Five get 3 percent pay hikes

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

In keeping with pay raises for other Plymouth Township employees, five department managers are getting three percent raises.

The township board of trustees approved the raises April 9. The employees affected are Public Services Director James Anulewicz, Police Chief Carl Berry, Fire Chief Larry Groth, Finance Director Rosemary Harvey and Chief Building Official Charles McIlhargey.

And by a plan to bring the fire chief's salary up to the police chief's, Groth will receive an additional $1,494 this year _ half of the difference between the two salaries. The other half will come next year.

The pay increase follows the folding of the former city fire department into the township department last year.

By other increases approved by trustees, Anulewicz' salary will rise to $66,703. Berry's will increase to $68,207, Groth's to $66,713, Harvey's to $63,703 and McIlhargey's to $54,796.

When compared to 12 metro Detroit communities with comparable population sizes or property values, the Plymouth Township salaries "remain slightly above the median," said Supervisor Kathleen Keen McCarthy.

In trying to seek comparisons, "We tried to choose communities that were close in population or SEV (state equalized property value) or both," Harvey said.

In Monroe, with a population nearly equal to Plymouth Township's 23,654, the police chief makes $9,000 less but the finance director makes almost $1,000 more.

But in Birmingham, where the total property value is comparable to Plymouth Township's, department managers make a few hundred dollars more than their local counterparts.

Couple to be honored at gala benefit

BY RENEE M. SKOGLUND
SPECIAL WRITER

Plymouth Township residents Kenneth and Esther Hulsing will be honored by the Plymouth Symphony for their lifelong contributions to the arts, education and community service at the symphony's Golden Anniversary Gala Celebration on April 26 at the Fox Hills Country Club.

"I think we represent all the people in the Plymouth community who have labored long for the symphony. We are the figureheads," said Esther Hulsing.

The Hulsings are modest about their achievements, which span five decades. However, their community resume is quite impressive. They served on the Plymouth Community Board of Education, the Plymouth Community Fund, and were founding members of both the Schoolcraft College Foundation and the Educational Excellence Foundation.

Esther served as Plymouth Township clerk from 1978 to 1992, and Kenneth was active in the Plymouth Rotary for nearly 20 years. They had a long association with scouting as well.

Of her husband's activity with the Boy Scouts, even though they had no sons, Esther said, "I always thought that Ken joined the Boy Scouts to get away from the harem at home." They raised three daughters.

Licenses proposed for Kitty, Rover

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Cats in the city of Plymouth would have to be licensed and vaccinated for rabies if an ordinance discussed by city commissioners on Monday passes a final reading.

The ordinance was initially considered by commissioners a year ago, after a resident told commissioners neighbor cats were making a mess in her yard.

Commissioners then considered an ordinance requiring cats and dogs to be licensed, and to be kept on leashes if not on their owner's property. But when the state of Michigan considered a similar ordinance, the effort was put on hold, to see what the state would do, City Manager Steve Walters said.

Now that the state has passed such a law, City Attorney Donald Morgan said the city was seeking to codify its own ordinance generally following state law, to make it easier for city authorities to prosecute violations.

City Commissioner Doug Miller questioned the need for such an ordinance. "I know we have some marauding dogs by the railroad tracks, but has there been a particular problem?" he asked.

"I hate laws and rules and ordinances unless we're really trying to solve a problem, and I'm not sure if this is a problem," Miller said.

City Building Official Jim Penn said in recent years he'd been called to two residences; one where a woman had 40 cats, and another where he counted 100 cats at a house on Union Street.

One resident, Karen Gould, told commissioners she favored an ordinance to require vaccinating and licensing cats. "Being from Old Village, there are a lot of wild cats in the area. I've taken cats to the vet and they found feline leukemia," she said, adding this poses a danger to non-infected cats as the disease can be airborne, highly contagious and deadly.

Commissioner Dennis Shrewsbury suggested that the commission approve on first reading the third of three ordinance alternatives presented Monday.

The ordinance would allow a person whose animal has been caught running loose to have a chance to respond, within five days, before the animal is possibly destroyed.

Resident Rosita Smith said she had concerns with that provision, and other ordinance provisions. She said the city administration should publicize the proposed ordinance before voting on it.

"I don't know if everyone that hears about this 's going to approve of it," she said.

"To randomly say kill them after five days is not good, it could create problems. People think of their pets not just as animals but as family members," Smith said.

The proposed ordinance calls for every dog and cat at the age of six months to be vaccinated for rabies and licensed. The license fee is $2, and the license must be attached to the animal's collar.

Also by the proposed ordinance, a dog or cat could be confined and authorities could consider destroying it if the animal is found running loose or destroying property of others.

The animal can also be confined if it's attacked or bitten someone, except in cases where the animal has been provoked or has attacked someone who has trespassed on its owner's property.

Owners of animals that kill or maul livestock or poultry could also be found in violation of the ordinance.

Police revved up over motorcycles

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Township Police Chief Carl Berry likes motorcycles so much that he wants three more.

After a two-month test period, the township administration in 1991 approved buying a special Harley-Davidson equipped for police use for $7,000. The cost was about one-third of the cost of a fully-equipped police car.

Berry said that 18,000 miles later, the bike has done what police expected it would _ enhance neighborhood patrols.

"It really creates a good relationship between kids and adults in the neighborhoods, people tend to gather around and talk with an officer on a motorcycle," Berry said.

Motorcycle patrols begin this month and last through October. Three officers are trained to ride, and patrols happen 24 hours a day.

Officers get 80 hours of training before they are assigned to ride. Sgt. Robert Antal of the department also trains officers from suburban departments to ride.

"They cover a lot of area. They're really good in neighborhoods," Berry said.

Motorcycle patrols are also effective in policing drivers who run stop signs, and in reaching areas not accessible by car, police say.

By a department operations policy, the motorcycle does not come out when there is rain, snow, ice, high winds, or extreme temperatures. And it stays at the Department of Public Services yard any time the operating level of the shift is at two patrol units or less.

Also, motorcycles aren't used in situations involving felon chases, by the township police policy.

Typical complaints a motorcycle officer handles include traffic complaints and calls to local parks.

Berry said there is a trend toward police getting out of squad cars to get more in touch with people. "That's why we have bikes, motorcycles, and I'd love to have an officer on foot walking a beat," he said.

Berry said he plans to present to the township administration a plan to lease three more Harleys at a cost of $600 per month for five years, for each motorcycle.

The township's current motorcycle is a FXRB with an 80-cubic inch engine, used by at least 700 other police departments nationwide.

Berry said the department will seek to lease the same model.

Church wants $5,000 per child to start Catholic school

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

The Archdiocese of Detroit is looking for a few good families with $5,000 or more to spend.

Church officials told more than 100 parents from four area parishes Tuesday that a proposed Catholic school may not be built if 305 more parents don't agree by May 1 to pay $5,000 to reserve spots for their children, then $2,500 per year, per child for tuition.

The 60,000-square-foot, $7.2-million school would be built at Resurrection Catholic Church on Warren west of Beck in Canton Township but be shared with St. Kenneth, St. John Neumann and St. Thomas A'Becket parishes.

A meeting occurred Tuesday at Resurrection to answer questions and convince parents to register their children for the school.

The kindergarten-through-eighth-grade school would be financed thusly: Resurrection would donate the land, while the remaining parishes would donate $250,000 each. The Archdiocese of Detroit would kick in a $300,000 gift and a $4 million interest-free, 10-year loan.

The catch is that another $1.9 million must be raised from 380 families who agree to pay $5,000 each.

Only 75 families have agreed to pay, so 305 more families are sought. Organizers have set a May 1 deadline by which they must decide if a sufficient number of families have agreed to pay.

Sister Frances Nadolny, superintendent of schools for the Archdiocese of Detroit, said officials may halt plans for the school if fewer than 380 families sign up.

"The Archdiocese is committed to building the entire school, if we can fill it," said Mike Mitchell, who with his wife Kathryn Kristoff led the effort locally to have a school built.

Canton resident Gene Melnik said he will pay. "To us it's important," he said. "We've been on a waiting list for a while (to get into a Catholic school). It's ambitious, but it will happen. We'll make it happen."

Canton residents Karlen and Brian Dunlavy will pay to get their 13-month-old son Justin into the school.

"The discipline and curriculum is more traditional, and to me, that's very encouraging," said Karlen Dunlavy, who is "afraid of what the public school system is going to (be like) in four to five years."

Many parents seemed to share Dunlavy's sentiment, for the only speaker to spark spontaneous applause was Mary Allen, associate superintendent of education for the Archdiocese, who explained the traditional, basic techniques that teachers will use.

Plymouth township resident Judy Bodner said she wants to enroll her boys, Marcus, 5, and Alex, 3, but the high cost makes her hesitate. "I still have two weeks, and I'm going to really think about it," she said.

Benefit planned for newspaper strikers

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Plans for a local fund raiser to benefit striking newspaper workers were hatched around the soda fountain at Robin's Nest Antiques in Old Village.

"People that came in the store and supported me in the past, now they're not working and they have no money, they're in limbo," said Gerry Sindici, Robin's Nest owner.

Sindici said he got to talking with some members of UAW Local 182, which is sponsoring the fund-raising event scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday, April 25 at Laurel Manor, 39000 Schoolcraft.

The featured speaker is Crystal Lee Sutton, played by Sally Field in the movie "Norma Rae."

Sindici said businesses and people in general are confused about whether to advertise in the News or Free Press, or even whether to buy them.

"It's a bad situation. And if they aren't collective bargaining with employees, if they have to lie to them, what are they saying to the community?" Sindici asked.

"Let's put a stop to a tyranny type situation and help our fellow neighbors out get things rolling again," he said.

Sindici said he's also working on getting Field to show for the fund raiser.

Also scheduled to appear at the fund raiser are Gordie Howe and wife Colleen signing their new book, the band Sunset Boulevard, columnist Susan Watson, Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano, Detroit City Council President Mary Ann Mahaffey, and top officials from the UAW, Teamsters Union, postal workers union and other unions.

Other key event organizers are John Fisher, president of UAW Local 182, vice president John Caizza and the UAW's Terry Vinco.

There will be a silent auction, marketplace buffet, cash bar, mystic readers, "and a lot of surprises," Sindici said.

The event is scheduled to run to midnight. Tickets are $20 in advance at Robin's Nest Antiques, 640 Starkweather. Tickets are $22 at the door.

Sindici said organizers are still looking for donations to the silent auction. To donate, call 459-7733.

SCHOOL BRIEFS

Donations sought

Bird Elementary School PTO is seeking donations from Plymouth area businesses and Bird-area school residents for the school's annual fun fair.

This year's theme is patterned after the 1996 summer Olympics in Atlanta. Prizes being sought are those with a sports theme. Items large and/or small are appreciated, says Ruth Patterson, fun fair chairwoman.

"Soccer balls, footballs, jerseys and other sports items are what we're looking for," said Patterson.

The fun fair is set for Friday, May 31. Money raised will benefit the Bird School Playground Fund.

Merchants, parents and other donors should contact Patterson at 453-5673.

Extra miler

Mary Kay Herr, a preschool teacher, has received the Extra Miler Award from the Plymouth-Canton Community schools for her work.

Herr, a district teacher for 20 years, developed the Grandma and Grandpa program in which children interact with senior citizens from Plymouth Court, a nursing home.

Also, she has lead the annual STEP program for parents, co-authored and presented a computer use workshop for preschoolers, organized volunteers for the Special Olympics and represented special education children's needs on the Playscape Committee.

She received a certificate of recognition, a pin of the Flag of Liberty and Learning and a gift certificate from the Roman Forum Restaurant in Canton.

Computer convention

Nine Plymouth-Canton Community Schools staff members attended the recent Michigan Association for Computer-related Technology Users in Learning held in Grand Rapids.

Attending were: Tami Fox, Kevin Galbraith, Roby Jarczewski, Karen Habermas, Ron Carlson, Michele Foster, Barbara Greanya, Karen Huston and Shelly Rybarsky.

Fox and Galbraith, both media specialists, presented "MediaLinker-HyperStudio and the Internet." Their session involved learning to use MediaLinker and HyperStudio to access the Internet.

Esther devoted more than 40 years to the Girl Scouts and helped organize the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council. "My girls dropped out, but I remained," she said. One of the cabins at Camp Linden was named Esther's House in her honor.

The Hulsings' home in Plymouth Township reflects their love of art and their long association with the Plymouth Community Arts Council. It is filled with beautiful paintings. "The arts add so much to your life. They enrich it so," said Esther.

Born and raised in Montana, the Hulsings were lured to the Detroit area in 1943 by a job with General Motors building diesel engines for Navy landing craft. They drove through Plymouth and liked what they saw.

"It seemed like such a quiet town, made up mostly of retired farmers. And it was west of the plant where I was going to work," said Kenneth.

The Hulsings attribute their sense of community commitment to their Montana roots. "In Montana, people do a lot for each other. It was in our background to help people," said Kenneth. "It's the rent for living here," said Esther.

One of Kenneth's first volunteer efforts in Plymouth was to dig a basement under "a little, gray shingled church" located at Maple and Harvey streets, the current site of the Plymouth Federal Credit Union. "It was a tremendous amount of hard labor. Now I look back and wonder how I did it," said Kenneth.

Although the Hulsings have had a Canton elementary school named after them, their sense of personal achievement is measured in individual terms.

"A woman who used to live up the street from us got her degree and became a teacher because Ken told her anybody could do anything they wanted if they put their mind to it."

Being honored by the Plymouth Symphony at the culminating event of its golden anniversary season seems most appropriate. The Hulsings have enjoyed a lifelong love affair with the Plymouth Symphony. They were part of its founding and Kenneth served as president of the Plymouth Symphony League.

"We just liked good music and thought it would be a good idea for a community like this to have an orchestra," said Kenneth.

The Symphony's Gala Celebration will have a 1940s nightclub motif, with Casablanca decorations and Big Band music. When asked if they will request a favorite song, Esther thought a moment before answering.

City ponders York crossing

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth city commissioners nearly decided last month to leave the York Street crossing in Old Village open.

Now, they could be leaning to closing it _ and possibly the adjacent Holbrook crossing.

The subject went before city commissioners Monday. The city administration presented a proposal from engineering consulting firm Dietrich-Bailey for a traffic study of the area.

The study, at a cost of $5,120, would determine the impact of closing the York and Holbrook crossings on traffic using other streets.

City commissioners said a cheaper way to study the possible closing of the York and Holbrook would be to temporarily close them, then study traffic patterns. They voted to direct the city administration to determine the cost of erecting temporary barricades, and to notify nearby residents and business owners for their reaction to the plan.

Commissioner Doug Miller said the earlier proposed engineering consultant study wouldn't show "how far the traffic backs up on Mill Street when the first 15-minute train comes."

Commissioner Dennis Shrewsbury said, "If we're going to spend money, I'd rather spend it on a temporary study and see the real impact."

The crossing closing issue stems from a May 1995 order from the state department of transportation.

County parks plan 3 new suburban picnic centers

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

■ The Hines Park projects are expected to be completed in July and the Bell Creek project is expected to be completed in the fall.

Picnicking and playing in the parks are getting a boost in western Wayne County this year.

Work is beginning this spring on three new corporate family picnic centers in county parks. The centers will include picnic shelters and modern playground areas.

A center is being built in Bell Creek Park in Redford Township and two centers are planned for Hines Park, along the middle Rouge Parkway, one near Nankin Mills in Westland and the other on the border of Plymouth and Northville townships, called Waterford Bend.

"I'm really looking forward to this because of the high demand at Warrendale _ that's our only shelter presently," said Anastasia Pitses, recreation manager for Wayne County Parks. The Warrendale shelter, in Dearborn Heights, is so popular that when reservations are taken on April 1 for the season, people are waiting outside in sleeping bags for the office to open, she said.

"This is really going to be a good thing for us," she said. Picnic shelters are rented for corporate picnics, family reunions and other events, she said. The shelters will rent for $75 a day plus a permit fee, which is $25, and are in demand when picnic planners don't want an event canceled in bad weather. The new shelters can be reserved on April 1, 1997, for next year's picnic season.

Funded by a grant from the Michigan Department of Natural Resources recreation bond program, the Bell Creek project is expected to cost $260,000 and include renovation of the restrooms at the park, and the combined cost of the two Hines Parks projects is expected to be $253,000, according to Nancy Darga, design manager.

The Bell Creek project, at Five Mile and Inkster roads, is the biggest one and will include a two-tiered octagonal picnic shelter, which will hold several hundred people, and have an adjacent playground area, Darga said.

It will be a heavy-duty octagonal metal structure and the play structure will also be an octagonal metal structure, Darga said. "There's a lot of artistry that goes into the design," she said.

Also at Bell Creek, the comfort stations will get a total renovation, some of the hilly areas are being graded to eliminate climbs and the county is working with Redford Soccer to upgrade the soccer fields.

The Nankin Mills project, at Hines Drive and Ann Arbor Trail, will include a picnic shelter with an "old timber village" look, including laminated beams, and hold more than 250 people. "We wanted it to look very rustic to go with Nankin Mills," Darga said. The play area will also have a rustic look.

The Waterford Bend project, at Six Mile and Northville roads, will have a similar shelter and hold about 150 people, but the play structure will be the opposite _ colorful and modern, Darga said.

The play structure for the Waterford Bend project is being made in Denmark and will be teal, blue, bright pink and fuschia. It's being modified to meet U.S. safety codes, including more rungs, and lower platforms, Darga said.

The equipment is designed for older children and is "like sculpture kids can climb all over," she said. "It's fun just to look at it," she said.

The comfort station is also being renovated, she said.

The Hines Park projects are expected to be completed in July and the Bell Creek project is expected to be completed in the fall.

Delegates set tone, agenda for parties

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

"You don't have to be a Rockefeller or a Kennedy to have a place at the political table. George Bush started out as a precinct delegate. Susy Heintz started out as a precinct delegate."

The speaker is Susy Heintz, state chair of the Michigan Republican Party. Part of her job is encouraging the faithful to run for precinct delegate so they can become workers and decision makers. As a young matron in Northville Township, she was a precinct delegate who rose to rub shoulders with presidents, governors and first ladies while staying in touch with old friends.

Fred Durhal agrees. He's political director of the Michigan Democratic Party and works on recruitment of precinct delegates. These are folks elected to serve at county conventions, who go on to state convention where they nominate state ticket candidates, and "interface with everyone in the precinct _ talk to them, distribute literature, recruit them to the Democratic Party, and cover the polls on election day," Durhal said.

Precinct delegates are the grass-roots workers who determine the tone of a political party for years. A particular union or doctrinal group that wants to take control of a party will start by electing its people as precinct delegates. Precinct delegates are the reason the UAW and public employees unions dominate the Democratic Party and why Pat Robertson's Christian Coalition came so close to control of the GOP in 1986 and may gain a majority this year.

Heintz insists that delegates are more important to her party than to Democrats because the GOP lacks heavy input from organized labor.

In the 1950s, rival union groups carried baseball bats at Democratic conventions in Detroit. Many conventions are spirited, but no longer physically threatening.

A major deadline is 4 p.m. Tuesday, May 7, when candidates for precinct delegate must file nominating petitions. It's easier than ever. The candidate must be a registered voter as of the Aug. 6 primary and a resident of the precinct.

A 1994 law says a candidates must file at least three but not more than 20 petition signatures from registered voters with the county clerk. (The old law required at least 15 signatures.)

The candidate must be age 18 by the Aug. 6 election date, which means persons now age 17 could qualify. Also, while state law generally prohibits a person from holding two offices, a precinct delegate can also run for a governmental office. For example, precinct delegate Heintz also served as township trustee, clerk, supervisor, county commissioner and director of the governor's southeastern Michigan office.

Only the Republican and Democratic parties have qualified by past performances to elect their precinct delegates at the general Aug. 6 primary election. In cases of ties, there are no recounts, but the county clerk picks a winner through a flip-of-the-coin process. A person getting at least three write-in votes also could be elected.

Heintz's aide, Lori Tomek, said the GOP set a record in 1994 when 4,000 precinct delegates were elected. Durhal didn't have the Democrats' figures:

Every voter precinct in the state may elect at least one Republican and one Democratic delegate. Larger precincts may elect four or five. Here is their work schedule:

- Late in August delegates attend their party's county conventions (or congressional district conventions, in metropolitan areas) _ time, date and places to be announced. They pick delegates to the state convention and listen to candidates seeking state office nominations.

(Democrats usually adopt an "open" rule: Any elected precinct delegate or dues-paid party member may be a delegate to the state convention.)

- The weekend of Sept. 6-7, both parties hold state conventions, Republicans in Lansing, Democrats in Detroit. This year they will nominate candidates for the state Supreme Court, State Board of Education, University of Michigan Board of Regents, Michigan State University Board of Trustees and Wayne State University Board of Governors. (In gubernatorial election years, they'll also nominate candidates for lieutenant governor, secretary of state and attorney general.) Those conventions are likely to draw a presidential or vice-presidential keynoter.
- After the election, delegates are expected to attend a second county (or district) convention to pick local party officers.
- Early in 1997 they will pick delegates to a February state convention where the party chair, vice chairs and State Central Committee members are selected.

One thing the 1996 crop of precinct delegates can't do, however, is help nominate the presidential and vice presidential candidates. The 1994 crop of delegates got that honor, based on the turnout at the Democrats' March 16 caucuses and the Republicans' March 19 primary.

To get a place at the table, you have to start early.

Special week marks county's campaign to immunize children

The Wayne County Health Department is putting an emphasis on the importance of toddlers getting their shots during National Infant Immunization Week, April 21-27.

Only 61 percent of Michigan's toddlers receive their basic series of recommended vaccines. The national goal is to increase immunization levels to 90 percent by the end of the year.

The Wayne County Health Department has vaccines available or parents can ask a family doctor about the shots their child needs before age two. Parents who don't have a contact person can call the Wayne County Health Department at (313) 467-3300 for information.

Not only do public health agencies such as the Wayne County Health Department have free vaccines, but many doctors are now involved with a new federally funded program called Vaccines for Children, a program that provides free vaccines to low-income children.

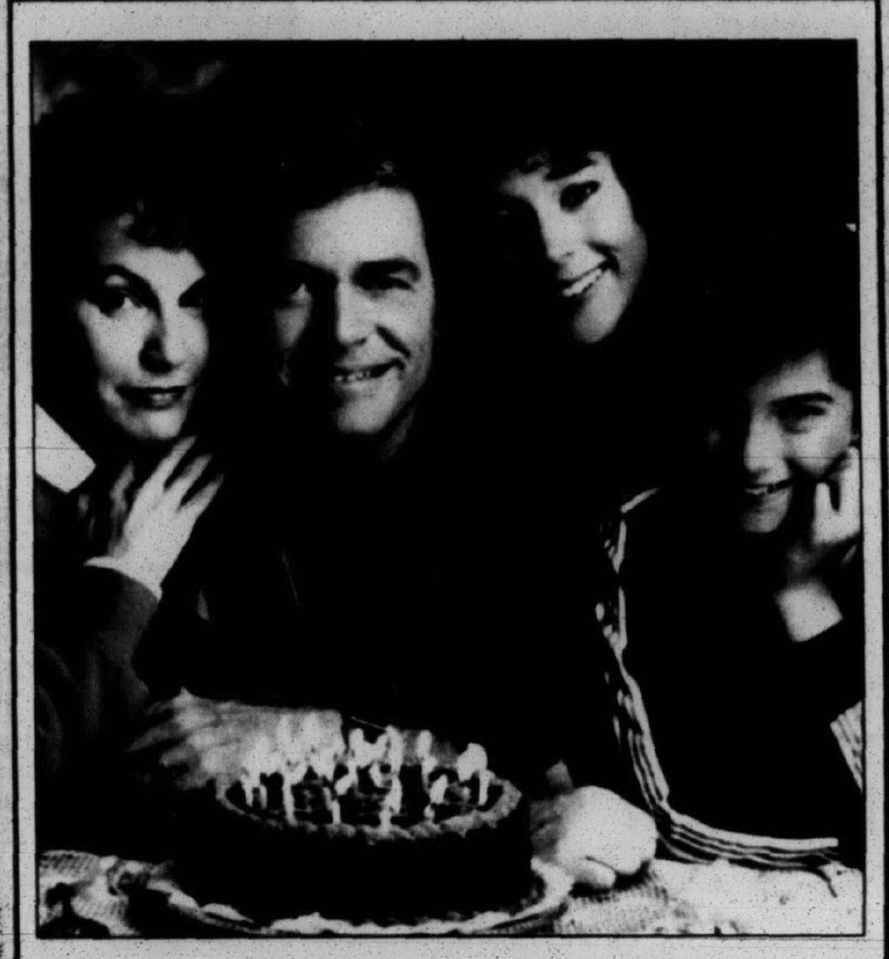
The danger of the diseases prevented by the vaccines is real. "We are now seeing a return of common childhood diseases that were once believed to be eliminated," Dr. Donald Lawrenchuk, Wayne County Health Department medical director, said. "In 1990 alone, we saw an increase in measles, mumps, rubella and pertussis (whooping cough) which exceeds the surgeon general's projections for the entire decade of the '90s."

The recommended vaccines needed by age two include: diphtheria, tetanus and pertussis; measles, mumps and rubella; polio and HIB meningitis.

In addition, the Wayne County Health Department is urging parents to include a hepatitis B shot on the list. Hepatitis B, an infection of the liver that spreads through contact with blood or other infectious body fluids, can be acquired through sharing a razor, toothbrush, drug needle or through sexual contact.

WOMEN'S HEALTH DAY

Family Tradition.



Every family has its traditions. Gathering for Sunday dinner. Marking anniversaries and celebrating birthdays. Unfortunately, some families share more than happy times . . . they also share the risk of certain illnesses.

Breast cancer—which now strikes one in nine American women—is among them. If your mother, grandmother, aunt or sister has been diagnosed with this disease, your doctor probably has explained the added risk you face. But unlike women in past generations , you can put time and technology on your side.

We at the Marian Women's Center, St. Mary Hospital, encourage you to see your doctor regularly whatever your age and, once you reach 40, to see us for a mammogram. Our mammography services are designed to give you peace of mind by bringing together certified radiologists and staff, personalized education and high-tech imaging equipment approved by the American College of Radiologists.

Make mammography and regular breast exams a new family tradition. For more facts on mammography services and other programs at the Marian Women's Center just call us at (313) 591-3314.

Bond issue

Schools must clear the air

It's time for the Plymouth Canton schools to establish a clear set of educational spending priorities for the public to understand before there can be any talk of a bond issue in the fall to raise money.

The possibility of placing a millage, property tax increase, on the June 10 ballot, but board members and school officials backed away form it, saying that the voters spoke in June 1995 when they rejected a 2.3 mill tax increase that would have raised $12 million for textbooks, teacher training and instructional tools.

The millage lost by less than 200 votes. It was a small margin, but school officials were savvy enough to get the message.

But while they did listen to voters, they haven't done enough to clarify educational spending issues. The ruckus raised over not having enough text books or computer programs has died down.

Students went back to school last fall and life in the schools has gone on as normal. The subject of not enough and outdated text books in classrooms has been placed on the back burner, while the new issue of building more schools has taken its place. The other hot issue has been class size, the number of students per student.

