmonary and critical care specialist, said, "The current Pulmonary Function Lab provides a comprehensive system for the accurate diagnosis of pulmonary disease."

"The new equipment gives us the ability to diagnose and monitor treatment effects to a much greater degree than the prior equipment in the lab. This will benefit patients not only in the diagnosing of pulmonary disease but also in monitoring treatment of disease."

Birkett noted that the purchase of the sophisticated equipment is an additional effort to establish St. Mary Hospital as a center for pulmonary excellence in the area.

The house was built by Plymouth Township firefighter Randy Maycock, with help from some volunteers. The DDA paid for materials with donations from various downtown merchants. "It's a Santa condo," Guile said — complete with gutters, insulation, heating, a fireplace and electrical outlets.

Santa will be at the park through Dec. 23.

On Sunday, Plymouth employees wanting to take advantage of Employee Discount Day should get cards at the chamber of commerce office that entitle them to get discounts at participating stores.

Also, in a program starting Sunday and running through Dec. 24, a DDA representative will give away random free gifts to downtown shoppers.

"We were discussing a unique way to show area shoppers that merchants really appreciate their support during the year," Guile said.

"The downtown merchants felt that the best way to thank them would be to give them a gift during the holiday season."

Board ponders 'politically correct' reading test

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Public school 11th graders will try out a reading comprehension test next year requiring them to compare the ideas in different articles, not just know their content.

But a few members of the State Board of Education worry aloud that the reading passages smack of liberal "political correctness" and lack the literary depth of the classics.

"This is the next generation of MEAP (Michigan Educational Assessment Program)," said Dr. Robert Schiller, superintendent of public instruction. "It's going to be called the High School Proficiency Test."

"We're going to ask students to do more than regurgitate information. They have to absorb and process information."

Board members Wednesday examined a model of the reading ("Communications Arts") test with three articles. First was "The Loudest Cheer," about deaf Montreal Expos baseball player Curtis Pride, from a 1994 Sports Illustrated magazine; the second was the 1877 address by Chief Joseph of the Nez Perce Indians in Washington, D.C., about his tribe's maltreatment by a series of federal officials; the third, "Heroes," was about four women who had performed daring rescues, from a 1994 Woman's Day magazine.

Among the 15 comparative questions: What quality describes key people in all three selections? ("Persistent, defiant, obedient, observant.") How did being disappointed by those who should have been supportive affect Pride and Chief Joseph? The women in "Heroes" differed from Curt Pride and Chief Joseph because their actions had to be: "A) Spontaneous. B) Foolish. C) Continuous. D) Self-serving."

In addition, students will write an "extended response" essay using evidence from all three selections to support their conclusions.

Tests will be scored by a private company, Schiller said. Students and teachers will receive an analysis of the students' strengths and weaknesses but not the marked-up test sheet. Volunteer schools will administer the tests next year, but scores will not be published.

"I see politically correct usage," said board member Marilyn Lundy, R-Detroit, pointing to the adulation given a handicapper, an Indian and four women. "It hit me in the face."

"In my day," she added, "you got the test back and could see where you were weak. I just wonder if parents aren't going to come back — and sue . . ."

"There's a very touchy community relations problem," added member Kathleen Straus, D-Detroit.

The lack of classics bothered member Gary Wolfram, R-Hilldale, economics professor at a private college.

"You could never have read 'Paradise Lost' or 'Billy Budd' or 'Huck Finn' or 'Black Beauty' and pass this test — easily," he said.

Wolfram's suggestions: "Require some sense of literature. Use problems with literature instead of the Reader's Digest that we could read in the bathroom. Why use something they can read in the bathroom? There should be a shelf of books that's not based on do you feel . . ."

Math test to gauge quality of thinking

"The math test is very challenging, very rigorous," said Michigan's school chief, superintendent of public instruction Robert Schiller.

He was telling the State Board of Education about the High School Proficiency Test that will be tried out next year on 11th-grade students.

Students will be graded not only on whether they got the right answer "but also on the quality of your thinking as it is reflected in your explanations," say the directions.

This sample requires not only a computation but setting up an equation:

"A basketball player earned three times as much money this year as last year. If his contract this year was for $1.5 million, how much did he earn last year?"

"A) $300,000. B) $500,000. C) $750,000. D) $450,000."

The correct answer is B, $500,000.

The next sample requires not just getting the correct answer but setting up a series leading to the answer.

"Jasmine is doing pushups as part of her exercise program. She did 2 the first day, 3 the second day, and 5 the third day. Each day she wants to do as many pushups as she did on the previous two days combined.

"Based on the information above, how many pushups would she have do on the sixth day? Extend the pattern through day six to support your answer." The pattern: 2, 3, 5, 8, 13, 21. Jasmine Owners thrilled with success of new metaphysical center

BY LINDA ANN CHOMEN
SPECIAL WRITER

When Heart Light, a metaphysical center, opened its doors a year ago, most business analysts would not have given its owners good odds for survival.

But owners Tillie Van Sickle of Westland, Pene Murdoch of Novi and Diana Kropiewnick of South Lyon are having the last laugh.

On a recent Saturday afternoon, the business at 819 N. Mill, in Plymouth's Old Village business section, had a nonstop flow of customers streaming through in search of New Age books, tapes, candles, incense, jewelry, Tarot cards and crystals.

The business is also hosting an all-day program Saturday featuring author Annie Kirkwood, who will speak on receiving messages from Mother Mary. She will be at the Quality Inn at 1-275 and Ann Arbor Road from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Advance tickets are $49 from Heart Light or $55 at the door.

"Pene and I met in a yoga class," said Van Sickle. "We decided to start a group to discuss metaphysical topics 1 1/2 years ago. You could go into a bookstore and buy these books, but there wasn't anyone there who could answer your questions, so we decided to open our own business."

In January 1993, the three fledgling entrepreneurs began looking for supplies and making plans. All are single parents employed full time as secretaries and bookkeepers, so starting a new business from scratch wasn't easy.

A lot of hard work combined with their personal savings went into opening the business. They even assembled the furniture they bought in boxes to save money.

"We've never done anything like this before, so I took a six-week class on how to start a new business," Van Sickle said. "We like the Plymouth area because it's a quaint little town. They're open to new ideas," said the county accounting employee who works at Detroit Metro Airport.

A Westland resident for 16 years, Van Sickle became interested in astrology, reincarnation and her own spiritual growth more than 20 years ago.

In describing the start of the new business, she said "the idea was to provide New Age books and tapes, workshops, classes and a place where someone could come to get everything they needed and ask questions."

The 40-something group realize that many people think that the new business is associated with the occult — which they insist it is not.

"We're non-denominational," she said. "We believe in God, one God that covers everybody and is involved with everything."

Van Sickle, who serves on the board of the Wayne-Westland Parents Without Partners Chapter and the Wayne County Employees Association, said that the partners didn't run into any major obstacles in opening the business.

When the planned purchase of a metaphysical shop that was to be closed fell through, the trio found another location the next day.

"We weren't worried about starting a new business in this economic climate. We trust in God that all things will be provided," she said.

The book room boasts shelves of materials dealing with self-help, psychology, healing, herbs, aroma therapy, UFOs, astrology, near-death experiences and angels. Readings are also offered during business hours by Susan Austin of Plymouth and Myra Walton of Southfield. Special events like an angel workshop with psychic artist Elaine Ulrich generate more interest.

"We call it an enlightenment center," said Murdoch. "We're growing slowly but surely."

The name Heart Light was picked because "it's a very metaphysical name," Murdoch added.

"We want to be able to use our energy and love to help people bring their consciousness to a higher level."

Mark Andrews of Redford Township offers mediation classes on Tuesday nights and readings by appointment.

Heart Light's hours are noon to 7 p.m. Tuesday through Friday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday. The phone number is 416-5200.

Fall's a good time to have heating-cooling equipment serviced

About 55 percent of American homeowners have their heating-cooling equipment professionally serviced at least once a year, according to a recent survey of homeowners across the country by Honeywell Inc., which makes a variety of electronic heating-cooling controls.

Early fall is the most popular time for most homeowners to schedule tuneups, with many contractors advertising inspection specials at this time of the year.

What about the 45 percent of homeowners who neglect annual maintenance?

Most service contractors will confirm that about 75 percent of all problems could have been avoided with regular maintenance, according to Tom Leckie of Redford, vice president of Bergstrom's Inc., a heating, plumbing and air conditioning company in Livonia.

Neglecting annual maintenance can cause:

- Fuel bills to rise as much as 10-

15 percent because of inefficient operation.

■ Accelerated equipment wear. Annual maintenance extends equipment life as much as 20-30 percent. This translates into an additional 5-10 years of furnace or boiler life.

■ Life-threatening exposure to deadly carbon monoxide gas, which can seep into the home from small cracks in a heat exchanger or problems with the flue system. Hundreds of people lose their lives in the United States each year in these tragedies. A trained service technician knows how to spot danger signs in the system.

Incomplete fuel combustion and high flue gas temperatures are the main causes of low heating efficiency. A competent service technician will perform a variety of tests to measure the combustion efficiency, both before and after tuning it up.

The service technician should also clean and check the burners, combustion chamber, heat exchanger surfaces and flue pipe.

Pumps and fans should be lubricated as necessary. For boilers, the technician should take time to remove sediment from boiler and steam lines, as well as check the fan thermostat on warm air systems. Otherwise, the fan may operate longer than necessary, wasting energy.

Modern heating equipment is very sophisticated. The well-equipped service technician has electronic measuring devices and tools to properly service the units.

Even with proper maintenance, a furnace or air conditioner will last only so long — about 20 years, according to Leckie. However, many homeowners opt to replace them before that time because of the energy savings with the newer, more efficient units.

The minimum efficiency level of today's new furnaces is 79-80 percent. That's enough in fuel savings over an older furnace to pay for the new furnace in six or seven years in most homes, says Leckie.

Another popular energy-saving device is the programmable electronic thermostat, which automatically lowers the temperature when the house is unoccupied or during the middle of the night. These can pay for themselves in only a year or two.

More and more homeowners are using annual service policies to ensure that their heating and cooling systems get proper maintenance, said Leckie.

Libertarians keep state ballot slot

STAFF WRITER

For Libertarian Jon Coon, the news was good but not great.

The third party U.S. Senate candidate drew nearly 128,000 votes and 4.5 percent of the total in his bid against GOP winner Spencer Abraham and Democrat Bob Carr on Nov. 8.

"We needed 1 percent to stay on the ballot and 5 percent to have primary status," Coon said from his Ferndale headquarters. "We easily preserved our ballot status."

Michigan law requires a party to draw 1 percent in order to stay on the next election ballot without conducting a petition drive.

If their candidate at the top of the ticket had drawn 5 percent, Libertarians would have been eligible to conduct a ballot primary in August of 1996, like the Republicans and Democrats. Instead, Libertarians must continue to nominate all their candidates at a convention. That was the disappointing news to Coon.

"We heard exit pollings that had us in double-digits. We knew in some precincts we had 20 percent of the vote. In others, we had half of one percent. We're analyzing the precinct-by-precinct figures to figure out why," said the former timber dealer from rural Shiawassee County.

Other Libertarian candidates, however, received only token vote totals.

"We haven't filed our federal report yet, but we raised $200,000. That's more than we've ever raised," Coon said.

Will Coon stay active in the Libertarian cause?

"We're going to target a race for '96. We'll start cranking up the machinery by the end of the month. We'll decide in the next few days what to run for. It might be a congressional seat," he said.

Libertarians are against big government. They generally appeal to people who are (1) liberal on social issues like regulation and abortion but (2) conservative on fiscal and foreign policy issues.

This year, Coon's campaign benefitted from gun owners' groups and hunters who were sore at Democrat Carr's support of what they consider a restrictive federal gun policy.

Libertarians battered the major party candidates on radio talk shows on that issue. Coon's lawn and street corner signs were in hunter's orange.

Canton student wins competition

James Carnes of Canton, a senior studying industrial design at the University of Michigan's School of Art, recently put his U-M studies to the test and designed a shoe for rock climbing and hiking.

Carnes entered that design in Adidas' international competition, and came away with the top cash prize, a summer internship at the firm's Design Center in Portland, Ore., and a chance for a job with the company after graduation in 1995.

Carnes' winning entry was the result of his work in his individualized studies with Alfredo Montalvo during U-M's winter 1994 term.

Carnes' decision to design a shoe for rock climbing stemmed from his interest and participation in the sport.

His mission was to create a shoe that would meet the highly specialized requirements of the sport and cater to the safety of the climber. At the same time, he recognized that similar outdoor activities such as hiking and mountain biking have two things in common with rock climbing — the earth and the body.

"It implies, then," Carnes said, "that within the overlap, there exists the potential for the design of a type of equipment that will integrate rock climbing with other outdoor activities to increase involvement in the sport."

Carnes' design incorporates a detachable sole for hiking, revealing the smoother sole used in climbing.

Detroit Bagel Factory held up two times

By TEDD SCHNEIDER
 STAFF WRITER

A bagel factory bandit is rolling in dough after two armed robberies of the same bakery this month.

Detectives have no suspects and few leads to work with in their investigation of the Nov. 1 and 8 holdups at the Detroit Bagel Factory store, 29235 Seven Mile at Middlebelt in Livonia.

Investigators believe there is a "strong possibility" the same man committed the robberies, despite slightly different descriptions from witnesses in each case, said Livonia Police detective Lt. Pete Kunst.

They have released two computer composite sketches based on the descriptions.

Anyone with information may call Livonia Police at 421-2900.

"The physical characteristics are almost identical," Kunst said.

The culprit in both incidents was described as a stocky black man in his 20s with a shaved head.

The bagel store lost a combined $2,241 in the incidents, one of which occurred before noon and the other occurred after 9 p.m.

Nobody was injured, police said.

Police believe the gunman may have had information about store policies and practices.

In the Nov. 1 robbery, the assailant entered the store at 9:20 p.m. through an unlocked back door, witnesses told police. He pulled a silver, semiautomatic handgun and demanded money.

He ran away with a bank bag containing $1,926. A week later, the gunman entered the front of the store at 11:15 a.m., put a small handgun to a clerk's chest and fled with $315 from the cash register.

In both cases, police said, the gunman ran south toward an adjacent apartment complex.

Although no getaway vehicle was seen, witnesses reported a blue pickup truck leaving the complex lot immediately after the second robbery.

"They (students) are asked about their own prejudices and feelings."

"I share a lot of your concerns," added member Dorothy Beardmore, R-Rochester. "There should be something that indicates they've read a lot of literature."

Replied Schiller, whose staff prepared the sample test:

"This is a reading assessment, not a literature assessment. There is no core of books that all students have read. The passage they read should be something they're not familiar with. If it is (familiar), it's going to bias the test.

"We're trying to create a level playing field to gauge their reading comprehension."

Added board member Gumeindo Salas, D-East Lansing, whose re-election bid failed Nov. 8: "Be very, very cautious on integrating literature into the writing test. Don't mandate a canon of literature to the local communities, or else the state will begin to determine what should or should not be read."

3. "February — 3,240.

4. "March — 3,140.

5. "April — 3,090.

Choose the correct answer: A) 1,545. B) 2,340. C) 3,040. D) 3,065.

Eleventh-graders should be able to solve the following problem.

"The following is a list of ingredients needed to make 2 loaves of bread: water 1/2 cup; milk 1/2 cup; flour 2 1/2 cups; sugar 2 tablespoons; yeast 1 1/4 teaspoons.

"How much flour is needed to make 3 loaves of bread? A) 3 cups. B) 3 3/4 cups. C) 4 cups. D) 4 1/4 cups."

Detroit Diesel Corporation in Redford, United Auto Workers ratify four-year pact

Detroit Diesel Corporation and United Auto Workers Local 163 have ratified a four-year master agreement by 84 percent of those voting.

The new agreement covers 2,125 employees represented by the UAW at Detroit Diesel's Redford Township manufacturing facility. The contract will expire Aug. 30, 1998.

"We are certainly pleased with the agreement," said Roger Penske, chairman of Detroit Diesel. "It provides the foundation for further enhancing our operating efficiencies while maintaining the excellent relationship we have established with the UAW."

"Our membership has shown its confidence in our cooperative direction by approving the agreement," said Jim Brown, UAW Local 163 shop chairman. "The agreement provides for an increased wage and benefit package and strengthens our competitiveness in the marketplace."

Detroit Diesel Corporation is engaged in the design, manufacture, sale and service of heavy-duty diesel and alternative fuel engines and engine parts. The company offers a complete line of diesel engines from five to 2,500 horsepower for the on-highway truck, coach and bus, construction, mining and industrial, power generation, marine, and military markets.

The company serves these markets directly and through a worldwide network of more than 2,500 authorized distributors and dealers. The company and its re-manufacturing and distributor subsidiaries have more than 5,200 employees.

Detroit Diesel had 1993 revenues of $1.6 billion and net earnings of $20.7 million or $1.17 per share. For the first six months of 1994, revenues were $8.18 million and net earnings were $17.3 million, or 74 cents per share.

12 alternatives to lashing out at your child.

The next time everyday pressures build up to the point where you feel like lashing out — STOP! And try any of these simple alternatives.

You'll feel better . . . and so will your child.

1. Take a deep breath. And another. Then remember you are the adult . . .
2. Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child is about to hear.
3. Press your lips together and count to 10. Or better yet, to 20.
4. Put your child in a time-out chair. (Remember the rule: one time-out minute for each year of age.)
5. Put yourself in a time-out chair. Think about why you are angry: Is it your child, or is your child simply a convenient target for your anger?
6. Phone a friend.
7. If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a walk.
8. Take a hot bath or splash cold water on your face.
9. Hug a pillow.
10. Turn on some music. Maybe even sing along.
11. Pick up a pencil and write down as many helpful words as you can think of. Save the list.
12. Write for parenting information: Parenting, Box 2888, Chicago, IL 60680.

Stop using words that hurt. Start using words that help.

Grant will aid MS Society

The Michigan Chapter of the National Multiple Sclerosis Society received a $36,644 federal AmeriCorps grant to implement "A Bridge to Independence," a service program focusing on support of independent living for people in Michigan with multiple sclerosis.

"One of the key points in the MS Society's mission is to train staff and volunteers to improve the quality of life for people with MS and their families," said director Rose Taylor. "Our goal is to assist them in becoming more productive and independent. 'A Bridge to Independence' does all these things."

The program will focus on three services: in-home friendly visits, telephone reassurance service and PAVE (Project Access, Visibility and Education).

Friendly visits will target people with MS who live independently, yet still need help with daily tasks. Trained assistants will visit clients in their homes and help with chores, errands, shopping and other activities.

The telephone reassurance service will expand the chapter's current "Friendly Listening" program to include additional volunteers and reach more clients.

PAVE is a community-based program in which volunteers in the field will help educate commercial business people about accessibility needs.

The chapter is currently recruiting seven part-time employees (two project coordinators and five AmeriCorps Independence Agents) to work in the metro Detroit and west Michigan regions. AmeriCorps participants will receive a cash stipend and an educational award in return for completing a 900-hour term.

Application forms for those interested are available at the chapter headquarters in Southfield (26111 Evergreen, Suite 100).

New features shine at Festival of Lights

The annual Christmas light display is open 6-10 p.m. Nov. 23 to Jan. 8 at Domino's Farms on Earhart Road off Plymouth Road, about one-half mile east of US-23 in Ann Arbor.

Admission is $5 per car with proceeds benefiting local charities.

Two new displays have been added this year — "The Annunciation" and "The Presentation" themes that help create a complete narrative of the Christmas story. The Annunciation is the moment in the Christmas story when the angel Gabriel declares to Mary that she will become the mother of Christ. The Presentation is the scene where Mary presents the Christ-child to St. Simeon in the temple.

"These two new sets now tell the complete story of the birth of Christ," says Halthem K. Sarafa, executive director of Christmas Celebration Inc., the nonprofit sponsor of the Christmas light display.

"There is a better flow to tell the Christmas story and so our scenic drive is now a dramatic, visual narrative from beginning to end, from the announcement to the presentation," Sarafa said.

Among the other sets along the scenic drive are Joseph leading Mary on the donkey in the flight into Egypt, a depiction of the city of Bethlehem with shepherds and sheep milling around the hillside, 30-foot Wise Men on camels and some scenes with messages such as "The Lord Has Come" and "Blessed Christmas."

The scenic drive also includes lighted tunnels, some adorned with angels. Most of the scenes are 15-30 feet high and almost all have a religious significance.

On Nov. 25, visitors to the light display will see some 15 hot air balloons light up the skies between 6-6:30 p.m. In case of inclement weather, the balloon glow will be Nov. 26.

The balloons, illuminated by the flames from burners, are intended to represent the Christmas luminaries that are a Christian tradition, said Sarafa.

Every day of the week, beginning Nov. 25 visitors finishing the scenic drive can come indoors to Lobby B of Domino's Pizza World Headquarters and walk through the Celebration of Trees, an exhibit of 40 trees, each with its own decor theme.

