Schools seek more buildings

The number of students in the Plymouth Canton school district is increasing. More buildings are needed to house them. A millage could be considered.

BY JEFF COUNTS
STAFF WRITER

A school property tax millage could be on the ballot in six to eight months to raise money to build more schools in the Plymouth- Canton district.

More schools are needed to house additional students in the growing district and a millage would be needed to pay for the buildings, said Superintendent Charles Little.

His comments came Monday during a Plymouth-Canton school board meeting at which a wide-ranging plan to reassign students and build new schools was unveiled.

Final adoption of the plan means about 200 students in Canton and Plymouth will be going to different schools this fall. (See related story.)

However, in the long run: "The high schools and middle schools are in need of help," Little said.

One proposal calls for building a new middle school in Canton and the turning of Central Middle School in Plymouth into a high school. Central, at Main and Church streets, was the site of Plymouth High School until Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem high schools were opened in the early 1970s.

The schools are in a building mode because the number of students will increase from about 15,000 to 18,000, according to Little.

The student population increase is due to the building of subdivisions in both Canton and Plymouth townships, he said.

One indication that there will be more students in the future is enrollment.

"This is the first year that enrollment has gone up during the school year. It usually goes down," said Little.

Evidence of overcrowding in the schools can be seen at Plymouth Canton and Salem high schools, he said, adding that: "There are 4,600 students at the park. There should

There's never a dull moment on I-275

Michigan State Police Trooper John Jackson remembers the guy going 85 miles per hour while reading a Chinese menu and talking on the phone a couple years ago.

Jackson pulled the man over and got an earful. "I'm a busy man," he said the guy said. "I don't have time for this (stuff). I got responsibilities."

Few drivers were going 85 on I-275 April 18 as Jackson and officers from police departments from Farmington Hills to Monroe made a special effort to keep a minimum of 18 patrol cars on the freeway all day long.

State Police Sgt. Duane Avery of the Flat Rock post said that the Wayne and Monroe county sheriff's departments and police from Farmington Hills, Livonia, Canton, Plymouth, Huron Township, Romulus and Van Buren Townships participated in the crackdown.

The officers wrote a total of 250 tickets, 160 for speeding, 32 for failing to wear seat belts and 58 for other violations. Two drunken drivers and six people with outstanding arrest warrants were picked up.

Canton police contributed one patrol car to the effort, manned by officer Keith Myers, who wrote 14 speeding tickets and seven tickets for other violations.

Jackson, who joined the State Police in 1971 and retires at the end of this year, worked his patrol from 2-10 p.m. "Every once in a while somebody calls me young man," he said. "I don't have the heart to tell them how old I am."

In the two hours that this reporter rode with Jackson, he stopped five vehicles and wrote four tickets.

Two drivers passed Jackson as he cruised along at 60-65, which is generally grounds for an automatic stop, but not necessarily an automatic ticket.

Jackson was impressed with the attitude of a Ford Aerostar driver and gave him a warning written on the back of a AAA safe driving pamphlet.

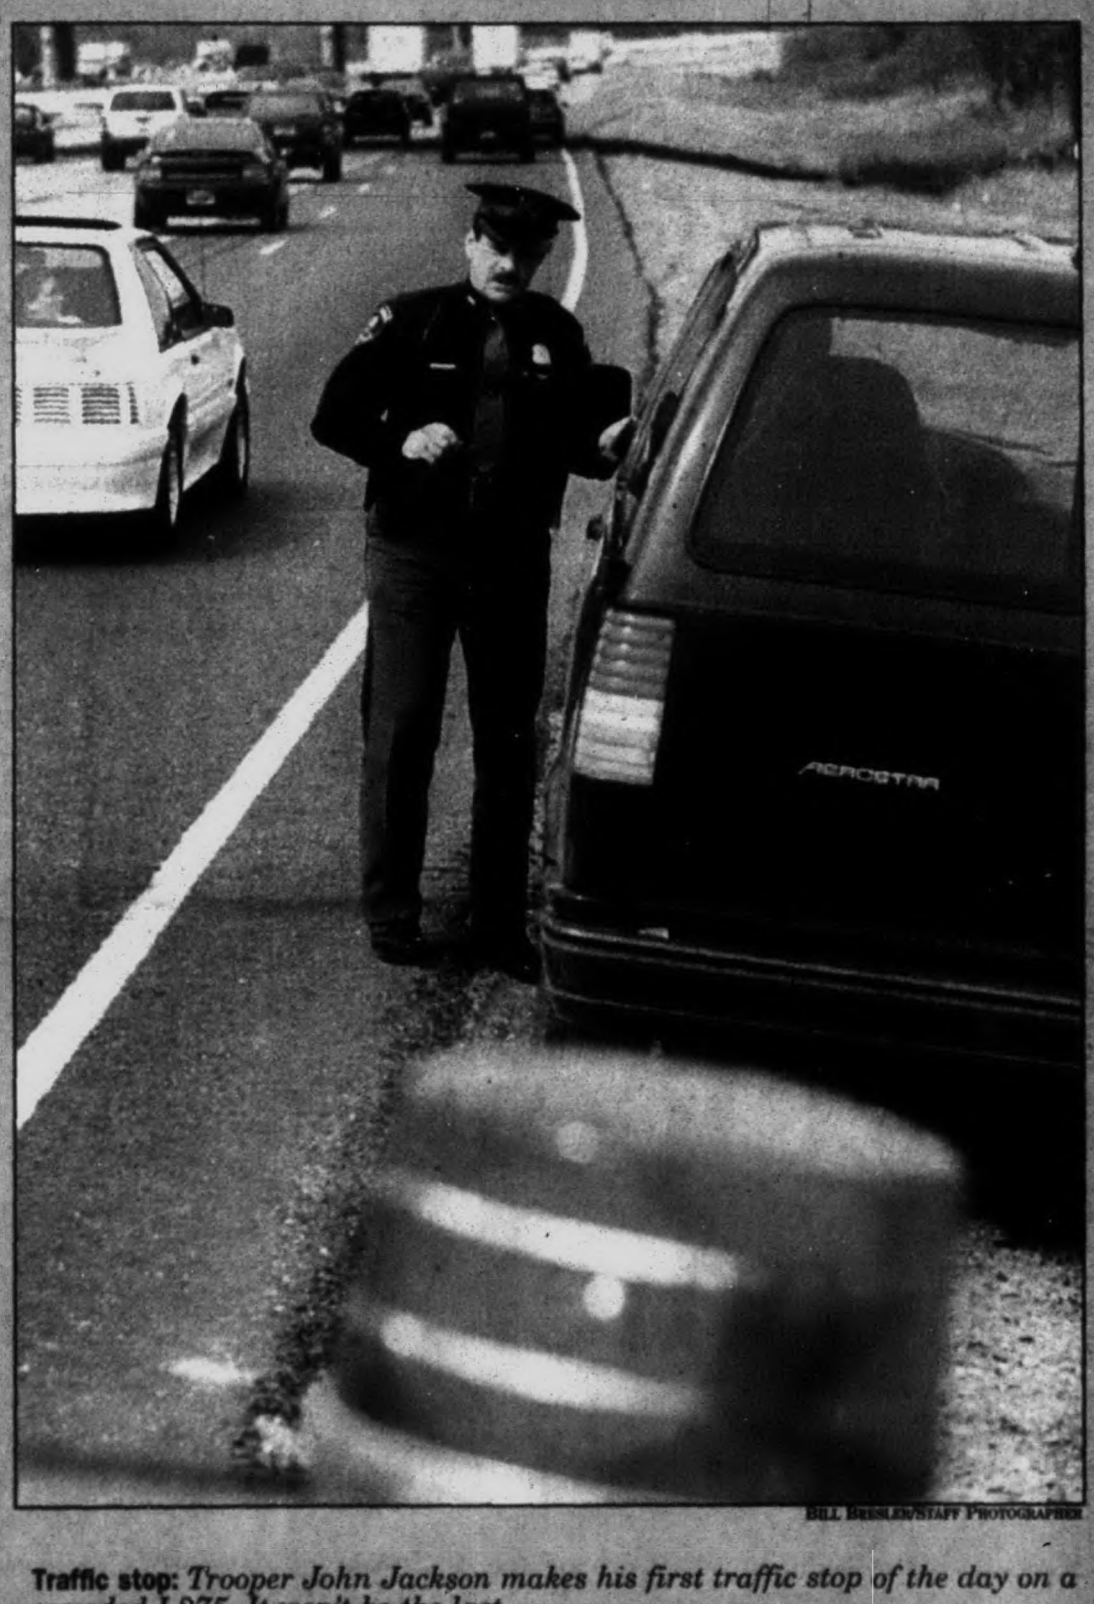

Conversely, the driver of a 1988 Ford Bronco who passed Jackson going 65 got a ticket for his trouble. "This last guy here told me to get a life," Jackson said the Novi man told him.

A middle-age man in a Caddy creeped up on Jackson and nearly passed him. Jackson flashed five fingers twice to the man and said "Fifty-five! Fifty-five!" When the Caddy creeped up again, Jackson showed the driver his ticket book, which convinced him to slow down.

The driver of a dilapidated 1979 Chevy van got a ticket on his birthday for having a broken windshield and no wipers. He told Jackson that

Business group may seek promotion millage

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The downtown business group proposed in February has been embraced by several downtown merchants, and plans are forming for proposing a 2-mill levy in the downtown development district to raise money for business promotion.

Downtown Development Authority Director Steve Guile said a steering committee has been formed. "It completed its work in the latter part of March, basically to establish the structure and by-laws for the association," Guile said.

Now, work programs are being formed. "I think the initial thrust will be to take a serious look at how to fund additional promotion programs downtown," Guile said.

The promotions millage could be used for both promotions and improvements, Guile said. It would require both approval of the DDA and the city commission.

The $15,000-$16,000 that could be raised could be used for a variety of promotions, including setting up a Plymouth web site on the Internet and a format and graphics for that web site.

"There's a lot of possibilities on the Internet of posting special events, the uses are endless," Guile said.

"We could modify it as needed to make it user friendly for government agencies and individual businesses downtown. There are other things in terms of outreach to fringe area industrial development, direct mail campaigns and mixed media," Guile said.

As to improvements, Guile said, "There's been a clamoring for things like downtown rest rooms, we could

Newcomers raising money for Hospice

BY JOANNE MALISZEWSKI
STAFF WRITER

■ 'One-hundred percent of all the proceeds will go to hospice.'

Kristy Engler

You will see Canton Newcomers members at the Kmart and Kroger Saturday, April 27, selling tickets to what they believe is one of the most important events in their organization.

That's the May 1 raffle to benefit the Community Hospice Services. "We consider ourselves to be a charitable, civic and social organization," said Canton resident Kristy Engler, Newcomers publicity chairwoman. "We support the hospice because it is directly related to the community."

The raffle is also sponsored by the Canton Community Foundation.

The public is invited to the annual raffle at 7:30 p.m. May 1 at the Sunflower Clubhouse in the Sunflower subdivisions, west of Canton Center Road.

The tickets are $1 each. "I'm very excited about the quality of the prizes we have this year," Engle said. "We are very appreciative to the businesses who donated these wonderful prizes."

The grand prize, for example, is a $500 set of custom-made golf clubs courtesy of Las Vegas Golf, as well as golf and lunch for four at the Pheasant Run Golf Club.

"One-hundred percent of all the proceeds will go to hospice," Engle said.

Community Hospice Services is a non-profit program that serves residents in western Wayne, Southern Oakland and eastern Washtenaw counties. Hospice provides services and care for the incurably ill and their families. Hospice has offices in Plymouth and Westland.

To buy tickets, contact either of the hospice offices, 459-0548 in Plymouth and 522-4244 in Westland.

"With community sponsored fundraisers, we use the proceeds for direct patient care, not administrative costs," said Plymouth resident Maureen Karby, Community Hospice Services director of marketing and development.

"You can be assured the money will be used for direct patient care for people who do not have insurance or for our extensive bereavement programs," Karby said.

Bereavement programs are for adults and children. Camp Phoenix, for example, is a summer program for children ages 6-16. "These are not necessarily patients' children. We open this up to the community. The camp is strictly funded through grants and community support," Karby added.

Engle said the Newcomers adopted the agency for their spring fundraiser the past few years because of its community services. "They also provide service based on need rather than ability to pay."

Local raspberry man dies

The raspberry man is gone.

Peter Miller's many jobs included a stint as press secretary for Gov. Harry Kelly in 1943, and a stint as secretary of the Michigan Boxing Commission.

Miller, 91, who lived in Plymouth for more than 75 years, died Monday in Livonia.

At his "Plymouth Honeysuckle Farm" on Ann Arbor Trail west of I-275, Miller could be spotted in summer sitting in a chair near the road, with a hand-painted sign offering raspberries for sale.

Born in Detroit June 22, 1904, he graduated from the University of Detroit. He was 12 in 1917 when his parents moved from Detroit to 15 acres in Plymouth.

Miller worked in advertising and in other jobs including time as manager of Jackson Harness Raceway.

He and wife Adele were avid theater goers who also traveled extensively, to 52 countries on five continents. They made 20 trips to Mexico.

Construction of the I-275 expressway reduced the size of his property to 8 acres, and he opposed plans for the noise barrier wall built along the property. Once built, he planted trees along it to hide it from view.

Survivors include a sister, Florence Watters of Florida. Miller's wife Adele and son Keith died before him.

A funeral service was at 10 a.m. today at Our Lady of Good Counsel Catholic Church.

Raspberry man: Many Plymouth people knew Peter Miller as the guy who sold raspberries on Ann Arbor Trail. However, he had a colorful career in advertising. He died on Monday.

Directory offered in Plymouth

Michigan Community Directories, a Suburban Communications Corp. Co., announces the planned publication of the new Plymouth (including Canton area listings), Northville, Novi Community Director.

More than 40,000 new telephone directories will be hand delivered to area residences and businesses beginning in late August. Due to customer requests, this year's directory will feature zip codes in the alphabetical residential, business and yellow pages sections.

Also included will be a convenient restaurant menu section from fine area restaurants following the restaurant classification in the Yellow Pages.

A special Internet section also will be included to assist those who wish to "Let their fingers to the surfing on the Internet."

MCD's new community telephone directory will give local advertisers a more logical and complete marketplace to sell goods and services, said Mike Needles of MCD. Instead of dividing their message and advertising dollars in two different Ameritech directors (West Northwest-Detroit and Plymouth neighborhood) they can place one ad to reach the entire local market at a realistic price.

For information about advertising in this new directory, call 1-800-632-6810.