All are vaild issues, and should be given serious concern by the school board. Also, part of the shift in emphasis is understandable. Canton Township is growing and new schools will be needed.

A bond issue would be needed to pay for new classrooms. Under state law, money raised by bond issues can't be used for salaries. However, a bond issue is in effect a millage because money that could be used for other expenses is diverted to pay off the bonds.

That should be a serious consideration for voters. Bond issues are not free money.

That should be made clear to voters, if a bond issue is attempted in the fall.

However, to persuade voters to approve a millage increase or a bond issue, a clear set of priorities must be established and sold to a public, most of whom don't have children in the schools.

School officials made a big step forward last spring during the unsuccessful millage campaign. Superintendent Charles Little took the schools' message to homeowners groups, in an attempt to sell the millage. That was in contrast to past millage campaigns which relied on the old style of persuading only parents to go out and vote for the millage. It's called a silent millage campaign in which just the yes voters are asked to go to the polls.

The departure from that last spring, goes a long way toward addressing the realities of the 1990s.

However, the schools must go further, if they wish to launch a successful bond issue campaign in the fall. School officials and board members must clearly state exactly what is needed and in what sequence those needs should be met.

Not to do that does nothing more than confuse the electorate.

Libraries celebrate new role

Whether they need help finding a job or managing their finances, health or home, a growing number of residents are seeking out the information at libraries. And they're not just using books, a growing number of residents are logging on to a computer.

This week marks National Library Week, and it celebrates a new role for our local libraries.

Although most visitors still check out a book, a recent U.S. News & World Report/CNN survey found that more than half use a computer to find the information they need.

Libraries have always been the great equalizer, helping people of all ages and backgrounds to lead better lives, regardless of their ability to pay. Over the years, our local library services have expanded to include not just books, but magazines, videotapes, CDs, telephone reference and computers.

And they provide something more, the professional assistance of a librarian. In the age of electronic information, this role is more critical than ever.

Nothing is more important to the future of our democracy then ensuring public access to information. We live in an information society. Our jobs, our education, the health and well-being of our families and businesses depend on it. Today, more and more of the information we need is in computers.

Most residents in western Wayne County have seen the need and continue to support strong library systems.

Libraries in Canton, Livonia, Plymouth and Redford use computerized catalog systems. Patrons step up to a computer and search for the book or periodical desired.

Libraries in Livonia and Canton also offer patrons access to the Internet.

In addition to being a source of information, local libraries continue to be gathering and meeting places.

In Livonia, Canton and Redford, the library was designed to be a community facility. In Livonia, the atrium of the Civic Center Library provides a setting for lunchtime concerts and art displays; the auditorium is an excellent facility for civic groups, and there are meeting rooms for community use.

In Canton, the library is a place for many community meetings and public art shows. In a community-wide survey within the last two years, the library was voted the most popular facility in Canton.

Residents listed as favorites the library's computer and technology and the children's section and programs.

In Plymouth, residents will see many changes of the next 18 months when renovation begins this summer on an expansion to provide 38,000 square feet of space to accommodate a growing number of patrons. Voters passed 1 mill in Plymouth and Plymouth Township to help pay for the project.

In Westland, a new facility is expected to open in November. It's the city's first library and will be named after former state Sen. William Faust because of his long-standing support of libraries. The new library on Central City Parkway, north of Ford, will cost an estimated $6.6 million. We encourage local planners to place a high priority on technology for the new facility.

If we are to continue to enjoy the open access to information that we do today, our communities, state and federal government must invest in libraries as centers for information in all forms – electronic as well as print.

The new provision for discounted telecommunications rate for libraries must be enforced. And the public must be willing to support libraries in an effort to ensure all people have the information they need.

Student behavior

My name is Eric Edford and I am a 15 year old PCEP student. I am writing in response to the article published on Thursday, April 4, where an assistant principal, a Mr. Lynn Gregg, "Knocked the Behavior of High School Kids."

I have many arguments to what Mr. Gregg said in the article. First of all, he said that "Canton and Salem High School students (are) gathering in groups of a up to 75 and 100. These students are sometimes quite a distance from the building.....In fact, most are breaking the state of Michigan's law that prohibits smoking by minors." There is one fact that is left out. The amount of those kids mentioned are only 2 percent of the PCEP student population of about 5000. That is low considering the average percent of teenagers who smoke across the country.

The next thing that was mentioned was that "Students are all over the buildings during the lunch periods-eating in hallways, in the stairwells and in vacated classrooms." First of all, students can only eat in vacated classrooms with the permission of the teacher whose classroom it is. Next, we have three lunches which means about 1,700 kids eat lunch at one time. The combined cafeterias obviously cannot hold that many students. Also, we do have security and our area coordinators attempting to prevent people from eating outside of the cafeteria.

Also, Mr. Gregg doesn't realize that kids are not here for intimidation. That is the kind of prejudice that gets people in trouble. It is not about adults overpowering kids anymore. This is the modern 1990s. We as adolescents are just trying to make it through school, go to college, and make a life for ourselves. More rules and regulations to follow will only harm that educational environment.

Another thing I don't understand is the fact that he said if he had to make a choice now, he wouldn't let his kids attend PCEP. He also mentioned he spoke with students who said they they were not happy with the current situation at the Park. He must have talked to the kids in Mr. Jones' fifth hour depression class because not once have I heard any student express unhappiness about the Park. In fact, many have said that they are glad they attend PCEP. It is a good learning environment with a variety of students and classes.

I have known people that moved from Livonia and Westland just so they could be part of this outstanding educational facility.

There is one thing that I think Mr. Gregg does not understand. PCEP is a school; not a prison camp or army training base. Kids at the Park are given the right to have fun.

We do not have to march from class to class, we do not have to do 50 push-ups if we forget a book in our locker, and we do not have to do things by a set standard. We as students are independent, we have our own opinions, and we make mistakes; just like adults. The Park is not run by two dictators. It is run by two student-friendly principals. We do not need wardens. We have our likeable security.

So, as a summary, I don't know what High School Mr. Gregg visited and who he talked to, but it was not the Park and the students of it. By what was reported in the article, I am led to believe that Mr. Gregg is at least a little prejudice towards teenagers.

He does not know what it is like to be a student at the Park in 1996, so he has no authority to enact new rules which would limit our freedom on campus. The Plymouth-Canton Educational Park is a very fine educational facility which, I'll admit, does have its share of problems. But, those problems are with the minority, not the 98 percent majority. We are living in a Democracy where the majority has the right-of-way and in this case, the majority has not problems.

Thank you very much for your time and consideration of my letter. Please consider writing a news article from a student's point-of-view to show the citizens of the Plymouth and Canton communities that the Park is not such a bad place after all. Once again, thank you.

Eric Edford, Salem Student, Plymouth

More than books

National Library Week shows changing role

GUEST COLUMNIST

JEAN TABOR

This week is National Library Week, a time when we celebrate the contributions of our nation's libraries and librarians. For more than a century, our libraries have provided books and other information resources that help people of all ages and backgrounds lead better lives. Today that information is as likely to come from a computer terminal as it is from a book. It can help you find a job in another state, research a medical problem or read the Congressional Record at the touch of a keyboard. Information is the currency of democracy. Our jobs, our education, the health and well-being of our families depend on it.

But what if you don't have a computer in your home? What if you don't know how to use one? Where do you go? For most of us, the answer is the same as it's always been – the library.

Technology is an exciting new tool, but it has not replaced other avenues for discovery and learning such as videos, audio cassettes, and yes, the book. In fact, statistics show that computerization is actually increasing the demand for books!

Therein lies our biggest challenge in libraries these days – meeting the demands for print, multimedia and electronic resources. Today we are operating what we call the "hybrid library." With a finite amount of revenue and staff, we are attempting to maintain a collection of traditional print resources, provide access to the wealth of online materials, and meet the demand for the new popular materials, such as audio cassettes and CD-ROMs. Plus, in Canton we are registering an average of 800 new patrons each month. These are indeed exciting but challenging times. If you use the library during evening hours or on weekends, you are keenly aware of the number of patrons who are using their library – it is standing room only!

Fortunately, through the support of the Canton community, our library is connected to the vast network of databases known as the information superhighway. We were one of the first public libraries in the state of Michigan to offer Internet services to our citizens and then to offer dial-in capabilities for those who have a home computer.

Whether through a home computer or the many work stations at the library, our goal at the library is to provide access so we don't allow any Canton residents to be "information have-nots." Our forefathers and mothers knew it made good sense to invest in libraries as a shared community resource for books. It makes even more sense to support libraries in providing access to the powerful technology of the Internet.

During this month which recognizes libraries, I would like to thank the citizens of Canton for their support of the library. Their usage continues to make the library one of the busiest in Michigan. We ask for your continued support as we plan for the future to assure that the Canton Public Library continues to meet your needs and those of the children of Canton into the next millennium.

TIM RICHARD

Gag! Yeccch! The Detroit branch of the NAACP is charging two court reorganization bills are "racially motivated" because they might abolish Detroit Recorder's Court. The NAACP intends to sue the state to block the bills, charging "judicial apartheid."

For those who never studied civics, Michigan has two criminal trial court systems. In 82 counties, circuit courts try major civil and criminal cases — regardless of whether the case arises in the central city or a remote boondock. No one complains, not even the NAACP.

Only Wayne County is different: Circuit Court from 1986-95 handled civil cases, and Detroit Recorder's Court handled all criminal cases, regardless of where the crime was committed.

Recorder's Court has 29 judges, all Detroiters; in addition, five circuit judges have been assigned by rotation to Recorder's Court. Thus, Detroit judges, representing about half of Wayne County, handled 85 percent of criminal cases.

When the Supreme Court set up that racially twisted plan, the NAACP never uttered a peep against it.

Last year, the Supreme Court ended the system, allowing criminal cases from the suburbs to be tried in countywide Circuit Court. It's still unfair because circuit judges from Detroit handle nearly half the suburban criminal cases, while the all-Detroiter Recorder's bench handles all the Detroit criminal cases.

Instead of operating by court rule that can be changed by four justices, we need a uniform statewide system by law. That's what the Legislature is trying to write.

This is larger than a Wayne County issue because of money. The state pays a greater portion of costs in Wayne Circuit and Detroit courts than it does of the other 82 counties. Outstate Michigan, led by Grand Rapids, is crying "foul!" — deservedly.

So here is what the House of Representatives has passed and sent to the Senate:

- One bill takes a crack at court reorganization — evening out the workloads and pay scales.
- The other funds courts. The bills are tie-barred, meaning both must pass for either to take effect. The upshot is that Recorder's Court would be abolished unless Detroit funds its courts the same way taxpayers in western Wayne, Oakland, Livingston, Eaton and Clinton counties pay for their courts. Nothing unfair about that.

Naturally, Detroit politicos say they don't have the extra $20 million, even with their high property tax rates, resident income tax, commuter income tax, utility tax and others; and even though the state has almost completely bailed out Detroit on the Institute of Arts and helps out with the Zoo. Actually, Detroit has lots of money. The problem is that is Detroit politicians want a separate court system but don't want to pay for it.

At this point, let us call on the sane counsel of Thomas Kienbaum, the Oakland County attorney who is president of the State Bar. Although he argues for "maintenance of this (Detroit Recorder's Court) highly specialized criminal court," Kienbaum has the good sense to add that lawmakers "must focus on such important issues as the composition of juries that hear Detroit criminal cases and the need to maintain the diversity that now exists among our Detroit area judiciary.

"That diversity would likely be diminished if judges currently serving on the Recorder's Court bench are required to run countywide (as circuit judges). . . What is not needed is the injection of racial rhetoric," Kienbaum said, citing remarks from both sides in House debate.

Translation: If we get rid of Detroit Recorder's Court — and most observers think we should — then we need to assure ethnic minorities get to elect a proportion of the judges and have representation on juries. That would be fair.

Death should be private concern

PHIL POWER

Jury selection in Dr. Jack Kevorkian's third assisted-suicide trial is taking place this week.

At this point, the sequence of events is beginning to sound like deja vu all over again.

- Dr. Kevorkian and his publicity-seeking lawyer, Geoffrey Fieger, put on quite a show for the media during the first two trials. Dr. K. showed up for the start of the third in 18th century costume, apparently to suggest the unfairness of the proceedings.
- Richard Thompson, the Oakland County prosecutor whose major contribution to upholding law and order appears to be an obsessive interest in prosecuting Dr. Kevorkian, already has lost twice trying to convict under state law. For his third try, he's relying on an even more vague legal doctrine called "common law."
- The first two trials were marked by repeated attempts by the Oakland County prosecutor's office to bludgeon presiding judges by appealing instructions to juries and leaking comments about supposed judicial bias. Last week saw Larry Bunting, chief assistant prosecutor, ask Circuit Judge David Breck point-blank whether his personal views on assisted suicide could interfere with his fair conduct of the trial. "No," responded Judge Breck.

Reflecting on these repetitive shenanigans confirms my original thought that how families deal with the awesome reality of approaching death is a subject too intimate and too subtle for the blunt instruments of intrusive laws enacted by a politically motivated Legislature or dubious prosecutions brought by ambitious prosecutors.

I have now been through two cases — my father and my mother-in-law — where a close relative was terminally ill and wished compassionate assistance in dying with dignity. In both cases, much of my activity involved various officious representatives of the state from getting their grubby hands on the matter.

In my father's case, I had to keep drafting and re-drafting the living will instructions to be posted on his refrigerator door in case some well-intentioned ambulance attendant tried to put in an IV tube. The point was that he wished to die, quietly and with dignity, at home and without any heroic measures being taken. Once an IV was put in, however, sensible people advised me that the legal system would insist it stayed there, regardless of his explicit wishes.

And while Dr. Kevorkian is mugging before the cameras and as lawyers keep preparing briefs and whining about judges, something real and sensible is going on in the ultimate court of public opinion. The idea is gradually taking hold that the wishes of terminally ill people who want to die quietly and with dignity deserve to be respected.

Once that idea has fixed itself in the public mind as sane and proper, all the legislative and prosecutorial huffing and puffing in the world simply will not matter. Juries won't convict. Obsessive prosecutors will look silly. Lawmakers attempting to legislate codes of morality will look, at best, irrelevant.

The process has now gone far enough to be nearly irreversible.

And, indeed, the law may eventually catch up with reality.

In the last days of the 1990 session, Michigan lawmakers approved legislation that permits people to designate advocates legally empowered to make medical decisions for them if they become incapacitated. In the five years since that law was passed, patient advocates have succeeded in gaining the authority to withdraw food and water to allow patients to die.

And on April 2, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals struck down a New York law that banned assisted suicide on the grounds that if it's legally OK to bring about death by withdrawing food, it cannot be illegal to achieve the same result by prescribing medicines that hasten death.

I expect the U.S. Supreme Court eventually will rule on the matter. But in contemplating all the legalistic mumbo jumbo that has already infested this matter, I tend to hold with Justice Antonin Scalia, who said recently in response to a question about whether the high court should tackle the issue of doctor-assisted suicides: "Why would you leave that to nine lawyers, for heaven's sake?"

Palm tress swaying. Waves crashing. White sand. Bare feet, seashells, coconut oil. Hotel lobbies decorated with fishing nets and starfish. You hop in a car or on a plane and zoom away from those little piles of snow still standing by the dumpster in the parking lot. You head to a place where it's warm and sunny and the clothing is made of little material and lots of colors.

That's spring break for many. But not for all.

Some stay at home. Or close to home. Like me, for instance, I stay home or close to it anyway. I never see a swaying palm tree, a crashing wave, a seashell, a hotel lobby decked out in starfish stuck in fishnets, or even sand during spring break. I did, though, see mud this spring break. And I guess I did see sand, but it was the wet, cold, gritty variety that looks like mud and makes young children very grumpy when it sticks on their hands and gets into their socks and shoes. That sand I saw.

That was last week when we traversed Michigan, a state apt to be wintry even in April. And although it wasn't I-75 South for us, it was 96 West, and Florida wasn't our destination, Cedar Springs was, the excitement was just as high. My five children and I spent a couple of days and one whole night at Grandma and Grandpa's during spring break.

We got an early start from home – 7:45 a.m. Our goal? 7:30.

"Unbelievable, Mom," Tony exclaimed. "We did it!" Indeed, we had, even though we were off the mark by 15 minutes. By Meier Standard Time we were right on Jane Bassett of Parisian promises plenty of surprises at the Detroit Catholic Central Mothers' Club's "The Splendors of Spring" fashion show Sunday, April 21.

"There's always an element of surprise that has never been done in any other fashion shows," Bassett said. "At each show, the segments are different; certainly all the music will be different."

The springtime event, which event co-chairwoman Carol Lawrance of Livonia hopes will bring in a crowd of 500, is the school's biggest fundraiser. It will be held at Laurel Manor Banquet and Conference Center in Livonia, beginning with a social hour at 12:30 p.m., followed by lunch and the 45-minute fashion show. Pianist Ken Hall will provide the entertainment. Tickets are $38.

A mainstay of the spring social calendar for as long as this year's organizers can remember, the fashion show has raised $7,000-8,000 for the school's general fund, helping to buy such things as computers, library books and carpeting.

"We also have raffle tickets that we sell," Lawrance said. "They're for sale during the social hour and we have over 75 prizes." The tickets are $1 each or 12 tickets for $10.

The Coffee Beanery at Laurel Park Place, local restaurants like Genitti's Hole-In-The-Wall in Northville and Cantina Del Rio in Livonia, hotels, jewelers, and other local businesses are among the donors.

Parisian also is giving each guest a "goodie bag" to take home, Lawrance added.

The fashion show will be broken down into five segments: "Black and White," "The Great Outdoors," "The Must Haves," featuring nine key items that can update a wardrobe, "Isn't It Romantic?" and "Special Occasion."

While professionals will model during most of the segments, 20 graduating seniors dressed in tuxedos from Steve Petix will accompany their mothers during "Special Occasion."

"It's been a tradition for all of the fashion shows; if you've been on the board for two or more years and your son is a senior, you are given the opportunity to model," said Lawrance, who gets a chance to model with her son next year when he's a senior. "It's kind of like a little

the money. Early even! We felt so good about that and the fact the sky was blue and everyone had socks on, that matched, we burst into song. We whizzed down the road, a van full of spring breakers, in full song with the April morning sun shining down.

We sang songs, some regular, some made up, and some a combination which caused fights so we backed off on those. And the time passed quickly. Until the sun gave out. That was about mid-state. And there, we went through a snowstorm. We couldn't believe it. Snow blowing all over the place and piling up in the fields and beside the roadways. We saw a terrible accident on the road going in the other direction. A car all smashed in and turned wrong and emergency vehicles were gathered around. And traffic was backed up forever. And on our side, traffic was backed up because a salt truck was spraying salt on everyone's windshield.

We drove out of the storm eventually and the sun and the songs returned. The tension, though, took its toll and several of my spring breakers requested a stop at the rest area. This took some time, what with six of us and one of us stubborn as the day is long and just about to celebrate a second birthday. (Jack?)

I must say, though, that was the only stop and so we made good time. We arrived at Grandma and Grandpa's about 10:30. What a warm greeting we got. But then, we always do. Even though their house is rather small, their hearts are big.

We sang songs, some regular, some made up, and some a combination which caused fights so we backed off on those. And the time passed quickly.

This was baby Steven's first long trip and first visit to Grandma and Grandpa's, so he was given loads of kisses right away. Then Grandpa, seeing the effects the cross-state road trip had on the other four children who'd been in the rather tightly-packed van for some hours, took them all on a walk to the park just up the street. There was lots of freedom and running and some shouting. And the park was where the gritty sand of our spring break was found, under swaying pine, not palm, trees.

Meanwhile, back at the house, I fed Steven, Grandma prepared lunch, and we caught up on the latest. When Grandpa and the rest came back, hot soup and sandwiches were on the table, waiting for the cold, wind-blown adventurers.

Later, I piled the children in the van, except for napping Jack, and went into town. We bought a coloring book and a big box of crayons for $1.50 at the Dollar Store. We crossed Main Street to the place that sells huge bagels, even chocolate chip bagels, and bought some. We went around the corner to the newspaper office and said hello to the folks we know in there and hello to the cat who has the run of the place and was sitting on top of page layouts in the back room. And we stopped in the tiny corner market to buy a loaf of bread marked 79 cents. The proprietor handed me a quarter after I'd handed him a dollar bill.

The town is a lot like Mom and Dad's house, small, but with a big heart.

And our spring break, in contrast to the Florida type, was small, too. But, I must say, there was plenty of heart in it.

perk, if you're interested in doing that. Each parent provides a little critique of their son. Some of them even know where they're going to college."

Every mother who has a son at Detroit Catholic Central High School automatically becomes a member of the school's Mothers' Club, which plans other school events. However, this is the group's only fund-raiser.

And even the school's principal, the Rev. Harold B. Gardner, will be on the runway, modeling sportswear.

Lawrance said the event should be exciting.

"I'm curious to see what Janet Bassett will do. I think she's a very creative woman. I think this is going to be a classy affair. Parisian gets the very best models.

"I really think the show itself is going to be breathtaking," Lawrance said.

The club has already sold 550 tickets for the benefit and they still are available if ordered before Saturday, April 20, by calling (313) 464-6588 and leaving your name, telephone number and number of tickets needed.

'Susie's Dance' benefits center

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Our Lady of Providence Center helps prepare mentally impaired individuals for daily living in the community. With the money the organization hopes to raise from a Saturday, April 20, fund raiser, they hope to improve their residents' lives even more.

"We hope to raise $70,000-$75,000," said Sister Theresa, an administrator at the center. "This year it's going to go toward any needs that we have for the mentally impaired at the center, but it's also going to help renovate one of the older buildings, the Cardinal Mooney Hall. It's the living quarters for the youngsters and we hope to make it more home-like and downsize it."

"Susie's Dance" is a dinner-dance and auction that begins at 6 p.m. Saturday, April 20, at Laurel Manor in Livonia. The cost is $50 per person which includes hors d'oeuvres, dinner, open bar, silent auction and dancing to the music of John Lankford.

Among the items up for bids are 12 suite tickets for Bob Seger's May 7 show at The Palace of Auburn Hills, two American Airlines tickets, a basketball signed by Detroit Piston Grant Hill, a collection of beer from around the world, a white water rafting trip for two in Tennessee, and a Red Wings jersey signed by Paul Coffey.

Tickets for the event can be purchased at the center, 16115 Beck Road, Northville. For more information, call (313) 453-1300.

This is the 38th year for "Susie's Dance," according to Sister Theresa.

"One of our parents 38 years ago began it as a fund raiser," Sister Theresa said. "Their little girl's name is Susie, and she's a grown adult now. She is mentally impaired. Since then parents have taken it over and every year it's the one fund raiser that the parents really help out with."

Our Lady of Providence center provides living quarters for girls and women who are taught some vocational skills and "everything they need for daily living in the community." Boys and men participate in the day program.

Tri-City lets kids get 'Wild'

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Detroit Lions kicker Jason Hanson believes in using his status as a professional athlete in a positive manner. So whenever he has the time, he spreads the message of his faith to kids at youth centers.

"It can be a negative thing or a positive thing," Hanson said of his status. "It just depends on what you do with it. Obviously, for me to be able to talk to the kids it's something I have the time to do and I want to do. I do what God calls me to do."

On Wednesday, April 24, he will visit "Wild Wednesday" at the Canton-based Tri-City Christian Center, 39390 Michigan Ave., Wayne. The cost is $1, but first-time visitors are free.

Kevin DeVries, youth minister at Tri-City, described "Wild Wednesday" as a mega non-churched youth event for area youth leaders and their students in the sixth grade through college and career. It provides them with an opportunity to be reconciled with God, hear a relevant message of the gospel of Jesus Christ, develop relationships, have fun and be provided a resource to build their individual youth ministries.

The mission is "to turn non-believing students and young adults into fully committed followers of Jesus Christ."

Gallant battle: Steven Pamplin, 14 (left), and Nathan Bird, 9, don head gear to try Wild Wednesday's version of the "American Gladiators."

But "Wild Wednesdays" doesn't push religion on the kids, he explained. The only sign of it is a 10-15 minute message that is told during "half time."

"We want to let them know that the majority focus is not church kids. Eighty to 85 percent of the kids who come to 'Wild Wednesdays' don't go to church," explained DeVries, 28.

The nights, held the last Wednesday of every month, are thematic. Next month's event is "Cross Jam III' with four regional alternative, folk and pop bands, along with the "Rad Rocker," who specializes in hard-to-find Christian music, from 6-10 p.m. Wednesday, May 29. The cost is $2.

Tri-City Christian Center is holding a "Tailgate Party" on Wednesday, June 26, featuring a barbecue in the church parking lot and national youth speaker Joe Phillips.

This Wednesday's event is titled "School Spirit" and besides Hanson's talk will feature a competition for school pep bands, pompon and cheerleading squads, prizes for "Best School Spirit Team," a giant pizza party with beverages, "American Gladiator" events, and big screen Super Nintendo, DeVries said.

Hanson, a Clarkston resident, said he expects to speak about identity and self-esteem.

"One of the things that I usually talk about is identity and where we get our identity," he said. "The world kind of says that your value as a person depends on how successful you are. When your value is in your image, it always changes.

"(If you base your value on) 'What I do and what I wear, well I could be cool for awhile but it's gonna change.' What I tell the kids is with God and through Christ your self-worth as a person always stays the same. It doesn't have anything to do with popularity or a performance on the football field."

you've got conflict in your life," said Ruth Koch, statewide spokeswoman for the "Living for Tomorrow" campaign. "People are very scared when they face a conflict. This program offers ideas and ways to manage conflict and help lower your fright level. It's not fight management, it's fright management."

"Living for Tomorrow" made its debut in the Detroit metropolitan area Monday, April 15, with the help of $75,000 from the Lutheran Hour Ministries. Now through April 28, commercials will air on television and radio and advertisements appear in newspapers promoting the program's toll-free telephone number.

The local volunteers are answering the calls between 7 a.m. and 11 p.m. (after-hours calls go into a voice mail system) at the phone banks at Christ Our Savior in Livonia, St. Paul's in Pontiac, St. Paul's in Trenton and Our Shepherd in Birmingham.

Their jobs are to make arrangements to mail or hand-deliver the materials, offer follow-up help, if the caller is interested, and provide information on two "Living for Tomorrow" seminars scheduled for May.

"The Lutherans are putting their money where their faith is," said Koch. "This is a faith-based program. Because we believe that God cares, Lutherans care.

"This is not a membership drive for the Lutheran church. If people read the material and realize that God has resources for them...if it benefits and blesses every church in the Detroit area, we will be delighted."

Among the churches supporting the outreach program are Christ the Good Shepherd in Canton, Hosanna Tabor and Grace Lutheran in Redford and Salem National, Our Savior and St. Matthew in Westland.

" 'Living for Tomorrow' is designed to reach out in a tangible way to people who are looking for answers in life," added Teresa Fairow, who coordinates the program nationally for Lutheran Hour Ministries. "Not only are we trying to help people deal with the conflict in their lives, but we want to remind them that there is a God that cares about them and their problems, and there are people in a Lutheran church right in their community who care about them, too."