On Fridays and Saturdays beginning Nov. 25 and continuing through Jan. 8, an arts and crafts show will be open from 6-10 p.m. About 35 different juried artists, will sell their works.

Also on Fridays and Saturdays, a Christmas gift shop will be open with more than 1,500 items such as ornaments, religious Christmas cards and quilts imported from Honduras. The quilts were handmade at a mission in Honduras which Domino's owner Tom Monaghan has supported over the years. Proceeds from the quilt sales will go to the mission while proceeds from all other sales will go toward charities selected to benefit from the light display.

Also new this year is an outdoors live Nativity scene provided by members of the Dexter Community Players and other groups.

Over the past two years, more than $160,000 has been distributed to more than 130 charities and service organizations, according to Sarafa.

County LightFest set to illuminate Hines

Suburban drivers can see "the Midwest's largest drive-through holiday light show" on four miles of Hines Drive in the Middle Rouge Parkway.

The second annual Wayne County LightFest started Monday and will continue through Jan. 1 (except Dec. 25). Hours are 7-10 p.m.

LightFest traffic will enter Hines Drive at Merriman Road in Westland (approximately 2.5 miles south of I-96) and proceed one way, eastbound, exiting at Warren Avenue just east of Telegraph in Dearborn Heights.

A donation of $5 per car will help raise funds to keep the parks operating and maintained. To arrange bus tours, call the Wayne County Park System at (313) 261-1990.

Last year's LightFest drew 63,000 cars and almost 300,000 people. Food concessions and photos with Santa Claus will be available for all visitors at the Warrendale picnic area, according to Wayne County Executive Edward H. McNamara.

"LightFest is a special way for families to celebrate the holidays and welcome the new year," said McNamara. "And thanks to several Detroit area corporations, we've got more in store for this year's visitors."

Blue Care Network of Southeast Michigan donated the largest free-standing display ever created — a four-story poinsettia wreath display. It uses more than 30,000 watts of electricity and required an entire semi-truck to ship.

Ameritech Corp. is sponsor of a spectacular American flag with colored rockets bursting around it.

Also new this year is an antique car parade led by Santa himself, sponsored by AAA Michigan, and a giant snowflake passage at the entrance which funnels visitors into the show, donated by Friends of Wayne County Parks.

Detroit Edison, NTH Consultants Ltd. and Warren Valley Banquet Center are also display sponsors this year.

FAMILY ROOM

KAREN MEIER

A child's trust: Don't let it die

Intended for the Family Room column to always be like its namesake, safe and comfortable to be in. I told you when I first started writing this column that what you'd find here is "just what you'd expect to find in that room in the house where the family gathers. Comfortable things. Pleasant things. And if not altogether pleasant, at least kind of funny."

I assured you there would be no harsh or sad things here. Today I'm going back on my word. And I hope I never, ever have to do this again.

Before I say what I'm going to say though, I'll tell you straight out that this was the hardest thing I've ever written. The hardest thing I've ever had to think about. But think I did. And wept. Just like the rest of America.

I believe we've just witnessed one of the darkest moments of our time. There can be nothing darker. There just simply cannot be anything darker than a mother taking away the sunshine, the moonlight, the very breath, the very lives of her children. Two boys, one a toddler and the other a baby.

This moment of darkness was documented well. She saw that. The pictures, the videotapes, the pleas broadcast over the whole land. We were gripped by her terrible loss, the awful search. And then came the unspeakable horror. Many felt instant blind hatred for her at that moment. And beyond that hatred for her, they felt embarrassment for themselves, to be somehow associated with her because she, too, was part of the human race. She, too, was a parent. She, too, was a mom.

But she was not my concern. I haven't a shred

When the gates at the Michigan State Fair Grounds open at 11 a.m. Friday for the 47th annual Metro Detroit Junior Group Goodwill Antiques Show, it will mark the end of a busy 12 months for Cathe Layman.

The Plymouth Township resident - along with Linda McCormick of Bloomfield Hills and Peg Noble of Grosse Pointe Shores - is co-chairing this year's show, which benefits Goodwill Industries' educational and vocational programs for people with disabilities and other barriers to employment.

"I can't imagine how many hours I've put in," said Layman. "It's been every day, a part of every day since last year and five-six hours a day most days this fall. When you're not having planning meetings, you're going to canning and baking meetings."

"It's amazing how it all comes together."

The show will be Friday through Sunday, Nov. 18-20, at the State Fair Grounds. It will feature 50 selected exhibitors from throughout the East Coast and Midwest who specialize in 18th- and 19th-century furniture, art, rugs, glass, silver, brass, pewter, prints, paintings and nautical items.

In addition to the antiques, there will be the traditional Goodwill Booth, featuring donated and refinished furniture and collectibles; a pantry; bakery; a boutique; and a silent auction, staffed by Junior Group members.

Natural choice

It seems only natural that Layman be involved with the show. Her mother was an antiques dealer for 25 years and Layman "grew up around a house full of antiques and with a schedule of antiques shows in my head." Layman's mother also encouraged her to collect what interested her. She started with miniatures and later collected antique water carafes.

Over the past several years she has gathered a large collection of birdhouses, old and new, and old stitcheries with special sayings done in cross-stitch, embroidery and needlepoint that are in practically every room of the Layman house, including the bathroom.

"My husband and I still have the first 'antique' we bought from my mother - a lovely desk which she called a 'Friday desk' because it was made with several different kinds of wood which happened to be left over or available at the end of the week," she said. "We lovingly stripped and refinished it as newlyweds, and it has held a special place in our home over the past 24 years."

A native of Marion, Ind., Layman taught educable mentally impaired children for two years before moving with her husband, Fred, to the Detroit area. She traded in her textbooks to raise their two children - Timothy, now a sophomore at Western Michigan University, and Elisabeth, a senior at Plymouth Canton High School - and immersed herself in school, church and volunteer activities.

Following in her mother's and grandmother's footsteps, she is a member of the PEO sisterhood, a philanthropic women's education organization. She is currently the Detroit chapter's vice president and next year's president.

"It's something close to my heart because it's for and about women," said Layman of the more-than-100-year-old organization.

She also is an elder at St. Timothy's Presbyterian Church in Livonia and active in the Plymouth Symphony League.

She became active in the Junior Group of Goodwill some five years ago, introduced to it by a fellow PEO member from Farmington Hills. The friend had been a member for 30 years and Layman recalled when she chaired the antiques show. Layman remembers what the friend told her when she joined.

Being a worker

"My friend told me when I joined that this was not a sit-back group, that you have to be a worker, and I made up my mind from the start I'd be a worker," she said. "That's what was best for the group and best for me."

Layman was a probationary member when she worked on a committee for the 1989 show and has worked on it ever since. This is her first time as a chair and the first time for a group member from the western suburbs to co-chair the

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Lorene,
I have always wanted to have my handwriting analyzed and hope you can get to my letter. I would appreciate if you could give me any good books you recommend. Also, since I find this very interesting

I've noticed that my handwriting changes to a certain degree depending on my mood. Sometimes my writing is bigger or smaller. Can you tell me what that means?

I am 32 years old and just got married for the first time two months ago. I have no children, and I've been working for the same company for 15 years. I'd like to do something else and am at a point in my life where I have a lot of questions on what I want to do in the future as for having children, keep working, etc. Thank you!

S.F., Novi

Writing size can change for various reasons. I am reluctant to comment without seeing actual samples of the handwriting.

Today's large size tells us we are analyzing a young woman who is restless and seeks change and diversion in her daily routine. She dislikes being confined to small areas. She is people-oriented and needs the freedom to socialize and move around. She often craves greater excitement and a dull routine would probably drive her bananas.

In the business world she would not be content in a sedentary role. Her work reflects initiative. She does not need to be told what to do. She can get right down to business, handling tasks in an efficient manner. Good equipment is important. She is capable of surveying large issues and does not lose sight of the details.

This is an achiever who has a direct and resourceful approach to life. A zest for living has her setting her sights toward high achievement. Optimism often rides with her. Strong determination and tenacity keep her on target. Interests appear to be strongest in the material and physical areas.

Seemingly, she is attempting to control something in her life. She wants to be better and insists on trying to improve.

Tangled lines, such as these, strongly suggest the writer has too many irons in the fire at this time. Does she have difficulty saying no to others? Some stress could be eliminated, if she would prioritize and get better organized.

She is aware of what society expects of her and she keeps herself within behavioral standards of friends and/or those who mean the most to her.

There is reticence in this handwriting. She is not going to tell us anything she does not want known. In addition, she has learned to rationalize rather successfully when things do not work out as she had hoped they might.

A desire to lead and be admired by others cannot be missed. She is quite interested in the impression she makes on people. At times she may drive to gain her own way.

For those interested, here is a list of graphology books approved by the American Association of Handwriting Analysts:

- "Personality in Handwriting" by Alfred Mendel, "The Graphology Workbook" by Margaret Gullan-Whur, "You and Your Private I" by Jane Green, "You Are What You Write" by Huntington Hartford, "Handwriting: An Analysis Through Its Symbolism" by Rudolph S. Hearn, "Getting Control of Your Life" by Leslie King and C. Petersen, "Handwriting, a Key to Personality" by Klara Roman, "Graphology Based on Analytical Psychology" by Anis Teillard, "Analysis of Handwriting" by H.J. Jacoby, "Knowing Your Child Through Handwriting" by Shirli Solomon, "Psychology of Handwriting" and "Handwriting Tells" by Nadya Olyanova and "Handwriting Analysis: The Complete Basic Book" by Karen Amend and Mary Ruiz.

If you would like to have your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please use a full sheet of white, unlined paper, writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and full signature are helpful. And objective feedback is always welcome.

Soap star draws curious crowd in Livonia

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Just a day after he was decked by wife Lois for committing bigamy, dashing and rich Ned Ashton (Wally Kurth) of "General Hospital" had to face an inquisitive audience of 200 at Wonderland Mall in Livonia with fellow daytime hunk Trucker Mackenzie (Robert Tyler) from "Loving."

Screaming fans drilled Kurth about his character's future with the Brooklyn-bred Lois, whom he married under the guise of bar singer Eddie Maine. The conniving Katherine conned him into matrimony as an alternative to spilling the beans about his family's involvement in a death.

The big question of the afternoon was if he was ever going to patch things up with his true love Lois, played by his real-life girlfriend and "Loving" veteran Rena Sofer.

"I sure hope so; it doesn't look good at this point. Goodbye, my Coney Island baby," he said sitting on a stool high above the crowd.

About his affair with Sofer, he added with a laugh, "We get along better than Lois and Ned at this point."

Kurth, dressed in well-pressed khaki pants and shirt, chuckled when asked if he could really sing and broke into an Italian opera piece. Yes, Kurth really can sing. He and his band are releasing an album early next year.

"Does it really look like I'm faking it? I'm not that good (of an actor)," he said.

Offscreen, his music, Sofer and his 9-year-old son take up most of his time. In preparation for the album's release, Kurth and his band have been performing at festivals around California. He's delighted to play a musician on TV, but he's unsure whether he prefers the filthy rich young executive Ned or the leather-pants wearing Eddie Maine.

"That's a confusing one. I'd rather be Eddie Maine but once I got back in the double-breasted suit, oh," he said grabbing his shirt, "I felt like I'm home."

Tyler of "Loving" is just as rugged off screen as his quiet, laid-back character Trucker. With disheveled hair and a worn-out light blue jean jacket, Tyler answered questions sitting on his bar stool with one leg propped up.

Although he's still very much a main character, Tyler couldn't offer any glimpses into Trucker's future.

the event. Most have come from the group's core areas — Detroit, Grosse Pointe and Birmingham/Bloomfield.

"These aren't many of us over here, period; that's why I'm always looking for members," Layman said.

If that isn't enough to keep her busy, Layman became a fashion consultant. She and a partner have showings of fashions four times a year and present the season's line by appointment to their clients.

"I have found that it's certainly a challenge to have a business in the home, but enjoy the flexibility of my own business," she said. "I've met so many wonderful people during the past several years that, although my schedule is probably too full and definitely too hectic, I wouldn't know where to begin to cut back."

As for now, Layman is focusing on the Antiques Show, which will raise more than $90,000 for Goodwill.

"I'll be there every day — morning, noon and night — but the past chairs have told me this is the best part; you're just there," she said.

The 47th Annual Metro Detroit Junior Group Goodwill Antiques Show will be Friday through Sunday, Nov. 18-20, at the Michigan State Fair Grounds, Woodward at Eight Mile Road, Detroit. Show hours are 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. General admission tickets are $6, available at the door.

of concern or compassion for her nor do I have a willingness to understand her. There is nothing anyone, any lawyer, any psychologist, could say in her defense that would get through to me. Nothing. Those were her babies. They were like all children that age, completely defenseless and completely trusting — the very qualities that endear babies and young children even to the hardest of hearts. Or so we thought.

Slow, stinging tears have come so easily in these past few days. I have gathered my own children in my arms and hugged them close, closer than I have in a long while.

Hospice Services to hold open house

Its been around since 1981 as Hospice Services of Western Wayne County Inc., but now as Community Hospice Services, the organization will introduce the public to its new Westland office at an open house Sunday, Nov. 20.

The open house will be 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Westland office, 32932 Warren Road, at Venoy Road.

Community Hospice moved from its former office space at Garden City Hospital's Harrison Education Building in August to its Westland site and at the same time changed its name.

"Our new name better reflects our commitment to the communities we serve," said Maureen Butrico, executive director for Community Hospice Services. "We found that the old name implied that we served only western Wayne County, when we also serve southern Oakland and eastern Washtenaw counties as well."

Community Hospice Services began as a nonprofit, all-volunteer hospice and has gone from serving an average of three patients daily to 38-40 patients a day. It has two offices — in Westland and at 127 S. Main St., Plymouth — and offers a full-range of patient and family services.

For more information, call Community Hospice Services at (313) 522-4244.

Supreme court eyes judges' case rulings

STAFF WRITER

The Michigan Supreme Court is studying whether one area judge is too lenient and two others are too harsh in handing out prison sentences.

At issue: Did the judges have "substantial and compelling" reasons for departing from — up or down — from state sentencing guidelines?

■ Oakland Circuit Judge Edward Sosnick was accused of "undermining" law enforcement by giving a convicted drug dealer only half the minimum possible sentence. Arguing that view was Robert C. Williams of the Oakland prosecutor's office.

■ Wayne Circuit Judge Michael Talbot, already famed for having his lengthy "basketball score" sentences overturned by appellate courts, was accused of "goad[ing] this court, seeing how far he can push this court" by giving a 60-120-year sentence when guidelines call for 10-25 years. That view was advanced by Northville attorney Carolyn A. Blanchard.

Tough sentences by Talbot and former Judge Richard Cunningham were argued in a third case. The cases involving Talbot, who was raised in Livonia, are politically hot because he was Gov. John Engler's unsuccessful 1992 candidate for the Supreme Court. The high court may not rule before fall of 1996, when at least one justice who heard oral arguments Thursday will be gone. Justice Robert Griffin, a Republican who has supported Talbot in the past, will retire at the end of the year. Justice Conrad Mallett Jr., a Democrat, recently won re-election to the high court.

'Be responsible'

After Southfield drug dealer Warren Fields pleaded guilty in 1991 to possession with intent to deliver between 50 and 225 grams of cocaine, Judge Sosnick gave him a five-year minimum sentence. The law specifies a 10-year minimum but allows less if the judge finds "substantial and compelling reasons."

Prosecutor Richard Thompson appealed the sentence as too light, and the Court of Appeals reversed Sosnick. So now Fields is appealing to the state's highest court. Ironically, Sosnick, of Bloomfield Township, was an assistant prosecutor before becoming a trial judge. Sosnick was recently re-elected to a six-year term on the Oakland County Circuit Court.

"As a general practitioner," said defense lawyer Stuart A. Young of Birmingham, "I would like to be able to advise my client what he should do (plead guilty and hope for a lighter sentence or risk a trial)."

"My client wants to know, 'What are substantial and compelling reasons?' And that's a problem," said Young. "He never sold to anybody, other than the undercover officer. He gave the name of the guy he got it from."

"It's a typical low- to mid-level case," said assistant prosecutor Williams, arguing for the standard sentence. "He was higher than a street-level dealer. He had a mobile phone and a pager."

"He thought he could do better in front of Judge Sosnick if he pleaded guilty and tried to show rehabilitation. We believe strongly he (Fields) should be responsible for his action. He gave no indication of any offer to cooperate."

Commented Justice Charles Levin: "Clearly the Legislature has stated a policy and then stated an exception in the vaguest possible way."

'Most horrendous'

"This defendant prowled the community looking for small bags of garbage, indicating a senior citizen," said assistant Wayne County prosecutor Carolyn Breen.

She said drew a graphic word picture of Bashara Merriweather, 19, breaking into an 84-year-old Detroit woman's home, smashing a light bulb over her head, demanding money, inserting something in her anus and torturing her buttocks with hot knives when she refused him money.

"This was planned sexual torture," Breen said. "(Sentencing) guidelines don't anticipate this action. These facts indicate a sentence beyond the guidelines."

Defense attorney Blanchard said the guidelines called for 10-25 years. Instead Judge Talbot gave Merriweather 60 to 120 years, longer than he would have to serve on his life sentence (for assault) before he could be eligible for parole.

"Judge Talbot is goading this court, seeing how far he can push this court," Blanchard said. "The Court of Appeals said this is not a proportionate sentence; this is not a reasoned sentence. You have to give a sentence reviewable by a parole board."

Said Justice Patricia Boyle: "The judge is obviously trying to avoid a parole board with this sentence."

"Obviously," replied Blanchard. She said it was Merriweather's first arrest and that he had been acquitted of other charges.

Justice Levin asked prosecutor Breen: "What do you think the lowest sentence should have been?"

Breen: "60 years was proportionate."

Levin: "If the sentence had been 30 to 60, would the prosecutor have appealed?"

Breen: "I don't know what we would have done."

Merriweather is serving 10-15 years for breaking and entering, life for assault and 60-120 for criminal sexual conduct.

'Waste court's time'

Two different judges gave John Henry Houston, 26, sentences of 25-50 years for raping a young cousin — triple the term called for by the sentencing guidelines. Talbot's first sentence was remanded by the Court of Appeals, but Judge Richard Cunningham gave the same sentence in the 1987 Detroit case.

Attorney David A. Moran of the State Appellate Defender's Office protested the length of the sentence and Cunningham's irritated remarks to defense attorney Dennis Shrewsbury of Plymouth: "Whose idea was this to bring in so many witnesses?"

Moran said Cunningham invaded the attorney-client privilege by probing Shrewsbury on who was most responsible for planning Houston's defense.

Assistant Wayne County prosecutor Robert Radnick called Houston "a jailhouse lawyer trying to waste the court's time" with a long list of witnesses and a "rambling filibuster" in remarks to the court.

Wonder of trees offer a new 'leaf' on life

TIMOTHY NOWICKI

One of the reasons my wife and I chose our house was that it had several large trees on the property. Though sunny areas for a garden are limited, we enjoy the shade created by the leaves of the tall trees. I personally enjoy the light pierces a leaf where insects have already taken advantage of that life-giving green.

But as the daylight grows short, the power plants of our energy take a rest. Green takes a back seat to the subordinate colors that were present but never powerful enough to subdue the green. Though their time in the limelight is brief, it is spectacular. We are fortunate to be able to see mosaics of the cathedral in orange, red, yellow and brown; first above and then below.

cathedral-like feeling I get when I walk under their branches any time of the year.

Trees are wonderful to have around any season of the year. Their dark branches laden with snow in winter look like lace. Exposed branches reveal the "skeleton" of the tree and how it gets its characteristic shape.

Flowers and swollen buds mark the onset of another phase in the appearance of a tree and a new "leaf" on life. Leaves begin to grow and mark the start of another round (like the growth rings) of growth. As the longer spring daylight hours arrive, there is more time for the leaves to perform their magic.

When sunlight is interrupted by the green leaves of a tree it creates energy for us all. We may eat the leaves of plants directly, or we may eat an animal that eats the leaves. Either way, we should pay homage to the green leaves because of their life-giving qualities.

If you look up through the trees on a sunny day, it's like looking through stain glass. Several layers of leaves show different degrees of transparency and shades of life giving green. Sometimes the sun-

Just as appealing is the falling of the leaves. When the connection to the skeleton separates, each leaf interrupts the rays of sun in a moving mosaic. Some fall in a direct fashion as though they know where to land in order to complement the others they will join. Others fall in a spiral deciding on their journey where they would like to land. Still others are caught in the wind and travel to areas that need help to complete their work of art.

Leaves forming a patchwork on the ground may appear to some to have completed their job, but the blanket they form continues to serve and save lives. Their layers help trap heat to help animals stay warm in winter, and in spring provide protection and food for the smaller creatures that rely on them.

Though it is a "releaf" not to have to rake them anymore, it is nice to reflect on their value.

Donations

Local charities in need of help

The Christmas shopping season is coming quickly, kicking off in Canton next week with the arrival of Santa at 9 a.m.