Michigan Community Directories is owned by Livonia based Suburban Communications Corp. SCC also owns the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, Home Town Newspapers, Press Community Newspaper, Community Newspaper and Camden Publications.

look a the possibility of establishing those things downtown, we can also talk about some other improvements _ directional signs and other suggestions that have to be coordinated through the business association and coordinated through the downtown business owners."

The money could also be used to seed some chamber of commerce activities including retail promotion.

The steering committee's next meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. May 14 at the Mayflower Hotel.

■ 'The group itself was formed basically to deal with downtown issues.'

Steve Guile

"The group itself was formed basically to deal with downtown issues and be an activist group for downtown issues," Guile said. "There are groups that represent Ann Arbor Road and Old Village, there's been a feeling there should be a group to handle specific downtown issues, including parking and parking lot problems," he said.

Farmer's market to open May 4

The Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce will present the annual Farmer's Market starting May 4 at The Gathering off of Kellogg Park.

The market is open from 7:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. each Saturday through Oct. 19, excepting Sept. 7, Fall Festival weekend.

Sewer back up has man angry at city

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

After a sewer backup destroyed his personal belongings, a Plymouth renter wants the city government to pay for his loss, which he estimates at $20,000.

But city Municipal Services Director Paul Sincock said a payment to replace the damaged goods is up to the city's insurance carrier.

And on Monday, he said the insurance company had just begun looking into the problem to determine if the city was responsible for the sewer backup Saturday morning.

The story opens late Friday. "We had quite a rain storm," said Steve Morgan, who with his family rents a duplex on Parkview just east of Lilley.

After noticing the sewer had backed up into his basement _ where CDs, videos, a washer and dryer, clothes, photos and other items were stored _ an apartment maintenance person said that it was a city problem, Morgan said.

"The city came out and said, 'It's all our fault were going to take care of it, Johnny on the Spot came out to clean up the mess," he added.

But Morgan accuses the city of going back on its word to pay damages, after learning that a final determination has yet to be made on accepting damage claims.

"I want to be sure," Morgan said, adding he's heard of the city paying others damage claims in similar situations. "We're renters and I don't want them feeling we're scum of the earth because we don't own a home," he said.

Morgan, who is married and has two young children, said that since moving to the duplex in December, much of the family's belongings were still unpacked.

"He may have interpreted our efforts a little more broadly than he should have," Sincock said.

The city municipal services department, which hired a firm to clean up the mess within hours, exceeded its legal responsibility, Sincock said. "It's probably more than we should do but it's the right thing to do," he said.

"Basically what we did is jump out ahead and say let's get this place cleaned up, I think we did a pretty good job."

On the payment of damage claims, Sincock said, "That's not a determination I can make or our foreman can make _ That's up to the insurance people."

Homeowners in such situations are asked to take photos or video of damaged contents to assist insurance investigators, complete forms and submit them to the city.

Sincock said Tuesday that the city's insurance carrier has yet to make a decision on paying damage claims to renters on Parkview.

Teacher receives award

Alice Brown, a retired Gallimore Elementary School teacher, received the "Volunteer in Public Schools Award" on Monday at the Plymouth Canton school board meeting at Bentley Elementary School.

She was a teacher at Gallimore for 30 years. Since retiring four years ago, she has volunteers her time and money to help children and teachers, according to Gallimore teacher Evelyn Mason.

Brown helps teach lessons two days a week in three 1st classrooms, three 2nd grade classrooms and one 4th grade classroom.

She plans and carries out group activities, particularly math, and even buys her own materials. She also works with problem children.

She received a certificate of recognition, a pin of the Flag of Liberty and Learning and a gift certificate from Ernesto's restaurant in Plymouth from the I Care school committee.

Levin touts health insurance

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

U.S. Sen. Carl Levin promised members of the Canton Economic Club that he would finish his speech early when he took the podium at 12:50 p.m. Monday, April 22.

"Bryan (Amann) told me that if I announced that we're going to be done here at 1:20 I'd automatically become the most popular speaker of the year," he said.

Levin, who is up for re-election this year, touted a Senate bill that would preserve health insurance for people who lose their jobs, predicted that budget battles won't cause another government shutdown and praised the Senate for stopping "some of the more extreme measures that came over from the House of Representatives."

Levin called the Senate a "firewall" for its ability to jettison undesirable proposals sent over by the House. "The system of checks and balances is really working," he said.

Audience members seemed to enjoy Levin's presentation. Even staunch Republican township Supervisor Tom Yack said, "I don't always agree with what I hear (from Levin), but I respect the man who says it."

Resident Michelle Hall, attending her first economic club luncheon, called Levin "a great speaker. And I always enjoy listening to what he has to say. I tend to follow his way of thinking."

Mitch Howard said, "You may not agree with what he has to say, but you've got to respect the individual. I'd like to see someone more conservative (replace Levin), but you've got to respect the gentleman."

Levin kept his planned remarks brief, answered several questions, then left to catch a plane.

He said the main arguments in Washington are now centered around Medicare, Medicaid, student loans and taxes.

"If we don't resolve these issues, they'll have to be resolved by you (in November)."

An economic club guest asked Levin about the flat tax concept. "I think everybody wants a simpler system, but when you get to the details of a simpler system, people start to worry," he said.

The main objection folks seem to have to the flat tax, Levin said, is the end of the home mortgage deduction, which he predicted would reduce the value of a typical home by 10 percent.

Levin guaranteed that any flat tax plan that becomes law will preserve the mortgage deduction. However, he has yet to see a flat tax plan that "has the virtue of being simpler.

Radio Auction from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday, May 18.

The auction happens live on 88.1 FM, as items donated from various Plymouth and Canton businesses are offered up for bid every half hour. Among some celebrity auctioneers will be schools Superintendent Charles Little, State Rep. Deborah Whyman and State Sen. Loren Bennett.

Some items available for auction include signed sports items, a diamond pendant and a Lazy-Boy chair.

Station Manager Bill Keith worked at the station before graduating in 1985. "This is one of the best memories I had in high school, the friendships I had here," he said. "I always wanted to come back."

The station focuses heavily on alternative rock, and also does sports and some news programs.

"It's not what you would hear on 89X," Keith said. While WSDP DJs usually like some popular alternative music, they play things not played on commercial stations "because we can't compete with them," Keith said.

The station does blues, ska, rap and jazz shows and has live broadcasts of high school football, basketball, baseball, softball and soccer.

Most of the 46 students who volunteer to work at the station are passionate about music.

"It's the ability to communicate to people. It's a unique opportunity," Keith said. Also, there's a certain status factor as a student DJ can gain notoriety.

Students who want to be on the air go through a three-day class. "We go over the station policy, the FCC rules and there's a test they have to pass," Keith said.

Students learn to avoid dead air between songs and announcements. "A lot is hands-on experience, a lot of it is as the moment happens. On break I'll tell them, 'Here's some things you did really well, here's some things you can work on.'"

The last formal listener survey was conducted 10 years ago, and Keith said the station is considering doing another one. But public reaction can be measured partly by favorable letters and response to ticket giveaways.

The stateion recently gave away 20 tickets donated by a show promoter in just a few minutes, proof that somebody is listening.

School boundaries changed

BY JEFF COUNTS
STAFF WRITER

About 200 students from Plymouth and Canton will be attending different schools in the fall because of crowding.

Under the plan, all 4th and 7th grade students affected can stay at tier current schools if a request is received by the schools in writing before June 1. However, the students must provide their own transportation.

Here's a school-by-school break down of the changes approved on Monday by the Plymouth Canton school board:

Allen School

Move 44 students from Allen to Smith school. The students will come from an area bounded by Ann Arbor Road, the C&O Railroad tracks, Joy Road and Main Street.

Isbister School

Move 66 students from Isbister to Bird School. The students would come from Ridgewood Hills Subdivision and the area bounded by Powell Road to the North, Ridge Road to the west, Ann Arbor Road to the south and east to Beck.

Tanger School

Use two additional rooms at Tanger to accommodate growth at Farrand School.

Isbister School

Move students from Isbister to Farrand. Those children would come from an area bounded by Andover Lakes and west to Napier, North Territorial to the north and M-14 south.

Bird School

Move students from Isbister to Bird. This involves one student. The area of the change is bounded by Powell to the north, Ann Arbor Road to the south, Napier to the east, and west of Ridge Road.

Field School

Students from Eriksson School would be moved to Field School. They would come from an area bounded by a line north of Woodlane Lane, Lotz, Palmer and I-275.

There would be 17 students assigned to Hoben Elementary School. They would come from a area east of Beck Road. Other students will be assigned to Hulsing School. That area is bounded by Cherry Hill on the north, Canton Center on the East, North property lines of Glengary on the south, and Merion Street on the west.

Hulsing School

Students would be moved from Bentley to Hulsing. There were no students as of this year. However, the area for the shift is in the Pheasant View Subdivision and extends from Pinewood to the north, Newton to the south, Beck Road to the west, Summit Parkway to the east, just north of the southern border of the school district.

Lowell Middle School

Move the western attendance zone of Lowell to West Middle School in the fall of 1997. The change would affect nine students who life west of Beck and south of Ford Road.

be 3,800."

Under the new housing plan, crowding at the high schools could be alleviated by moving 800 students to Central Middle School. But that would be contingent on the building of a new middle school.

Also called for in the plan is a longer lease of Lowell Middle School, which is owned by the Livonia schools.

On building new schools, Little said the board should start quickly. "It takes three years from the time the public oks the money to the time the doors of a new school open."

Also, Little urged the school board to look at buying more property in the district because of projected growth, especially in Canton. "We're in good shape now becaue of the wisdom of past boards. We need to look ahead."

The building plans came in a report by a facilities and housing committee that was appointed by the school board. The members include parents and school officials.

The committee's short-term plan was adopted by the board, but the long-term plan wasn't.

New academy will focus on technology and sciences

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

A planned public school academy would give Wayne County students an education focused on the manufacturing arts and sciences.

Ford Motor Co., Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village and the Wayne County Regional Educational Service Agency are joining with advisers from Michigan State University and the University of Michigan-Dearborn to develop the Henry Ford Academy of Manufacturing Arts & Sciences.

"I couldn't be happier," Michael Flanagan, superintendent of Wayne County Schools, said of the program. "This provides a tremendous resource," he said.

A program with advanced manufacturing technology can't be offered in local districts because of the cost, Flanagan said. He called the resources Ford Motor Company is going to donate "tremendous."

RESA will provide a technological link, Flanagan said.

Traditional schools are already working toward team building and applied learning, but this school will go a step beyond that, he said.

The academy, which will be open to all Wayne County students eligible to enter the ninth grade in the fall of 1997, will follow open enrollment procedures required of all public school academies and will use a lottery to select students.

The class of 2001 will begin with 100 students in the fall of 1997 as ninth-graders. One hundred students will be added each of the next three years until full capacity of 400 students is reached.

Flanagan said the students won't be selected in a traditional lottery system. Students will be recruited from all Wayne County school districts and then selected by lottery from that pool, he said.

"I want this to be the most diverse high school in the county," Flanagan said.

Ford Motor Co. and Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village are sponsoring partners of the academy. Wayne County RESA is the chartering agency.

The academy will be managed by a board of directors, including representatives from each of the sponsors and a parent of an academy student. The Wayne RESA board of education will have oversight responsibility.

The staff will include teachers, a chief of staff, a dean of students, and an

Robert Ficano announces re-election bid

Robert Ficano: will run for fourth term.

COUNTY ELECTION

Wayne County Sheriff Robert Ficano has announced his bid for re-election.

The sheriff's department has done some innovative things during his tenure especially in the areas of narcotics enforcement, confiscation and forfeiture acts, Ficano said.

He also cited work done in Hines Park to restore the park to a family recreation area.

"We've been very fortunate," Ficano said. "We've worked with a lot of community groups," he said.

Crime prevention programs such as school safety programs, juvenile reality tours, and alcohol awareness programs, as well as task forces on topics such as carjacking and narcotics have been implemented, he said.

As for added jail space, a contract for 100 additional beds for people arrested in Wayne County is being worked out, he said.

Wayne County will contract with out-state communities for those beds, he said.If reelected, Ficano said he hopes to increase citizen participation, work on new concepts for using the department's resources and form a task force aimed at specialized crimes, such as high-tech and white collar crime.

"We will continue not only fiscal responsibility in the sheriff's department, but also be innovative," he said.

The sheriff's department was the first to implement a drug liability act, in which victims can sue convicted drug dealers for their personal assets, Ficano said.

"We realize we're here to serve and want to continue to do that," he said.

Ficano, 43, is a Livonia resident and is in his third term as sheriff.

Academy

administrative officer who reports to the board of directors. Plans are to have teachers from Wayne County school districts serve at the academy for 2-3 year stints, Flanagan said.

The board of directors will also be supported by a Founders Council, which includes designees of Ford, the museum and village and Wayne RESA. At first, the council will provide support in fundraising and recommendations for board members.

The academy will be located on the grounds of Henry Ford Museum and Greenfield Village. It will also use resources of industry, higher education and local community organizations. Students will learn in places such as Thomas Edison's laboratory and Ford Motor Co. facilities.

Curriculum will stress mathematics, science, humanities and problem solving in a manufacturing context. Students will be prepared for university admission, skilled trade apprenticeships and jobs.

The curriculum will be organized in themes that represent major elements of design and product development.

Students will take standardized tests, and be exposed to workplace assessment techniques such as self-ratings, peer-team critiques and project-performance evaluations.

Rule changes, bids discussed by commissioners

Wayne County Commissioners made some changes in the rules for removing appointees to the county's Building Authority Commission Thursday.

The language was changed to give only the county executive the power to remove an appointee from the board. Commission counsel Ben Washburn said the previous rules had "too low a threshold for removal." The Thursday action will make the Building Authority Commission more independent, he said.

One commissioner questioned why, after the commission had made the changes in the bylaws, it was now making changes to the changes.

The changes were approved with three commissioners abstaining including local commissioners Thaddeus McCotter, R-Livonia, and Bruce Patterson, R-Canton Township.

Sound of noise

Homes in the flight path at Metro Airport that are sold to the county would be resold, but the buyers will have to move them to live in them under a federal airport noise program.

A first reading of an amendment to the county's purchasing ordinance was approved Thursday by the county commission concerning the buying and selling of the homes.

The amendment allows the director of airports to sell homes bought under the Wayne County Noise Program and resell them by auction for removal from the property.

Commissioners were concerned that the resales would result in people buying the homes, moving in and then changing their minds once they heard the noise at the airport.

Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, said she has heard indications that people would be able to buy the homes that had been bought by the county, but wanted it made clear the homes would have to be removed.

COUNTY NEWS

"Those homes can no longer be used on those sites," she said.

One commissioner said people who want to buy a home at a discount and are willing to tolerate the noise should have that option. But, commissioner Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, said the program is governed by federal guidelines and people can't buy the homes and live on the same site.

Car concession

A concession agreement between Wayne County and Avis Rent-A-Car System in a minimum amount of $5.2 million for rental car service at the airport was approved Thursday.

In a non-exclusive contract, Avis will pay the county the higher of the minimum fee or 9.5 percent of the gross revenue.

Several other rental car companies operate at the airport, including Hertz, Dollar, Budget and Alamo, commissioners pointed out.

On the landscape

Approving contracts for landscaping to two firms from outside of Wayne County upset several commissioners during Thursday's meeting.

Four contracts were approved, but approving two to outside firms had commissioners asking for research into the situation.

Commissioners want the auditor general to research the policies of neighboring counties and whether they are excluding Wayne County businesses from their bidding process.

"I think we're extremely liberal," commission Chairman Ricardo Solomon said, adding he thinks Wayne County should use county firms whenever possible.

CAPITOL CAPSULES

Capitol capsules:

School elections would be held in November rather than June under a controversial set of bills passed by state Senate Republicans.

"Voter involvement, interest and participation in school board elections will increase significantly," said Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton, sponsor of one of the three bills.

In 1999, one bill would move partisan elections for the State Board of Education from even-numbered years (when the president and governor are elected) to odd-numbered years.

Sen. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham, won approval of an amendment to allow local school boards to shift their elections to the same time as the State Board of Education elections. University board elections are unaffected.

School boards would be limited to scheduling property tax and bond issue ballot proposals to three dates per year _ the Tuesday after the first Monday in April, August and November.

The bills won by narrow majorities. Bennett's Senate Bill 775 won 22-15, supported by 21 Republicans and one Democrat. The 15 no votes were cast by Democrats. Area senators all voted with their parties.

The bills face probable death in the House Local Government Committee, where chair Bob Brackenridge, R-St. Joseph, is working with an ad hoc committee on a similar approach that will take most of the year.

Bigger car loans

The House passed and sent to Gov. Engler a bill to remove the $15,000 ceiling on new car loans from the Regulatory Loan Act of 1963. There will be no limit once the new law takes effect.

Sponsor is Sen. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham, chair of the Senate Financial Services Committee. The Senate passed his bill March 20.

"Most loans exceed that," said Rep. Gary Randall, R-Elwell, who guided the bill through House passage April 17. "This deletes the limit that precludes young people from getting loans."

No one spoke against Senate Bill 441 as it passed the House on a 79-27 vote. Among those voting no were Democrats Maxine Berman of Southfield and David Gubow of Huntington Woods and Republican James Ryan of Redford.

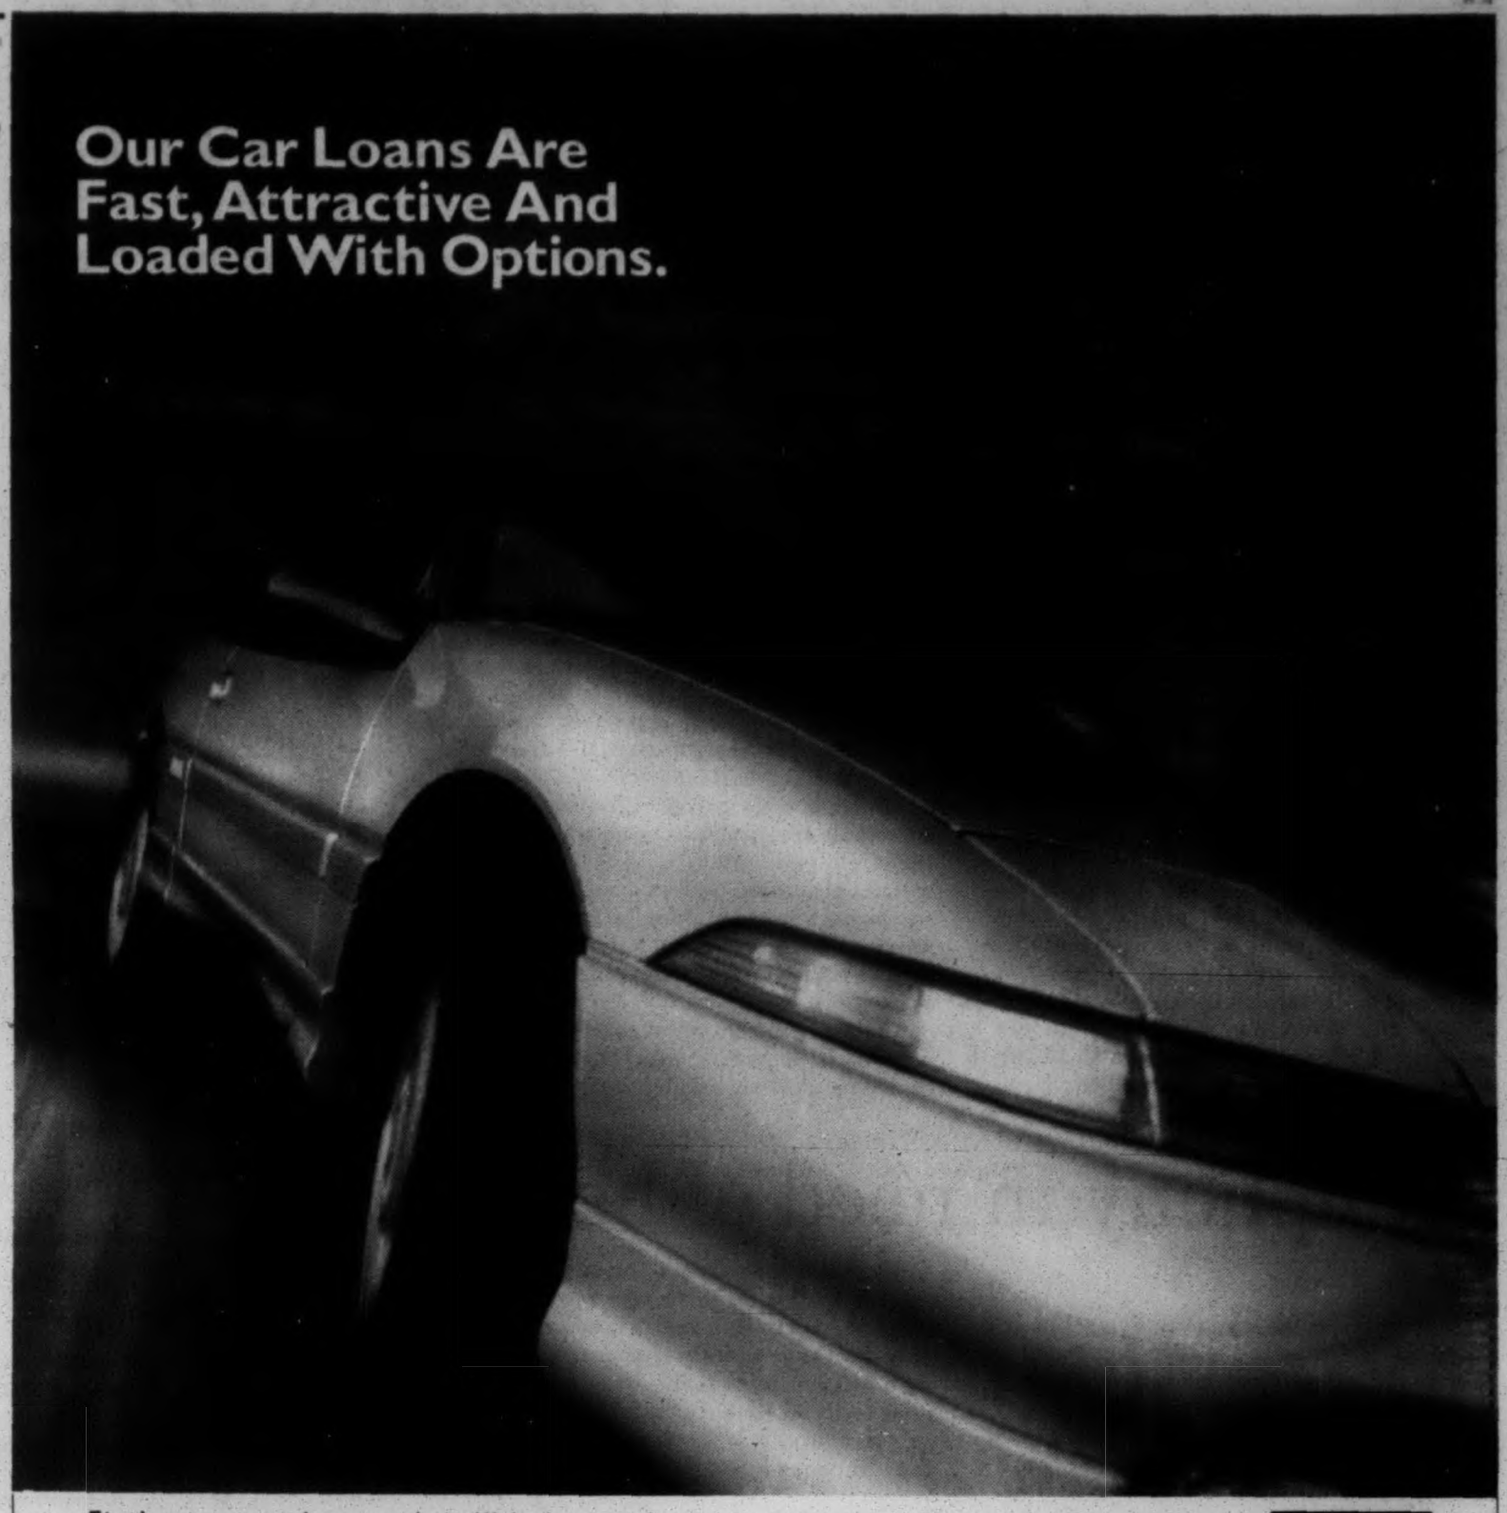

Absent were Republicans Jan Dolan of Farmington Hills and Shirley Johnson of Royal Oak.

End to campus PC

"The first amendment (freedom of speech) is under attack on college campuses by totalitarians who advocate political correctness."

So saying, Rep. Greg Kaza, R-Rochester Hills, introduced a bill to prevent universities from enforcing a rule or policy that subjects a student to disciplinary action solely on the basis of free speech protected by the U.S. Constitution. It also would give a student at a public university the power to sue the university in circuit court for violation of the act.

Kaza, a conservative policy wonk and civil libertarian, said campuses "are supposed to be an open marketplace of ideas." His bill applies to colleges, unlike a 1993 bill by then-Rep. Lyn Jondahl to protect freedom of expression in K-12 schools.

Women are the stronger sex. Right?

You shouldn't take it for granted. Especially in the 90's.

Today's culture is taking its toll. You are more at risk for heart problems than ever before. Last year, over one-half million women suffered heart attacks. And each year, 245,000 die of coronary heart disease. Things are cumulative. Add stress to a poor diet and less relaxation—it all adds up to risk.

Are you accumulating risk factors?

Body Fat Distribution: Are you "pear" or "apple" shaped? Women who carry their extra weight around the waist, rather than hips, may have a higher risk of heart disease.

Stress: Do you feel like your life is out of control? Some common ways of coping with stress, such as overeating and heavy drinking, are bad for your heart.

Age: The older you get, the higher your risk of heart attack. Especially past age 65.

Smoking: Have you stopped? A smoker's risk of heart attack is twice that of a non-smoker.

Oakwood Healthcare System can help you learn more. Call us at 1-800-543-WELL for a complimentary Heart Risk Appraisal. Return it and we'll send you your personal heart risk evaluation and recommendations for a healthier lifestyle.

Pet law
Don't unleash new measure

There's an old saying: If it's not broken, don't fix it.

The Plymouth City Commission should take that advice when it comes to a proposed ordinance to require owners of cats and dogs to license their animals and keep them on leashes.

State law already requires owners to license and leash pets. The city is trying to codify its ordinances to make it easier for city authorities to prosecute violators.

However, we agree with Plymouth City Commission member Doug Miller, who questioned the need for such ordinances, saying: "I know we have some marauding dogs by the railroad tracks, but has there been a particular problem?"

There really haven't been any serious ones that would be remedied by a local ordinance.

Also, there is a serious concern about the ordinance. It would give a pet owner whose dog or cat has been running loose five days to respond or the animal could be destroyed.

That's too harsh a penalty for a pet owner and the animal.

The ordinance was initially considered by city commissioners one year ago, when one resident complained that cats were making a mess in her yard.

That's hardly a serious problem. Also, it's not wide spread enough to require an ordinance.

Cats and dogs are our fellow creatures on this earth. It's our job to protect and care for them.

That means pet owners should be made responsible for their animals. But it also means that others should have tolerance for the activities of our four-legged friends.

There are enough ordinances to deal with pet ownership in Plymouth. More would just be trying to fix something that's not broken.

Symphony in need of help

For 50 years, the Plymouth Symphony has brought fine music to the Plymouth community. Now, it's time to recognize the contributions made by that group.

This Friday the symphony will celebrate its 50th anniversary with a special evening at Fox Hills Country Club. At that event, Plymouth residents Kenneth and Esther Hulsing will be honored by the symphony for their lifelong contributions to the arts, education and community service.

The event, called a "Night in Casablanca," will feature Big Band music and a 1940s nightclub motif. Tickets are $100 per person and can be purchased by calling the Plymouth Symphony office at 459-2112.

The celebration comes during an era when general funding for the arts is getting to be a tough business. But there's good news. The Chrysler Corp. recently announced it's awarding a $45,000 grant to the symphony. The money will be used to evaluate current operating procedures and for planning for the future. The symphony operates on a $125,000 annual budget.

The symphony is in a fund-raising drive, called Endowment 2000, which is a campaign to raise $250,000 by the year 2000 to endow the symphony.

It's time for the greater Plymouth community to get behind the symphony. Attending the celebration on Friday is a good place to start.

School-to-work is sound tool

In 1994 President Clinton signed the School-to-Work Opportunities-Act, authorizing $300 million in new federal spending on educational programs.

Most of the money is in the form of block grants to states for programs that would provide a transition from school to real-life work situations.

The act is the outgrowth of the school-to-work movement in education. For many years the American educational system has been criticized for not preparing students for the swiftly changing and technologically challenging work environment and the demands of global competition.