'In Chicago, more than 6,000 people called in and in some of the other cities there were more than 4,000 callers.'
Ruth Koch

Lutheran Hour Ministries is a service of the International Lutheran Laymen's League, a volunteer organization of 150,000 members and auxiliary of the Lutheran Church–Missouri Synod and Lutheran Church–Canada.

This is the 21st metropolitan area in the United States to launch the "Living for Tomorrow." Originally started in Venezuela as advertisements that encouraged readers to call in about relevant topics, it was so well-received that it was "Americanized" and imported to the U.S. Koch, a social worker and counselor who has worked in conflict management for almost 30 years, got the job of writing the booklet and scripting the tape.

"In Chicago, more than 6,000 people called in and in some of the other cities there were more than 4,000 callers," she said. "When people realize it is free and there's no strings attached, they realize they're in control. They can choose between having the booklet and tape mailed or hand delivered and the volunteers do just that."

As part of the campaign, two seminars will be offered, free of charge, in May. The first will be 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, May 8, at the St. Paul Lutheran Church in Royal Oak, and the second will be 7-9 p.m. Wednesday, May 15, at Christ Our Savior Lutheran in Livonia. There is no need to preregister and "we'd be absolutely delighted if we packed the place," said Koch, who will facilitate both programs.

"We believe these materials can change lives; they offer some new choices for people," Fairow said. "We really believe God wants people to live in peace together and this campaign supports that belief."

Writer is socially oriented, involved with people

Dear Ms. Green,

I have enjoyed your column for a long time and believe that everything a person does is a reflection of their personality and character, including their handwriting.

I am right-handed, 53 years old and have a very bad case of arthritis in my hands that does not enable me to write as neatly as I used to.

This year I will begin college for the first time and pursue a career that I hope will prove to be very rewarding and enable me to become financially independent even though I am disabled.

Thank you for sharing your most interesting and enjoyable work with us. I also print often and am including a sample.

S.W.,
Canton

Very large writers are usually people who are socially oriented. Today's writer is not an exception. Currently, she is quite busy and actively involved with other people.

I am happy to see that she is planning on college. She is a bright woman. Her thought pattern is sequential and logical. She takes time to weigh things carefully. What she learns, she retains. I think a little intuition is also present to provide awareness.

Our writer is interested in developing her mind as well as self-improvement. The many long T bars in her handwriting register the enthusiasm she has for her work. This amount of enthusiasm can carry over to those around her as it is a contagious trait.

This is an ambitious woman who intends to accomplish her goals. Her desire to be outstanding and a need for recognition can spur her on to great heights.

She is self-disciplined and likes to be in control. Often, she is self-protective, evasive and does not reveal too much of a personal nature.

Although she is an emotional person, she does tend to keep her feelings repressed much of the time. So there may be some lack of spontaneity about her.

Seemingly, she has a strong need to be right. She also is concerned about appearances and formality. She can be original and innovative often.

This woman tackles problems from start to finish. She is thorough and deliberate and dislikes being rushed. However, in repetitive tasks she can be efficient and speedy.

This is a well-intergrated person. Interests cover a broad field, including some of life's finer things.

Seemingly, there is much our writer wants. Money and what it can provide appears to be quite important to her.

Usually, her outlook leans toward the serious side. And yet, she does appreciate humor. This is a good combination. Humor can be refreshing, bringing sunshine into one's home.

I think the writer was a little tired or down when she wrote her letter. However, her determination and persistence are assets which can help her stay the course.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. Due to the volume of mail, personal replies are not possible. However, objective feedback is welcome.

I have enjoyed your column for a long time and believe that everything a person does is a reflection of their personality and character including their handwriting.

Seminar to focus on family

According to the Child Abuse and Prevention Council of Out-Wayne Council, "In order for children to grow up and be effective and productive members of society, families and the community at large must protect and nuture them."

With that in mind, CAPCo will address those issues at a seminar, "Creating Stronger Families: Parents, Communities and Professions in Partnership" 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday, April 26, at Schoolcraft Community College in Livonia.

The conference will address the question of how parents, communities and professionals can work together as partners. It will explore strength-based approaches to assuring children the protection and nurturing they need and deserve.

The conference will kick off with a continental breakfast and registration at 8 a.m., followed by an address on "Strength-based Approaches to Working with Families" presented by Susan Whitelaw, associate professor in the School of Social Work at Wayne State University.

A panel presentation on "Real Life Experiences" by parents from Michigan State University Extension (Building Strong Families) and Development Centers (Parent-Infant Program) will be at 11:30 a.m.

The conference fee is $35 at the door. Checks, payable to CAPCo, should be sent to the Child Abuse and Prevention Council of Out-Wayne County, 30000 Hiveley, Inkster 48141. For more information, call the agency at (313) 721-5901.

Cyberspace becomes addiction in the '90s

Our contemporary society seems to be constantly spawning new addictions. It seems that as technology grows, so do our opportunities to indulge our addictive personalities. In addition to the longstanding addictions to alcohol and drugs, it is being recognized that other areas can be addictive, such as food, sex, gambling, shopping, exercise and even religion.

But, according to James Fearing, people now are coming forward for the counseling of computer addictions. He says that the most common complaints so far are "sexual compulsive behaviors, cyber sex, gambling on the international computer highway, inappropriate amounts of time spent on the computer, avoidance of problems, financial problems generated from 'air time' billed on the computer, money spent for computer hardware and products purchased on the computer shopping network (which may trigger shopping compulsivity)."

More things are involved in computer addiction than simply spending a lot of time on the computer. Many people invest lots of time on the computer due to their work, hobbies or other pursuits on a temporary basis as needed.

The following are some symptoms that indicate that computer addiction may exist. The potential for addiction exists if only one is in place. Three or more symptoms strongly indicate a pattern of computer addiction which should be addresses as soon as possible.

(1) The inability to stop using the computer or limit time on it, even when you want to.

(2) Covering up or being dishonest with yourself or others about the length of time you spend on the computer or about the type of activities you perform on the computer.

(3) Negative consequences to the computer user, family or friends, as a direct result of time or activities on the computer.

NEW DIRECTIONS

(4) Doing something on the computer that you would normally consider unacceptable behavior of which you or your family would disapprove.

(5) Defending your right to use the computer as much as desired regardless of the fact that people in your life are being left out or neglected.

(6) Feelings of euphoria combined with feelings of guilt because of the amount of time spent on the computer or abnormal behavior acted out while using the computer.

(7) Feeling depressed or anxious when you must shorten your time on the computer or are unable to use it.

(8) Preoccupation with the computer when you are not actually using it.

(9) Using the computer as an attempt to hide from feeling inside yourself or to avoid facing what is happening in your life.

(10) Being in a financial crunch due to spending on computer hard- or software, on-line charges or other costs associated with computers.

It has long been recognized that addictive behaviors not only affect the individual involved, but his or her family, friends, work place and social relationships. If you suspect that you or someone you know has a computer addiction, help is available from caring professionals who offer the support and guidance individuals need to overcome their addictions.

Time to listen to the birds

BY TIMOTHY NOWICKI
SPECIAL WRITER

The sounds of spring are beginning to blossom. Birds are the first members of the choir to sing, but soon to follow are the amphibians and the insects.

Bird songs are more elaborate vocalizations than calls used for everyday activities that we hear during winter. When the days become longer in spring it stimulates the males to begin singing to attract a female to his territory. Each species has a characteristic song and individuals of each species can have a slight variation of the typical song.

Recognizing the songs of birds will help you realize the variety of species in your yard or neighborhood. Putting word phrases to the songs improves your chances of remembering the species that produces the song.

One very loud, vociferous songster, whose notes ring through the neighborhood and bounce off walls, is the carolina wren. Although only five inches long, its song echoes like the chimes of a bell. To me, the song has intonations and a rhythm that resembles the work phrase "To see her." "To" is the middle tone, "see" is the highest pitch and "her" is the lowest of the three.

Another loud songster in your yard could be the tufted titmouse. At times they may say "Peter, Peter, Peter," each note is at the same pitch. Other times they may say, "Six-Thirty." In this song, "six" is the highest, while "thirty" descends with each syllable.

Do not confuse the clear, two, descending, whistle-like notes of the chickadee's song, with those of the titmouse. The chickadee sounds like "dreary," descending from the first syllable to the second.

Chickadees may say "dreary," but cardinals say "cheer, cheer, cheer," or "pretty, pretty, pretty," and other variations. Beware, too, that the female cardinal may be singing part of the song you are hearing. Typically, females do not sing, but for some reason, female cardinals do.

One interesting vocalization emanating from an unlikely species is the clattering of the crow. In spring, crows produce a rapid clattering sound that reminds me of a crow with castanets. I've noticed it when two birds are close to each other and more frequently in spring. I presume it's a vocalization, although it could be made by rapidly closing its bill. However it's made, it probably helps establish a bond between two individuals.

Next time you're in the yard with your eyes to the ground raking or planting, listen to the variety of sounds from birds. See if you can identify some of the above songs by their word phrases.

Rafko wows Town Hall

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Former Miss America Kaye Lani Rae Rafko's life reads like a storybook.

The oncology nurse was crowned Miss America in 1988 after a cancer patient of hers persuaded her to try again after being a runner up in 1986.

The first time she returned to Michigan after the crowning, 20,000 people showed up for the parade.

Even her romantic life is sweet. She met her husband in a strawberry patch near her Monroe home in 1982, and they married July 8, 1989.

But in June 1994, the storybook life came crashing down when her younger brother, Nick, died in a car accident near the home of his girlfriend to whom he had proposed just 15 days earlier.

"On June 26, God took him, and I never thought that I would speak again; I never thought I would do anything. I never thought I'd be able to find magic in my life again," a crying Rafko told a recent Northville Town Hall crowd at the Holiday Inn-West in Livonia.

Suffering from a sinus infection, she wiped her nose then added with a laugh, "This has been great for my sinuses."

During her talk, she shared her love for her brother and how much he had taught her before and after he died. She learned an important lesson about life and death during his funeral. He had been a member of the 1994 Rose Bowl University of Wisconsin football team.

"I was looking at his helmet on top of the casket when I heard a commotion; there was the entire University of Wisconsin football team," she said. "I saw 12 of them fall to their knees and openly weep over the loss of more than just a teammate. He had changed their lives.

"That's when he taught me that it's not how long you're here but what you do with it. When he went to heaven, Nick needed no introduction. God looked at him and saw a leader. Now I have a new goal. I don't want to have to introduce myself."

During a question-and-answer period after the lunch, several widowed patrons wrote an anonymous note to Rafko, complaining that they wanted to be entertained not brought down.

"My feelings aren't hurt at all," she said. "I extend my sympathies to those who had lost their husbands. I always thought that sharing experiences is good. I really believe in sharing. I always seem to apologize to crowds. I'm still doing a great deal of healing. It's hard for me to do it in front of my family."

Her family includes husband Chuck Wilson, a computer programmer, and son Nick, a 3 1/2-year-old named after her brother before his death, and a child on the way.

Her son has a lot of the same traits as her late brother, she said. At 2 years old, he could tell what sport was on the radio just by listening to it.

"Of all the roles in my life, being a mother beats any walk down any runway," she said.

The oldest of four children, Rafko holds the distinction of being the first registered nurse to be crowned Miss America. A graduate of St. Mary Academy in Monroe, she is now pursuing a master's degree at the Universi-

RESTORED OPERA HOUSE

A WORK IN PROGRESS

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

For Monica Wyatt and John Hinchman, the chance to work on the $24 million restoration of the Detroit Opera House was "definitely a coming together of the planets or something."

"The opportunity just presented itself and you really can't say no to a project like this. The opportunity's so grand," said Hinchman, restoration supervisor for the Michigan Opera Theatre, formerly the Grand Circus Theatre.

"And it's such a beautiful building," added Wyatt, the construction manager.

The Pontiac residents, both of whom earned their master's degrees from the Cranbrook Academy of Art in Bloomfield Hills, and their crews had their work cut out for them when intensive work began in 1995.

When the building closed in 1989, the heat and water service was shut off, however, the pipes were not drained. In the winter, the pipes froze and subsequently burst spilling water throughout the historic theater and causing substantial damage.

"In a lot of the cases, the plasterwork that you see, the water damage was so excessive they actually had to rip it out. They didn't just come in and patch the holes," explained Hinchman, 31.

"The difference between this and the Fox (Theatre restoration) is that the Fox is basically just a fantastic paint job. They did not have to redo most of their plaster. They had to do some but it was not to the extent that we had to do."

When the building opens Sunday, April 21, the seats will be in place, and the ceiling restoration will be complete. Renovations will continue during and after the season, which opens on April 27 with "La Boheme" and ends three shows later on June 9 with "Salome."

"It will be a 'work in progress,'" said Bloomfield Hills resident Eric Hill, managing director of the Albert Kahn Collective, the interior restoration architects who will also design the streetscape around the building. "It will be quite exciting for patrons. ... The audience will be able to see how breathtakingly the interior is. It's really stunning."

When the renovations are complete, the Detroit Opera Theatre will have a 75,000 square foot stage house, lobby and elevator tour. Adjoining office towers are undergoing adaptive reuse into dressing rooms, patron service areas and offices for the MOT's administration, production and community outreach departments.

The Michigan Opera Theatre, founded by general director David DiChiera, marks the opening of the Detroit Opera House and its 25th season with a gala celebration beginning at 4 p.m. Sunday, April 21. The sold-out concert will feature Luciano Pavarotti, sopranos Jane Eaglen and Alessandra Marc, and Dame Joan Sutherland joined by the MOT and Rackham choirs, the MOT orchestra and two guest conductors Steven Mercurio and John Demain. Tony Award-winning actor Roddy McDowall and soap opera star Ron Raines will serve as guest hosts.

Jim Wells, a chorus member from Garden City, said he's looking forward to the MOT having its own home after performing at the Masonic Temple and Fisher Theatre.

"It's exciting to have a permanent home now. We've kind of been like step-children, but it's been fun getting the experience at the Fisher," said Wells, the 52-year-old music director at Grosse Pointe Baptist Church.

"It's kind of sad a little bit too to leave those theaters. Even though you don't have a permanent home, you develop an affinity to the stages."

The season is twice as exciting for 22-year-old Joseph Pokorski of Rochester Hills. A chorister three years, Pokorski becomes a principal artist this year. He'll appear as "Pargpinol" in "La Boheme," "Giuseppe" in "La Traviata" and the "Second Jew" in "Salome." Oh and besides that, he gets to perform with Pavarotti.

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity. It's not often you get to sing with the daddy of them all. I don't know if I'm nervous or if I'm just anxious."

Located on the corners of Broadway and Madison at Grand Circus Park, the theater originally opened Jan. 12, 1922, as the Capitol Theatre. Claimed to be the fifth largest theater in the world, the Capitol was the first in a series of palatial vaudeville and moving picture houses built in the area in the 1920s.

The building was constructed with superb acoustics, according to Wyatt, and in the style of the grand European opera houses and designed by renowned Detroit architect C. Howard Crane.

The Michigan Opera Theater could have started from scratch and built a new theater in the suburbs. But the planners took the history of the building into consideration.

"It was recognized that we had a historical jewel in the city that was built by a very famous theater architect (Crane)," Hinchman said.

"The important thing to remember about this building is it's such a critical element to the history of Detroit. Detroit itself, in terms of theaters that the city has, was comparable to New York City. It had the second largest number of theaters behind New York."

"You've got the Grand Circus here, the Madison, Adams, United Artists, Masonic Temple, State, Fox, Fisher, Orchestra Hall, Music Hall, Fine Arts, Trumbull Theater and the Gem."

Wyatt, 29, explained that the renovation should have a ripple effect bringing the people involved in the renovation back into the city.

"Once the building opens some of the builders will be coming to the shows here, people from the suburbs will come down and see that it's not such a bad place. It's such a beautiful building that you'll get all the different groups of people coming back, which is what we need."

Chameleon Galleries LTD present 'Glass Act'

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

In the spirit of Michigan Glass Month in April, artists Mark Sudduth and John Nickerson fired up the furnaces at the Benchmark Studio in Cleveland, Ohio in preparation for a showing of new work at Chameleon Galleries LTD in Plymouth.

The "Glass Act" exhibition features nearly 50 pieces of art including vessels, bowls, platters and sculpture. Even though this is the gallery's first glass show, Denni Englehart has carried Sudduth's work since first opening her gallery seven years ago.

"I decided to have a show because glass has come full circle. It can be functional or sculptural. Just in the last 10 years artists have been experimenting with new techniques. Mark's work is very transitional. It can go with contemporary or with an antique table while John's work is very contemporary," said Englehart who co-owns the gallery with her husband Jim. Nickerson, who earned a master of fine arts degree from New York State College of Ceramics at Alfred University in New York, teaches glass blowing at the Cleveland Institute of Art. Between 1965 and 1966, he studied at Society of Arts and Craft (now known as Center for Creative Studies) in Detroit while working as an industrial design sculptor on the General Motors styling staff in Warren. His work is in the permanent collections of the Corning Museum of Glass in New York, Muskegon Museum of Art, Delaware and Denver art museums, and Mus'ee des Arts D'ecortifs in Lausanne, Switzerland. Until last fall when he moved to Cleveland to teach, Nickerson crafted glass art in his Colorado studio. His work, accomplished in a series of steps, entails a number of techniques beginning with blowing hot glass. After the material is cooled down, the 57 year old artist uses what's called "cold working" to cut, grind and polish the glass art to a finish.

"Glass is like no other material. It comes out of the furnace around 2,200 degrees F. There's nothing else like it, the mystique of working with this molten material which culminates in finished pieces that are sparkling and cold," said Nickerson.

Gala marks Plymouth Symphony's Golden Anniversary

Plymouth Symphony Orchestra Golden Anniversary Gala Celebration, 7 p.m. (cocktails) 8 p.m. (dinner) Friday, April 26 Fox Hills Country Club, 8768 North Territorial Road, Plymouth. Tickets $100 per person, black tie optional, premium open bar. Call the Plymouth Symphony office (313) 451-2112 for tickets.

'Everything the committee has done is outstanding. It's going to be very first-class all the way. White glove service.'

David Burnisky
Plymouth Symphony Board President

BY RENEE SKOGLUND
SPECIAL WRITER

The Plymouth Symphony's Golden Anniversary Gala Celebration Friday, April 26 at Fox Hill Country Club promises to be a spectacular evening.

It's "Play it again, Sam," time all evening long. Guests will be wined and dined in a "Casa Blanca" atmosphere that raises vintage 1940s nightclub to an art form. After dinner, the famous Humphrey Bogart-Ingrid Bergman movie will be shown as a backdrop to activities.

The Matt Michaels Orchestra, well-known in metro Detroit musical circles, will entertain with music of the big bands. And for all the two left-footers, dance instructors from Arthur Murray's Northville studio will offer on-the-spot ballroom dance instructions.

Fox Hills executive chef Chris Byrd has created a memorable menu that includes: Vegetable minestrone, Caesar salad with lime dressing, raspberry sorbet, and an entree of herb-encrusted beef tenderloin and seared salmon with fresh asparagus and Duchess potatoes. Chef Byrd will bring his performance to an end with a white chocolate mousse with fresh berries.

"This will be a wonderful night to remember," said Kathy Aznavorian, Fox Hills owner and Gala Organizer. Aznavorian is also a PSO board member.

In addition to the gourmet dinner, great music and spectacular decorations that include a vintage 1940s automobile, guests can capture their good time by having their photographs taken. They'll also go home with a chocolate CD embossed with the PSO emblem in gold.

Christa Grix, former executive director of the PSO, said of the gala: "It is the social event of the season. We are setting a new standard for social events in Plymouth."

"Everything the committee has done is outstanding. It's going to be very first-class all the way. White glove service," said David Burnisky, current Plymouth Symphony Board President.

However, Burnisky doesn't want the words "Black Tie Optional" on the tickets to cause a run on tuxedos in town. "If they want to come in 'Casa Blanca' attire right from the 1940s that's okay."

Both Grix and Burnisky are hoping the community turns out for the Gala to show their support for an orchestra that has flourished for fifty years. Also, the Gala's guests of honor will be Plymouth residents Kenneth and Esther Hulsing, whose community involvement and association with the Plymouth Symphony spans five decades.

The focal point is the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra and those who have contributed their time, talent, and treasure to it throughout the years. As Grix said, "The Gala is a true and fitting celebration of 50 years of music-making in Plymouth."

Artifacts Club celebrates spring

BY LINDA CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Spring birds and flowers have popped up in an exhibit by Artifacts Art Club at Livonia City Hall, 33000 Civic Center Drive. In addition, the club's 21 members display landscapes, portraits and genre scenes in a variety of mediums including painting, colored pencil, lithography, pastel, sculpture, and photography. The 62 piece showcase, sponsored by the Livonia Arts Commission, continues through May 3.

Sherry Eid of Livonia won First Place in the exhibit judged by Livonia Public Schools art teacher Sue Slavik. "Choco Indian" is a portrait of a Panamanian Indian, delicately rendered in colored pencil. Eid's been working in this medium for 10 years and continues to study the techniques. In May, she is registered to take a workshop with nationally recognized colored pencil artists Bonnie Auten and Jane Gildow at the Holiday Inn in Livonia.

"I've been a student for 10 years. With Choco Indian, I was trying a different style and colored pencil. I like the different effects you can brush and blend them," said club president Sherry Eid, who's studied colored pencil with Marsha Weigand of Farmington.

Weigand, a finalist in the Arts & Flowers Competition last year at the Detroit Institute of Arts, took Second Place for a color photograph "Island Abstract.' Third Place was awarded to "Pink Dominoes (Cholesterol),' a photomicrograph by 84- year old Detroit photographer John Kroll who died of a massive heart attack a little more than one week ago. Kroll worked in Henry Ford Hospital's photography department 25 years, recording every square inch of the body for science.

Kroll turned out 5,000 slides a month at the teaching hospital and filmed Michigan's first open heart surgery there in 1956. Since retiring Kroll devoted all his time to creating photographs of microscopic materials magnified 25 to 1,000 times. He dissolved and enlarged everything from aspirins to body tissue on slides under a microscope, then photographed the slides. Objects take on new colors and designs when captured through the lens of a microscope.

Polarizing filters vary the colors and add electricity. In an interview last summer during his one man show at Livonia City Hall Kroll said, "Everything in nature has a pattern and it's identifiable if you know what you're looking for." In this winning image, a minute piece of cholesterol looks like a geometric abstract with a neon pink focal point.

Honorable Mentions went to Rose Marie Stark for a watercolor "Spring Flowers," and to Gwen Senatore for "Fantasia," a flowed ink work.

Artifacts Art Club was founded in 1986 by David Messing, owner of the Art Store and More in Livonia. Messing, a former columnist for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, gathered students, teachers and friends to form the club in order to afford artists the opportunities to exchange ideas on techniques and media, to offer help and support, and to exhibit their work.

Members range in age, levels of accomplishment and in choice of media. Meetings are held on the fourth Tuesday of the month at the Livonia Civic Center Library.

Oriental brush artist Christine Wong will demonstrate Chinese folding and paper cutting at the April 23 meeting. Those attending should bring scissors, pencil and wrapping paper in solid colors. For more information call Sherry Eid (313) 591-3094.

"Paper cutting is an ancient art that the women use in a special kind of design to decorate windows and also to celebrate different festivals, for weddings and moon festival. From flowers to little animals to fruit, Chinese use the same kind of paper cutting design in embroidery on shoes and clothing," said Wong.

"Paper folding started with Chinese and then the Japanese discovered and called it origami. When we were young our parents taught us paper folding to encourage our creativity. It was the main source of toys when we were young."

CHERNOBYL EXHIBIT

April 26 is the 10-year anniversary of the world's worst nuclear accident in Ukraine. "Chernobyl: 10 Years After — Through the Eyes of Children" is an exhibit to memorialize the tragic victims of Chernobyl, Ukraine at Your Heritage House, 110 E. Ferry at John R, north of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The paintings, drawings, sculptures, photographs, installations, pysanky, etchings and mosaics by children of Ukrainian descent who live in the Detroit Metropolitan area. An opening reception takes place 1:30 p.m. to 4 p.m. Sunday, April 21 with a performance at 2:30 p.m. by the SUMA Bandura School. Admission is free.

MTV host surprises Verve Pipe fans

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Matt Pinfield, guest host for MTV's "120 Minutes," made a surprise appearance by introducing The Verve Pipe at its record release show Saturday, April 13, at the Michigan Theatre in Ann Arbor.

In front of a crowd of about 2,000, Pinfield said that he came out here on his own to support The Verve Pipe, whom he will interview the first or second Monday of May on "120 Minutes." The show is on from midnight-2 a.m. Monday mornings (or late Sunday nights whichever way you look at it).

The Verve Pipe ripped through a 1 1/2-hour set that included an array of songs from its debut "I've Suffered A Head Injury" to its RCA debut "Villains." An ovation to his songwriting abilities, a visibly touched lead singer Brian Vander Ark bowed his head and smiled letting a chorus of 2,000 sing "The Freshmen" to him.

Like the band's Chicago show at The Metro, the Ann Arbor gig featured loud, distorted guitars, which was corralled in the past, proving the "Pearl Jam light" comparisons wrong.

The night culminated with a chill-invoking cover of the Beatles' "Strawberry Fields" with the opening band Howlin' Maggie joining The Verve Pipe. As Vander Ark sang the lead, Howlin' Maggie vocalist Harold Chichester, formerly of Royal Crescent Mob, glammed it up for the audience singing background. On the pseudo "Look at me, aren't I beautiful" front, Chichester really gives Charm Farm leader Dennis White a run for his money. Look for Howlin' Maggie, one fine band, to open for the Afghan Whigs Thursday, May 2, at the State Theatre. For more information, call (313) 961-5451.

The Verve Pipe's upcoming schedule also includes a performance on Roseanne's show "Saturday Night Special" at 11 p.m. Saturday, May 4, and a radio appearance on "Modern Rock Live" (heard Sundays at 10:30 p.m. on CIMX-FM 88.7) on Sunday, April 28.

• Speaking of Charm Farm, look for them to make a surprise appearance Thursday, April 18. (Hint: It will be somewhere in Royal Oak.) The band will celebrate the release of "Pervert," its debut for Mercury Records, on Saturday, April 20, with a not-so-secret all-ages show at the 7th House in Pontiac. For more information, call (810) 335-8100.

• The Lollapalooza Festival main stage is wrapping up. Psychotica, an androgynous and rather scary looking punk band on American Recordings, opens the show with Metallica, Soundgarden, Rancid, The Ramones and the Screaming Trees joining them. Look for concert dates to be announced soon.

• Madison, Wis., Mayor Paul R. Soglin proclaimed Thursday, March 14, "Garbage Day" in honor of the alternative rock band Garbage's first-ever performance in its hometown. Band members Butch Vig, Duke Erikson and Steve Marker have lived in Madison since the late 1970s. (Garbage's lead singer Shirley Manson hails from Scotland.) Vig is a native "cheesehead" and studied at the University of Wisconsin in Madison, as did Marker. Erikson moved there after visiting the city. Garbage rescheduled its postponed Sunday, April 13, at St. Andrew's Hall in Detroit for Saturday, June 1. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT.

