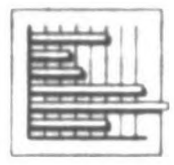
Mayflower renovation delayed



Downtown Plymouth's centerpiece, the Mayflower Hotel, is back on its feet and is no longer losing money. However, renovation work has been delayed.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The Mayflower Hotel is no longer losing money, but a flap over back taxes has delayed an inside renovation project.

The renovation project once planned to happen during streetscape construction has been put on hold, as taxing authorities and current and former owners of the hotel property sort out who owes what on a $250,000 tax bill owed to the county and city.

After Mayflower Properties Inc. bought the hotel in August 1994, plans were announced to renovate the inside of the hotel, to make it more attractive to restaurant and bar customers.

"We have preliminary drawings put together, we have an idea of how we want the hotel to look," Mayflower general manager Matt Karmo said.

"We want to try to utilize the corner of the hotel, that used to be the cabinet shop," Karmo said. "We want to have the restaurant wrap around the corner of the building."

Preliminary plans also call for additional windows to allow more natural light into the restaurant.

"We also want to expand the Mayflower Room," Karmo said, to accommodate 200-230 people for banquets and receptions.

"We'll be adding a cafe and bakery where the jewelry shop used to be," he said.

He declined to project when work would begin. "There's a legal problem, that's been resolved but not completely," Karmo said, referring to the issue of back taxes.

"The business has been stabilized, the hotel and the restaurant are not

Weather big factor in festival success

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Fall Festival organizers were fired up early this week, saying the 40th festival was a big success.

Festival President Doily Marzka said she got a letter on Tuesday from Mayor Doug Miller. "He said it will be remembered as one of the best festivals ever," she said, adding volunteers' help contributed to its success.

Great weather was a big contributor, said publicity chairman Joe Bida. "You couldn't beat it," he said.

Folks also commented on this year's lineup of live entertainers. "We got good comments from many, many people," he said.

While weather was perfect for many on Saturday and Sunday — sunny with daytime highs around 70 — it was much cooler on Friday as the festival opened. "The crowds were light Friday, I attributed that to football," Bida said.

Several festival goers also commented on the Rotary Chicken Barbecue, saying the chicken was especially good this year. "They changed the mixture," said Rotarian Paul Sincock, adding the recipe was a secret.

The Rotary sold all 12,000 chicken dinners by 4:45 p.m. Sunday, and dinner ticket holders who couldn't get a dinner were given refunds.

"The walking entertainment was a success," Bida said, and several festival goers praised the bands performing on the main stage Sunday — Benny Reeves and the Groove Company and Grass Roots.

Local shops reported good business during the festival. "All day long we were packed," said Repeat The Beat manager David Haupt.

The Plymouth Community Arts Council-sponsored Artists and Craftsmen Show at Central Middle School drew steady crowds, said arts council executive director Randy Lee. "There was a lot of great talent represented," she said.

"We're really pleased," said Stella Greene, of the Trailwood Garden Club which sponsored several contests. About 40 youths entered the pie eating contest.

Store's for the birds

They don't just sell bird seed at downtown Plymouth's newest store, Backyard Birds. They celebrate back yards.

There are wind chimes, nature tapes, field guides and other bird books, garden statuary, bird baths, squirrel baffles, advice on feeding wild birds, and hardware for mounting and hanging feeders.

And there are more than 50 types of bird feeders, ranging in cost from $9.45 to $600, including top brands Droll Yankee and Woodlink. And don't forget the special blends of seed to fill them.

The grand opening for the store at 627 S. Main is Friday, but Backyard Birds actually opened its doors Sept. 1.

Owner Gary Phillips stresses that Backyard Birds — there are three other locations in metro Detroit — has the widest assortment of bird feeders, houses and seed blends, to attract more wild birds to feeders.

Phillips, of Farmington, worked 30 years in retail sales at Montgomery Ward and Service Merchandise, when medical leave forced him off the job.

"I had an opportunity to observe the birds in the back yard. I started feeding them and came to love the whole idea," he said.

"There is serenity as well, it's just fun feeding the birds. You start seeing the various kinds, the personali-

Safety concerns

Schools work on traffic problem solution

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

■ Superintendent Charles Little and Canton Township officials have been barraged with letters from parents concerned about motorists speeding on Morton Taylor between Joy and Warren roads. Wayne County raised the speed limit from 35 to 40 mph earlier this year. Hulsing is on Fleet Street, east of Morton Taylor and south of Joy.

Plymouth-Canton school Superintendent Charles Little and Canton Public Safety Director John Santomauro have come up with what they hope will be an effective and affordable solution to the traffic safety problem on Morton Taylor Road near Hulsing Elementary School.

Little and Canton Township officials have been barraged with letters from parents concerned about motorists speeding on Morton Taylor between Joy and Warren roads. Wayne County raised the speed limit from 35 to 40 mph earlier this year. Hulsing is on Fleet Street, east of Morton Taylor and south of Joy.

Parents concerned about the safety of children walking to school have suggested measures including a traffic light, bridge overpass, crosswalk, sidewalks, a slower speed limit, and speed bumps.

There's not enough traffic on Morton Taylor to warrant a traffic light, and the cost — $55,000 — is high, Little said. "The cost of a sidewalk with a bridge would be in excess of $100,000."

A county study "did find that people go beyond the speed limit. The average speed is 45," said Little. "Drivers have said, 'I'm surprised I was going that fast'."

Even though Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack is willing to install and pay for a traffic light at Morton Taylor and Arlington, Santomauro and Little favor the joint purchase of a mobile radar trailer that indicates the speed limit and motorists' speed as they drive past it.

The SMART (Speed Monitoring Awareness Radar Trailer) system costs $16,000. Residents at a recent meeting to discuss the issue "seemed satisfied with the solution," Little said.

"It seems to be a device that would be a good system," said the superintendent, adding that the school district would split the cost with the township. "It could be moved from school to school if we had similar problems at other schools. It could have both names on it and would be a good investment."

Trustee Barbara Graham said Gallimore Elementary on Sheldon Road would be a good candidate for the speed monitoring unit. "There's always a green arrow for traffic turning onto the Sheldon connector, and cars are doing 45," she said. Tall weeds that obscure the roadway are also a concern, Graham said.

The SMART unit could potentially help at Gallimore, said Little. "The advantage of having the mobile unit is it can go several places. It will show drivers they need to be concerned," he said.

Trustee Susan Davis said she'd like to know if the unit has done the job elsehwere. "We need to know if what we are doing to solve the problem is solving the problem," she said.

Little said he'd ask Santomauro and "be sure we get feedback."

Canton police would set up the unit each day and store it each night, he added.

Trustee Mark Horvath said given the fact that Morton Taylor eventually will be extended from Warren to Ford, "the speed on Morton Taylor will increase. Whatever we are talking about doing, we should be wary of the long-term plans for Morton Taylor," he said.

Plymouth City Commissioner Robert Jones was in the audience and addressed the issue. "Is this to say that a driver will be reminded that the speed limit is 40 mph; that he or she is going 39; and that that's all right? I would think you would want to look into that."

Officer hurt in scuffle with teen

Officer Robert Henry needed medical treatment for facial cuts and broke his glasses in the incident.

About 100 youths were socializing in the Metro Mart parking lot shortly after 10 p.m. Police were successfully keeping that group away from a rival groups of youths congregated at the gazebo set up at Main and Penniman.

Police had heard that the two groups wanted to fight, said Plymouth Lt. Wayne Carroll. In an attempt to prevent a confrontation between the groups, officers were clearing the Metro Mart parking lot at about 10:15 p.m. when Henry encountered the Canton youth.

When the 15-year-old refused to leave the area, Henry asked him for identification. He said he didn't have any.

"I attempted to escort him off the lot, and he resisted, striking my right arm away," said Henry. "I grabbed his right arm and put it behind his back and announced he was under arrest."

Henry said the youth "started resisting, and as I tried to secure him, we both stumbled over the sidewalk. I went down on one knee and he tied to run past me. I grabbed his legs, and he went down, at which time I pinned him and waited for assistance."

Carroll arrived and handcuffed the young man. He was taken to the station, and later turned over to his parents. The parents said their son is seeking help for a drug problem.

Plymouth police are petitioning the juvenile division of Wayne County Probate Court, seeking a disorderly conduct charge against the youth. The penalty could range from a fine to institutionalization until the youth's 18th birthday depending on his criminal record, said Carroll.

Police may also seek restitution, as Henry required medical treatment and damaged his glasses.

The two groups of youths, most of them Plymouth teens, are not identified with any kind of gang, Carroll said. The youth who's charged is not identified with either group.

Leaks in school anger teachers

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth-Canton school board members vented steam Monday over ceiling leaks that have plagued Hulsing Elementary School teacher Sally Evans and her first-graders since January.

Evans brought her complaint — and jars containing brown water from waste baskets in the newly-constructed Room 13 — to the school board Monday night.

"We went on walk-throughs of the room in the Fall of 1994 and took occupancy Jan. 9, 1995," Evans told the board. "The room has always leaked. There has always been a pool of water. I'm concerned about the length of time it's taking to solve this problem."

Evans said new leaks pop up all the time, causing the carpet to mildew and making it necessary to wash and disinfect teaching tables and chairs.

Barton Malow is the firm managing the school district's $59 million bond project. The 1991 bond has financed capital improvements — including the addition at Hulsing — at school buildings throughout Plymouth-Canton.

Employees from sub-contractor Johnson Controls have been on site, but have failed to fix the leaks that apparently stem from the air conditioner and occur regardless of the weather conditions, Evans said.

"We have developed new leaks after Sept. 1," said Evans, who has photographed the leaks and moldy carpeting. "All the leaks are in instructional areas. We have two waste baskets that constantly have brown water in them," said Evans, adding that temperatures in the room have climbed to 91 degrees.

"As a taxpayer, I'm requesting three things: 1) a roof or ceiling that doesn't leak; 2) new parts, not repaired parts, to eliminate the problem. New materials were furnished with the bond money and I don't think we should accept less; 3) I want a report back. I will keep notes for the next month. You will see me again in one month."

Trustee Sue Davis said, "I'm curious why no one else has been brought in who's higher up, or from a different perspective. Is there an alternative room where these children could be moved? I don't like the idea of first-graders sitting on wet, moldy carpet."

Trustee Mark Horvath said, "I'm really concerned about the fact this has gone on since February. I would like a formal statement from Barton Malow as to why this happened in the first place. If they are managers of the project, they need a new title. I don't see much management here at all."

Trustees Barbara Graham and Carrie Blamer said similar problems have cropped up at Central and West middle schools. "The board should keep this in mind when a new bond comes up. This isn't acceptable to me," Graham said.

Board Treasurer Michael Maloney asked what the district needed to do to create a sense of urgency at Barton Malow. "This is a company with vast resources. Maybe they are trying to save a little money. I'd suggest that Dr. Little talk to the head of the company."

Superintendent Charles Little said he intended to do just that. "Believe me, this has created enough stress that you wouldn't want to be on the phone with me at 8 a.m. tomorrow." Little added that the problem isn't severe enough to warrant moving the students. "No one is sitting in water," he said.

Evans said late Tuesday that her classroom was visited a few hours earlier by a group of people including Barton Malow vice president Jim Giachino.

"I wasn't introduced to them, but I've been told by my principal Mrs. (Becky) Moore that two things will be done within a week. They are going to re-seal around the pipes, and they are going to remove the water in the membrane above the ceiling.

Job fair Friday, Saturday offered to fill 100 openings

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The former Highland Appliance building is the site of a job fair Friday and Saturday, as a new Plymouth company plans to hire 100 people.

American Blind, Wallpaper & Carpet Factory moved from Farmington Hills to Plymouth in July. Company spokeswoman Beth Crick said, adding the company, formerly housed in two buildings on Orchard Lake Road, was growing and wanted to consolidate operations in one building.

At the former Highland building, on Sheldon Road, "We have the entire second floor," Crick said. "We wanted one floor to have all of our group sales, customer service people, management, personnel — We can do everything under one roof on one floor," she said.

As the growing company needs new employees, a job fair was scheduled to happen over two weekends. Crick said 100 people showed up to fill 200 advertised openings last weekend.

"We're not replacing people; our business is growing; this is a very busy time of year," Crick said. "There are more people shopping via 800 numbers; this is a booming business."

"They come up to the second floor, and go through the entire operation to get to personnel; they're able to view the sales floor and the customer service areas," Crick said.

Prospective job seekers are asked to fill out an application and provide a resume if they have one. "They are interviewed that day so there's immediate action; I know people are hired on the spot, definitely," she said.

The openings are for sales and customer service representatives, sales supervisors and account payable clerks.

The job fair is from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

Applicants can either appear in person at 909 N. Sheldon Road or call 1-800-230-7947 before or after the job fair to ask about jobs.

The average pay for the sales jobs is $9.75 per hour; pay for other jobs varies.

The company encourages part-time workers to apply. "We're able to work around people going to school; we have second-job moms that want to work," Crick said.

American Blind, Wallpaper & Carpet Factory touts itself as the largest direct marketer of name-brand and private-label window blinds, wallpaper and carpeting in the country. The company reaches customers through ads in magazines geared to homes, including "Better Homes and Gardens."

Customers get discounts of retail prices ranging from 82 percent on window blinds, 80 percent on wallpaper and 65 percent on carpeting, according to the company.

"We have people calling us from all over the country," Crick said, "We're the middle man," she said, adding customers' orders are then placed with the manufacturer, who ships the order to the customer within 24-72 hours.

"We're basically telephones and people, we also offer free decorator samples to customers," she said.

Police officer injures his back

A man was charged with assault on a police officer, after a Plymouth Township police officer hurt his lower back as the man resisted arrest on Friday.

The incident began at 10:30 a.m., according to the report filed by police. Officers were called to a house on Northville Road, where a renter, 40, was accused of assaulting his landlord, a 41-year-old man.

According to the police report, police began talking to the landlord upon arriving at the scene. Police noticed the landlord had been injured and went to arrest the tenant who became irate and resisted arrest, causing the officer to hurt his back, the report said.

Police are seeking charges of assault and battery, disorderly person and assault and battery on a police officer against the tenant.

Woman charged in stabbing

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

A 57-year-old Plymouth woman accused of stabbing her 38-year-old boyfriend at their Deer Street residence Sunday night is scheduled to appear in 35th District Court Friday for her preliminary examination.

Charged with assault with intent to murder, Barbara Glumm of 561 Deer St. was arraigned Monday before Magistrate Eric Colthurst. She pleaded not guilty and is being held in Wayne County Jail on $50,000 cash bond.

The offense is punishable by any number of years up to life in prison.

Plymouth police said the incident arose shortly before 10 p.m. Sept. 10 at 561 Deer St. when a fight began between Glumm's boyfriend, David Clint Warnick, and Glumm's brother, Robert Leslie Carley, 51, who lives down the street and was visiting.

Glumm told police she stabbed her boyfriend twice in an attempt to break up the fight, said Lt. Wayne Carroll. Police confiscated an 8-inch black and silver butcher knife from the home.

Both Warnick and Carley were shirtless and covered with blood.

Police said that after Glumm stabbed Warnick in the back, he was able to wrestle the knife away from her and kick it under the table. When Warnick and Carley continued fighting, Glumm entered the kitchen, grabbed another knife, and stabbed Warnick again, this time in the chest, said Carroll.

A rescue unit was called, and as Warnick was being placed onto a stretcher for transport to Livonia's St. Mary Hospital, Carley shouted obscenities at police and was still trying to punch Warnick. Carley, who had a swollen left eye, bloody nose and facial cuts, was arrested for obstructing a police officer.

Carley told police he didn't consider himself intoxicated, having consumed "just a few beers." Police measured his blood alcohol level at .241. A level of .10 is considered legally drunk. Warnick and Glumm also were intoxicated, according to police.

Warnick was hospitalized overnight, treated for his stab wounds, and released.

losing money as they were before," Karmo said.

Architects working with hotel managers on the renovation have researched the Mayflower Hotel's history, as the owners say they want to maintain the traditional character of the hotel.

A committee of local residents including former mayor Jim Jabara is advising hotel owners on renovation plans.

50-year Plymouth Symphony member and cellist; and Tim Richard, a 25-year member of the Plymouth Symphony.

The contest is only one event on tap for the Symphony League. The group will host a fall antique show 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 29, and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 30, at the Botsford Inn, 28000 Grand River in Farmington Hills.

Also, a preview party is scheduled for 7-9 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 28, at the historic inn, owned by Creon Smith of Plymouth Township.

Attendance for the preview party is $20 per person. It's $4 each for the antique show. The nonprofit symphony raises about one-third of its annual budget through proceeds from this event.

ties and how they interact together," Phillips said.

Customers are approached "in a friendly, fun, low-key manner," Phillips said. "We take pride in our bird seed. We have five basic blends, there are no fillers in the seed we sell.

"We take bags of seed out to the car, we appreciate them coming in," Phillips said.

He offers a frequent feeder card, to provide those who buy 10 20- or 25-pound bags of seed a free 11th bag.

Because squirrels traditionally pose a problem by getting into and often destroying bird feeders, several models feature baffles designed to keep squirrels away. Some more elaborate feeders are rigged to close "if the smallest red squirrel jumps on it," Phillips said.

But for those who enjoy feeding squirrels, Phillips also sells squirrel feeders, along with food for other critters.

The store also carries "Squirrel Away," which when added to bird seed makes the seed too hot for squirrels, but still palatable for birds.

Store hours are 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday.

Focus:HOPE exec to launch economic club season

The Canton Economic Club will launch its seventh season at noon Wednesday, Sept. 20 featuring the Rev. William Cunningham, executive director of Focus: HOPE, a civil and human rights organization.

Rev. Cunningham

Under his leadership, Focus: HOPE has developed the Food Prescription Program distributing USDA commodities to 52,000 low-income mothers and children each month and Food for Seniors providing a monthly food supplement to 34,000 elderly poor.

Since 1981, Focus:HOPE has been expanding the Industry Mall, which includes four manufacturing companies employing 160 workers and a sequence of three manufacturing technology training programs.

Focus: HOPE's Center for Advanced Technologies, a new national demonstration center that opened in 1993, offers a six-year curriculum combining structured work experience with applied engineering study conducted by a consortium of Michigan universities.

Father Cunningham was recently selected to be a panelist for the U.S. Congressional Office of Technology Assessment — an analytical support agency that will examine how the convergence of communication information and video technologies might affect business in the United States. He also serves as a member of the Michigan's 2000 Committee to achieve the six national education goals.

■ 'Although there will be lots that is new, the Canton Economic Club will continue the tradition of bringing to western Wayne County a variety of recognized leaders in business, industry and government.'

Susan Rosiek
Canton Economic Club president

Tickets for the noon luncheon and program are $15 per person. For reservations call Joan Noricks, executive director of the Canton Community Foundation, at 981-3002.

The economic club meets in the new Summit On the Park Community Center on Summit Parkway (off Canton Center Road south of Cherry Hill in the Canton Township Municipal complex).

Also featured in the 1995-1996 economic club season will be Ricardo Solomon, chairman of the Wayne County Board of Commissioners; and Teresa Brooks, director of Dykema Gossett's National/International Health Care Practice.

Solomon will address the group on Wednesday, Oct. 18.

Ricardo Solomon

As chairman of the commission, Solomon has worked with local commissioners to establish a citizens advisory commission soliciting feedback from county residents.

He holds a bachelor's degree in political science from Morehouse College in Atlanta and a master's in business management from Central Michigan University. He is also a certified economic development specialist and a certified international trade specialist.

Before being elected as chairman of the 15-member Wayne County Commission, Solomon served as a commissioner representing the 7th District in Detroit.

On Wednesday, Nov. 15, Brooks will offer an insider's view of the upcoming congressional budget battle on health care.

Teresa Brooks

Brooks has a national reputation as a health care specialist with more than 25 years experience with health-related issues.

She was formerly director of legal affairs and policy development of the Michigan Hospital Association, associate director of federal agency liaison in the Washington office of the American Hospital Association.

Brooks lectures and publishes on a a wide variety of health law topics. She was selected by "Crain's Detroit Business" as one of the area's top female business leaders.

The Canton Economic Club, which meets at noon the third Wednesday of every month September-May, is sponsored this year by Rudolph Libbe and the Observer Newspapers.

"Although there will be lots that is new, the Canton Economic Club will continue the tradition of bringing to western Wayne County a variety of recognized leaders in business, industry and government," said Susan Rosiek, managing editor of the Observer Newspapers and president of the Canton Economic Club for the 1995-1996 season.

Season tickets for economic club luncheons are $125 per person and available by calling 981-3002.

A GOLF BARGAIN HUNTER'S PARADISE... DON'T MISS IT!

Area alumni lead school cleanup effort

BY MARY RODRIQUE
STAFF WRITER

What do actor George C. Scott, Wayne County Executive Edward McNamara, and state Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, have in common?

They are all graduates of Redford High School, and two of them (sans Scott) are doing something to rehabilitate the old Detroit school near Six Mile and Grand River.

"It's a lot of fun, but it's also a great way to give back to the community," said Banks, a veteran lawmaker and class of 1959 alumna.

McNamara established the Redford Alumni board of directors when he marked the 50th anniversary of his graduation from Redford.

An official board of directors with 25 members was established in April 1994. Since then, the group has increased membership to 250, raised $10,000 during its first annual golf outing to benefit the school, obtained free landscaping for the school grounds, participated in a career day, and set up Saturday, Sept. 23 as paint-the-school day.

"We've had a newsletter and done one mailing. The word is spreading," said Dick Harrick, class of '59, and owner of a Livonia insurance agency.

Also on the board are Livonia buinessman and Novi resident Phil Zimmerman, Triette Lipsy, Ernest Peck, Angelique Madison and Kenneth Davies of Detroit, Don Kleckner of Rochester, and Bruce Berend of Plante & Moran in Southfield.

Harrick came on board a year ago and has worked on various projects.

"If one person tried to do something, it wouldn't work, but a group can do many things together," he said. "We're meeting every week now. We have a lot of people willing to volunteer time or materials."

With 2,400 students today, Redford High is the largest high school, both in terms of student population and size, in the city of Detroit, according to Harrick.

"We're providing the impetus to continue this arrangement long-term. We're trying to get residents and students involved in a partnership," he said.

Area lawmakers host senior celebration

Preparations are nearly complete for the first western Wayne County senior citizen celebration day on Saturday, Sept. 16.

The program is from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Burton Manor, 27777 Schoolcraft Road in Livonia. It includes a free breakfast, free lunch, noted speakers, entertainment, and a consumer fair with 45 booths. More than 1,200 seniors are expected to attend.

"The only expense to seniors is a $1 registration fee that can be paid at the door," said state Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, one of four sponsors along with Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, Jim Ryan, R-Redford, and Deborah Whyman, R-Canton.

"The level of support has been overwhelming, and I look forward to a day totally dedicated to seniors. It's a time to celebrate the immeasurable contributions they make to our community every day."

Secretary of State Candace Miller, and Esther Shapiro, director of Detroit's consumer affairs department, are the keynote speakers. They will answer questions and talk one-on-one with residents. Local elected officials will also be there to discuss senior issues.

Also scheduled to attend are U.S. senators Carl Levin and Spencer Abraham, U.S. Rep. Joe Knollenberg, and state senators R. Robert Geake and Loren Bennett.

"This event is a perfect opportunity for seniors to get the information they need in all areas of services including housing, finance, health care, utility programs, and much more," said Law. "It's also a chance to bend the ear of several area lawmakers and share their ideas and concerns."

Ryan said organizing this special event could not have been possible without the support of several sponsors and the hard work of a local senior advisory board.

"Major contributors like Ameritech, MichCon, NBD, and Detroit Edison have made the difference in the program's size and scope," said Ryan. "Their participation and financial backing allowed us to accommodate over 1,000 seniors and keep the registration fee affordable. Today's seniors are very active in their community, and this program gives us the ability to pool our resources in an effort to resolve problems unique to older residents."

Whyman said the program's goal is to foster a productive dialogue on improving the quality of life for western Wayne County seniors.

"We want to educate and expose area residents to the many valuable options available to them," Whyman said. "Between the many community programs geared toward seniors, including technological changes and medical advancements, this will be a one-stop source of information.

"I look forward to talking with as many people as possible, and I hope local seniors take time to attend. I am confident it will be worthwhile for residents and the start of an annual event."

For more information, contact Sallie Nyhan at (517) 373-1863.

SC taste fest Sunday

Tickets are still available for the Schoolcraft College fourth annual culinary extravaganza 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 17, in the college's Waterman Center.

All proceeds fund student scholarships.

More than 60 of the finest restaurants and beverage corporations in the Detroit metropolitan area will offer samples to taste or drink.

An expanded wine auction is planned. Entertainment will be provided along with the drawing of raffle prizes and the announcing of who submitted the winning bid for a dinner to be prepared by restaurateur Joe Muer.

Tickets for the event are $40 per person, or two for $75. Raffle tickets are $5 each or three for $10. Both can be purchased by calling Schoolcraft's Institutional Advancement office at (313) 462-4417. Visa, MasterCard, Discover and personal checks are accepted.

Madonna reunion slated

All nursing alumni from Madonna University are invited to attend the Madonna College of Nursing and Health eighth annual alumni reunion, featuring a luncheon and fashion seminar, scheduled Saturday, Sept. 23.

The event will begin at 11 a.m. with an optional motherhouse tour and Mass; a 45-minute social hour will begin at 12:15 p.m.; and the luncheon and fashion seminar will be held 1-3 p.m.

The cost is $18 and friends and family are welcome. For information, call the alumni office at (313) 591-5127.

Madonna is located at I-96 and Levan roads in Livonia.

to 400 student and parent volunteers to join with alumni members to paint 46 classrooms plus hallways and bathrooms in the oldest part of the school.

"I took a driving tour of the neighborhood. The homes were well kept, but the high school was an eyesore," Harrick recalled.

"The school board doesn't have enough funds to make the improvements. We did a landscape improvement project in August and the students and teachers thought it was great. We need to impact on everyone."

According to Harrick, some bathrooms inside the school remain permanently closed. A parent volunteer single-handedly maintains the football field. There are only two lawn mowers for five acres of property. Windows targeted for replacement five years ago are still in place.

"When I went there, we had 25 custodial workers," he said. "Today there are five."

It's not just the outward appearance the alumni group hopes to impact. It's the students themselves. Bankes cites a dropout rate of 50 percent for the freshmen class.

"What good are they to the community dropping out that early?" asked Bankes. "All of our efforts must be toward keeping kids in school."

Bankes spoke to four classes last career day about welfare reform and teen pregnancy.

"I think they want to hear the other side, the Republican perspective," she said. "We had a great debate."

Bankes is working, along with McNamara and others, to make Redford a member of the Detroit Compact, a business driven group that provides scholarship money to high school students. Bankes is also working on obtaining a portion of a $2 billion Detroit school bond issue for Redford High, which has been a low priority because it's not in as poor shape as many other buildings in the Detroit system.

John Niemisto, a self-employed manufacturer's representative from Livonia, is one of the younger members of the Redford alumni board, class of 1975.

Niemisto is focusing on increasing membership by scouring various computer data bases. He will act as a coordinator Sept. 23, but admits he'll probably be picking up a paintbrush, too.

Old Village

Time to end benign neglect

■ That neglect became apparent again last week when Old Village business people and residents told tales of power outages over the summer that destroyed appliances and ruined $50,000 worth of meat at Station 885 restaurant.

Old Village has suffered benign neglect at the hands of the city of Plymouth and it's time for a change now that the streetscape project is nearly completed.

That neglect became apparent again last week when Old Village business people and residents told tales of power outages over the summer that destroyed appliances and ruined $50,000 worth of meat at Station 885 restaurant.

More than 40 people attended the meeting at which residents complained that electrical service has been spotty for years due to what Edison crews tell them is an antiquated system and inadequate transformers.

It must be acknowledged that the city of Plymouth can't do much about power problems. That's up to Detroit Edison to remedy with its technical expertise and tree trimming.

However, the city can get behind efforts by residents and business people to improve electrical service. Such service is crucial to a viable business district in the area on Plymouth's north side. Increased business activity and property values help the entire city.

It was noteworthy that there were no city officials or commission members in attendance at the grass roots-style meeting. Somebody from the city should have been there or a city commission member should have gotten involved. Although they were asked, Edison officials did not attend.

The only person with near-official status there was Steve Guile, who is the Downtown Devlopment Authority director and the Old Village Development director. He urged residents and businesses to detail problems with the power outages in writing and forward them to city hall.

That advice should be followed, but also city officials should be urged to take up the battle of Old Village.

The retailing and service mix in Old Village is as vibrant as the downtown area near Kellogg Park.

Also, the business climate in the area is improving. The Station 885 restaurant has put on an attractive addition and another bar/restaurant is in the planning stages nearby at Liberty and Starkweather.

It's time for city leaders to pitch in and help push for improvements to one of the Plymouth community's most overlooked gems.

Mergers impact local consumers

■ The summer of media mergers on Wall Street has big implications for Main Street. The changing landscape in corporate America, particularly in the telecommunications and cable television industries, requires consumers to be ever more vigilant.

We've been reading the headlines for weeks now. Disney buys Cap Cities-ABC; Westinghouse buys CBS; Time-Warner, which last year bought Advance-Newhouse Broadcasting, wants to merge with Turner Broadcasting.

Let's not forget the phone companies — Ameritech, Bell Atlantic, et al. — who want to jump into cable and snap up anything else communications-related that doesn't happen to be bolted down.

The summer of media mergers on Wall Street has big implications for Main Street. The changing landscape in corporate America, particularly in the telecommunications and cable television industries, requires consumers to be ever more vigilant.

Decisions about what cable channels your system carries and what kind of phone service you get, at what rate, will ultimately be made hundreds or even thousands of miles away from local communities — in board rooms where local issues are likely to receive short shrift when compared to the bottom line.