Studies have found that the biggest problem in education is not in the college prep programs but in the programs for those who do not or can not continue their education beyond the secondary level.

Recently conservative groups have attacked school-to-work as an attempt to turn out human robots for the industrial system. This follows similar attacks on outcomes-based education programs of which school-to-work is an outgrowth.

But critics of school-to-work and outcomes-based education also include many parents who have experience dealing with student tracking programs and what they perceive as an elitist educational system that does not take them into consideration when developing programs for their children.

They are concerned about whether these programs will continue to provide students with a solid academic program whether they opt for college or not.

The Plymouth-Canton School District together with the Plymouth and Canton chambers of commerce received one of four implementation grants from the Wayne County School-to-Work Partnership.

The district will use the money to establish a local advisory council and for a pilot program in the areas of entrepreneurship and marketing.

The education community should take time to explain and promote the program so that parents and other taxpayers funding our schools understand the concept.

At all stages parents should have input. They should be fully informed and be invited to participate in the decision-making process.

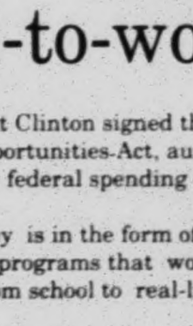

Students at the high school level also should be involved in decisions that could affect their academic and working life.

School-to-work is a sound educational tool, allowing for innovation on the state and local level. But it will prove unsuccessful if it isn't openly and fairly pursued.

Slogans offend Irish

With the 150th anniversary of The Great Hunger, which resulted in an influx of Irish immigrants to this country, we are also reminded of the discrimination and rejection suffered by these children of Erin, upon their arrival and for many years afterward. It was due to this that organizations such as the Ancient Order of Hibernians became active in defending and protecting the Irish heritage and spirit.

Through these efforts, plus their strong work ethnic and good humor, the Irish overcame great obstacles to become beloved and respected citizens contributing greatly to American society. Never ones to hold a grudge for past misdeeds, the fraternal organizations, including the AOH, channeled their energies to charitable works helping the less-fortunate from all walks of life, secure in the knowledge that the bigotry and stereotyping suffered for so long by the Irish was now past.

But it has surfaced again. Of all places in a store in a mall in Livonia. We have, several time over the last few weeks explained politely and patiently to the proprietor that items emblazoned with "Drink till you're Irish" and "Instant Irishman – just add alcohol" are offensive and inappropriate and we requested that he remove them from display.

We, of course, will not go in the store and would hope that the people of Livonia, out of respect for their own heritage or that of their Irish friends, show disapproval of this insensitivity by not patronizing T-shirts Plus at Wonderland Mall.

Tell the whole story

In a recent editorial, The Observer heaped praise upon Wayne County Prosecutor John D. O'Hair for not taking Jack Kevorkian to trial over an assisted suicide in Redford Township.

The Observer wrote of Mr. O'Hair's experience and how he would not do anything to put justice in a bad light. The Observer also lauds Mr. O'Hair for being above the "political arena."

This reader agrees that Mr. O'Hair is an able prosecutor, with a great deal of experience. This reader, as well as others, would agree that in many areas of trying cases Mr. O'Hair is very successful.

But the Observer had done a great disservice to readers by not mentioning in its editorial that Mr. O'Hair sat for 18 months on the Michigan Legislature's Death and Dying Commission in the early 1990s.

By no means is this reader proposing that Mr. O'Hair does not have the right to his opinion.

But the Observer does have the journalistic duty to tell readers of Mr. O'Hair's prior extensive involvement on the issue of assisted suicide. How much more so should this journalistic duty be when publishing a gushing editorial of Mr. O'Hair's "fairness" in not prosecuting someone who breaks the anti-assisted suicide law. A law that Mr. O'Hair tried to rescind in 1994.

Wake up, America

This letter is meant to raise people's consciousness and consciences about abortion.

There is no humane way to kill an unborn baby (kill it with salt? chop it up and suck it out piece by piece?). The partial-birth procedure requires a physician to extract a fetus feet-first from the womb and through the birth canal until all but its head is exposed. Then the tips of surgical scissors are thrust into the base of the fetus' skull and a suction catheter is inserted through the opening and the brain is removed.

In a tape-recorded interview with American Medical News, Dr. Martin Haskell _ who has performed over 1,000 partial-birth abortions _ said that in his practice, 80 percent of these procedures are "purely elective." He estimates two-thirds of the fetuses are alive at the time he begins their "extraction from the uterus" (usually used 4 1/2 months into pregnancy).

Wake up, Americans _ don't be fooled by President Clinton's soft rhetoric on the issue of abortion! Please write or call him to show your support of the bill, urging him to approve it.

POINTS OF VIEW

Positive campaigns crucial to our politics

BY LYNN RIVERS
GUEST COLUMNIST

■ GUEST COLUMN

Last year, when I arrived in Washington, the first piece of advice that I received as a legislator was, "When it comes to campaigning, go negative. Go negative and go negative first. That's what people respond to."

I was told this even though I had just finished campaigning – and I knew that my Republican freshmen counterparts were being told the exact same thing.

But is nasty campaigning really what American want?

Many political experts argue that going negative is the only way to win elections these days. "It's the sharp stick or stone, not the dull one, that cuts," observed campaign consultant Ron Faucheux in a recent editorial in Insight magazine.

But why are campaigns reduced to a contest of "sticks and stones" in the first place? The issues at stake in elections – not to mention the citizens of this country – deserve to be addressed with more than a barrage of name-calling.

And this name-calling is taking a toll on American politics. As the level of political discourse has sunk to an all-time low, Americans have grown increasingly cynical and disaffected with the political process. Letters to newspaper editors and listener call-ins to radio programs express rising public frustration and anger toward elected officials. Voters are staying home in record numbers.

While Faucheux claims that "When truthful and accurate, negative ads are what voters want and need," he ignores the fact that more and more negative campaigning has become distorted and sensationalistic. And when candidates feed the public a steady diet of negative images and misleading allegations for months on end before elections, many citizens wind up feeling either too disgusted to vote – or suspicious and critical of whoever finally winds up in office. Such campaigns set a lousy tone for the country after the elections as well as before.

Ultimately, negative campaigning undermines the entire democratic process. The proliferation of nasty campaign tactics makes it increasingly difficult for well-meaning and accomplished candidates to run on their own ideas – and this directly affects voters. In their new book, "Going Negative: How Attack Ads Shrink and Polarize the Electorate," researchers Stephen Ansolabehere and Shanto Iyengar found the negative campaigning "drives people away from the polls in large numbers" – particularly nonpartisan voters. This means that, while the number of people who call themselves "independents" in opinion polls has increased steadily in recent years, this segment of the population is represented less and less. The government is elected more and more by fewer and fewer people – who are increasingly allied strongly with one party or another.

This, in turn, impacts Congress, creating a wider chasm between the two parties. The authors of "Going Negative" note, "As their bases of support become more partisan (or at least less independent and centrist), members of Congress will work harder to represent those partisan interests." Which, in turn, makes it harder for elected officials like myself – moderate Republicans or Democrats, who vote for legislation based on how good it is, not who sponsors it – to pass solid, sensible, bipartisan bills.

Yet the authors' research also found that positive campaigns can elevate the level of political dialogue and draw people back into the election process who were once alienated from it.

Spirited campaigns that tout candidates' visions, skills and accomplishments can capture the public's imagination and inspire people to vote – especially independents.

This restoration is crucial to maintaining our democracy. Without raising our campaign standards – and with it, the public's trust – candidates will continue to "win ugly." And not only will elections grow uglier and uglier, but in the end, all of us will lose.

U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, a Democrat from Ann Arbor, represents the 13th District which includes Plymouth, Plymouth Township, Canton Township, Westland, Garden City and part of Livonia.

Appeals court deals 2 setbacks to trial lawyers

The trial lawyers took two on the chin April 12 in the Michigan Court of Appeals. Many would call the trial lawyers – those who sue perceived deep pockets for lottery-sized awards – "sharks." That opinion is harsh, in my view, but this story will gladden the hearts of shark-haters.

Robert Heinz had a slip-and-fall injury in 1988 as he was leaving his employer's building in Troy. Under workers' compensation, he collected $20,000 for medical expenses and $38,000 for lost wages. He also accepted $80,000 to "redeem" future workers' comp claims.

Heinz then sued Chicago Road Investment Co., owner of the building in Troy, for negligence in Oakland Circuit Court. A jury awarded him $198,000 – minus 50 percent for his comparative negligence; also minus his workers' comp benefits. Judge Hilda Gage said he could take home $70,000.

Attorney Matthew Turner of Southfield appealed on behalf of Heinz for the full award. Attorney John Jacobs of Lathrup Village appealed on behalf of Chicago Road Investment Co., saying the award should have been introduced by an additional $80,000.

Heinz lost his appeal, and the building owner won its appeal. Heinz is to get $9,800 for medical expenses and wages uncovered by workers' comp.

The appellate panel included Roman S. Gribbs, whom many remember as a Wayne County sheriff and mayor of Detroit in the 1960s; John J. McDonald, an Oakland Circuit judge sitting on the appeals panel by assignment; and Janet Neff, an appellate judge. They ruled:

• Under common law, an injured person could recover twice – from workers' comp and the wrongdoer. But a 1986 law – part of Michigan's effort at "tort reform" – blocked collecting from a "collateral source." In other words, the plaintiff can't collect from two sources for the same injury.

"The reduction of the award . . . merely recognized that plaintiffs were already compensated, in part, for these damages," said the appeals panel.

Attorney Turner argued the statute was vague and ambiguous; that Heinz had a property right in the redemption award that was being unconstitutionally taken away; that the statute created an unjustifiable class distinction . . . and so on. On a 3-0 vote, the appeals judges found his arguments "lacking in persuasion."

• The appeals court agreed with the building owners and said Judge Gage should have deducted the $80,000 redemption award from the jury verdict. The case gets awfully complicated here because the jury distinguished between lost wages ($128,000), medical expenses ($20,000), general damages (40,000) and loss of consortium ($10,000) whereas the redemption award contained no breakdown.

The appeals court ruled 2-1 that Gage should deduct the $80,000 redemption because "This result is consistent with the statutory language and better serves the statutory purpose of preventing 'double recovery' . . . As a result of the error by the trial court (Gage), the plaintiffs have been paid twice for one set of injuries."

Turner said "absolutely" he'll ask for re-hearing and, if necessary, go to the Supreme Court. His arguments are technical, and this newsman will decline to comment.

The point is that advocates of tort reform won two big arguments in one case, and the trial lawyers lost. That should improve "Michigan's business climate," cut the cost of doing business and reduce liability insurance premiums. We shall see.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of regional events.

Unemployment insurance cries out for dramatic change

Item: Looking forward to this summer's contract negotiations with the auto industry, the UAW is in the process of putting together its demands. In light of widespread anxiety about downsizing now under way at the Big Three, its key demands will revolve around job security.

Item: Pat Buchanan didn't run better in the March 19 Michigan Republican presidential primary than anyone expected merely because he talked about our late spring. He talked about high wage American jobs being exported abroad. And lots of people listened.

Item: A scholarly article in last week's New Yorker magazine by John Cassidy concluded: "For the past three decades, the intensification of global capitalism has been undermining the living standards and the prospects of the unskilled. That process is continuing, and although the rigors of competition are now striking some of those who were previously protected, the costs of economic progress are still being borne primarily by the poor and ill-educated."

Now, some economic history.

The unemployment compensation system that is our main safety net against job loss was developed in the 1930s. The economic assumptions underlying the system are illuminating, if only because they are so out of touch with the reality of today's economy.

The idea was that business cycles would sweep periodically through the economy. When the cycle turned down, businesses would lay off workers to save costs due to falling demand. When the cycle turned up, laid-off workers would be re-hired by the same firm.

Workers would, in effect, bob up and down, going in and out of work with the waves of the business cycle. To protect family incomes (and to maintain aggregate demand to avoid a depression), the unemployment insurance system was developed. When people lost their jobs, they could file for unemployment compensation; UI checks would help sustain their families until they got their old jobs back.

Nobody who has been laid off recently, however, has much hope of getting back his or her old job. Unemployment compensation checks, while vital in keeping a family alive as workers look for new jobs, do nothing to provide unemployed folks with the new skills they need in order to get a good new job.

Plainly, the old UI system needs a refit.

For that reason, some of us proposed a couple of years ago converting part of the unemployment compensation system into the re-employment training system, through which workers who are laid off would receive vouchers entitling them to training to qualify for new jobs. They wouldn't lose their entire UI check, of course, but some resources allocated entirely into family sustenance would be diverted into re-training.

The point here is that economic statistics show that while most workers who are laid off eventually find work, their new jobs often pay far less than the old ones. Skills training is the big factor in helping people find new jobs which are also good new jobs.

Vouchers would be spent by workers themselves, not some distant bureaucrat. Because there would be a limit to the amount of training vouchers people could earn, there would be an incentive for people to spend the voucher wisely, not on some fly-by-night truck driving or cosmetology school.

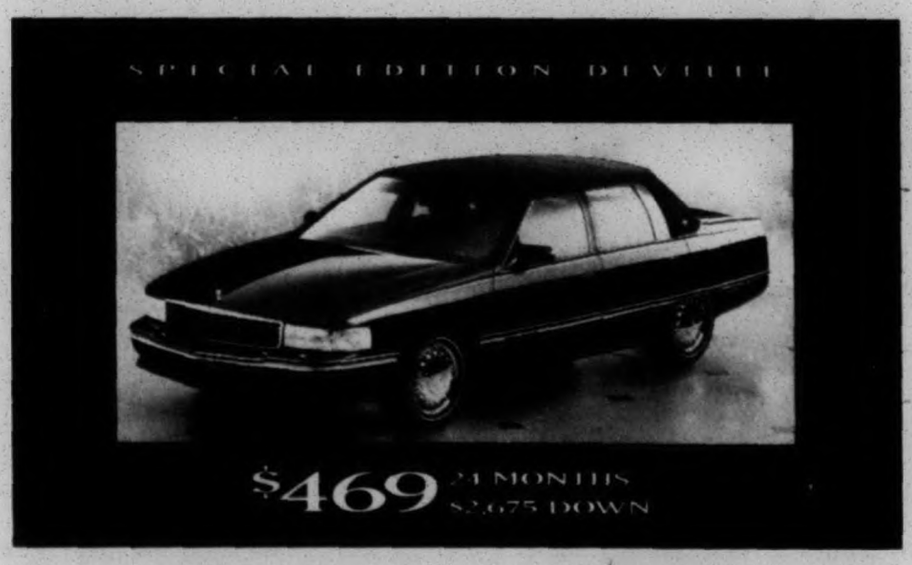

It doesn't take much imagination to see that such a system could evolve into something like Social Security, in which individual workers get numbered individual training accounts, into which both employer and employee pay a portion of gross wages. These accounts would be tax-protected while building up and could be drawn on either when workers are laid off or want a career change.