• Misc: Slayer will release its latest album "Undisputed Attitude" (American) on May 28 ... The Posies puts out its next effort on May 14 ... Kurt Cobain favorites The Raincoats make their DGC debut also on May 14 ... Beck releases his major-label sophomore effort June 18 ... Michael Bolton is kicking off his summer tour at Pine Knob Music Theatre in mid-August.

• Best picks for the week: Botfly plays the Blind Pig, 206-208 S. First St., Ann Arbor on Thursday, April 18. Call (313) 996-8555 ... ICP brings its Faygo-flavored rap show to St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit, on Friday, April 19, (313) 961-MELT ... Avant garde rockers Cibo Matto sing about food at the Shelter below St. Andrew's Hall in Detroit on Sunday, April 21, (313) 961-MELT ... Black Grape, featuring former Happy Mondays frontman Shaun Ryder, comes to St. Andrew's Hall in Detroit Monday, April 22. "Vibe Master" Bez and background singer Kermit won't be there however. They weren't allowed in the country. The unpredictable Ryder fired his tour manager last weekend, so expect plenty of surprises on Monday ... Sister Machine Gun comes to the Blind Pig on Wednesday, April 24.

If you have any questions or comments for Christina Fuoco, you can write to her care of The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia, MI 48150, or via e-mail at cfuoco@aol.com, or you can leave her a message at (313) 953-2047 ext. 2130.

'Kids' succeed on big screen

By John Monaghan
Special Writer

"Kids in the Hall Brain Candy" is precisely the kind of movie you'd expect the Canadian comedy team to make: sketch humor strung together with the thinnest of plots. Fortunately, the movie has enough surprises and bizarre characters to make it well worth seeing.

For those who haven't caught up with them yet, The Kids are the Canadian discovery of "Saturday Night Live" producer Lorne Michaels. Their irreverant skits (part Python, part Marx Brothers) have appeared on the CBC, HBO, Comedy Central, and even CBS with whatever editing that particular station required.

In "Brain Candy," a new anti-depressant called Gleemonex has been discovered that taps into your happiest memory, locking you into a perpetual state of bliss. When a greedy chemical company head decides to sell the pill over-the-counter, the entire country takes a one-way ticket to La La Land.

Kevin McDonald plays Gleemonex's developer, a lab technicianwho becomes an instant celebrity. He stays with this characterthrough much of the film, leaving the four others (Bruce McCulloch, David Foley, Mark McKinney, Scott Thompson) to take on almost a dozen different personas each.

Thompson plays a gay family man who thinks that his wife and kids don't know that he watches Chippendales videos in his bedroom. Gleemonex gives him the strength to admit that he's gay.

In an inspired production number he parades through suburban streets singing "I'm gay" while neighborhood kids do cartwheels and celebrate his coming out.

McCulloch probably fares best. He's Cisco, the marketing guy from hell who insults everyone in sight. He's also pain rocker Grivo, who loses his angst upon taking the drug. McCulloch even plays the wheelchair-bound, baseball cap-wearing Cancer Boy, certainly one of the most un-Politically Correct characters in this (or any other) film.

Veteran Kids' director Kelly Makin keeps the action moving, though he could have been more clever with the editing. The Kids, like the Marx Brothers 60 years before them, can sink or swim depending on how a director understands their sense of humor and timing.

Part of the fun here is trying to second guess the happiest memories of various characters. Thompson's old woman, for instance, cherishes the time her son and his family rushed in at Christmas, grabbed a turkey leg and presents, and were out the door in three seconds flat. It would have been fun to see what turks in Grivo's and Cisco's heads as well.

Though the idea of a drug-controlled society is as old as "Brave New World," it still makes for clever satire. The movie says that we will trade anything (our souls, our personalities) for a life without cares.

Sarcastic, often downright nasty, "Brain Candy" is a love or hate experience that may depend on how familiar you already are with the Kids in the Hall. Still you'll have to admit: even its worst ten minutes are funnier than an entire season of "Saturday Night Live."

'The Jungle Book' is well acted

BY LEANNE ROGERS
STAFF WRITER

To anyone who grew up watching jungle adventure movies like "Tarzan" or earlier versions of "The Jungle Book," the most recent film version released in 1994 will seem very familiar. Don't let that stop you from enjoying this nifty new adaptation from Disney.

A widowed British Army officer, played by Sam Neill, is going to a new post in India with his young daughter. Also in the party are an Indian guide and his young son, who has also lost his mother. A connection develops between the children, but is abruptly severed when the boy is lost and presumed dead in the chaos of a tiger attack on the camp.

The boy, Mowgli, has of course, survived and prospers under the care of a wolf and other animals of the jungle. Jason Lee is perfectly cast as the adult Mowgli — physically graceful and capturing small gestures that reflect the animals' influence. That's especially noticeable during his early scenes alone in the jungle with the animals.

The animals and scenery are beautifully shot — part of the movie was filmed in India. Mowgli stumbles into the treasure-laden city ruled by monkeys and guarded by various hazards like a giant serpent. This is a place that you just know will be important later in the story.

Mowgli again meets his childhood friend Kitty, played as an adult by Lena Headey, and becomes reacquainted with human society. In this case, British society where Mowgli incurs the wrath of the smug officer who has set his sights on Kitty. Mowgli gets a bit of revenge using an elephant call to create havoc when the troops assemble with their herd of pack elephants.

The film has some fun with Mowgli's efforts to dress and behave like a gentleman. He's clearly the true gentleman despite the artificial refinements of the soldiers. The film also subtly shows the native population's inherent dislike and resentment toward the British through their efforts to help Mowgli evade pursuing British soldiers.

"The Jungle Book" is well acted and well-paced. It also gets across its message that greed and prejudice aren't admirable qualities that could land in quicksand or some other equally unpleasant end.

BOOK BREAK

Book honors Irish-American landmarks

BY ESTHER LITTMANN
SPECIAL WRITER

"Irish-American Landmarks" (Visible Ink Press 1995, $18.95) is what every guidebook should be: informative and entertaining for tourist and armchair traveler alike.

In fact, author John Barnes, son of Irish immigrants, former editorial writer of "The Detroit News" and currently with "The New York Post," has accomplished much more with his first book. Focusing on the contributions of Irish-Americans to their newly adopted country and the sites that memorialize their achievements, Barnes weaves the histories of Ireland and North America into a fascinating tapestry whose threads are the colorful lives of politicians, clergymen, soldiers, writers and entrepreneurs who influenced our culture.

Whether Catholic, Presbyterian, or Quaker, many fled from religious persecution. Others narrowly escaped the Great Famine of the 1840s when the potato crop failed. But as immigrants to a land of unlimited opportunity, they recharged their energy and spirit to fulfill what we call today the "American Dream."

In Michigan, for example, there's Frank Murphy, whose famine immigrant grandparents became prosperous dairy farmers. When young Frank left his rural home to earn a law degree at the University of Michigan, he often supplemented his income with factory labor. This experience taught him compassion for ordinary workers. As governor of Michigan in 1937, he refused to call out the National Guard against the auto strikers, thus paving the way for UAW recognition from General Motors. Today, Murphy's modest home in Harbor Beach is a museum open to the public.

A different kind of home is Fairlane, the former estate of Henry Ford, another famous Irish-American. Lucky for us, young Henry resisted his immigrant father's pressure to become a farmer, instead spending his after-work hours "tinkering with something in the shed."

The Irish in the South were no less idealistic and productive. Louisiana boasts the first American statue to memorialize a woman, that of Margaret Gaffney Haughey. Orphaned at 9, widowed, and bereft of an infant daughter, Haughey turned her own sorrows into service for others. With the profits of a successful bakery business, she established several orphanages and asylums in New Orleans.

Out West there's the Concannon Winery, the oldest continuously operating winery in California. Founder John Concannon was barely 18 years old when he arrived on the West Coast in 1883. Hard work, education, and thrift led him to the purchase of 47 acres of land in Livermore, where he experimented with imported vines from France.

Barnes includes over 300 entries in his 590-page book. Anecdotes abound: Jackie Gleason's famed ability to improvise; Eugene O'Neill's warped home life; the night Ronald Reagan's father slept in his car because he refused to stay in a hotel that prided itself on anti-Semitism. A site index and over 100 photographs suggest some great places to visit: the country's largest railroad museum in Baltimore, Maryland; the Irish-American Heritage Museum in East Durham, New York; the Hermitage, home of Andrew Jackson in Nashville, Tennessee; and our own Beaver Island on Lake Michigan.

Like all guide books, Barnes provides information about sites and exhibits, their location, hours, fees, etc. A 400-year timeline of events and suggestions for further reading enrich an already comprehensive publication. "Landmarks" can be purchased at Borders or by calling 1-(800)-776-6265.

TRAVEL

Plan a vacation to historic Plymouth, Massachusetts

PRNewswire — A popular visitor destination since the arrival of the earliest Pilgrims, historic Plymouth, Massachusetts is introducing a series of new programs for the 1996 tourist season.

New initiatives include three new cruise options, two new Halloween programs, new exhibits marking the 375th anniversary of America's first Thanksgiving, and a new antiques center featuring 100 dealers.

Capt. John Boats celebrates its 50th anniversary this year with three new excursions: lighthouse and foliage cruises and a floating classroom.

New England lighthouses are featured in a narrated fall cruise. An expert recounts stories of these landmarks and the keepers who operated them. Visitors can choose a three-hour cruise with four lighthouses or a 4 1/2 hour trip with six lighthouses. Available September through November, both cruises include lunch.

The fall foliage cruise lets visitors discover New England during its most colorful season. Available September, October and November, the luncheon cruise adds history and adventure to the region's numerous foliage activities. The 90-minute tour retraces the Pilgrim's first landing in Plymouth Harbor and cruises close the colorful coastlines.

Designed for students in grades 5 and up, the floating classroom provides hands-on field study which includes collection and study of lobsters, a plankton tow to collect and study samples onboard, study of bottom samples and marine navigation including simple chart plotting.

The two-hour trips are offered April through June and September through November. For more information call (508) 746-2643 or (800) 242-2469.

Halloween Tours

A special two-hour Halloween Tour will be available from Plymouth Colonial Lantern Tours, October 18-30, 1996.

The walking tour will depart each evening at 8 p.m. from the Plymouth National Wax Museum. Each participant will carry his or her own lantern as tour guides describe the macabre side of Plymouth's history. A special visit to Burial Hill will add to the spirited and ghoulish tales. These two hour specialty tours run from October 18-30 by reservation only. (Both individual & family rates available.)

For reservations and additional information, call (508) 747-4161 or Fax (508) 747-4284.

SuperSports Family Fun Park, in the nearby town of Carver, will present a Halloween Festival, October 3-31, 1996.

The primary event is a 35-40 minute Haunted Hayride. The narrated journey passes 20 action packed stage sets where more than 50 live actors perform various "haunts" around the wagon.

The Haunted Hayrides begin each night at 7:00 p.m. Reservations are recommended.

Baseball standout

Junior righthander Brian Paluk nearly carved a spot for himself in Saginaw Valley State baseball history last Sunday.

The Cardinals collected their fourth-straight victory by blanking Alma College 7-0. Four SVSU pitchers combined to allow just one hit in the nine-inning victory, one of whom was Paluk, a Redford Catholic Central graduate from Plymouth. Paluk surrendered one walk while striking out one in his single inning of work, the sixth.

He came in in relief of sophomore Fred Schwarze, who worked the first five innings and gave up no hits and one walk while striking out six. Freshman Cary Coombe followed Paluk and did not give up a hit, walking one while striking out six in his two innings of work. Alma's only hit came off of senior Mickey Kimsel with one out in the ninth.

The win was the Cards fourth-straight and improved their record to 9-10 overall.

Ocelot captains named

Rudy Hatfield (Livonia Churchill) and Dwaun Warmack (Detroit Finney) were elected co-captains for the 1996-97 Schoolcraft College men's basketball team during the team's banquet on April 9.

Hatfield, a 6-foot-3 forward, paced SC in rebounding during his freshman year with 7.4 per game.

"I'll work my hardest so I don't let my team down, and Dwaun and I will provide the leadership the team elected us for," Hatfield said.

Warmack, a 5-9 point guard, led the Ocelots in assists with 4.6 per game.

"We expect this to be a winning program and we should all expect vast improvement in 1996-97," Warmack said. "Rudy and I have the experience and know what it takes to win, and expect it of all our teammates."

Three other SC players received honors for their efforts in 1995-96.

Tim Burns (Romulus) was selected by the coaches as Most Valuable Player. He was second on the team in scoring (12.8 ppg) and rebounding (7.33). Burns was also selected All-Eastern Conference in the Michigan Community College Athletic Association.

Hatfield was selected Most Improved. He suffered a broken hand in during the opening workoutt and sat out the first three weeks of practice, but showed steady progress during the season, highlighted by a 21-rebound effort against St. Clair and 20 versus Alpena.

Chris Hebner (Wayne Memorial), a 6-6 sophomore center, earned the Coaches' Award for his unsung effort on the defensive end.

"Chris did all the little things that coaches need for the team to be successful," SC head coach Glen Donahue said.

Hebner, Burns, Jason Maschke (Livonia Franklin), Dave Pavlak (Dearborn St. Alphonsus) and Doug Walters (Belleville) all finished their careers at SC.

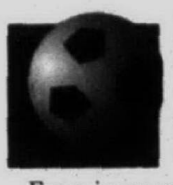
Salem's 2nd half stops Stevenson



It was an early-season showdown when Salem met Stevenson in a Lakes Division showdown. The winner would have the inside track to the Western Lakes Activities Association playoff title match.

Experience vs. talented youth.

That's a description often used when referring to Plymouth Salem's soccer team in the past. Only for the last few years, the Rocks have been the latter.

But when they went up against Livonia Stevenson Wednesday at Salem's field, the experience went to Salem and the talented youth tag belonged to Stevenson, which started five sophomores and a freshman.

The final result favored the Rocks, but it took two second-half goals to persevere.

The 2-0 triumph puts Salem in an ideal situation, as far as the Western Lakes Activities Association is concerned. The Rocks (now 4-1 overall) took a big step toward claiming the Lakes Division title; the Spartans are 3-1 overall.

"The question wasn't what kind of team (Salem) had, it was what kind of team we had," said Stevenson coach Jim Kimble. "I thought if we could stop Mia (Sarkesian) and Mari (Hoff), we had a chance."

Unfortunately for the Spartans, they couldn't. Salem, which returns the bulk of its '95 team that reached the state final, played listlessly in the first half but stepped it up in the second.

A move by new Rocks' coach Doug Landefeld had a direct effect on the game's first goal when Missy Simons, whom he switched from sweeper to outside defender "to get better service," was dragged down by Stevenson's Becky Peterson. A yellow card was issued and Simons took the free kick from 20 yards out.

Sarkesian broke toward the Spartan goal when Simons struck the ball, heading the line drive past Stevenson keeper Jenny Barker to make it 1-0 Salem with 25 minutes left.

"It was a breakdown (in our coverage," said Kimble. "And that's coming from our inexperience."

It was a mistake a team can't afford to make against players of Salem's caliber. "Mia (Sarkesian) is one of the top players in the state, and she showed it," said Landefeld. "And Missy Simons knows exactly where to put the the ball, and she did."

After that, there was little Stevenson could manage. They tried, pushing forward extra players, but that resulted in Hoff scoring a goal on a rocket with two minutes left. Jodi Coyle drew the assist.

The goals were the first allowed by Stevenson this season.

Madonna cage coach quits

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

After his best season, Bill Potter has called it quits as coach of Madonna University's women's basketball team.

Citing personal reasons, Potter leaves after guiding the Lady Crusaders to a 20-13 record and into the NAIA Great Lakes Sectional Championship game.

In a prepared statement, Madonna athletic director Ray Summers said: "We appreciate all that coach Potter did in not only startingthe program, but building it to a 20-win team last season. I wish him luck in all his future endeavors both in and out of coaching."

His coaching future is definitely on hold, according to Potter. "I just got married, I got a new job, and I'm getting a new house built, too," he said. "It was just time (to leave), with all the other stuff in my life I have going on.

"There's only 24 hours in a day."

Potter, 34, was Madonna's inaugural coach when the program started five years ago. His career record was 62-83.

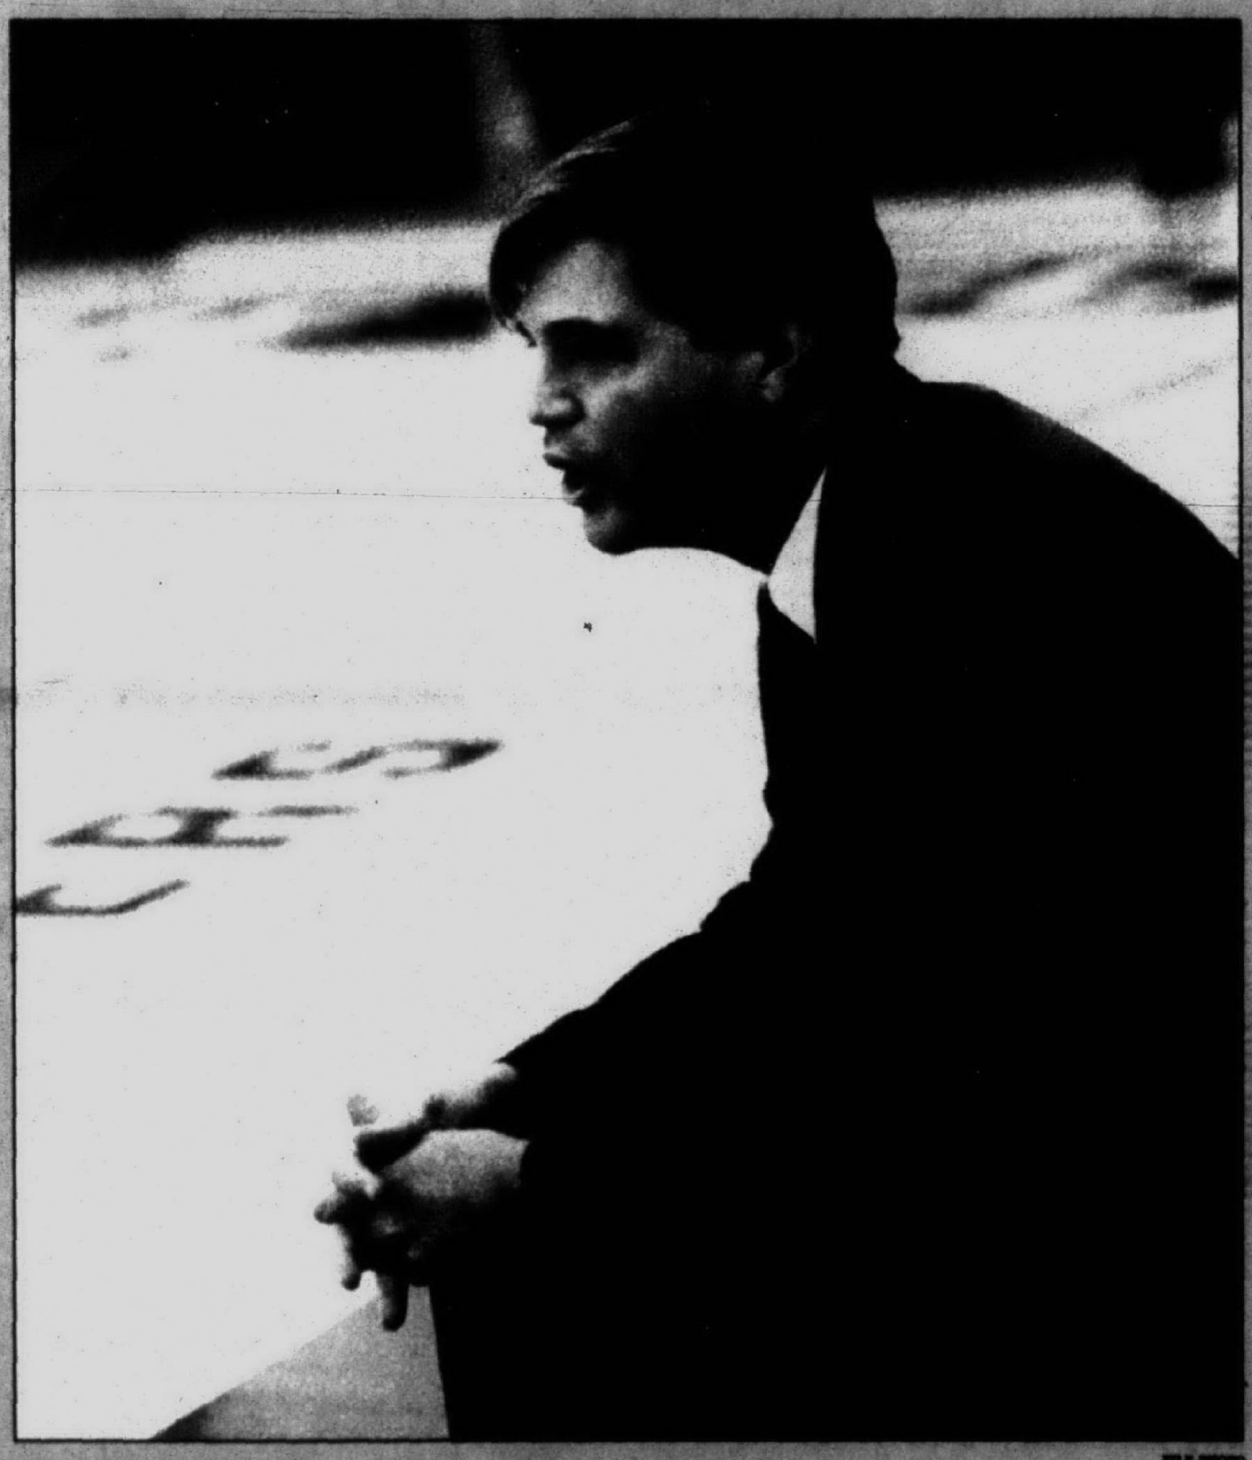
As with any new program, it was a struggle - at least until last season, when Potter brought in three prominent freshmen in Katie Cushman, Angie Negri and Mary Murray, and three solid transfers - Stacy Lamphere, Jamie Heins and Michelle Parmentier.

Making Potter's decision more surprising was the team's youth: Only Lamphere, a transfer from Oakland University, and Francine Williams will be lost to graduation.

The returnees should provide Madonna with its most promising outlook ever. Indeed, when Potter announced his decision to his team last week, he told them, "You should eclipse that (20-13) mark next season."

It's his "relationship with the players" that Potter said he will miss the most, espcially with so many returning next season. "I would have liked to (come back)," Potter said. "But it was getting a little hectic. It takes so much of your time."

Potter was married last October. He also got a new position with Fife Electric, in Novi, which required more of his time, then started building a new house in South Lyon.



FILE PHOTO

Had enough: Bill Potter led Madonna's women's basketball team into prominence - and deep into the NAIA playoffs - this season, but that was enough for him.

When the next Madonna season rolls around, it will be the second year in the past 16 that Potter won't be coaching. Prior to accepting the position at Madonna, he served as an assistant coach - part of the time with Oakland Community College's women's team.

He'll leave the Crusaders' program in good shape, that much is certain. "Five years ago, when I came into this position, you couldn't even open the door to the office," he recalled. "It was a storeroom for everyone else's junk."

The "junk" Potter will leave for his successor should be more than enough to mold a team of championship caliber. Too bad he won't be able to guide the Crusaders to that himself.

Chiefs have the mentality to succeed

GOLF PREVIEW

Most golfers are aware that golf is predominantly a "mental" sport.

Even ask Greg Norman.

So if it helps someone's golf game to be smart, Plymouth Canton girls golf coach Dan Riggs has reason to be optimistic.

The Chiefs return nine golfers from last season's squad which finished in the middle-of-the-pack in the tough Western Lakes Activities Association. The golfers who will see the most time on the fairways this season for Canton carry grade point averages above 3.5.

"I think the fact that they are sharp students help out their games immensely," said Riggs, now entering his 13th season at Canton. "Approximately 80 percent of the game is mental and the discipline has to be there. These girls have the discipline."

The Chiefs will need to use their smarts immediately to get used to their new home course - Hilltop Golf Course. According to Riggs, the greens are extremely fast and challenging.

One Chief that may not bother is senior Anne Alioto, who shot a 55 Monday in Canton's season-opening 232-255 victory over Walled Lake Central at Bogie Lake Golf Course.

"Anne is a technician of the game," Riggs said. "She is good around the greens and a very good putter."

Senior Kim Stafford tied Alioto's 55 Monday and will be Canton's other leading golfer. Stafford's strength is her long drives and consistency off the tee.

Junior Alyson Young (60) and senior Nancy Newcom (63) also scored for the Chiefs on Monday. Riggs will probably rotate sophomore Sandra Pavlo, junior Jessica Dumas and junior Amy Siegrist in the fifth and sixth spots.

Young, who has become more consistent with her overall game, is the most improved golfer on the squad, according to Riggs.

Other golfers who may see some time this season include juniors Holly Bailey and Karen Frankhart.

The Chiefs, who last tasted the conference title in 1991 when they went undefeated and were ranked in the top 10 in the state, hope to finish among the elite in the WLAA this season.

"Our first goal is to finish above .500, but we also hope to finish in the top three or four in the league," Riggs said. "Livonia Stevenson, Northville and Plymouth Salem will be very good, but hopefully we can break into that group.

"We will be dependent on the seniors to keep the team going this season. But I feel optimistic about our chances and believe this team will be good."

Chiefs trip Glenn

SOCCER

It was cold and it was wet Monday, but it was a lot colder and wetter for Westland John Glenn's soccer team than it was for Plymouth Canton's.

Host Canton drilled John Glenn's young soccer squad, 8-0, to improve to 2-1 in the Western Lakes Acitivities Association and drop Glenn to 0-4-1. Goalie Sarah Warnke got her second shutout of the season.

"They're just starting their soccer program," Chiefs' coach Don Smith said of the Rockets. "This is only their second year as a varsity team. They're struggling. The field was muddy, it was rainy and it was very cold. We just wanted to get the game over with and get home."

Jennell Cobor led the Chiefs with two goals plus an assist. Canton got goals from Kristie Drinkhahn, Julie Majewski, Beth Knight, Liza Reissenweber and Kelly Connell. Jenny Parviainen had a goal and an assist while Emile Mejer and Jessica Bradley each had an assist.

"The girls played a little better," Smith said, adding a cautionary that "doing things against teams just getting started is not the same as doing things against good teams.

"We need to play some good teams. We just need to get the season rolling. Plus, we need some nice weather. Once we got wet, it was really cold."

Rocks seeking another WLAA title

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK
STAFF WRITER

Two Katies and a Rick will be leading the Plymouth Salem girls golf team this year.

The pair of Katies are Collins and Murinas, both juniors and two of the better golfers in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

The Rick is Wilson, who is coaching the girls this season in addition to his 13 years as coach of the boys team.

Wilson is only the second girls golf coach Salem has ever had. The first, Jim Stevens, concluded an illustrious career which dated from 1965, with a WLAA championship last spring.

Salem's 410 total was 10 stroke better than runnerup Northville.

But gone from that team are Kelly Collins (Katie's older sister), Beth Cleland and Jaclyn Densmore.

"The two Katies will be strong individuals," Wilson said, "not only for the team, but they'll also be up there in the conference.