Take cable, for example. MetroVision — which had provided service in Livonia, Redford and Farmington Hills through 1994 — is now part of Time-Warner Entertainment, headquartered in New York.

Yes, MetroVision's local staff is still on hand to administer service. But they answer to a different executive suite. In Time-Warner, they are allied with a multimedia conglomerate that carries a heavy amount of debt.

Ameritech, formerly Michigan Bell, keeps a strong regional presence in Southeastern Michigan. But the company is headquartered in Chicago, not exactly a local call if you want to talk to somebody in the front office.

Which is why local cable commissions and the state Public Service Commission, which regulates phone companies, will take on increasingly important roles in the communications revolution. They provide residents the best opportunity to voice their concerns about local service. They are nonpartisan and have more clout, by nature of their collective power, than individuals.

But how many people know who their local cable commissioners are, or when the group meets? And when was the last time anyone called the Public Service Commission (1-800-292-9555) or attended a hearing on phone rates?

People need to abandon the notion that cable television is strictly entertainment, or that the telephone is merely a convenience. Phone lines, remember, are the data transport system on the information superhighway.

Information is power. It would be smart for consumers to recall this as the free-enterprise feeding frenzy among communication companies picks up speed.

Supported

On behalf of the students and staff at P-CEP a thank you and show of appreciation for Omnicom Cablevision's continued support of technology at the high schools of the Plymouth-Canton School District.

This support consists of training students on how to use camcorders appropriately, how to edit a video production, how to use a portable studio, and being most helpful in set-up of our TV studio and video editing equipment. The training sessions on use of our new special effects generators and character generators are continuing.

This support will enable more students to learn how to use this hands-on technology. Assisting are: Maria Holmes, program director for Omnicom, Dave Zmich, program engineer for Omnicom, and Davonna Lividini, local access program director for Omnicom. These professionals have spent time in our building as well as in their own studio, assisting our students to better understand and use the technologies mentioned.

Thanks again for your assistance and support of education in the Plymouth-Canton School District.

Trash hauling

Your Aug. 31 edition included an editorial critical of the new trash haulers in the city of Plymouth. I agree.

However, in chastising the city commission for making the decision, you should not paint all members of the commission with the same broad brush. As Kevin Brown pointed out in one of his previous articles, the decision was not unanimous.

Although I do not fault my fellow commissioners for voting the way that they did — primarily based upon the fact that the $50,000 to $80,000 savings would help the budget in terms of scheduled street maintenance and paving rather than having to go to the taxpayers — I was convinced by the investigation done by the administration regarding the low bidder — Painter & Ruthenberg — that complaints about their quality of service were accurate and that our citizens deserved better. As I was quoted at the time, I felt the "whole thing stunk" and was in favor of going with one of the other bidders, notwithstanding the fact that Painter & Ruthenberg was the low bidder.

In the 6-1 vote, I was the sole commissioner voting against this particular trash hauler. I feel that I was correct in my decision based upon the numerous complaints I personally have received from my constituents as well as the 36 and growing complaints received at City Hall.

There is a solution, however. The administration did provide in the contract Painter & Ruthenberg will be closely monitored. If they do not "clean up their act," so to speak, we do have the option of cancelling the contract notwithstanding the fact that it was for three years.

Limit the court

I must admit that before Rep.(Deborah) Whyman mentioned the Recorder's Court issue, I and probably a majority of Wayne County residents, did not know an issue existed. Now that she has brought it to our attention, I can see where an inherent unfairness exists. Any and all state judges have to be accountable to the community (people) they preside over. I mean this in the sense that if the community is not satisfied with the way a judge handles him/herself on the bench, they should have the right to vote him/her out of office.

This is obviously not the case with Recorder's Court judges who can only be elected by Detroit voters yet have jurisdiction over other areas of Wayne County and not just Detroit. The current judges of Recorder's Court who are predominantly African-Americans are rightly concerned for their futures since their chances of getting elected by residents of Wayne County instead of just Detroit are somewhat diminished.

If we are to just address this issue as an issue of fairness and accomplish what Rep. Whyman wants, we should pass a law that would limit the jurisdiction of the Recorder's Court judges to only Detroit.

POINTS OF VIEW

Buying new vacuum cleaner no small task

There I stood, arms akimbo, inspecting a platoon of mute vacuum cleaners on display in a store.

The old gray mare at home glowed like a hot rivet after 10 seconds of use, so an encounter with large appliances was inevitable.

In New England, the mundane chore of vacuuming is often jokingly referred to as "riding a broom."

Perhaps people would neither fear, snort at, nor exploit the idea of witchcraft if rather than casting and breaking spells or wreaking havoc there was sensible evidence of good housekeeping.

Dirt floors were the norm not long ago, and I can honestly say that the mysterious fiber carpeting in my apartment is as close as it gets, right down to the earthy shade. Some poor relation to burlap I suspect was meant for the not so great outdoors.

Seemingly without resilience, stepping on a grain of salt feels like trodding on a jack. The cats regularly pause and claw it ferociously only to slink away, annoyed by the lack of damage. Yet in the still of the night a strange crackling noise emanates from this material as the usually soundless cats pad casually by.

However, if you prefer to trip the light fantastic barefoot about the house you must attend to maintenance of your dance floor. Although this would be the first vroom broom I'd have some say in purchasing, I considered myself a capable, crashing bore on the subject.

Years of domestic duty and decades of cleaning canvas mats in a judo club made me witness to an array of contraptions worthy of the Henry Ford Museum. Before class, a cacophonous cavalcade would leave the mats worse than ever as a fleet of donated spaceships did no more than break the sound barrier.

Good intentions aside, many of these infernal machines were discontinued models for whom replacement bags were no longer made. It was truly pathetic to watch adults pulling push-brooms or mowing the mat with some machine whose bag was packed solid, assuming all the dirt being vacuumed went in the cord and through the outlet. Suggest checking the bag and most scooted away in confusion.

One might open the alien craft only to discover an exploded bag with pythons of dust springing forth, or worse, no bag at all.

Price range is as varied as the weight. Some look as though they may have served in the Battle of the Bulge, sold by the pound, with the mobility of an anvil. Others were of flimsy, Styrofoam heft. Some had intriguing attachments, snow blowers and knife sharpeners. Others were self-propelled, missing only a bucket seat.

Should I get one with the never-retractable cord that would yank itself out of the socket at all the wrong times to whiplash my legs? Or another that would soon twist up like an unwieldy telephone cord if not rewound manually just so everytime?

I tried desperately to feel fascinating while drab flashbacks of drudgery washed over me. My mind reeled with the screaming whine of every vacuum I had ever wrestled with.

When asked if looking for anything special, I could only blurt "Something quiet." In less than five minutes, we had one with menacing good looks, but a remarkably gentle purr. Now that's magic.

Political polarization hits state representatives

Our friendly state representatives in Lansing are becoming more polarized politically. That much is fact. Some of us disagree on why.

I've said it's term limits. During the Proposal A voting, I ran a study of how first- and second-term lawmakers voted on replacement taxes versus how veterans of three or more terms voted.

The newer group tended to vote no — Democrats for liberal ideological reasons (the sales tax was "regressive"), Republicans for anti-tax reasons (don't replace lost property taxes, just cut 'em). The older hands learned the necessary art of compromise.

Bill Ballenger — entrepreneur of the Inside Michigan Politics newsletter, a former county GOP leader, former legislator and former Milliken Administration department head — comes up with a new set of facts based on this year's voting records: "All 56 Republicans were more conservative than all 54 Democrats." No longer is there a middle ground. Ballenger's reasons:

"1) The GOP's razor-thin margin of control instilled a sense of discipline in the Republican caucus that it didn't need when it was in the minority, or deadlocked for control with Dems in 1993-94.

"2) This year's session, tilted heavily toward economic and tax policy questions, was largely devoid of some of the incendiary social-cultural roll calls that gave some Republican leaders a chance in years past to cast 'liberal' votes on issues like abortion, assisted suicide, et al."

Case in point: Reps. Barbara Dobb, R-Union Lake, and Susan Munsell, R-Howell, have been "pro-choice" or liberal votes on anti-abortion bills in the past and had "moderate" scores. This year they're to the right of far right types like Alan Cropsey, R-DeWitt, and Dave Jaye, R-Utica.

IMP based its scoring on 30 roll calls, rating perfect conservative records as zero and perfect liberal records as 100. So how did your local state representatives do?

TIM RICHARD

■ The newer group tended to vote no — Democrats for liberal ideological reasons (the sales tax was "regressive"), Republicans for anti-tax reasons (don't replace lost property taxes, just cut 'em). The older hands learned the necessary art of compromise.

Well, now, what does that mean to you? Did your local hero or heroine vote your philosophy? How liberal or conservative are you? Here are some of the easier-to-understand bills, where a yes vote is conservative and a no vote liberal:

■ Immediate effect to HB 4229 reducing the single business tax.

■ Final passage to HB 4233 to reduce and eliminate the intangibles tax.

■ Final passage of a state anti-racketeering law (HB 4367) allowing prosecutors to expropriate property from persons for crimes defined as racketeering.

■ Final passage of SB 322 reforming unemployment compensation in ways friendly to business but opposed by unions.

■ Final passage of SB 386 easing cleanup standards for leaking underground storage tank (LUST) sites.

■ Cut off welfare for fetuses less than five months and use savings to encourage pregnant minors living alone to return home or to adult supervised care (SB 300).

■ Adopt Walberg amendment to HB 4425 eliminating Indian tuition waiver from the fiscal 1996 budget.

■ Concur in Senate amendments to HB 4596 undoing part of the "polluter pay" law.

■ Pass HB 4508 eliminating "joint and several liability" in civil suits for medical malpractice, product and premises liability — sought by health care and industry, abhorred by the trial lawyers.

Business coalesces behind academic core curriculum

As usual, last week's big news failed to get much coverage on TV or in the big daily newspapers. But it was both important and timely.

Michigan's business community finally weighed in — and how! — on the eve of what promises to be a noisy fight in the Michigan Legislature over required classroom standards.

Business leaders have been growing increasingly concerned at the damage the radicals now controlling the State Board of Education might do in their quest to reform our public schools by destroying them.

The State Board, for example, wants to throw out the mandatory school curriculum standards adopted by the Legislature in 1993 and allow each school district to follow them or not, as it pleases. The board also is very hostile to the tough new statewide achievement tests that will supplement the MEAP tests later this year.

For years the business community has been grumbling that it's paying most of the taxes to support the schools whereas many kids leaving high school are largely unemployable. Some can't reason well or write clearly. Others cannot add fractions or read blueprints. Worse, the expensive task of remediating those schools on the job amounts to throwing good money after bad.

Earlier this spring, business leaders realized that the slash-and-burn majority on the State Board, led by Grosse Pointe lawyer Clark Durant, was serious about gutting the steps to school reform that were made possible by the passage of the Proposal A package. They started pulling a coalition together linking heavyweight organizations: the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, the Michigan Manufacturers Association, the Greater Detroit and Grand Rapids Area Chambers of Commerce.

They created something called the Michigan Business Leaders for Education Excellence to lobby for tough curriculum standards and accurate assessment tests to make sure that kids really learned what was in the curriculum, not just in the good schools but in all of them.

And last week's news was that the coalition held its first press conference, making it clear that the business community was going to be in the thick of the fight over school standards.

John Thodis, president of the MMA, was blunt: "Since the passage of Proposal A, there has been an ongoing attempt to back away from these accountability measures, and away from the promises made to the people of Michigan. The latest threat to this new system is an effort to remove the mandate from the academic core curriculum and make it a recommended set of standards.

PHILIP POWER

■ For years the business community has been grumbling that it's paying most of the taxes to support the schools whereas many kids leaving high school are largely unemployable.

"If we believe that these standards are essential to providing a quality education for our students, how can we believe that it is acceptable if some schools choose not to provide the solid educational foundation that the core curriculum establishes? This is too important an issue to leave to chance, and we are not content to say to the students of this state that they may get a good education — if they choose the right school and if their school chooses to adopt the academic core curriculum.

"The MMA believes that the only way to ensure that all students receive a solid educational foundation is to require, rather than merely recommend, the standards that all students will be expected to achieve."

Right on, John Thodis! Right on, Michigan business leaders!

You and your business colleagues, of all people, have a direct stake in making sure the kids who leave school have the skills to become productive workers in an increasingly competitive world economy. That's a far more important stake to us than the rantings of a bunch of ideologues who happen to control the State Board of Education.

Budget juggling act

School retirees' benefits funded — for now

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

State lawmakers this week are helping school districts pay for retirees' health benefits in fiscal 1995 by dipping into the 1996 budget.

"This resolves it for September (of '95), and that's all," said Rep. Maxine Berman, D-Southfield, a member of the House Appropriations Committee.

"This is a shell game, but there's not even a pea under the shell. School districts and retirees should be worried," Berman said Tuesday before the unanimous committee completed its borrowing act.

Added Rep. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford: "To resolve this, we took money from June of 1996 and put it in the September '95 budget."

The June '96 date was picked because the Supreme Court is expected to resolve the issue of school retirees' health benefits by then, Bankes said.

The money juggling act is contained in House Bill 4084, a one-section measure that appropriates $139.5 million from the '96 school aid fund into the '95 budget. "It's the shortest school aid bill ever," quipped the sponsor, Rep. Glenn Oxender, R-Sturgis.

Without it, Oxender said, Michigan's 560 public school districts would suffer a 47 percent shortfall in their abilities to pay retirees' health benefits.

Panel chair Don Gilmer, R-Augusta, called for swift, bipartisan action in both chambers to waive a waiting rule, give the bill immediate effect and facilitate state aid payments by Sept. 21, only one day behind schedule. The unanimous vote Tuesday indicated lawmakers would respond.

The problem arose with the Supreme Court's April 25 decision in the so-called "Musselman case," the short title for the suit by Ann Musselman and seven school retirees against Gov. John Engler, Treasurer Douglas Roberts and the Legislature.

Musselman asked the court to mandate that the state actuarially pre-pay their health benefits at the time of retirement, as it had done prior to 1991. Engler, facing a budget in his first year as governor, made the decision to fund benefits annually.

In a 6-0 decision, the Supreme Court said the state's failure to pre-fund retirees' benefits violated the state constitution, which makes such benefits "a contractual obligation . . . which shall not be diminished or impaired." The justices added, "However, because we have no authority to order the governor or the Legislature to appropriate funds, mandamus is denied."

Engler and the Michigan Education Association have petitioned for re-hearings — hence the House panel's decision to juggle fiscal June '96 money into the September '95 budget.

Here, according to the House Fiscal Agency, is the impact (in round numbers) on area school districts. The first number is state aid for benefits without HB 4084; the second, with HB 4084.

Clarenceville $173,000 and $324,000, Garden City $528,500 and $988,000. Livonia $1.7 million and $3.2 million. Redford Union $523,000 and $977,000. Plymouth Canton $1.5 million and $2.8 million. Redford Union $523,000 and $977,000. South Redford $338,000 and $632,000. Wayne-Westland $1.5 million and $2.9 million. Northville $426,000 and $796,000.

A day in court without O.J.

The O.J. Simpson trial is winding down. That's what the experts say, anyway. And the whole proceeding has been so befuddling. But then, courtroom proceedings in general are befuddling — at least to me.

A few years ago I found out just how befuddling. That's when I had my very own courtroom experience. It was quite brief, fleeting really. And most unpleasant.

I was contesting a traffic citation, just like the policeman who issued it said I could. He told me so right there in the parking lot of the doughnut shop, in front of my children and the crowd of early morning doughnut buyers who happened to witness everything from inside the glass-fronted shop.

He pointed to the back of the expensive bit of paper, showing me where the lines were that I needed to fill in to indicate my dissatisfaction with this whole business. I paid very close attention, in spite of the children's commentary: "Look at the lights flashing on the police car, that's cool. That man has a gun on his belt. His hat is scary. I bet that gun is real. Mommy, don't forget I want the red-jelly-inside-frosting-on-top doughnut. I think you're going to be real late for work, Mommy."

The policeman, oblivious to that, tore the ticket off at the perforations, presented it to me,

Foundation remembers grandfather

■ To Dawn Ham-Kucharski, her grandfather was a special person, so much so that she and her husband have formed the QCK Foundation to benefit people who embrace his love of people.

By Christina Fuoco
Staff Writer

To Dawn Ham-Kucharski, her grandfather Quiller Couch Kitto was the epitome of a well-rounded person.

He taught his family not to judge people by the way they dressed but by their actions. He loved animals, people and nature. Kitto was a skilled blacksmith who thought nothing of creating treasures for friends and family.

When he passed away earlier this year at age 91, Ham-Kucharski and her husband, Rich, decided the ultimate tribute would be to honor people who embraced the same beliefs and for them to carry on his love for people.

So they created the Canton-based QCK Foundation, a scholarship organization to help students and individuals who want to focus on technical and vocational studies ranging from automotive repairs to computer technology.

"He was such an incredible man," Ham-Kucharski said. "We just wanted to become involved in the community because that's what a citizen should do. He always put children first. He thought they were the light of importance for our future.

"Schooling is expensive, whether it's vocational school, university or college. We just want to help them get started with their life."

Tom Hawley

In honor of: Dawn Ham-Kucharski of Canton is ready for the Sunday, Sept. 17 walk-a-thon at Griffin Park to benefit the QCK Foundation she and husband Rich formed to honor her grandfather, Quiller Couch Kitto.

On Sunday, Sept. 17, the QCK Foundation is holding its second fund-raiser — a two-mile walk-a-thon through Griffin Park on Sheldon Road just north of Cherry Hill, Canton. The $12-per-person registration fee, payable at the door, includes a T-shirt, drinks and fruit. So far the organization has raised $1,200 through a bowl-a-thon held in June.

Kitto, the father of one, worked for 60 years as a blacksmith for A.C. Delco in Flint, but he took his talents a step further by creating pieces for friends and family. Ham-Kucharski and her husband keep Kitto's memory alive by decorating their Canton home with pieces of his artwork.

"We have many of the artifacts still around — a candleholder that he made for the people who used to be in the mining business, a lamp that he made, and photos of wrought-iron artwork," Rich said.

Rich came up with the idea of the foundation and serves as director of operations. When he met Dawn seven years ago, it didn't take long for him to realize the strong sense of family that his wife's family possesses.

"It's amazing; I walked in for my first family get-together and everybody embraced me like I've been in the family forever," he said. "At the time I was just a boyfriend of the family. It took a year to actually get used to that."

And it didn't take long for Kitto to charm Rich.

"It was mostly his honesty and his blunt opinions," Rich said with a laugh. "Many of his opinions were turned on his heels back to his flashing car and left me to face my offspring and a whole shopful of cruller and crumbcake customers.

I tried to pretend nothing happened. I put my head up, chin forward, held my children's hands and took my place in line. I selected the doughnuts for the children and for my co-workers at the office, paid my money, and climbed back into my car with its expired-eight days ago license tabs.

As I drove to the babysitter's house, I got to thinking about my expensive expired-tabs ticket. I'd paid for new license tabs well before my birthday and sent the check to Lansing. And my birthday came and went, and so did eight more days, and no tabs. And wouldn't you know it, even before my birth month was over, on that hot morning in late July, no more than a couple of blocks from my house, with my children in the back seat, and some doughnut business to take care of before heading to the babysitter's and then to work, and dressed in a long summery cotton skirt with its tiny flowered print and a buttoned-up-to-the-neck blouse and shoes with sensible heels, I became a common criminal. In front of the doughnut shop.

"Yes," I decided halfway to the babysitter's, "I'm going to fight this."

And I did. Some weeks later, I appeared on my appointed court date before a judge. I had a portfolio of exhibits. I had canceled checks. I had confirmation, substantiation, illustration, certification, explanation. I wore my sensible office suit with sensible shoes. I wore my hair in a very sensible, controlled way. I had a very sensible closing argument all written down on a piece of sensible, white paper with no tatters on the edges. I arrived sensibly early before my already early appointed time. I was second on the list.

After a few others shuffled into the courtroom, the judge came in. And the proceedings began. Six men were called before me. And they were bad men who had done very bad things. And some even had lawyers with them because they'd been so bad. And they were, at that very early time in the day, looking very disheveled, dirty, and utterly disrespectful of the arena and the justice system itself. The judge made sharp speeches at each one of them.

And each one of them got punished.

I listened. And then quietly, I'm sure no one noticed, became rather unstrung. Sitting by myself, in my sensible suit with my sensible portfolio, I just knew the judge would laugh at me. And then lock me up and toss the key into a volcano. I just knew it.

Finally, my name was called, I held my head up, put my chin forward, and made my way to the front of the courtroom. I stood at the podium before the judge, the podium of prisoners, I'd noticed.

The judge prompted me and I began. I presented my cut and dried and verifiable substantiation. And then, with the judge's permission, I launched my oration. It was eloquent and moving and full of truth and serious thought and respect for the law and it was a page and a half long.

The judge allowed only one sentence of my masterpiece to be uttered.

"OK, stop," he ordered. "You've got a pretty strong case right there. Don't wreck it by opening your mouth anymore. Case dismissed."

I'd won, I guessed.

I gathered my papers back into my sensible portfolio and with all the dignity I could muster, made my way out of the courtroom. Five scruffy men still awaiting their turn gave me a scruffy look. And I . . . I simply walked.

The strong family ties are well represented within the QCK Foundation.

"It's been very well embraced by the entire family; everybody has contributed to everything we've come up with — monetary or physical events," Rich said, "Everybody's been very, very cooperative."

NEW EMERGENCY CENTER NOW OPEN

Family Emergencies.

No two emergencies are exactly alike. So all emergency care shouldn't be the same either.

That's why we designed and equipped our emergency department to handle everything from minor accidents to life-threatening injuries. If there are any questions about the seriousness of the emergency, a specially trained nurse is on hand to evaluate the situation and direct you to the appropriate level of treatment.

And whether you're a walk-in patient or require critical care, you'll receive the same quick and personalized medical attention from doctors who are specially trained in emergency medicine.

Our emergency care is backed by the resources of a full-service hospital, it's available 24 hours a day, every day, and it comes with the understanding that minor problems shouldn't result in major expenses . . . good reasons to go to St. Mary Hospital for sudden illness or injury. For more information call us at (313) 464-WELL.

Because when it comes to family emergencies, the specialized care we offer is no accident.

St. Mary Hospital is affiliated with William Beaumont Hospital.

GRAPHOLOGY PROFILES

LORENE GREEN

Dear Ms. Green:

I find the ability to discern personality traits through common handwriting to be fascinating. However, I stopped "writing" in high school, as I feel printing is much more natural, easier to read, and quicker. Also, I only print in the upper case, never lower.

I am right-handed and will be 28 in September. It occurs to me the art of handwriting, and writing as well, will begin to diminish due to the influence of computer and voice communications.

Thank you for considering this handwriting sample.

Best regards.

M.J., Novi

I, too, feel the art of handwriting will have a diminishing role in the future. To me, however, a handwritten note or letter is a beautiful gift. I have boxes of letters that I have saved from my children when they were in college.

Because the research on printing is somewhat limited, I feel it is important to offer a disclaimer. This analysis may not be quite as accurate as one done on handwriting.

I have found that printing is often the preferred choice of those who have art, drafting, engineering aptitude or a good aesthetic sense. Sometimes, printing is selected by those who want to communicate and be understood by others. A seeming contradiction, however, may be seen in that they do not always make it easy for others to do this.

Ann Mahoney in her excellent book "Handwriting and Personality" has this to say about printing: "Whether you learned to print in school, or at an architectural drafting table, or just adopted the style for legibility, it does reveal a preference for quick, intuitive thinking and ability to appraise a situation and formulate an answer on gut feeling. It also creates a certain amount of emotional isolation. But it is important to know why the person chose printing and how he writes when scribbling a phone message for himself."

I was drawn to this neat, attractive printing almost immediately. I felt this was a young man with many superlative traits that I admired. He is a person who wants to be in control of his life. Taking charge comes naturally for him.

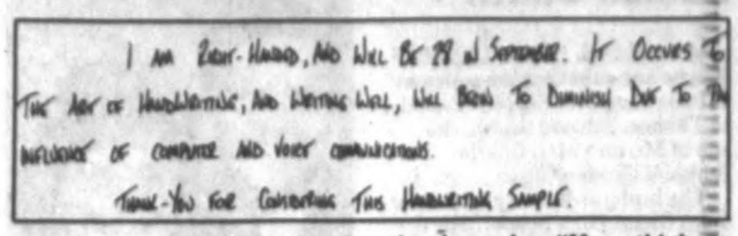
His circle of friends may be somewhat limited. Quality appears to be more important than quantity.

He has high standards for himself. Procrastination, incompetence, carelessness and/or vulgarity can turn him right off.

Ambition stands out here. His aspirations are aimed high. He knows what he wants from life and can move right into action. His goals are challenging, and I feel he will work until he achieves them.

Self-discipline does not permit him to relax until he has completed all of his work. His motto is probably "Business before pleasure."

In addition, he is extremely conscientious, dependable and meticulous in all things. Punctuality is high on his priority list. When he makes an appointment, he will be there at the stated time and will expect the same consideration from others.



Nothing less than his best effort is ever acceptable to him. I see a perfectionist when I study this printing, and I can't help wondering who exerted that much pressure on this young man.

In his bailiwick, he is neat, tidy and clean. His grooming is fastidious.

Our printer is optimistic and upbeat. For him, the cup is half full and never half empty. He looks on the positive side of life and living. This furnishes him with additional confidence in his capabilities.

Appropo here are a couple of thoughts I often share in motivational speeches: "If you think you can, you can. If you think you can't, you can't. Attitude is everything!"

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. And objective feedback is welcome.

Much is being said about the rigorous screening process we put our doctors through. But don't worry.

Some survive.

It's a tall order. And maybe not every doctor is cut out for it. But then if we're going to make things easier for our patients, we must strive to provide quality doctors. So, before any doctors become Blue Care Network doctors, before they ever examine a single patient, they must first meet or surpass some rather lofty standards. Here's what it takes. First, all doctors (personal care physicians and specialists) are reviewed against specific written criteria. (Quality of care is the thing we're measuring here.)

Moreover, an on-site inspection is conducted by specially trained staff and the results are reviewed by Blue Care Network doctors in the area. Patient satisfaction surveys are conducted by a professional, independent research company. Here, we ask patients to evaluate their doctor's technical skills as well as the basic level of service and care. Blue Care Network also works with its personal care physicians to ensure that standards are met.

Oh, and one more thing. After meeting all these standards, the doctors who are selected have the pleasure of repeating this process all over again every two years. For as long as they're with us.

Blue Care Network

We screen our doctors so you get better choices.

Golfers score for WRC at Tee Time Classic

Mother Nature was slow to cooperate, but that didn't dampen the spirits of volunteers and golfers who turned out for the Schoolcraft College Women's Resource Center's first-ever Tee Time Golf Classic Sept. 8.

Held at the Cattails Golf Club in South Lyon, the tournament attracted 127 golfers, far more than the hoped-for 100 golfers on which organizers had set their sights.

"We're delighted with the turnout, especially for the first time," said Nancy Swanborg, WRC director. "This is shaping up to be the biggest fund-raiser ever for the center."

Initial estimates are that the benefit will raise close to $6,000, more than raised by the center's popular annual spaghetti dinner. The money will be used for scholarships to cover such things as tuition, books, child care and licensing for women who utilize the center's services.

Early arrivals took advantage of the club's driving range and putting green to warm up, and some staged a quick "raid" on the pro shop, taking advantage of discounts on golfing paraphernalia, especially monogrammed Cattails Golf Club sweatshirts.

The weather did delay the start of the scrambles, with golfers finally teeing off just after 2 p.m.

"The golfers were really patient; they realize that the weather is one thing you don't have control of," said Swanborg, who also played in the tournament. "But the day really turned gorgeous."

The winners of the classic with a 2 under par for the five holes that were counted was the foursome of Stephanie Hall, John Hall, Don Lynch and Dave Duncan. Lynch also won one of three putters given as prizes in the putting contest. Putters also were won by Gretchen Dunfee and Helen Kane.

Did you know . . .

When it comes to children, American women are having more.

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, women are having more children — 2.0 children per capita during their lifetime as of 1994 — than they were 10 years ago — 1.8 children per capita during their lifetimes as of 1984.

And when it comes to parenting, there are about six times as many single mothers (9.3 million) as single fathers (1.6 million) in 1993, meaning that in 86 percent of one-parent households, it is the father who is absent.

In 1970, 90 percent of the single parents were mothers.

Documentary looks at church's founder

"Everywhere you go in New Hampshire, you see a Mary Baker Eddy plaque," points out public television producer Jim Gilmore. "I started wondering 'Who was this lady?' "

The result of his wondering is "Soul of a Woman: The Life and Times of Mary Baker Eddy," which received a Wilbur Award for best film documentary for 1994 from the Religious Public Relations Council.

The one-hour special, produced by New Hampshire Public Television, will be shown on WTVS-Channel 56 in Detroit at 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 24.

As the documentary's narrator, Fritz Wetherbee points out that Christian Science Church founder Mary Baker Eddy's life "as she saw it, was a constant sacrifice to her mission, a radical mission of spiritual healing in a scientific age." Eddy herself said, "What I am remains to be proved by the good I do."

Eddy was born in Bow, N.H., in 1821, at a time when women had few legal rights and were not allowed to vote. A daughter of strict Calvinist parents, at an early age she learned to love the Bible, but her youth was marked by frequent illness and frailty.

Widowed by her first husband, separated from her son, and deserted by her second husband, her challenges seemed overwhelming. But as she studied her Bible, hopelessness was replaced with hope and fear with love.

Her health improved and she began writing, healing and teaching. She produced her major work, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," in 1875, and it has gone on to sell eight million copies. She established The First Church of Christ, Scientist, as well as an award-winning international newspaper, The Christian Science Monitor.