Now the punch lines: Elections are coming, folks. The big debate in the races for U.S. Senate and House are the workings and worth of government. The right argues, in effect, that any money going to government will be wasted; the traditional left urges ponderous and intrusive traditional programs. The notion of a re-employment training system offers an interesting third way, neither left nor right.

How about it, candidates?

Madonna establishes new scholarship fund

Music majors at Madonna University will benefit from the Livonia Symphony Orchestra's Celebration Breakfast in February which honored the founding of the LSO and members who made contributions.

Madonna University is receiving half of the money raised and has established the Livonia Symphony Scholarship Endowment. The annual scholarship generated from the interest is to be awarded to a music student with preference given to a student performing in the Livonia Symphony Orchestra.

A grant of $19,000 was presented to the university; $15,000 was applied to the scholarship fund and the remainder is going to the general needs of the music department.

Unions raise concerns about automation

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN

A contract for $1.8 million for a new computer system and its maintenance was approved Thursday by the Wayne County Commission, but not without the unions involved raising concerns.

The contract, with National Tech Team Inc. of Dearborn, is for two years and involves buying the computers, as well as their maintenance and support.

Local commissioners Michelle Plawecki, D-Dearborn Heights, Bruce Patterson, R-Canton Township, and Thaddeus McCotter, R- Livonia, voted in favor, while Vice Chair Kay Beard, D-Westland, voted against.

The commission got assurances from the county's personnel director that no county employees would be displaced with the new equipment, but union officials spoke out saying they haven't been assured of that.

Barbara Godre, director of the Department of Personnel and Human Resources, said that current information processing department employees working with the implementation of the contract won't be displaced.

"There would not be a need to displace employees," she said, in fact another person has been hired in anticipation of the contract, she said.

But, Denice Gleton, president of Wayne County employees local 1659 AFSCME, said the union's concerns haven't been addressed.

The language says those in direct association with the contract will not be displaced, Gleton said. She criticized hiring the National Tech Team when a strategic plan for the county is not yet in place. The strategic plan is being worked on in committee, commissioners said.

National Tech Team employees will maintain equipment, not county employees, Gleton said, adding county employees are being "locked out" of being able to provide those services.

Gleton said if the union gets the training it wants, the local will support the project wholeheartedly.

Beard expressed concern that the new system would require training and possibly tuition fees for the training.

KAREN MEIER

A terrible 2, wonderful 12

Two days ago one of my sons had a birthday and two days from now another son will have his. And earlier this month, on the first, as a matter of fact, Dad had his birthday and the day after that my husband had his. And my Dad's brother and my Dad's Dad also were born in April.

What does all this mean? It means simply this, the streamers and balloons I looped and draped and taped on the ceiling over the table in the kitchen weeks ago are still there. If I should put fresh decorations up for each birthday, why I'd be broke, not to mention hyperventilated.

Anyway, in this month of birthdays, I find myself reflecting on the passage of years and on children growing up and on where we've all been and how far we've come and where we're heading.

Jack, whose birthday was on Tuesday, is my representative of "where we've all been." He turned two. And we've all been there. Some to a greater degree than others, if you know what I mean. Jack, it seems has been busy living up to the bad press two-year-olds traditionally receive as in "the terrible two's."

Now don't get me wrong. I love this little child of mine to the ends of the earth and beyond. And, believe me, I've been there – to the ends of the earth and beyond and to the ends of my wits – Jack has seen that. Even so, he has a way of melting my heart, even in mid-scolding.

Many of my Jack problems would probably go

Day of Puppetry is 'Pot O' Gold' for enthusiasts

■ "Punch and Judy" will be there, so will "The Thunderbird." The productions will be part of the Detroit Puppeteers Guild's annual Day of Puppetry, "Puppet Pot O' Gold," Saturday in Livonia.

Michael Deller momentarily forgot about his childhood experiences with puppets.

In preparation for a puppet show at the Livonia Civic Center Library, Deller worked hard to keep the illusion of the show.

At the end of the show, he snuck out from behind the stage and reemerged at a side entrance to greet the children participating in a puppet workshop. It was too convincing for one student, explained Deller, the city librarian.

"One little boy, probably in kindergarten or first grade, didn't put a lot of effort in his puppet, so he thought he was finished (with his work after the show was over)," Deller said. "Then he went up to the stage and said, 'Mr. Dragon, can you come out and play?'

"Until that moment, I had forgotten my own experiences as a child. What you see up on the stage is real, if you're a child."

It probably slipped Deller's mind because he's been on the other side of the curtain for more than 30 years, as a puppeteer and as the former president of The Detroit Puppeteers Guild.

The guild is celebrating its 50th anniversary by hosting its Day of Puppetry, called "Puppet Pot O' Gold" 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, April 27, at the Livonia Civic Center Library, 32777 Five Mile Road, Livonia.

Registrants may choose from a variety of workshops on puppet construction, manipulation, and production techniques as well as attend performances of "Punch and Judy" by Eugene Clark of Hamtramck and "The Firebird" by The American Russian Puppet Theater.

The registration fee for "Puppet Pot O'Gold" is $30, which includes a six-month membership to The Detroit Puppeteers Guild, or $25 for guild members and for teenagers aged 18 and younger. The fee includes one ticket for each performance; additional tickets can be purchased for $3. The registration fee does not include material fees, which range from 50 cents to $15.

The Detroit Puppeteers Guild, founded in 1946 and chartered by the Puppeteers of America, Inc., a national, non-profit organization, is away if only we had an outhouse. Indoor plumbing, I've decided, is the downfall.

When I'm busy nursing baby Steven, I'm pretty much stuck sitting in a chair. And this is a fact that isn't lost on Jack.

There's Mama all tied up for the next few minute and so here I go, off to the bathroom, a room full of wondrous sights and sounds. That toilet paper all neatly wound around the cardboard tube is just so much fun to unravel. And that handy and accessible bowl of water is so perfect for flotation experiments. I wonder is this sock floats. How about this toothbrush. I think I'll try this great heap of unraveled toilet paper.

"Jack," I sing out from my chair in the family room, "you're too quiet. What are you doing?" At that point, I normally turn to four-year-old Joe and send him on a reconnaissance mission. The news he brings me is always bad. Good grief.

And so I hope against hope that this day is only the terrible two's and will be outgrown and doesn't amount to a hill of beans, or toilet paper in this case.

During Jack's toilet capers and other (yes, there are other, lots of other) behavior blunders, I call to mind my other April birthday child. This gives me hope. This is the child who is representative of the "how far we've come" department.

Tony will be 12 on Saturday. And after his birthday is over, the streamers and balloons in the kitchen finally come down. The birthday season will have come to an end.

Anyway, Tony, being my oldest, is the trailblazer for his four younger siblings. And I couldn't ask for a better trailblazer. He's wonderful. He sets a fine example for them all.

Not long ago, as a matter of fact, it was in February, the day baby Steven came home from the hospital, Tony set yet another fine example. My husband and the other children, including Tony, had lunch in the hospital cafeteria, while Steven and I went through the regular hospital release procedures up on the maternity floor. After Tony was through eating, he took his tray to the dirty tray conveyor belt. When he turned around, Tony saw a wadded up $20 bill lying on the floor. He picked it up and immediately, without a moment's hesitation and without asking advice from his Dad or anyone else, sought out a cafeteria employee.

He gave the money to the employee, a woman wearing an apron, and told her he had just found it and it wasn't his and someone was probably going to miss it very soon. The woman was astounded by this forthright and honest as the day is long almost 12-year-old boy and told him so, to his face, and then she asked where his Dad was. Tony pointed him out in the busy cafeteria, the man with all the little kids, and she walked over to their table and told them what had happened.

The woman with the apron was impressed with Tony. We all were.

So, you see, from toilet tricks of a two-year-old to the $20 test of character of a 12-year-old, I see the "where we've been" and "how far we've come" and from that I've got a good feeling about the "where we're headed."

Happy birthday, boys! I love you all.

Scouts win '96 Best awards

A Junior Girl Scout troop from Plymouth and the Girl Scouts in the Canton Service Unity are on the receiving ends of awards, sponsored by the Great Lakes Bankcorp for the Huron Valley Girl Scout Council.

Junior Girl Scout Troop 1203 and the Canton scouts were awarded first-place honors in the 1996 Be Your Best Community Service Awards and received $100 prizes during a March 13 awards presentation commemorating Girl Scout Week.

The Junior Girl Scout Troop, under the leadership of Carol Grimmer, bought underwear and socks for children and donated them to the Plymouth-Canton Clothing Bank.

The Canton Cluster Girl Scouts, under the direction of Troop Services Director Carolyn Sarsfield, cleaned up Gallimore Woods and set up nature trails, so that the area around the school can be used as an outdoor classroom.

Good work: Members of Junior Troop 1203 and their leader, Carol Grimmon, have plenty to smile about after receiving a Be Your Best Community Award.

national, non-profit organization, is made up of members who share their love of puppetry and their experiences. The group holds bimonthly meetings September through May and offers a variety of performances, lectures, workshops, and social events. The "Day of Puppetry" is held annually.

"The concept of the day of puppetry that the guild has used over the years is that there will always be something for somebody who's just getting started, and there will always be something for somebody who's been doing it, but would like to learn a little more," said Deller, a Livonia resident.

"It was designed, recognizing that puppetry is a profession for some people. It's how they earn their keep. For others, it's a part of what we do."

Dorothy Brown, also of Livonia, decided when she returned to teaching in 1958, that she wanted to use puppets in her profession. Brown, 82, didn't get into it until the late 1960s when she found a use for it in teaching phonics.

She joined The Detroit Puppeteers Guild about 20 years later, and learned how to use many kinds of puppets in a variety of situations.

"I used them in teaching when I went back into parochial schools. I used it in teaching religion. I used it in language arts, and our final event of the year from 1980 on was a puppet show put on by the first graders. Sometimes they used bag puppets, sometimes they were shadow puppets, or hand puppets," said Brown who retired as a teacher 10 years ago after being employed at the now-closed Faith Lutheran School, and St. Paul's Lutheran School in Livonia.

She still incorporates puppetry when she returns to schools for special appearances.

According to Deller, that there's many different uses for puppetry.

"In libraries, it's a way of drawing children to literature and stories," he said. "We've had members in the guild who were physical therapists. They use puppets as a way of getting people to use their hands, their arms or their upper bodies."

In hospitals, doctors and nurses sometimes use puppets to explain surgical procedures to children.

Lest Deller forget, puppeteering also provides "some wonderful performances."

"We can't forget that."

For more information, call Deller at (313) 421-8306 or the club's president Rick Morse at (810) 230-0105.

Fair Lane estate is focus of benefit

The finishing touches are being applied to the annual Henry Ford Estate Dinner Dance, slated for Saturday, May 4, at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in Dearborn.

Begun in 1989, a cadre of volunteers organizes the annual dinner dance to help restore the Fair Lane Estate. Since its inception the benefit has raised for $700,000 for the national historic landmark, financing the purchase of oriental carpets for the upstairs, restoration of the greenhouse and meadow and initial steps in the garage preservation.

It also has provided matching funds to obtain public money like the Michigan Equity grant that is helping pay for steamline repair.

"It's amazing that will all the Fords' contributions, they left nothing for an endowment (to preserve Fair Lane)," said Donn Werling, estate director. "The dinner-dance funds have been directly responsible for a large part of the restoration of the estate.

"We, as well as future generations, owe a great deal to the many volunteers and patrons who have served on the committee to organize the event and financially supported it over the years."

The co-chairs for this year's benefit are Bob and Ann Knoop and Jack and Claudette Rourke. Serving on the committee is Betty Jean Awrey of Plymouth.

"The fact that the Henry Ford Estate is a jewel, a National Historic Landmark, has drawn volunteers and committee members from throughout the metro Detroit area," said Claudette Rourke.

"The estate is an important historical treasure," added her co-chair Ann Knoop. "Recent interest from national media – Preservation Magazine, The Arts and Entertainment Network and Architectural Digest – reflect this. The couple that lived here virtually helped change our world."

The dinner dance will start with a reception at 7 p.m., followed by dinner at 8 p.m.. Guest admission begins at $200 per person. For more information, call Beth Stone at (313) 593-5639.

The estate is located on the campus of the University of Michigan-Dearborn. The family home of the Fords for 35 years, the buildings were used for various purposes after Clara Ford's death in 1950. It was designated as a National Historic Landmark in 1966.

Today it is a house museum, with guided tours of the residence and power house available at 10 and 11 a.m., 1, 2 and 3 p.m. Monday through Friday and 1-4:30 p.m. Sunday. Cost is tours $7 for adults and $6 for senior citizens and students. For information, call (313) 593-5590.

St. Mary's to conduct free anxiety screenings

St. Mary Hospital in Livonia will be one of 39 sites in the state to offer free screenings for anxiety disorders on National Anxiety Disorders Screening Day Wednesday, May 1.

The confidential screenings are to help build awareness and educate the public about anxiety disorders, their symptoms an effective treatments available.

At the screening, individuals will see a video, complete a screening questionnaire, receive information about various anxiety disorders and meet with a mental health professional in a confidential setting, according to Bill Foreman, Mental Health Association in Michigan spokesman.

According to recent studies, anxiety disorders cost the U.S. $46.6 billion in 1990, nearly one-third of the nation's total mental health bill or $147 billion. However, most of these dollars were not spent on effective treatment. Instead they were lost due to social and economic costs such as worker absenteeism, job loss and alcohol/substance abuse.

More individuals are affected by anxiety disorders than by any other group of mental disorders. Anxiety disorders include:

•Special Phobia – a persistent, intense and irrational fear associated with a particular object or situation that tends to avoidance of that object or situation. It is the most common anxiety disorder, affecting 14.2 million Americans.

•Social Phobia – a persistent fear of one or more situations in which the person is exposed to possible scrutiny by others and fears that he or she may do something or act in a way that will be humiliating.

•Generalized Anxiety Disorder – constant unrealistic worry about two or more everyday occurrences which impact an individual's ability to complete these daily activities. GAD is associated with physical anxiety symptoms, such as muscle aches, fatigue, difficulty sleeping, sweating, dizziness and nausea.