"A lot of the rest (of the players) are young and inexperienced. I don't think they have much match or tournament experience. But they are eager to learn and easy to coach."

You might wonder whether Wilson would choose to modify his style when switching between the squads but, after giving the matter some thought, he decided to continue being Rick Wilson.

"I'm approaching the girls pretty much as I do the boys," he said, "and they seem to be responding well. They've prepared themselves well, responded well, prepared for the weather.

"I was pleased with their preparation on a cold, windy day. The girls seem to be dedicated, committed. They want to improve."

Wilson wants them to improve, too. Especially on their season-opening score in a 197-219 loss Monday to Livonia Stevenson.

Katie Murinas
Salem leader

Katie Collins
Top Rocks' scorer

The Spartans' Kelly Kristy was the medalist at Hilltop Golf Course, the new home digs of the Rocks, with a 45. Teammate Kristen Bartholomew was a stroke behind along with Salem's Collins.

Murinas was another stroke back while Stevenson's Mara Mazzoni was next at 52 and the Spartans' Andrea Khoury was her team's final scorer with a 54.

Salem's final scorers were Chrystal Kopacz at 57 and Julie Licata, who shot a 69.

"I want them to improve and have fun," Wilson said. "I want them to learn this game and really take away a good feeling about golf. I want them to contine to play. It's a good lifetime sport.

This is my first year with the girls. So far, so good."

Victory keeps Salem on a fast track

BOYS TRACK

Jared Biniecki took a pair of first places in his long running specialties to help Plymouth Salem's track team get the kinks out of spring break with a victory in a quadrangular track meet.

The Rocks totaled 70 points, Dearborn Divine Child had 45.5, Birmingham Brother Rice 37 and Dearborn Fordson 19.5 Friday night on Salem's track.

"It was a good day," Salem coach Geoff Baker said. "It was the first time Brother Rice and Divine Child had been on the track. They were real happy to get it in.

"And for us, it was good to break up spring break with the meet. All the kids performed very well."

Biniecki won the 1,600 with a 4:29 clocking while teammate Scott Pengelly was second in 4:45. Japbir Gill was third in 4:58.

Biniecki captured the 3,200 with a time of 10:04, again beating out Pengelly's 10:22. Freshman Jon Little was fourth at 10:47.

Jason Barylski sped home first in the 100-meter dash in 11.15. Chris Mason took fourth for the Rocks in 11.8.

Scott Kingslien won the 400 in 52.8 with teammate Justin Draplin fourth in 59.1. Salem's Dan Johnson took the 300 intermediate hurdles in 41.8 with Rob Hawley third in 43.8.

Hawley was second in the 110 high hurdles in 15.8 with Johnson (16.1) fourth.

Salem's 1,600 relay team of Johnson, Biniecki, Kingslein and Barylski took first in 3:37.29. The Rocks' 800 relay team (1:37.3) was second to Divine Child's while the 400 relay team (46.3) was runnerup to Brother Rice's. The Rocks' 3,200 relay squad time of 8:56 was second to Brother Rice's by a second.

Barylski tried the 800 and clocked 2:01.3, second to Fordson, with Scott Loewe (2:03.6) third.

Salem did not score in the long jump or the 200 meters but Carl Brandenberg was fourth in the discus with a throw of 105-2.

Salem hosts Farmington today to get the jump on a busy weekend. The distance crew goes to the Mansfield (O.) Relays Friday and Saturday while the rest of the team participates in the Dearborn Elks Relays at Dearborn High.

Weekend streak carries Crusaders

■ MADONNA

The Madonna University baseball team proved over the weekend that good pitching is the key to winning.

With the exception of an 11-7 loss at Tiffin University in Friday's opener of a doubleheader, Madonna's pitching took over as the Crusaders finished the weekend with three consecutive wins.

Madonna (17-16) completed the weekend on Sunday with a doubleheader sweep of visiting Siena Heights University, 2-1 and 9-1.

In the nightcap, Joel Hillebrand (3-2) allowed only one run in his six innings of work, while walking one and striking out three. Joel Fabris retired the side in order in the seventh.

It was Hillebrand's second win of the week earning him Pitcher of the Week honors for the NAIA Great Lakes Section. In total, he allowed one earned run in nine innings of work while giving up seven hits and walking four.

The big hit of the victory was a three-run home run by Pete Quinn. Designated hitter Daryl Rocho went 3-for-4, while Kurt Wilczynski and Dan Taylor each added a pair of hits. Taylor also had two RBI.

In the opener, Eric Butler (5-1) stymied the Saints on four hits and held them scoreless for the final six innings. Butler struck out five and walked four.

Taylor drove in both Madonna runs in the sixth with a two-run double. Quinn went 3-for-3 and Aaron Shrewsbury had two hits.

On Friday, the Crusaders began the weekend with a 4-2 win in nine innings at Tiffin, Ohio.

A trio of three pitchers combined to limit Tiffin to seven hits. Fabris (1-1), the second of the three hurlers, recorded the victory with three shutout innings. Eric Crawford pitched the ninth to earn the save.

At the plate, Wilczynski had two hits, including a triple, a sacrifice and two RBI. Eric Marcotte added a pair of hits and a sacrifice.

The nightcap was a different story, however, as Tiffin banged out 13 hits for an 11-7 win. The Crusaders squandered a 5-0 lead.

Shrewsbury and Rocho had three hits apiece in the 12-hit Madonna attack. Taylor and Jason Renkiewicz had two hits each. Rocho also drove in three runs with three doubles.

Tim Holland (1-3), the second of four pitchers, took the loss. Jason Carter started, but was unable to survive the third inning.

■ SOCCER

Mari Hoff scored three goals while Jodi Coyle, Janel Davis and Missy Simons each added a pair Monday night to lead Plymouth Salem to a 10-0 romp over Walled Lake Western.

The Rocks, who had an 8-0 halftime lead, took a 3-1 record into their Wednesday evening battle with Livonia Stevenson. Host Western dropped to 1-2-1 in the Western Lakes Activities Association.

"We scored two goals early, in the first five minutes," coach Doug Landefeld said. "It was good that Mari and Jodi got involved in the scoring because they haven't been involved consistently. They had some nice goals."

Pattie Wong also scored a goal while goalie Merritt Walker collected Salem's first shutout of the season.

"This was our first game since sring break," Landefeld said. "Most of the girls got back Sunday. You're always a little nervous your first game back. Actually, we looked relatively sharp. We had a lot of good possessions."

WHEN A WARNING COMES TO LIGHT
When the red brake warning light flashes on the instrument panel, some drivers may doubt that they have a problem because their brakes either feel normal or there is only a slight difference in brake pedal feel. The fact is, however, that the red warning light may be indicating a serious problem while the braking system remains largely functional for the time being. This is because modern cars are equipped with a dual braking system. There is a separate hydraulic system for the front brakes and another for the rear brakes. The split may also be between one front wheel and its diagonal rear-wheel counterpart and the other two wheels. Regardless of how the split is configured, when a brake-fluid leak occurs and there is a drop in brake-fluid pressure when braking, a value will shut off half the brake system. The red warning light then flashes, signaling that the problem should be addressed immediately because total brake failure could be just around the corner.
Don't ignore warning signals from your car, or it may end up costing you time, effort, and money in the long run. Pee Wee Knights roll to national title

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

It's believed to be that in the 26-year history of the Livonia Hockey Association, never has a team made a national tournament, let alone won one.

But the Pee Wee AA Knights changed all that Sunday by capturing the Tier II USA Hockey Championship for 12-13 year-olds in Mentor, Ohio with a 4-2 victory over the Southcoast Sabres of Anaheim, Calif.

Perhaps only the Detroit Red Wings can boast more victories in a season.

The Knights, who won six straight in Mentor, finished the year with a sparkling 61-16-3 overall record.

Livonia outscored their opponents, 44-8, en route to the title.

In the semifinals, the Knights downed Arlington, Mass. (8-1), along with victories over Providence, R.I. (9-1), Highland Park, Ill. (8-1), Cleveland, Ohio (6-1) and Ithaca, N.Y. (9-2).

"We've been averaging almost six goals per game, but I've always said offense wins games, but defense wins championships," Knights head coach Dan Lerg said. "These kids may not be the biggest or fastest, but they're smart, with good hockey sense."

Lerg, a four-year standout during the late 1970s at the University of Michigan, doesn't believe in keeping stats during the season.

"What makes this team unique is the chemistry," said Lerg, who was once a draft pick of the St. Louis Blues. "They play as a team and everyone contributes in their own way.

"I could use any combination at any time and there was no weak link. We had a lot of depth. Most teams would throw two lines at us, but after one-and-a-half periods you could see teams getting tired, especially when it was stop-and-go time with three 15-minute periods. We'd keep throwing fresh legs at them."

The Knights' 16-man roster includes 10 Livonians including goalies Bobby Pruchnik and Kevin Marlowe, along with defensemen Derek Martin, Sean Szostak and Nathan Jakubowski; and forwards Bryan Marshall, Bobby Zagata, Sean Smith, Patrick Lerg and Kevin Krogel.

The rest of the contingent includes forwards Joe Hillebrand and Jim Spiewak, both of Northville; Mike Walsh, Farmington Hills; and Shaun McDonnell, Westland; along with defensemen Erik Reitz of Plymouth and Ryan Yost of South Lyon.

The Knights' national tournament quest began when they went undefeated (4-0) in winning the Michigan Amateur Hockey Association district crown in Bloomfield Hills. The Knights then swept five straight in the MAHA championships in Wayne. They also won their travel division in Little Caesars.

"Most of these kids have been playing together two or three years," said Lerg, who scored 95 goals and had 105 assists during his days at U-M. "We had won the state the year before and we were confident going into this season. Based on the core of kids we had coming back, we thought we'd be competitive.

Lerg's coaching staff also played in intregal part in the banner season. His assistants included Bill Smith and Ron Griffin, the latter whom was varsity head coach at Livonia Churchill High former U.S. National team player.

Griffin, a native Livonian and Churchill grad, first crossed paths with Lerg as 11-year-olds. The two were reunited in the 1977 NCAA Championship final when Griffin's Wisconsin team won a dramatic 6-5 victory over the Wolverines at Olympia Stadium.

"With a guy like 'Griff' (a former defenseman), he was able to shore up our defensive corps," Lerg said. "This became a 10-month thing and there was nobody more dedicated. Ron didn't have a kid on the team, but he was always there for those 7 a.m. practices on Saturday."

And when Lerg, who was called out of town (Hawaii to be exact) on a work-related trip for Moore Business Forms of Detroit, Griffin took over the team and the Knights didn't miss a beat.

"I can't tell you how many countless hours there were spent by those guys planning strategy and working on new things," Lerg said.

But the success of the Knights could not have occurred without the financial support of team sponsors Chrysan Industries, American Representatives, Johnson Stamping and Major Magic Pizza. Manager Angie Krogol also handled many of the behind-the-scenes duties for the Knights.

Lerg, who has coached four years of travel hockey and two in the LHA house leagues, plans to move up next year to work in Bantam A.

"Many of these kids will continue to move up in travel, others will play for their high schools, and some of these kids will play college hockey if they keep improving," Lerg said, who was inducted in U-M's Dekers Hall of Fame in 1995. "The biggest thing about this group is that they all understand the game and were willing to learn. Sometimes in scrimmages you'd wonder if they were picking things up, and it became frustrating at times, but every tourney they came to play."

Landmark marathon was something to see

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

The 100th running of the Boston Marathon was everything, and then some for Livonian Gary Plank.

The 41-year-old Plank, an employee of the Livonia Public Schools, was swept up by all the pomp and circumstance surrounding the commemorative anniversary race.

Nearly 39,000 registered marathoners from 60 different countries ran the 26.2-mile course from the tiny, quaint town of Hopkinton to the finish line in the heart of Boston.

Over 1.5 million spectators lined the course, cheering their favorites on.

Plank unofficially covered the course in 3 hours, 32 minutes and 5 seconds, but that time is only an insignificant statistic in his mind.

"It was just a staggering event,'" Plank said. "And the organizational expertise of the Boston Athletic Association is just amazing."

Plank, his wife Emilie, along with two other Boston entrants, John and Pat Bagley of Livonia, made the 14-hour drive by car on Saturday.

"It rained for two days (Saturday and Sunday), but by the start of the race their was not a cloud in the sky," Plank said. "The temperature was in the high 40s. It was just a beautiful day."

Getting to Hopkinton for the 11:30 a.m. start, however, was a marathon in itself.

Over 590 buses transported runners from downtown Boston to Hopkinton, a town of less than 10,000.

"We took off at about 7:30 (a.m.).. It took an hour to get there and another hour once we got into town to drop us off at the staging area, kind of the athletes' village, which was located behind a middle school," Plank said. "The town was just flooded. We stayed under huge tents, but the neat thing is that I got to talk to quite a few runners from other countries on the bus and while waiting in line. I talked to people from South Africa, Ireland, Switzerland and Germany.

"It was neat because everybody was so enthused about this thing."

To the B.A.A.'s credit, all 39,000 runners, who were placed strategically into corrals according to qualifying times, got to the official starting spot within 38 minutes of the initial gun.

"There were about 18,000 runners ahead of me and it took about 10 minutes to get to the start, which wasn't bad at all," Plank said. "The first few miles were jam-packed. I ran my first mile in about 9:30. After five or six miles, things started to move out."

Plank was taken by surprise by the first-half of the course.

"There were a lot of long downhills, which softens your quadricep (leg) muscles," he said. "Then you hit 'Heartbreak Hill.' It's not really that steep, but fairly long, and then there are a couple more (hills) after that. It was like a one-two punch. You kind of get beat up after starting out on the downhills."

But course's terrain was secondary to carnival atmosphere on and off the course.

Outlook for upcoming wild turkey season is bright and promising

BILL PARKER
OUTDOORS EDITOR

A record turkey population, an expanded hunt area, and increased hunting opportunities should add up to make the 1996 Michigan spring wild turkey season the best ever.

The season runs April 22 through May 31. Hunting is permitted by special license in designated hunting areas only.

"I think it should be another record year," said John Urbain, game bird specialist with the Michigan Department of Natural Resources. "Of course, that's pretty easy to predict when you issue 20,000 more licenses and the population is higher than ever. I expect it to be an excellent season.

"Winter's impact Despite reports of a rough winter up north, the turkey population appears to have weathered the storm.

Turkeys are very visible during the winter because of the lack of foliage and the white snow cover on the ground, where the birds spend most of their time during daylight hours. Because of this greater visibility the DNR conducts a winter turkey count with the help of hunting groups and individuals who live in turkey country.

This year's winter count turned up a record total of 93,751 birds, compared to 86,076 birds during the 1994-95 winter count. There were 51,589 birds sighted in the northern Lower Peninsula, 34,404 in the southern Lower Peninsula and 7,758 in the Upper Peninsula.

"Although the winter seems to have been worse than normal, it wasn't too bad for the turkeys," said Urbain. "We didn't get any reports of significant turkey losses anywhere in the state. The field people didn't see very many stressed birds. They seem to have done real well."

Much of that winter survival can be directly attributed to groups such as the Michigan chapters of the National Wild Turkey Federation, which this winter alone distributed hundreds of tons of corn to those areas holding wintering turkeys.

Although Michigan's turkeys appear to have survived the winter pretty well, the late arrival of spring could still have an impact on the hunt.

Before a hen breeds she must have enough energy, through stored body fats, to lay a full nest of eggs. Although daylight is the main trigger of the turkey's breeding cycle, a hen with low body fat (because of prolonged winter conditions) will delay her breeding until she regains her body fat and fully recovers from any winter stress.

"Hunters should get an idea of the stage of the breeding cycle," said Urbain. "If the birds are still in gobbler flocks or if the hens are going to the nest, hunting will be the best. If they're in mixed flocks it's going to be tougher. The fourth hunt period could well be a very good hunt."

Ten hunt areas have been expanded this year and an additional 7,000 square miles of land has been opened to turkey hunting. Hunt areas T, ZA, QA, R, S, Z, X, L, PA, and PB in southern Michigan have all been enlarged.

There is now a total of 36,080 square miles of land open to turkey hunting in Michigan.

On top of that, the DNR added an experimental fourth hunt period this spring to insure that all hunters who applied for a license will have an opportunity to hunt. The overall season has been extended from 35 days to 40 days and divided into four hunt periods instead of three, as in the past.

Licenses for the fourth period, May 21-31, are valid in all spring wild turkey areas except public lands in Zone III (southern Michigan).

The DNR issued 72,680 permits this spring, compared to 54,789 last year, and 19,600 were for the experimental fourth hunt. (There are still some leftover permits available. See your local license dealer for details.)

"There was a lot of interest in the fourth hunt," said Urbain. "We had 88,000 applicants and 48,300 put down the fourth period as one of their choices."

The comeback of the wild turkey in Michigan is a remarkable story. The eastern wild turkey was abundant in Michigan, particularly the southern part of the state, in the late 1800's. As settlers invaded the land, habitat was lost and the birds were exploited for food.

By the turn of the century wild turkeys were all but extinct in Michigan. In 1954, the DNR instituted a reintroduction effort. The DNR received 50 wild turkeys from Pennsylvania and released them in the Allegan State Game Area.

Additional releases occurred across the state during the ensuing years and by 1964 there were upwards of 2,000 turkeys in the state. More releases and trap-and-transfer efforts continued throughout the years and today we're closing in on 100,000 birds across the state.

Hunters set a record last year by taking 13,119 bearded toms during the spring season. With increases in turkey numbers, hunter numbers and available hunting land, hunters should easily eclipse that number this spring.

Turkey hunters and anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to Outdoors, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314.

Madonna caps successful weekend with twinbill sweep

The Madonna University softball team improved its overall record to 18-10 by winning three-of-five games last weekend.

The Crusaders capped their weekend Sunday with a doubleheader sweep of St. Francis at Livonia's Ford Field.

In the nightcap, Madonna rallied from a 3-0 deficit for a 5-4 victory. Jamie Vickers, Dawn Shaffer and Jeanie Baxter had two hits apiece. Shaffer knocked in three runs.

SOFTBALL

Janell Leschinger improved to 4-1 by allowing one earned run in her complete game performance. She scattered nine hits, while striking out three and walking only one.

After falling behind 2-0, the Crusaders came back to win Sunday's opener 5-2. Shaffer was the offensive hero, with two hits, two runs and two RBI.

Madonna also received two hits from Christy Riopelle and two RBI from Baxter.

Lynda Weichel (3-0) went the distance, surrendering five hits and striking out three without issuing a walk.

The Crusaders also opened the weekend with a victory - a 3-2 triumph at Calvin College on Friday.

Baxter collected two of the five Madonna hits, including a two-run home run in the fifth inning which gave the Crusaders a 3-0 lead.

Shanna Streng hurled the first 4 2/3 innings to even her record at 7-7, but it was a hard-earned win after she was taken off on a stretcher after being nailed in the head with a line drive. Streng was later treated and released.

Angie VanDoorn pitched the final 1 1/3 innings of perfect softball.

In between the victories, however, Madonna had to travel to Northwood Institute. Northwood pulled off the twinbill sweep, 7-1 and 2-0.

Madonna's only run of the day came in the first inning of the opener when Shaffer doubled home Michelle Birchmeier. Riopelle had the only other hit of the game for the Crusaders.

VanDoorn (4-2) suffered the defeat, allowing 10 hits while walking five and striking out two.

The Crusaders collected seven hits in the nightcap but failed to cross home plate. Center fielder Melissa McGue did her job as a lead-off batter going 4-for-4, but the Crusaders couldn't knock her in.

Leschinger picked up the loss despite allowing only one earned run and five hits. She struck out six and walked two.

Madonna is currently second in the NAIA Great Lakes East Section softball standings. Mount St. Joseph (Ohio) is in first with an 8-2 mark.

Start engines to surf the Net

EMORY DANIELS

■ There has been an explosion in search engines and directories that parallels the explosion of the World Wide Web. Supply races to keep up with demand. Four or five major search engines have become major players.

A few months ago I wrote a "Surf and Search" column that contrasted the two methods (random and targeted) of looking for material on the Internet.

I gave a cursory look at search tools and need to revisit that topic now more because of related developments on the Internet. There has been an explosion in search engines and directories that parallels the explosion of the World Wide Web. Supply races to keep up with demand.

A search engine is a user-tailored database that provides a searchable index of words on thousands of Web pages. A directory is a listing of sites, much like a telephone book. There also is specific software (agents) that will conduct automated searches of the Internet and return requested information. And there are companies who, for a fee, will search and return information requested by clients.

My earlier column on searches mentioned Lycos, Infoseek, Webcrawler and Worm. Since then, four-five major search engines have become major players. Among the most powerful search engines on the Internet now are: Alta Vista at http://altavista.digital.com; Excite at http://www.excite.com; Lycos at http://www.lycos.com; Infoseek at http://guide.infoseek.com; Opentext at http://www.opentext.com:8080; Inktomi at http://inktomi.berkeley.edu/query.html;

Digital's Alta Vista has a database of more than 21 million Web pages containing more than 8 billion words, articles from more than 13,000 Usenet news groups, and an index of 45 gigabytes. Excite is said to be smarter and user-friendly, allowing key word or concept searches of its database of more than 1.5 million Web pages. Excite also has a searchable index of more than 50,000 Web sites it has reviewed, a Usenet search of more than a million articles, and a search of Usenet classifieds.

Lycos is popular because it has a large number of binaries in its database, including .gif and .jpeg (graphics), .wav (sound), and .mpeg (motion picture) files and indexes of FTP (File Transfer Protocol) and Gopher. Its Web index has more than 19 million Universal Resource Locators (URLs). InfoSeek, which claims to be the fastest engine on the Net, offers searches of reviewed sites and Usenet Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs) displayed in order of relevance. OpenText uses popup menus for specifying Boolean or proximity operators, offers a weighted search assigned by the user. A helpful feature, one Alta Vista shares, is that OpenText will search for a combination of several words (in a title, for instance) and produce the desired result. Inktomi, WWW Worm, and Webcrawler are pretty basic but you may want to include them amongst your bookmarks.

In recent times the directory everyone used was Yahoo, still a giant in its field. But Yahoo now has some stiff competitors. Among the major directories are: McKinley's Magellan Directory at http://magellan.mckinley.com; Pointcom at http://www.pointcom.com; Yahoo at http://www.yahoo.com; Excite Netdirectory at http://www.excite.com/Subject/; Nynex Yellow Pages at http://www.niyp.com; Apollo at http://apollo.co.uk; Galaxy at http://galaxy.einet.net; New Riders WWW YellowPages at http://www.mcp.com/newriders/wwwyp/; and Starting Point at www.stpt.com.

McKinley rates its Web sites like AAA, assigning stars on a scale of one to four. You can arrow your search to the reviewed sites McKinley rates of higher quality, or exclude "adult" sites, or search broader to included non-reviewed sites. Excite presents news, weather, opinion, and cartoons. Nynex's yellow pages has more than 16 million entries, Apollo's business directory is international in scope, and Yahoo is as broad as it is deep.

If you are looking for an E-mail address there are at least two useful E-mail directories: Four11 directory (which I reported on earlier) at http://www.four11.com; and Lookup at http://www.lookup.com/lookup/search.html.

Four11 has more than three million E-mail addresses but some of its services are fee-based. Lookup is entirely free.

Some of the software that's out there include: FTPsearch at http://129.241.190.13/ftpsearch/; Dejanews (for Usenet searches) at http://www.dejanews.com; Sift (for Usenet searches) at http://sift.stanford.edu. Internet-Sleuth at http://www.intbc.com/sleuth/ accesses a collection of more than 900 searchable databases for user-directed searches.

Among the search for fee services are: Dow Jones at http://bis.dowjones.com; Global Internet News Agency at http://www.gina.com; NewsPage at http://www.newspage.com; Lexis-Nexis at http://lexnex.openmarket.com/lexis-nexis/; LA Times/Washington Post NewsService at http://www.newservice.com; Reuters NewMedia at http://www.yahoo.com/headlines/; and ClariNet at http://www.clarinet.com, among several others.

Briefly, agent software will search links, search engines, directories while you sleep and return its results as assigned. An agent operates like the thermostat on your wall -- set the temperature and it operates autonomously in the background.

A popular agent on the shelves of some computer stores is QuarterDeck's WebCompass. Others are Smart Bookmarks (my friends have had mixed results with this one), Surfbot for Windows 95 and NT, and Web-Arranger which has this nifty utility that keeps retrying busy FTP sites until a successful download is possible (sort of like setting Trumpet on automatic dial).

I know this has been a quick look but so much is happening in this area that by the time an in depth look is finished everything will have changed again. That's the nature of the Net.

AGENCIES HONORED

Three Livonia agencies have been honored by Citizens Insurance Company of America. After reviewing the performance of about 700 independent agencies in Michigan, Indiana and Ohio that write property and casualty policies for Citizens Insurance Company, three agencies have been selected:

Cambridge Underwriters Ltd. — Key Agents Club award;

Garwood, Buda, Knight & Associates — Key Agents award;

Gene Harris Agency — President's Council award

The Key Agents Club and President's Council awards recognize agencies for exceptional production and underwriting results.

"The success of Citizens depends in great measure on the success of the independent agents who represent the company," said Citizens President James R. McAuliffe. "We congratulate these agencies for solid business performance on behalf of Citizens, as well as for service to our insureds that reflect the vision of the company."

CREDIT REPAIR

National Credit Repair will offer Vietnam Veterans a special program to help them correct mistakes and inaccurancies on their credit reports, according to Gloria Tactac, chairperson and CEO of National Credit Repair.

"Inaccurate credit reports are a major problem for most Americans," Tactac said. "For the most part, these are people who have paid their debts, but still have damaging statements on their reports and that leads to higher interest rates. The vets have a bigger issue to deal with over the rest of us. These men and women have all served their nation, many having been injured in the process, and they are now being overcharged for loans due to higher-than-deserved interest rates."

The program offers free credit repair _ a $300 value_ to those vets who also join the NCR Consumer Advantage program.

Through Consumer Advantage, members receive 1-800 service, a personal credit rating profile analysis, and a year of credit counseling.

For more information, call National Credit Repair at (810) 615-4122 or write 29200 Vassar, Suite 307, Livonia 48152.

MARTY FIGLEY

If you planted seeds indoors in February, by now you have moved your seedlings from their tiny pots to larger ones and are ready to prepare them for the move outdoors sometime in May. (Let's hope the weather cooperates!) The tiny seedlings are very tender at this point and must be watched so that they don't just curl up and die.

During this waiting period, stand the containers in water so that it will be absorbed by capillary action. Small containers will need water more frequently than larger ones. When they are sturdier, water from above. Probably, at this time, it will only be necessary to water once or twice a week. Morning watering is preferable to evening watering.

For the first three weeks after transplanting seedlings to larger containers, apply a half-strength fertilizer every 10 to 14 days -- again only after watering. A good plan is to keep a schedule on a nearby calendar.

You have no doubt heard the term "hardening off." That means that the plants need to be exposed to the outdoor weather gradually, so there will be less shock to them when they are ultimately put into the ground.

About two weeks before the permanent outdoor move, quit feeding them and reduce the water a little bit. Plants grown in flats can be separated by cutting them apart (rather like cutting a sheet cake) with a knife, leaving each plant with plenty of roots in its own square root "ball." They can stay in the flat until time to transplant them outdoors.