Friday, Nov. 25, at a theater on Ford Road.

But before we get too involved in getting that special present for that special person, it's time to think of those less fortunate in our community.

Again this year, the Canton Observer is sponsoring the Cheer Club. Membership is simple. Just drop off unwrapped new toys and packaged food stuffs 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. at our office at 744 Wing St. in Plymouth.

We will turn those items over to the Plymouth-Canton Salvation Army for distribution to the needy.

The Salvation Army is in particular need of food, canned and packaged, to replenish its shelves.

During the Christmas season, the Salvation Army provides about 5,000 articles of clothing, 8,000 toys, and 300 meals to the hungry; delivers 420 food baskets to poor families; and ensures there are beds and shelter for the homeless.

The Observer will start accepting items for the Salvation Army on Friday, Nov. 25. We are one block east of Main Street in downtown Plymouth. Our telephone number is 459-2700.

Ask for Jeff Counts, the editor, or Bridget Moran, office receptionist.

We use the names of Cheer Club members in the newspaper, and we occasionally take photos of those donating.

There is another needy cause. The Plymouth-Canton Clothing Bank is in need of new, warm coats, gloves and boots for young people in the community. Cash is also accepted.

The group stresses that the clothing should be newer. They have a valid point. Teen-agers face intense peer pressure from their friends when it comes to the type of clothing they are wearing.

An out-of-style old coat or sweater sitting in the back of the closet for five years just isn't the clothing item that a teen-age girl or boy would wear with pride.

The Clothing Bank has a dropoff box at Century 21 Suburban, 188 N. Main St., Plymouth. The hours are 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. For more information about donating clothing or money, call Sue Andrews at 455-5880.

Donating to the Cheer Club, Salvation Army and Clothing Bank are ways to ensure that your neighbors will enjoy the holiday season.

It's time to give.

A response

Mr. Mark Tooze's letter (Plymouth Observer, Nov. 10) regarding the "coming out" of a West Middle School teacher poses some very telling questions.

Among them: "I question why the teacher feels the need to come out at all." Why does he feel the need "to bring the issue of his sexual orientation before the public and its children at all?" Why is it necessary "to include references to sexual orientation in contract language?"

Why did the teacher in question grant the article in the Observer as well as the one in The Detroit News? Why did he risk public censure by fleeing the closet in which Mr. Tooze would have preferred him to remain? The answers are made abundantly clear in both articles: To stand as a positive role model for young people, some of whom, statistics assure us, are gay and lesbian; to ensure that gay and lesbian teachers do not have to worry about losing their jobs because of the people they choose to love; to demand the rights of public acceptance accorded our heterosexual counterparts.

Perhaps Mr. Tooze has never felt the sting of blatant discrimination. Perhaps he is not aware that hate and intolerance are the teachings not of the classroom, but of the living room. And I am certain he has never had to wear the ring symbolizing his straight marriage with the fear of being attacked or demeaned. Perhaps if he had, he would not have had to ask "why" so many times. And would not have felt compelled to pen a letter reeking of such heterosexist privilege.

One last thing - Mr. Tooze urges the teacher to focus on "being the best band teacher there is." It might interest him to know that many parents, students and fellow teachers already consider him such. If he would like proof, he should attend one of the many band concerts given at West Middle School throughout the year. I attend them all. You see, I am the teacher's life partner. And I stand with him and by him, public and unashamed, defying the silence people like Mr. Tooze would have us maintain.

Louis Schiavone, Westland

Weapons ordinance

I strongly disagree with Plymouth Township's proposed dangerous weapons ordinance, which would make it illegal to transport firearms or weapons in a car or on a person, concealed or otherwise, in any public place. This broad description would include the public roads that we all use. We are told, "A law like this already exists at the state level; we just want local control."

Well, Michigan state law allows for legitimate uses that the ordinance would not allow. The ordinance would technically prohibit Plymouth Township residents from:

- Bringing a weapon up north to go hunting, or back home when finished.
 - Transporting a legally owned weapon to or from a gunsmith, sporting club, target range, etc.
 - Bringing your new pistol to and from the police station for the mandatory safety inspection. That's right. Residents are required to bring their pistol in for a "safety inspection" by the local police, but would be forbidden by township ordinance to transport it via public roads!
- ... the right of the people to keep and bear arms, shall not be infringed."

How does one exercise his Second Amendment rights if he cannot transport arms onto or off of his property via public roads? By helicopter?

"A weapon," as defined by the proposed ordinance, includes a rather long list, plus the open-ended "anything that has the appearance of a weapon." Could a hammer be used as a weapon? You bet! Screwdriver? Golf club? Lug wrench? Baseball bat?

We are told that no officer interested in keeping his badge would make arrests and confiscate the weapons of lawful gun owners. The ordinance as written, seemingly, would empower him to do so. If abuse of this ordinance is prevented by "non-enforcement," then why have it in the first place? Have we considered Plymouth city residents, being completely surrounded by our fear, our ignorance, and our ordinance? Can those who believe our current government would never violate the rights of law-abiding citizens, speak for the next administration's interpretation, and the next? I'm certain that Americans are penalized every day, because of vague, contradictory, and/or unconstitutional laws that they just don't have the time, inclination, or money to fight.

If the township feels there is a need for a local ordinance, it should be very specific and not openly infringe on rights guaranteed by the state of Michigan and the U.S. Constitution.

Remember, any law that limits the legitimate use and transportation of firearms in our society, only restricts the law-abiding citizens that obey it, and they are not the problem ... are they?

Douglas Hunley, Plymouth

Education drives community

"It is only the ignorant who despise education."
- Publius Syrus

It's American Education Week. We can rag on it as just another promotional week. Or we can seize the moment and rally 'round our local schools as they hoist education's Flag of Learning and Liberty.

The week's theme says it all: "Building the Future, One Student At A Time." It reinforces the value and importance of every child to our nation's well-being.

The theme, as the National School Public Relations Association reminds us, highlights the mantle of responsibility that educators bear as they strive to help kids reach their potential. Implicit is the belief that all children can learn.

The U.S. Department of Education designated the week in 1921 to: boost public awareness of and appreciation for our schools, prompt taxpayers to visit their local schools, build civic and community pride, and inspire support for education.

We echo the perceptible cry of the NSPRA: To make our schools the best they can be requires a commitment from every member of the community - from retirees to parents of school-age kids, from business leaders to school board members.

The American Association of School Administrators released a study that shows Americans think more highly of their local schools than they do of schools in other parts of the country. Familiarity indeed spurs respect.

American Education Week provides a golden opportunity for all of us who cherish the role our schools play in shaping a representative democracy to target the 80 percent of Americans without school-age kids. Winning them over is essential to assuring the future of our schools as the dawn of a new century draws ever closer.

At the same time, we need to enlist our civic and business leaders. We need them to showcase what our schools are doing to educate tomorrow's workforce while providing constructive feedback that speaks to classroom shortcomings.

In short, the schools can't do it alone. They must involve everyone.

In light of American Education Week, local educators would do well to weigh these NSPRA ideas for stimulating the community psyche as they go about the daunting job of molding young minds:

■ Spotlight your alumni. Hold a reunion day, inviting alumni to return to school and talk with students, visit with each other and see what schools are like today.

■ Celebrate cultural diversity. Build bridges of understanding by bringing ethnic groups together to share their heritage through music, food and discussions.

■ Hold a children's summit. Ask parents, businesses and civic leaders to address education reform, changes evolving in our schools and desired pathways to prepare students for the 21st century.

■ Take the school to the community. Hold demonstration classes in shopping malls. Don't limit activities to art displays and musical programs. Show classrooms in action: kindergartners navigating reading readiness, primary students working on computers, vocational students delving into projects, high schoolers debating the merits of a national job corps program.

Remember: It takes the whole community to nurture impressionable youngsters into productive citizens.

POINTS OF VIEW

It's easy — and profitable — being green

The environment, once called a "women's issue," is now a main stream political concern.

Some good ol' boy politicians still grind their molars when steely-eyed, determined female zealots propel the movement to save the trees, the wetlands, wildlife, ozone layer, water system, soil, and the air we breathe.

Pragmatic politicians complain that environmental concerns impede development and, thus, the municipal economy. Many business types say the same.

But Alan Miller and co-author Curtis Moore take a new, global approach to the environment in their recently published book "Green Gold."

"The basis of the book," said Miller, "is that, in the past, environmental regulations were seen as a drag on business. But, increasingly, protecting the environment produces a cleaner, cheaper, more efficient product."

"This is good for the economy in a competitive market. We've fallen behind Germany and Japan, which have profited from strict environmental standards."

"Green Gold" contends it isn't a question of the economy or the environment. It's the economy and the environment. In Japan and Germany, environmental cleanup is seen as an economic harvest.

Miller is a maven on the subject. After graduating from Birmingham Seaholm, he attended Cornell University, majoring in engineering and government. He interned in the Washington offices of the late Sen. Phil Hart and former U.S. Rep. Martha Griffiths.

At the University of Michigan, he earned his joint master's degree in law and public policy. He worked for the Environmental Law Institute in Washington.

Miller, on a Fulbright scholarship, spent a year in Sidney, Australia with his wife. He studied laws to help facilitate the use of solar energy, a zero-polluting energy source.

JACKIE KLEIN

Then came a stint with the National Resources Defense Council. Miller did a 12-country comparison study on ozone depletion. He co-authored a government report with Moore.

Miller was a member of President Bill Clinton's transition team. He now teaches environmental law and is the director of the Center for Global Change at the University of Maryland.

"We do policy-oriented research on global issues and define laws and programs for federal agencies," Miller said. "We study global ecology changes and do technical research."

"Green Gold" is based on visits to Europe and Japan. Japan, for example, doesn't have a domestic environmental lobby or a Sierra Club equivalent. But environmental protection in Japan has evolved into a strategy for enhancing economic competitiveness.

The world is rapidly moving into a new technological area, a second Industrial Revolution, according to the book. Environmental protection, energy conservation and consumer demand are changing the way business is done throughout the world.

New light bulbs brighten rooms with 80 percent less energy and pollution than old ones. And they save money. Cars travel two or three times as fast on a gallon of gas. Electricity can be generated with no pollution and less cost.

Companies such as Dupont, IBM, and AT&T are getting the message and implementing ways to make better, cleaner, more cost effective products, Miller said.

Beginning with the model year 1998, 2 percent of all new cars in California will be required to be zero-emitting vehicles producing no pollution, Miller said.

"Technology is on the verge of perfecting the electric, battery-operated vehicle," he said. "But there's a political side to the story."

"Detroit's Big Three carmakers are pressuring the White House to bar the adoption of California's standards in northeast states. They say the regulations are too costly. Are we betting on Germany and Japan to do it first?"

Engler should ignore Mackinac Center's latest

Uh-oh. Just when John Engler is developing a warm and moderate image — fatherhood, an endorsement from the Michigan Chronicle — along comes the Mackinac Center for Public Policy to put the fear of Attila the Hun back in us.

The Mackinac Center, you'll recall, is the Midland-based producer of 18th Century style essays (no facts, no research, just speculative opinion) with a program it wants Engler to implement in his second term as governor.

Engler has been known to be a behind-the-scenes supporter of the Mackinac Center and to parrot some of its advice — as when, in his 1993 special message on education, he advocated abolishing the State Board of Education and establishment of charter schools.

Engler also has been known to drop Mackinac Center ideas like a hot rock — abandoning the State Board idea, among others — when reality sets in.

This week the Mackinac Center comes front and center with an agenda that would wipe out public schools and replace them with state-funded private schools. Here are MC president Larry Reed's latest notions:

■ "Relax tenure and certification requirements. Schools should be free to develop their own tenure and seniority systems . . ." In other words, a parent would no longer have even the flimsiest assurance that a kid's teachers meet some minimal qualifications.

■ "To free districts from compulsory collective bargaining, the governor should call for exempting teachers from the Public Employment Relations Act." In other words, bust the unions.

■ "Repeal Art. VIII Sec. 2 of the Michigan Constitution. This anachronism . . ." Whoa! It was adopted in 1970 and says, "No public monies or property shall be appropriated . . . directly or indirectly to aid or maintain any private, denominational or other nonpublic pre-elementary, elementary or secondary school." In other words, MC wants state money for private schools, even if they teach creationism or voodoo because they represent "competition and parental choice."

■ "Abolish the state Department of Education. Does Michigan need a department that one year ago had three employees for every one school superintendent in the state?"

TIM RICHARD

Note two slick tricks: 1) The year-ago job total is irrelevant because Engler shifted a lot of duties to the Department of Labor.

2) The innuendo is that all those employees are administrators. The Ed Department operates three residential schools: for the blind at Lansing, for the deaf at Flint, and for the adult disabled at Plainwell.

The Ed Department also regulates proprietary schools. Having listened to hours of ripped-off students' complaints about fly-by-night paralegal and cosmetology schools, and having some firsthand experience with a slipshod computer school, I suggest students need more protection, not less.

And in an era where employers have qualms about how well graduates are prepared for the world of work, we need higher core curriculum standards, not their elimination; better crafted school accreditation standards, not the clay-footed idol of "local control"; more in-service training of veteran teachers, not less.

■ "Enact a right to work law." I thought the Democrats were desperate and irresponsible with their campaign ad suggestion that Engler would advocate a Dixie-style right to work law that would drag Michigan's labor relations to the level of Arkansas'.

Engler says he opposes a right-to-work law. But even if he were insane enough to advocate it, the governor must remember his party picked up zero seats in the Senate and only one in the House; he barely got majorities last year for the law curbing teachers' unions' bargaining power. Engler had the votes to confiscate the MEA's battle-ax; he doesn't have the votes to cut off all unions' arms and legs.

Will Engler heed the Mackinac Center's shrill call to return to a Colonial American educational system where there were no free public schools? Engler is a farm-town conservative but no hayseed with a pitchfork. He knows Michigan was the first state government to guarantee free public education as a constitutional right, the first state to sponsor a world-class university, the first to establish a land-grant college.

Engler, a wily manipulator in the FDR mold, will nod and listen to the Mackinac Center essayists but realize he's the sworn governor of all the people.

I think.

Governor can dig through jinx of landslide winners

Political insiders have an old saying: "The worst thing that can happen to you is winning in a landslide."

Ask Jim Blanchard, who thumped Bill Lucas for governor in 1986 with nearly 70 percent of the vote, an even bigger margin than John Engler's Nov. 8 landslide over Howard Wolpe. Overconfident and out of steam, Blanchard in 1990 lost narrowly to Engler.

Look at President Lyndon Johnson, who in 1964 just killed Barry Goldwater, only to be harried into non-candidacy in 1968 by raising national anger over the war in Vietnam.

Lord Acton was right: "Power tends to corrupt; absolute power corrupts absolutely." People who win landslides begin to believe their press releases, and often the result is big trouble.

And although I hate to be a wet blanket just now that Gov. Engler is enjoying the double glow of fatherhood and his 700,000-vote win last week, there could be big trouble brewing during his second term.

Michigan's economy — plainly Engler's greatest political asset — simply is not going to keep booming for the next four years. The auto industry, still the biggest chunk of our economic base, is inherently boom and bust. That bust could come quickly when the Federal Reserve Board decides to push up interest rates again.

A recession in Michigan would mean money troubles for a state whose finances already are less solid than they look on the surface. For example, Michigan has been taking advantage of a loophole in the federal law governing Medicare reimbursements. But recently U.S. Rep. John Dingell made sure the practice ended. That will cost the state more than $200 million this coming year alone.

Worse, the state lost a lot of budgetary flexibility when the Legislature sweetened the pot in the frenzy to pass the Proposal A legislation. State school aid payments of $4,500 per child are a binding obligation, regardless of what other problems might exist with the budget. The moment state tax revenues dip, this giant prior claim on state money could wipe out the rest of the budget.

Elements in Engler's own party will be tempted to seize the opportunity offered by his landslide win to advance their own agendas. Expect to see fierce pressure to fund private schools, to further restrict abortions, drastically to cut taxes, to restrict civil rights for homosexuals, and to mandate school curriculum to reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic.

Each of these causes has passionate advocates within the Republican Party. Yet each could be used as "wedge issues" to rip chunks out of the GOP coalition that was so successful this year.

But cheer up, Governor. The curse of landslide winners only works when the opposition is reasonably healthy, and today the Michigan Democratic Party is a pretty bedraggled lot.

Its leadership is in tatters, from AFL-CIO chief Frank Garrison, who picked Howard Wolpe in the first place, to the MEA's Bev Wolke, who shot her union's wad in trying to get Larry Owen nominated in the primary.

Suffering from a drought of new or even workable ideas, the party has had trouble attracting enthusiastic volunteers and recruiting new, able and marketable candidates. Even union members, traditionally the party's core voters, are now flush with overtime and disinclined to vote the way their leaders instruct them.

The party's fundamental problem — finding candidates who can pass the litmus tests imposed by various interest groups within the party to get nominated, and then actually to win an election — seems entirely unresolved.

And as long as the Democrats are marginalized, Engler may be able to dodge the curse of the landslide winners.

A liberator: British Army veteran Marcus Bass of Livonia tells of his experiences as a liberator of the German concentration camp at Buchenwald.

Veterans recall memories

More than 200 members of ElderMed at Botsford remembered Veterans Day Nov. 11 with a program, "Over There: A Tribute to World War II," at Vladimir's banquet hall in Farmington Hills.

As they sang such popular tunes of the era as "I'll Be Seeing You," played by musician Johnny Chase, attendees reminisced about youth interrupted by war.

Several speakers recalled their roles during the war, including a former U.S. Army infantryman who saw action in the Philippines; a veteran of the British Women's Army; and a USO volunteer.

Marcus Bass, 78, of Livonia provided one of the highlights of the event. The former sergeant-major in the British Army was among the first wave of Allied troops who liberated the German concentration camp at Buchenwald.

Bass recalled the horrific scenes he witnessed in April 1945. He also challenged modern-day revisionists who say the Holocaust did not happen.

Bass saw action in much of Europe and was wounded in Italy. He wore a French Medal of Honor he received during his service. A native of Portsmouth, England, he emigrated to the United States in 1955.

ElderMed at Botsford is a free lifetime membership program offering a variety of services and benefits to those 50 and older. It is part of the national network, "ElderMed America."

Botsford General Hospital is a 336-bed osteopathic teaching hospital servicing Farmington Hills and surrounding communities.

Ex-hostage shares stories

Jennifer Fraser won't make molehills into mountains the next time she faces a challenge.

She'll think about former hostage Terry Waite, instead.

"Not everyone could deal with a situation like that," said Fraser, an Oakland University student. "Even in our own lives, it's the little insignificant matters that I deal with every day that just don't seem to compare with what he dealt with. And he in the same sense, thought that his circumstances weren't as great as many others."

"You have to try to make light of the situation you're in and not take it to heart as much and deal with it."

Others heard a similar message after listening to Waite for nearly an hour at Oakland University on Oct. 17. He was the first of several guest speakers invited to campus this year.

"What struck me about him was how peaceful he is," said Oakland University junior Michael Walsh. "And the fact that he could walk away from years of being a hostage, which he was for five years, and be so positive about it on his way out."

Oakland University student Garrick Landsberg remembers hearing about Waite "all through the 1960s." He wanted to get a look at him in person.

"I liked his thought that he had no regrets," Landsberg said. "It was very inspiring, especially when he said he could understand his captors reasons for keeping him. It was big of him. So few people are like that. Very inspiring."

Waite said he had no regrets, no self-pity and no sentimentality after he was taken hostage seven years ago in Beirut, Lebanon.

"My stomach turned cold. I realized I was no longer a negotiator," he said, recalling his initial reaction to imprisonment in a tiled cell. "I was chained by my hands and feet and left lying on the floor for nine months."

He spent four years in solitary confinement and a total of almost five years as a hostage before going home to England.

As an advisor to the Anglican church, Waite consulted clergy on international issues and helped negotiate hostage releases in Iran and Libya before attempting to free prisoners in Beirut.

Building trust was an important ingredient in hostage negotiation. Maintaining his faith and "embracing solitude" helped him endure imprisonment.

"I learned a lot from the experience and I genuinely can say I have no regrets. I learned two things. One was that many people have suffered more than I have," Waite said.

"The other is that I used to think solitary confinement could drive one mad. I learned you can embrace solitude."

He endured the loneliness by exercising every day, recalling books and poems, writing a journal in his mind and remembering that his captors could harm body and mind, but not his soul.

The mental diary became a book called "Taken on Trust." Waite autographed copies during a reception after his speech.

Waite said he bears no animosity toward his captors, although he felt angry in the past.

"You don't have to be Lebanese to break a trust. All human beings do it," he said, claiming "injustice" gives rise to hostage situations.

Waite also recounted his philosophy of life.

"Enable the weak to be strong," he said, "the strong to be just and the just to be compassionate."

Supreme beings creating the earth; teenage girls in Manhattan wistfully discussing love; a 30-something couple grappling with '90s angst.