•Panic Disorder – repeated, unprovoked attacks of terror, accompanied by physical symptoms, including chest pain, heart palpitations, shortness of breath, dizziness, weakness and sweating. Panic disorder affects approximately three million people.

•Obsessive Compulsive Disorder – repeated, intrusive and unwanted thoughts (obsessions) that cause anxiety, often accompanied by ritualized behaviors (compulsions) that relieve anxiety. Common obsessions include fear of dirt, germs or contamination, or fear of harming someone. Common compulsions are excessive cleaning, counting, double-checking and hoarding. Suffers recognize their behavior is irrational but are unable to control it. Obsessive-Compulsive Disorder affects an estimated five million Americans.

"Many people don't realize that there are several kinds of anxiety disorders," said Jim Broatch, executive director of OCF. "In fact, obsessive-compulsive disorder is the second most undertreated anxiety disorder, with only 6 percent of the five million suffers receiving medical treatment."

•Post-traumatic Stress Disorder – caused when someone experiences a severely distressing or traumatic event. Individuals become so preoccupied with this experience that they are unable to lead a normal life.

Recurring nightmares and/or flashbacks, avoidance of people and items associated with the trauma, unprovoked anger, jumpiness, inability to concentrate and insomnia are common symptoms.

Most mental health experts treat anxiety disorders with a combination of medication and behavioral therapy. Treatment should be individualized for each patient.

For more information about the free screenings call St. Mary Hospital at (313) 464-4800.

PLANNING COMMISSION

TO AMEND TEXT: AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND PLYMOUTH CHARTER TOWNSHIP ORDINANCE NO. 83 BY AMENDING ARTICLE XIII, VP VEHICULAR PARKING DISTRICT, OF SAID ORDINANCE RELATED TO USES SUBJECT TO SPECIAL CONDITIONS.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Planning Commission of Plymouth Charter Township proposes on its own motion to amend Article XIII, VP Vehicular Parking District, Section 13.2, Uses Subject to Special Conditions which presently ends with item 1.

Section 13.2, Uses Subject to Special Conditions is hereby proposed to be amended by adding item 2., which reads as follows:

2. Storage lots for new passenger vehicles as accessory to passenger vehicle dealerships, subject to the following:

   (a) The storage lot shall be used solely for the parking of new, untagged passenger vehicles. Vehicles stored shall be limited to automobiles, vans, mini-vans, pick-up trucks and similar vehicles. Commercial vehicles, semi-tractors and trailers, and construction equipment shall not be permitted.

   (b) Permitted vehicles may be parked for periods of one (1) day or more.

   (c) No sales shall be conducted from the storage lot, nor shall customers be shown vehicles on the lot.

   (d) There shall be no vehicle cleaning, washing, repair, or servicing of any kind conducted on the storage lot. No loudspeakers shall be permitted on the site.

   (e) The parking layout for stored vehicles may be permitted to vary from the minimum dimensional requirements of Section 20.2.13., subject to the approval of the Township Fire Department and the Planning Commission.

   (f) No vehicles shall be mounted on ramps or stored above ground level.

   (g) The vehicle storage lot shall be completely screened from adjacent residential uses or districts, and shall be buffered from view from public right-of-way. A six (6) foot high solid masonry screening wall with interior planting strip, in accordance with Section 22.8.1., shall be provided. Such six foot wall shall be located along the rear and side lot lines.

   A four (4) foot brick or brick-formed masonry wall shall be provided parallel to the front lot line. No wall shall be located closer to the street than the front setback line applicable to the premises immediately adjacent along said street. The Planning Commission may approve variation in this wall location based upon surrounding conditions, however in no instance shall such wall setback be no less than ten (10) feet. Front lot line walls shall also be subject to an approved landscape plan.

Street trees shall also be provided as approved by the Planning Commission.

   (i) Lighting for the vehicle storage area shall not exceed 12 feet in height. All lighting shall be focused downward and shielded so as not to glare off-site or into the public right-of-way.

   (j) A plan for site security shall be submitted for review by the Planning Commission.

   (k) No off-site storage lot shall be used to satisfy off-street parking requirements for the principal use.

   (l) There shall be no loading or unloading of new vehicles at the storage lot. All vehicle deliveries shall be made to the principal site and vehicles transferred to the off-site storage lot. The vehicle travel/transfer route between the principal site and the storage lot shall not use residential streets, and shall be designated on the site plan for approval by the Planning Commission.

   (m) Signage shall be limited to one (1) name plate or address sign only, not to exceed two (2) square feet in area.

Writer wants to communicate with others

Dear Ms. Green,

I am the 40-year-old mother to a 13-year-old son. My son, whose interests vary daily from sports to musical to numerous school outings, keeps me busy playing chauffeur. I also have a 4-year-old English sheepdog who requires a lot of attention and exercise.

Twice a week, the two of us go to the Wellness Room, located at my office, and work out together. I have been employed as a civil service employee for the past 23 years. My secretarial duties have varied over the years and were challenging. However, at the moment, things have slowed down, enabling me to catch up on personal items, such as writing this letter to you for a personal handwriting analysis.

I cannot wait to read about what your analysis of my handwriting shows on other personal attributes that currently I am not aware of.

Thanks,

A.C.,
Livonia

This is the handwriting of an intelligent young woman. Her resourceful mind is often working ahead, finding new ideas and viable solutions to problems.

The legibility of her handwriting tells us she wants to communicate and also be understood by others. Her manner, however, is often direct and concise. This could be a problem for those on the receiving end. Sensitive persons might be offended when she states her opinions point blank. Misunderstanding could result at this point.

Good line spacing has its roots in a sense of order. She functions in an orderly manner and is capable of planning her life and her projects. She has limited patience with wasteful schedules or procedures that lack efficiency. Efficiency is her hallmark. Satisfaction comes from methodical accomplishment.

This young woman can deal with new concepts and step aside from conventional ideas. She wants new opportunities and the freedom to grow and follow her own star.

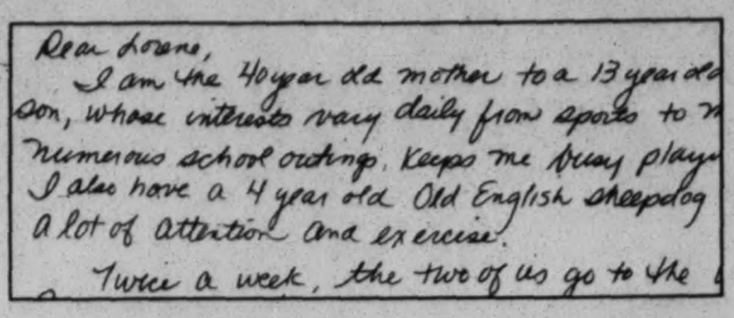

She does not lack motivation. A need for admiration and a desire to lead are part of her personality. And in some areas, it is important to her to have her own way.

There is a sense of independence about our writer. She does not want to be held back by past roots nor traditional norms. Seemingly, she has jettisoned some past emotional baggage. There may be a bit of rebel in her. She does not always find it easy to conform to authority figures and may resort to a little sarcasm when she feels threatened.

Seemingly, she also has a good mind for financial matters. She is able to determine where to spend or limit resources.

In interpersonal relationships, she usually begins cautiously, aware of her need to feel secure before relaxing and going ahead comfortably. After the initial caution is overcome or when she sees the friendship will work out, she then becomes more at ease and spontaneous. This may sound paradoxical, but she is not afraid to stand alone in matters of importance to her.

Ostensibly, she does not hamstring herself with too much outside involvement. She is not unhappy being alone to pursue her creativity. Cothing or household furnishings would be interesting and more plain than ornate. Fru-fru is not high on her priority list.

Dear Lorene,
I am the 40 year old mother to a 13 year old son, whose interests vary daily from sports to numerous school outings. Keeps me busy playing I also have a 4 year old Old English sheepdog a lot of attention and exercise.

If you would like your handwriting analyzed in this newspaper, write to Lorene C. Green, a certified graphologist, at 36251 Livonia 48150. Please write a few paragraphs about yourself, using a full sheet of white, unlined paper and writing in the first person singular. Age, handedness and signature are all helpful. Due to the volume of mail, personal replies are not possible. However, objective feedback is welcome.

Community Hospice recognizes volunteers

Volunteers play a special role in community service agencies, that 's why one week in April is set aside National Volunteer Week to recognize their efforts.

And with that in mind, Doreen Vivyan, director of volunteer services at Community Hospice Services, has selected National Volunteer Week (April 21-27) to honor the many volunteers that make hospice work.

"I would like to publicly recognize and celebrate the special role our hospice volunteers play in the delivery of quality care to the incurably ill and their families," she said. "Many of our volunteers work directly with patients and families while others assist in the office, bereavement, marketing, development and transportation.

"Our volunteers are an extremely diverse group of dedicated human beings that truly are "the heart of hospice.' "

People interested in joining the cadre of CHS volunteers can call Vivyan at (313) 522-4244. Community Hospice Services, which provides service in western Wayne, southern Oakland and eastern Washtenaw counties, has offices at 32932 Warren Road, Suite 100, Westland, and 127 S. Main St., Plymouth.

PLYMOUTH CHARTER TOWNSHIP
PLANNING COMMISSION

TO AMEND TEXT: AN ORDINANCE TO AMEND PLYMOUTH CHARTER TOWNSHIP ORDINANCE NO. 83 BY ADDING SECTION 23.41, CLEARING OF TREES, TO ARTICLE XXIII, SPECIAL PROVISIONS, OF SAID ORDINANCE RELATING TO CLEARING MATURE TREES AND WOODLAND AREAS.
DATE OF HEARING: May 15, 1996
TIME OF HEARING: 7:30 P.M.
PLACE OF HEARING: PLYMOUTH TOWNSHIP HALL, 42350 ANN ARBOR ROAD

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the Planning Commission of Plymouth Charter Township proposes on its own motion to amend Article XXIII, Special Provisions, by adding Section 23.41, Proposed Clearing of Trees, as follows:

Section 23.41, Clearing of Trees, is proposed to read as follows:

Section 23.41 Clearing of Trees

1. Purpose
The purpose of this section is to protect trees and woodlands which contribute to the community character and quality of life in the Township. These standards are intended to protect trees which provide economic support of local property values, when allowed to remain uncleared and unharvested in whole or in significant part, for their natural beauty, character, ecological or historical significance; to prevent damage from erosion and siltation and loss of wildlife habitat; to protect the public health through the absorption of airborne pollution and generation of oxygen, buffering for the reduction of excessive noise and visual screening and through the protection of groundwater recharge areas and subsurface water resources; and to promote the health, safety and general welfare of the residents of the Township. The protection of such natural resources is a matter of paramount public concern, as provided by Article IV, Section 52 of the Michigan Constitution of 1963, and the Environmental Protection Act of 1970, being Act No. 127 of the Public Acts of Michigan of 1970 (MCL 691.1201 et seq. MSA 14.528 (201) et. seq.), as amended.
2. Permit Required for Protected Tree Removal
Subject to the exceptions listed in section 23.41.3, no person shall remove, harvest, burn, cut down, up-root, debark, cause to be removed, transplant or destroy any protected tree as defined herein without obtaining a tree removal permit from the Township. For purposes of this section, a protected tree shall be any tree having a caliper of four (4) inches or more.
3. Exceptions
Notwithstanding the requirements of Section 23.41.2, the following activities shall be permitted without a tree removal permit, provided that the tree removal is not prohibited by statute or other ordinance provisions.
   a. Tree Removal on Single Family Lots - A permit shall not be required for tree removal on any single family lot within an existing subdivision, site condominium or similar residential development, whether the lot is vacant or occupied by one or more structures.
   A permit shall be required for any single family parcel or lot located outside of a subdivision, site condominium or similar development if removal of protected trees is proposed. Nor shall a permit be required if such removal conforms to a final preliminary plat or site plan that has been reviewed and approved by the Township.
   b. Tree Removal on Non-Single Family Parcels - A permit shall not be required for tree removal on parcels used or zoned for commercial, office, industrial, multiple family or other non-single family development, provided that prior approval of a site plan has been granted by the Township for such lot or lots.
   c. Commercial Nursery or Tree Farm - A permit shall not be required for tree removal occurring during use of land for the operation of a commercial nursery or tree farm. This exception shall only be applicable if the facility has been licensed by the State of Michigan.
   d. Emergencies - A permit shall not be required for actions made necessary be an emergency, such as tornado, windstorm, flood, freeze, dangerous and infectious insect infestation or disease, or other disaster, in order to prevent injury or damage to persons or property or restore order, and where it would be contrary to the interest of the public health or safety to defer cutting pending submission and processing of a permit application. The Township Planner shall have the authority to determine the presence of an emergency.
   e. Governmental Agencies and Public Utilities - A permit shall not be required for tree trimming, removal or transplanting performed by or on behalf of governmental entities or agencies for public interest purposes, or for trimming or cutting of trees associated with the repair or maintenance work performed by public utilities, provided that the Township is given prior written notice of such activity.
   f. Dead or Damaged Trees - A permit shall not be required for removal or trimming of dead, diseased or damaged trees.
4. Review Procedure
   a. The Township Planner shall review and take action on applications for tree removal. However, where proposed tree removal is in combination with a site plan, subdivision plat or other application where Planning Commission action is required, the Planning Commission shall review and act on the request.
   b. Application and Fee - A person seeking a tree removal permit shall submit an application to the Township on forms supplied by the Township and pay the application and permit fee as established by resolution of the Township Board.
   c. Application Information - The applicant shall submit a tree plan which shall be drawn to scale and sealed by a registered engineer or surveyor. The plan shall include the following information, at a minimum:
      1) Property Dimensions: The boundaries and dimensions of the property, and the location of any existing and proposed structures or improvements, with a statement identifying the type of structures or improvements.
      2) Tree Survey. A tree survey and plan shall be required only in areas where trees are proposed to be removed. Location of all existing protected trees four (4) inches in caliper or greater shall be shown and identified by name and caliper. The survey shall indicate whether each tree is to remain, be transplanted or removed. Groups of trees in proximity (five feet or closer) may be designated a "clump" of trees, with predominant species, estimated number and average size.
      3) Tree Protection. A statement which describes how trees intended to remain will be protected during development.
      4) Intended Tree Replacement. The number, size, species, and estimated cost of all replacement trees, if proposed.
   d. Review Process
   The Township Planner and Planning Commission (where applicable) shall review the application together with any consultant's report, based on the Review Standards in Section 23.41.5. The following actions may be taken:
      1) If the application is in compliance with the Review Standards in Section 23.41.5, approval shall be granted. Action to approve may be made subject to reasonable conditions deemed necessary to insure that the intent of this section will be fulfilled.
      2) If the applicant is found not to be in compliance with the Review Standards in 23.41.5., then the application shall be denied.
   e. Permits issued pursuant to this section shall remain valid for a period of twelve (12) months. Work not completed after twelve (12) months shall require a new permit.
5. Review Standards
The following standards shall govern the approval or denial of a tree removal permit:
   a. The applicant shall demonstrate that the proposed activities and improvements minimize removal of protected trees.
   b. Preservation and conservation of trees, woodlands, and other natural resources shall have priority over development when there are feasible and prudent location alternatives on-site for proposed buildings, structures or site improvements. However, it is not the intent of this section to deny any application to develop solely because of the presence of trees on the site.
   c. Diversity of tree species shall be maintained where essential to preserving a wooded area.
   d. Where the proposed activity consists of land clearing, it shall be limited to designated street rights-of-way, drainage and utility areas and areas necessary for the construction of buildings, structures and other site improvements. Where the land clearing is not proposed as part of a development proposal for which a site plan, subdivision plat or similar plan has been submitted, the applicant shall demonstrate to the satisfaction of the Township the reasons that the land clearing and/or grubbing cannot be delayed until such plan is submitted and approved.
   e. The proposed activity shall comply with all other applicable standards and ordinances.
   f. To achieve the purposes of this section, the Township may require provisions for tree relocation, replacement and protection.
   g. Removal of trees shall be permitted in the following instances, except where redesign of the site is a reasonable alternative that would eliminate the need for tree removal:
      1) To remove trees that pose a safety hazard to pedestrians or vehicular traffic or threaten to cause disruption to public utility services.
      2) To remove trees that pose a safety hazard to buildings or structures.
      3) To remove trees that prevent access to a lot or parcel.
      4) To remove trees that unreasonably present development of a lot or parcel.
      5) To remove trees that are so weakened by disease, age, wind, fire or other injury as to pose a danger to persons or property.