About a week before, place the containers or flats outdoors in a protected shady area -- a north-facing wall, a porch or under a large tree is fine. Leave them outdoors for about half a day, and then return them indoors to their original spot. Continue to do this each day for a week, lengthening the time they are outdoors and putting them in a more open area where they will receive more sunlight, wind, etc. By this time they will have been outdoors all day and all night and acclimated to the outdoors and shouldn't be stressed when they are planted in their garden beds.

I trust you have prepared your beds for the final planting -- a week or two before the move is fine if this wasn't done in the fall. If soils were amended last fall with organic materials a light digging and smoothing is all that is required now. To be sure the soil isn't too wet for planting, gather a handful and form it into a ball. Now drop it to the ground from waist height. If it lands with a thud, it's too wet; if it crumbles upon landing, it is ready to be worked.

Water the beds deeply about 24 hours before putting the plants in the garden. Scatter a complete fertilizer over the bed, following package directions, and dig it into the soil lightly. An overcast day is the perfect time for transplanting; water each plant gently.

Some seedlings can be put in the garden, especially perennials, a week or two before the last expected frost date -- in our zone around May 10-20. Others need the warmth of the soil to keep them growing and happy so check on the back of the seed packets for that information.

If you are transplanting from flats, give them a good drink before removing them from the little sections. Dig a hole for each plant and keep as much soil around the roots as possible, gently firm the soil around each plant, space as package directs. If you have used larger individual containers, roll them around to loosen the root ball before removing the plant. If you have used biodegradable containers, slit the sides in two or three places and cut off the top so that it is below ground level when you place the whole container, plant and all, into the hole.

I like to protect new seedlings from direct sunlight for a few days with a shade cloth, cardboard or other device to let in filtered light. Don't tuck them in and cut off air circulation, just protect them from direct sunlight for several days.

When the plants are tall enough, apply a mulch to reduce weeds and to keep the soil cool and moist.

You might want to save this column for future reference to have when it is time to plant outdoors.

Marty Figley is an advanced master gardener based in Birmingham. You can leave her a message by dialing (313) 953-2047 on a touch-tone phone, then her mailbox number, 1859.

Get comfortable with using fabric colors

NAOMI STONE LEVY

Correctly used, fabrics are an interior designer's best ally. Today's topic, "Color and Fabric," will detail the luminous quality of color in fabric. The entire spectrum has implied meanings.

We learned in first grade there are three primary colors: red, yellow and blue. When we see red it suggests "stop" or even anger. It is the most volatile of the primaries. Blue mostly relates to the sky, or water, or flowers, and it bespeaks tranquility. Yellow is sunshiny, bright and happy; the descriptive names canary or citron or sulfur make us evaluate yellows.

There are also three secondary colors. Green is the most important secondary color, and is a "go" reminder. We also associate green with grass and leaves. Orange, also secondary, is more flashy and reminds us of delicious fruit, or marigolds. The third secondary on the color wheel is purple, much more moody and subtle; amethysts or plums or violets envision wondrous variations.

Next we have black and white, clear and dogmatic, never to be ignored. Always keep in mind there are dozens of whites, some creamy, some grayed and "dirty," some "blanc de chine." Blacks run their own gamut from blue-black to ink black to ebony, ad infinitum.

So-o-o, where do we go from here? Do you acknowledge having a favorite? Does it say something about your individuality? I am absolutely certain it does! I try to elicit from clients at the outset of our proposed job how they relate to any particular color, and proceed from there.

Primary or secondary colors, undiluted, are very powerful. Keep in mind there are hundreds of variations on

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

JOE GAGNON

To give you an idea of how big the major home appliance industry is, let me give you some figures on how many refrigerators were sold during 1995. Try the number of 8,675,500 units. Room air conditioners exceeded 4 million with dehumidifiers slightly over 1 million. Throw in a few million chest and upright freezers and the total amount of food preservation products and home comfort appliances totals the amount of 15,664,100. Now let's take just this past year's sales figures and use an average of $10 per month in energy consumption for each product. Take that figure and multiply it times 12 months for a total energy consumption figure for each product per year.

At this point I think you will agree that we have arrived at some big dollars being spent to operate these products.

Refrigeration products such as I'm writing about have a tendency to fail during hot weather conditions. It is a fact that the refrigeration service industry is very slow during cold months and extremely busy during the hot months. The reason is quite simple. High humidity and hot temperatures create a wear factor on any component within a product which already creates heat by virtue of its operation. A fan runs and moves air across it, but when the air that it is moving gets too hot, the fan motor increases its energy consumption. All of this results in a motor which doesn't turn as freely as it should and takes more energy, more power to get it operating.

The secret to adding years of life to a product and cutting back on energy consumption is as simple as ABC. Keep it clean where it counts. Following are some examples.

How many times in a lifetime, I have gone into a home on a service call and found the condenser on a refrigerator totally plugged up with lint, dust, animal hair etc. The compressor is so hot that if I threw an egg on top of it, the egg would cook as sure as using a frying pan. The wattage draw is so high it sometimes blows a fuse. The fan motor and defrost timer are hurting bad from all the excessive heat load. The life of the product is being slowly drained from it, because it has a dirty condenser. If only the homeowner would have known, to clean the condenser is to save, save, save.

Here is how to do it. Every three months, pull the plug on the refrigerator and pull it away from the wall. Take the lower cardboard cover off on the back side and make sure you put it back on where you're finished with the job. Use a long handle brush available at your local hardware store and shake loose all of the dirt etc. you see on the condenser. Use your vacuum crevice tool along with the brush and remove the front toe plate and clean it from that approach as well. Use care around the blades of the fan motor so as not to bend them. Clean the blades tenderly with a small toothbrush. Remember, the cleaner it is under your refrigerator, the longer it will last. Your energy bill will stay where it should, instead of increasing as much as $10 a month. The operational noise level will be normal instead of sounding like a runaway train. And last but not least, it will do a better job of food preservation.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor," available at area bookstores.

each of the above. Therein exists subtlety. Some of these variations are vivid, rich and intense; many colors are muted and grayed, so that red isn't always red.

There are polychromatic schemes that give way to one's imagination. No longer limited to one color, it is easier to commit errors, and therefore the amateur must exercise caution. If one is extracting colors from a multifaceted print there is less margin for mistakes - the colors are already combined. If you choose to arrive at your own "mix" it would be expedient to lay out various combinations and cull from them the most pleasing to you. Be critical!

There existed in the annals of interior design a blue and green period. Every other print combined the two cool colors very handsomely, I hasten to add. That period ended and the next popular combo was pink and purple. I could cite many others, but I have never advocated colors because they were in vogue. As a matter of principle I have always tried to provide timeless decor. I take pride in returning to a job after many years when the clients have told me they never tired of their look. I knew it was good.

Color truly lights up this world. Colors in fabrics resonate success in my efforts. A glorious sunset makes everyone happy. Why not take it home with you? Oh, that I could attach to this column some "flags" of the mesmerizing colored and textured fabrics herein described. The weave and design of the fabric may feature a self-stripe or diagonal line, and yet be only one color. Possibly a number of the threads will encompass other colors, creating vibrant designs.Next time I plan to discuss prints vs. textures; where, when and how to use them.

COVER STORY

LET'S GET GROWING FOR SUNFLOWER CONTEST

By Marty Figley
Special Writer

Here we go again! The third annual High Hopes Sunflower Contest has officially begun! Yes, we want residents of Oakland and Wayne counties to participate in this exciting adventure, from the youngest children to seniors. Rules for the contest will appear in an upcoming At Home.

You may recall that in the first contest, the tallest sunflower was 12 feet 5-1/2 inches and the largest seed head was 18-1/2 inches across; last year's tallest was 12 feet 7 inches and the largest seed head was 19-1/2 inches; so all you participants will have to attend your sunflowers carefully to "top" these statistics.

Because sunflowers grow very quickly outdoors, it isn't necessary but you can start these plants indoors two to three weeks before planting them out -- around the first week or so of May. It's a simple process and could be a learning project that involves the children. Packages of sunflower seeds are available at stores, by mail order, or perhaps you saved seed from last year.

Some varieties (with heights five to 15 feet) to try include Velvet Queen, Giant Grey Stripe, Sunbeam, Mammoth Russian, Mammoth Grey Stripe, Giant Russian, Evening Star, Mammoth, Autumn Beauty and Evening Sun.

Indoors

To start plants indoors:

Use an all-purpose potting soil and a container at least three inches deep, with drainage holes. Moisten the soil, sow the seeds about 1/4-inch deep, pop the container into a plastic bag and secure it with a twist-tie. You will need to open it occasionally to see if the seeds are sprouting and that not too much moisture builds up in the bag. Set the container in a bright spot, but not in direct sunlight; temperatures between 70 and 80 degrees Fahrenheit are necessary for germination. Check the pot frequently to see if the soil is moist. Don't let it dry out! When the soil surface looks dry, place the container in a tray of water, or carefully sprinkle water on the soil -- you don't want to dislodge the seeds.

After you see tiny shoots coming up, begin removing the cover, exposing the container slowly to the air (it takes about a day). Doing this slowly will help prevent the seedlings from collapsing (damping off). You won't need to transplant to a larger container, but you may want to encourage only one plant to grow by removing some of the sprouts, if they seem crowded. When three true leaves appear, apply liquid fertilizer one-half the strength recommended by the manufacturer.

Preparing for move

Reduce water and stop fertilizer for several days, then gradually expose them to the outdoors for several more days, setting them out in a protected area during the day and then indoors at night.

Before you set your plants in the garden, deeply water the sunflower area a day before transplanting, sprinkle a complete fertilizer (follow package directions) over all and lightly incorporate it into the soil. Plant the sunflowers 12 to 18 inches apart. Shade the seedlings (a board works well) for several days. For the next steps, follow the instructions given for sunflowers sown directly outdoors.

Sunflowers are tolerant of most any kind of soil, their roots are strong and grow deep, but the best soil is rich and well-drained, with a pH level of 5.0-7.0. A pH level of 5.0-6.0 is acid and 7.0 is neutral, so you can see they will do fine in many soils. The higher the number on the scale indicates the soil is more alkaline. If you don't know the pH level of your soil, it's a good idea to have it tested through your County Extension Agent (look under government in the phone book) or buy a do-it-yourself kit.

If the soil needs to be richer, certain nutrients or better drainage, take the time to add the necessary products a week or so before transplanting or sowing begins. Till the soil about eight inches deep before planting.

Outdoors

For outdoor planting:

Sow the seeds outdoors after the last frost (zone 6 the end of April, zone 5 mid-May). Choose a spot that has full sun to light shade and where you want your plants to grow. This will eliminate transplanting. Plant the seeds 12 to 18 inches apart 1/4- to 1/2-inch deep in a shallow furrow; mix some vermiculite in with the soil that will be used to cover the seeds. This will lighten the soil. Water them well very gently (use a mister or a sprinkling can) so as not to disturb the seeds. When the seeds have sprouted you can use a very fine hose spray. Morning watering will give the leaves time to dry off during the day.

If the seedlings are growing close together, they will probably need to be thinned. Tall sunflowers need a lot of space -- 18 to 36 inches. If you are trying to grow the largest seed head, remove some of the smaller ones as they develop. Put stakes in the ground to support the plants before they are large (so the roots aren't disturbed) and mound the soil around the stem to provide additional support. Keep in mind that too much fertilizer will result in a lot of leaf growth rather than helping the flowers.

Suggestions

We have learned from our successful growers in previous years that a lot of compost, regularly applied fertilizer (lightly, several times during the summer) and water lead to large, tall, strong plants and large seed heads. Miracle-Gro and Rapid Grow, other all-purpose fertilizers, mushroom mulch, composted grass and leaves and manure ensure they get their proper "vitamins." One grower used rain water. All of the gardeners faithfully weeded.

To keep critters from eating the young new growth, it is necessary to protect the plants. You can make cages of chicken wire or hardware cloth, scatter dried blood or use a commercial product, such as Ro-Pel.

Sunflowers are allopathic; they produce a substance that inhibits the growth of other plants, which helps to control weeds, but also, especially if sunflower debris has been left in a bed from one season to the next, a toxicity may develop that may inhibit the growth of subsequent sunflowers. So it might be best if you relocated your sunflower bed for a year or so.

Sunflowers are a native American plant, members of the Compositae family, which includes daisy, aster and dandelion. The best known genus is Helianthus (Greek: helios for sun, and anthos, flower), which contains 67 species and some sub-varieties. The center parts (seeds) are the achenes. The rays are the fringed petals surrounding the achnes and provide the beauty to the flowers. The entire flower is called the head.

The National Garden Bureau celebrates 1996 as the Year of the Sunflower. It reports that there are many cultivars, some with multiple branches, some dwarf reaching only one to two feet tall, and a "pollenless" plant that is grown for cut flowers.

We want many of you Observer & Eccentric readers to participate in this contest, and to join in the fun. We look forward to another season of growing together with our High Hopes Contest. Watch for future updates about growing your sunflowers, how to keep the birds away, a cookie recipe and other information.

HIGH HOPES CONTEST

We're looking for the tallest sunflower, and for the sunflower with the largest seed head, grown in the 1996 season. The sunflower's height is to be measured from the soil level to the base of the head where the stem attaches to the flower. The head is to be measured diagonally. Watch for the rules in an upcoming At Home.

Copper windowbox: Filled with colorful flowers, these boxes can enhance today's popular palladium windows.

Windowboxes yield a big return

Consider window boxes. They're small investments that yield big returns in color and curb appeal for the home. Change the plants with the seasons, and give your home an instant face lift.

Traditional wooden window boxes are rectangular in shape and painted to match or complement the house colors. However, it is perfectly acceptable, and often more fun, to use your imagination and create a window box that fits your personality and abode ... whether it be a cottage, castle, condo or cabin.

Consider using plywood cutouts of rabbits, geese or cows to decorate the window box of a garden shed. Add sailboats or starfish to the design of a window box for the beach house.

If your retreat is a shady mountain cabin, why not design window boxes using fishing creels? Decorative moldings can be glued directly onto a plain window box for instant pizzazz.

When building your own window box, it should extend the entire width of your window. Attach the window box to the house using wood screws ... include a 1/2 inch spacer to protect your home from moisture buildup. Mount the window box so that the top edge is just below the windowsill.

The soil in a window box dries out more quickly than soil around plants in the ground, because a window box is exposed to air on three sides. Use peat based potting mix, like Sunshine Growing Mix, because it retains moisture ... yet allows proper aeration of roots. If the potting mix feels dry at a depth of one inch, it's time to water.

With a peat moss base, new Sunshine Water Saver Mix is specially formulated for container gardening. It's ideal for window boxes, because it allows homeowners to skip a day of watering occasionally. After several weeks of watering, plants in window boxes will benefit from a regular feeding program.

The contents of your window box are limited only by your imagination. Plant a pizza window box with oregano, basil and thyme. Dress your window box up for the holidays, with ivy, red berry, holly, yew or pine. And, salad is as close as the kitchen when your window box bears cherry tomatoes, loose leaf lettuce and chives.

Be sure that your window box has drainage holes to allow excess water to move away from delicate plant roots. Cover the drainage holes with fine mesh to keep potting mix from draining out.

To show off your creation, just call 1-800-665-4592, and ask for the free brochure, "Creative Ideas for Window Boxes From Sunshine." This brochure includes planting tips and details on how to enter the Sunshine Creative Window Box contest. Grand prize in the contest is a trip for two to Venice, Italy. More than $10,000 in prizes will be given away.

Sun Gro Horticulture, producer of Sunshine growing mixes, is one of the largest producers of professional growing mixes in North America. More professional growers use university tested Sunshine mixes and Sunshine Peat Moss more than any other planting medium are ideal growing mediums for window boxes.

Get a lovely lawn in only 2 weeks

A lovely new lawn could be just two weekends away if you follow this checklist of steps to take. Like any big project, breaking the job down into manageable chunks will smooth out the problems of when to do what. Extend this guide into four weekends if your new lawn is going to be quite large, and speed things up to just a two-day project if you're adding lawn to a small area.

Measure the area where you want to lay sod or seed and calculate the square footage by multiplying the width by the length.

If using sod, call and reserve the amount you'll need and schedule delivery on the day you will finish soil preparation.

Check with local rental services about reserving a tiller, roller and landscaper's rake for the next two weekends. In the busy spring season, these tools may be checked out every weekend ... get a jump start and reserve now.

Stockpile the supplies you will need for the project: fertilizer, peat moss, sprinkler and grass seed.

Necessary supplies are: large rake (can be rented as a landscaping rake); rototiller; peat moss to amend soil; wide board or old ladder to drag and level soil; fertilizer for new lawns; seed, hydroseed or sod; roller; sprinklers or irrigation system to keep new lawn well-watered.

First Saturday:

Prepare your soil. Remove big weeds and rocks, and then rototill the area to a depth of at least six inches. The deeper you can loosen the soil, the deeper the roots will grow and the less care from you the lawn will need.

First Sunday:

Improve your soil. Work two or three inches of Canadian sphagnum peat moss or a peat moss/compound blend into the top six or eight inches of soil. Organic matter like peat moss helps sandy soil to retain moisture and loosens and improves drainage in clay or hard-packed soil.

Second Saturday:

Level and rake. Drag a ladder or wooden plank across the new lawn area to make sure the bed is level and free of dips. If you rent a landscaper's rake, go over the ground twice to smooth out the rough spots. Another tool the professionals use is a roller. These are also available for rent and are used to break down small lumps of soil just before seeding.

Second Sunday:

Once the soil is tilled, amended and leveled, it's time to add fertilizer. Make sure you spread a lawn food especially formulated for new lawns.

At last you're ready to spread seed or sod the area. Hand seeding or seeding with a drop spreader is the least expensive. After sprinkling the soil with seed, top it off with a thin layer of peat moss (no more than a quarter inch deep). This will help keep the seed from blowing away or drying out.

Sodding gives instant gratification and because you start with a thick grass carpet, there is less trouble with invading weeds. After you lay sod, be sure to fill in the cracks between the sections with peat moss. This will help the sod sections to knit together quickly.

Once the seed or sod is down, all you have to do is keep the new lawn well-watered until established. The soil should be moist at all times, but not wet. This could mean watering twice a day in hot weather or once a week if it rains.

New rose is unique green

A new variety of hybrid tea rose, St. Patrick™ has receive the nation's highest award for roses, having been named an All-American Rose Selection for 1996. What makes this rose unusual is not its beautiful hybrid tea form, not its unique green color and not even its value as a long-lasting cut flower. What makes this rose truly amazing is the fact that it was bred by an amateur hybridizer in his backyard.

St. Patrick™ was developed by Frank Strickland of San Bernardino, Calif. Strickland is a retired project engineer who has a wonderful rose garden at his home. He began experimenting with rose breeding only a few years ago and on a very small scale. While professional rose hybridizers cross-pollinate many varieties of roses to produce many thousands of seedlings from which they choose one or two new roses that may have potential, Strickland made only a few crosses and chose among 10 of the seedlings.

Genetically, it is most unusual that a rose that has fabulous color, pest and disease resistance, good growth habit, and some fragrance would be produced from so few crosses. That's what makes St. Patrick™ so amazing. It is a beautiful, large, pale-yellow hybrid tea (one flower on a long stem) that has an unusual green tint in hot weather. It is a truly remarkable rose that gardeners will love to grow and arrangers will love to cut.

As a 1996 All-American Rose Selection, this rose has been tested in gardens across the United States and has proven to be outstanding in all climates. For gardeners who want a rose plant that is easy to grow and produces beautiful, large, perfectly formed flowers on long stems all summer long St. Patrick™ is the rose to plant this spring.

'Garden workout' keeps families fit

(NAPS) The physical fitness trend had finally made it to the family back yard as experts are advocating "garden workouts" to keep both you and your grounds in shape.

With manual hand tools as "exercise equipment" authorities say various garden chores such as digging, raking and weeding can also become an aerobic experience – burning up to 300 calories per hour.

Tool producers such as V & B Manufacturing Co. are cooperating, offering a wide variety range of landscaping tools of various weights, shapes and lengths to accommodate every gardener from the most active to the less physically able.

For the more robust gardener, hefty full-size 36-inch Groundkeepers landscaping tools will challenge their biceps, while less active gardeners will benefit from lighter weight configurations with a choice of long or short handles. V&B also gives the gardener/exerciser the option of fitting tools to the task by providing interchangeable handles of various lengths. As an example: Long-handled (36 inch), lightweight tools are considered ideal for seniors and others who prefer gardening from a standing position as well as for disabled gardeners operating from a wheelchair. However, a short-handled (16-inch or 26-inch) tool would be ideal for these same people for one-handed work in a raised plant bed or planter.

Jerry Restuccio, well-known garden author, in his recently published book, Fitness, The Dynamic Gardening Way, recommends such tools as the lightweight Handy Mattocks for "power lunging" while doing weeding exercises.

Incorporating techniques from the martial arts, aerobics and weight training, Restuccio emphasizes the mental as well as the physical benefits of gardening, observing that the digging, chopping and striking motions used in gardening provide a healthy outlet for relieving stress and tension.

Pruning is simple using guidelines

Pruning your trees can feel a lot like programming your VCR: You know how it's supposed to work, but you're not quite sure you're doing it right. Unfortunately, if you make a mistake pruning, it's a lot more serious than missing an episode of "Home Improvement." Luckily, pruning is simple when you follow a few guidelines.

As Jeff Ball, gardening expert of NBC's "Today" program explains, "Pruning is easier than most people think – with a little time and practice, your trees will improve not only in size and shape, but in overall health, too."

When to prune? The most commonly asked pruning question is also the toughest one to answer. You want to encourage proper growth and avoid shock to the plant, so prune only when the plant is dormant, (not actively growing). There is no single time when all plants are dormant, so follow these tips:

Cold weather brings on dormancy. In mild winter regions, prune before freezing occurs to avoid damage – typically late autumn.

In severe winter areas, prune in late summer to allow new growth to harden before extreme temperatures set in.

There are three primary reasons to prune regularly: to promote the growth of the tree, to promote the health of the tree, to make your trees more attractive.

To promote growth, remove dead branches, unwanted shoots and any stray branches that could block needed sunlight. For both looks, and the tree's health, you'll want to remove diseased branches that could spread disease throughout the tree. When pruning diseased branches, remember to clean your tools with rubbing alcohol before cutting healthy branches.

Begin pruning with the right tools. While power trimmers and chain saws are good for some jobs, the two "must haves" are a pair of pruning shears and a pruning saw. With them, you can accomplish basic backyard pruning chores using the following guidelines:

Be safe: Whenever you use cutting tools, always wear gloves and eye protection. If you're on a ladder, don't support branches over your head or cut where you have to fully extend your arm. Never use a chain saw while on a ladder, and don't prune branches near power lines – leave that to the pros.

Cutting with shears: There are two types of shears: hand shears and lopping shears. Lopping shears have longer handles for hard to reach branches. Both have two blade designs to choose from, the anvil or hook and blade. The anvil design is normally lighter, but the hook and blade cuts closer and cleaner. To prune, place the blade just beyond the portion of the plant you want to remain (whether that is a bud, stem, or nearby branch). The perfect cut is slanted slightly upward in the direction of the bud, stem or branch.

Cutting with a saw: Use a saw on branches more than an inch thick. Pruning saws normally have a curved blade and cut on the pull stroke. When cutting branches, always cut on a 45 degree angle from the trunk of the tree. Never cut a branch flush against the trunk – it could stop future growth.

Heavy branches: with a heavy branch, there is the added danger of the branch falling before you make your final cut. To avoid this, support the branch with your free hand while cutting with the other. Use a lightweight saw with an ergonomically designed handle, like the JACK curved blade pruning saw, to complete dangerous jobs quickly, safely and with less strain.

Ponds can enhance your garden

If you really enjoy being in your yard and would like to give it that extra dimension to make it even more enjoyable as well as the envy of the neighborhood, here's a great suggestion: put in your own yard pond. Too many "ponds" don't know how to do it? Through new technology, all these worries are needless.

Installing your own garden pond is simple, maintaining it is easy, and best of all, your pond will provide years of trouble free enjoyment.

European gardens, particularly in Great Britain, southern France, northern Italy, Holland and Germany, almost always feature a yard pond.

Nine years ago, a German company, Tetra Werke, known best in the United States for its home aquarium products, developed a bonded, two-piece, heavy duty .32 millimeters thick, flexible rubber pond liner. This liner allows homeowners to free form a yard pond efficiently and easily, in whatever shape is best suited for the terrain or the homeowner's needs.

This liner can withstand the warmest summers and the coldest winters and is available in sizes big enough to create ponds almost 10 feet in diameter.

Through Tetra Werke's U.S. distributor, Tetra/Secondnature, a full line of products and complete information on constructing a yard pond are now available.

How do you construct a garden pond? Start by selecting a location on your property where the ground is fairly even, although, because of the flexibility of the liner, some leveling can be achieved when digging your pond. The pond should be placed where it will get approximately six hours of sunlight per day.

While you can place your pond anywhere, it is not recommended to place it directly under trees, since falling leaves can foul the water, and tree roots will make it difficult to dig.

Using a heavy garden hose or a rope, free form your pond design to conform to your landscaping scheme.

When constructing your pond, dig both a shallow area and it is the ideal place for potted plants, like lilies.

The deep area will provide security for your fish and protect them from birds and small animals. Depending on your climate, the deep area of your pond should be anywhere were from 24 to 40 inches, and the shallow area from 4 to 12 inches.

After digging out your pond location, line the ground with sand, carpet padding or even old newspapers before installing the liner. This will protect the liner against sharp, protruding objects like roots and rocks.

To create that professional look, build a rock border around your pond, allowing the rocks to overlap by 1 or 2 inches. You can landscape back around the pond and even build a patio, if desired.

Maintaining your pond is very easy. Tetra has an economical, permanent pond filter and air pump, as well as a full line of water chemicals and foods to ensure that your fish will prosper. If you want to add the grace and beauty of a waterfall or fountain to your pond, Tetra even offers a powerful and reliable water pump.

What kind of fish should you put in your pond? The hardiest are large common or Comet goldfish? Depending on the size of your pond, these hardy fish will grow rapidly and can withstand the worst climates. As long as the water in your pond does not freeze to the lowest depths, these fish can survive the cruelest winters.

If you live in a warmer climate, you can select from the most prized pond fish _ beautiful and exotic Koi, from Japan. These are increasingly available throughout the United States.

Start small to beautify landscape

If you've admired a neighborhood's flower filled landscape, but didn't know where to start to beautify your own yard, follow this simple advice: start small. A single flower bed is easy to create in a weekend or less and will stay colorful all summer long.

Plan before you plant. Look around your yard for a logical focal point for a flower bed. Do you have a small tree or a large flowering shrub? Or how about a birdbath, sundial or some other object that will be taller than your plants when they're fully grown? Pay attention to how much sun the area receives _ is it in the sun most of the day or only a few hours? This will be important when selecting plants.

Use a tape measure to determine the size of your new bed. Keep it small _ 3 feet across or less is ideal, so you can reach plants growing toward the center or close to the back. Sketch the dimensions of the bed on graph paper. On another page,, make two columns for notes on shorter and taller plants. Then, take both with you to visit your local home or garden center.