Neighborly Rosedale Gardens inspires artist

By Linda Ann Chomin • Special Writer

Watercolorist Eileen Bibby has bicycled through Livonia's oldest neighborhood nearly every day for more than two decades recording its quiet beauty in her mind. Now the 70 year old award-winning artist has captured on paper many of the stately brick homes in Rosedale Gardens, including the first built in 1925, in a one woman show of paintings continuing through Sept. 29 at Livonia City Hall. The exhibit is sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission.

"Who has done a complete series of paintings on Livonia before?" quizzed Bibby whose work is part of the touring Michigan Water Color Exhibition on display through Oct. 8 at the Lansing Art Gallery.

"No one that I know of. I've enjoyed painting these. I give different times of day, different times of year."

Bibby spent the last two years painting the 43 watercolors and monotypes depicting the Cape Cods and colonials surrounded by flowers and gardens, snow, and autumn leaves from dawn to dusk in all four Michigan seasons. Majestic old trees line the streets in front of the homes where "Santa's Laundry" hangs on a clothesline at Christmastime, and flags fly freely during the Fourth of July.

Piles of unframed paintings lie on the floor of Bibby's studio in various stages of completion. Others which are already framed lean in neat stacks against walls and furniture. "Dorothy's Patio" took a month to complete because of all the detail laid in the brick wall that serves as a background for the rocking horse, flower pots and patio set.

A retired senior industrial designer, Bibby's mastered the ability to accurately portray objects from all angles while a student at Wayne State University and Society of Arts and Crafts (now Center for Creative Studies) in Detroit.

"Anyone who has an engineering background knows perspective," said Bibby, former president of the Visual Arts Association of Livonia and a long-time member of the Farmington Artists Club, and the Scarab Club in Detroit.

Part of the show is devoted to watercolor monotypes where the image is painted on a plexiglass plate then transferred to paper by hand or through the use of a printing press.

Monotype is not a medium of multiples. Only one print is obtained from this process, hence the name, monotype. Bibby will illustrate this lengthy process by displaying the original drawing for her "Auburndale Garden" monotype, the plate after it's printed, and the final work.

"Monotype comes out in reverse. There's some residue left but not enough for another print," said Bibby who studied the medium with artist Lily Dudgeon of Dearborn.

As Bibby walks through the highly manicured gardens in her backyard, she gives a treasure trove of information on the methods she uses to keep it in shape. Loose strife and snowballs are cut down to the ground at the end of the growing season. She makes it seem so simple, but it's more likely after all these years she knows every petal and plant by heart. That's what ensures the accuracy of painting the botanical beauties, years and years of study.

"There's nothing hostile or threatening in my work. I'm not capable of painting violence," said Bibby.

While most artists have a difficult time parting with their finished work, Bibby enjoys sharing the beauty with others. She hopes Rosedale Gardens' homeowners will see the show and want to purchase the paintings. Prices in the show range from $50 for a small (11 by 11 inch) watercolor monotype to $500 for a 40 by 30 inch watercolor.

Tamaki Kawakubo

Philharmonic features superstar violinist

BY KEELY WYGONIK
STAFF WRITER

She's only 15, but violinist Tamaki Kawakubo is already a superstar.

"Normally a community orchestra would never get a soloist of this caliber to perform with them because their fees are so high," said Farmington Area Philharmonic founder and music director Karen Nixon Lane.

"I found out that she would be in Lansing on Sept. 23 to perform with the greater Lansing Symphony, and got in touch with her agent."

Lane learned about Kawakubo's Lansing concert from the symphony's music director, Gustav Meier. "He was my instructor at University of Michigan," said Lane. "We're co-authoring a conducting textbook."

Kawakubo, who appeared with the Boston Pops this summer, will be performing Sept. 24 at the Farmington Area Philharmonic's opening Casual Classics Series concert in the Clooney Auditorium at Mercy High School in Farmington Hills.

"We're delighted to be able to bring a young instrumentalist of this caliber to our community," said Lane. "I'm stressing variety and outstanding soloists in this year's season."

The concert of Italian music on Sept. 24 is titled "Rossini, Paganini and Pines." It will include works from the Italian opera repertoire including Rossini's overture to "L'Italiana in Algeri" and Verdi's Prelude to Act 1 from "La Traviata," as well as Respighi's orchestral favorite, "The Pines of Rome."

FINE ARTS

Ceramicist works to 'balance reality'

ARTISTIC EXPRESSIONS

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Madonna University art department chairman Ralph Glenn treated his contemporary art history students to a lesson on life today as a working artist.

Ceramicist Georgette Zerbis, whose clay sculpture is on display through the end of September in the Exhibit Gallery, spoke to the students before the opening reception of her one woman show in the library wing of Madonna University.

"It's important for the students to have the actual contact with a working artist and also to see an area not as visible today like contemporary ceramics," said Glenn.

"Contemporary ceramics ask more from the viewer. They take more study.

"What attracted me to Georgette's work is the sense of division of parts. That they're made up of many parts yet they're whole. And while they're not functional they still have a feeling of functionality."

The multi-cultural environments in which the mix of thrown and hand built clay shapes forming Zirbes' three dimensional sculptures were produced is all important to the creation, as is the process. These recent works in clay were crafted in schools and factories in Germany, Latvia and Prague where artists gathered for a period of 4-6 weeks, living and working together at symposia, workshops or residencies with an exhibition as the end result in mind.

Zerbis' work is all about balancing reality. The cultural and political transitions taking place in these Central and Eastern Europe countries play a part in the art. Like a jigsaw puzzle the University of Michigan art professor pieces the shapes of clay together with silicone glue. The finished sculptures resemble architectural remnants. Whether from a distant civilization or modern society is up to the viewer to decide.

"All these are made in parts that are still visibly separated," said Zerbis who began working in clay more than 30 years ago while an undergraduate student at DePaw University in Indiana.

"The issue is one of balance. I wanted them to feel like they're falling visually and physically."

"Pieces that are precarious (such as these) rarely survive the kiln. Because of this reason and for shipping purposes I glue them together."

In the beginning, Zerbis has a general idea or plan but nothing concrete because she prefers to have the creative decisions evolve as she works.

"I like to have lots and lots of parts like (playing) in a sandbox."

"When I'm working I'm more intent on the process for it to be more spontaneous, less technical, but drawing is very fundamental to my work."

While Zerbis' clay works appear as if they are all black and white, they are not.

Since she must minimize the amount of slips she "carries in a suitcase all over the world," the surfaces seem all black and white from a distance but up close subtle flecks of turquoise or areas of pink subtly color the surface.

"Clay work is found all over the world," said Zerbis.

"In this country in the 1950s there was a shift in making clay."

Georgette Zerbis and her clay work is definitely worth watching as the movement of contemporary ceramics progresses into the year 2000.

Madonna University is at the corner of Levan and Schoolcraft in Livonia. The library is open 8 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. Monday-Thursday; 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday; 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday, 1-5 p.m. Sunday.

Linda Ann Chomin of Canton Township is a free lance writer specializing in the visual arts. her Artistic Expressions column appears weekly in the Arts & Entertainment section of the Observer Newspapers.

■ MEET GORBACHEV

If you've ever wondered what life as an artist is like in Russia, Yuri Gorbachev knows. Meet him noon to 3 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 16 at Europa Art Gallery, 6335 (Orchard Lake Road and Maple), West Bloomfield.

Gorbachev, who has exhibited work from Indonesia to Australia, is the grand nephew of former Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

His mosaic-like oil canvasses revel in positive energy. Animals and people, outlined in gold reminiscent of the Russian Byzantine style, float through the air.

"Nude in Russia five year ago (you) can't do," said Gorbachev in a phone interview from his New York home.

"My life in Russia very difficult, now is free. Five years ago was different. They control you. They check you, limit you. Make everything I want here more nudes, more bright (paintings). America make me more free, more independent."

■ ARTBEAT

A portion of the sales during private receptions Sept. 14-15 and public showings, Sept. 16-17 will go toward establishing a fine arts scholarship in Gorbachev's name at Center for Creative Studies in Detroit. For information call (810) 855-2160.

■ FINALLY HOME

Plymouth Community Arts Council's art rental gallery was installed in the arts council's new home, 774 N. Sheldon Road.

Gallery hours are 10 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. Wednesdays only, until further notice. Call (313) 416-4ART.

■ OBSERVERLAND ARTIST

Victor Vicini of Livonia is one of 26 artists juried into the 9th annual "Celebrate Michigan Artists" exhibition continuing through Sept. 22 at Paint Creek Center for the Arts in Rochester.

Paint Creek Center for the Arts is at 407 Pine Street (two blocks west of Main Street). Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. Call (810) 651-4110.

Kawakubo who plays on a 1707 "Cathedral" Stradivarius, will perform the Paganini "Violin Concerto."

"Paganini was the victim of a rare jawbone disease, and after several operations, had to have all of his teeth pulled out," explained Lane. "This left his face sunken and skeleton-like, and gave him a macabre appearance. It was a common belief that Paganini, whose name means 'little pagan' was able to execute super human technical feats on the violin, because he had sold his soul to the devil. In reality, his awesome technique was the result of persevering parents who simply made him practice the violin all day — every day."

It is a difficult piece to perform, but Kawakubo enjoys the challenge. She began her violin studies at the age of five and is currently studying with Robert Lipset at the R.D. Colburn School for the Performing Arts in Los Angeles.

She made her first national television appearance on "Entertainment Tonight" as the featured soloist at the Command Performance Gala and has performed on several occasions for the Emmy Award-winning TV series "Musical Encounter" and made a cameo appearance in the 20th Centur Fox motion picture, "For the Boys." Her performance this summer with the Boston Pops and John Williams was also televised nationally.

The opening work on the Italian program will not be Italian, but "Roman Carnival Overture," an early work by French composer Hector Berlioz.

This concert is being sponsored by Waste Management Corporation. "Music is just a bunch of notes on paper until you recycle it into a live performance," said Lane. "Waste Management is helping us recycle by sponsoring this concert."

Lane, a native of Livonia, performed as principal horn of the Michigan Opera Theatre for 11 years before returning to the University of Michgian for graduate study. She graduated magna cum laude in 1989 with master's and specialist in music degrees. An award-winning conductor, Lane's previous appointments include guest lecturer in conducting at Oakland University, Interim Music Director of the Pontiac-Oakland Symphony, and Music Director of the Troy Community Orchestra.

We're looking for "Metro Detroit's sexiest house painter." Send a photo of the painter, fully clothed please! to Keely Wygonik, Entertainment Editor, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, Inc., 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150 by noon Thursday, Sept. 21. For more information, call (313) 953-2105.

The Grand Prize winner will be treated to a special evening out with the painter, and four other women chosen randomly by WNIC. The person who picks the sexiest painter will be treated to dinner, flowers, candy, champagne and a round-trip limo ride to a special preview screening of the comedy "Moonlight and Valentino" 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 28 at the Star Theatre John R. in Madison Heights. The winning photo will be published in the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers.

Fifty runner's-up will receive passes for two to the Sept. 28 screening of "Moonlight and Valentino," and packages of Moon Garden seeds.

Written by Ellen Simon, Neil Simon's daughter, "Moonlight and Valentino" is the true story of Rebecca Lott (Elizabeth Perkins) whose husband is hit by a car while jogging and killed instantly. In a tragic split second, Rebecca becomes a widow.

Shell-shocked, Rebecca isn't alone for long because with the immediate arrival of her eccentric best friend Sylvie (Whoopi Goldberg), her neurotic younger sister Lucy (Gwyneth Paltrow) and her overbearing ex-stepmother Alberta (Kathleen Turner) comes a convergence of support and enough emotional baggage for a therapist to need new springs on the old couch.

For Rebecca's birthday, Alberta hires a house painter (Jon Bon Jovi) to "spruce up her siding." This mysterious man helps them discover that letting go of something is sometimes a lot better than holding on to nothing at all.

■ Soccer players, coaches, and parents — write and tell us why your team needs a pick-me-up movie treat to win tickets to a 7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 27 screening of "The Big Green" at the AMC Old Orchard Theatre in Farmington Hills.

Clever ideas, but 'Clockers' is not one of Lee's best

JOHN MONAGHAN

"Clockers" is different from countless other movies dealing with big city drug trade. It's also much of the same.

Directed by Spike Lee, produced by Martin Scorsese, from a script by Richard Price, the movie could have been a '90s-era "Goodfellas." But like the mix of piano music and rap that comes together so noisily near the beginning, it's a collaboration that only occasionally works.

Scorsese was originally supposed to direct but then backed out to make "Casino" with Robert DeNiro instead. Lee came on board but didn't like the focus of Price's original novel, so he changed it from a middle-aged police inspector to a young drug dealer, or "clocker," named Strike.

Strike can get off the street if he performs a hit on a double crosser. Inexplicably, his brother Vincent takes the rap, leaving

REVIEW

Harvey Keitel's inspector Rocco to put together the pieces and discover the truth.

Rodney (Delroy Lindo) controls the local drug trade like a modern-day Fagin. Despite his cold bloodedness, he treats his tight-knit drug dealers like a family, insisting that his employees stay off of the stuff they peddle. He even gives them haircuts at the corner store that serves as a front.

"What do you see?" he asks his young recruits, hands in front of them in a circle. "Not black, green."

Some clever ideas surface in "Clockers." Flashbacks, filmed in grainy, saturated color, are especially vivid, often showing Vincent at work, a "buffer" between his employers and the gang members who threaten trouble. You can see how it eats away at him.

You'll catch the usual Spike Lee touches. Cameras and characters move on dollies while conversations typically turn to whether you have to be a killer to be a great rapper. In the seeming chaos, Lee provides role models from the mother and policeman who try to separate Strike from the young boy he befriends.

"Clockers" grows false when Lee employs the stylized lighting, fumbling focus, and shakey camera from television crime shows. He seems out of his element.

Also intact are many of the quirky, eccentric touches that screenwriter Price is known for. So Strike loves Lionel trains, slugs Yoo Hoo-style drink called Moo, and has stomach problems that result in a bloody cough.

It's harder to get a handle on Keitel's character, a man driven to clean the streets but who still throws trash out the window while driving.

Some have hailed "Clockers" as Lee's best, but these are usually critics that don't like his films to begin with. For me, a Lee fan, "Clockers" is a stretch that the director misses by nearly a mile.

"How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying." A window washer churns his way to the top of a major firm in this comedy. This show is now a musical on Broadway. Dr. Frank Ross leads a discussion on the film before and after the showing. Group meets third Wednesday of every month.

■ DETROIT FILM THEATRE
Detroit Institute of Arts, 5200 Woodward, Detroit. Call (313) 833-2323 for information. ($5; $4 students)

"A Pure Formality" (France/Italy - 1994). 7, 9:30 p.m. Sept. 15-16; 4, 7 p.m. Sept. 17. Gerard Depardieu stars in this chilling tale of a man who claims to be a writer picked up as a murder suspect and questioned by an extremely thorough police inspector (Roman Polanski). A different kind of story from Giuseppe Tornatore, the director of "Cinema Paradiso."

"Chinatown" (USA - 1974). 7 p.m. Sept. 18. A brand new print of Roman Polanski's eloquent tribute to "film noir," this one set in 1930s Los Angeles. Jack Nicholson plays detective Jay Gittes, whose relentless snooping puts him squarely in the middle of a bizarre and powerful family. John Huston and Faye Dunaway co-star along with Polanski in a memorable bit as a knife-wielding thug.

■ MAGIC BAG THEATRE
22918 Woodward, Ferndale. Call (810) 544-3030 for information. ($4; $3 students/seniors)

"A Clockwork Orange" (USA - 1971). 8 p.m. Sept. 14. A newly struck print of Stanley Kubrick's futuristic tale about an oddly charismatic young thug (Malcolm McDowell) who has equal enthusiasm for violent acts and the music of Ludwig Van Beethoven. Controversial when released almost 25 years ago and still shocking today.

"Grease" (USA - 1978). 7:30 p.m. Sept. 19 and 21. John Travolta and Olivia Newton-John come from different sides of the tracks in this kitschy tribute to 1950s music and morals. Based on the popular stage play.

"Bullet in the Head" (Hong Kong - 1990). 8 p.m. Sept. 20. An encore screening of the film Hong Kong action master John Woo calls his favorite. Three Hong Kong friends embark for Vietnam to get their piece of the lucrative black market but end up battling gangsters, soldiers, and themselves.

■ MAIN ART THEATRE
118 N. Main Street at 11 Mile, Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 542-0180 for information and showtimes. ($6.50; $4 students and matinee; $3 twilight)

"Jeffrey" (USA - 1995). A gay actor/waiter living in New York vows celibacy in fear of contracting AIDS, but then meets the man of his dreams who just happens to be HIV-positive. "Star Trek's" Patrick Stewart recalls his stage actor origins in his turn as a flamboyant interior decorator.

"The Usual Suspects" (USA - 1995). Five guys who meet in a police lineup join for a simple heist. What happens next will keep you guessing in this cleverly scripted caper starring Gabriel Byrne, Kevin Spacey, and Chazz Palminteri.

"The Brothers McMullen" (USA - 1995). For what some people spend on a new car, Edward Burns made this engaging first feature about a young screenwriter and his two brothers in contemporary Long Island. Burns calls his audience pleaser a "romantic comedy for guys" and what it lacks in acting and production values it more than makes up in charm.

The Large Hungarians — The Large Hungarians

The songs on The Large Hungarians' self-titled cassette are like a witch's brew — a little of this, a little of that to create a new potion. They are mainly pop/rock songs with a little bit of folk, jazz and ska thrown in for good measure.

This is a noble proposition, creating a sound mixture that is definitely your own. The problem is that the Kalamazoo band does not make it work with the exception of a few small parts. It sounds like each member wants to go in a different musical direction, and the struggle leads to a boring middle ground where there are only hints of the potential the band has.

The trombone parts throughout the album are about the only thing that saves the songs from being really uninteresting. Most of the horn parts catch your ear for a little bit to get you into the song before the rest of the music throws you back into the sea of mediocrity.

The Large Hungarians are not a bad band, but the five songs on their self-titled release do not make them sound like a very good band either. They do not make a very good pop band, but there are hints that they might make a good ska band.

Hopefully, as they continue to grow musically, they will see that a difference in style could make them shine. Until then, there doesn't seem to be much hope.

The tape is available through Hungarian Headquarters, 4210 Valley Ridge Dr., No. 8, Kalamazoo, Mich. 49006.

Blues With A Feeling — Little Sonny

Detroit-based harmonica player Aaron Willis, dubbed "Little Sonny" after early influence Sonny Boy Williamson II, had long been out of the shadow of his mentor by the time "Blues With A Feeling — Ann Arbor Blues & Jazz Festival 1972, Vol 2" was recorded. As vital to the serious blues harmonica fan's record library as his early Enterprise and Stax albums were, this is a revelation to the unitiated and a reminder to those of us who just plain forgot how amazing this man was. The last time I saw him was probably around '78 or '79, and though I've been sufficiently knocked out by the new recordings, this is a trip down memory lane that's as fun to hear now as then. This is live, without the luxury even of a sound check.

Magic abounds here: The spoken intro to "Going Down Slow" ("In order for a horse to win a race, they say a horse must change his pace. In the meantime he can't win a race if he slows down all the time. He has to change his pace and speed up sometimes. There's a time to run fast, and there's a time to slow down. If you want to last, you better take it slow then move in. You gotta know to do it and when to do it. If you don't, you're in a whole heap of trouble."

Beyond the meeting of proverb and double-entendre, it's a statement that might serve as the Little Sonny musical credo); the amazing live takes of his staples "The Creeper Returns," "Hot Potatoes" and "Sad Funk" that outdo the already impressive studio versions; the inspired scatting on "A Woman Named Trouble;" and his reinvention of Jimmy Reed's "Honest I Do," which stands as one of the best versions I've heard yet.

Sonny's got a warble to his voice that makes it as instantly recognizable as his harp, and there are very few harmonica players in history who are so distinctive.

Festival and disc producer John Sinclair's liner notes in which, among other things, he called Little Sonny one of his favorite modern bluesmen (an affection I share), are fact filled and make an enjoyable read, and the interview at the end of the disc with Little Sonny, a man with 40 years of Detroit blues history, is riveting. This is a classy, humble man who just happens to be one of the baddest harp players of our time that too few folks know anything about.

(Little Sonny plays the afternoon of Saturday, Sept. 16, at Gallup Park in Ann Arbor as part of the Ann Arbor Blues and Jazz Festival. For more information, call (313) 99-MUSIC.)

Comedian counters Detroit's image

STAFF WRITER

With Trapper's Alley in financial straits, and the death of Deletha Word plastered all over national magazines and newspapers, the city of Detroit could use a few kind words.

After a sold-out show at the State Theatre in Detroit last April, comedian Carrot Top calls the city "my new favorite place."

"I had a blast that night," Carrot Top said Monday via telephone from his Charlotte, N.C., home. "That was a good theater. The crowd was crazy. Detroit people are so nice. I felt like Cal Ripken."

He was so impressed by the city that he's considering taping a cable special at the venue. In the meantime, he'll return to the city Wednesday, Sept. 20, to play the other side of town — the Royal Oak Music Theatre.

For those who haven't seen him on MTV, The Tonight Show, Regis and Kathie Lee, Arsenio Hall Show, or Rolling Stone or People magazines, Carrot Top's shtick is trunks filled with bits and pieces of everyday life transformed into gags.

Carrot Top said this show will be different than his April gig at the State.

"Well, I'll be a little older. I have a lot of new stuff. We have some new jokes and some new lights. I always try to update the show with things that have happened in the news. Like for Shannon Faulkner I have a hat with a little Twinkie dangling in the front of it to get her through her regiment better," said the comedian, who was born Scott Thompson.

His funniest new joke, he said, has to do with Hootie and the Blowfish. That's as far as he'll go.

For the Florida-born Carrot Top, rock music and comedy go hand in hand. He incorporates flash pods, loud music and backdrops to top the energy that comes with rock shows.

"That's what I wanted from the beginning. You go to concerts, and the energy is not only on the stage but in the room. It's amazing how people will line up for concerts. At comedy shows it wasn't the same. There wasn't the energy."

In November, Carrot Top will put his energy toward "Chairman of the Board," the first of three movies he has inked to do for Trimark Pictures.

"I'm going to bring my persona, my crazy self. It's going to be exciting. We're gonna have some of the props. I play an inventor in the movie, chairman of a big Sharper Image kind of company."

He's always looked forward to doing movies but felt a little funny about it.

"I never wanted to see myself in a movie. When it finally does hit the movie theater, I'll have to go see it on a Tuesday afternoon at 1 so I'm the only person in there. I'm afraid if (the audience) doesn't laugh. Geez, what if it sucks?" he said.

"I'll probably throw Milk Duds at the screen. I don't like hearing my own voice. I hate that. If I listen to the machine and I hear 'I'm not home right now,' I hate that. I sound like a goober."

A book is also in the works.

"It's going to be about Reba McEntire. She sold so many copies I thought I'll just call it 'Reba.' I'll tell Reba's story in my own words. No, it'll be all my jokes, my props, like a little comic book."

But the key to the all of Carrot Top's media is to have fun — he and the audience.

"It's still fun watching the crowd laughing at it. It's like I get a chance to see it in action. I sit at home and do the jokes. When they get a response, it's neat to see the process from the building stage up to the performance."

Carrot Top performs at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 20, at the Royal Oak Music Theatre, 318 W. Fourth St., Royal Oak. Tickets are $22.50 in advance for the 21 and older show. For more information, call (810) 546-7610.

Universal Stomp's bassist is having fun

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Aaron Ruby of Garden City never thought that his hobby would earn him national recognition.

The bassist's hard rock band Universal Stomp has been given a thumbs up by influential trade magazines CMJ and the Gavin Report following the releases of the EP "Stomping of Jake" and the full-length CD "Full Swing." Both releases are available in most major record stores.

"I had no idea," Ruby said. " . . . It was just something that I normally did to pass the time, to have fun and get crazy. . . . I never expected it would be like this."

Universal Stomp formed in April 1994 with Ruby, guitarist Dave Curry, guitarist Scott Poole, singer Ed McEachern, and drummer Jeff Shankin. (Shankin has since been replaced with Mike Du Fore of Livonia.)

The band marks Ruby's first foray into bass playing.

"The first couple bands I played in were really noisy punk rock bands. I used to play guitar in all those bands. (In Universal Stomp) there wasn't a bassist so I thought, 'I'll play bass for you.' " the 22-year-old said.

A fan of bands like Youth of Today and Corrosion of Conformity, he admits that Universal Stomp's combative music "wasn't anything I was into at all." But after awhile his views changed.

"It was just so much fun to play."

Saturday, Sept. 16, Universal Stomp will play for more than fun. They're playing for a good cause — 10-month-old Ricki Kahl of Flat Rock who is in need of a bowel and liver transplant. Local acts Wicked Garden, Fast Orange, Dr. Grinch, Downer's Grove, Honor Among Thieves, HMR, Plow, St. Francis Cadets, Euphoria, and Uncle Bastard are also on the bill at the Mosquito Club in Westland.

Stomping for a cause: Universal Stomp, who released their debut CD "Full Swing" on Novi's Overture Records, play a benefit at the Mosquito Club in Westland on Saturday, Sept. 16, for Ricki Kahl, a 10-month-old baby who needs a liver and bowel transplant.

Kahl's surgery will not be covered by insurance. So far the family has raised $200,000 of the $430,000 that's needed. The baby was born with gastroschisis, a rare birth disorder in which the intestines develop outside the body.

"She's had nine surgeries already," said her grandmother Doris Barnes of Taylor. "Her short bowel is too short. She's not getting any of the nutrients that her body needs. That means we have to feed her through a tube and that goes into her chest. She has another feeding tube through her nose. She's a very, very sick baby."

Her parents, Jeff and Denise Kahl, have two other children, Rebecca, 7, and Rachel, 5. Both are healthy.

Ruby said his band was more than happy to help.

"If someone asks us to help out, how could we say no? We're happy if someone asks us for help."

The Mosquito Club is located at 28949 Joy Road, Westland. Tickets for the show are $5 for the all-ages show with proceeds going to the Ricki Kahl Transplant Fund. Doors open at 3 p.m.; showtime is 4 p.m.-2 a.m.

To donate to the Kahls, send a check payable to the Ricki Kahl Transplant Fund, to P.O. Box 506, Flat Rock, MI 48134.

Melodrama part of festivities

Show times are 8 p.m. Friday, Sept. 15; 1 p.m., 3 p.m., 4:30 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 16; and 2 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 17 at the American Legion Hall, corner of Center and Dunlap Streets, downtown Northville. Tickets are $3 adults, $2 for senior citizens and children under 12, and available at the door.

"It's under an hour long," said playwright Brian McGinn. "It's based on a number of Victorian novels. I hope people will find it entertaining."

The plot goes like this. Rosalind has arranged for her brother Henry's girlfriend, Amanda, to visit him on his birthday. But Amanda shows up with unexpected surprises in tow, including a fiance. And what of Henry? Will he lose the woman he loves and his life because of the secret plot against him? And just who is this mysterious Black Cloak person who has been thwarting local criminals? Will he be able to get to Rosalind in time to save her from the deadly clutches of Dr. Mago?

Nancy Schuster of Livonia plays Bianca, Dr. Mago's assistant. "I'm having fun with the role," she said. "Instead of being nice and sweet, I can let the nasty side out."

Julie Norbach of Northville plays Rosalind. "She's a modern woman in Victorian times. That's why I like her. She's very intelligent."

Craig Hipsher, who plays Henry, is not like his sister at all. "I'm in love with Amanda who has been away at school for years. I'm naive and innocent."

Henry is put to the test in a duel with Dr. Mago over Rosalind's hand.

Audience participation will be encouraged. You can boo and hiss at the villains, and cheer for the hero.

Northville's Seventh annual Victorian Festival, Sept. 15-17, celebrates the art, history and romance of the Victorian era.

Festivities begin with a parade in downtown Northville 6:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 15. During the next two days, festival goers will enjoy medicine man shows, strolling street entertainers, an art market, antique show, dulcimer players, and home tour. The townspeople will turn out in their finest ruffles, bows, parasols, vintage dresses and tailcoats to celebrate Northville's turn-of-the century heritage.

■ REVIEW

There aren't any big name stars in "West Side Story," but the audience voted with their feet opening night giving this production a standing ovation.

"West Side Story," a musical by Leonard Bernstein, Stephen Sondheim and Arthur Laurents, is the love story of Tony and Maria. Tony is Polish-American, and a member of the Jets gang. Maria is an recent Puerto Rican immigrant. Her brother Bernado is a member of the Sharks, a rival gang.

Tony and Maria meet at a school dance and fall in love. But gang rivalry gets in the way of their love.

Marcy Harriell as Maria, and Natascia A. Diaz (Anita) were stand-outs. Harriell, who toured across Europe in this role, was a very believable and sweet Maria. I especially liked her interpretation of the popular "I Feel Pretty." She sings it in her bedroom. A few of her girlfriends are on sitting on the bed. Harriell is silly, and her girlfriends aren't sure whether or not to believe her when she says, "I'm getting married tonight."

Diaz has also performed her role in Europe. She's able to be very serious, sexy, and funny. Her best performances were "America," and "A Boy Like That."

H.R. Greer as Tony, has an OK voice, but he doesn't seem to put as much heart into his role as Harriell and Diaz.

Annette Bergasse, owner and director of Annette & Co. dance studio in Farmington Hills, was very happy. Her son, Joshua was making his professional stage debut in the role of Baby John, a member of the Jets. Bergasse performed very well under what must have been a considerable amount of pressure. He fit right in with the guys and was especially good in "Gee, Officer Krupke."