NOTICE IS FURTHER GIVEN that the proposed amendment to the text, as printed, may be examined at the Township Hall, Community Development Department, 42350 Ann Arbor Road, during regular business hours, 8:00 A.M. to 4:30 P.M., until the date of the Public Hearing. Written comments concerning the request will be received prior to meeting. Telephone No. 453-3840 Extension 209, Application No. 1384. At the Public hearing, the Planning Commission may recommend the text change as proposed or amended.

Hoe! hoe! hoe! it's time for Spring Farm Days

You just might find the cure for spring fever April 25-28 during Spring Farm Days at Greenfield Village in Dearborn.

"Spring Farm Days gives everyone a chance to greet the new season, see the newborn lambs, and get a real feel for the challenges of rural life," said program planner Dan Kirk. "We'll be highlighting activities that offer an invigorating change after being cooped up for the winter, including some time-honored cures for Spring Fever."

At the 1880s Firestone (which was moved to Greenfield Village from central Ohio), kids can help clear the field of rocks to make way for the horse-drawn plow and scattering seed for livestock feed.

"Kids really enjoy this activity," said Village spokesperson Diane Thomas. "We give them a bucket and send them out to the field to pick up stones, which seem to come up on their own every year. They're like hangers that multiply in a closet. You take some out, and more appear."

Clearing the field of stones didn't just keep kids busy, it served a purpose. Stones could slow down the farmer's work, and result in crooked rows. During Spring Farm Days, visitors can also talk with farmers as they plow and harrow the land, and perhaps pick up a few tips about "natural" pest-control and fertilizers.

In the barnyard, the Firestone Farm's specially bred, rare and wrinkly merino sheet present a challenge to the "barber" of the barnyard. Visitors can watch as hand tools in capable hands shear the animals of their winter wool. Although merino wool is currently a popular fabric for fine suits and coats, the sheep that produce today's fleece are quite different from their 19th-century counterparts.

"In the 19th century, merino sheep had very wrinkly coats that could yield more wool per animal," said Brian James Egen, who heads the Firestone Farm animal husbandry team. "Since shearing was done with hand tools, the person doing the shearing could take the time to carefully clip every fold and wind up with substantially more wool than he would get from a smooth-skinned animal."

The advent of mechanical shearing tools made it possible to shear more sheep in a shorter time as long as there was a smooth surface to work with.

But a desire for authenticity prompted the team at Firestone Farm to take a step backwards. They combined the country seeking out breeders whose stock had potential for selective back-breeding. Rams and ewes from several states were chosen for appearance and lineage, and a program of "de-evolution" began.

At the 18th-century Daggett Farmhouse, originally located in Connecticut, visitors can see how wool goes from sheep to shirt with demonstrations of wool washing, carding, spinning and weaving.

Some 10 generations later, the merino sheep of Firestone Farm look very much like the flocks of the late 19th century. In the nearby pasture, baby lambs will be making their first trip into the great outdoors for a playful romp.

Spring cleaning was another activity down on the farm, and a cure for spring fever. After being cooped up all winter, many women cleaned with a frenzy, said Thomas. At the Firestone Farmhouse women will be busy transforming the winter's accumulation of cooking grease into lye soap. Visitors can watch as the pot bubbles over the open fire and costumed presenters make bars of soap that will be used to scrub everything from the farmhouse to farm hands.

Kids can try their hand at some springtime chores by participating in a "spring cleanathon" relay race at the Canadian homestead where young Thomas Edison spent time visiting his grandparents. Relay chores include washing clothes, beating rugs, and sweeping the floor.

America's agricultural progress and diversity is depicted at sites throughout the Village. Young visitors can unlock the mystery of seeds with hands-on planting activities, and can even take home a sample to watch it grow.

Rural Southern life for an African-American family during the Depression of the 1930s is recalled at Mattox House. Here spring cleaning includes covering the inside walls with makeshift wallpaper, and the woman of the house will be cooking up batches of hominy in a cast iron skillet.

On Saturday and Sunday, at the J.R. Jones General Store, the shopkeeper and a local farm women will engage in a lively discussion about the changing 19th-century lifestyles as The Order of the Patrons of Husbandry (also known as "The Grange") reached out to farm families with suggestions for balancing the backbreaking work of the farm with the needs of the family.

If all of these activities don't ease your "spring fever" stop by the 19th-century Adams House to watch costumed presenters whip up a special tonic that's guaranteed to put the spring back in your step and cure what ails you.

EXHIBITION

Family at forefront of exhibit

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Family plays an important role in Jack Olds' life. It is responsible not only for the environment in which he was raised but who he is today.

The 68-year-old Livonia artist reflects on the subject in "The Family Portrait," a one man show of woodcut prints, paintings and drawings in the Fine Arts Gallery at the Livonia Civic Center Library. A retrospective of sorts, the work dates back as far as 1957 but also contains prints from 1996. Like a reel of film, it spins a story.

"Why do I continue to do art after more than 40 years? Because I enjoy expressing myself. I can't sing and I tried acting," Olds joked during a recent interview, "but art satisfies me. It's a creative form where you're faced with problems you have to find a solution to. The pieces are very personal relating to my family. It's one person's way of looking at family and focuses on something we're all involved with. As far as the medium of woodcuts, I think people will be seeing a medium they don't have knowledge of and will come away with an understanding."

Director of project grants for the Michigan Council for the Arts until retiring in 1990, Olds tells of beginning life in the town of Marquette in Michigan's rural Upper Peninsula. Each of the images gathered for this Olds' family album is a vignette relaying experiences ranging from the birth of his daughter to the death of a pet guppy. Symbols like the label for Morton Salt, for which his father worked, are prevalent.

A childhood incident portrays himself and two friends playing around with matches while trying to smoke a weed known as Indian Tobacco. The result is "Fright," a woodcut from 1957. It was so titled because the boys had no idea they'd started a fire. It wasn't until they went home to lunch that they heard the wailing sirens of a fire engine.

Other woodblock prints reveal his love for such boyhood delights as tin roof sundaes and the pasties, especially popular in Michigan's UP, made by his mother and grandmother. "Grandpa was a Miner" is a tribute to Olds' two grandfathers who were miners. The picks, copper ore and kerosene lamps are particularly haunting upon realizing one of them died in a mining explosion, the other of pneumonia. Also present are portraits of his late wife Joye playing the accordion and present wife Joan working out at the YMCA. Both were very influential in the work as were his three brothers who purchased it and attended his exhibits. The opening reception on April 27 will be a family reunion with two brothers and his son and daughter in attendance.

"I think when people reach retirement they have a stronger sense of family history, and to preserving this and passing it on to children and grandchildren."

Although Olds has shown his work in such prestigious shows as the touring exhibit of the 14th annual Alma College Print Competition and Gold and Silver Medal Shows at the Scarab Club in Detroit, and the Michigan Gallery, this is Olds' first exhibit in the community Not to be missed is a black and white drawing, created with a minimum of line, done on location during a 1991 trip to Barcelona.

FINE ARTS

Designs mark uncommon events

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Scott Kurtz is looking for an observatory, astronomy club or group with whom to share profits from the sale of T-shirts commemorating the Hyakutake Comet.

The Canton Township resident's Reserve One Rare Apparel designed and produced the limited edition T's and caps. The company specializes in creating apparel to celebrate uncommon events.

The comet certainly qualified as that when it passed within 9 1/2 million miles of earth on March 25. It will remain unseen by the human eye for more than 200 years.

"There's a ton of people out there who saw the comet and have nothing to show for it but the memories," said Kurtz, an industrial arts teacher at Central Middle School in Plymouth.

"We'd like to make contact with an observatory, club or group to give a portion of our profits to. There must be someone out there that needs the money."

This isn't Kurtz's first venture into the marketplace. He also runs a custom wood working business as well as a cleaning service. He originally conceived the idea for the apparel after seeing polo shirts emblazoned with designers' logos. Pooling the computer and marketing expertise resources of himself, his brother Tom in Arizona and friend Steven Mark in Colorado, the three formed Reserve One. The first polo shirts, sweaters and sweatshirts produced by the company debuted last January as the official souvenir apparel of the Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular. Kurtz draws several variations of the designs for the shirts before sending them for refinement to artist Kevin Messing at the Art Store and More in Livonia. Profits from the sales of the Plymouth show's apparel will go toward the ice sculpting competition's $100,000 annual budget. The Plymouth Ice Spectacular is the oldest ice carving event in North America drawing 500,00 visitors annually to watch a half a million pounds of ice being transformed into dazzling displays by artisans from around the world. The design for the embroidered logo featured First Place winner Ted Wakar's carving of a female figure in Art Nouveau Style. Tags on the backs of the shirts relay the history of the event.

"They're cool shirts that commemorate unique events. We wanted the history tag on the back to tell a little about the event," he said, "and people buying the a shirt know they're supporting a worthy cause."

Innovative Marketing Strategies

Plymouth businesses are joining in to help increase sales by offering free tickets to the Penn Theater or a free beverage at the Coffee Studio for purchasing a shirt from Reserve One and mentioning they saw the merchandise on display at one of these businesses. Kurtz is still looking for the support of other area merchants.

Among the events Reserve One would like to commemorate in the future are the Detroit Fireworks Festival and the Councours d'Elegance at Meadow Brook in Rochester. "We think the winning car on the shirt would make a cool design," said Kurtz.

T-shirts, sweaters, polo shirts and caps are still available with the comet and Plymouth Ice Spectacular designs. Prices range from $28 for a T-shirt to $75 for a sweater. To place an order Kurtz can be reached by calling 1-800-55RSVP1 or through the Internet at www.reserve1.com.

BOOK BREAK

Redfield's New Age thriller provokes thought

Meet author James Redfield at a book signing 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 2 at Borders Books and Music, 30995 Orchard Lake Road, Farmington Hills.

BY ESTHER LITTMANN
SPECIAL WRITER

You don't have to be a new-age mystic to enjoy James Redfield's New York Times 107-week best-seller, "The Celestine Prophecy." A thriller with nine philosophical insights, it has the right combination of down-to-earth action-packed adventure and thought-provoking idealism.

"The Tenth Insight" (Warner, 1996, $19.95) is Redfield's sequel, an ambitious undertaking that continues the quest for an ancient Peruvian manuscript containing insights into the nature of man and his purpose on earth. Although less grounded in realistic detail than its predecessor, "The Tenth Insight: is also an adventure parable meant to illustrate, through plot and characterization, modern man's evolving spiritual awareness.

Disturbed by the reported disappearance of his friend Charlene, the unnamed narrator and protagonist of "The Celestine Prophecy" travels to the Appalachian Mountains to discover her whereabouts and the elusive tenth insight. Almost immediately, he comes upon David, an American Indian still bitter over the injustice done to his forefathers.

Author: James Redfield, author of "The Tenth Insight."

'Each culture around the world has a slightly different world view.

James Redfield
Author, 'The Tenth Insight'

"My ancestors. . . believed this forest was a sacred site," explains David, "midway between the upper world and the middle world here on Earth." Once, those who overcame their fear and anger by using the Nine Insights were granted access to the Tenth. but the White Man changed all that. Tapping into the energy of a spiritual dimension gave way to rationalism and materialism.

The narrator soon realizes that his meeting with David is an example of what the ancient manuscript calls a meaningful coincidence, a confluence of events that seems destined, as if guided by an unseen force. The narrator's next encounters are no less synchronous. He meets Joel in the forest, a journalist who articulates all the fears that grip humanity and describes our modern culture as a spiritual wasteland that will ultimately lead to the end of civilization as we know it. "Law and order and respect for human life are on their way out. The world is degenerating into a mob mentality, ruled by envy and revenge and led by shrewd charlatans," he explains.

Then there's Maya, the healer, who can teach us to overcome our fears and the belligerency growing in and around us. And Wil, a visionary who puts us in touch with our purist intentions, the purpose for which we were born. Although each encounter brings the narrator closer to the Tenth Insight. It also leads to the discovery of a malicious plot to centralize and control the generation of energy. The four seekers — and Charlene — are in danger, and we wonder if their combined psychic resources are strong enough to save them.

Redfield writes about a spiritual renaissance sweeping the glove It's a metaphysical development nourished by the wisdom of multiple cultures and religions. "Each culture around the world has a slightly different world view," writes the author, "and it takes the best of all cultures, integrated together, to make a more ideal whole." Tao's process of self-discovery and the enlightenment of Zen Buddhism must be implemented by the western traditions of action and scientific enterprise. Creative and loving synthesis, not political and economic polarization, is the path toward fulfillment and peace.