All are part of the raucous "The Kathy and Mo Show: Parallel Lives" being presented through Sunday, Nov. 20, at the Attic's New Center Theatre, Third at West Grand Boulevard, in Detroit.

Presented by the Attic Theatre and written by New York comedians Mo Gaffney and Kathy Najimy of "Sister Act," the raucous and irreverent play stars Susan Arnold and Sandra Birch.

Attic Theatre-goers will recognize Arnold. She headlined the Attic's "Macbeth," "The Half-Life of Karen Silkwood," "The Good Times are Killing Me," and the hilarious "Angry Housewives."

For her portrayal of Nadine in the Serpent, Tooth Theatre's "Still Life," Arnold won the Ann Arbor News' 1992 Best Actress Award.

Birch, who works at Metropolitan Title Company in Plymouth by day, has performed widely on stage, film and radio in the U.S. and Canada.

In her most recent local role, Birch played Peggy Lee in "The Tropical Pickle" at the Purple Rose Theatre.

In Canada, where she lived for 12 years before her recent move to Farmington Hills, Birch was lauded for her renderings in Neil Simon's "Rumors," and "It Had to Be You" with Eddie Mekka. Birch also performed extensively with the Canadian Arete Physical Comedy Co.

Birch and Arnold are having fun with the challenging, non-stop two-woman revue.

"We play 14 different characters — men and women — of all different ages," said Birch, a Wayne Memorial High School graduate who earned a fine arts degree at Central Michigan University.

Weaving through the poignant and constantly comic vignettes is the theme that every person has the right "to do whatever it is they want to do, as long as they're willing to get up and do it."

An abbreviated version of the play can occasionally be seen on cable TV starring creators Gaffney and Najimy. Director of the show is Jim Moran, co-founder of the Performance Network of Ann Arbor and the Attic Theatre, which opens its 19th season with the Kathy and Mo

Noted clarinetist knows opera score

BY MARY JANE DOERR
SPECIAL WRITER

It was on a cold eerie day in October at Detroit's then discotheque-furnished State Theatre that clarinetist Brian Bowman's execution of the opening bars of "E lucevan le stelle" from the opera "Tosca" set the stage for the world's greatest living tenor.

Luciano Pavarotti's voice rang out, not in the opening words of Italian aria but with "Bravos." There, in the empty theater, the singer and the musicians of the orchestra applauded the clarinetist for his sensitive tone in what is the zenith of clarinet solos in opera.

"That solo won the audition for me back in 1986," said Bowman, who is principal clarinetist in the Michigan Opera Theatre Orchestra.

In those eight years, he has performed twice for Pavarotti and this spring it will be the second time he has performed the Puccini score "Tosca" for an MOT production.

"It is so much different being a part of an opera orchestra," said Bowman, 32, a Redford resident.

Last month's "Madama Butterfly" is a perfect example of what Bowman is talking about. Because MOT used a reduced score, Bowman ended up performing five other instrumental parts besides his own. Since there was no break between the second and third act, Bowman had to perform almost continually for the 85 minute double act.

"A symphony concert is usually over an opera orchestra is just beginning the third act," said

Participants learn strategies for serving alcohol responsibly while providing the best possible customer service. In addition, TIPS training helps prevent people who are drinking from hurting themselves, injuring others or destroying property.

The TIPS program was developed more than 10 years ago by Dr. Morris Chafetz, founding director of the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism. In an independent university study testing the effectiveness of the UPS program, almost 50 percent of the patrons who were served by non-TIPS-trained servers left the establishment intoxicated. None of the patrons served by TIPS-trained servers became intoxicated. The insurance industry is so impressed with the results, that many insurance companies now offer lower liability insurance rates to owners of bars and restaurants where 75 percent or more of the employees are TIPS-trained.

score. "First I take it apart to figure out where the challenges are, practice it and put the thing back together."

Bowman usually practices an 80-page musical score two to three hours a day for three weeks to prepare for the usual two orchestra rehearsals, "sitzprobe," and dress rehearsals that accompany each production.

Now he is preparing the 45-page Donizetti score "The Daughter of the Regiment" opening Friday evening at the Fisher Theatre.

He waits, though, in the wings, for the spring of 1995 and the opening of MOT's Detroit Opera House. In that new Bayreuth-styled orchestra pit, the company will perform Bowman's favorite scores, those of Wagner and Strauss.

Then, again, he will perform for Pavarotti in the opening concert.

Big Boy Restaurants join effort to feed hungry

Bring canned food donations to any area Big Boy Restaurant through Dec. 31 to help end hunger in our community.

In the past 15 years, over 3,044,000 pounds of food have been donated by the community to Operation Can Do.

The effort, sponsored by Elias Brothers Big Boy Restaurants, WXYZ-TV/Channel 7, Detroit Area and Clinton Valley Councils of the Boy Scouts of America, and The Hunger Action Coalition, with support from Farmer Jack Supermarkets, began Nov. 12 with "Scouting for Food Day."

On Nov. 5, local Boy Scout troops delivered Can Do collection bags to homes throughout metro Detroit and asked people to fill the bags with canned goods for the needy. Local Boy Scout troop members will be picked up the bags on Saturday, Nov. 12.

Russian Bear dispels fattening myths

The Russian Bear restaurant in 6303 Orchard Lake Road, West Bloomfield wants to dispel the notion that Russian cuisine is fattening and expensive, said owner Alex Stuck.

"We've adjusted our recipes to incorporate more low-fat ingredients without compromising the taste, increased our variety of chicken dishes to six, added two new vegetarian entrees, increased our overall portions and decreased our prices," said Stuck.

The effort has been led by the new head chef, Gary Landon, former assistant to departing chef Ed Giovenco — a holdover from Rik's Italian Restaurant — which now houses The Russian Bear.

"For generations Russian cuisine has been perceived as the harbinger of obesity — and for the most part it was true," said Landon. "But like all ethnic cuisine today, from Italian to Mexican to French, they've had to adapt to public tastes and demands, which means focusing on low-fat content diets, which we've done."

"Gary's Polish heritage adds a new ethnic twist to some of the dishes," said Stuck. "It's similar to Russian cooking in most instances, yet somewhat different in others — it's a nice combination."

"Business has been good, but some people are still afraid to give us a try. We want to remind everyone that variety is the spice of life, and The Russian Bear has the ingredients you can live with."

The Russian Bear, (810) 855-9229 is open for lunch 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday, and dinner 5-10 p.m. Monday through Thursday. Dinner is served later on Fridays and Saturdays with spirited Russian entertainment in the piano lounge. The Sunday Russian Bear Brunch feasts 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

East Side Mario's heads west to Livonia

BY BRIAN LYSAGHT
SPECIAL WRITER

Mulberry and Canal streets now intersect in Livonia — sort of.

The crossroads of New York's Little Italy neighborhood, famous for its food and old-world style, are replicated in a new restaurant on Plymouth Road, west of Merriman.

It's called East Side Mario's, and it opened Nov. 14. You will know it when you see the large faux buildings rising up from the suburban road. These tenement-like buildings are not native to Livonia.

Inside, East Side Mario's tries hard to replicate the feel of Little Italy, from the sidewalk and concrete floors to the fruit vendor's stand to the tailor shop to the mural celebrating the long-gone Brooklyn Dodgers.

"These stores actually existed back in the '30s and '40s at Canal and Mulberry Street," said owner Norman LePage. LePage and his wife, Bonnie, own the popular Norman's Eton Street Station in Birmingham and the area's first East Side Mario's, in Rochester Hills. LePage has the Pizza Hut-owned restaurant's Detroit-area franchise.

The place seats 200, many in the high-ceilinged main room. There is aged brick, exposed ductwork and lots of neon. There is a smaller, quieter room for those who prefer it and a large and separate bar for those who prefer that.

The place is designed to be children friendly. It has proven to be popular with the younger set in Rochester Hills, LePage said. There's plenty to keep them busy.

The menu is reasonably priced and targeted to please the majority. Dinner entrees start at $6.25 and mostly stay under $10. On the luncheon menu, served 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. daily, most items are $4.50 to $6.

The restaurant is a casual place, set up to serve good Italian fare in a timely fashion. You can eat and run or eat and linger.

There is plenty of pasta — penne with sausage and peppers to name one — including dishes covered in cheese and oven baked, like manicotti stuffed with white fish and shrimp.

There are specialties like chicken cacciatore and linguine chicken tetrazzini, which is a chicken breast sauteed with mushrooms, garlic and tomatoes, covered with a creamy sauce and served on a bed of pasta. The dinners include a choice of unlimited soup or salad.

There is a centrally located, wood-fired oven that turns out pizzas with a special flavor and available in many varieties.

The menu includes non-Italian fare. There are burgers, rotisserie chicken, ribs and steak.

The appetizers include old favorites: cheese sticks, chicken fingers and buffalo wings. For the more adventurous, there is breaded calamari, steamed mussels.

The place is vegetarian friendly, from the battered zucchini appetizer to the pastas and eggplant parmigiana.

Rice's vampires finally get it right for horror film

JOHN MONAGHAN

Now that's more like it. After the overwrought posturing of Kenneth Branagh's "Frankenstein," here is a horror movie that really delivers in the thrills, chills and weirdness department.

When plans for a film version of "Interview with the Vampire" were announced, loyal fans of the Anne Rice novel couldn't picture Tom Cruise as the Vampire Lestat. After you've seen his surprising turn as the century-spanning incarnation of unrepentant evil, you'll have trouble picturing anyone else.

Actually, it's Brad Pitt, the pretty-boy actor with the James Dean pout, who logs the most screen time. He plays Louis, a reckless young aristocrat 200 years ago, transformed into a bloodsucker by the centuries-older, French-born Lestat.

The two form a bizarre buddy bond that goes beyond mere companionship as they feed off rich and poor alike in the colonial

United States.

The screenplay, adapted by Rice, might have gone overboard in the hands of most other filmmakers. Neil Jordan, acclaimed Irish director of "The Crying Game," knows how to cast his own spell over an audience. He does it right from the opening scene.

Here the camera careens through city streets in one continuous shot, finally arching up and into an apartment window. It's here, in modern-day San Francisco, that Louis allows a scruffy interviewer (Christian Slater) to tape his story.

Louis, from the start, is a reluctant killer. He tries to quench his insatiable thirst with birds and rats, but eventually moves onto larger prey. If partner Lestat had any such misgivings, they died in him long ago.

Silly outings like "The Hunger" have played up the homoerotic elements of the vampire story, but this one has a surprising amount of subtlety and class. Louis, when conversing with Antonio Banderas' Parisian vampire, places his whispering lips as close as inhumanly possible without actually touching.

You have to wonder how this stuff will play in Peoria.

Aside from seductive work by Pitt, Cruise and Banderas, newcomer Kirsten Dunst is enchanting and funny as the pre-teen vampire Claudia. Although the passage of time makes her wiser and more caustic, she can never grow beyond the body of an 11-year-old girl.

The set design and inky camerawork evoke not only Europe, but also America's colonial South, a unique location for a vampire story. The movie eventually takes us to a Gothic Paris theater where vampires pretend they're actors playing vampires. The effect is haunting and bizarre or, as Claudia aptly describes, "so avant-garde."

Despite Oprah Winfrey's much-publicized exit from a preview screening, "Interview with the Vampire" is in some ways an exercise in moody understatement. When a vampire sinks his teeth into a fresh victim's arm or neck, a well-designed sound effect elicits far more queasiness than pools of gushing gore.

Although some scenes will still make you wince, Jordan and Rice treat their audience with respect.

Horrifying: Tom Cruise (left) plays Lestat and Brad Pitt plays Louis in Geffen Pictures' "Interview With The Vampire," distributed by Warner Bros.

After two mind-numbing decades of Damien, Jason, Michael and Freddy, I'll take Rice's vampires any night.

'After Dark' is a thriller

PASS THE POPCORN

A former mental patient is drawn into a kidnapping scheme by a beautiful woman in "After Dark, My Sweet," the fine 1990 film noir offering.

Having walked away from a mental institution, former prizefighter Collie, played by Jason Patric, wanders along in the desert. His narration provides some insight into his mental state, wondering where he will be tomorrow and then worrying about why he hadn't stayed where he was in the first place.

Fidgety and compulsively letting loose a stream of consciousness monologue, Collie strikes up conversation with a woman in a bar before getting tossed out. The woman, played by Rachel Ward, takes him home and gives him a job as a handyman. She has an ulterior motive. Her friend, played by Bruce Dern, needs a guy like Collie for his scheme.

The woman warns Collie off the scheme and he leaves briefly, but

VIDEO

Based on a novel by Jim Thompson, "After Dark, My Sweet" keeps you guessing. You just know Collie is going to take the fall on the kidnapping; you just don't know how.

It isn't long before he's back. The pull of someone who needs him is too strong for Collie. Naturally, the plan to kidnap the young son of a wealthy family doesn't go exactly as expected.

Based on a novel by Jim Thompson, "After Dark, My Sweet" keeps you guessing. You just know Collie is going to be set up to take the fall on the kidnapping; you just don't know how. And you don't know where the woman stands in all of it.

But what's especially nice is that Collie, who has some pressing mental problem, is aware of being manipulated and has to keep revising his take on the situation. As he points out early in film, Collie isn't stupid though he may sound like it. People in institutions lose their knack for intelligent conversation.

In the central performance in the film, Patric does a terrific job as the troubled Collie never making him one of the prettied-up movie versions of the mentally ill. With his head down and awkward gait, distracted attitude and disheveled appearance, he looks like many of the mentally ill homeless clutching his belongings in a paper bag. It's very sad watching him go along, aware at times that he is making the wrong choice.

Once the plot is in motion there is an inevitability to things coming to a bad end. Director James Foley, who made the terrific thriller "At Close Range," also has done a fine job with this character study.

"After Dark, My Sweet" is available on tape at local video stores. If you have a question or comment, call LeAnne Rogers at 963-2103 or write her at The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36261 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

Funny man takes audience on 'comedy ride'

Humor man: Comedian Scott Novotny is appearing this week at the Mainstreet Comedy Showcase in Ann Arbor.

BY BOB SADLER
SPECIAL WRITER

Minneapolis has been known for a thriving music scene over the last 15 years, giving birth to artists as diverse as Prince, or whatever he calls himself these days, the Replacements, and Bob Mould among others. But how many people realize that the Twin Cities area has also been a hot spot in the world of comedy?

Comics like Louie Anderson and Stephanie Hodge have their roots in the area. The cult Comedy Central favorite "Mystery Science Theatre 3000" is produced there too. And while he's not as well known yet, Scott Novotny appearing tonight, Friday and Saturday at Mainstreet Comedy Showcase (314 E. Liberty Ann Arbor, (313) 996-9080), is another solid comedic talent who hails from the Twin Cities area.

Reached at a hotel room in Springfield, Ill., before a show last week, Novotny was waxing hu-morously about the glamor life on the road.

Novotny is a man who has worn many hats over the years — stand-up performer, comedy writer, commercial actor, and even club owner. Hodge, who happens to be Novotny's ex-wife, and Novotny owned a place they called 'The Comedy Cabaret' from 1980 to 1985 in Minneapolis.

"This is a really nice place," Novotny said. "Even the cockroaches are wearing 'Will Work for Food' signs."

Novotny is a man who has worn many hats over the years — stand-up performer, comedy writer, commercial actor, and even club owner. Hodge, who happens to be Novotny's ex-wife, and Novotny owned a place they called "The Comedy Cabaret" from 1980 to 1985 in Minneapolis.

"We tried to do something different from the standard three-person comedy show," Novotny takeoff on the old horror films," Novotny said. "There's nothing left alive on earth, and things like clothespins are coming alive. When Gail and I used to do the sketch on stage, I'd leave the stage for a moment and come back on with clothespins all over me like I'd just been swarmed. It was a very funny scene. Later, Gail was accepted into the cast of 'Saturday Night Live,' and we submitted the sketch. It was performed on the show by Gail and Jamie Lee Curtis."

If you have never seen Novotny on stage, be sure to strap yourself down and catch your breath.

"My show goes by really quickly," Novotny said. "If I do an hour of material, you'll sit there after an hour and think 'what happened to that hour.' I like to think of it as a comedy ride."

You'll rarely catch Novotny discussing politics or current events during his act — he leaves that for guys like Dennis Miller and Will Durst.

"I'm not a streetwise comic. I'm more cul-de-sac. Maybe that's because I come from the Midwest. People from the Midwest don't want to be as worldly as people on the coasts."

'Our Town' comes to Bonstelle

Thornton Wilder's Pulitzer Prize-winning play comes to our town — Wayne State Theatre's Bonstelle stage, Dec. 2-11.

"Our Town" plays 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays, Dec. 2-3, 9-10, and 2 p.m. Sundays, Dec. 4 and 11. Tickets are $9 for the general public and $7 for students, seniors and WSU faculty, staff and Alumni Association members, with a $4.50 group price for groups 20 or more. Call the Bonstelle Theatre box office at (313) 577-2960 for tickets.

"Our Town" is considered an essential and pure example of modern American drama and speaks to the individuality of spirit that Americans hold dear.

"Our Town" is set in Grover's Corners, New Hampshire, a small town at the turn of the century. The town is a microcosm of life in America as playwright Thornton Wilder perceived it. He stated that "Our Town" is "an attempt to find a value beyond all price for the smallest events of our daily life." Through this very human play, Wilder demonstrates that we are all more the same than we are different.

"Our Town" is not a historical document, but a drama of the daily affairs of love, marriage and death in Grover's Corners. The play's first act depicts the daily life of its characters. The second act is about love and marriage and we follow specifically the blossoming romance of Emily and George. The third and final act deals with death and beyond.

Through "Our Town," we eavesdrop on people inside their homes, in their backyards, in their exchange of gossip on street corners and at their graveside gathering in the rain under clusters of black umbrellas.

This production marks Joe Seabek's first directorial appearance at the Bonstelle Theatre. He echoes Wilder's philosophy, saying, "We are really no different today than we were then." The large cast features Bonstelle players Mark Gojcay as the Stage Manager, Chet Holowicki as George Gibbs, Suzie Mikiel as Mrs. Gibbs, Mark Marziale as Doc Gibbs, Stacy Stolz (Garden City) as Emily Webb, Margaret Exner (Auburn Hills) as Mrs. Webb and Mike Musto (Walled Lake) as Editor Webb. Scenery for "Our Town" is designed by Tim McGraw, with costumes by Mary Copenhagen, lighting by Maja E. White and sound by Corey Shelsta.

Concert features violinist

Schoolcraft College's Music Club will present their third concert of the 1994-96 season with violinist Jennifer Ross and pianist Michele Cooker noon to 1 p.m., Wednesday, Dec. 7 in Schoolcraft's Forum Building Recital Hall, F 530. Their performance is free and open to the public. A "Meet the Artists" reception will follow.

Schoolcraft's Music Club was nationally recognized in 1991 by the National Music Teachers Association for success in developing and promoting interest in live music recitals. For further information, contact Schoolcraft's Music Department at (313) 462-4400, Ext. 5218.

Ross is a graduate of the Curtis Institute of Music. At the age of 19, she was appointed associate concertmaster of the Honolulu Symphony Orchestra. Currently residing in Ann Arbor, she travels to Vermont to serve as concertmaster of the Vermont Symphony. Ross' solo and chamber music career has included performances across North America, Germany and Italy.

Cooker is a widely known accompanist who has collaborated with violinists Camilla Wicks and Andres Camdens, cellist Bernard Greenhouse, and baritone Gary Relyea.

He's in perfect health. Yet Scout's the victim of a deadly epidemic that's sweeping through our neighborhoods. It's called overpopulation. The effects of this epidemic on the Michigan Humane Society have been staggering. Our shelters take in more than 150 new animals every single day of the year. Unfortunately, this number far exceeds people willing to adopt a pet. And it threatens to grow even larger without your help.

Please make a donation to the MHS. By doing so, you will help provide these homeless animals with food, shelter and medical attention. And most importantly, you'll buy them something they desperately need. Time.

Please give. Because only with your help will Scout, and other victims like him, have a fighting chance.

To make a contribution, send a check to the Michigan Humane Society, 7401 Chrysler Drive, Detroit, MI 48211. Or call us at (810) 852-7420 to place a donation on either your Visa or your MasterCard.

12 alternatives to lashing out at your child.

The next time everyday pressures build up to the point where you feel like lashing out — STOP! And try any of these simple alternatives.

You'll feel better . . . and so will your child.

1. Take a deep breath. And another. Then remember you are the adult . . .
2. Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child is about to hear.
3. Press your lips together and count to 10. Or better yet, to 20.
4. Put your child in a time-out chair. (Remember the rule: one time-out minute for each year of age.)
5. Put yourself in a time-out chair. Think about why you are angry: Is it your child, or is your child simply a convenient target for your anger?
6. Phone a friend.
7. If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a walk.
8. Take a hot bath or splash cold water on your face.
9. Hug a pillow.
10. Turn on some music. Maybe even sing along.
11. Pick up a pencil and write down as many helpful words as you can think of. Save the list.
12. Write for parenting information: Parenting, Box 2866, Chicago, IL 60690.