There's a lot to like about this production, directed by Alan Johnson. The set — an urban landscape with factories, high fence, and hanging laundry, and costumes — blues for the cool Jets, hot pinks for the Sharks — are well done. Choreography by Jerome Robbins is fabulous.

The songs, including "Something's Coming" and "Somewhere" — are familiar and memorable. A traveling orchestra provides excellent accompaniment.

While very enjoyable, I did hear some complaints about the ticket prices — $60 for main floor seating on Friday and Saturday nights, $55 Tuesday-Thursday. It does seem like a lot to pay, but then, this production is scheduled to open on Broadway.

When the curtain falls for the last time, "West Side Story" will continue it's tour of 30 U.S. cities including stops in Canada and Japan.

Funny '36' tackles issues of faith

Jewish Ensemble Theatre presents "36" by Norman Lessing in the Aaron Deroy Theatre, Jewish Community Center 6600 West Maple Road, West Bloomfield. Continues through Oct. 1. Show times — 8 p.m. Wednesday-Thursday; 2 & 7 p.m. Sundays; 8:45 p.m. Saturdays. Tickets $11-$22. Call (810) 788-2900 or Ticketmaster (810) 645-6666.

CATHIE BREIDENBACH

The Jewish Ensemble Theatre's engaging production of Norman Lessing's "36" balances comedy, serious reflection on the place of mystery and mysticism in religion, and satire to make the audience "laugh with," "laugh at," and "think" in equal measure.

Director Evelyn Orbach keeps the three-way comedy/serious/satire tension in admirable balance as the play unravels the story of three Chassids transplanted to a reformed temple in Cincinnati.

They're searching for the last of the 36 righteous souls for whom God preserves the world, and they find him in a beefy, big-mouthed electrician named Joe Walski (Jim Porterfield). With no religion and a Catholic wife, Walski's an unlikely candidate for a Jewish saint when he comes to repair the overloaded circuits in the lighting system at the temple where the trio of Chassids spend their days praying, studying, and kibitzing. They hang out at the reformed temple with permission of Manfred Dorfman (Robert Starko), a rabbi so modern his faith has eroded, but not so worldly that he can't revive the power of believing.

■ REVIEW

The trio of Chassids exemplify the exceptional balance of tone, temperament, and talent that pervades this production. The meddling, yet benevolent trio are led by the gently wise Nachman (Sol Frieder) in flowing white beard, the ascerbic, wisecracking Mendel (Robert Grossman), and the callow, smooth-cheeked Pitzik (Daniel Kahn). The play's good-natured satire has teeth enough to bite — but never to draw blood in the hands of the powerhouse six-member cast. The play pokes fun at old-fashioned Chassidic ways, the "creative" logic of rabbinical wisdom, country club synagogues, rabbis who have lost their faith, temples in the entertainment business, rabbis as business administrators rather than spiritual leaders, the subservience of Orthodox women, etc., etc.

In a play about an electrician who "sees the light" and sheds "light" on the mystery of faith, the metaphoric wordplay is reinforced by Mark Allen Berg's lighting design and Melinda Pacha's stunning stained-glass windows set in the marble restraint of the modern temple. Nobody — Jew or gentile, Chassidic or Reformed — escapes the eyes-open vision of Norman Lessing's satire which aims not to exclude, but to include all who struggle to explain the elusive, but unifying power of faith and all who would laugh at themselves in affirmation of their shared humanity.

DINING

Plymouth Landing offers fine dining

By Renee Skoglund
Special Writer

The Plymouth Landing, on the outskirts of downtown Plymouth, is fine dining with a casual touch. It's white linen tablecloths with a vase of fresh daisies. It's a place where the dining experience is paramount.

"When you come through those portals, it's like an extension of my own dining room," said owner Jim Plakas, a former mayor of Garden City, and a very personable host. "Everything comes out of the refrigerator so to speak."

And coming out of the Plymouth Landing's kitchen are some wonderful dishes. There's fresh whitefish, sauteed in brown butter, white wine and capers; slow-roasted prime rib; two eight ounce Australian lobster tails, and daily specials, like sauteed lamb steaks or Atlantic salmon with champagne tarragon sauce. Entrees run the price gamut from $10.95 to marketplace, with most falling between $13.95 and $16.95.

Lunch offerings include a variety of soups, salads, sandwiches and beef, chicken, fish and pasta entrees. Then there's the original Black Angus Sliders, two mini patties of Black Angus beef grilled with onions and raised to fine dining status by some great trimmings. Not exactly White Castle! Lunch averages between $2.95 and $6.95.

Plakas loves talking about food. About fish he says, "It's the tender care you give the fish. Once you set it in the cooking vessel you watch it. Once you add the wine you watch it until the spirits evaporate. You can tell from the aroma."

Much of the dining enjoyment at Plymouth Landing comes from its atmosphere. It's housed in the lower level of the Markham Building (circa 1886), Plymouth's oldest commercial building still in use, and once the site of the Daisy Manufacturing Company, maker of the legendary Daisy BB guns. The building's original brick walls and oak beams (some supposedly pockmarked by BB's) make for a warm, intimate setting.

"I like the white tablecloths. There's something about white tablecloths," said Margaret Cartier of Redford. Dave DeMitri of Canton particularly liked the garlic redskins served with his blackened swordfish. A frequent Plymouth Landing diner, he said, "I'm with Superior Coffee and I'm in a lot of restaurants throughout the country. You can come here casual for fine white tablecloth dining."

"To be successful and be returned to office you have to perform. It's the same here. The customer is the most important person in the world."

Salem, Canton still perfect in dual meets

The stage is now set for the dual-meet showdown between Canton and Salem, slated for next Thursday. Both teams remained unbeaten through Tuesday, although challenging WLAA powerhouse Livonia Stevenson might be a reach.

The girls swim teams from both Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem are unbeaten — but they won't remain that way for long.

By the thinness of a swimsuit Tuesday night, Salem's girls swim team got its season off to a successful start.

"I don't even know if we swam well," Coach Chuck Olson said, noting the meet was in a meter pool, "but I know we won."

Salem defeated Brighton by one point, 93½-92½, in its opener, which looks worse on the scoreboard than it does in the standings since Brighton had won all three of its meets this season.

Zoe Yockey won the diving with a score of 232.90 points while Yvonne Lynn, Katie Bonner, Sara Casillas and Audry Hala were double winners — combining for a winning 2:15.17 time in the 200-meter medley relay and taking individual events as well.

Lynn was actually a triple winner as she took the 100-meter backstroke in 1:13.87 and teamed with Carnie Dzialo, Andrea Bien and Kelly Ann Williams for a 200-meter freestyle relay winning time of 2:00.50.

Hala took the 500-meter freestyle in 6:12.42, Bonner was first in the 100-meter breast stroke in 1:26.23 and Casillas won the 100-meter butterfly in 1:14.70 to beat out teammate Jenny Werthman (1:17.04).

Canton remains unbeaten

Canton kept its record as spotless as a swimming pool with a 98-87 win over Monroe in its second meet of the season.

That puts a little sharpness to the atmosphere when the two schools meet Sept. 21.

"Last year we didn't win an event against Monroe, except diving," Canton coach Ron Krueger said. "That's quite a change. And Monroe has a lot of the same people. Our depth was the difference."

The Chiefs won the 200-freestyle relay (1:51) with sophomore Angie

Goals by Mike Elsner and Anthony Reimma in the second half Monday let host Plymouth Canton raise its boys soccer record to 2-3-1 with a 2-0 win over Northville.

Kevin Gniewek assisted on Elsner's goal in the Western Division opener for both schools in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

The Chiefs have been having problems scoring so they concentrated on the other half of the game. Matt Ammons, Sam McGrath and Todd Stonestreet helped the defense limit Northville's opportunities while the offense applied pressure through much of the game.

"We played a very good second half," Coach Don Smith said. "We've been struggling a bit lately but we had a real strong second half. We lost a lot of seniors from last year's team, and we've been working hard to get things back together."

■ SALEM 5, FARMINGTON 1: You can't keep a good team down, but Farmington learned you can keep it tied. For about a half a game.

Plymouth Salem, held to a 1-1 draw through the first half at Farmington, exploded for four goals in the second half Monday to remain undefeated for Coach Ken Johnson.

The Rocks lead the Western Lakes Lakes Division with a 3-0 record in a 6-0 season after getting two goals from Andy Makins and one apiece from Drew Drummond, Matt Hucal and Brett Konley.

PCA withstands late charge; Agape rips Saline

■ BASKETBALL

A 15-6 second quarter Tuesday night enabled Plymouth Christian Academy to survive the loss of star senior guard Lisa Erickson.

PCA managed to beat Macomb Christian in girls basketball, 38-34.

Erickson fouled out with two minutes left and a game high 17 points. Macomb put on a press and pulled to within two points but could get no closer.

Forward Sarah Summer scored 10 points and had eight rebounds, while sophomore point guard Amanda Clark had seven assists as Plymouth Christian raised its record to 3-1.

■ AGAPE 66, SALINE CHRISTIAN 32: A 21-6 third quarter Friday helped Plymouth Agape Christian run away from Saline Christian.

Senior center Gretchen Baisch scored 24 points, and had 10 rebounds and four steals, as Plymouth Christian raised its record to 3-1 and dropped Saline Christian to 0-2 in the conference opener for both schools. Junior guard Jacki Ther scored 17 points and had five assists plus five steals while her freshman sister Kim scored 12 points and had five assists. Guard Julie Kotman scored 10 points for Saline Christian.

■ SOCCER

BY STEVE KOWALSKI
STAFF WRITER

Birmingham Brother Rice junior defender Shawn Wilson earned the nickname "Terminator" from his teammates for the way he eliminates opposing teams' scoring chances.

Maybe they'll start calling Wilson the "Energizer" after he helped Rice stay alive in the Catholic League Central Division boys soccer race with the winning goal in Tuesday's 3-2 comeback victory over host Redford Catholic Central.

Rice lost its first Central Division game last Friday to Warren DeLaSalle, 1-0 on a penalty kick, and another loss to a title contender would have been devastating. The Warriors, 4-1-2 overall, won the Catholic League playoffs last year, but have yet to win a Central Division title since coach Jay Louis-Prescott took over in 1989.

Junior Mike Koval was the winning goalkeeper.

"This was a very important win for us, we didn't want a tie, we wanted to come away with a victory," Louis-Prescott said. "I was impressed with the way we played in the second half. We had our minds made up we were going to score."

After a 1-1 halftime tie, CC's Dan Mulvihill timed a crossing pass from teammate Tony Moucoulis perfectly and scored with 15:55 remaining to put the Shamrocks ahead 2-1.

But Rice scored twice on scrambles in front of the net within a two-minute span to overtake the Shamrocks.

Senior forward Chris Wilk tied the score at 2-2, kicking a loose ball past CC senior goalkeeper Travis Miller with about 13:00 remaining. The goal followed a corner kick, which wasn't cleared in front of the CC net.

The Warriors broke the tie after bringing Wilson up from near midfield for a re-set play. The initial shot didn't get through to Miller, but the Shamrocks failed to clear the rebound and Wilson was there for the score with about 11:00 remaining.

"Garrett (Steudle) or (Tim) Guest went for the ball, their keeper came out, the ball tipped off his hands to me and I put it in," Wilson said. "We dominated the whole second half, it was just a matter of time before we got it."

CC coach Phil LaJoy said the Shamrocks may have paid the price for trying to protect the lead.

"We tried to be sure, safe, and we got caught," he said. "Rice is a quick team, give them credit for their effort. We made mistakes, they were able to capitalize and score."

The late rally was especially surprising since the Shamrocks had three shutouts in their first four games — all victories.

What bothered LaJoy and assistant Kevin Tuite the most was the Shamrocks could have avoided both late goals if any of their defenders had won 50-50 balls in the box.

"We were just a step off today," CC senior defender Brian Nemes said. "We should have had a head on those. Nothing should land within the box."

The Warriors took the first lead of the game, 1-0, on a goal from Guest assisted by senior defender Pete Kepic midway through the first half. CC forged a 1-1 tie when Moucoulis converted a pass from senior Tom Derhake and scored only 10 seconds before halftime.

Louis-Prescott said the play of midfielders Jeff Beeler and Ryan Holden helped the Warriors control the play in the second half. Midfield should be a strength next year as well since Beeler is only a sophomore and Holden is a junior.

"That's where the game is won or lost," Louis-Prescott said. "They did a good job."

Returnees give Shamrocks' hopes a boost

■ GOLF

The Redford Catholic Central golf team returns all but one of its players from last year's team that tied for third place in the Class A regional with Birmingham Brother Rice.

The top three teams at each regional advance to the state tournament. Rice earned the trip, winning a tiebreaker against the Shamrocks.

CC was the Catholic League champion in 1994 and coach Phil Heyer believes the Shamrocks are capable of repeating and also advancing to the state meet. CC is undefeated in its only dual meet, beating the University of Detroit-Jesuit, 148-164, at Brae Burn Golf Course.

"One to five, the kids have been together three years," CC coach Phil Heyer said. "Top to bottom, this is the best team I've had. We have real nice balance this year."

The only significant loss to graduation was Bob Beckman, who averaged about 42 and was the Shamrocks' third man.

Returning for his senior year is Brandon DiPaola, who was second at the 1993 regional and the Catholic League champion last year. He failed to qualify for the state meet in '94 despite shooting a 77 in a strong field at the regional.

The most encouraging part of the early season has been junior Mike Pedrys turning in lower scores than DiPaola. Also playing consistently have been seniors Chris Misiak and Chris Hulgrave.

DiPaola led the Shamrocks in their only dual meet with an even-par 35. Pedrys had 37 and Misiak and Hulgrave each carded 38s.

Pedrys was co-medalist at the Pinckney Invitational, where the Shamrocks finished second behind Livonia Churchill, the state's eighth-ranked team. Pedrys' improvement has been noteworthy after averaging 42 last year.

The Shamrocks have been competitive in two other tournaments. They took eighth at the East Lansing Fall Classic, featuring most of the state's top teams, and fifth at the Brighton Invitational.

Another top returnee whose scores should be counted this season is senior Brian Karabelski. The Shamrocks' roster also includes senior Brad Villa, juniors Darrell Kennedy, Ryan Ossenmacher, Nick Watts and sophomore Adam Peters.

■ THURSTON 166, TAYLOR CENTER 207: Sophomore Jeff Adams had a 39 Monday, leading Redford Thurston to a dual match win over Taylor Center at Warren Valley Golf Course.

The win improved Thurston to 3-2 overall, 3-1 in the Mega Conference Blue Division.

Sophomore Kirk Wasmund had 40 and seniors Art Homfeyer and Jeff Pitt each finished with 42s.

Stevenson dominates at Schoolcraft

■ X-COUNTRY

Just how good is the Livonia Stevenson girls cross country team?

The talent-laden Spartans, fourth in last year's state Class A meet, gave a sneak preview Saturday at the annual High School Invitational meet held at Schoolcraft College.

Placing seven of the top 15, the Spartans unseated defending champion Novi for first place, scoring 32 points to the Wildcats' 47. See statistical summary.

"Our goal was to get all seven girls in the top 20, but we'll take that," Stevenson coach Paul Holmberg said. "In our first time trial, we had 13 kids faster than our fifth kid a year ago. That was the same time of the year on the same course."

Stevenson sophomore Kelly Travis defended her individual title, covering the 3.1-mile loop in 19 minutes, 58 seconds. Travis was 45 seconds ahead of second place finisher Katie Zimmerman of Novi and 54 seconds ahead of third-place finisher Erin Leonard of Ann Arbor Pioneer.

The redesigned Schoolcraft course, however, was longer than the normal 5,000 meters.

"Kelly (Travis) was around 6:05 for the first mile and normally she goes about 5:45 at Cass Benton (Park)," Holmberg said. "The course was not that difficult, but it was a nice, fair course. It was definitely longer."

Rounding out the strong Stevenson contingent was sophomore Kelly McNeilance, who was fourth (21:58); senior Jeannette Stojcevski, fifth (21:18); freshman Kim McNeilance, ninth (21:40); senior Laura Pilon, 13th (21:57); junior Jessica Cyburt, 14th (22:02); and sophomore Delia Dumitrescu, 15th (22:07).

"Kelly (McNeilance) has been hurt three times in the last month and her training has been behind, so for her to finish fourth today is a good performance," Holmberg said. "And she will get better."

Kim McNeilance, a freshman, was also impressive in her Stevenson debut.

"She can run with anybody," Holmberg said.

The Spartans may have also been given added incentive when Ann Arbor Pioneer, second a year ago in the state Class A meet, was a late entry.

Pioneer, however, was a distant fourth in the team standings.

"It got me pumped up because we run in the regional with them," Holmberg said. "It was a gauge, win or lose. They (Pioneer) held out their top top kids, but I don't think that would have made a difference today."

Novi, however, is a quality team. The Wildcats took third in last year's state meet.

"Troy Athens (state champion) is considered the best and to say we're in the top five is stepping out on a limb because we have the toughest regional to come out of," Holmberg said. "I've said realistically there are a lot of good teams around the state."

But Holmberg likes what he sees so far.

"We're 10 deep right now and beauty is that they all encourage and help one another," he said. "They're excited and I'm excited about it. The attitude has been super."

Central boys 1st

Last year it was Walled Lake Western, this year it's Walled Lake Central that reigns at Schoolcraft Invitational boys cross country champ.

Central led the way with 67 points, edging Trenton (71), Livonia Stevenson (82) and Novi (91). Western, led by individual winner Jason Aspinall (17:17), was fifth with 118.

Central's top five finishers included Rob Donovan (fourth), Jim Jahnke (fifth), Rich Jahnke (11th), Steve Adams (18th) and Nate Stoll (29th).

Stevenson was led by sophomore Rob Block, who has recovered from a broken leg suffered in a summer skateboarding accident. He finished seventh in 18:01.

Autumn variety

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

The bright orange and yellow of the turning maple leaves — nature's first official sign of fall — caught my eye from a distance on a scouting trip late last week in northern Oakland County. With the imminent arrival of autumn comes a smorgasboard of activities for Michigan's outdoor enthusiasts.

Hunting and fall fishing seasons are upon us. I urge all the Observer & Eccentric area readers to call me or write me a letter and report your success or the success of your spouse or hunting/fishing companion. I'm not only looking for reports on a 10-pound walleye or a 12-point buck. Any fish caught or license filled is a trophy to that individual and those stories are just as enjoyable as those of the record-book harvests.

Send in a photo if possible and be sure to include all the details of the trip including location of the outing, date and time of day, as well as surrounding habitat, equipment used and any insight into the technique used. Include your name and phone number so I can make a follow-up call if necessary. My address and phone number are listed at the bottom of this column.

Anglers enjoy success

Several area anglers experienced success recently on the bass tournament circuits at both the national and local levels.

Mary Ashteneau, of Canton, placed 21st in the Bass'n Gals National Qualifier, Aug. 17-18, on Lake Tenkiller in Cookson, Oklahoma.

Flipping Berkley Power Worms into "heavy brush and laydowns," Ashteneau caught two fish on the first day of competition and four on the second. She had a 3.19-pounder the first day and a 3.14-pounder the second.

"I caught a couple of nice fish, one each day, and that really helped," she said. "It was tough fishing for everybody. There were really no weeds in the lake and that made it tough."

Earlier this year, Ashteneau qualified for the Gambler Boats Classic, Nov. 4-5 in Florida. As of press time, she was the only woman to have qualified and the only member of the Gambler National Team to have qualified.

■ Westland's Gregory Allan Cullen placed eighth out of 109 amateurs competing in the Bassmaster Top 100, Aug. 23-26, on Lake Minnetonka in Minnesota.

Cullen landed 18 keepers — out of a possible 20 — for a total weight of 31-pounds, 2-ounces. He pocketed $1,200 for his efforts.

■ Redford's Dave Long teamed up with Leo Benchich of Detroit to place third in the Oakland Bass Masters Open on Cass Lake on Aug. 27. The two had a total catch that weighed 8.70-pounds. They split $401.10 for placing third.

The tournament attracted 49 teams and 30 teams brought fish to the scale.

Neil Hiesler and Eric Sherman of Livonia placed fourth in the tournament with a total eight of 7.65 pounds. They earned $286.50 for their efforts. Leo and Louis Favaro of Redford finished fifth with 7.38-pounds and earned $229.20. David and Charles Reault of Livonia placed seventh at 6.72-pounds and won $114.60. Canton's Mary Ashteneau and Mike Lewis finished 10th with 5.64-pounds of fish and won two $10 gift certificates.

Local pros compete

Four area bass anglers will compete in the pro division of the $196,000 BASSMASTER Eastern Invitational, today through Saturday on the St. Lawrence River in Clayton, New York.

Heading the list of locals is Kyle Greene of Bloomfield Hills. Greene moves up to the pro division after winning the amateur championship of the BASSMASTER Top 100 held last year on Lake St. Clair. Joining Greene in the pro ranks are Chuck Economou of Lake Orion, Patrick Van Tiem of Plymouth, and Rick Van Tiem of West Bloomfield

Hunters draw elk permits

Successful applicants for Michigan's September elk hunts have been notified. Of the 23,150 applications, 165 were selected through a lottery-style drawing to participate in one of the two September hunts. Sixty two hunters received a hunter's choice permit, which entitles the holder to shoot either an antlered or an antlerless elk. The remaining 103 hunters must take an antlerless elk.

Steven Hughes of Westland and Guy Mykolaitis of Farmington Hills hit the jackpot for the first hunt, which runs Sept. 12-17, as each hunter received a hunter's choice permit. Robert Gowing of Commerce and James Sliva of Garden City received permits to take antlerless elk.

In the drawing for the second hunt, which runs Sept. 19-24, Birmingham's Thomas Hocking and Farmington Hills' Christopher Julvezan received hunter's choice permits.

Unsuccessful applicants from the drawing for the September hunts are automatically entered into the drawing for the upcoming December hunt. If you missed the application deadline for the September hunt you have until tomorrow, Sept. 15, to apply for the December hunt. Applications are available at all hunting and fishing license agents. Successful applicants for the December hunt will be notified by November 1.

Corection

Last week I sent out a call from the Fishing Buddy's Fishing Club, which is looking for members. Unfortunately, I gave the incorrect number to contact Harold Leider for information about the club. The correct number to call is (810) 656-0556.

Leider is interested in hooking up with other anglers in the northern Oakland County area.

After providing a comprehensive health check, vaccinations, sterilization and a 15-day health guarantee, we realized that the only thing preventing his adoption was us.

Sorry, we're CLOSED

(Now open evenings and weekends.)

To be more specific, our new hours are Wed.-Fri., 12 p.m.-7:30 p.m. and Sat.-Sun., 10 a.m.-4:30 p.m. in Rochester Hills and Westland. In Detroit, Tues.-Sat., 10 a.m.-4:30 p.m. So if you're thinking about a pet, call us at (810) 852-7420.

Rough road ahead

Salem, Canton face difficult challenges

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Oops!

Your friendly prognosticator got caught looking ahead when he did last week's prep football schedule.

Instead of Garden City playing Southgate and Redford Thurston playing Gibraltar Carlson, yours truly leap-frogged a week and listed the wrong games in last week's prediction column.

Well, we're back on schedule with the correct games this week. The picks will carry over on the Garden City-Dearborn and Thurston-Dearborn Heights Crestwood matchups.

Throwing out the two picks from last week, yours truly continued to roll, picking 12 of 13 games correctly to increase his season mark to 26-3 overall.

The unlucky Irishman, Dan O'Meara, isn't quite at the desperate point yet, but after a 9-4 week, he's now 20-9, six games off the pace.

O'Meara, like Lou Holtz, promises to rebound in the coming weeks.

The knockout punch is far from being delivered.

Here is a brief look at this week's action.

FRIDAY'S GAMES
(all 7:30 p.m. starts)

G.P. Liggett at Clarenceville: The Trojans (1-1, 1-0) got off to a good Metro Conference start by dumping Bloomfield Hills Cranbrook. Liggett (0-2, 0-1) lost to a vastly improved Harper Woods team, 36-12. PICKS: Too bad Aaron Krickstein can't play football for Liggett. Clarenceville serves an ace.

W.L. Western at Liv. Churchill: Western (1-1) raised a few eyebrows after taking highly ranked Westland John Glenn to the limit before losing 13-9. The Warriors also have a potent field goal kicker in Pat Gibson, who nailed a 52-yarder last week. As for Churchill (0-2), the Chargers have been outscored 79-0 in two games. PICKS: Western gets an early Western Division win.

Liv. Franklin at Northville: Both teams are 1-1 and coming off victories. Franklin's defense is solid, while the Mustangs rely on the running of senior Aneil Kersey, who had 129 yards in last week's win over Plymouth Salem. Can the Patriots, who haven't beaten Northville in years, break the Mustang jinx? PICKS: Emons and O'Meara stick with Northville.

GRID PICKS

Ply. Salem at Westland John Glenn: The Rocks (0-2) are reeling after two blowouts suffered against state-ranked Belleville (42-0) and Northville (31-7). Salem hasn't beaten the Rockets since 1991 when Leon Hister was the breakaway threat. Glenn (2-0), which relies on good defense, may not need any fourth-quarter magic in this one. PICKS: The Rockets spiral to another victory.

F.H. Harrison at Ply. Canton: The only time Canton (1-1) has ever beaten Harrison was 1992. The Chiefs are led by quarterback Rob Johnson, who had a big game against Walled Lake Central. The Hawks (1-1) rebounded nicely from their opening-day loss to Birmingham Brother Rice by pounding city rival North Farmington, 37-7, as Jason Granger averaged 11 yards per carry. PICKS: The Hawks soar once again.

N. Farmington at W.L. Central: It's the Lakes Division opener for both teams. North (1-1) couldn't stop Harrison tailback Jason Granger last week, while Central (1-1) had its problems with Canton quarterback Rob Johnson in a 22-13 loss. PICKS: It's a tough call; the coin flip says Central.

Wayne at Monroe: Last year it was no contest, as the Trojans (2-0, 1-0) romped to a 34-22 victory over Wayne. Monroe, led by All-State tackle Eric Wilson, beat Dearborn Fordson last week, 28-20. The Zebras (0-2, 0-1), with a slew of game-breakers, are capable of springing an upset if the defense comes to play. PICKS: It's no shock; Monroe wins.

Dearborn at Garden City: The Pioneers (2-0, 1-0) own a pair of 35-0 victories thus far. They also have an outstanding quarterback in Kevin Kreger, a three-year starter. The Cougars (0-2, 0-1), stayed close with Southgate last week until the final minute. PICKS: Both stay with our original pick. It's Dearborn all the way.

Taylor Kennedy at Redford Union (Kraft Field): This Mega Conference-White Division encounter pits two teams who are struggling. Kennedy (0-2, 0-1) was blanked last week by state-ranked Dearborn, 35-0, while RU (0-2, 0-1) was bombed by Dearborn Edsel Ford, 47-8. PICKS: Kennedy breaks the ice.

Red. Thurston at D.H. Crestwood: Crestwood (1-1, 0-1) lost a toughie last week to defending Mega-Blue and playoff qualifier Allen Park, 18-7. Coach Floyd Carter's team is improved. Meanwhile, Thurston (0-2, 0-1) is showing its inexperience after getting hard-hit by graduation. PICKS: Crestwood has the upper hand.

SATURDAY'S GAMES
(all games at 1 p.m. unless noted)

Liv. Stevenson at Farmington: The Spartans (1-1) got caught flat last week by city rival Livonia Franklin, losing 15-14, as junior tailback Gade Clark was held to 41 yards. Farmington (1-1) rebounded from its season-opening 28-13 loss to Waterford Mott by routing Churchill, 34-0, as senior tailback Jake Siskosky had 145 yards in 22 carries. PICKS: Stevenson won last year, 7-0, but both like the Falcons this time around.

Luth. Westland at B.H. Cranbrook: The Warriors (1-1, 1-0) whipped up on Rochester Hills Lutheran Northwest, 41-6, to earn their first Metro Conference win. Junior Albert Cook had a big day with 11 tackles and two touchdowns, including a 93-yard interception return. The Cranes (0-2, 0-1) have that Icabod look about them after suffering lopsided decisions to Detroit Renaissance and Clarenceville. PICKS: Lutheran Westland stays unbeaten in the Metro.

Redford CC vs. Warren DeLaSalle (7:30 p.m. at Clarenceville): The Shamrocks (2-0) looked much crisper offensively in last week's 35-6 dismantling of Ann Arbor Pioneer. Preseason state-ranked DeLaSalle, stunned in its season opener by Toledo St. John's, came back last week to beat Lansing Eastern, 31-14. DeLaSalle won last year's meeting, 14-5. PICKS: CC rider all the way.

St. Agatha vs. Marine City Cardinal Mooney (7:30 p.m. at RU's Kraft Field): The Aggies (2-0) are off to an impressive start. They're 27-8 victory over Pickford may just put them back in the state Class D rankings. D-Section champ Cardinal Mooney (1-1) was preseason state-ranked and expected to be a contender in Class D, but Royal Oak Shrine handed the Cardinals a humbling 17-0 defeat. PICKS: Agatha makes it three straight.

Frost (1:19) was second in the 100-breast stroke while Hanson (5:38) was runner-up in the 500-freestyle. In the 100-freestyle, freshman Andrea Cizewski (1:04) and Dowd (1:05) were second and third.

Sonnanstine (:29.0) and Cizewski (:29.2) were second and third in the 50-freestyle while Frost (2:26.0) and freshman Jaclyn Benard went 2-3 in the 200-IM.

Zebras are off to a perfect start

BY NEAL ZIPSER
STAFF WRITER

Wayne Memorial's duo of junior guard Yolanda Holt and senior forward Rica Barge seem ready for the Mega Conference Red Division season to start.

On Tuesday, the victim was visiting Westland John Glenn. Holt's 21 points and Barge's 18 led the Zebras to a 60-32 non-conference girls basketball victory and to a perfect 4-0 start.