Select plants. You don't have to spend hours weaving through the plant aisles to get what you need. Simply select a few flowers with colors and textures you like, then check the labels for how much sun the plants need, how tall they'll grow and how far apart they should be planted. Look for taller plants to surround your focal point and shorter ones toward the edges of the bed. If you have trouble choosing, pick out just two varieties, one taller, like zinnias or geraniums, and one shorter, like marigolds for sunny spots or coleus and bright impatiens for the shade.

Next, look at the various edgings available _ from bricks or landscape timbers to flexible plastic garden edging. The edge separates lawn and flower bed, so you can mow grass without cutting down plants.

Once you've selected the plants and edging you want, quickly sketch their dimensions on your graph paper to determine how many plants you'll need. To get you started, here's a sample shopping list and the tools you'll need to finish the job.

Shopping list: small bag of Canadian sphagnum peat moss, two to seven medium tall plants that complement or contrast with your focal point, two to seven shorter plants, all of one type, shredded bark or other mulch, edging to surround flower bed. Tool checklist: shovel, hoe and rake.

Before you plant, use a garden hose or a length of rope to create an outline for your flower bed. This lets you see how you like the shape of the bed and provides a digging guide. The next _ and most critical _ step is to improve the soil.

Small garden: These tools will help you plant small gardens and windowboxes. Starting small is the key to building an impressive, flower filled landscape with lots of color.

Start by loosening the ground across the entire bed. Remove the weeds, sod, or old plants from the area. Next, spread two to three inches of peat moss across the bed. Then, dig this into the top six inches of soil. The peat moss helps sandy soil hold moisture, so you won't have to water as often, and it loosens and improves the drainage in clay or hard packed soil, so air can get to the plant roots. It also makes weeding easier and reduces the amount of fertilizer you'll need.

Matthaei Gardens has perennial sale

The most appealing gardens are those that complement your home. They have color, texture, shape and perennials which play a big part of the overall picture. Fine Gardening magazine advises would-be gardeners to think of garden plants as part of a big picture. Include a pleasing background of lawn and flowering plants, create a sense of enclosure by bordering the garden with a hedge or carefully placed trees, and use paths and views to link the garden to other parts of the grounds and the house.

Choosing perennials to complement your home or landscape can be a daunting proposition. The varieties to choose from are many and site selection is critical. The Friends of the Matthaei Botanical Gardens can offer relief to the novice or experienced gardener searching for that perennial gem. For a one-stop shopping perennial experience, loads of advice from knowledgable plant experts and more than 30,000 perennials ranging from rock garden plants to wildflowers, visit the Botanical Gardens' Spring Perennial Sale , 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 4 and 5. Some quantities are limited. A special Friends sale will take place 7-9 p.m. Friday, May 3 which offers a first selection and a 10 percent discount. Memberships will be available at the door. The following are some of the choice plants available at the sale.

Crocosmia X Curtonis 'Lucifer' (Crocosmia 'Lucifer'). This unusual hardy cormus plant has coarse, sword-like foliage 2.5 feet tall that is similar to the gladiolus. The long arching flower stalk has bright red flowers which are arranged in a similar way to the freesia. It prefers a moist well-drained soil and sun to partial shade. Winter hardiness is a bit controversial. Some information suggests lifting the corms in zones 5 and 6 and storing them in a dry frost-free place. Others suggest planting in the proper location and mulching well to ensure success.

There are over 32,000 named varieties of daylily. Among the more unique cultivars chosen for sale are the Hemerocallis 'Prairie Blue Eyes.' This lavender daylily was developed in 1970 and is still sought after for its bluish halo or eye. It is considered to be the best blue daylily and its heavy bud count make it very desirable. Sun to light shade and well-drained soil are recommended.

Hemerocallis 'Prairie Moonlight.' Also on the top 100 list is this extra large (8 inches) fragrant yellow daylily that stays open into the evening. A real eye catcher! Like most daylilies it likes sun and well-drained soil.

Leucanthemum (Chrysanthemum) 'Barbara Bush.' This is a new patented shasta daisy named after the former first lady that sports green leaves edged with creamy gold margins. This is a variegated mutation of L. 'Thomas Killen' and grows 30 inches tall with extra large flowers. Great for the sun and likes a well-drained soil.

This year's presale will also offer Pre-Sale Savvy Sessions Sunday April 21 at 1 p.m. and Saturday, April 27, at noon. What is new and unique will be highlighted.

The Spring Perennial Sale and Pre-Sale Savvy Sessions will be held at the Matthaei Botanical Gardens. Take US-23 to the Geddes Road exit, head east to Dixboro Road. The address is 1800 N. Dixboro Road. For information, call the gardens 313-998-7061.

You don't need those BTUs when grilling

(MPS) _ When it comes to gas grills, many people believe the more BTUs, the better. BTUs, or British Thermal Units, are a measurement used for the amount of gas going into a grill. According to the engineers at Char-Broil, the country's oldest manufacturer of gas grills, increased BTUs actually may decrease the efficiency of the grill.

An excess of BTUs wastes gas, which is bad not only for the environment but also for your wallet. It also wastes your time, since you'll have to make more trips to the store to refill your LP tank more often. Too many BTUs can damage the grill, too. The grids sag, the burner receives useless stress, and the exterior paint and chrome burn off, which allows rust to form earlier. Worst of all, too many BTUs can damage you dinner.

According to George Hirsch, host of the public television series, "Grilling with George Hirsch," "A grill that's too hot tends to burn the food before it can cook the food." A grill performs best when the food is seared, then the grill hood is lowered and the food is allowed to cook slowly.

This keeps your meal tender and juicy and is the best method whether you're grilling vegetables, seafood, burgers or steak. Controlled cooking such as this is difficult if the grill is overpowered with BTUs.

A gas grill needs enough BTUs to perform efficiently (at least 24,000), but not so many that it cooks poorly. Bottom line: You simply don't need the hottest grill money can buy. Even a very large propane grill does not need more than 44,000 BTUs, and with today's better cooking systems, 35,000 BTUs is the maximum you're likely to ever want.

Homemade herb pots practical, attractive

A strawberry pot is ideal with its protruding pockets that allow an assortment of herbs to cascade from all sides, providing versatility in the kitchen as well as an attractive show on the deck, Most herbs are sun lovers, so choose a sunny site where they will be convenient for picking. Position tall herbs, like chives, parsley and mint, at the center and shorter or trailing herbs toward edges and in the pockets.

For best results, use a top quality, peat -based potting mix. An easy way to judge quality is to look at the ingredients listed on the potting mix bag. If Canadian sphagnum peat moss is the first ingredient listed, you are assured of good quality. The proper mix is particularly important for container plants to ensure adequate drainage. Yard soil tends to retain too much water, leading to rotting roots and poor quality potting mixes allow water to run through too quickly, leading to dried-out plants.

Creating the herb planter is easy. You will need a strawberry pot, about 10 herb plants, peat-based potting mix, some small stones and a cardboard tube from wrapping paper.

1. Add about two inches of peat moss to the bottom of the strawberry planter. Place the cardboard tube in the center of the planter. Work it into the peat moss so that it remains upright.

2. Fill the pot with potting mixture to the first pockets. Now add plants, gently passing roots through the holes. Cover roots with potting mix and repeat until planter is filled. Leave about 1 inch between the potting mixture and the planter rim to allow for watering.

3. Fill the cardboard tube with small stones and then carefully pull it out. The stones improve drainage, allowing water to seep evenly throughout the potting mix.

The herbs should be ready for picking within a few weeks. Water the planter frequently to keep the soil moist but not wet to the touch and use water-soluble fertilizer every two weeks.

Child's garden is rich harvest

A child's garden produces the richest harvest of all.

"With hoe and trowel in hand, a child experiences the satisfaction that comes from commitments and observes the cycle of life firsthand," says Peter Reynolds, president of BRIO Corp., a Milwaukee. Wis., toy company that makes sturdy garden tools for children.

Working side by side in the garden, adults and children learn from their successes. Gardening cultivates a child's instinctive love for the earth, and the bounty _ crunchy carrots, sweet snap peas, fresh herbs _ can lay the foundation for healthy eating habits for a lifetime.

Even a small garden can yield big discoveries. In fact, gardening experts recommend that a child's garden be small enough that the weeding, watering, thinning and harvesting are manageable for the child.

If you don't have access to an outdoor plot, indoor pots and trays can produce rewarding results if you choose appropriate seeds.

Whether you're gardening indoors or out, BRIO makes child-size tools for the task, from a mini-greenhouse and seed pots for indoor growing to shovels, hoes and rakes with sturdy wooden handles and metal blades to tackle outdoor projects.

For a list of specialty toy stores that carry BRIO tools, call 1-800-558-6863, EXT. 5.

Any bird can become a problem.

From drilling holes in your house to eating your raspberries, there are times when the habits and instincts of birds conflict with humans - even though we may want them around.

Most birds don't have a simple solution. What eliminates a bird in one situation may not work in another or may work only for a short time. Spotting, trapping and poisoning, aside from being nasty, aren't solutions.

All wild birds, except pigeons, English sparrows and starlings, are protected by federal and state laws.

The secret is to use several tactics and vary them. The goal is to remove what attracts the bird or build a barrier between the bird and what it finds so attractive.

As more homeowners remove dead trees, woodpeckers may turn to metal gutters, house siding and television antennas. Suet feeders, which attract woodpeckers, may divert them from your house or attract them to the house's vicinity.

If you love grapes, apples and raspberries, chances are starlings, orioles, robins, blackbirds and jays love them, too.

Again, barriers are the most effective deterrents. Opaque plastic "hats" can keep starlings from pulling up small plants, while netting is the best solution for larger bushes and trees.

The main problem with roosting birds is what they leave behind. Stringing rows of monofilament one to two inches above the roosting spot or tacking up netting is the best solution.

Birds often pick what seem to be the strangest places to nest such as the gutter, clothes dryer, kitchen fan vent or a bucket in your garage.

It's important to note that the same law that protects most wild birds also protects their nests and eggs. You need a federal permit to disturb them.

Obviously, the time to act is before the nest is built. Try offering these birds an artificial "nest" nearby.

If you live in rural areas, waterfowl may be the biggest nuisance, especially if you're near water.

One strategy for farmers is to delay fall plowing to allow waterfowl to feed in harvested fields. Scarecrows are the traditional choice to frighten fowl, but they can be time consuming to create.

Really, anything that moves and makes noise, such as a dog, is fine. Pieces of plastic bags on short poles are easy and effective at one flag per acre.

Since about 82 million Americans feed wild birds, sooner or later there are bound to be some problems. Here are some things to watch for or remedy.

If you offer your birds a bird bath, make sure it has less than three inches of water to prevent small birds from drowning. Hose out the bath daily and wash it with hot, soapy water once a week to kill algae and bacteria.

New repellents keep pets out of garden

Scare tactics can be a second line of defense. Scarecrows can simulate people if moved weekly to different positions and covered with worn _ not washed _ clothing. Making scarecrows can be a fun project for the whole family.

(MPS) _ Americans spend more than $22 billion annually on gardening items. That's money will spent, according to the National Gardening Association, which says a carefully crafted landscape can add an average of 15 percent to the value of a home. However, there are threats to this investment _ and they're as cute as your neighbor's dogs and cats.

The damage to landscaping by animals can be costly. It's important to combat the problem in the early stages. Homeowners often fail to assess the damage done until a nibble or unearthed plant leads to total defoliation.

Use of repellents is just one way to make your yard and garden less appealing to animals, say lawn and garden experts at Security Products Co., maker of the Repel line of odor- and taste-based animal repellents.

The company offers the following tips to keep your landscape vandal free:

•Select an odor-based repellent that causes temporary nasal discomfort in animals. That drives them from the treated area. Some odor-based "repellents" are odor maskers, which only disguise previous odor markings left by dogs and cats and do not deter foraging animals.

•Repel does not harm animals. It can be applied as a perimeter treatment around the area you want to protect. In this fashion, it can be used to train your own pet to stay out of certain areas of the yard.

•Taste-based repellents can be good companions to odor-based repellents, because they leave bitter residue that most animals dislike. Look for a repellent, like Repel that contains Bitrex.

•Stray dogs usually damage lawns and street-facing flower beds during the day, while cats are notorious for nighttime strolls through flower and shrub beds. Wild animals prefer to forage at night and are attracted to tender garden vegetables and ornamental plants. This sort of damage is easy to spot, since deer and rabbit browsing leaves jagged and torn surfaces on twigs and stems.

•Most homeowners opt against fencing, citing expense and aesthetics. Animal activist caution that some types of fencing, like barbed wire, can be deadly to deer. Fencing meant to keep out wild animals should be at least 6 1/2 feet tall and buried 1 foot underground to thwart deer and smaller burrowing animals.

•Scare tactics can be a second line of defense. Scarecrows can simulate people if moved weekly to different positions and covered with worn _ not washed _ clothing. Making scarecrows can be a fun project for the whole family.

•Some gardeners and serious yard enthusiasts buy expensive ultrasonic or electronic devices that use high-frequency sounds to ward off animals. Experts advise you to save your money. Anecdotal testimonials aside, there is no hard evidence that these devices alter animal behavior.

•Homemade repellents, like human hair, ground cayenne pepper, mothballs and blood meal, have been touted by home gardeners for generations. Unfortunately, the few controlled studies that have been done failed to demonstrate the effectiveness of these homespun solutions. While some are harmless, others, like mothballs, have potentially lethal consequences when ingested by inquisitive toddlers or pets.

7 highly successful habits of gardening

You can grow healthier lawns and beautiful flowers by following these seven habits of successful gardeners.

These habits also will lead you down the garden path toward less maintenance and more time to enjoy a healthier, more beautiful landscape and garden.

1. Amend soil annually. Add two inches of Canadian sphagnum peat moss or a peat moss/compost blend, and work this into the top six or eight inches of soil.

Use peat moss to amend the soil when planting trees, adding a lawn or transplanting. The better your soil, the healthier your plants and the easier it is for you to garden.

2. Water regularly, and feed when necessary. Feel the soil to decide when your plants need more water.

Fertilize when your plants need it - not just when you get around to it. Too much fertilizer causes as much harm as too little, resulting in a scorched or burned look to the foliage or fast, rank growth more susceptible to insects and disease.

Read and follow label instructions.

3. Mulch is a must. Mother Nature never intended the soil to be naked.

A mulch is like frosting on a cake - you could do without, but why would you want to? A few inches of an organic mulch will conserve moisture, block weeds, equalize soil temperature and slowly feed the plants.

4. Be picky about your plants. Choose varieties that offer more than one season of interest - spring flowering trees with interesting bark in the winter or blooming shrubs with the added bonus of winter berriesor autumn foliage color.

5. Compost. Nothing else does so much for so little.

By layering green material (a source of nitrogen) like grass clippings, weeds and pruning crumbs with brown materials (a source of carbon) like fallen leaves, peat moss or soil, you can create a rich, black compost perfect for adding to a poor soil or as a feeding mulch.

6. Walk your garden frequently. This will encourage you to deadhead, pick weeds and appreciate the small details and tiny miracles that make gardening so satisfying.

7. Garden and learn. Avoid costly mistakes by reading, talking to other gardeners and sharing information.

The education of a gardener can be just as enjoyable as the hobby itself. After all, they're both about growing.

Four free brochures from the Canadian Sphagnum Peat Moss Association provide more quick and easy tips for successful lawn and garden projects including composting, lawn care and vegetable and flower gardening.

To obtain all four, send a self-addressed envelope with 52 cents postage to Canadian Sphagnum Peat Moss Association, Box 385102, Minneapolis, Minn., 55438.

Good flower beds need preparation

"While starting a flower bed isn't difficult, it requires patience," said Karl Reisner, a certified nurseryman with the Home Depot. "To prevent more work and extra weeding later, a successful flower bed requires the right preparation.

You want to be able to reach all of the flower bed so that you can care for the entire area - not just weeding and watering the areas you can reach.

•The next step, if done properly, will save time later.

Kill the weeds by spraying the bed with a grass and weed killer, which kills the roots in about four weeks.

Don't use a sterilizer or your flowers will bloom brown all summer. Sterilers will kill anything growing and prevent germination of seeds for up to a year.

•After about two weeks, till the soil with a tiller or by double digging.

To double dig, dig two trenches - one on top of the other. This loosens and mixes the soil to about 20 inches deep.

•Now the hard work - choosing the flowers. For the most color, plant annuals. Mix perennials in with the annuals for a flower bed that's not so labor intensive.

But don't hoe, it will break the barrier. The soil additives alone will keep the soil loose enough.

Consider optimums when you garden

BY JAMES E WALTERS
AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Without considering the optimums, you can do everything else correctly - soil preparation, watering and fertilizing - and still not harvest flowers and vegetables as you expect.

The optimum concept is based on knowing that zinnia, tomato, sweet pepper and similar warm-season plants will refuse to germinate under chilly conditions while cool-season types such as cabbage and lettuce prefer it.

Growing things in their best season means they are at their best regardless of pests or diseases. In fact, it's likely to drastically reduce such problems, since the plants have more reserve energy.

With most vegetables we eat the fruit of warm-season types and the vegetative parts (roots, stems, leaves, buds) of cool-season types. Peas, broad beans and sweet potato are notable exceptions. Cool-season types are hardy or frost tolerant.

With flowers, cool-season types can stand some frost but suffer or die in heat. Warm-season types need warmth to grow and will die after frost.

Satisfactory soil temperatures for growing chives, garlic, onions and shallots are about 50 degrees Fahrenheit at the minimum and about 85 at the maximum.

But they grow best and produce more between 55-75, the optimum temperatures.

A minimum of 40 and maximum of 75 degrees Fahrenheit is satisfactory for growing beets, broad beans, broccoli, cabbage, radishes and spinach. But the optimum is 60-65.

Sweet peppers and tomatoes are satisfactory between 65 and 80 F but do best between 70-75. Eggplant and sweet potato like it even hotter.

For sweet corn, between 50 and 95 is satisfactory but between 60-75 is best.

This becomes even more obvious in seed germination. At the acceptable minimum of 35 degrees for onions, it may take about 130 days from planting to the first sprouting. Around 50 degrees, it takes about 13 days. This drops to four days at 75. The maximum is about 95 degrees.

These figures are from University of Arizona recommendations and may vary in your area. But they are pretty standard, whether your growing season is subtropical, subject to early frosts or something in between.

Gardening may be dangerous to skin

NEW YORK, March 27 /PRNewswire/ -- While gardening continues to grow as one of America's favorite leisure activities, it can also expose the gardener's skin to many hazards. Here are a few of the risks gardeners face and some easy ways they can protect themselves.

-- Sunburn. Studies show exposure to the sun is the primary cause of skin cancer. This year, 500,000 people will develop skin cancer and one in seven will develop it some time in their lives.

Also, the sun "bakes" the proteins in your skin, which can cause wrinkles, dryness, broken blood vessels and age spots.

-- Contact Dermatitis is a rash which develops after the skin is in contact with a foreign substance in the garden. It can be the result of an allergic reaction to poison ivy, sumac or oak. Plants found in and chemicals used in the garden might also cause this condition.

-- Infections. Bacterial infections can develop in cuts, splinters, insect bites, sunburn blisters or abrasions. These infections are caused by a variety of microorganisms such as ringworm or sporotrichosis. Infections can often be treated by antibiotics, so see your doctor.

-- Eczema. Exposure to wetness, cold and wind can cause skin to redden, peel, crack or chap.

-- Lyme Disease. Although this is not solely a skin disorder, a rash is one of the early warning signs. The disease is caused by a microorganism introduced by the bite of an infected deer tick. A victim may experience flu-like symptoms followed by more severe, long-lasting symptoms if the disease is not treated. A brochure with more details is available from the American Lyme Disease Foundation, Inc. Call 1-800-876-LYME.

To protect yourself from these and other dangers that lurk in home gardens, the American Skin Association suggests the following:

-- Stay out of the sun between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. or try to work in shady parts of the garden during peak hours.

-- Use a sunscreen with a sun protection factor (SPF) of 15 or higher.

-- Wear light cotton glove liners under rubber gloves to avoid skin contact with rubber.

-- Learn to recognize and avoid sources of contact dermatitis including certain plants and insecticides.

-- Be aware of open sores. If you notice one, rinse it clean, treat with an antibiotic ointment and cover the area with a dressing or bandage.

IT'S TIME TO FIRE UP THE AC.

Burning natural gas hardly seems like a way to keep cool in the summer heat. But it is. In fact, it may be the best way. Natural gas air conditioning has many benefits over traditional cooling systems. To begin with, natural gas central air conditioners have lower operating and maintenance costs. Natural gas systems have fewer moving parts, so they're quieter and more reliable, often lasting up to twice as long as conventional air conditioning systems. And they're chlorofluorocarbon (CFC) free, so they're environmentally friendly. And if all of that wasn't enough incentive, they now come with a rebate. This summer, get fired up about natural gas air conditioning. To find out more, give us a call at 1-800-989-4GAS.

Raised beds give gardeners a lift

WASHINGTON, PRNewswire_ It may take a stage magician to levitate a person, but a weekend gardener can raise a bed _ and the results can be almost as amazing, according to the American Wood Preservers Institute.

Raised bed gardens have become a popular way to grow vegetables and flowers. There are several reasons for this popularity. Raised bed gardens are ideal where the natural soil has high clay content, since you can supply your own soil mix for the beds. Furthermore, because soil in raised beds warms earlier in the season than does ground soil, gardeners can get a head start on planting.

You can also work in wetter weather without getting your feet muddy or compacting the soil. And you save your back because you can tend your plants and pick your vegetables with less bending. A typical raised garden consists of long beds, 6 inches to 3 feet high. Beds need be no broader than you can reach and can extend as far as your property lines allow. The path between beds does not have to be wider than 12 inches or so. To prevent mud, top the paths with gravel or build a wood walkway.

The walls of the beds should be built of durable material. For its long life and workability, pressure-treated wood is a common choice. Available at nearly every lumber yard and home center, this wood has preservative protection against termites and rot, and is normally water resistant.

Despite widespread commercial use for decades, stories have circulated that treated wood will contaminate plants. EPA conducted an 8-year scientific study on pressure-treated wood and put no restrictions on its use in gardens. Once the walls have been constructed, the beds can be filled with soil and compost. Then you're set to plant. And when you do, consider those who don't have adequate food, in a campaign called ""Plant a Row for the Hungry," the Garden Writers Association of America is encouraging gardeners to donate surplus produce to a local food bank or shelter for consumption by those in need. Hungry neighbors get more healthful meals, while gardeners get added pleasure from their hobby. The efficiency of raised garden beds makes it likely that you'll have plenty of food to share.

Radish is vegetable of '96

AP SPECIAL FEATURES

Radishes and sunflowers are the National Garden Bureau's choices for vegetable and flower of 1996. Both have been cultivated for centuries.

Founded 76 years ago, the bureau describes itself as a nonprofit educational service of the home-garden seed industry. Most major retail and wholesale seed companies are members.

The radish is one of the most ancient of cultivated vegetables. It was grown in China as early as the seventh century B.C., and Egyptian pharaohs made it part of the daily diet for workers building the pyramids.

The center of origin for sunflowers is considered the Western Plains of North America, as early as 3000 B.C. For most American Indians, their primary use was as food. Spanish explorers introduced the sunflower to Europe, and it spread quickly throughout much of the continent.

Sunflowers grown in home gardens fall into two categories: those grown for their decorative flowers and those grown for edible seeds. The bureau says they come in many sizes and colors.Since 1986, three new types of sunflowers have been introduced into this country. One has a sturdy central stem that produces multiple branches with many flowers excellent for cutting and does not require staking. The second is a dwarf reaching 1 to 2 feet tall. The third is a pollenless type bred for cut flowers.

The new varieties include "Floristan," "Hallo," "Holiday," "Music Box," "Prado Red," "Sonja," "Valentine," "Big Smile" and "Sunspot." The sunflower is a member of the Compositae family."Start your sunflower with good soil preparation," advises the bureau. "While good fertile soil will yield the largest flower heads and meatiest seeds, the sunflower is not picky. They will grow in just about any type of soil except where there is standing water.

"Prepare the soil by tilling to a depth of 8 inches. Incorporate manure, compost, organic matter or a slow-release general purpose fertilizer into the soil. Rake smooth. Use the handle of rake or shovel to trace a straight line one-fourth to one-half-inch deep. Sow seeds in this furrow 6 inches apart and cover with one-eighth-inch of fine soil. Germination will take five to 10 days."

When the first true leaves appear, thin to 24 to 30 inches apart and a booster application of fertilizer is recommended when the flower head begins to appear.

Sunflowers have few garden pests, but clean-garden practices are recommended. Large-type plants require staking.

The seed is very high in minerals, vitamins and essential oils _ and calories. Their protein is rated at 24 percent, the same as beef. Their nutrients are believed to improve cardiovascular health.

The radish is a member of the Crucifera family, which also includes broccoli, and apparently developed in the Mediterranean area.

Shapes are generally long or round. Round ones may be as small as marbles or as large as a baseThey are classified according to the length of growing time from seed to harvest as short-crop, midseason or long-season.

Recommended varieties include "Cherry Belle," "Champion," "Sparkler," "Snow Belle," "Easter Egg II Blend," "French Breakfast," "White Icicle" and Oriental types such as "April Cross" and "Summer Cross.'

"A sunny location and loose, even sandy, well-drained soil are the simple but important requirements for growing radishes," says the bureau

"All radishes are grown from seed placed into prepared garden soil. The initial crop can be started in early spring, about four weeks before the first frost-free day. Radish seeds will germinate incool soil but prefer a soil temperature above 60 degrees Fahrenheit. Seedlings should emerge in less than a week and, if a short-crop variety, should be ready for harvest in under 30 days."

The bureau recommends sowing seeds thinly at least one-half-inch apart to a depth of one-half-inch, allowing 12 inches between rows, and planting small amounts of seed every week or 10 days

TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

If buyers and sellers were always to follow the Golden Rule, there wouldn't be a need for open housing laws. Attitude, prejudice and discrimination are individual choices.

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

April is Fair Housing Awareness Month.

You might think that in this day and age, with all the laws on the books outlawing discrimination and competition among lenders to make mortgage money available, we wouldn't have any problems with open housing.

And you'd be wrong, say directors of non-profit monitoring/information agencies who keep their fingers on the pulse of the industry here.

"People like to build fences and keep people out," said Clifford Schrupp, director of the Fair Housing Center of Metropolitan Detroit since 1977.

"People who purchase property, and renters, too, tend to believe that gives them a right to control who lives nearby," Schrupp said. "They don't and courts have essentially held that.

"Most of our complaints involve apartments, but we have an equal concern for real estate sales," he said.

"We still do testing. Fifty-five to 60 percent involves race discrimination. The rest involves familial status, families with children, and people with disabilities."

Lawsuits eventually get filed in about 10 percent of the 250 to 300 cases that arise each year, Schrupp said.

"Some inroads have been made, but if one person has been discriminated against, it's one too many," said Valerie Vintes Weatherly, director of the Oakland County Center for Open Housing.

That agency provides statistical information about communities. It doesn't investigate complaints.