STREET BEATS

— Moist

Dubbed "Canada's Pearl Jam" by industry insiders, Moist uses psychedelic guitars, guttural vocals, and a hint of keyboards to create the fine debut "Silver." David Usher's pleading vocals in "Push" and "Believe Me" are so convincingly desperate that you can almost see him on his knees begging. The chaotic collision of Kevin Young's piano, Mark Makow's guitars (something to watch in years to come) and Usher's vocals in "Freaky Be Beautiful" lends itself to be a rock radio hit.

Detroit audiences should be familiar with the Vancouver rock band — which also includes bassist Jeff Pearce and drummer Paul Wilcox — who visited the State Theatre a number of times before signing to EMI/Chrysalis.

"Silver," originally released on Moist's independent record label, was re-released by EMI without any remixing, remastering or re-editing. Their obvious innate talent oozes on "Silver." Doing things their way will eventually pay off.

(Moist plays the State Theatre, 2115 Woodward Ave., Detroit, on Friday, Nov. 18, with Collective Soul. Call (313) 961-5451 for more information.)

Dos Dedos Mis Amigo

— Pop Will Eat Itself

All hell has broken loose with Pop Will Eat Itself since it found the proverbial "artistic freedom" at Trent Reznor's Nothing label. Their Nothing debut "Dos Dedos Mis Amigo" is a 46-minute agro-industrial/hip-hop filler meant to erase their moments as a brilliant, dare I say, pop act.

"Fatman," with its chorus "Pretty little people who love to stay thin" chanted over and over until it's ended with "And the pleasure of the fat man begins again," is the only track that is memorable off of "Dos Dedos Mis Amigo," Spanish for "Two Fingers, My Friends" (the peace sign). The rest of it is all right maybe for background music at a party.

Incidentally, the booklet for the CD wins a "Most Annoying" award for 1994. We get the hint that they want to be purely industrial now. The distortion lines and fuzzy words weren't really needed in the insert. If you're looking for "X, Y, and Z" here, look elsewhere.

(Pop Will Eat Itself performs Friday, Nov. 18, with Compulsion and Dink at St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit. Call (313) 961-MELT for more information.)

Mamouna

— Bryan Ferry

The 20-some-odd-year musical career of Bryan Ferry is spiced with trials and tribulation, like many performers. He first shot to fame with the British glam rock band Roxy Music and then later stabled off with his own solo career which has captured a devoted following in his native homeland. On this side of the Atlantic, his appeal is drawn from post-modern rock fans and adult contemporary formatted listeners.

Ferry's latest "Mamouna" (Virgin) will continue that reign of comforting stability.

The smooth, blue-eyed soul melodies and tunes are expressed fully on the 10-track release which snugly accents Ferry's previous releases or a Roxy Music compilation.

"Mamouna" follows up last year's "Taxi" cover album release which may have confused some Ferry followers and possibly himself. The cover album was a diversion for Ferry who abandoned production on a release, entitled "Horoscope" due to what he describes as writers' block. Majority of the material earmarked for "Horoscope" has been combined with fresh works for this release.

To refer to this as sophisticated is simple, but "Mamouna" has Ferry's strong and hypnotic vocals fully pored over well orchestrated rock material which over the years has become his trademark. The fear of love and the lack of a tender embrace characterizes Ferry's work. "Mamouna" leaves you warm-hearted while craving an easing hug.

The title track has become the most radio friendly with its uplifting and soothing guitar riffs and synthetic sounds. "Which Way To Turn" is Ferry's structured vocal exhibition allowing listeners a hypnotic musical journey as he proclaims: "I don't know which way to turn... can't control my feelings if I tried... walk on ice feeling your fingers burn."

This release offers Ferry the avenue to express his popular vocal and songwriting credits which obviously enabled his lasting creative edge while

Club styles span Heaven to Hell

■ You can dance in Hell, drink at A.F.B., or enjoy national acts in the Seventh House. Yes, nightlife in the metro is changing, going beyond strobe lights and turntables.

BY KYLE GREEN
SPECIAL WRITER

The night life scene in the metro area seems to be a revolving door of cliché clubs with pretentious but trendy wanna-be's polluting the rhythm and grind atmosphere.

New Detroit area nightlife spots are taking people in a direction other than the typical strobe light, turntable and $1 drink atmosphere which has clogged the area over the last few years.

"I don't think there has been a negative attitude toward bars or clubs as such," said Shawn Abdou, one of the owners of Another Bar and Grill at 18952 Woodward Ave., just south of Seven Mile Road, in Detroit — (313) 892-0714. "There seemed to be a large number of clubs popping up for a while around here. Unlike New York or Chicago where clubs pop up and are able to stay around for a while, they come and go here."

"It is almost like a fashion statement. Clubs in the Detroit area come and go as fast as fashion does."

Regardless of how fast the scene may change, fashionable clientele flock consistently to the no-frills basement atmosphere of A.F.B. for the inexpensive drinks and the in-your-face-but-friendly service of the appropriately named drinking establishment.

Although a little risky, the name of the intimate bar reflects the opinion of the metro area clientele which was an idea that arose during a brainstorming session with partner George Nugianis, Abdou said.

Comfortable place

"It's a watering hole and we thought people needed a comfortable place to go to and feel at home," Abdou said. "Our main goal was to make (people) feel comfortable, especially women, because we have no wet T-shirt contests or string bikini posters hanging on the walls. People wanted a place where they can kick back and hang out and talk with friends."

The same people also wanted a no-frills place to dance. There wasn't room for a dance floor at A.F.B., so Abdou went one block north to the Gas Station dance club.

The fuel station memorabilia that once lined the walls of the club have been put in storage leaving only gray walls and lava lamps decorating the now-renamed Club Hell, 19106 N. Woodward Ave., Detroit, (313) 368-9687. A spoof of the after-hours dance spot Heaven, located one floor above Hell, the club is unmarked on the outside save for a flaming black ball with 13 stamped on it.

"Hell is here. You picture it as a dark place with lava flowing all over the place and that is why there is lava lamps behind the bar. If I could put flames in there, I would, but the fire marshal won't let me," Abdou said.

The dance club — which will also host acts like punkers Everclear, spoken-word performer Maggie Estep

BILL HANSEN

Teen heaven: The alternative dance club Black Cat in Royal Oak opened its alcohol-free doors this summer to young adults under the age of 19.

and acoustic artist Mark Curry next month — allows A.F.B. patrons the opportunity to walk between both establishments under the watchful eyes of security patrols.

Further north on Woodward, pint-sized glasses are bumping and grinding in the small community of Berkeley now that the Berkeley Front Limited has "drawn the line in the sand," separating itself from commercial beer products, according to David Davis.

"Our niche are people who are looking for something better and that is many," Davis said. "For years there hasn't been anything, but crap (on the market). We are for no rice, no ice. We don't sell anything that is made from rice... or ice beer," he said.

The Berkeley Front, at 3087 W. 12 Mile Road, (810) 547-3331, has more than 40 domestic and imported beers on tap and an equal amount in bottles from micro or independent brewers. It also offers wine, designer coffees and a full deli-style menu.

The simple decor is a grandparent's basement meets a non-trendy coffee house atmosphere complete with "Star Trek: The Next Generation" collectible plates and Elvis-inspired tapestries on the walls.

The three-month-old establishment attracts a number of people from business-suited individuals to grunge-clothed connoisseurs, all in a non-smoking atmosphere.

"We are all about educating people of beer; we are about the aroma, the smell and the taste of the beer and that is why there is no smoking so people can appreciate the beer," said Davis, whose bar is going to expand to the second floor and offer an extended coffee and wine list. "People need variety no matter who you are, people will get bored with you."

A new House

Variety in musical night life has one more open door now that the Seventh House in downtown Pontiac opened last Friday with the Scottish act Battlefield Band. The 400-person capacity concert facility at 7 N. Saginaw, (810) 335-8100, will feature a variety of musical acts, including Odette, Michael Hedges and Richie Havens, at other area facilities do not offer, according to Maureen McCurdy, publicist for Seventh House's booking agent.

"It is kind of boring, if you only have the same places to hang out at," McCurdy said. "Each venue in the Detroit area is different enough that they attract different people, whether it be the size or the music it plays or the type of atmosphere. And all of the people coming into Seventh House are national acts."

Seventh House will attract a more musically mature audience, seeking a comfortable, warm environment, said Jim Fitzpatrick, one of the project's four partners. They have already invested $1.7 million into the establishment which was not completely refurbished when it opened.

"Pontiac is a logical place for it because Pontiac is becoming the arts center of Oakland County. Pontiac is transforming and becoming a hospitality center," said Fitzpatrick. "Today Royal Oak has its own kind of entertainment scene with coffeehouses and such, but there is no place like what we have up here. One tends to feed off each other."

Competition is the key to the business world and teenage-themed establishments are low in supply, but high in demand. Such basic business logic sparked the inspiration behind the Black Cat dance club in Royal Oak.

Located inside the Knights of Columbus hall at 404 E. Fourth St., (810) 543-3873, the club's theme is less of a school dance, but more of a cool hang out place, according to Tom Pearlman, who also owns the adult alternative music club, 3-D, in Royal Oak.

"If you think back to when you were young, there was really nothing to do. Drive around or hang out somewhere. We have created a club that is equal to any adult club in the area," Pearlman said. "I always thought there was a need for entertainment for young adults."

The alcohol-free, dark-lit establishment is filled with mismatched furniture, artwork by Christopher Wirth, a pool table and British-made Austin Healy automobile. Young adults age 13-19, most of whom adhere to the unofficial baggy T-shirt and jeans dress code, gather in gossiping clumps.

"I've been to teen dance clubs and they have been more cheesy, and this is not because of the music. Here it is mostly alternative," said a 15-year-old Marian High student from Birmingham who rated the club a "2" on a cheese level.

The Black Cat is staffed with adult employees and is open 7:30 p.m.-midnight Friday and Saturday nights. Even though the City of Royal Oak has a 10:30 p.m. curfew, the club has not had a problem with patrons violating the ordinance, Pearlman said.

Typically, parents call the club and inquire about the alcohol-free policy or examine the establishment before they allow their children to enter, he said.

Pearlman said he hasn't cornered the teenage entertainment market in these times of changing night life trends.

"I have learned in the bar business that there will be competition, but I have learned that we feed off competition," he said.

Satori Circus takes on male stability

Art in motion:

Satori Circus, a.k.a. Russell Taylor, performs his show "Adam" at 1515 Broadway in Detroit through Nov. 20.

BY KYLE GREEN
SPECIAL WRITER

Adam has had a bad rap since those free-spirited garden days. Today, the name Adam has become a true role model for many as the unofficial spokesperson for masculinity which some believe has led to a state of male confusion over stigma-based male roles.

Such confusion is the basis for visual artist Satori Circus' own male self-examination production, entitled "Adam."

"He is like the struggling storm for man," said Satori Circus, a.k.a. Russell Taylor.

Taylor, in his one-man-show, takes his own, albeit stab at male stability, but in his own in-your-face viewpoint which he says does not require dancing half naked around a pond and barking at the moon. His approach is much more basic and personal.

"Men do go out in the woods and scream; I just don't get into that," Taylor said. "I am a firm believer in laughing at oneself."

Taylor hopes that "Adam," at 1515 Broadway in Detroit Thursday through Sunday, Nov. 17-20, will break down the stigma borders of sexual desire, homophobia, love, insecurity and other moral issues which may pollute male psyches.

The production will incorporate music, short skits and role playing with other human props. Taylor spent three months composing music and writing dialogue for the two-hour performance, with Taylor playing 11 characters, including a dancing penis.

Taylor is quick to halt any idea of what he calls the stigma-based title, "performance artist."

"I call myself a post-Industrial vanderbilian with avant-garde pop songs," he said. "I feel that with performance artists, the writing and directing has been done by another person... I do just about everything myself."

"I like this — everything myself."

LET'S GO! TRAVEL

You can eat, drink, gamble and shop in Windsor

BY SANDRA DALKA-PRYSBY
SPECIAL WRITER

There's no better way to feel cosmopolitan than to travel a few miles to the south and east.

The trip will take you to a "foreign" country with distinctive money and different spellings of words, such as "jewellery" and "centre."

At the end of your short journey, you'll end up just across the Detroit River in our "neighbouring" city of Windsor.

While Windsor offers a variety of entertainment possibilities, one way to enjoy this city for a day is to do a little gambling, some shopping, and, most importantly, a whole lot of eating.

For years, this Ontario city has attracted the gaming crowd with a wealth of bingo emporiums. These still exist and are still popular, but they no longer offer "the only game in town."

These days, a host of players also are attracted to Casino Windsor, a world-class establishment offering roulette, blackjack, baccarat and almost 1,700 slot machines that take 25 cent and $500 bets.

Situated in the former Art Gallery of Windsor, on Riverside Drive West, this popular attraction gives visitors the feeling and excitement of Las Vegas, with its colorful machines, its background noise of clinking coins and bells, and its luxurious appointments. Casino Windsor also offers an outstanding view of the Detroit skyline from the vast windows enclosing the grand staircase.

The casino, which is owned by the government of Ontario and operated by The Flamingo Hilton, Circus Circus and Caesar's Palace, is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week for customers 19 and older. Parking shuttles travel to and from the casino on a regular schedule from riverfront parking lots.

While Windsor offers a variety of entertainment possibilities, one way to enjoy this city for a day is to do a little gambling, some shopping, and, most importantly, a whole lot of eating.

While gambling is a major draw for some, for others it's the cuisine.

Windsor is a city of exotic flavors. Just about any type of food — at very reasonable prices — is available in the restaurants, inns, bistros, pubs, grills and cafes that reflect the city's multicultural makeup. In addition to good old American grub, including southern cooking and Canadian food, there are Greek, French, Italian, Hungarian, German, Chinese, Japanese, Mexican, Lebanese and East Indian eateries found in the downtown area, many within walking distance of the casino.

However, if you prefer to eat at the casino, the "Rose and Lion" food court on the second floor offers culinary variety with Chinese food available at "The Windsor Wok" a taste of the Mediterranean at "Little Italy" and the restaurants along Erie Street; and for charbroiled cuisine, there's "The Grill."

In addition, the "Deli Royale" provides build-your-own sandwiches and salads and "Sweet Endings" has decadent desserts.

Once lunch is over, you may wish to partake in another popular Windsor activity — shopping.

Downtown Windsor is filled with specialty shops offering wonderful merchandise. Add the favorable exchange rate for U.S. dollars and low export taxes, and shoppers can acquire some real bargains.

A favorite shoppers hangout is Shanfield Meyers on Oulette Avenue, the city's main street. The store contains a large selection of top-brand crystal, dinnerware and figurines. But it's not the only shop of its kind or the only popular store on the street.

Oulette Avenue is lined with more than 300 stores featuring leather goods, Canadian arts and crafts, Oriental treasures — including jewelry (make that jewelry) and silkwares, and furs, lots and lots of furs.

You might also want to go one block west to Pelissier Street, where fine boutiques and other stores offer an abundance of quality goods for sale.

Shopping need not be limited to the streets of Windsor. A short drive down Howard Avenue takes visitors to Devonshire Mall, which has more than 165 stores offering everything from clothing jewelry and shoes, to china, furniture and food. Another thing it offers is the "new" home of the Art Gallery of Windsor. (The casino is in its old home).

The gallery, which has more than 30 changing art exhibitions annually, a permanent art collection of more than 200 works and resource books and periodicals numbering almost 8,000, provides a nice break from shopping.

It is open 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., Tuesday through Friday; 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday; and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Shopping also need not be limited to Windsor. Neighboring towns in Essex County offer a variety of goods with a savings of 35-40 cents on your U.S. dollar.

Detroit-area shoppers are invited to enjoy the offerings of three Essex County towns — Amherstberg, Kingsville and Leamington — at a special "Shoppers Only Event" on Saturday Nov. 26. For information on this event, call (519)736-9503. And for information on Windsor and its surrounding areas, call the Windsor, Convention and Visitors Bureau, Essex County and Pelee Island (800)265-3633.

Canton repels Salem's rally

Two teams as familiar with each other as hot dogs and mustard met Wednesday, both realizing the only way to survive is to execute their plan better than their opponent does. Canton did just that against Salem.

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

Defense would not be the difference when Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem tangled in the Class A district girls basketball semifinal at Livonia Ladywood Wednesday.

It couldn't be. This would be the fourth meeting this season between the two defensive powers; each knew how difficult the other would make it to score points.

So the defensive element was a wash. The key factor would be offense — the team that got off to a quick start could make things very difficult, particularly if that start was sustained for a considerable length of time.

Canton proved superior at combining suffocating defense with solid offense. The Chiefs rattled off a 15-2 scoring run, holding Salem without a basket for more than 14 minutes stretching through the first three quarters while building a 20-9 lead. The Rocks rallied, but the closest they could come was four before bowing out with a 36-30 loss.

The victory puts Canton (now 15-6) into the district final against host Ladywood, a rematch of last year's district title game at Northville. Canton won that meeting, 51-44.

Salem finishes with a 15-7 record. "What it all comes down to is, you've got to score," said Salem coach Fred Thomann. He noted a few defensive adjustments Canton made that hurt his team's production (8-of-29 from the floor, 27.6 percent): "They tried to do some things to take our one-guard, Kelly Lukasik, out of it," he said.

Canton coach Bob Blohm said his team pressured Lukasik as she brought the ball upcourt, then paid close attention to Shellye Sills and Amanda Abraham. The strategy worked well — the trio had just 11 points between them through the first three quarters.

They finished with a combined total of 20, Lukasik getting 11, Sills seven and Abraham two. Abraham did grab 10 rebounds.

One could say the Chiefs were powered by patience. "What we wanted to do was not rush our shots, make their zone (defense) work a little bit, pass the ball a bit more and hope something would open up inside," explained Blohm.

The Chiefs did just what Blohm wanted. A 9-2 run in the second quarter gave them a 14-9 lead at halftime, and over the last two quarters they were so deliberate offensively they took just 11 shots (converting five).

Canton was also a bit more effective than usual at the free throw line, making 13-of-21 (62 percent). Salem was 13-of-17 (76 percent).

The Chiefs took control in the third quarter. After limiting the Rocks to just two free throws in the second quarter, Canton kept them without a point for 5½ minutes of the third quarter. Kristi Fiorenzi's basket with 2:43 left gave the Chiefs a 20-9 lead.

Contend or pretend?

Talent, depth boost Madonna

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

This season is kind of a turning point for Madonna University's women's basketball team and its coach, Bill Potter.

Potter is entering his fourth season, and so is the program since its resurrection. That means the freshmen Potter first recruited are now seniors.

Are they ready to seriously contend for a regional championship?

Their coach thinks they are, even though Shawn Bannon — the team's leading scorer (15.8 points per game) before suffering a knee injury last January — will remain sidelined for the season.

Also gone from last season's 13-14 squad are the next highest scorer, Jill Burt, who graduated, and April Blanton and Rachel Emery, who both left the team.

So why so much optimism? "Talent-wise, I think we're better than last year," said Potter, 33-49 in his three previous seasons. "Record-wise, I don't know if we'll be better."

The reason for the disclaimer is the upgraded schedule. Madonna plays eight games against NCAA Division II teams.

But Potter believes he has the talent and experience to compete with his toughened schedule. It starts with seniors Vikki Koehnig, a 6-foot center, and Stephanie Crelley, a 5-11 forward. The team's co-captains, last year they led the Lady Crusaders in rebounding and blocked shots.

At the other forward spot is 5-10 junior Francine Williams, a transfer who played as a freshman at San Jose State before enrolling and played at Oakland University last winter semester. "She's a tremendous athlete," said Potter.

The backcourt is experienced, with Tracy Prybylki, a 5-4 sophomore (from Canton/Livonia Ladywood) at the point and Mary Bieniewicz, a 5-9 junior (Farmington Hills Mercy).

A quick examination of the bench turns up more experience: 5-8 sophomore Meagan Marlatt; 5-4 senior Kathleen Gerik (Plymouth/Mercy HS); 5-8 sophomore Rebecca Bloch (Westland/Farmington HS); 5-10 senior Denise Williams; 5-4 sophomore Maria Liwag; and 6-0 sophomore Kate Dunning.

There are also four promising freshmen, including 6-0 Karen Olech and 5-8 Dawn Pelc, from defending Class B state champion Dearborn Divine Child; 5-10 Heather Steinhilber; and 5-8 Courtney Senger.

Of the four, Pelc figures to contribute the most this season. "She won't start," said Potter, "but she'll be one of the first two off the bench."

Pelc has helped upgrade Madonna's overall speed. "I think we're most improved at team speed," said Potter. "Dawn comes in off the bench and she's a racehorse. She really gets up and down the floor."

But there are still some other weaknesses that need work. "Our consistency," noted Potter. "We can't go out and score 80 points one night and 60 the next."