"I can't remember if a Wayne girls team has ever started 4-0," coach Chuck Henry said.

Henry admitted the schedule will get tougher when the Zebras open their Mega Red season tonight at home against Dearborn Fordson.

"I'll know a lot more about this team after Thursday's game," Henry said. "Fordson is a team that will find and exploit your weaknesses and has traditionally been a good team."

Holt and Barge, the early season leaders, combined for 11 points in a 17-4 spurt to begin the fourth quarter and help Wayne pull away.

Henry expects the pair to lead the Zebras throughout the season.

"There's no doubt about it," Henry said. "They are our two most experienced players and, at this time, they are our most talented players. We want the other players to get better as the season progresses."

The Rockets, now 0-3 under new coach Andy Denison, weren't pushovers for the first three quarters.

The lead switched hands seven times in the first quarter before Wayne clung to a 14-13 advantage.

Glenn's Rochelle Harris later nailed a jumper to pull the Rockets to within one at 18-17, but that was to be Glenn's last points in the final 4:35 of the half.

The Rockets were scoreless in their next 14 possessions (seven turnovers, seven missed shots), as Wayne ripped off an 11-0 run to end the half.

Glenn battled Wayne in the third quarter as each team scored nine, but the Zebras dominated the final quarter, outscoring the Rockets 22-6.

"It can't be the youth because we are mostly seniors," Denison said. "We had a lot of mental letdowns and missed way too many easy shots. But I don't want to take anything away from Wayne, which has a very good team."

The Rockets shot miserably, making only 16 percent of their shots from the floor (nine of 55), compared to Wayne's 39 percent (24 of 61).

Glenn also struggled taking care of the ball, committing 20 of its 29 turnovers combined in the second and fourth quarters.

DID YOU KNOW...
• One in 15 Americans sees a chiropractor at least once a year.
• According to a 1990 study published in the British Medical Journal, chiropratic care is more effective for low-back pain than outpatient hospital care or many types of physical therapy.
• Seventy-five to 80 percent of Americans will suffer lower back pain during their lives.
• On any given day, six million Americans are bedridden because of back pain.
• Chiropractors offer the lowest median cost per visit for therapeutic exercise, massage and ultrasound when compared to medical physicians, physical therapists and podiatrists.
• Chiropractic care is covered by government insurance plans, most state workers' compensation plans and most third-party payers.

Chiropractors worldwide will begin celebrating the centennial...and achievements...of their profession September 17th in Davenport, Iowa, where chiropractic was founded.
Chiropractors have plenty to celebrate. Chiropractic is now the largest non-invasive, drug-free health care profession in the United States. And numerous studies have proven that chiropractors offer the most effective care for back pain.
Today, chiropractic boasts 50,000 doctors, 15 million to 20 million patients, more than 100 state, regional and national professional associations and 18 colleges in the U.S. alone.

Crusaders proving they can play with the best

By Brad Emons
Staff Writer

Madonna University came up with a rousing 6-15, 15-10, 16-14, 15-11 women's volleyball victory Tuesday at home over Oakland University, snapping the Pioneers' four-game winning streak.

The Lady Crusaders, ranked No. 15 in the latest National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics poll, received a huge performance from junior Kelly McCausland, a middle hitter from Redford Union. The 5-foot-11 junior finished with 18 kills and 16 digs.

VOLLEYBALL

"We passed the ball and attacked the ball all over the net . . . antenna to antenna," said Madonna coach Jerry Abraham, whose team is 7-5 overall. "And Kelly was unstoppable. After losing that first game we woke up and played ball."

Junior Julie Martin (Livonia Stevenson) added 16 kills, while junior Heather Steinhelper (Clarkston) added 11 kills and 10 digs.

Setter Meg Paris, a transfer from Flint Mott, had 46 assists and six ace serves.

Other Lady Crusaders contributing to the win included Erin Comment (nine digs); Nicole Scharrer and Karin Sisung (five kills each); and Jennifer Russell (seven digs).

"Russell did a tremendous job coming in as an outside-hitter," Abraham said. "She's a freshman and that was her first big performance."

In last weekend's six-team Madonna Invitational, Huntington College (Ind.) came away with the title, beating Georgetown (Ky.) in a tiebreaker. Both teams had 4-1 records in the round-robin format.

Madonna, which finished third at 3-2, downed St. Francis (Ill.), ranked No. 7 in the NAIA, in five games (13-15, 15-17, 17-15, 15-0, 15-2).

The match lasted three hours and 10 minutes.

Paris, who had 51 assists, was voted to the all-tourney team. She is averaging 10.5 assists per game.

Sisung was Madonna's top attacker with 19 kills, while McCausland added 18. Steinhelper contributed 14, while Jaclyn Deane (Livonia Franklin) and Comment added six apiece.

Erin Gregorie, who suffered a shoulder injury in a collision with McCausland during the Oakland match, led Madonna against St. Francis with 26 digs. McCausland added 19, while Comment and Paris had 16 and 11, respectively.

"The St. Francis match was one of the best ever played here," Abraham said. "We were consistent throughout and our defense was better than it has been. It showed the girls what they're capable of, if they play at that level."

Madonna also defeated last year's Region champ and NAIA qualifier Mount St. Joseph of Ohio, 15-3, 8-15, 15-13, 15-7, as Paris recorded 43 assists. Top attackers included McCausland (12 kills), Martin (11), Comment (8) and Sisung (7).

Madonna registered a season-high 33 kills in a 15-1, 15-1, 15-11 win over Trinity (Ill.), but the Lady Crusaders fell to Huntington in five games and Georgetown in three.

"St. Francis beat us twice last year, and I think it took something out of us because we came up flat the next day against Georgetown," said Abraham, whose team also defeated NAIA foe Siena Heights, Thursday on the road, 15-6, 15-12, 15-13.

COLLEGES

Lady Ocelots 3rd

Schoolcraft College captured three of five matches to finish tied for third in last weekend's 10-team Lake Michigan Tournament.

The Lady Ocelots were eliminated by eventual champion Illinois Central, 17-15, 15-12.

In pool play, Schoolcraft downed Oakland CC (15-3, 15-2), Owens Tech of Ohio (15-1, 15-6) and Lake Michigan (15-3, 15-7). They also fell to Kellogg CC (15-10, 7-15, 15-5).

Strategy switch helps SC to win

Sitting on some injuries, she decided to play a strictly defensive game Saturday against Meremac Meramec of St. Louis at the College of DuPage (Ill.) It didn't work, as Meramec took a 2-1 decision.

OK, Johnson decided Sunday, let's switch gears for Florissant Valley of St. Louis. Bingo — a 2-1 victory.

"I felt it would be hard for the players to get back and go forward the whole game because of their injuries," Johnson said of her first-game strategy, a 3-5-2 alignment designed to shorten the field for her injury-plagued squad.

Schoolcraft's chances were few but one turned into a goal when Holly Kimble got a cross off and Amy Marcoe put it in. Meramec scored on a breakaway and a rebound to take a 2-0 lead.

"After realizing that all our losses were by one goal (DuPage, 3-2, Monroe, 1-0, and Meramec, 2-1), I decided to take the totally opposite approach," Johnson said.

So despite pulled quads to Susan O'Neill, Misty Heath, Melissa Crain and Stepanie Surma plus ankle injuries to Stacy Miller, Erin Stacherski and Marcol, Johnson junked her defensive orientation.

She decided to shadow Flo's main threat, Danielle Wade, with Miller. Johnson also moved Kimble to outside midfielder so she could get the ball wide to Stacherski so she could feed Kimble and Heath.

"She did exactly that and we got the offensive attack we wanted," Johnson said.

Sure did. Kimble, assisted by Marcoe, scored first and then Crain, assisted by Staci Muysenburg, added one to give Schoolcraft a 2-0 halftime lead that proved just enough to get Johnson's team back on the winning track.

Emert added the second goal on a penalty kick while Bell, a native of Derry, Ireland, tallied the third.

On Saturday, Madonna traveled to Olivet Nazarene (Ill.) and suffered a 2-0 setback. Both goals came on corner kicks.

High school seniors to gather

The Centennial Educational Park counseling department will present "Keys to Success," a program for high school seniors and their parents, 7 p.m. Wednesday, Sept. 20, at the Plymouth Salem High School cafeteria.

The program is sponsored by the high schools' counseling department in conjunction with Eastern Michigan University, Lawrence Technological University, Schoolcraft College and the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

At the session, students and parents will meet with their counselors in a group session, where a review of the various options after high school will take place. Also, the college application process will be discussed. The application process is important because specific procedures need to be followed to assure the best chances for acceptance.

The counselor meeting will be followed by an opportunity to select from various choices a presentation pertinent to parents and their seniors.

The program is open to all seniors and their parents from both Plymouth Salem and Plymouth Canton High School. For more information, contact Jan Kavulich at Plymouth Salem High School at 416-7761 or Gloria Banks at Plymouth Canton High School at 455-6988.

Area hospice organization offers rummage/bake sale

Community Hospice Services is accepting donations of clean, usable items for the rummage/bake sale which will be held on Friday, Sept. 15.

The sale will take place 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the parking lot of CHS, located on the northwest corner of Warren and Venoy in Westland, with proceeds from the sale to be used to help fund CHS's children's bereavement programs.

In addition, CHS will launch the brand-new line of holiday and all-occasion greeting cards at the sale.

The hospice is accepting donations of children's items, apparel, furniture, housewares, arts and crafts, and books in good condition up to Sept. 12. All donated items are tax-deductible for the fair market value of items donated, and the hospice will supply a receipt for tax purposes.

CHS is well-known throughout the community for its children's bereavement programs, including a twice-yearly grief support series, a monthly grief support group called Connections, and Camp Phoenix — a weekend camp experience for bereaved children.

"All of the children's bereavement services are offered free of charge to the general public and are not reimbursable by insurance companies, so we need to look to donations and fund-raisers, such as this rummage/bake sale to fund the program," said Maureen Butrico, executive director for CHS.

Community Hospice Services offers a range of bereavement support programs including: ongoing bereavement support groups; five-week bereavement educational series, focusing on aspects of the grieving process; children's grief support series; memorial services twice a year for bereaved families; bereavement counseling; individual assessments; bereavement counseling referrals; and quarterly care letters.

Many components of Community Hospice Services' bereavement program are available free of charge to anyone in the community who has lost a loved one.

Community Hospice Services was established in 1981 to offer compassionate, skilled home care to those individuals in the final phase of life.

The hospice philosophy gives supportive care which neither hastens nor postpones death; it promotes quality of life and provides comfort and emotional healing for the patient and family members.

Community Hospice Services provides services to incurably ill patients and their families in western Wayne, southern Oakland, and eastern Washtenaw counties.

CHS maintains offices in Westland and Plymouth. For more information, or to make a tax-deductible rummage sale contribution, contact Mary Letters or Yvonne Strand at CHS, (313) 522-4244.

Diabetes Network offers families support

Parent's Diabetes Network, an educational-support group for school-age children with diabetes and their parents, kicks off its sixth year at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 19, at St. Michael Lutheran Church in Canton. The group meets once a month September through May. Cost for each program is $5 per family.

The purpose of Parent's Diabetes Network is to educate children and their families on proper diabetes management, give children an opportunity to meet others with diabetes, as well as offer support and resources along the way. Parents' meetings include a time for sharing ideas and resources and guest speaker presentations.

The children's program, called "Monitor Maniacs," is run by a certified diabetes educator and includes group interaction, art therapy, and hands-on learning about diet, nutrition, exercise and insulin therapy.

Parents' Diabetes Network was founded by parents of diabetic children looking for a place to share their frustrations and concerns about raising children with this chronic and often misunderstood disease.

Diabetes mellitus is an autoimmune disease in which the body does not produce any insulin. While most people think diabetics must simply avoid foods with sugar, people with Type I diabetes must take daily insulin injections to stay alive, along with frequent blood tests to monitor blood glucose levels and a lifelong regiment of proper nutrition and exercise. Diabetes mellitus is a chronic disease for which there is no known cure.

Parents' Diabetes Network is not affiliated with any church, hospital, or service organization. For further information, contact Gina Schremser, 454-9647.

INTERIOR MOTIVES

NAOMI STONE LEVY

To define "charm" involves adjectives such as tasteful, subtle, quiet elegance, nostalgic and refinement. Charm cannot exist without similarly descriptive terms. Words such as flamboyant and electrifying would never relate to "charming," although they describe a different but nevertheless fabulous look.

Old World charm conjures up its own image. It is essentially soft. Creating your own look will involve antiques, semi-antiques or good reproduction furniture. Accompany these with designed or old rugs, lamps and bibelot of distinction. Printed fabrics of large scale or tiny repeats can be culled from historic preservations, or from newer versions. The slightly faded coloring of plain textures and stripes are commendable. Tapestries, cotton velvets and chenilles are wonderful allies to this Old World look.

My considered opinion is that the mix of the many cultures of the Old World is from whence comes the charm. People didn't collect their treasures by visiting a furniture store and making bulk purchases. Their collections were achieved by choosing or inheriting one piece at a time or shopping at their famous "flea markets." Consequently eclecticism was inevitable, enviable and wondrous.

From the many cultures French furniture was the most coveted, whether it was Provincial, or more formal Louis XIII, Louis XIV, Louis XV or very formal Louis XVI. It wasn't unusual to combine any of the foregoing with Dutch, (more ponderous) Spanish, English, German or even Oriental pieces — whatever came to hand.

Very large area rugs weren't the norm. More commonplace were several smaller Oriental rugs of similar character, exposing much hardwood flooring. A couple of groupings of furniture to seat four to six people each was desirable. Using templates in ¼-inch scale would have been helpful, as we do it now. In the Old World these groupings just "happened," exuding a special casual charm.

Said seating was achieved by combining a small two-seat settee or a sofa with several UNMATCHED chairs and antique (?) tables. I always recommend comfort. No one wants to sit on stiff, hard chairs. There are so many singular period seating pieces, whether new or old. By name there is one called the "Martha Washington" chair, or an open arm upholstered back Sheraton. Add to the mix one or two overstuffed chairs that are luxuriously comfortable. Please sit in all of them!

Since coffee tables are a 20th century addition to interior decoration, the centered table was generally a tray on a stand. The tray may have been fashioned of painted tole (tin), papier mache or wood. The stand at times was a diminutive open legged table, or even a folding luggage rack.

Oftimes a round table of questionable character was skirted by a lovely draped fabric. If you are lucky enough to garner a fine antique table with a patina to be cherished, don't pile on too many objects. Allow the lovely wood to show.

Topping said tables we most often found "Bouillotte" lamps. These are three-branched brass candlesticks on a base, with a wide and very shallow METAL dark green or black shade. Of necessity they were metal to withstand the heat of lighted candles. Oil-font (kerosene) lanterns comprised other lighting.

Toss pillows can become awesome. You can afford very costly fabric because you require so little of it. Trim them with fringe and they become more awesome. There also exists fabulous braids, colored welt cords and hand-tied silk or wool tassels. Be sure the inner of the pillow is soft and luxurious.

Accessories of the correct character are essential to complete the role. Because ashtrays are almost a thing of the past, we are home free in our choices. A small ceramic bowl filled with potpourri is a fragrant possibility. An extraordinary collection of highly polished brass will lend a glow. These brasses might be antique tobacco containers, each of which would command its own attention. Other possibilities include a pewter or Oriental porcelain mug or "Treen" wooden bowls. I LOVE unparalleled accessories!

All of the foregoing is the direct antithesis of the squared-off look of our present day contemporary decor. You can almost envisage the warmth of Old World charm.

MARKET PLACE

Post notice

Quite a canopy: The Parish-Hadley Collection presents a canopy bed with square tapered posts on a plinth base, in light wood, paints and lacquers. Available at Baker Knapp & Tubbs at the Michigan Design Center in Troy. Call (810) 649-6730.

Stroke of inspiration

Duffer's delight: Custom Wood Products makes this unusual golf desk lamp for the golf enthusiast. The lamp is about 17 inches tall and features two golf balls mounted on a solid pine, oak or mahogany base. The base is stained and finished to bring out the natural beauty of the wood, and accented with solid brass accessories; the lamp shade is textured fabric. Prices are $135 (for pine), $155 (oak) or $175 (mahogany). Personalized lamps are available. Golfer Milton Barnes developed the lamp after wondering about soft-up golf balls that have outlived their usefulness. It's a great way to eliminate some environmental waste, he says. For more information or a brochure, call (313) 862-8410.

GARDEN SPOT

There's much to learn about succulents

MARTY FIGLEY

Last fall I made a wreath of succulents and kept it indoors all winter, then I put it out in the garden in a cement bird bath where it remains. It absorbs the rain that collects in the shallow bowl, so additional watering was minimal.

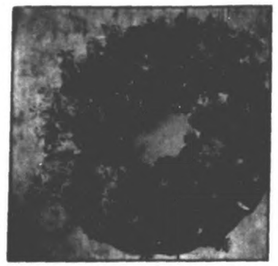
I used a wire form to hold it all together, set the form on damp sheet moss and put damp potting soil down the middle of the moss, then pulled the moss up and around the frame. I secured this tightly with florists' wire.

I poked holes into the center of the affair and gently set each plant in place, starting at the inner edge. Sedum tricolor, Crassulacae, ringed the inner and outer edges. Other plants I used were Jade, Crassula arborencens, Houseleeks, Sempervivum tectorum, Haworthia and Sedum, Autumn Joy. The tricolor sedum didn't survive the winter, but I can add more now.

These plants are but a minute number in the genus of succulents, which by definition possess at least one succulent tissue that can store water to be used when the root can't bring water from the soil. It's fun to learn about the unusual names such as Conophytum, Cotyledon, Euphorbia, Gasteria and Lithops that have been given to these plants.

There are perennials as well as annuals in the genus. Some of the annual succulents have organs below the soil surface to protect them from stresses of wind and predators. Another interesting fact is that some of the plants, Lithops, for example, have no stem, and the leaves grow hidden in the soil. Many have beautiful blooms.

Photosynthesis is performed by the green stems. The holes in the leaves (stomata) of these plants are usually reduced compared to most other leaves.



MARTY FIGLEY

Succulent wreath: Succulents make attractive arrangements.

The explanation of why and how this occurs is contained in the book "Succulents: The Illustrated Dictionary," Maurizio Sajeva and Mariangela Costanzo (Timber Press, $39.95). The pages are filled (six per page) with photographs and short descriptions of more than 1,200 species and varieties from 195 different genera. Timber Press books can be ordered by calling (800) 327-5680 or from your favorite book seller.

Many of these plants are well known — Kalanchoe, Aloe and Yucca, for example — while others are very rare. For those of you who want to learn more about these plants, this book will teach you.

If you choose to make a wreath, especially as a gift, it's always nice to include some history about it. Circles or rings have had a mythical potency for mankind throughout history. The circle signifies love, protection, friendship, rebirth, even life itself.

Since early times wreaths were made of plants such as laurel, oak leaves, grasses and crops (corn, barley). Now boxwood, spruce, pine, holly, juniper and herbs such as lavender, thyme, rosemary, sage, horehound, rue, sweet woodruff and other green plants are used. Vinca and pachysandra stay evergreen, and many of the plant may even root.

Keep the wreath on a round tray with low sides. A deli tray is ideal. Stainless, pewter and glass are all fine, too. Water the wreath each week. Don't mist succulents because it encourages shallow rooting. If the wreath is in a sunny spot, it may need water every three days. Don't let it dry out. You can either pour water around the wreath or soak it in a large tub. Don't fertilize the first year, then apply liquid house plant food, ¼ strength, when you fertilize the other house plants. Prune if necessary.

Congratulations

TREASURE SEARCH

NANCY AND FRANK BOOS

Dear Nancy and Frank:

Could you please help us with this item? It was a Gramma gift from England and is about 10 inches high. An enclosed photo shows the markings on the bottom.

Frank and Ann, Royal Oak

Dear Frank and Ann:

Thanks for your excellent photos. As you probably know, the trade marks on the bottom of a ceramic piece can identify the manufacturer, location and date of the piece. Many manufacturers have standard, unchanging marks, while others have variations signifying various things. The marks can be incised (scratched into the body), printed (inked), applied molded or impressed, as the marks on your piece are.

What you have is a Royal Doulton stoneware whiskey, ale or cider bottle. What is now known as Royal Doulton was started in 1882 and was known for its earthenware and porcelain products, although the "Royal" part wasn't added to the name until 1902. Your mark, a version of the Royal Arms with crowned lion over a crown over the circle containing a quatrefoil mark surrounded by the words "Royal Doulton, England" is the standard impress mark for the years 1902 through 1922. The general rule is that the use of the word "Royal" in the trade mark suggests a date after the middle of the 19th century.

From the photo, there appears to be another impress mark near the rear of the lion, which isn't clear in the photo. If this is in fact a shield with a lowercase letter, the piece can be further dated as having been made from 1902 to 1914. A lowercase letter "c" indicates 1902, "d" indicates 1903, and so on to an "o" for 1914. The numbers probably indicate mold and/or pattern numbers. Most English pottery and porcelain can be identified in a similar manner. This is a very collectible piece, and if in good condition could be priced around $850 to $950 at retail.

Nancy and Frank Boos are with the Frank H. Boos Gallery, an appraisal firm and auction house at 420 Enterprise Court in Bloomfield Hills that has been in the auction business for more than 30 years. Do you have an item you would like to know about? Send in a good photo of it, along with its description (including size, working parts, etc.) and any known provenance (history) to Treasure Search, The Eccentric Newspapers, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham 48009. Include your name, community and phone number.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

JOE GAGNON

For the past 20 years my feelings on service contracts for major home appliances have been quoted on or in television, radio, newspapers, magazines and any place I could get my mouth motoring. My viewpoints haven't been secret to any degree, and in this article I would like to reiterate some of these views plus add some new ones.

An extended service contract MIGHT BE a good thing to buy on a major home appliance if you bought a product that has a very low life expectancy. It is a very surprising fact to many homeowners today that the new product fails repeatedly and lasts only a period of five to seven years. In this case, wouldn't it be wise to spend a few hundred dollars to give you peace of mind? Or wouldn't it be smarter to spend a little more, do a little research and buy a better product? The decision is yours to make and yours to live with. My opinion is plain and simple: You get what you pay for in the world of consumerism. I can't change what manufacturers are putting into the market, but I can and have helped educate the American consumer so that many are more knowledgeable shoppers. In essence, my dear reader, what I'm trying to get across is the fact that there are good products produced in my industry, not enough to my liking, but there are and it is up to you to do the legwork and spend the necessary dollars to ensure that you have that product in your home. Then a service contract MIGHT NOT be a good thing.

An extended service contract MIGHT BE a good thing if your name is Rockefeller or if you've won the state lottery. The peace of mind that some folks need regarding future service can be easily afforded by those who have the bucks. I have talked to several thousand of these folks and been amazed to find out how much some of them have spent on a single product. It isn't surprising to find the homeowner who has spent more than $1,000 on a service contract on his or her clothes dryer. It was surprising when I spoke with the older gentleman who had spent $1,800 on his dryer. I have asked many how they fell into this trap and the answer has always been the same. Once you buy it, you're afraid not to buy it the next year for fear that it will break down. If this happens and your contract has expired, all the money you spent last year has gone to waste. So that you don't fall into this sad situation, I can assure you that your telephone will ring or you will receive a notice in the mail, informing you that your past year's extended service contract is about to expire and you should renew it immediately.

PRESSURE in the appliance industry to simply stay in business is more severe today than ever. Locally, we have seen the failure of Highland Appliance and read about the rough times others are having. Across the country, other big names are no more and in some cases, new names are moving in. The Detroit area has become the most competitive price-conscious arena in the country when it comes to selling major home appliances. Is it any wonder that dealers desperately need to sell service contracts to make ends meet, and wasn't that exemplified just a few years ago in the front pages of a major newspaper? A certain dealer was being investigated because they had threatened to fire a dozen of their salespeople because they weren't selling enough service contracts. In the next few years ahead you will see others who will bite the dust, and you will see some of the old ways come back, I HOPE. Wouldn't it be nice to know you're getting quality, a smile, great delivery and a true promise of satisfaction?

Now ask yourself, how does this simple, straight talking, appliance doctor who never even achieved a college degree in economics know so much? It's simple, folks, you know prunes about anything until you have lived it. Be it a failed marriage, loss of a loved one, war, fright, whatever, you aren't an expert until you have lived the experience. Cut this column out of this paper and keep it somewhere for the next few years. Let's just see what happens in the future, but right now let's get back tko the present with some inside SCOOP.

DETROIT AREA UTILITY COMPANIES OFFER SERVICE CONTRACTS ON MAJOR HOME APPLIANCES. For several years now the gas company has offered a service contract on your furnace and many have it. The other day I received a call from a heating contractor who wants to have me join a coalition of members to stop this from happening even though it has been going on for some time. Last week an appliance service company wanted me to stop Detroit Edison from carrying out their new program on appliance service contracts. They are angry because only select service companies will be hired to do this work and they aren't one of the companies. For that matter neither is Carmack Appliance, the company that I own. I choose to have it this way because of who I am and what I do. My participation with Detroit Edision in the development of this new appliance service contract division has been done without payment to me and I intend to keep my nose clean. I would ask you once again, cut out this column and when you get the information from Detroit Edison in your utility bill, read it over and make up your own mind. Thanks for the letters you send me, and stay turned for next week's column that is written for you, the smarter consumer.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid form the Appliance Doctor," available at area bookstores.

INVITING IDEAS

Go crackers for lunch

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

English recipes for Cracknels date back to the 1700s. The dish-shaped "cakes" were baked so hard they would surely crackle under your teeth as you ate them.

Back to packing lunches, afternoon snacks and after dinner treats — school is in session. If you're out of ideas, going crackers may be your solution, not your diagnosis!

Crackers are a wonderful base for nutritional, low fat munchies. It took me a long while to come to this conclusion, because I grew up in the snack food industry. My father was the co-owner of Everkrisp Potato Chip Company, which meant snacks were plentiful. We were the neighborhood and family's built-in convenience store. Our factory produced potato chips (even the flavored ones), cheese popcorn, and cheese curls. Dad was also a distributor for pretzels, pork rinds, peanuts, and for awhile, bubble gum — a child's dream come true — Willy Wonka had nothing on me. It took a long time to get my mind retrained to snack foods being something other than what I was raised with.

Making crackers is not unlike making biscuits (the American type), but rolling out the dough thin — then baking them. English recipes for Cracknels date back to the 1700s. The dish-shaped "cakes" were baked so hard they would surely crackle under your teeth as you ate them. Here's a modern version of the recipe.

CRACKNELS

1 cup ½ percent milk
1 teaspoon salt
½ package yeast
2 tablespoons warm water
2¾ to 3 cups all purpose flour
2 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened

Preheat oven to 325 degrees F. In a saucepan over medium heat — warm the milk gently with the salt, until the salt appears to be dissolved. Let cool until tepid.

Dissolve the yeast in the 2 tablespoons of warm water. Add both liquids to the 2¾ cups of flour and butter. Knead for approximately 8-10 minutes, adding the additional ¼ cup of flour if the dough seems too soft.

Place the dough in a glass bowl and cover with plastic wrap — place in an area free of drafts. Let the dough rise until it has doubled in size.

Turn the dough in a glass bowl and cover with plastic wrap — place in an area free of drafts. Let the dough rise until it has doubled in size.

Turn the dough out onto a lightly floured surface and roll out thin — cutting the dough into 2½-inch squares.. Prick the crackers with the tines of a fork.

Bake on a baking sheet (lightly sprayed with no-stick cooking spray) some baking sheets are fine ungreased — use your discretion). Bake for 12-15 minutes or until very lightly browned.

HONEY TEA CRACKERS

3 cups of flour
½ teaspoon salt
1 teapoon ground all spice
3 eggs
Grated rind and juice of ½ of a large lemon
3 tablespoons honey
¼ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon water
Blanched almonds or walnut halves

Sift three cups of flour with ½ teaspoon salt and 1 teaspoon ground all spice. Beat eggs, add grated lemon rind and juice, stir in honey, with ¼ teaspoon baking soda, dissolved in 1 teaspoon water. Stir the flour into this mixture, and mix to a dough. Roll out very thin, not more than ¼-inch, cut with a round cutter, prick all over with a fork, brushed with a mixture of equal parts of honey and water, press into the center of each a blanched almond, or ½ a walnut. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degree F. to 350 degree F.) oven for 15-20 minutes.

Try making this delicious crackers. Remember you can add coarse Kosher salt, sesame seeds or herbs to these recipes. Then add your favorite lunch meats, cheeses, peanut butter, marmalade or cream cheese.

Some delicious combination are apple and cheese, fruit spread, banana and peanut butter, cucumber and cream cheese and hummus sprinkled with parsley.

Or add a straw of honey to lunches. "Honey in the Straw" is a tasty snack for lunches. The seven-inch straws are filled with Orange Blossom, Sage or Yellow Star Thistle honey. Just bite off the end and squeeze it onto your cracker.

"Honey in the Straw" can be found at ¼ Off Card Shops in Southfield and Farmington Hills, The Kitchen Witch in Northville, the Northville Coffee Bean, the Plymouth Coffee Bean or by mail order:

Moon Shine Trading Company, P.O. Box 896, Winters, CA 95694. Call 1-(800)-678-1226 for more information. Moon Shine also produces "Gourmet Butters & Spreads" and a "Gourmet Honey Collection."

Check with local stores to make sure they have "Honey in the Straw" in stock before going shopping.

BOOK BREAK

VICTORIA DIAZ

"A Wild and Lonely Place," by Marcia Muller (386 pp., $19.95, The Mysterious Press).

Someone is planting bombs in San Francisco's foreign embassies. Who will stop him before he strikes again? Sounds like a job for Sharon McCone.