"If someone has a concern, we'd refer them go to the Fair Housing Center, Department of Housing and Urban Development, Civil Rights Commission or the Department of Justice," Weatherly said.

"For Realtors, it's an economic and sensitivity issue," said Michael Peck, executive vice president of the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors headquartered in Farmington.

"How would you feel if you put yourself in a position of a handicapped person or minority who for years have been treated as less than a normal person?

"You can't economically afford to discriminate," Peck added. "For not paying attention to sensitivity, there's a tremendous financial penalty courts will mete out."

Mary McLeod, an associate broker with Coldwell Banker Schweitzer and WWOCAR president, said she personally comes across one or two cases a year where a seller doesn't want to sell to a buyer of color.

"I contact the listing agent and tell them to tell their seller that they signed a listing contract not to discriminate in any way, shape or form," McLeod said.

"Many real estate brokers and sales associates are taking proactive steps to guard against housing discrimination," said Nita Anderson, an office manager with the Prudential Great Lakes Realty and president of the Birmingham Bloomfield Rochester South Oakland Association of Realtors in Troy.

"Education is one of the primary things, getting out to seminars, getting out to law classes, getting to know what we are supposed to be doing," Anderson said.

"We try to do a lot of charity work so we are out in the community," she said. "I think if you know people one on one from different walks of life, different economic situations, you're more in tune. You understand what's happening."

"We work very hard to make our members aware of their responsibilities in fair housing," McLeod added.

"We can't steer, perhaps direct, a number of people to a neighborhood where a number of people of their race or nationality live," she said.

"If someone were to ask the make-up of a neighborhood, race or background, our response has to be, 'We can't keep those records. We don't know.'"

And what's a Realtor to do if a seller doesn't want to deal with a particular person based on race, sex or religion?

"We teach them to basically say, 'Here's the federal law. I can't violate the law. You're putting myself and my broker in a precarious position,'" Peck said.

Most sellers who misguidedly want to protect their neighbors or community by not selling to certain people understand the law after it's explained and they chose not to risk legal sanctions, Peck said.

"A lot of decisions (to discriminate) are individual," Schrupp said. "You can't blame it all on the real estate industry.

"A whole bunch of people are making their own personal decisions. Every time someone puts up a for sale sign when a black family moves in reinforces prejudice.

"You don't find many programs or activities by units of government, church groups and educational institutions to try to counter that," Schrupp said.

"People of goodwill can initially make sure they support fair housing laws and the resources to enforce those laws. Welcoming shouldn't wait until someone burns a cross on a lawn.

"People can organize and work through churches and institutions to make sure people feel welcome and make sure communication goes on," Schrupp said.

The telephone number for the Fair Housing Center of Metropolitan Detroit is (313) 963-1274. The number for the Oakland County Center for Open Housing is (810) 539-3993.

Use consultants when developing property

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q:I am contemplating the acquisition of a block or two of vacant lots in various cities in Macomb, Oakland and Wayne counties. Is it true that while the lots are vacant until development begins, that I will receive liability protection on them through my homeowner's insurance policy without any action on my part. My plan calls for building single family homes, duplexes and townhouses, but some of the structures will be erected across the existing lot lines. Do you think it would be a time and cost advantage to "condominiumize" this type of redevelopment. Are there any tax or equity advantages. I have some business acumen so could I do the paperwork required to satisfy legal and administrative requirements myself, or much of it myself, for review by a professional. How can I get started with or without professional help.

A: While your plan is ambitious and may well be successful, it is important in developing any type of real estate that you help establish a team of consultants to assist you in the process. You have raised a number of issues concerning the development of raw land. Obviously, the type of insurance coverage that you will need should be reviewed with you by an insurance consultant who has expertise in this area. With respect to the question of whether or not you should condominiumize the property, that would depend on a number of factors which would require more facts than what was presented in your question. There are obvious tax consequences to any type of development that you create and the form utilized by you in creating the redevelopment/ It is clear, however, that you should engage those professionals necessary to properly assist you in preparing the necessary legal documents to establish and operate your redevelopment plan subject to your review. In short, you do need professional help before you begin.

Q: I have a claim against the seller of our property who I believe concealed water damage, although the purchase agreement that I signed indicates that I bought "as is" and I had no presale inspection. Do I have any legal basis to pursue the seller under these circumstances as I am out a substantial sum of money.

A: While the law in this area seems to be changing with each new decision, the latest from the Michigan Court of Appeals suggests that there can be no "concealment" under "as is" contract where a defect should reasonably have been discovered upon such inspection. If in fact a defect could reasonably have been discovered upon such inspection, the seller is not liable. Courts have indicated that where property is sold "as is," the buyer has the risk of loss until the seller knows of concealed defects and does not disclose them. The buyer has the risk of loss when a defect should have reasonably been discovered upon the inspection and was not. An "as is" clause does not transfer the risk of loss to the buyer when the seller makes a fraudulent representation, Obviously, each case depends upon its own facts and you are advised to consult with an attorney who can give you an opinion concerning the particular circumstances with which you are involved.

Robert M. Meisner is an Oakland County area attorney concentrating his practice in areas of condominium, real estate, corporate law and litigation. You are invited to submit topics which you would like to see discussed in this column, including questions about condominiums, by writing Robert M. Meisner, 30200 Telegraph Road, Suite 467, Bingham Farms, MI 48025. Meisner can be heard weekdays at 9:45 a.m. on WPON, 1640 AM. This column provides general information and should not be construed as legal opinion.

Ceramic tile easy to install to update and enhance your home

'Tiles not only update and improve your room's appearance, but you can install them yourself, saving up to $700 in labor costs, alone.'

Ron Decker
The Home Depot.

Many of today's older homes are ready for an image makeover. But how can you change the look of your kitchen or bathroom without completely remodeling? Consider adding a ceramic tile floor or countertop.

"Tiles not only update and improve your room's appearance, but you can install them yourself, saving up to $700 in labor costs, alone," says Ron Decker of The Home Depot.

Ceramic floor tile is available in many styles, colors and patterns. Glazed tile has a hard surface layer of color and may be glossy, matte or textured. Unglazed tile or quarry tile, has color throughout its entire thickness and provides a better grip than glazed tile for flooring. Since quarry tiles are thicker and harder to cut, it is best to use them in areas where they won't have to fit against complicated shapes.

Prep the area to be tiled. Ceramic tiles should be installed over subfloors no less than one inch in total thickness. Most tile manufacturers recommend installing ceramic tile over cementuous backer board. If you have a large area to tile, consider buying or renting a mortar tub to mix big batches of grout. Also, be sure to sweep the subfloor thoroughly before installing tiles.

Measure opposite sides of the room and mark the center of each. Lines will help guide your installation. Dry-fit the tiles along the lines in both directions and adjust the layout, if necessary. Using a notched trowel, begin at the center point and apply tile adhesive to the floor using the manufacturers directions. Be sure not to cover the layout lines. Start laying the tiles at the center point, placing the edges against the lines.

Use a tile cutter to fit tiles in borders and smooth rough edges with a tile sander. For irregular areas use a tile saw to make cuts. If you have many tiles you may want to buy or rent a wet saw designed to cut tiles.

Mix grout and latex. Apply grout to floor with a rubber float, using a sweeping motion at a 45 degree angle to force grout into joints. Wipe away excess grout with a damp grout sponge, let dry slightly and wipe away powdery haze. You may need to repeat this process to get all the grout off the surface of the tile. Wet mop the floor twice a day for three days, then allow grout to cure for seven to 10 days. With a brush apply two coats of silicone sealer to grout only. This gives you harder, longer-lasting grout that is less likely to develop hairline cracks.

Ceramic tile can also be used to create an attractive and durable countertop. Since countertop surfaces are often exposed to water, use moisture-resistant adhesive or mortar and glazed tiles. before you begin to lay the tile, prep the area. Cut three inch wide frame supports from 3/4 inch exterior plywood. Using 11/4 inch wallboard screws attach the supports every 24 inches across the cabinet, around the perimeter and next to the cutout locations. With exterior plywood and cement backer board, cut a countertop core to fit over the cabinet unit and fasten it to the wall and cabinets with wallboard screws driven into the frame support. Fill cracks in the core with latex underlayment, let it dry and then sand. If the countertop will have bullnose edge tiles, use carpenter's glue and 6d finish nails to attach 1x2 buildup strips of exterior plywood to the exposed edges. For decorative wood edges, attach stained and sealed 1x2 hardware strips.

Measure and mark the middle of the countertop core. Dry-fit rows of tiles along the layout lines using plastic spacers if tiles do not have self-spacing lugs. Readjust the layout if needed. Dry fit all tiles and mark the cutting lines on any tiles that must be trimmed. Use a tile cutter to trim tiles and a tile sander to smooth cut edges. Apply a thin layer of adhesive to the edge of the countertop and the back of the tile, using a notched trowel. Press the tiles into place. Insert the plastic spacers if needed. Spread adhesive lines and install the perpendicular rows of tiles. Remember to use your spacers and check the alignment often with a framing square. Install the remaining tiles, working from the layout line outward. Remove any adhesive from the face of the tile before it dries. For the backsplash, install a single row of bullnose tiles directly to the wall.

FHA adjustable rate can help buyers qualify for bigger loan

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

Editor's note: This is the last of a three-part series on the advantages of FHA financing

This week's mortgage shopping tip:

FHA programs can make buying a home easier.

One of the best mortgages available today if the FHA, one-year adjustable rate program. It has advantages for every home buying situation. I can say from my personal experience as a loan officer, this program helps people buy homes, plain and simple. The main reason is that when applying for an FHA, one-year ARM mortgage, the borrower only needs to qualify at the first year rate which is usually very low and, therefore, it's easier to qualify.

For example, let's say a couple makes $3,000 combined gross monthly income. The going fixed rate is about 8 percent. Based on that rate, they would qualify for approximately a $97,000 mortgage. Now let's consider the exact same situation for an FHA one-year ARM mortgage where the beginning rate is about 6.5 percent. This same couple now qualifies for approximately a $113,000 mortgage, a difference of $16,000. Add that $16,000 to a home's sale price and this couple now can afford a nicer home without spending much more in total out of pocket expense. This is only one example but illustrates my point ... the program literally can help you buy more home for the same money.

It may calm your fear of adjustable rate programs to know that the FHA ARM has built-in rate hike protection with restrictions on how much the rate can change from year to year. The maximum increase is 1 percent and the total maximum increase over the life of the loan is 5 percent. This compares favorably to 2 percent yearly/6 percent over the life of the loan caps on conventional loans. Using the 6.5 percent first year FHA ARM rate mentioned above, your rate could only rise to a maximum of 7.5 percent in the second year of the loans, 8.5 percent in the third year and so on up to a maximum of 11.5 percent over the life of the loan.

This does not necessarily mean that the maximum will be reached. It depends on what the rates are when it is time for your yearly adjustment. The rate could even go down.

Remember, most people who use this program only stay in the home for a few years and don't experience the potential increase of 5 percent. Another rate minimizing strategy is to consider refinancing. After you have taken advantage of the first few years of low rates, you may refinance to a fixed rate.

Another FHA loan, the versatile 203 (k) Mortgage and Improvement Loan, is a smart way to buy and remodel a home for owner-occupants or investors. You can purchase, repair and remodel the home of your dreams with just one loan which includes all the advantages of traditional FHA financing. FHA's 203(k) is a unique loan that allows you to include the cost of needed repairs or improvements with the purchase price of your home.

You can even refinance your home and get money to repair and remodel it at the same time. Your 203(k) mortgage loan will include money to buy the home (or refinance) plus money from improvement. A minimum of $5,000 in eligible work must be done to qualify. You still have the option of choosing a fixed or adjustable rate mortgage. For investors, a 15 percent downpayment is required; for owner-occupants, as little as 3 percent is required for the downpayment. There are certain lenders specializing in this type of loan and you would be wise to seek an experienced loan officer and lender when needing this type of financing. I have touched on some basic considerations but there is a lot more to learn, so consult a lender near you or call me for referrals.

Last week I mentioned the FHA Mortgage Insurance Premium, also known as MIP. HUD charges a premium to insure mortgages. The premiums are used to pay claims to lenders when a borrower defaults on an FHA-insured mortgage. Most borrowers with FHA-insured mortgages currently pay an up-front mortgage insurance premium (MIP) and an annual MIP as well. The up-front MIP can be financed into the mortgage. If you move or pay off the FHA mortgage early (within 3 to 5 years) you will be entitled to a refund of the MIP. A lender can provide you with more information or feel free to call us and we will be glad to explain in more detail.

In the last three weeks I have tried to point out the most important features of the FHA financing. There is still more information that could be covered but I hope these writings will give you a better understanding of FHA financing and its advantages.

This week's questions

Q: I read last week's article on FHA and you said the total money you need to buy a home is less than with other types of financing. Can you be more specific?

A: The borrower's initial cash investment on a home is the difference between the amount of the mortgage and the total cost of the home. The total cost includes the purchase price and closing costs, but it does not include prepaid items that you have to pay at settlement, such as real estate taxes and hazard insurance. Most FHA programs require the borrower to invest a minimum of 3-5 percent of the total cost of the home. For example, if you purchases a home for $90,000 and your taxes on the home were about $1,500 per year, your total cash investment could end up being between $5,000 and $6,000.

Get house dressed up to sell

Are you planning to relocate in 1996? Ready to sell your current home and move up to a larger one? Or, now that the children are finally grown, is it time to sell your old house? It's not surprising if you answered "yes" to one of those questions.

Economists predict existing home sales will rise 2.4 percent in 1996 to 3.86 million. With more homes on the market, how can a seller distinguish their home from all the others?

Outside your home. It is estimated that more than half of all houses are sold before the buyers even get out of their cars. If a buyer finds the outside of a home attractive, there's a good chance he'll also want to see the inside. Make sure your lawn is mowed, trimmed and watered. Re-sod any areas that have been damaged over the years.

Paint or repair siding, wood and fences. Replace damaged window and door screens/glass. Additions like new house numbers, a brass door fixture, and a large plant or doormat will enhance your entrance. Also, consider purchasing hanging flowers for your front porch.

Inside your home. By making necessary repairs to your home, you'll eliminate buyers' objections before they arise. If you think something is too much trouble to fix, chances are the buyer will too. Buyers also tend to think repairs will cost more than they do.

NEW HOMES

Condos arise on site of family get-away

Gary Tringale, who said he purchased a 12 1/2-acre farm in Farmington Hills in 1989 because he saw potential for residential development, is finally getting around to business.

"I bought it as a developer and ended up buying horses," Tringale recalled. "I fell in love with it. We had a family retreat and every Sunday it was a fun thing to come to.

"A few subdivisions at the time were going in and they're cleared (sold) out now," he said. "There was more of a demand and I felt it was a good time to start developing."

The result is Carroll Farms, 22 site condominiums off Nine Mile between Drake and Halstead. The effort is Tringale's first at residential developing/building.

"I have someone here, Robert Beauchamp, who's been doing this (residential) for 15 years," Tringale said. "I have another fellow working with us as well, Jason Monczka.

"I've built commercial buildings. I feel building is building. At the present time, I feel residential is the right thing to build," Tringale said.

Seven floor plans, all with two levels of living space and a basement, are included among sales materials for Carroll Farms.

Prices range from $279,900 for 2,608 square feet with four bedrooms and 2 1/2 baths to $349,000 for 3,400 square feet with four bedrooms and 3 1/2 baths.

"We offer a lot more than other builders in standard features," Tringale said.

All plans include a fireplace, air conditioning, two-car garage, cooktop, range and dishwasher, first floor laundry, whirlpool tub in master suites and a choice of ceramic or hardwood floor covering in the foyer and kitchen.

Exterior materials must be brick, stone and wood - no vinyl or aluminum siding.

TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

"We have a very good school system (Farmington), we're centrally located off expressways, 275 and 696, shopping," Tringale said. "Farmington Hills is close to the town of Farmington, one of the last (small, Main Street) towns left.

"Carroll Farms is not one of those large subdivisions carrying 150, 200 houses," he said. "It's secluded, but an area where your kids can grow up and be around other kids."

Two models are going up.

There's a mud area with closet between the garage and kitchen.

The master has a pan ceiling, two separate vanities, walk-in closet and separate tub and shower. Three other bedrooms and a full bath also are upstairs.

The other model under construction, the Chestnut, has a formal dining room and butler's pantry, kitchen/eating nook, library and family room on the main floor.

There's a two-way fireplace between the library and family and a peaked ceiling over both rooms. Again, there's a mud area and closet between the laundry and garage.

Base price of the 2,700-square-foot Chestnut is $289,000.

Carroll Farms, serviced by city water and sewers, will have sidewalks.

The property tax rate is currently $38.86 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $300,000 condo would pay about $5,800 the first year.

The association fee is projected at $150 annually.

Tom and Susan Kopeck along with children Bryan, Jenny, Chrissy and Daniel, will be moving to Carroll Park.

"It's close to areas accessible to freeways," Tom said. "Nine Mile is still a pretty part of Farmington. It's not a super-lane road. Lot sizes were pretty nice.

"We designed our own model. We took some of their ideas and changed what was best for us. They were very open, as long as they matched theirs outside," Kopeck said.

Gary Tringale
Tringale Development Co.

Jim and Dedra Clark will live in a Boulder Model with children Chris and Colin.

"Probably the biggest thing that drew us in is it's on one road with a little cul-de-sac," Jim said. "Traffic will be limited."

"We're coming from a ranch. We wanted an upstairs and a downstairs. We like the openness, the big kitchen, family room."

The sales office at Carroll Farms, (810) 473-5589, is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily.

Closets ranks 1st in onerous chores

WASHINGTON, April 16 /PRNewswire/ -- Whether it's weeding out clothes that no longer fit or going through boxes of old papers, 36percent of Americans most dread cleaning out their closets when they start their annual spring cleaning ritual. Twenty-four percent wish they could say "I don't do windows," 22 percent dread cleaning the basement, and 17 percent report they are not looking forward to cleaning out the garage.

Overwhelmingly, more women than men dreaded cleaning out their closets and windows, while more men than women dreaded cleaning out the garage. Both genders equally dreaded cleaning the basement.

Gato Del Sol looks stylish and has functional layout

Handsome stone veneer trim highlights the tremendous curb appeal of the exquisite Gato Del Sol. With the garage extended toward the front, a long walkway leads to the recessed entry. Here a wraparound porch frames a large bay window. Whether you are sitting in the vaulted living room, or on a porch swing, the surrounding view is yours to enjoy.

Once inside this beautiful 2221-square-foot home, the practicality of the unique floor design in evident. Isolated directly behind the living room, the master suite offers complete privacy along with such amenities as a generous walk-in closet and private bathroom with twin basins.

The central section of the plan features a spacious family room heated by a gas fireplace. Any gathering may be held here in complete comfort. A side door allows access to an expansive covered deck. Facing the family room, is the formal dining area.

This arrangement lends an openness to the entire home that is sure to be appreciated. A U-shaped kitchen has been placed between the dining room and the breakfast nook, permitting the cook in the household to serve both formal and informal meals with ease.

The good-sized bedrooms share a full bathroom, and each contains a water basin along with liberal closet space. If desired, one of the rooms may be converted for use as a home office, den, music room or library. A game room, secluded to muffle the sound, has room for a billiard table, ping-pong or air hockey. For those wanting to keep fit, this is an ideal place to set up your exercise equipment. A convenient bathroom abuts the game room.

A serviceable utility room, located by the inside entrance to the garage, is a good location for discarding soiled clothing before entering the house. The substantial three-car garage allows you to unload groceries immediately into the living area. This provides added safety, and yields protection from the weather. There is a large shop space for the hobbyist or do-it-yourself enthusiast.

For a study kit of the Gato Del Sol (335-030), send $10 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307-0E48, Eugene, OR, 97402 (Be sure to specify plan name and number.) For a collection of plan books featuring our most popular home plans, send $20 to Landmark, or call 1-800-562-1151.

Check vapor barrier to keep moisture out of home

AP _ Q: We have a moisture problem. Our four-year-old, two-story home, is a few hundred feet from a saltwater creek. By midsummer, condensation develops in the crawl space under the house and drips down on the plastic vapor barrier that covers the crawl space floor. By autumn, the dampness has caused the oak flooring in the room above it to buckle. When the heat comes on in the winter, the floor dries out and settles down, though not completely. Can you help us solve this problem?

A: Check that the vapor barrier on the crawl space floor has no holes or open joints. Specifically, check the joints between the vapor barrier and the foundation walls. All open sections must be sealed with duct tape.

In addition, during the winter when the humidity is low, install a vapor barrier (large polyethylene sheets with taped overlapping joints) to the underside of the floor joists in the area below the room with oak flooring. Also, place a dehumidifier in the basement that can discharge condensation to the outside by means of a condensate lift pump. Disconnect the dehumidifier during the winter.

It's important to keep the crawl space dry, not only for the oak flooring, but because excessive dampness promotes rot and creates conditions conducive to termite infestation.

Q: I have light-colored shingles on the roof of my house to reflect the summer sun and thereby reduce my air-conditioning costs. The problem is that the shingles are discolored by dirty streaks of what I believe is mold. Is this discoloring due to mold, and can anything be done to eliminate it?

A: The discoloration is probably caused by mildew spores. According to the Asphalt Roofing Manufacturers Association, this is a common problem and is often mistaken for soot or dirt. Fortunately the mildew spores do not cause the shingles to deteriorate.

The discoloration cannot be eliminated, but it can be lightened temporarily with bleach. Gently sponge a dilute solution of chlorine bleach on the shingles then rinse it off with a hose. Don't scrub the shingles or you will loosen their granules.

Q: The porcelain in my bathtub is worn off on about half of the tub. The remaining porcelain is very rough and porous. I cannot replace the tub, but I think that a good paint and primer system would improve its appearance. Do you have any suggestions?

A: We would definitely not recommend painting the tub. This is considered a temporary solution. We have seen tubs where the finish has peeled, cracked, chipped and discolored in just a few years. It would be better to replace the tub or to cover it with a Re-Bath Liner. Re-Bath manufactures hi-impact acrylic liners with a nonporous surface that is custom molded to fit over existing tubs. They have over 400 models of tubs with different shapes and sizes.

This is not a do-it-yourself project, however. Prior to ordering a liner, a factory-trained dealer will check dimensions of your existing tub so that the installed liner will fit over your bathtub. The installation does not disturb the existing walls or floor around the tub. It will also not disturb the plumbing except for the tub drain and overflow to the liner. A typical tub installation costs about $550. Tub surrounds are also available.

Appliances still a great buy

When it comes to redoing your house, your remodeling dollar goes a long way when you use it to purchase new laundry equipment, say Whirlpool home economists.

The Consumer Price Index, a monthly listing put out by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showing the comparative costs of those day-today items that people buy, indicates that washers and dryers have gone up in price only a fraction of what other consumer items have over the years.

For example, college tuition went up a whopping 122.2 percent between December 1984 and December 1994. During the same period, fees for cable television went up 83.7 percent and the price for the average newspaper increased by 61.4 percent.

Laundry equipment prices, on the other hand, say the Whirlpool home economists, have only gone up 6.4 percent over the past 10 years. In fact, in terms of how many work hours it takes a person to earn the money to buy a piece of laundry equipment, it actually takes less time today than it did in 1970. Back then, it would have taken 71.3 hours on the job in order to afford the average automatic washer. In 1993, it took less than half that 32.5 hours.

Dryers have also become a better buy over time. In 1970, buying an electric dryer meant 50.5 hours on the job, while a gas dryer took 57.9 hours. By 1993, though, the price to be paid had dropped to only about 27 hours for either dryer.

So, with inflation, you're actually getting more washer and dryer for your dollar today than you did a decade ago! And, that doesn't even take into account all the improvements _ like reduced energy consumption, quieter operation and better cleaning performance _ that have made in laundry equipment over the years.

So, if you're looking at ways to stretch your remodeling or home improvement dollar, look to a new washer or dryer. It's a best buy!

With inflation, you're actually getting more washer and dryer for your dollar today than you did a decade ago!

(NU) - If you looked out of your window this past winter and saw icicles hanging from your roof's gutter, you may have a problem with ice dams.

"Taking precautions this spring by making improvements to your home's roof will pay off next winter," says Russell Kennedy, vice president, marketing and sales for GAF Materials Corp., a leading manufacturer of residential and commercial roofing products.

Basically, ice dams occur when snow melts on a roof, runs down and freezes at the eaves - the edges of the roof which extend beyond the house's exterior walls. As the snow thaws and refreezes, the ice builds up in the gutter and blocks drainage, which can back up under the shingles and seep through the roof deck.

The damage from the water seeping through the roof deck can range from a stained ceiling to substantial water damage that leaks into the home's living areas. Improperly designed attic insulation and ventilation are major culprits to the forming of ice dams.

When heat escapes through the roof of a house, it melts the snow on the roof much more quickly than a house that is adequately ventilated. Ideally, the attic temperature should be the same as the outdoor temperature to avoid the melting and refreezing of snow on the roof.

The damaging effects of ice damming can be prevented by installing a waterproofing underlayment under the shingles and by improving the attic's ventilation.

A waterproof underlayment acts as a barrier between the shingles and the roof deck and should be applied around the critical areas such as the roof's valleys, ridges, rakes, eaves, chimneys, flashings and around dormers and skylights.

Underlayment s come on a roll and most have self-adhering backing. They must be applied directly to a smooth wood roof deck during new construction or when the roof is replaced. If you're reroofing your house this spring, then installing a waterproof underlayment is an important consideration and a wise investment.

The second way to remedy ice damming is to improve the overall attic climate. Proper insulation and ventilation systems promote good attic air circulation and help prevent heat from escaping the house's living space. The U.S. Department of Energy recommends an R-value of insulation of at least R-30 for houses in warmer climates and R-49 for colder parts of the United States. The R-value denotes the insulation's resistance to heat loss.

An attic's ventilation can be improved by installing turbine vents, roof louvers or a ridge vent. A benefit to ventilating the attic with a ridge vent or louvers is that it's invisible from the outside of the house.

But how? Cleaning your gutters spring and fall is a chore, and conventional wire mesh and plastic dome gutter covers are only partially effective because they still become clogged by leaves and debris.

Fortunately, a new gutter guard system can channel rainwater into gutters and downspouts, while preventing leaves, needles, twigs and other debris from entering or clogging the system.

The scientific principle is called liquid adhesion. As rainwater flows off the roof and over the downward steps of the gutter guard, the natural surface tension of the water causes it to follow the surface contour into water-carrying channels through drainholes and into the gutter.

At the same time, the leaf and twig debris falls over the downward steps and onto the ground below.

Made of the same tough, weatherable material used in premium house siding, the product PermaFlow® Gutter Guard System withstands extreme temperatures and weathering.

Tests on typical homes showed that it was effective in eliminating clogging while maintaining waterflow in all kinds of conditions from light sprinkles to heavy downpours.

This means you'll never have to get up there on the roof to clean your gutters.

Installation is simple. Standard three-foot lengths can be cut with a hack saw or circular saw. A flat tab tucks neatly under shingles and a flexible joint conforms to any gutter or roof pitch.

The system is available from many do-it-yourself retailers. For more information, or the name of your nearest supplier, contact Crane Plastics Inc. at (800) 420-7246..