"The other thing we're looking to improve is our rebounding."

The addition of Williams, Steinhilber and Olech gives the Crusaders more than enough size. Whether that translates into more rebounds remains to be seen.

Potter would like to utilize his team's speed, but for a running game to click a team has to rebound well. If the Crusaders can do both, consistent scoring — and winning — should follow.

Losses mar Ocelot opening

It's been a bumpy ride thus far this season for Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team.

The Ocelots have opened with three consecutive losses, and none of them have been close at the finish. The most recent was Tuesday, when SC hosted Owens Tech (from Toledo) in its home-opener. The result: a 96-61 setback.

Tech (now 2-0) led 50-34 by halftime and it never got much closer in the second half. With 15 minutes left, the visitors' lead had grown to 28; the closest the Ocelots got after that was 19.

Jason Maschio (from Livonia Franklin) led SC with 16 points; Dave Pavlak had 15. Tech got 21 from Shawn Wymor, 17 from Jerry Wells, 11 from Kevin Roberts and 10 from Marcus Langhorne.

A lopsided loss to a team like Tech, which advanced to the

SC BASKETBALL

NJCAA Finals before losing last season and won the NJCAA title the two previous years, might be expected.

But at last weekend's Macomb CC Tipoff Classic, the Ocelots were again overwhelmed, and by lesser talent. In their season-opener Friday, they let Muskegon get away in the final eight minutes and fell, 92-67. On Saturday, the story was the same: a 94-74 loss to Kalamazoo CC after trailing by just 38-29 at the half.

The reason for the defeats, according to SC coach Dave Bogataj, is obvious: "We got killed on the boards."

They did at that. Muskegon out-rebounded them 59-29, including 21 offensive boards; Kalamazoo had a 38-21 advantage on the glass.

"The kids are going to have to get a lot more aggressive on the boards," said Bogataj.

In Friday's game, SC was within four with eight minutes left — before Muskegon "went berserk on the boards." The main culprits for Muskegon were Nathan Gana and Kenny Samuel, each standing about 6-foot-7 (which is bigger than anyone on SC's team). Gana scored 10 of his 12 points in the final eight minutes, and Samuel chipped in with eight of his 14.

Muskegon had three others in double-figures: Tim Mallison, 12; Martin Owens, 11; and Jeremy Holmes, 10. The Ocelots were led by Tony Masojowski's 17 points and seven rebounds. Eric Powell and Pavlak each contributed 12 points, Mike Fishen had eight and Maschio collected six points

While Supplies Last

This is it Victory essential for return to nationals

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

The past few weeks have been the most trying of Jerry Abraham's volleyball coaching career at Madonna University.

Prior to the 1993 season, expectations for the Lady Crusaders were limited to just making it to the NAIA Tournament. That changed last season, when they not only qualified for the tournament but finished tied for fifth in the NAIA.

With the bulk of the team returning, hopes soared.

But the season hasn't unfolded quite that way. Injuries put as many as five starters out of the lineup in the past few weeks, resulting in a slump that saw Madonna drop eight of nine matches.

That's the way the host Crusaders entered the Great Lakes Region Independent Tournament last weekend. To advance to the Great Lakes Regional, they needed to at least get as far as the finals at the Independent.

Which they did. Madonna won four-straight matches without dropping a game before running into Mount St. Joseph's (Cincinnati, Ohio) in Saturday's final and losing, 15-9, 15-2, 17-15.

The Crusaders now advance to the regional, which will be at University of Michigan-Dearborn Friday and Saturday. They go up against Edgewood College (Madison, Wisc.) and Grace College (Winona Lake, Ind.) in pool play Friday. The winners in each of the four pools advance to Saturday's semifinals, with the finals following.

The regional winner goes to the NAIA National Championship Dec. 1-3 in Chattanooga, Tenn.

"We've been struggling, especially with the injuries," said Abraham. "We went to a couple of our biggest tournaments without four or five starters. But we finally got Julie Martin (from Livonia Stevenson) and Kelly McCausland (Redford Union) back this weekend."

"There was 100 percent difference."

Indeed. In Madonna's 15-1, 15-3, 15-7 victory over the College of West Virginia Friday, McCausland contributed nine kills (411 kill percentage) while Martin had four (1,000 percent) and two solo blocks.

Julie Wood led the team with 11 kills (.476); she also had 10 digs and two service aces. Mo Paulin (Livonia/Farmington Hills Mercy) had eight kills (.411), 15 digs and three aces, and Laura Fisher (Wayne Memorial) collected 35 assists-to-kills and two aces.

The Crusaders then beat Brescia (Owensboro, Ky.) 15-7, 15-4, 15-9; Asbury (Wilmore, Ky.) 15-6, 15-2, 15-3; and, in the semifinals, Brescia again 15-0, 15-6, 15-5.

In the first Brescia match, Martin collected 15 kills (.590). McCausland had 13 (.578) and Paulin had 10 (.470), with two aces and two solo blocks. Wood had six kills (.357) and nine digs, and Fisher finished with 39 assists and seven aces.

Against Asbury, Martin led with 12 kills (.588); McCausland had 11 (.523); Wood had 10 (.280), with two aces and eight digs; Paulin had five, with five aces and 15 digs; and Fisher collected 30 assists and three aces.

The second win over Brescia again featured a multiple attack. Wood led this time with 13 kills (.571); she also had four aces and nine digs. Martin totaled nine kills (.667) and Paulin had nine (.615), with seven digs. Fisher got 29 assists.

Abraham is hopeful his squad (17-20 for the season) is back on track, now when it counts most.

Notes: Mo Paulin, Madonna's senior outside hitter, was named the Great Lakes Independent Region co-player of the year. Joining her on the all-region squad were teammates Julie Wood, Kelly McCausland and Julie Martin.

Statewide champs

Quite a kick: The Plymouth Salem Rockettes varsity pompon squad collected a first-place finish in both the high kick and dance competition at Saturday's Mid-American Statewide Dance Competition, hosted by Plymouth Canton. Salem scored 95.13 out of 100 in high kick, and 79.5 out of 80 in dance. Team members are Paulette Adams, Audrey Ayala, Heidi Balatico, Stacey Barbosa, Molly Boyle, Melissa Carron, Maria Cini, Shelly Compton, Becky Hopton, Jennifer Kelley, Jessica Mason, Jennifer McBurney, Robyn Novak, Kelley See, Jeanine Swanson, Karen Sylvester, Beth Tofil, Erin Vaquera, Christie Wilson, Coleen Wyndendorf, Natalie Carabott, Lillian Rumberger, Emily Stemmer, Shelley Williams, Danielle Wren, Michelle Zmiky and Cindy Wittrock. The team is coached by Aileen Balatico and CeCe Hinkse.

Madonna's future brightens

BY C.J. RISAK
STAFF WRITER

It was, by almost any measure, a successful start for Madonna University's men's soccer team.

The Fighting Crusaders were forced to overcome several obstacles, and they did in posting an 8-7 record in their inaugural season.

"We ended up about where I thought we would," said coach Pete Alexander. He was quick to needle a certain journalist who thought his prediction of a 500 record in their first year was overly optimistic.

And, all things considered, it still seems a lofty ambition. Madonna had to survive:

- A coaching switch in mid-season, when head coach Robert Mazur and Alexander, then his assistant, exchanged positions;
- A roster limited to 15 players;

SOCCER

■ A schedule of nearly all road games (the Crusaders ended up playing three matches at home).

One of the few negatives regarding the season was Madonna's not being considered for the NAIA playoffs, apparently by rule — no first-year team is eligible. "It would have been nice to see if we could have qualified," said Alexander.

And perhaps do some damage. The Crusaders were playing well by season's end; Alexander traced the turnaround to a lineup adjustment to a more defensive scheme at mid-season.

The object was to get the ball to the team's best scorers as often as possible — which the Crusaders did; junior Nate Stovall (from Walled Lake Central) finished with nine goals and 11 assists for 29 points, and sophomore Christian Emert (Walled Lake Central) had 10 goals and three assists for 23 points.

Keeper Dan McEvilly (Livonia Churchill) was solid, posting a 1.30 goals-against average. The Ocelots outscored their opponents 24-18.

But there's no time to congratulate themselves. Alexander and assistant coach Dave Hebestreit have both been busy recruiting. "We've had a number of contacts from kids in the area," said Alexander, adding that "we're looking at kids from Schoolcraft as well. They have a lot of fine players."

Alexander also plans to upgrade his schedule. "We're going to try and schedule more competitive teams."

Madonna falls short in its season-opener

BASKETBALL

The start to the 1994-95 basketball season for Madonna University's men's team was, unfortunately, much like the finish of the '93-94 campaign.

Ohio Dominican visited for Madonna's season — and home — opener Saturday and came away with a 111-75 victory.

Dominican had four players reach double-figures in scoring and three others with eight or more. Dominican also held the advantage in almost every statistical category, except floor shooting. The visitors were 26-of-73 (35.6 percent) while Madonna made 23-of-55 (41.8 percent).

But Dominican was 7-of-13 from three-point range to the Fighting Crusaders' 4-of-6, had 19 turnovers to the Crusaders' 23, and outrebounded Madonna 52-39. The biggest discrepancy, however, came at the free-throw line: The Crusaders were 17-of-25 (68 percent) to Dominican's 38-of-41 (90.2 percent).

Leading scorer for Dominican was Steve Antritt with 21 points. Mike Roberts added 17, with five rebounds and four assists; Jerry Lanier and Kurt Pottkotter chipped in with 16 points apiece, Pottkotter grabbing seven boards; and Anthony Almond had nine points and 12 boards.

For Madonna, Jay Dimes totaled 16 points and eight boards; Jeff Kennedy collected 12 points and 11 boards; Jason McNab had 10 points and 11 rebounds; Brandon Stone netted 14 points; and Brandon Lemley finished with 11 points and five assists. Mike Maryanski contributed four blocked shots.

The Crusaders had just eight players ready to go. Mike Stone and Jeff Kosin were both sidelined with injuries.

and nine boards. In the loss to Kellogg Saturday, fouls ruined any comeback hopes for SC. Kellogg shot 22 free throws in the second half, making 16; Maciejewski, Mark Cady and Pichan, all sophomores, had fouled out with more than three minutes left.

SC was led by Maschke with 19 points and five rebounds. Maciejewski had 11 points and six boards, and Pichan netted 10 points. Kellogg got 24 points from Reggie Tucker (23 in the second half), 22 from Corey Romkie (20 in the first half), 12 from Rodney Marshall and 10 from Zack Parsons. After three-straight losses by a combined total of 80 points, the good news facing SC is: There's plenty of room for improvement.

Salem finally got going offensively, scoring eight points in the final 2½ minutes of the third quarter — four by Laurel Weinman — and was within 24-17 entering the last period. And thanks to Lukasik, who netted seven fourth-quarter points, the Rocks pulled to within four twice.

But in the end, the inside work of Canton's Sarah Warnke and Florenzi ruled. Warnke scored all 10 of her points in the last two quarters, and she finished with a game-high 15 rebounds. Florenzi scored five of her 10 points in the fourth quarter, including a tip-in basket off a free throw miss by Melissa Marzolf. Florenzi had six boards.

■ Ladywood 58, Novi 29: Livonia Ladywood advanced to the final of their own district with a strong first-half effort Wednesday.

The Blazers (9-9) led 23-15 after one quarter and 34-23 at the half. Becky Bilicki's 18 points led Ladywood; Anne Poglits had 15 and 11 rebounds, and Stacy Judd scored 12. Christine Edwards had 16 and Kelly Kearney 10 for Novi (7-14).

■ Salem 44, Churchill 26: Behind Shellye Bille's 10 points, Salem ousted Livonia Churchill (2-19) in Monday's Class A district opener at Livonia Ladywood.

Karen Oandry and Amanda Abraham contributed eight and seven points, respectively, for the Rocks, who led 24-10 at intermission.

Allie Decker scored eight for the Chargers.

■ Whitmore Lake 28, PCA 26: This game was tied at 28-all entering the final quarter, and that's when Whitmore Lake pulled away from Class D district host Plymouth Christian Academy to win easily Tuesday.

The Trojans, who improved to 11-10, outpointed PCA 16-7 in the fourth quarter. They took advantage of the Eagles' errant shooting: They were just 10-of-57 from the field (17.5 percent).

Rae Ann Jokinen's 16 points paced Whitmore Lake. Karin Reed scored eight for PCA, which ended its season with a 13-8 record.

■ Agape 37, W.M. Christian 14: The championship game of the Metro Christian Conference Tournament belonged to Plymouth Agape Christian Saturday at Pontiac Greater Life.

Gretchen Baisch, Agape's junior center, proved an unstoppable force throughout the tournament. In the final, she scored 20 points, grabbed 10 rebounds and dished out three assists as Agape pulled away from its 13-8 halftime lead over West Highland Christian with a 24-6 second-half surge.

Jaci Ther, a sophomore guard, contributed nine points, six assists, four rebounds and four steals for Agape. Kim Cooby led West Highland with seven points.

Earlier Saturday, the same two teams met in the second round of the double-elimination tournament. This one was closer, but Agape won in overtime, 47-41.

Agape's Crystal Palmer scored with seven seconds left to tie the game at 39-all and force overtime. The ensuing three-minute overtime was dominated by Agape, which outscored West Highland 8-2.

Baisch again led Agape with 23 points, 10 rebounds, four steals and three assists. Jessica Sherwood's 20 points topped West Highland.

Former St. Mary's star is dead; cause unknown

Jeff Suspeck and his fiancée Beth Pelkey took some time off work Friday to ride up to Frankenmuth for some shopping and dinner.

Surrounded by all the Christmas displays, it was an opportunity for Pelkey to ask Suspeck what he wanted for his 25th birthday — which would have been Dec. 23.

"He said he just wanted a home with me," Pelkey said. "We were talking about what we'd buy, but we were going to decorate it. We were both so happy, just talking about our future."

The only thing that would have made the afternoon any better was a rain storm.

"We liked our walks in the rain," Pelkey said.

Suspeck, the leading scorer (1,785 points) in the history of men's basketball at St. Mary's College in Orchard Lake, died later that night in his sleep of unknown causes. He and Pelkey, also 24 and a graduate of St. Mary's, were planning an August 1995 wedding.

Pelkey met Suspeck when she was a secretary for the St. Mary's basketball team.

After graduating from St. Mary's in 1992, Suspeck had been working as a customer service representative for Electronic Data Systems-Chevrolet Division.

He was a junior varsity basketball coach in 1992-93 at Redford Catholic Central and helped out each summer at basketball camps throughout metro Detroit.

Pelkey said her fiancée was in good health and even played quarterback this fall for a flag football team at work. She said her faith helps her cope with the sudden death.

"I have faith in God and know Jeff's in a better place than we are," said Pelkey, a trade broker for Metro Trading Association in Troy. "I know he'll be a guardian angel for anyone who needs him. Jeff was an All-American boy and I couldn't have asked for someone sweeter. He loved sports and children."

Suspeck, who once scored 41 points in a college game, had a competitive nature.

"I remember once he had a pretty bad game, we went back to his dorm and he was all bummed out," Pelkey said. "I said, 'Jeff, get your basketball shoes, and let's go back to the gym.' We went and I ended up rebounding for him until 1 a.m."

Suspeck graduated from Dearborn Divine Child High School in 1988, where he was coached by Joe Charnley for one season.

"The only way to get through something like this is to do a lot of praying and hugging," said Charnley, from Plymouth. "He was a great kid from a great family."

Suspeck's coach at St. Mary's was Glen Donahue, who currently coaches at Redford Bishop Borgess. Donahue was watching a game Saturday at University of Detroit-Mercy's Callahan Hall when he received a phone call with the news.

"When my daughter called, crying, and said Jeff died, I just sat there with my mouth open at a loss for words," Donahue said. "I've had former players die before, but not at 24. It's just unbelievable. He was a great, great kid, very, very highly respected. As one of my players who knew Jeff said, 'You know he went straight to heaven.'"

Suspeck, lightly recruited as a senior at DC, earned a starting job at St. Mary's after endless hours in the weight room and became team Most Valuable Player and the Catholic League Athlete of the Year as a senior in 1991-92.

"He went from 6-foot-2, 134 pounds as a freshman to 184 pounds when he finished our program," Donahue said. "He used the weight room to its fullest extent. He was dedicated to become as good as he could be — and still achieve in the academic arena (with NAIA all-academic honors). He took it step by step, not a big giant step."

FOOTBALL

Rockets' next foe much like past

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

The town of Bay City has been set on its ear over the success of the Central High Wolves football team.

It's the first time a team from the Bay City Public Schools has qualified for the state playoffs.

And now the Wolves (10-1) are only one win away from going to the Pontiac Silverdome. But underdog Westland John Glenn (8-3) stands in their way.

The two teams meet in Saturday's Class AA semifinal at Lansing Everett High. (Game time is 1:30 p.m.)

"Bay City is a well-balanced team," Glenn coach Chuck Gordon said. "They prefer to run the fullback, but they can throw if they need to. They're well-coached, they have nice size and they're a very good football team."

The Wolves reached the semifinals with playoff wins over Muskegon (21-20) and Grand Ledge (14-0).

In the win over Grand Ledge, the Wolves, led by free safety Eric Lee, picked off six passes in 32 attempts.

C.J. Zanotti, a 6-2, 210-pound senior, is the team's leader on both offense and defense.

The fullback rushed for 932 yards during the regular season and scored 12 touchdowns. Zanotti also kicks extra points and is the team's leading tackler at middle linebacker.

Quarterback Jason Kokaly, a senior, moved over from wide receiver and has thrown for more than 900 yards and 10 TDs (including the playoffs).

The two halfbacks running out of the Wing-T are Jake Tudor and David Hopkins.

The Wolves average 226 pounds per man on the offensive line.

"They play almost the same stuff as Belleville," said Gordon. "It's almost like a carbon copy. Maybe they don't have the speed of Belleville, but I think they're better up front."

Defensively, the marquee player is 6-7, 275-pound defensive end

Eric Moltans, who committed to Michigan earlier this season.

He most likely will be matched up against Glenn senior tackle Ron Schoonheide, who is 6-2, 280.

"I'm real impressed with him (Schoonheide)," Bay City coach Morley Fraser said. "He's real strong."

"It seems each level we go up, the better the competition. I look at Glenn as stronger than Muskegon and quicker than Grand Ledge. They have the combination of both teams we've met in the playoffs. You look at their offense and you see that (Brent) Washington does a bulk of the load carrying the ball. And they come off the ball very well."

Hawks, Knights strong in tradition

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

While their teams have never played each other, the Farmington Hills Harrison and Royal Oak Kimball football coaches know all about each other's tradition.

Defending state champion Harrison and Kimball meet for the first time Saturday in a Class A semifinal game at 11:30 a.m. in Jackson Withington Stadium.

Terry Powers, the current coach at Kimball, lives in the Harrison school district and pays his taxes in Farmington Hills.

He spent eight years (1981-88) as an assistant to Tom Mach at Redford Catholic Central before going to Kimball, where he has been head coach for five years.

"I'm sure he's read all of our articles," Harrison coach John Herrington said. "I was kidding him, telling him his boy is going to be a Hawk some day, but he said not if he can get open enrollment in Royal Oak."

The Knights were a perennial Class A power and always among the top 10 teams in the state during the 1960s and early '70s.

Kimball has revived that tradition and memories of its glory years, qualifying for the playoffs the last two years while compiling a 17-4 record.

"The school knows of the past tradition and is happy it's back to where it used to be," Powers said. "It's been a long stretch — 13 years (since its first playoff appearance) — and we've accomplished some things that others haven't."

The two teams also are quite alike in terms of their offensive diversity. The Knights throw more than the old Kimball teams.

Two key offensive players for Kimball are brothers Jeff and Jeremy Davis.

Jeff, senior quarterback and Division I prospect, threw for 1,144 yards and 17 touchdowns in the regular season, completing 66 of 133 attempts.

Junior fullback Jeremy rushed for 679 yards and 11 touchdowns on 81 carries in the first nine games. Junior tailback Adam Conrad added 467 yards and five TDs.

The Knights have a fine wide receiver in senior all-state candidate Brian Issitt. He had 31 receptions for 699 yards and nine TDs in the regular season.

Senior Neal Mozdierz caught 23 passes for 318 yards going into the playoffs. He also leads the team with seven interceptions.

Harrison won a 28-26 thriller from South Lyon last week, trading touchdowns and the lead in the second half.

There could be more of the same this week. Kimball averaged 32 points per game in the regular season, the Hawks 31½.

"It's hard to judge on past scores, because they shut down two good teams and we held down Chadsey," Herrington said. "The potential is there on both sides to score points."

Kimball has scored just 16 points in the playoffs, but field conditions had a lot to do with the low score against Fraser.

On the other hand, Kimball played good defense and held Berkley to 85 yards after the Bears' first possession.

Jeremy Davis is the leading tackler with 94. He also has two fumble recoveries and five sacks.

Let's cut to the core, Lenore.