Her hard-edged female detective hangs her hat in the ever-appealing City Beside the Bay (as with McCone herself, its frayed spots only add interest). She drives a red sports car. Rarely runs out of drop-dead verbal comebacks. Likes kids, but has none of her own. Has a lover, but is unencumbered by marriage. Owns two cute cats. Dines on stuff like rope viega, sourdough bread, and morning-after omelets. Favors wine and espresso for drinking. Sometimes shares a romantic cottage in Mendocino County with able lover Hy Ripinsky. Finds adventure in intriguing spots. Encounters colorful characters along the way (porno actress, religious zealot, loquacious Hispanic maid, et al.). You get the picture.

As the curtain rises on this latest McCone mystery, we find our bold detective (these days, a kind of Nancy Drew-Wonder Woman-approaching middle-age type) in the American Southwest, approximately 6,500 feet above the Tehachapi Mountains, piloting a little Beechcraft that is about to be in big trouble. Suddenly, some potentially lethal, clear air turbulence sends the aircraft into a plummeting spin. McCone's passengers — the aforementioned Hy, sick as a dog, and a small, frightened girl — can't help, of course. The chips are decidedly down, and McCone must save herself (and her passengers) by herself. This being a 1990s detective novel, our dauntless heroine finds herself in similar do-or-die situations with incredible frequency. (She makes a lengthy, nighttime swim through unfamiliar waters to save the girl; swims back to a rescue boat, the girl in tow; deftly dodges would-be captors at the local airport; outsmarts another wily foe at another airport; lands a crippled plane . . .)

If some of these remarks sound a bit like left-handed compliments, perhaps I'll plead nolo contendre. If you open this book expecting a notable literary landmark, you're in for disappointment. It's about as a formulaic as they come right now, which can be seriously formulaic. On the menu of literature, you'd be sure to find it in the dessert column (maybe under "sorbets"?). But, on the other hand, who among us wants or needs to read a masterpiece every time out? God knows, sometimes dessert — and dessert alone — is what can get you out of bed in the morning.

Go along as McCone traces the elusive Deplo-bomber through the streets of San Frandisco, and on to such far-flung spots as the Leeward Islands in the Caribbean, the Keys, the Mojave Desert. You'll catch a glimpse of Phoenix and Dallas, too. And you'll even get a quick look at the local color around Fresno and Bakersfield. ("When I was a little kid in Fresno," one character observes, "my daddy used to say that on a clear summer night you could sit on your front porch and listen to Bakersield suck.")

With her straight-on, no-nonsense prose, Muller is one of the best around at building tension with words, with grabbing readers' attention from the outset and efficiently riveting them to their seats to the end. She's also a whiz at moving her story ever forward via dialogue, a form of action in itself in this action-packed story.

Surprisingly, I found special fun in this techno-thriller precisely because of Muller's attention to technical detail. Since my ignorance of computers is a shame and disgrace, I'm usually pitifully lost in any form of cyberspace. Consequently, I closely identified with McCone and her stated "inability to internalize computer-related information." Throughout this novel, she has no choice but to change that "inability." And, as she does so, her learning becomes a basic, clearly-stated "lesson" for readers who don't know a window from a board from a room, electronically speaking.

So, for all kinds of different reasons, you could do much worse than leaning back, putting up your feet, and following the intrepid McCone as she goes after the bad guy.

If you really want to get the full flavor of the story, perhaps you'd best do so with a warming cup of espresso at hand. Or perhaps a bottle of '93 Deer Hill Chardonnay — the kind McCone's saving for her fast-approaching, 40th birthday.

Seminar offers bright ideas for using bulbs in the landscape

BY MARTY FIGLEY
SPECIAL WRITER

A most unusual opportunity to study hardy spring and fall bulbs with Charles Cresson, author, lecturer and teacher, is being offered for the first time in this area.

This seminar is the same course currently taking place once a year at Longwood Gardens, Philadelphia, as part of its prestigious certificate program of plant courses on "The Use of Bulbs in the Landscape."

Cresson will present his complete course condensed into this two-day session. It will include both the artistic and practical use of bulbs for all seasons of the year.

The Gardeners Guild is sponsoring this event at Tellys Greenhouse, 3301 John R Road, Troy. The class will take place 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday-Thursday, Sept. 20-21. A textbook, lunches and snacks will be provided and are included in the $98 registration fee. Certificates of attendance will be given at the end of the session. Master gardeners will be given six hours of education credit.

To register, send a check made payable to The Gardeners Guild to: The Gardeners Guild, 10514 Elgin, Huntington Woods 48070. Registration is limited to the first 40 people, so register now to avoid disappointment. For more information, call Lynda Raleigh at (810) 544-8967.

Cresson is a graduate of the University of Vermont in plant and soil science and has studied at the University of Bath, Wisley and Longwood Gardens. His garden, "Hedgleigh Spring," was recently featured on TV's "The Victory Garden." He is currently restoring this private garden that was developed by four generations of his family.

Cresson has written "Charles Cresson on the American Flower Garden" ($20, hard cover), in which he deals with the practical matters of gardening such as staking and pruning. He advises to know your property and the plants you want in the garden, and explains how to use them in pleasing innovative combinations.

"Rock Gardening" and "Ornamental Trees" are two of his other books. In the first, the topic is thoroughly covered from design, construction and care of the specialized plants grown. Included is information about trough gardens, walls, ledges and paths. Cresson emphasizes the importance of scale and visiting other gardens (as well as studying natural rock outcroppings). The enclopedic portion details the characteristics and needs of many alpine plants.

■ The class will take place 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday-Thursday, Sept. 20-21, at Tellys Greenhouse, 3301 John R Road, Troy.

The second explains how to use trees in a garden design, deals with pests and diseases and outlines the steps to ensure the health of the trees. The enclopedic section contains much information about many trees suitable for a variety of garden locations.

Each of these books is priced at $9. All three of the books are published by Prentice Hall, in the Burpee American Gardening Series.

The intent of The Gardeners Guild is to further the artistic science of gardening for the advanced gardener. It strives for gardening excellence to further stimulate new ideas and to promote knowledge and growth. Members live in local cities such as Clarkston, Bloomfield Hills, Birmingham, Troy, Huntington Woods, Holly and Lake Angelus.

COVER STORY

MURAL MURAL ON THE WALL

STORY BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN, SPECIAL WRITER

On the cover:
Shireen Agah painted the 17th hole of the Muirfield Golf Course on the bedroom wall of Phil Karbo, who spent the summer recovering from knee surgery.

Whether you're a sports enthusiast or simply looking to fill a space on the wall, murals hold the key to brightening living environments. Two Livonia families employed entirely different subject matter to bring the great outdoors into their homes.

In Shireen Agah's case, she simply wanted to surprise her boyfriend by painting the 17th hole of the Muirfield Golf Course in Ohio on his bedroom wall. Phil Karbo was captain of the golf team in 1993 at Catholic Central High School in Redford before graduating on to studies at Notre Dame University. He spent the last few summers caddying at Brae-Burn Golf Club in Plymouth. Reconstructive knee surgery prevented him from doing so this summer. The mural enabled him to be on the course, so to speak, while recovering.

While Karbo was away at school the 20-year-old Agah used flat interior paint to mix most of the colors creating the sandtraps, trees and greens. Although she had won several Gold Key and Awards of Merit in the Scholastic Art Awards competition for her works on paper, Agah's only previous experience painting surfaces of this size came while working on a stage crew in high school. Agah's pediatrician father had forbidden such a project on the walls of the family's Farmington Hills home.

"I did it to make somebody happy. I always wanted to do a mural and was looking at courses in a book on the PGA tour. I wanted a scene that had life to it and a nice composition and liked how the sun is peeking out," said Agah, a graduate of Mercy High School in Farmington Hills now studying for a degree in art education at Syracuse University in New York.

"What attracted me was the warm colors of the reds and oranges. I kept layering things to give it more depth. Now my dad, an avid golfer, wants one."

When the first layer of green graced the wall, a brief bout of doubt overcame Mary Ann Karbo, Phil's mother. But never one to hinder progress she kept any reservations to herself as Agah began to sponge on the foliage of trees.

"At first when I saw all that green I was unsure about having given my permission, but knew if we ended up not liking it we could paint the wall. As she progressed with each layer of color my pleasure from looking at the scene overcame any doubts," said Karbo, whose entire family golfs.

"I told her we have a lot more walls."

Vacationing at home

Paul and Karen Camilleri spent more than $50,000 renovating their 8-year-old house this summer because they feel "there's no place like home." The addition of a sun room on the back of the house created a problem, though. A long expanse of wall presented a void to fill. Camilleri knew artist Julie Giordano, of Giordano Studios in Northville, from their student days at Bishop Borgess High School. The brick wall running through the mural (Giordano's idea) extends the exterior of the home into the glassed-in sun area. A cold air return was masked with flowering chives by Giordano.

"We just really enjoy our home," said Karen Camilleri, who conceived the concept for the mural after a favorite vacation spot where the family relaxes at a cottage by the water.

"We wanted the mural to look like a courtyard. We wanted the room to be warm and inviting. The goal is to eventually have the room filled with plants. We're trying to achieve a park-like atmosphere back here. This (the mural) was interesting. You don't see too many walls like this."

Giordano sponged in a huge old tree on the right of the wall. Abstract flowers on the left add brightness with primary yellow and red. Overall, the room works together with an $8,000 waterfall and pond filled with water hyacinth, lotus, water lilies and iris to create a haven for nature.

"At first I wasn't sure about a mural but now I feel it's nice, the flowers and trees," Paul Camilleri said.

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

How you hold your camera when you photograph is important to obtaining sharp pictures. Camera movement during exposure is one of the most frequent causes of unsharp photos. Too often, I've seen amateur photographers jerk the shutter release button and what could have been a prize-winning picture is hopelessly lost to camera jiggles.

There are some simple techniques you can follow when not using a tripod to minimize the shakes and maximize the chances of steady and sharp pictures.

To start with, hold your camera in a way that's both comfortable and steady. If right-handed, grasp the right side of your camera in your right hand with your forefinger gently resting on the shutter release. Cup the camera body in your left palm with your fingers on the focusing ring. For left-handers, just reverse the positions.

Keep your arms and elbows against your body, not suspended in air. Stand firmly on the ground with your feet slightly wider than shoulder width. Hold your camera tightly against your face, take a breath, hold it, and gently squeeze the shutter release. Chances are you'll make a picture free from camera movement.

Even try bracing yourself against a nearby tree or set your camera atop a fence post or car roof to improve sharpness.

What shutter speed should you use? It depends on the size of the lens you're using. A general rule is to use a shutter speed equal to or faster than the focal length of the lens. For example, use a shutter speed of 1/60 second or faster when using a normal 50mm lens. A 1/250 second speed should be used with a 200mm lens and a 1/15 second or faster with a 17mm wide angle lens.

With zoom lenses, this guideline still holds true. Just use a shutter speed close to wherever you've set your zoom.

A golfer will practice his or her swing and how to properly hold the club. A marksman will practice squeezing the trigger. Photographers, too, should practice their handling and shooting techniques.

ALL ABOUT ANIMALS

Chewing is concern

About a month ago, our dog began chewing his feet and whining. We can't get him to stop. Why is doing this and how can we get him to stop?

Foot licking or chewing can indicate a number of things. Your dog may be having an allergic reaction to carpeting, or certain dusts or pollens which his feet come in contact with regularly. Food allergies in animals can be a common cause.

It is helpful to try and determine whether the problem is continuous, or flares up at certain times of the year, which would probably mean it is a seasonal allergy to some kinds of grass, weeds or pollen.

Sometimes foot chewing is a behavioral problem, possibly a result of boredom, stress of a change in the dog's environment or routine. In any case, you should have your pet examined by a veterinarian, who can recommend appropriate medications or behavioral training.

Books, magazines wanted for sale

The Southfield Public Library needs you — and your pre-read books and magazines.

The Friends of the Southfield Public Library are still feeling a little depleted after the last big semi-annual book sale. More of your varied and interesting reading material is needed to assure a plentiful selection when people come to browse and buy at the upcoming sale Oct. 9-12.

As summer draws to an end, consider culling through any stacks of magazines sitting around, or sifting through the crowded-to-bursting bookshelves in your own personal library. Make way for your future reading pleasure by clearing out some space for new interests and titles. Audio tapes that have served their purpose are good things to pass on. There's no time like the present.

You'll thank yourself for the write-off when tax time rolls around in April. Couldn't a few things be put to better use?

Magazines with recipes and home decorating ideas always appeal to book sale browsers, especially Gourmet, Bon Appetit, Architectural Digest, Woman's Day and Family Circle, but news and sports magazines move best when they're 3 months old or newer.

Library book sale buyers seek a wide variety of books. Of course, classics are always welcome; recent best sellers are quite a hit, too. Books on an outgrown hobby could be just what a new enthusiast is looking for. Biographies are always appreciated and textbooks typically make a good showing. Audio tapes are a new, popular format that buyers look for.

Materials from a small clearing out can be dropped off as you make your normal trips to the Southfield Public Library. Be sure to ask for a receipt at the librarian's desk. When a major clearout results in a large load, take it to the circular drive or the underground parking area and ask for help at the Circulation Desk.

To all those who have brought in donations recently, the library says "Many thanks!" For those donors that the library hasn't yet seen, it says to remember that you can win three ways: by neatening up your personal reading areas, by getting your tax-deductible contributions documented early and by helping the Friends underwrite the many special programs they sponsor at the library.

UM sets fall garden sale

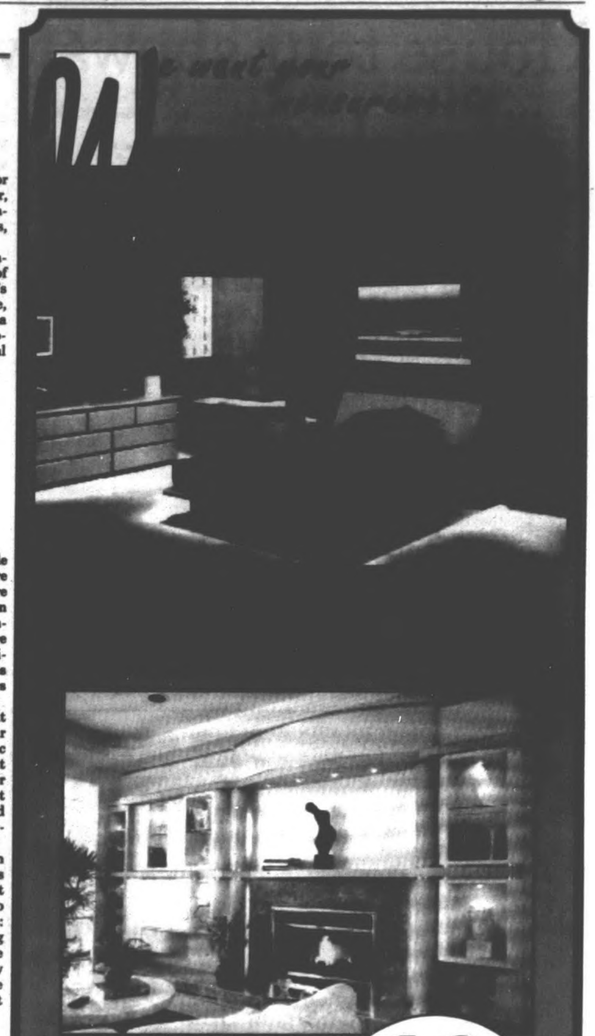
Mums, trees, shrubs, peonies, poppies, wildflowers, grasses and bulbs are among the unusual plants being offered at the University of Michigan Matthaei Botanical Gardens Friends annual Fall Gardener's Sale fund-raiser, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday-Sunday, Sept. 16-17, at the gardens.

Patrons attending can choose from more than 185 robust, hardy mums and several unusual and sought-after landscape trees and shrubs that can be planted now.

Admission is free, and there is plenty of free parking on site. Refreshments will be available for a fee. The gardens are at 1800 N. Dixboro Road, Ann Arbor. Take US-23 north to Geddes Road. Head east on Geddes Road to Dixboro Road. Turn left onto Dixboro Road and go 2½ miles north. For more information, call (313) 998-7061.

"Autumn is a traditional time of year to plant your hardy perennials, bulbs, trees and shrubs. Their roots become established before new growth emerges in the spring. This year's selections are ideal for their landscape value and ornamental appeal," said Mike Palmer, horticulturalist at the Matthaei Botanical Gardens.

Among the special items being offered will be the showy Yellow Magnolia (Magnolia x "Elizabeth"). The neat growth habit, medium rate of growth and pyramidal shape make this a landscape gem. Another special offering to this year's sale will be the Big Bluestem (Andropogon gerardii). This colorful, prairie native grass grows five to six feet tall and is spectacular after the first frost when the grass turns light red.



House tour shows wide range of styles

By Mary Klemic
Staff Writer

Feel at home in the heart of Birmingham next week with the eighth annual Downtown Birmingham House Tour presented by The Community House.

This year's tour, 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 19, features eight houses and townhouses within walking distance of each other in downtown Birmingham. Also featured is a special tea at The Community House, 380 S. Bates, 2-4:30 p.m.

"This year the selection of houses is the best ever with a broad range of styles — everything from cutting edge contemporary to gracious traditional," said Nancy Spence, house tour chair.

Tickets are $18 pre-ordered or $20 bought the day of the event. For more information, call The Community House Special Events Department, (810) 644-5832.

Two of the residences on the tour indicate the warm and stylish welcome awaiting visitors. Residents at both places described them as fine for entertaining, and the rooms do seem to extend gracious greetings.

The townhouse of Dee Wright-Masilotti and Richard Masilotti offers the charm of a loft. Windows and recessed lighting make the rooms bright and inviting.

"The house is very bright. It's never without natural light," Wright-Masilotti said.

From the foyer at the entrance you can see the great room, large and welcoming with an area rug over the pickled oak floor. The furnishings include black lacquered cabinets and table. At the opposite end is a sliding glass door to a little courtyard. People sitting in the dark, elegantly curving chairs surrounding a glass-topped, octagonal table near the sliding door have a good place from which to view nature's artistry.

Soft colors and tones are featured throughout, slightly peppered with an Oriental flavor through such accessories as screens on a wall.

The kitchen is cheery and cozy.

"A kitchen to me should be serviceable."

In the master bedroom, the carpeting is gray and wood borders accent the white angled walls. Skylights look down from the walls.

"The fun part about having skylights, you can see the stars at night."

The skylights came in handy when the power was out in a storm this summer; they let in so much light that a party was moved upstairs.

An interest in math influenced the delightful design of the Anthony and Bernice Rosenthal Trogan house. You see many 90-degree angles — in the walls, in the steplike pattern to shelves and a design on the sides of a low table. It smoothly connects the rooms.

■ 'This year the selection of houses is the best ever with a broad range of styles — everything from cutting edge contemporary to gracious traditional.'

In the bedroom, with its angled cathedral ceiling, windows are "stacked" like blocks and the bureau echoes such a pattern. Table lamps by the bed have a sophisticated geometric shape, blending triangle and rectangle. The wooden door features opaque glass panels with an artistic "string and paper" design, resembling swirling lines trailing over canvas. Small squares containing similar lines subtly adorn a corner of a bathroom mirror.

"It cuts this room off from the rest of the house," Bernice Trogan said of the door.

"It's a great house for entertaining. When I'm cooking I don't feel cut away from the rest of the house."

Proceeds benefit The Community House, a non-profit organization that offers educational, social and cultural programs, child care, employment assistance, meeting rooms, banquet and catering services, and group travel activities.

Designer finds his niche in waterfalls

By Marty Figley
Special Writer

Darren Yanke, owner of Yanke's Landscaping and Stone Design Inc. of Novi, has found his niche in the landscaping business. He custom designs and constructs waterfalls in sizes from a bubbling brook to "Niagara Falls."

"Each pond is individually designed and is personalized for the homeowner: size, style, plants and sound are all taken into account," he said.

Many of the waterfalls are made to block out the sounds of nearby traffic and other interrupting noises such as a dog barking. The level of sound in many installations can be regulated to be soft or loud, depending on the situation. For instance, if the owner is sitting quietly outside, the rush of water falling across rocks can be soothing; on the other hand, if there are guests, the sound can be muted (by controlling the water to run slower), for conversation.

Yanke began his business 14 years ago, three months before he graduated from high school. He put out fliers, went door to door and worked with referrals. Now the referrals are the mainstay of the business.

At the age of 12 he worked for his brother, who ran a lawn service for commercial and residential properties, and by the time he was 15 he could answer customer questions about plants and their needs. He started drawing designs when he was 17.

In college he studied the structural aspects of the business, learning about soil, drainage and what can best be used to correct or retain the grade of a particular site. Cement, boulders and treated wood are all used in the construction.

Yanke's fascination and love of the waterfalls in northern Michigan, which he visited when very young, influenced his decision to create waterfalls of his own design. He uses Michigan rocks and boulders, chunks of limestone, grindstone, Canadian Bluestone and Canadian Buff in many designs.

A lining of Bentilmat (volcanic ash in mat form), which he is certified to apply, is used as a liner and a surround for the ponds. The bottoms of the ponds are always concrete and the stones are mortared to concrete for stability. He has found the Bentilmat stops any leakage.

While the cement pond is being built, an area three by three by three feet in size is constructed to hold the pump housing and filtering system. The upper sides of this square are level with the bottom of the pond and are fitted with a steel mesh top that can be removed to allow ready access to the screen and filter so they can be changed or cleaned. The pump draws water through the screen and out a two-inch pipe to continue the cycle.

"I'm trying to create a work of art, as maintenance-free as possible. We install valves for cleaning and refill, for overflow, filters, etc."

He likes to work directly with the clients and will follow installation with maintenance, plant the pond if desired, or consult with them about the plants to use — water lilies, reeds, grasses. He has found that owners often prefer to study their ponds and waterfalls and select their personal choices. He does add "structural" plantings around each installation.

For instance, one garden I saw had yellow golden dwarf Cyprus march along the top of one group of rocks while cotoneasters, azaleas, hostas and a hydrangea are strategically planted for harmony. The feeling is quite restful. The owners can sit on their brick paver patio and view the running water while enjoying the sounds.

Another garden is reached from the side of the house on paths made of Canadian Bluestone, surrounded with slag sand that turns hard and holds the stones in place. It leads to a brick paver circle patio from which one can view the waterfalls and hear the melodies of the water — frogs are in residence and provide entertainment, as do the goldfish.

Ground covers such as lamium, sweet woodruff, pachysandra, snow-on-the-mountain, yellow archangel and red and yellow sedum add much interest, while specimen plants such as weeping cherry, Japanese maple and Harry Lauder's walking stick fit perfectly. Along one top edge a dwarf Koster blue spruce holds reign.

Still another installation is a very large design, which holds back a river embankment and contains seven cascading waterfalls that empty into a naturally existing pond. This design runs 350 gallons of water per minute and is recycled to that pond.

Yanke services Oakland and most of Wayne County. His work can be seen in cities such as Troy, Farmington Hills, Novi, Milford, Northville and Westland.

His dream?

Variety: Yanke's waterfalls use different stones and plants and often can be regulated to be soft or loud.

BACKYARD NATURE

Grasses are distinctive

TIM NOWICKI

As I drive down the country roads these days, I pass many fields of grass. These fields are all just one kind of grass. You've all seen them, they're fields of corn. Yes corn is a grass. But while you are out in the country take note of some smaller patches of grass.

Along the ditches next to the roadside are often some very distinctive grasses. In the low area where water collects there will be green plants, but these are more likely to be sedges or rushes. They tend to like wet areas. But just up from the wet soil in dryer conditions grasses will start to grow.

In the backlite conditions of my early morning drive to work, I particularlly like the squirrel's tail that grows in dense groups along the ditch. The most noticeable part is the head area which points in the same direction on all the plants. By pointing in the same direction they form a thick cloud of fine fibers. They do resemble fluffy squirrel's tails arching in the same directions at about the height of a squirrel sitting on the ground.

In contrast to the 12-inch high squirrels tail is the reed grass Phragmites. It too has a head that arches to one side, but it is more feathery and it stands about 8-10 feet tall. Phragmites grows in the low areas along the expressways. It grows in such density that it crowds out other natural wetland plants that are more beneficial for wildlife.

In colonial times and in other parts of the continent, people collected the long stems of Phragmites and thatched the roofs of their homes with it. This reed was also used to make ink pens. Inside the hollow stem are fine tubes that transport water up to the top. If you take a dried, dead stalk and cut it off like a quill pen point and dip it into ink, the small tubes will draw up ink and it can be used as a pen.

Though squirrel's tail and Phragmites are interesting to see, I saw the most beautiful grass of the season while visiting friends in northern Michigan. Northern Michigan's sandy soils are perfect for the purple love grass to grow. Large patches of purple covered entire fields. Not only did it look beautiful, but it felt wonderful. Each of the delicate branches just barely touched my skin. They feel like fairy fingers deftly tickling you as you walk.

Not everyone loves open houses

By Doug Funke
Staff Writer

Feelings run the gamut on open houses. But there's no denying that some buyers and sellers connect and sales result during weekend visitations.

Buyers, especially first-timers and those who have lived in the same place for several years but now contemplate a move, can use open houses as educational tools to gauge the market.

"The nice thing about open houses is it's a free way without commitment and no pressure calls for you to learn what you can get for your money," said Chris Knight, an agent with Coldwell Banker Schweitzer in Plymouth.

"You can learn what you want or don't want in a home," he added.

The big drawback for agents is the return on time invested. Almost all open houses are held Sunday afternoons.

"I think the reason agents don't want to hold open houses is they look at a national average of one percent success," said Sandy Norman, an agent with Century 21 Town & Country in Birmingham.

Open houses work better with some houses than others, agents say.

"Generally speaking, anything above $300,000 there's weaker turnout," Norman said. "Those buyers immediately gravitate to a representative.

Promotion is the key to drawing visitors to open houses.

"Probably the best thing to do is tell everyone you see you're going to do it," said Cecelia Brown, an agent with Prudential Great Lakes Realty in Rochester. "Even if they're not in the market, they may know someone who is."

Brown also sends out fliers to apartment complexes, former clients and other agents.

"You can't be a secret agent and have a secret house," Norman said.

"The most important thing is let people know what's out there with signage," Knight said. "Don't just have one sign at the corner. If you can, put 10 or 12 signs out. In Plymouth, if you put a sign on Sheldon Road, a sign at Main and a sign at Ann Arbor Trail, you'll get a ton of exposure."

Some communities don't allow signs on public property.

"We advertise in newspapers," said Ray Millen, broker/owner of Remerica Gold Key Homes in Redford.

"Don't use shorthand. Tell them exactly where it is. People will follow directions if you get it to 'em right."

Since prospects attending open houses usually go to more than one, it's important to make an impression. A spec sheet isn't enough.

"My brochures have eight to 10 pictures in offset printing," Norman said.

"I also give out certain things of perceived value _ a checklist for putting your home on the market, tax information."

It's best that the homeowners aren't around for the showing.

"If they're home, I won't do an open house," Knight said. "The Realtor is a little intimidated. Purchasers aren't comfortable around sellers."

Other suggestions on how sellers and agents can prepare for an open house:

- Mention the price of the house in ads so unqualified buyers won't waste your time or theirs.
- Police the front and back yards. Make sure everything is clean inside, too, especially windows.
- Eliminate clutter from closets, cabinets and countertops.
- Adjust the furnace or air conditioning so that the house feels comfortable.
- Open curtains and shades. Turn on lights.
- Place small index cards around major appliances and special features of the house noting their age and efficiency.
- Get rid of all signs of cats and dogs including the animals themselves, leashes, collars and litter boxes.
- Remove ashtrays and other indications that smokers live there.

"The owner has to go to some lengths to get the house ready," Brown said. "It has to be like the builder's model. You have to be a showplace."

Experienced agents realize that people visit open houses for different reasons.

"Fifty percent are house buyers looking for something," Norman said. "Fifty percent are going through on a lark. They're curious and just want to see what a house sells for, what X amount of dollars buys.

"You handle those diplomatically. Someday, you may be selling them a house."

REAL ESTATE Q/ERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. Are there any particular clauses in a building contract for new construction that you have found to be particularly disadvantageous to a purchaser that you can alert us to?

A. Space limitations would preclude me from comprehensively answering your question. However, there are certain clauses that I find more frequently included within building contracts for new construction which may be disadvantageous to the purchaser.

One particular clause requires binding arbitration of any dispute regarding the terms and conditions of the purchase agreement or performance by the builder. While that may ostensively seem to be beneficial to the purchaser, most builders would normally prefer to have a panel of arbitrators deciding their case rather than a jury, which would minimize the leverage that a purchaser then has in trying to resolve a dispute.

Secondly, I frequently find that purchase agreements and building contracts make the building official for the municipality the final arbitrator as to whether there are any defects or deficiencies in the project. Again, while the builder may prefer to have the building inspector make that determination, the building inspector may be applying standards of workmanship and/or code requirements that are minimal in nature and are not reflective of the standard of the industry and/or the expectations of the purchaser based upon the representations made by the builder. A purchaser should not be limited to the opinion of the township building inspector except to the extent that it is necessary to obtain compliance with the code requirements from the city and ultimately a certificate of occupancy permit.

These are two areas where I find that purchasers are put to a disadvantage when they are compelled to sign a building contract. Again, these issues can be resolved prior to the building contract being signed and underscore the need for the purchaser to retain the advice and counsel of a knowledgeable real estate attorney to assist in the negotiation of the building contract.

Q. Can you tell me what the recreational land user's act in Michigan has to do with premises liability since I have read about it in a magazine recently.

A. With regard to vacant land, the recreational land user's act merely holds that there is no cause of action arising for injuries to any person who is on the land of another without paying the owner a valuable consideration for the purpose of any outdoor recreational use.

This act is effective whether the injured party is on the land with permission or not.

The recreational land user's act also protects the owner, tenant or lessee of the premises unless the injuries were caused by the gross negligence or wilful and wanton misconduct of the owner, tenant or lessee.

This act also applies to property located within urban areas, even though activities listed in the statute typically are enjoined in rural settings.

Michigan Group Realtors will franchise name

The Michigan Group name will expand via the licensing franchise route.

Michigan Group Realtors, a six-office organization headquartered in Livonia, has entered into a licensing agreement with Michigan Group Residential Affiliates to grant franchises to select brokerage firms throughout the state.

"We have chosen the route of licensing or franchising as the preferred method of continued growth," said Fred T. Madley, president of the Michigan Group Realtors.

"Our company is now in a position to assure continued service through the turn of the century while allowing our six offices to grow in primary market areas," he said.

John Kavanagh, former regional management services director for the Coldwell Banker affiliate division, who also served as president and CEO for Red Carpet Keim, will head Michigan Group Residential Affiliates.

Kavanagh said he plans to own and operate model/testing offices in Bloomfield Hills, Birmingham, Rochester Hills and Troy by next spring.

He expects to sign 10 franchisees by the end of this year and 20 more during 1996. The franchisees would re-affiliate from existing groups or come from the ranks of independents.

"We offer the professional real estate practitioner a recognized name, the RELO relocation and referral network, high-tech computer equipment, a home warranty package and association with Reliance Mortgage Company among the many other benefits," Kavanagh said.

"But more importantly, we can provide the large, medium and small real estate brokerage communities anywhere in the state of Michigan with a successful operating system while concentrating on the real estate market right here in our own state," he said.

Franchisees will pay a start-up fee of $7,500, plus a percentage of gross commissions for affiliation. Michigan Group Residential Affiliates, in turn, will pay a percentage of revenue to Madley's Michigan Group Realtors as a licensing fee.

"The Michigan Group is an organization made up of some of the top people in the industry," Kavanagh said. "The sales associate base is very strong, the management is experienced, capable and professional and the support staff is first-rate throughout."

The Michigan Group Realtors has offices in Plymouth, West Bloomfield, Livonia, Union Lake, Ann Arbor and Brighton.

Electricity takes homeowner into convenient 21st century

Electricity. It accounts for almost four out of every 10 new patents. It boosts our economy more than any other single commodity. During the next five years, new electric appliances will give home owners greater choices than ever-for comfort, convenience, safety and environmental protection, according to the Edison Electric Institute and the National Rural Electric Cooperative Association, representing America's electric utilities.

Let's take a look at just a few of the innovative, electric appliances that are becoming available:

Horizontal Axis Washer

This washer cleans clothes by tumbling them, just like your dryer. But the wash tub lies on its side. This way, the machine can clean with up to 66 percent less water. Since less water is needed, less energy is needed to heat it. It also uses about one fourth of the detergent that a standard washer needs. And, it's faster spin speeds mean less drying time.

Microwave Clothes Dryer

The speed of microwave cooking comes to your laundry room. The microwave targets just the water molecules within the fabric, removing moisture faster, more gently, and at a cooler temperature-lessening the chance of shrinkage.

Induction Cooktop

The 21st century way to cook. It uses up to 65% less energy than other cooktops, and offers precise control. It enables the pan to become the heat source, not the cooktop. It's safer, too, with instant on and off features. Save money on energy, and enjoy a cooler kitchen.

Electric Fireplace

Do what the builder didn't install this fireplace virtually anywhere in your house. It provides cozy warmth without a chimney or vent. And, it's non-polluting.

Super Efficient Refrigerator

Whirlpool's new refrigerator uses up to half the energy of today's models. A computer chip tells it when to defrost. And, it's environmentally friendly. You'll save on your electric bill, whilehelping the environment.

Electric Barbecue Grill

These smokeless grills use no more energy than a hair dryer. They're insulated for energy efficiency and heat retention, sealing in flavor and moisture for terrific taste. And, they emit fewer air pollutants.

Cordless, Electric Riding Mower

Now you can have all the benefits of a cordless, electric lawn mower in a ride-on unit. Its batteries provide enough power to run the vehicle for about two hours on a full charge. A full charge uses about $1 worth of electricity, depending on your electricity rates.

Home Automation System

Program one system to fit your lifestyle, and save on energy costs. Controls heating and cooling temperature settings, lights, appliances and other areas.

Switchable Privacy Glass

Get instant privacy at the flick of a switch. No drapes, no shades. Diffuses harsh, direct sunlight with limitless design possibilities. And, it eliminates about 99 percent of the UV rays that fade carpeting and furniture.

Electric vehicles

You'll charge your electric car in your garage overnight. You'll drive at least 8 miles on one charge, and power up at a recharging station. You'll enjoy little routine maintenance — and the environment will enjoy zero emmisions.

For more information, call your electric utility's residential marketing department.

Camping catches up with 1990's lifestyle

BY JIM TOTH
STAFF WRITER

Look up camping in the dictionary and you will find it defined as living in a camp without conveniences or comforts. The time has come to redefine that meaning to fit the lifestyles of the 90s.

The days of rustic camping — often described as "roughing it" due to such strenuous activities as pounding stakes and searching for that much needed can of "Off" — have taken a back seat to many of the comforts of home found inside the likes of Pop-Up Tent Campers and various types of recreation vehicles.

"It's the 90s, and just like in other areas of life, people are pressed for time," said Bill Sheffer, director for the Michigan Association of Recreational Vehicles and Campgrounds (MARVAC). "We are seeing more and more people getting back to the family types of situations. The family is moving back as a unit."

And that "moving" Sheffer is refering to is being done much more frequently by a variety of campers and RVs. According to recent surveys, more than nine million RVs make their way across the nation's roads with another estimated 100,000 joining the ranks each year.

The typical RV owner, usually ranging in age from 35 to 54, can trace his or her outdoor experience to camping in tents. As families continued to grow, investments turned from tents and travel trailers to motorhomes and luxury travel trailers.

The advantages of camping via RV's or truck campers are numerous. Beginning with plush interiors, manufacturers have added such amenities like the refrigerator, stove, sink and toilet. Thus, many owners depend on their RVs year round and not solely for camping.

"We are seeing RVs being used a lot more for day trips," Sheffer said. "People are making a day of it, going to such places as Frankenmuth, Chesaning or the outlet malls in Birch Run. Also younger families are getting more involved with camping, acquiring pop up tent campers, which are as good an entry level vehicle as any when it comes to providing comfortability."

Campers — who, incidentally, rank second in vacation activity popularity behind hikers, according to the U.S. Travel Data Center — continue to frequent state parks, but recently have branched out to experience the offerings provided by camp resorts.

"Some camp grounds have turned into resorts where they offer more family activities," Sheffer said. "Many of the places usually hold hayrides or a pancake breakfast, while others have expanded to accommodate the newer and bigger units."

According to Sheffer, 1994 was "an excellent year" for the travel industry. Fuel prices often play a vital role in the rise or fall of RVs use and "when times are good, this industry fires up," Sheffer said. "So far 1995 has been good."

Camping opportunities plentiful in Michigan

■ CAMPING

Tired of the same-old household chores and the monotnous nine-to-five work days? Looking for a chance to escape the city in a cost effective way?

If you answered "yes" to both of these questions, a weekend of camping may be just the medicine you need.

And by living in Michigan, the choices of where to camp are abundant. Michigan offers 96 state parks and many more campgrounds operated by the various counties.

Plus, there isn't a need to drive hours north, since there are numerous camping opportunities around the southeastern Michigan area.

The closest state-owned campsite is Maybury State Park in Northville (810-349-8390). The park is located at Beck Road and Eight Mile Road, about five miles west of I-275.

The park contains almost 1,000 acres of gently rolling terrain, open meadow, mature forest, and a variety of wildlife and wildflowers. The park also includes four miles of paved bicycle paths, six miles of hiking trails and 11 miles of horseback riding trails (horse stable is open 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.).

The Maybury Farm provides opportunities for families and groups to learn about early farming practices and farm animals. The farm is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. every day.

Another close state park is the 19,962-acre Waterloo Recreation Area in Chelsea, which includes some hunting and fishing (bass, panfish and pike) opportunites as well as swimming, horse riding and a Geology Center.

Waterloo's Geology Center introduces visitors to Michigan's rocks, minerals, fossils, crystals, glacial information and stories of mining from prehistoric times to the present.

Other state parks relatively close include: Brighton Recreation Area in Howell, Highland Recreation Area and Proud Lake Recreation Area in Milford, Holly Recreation Area, Island Lake Recreation Area in Brighton, Pontiac Lake Recreation Area in Waterford, Pinckney Recreation Area, and Ortonville Recreation Area.

The closest Oakland County Park is Addison Oaks near Oxford (810-693-2432). The 794-acre park is open every day through Oct. 28.

Addison Oaks offers various types of camping options, from semi-furnished cabins to traditional camping. Mountain bike and hiking trails are available, as well as fishing.

And for a change, the park offers a disc (frisbee) golf course. Campers can rent equipment and play this unique sport on an 18-hole course.

Most campgrounds feature electrical hookups, modern toilet building and showers, playgrounds and other accessible facilities. Mini-cabins, which are furnished with electricity and bunk beds, are available at many of the camp sites.

For those who may want to try something different this year, many campgrounds rent replicas of Native American teepees.

Families may also want to try renting one of 85 rustic cabins which are located in quiet settings — many overlooking water. These cabins vary in size and accommodate from four to more than 20 people.

Michigan hunters will find wild game abundant

BY BILL PARKER
STAFF WRITER

The arrival of shorter days and cooler temperatures signals the approach of autumn and the start of Michigan's fall hunting seasons.

Overall, the picture looks bright for Michigan hunters with stable or increasing populations among most species, with the exception of pheasants, grouse and quail. Pheasant, grouse and quail numbers continue to remain on the low side. In fact, quail numbers are so low the DNR has cancelled the season for the second year in a row.

Big game, such as deer, bear and elk are thriving and the '95 hunts should be exceptional. Duck and goose numbers are also on the rise, so look for increased numbers of waterfowl migrating through the state.

Following is a brief look at each species and the outlook for the upcoming season.

BEAR

Season: Sept. 10-Oct 26. Hunting is allowed in designated management areas by permit only.

Bag limit: One bear per licensed hunter. It is illegal to shoot cubs.

Overview: The bear population in the state is thriving with between 8,000 and 10,000 bears making their home in Michigan. The majority of the bears live in the Upper Peninsula, with approximately 10-percent roaming the swamps and forests of the northern Lower Peninsula.

Licenses are issued through a lottery-style drawing. Last year, 5,096 permits were issued from 19,628 applicants. This year, 5,592 permits have been issued and there were better than 25,000 applications.

"Hunters can expect another outstanding bear hunting season," said DNR bear specialist Tim Reis. "All our field information confirms the bear population is in good shape. There are a lot of bear in the UP, particularly at the western end, and the northern lower looks pretty good as well. It should be a pretty productive year."

Successful hunters are required to have the bear sealed within 72 hours after the time of harvest.

Baiting (76-percent) and hunting behind hounds (20-percent) account for 96-percent of the annual bear harvest in Michigan.

BILL PARKER /STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Turkey: Hunters can once again pursue wild turkey this fall. The Michigan DNR issued 4,500 wild turkey hunting permits this year after closing the season in 1994.

BOBCAT

Season: Oct. 25-March 1 in Zone I; Jan. 1-March 1 in northeast corner of the Lower Peninsula; Jan. 15-Feb. 15 in the central counties of the northern Lower Peninsula.

Bag limit: Two bobcats per season, but no more than one in Zone II or on Drummond Island.

Overview: Hunters annually harvest between 400 and 600 bobcats and took just over 500 last year. Reis expects hunters to take another 500 bobcats this season.

"We expect it to be a pretty outstanding season for bobcat hunters," explained Reis. "Trappers are telling us there are a lot of cats out there and our biologists are seeing evidence of increasing numbers."

Successful hunters are required to have the pelt sealed within five days of the kill. Bobcats are usually trapped or hunted with hounds.

COYOTES

Season: July 15-April 15, statewide. The exception is that it is illegal to shoot a coyote during the firearms deer season in the Upper Peninsula because of the wolf recovery program. It's feared deer hunters may mistake a young wolf for an adult coyote.

Bag limit: There is no bag limit on coyotes.

Overview: Coyote numbers are increasing throughout the state, especially in Zone III. Coyotes feed primarily on small rodents and are found in low brushy areas adjacent to wood lots.

"Coyotes are very adaptable and I'm not surprised the numbers have continued to increase," said Reis. "The best hunting can be found in the northern two zones, but they are really expanding in Zone III, too."

Predator calls or hounds are the most productive techniques used to hunt coyotes.

DEER

Season: Archery season runs Oct. 1-Nov. 14 and Dec. 1-Jan. 1, statewide. Firearm season runs Nov. 15-30, statewide. Muzzleloading season runs Dec. 1-10 in Zone I and Dec. 8-17 in Zones II and III.

Bag limit: Three licenses available: one per license, but no more than two bucks with antlers three inches or longer. Archers may take an antlerless deer on their first archery license. Antlerless permits are also available and may be used during the firearms season, muzzleloading season and the second archery season. Antlerless permits allow a hunter to take an antlerless deer or a deer with antlers less than three inches. Sept. 24th is the deadline to apply for an anterless permit. The DNR is issuing 295,524 antlerless permits this year compared to 153,558 last year.

Overview: The whitetail deer is the most popular game animal

Local store plans to introduce all people to the great outdoors

BY CHRIS MAYER
STAFF WRITER

Mark Crissman's sixth-month stay in Colorado was long enough to convince him everyone should experience the natural beauty and tranquility the outdoors has to offer.

And whether it be hiking, climbing or even white water rafting on a fast-flowing West Virginia river, Crissman believes he is one person who can provide people in this area with those experiences.

"You can't even explain what being in the mountains can do for you," said Crissman, 27. "It's just one of those special things and I hope to get as many people out to areas like that to see what it's really like."

Crissman is the owner and managing partner of Rocky Mountain Outfitters, a downtown Rochester-based store with an impressive outdoors theme. Crissman and 25-year-old Bill Campbell, both Rochester Hills residents, are in the business of selling top-of-the line outdoors equipment, but currently they have their sights on a new venture — an adventure club.

"We've been talking about the club since the store opened in May of 1994," Crissman said. "The whole idea behind the project is there are a couple of stores in the area that sell the equipment we do, but nobody really gets involved in the travel and actually helping people get to that point. And we think there is just a mass of people out there that have heard about different trips and seen trips on television but don't know how to go about getting the information.

Enter Rocky Mountain Outfitters. Campbell, who will run the store's Adventure Travel Center, and Crissman want to introduce anyone who's interested to activities like hiking, climbing, kayaking, winter snowshoeing, backpacking and canoeing not only in Michigan but nationwide.

"We want to drive home the point how easy and accessible the outdoors is," Campbell said. "It's basically at your doorstep and you don't have to have any special skills. There are hikes that can accommodate handicapped people all the way to experienced mountaineers, so there's something everyone can do. But it's real important for people to understand and see that that could be them. It's just that easy."

The first club meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 20 at Rocky Mountain Outfitters (115 E. Fourth Street, just east of Main Street) where possible trip ideas will be discussed and organized. Crissman and Campbell said club members will have to pay dues, but in addition receive a 10-percent store credit. For every $100 spent in the store, $10 will be set aside good toward future store purchases, for example.

For more information regarding the club and the upcoming meeting, visit the store or call (810) 656-CAMP (2267).

"We want to be an information hub, and in turn that's when people get interested," Crissman said. "We have plans and we're working on it right now to have a full-service adventure travel center featuring anything from a kayaking trip here in Michigan to a hike somewhere in the United States. We would be what you call a middleman betweeen bigger companies that actually put on trips like that."

One trip on the horizon is the first annual RMO Whitewater Rafting Adventure. Rocky Mountain Outfitters, in conjunction with Appalachian Wildwaters, Michigan Motor Coach, 93.9 FM, The River and Woody's Outhouse in Ontario, will present the adventure Oct. 13-15 on the Upper HIKING

IT'S A HIKE

Michigan might be a bigger source for hiking than you think. Considering the 90-plus state parks and the various Metroparks and Oakland County Parks located throughout the state, you don't have to travel far to enjoy the area's natural beauty and appreciate what the outdoors has to offer.

Below is a capsule look at a prime hiking location that's relatively close to home. Furthermore, a comprehensive list of hiking spots follows.

PAINT CREEK TRAIL

Hikers wander through downtown Rochester and cross seven additional roads while traveling along this route which covers nine miles one-way.

Paint Creek Trail extends from the Clinton River at the Rochester-Utica Recreation Area to Lake Orion, interrupted briefly in downtown Rochester. Estimated total hiking time is four to five hours one-way.

The trail, which for the most part is a wooded path winding along a trout stream, touches ponds, grassy meadows, wetlands where various wildlife can be sighted.

Paint Creek Trail, which can be easily handled in tennis shoes and is a popular route for joggers, is accessible from almost a dozen spots where it crosses a road. One of the most scenic portions is a 2.4-mile stretch from Tienken Road to Gallagher Road and Paint Creek Cider Mill.

The southern trailhead is directly across from the Yates Cider Mill in the Rochester-Utica State Recreation Area, located on the corner of Dequindre and 23 Mile Road (Avon Road).

Other good spots to pick up the trail are Rochester Municipal Park at Pine Street, Tienken Road west of Rochester Road, Silver Bell Road west of Orion Road and at the corner of Clarkston and Kern roads in Bald Mountain Recreation Area. At all of these points, the trail is posted and space is available to park a vehicle.

For more information on the Paint Creek Trail or to pick up a trail map, visit the Rochester-Utica Recreation Area.

in the state with upward of 800,000 hunters participating in the annual seasons. Deer hunters are expected to have an excellent season this fall as the deer numbers have increased to between 1.8 to 2 million animals. Hunters took 362,410 deer in 1994, including 247,100 bucks. Firearm hunters took 228,800 deer including 172,940 bucks. Archers took 111,800 deer, including 62,190 bucks, and muzzleloading hunters took 21,801 deer, including 11,970 bucks.

"This should be an outstanding season for deer hunters," said DNR big game specialist Ed Langenau. "The herd is up to nearly 2 million animals. There are plenty of deer out there and in an effort to control the herd, we've issued double the antlerless permits from last year. The hunters who spend the time should have an outstanding season."

Still-hunting, baiting and driving are the most popular methods used to hunt deer.

DUCKS

Season: Sept. 30-Nov. 18 in the North Zone (Upper Peninsula); Oct. 7-Nov. 25 in the Middle Zone (northern Lower); Oct. 14-Dec. 2 in the South Zone (southern Lower).

Bag Limit: Five ducks per day including species limits as follows: four mallards, only one of which may be a female; two wood ducks; one black duck; one pintail; one redhead; one canvasback.

Overview: "Duck hunters should find very good hunting opportunities this year," said DNR waterfowl specialist Jerry Martz. "Two years ago the fall flight estimate was 59 million ducks. It went up to 71 million last year and is expected to be up to 80 million this fall.

Last year, 59,400 hunters harvested 248,000 ducks in Michigan. Martz expects that number to increase this fall.

"There's no doubt in my mind the harvest will increase," Martz said. "The season had been expanded from 40 days last year to 50 days this year and the bag limit is up to five, up from three last year. No doubt the harvest will be up. It should be a great year."

The DNR followed the lead of the U.S Fish and Wildlife Service and granted temporary approval for the use of bismuth-tin shot during the 1995-'96 waterfowl seasons.

ELK

Season: The elk season is divided into three separate hunts: Sept. 12-17, Sept. 19-24 and Dec. 12-19. Hunting is by special permit in designated areas of the northern Lower Peninsula only.

Bag Limit: One per season. The majority of the permits are for antlerless elk only but a few hunters choice permits are issued for each hunt. Successful hunters are not eligible to apply for a permit the next year.

Overview: Permits are issued through a lottery-style drawing. The September hunts have already been selected. Sept. 15 in the deadline to apply for the December hunt.

Michigan's elk herd disappeared in the late 1800s. Today's herd of 1,270 elk is a result of successful reintroduction efforts which began with the release of seven elk near Wolverine in 1918. The current elk seasons began in 1984 when 50 licenses were issued. This year, the DNR will issue 330 permits spread over the three hunt periods. Last year, 330 hunters took 250 elk.

"The fall population is down a little from last year, but we'd like to get it down even further to around 800 or 900 animals. There are just too many elk right now," said Langenau. "It still should be the same quality of hunt as we had last year. There are a few less animals, but not enough to affect the quality of the hunt."

FOX

Season: Oct. 15-March 1, statewide.

Bag Limit: There is no bag limit on fox.

Overview: The overall fox population is stable, but fox numbers are down in areas of the state where coyote numbers are on the rise. Coyotes antagonize fox since both animals compete for the same foods — primarily small rodents — and the coyote has a distinct size advantage.

"Generally, in areas with high coyote numbers you'll find that the fox have been displaced," explained Reis. "The best areas to look for fox is in fallow fields and brushy areas adjacent to wood lots and large lakes."

GEESE

Season: The early hunt runs through Friday in the Lower Peninsula. The regular goose seasons are Sept. 23-Nov. 4 in the North Zone (Upper Peninsula); Oct.7-Nov. 15 in the Middle Zone (northern Lower); Oct. 14-12 and Nov. 23-Dec. 2 in the South Zone (southern Lower) west of U.S. 27/127, Oct. 14- Nov. 2 and Nov. 23-Dec. 2 in the South Zone east of U.S. 27/127. Another special season will be held Jan. 6-Feb. 4 in the southern Michigan Goose Management Area.

Bag Limit: Two per day in the North Zone, Middle Zone, the second hunt period in the South Zone west of U.S. 27/127, and the special season in the southern Michigan Goose Management Area. One bird per day in the South Zone east of U.S. 27/127 and the first hunt period in the South Zone west of U.S. 27/127.

Overview: Michigan hunters set a record harvest of 138,000 geese last year, up nearly 32,000 from the previous record set in 1993. If the weather cooperates the 1995 season may again produce a new record.

"We've got some liberalizations in the bag limits and the length of the season in the northern part of the state and the southwestern part of the state, where most of the geese are," said Martz. "The fall flight prediction is about 1.3 million. With all that in mind, I think we certainly will have another excellent Canada goose season. We should harvest over 100,000 birds."

The season on Snow geese begins with the Canada goose season and ends with the duck season. Michigan gets a few Snow geese, primarily on the western side of the state. Hunters annually harvest approximately 500 Snow geese

Marshy areas with open water and grain fields near open water are great spots to find geese. Decoys and a retrievers are essential.

GROUSE

Season: Sept. 14-Nov. 14, statewide. Dec. 1-Jan. 1 in Zone II and Zone III.

Bag Limit: Five per day in Zone II, three per day in Zones I and III.

Overview: Grouse numbers have been very low in recent years. Upward of 120,000 hunters took just 204,000 birds statewide last year, substantially down from the record harvest of 830,000 recorded in 1974.

The good news is that the grouse population has begun to increase. The spring drumming survey was up 43-percent statewide. It was up 47-percent in the Upper, 58-percent in the northern Lower, but down 23-percent in the southern Lower.

"The grouse population is still at a low level, explained DNR upland gamebird specialist John Urbain. "It turned the corner last year and increased a little this year, but we still have a long way to go to get back to where we were."

Grouse are usually hunted behind a dog and are often found in tag alder and young aspen thickets and around raspberrys, blackberrys, thorn apples and cherrys.

PHEASANT

Season: Oct. 1-Oct. 20 in Zone I. Oct. 20-Nov. 14 in Zone II and III. A special late season will be held Dec. 1-15 in the south/central portion of Zone III.

Bag Limits: Two male birds per day.

Overview: Last year, 118,000 hunters took nearly 200,000 birds, up 10,000 from the 1993 harvest. This year's crowing index and mail carrier survey are both down.

"Last winter's bitter cold didn't last long, but we had a few ice storms and they took their toll," said Urbain. "Our preliminary indications are that the birds are down a little bit. They were a little late breeding this spring, which means our surveys were a little early, so that would contribute to the lower surveys. Overall, I think hunters will find a similar experience to what they found last year."

The 10-year-old Sichuan introduction program is coming to an end. The last plant of the Sichuan pheasant will take place next spring when 25,000 birds are released in Kent, Montcalm and Muskegon counties. The program has been a disappointment to wildlife managers and hunters as well. Research indicates the release of the Sichuan has shown no increase in pheasant numbers in the release area.

Pheasants are usually hunted behind a dog and are often found in hay and corn fields.

RABBIT

Season: Sept. 15-March 31, statewide.

Bag Limit: Five per day

Overview: The cottontail rabbit is second only to the whitetail deer in popularity with upward of 300,000 people annually hunting rabbits. Last year, hunters harvested close to 1.1 million rabbits and that success should continue this year.

"The cottontail rabbit is abundant throughout its range, especially in the Lower Peninsula" said Reis. "Rabbit hunters can expect to find excellent hunting again this year. They're all over the place."

The best way to hunt rabbits is behind a beagle, but hunters also experience some success while stomping brush piles and working brushy cover along fence rows and the edges of woodlots.

RACCOON

Season: Oct. 1-Jan. 31, statewide.

Bag Limit: There is no bag limit on raccoons.

Overview: Last year, hunters took better that 150,000 raccoons and can expect similar success in 1995.

As far as the club's early stages, Crissman and Campbell are pointing toward local hikes (guided and self-guided) as a springboard for bigger and better adventures.

"We just believe that (Michigan) is where you have to start because there are so many people that don't even realize what there is here," Crissman said. "If you can introduce them to that then I think people woule be much more interested and inclined to take a trip to the Rocky Mountains. I lived in Colorado for six months and that's just an area that is accessible and incredibly gorgeous.

"We will structure the hikes a bit and if we have a group within the club that wants to hike a little more extensive trail, you can do that as well. At first we want to say, 'These are the hikes we are going to do', but after that hopefully the group will decide what the next hike is going to be."

Driven by the idea that RMO can be "your passport to the ultimate outdoor adventure", Crissman and Campbell are steadfast in their beliefs that most people can learn to appreciate the outdoors as much as they do.

"I would say the mental benefits are more beneficial than the physical because you can walk for 10 minutes, but if it's a real spectacular place you'll simply spend hours just taking everything in," Campbell said.

"There's nothing better than getting out and doing a nice hike on a crisp September or October day," Crissman said. "You just come back and you feel great. You feel rejuvenated and that's why it's good to get people outside."

MESC to produce state job analysis

The Michigan Employment Security Commission has produced an analysis of job distribution in southeast Michigan and plans to do the same for the whole state by the end of next year.

"We undertook the project to meet the needs of transportation agencies and business and government planners for detailed information on the location of jobs," MESC Director Robert Edwards said in a press release. "The project's first phase, covering the seven-county metropolitan Detroit area, is complete, and job tabulations have been developed for the region's communities. The next phase, comprising the remainder of Michigan, will be completed in 1996."

The Southeast Michigan Council of Governments and the Michigan Department of Transportation, along with MESC, have funded the project.

"We entered this partnership because these data offer the most detailed view of jobs in southeast Michigan, and we are now using the data in our forecasting and planning efforts," John Amberger, SEMCOG executive director, said. "The data can and will be used by businesses, research organizations, economic developers and others for industry and regional analyses, impact studies and to assess the relative strength of communities for possible business investment."

Based upon extensive research and mapping of business establishments, MESC can now tabulate job data for individual communities and parts of communities.

To achieve this geographic detail, MESC researchers put the data through a process called "geo-coding."

"Geo-coding is a powerful computerized mapping process that assigns a geographic identifier to every business location," Edwards said. "MESC is one of the first state employment agencies in the country to have geo-coded business locations and will regularly update the information to give our customers the most current data."

According to the geo-coding of southeast Michigan, Detroit is the largest employment center in the region with 317,000 jobs.

The number of jobs in Detroit is three times the number in Southfield, the second largest employment center with 97,600 jobs.

The cities of Warren, Troy, Dearborn, Livonia, Ann Arbor, Sterling Heights, Farmington Hills and Pontiac round out the top 10 communities with the largest number of jobs and

401(k): Choices for employer, employee

Thoughts of retirement frequently cross the mind of every employee. Those thoughts have often been followed by the question, "Is it a possibility or merely a dream?"

The Labor Department in Washington, D.C. released some startling figures about employer-funded pension plans. From 1990 to mid-year 1994, there were 5,700 employer-defined benefit plans discontinued by corporations. It is estimated that over 2 million workers were left without general retirement pension plans.

The way retirement plans are being funded today depends more on the contribution of the employee than the employer. Corporations have replaced defined benefit plans with the defined contribution plan, often referred to as the 401(k) plan. Many small companies are adopting them as their main pension program as well.

The 401(k) refers to a section of the Internal Revenue Code that was passed by Congress in 1978. A 401(k) allows employees who participate in the plan to contribute a portion of their current compensation to the plan on a pretax basis. Many changes have taken place in the code since it began, and it has grown into an enormously popular employee benefit.

From the employer's point of view there are a number of reasons to offer a 401(k) to employees. It is a low-cost means of providing a visible and appreciated retirement benefit to employees. It can be offered as a sole retirement plan or as a supplement to an existing plan. For a cash-strapped employer, a 401(k) can help the employer address pressures for additional cash compensation without significant cost.

The 401(k) can also be used as a vehicle to attract and retain qualified employees. If the plan allows for the purchase of employer stock, it can increase an employee's sense of corporate identity.

Some of the disadvantages of a 401(k) from the employer's perspective can be the administration cost and its complexity. Usually only larger corporations can afford to maintain internal staff to administer the plan. Otherwise, a third party administrator has to be hired. A 401(k) also requires intensive communication throughout its life cycle. Without proper communication and education the effectiveness of the plan as an employee benefit can be lost.