The Detroit dailies' "apples-to-apples" pitch just doesn't cut it.

Here's why:

- 72% of metro Detroiters live in the suburbs, where SPRING has twice the circulation of the Free Press—and nearly three times the circulation of The News.
- And all of SPRING's circulation is audited.
- All of which means, any way you care to slice it...
- SPRING should be your first choice for reaching the right metro Detroit market.

Here's a challenge to all deer hunters: report your score

BILL PARKER

Hope you were able to get out and enjoy the first few days of the 1994 firearms deer season. If not, don't fret, you still have 14 days to hunt before the season comes to an end on Nov. 30. Then there's the second archery season (Dec. 1-Jan. 1 statewide) and the muzzleloader seasons (Dec. 2-11 in the Upper Peninsula, and Dec. 9-18 in the Lower Peninsula). Now comes the challenge. In past years, the annual Observer & Eccentric Community Buck Pole has had its ups and downs. Some years this column space has been filled with successful hunter reports while other years I've had to scratch and dig for the names of successful hunters. My challenge to you is to make my life miserable. Keep me busy beyond my wildest imagination. My challenge is to make 1994 a record year for successful hunter reports at the O&E. I bet you can't do it. I had upwards of 40 calls in 1989 so the task won't be easy, but you can do your part to help. If you, your spouse, parent, child, friend, relative, neighbor or anyone else I may have missed harvested a whitetail deer this fall give me a call and fill me in on the details. Call me if it was a buck or a doe. Call me if the success came during archery, firearms or muzzleloader season. I know there are thousands of hunters in O&E Land and I know many of them will tag a deer this fall and the readers want to hear the stories. Call me anytime, night or day. If I'm away from my desk, or out of the office, please leave a detailed message on my voice mail. My number is (810) 901-2573. If you're making a toll call, leave a brief message and I'll return your call so you won't have to incur the charges. Be sure to leave the hunters' name and a phone number so I can call back if I need additional information. Also include the date and county where the deer was killed, the method (rifle, shotgun, bow and arrow etc.) and if possible a brief description of where the hunter was hunting (in a cedar swamp, along a fence row, in a stand of hardwoods, etc.) Also let me know if the hunter was still hunting, stalking or driving. If you care to fax me a note, please include all of the above information and fax to (810) 644-1314. If you would prefer to send me a note by mail the address is 8005 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI. 48009. I haven't heard from many archers yet, but now that you've been challenged I expect you phone to ring. It's disheartening when I see someone from O&E Land on Big Buck Night or read about them in some other publication and haven't received a call myself. Now is your chance to stand up and be heard. Besiege me with the task of sorting out and typing up all the success reports. Snowmobile enthusiasts are reminded that a snowmobile trail permit is now required for anyone operating a snowmobile on state land. A valid snowmobile registration is also still required.

Done something silly while bowling? Tell it!

TED-PIN ALLEY

What you are about to read is true. Only the names have been changed to protect the innocent. It happened last Friday. The mixed league had just finished bowling at Country Lanes in Farmington Hills. One of the bowlers — let's call him Al — had pecked up all his bowling gear, grabbed his wife and drove across the western Wayne suburbs to home.

Upon arriving at the house, one look at it took for this veteran of 35 bowling seasons to realize that he had not changed his shoes, and indeed had gone all the way home still wearing a pair of "Linda" bowling shoes. (Yes, it was raining out.) Upon realizing what he had done, he immediately called the bowling center and asked Mike (not his real name) to retrieve his street shoes from under the writers area behind lane 29. "Don't say a word about this to anybody, OK?" "OK," said Mike. "Your secret's safe with me." The next day, Al goes to Cloverlanes in Livonia to watch the competition in the NSBA Tournament. Many of the bowlers know Al, including Jack (not his real name) who came right out with "Ha, I hear you went all the way home in your bowling shoes."

End of story. Have any of the "Ten Pin Alley" readers ever had an embarrassing moment about bowling? Drop me a line and see if I can use it in the column. The names will be changed to protect all innocent parties. Looking ahead to Thanksgiving weekend, many local houses are having special events. One example is Oak Lanes in Westland, which will hold a Thanksgiving No-Tap Mixed Doubles Tournament Thursday, Nov. 24. Check-in time is 7 p.m. and bowling starts at 8 p.m. Cost per couple is $22 with the first three places guaranteed at $125, $100 and $75. They will also have an Adult-Child No-Tap Tournament the same day at 10 a.m., a non-sanctioned event with handicap at 80 percent of difference from 400. One adult can bowl with two children, cost is $11 per entry. Check with your favorite bowling center for any Thanksgiving Day activities. Ryan Wilson, All-Star bowler and proprietor of the Pro-Am Bowling & Trophies in Livonia, offers this advice for anyone who would be stupid enough to wear his or her bowling shoes outdoors in the rain: "Immediately remove the shoes from your feet, then use a hair dryer to dry them off, and if necessary, scuff the nap back up on the soles with a wire brush or Scotch Brite. Thank you, Ryan Wilson (that is his real name).

ALL-AREA GIRLS' CROSS COUNTRY

Spartan harriers chart '94 course

BY STEVE KOWALSKI STAFF WRITER

This was a year for underclassman runners in Observersland and no one can attest more to that than the Livonia Stevenson girls cross country team.

The Spartans, led by three freshmen and one sophomore, followed up an undefeated dual meet season with a Class A regional championship and a fourth place showing at the state meet.

Despite their youth, the Spartans were the team to beat from the get-go, winning the Shamrock-Shrine, Center Line, Ypsilanti-Brave and Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard invitationals.

The Spartans have placed four runners on the All-Observers first team and are hoping placemanship won't be part of the program in years to come.

"We expect to have seven of our top eight runners back next year and we can't take anything for granted," Stevenson coach Paul Holmberg said.

Holmberg started the Stevenson girls cross country program in 1976, and that year the Spartans were recognized as the "unofficial" state champion.

Holmberg, who coached the Stevenson boys cross country team to a second-place showing at the 1972 state meet, is Observersland's Coach of the Year.

Of the 10 runners on the first team, the only seniors are Farmington Hills Harrison's Allison Noe and Farmington Hills Mercy's Eileen O'Connell.

Four freshmen, including three from Stevenson, three sophomores and one junior are also on the first team. Following is a profile of each runner.

Kelly Travis, freshman, Liv. Stevenson: Travis was the best runner for the best team in Observersland. She won the Schoolcraft, Ypsilanti, WLAA and regional meets and placed fourth at the state meet.

Becky Wolfrom, sophomore, Ply. Canton: Wolfrom is a repeat selection on the Observers first team. She had her best time (19:33) in taking second at the Grossie Invitational and finished 20th in the individual race at the Class A state meet (19:53).

Beth Knight, sophomore, Ply. Canton: Knight overcame an early-season injury and came on strong, recording her season-best time in poor conditions with a 30th place showing in the Class A meet individual race (20:13).

Beth Knight, sophomore, Ply. Canton: Knight overcame an early-season injury and came on strong, recording her season-best time in poor conditions with a 30th place showing in the Class A meet individual race (20:13).

Kate Adams, freshman, Farmington: Adams had a strong freshman season, taking third in the Western Lakes meet in a time of 19:47, 11th in the Oakland County Meet (20:34) and seventh at the Class A regional (20:25).

Anne Grimaldi, junior, Farmington: Grimaldi, who carries a 3.8 grade point average, placed seventh at the WLAA meet (20:29). She was 23rd at Oakland County (20:58), 23rd at the regional (21:11) and 69th at the state meet (20:17).

Allison Noe, senior, Farm. Harrison: A repeat selection on the All-Area team, Noe placed in the top 20 at the Class A state meet the last three seasons, finishing this season with a 17th place in the individual race (19:39).

Eileen O'Connell, senior, Farm. Mercy: O'Connell never finished lower than second in any race this season and took first at the Shrine-Shamrock, Holy, Center Line and Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard invitationals.

Becky Wolfrom Canton, Beth Knight Canton, Kate Adams Farmington

Anne Grimaldi Farmington, Allison Noe Harrison, Eileen O'Connell Mercy

Katie Chonacas Stevenson, Kelly McNeill Stevenson, Jessica Cyburt Stevenson

O'Connell never finished lower than second in any race this season and took first at the Shrine-Shamrock, Holy, Center Line and Ann Arbor Gabriel Richard invitationals.

O'Connell was the Catholic League champion in 1993 and '94 and the Operation Friendship champ this season. She placed second at the Class A regional and second at the Class A state meet individual race (18:48).

She has the track season to look forward to as well, already holding the school record for the 500 and 800 meter races and as a member of the 3,200 meter relay team.

"In 21 seasons of coaching, I have never coached a more amazing athlete," Mercy coach Gary Servais said.

Katie Chonacas, freshman, Liv. Stevenson: Only a strep throat, which occurred around the Class A regional, could slow down this speedy freshman. Chonacas finished eighth at the WLAA meet and 51st at the state meet (20:09).

Jessica Cyburt, sophomore, Liv. Stevenson: Cyburt was like the other three Stevenson freshmen in that this was her first year of high school competition.

"Katie bounced back well (from strep throat) and ran well in the state final meet," coach Paul Holmberg said.

Kelly McNeill, another Stevenson super frosh, finished second in each dual meet behind her teammate and fellow freshman Travis. She had a personal best of 19:29, placed fourth at the Schoolcraft, WLAA and regional meets and 20th at the state meet (19:34).

"Kelly gave Stevenson one of the best one-two punches in the state," Holmberg said.

Jessica Cyburt, sophomore, Liv. Stevenson: Cyburt was like the other three Stevenson freshmen in that this was her first year of high school competition. Cyburt was a quick learner, taking 14th at the WLAA meet and finishing even stronger at the regional with a 10th place showing. She was 41st at the state meet with a personal best time (19:53).

How can a Christian adorn the doctrine of God
Our Savior in all things (Titus 2:10)? By constant reading of the Word with one dominant purpose - to discover WHAT God forbids and WHAT He commands, by meditating regularly on what we have read, and by fervent prayer for supernatural grace to enable us to obey.
Come and join with us!

We Deliver Families.

Some people think birth is a woman's concern. It is, of course, but it's also much more. At St. Mary Hospital, we think it's a family affair, so we make it easier for the father and the whole family to share the wonder of childbirth; before, during and after. Before you're due - when your anticipation is growing as quickly as your baby - our prenatal classes for expectant families such as Lamaze, breastfeeding and infant care and safety get your family ready for the new arrival. And when your baby is born - after months of waiting come down to a single day - we make sure that day is everything you want it to be. Our commitment to family involvement includes flexible visiting hours time with your baby; and time for father, grandparents, brothers and sisters. And all the while, you'll enjoy private rooms that combine homelike comforts with the support and security of St. Mary Hospital. Once you're home, we're as close as your phone, with follow-up and home help and information. So, talk with your doctor about St. Mary Hospital. Or call us at 313-277-7000. We'll help you find a physician who's right for you. Because when it comes to families... we deliver.

Why Pay 30-Year Rates When You Only Need 7 Years Worth?

7/23 MORTGAGE

For seven years, the rate on our 7/23 Mortgage will stay fixed at the very low rate you see above (which is lower than most 30-year rates). After the seventh year, the rate adjusts, but only one time (by then, you'll probably be in a new home anyway, right?).

The 7/23 Mortgage is not a balloon. APR (annual percentage rate) is calculated on a $100,000 loan with an 80% loan-to-value ratio and one day of prepaid interest. 84 total monthly payments in first 7 years of $790.77, based on 8.50% rate and 9.461% APR. Amount of the 278 monthly payments for the remaining 23 years will depend on the new interest rate. Interest rate and terms are subject to change at any time without notice. The APR may increase after closing.

BOOK BREAK

VICTORIA DIAZ

Book offers 52 flavors of Michigan travel tips

"52 Michigan Weekends," by Bob Puhala (198 pp., $9.95, Country Roads Press).

Reading this little travel book is a little like going in to your favorite ice cream store, and tasting just a bit of each one of its 52 flavors. Maybe it's best not to do it all at one sitting and, for sure, though all of it is fun, some flavors will appeal to you more than others. But, when you're done, you'll know more overall about the state and ice cream. And next time around, you'll know what you might want to spend your money on. In the meantime, you can savor just looking forward to more of what you liked best.

The title pretty much tells you the basic idea behind the book, of course (which focuses mostly on family trips, by the way). Chicago Sun Times columnist Puhala has made it even more reader friendly by dividing "52 Michigan Weekends" into the seasons of the year most advisable for each brief venture.

Start with spring (which he does). After all, if winter is almost upon us, can blossom time be that far away?

Speaking of blossom time, Puhala suggests you sample Benton Harbor's Blossomtime Festival (late April-early May) next time around. Friendly, knowledgeable, and articulate (with just enough clever turns of phrase to keep his writing lively, but never get in the way of the trip), he's just the man to show you around, it seems. At the same time, he seems just the man for feeding you background on the subject, and filling you in on details you may not know about (the one-hour "blossom blessing" ritual calls for up to 10 priests and ministers from the tri-county area; festival queens present the blossoms for blessing at its big finish).

If you haven't yet visited the Double JJ Dude Ranch near Rothbury, you may be sorely tempted after reading Puhala's chapter, "Hey, Dude!". (The 1200-acre spread opens in mid-May.) Ditto Torch Lake (near Traverse City), once selected by National Geographic magazine as one of the four most beautiful lakes in the world; plus southwestern Michigan's "Harbor Country," the Motor City, and many other spots.

On into summer, Puhala suggests that, along with old stand-bys like Saugatuck, Mackinac Island, and Frankenmuth, you might want to cool off at some slightly off-beat spots. How about the Arcadian Copper Mines, near Hancock where the temperature is always a bracing 40 degrees? Or the USS Silversides - America's most-celebrated WW II submarine, berthed at Muskegon Lake? Or even some of the countless shipwreck preserves, littering the floors of the Great Lakes? Though Puhala doesn't show you how to dive here, he does include some nuts-and-bolts information on where you can learn; according to the book, many of the preserves are accessible to beginning divers (though not to children).

Autumn days are leaving, but after seeing this book, you might be inspired to plan a quick, close-to-home family weekend together that

A ROOM WITH A View

Art surrounds families with dreams and fantasies

Life's a jungle: Jamie Bakka Young makes children's bedtime fun with murals sporting lions, tigers, and bears.

Bedrooms become a jungle with murals

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Jamie Bakka Young tailors lively, sometimes whimsical murals to fit your dream. The Churchill High School graduate and former Livonia resident of 17 years has a knack for creating a cheerful atmosphere.

One of the most popular forms of the painting she does is for children's rooms. Young has tackled a variety of subjects in her murals for the young or young-at-heart, everything from hockey and baseball players to zebras, jungle animals, dinosaurs in spaceships, and a page straight out of a book about Winnie the Pooh.

"Murals are really popular. It's a painting that goes through the room. It's not stenciling. Every flower and animal will be different," said Young at an interview in her Farmington Hills home.

"I just make the walls a canvas. For the price of wallpaper or paint they can have original artwork. I've always loved painting. Rather than doing borders, I'd rather create original artwork."

The first step in any painting project for Young is to look at the space and quiz the clients - parents and children alike as to what is their heart's desire. The sky's the limit as far as Young is concerned.

"Children's rooms and jungle rooms are very popular right now. I work with the kids and the parents. It's totally made to order for the customer and you can do anything," said the 31-year old mother of two. "I'm an artist made to order. You name it and I'll do it. I will create it for you."

Many of Young's clients live in West Bloomfield, Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills. Most recently a commission took her to Commerce Township to begin work on a mural for a four year old boy, but first she needed to capture a sense of what he wanted to see lurking in his jungle scene. A coiling snake dangling from the branch of a tree was his reply. One snake coming up, or rather down to wriggle just inches above the head of his bed.

It's obvious Young enjoys working with the children. As a mother of two little ones, it comes naturally. In fact, one of her first murals was created for her four year old son, Scott. Lambs, balloons and pigs dance around the walls of that nursery till today.

When Young was expecting

Painters take decorative art to new surfaces

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Once you learn the techniques used in decorative painting, the possibilities are endless. Decorative painters like to say no surface is safe from their brush.

Although Nancy Lenski doesn't paint murals for a living, she teaches the skills necessary for others to do it at Brelliwig's, a decorative painting shop she co-owns in Plymouth. The Observer's Creative Living section will feature a paint-along series of articles for our readers guided by Lenski beginning in January.

Decorative painting colors walls creatively

SPECIAL WRITER

Patrick McGee's decorative painting offers an attractive alternative to plain vanilla walls. Two-color and multi-color washes of paint along with a host of other finishes created in rich palettes by McGee are sure to warm and create drama in any environment.

Working independently as well as with designers such as Craig Steinhilf of Perlmutter-Friewald of Franklin, Brian Killian of Birmingham and architect Victor Saroki, McGee's Intuitive Painters decorative art and design business stirs in a little imagination to create color treatments that are one-of-a-kind.

A color wash is simply a thinned down paint, a watercolor if you will. And like a watercolor painting, it emits light. A two color, color wash yields an impressionistic canvas of sorts. From a distance it appears as one color, but a closer look reveals a horse of a different color, two to be exact.

most like color book painting. If they know the basics, anything's possible," said Lenski of Plymouth.

Fifteen years of painting decoratively shows in Lenski's Primitive mural showcased on the walls of sister, Cathy Wheeler's circular breakfast nook in Livonia. The Rhode Island countryside panorama is near and dear to her heart. It features the farm house the two sisters grew up in, their collie and boxer dogs, and two pet cows. Rhode Island Reds feed outside of the chicken coop in one half of the mural, while a whale cruises the bay in the other half.

Lenski originally suggested the mural after Wheeler had tried to remove the wallpaper only to find she was having no success. Reluctantly, Wheeler had to place the home on the market because of her recent marriage. Although she does a little decorative painting herself, Wheeler plans to have her sister paint another mural as soon as she is settled in a new Livonia home.

"I'm going to miss it. It's a lot of little things from our childhood. I'll probably do it again in our new home," she said.

Claudia Hunter of Southfield took the decorative painting techniques learned from Lenski at Brellwig's to create her own work of art - a dynamic, shark scene engulfing 9-year-old grandson, Bradley Kolb's bathroom in Plymouth Township.

The walls are painted deep sea blue. Large coral, and a school of black and white striped fish fill the small room with the wonders of the ocean. A solitary tennis shoe rising upwards adds a bit of whimsy, a moray eel emerging from the register, a touch of horror.

"Bradley's a nature kid, an avid seashell collector," said his mother, Faith Ann Kolb who also has taken classes at Brellwig's.

"The mural is different. It's not something everybody has, and he even did some of the brush work."

Retrieving the design for the coral from gift wrap paper, and the fish from Bradley's books, some borrowed from the library as research materials, Hunter set to work on the underwater scene completing it in about 60 hours.

"I thought, we were going to do cartoon fish because he took a cartooning class this summer at the D & M Art Studio art camp, but Bradley wanted the real thing," Hunter said. "He wanted pilot fish."

Hunter is no stranger to mural painting. She did her first piece of wall art, a circus scene for her son, 30 years ago. Since that time she has dabbled in a variety of media including oil, watercolor, pastel, pottery and weaving by taking classes at the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Association. She also started a business, The Golden Balloon, which provides decorating services (balloons and silk floral arrangements) for festivities at the Renaissance Center, and corporate, International Visitors Council and Grand Prix parties. Now that she's retired, Hunter hopes to build a clientele for her vertical artworks.

For information about Hunter's murals call (810) 356-3589. To learn more about the classes at Brellwig's call (313) 416-8240.

you'll always remember.

Puhala sees Ann Arbor and the campus as tailor-made for such a weekend. Don't forget the UM Exhibit Museum, the UM Museum of Art, Zingerman's, Kerrytown, Domino's Farms, and the Phoenix Memorial Laboratory, with its glowing-at-the-center nuclear reactor.

Farther afield, he'll take you and the kids to the Curious Kid's Museum in St. Joseph, the Michigan Space Center in Jackson (home of four astronauts — more than any other city in the U.S.), Turkeyville USA (Marshall), or

Here's something else I didn't know until I read this book: Of only four luge runs that exist in the U.S., two are located in Michigan. For all you winter sports enthusiasts, in "Loving the Luge," Puhala visits the run in North Muskegon (the other is in Marquette), where a 15-year-old Olympic hopeful instructs him in the fine art of lugeing. By day's end, Puhala is an Olympic hopeful himself. Maybe you will be, too.

Other Michigan winter adventures include Plymouth's fast-growing "Ice Sculpture Spectacular," Christmastime treats at glittery Greenfield Village, and "Michigan's Best Family Ski Resort" (Crystal Mountain, Thompsonville).

Puhala doesn't neglect snowmobilers, and includes all the top spots in Michigan for snow-mo fun. In addition, if you're familiar with "shiners," "fatheads," and "Pikki jigs," you want to miss out on "Ice Fishing Fun."

There are many more flavors, and Puhala helps you to get a delightful taste of each one.

Small complaint department: As with other Country Roads publications, maps are not a strong point here.

daughter, Taylor two years ago she decided to conjure up a special room for Scott with furniture painted to match. The bottom half of the wall is painted bright yellow. The base color for the upper portion sporting dinosaurs flying in space ships is deep purple. Bear in mind, Young was nine months pregnant at the time she painted this room.

Always a go-getter, Young paid her way through Center for Creative Studies, College of Art and Design in Detroit by doing portraits, another area in which her talent is readily apparent. One of her high profile clients was former Detroit Pistons basketball player, Dennis Rodman.

Young loves challenges. Just give her an idea, then turn her love to explore, research and create with paint.

One client had her reproduce Michelangelo's painting in the Sistine Chapel of St. Peter's in Rome in his Detroit loft. It features the creation of Adam on a specially built 30-foot long wall.

Young even went so far as to paint in the cracking lines of aging paint. When the sun shines through the window during the early morning hours, it lights God's face.

"I look forward to challenging projects. It's exciting when someone gives you a challenge in their color scheme."

Young has done commercial mural projects as well. They include trendy night spots such as E.G. Nicks with interior design by Ron Rea where she painted scenes reminiscent of the French Impressionists night life in Paris, and posters spouting cures for what ails you from the turn-of-the-century.

Young says mural are versatile because "with wallpaper you're limited."

"There's no limitations with murals. It's durable. It's better than wallpaper. It doesn't rip and you just paint over it."

tom wallpaper. It's subtle, but has depth to it," said McGee, formerly a 25-year resident of Livonia.

"Anything that can take paint can have something done to it. It's open to how creative someone wants to be."

McGee refers to his work as handwork, and rightly so. A master of deception, McGee's painting will fool you into believing a surface is marble, tiger's eye, even jade. His gilded Dutch metal masquerades as gold leaf. A crackle finish ages all it touches including the fireplace mantle of Lyn and Tim Morris in Rochester Hills. McGee produced a number of color treatments for the Morris' besides the crackle fireplace. Like a theatrical backdrop, McGee's wall glazings and faux marble Botticini pillar further the creation of a dramatic canvas for the Morris' baby grand piano and contemporary seating all perched upon an exquisite oriental rug.

"We wanted to do something different for some drama, add some deeper color because the house is so large. If you look at his walls, his have a lot more depth of color and light," said Lyn Morris. "And with Patrick you're dealing with an artist. He has an inner design sense."

McGee's background is in the decorative arts. After graduating from Bentley High School in Livonia, he embellished a liberal arts course of study at Schoolcraft College with in-depth indoctrination in the decorative arts. At the Day Studio in San Francisco, McGee studied color as well as techniques in marbleizing, glazing, gilding and patina. He further refined his gilding skills at the Field Art Studio in Berkeley, Michigan. At the Naropa Institute in Boulder, Colorado, McGee was instructed in the ways of making paint from a variety of materials like ground malachite. He also learned the fine art of painting Byzantine icons.

Gilding is one of McGee's favorite finishes. It can be applied to ceilings, moldings, frames, fireplaces, just about anything.

"The diversity of what's possible never ends," said McGee.

If it's texture you're after, his rag rolling creates minute ridges of colored paint that catch the light.

"The wall treatments that are popular now are sponging with a marine sponge, and dragging. The technique's based on what kind of tool you use. The creativity of paint comes in with how you want to do it."

McGee's painting talents extend to furniture as well. Besides doing finish work for Futuristic Furnishings in Royal Oak, McGee many times rescues found objects and breathes new life into them at his studio in St. Charles Common Ground, a community of working artists located in an old school adjacent to St. Charles Church in Detroit. In other cases, McGee is trusted to revamp clients' prized heirlooms or near-heirlooms. A fresh coat of color with decorative paint covered on top of the new surface, a toy chest painted with collage, or a coffee table sporting a tiger's eye or oriental lacquer finish is sure to add spice to a tailored, old treasure.

"It's unique. It's custom, and if it has a history with you, it's a new chapter," said the 29-year-old McGee.

"As far as walls, the trend is definitely to decorative painting. People are tired of wallpaper. It's heavy looking and when you want to change it, you have to peel it off. Decorative painting is art work. Imagination is where it starts."

To turn your walls into works of decorative art call McGee at (313) 677-4700 or his Industrial Park studio at (313) 677-0700.

THEY'RE TOP GUNS

Nearly 40 local ERA Real Estate sales agents are enrolled in ERA'S Top Gun Academy, an eight-week advanced training course that runs through mid-November at the Southfield Civic Center. Each session helps participants focus on client service, self-promotion and increased productivity.

Top Gun candidates must first complete ERA's Sales System Training and be approved by their broker.

"This training was developed to build on the fundamentals of our industry. These professionals are not here to work on the basics. (They will) learn how to use other techniques to better serve their customers and their business," said Kathi Mathis, national Top Gun trainer.

ERA said the average Top Gun graduate can expect to boost his or her productivity by more than 200 percent.

Realtor adds minority view to state team

BY GRETCHEN VAN CLEAVE SPECIAL WRITER

As a newly appointed member of the Michigan Association of Realtors' board of directors, Judy Walker says she feels like a modern-day Rosa Parks of the real estate industry.

In October, Walker became the first minority board member in the association's 79-year history. "I made an assessment that there were very few minorities on the local level and no representations on the state level," said Walker, president of Red Carpet Keim, Walker and Associates, Southfield.

With 17 years of real estate experience, and countless committee hours that she donates, the Southfield resident was confident she could fill one of the five open directorships.

Walker is on MAR's professional standards committee and public relations committee. Locally, she's vice president of the South Oakland County Board of Realtors; she chairs the membership committee and is on the community service committee.

During the course of her "Walker is Running" campaign, she and her campaign staff sent letters and her resume to voting delegates in 52 districts. Of 114 delegates, only five or six are minorities, she said.

The final vote and tally was Oct. 12, the last day of MAR's fall conference in Detroit. "I was hopeful and optimistic, but I didn't delude myself," said Walker, a 1978 Wayne State University graduate.

Seven people ran for the five open positions, she said. "Judy's election is groundbreaking," said Bill Nabers, Realtor and first vice-president of the South Oakland County NAACP. "She is in a position where minorities can have a voice for a change."

Historically, opportunity for women and minorities to move up within the industry was difficult because boards were dominated by men. It has only been within the last five years that women have risen to state levels but she sees changes. For instance, the next two presidents, according to the line of ascendancy, will be female, Walker said.

Walker has some ideas she will work on during her two-year position. Foremost, she wants to devise a structure for leadership training that will teach minorities what would be necessary to move into key positions at state and local levels.

Walker said 40 percent of active real estate agents are minorities. "There is a whole vat of creativity that will only make our industry better."

"As a black female," she added, "I want to get more minorities involved in the decision making aspect of the board."

Lansing Realtor Dennis Goff, MAR president, said he's "excited to have her working with us. We're excited about having the minority viewpoint on the board."

Walker will be active in equal housing and opportunities in real estate, Nabers said.

Walker also wants to be an integral part of the mass changes she says are happening in real estate.

Advanced technology and the Board of Choice are two areas she says she thinks will make real estate a stronger profession.

Under Board of Choice, a principal broker can choose to join whatever board or association in the state they wish without regard to market area. Realtors will no longer be limited by territorial jurisdiction, as of Jan. 1.

A MAR directorship is a volunteer position and requires much dedication, Walker said.

"I'll do the best I can at a grassroots level. That is where my energies are best utilized. I am one of the few people that doesn't mind hitting the brick wall until a brick pops out," she said. "My son thinks I'm going to be even more busier than I am."

Walker already puts in a 12- to 14-hour workday.

"I want to be ready with my sleeves rolled up to start having some equality at the state level," she said.

Learn to stay on course when operating complex

CONDO QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. Our complex is currently very small and is the first phase in the development.

The developer owns an adjacent parcel, which is to be developed as Phase II, consisting of another phase of relatively few units.

Our phase has been sold out for a number of years and our association's transitional control date was three years ago. As of this writing, the developer is still a board member, but does not have any contact with the association.

The developer has had some problems with the law, and state and local municipalities. Many of the co-owners in our phase have unresolved construction problems.

When we took over, we were many thousands of dollars in the hole. Needless to say, we are not excited about the prospect of building Phase II with this developer.

Phase II is basically landlocked without the use of the entrance and our two roads in Phase I. We need some legal guidance.

A. You have a myriad of problems, unfortunately too typically associated with the transition of control from the developer to the association in too many instances.

You need the various audits which are discussed in this writer's booklet, "Condominium Operation: Getting Started and Staying on the Right Track."

Why the developer retains a seat on the board and does not participate is unexplainable. Why your co-owners and the association are not pursuing the developer for construction defects is highly suspect.

Whether or not the developer has a right to complete the condominium units in your condominium or through a separate condominium is not clear.

Whether the developer has retained your rights over the roadways of easement condominium is also not clear without a thorough review of your documents. You obviously need legal guidance as soon as is possible.

'Urban' planners: Developers Ron Hughes and David Lanciault flank architect Robert Gibbs with plans for a unique community living experience.

They want to build neighborhoods

Most large tracts of land develop over time without the stamp of a single planner, architect or developer. That isn't the case, though, with a large project in Novi involving several area principals.

STAFF WRITER

Picture a community where each house has a big front porch and picket fence, is located on a short block with sidewalks, and has parks and shops within walking distance.

Add government buildings with distinct Greek revival characteristics and businesses in the center of town with living quarters upstairs. Sound like a slice of Early America? That's the idea behind New Urbanism.

"We're promoting new towns on old principles," said Robert Gibbs, a Birmingham architect and frontrunner of the movement.

Gibbs designed the Vistas of Novi, Michigan's first New Urbanism community, which is now under construction. He believes this return to classic principles, a bold alternative to suburban sprawl, will prove to be a model for others to follow.

Hughlan Development Co. partners Ronald Hughes and David Lanciault spent nearly eight years planning the 300-acre site, which stretches from the east side of Novi Rd. beginning at 12 1/2 Mile Rd., north to 13 Mile and east to Meadowbrook.

The Bingham Farms development company scrapped its original site plan and hired Gibbs. The Vistas, which will have its first occupants by next spring, features stunning departures from post World War Two suburban housing stock.

Townhouses will be incorporated in neighborhoods of single family houses. There will be no driveways in front yards. Garages will be detached or attached but not predominant. There will be access along a common lane behind the houses.

"We want to create a place where neighbors can sit on their front porches and talk to each other," said Gibbs, who has designed or consulted on similar communities in Florida and on the east and west coasts.

He is considered a national authority on New Urbanism and was a recent guest speaker at Harvard University Graduate School of Design.

"We're creating a neighborhood that has daily conveniences and services for day to day life."

The Vistas will feature eight neighborhoods, each with a park and a mix of entry level to more expensive housing. Several architects will be involved to give individual flair to the common theme. Residential areas will line 100 acres of preservation areas, a lake and 11 parks.

"We want a mix of income levels, young adults, families, and senior citizens, versus the subdivision of four bedroom colonials where each house is at the same income level," said Gibbs.

"Typically the American family moves every five years. In a neighborhood like the Vistas, grown kids can afford an apartment. It makes for a tighter community."

A new elementary school will be built by the Walled Lake Schools, which services the whole development. Its architectural style will conform with the Vistas, which will offer Victorian, colonial and Michi-Recounting success: William C. Thom, president of Harmony House, identifies several reasons for the longevity of the family-owned business.

Family-owned success

Music retailer prospers close to home

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

Harmony House, a retailer of compact discs and cassettes headquartered in Troy, celebrated its 47th anniversary earlier this year.

William C. Thom (pronounced Tom), son of founder Carl Thom, now charts course for the family-owned enterprise. The 37-store chain, with outlets in Livonia, Westland, Birmingham, Southfield and Farmington, employs some 375 people.

Thom cuts right to the chase when reflecting on his company's success. "The key is having something to sell that people want."

Following are edited excerpts from a recent interview.

Why do you think Harmony House has managed to stay in business for nearly 50 years?

Thom: I think there's a few things you have to have.

Number one is a product people want. Music is a low-price product. Even in bad times, it's still affordable. Even in recessionary times, people will buy a cassette and a six-pack of beer because they have 10 bucks in their pocket.

The second thing you find in our company is having great employees. Most are in it for the long term. They're taken care of from our perspective. We try for knowledgeable employees with good rapport in the community.

I think you need to be competitive. You need to change with the times. It's a fast-paced business.

How good is business?

Thom: Our sales this year will be over $40 million. This year, our net profit is in the neighborhood of one percent of sales. Our biggest month is coming up. We operate on very thin margins.

How expensive is it to establish a new store?

Thom: A typical store for us has $350,000 in inventory. It costs in the neighborhood of $100,000 for fixtures and leasehold improvements. Then there's computer systems. In total, it's in the neighborhood of half a million dollars.

We don't borrow. All profits that aren't distributed through profit sharing are plowed back into the company. We've been basically self-financed. We don't have any debt.

How do you decide where to open a new store?

Thom: We have five stores in malls, several freestanding, five to 10. Most are in strip centers. The problem with malls is the cost of leases is so high. In malls, two or three record stores are there already.

We prefer freestanding stores near malls. We want to be in an area where people are shopping. We want stores to be convenient, easy to get in and out of.

We look at population growth, where our competition is located, traffic patterns. There's a lot of demographic information available and developers will supply that information.

We make decisions based on gut reactions where we'll be successful.

What are your thoughts about going public through a stock offering or making franchise opportunities available?

Thom: I'm aware of what options are out there.

If it seemed the best thing for the family, the best thing for employees and the best thing for customers... I'd have to look at those three things when looking at the general direction of the company.

We're not up for sale. If someone came along with the right offer, we might start talking. We've been a target, especially with the amount of money being invested in the industry by big players.

Who offered to buy you?

Thom: I can't say.

Do you have a typical customer?

Thom: Sixty to 70 percent are male, typically, a younger male 25-35, but the age is spreading due to the introduction of CDs.

They (older purchasers) were record buyers when they were young. They started families and got away from it. CDs brought them back in because of permanent nature of the technology, improvement in sound. It started with classical.

The pop category, in general, is our best selling. That includes rock and alternative. Classical is good selling. Country is good selling.

Our specialty is variety of music. We're not necessarily a youth-oriented store.

You talked about your loyal employees earlier. Why are they so loyal?

Thom: We pay wages you can live on. The full time rate is up to $8 per hour for non-management sales clerk, plus benefits, plus profit sharing. They might start in the $5-$5.50 range.

Store managers can make up to $30,000 based on sales volume of the store plus bonuses.

Every single position has been filled from within. I started for 50 cents per hour in 1968.

What separates you from other major retailers in the competitive wars?

Thom: By remaining relatively small, relatively regional, we probably have a better feel for what's going on. We own our own distribution center. We can react much quicker.

We visited (competitors') stores long before they came to Detroit and knew what they were like.

We've identified what our strengths are.

We're local stores. We contribute to local needs. We buy ads in yearbooks, participate in fund drives. That kind of goodwill in the long term develops loyalty in people who are in the community, themselves.

Do you have a business philosophy?

Thom: For me, it boils down to a simple philosophy of taking care of others first. That includes customers and that includes employees. I learned that from my father. In return, he was taken care of.

We want our employees to take care of customers, whatever it takes.

What about company goals?

Thom: We have our 50th anniversary in 1997. I hope by then, we will expand to a few more outstate communities like Kalamazoo.

Some areas in metro Detroit, I think, can support a Harmony House.

In the meantime, we'll continue to upgrade existing stores as leases come up.

gan farmhouse among other designs.

A 19th century church is being restored and moved to the site to be used as a non-denominational community center.

"We feel civic buildings need to be integrated back into neighborhoods," said Gibbs, who lives and works in downtown Birmingham.

New Urbanism has its roots in the architectural style of Thomas Jefferson. Gibbs points to Jefferson's University of Virginia, with faculty living close to students, distinct civic buildings and a grand promenade.

He spurns big regional government complexes, with little thought to greenery, and office and retail centers where parking lots devour premium frontage. Commercial centers in the Vistas will be built close to the roads with parking in the rear. The whole town will be walker friendly.

Bloomfield Hills developer Ron Hughes said Gibbs was retained to convert the original master plan.

"After tremendous research, he came up with this plan and presented it to the Novi city council and planning commission, which gave it overwhelming support," said Hughes. "In September, final approval was given by the zoning board of appeals."

Hughes credits Novi officials for their progressive attitude toward the Vistas, which represents a stark departure from routine residential developments.

He said phase one housing prices will start in the low $200,000s. Phase two hasn't been priced yet.

Two builders are responsible for construction, which will eventually include 850 houses, 343 live/work townhouses and 93 studio lofts. They are Farmington Hills-based Heritage Residential Group and the Mitch Harris Building Co. of Brighton.

The Vistas grand promenade will be one-third of a mile in length, about the same size as the National Mall in Washington D.C. It will stretch from the market center to the town's meeting hall. Houses that abut this special park will be subject to stricter building codes.

All neighborhoods will be about a six minute walk to the central market area.

Currently two models are open for public view, a traditional colonial and a house with the master suite on the first floor and three bedrooms upstairs. For more information, call 1-810-669-6669.

The new facility, conceptualized by Progressive Designs of Bloomfield Hills, will have a conference and training center, research and development test kitchen and a distribution warehouse.
"We have outgrown our current facility in Livonia because of the rapid expansion we have experienced the last few years," said Steven E. Jackson, Hungry Howe's president.
"In choosing a site, we wanted an area that would provide easy access to the freeway system for our distribution center as well as an area with high visibility."
Hungry Howe's, a privately owned company, has more than 250 franchise stores throughout the U.S. and Canada.

The Internet Listserv: something in common

EMORY DANIELS

O&E ONLINE
The oldest commercial on-line service is CompuServe and for several years now one of its popular draws has been its discussion forums.

Discussion forums are special interest groups which exchange views, information, tips and news on-line. A message is posted for all users to read, a response can be sent to any answer, and that response is posted for all to read.

The Internet has two types of discussion forums — USENET and LISTSERV — in which special interest groups form and exchange views and news. Both formats are available through O&E On-line. Of the two choices, USENET is the most popular and has been for several years on the Internet. LISTSERV, however, is much easier and for that reason is a good introduction to beginners to on-line forums.

LISTSERV is discussion which is posted and responded to entirely through e-mail. The user subscribes to a List through e-mail, reads daily postings through e-mail, responds using e-mail, and cancels his subscription through e-mail.

There are two important items everyone will want to remember. First, write down and retain the directions to Unsubscribe. The day will come when you want to get out of the List and on that day you must have the directions on-hand. Second, read your postings daily and delete so your mail-box doesn't get loaded up. You might receive 30-50 messages a day and it won't take long until you have 50-200 postings if you don't delete daily.

With both USENET and LISTSERV you can access at your leisure. But LISTSERV will

■ There are two important items remember. Write down and retain the directions to Unsubscribe. Second, read your postings daily and delete so your mail-box doesn't get loaded up. You might receive 30-50 messages a day, and it won't take long until you have 200 postings if you don't delete daily.

post messages instantly in your mail-box (Pine) while in USENET the postings collect and are uploaded by the system operator so they messages are replaced daily and don't get out of hand.

LISTSERV commands are fairly universal but once in awhile you'll come across one or two that are different. To join a List, the standard step is to send a message to that particular LISTSERV address and in the message area type SUB (list name) (your name). An example would be, SUB on-line news Emory Daniels. Simply send the message as you would any e-mail message (Control X, answer yes). A confirmation message will be returned to you.

If an error response is received, try again making sure type the address, the list name and your name correctly. The confirmation message will include directions on how to unsubscribe; put that message in a folder or write the one-line command in a notebook.

Some Lists will ask you to type out SUBSCRIBE instead of the standard SUB. A few will want your e-mail address, rather than your real name. Most LISTSERVs are set up to automatically scan the header of your e-mail request, pick up your e-mail address, and add it to its mailing list. In all subscribe requests do not type anything in the "Subject" line of the header.

Once you are subscribed, every message posted in that forum (List) will automatically be e-mailed to you along with the hundreds or thousands of others who are members. When you sign-on, enter Pine to check your mail. There will be 10-15 new postings. Read the messages and delete as you read (by typing D for delete and answering yes). As you delete one message, the next will automatically appear on your screen. You can print out a message by typing Y, or save by typing E to export — just like with any e-mail.

With LISTSERV and USENET, just like local chat and IRC, it is best to simply monitor the discussion and not respond for a week or two so you know what's been talked about and so you understand make-up of the group. Inappropriate responses may lead to unnecessary flaming (a negative posting aimed at you).

But once you feel comfortable, simply answer a posting by typing R for Respond. Then select the options whether you will answer only the individual who posted or everyone on the list. If you choose the "reply to all" option, your answer goes on the List for all members to read.

The next column will include several Lists in hopes that one of interest to you will be included. Then you can select one, and experience this type of discussion forum.