Reviewing the employee's perspective, the 401(k) offers a unique opportunity to save federal and state income taxes. The tax sheltered and deferred growth of the account make it an ideal vehicle for retirement savings. Ultimately, taxes paid by the employee may be lower at retirement or when the funds are withdrawn.

Other advantages for the employee include flexibility and a choice of investments, depending on the plan's investment options. The employee can elect when and how much to defer within IRS limits. The availability of loans and hardship withdrawals means that invested funds can be used when personal financial circumstances change.

With more corporations offering 401(k) plans, the employees may have the ability to transfer their account if they should change employers.

The disadvantages for an employee can include withdrawal rules of restricted access before retirement or at termination of employment. A 10-percent early withdrawal penalty before the age of 59½ can be significant when added to the normal income tax liability. If the plan allows for an employee to choose an investment and the employee makes poor choices, the future value of the account may not meet the employee's future financial needs.

Building a retirement plan is essential. The Labor Department has launched a national campaign to draw attention to retirement planning and the need for higher savings, including better use of 401(k) programs. Especially for smaller companies with limited resources, the 401(k) is often less expensive and an easier option. Companies do not have to contend with as many regulations and reporting requirements as with other deferred plans.

Corporations need to seriously consider this retirement plan for their employees if they do not have one in place.

Employees should be asking their employer for a plan and then making the fullest possible use of it. It is one of the best investments they can make.

Ford Taurus, Mercury Sable get new look for '96

With their exterior styling, spacious interiors and powerful motors, the new Ford Taurus and Mercury Sable are completely redesigned for 1996.

Just as the 1986 Taurus and Sable changed the way buyers thought about four-door sedans, the 1996 models introduce buyers to an innovative shape that embodies the form contains function concept.

"With these new models, we aimed for tension and tautness in the design to express the energy beneath the surface," said Ford spokesman Jack Telnack. "We wanted a one-piece overall silhouette, a seamless quality with everything integrated."

New features for 1996 include:

- Greater body strength and structural rigidity.
- A redesigned 3.0-liter Vulcan V-6 engine and a new 3.0-liter, 24-valve Duratec V-6 modular engine, both requiring only fluid and filter changes for 100,000 miles under normal driving conditions.
- A front suspension system that offers improved handling, greater steering precision and reduced noise, vibration and harshness.
- Improved braking system that provides better pedal feel.
- Improvements in heating, ventilation and air-conditioning performance.

Elliptical theme

From the start, both cars were designed with an elliptical theme that is carried throughout, even in the cross section of the car. The hood surface flows into the windshield, and the rear window flows into the deck to achieve a seamless look. The front and rear fenders wrap smoothly into the bodyside, and the high shoulder ties together the front and rear.

The greenhouse is large and open, with the overall glass area increased 28 percent from the previous models. The bodyside has more curved shape, or plan view, from the front of the car to the rear than any car in the segment.

Packaging efficiency and the smoothness of the new shapes paid off in aerodynamic terms.

The hood profile is low, with reduced cowl and fender height. The base of the windshield at centerline has been moved seven inches forward to improve appearance and aerodynamics.

Rounded corners, softened shapes and extended windshield make the cars appear to be the same size or smaller than the original Taurus and Sable. In reality, the Taurus sedan has grown 5.4 inches in length and Sable sedan 7.5 inches. They are nearly 2 inches wider overall than the previous models.

Wagon models retain a family resemblance by repeating the elliptical theme that characterizes the sedans. Much of their design was carried out in a wind tunnel, resulting in superb aerodynamics and a coefficient of drag of 0.34.

Taurus offers a unique, sculpted, open grille flanked by bright, nickel-chrome-plated headlamp housings with jewel-like complex reflector lamps.

All secondary design details continue the design theme. The door handles, grille, lower bumper openings, headlamps and rear window all have an oval shape.

From the rear, Taurus features full-width, three-color tail lamps with a design contour that wraps into the decklid to mimic a spoiler. Mercury Sable has its own personality. "During customer research, many thought Mercury Sable was one of the most beautiful vehicles ever designed," said Ford spokesman Keith Magee. "Customers thought Mercury Sable was an expensive luxury import model."

Sable is longer

Mercury Sable is longer than Taurus, and the Sable rear window is extended, resulting in a longer roof line and a longer rear deck.

Mercury Sable features a bright grill edge with bright inset turn signals. The bodyside window-surround mouldings are bright, and the protective bodyside moulding has a bright insert. The greenhouse has a different profile than Taurus.

A more formal rear window, sloping decklid and separate tail lamps distinguish the Sable rear view from that of Taurus.

Attention to detail and occupant comfort characterize the redesigned Taurus and Sable interior. Mirroring the seamless exterior design, the interior features an instrument panel and dashboard that flow into the door design. The touch areas of the instrument panels, sun visors, door

State retailers say new SBT Senate bill favors big firms

State retailers are beating their drums against a Senate-passed bill that would provide a $217 million tax "windfall" to a handful of large corporations and none to the majority of Michigan's 189,000 business taxpayers.

Today's legislative testimony by a national tax expert and the Michigan Department of Treasury shows why lawmakers should kill Senate Bill 342 — which would change Michigan's Single Business Tax (SBT) in unfair and harmful ways — and come up with more broad-based business tax relief, the Michigan Retailers Association (MRA) said.

Professor Walter Hellerstein, of the University of Georgia Law School, testified before the House Tax Policy Committee last week that his research shows Senate Bill 342 "may well trigger retaliation by other states that will ultimately come back to haunt local businesses."

Nick Khouri, chief deputy state treasurer, said the department is opposed to SB 342. He called the bill "inappropriate budget policy and unwise tax policy."

Hellerstein and Khouri testified on the Senate-approved bill to change the formula for determining the tax base of companies operating in Michigan and other states.

"Today's testimony clearly shows that SB 342 is unfair, unwise and unconstitutional legislation," said Peter Kuhnmuench, MRA's vice president of governmental affairs. "We continue to urge lawmakers to scuttle the current bill and change the SBT to provide broad-based relief to the tens of thousands of business taxpayers in this state."

The Michigan Retailers Association represents more than 4,400 retail business members operating more than 8,000 stores.

MDOT to double bridge funding

The Michigan Department of Transportation (M-DOT) plans to double its bridge investments in 1996 and increase road preservation.

Spending on bridges will go to $110 million from the current $65 million. Preservation of existing roads go to $310 million a year under the State Transportation Improvement Program, according to M-DOT director Patrick Nowak.

STIP is a three-year statewide plan of specific projects across Michigan that are expected to be constructed during construction seasons of 1996 through 1998.

"We thank our customers for their involvement in the development of the State Long Range Plan which was used as a guiding force in developing M-DOT's STIP," said Nowak.

The State Long Range Plan (SLRP) is the result of a year-long effort, with input of thousands of customers, helping M-DOT identify what is important to them in terms of transportation improvements. Specific projects were selected and prioritized through a cooperative effort between local governments, planning organizations and M-DOT.

In addition, projects must often be tested for consistency with federal air quality regulations.

The STIP must be approved by the Federal Highway Administration and the Federal Transit Administration by Sept. 30. Public input is required by federal law.

For the first time, Taurus and Sable feature a fully integrated control panel to house all entertainment and environmental controls in a central arrangement.

New seats provide improved lateral and lumbar support in stylish sew patterns and luxurious materials. Resistance to fabric wear, marking and fading has been improved. Taurus and Sable seat five passengers with front bucket seats, or six passengers with bench seats. A fold-down rear seat is standard. An integrated child seat is planned for the wagon models.

On six-passenger models, a patented three-way flip-fold console converts from a center front seat with safety belt to an armrest or a center console. The console provides storage space for audiocassettes, cups, coins and other items.

Buyers will have a choice of two V-6 engines, each with a 100,000-mile scheduled tune-up interval under normal driving conditions with routine fluid and filter changes.

Engine stats

An enhanced 3.0-liter overhead-valve Vulcan V-6 is rated at 145 horsepower at 4525 rpm, developing 170 foot-pounds of torque at 3250 rpm. The redesigned Vulcan V-6 engine that is standard on the Taurus GL and Sable GS includes changes to every major system and resulted in substantially improved NVH characteristics.

A new, 3.0-liter 24-valve DOHC V-6 Duratec engine will be standard on the Taurus LX and the Sable LS. It uses a reinforced aluminum engine block with ribbing added for extra strength and lower operating noise. The engine is rated at 200 horsepower at 5750 rpm with 200 foot-pounds of torque at 4500 rpm. Both V-6 engines are managed by an EEC-V electronic engine control module, the newest of Ford's computerized engine controllers. The control module provides onboard diagnostic capability that allows the car to continuously monitor powertrain performance.

Outstanding driving dynamics result from an anti-dive/anti-lift suspension system and stiffer body structure for improved ride, handling and noise control. By reducing steering component friction and steering free play, better steering response, precision and feel are achieved.

Safety features

Taurus and Sable have safety features, too. A safety engineering system consisting of safety cell body structure, integrated 5-mph bumpers and side door beams help protect occupants during collisions. The protective impact-absorbing system meets 1997 Federal Dynamic Side Impact requirements.

Both vehicles offer the Passive Anti-Theft System on the high-series Ford Taurus LX and the Mercury Sable LS models. The system provides a unique electronic signature for each car by matching a specially coded ignition key with a sensor in the vehicle. The system prevents the vehicle from starting with an improperly coded key or by hot-wiring.

Research firm will catalog Internet information

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

An area research company is in the forefront of trying to catalog in a meaningful and functional way the vast resources of the Internet.

Gale Research, located in Detroit's Penobscot Building, is a leading reference publisher with more than 480 active data bases. It serves the needs of libraries, businesses, nonprofits, and consumers by offering print, online and CD-ROM products.

Earlier this year, the "Gale Guide to Internet Databases" was released and is now available in an easy to use print edition with a master index that cites more than 8,000 references to databases (2,000), organizations, hosts, and publications. A subject index lists almost 1,300 specific subject terms and points users to entries in a descriptive listing.

A problem with any print directory of the Internet is that some of the listings may become outdated, or new listings missed, before the book reaches the printer. But anyone who attempts to catalog the Internet fully realizes this. Gale deals with this with an online site to keep current information before users. Although you will never find a current listing in print, Gale comes as close as anyone else who has tackled this likely impossible challenge.

The challenge is well-expressed by this quote from the Center for Electronic Texts in the Humanities: "The Internet is like using a library where the shelves keep moving, there is no catalog, and an extra truckload of books is dumped in the entrance hall every hour." Anyone who has spent time on the Internet knows this to be true.

In non-technical language, the Gale Guide gives information on how to access major government, academic, research, educational and pop culture databases via multiple access paths including Gopher, Telnet, FTP, e-mail and Universal Resource Locator (URL) addresses for Websites.

Each descriptive listing in the guide contains a description of the database and details on how to access it via the Internet. An entry may contain as many as 24 items, such as retrieval and download information, search routines, geographic and time span coverage, related mailing lists, update frequency, fees and other information.

For instance, a listing that caught my eye was "Historical Costuming." This site can be accessed by Gopher with the address gopher://rice-info.rice.edu/11/subject/textiles/hist.cost.

The site is described as covering a wide range of historical authenticity with patterns that require a wide range of textile skills, including pattern drafting skills. Main files in this database include: About Historical Costuming; Civil War Era Re-enactment; Contributors to Historical Costuming; Good Sources of Costuming Information; Period Fabric Sources; Seminole War Re-enactments and Frontier Costuming, and more.

The host is listed as Rice University and a contat person is Shelly Johnson, e-mail shel@rice.edu.

Another interesting listing was the Whole Frog Project which provides high school biology classes the ability to explore the anatomy of a frog by using data from high resolution MRI imaging and from mechanical sectioning along with 3D surface and volume rendering software to visualize the anatomical structures of the intact animal. The host is Lawrence Berkeley Laborratory in Berkeley, Calif., and the URL is http://george.lbl.gov or by Anonymous FTP at george.lbl.gov with the directory being pub/Whole Frog.

The guide also has a Host/Provider index with names of organizations that maintain or provide data for the databases — bibliographic, image, numeric, software, bulletin boards, dictionary and statistical types. The White Pages is a list of names and e-mail addresses of people to contact for more information on individual databases.

There also is an Alternative Formats Index that tells users the names of Internet databases that are available in other formats, such as CD-ROM, diskettes, or magnetic tape. There's also the usual glossary of Internet terms and a bibliography of the latest Internet books and resources.

What I found especially interesting was a Specialized Home Page Directory of some 120 sites on such topics as animals, telecommunications, cultures, history, law, philosophy, sports, etc., that are free on the Internet.

The home page directory of WWW sites also can be accessed online with a Web browser by pointing to http://www.thomson.com/gale.html. And that brings me to what for some is another problem with the guide. The asking price for the Gale Guide is $95 which is quite reasonable for business, government, and research groups but a bit stiff for individual users.

Small firms dread visit from state safety agency

If Michigan business owners are afraid to call in the state's top safety agency, how can they improve safety in the workplace?

That's the dilemma facing small-business owners, who dread a visit from the Michigan Occupational Safety and Health Administration almost as much as a social call from the IRS.

"There is a perception that MIOSHA exists primarily to punish rather than assist the small-business owner, " said Charlie Owens, state director of the National Federation of Independent Business/Michigan.

"MIOSHA rules and regulations are so voluminous and complicated that any business, regardless of effort or safety record, likely will be cited for a rule violation of some sort."

Voluntary inspections can lead to unexpected fines.

According to Owens, business owners who voluntarily request MIOSHA's assistance often are frustrated to find that a subsequent inspection by the agency will result in citations for violations not addressed in the voluntary inspection.

While small-business owners fear the financial penalties MIOSHA can levy, there is concern that the screws may be turned even tighter.

MIOSHA has received written criticisms in the past from OSHA for not levying as many fines or large enough fines to suit the federal organization.

"The unfortunate result is most small-business owners do not see OSHA and MIOSHA as agencies encouraging safety on the job," Owens said.

MHA seeks partnerships to immunize more children

■ 'This recent study is added impetus for many hospitals and health providers to redouble their immunization efforts, but we cannot solve this serious problem alone. It's imperative that we get help from parents and communities.'

MHA President Spencer Johnson

The Michigan Hospital Association said it recognized two years ago that state toddlers rank last in the nation in childhood immunization. MHA said it will continue its "long-term aggressive activities to immunize children."

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control recently reported that only 61 percent of Michigan toddlers are fully immunized.

"Hospitals and health providers have understood for many years that timely and complete immunization of children is the best way to keep them healthy both today and tomorrow," said MHA President Spencer Johnson.

"This recent study is added impetus for many hospitals and health providers to redouble their immunization efforts, but we cannot solve this serious problem alone. It's imperative that we get help from parents and communities."

MHA, in partnership with the Michigan Osteopathic Hospital Association, said it recognized the dire situation in Michigan two years before the Centers for Disease Control study came out and initiated its "AIM" program. AIM, the Alliance for Immunization in Michigan, is a volunteer network of health providers and state and local agencies that seek to immunize at least 90 percent of Michigan children under five years of age.

State law requires that children be immunized before beginning elementary school, but many diseases that are preventable with immunizations strike before that time.

Last year the MHA along with the Michigan Nurses Association, the Michigan Department of Public Health, the Michigan Home Health Association, and the Michigan Association for Public Health produced and distributed an instructional video to help health professionals recognize opportunities for immunization of young children.

MHA is looking at innovative approaches from other states to step up immunization levels. For instance, efforts in South Carolina and Virginia have been implemented that could dramatically boost immunization rates.

"We will continue to take every opportunity to see that Michigan's children are immunized,' said Johnson. Hospitals and other health providers are expanding their immunization services, taking advantage of unrelated emergency room visits to immunize children, cultivating relationships with local health departments, and educating the community on the necessity of early immunizations."

The MHA is a statewide trade organization representing hospitals, health providers, and other organizations interested in improving the overall health status of Michigan residents.

Comerica forecasts slow growth

Comerica Bank's "recession watch index," which forecasts the probability of a national recession occurring within the next 12 months, registered 48 percent in August — the same as in July but up six points from June.

"August represents the first time this year the Recession Watch Index did not register an increase," said William T. Wilson, vice president and economist at Detroit-based Comerica Bank.

"Our index is forecasting slow-to-modest economic growth through the remainder of 1995, before turning anemic in 1996. It is important to note that the index is still not calling for a full-fledged recession like the ones that occurred in 1981-82 or 1990-91," Wilson said.

Comerica's recession watch index is a weighted average of three leading indicators: spread in the yield curve, adjusted bank reserve growth, and the Commerce Department's Index of Leading Indicators. The index forecasts the probability of recession or an economic slowdown over the next 12 months.

NEW HOMES

Quality is the theme for this upscale subdivision

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

The two builders in the second phase of Woods of Orchard Lake in West Bloomfield offer plenty of amenities at no extra cost and promise quality construction and attention to detail to buyers of their upscale houses.

"We do a lot of custom building," said Stuart L. Michaelson, president of Stewart Homes.

Standard features in all houses include three-car garage, fireplace, air conditioning, oven, cooktop and dishwasher, first floor laundry, whirlpool tub in master suite, recessed lighting package, crown moldings and basement.

Stewart's prices range from $384,900 for a 3,650-square-foot two-story with four bedrooms and 2½ baths to $332,900 for a 2,710-square-foot two-story with three bedrooms and 2½ baths.

Summit's prices go from $350,900 for 3,300-square-foot colonials with four bedrooms and 2½ baths to $312,000 for a 2,900-square-foot colonial with four bedrooms and three baths.

"West Bloomfield schools — that's the number one selling point," said Rick Ankofsky, sales rep for Summit.

"We aren't exposed to traffic, and we're not near major roads," said Aziz Haridy, sales rep for Stewart.

"There is no typical buyer," Ankofsky added. "You have professionals, the merchant class. They all have one thing in common. They work hard."

"It may be their third build," Polsinelli said. "Transferees you get a lot of. Younger people 30 to 45. Lots of kids."

"People like privacy," Michaelson said. "It's amazing how they want to be backing up to woodlands, preserve areas."

The main floor features a living room with cathedral ceiling, a study with an 11-foot ceiling, family room with fireplace and pan ceiling, and kitchen/eating nook with an island, built-in desk and pantry.

A butler's pantry is between the kitchen and dining room. The staircase has steps going up off the main foyer and the kitchen.

Three other upstairs bedrooms share a full bath.

The model, which features upgrades like wood paneling, a third full bath upstairs and modifications to the second bath, partially-finished basement plus landscaping, is stickered at $419,900.

Stewart's model, the Dunston, 3,650 square feet, has a base price of $384,900.

A more formal great room and dining room run across one end of the house, a more contemporary kitchen/eating nook/family room combination across the back.

A large walk-in pantry and butler's pantry are between the kitchen and dining room. The kitchen also has a built-in desk.

A library is off the main foyer.

Upstairs, the master features a pair of walk-in closets, dual-sink vanity, separate tub and shower and tray ceiling. Three other bedrooms share a full bath.

The on-site model, with a completely finished lower level walkout, landscaping and an extra fireplace on a lot overlooking a pond is priced at $542,000.

Stewart offers seven other plans.

Exterior materials on all Summit and Stewart models include brick and wood siding — no vinyl or aluminum.

Woods of Orchard Lake is serviced by city water and sewers. There are no sidewalks.

The property tax rate is now $30.36 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $360,000 house would pay nearly $5,500 the first year.

Kathy and Michael Gulli bought a Bradford from Summit.

"One of our criteria was to have our daughter in an excellent school system," Kathy said. "We like the exteriors of the homes here, brick exteriors. We were attracted by quality. Lots are very wooded.

"We like the floor plan. It's a very popular feature to have a step-up master, split staircases. We did like the jack-and-jill bathroom. As the girls get older, they each have their own sink.

The Stewart model, (810) 363-6161, and the Summit model, (810) 360-2499, at Woods of Orchard Lake are open 1-6 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

Insulate your house yourself

Most homeowners cite energy savings as the primary reason for upgrading their insulation to the standards recommended for the area in which they live. But after this last summer, many also do so to make their houses more comfortable during hot summer months. More insulation also means lower electrical bills.

You can obtain a free copy of the "Homeowners' Insulation Guide," No. RIG-505, from your home products dealer or by writing to the Product Information Center for Schuller GoldLine insulation, Schuller International Inc., PO Box 5108, Denver CO 80217.

Create a distinctive exterior with vinyl siding

■ For more information on Wolverine American Legend vinyl siding, Exterior Design System or any Wolverine product, call 1-800-452-2152 or write Wolverine Technologies, Product Information Specialists, 17199 Laurel Park Drive North, Livonia, MI 48152.

If you're looking to re-side your house with a material that allows you to express personal style, consider vinyl.

Today's vinyl siding and accessories can help you achieve the house style of your dreams. You can recapture a house's historic past or invent a fresh, contemporary look. Vinyl is a practical choice, too, because it's durable, easy to maintain and works well with other building and landscaping materials such as brick, wood and stucco.

Wolverine Technologies of Livonia, a leading manufacturer of vinyl building products, has one of the industry's largest selections of siding styles, finishes, trim, accessories and colors.

"When selecting siding for your home — whether to enhance your home's current look or give it a total makeover — remember that success is in the details," said Walter A. Hoyt, director of marketing. Details to consider include the style of the panel, exposure or profile width, texture, finish, accessories and color.

If you seem to find the details overwhelming, don't fret. Hoyt recommends five helpful steps for creating a beautiful, customized house exterior.

1. Select a siding panel. A siding panel's profile refers to its silhouette, which can be flat or can have a shaped contour such as a beaded or bevel edge. You should compare panel's exposures or profile widths, which typically range from three to eight inches. A panel's texture can be smooth or wood-grained. Wolverine siding features a low-gloss finish and looks like freshly painted clapboard, according to Hoyt.

For a classic look that's reflective of early American houses in seaboard states and quite popular today across the country, Wolverine offers its American Legend siding, available in three profiles and 10 colors. American Legend features an exclusive design feature called Grip Lock that enables installers to "snap" panels together, creating a secure lock for increased stiffness, less sag and attractive installations, according to Hoyt.

2. Next, select trim elements, which include corner posts and window and door surrounds. Corner posts can be wide or narrow, flat or fluted with round or square edges, depending upon the style you wish to achieve. Window and door surrounds can a simple, for a modern streamlinrd look, or intricately detailed to duplicate historic styles.

3. Consider your accessory options such as beaded panels for soffits, porch ceilings and exterior wainscoting. Vinyl lattice is low-maintenance and works well for exterior porches and stairs.

4. Think about dramatic accents such as fishscale shingles in round, square or octagonal shapes for gable and dormer areas. These shapes, traditionally used on Victorian-style houses, can add flair to any house style. You may also wish to apply siding diagonally on dormered areas or vertically for a striking touch.

5. Design with color. Hoyt recommends selecting a siding color thatcomplements your existing roof. You can choose trim colors that complement or contrast with your siding. Select a monochromatic color scheme to enhance any style house from traditional to modern. For a more dramatic effect and to accentuate a house's details, use a contrasting trim color. To facilitate the color selection process, certified Wolverine dealers can provide you with an Exterior Color System guide which provides the opportunity to mix and match panel and trim colors with the roof's color.

To assist homeowners further, Wolverine offers its Exterior Design System, a total systems approach to exterior finishes, which allows you to combine trim elements, textures and coordinating colors with vinyl siding and accessories.

"Vinyl eliminates concerns over value, durability and maintenance," said Hoyt. "You can focus on the more fun aspects of re-siding — creating a home exterior that's as individual as you are."

Reroofing involves more than choosing shingle colors

When it is time to replace their roof, most homeowners concern themselves with choosing an attractive style and leave the rest up to their contractor.

Because roof replacement requires a considerable investment, homeowners should know all the facts when discussing re-roofing options with their contractor. A little knowledge can go a long way,especially when it comes to the life of your roof.

Take home ventilation for example, a topic directly affecting a home's roof. "We've found that many homeowners are unaware of the need for roof ventilation," said Marianne Horvat, director of marketing, Air Vent Inc., Peoria Heights, Ill., a leading manufacturer of ridge ventilation products. "For instance, an improperly ventilated attic can cause heat and moisture to become trapped under the roof's deck, which can result in damage to shingles and the roof structure. Also, an unventilated attic can invalidate your shingle warranty."

Poor attic ventilation can also lead to ice dams. This occurs in the Snowbelt region when heat from the attic combined with heat from the sun melt snow on the roof and the resultant water flows down the roof and refreezes at the eaves. This ice build-up can distort gutters and settle under roof shingles, causing damage. As the ice begins to melt, water can leak behind wall cavities resulting in damage to ceilings and walls.

While there are many roof ventilation systems on the market, a balanced system of soffit and continuous ridge vents provides the most efficient ventilation method, according to Horvat.

Soffit vents, installed under the eaves of a home, provide an inlet of air flow. Ridge vents, installed across the entire roof's peak, or ridge, supply an outlet for air flow. According to Horvat, this system aids in reducing heat build-up and excess moisture, and helps to keep the roof deck temperature uniform. Because ridge vents help keep roof decks cool in winter, they also help prevent ice dams, which leads to a longer-lasting roof.

"A ridge vent is a great system to use, but it must have an external baffle such as the kind built into Air Vent's ShingleVent II ridge vent to work most efficiently," said Horvat. A ridge vent, installed over a slot cut at the ridge of the roof, provides proper ventilation through two kinds of air movement: warm air rising in the attic and being expelled at the highest point in the roof;and wind passing over the ridge and creating negative pressure which pulls air and moisture out of the attic. The external baffle helps to create negative pressure by directing air up and over the vent.

According to Horvat, independent testing by Pittsburgh Testing Laboratories has concluded that ridge vent systems with internal baffles or no baffles do not create the desired negative air pressure essential in an efficient ventilation system.

ShingleVent II is a shingle-over ridge vent, which means the vent is covered with shingles so it blends with the roof. It provides 18 square inches of net free ventilation per linear foot. When used in combination with balanced soffit venting, ShingleVent II provides superior ventilation, equal to or greater than any other ridge vent in the industry.

ShingleVent II features a patented weather filter which provides a more complete barrier against weather and insect infiltration. According to Horvat, no other ridge vent manufacturer offers this weather filter and external baffle system combination.

The streamlined appearance of ShingleVent II provides an added benefit to homeowners. Compared to other ventilation systems such as roof or turbine vents, ridge vents blend naturally with the roof line, and from the ground are nearly invisible. ShingleVent II also comes with a 30-year limited transferable warranty.

"Put simply, installing a ridge vent system like ShingleVent II is a smart decision when re-roofing your home," said Horvat. "They're usually no more expensive to install than conventional ventilation systems."

Once you're familiar with ventilation options, it's important that your roofing contractor is, too. When selecting contractor to perform the work, th National Roofing Contractors Association (NRCA) recommends that you prequalify the company to ensure the job is done right. The association offers a number of tips when evaluating roofing contractors:

1) Check for a permanent place of business, tax identification number and where appropriate, a business license.

2) Insist on seeing copies of their liability coverage and workers' compensation certificates.

3) Look for a company with a proven track record that readily offers client references and a list of completed projects.

For more information about ShingleVent II, any other Air Vent product or for a free copy of Air Vent's informational brochure, "Ridge Vent Airflow Performance Tests," write to: Air Vent Inc., 4801 N. Prospect Road, Peoria Heights, IL 61614: or call 800 247 8368.

NEW HOMES

Prestwick Village Golf Club offers amenities now

Traveling to such destinations as Florida, Arizona, or the Carolinas, many of us have seen the beautiful lifestyle communities offering private amenities to their residents. Metropolitan Detroit can now boast of a similar lifestyle community.

Prestwick Village Golf Club is located on M-59 in Highland Township, just north of the Village of Milford. The development encompasses 426 acres of natural rolling terrain, woodlands and picturesque lakes. There are 306 half-acre custom homesites. To date, a third of the homesites have been sold in less than twelve months.

"Our sales success is due to the quality of our amenities, the lifestyle our community will provide, and the price point of our homes" stated Managing General Partner Roy Gaddey.

"The theory behind Prestwick Village was why do people in Michigan have to wait until retirement, or buy a second home to enjoy this type of lifestyle? We have now provided the quality lifestyle people are looking for."

Garl has designed more than 100 courses worldwide, including 10 of the top 50 ranked courses in Florida, including Fiddlesticks CC, Golden Ocala GC, Grenelefe South GC, University Park CC, TPC at Prestancia, Bloomingdales GC, and the Palm Beach Polo & CC.

"Seven holes will look like a northern Michigan course with heavy woods. Six holes will look like Florida with water coming into play. The remaining five holes will have a Carolina look with large sand & waste bunkers," Gaddey explained.

Prestwick Village's Signature Par 3 17th Hole

In most cases homes will be located only on one side of the fairway, so members will not have the feeling of playing through a subdivision.

One other feature of the golf course is its size. "The course is 25% wider than a normal golf course. This was done so the homes do not sit so close to the golf course, and to protect the integrity of the course." stated Gaddey.

Construction of the course will be completed by the end of this month, with a Summer 1996 opening planned.

In addition to the private championship golf course, other amenities will include a 20,000 square foot clubhouse, a pool & tennis center, 26 acre golf practice facility, 9 hole putting course and cross country skiing.

The half-acre+ lots range from $60,000 to $119,000 and include the $19,000 membership to the club.

Home builders for the development include Carlson Homes of Highland Township, JAL Properties of Novi, Master Craft Development of Milford, Newport Homes of Commerce Township and Triangle Development of Southfield.

Gaddey said homes will range from $240,000 to $600,000, with the average home costing approximately $375,000.

Prestwick Village is located in the center of the Highland Recreation area which provides additional recreational opportunities including downhill skiing, boating and fishing. The award winning Huron Valley Schools, excellent shopping, expressways and many parks are located nearby.

Prestwick Village will be having the Grand Opening of its models on Saturday, September 23 from noon to 7PM.