James Redfield, a former sociologist and counselor to emotionally challenged adolescents, writes that "in reality, there are no enemies; we're all souls in growth" in different stages of "waking up." His two books offer us a comprehensive world view, both inspiring and provocative.

THEATER

'Corpse!' provides laughs, few thrills

Meadow Brook Theatre presents "Corpse!" through May 12 Tickets $20-$28.50, (810) 645-6666, (810) 377-3300.

BY BARBARA MICHALS
SPECIAL WRITER

Despite excellent performances, a promising first act, and a fine revolving set, the Meadow Brook Theatre production of "Corpse!" can not overcome a badly written, disappointing second act.

Billed as a comedy thriller, the Gerald Moon play gets plenty of laughs but is short of thrills. The many laughs smoothly incorporated into the first act should help set the stage for the thrills to come. Unfortunately, the laughs never really taper off in the second act, further undermining "thrills" that are weak at best.

The second act is very short, its revelations tumbling out too hastily and many of the necessary little details too improbable. The play's closing action is dramatic but ludicrous.

Peter Gregory Thomson is outstanding as the very demanding dual roles of Evelyn Farrant, unemployed actor and ne'er-do-well, and his twin brother Rupert, arrogant, cold, and highly successful. The twins have been so alienated for years that Evelyn can't even get close enough to his brother to do him in. Instead he hires Major Ambrose Powell (Donald Ewer), a small-time crook on the run and desperate for money. Powell is to kill Rupert so that Evelyn can assume his identity, wealth, and place in society.

Thompson is marvelous at keeping the two identities distinct; even when his Evelyn is doing a great job of posing as Rupert he allows little bits of Evelyn to show through via physical gestures and facial expressions unseen by others on the stage. He even manages to make his descent into madness quite convincing. As Powell, Donald Ewer is perfect in his Irish brogue, his understandable reluctance to be the hit man for a total stranger, and his comic fluster as dead bodies come and go. His pride in his marksmanship contrasts amusingly with his aversion to the sight of blood, and overall he is too endearing to be be an assassin.

In supporting roles, Patti Perkins is delightful as Evelyn's meddlesome landlady, as besotted with alcohol as she is with him, and Thomas Mahard make the most of Hawkins, the nosy local constable always searching in vain for Rupert's generous side.

Making his directorial debut at Meadow Brook, Phillip Locker's work cannot be faulted; the play's problems are all in the writing. Peter Hicks's revolving set is appropriately dark and cluttered for Evelyn's one-room basement flat, while Rupert's fashionable Regent Park house is bright and sleekly modern.

Bad Religion makes a political statement on 'Race'

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Fans going to the Bad Religion show on Thursday, April 25, can expect a wild time.

"They can expect tigers and elephants and clowns and trapeze artists and the shooting a woman out of a canon. Oh, that's the circus. I'm sorry. I don't know what it is that we do or that we don't do. It's not a Gwar/White Zombie type of show," said bassist Jay Bentley, who was rather chipper during a 9 a.m. interview – not exactly typical "band time."

"In a typical set, we'll play anywhere from 32 to 34 songs, eight to 10 will be new from 'The Gray Race,' " then copping his best British accent he added, "Everything else is a collection of hits as it were."

For its latest album "The Gray Race" Bad Religion teamed up with producer Ric Ocasek, the former frontman of the Cars who also worked on Bad Brains' album "Rock For Light" and the debut from Weezer.

"We were looking up at him a lot," Bentley said of working with the towering Ocasek. "I don't know what it is that he does exactly. He hears things in a very good way. He puts things in a perspective that I agree with and hears things the way I hear them, Greg (Graffin, singer) hears them and Brian (Baker, guitarist) hears them. The big thing that I can remember was he brought a very easy-going attitude into the studio."

Coming to town: Bad Religion – from left, bassist Jay Bentley, drummer Bobby Schayer, guitarist Brian Baker, vocalist Greg Graffin, and guitarist Greg Hetson.

"The Gray Race" follows Bad Religion's 1994 ground-breaking album "Stranger Than Fiction," which spawned the hit "21st Century Digital Boy." In a recent interview, Graffin described the meaning of the title track.

"As a human being, we are gifted in that we can see the different shades of gray. But if we want to get ahead – if we want to excel – we're told to see things in black and white. It's a considerably less human approach to things."

Elsewhere on the album, Bad Religion rallies against "Drunk Sincerity" and "Empty Causes," along the way delivering an impassioned broadcast from the "Streets of America" where they take "A Walk," declaring "I'm gonna build a world/independent and exempt/all alone I'll be an empire/ with no mortgage and no rent." "A Walk" is the first single from "The Gray Race."

Like its previous albums, Bad Religion shares its sociopolitical thoughts without jamming them down the listener's throats. Bentley summed it up.

"That's because we're sociopolitical. There's no party involved. No membership required, and no denomination. All we require is that you be human like us."

'Flirting' woos mainstream

By John Monaghan
Special Writer

"Flirting with Disaster," which has been sneaking up on moviegoers for the past month, finally caught up with me. Far funnier than it sounds, the low-budget comedy is a great mix of old and new, in both concept and talent.

At heart it belongs to the world of screwball comedy. Mel (Ben Stiller), undecided on what to name his four-month-old child, sets out to locate his own birth mother. Aside from the kid and wife Nancy (Patricia Arquette), he brings along Tina (Tea Leoni), the woman from the adoption agency intent on capturing the reunion on videotape.

"Flirting" is also a very modern comedy, full of wild characters and hilarious sexual situations. Mel finds himself attracted to Tina as well as the pair of bikini-clad Doublemint twins who may be his sisters. Mary Tyler Moore even gets into the spirit of things when, in a much-publicized scene, she lifts up her sweater to show how the proper bra has allowed her to keep her breasts in shape.

Writer/director David O. Russell admits that he has sex on the brain. His first feature, the charmingly titled "Spanking the Monkey," dealt freely with masturbation and an incestuous encounter between a mother and her college-age son. It was actually quite a clever film.

His second effort shows no sign of a young director's sophomore slump. Released to art houses last month, "Flirting with Disaster" has become a mini-phenomenon currently playing on dozen screens in Metro Detroit. Hollywood has already pegged Russell as a name to watch. Physically the movie takes us on a wayward trip across country and back. Mel's first stop is San Diego to meet the woman the agency says is his mother. By the time it becomes clear that a mixup has occurred, Mel has been forgiven for breaking the man's glass managerie. Now she expects him to pay. From there he's off to Michigan, shown at its midwinter worst. Actually filmed near Battle Creek (with the Kellogg's factory and Tony the Tiger displayed prominently), this section plays upon Michigan's ill-gotten reputation as militia territory.

The man Mel now thinks is his father practically beats him up when he arrives unexpected on his property.

Lily Tomlin and Alan Alda play his actual parents, first-generation Deadheads who admit they put him up for adoption when they were sent to prison on drug charges. Unlike the overgrown flower children shown in most movies, these talented actors play artists who supplement their income with side jobs: namely producing LSD in a basement laboratory.

"Flirting with Disaster" is full of quirks and surprises not unlike TV's "Seinfeld." Russell and company poke fun at everything from the overabundance of white-colored vehicles on a car rental lot to the forced charm of bed-and-breakfast inns, which Mel can't stand. His worst fears are confirmed when the ancient innkeeper starts boring them with the home's history while the ubiquitous cat rubs against their legs.

Stiller plays the neurotic hero as a cross between Jerry Seinfeld and Albert Brooks, sarcasm and befuddlement served in equal doses. His budding affair with Tina is partially thwarted when Nancy starts flirting with an old boyfriend, actually one of the policemen who arrest them for knocking down a post office with a truck. But that's another story.

Though easily dismissed as pithy situation comedy, "Flirting with Disaster" has characters who grow more endearing once you get to know them. If nothing else, Russell has stretched the range of familiar actors Hollywood too often doesn't know what to do with.

Player of the Week

Brian Paluk, a junior at Saginaw Valley State and a Redford Catholic Central graduate from Plymouth, was named the pitcher of the week in the Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

Paluk tossed a three-hit shutout against Oakland University last Sunday in SVSU's 6-0 win. He struck out three. For the week, Paluk was 2-0 with a 0.75 earned run average; he is 3-0 this season and in third place in the GLIAC in won-loss percentage.

The two wins gave the CC grad a 15-4 career record, making him sixth on the all-time Cardinals' win list. His career ERA is 3.10. SVSU was 4-1-1 for the week to improve to 7-4-1 in the GLIAC, trailing only Mercyhurst (10-3) in the loss column.

Sportsmanship winners

The winter winners from the Michigan High School Athletic Association's "Good Sports Are Winners!" program have been announced, and teams from both Plymouth Canton and Plymouth Salem were honored.

More than 500 schools were selected by local tournament managers to be lauded for displaying the best sportsmanship at their sites. One school was chosen in each of the four winter team tournaments as the top awardee, which earned the school a banner to be displayed at the school and a $1,000 donation from True Value Hardware, which underwrites the entire program.

Canton's basketball team and Salem's volleyball team were both regional honorees. That earned each a plaque noting their accomplishment.

Soccer runners-up

Canton Magic, an under-15 boys soccer team, won four of five games to capture second place at the Countryside Easter Invitational Tournament, April 5-7 in Clearwater, Fla.

The Clearwater Chargers downed the Magic in the championship final, 1-0.

Members of the Magic, who compete in the Little Caesars Premier League (Ilitch Division), include: Kevin Graff, George Kithas and Mike Skolnik, all of Livonia; Robert Barnes, Steve Epley, Aaron McDonald, Jeff Parent, Aaron Rypkowski and Scott Wright, all of Canton; Nick Allen, Michael Bennett, Kyle Helland and Nick Szczechowski, all of Plymouth; Craig Cochran, Belleville; Paul Gienapp and Jeremy Whitman, Brighton; Andy Meyers, Dearborn; Paul Ansara, Novi.

The team is coached by Jerry Parent and Scott Weiger. The assistant coach is Ted Kithas and the team manager is Diane Epley.

Billiard's best

The Shark Club in Canton will be the site of the Pool and Billiard Magazine's Detroit Classic, the fourth stop on the Women's Professional Billiard Association's Classic Billiard Tour, May 16-19.

The event will feature the top 48 women's pool players vying for $40,000 in prize money plus a $1,250 bonus round. The top four-ranked players - Robin Dodson, Jeanette Lee, Vivian Villarreal and Ewa Mataya Laurance - will all be present.

The Shark Club is located at 42070 Ford Road. Admission is $5 for the early preliminary rounds (11 a.m. to 5 p.m.) and $7 for nightime rounds (6-11 p.m.), including Sunday's final (May 19). Salem struggles at Relays; Canton 7th

After doing so well at the prestigious Mansfield Relays last year, Salem's boys track team expected a lot this year. It turned out differently for the Rocks; this time, they failed to score.

It was, in the words of Plymouth Salem boys track coach Geoff Baker, "a terrible weekend."

The Rocks split their team for two prestigious events last weekend, sending their distance specialists to the Mansfield (Ohio) Relays, which is hyped as the biggest high school meet east of the Mississippi. Five states and Canada send teams to compete in it.

A year ago Salem placed 13th in it, scoring in two events with a win in the medley relay. This time, however, the Rocks failed to score.

"Here we thought we'd be in the top 10," said Baker. "We had basically the same people going back (as last year). Had we performed, we would have been right there."

Scott Pengelly placed seventh in the 3,200-meter run in 9:50.8, just missing out on scoring (top six earn points).

Other scoring possibilities for Salem were the 3,200 relay of Jared Biniecki, Scott Loewe, Andy Briggs and Jason Barylski, which was ninth (8:22.3), and the defending champion medley relay, with Barylski (800), Loewe (200), Scott Kingslien (400) and Biniecki (1,600) finishing 10th (8:09.2).

It didn't get much better for the Rocks at Saturday's Elks Relays, hosted by Dearborn. Younger team members were competing in that event, but Salem scored just seven points, scoring in five events.

Their best was a third by the high hurdles relay team of Mike Discher, Dann Webb, Dave Hester and Rob Hawley (1:08.4).

Lawrence Nunn, Kevin Conte, Chris Mason and Mike Shull accounted for one of Salem's four fifths in the 400-meter relay (46.3). Others went to Discher, Andres Lopez and Jeff McKian in the high jump relay (16-feet, 3-inches); Jon Little, Japbir Gill, Adam Thurtell and Charlie Schmidt in the 6,400 relay (20:48); and Ian Searcy (800), Josh Fair (400), Little (1,200) and Gill (1,600) in the distance medley (12:17.0).

Plymouth Canton

Plymouth Canton's 3,200-meter relay team took first place Saturday in the Dearborn Elks Relays.

Coach Bob Richardson's quartet of Jon Page, Jason Rutter, Ian Bedford and Evan Crocket won with a time of 8:49 as Canton finished tied for seventh place in the 12-team event.

The Chiefs totaled 12 points, the same as Temperance-Bedford and University of Detroit-Jesuit. Plymouth Salem's team was 10th with seven points.

Rutter and Bedford were joined by Adam DeGiorgia and Shawn Moore for a third-place finish in the 6,400-relay, clocking 20:13.

Craig Brunskole, Jason Faladeau, Jerry Reynolds and Jason Vergari covered the Distance Medley relay in 12:10, which was good for fourth place.

Chiefs extend streak

It's "Get Serious" time for Canton soccer.

Plymouth Canton rolled over visiting Farmington, 5-0, Monday night to improve to 5-1.

"We're playing better," coach Don Smith said. "We're getting solid.

"We need someone to start working against us defensively. We need to play some good ballbames. We have to be ready to play. There's no rest for the wicked next week."

Canton's girls have tough assignments against Livonia Churchill, Plymouth Salem and Troy next week. That should tell the Chiefs where they stand - and where they sit, as well.

Goalie Sarah Warnke notched another pair of shutouts, blanking Adrian, 5-0, on Saturday before getting credit for the Farmington whitewashing, her fifth in six outings. Both games were 4-0 at the half.

Against the Falcons, the Chiefs got two goals from Melissa Marzolf plus one apiece from Emily Mejer, Dawn Koontz and Jennell Cobor. Warnke only was called upon for four saves.

Lisa Reissenweber had a pair of assists while Kelly Connell and Julie Majewski had one apiece.

Jenny Parviainen had a pair of goals plus an assist to lead the attack on Adrian. Marzolf, Mejer and Lisa Tomasso had a goal each while Eliza Esper had an assist.

Offensive explosion

Lady Crusaders power way to 5 wins in 6 games

MADONNA SOFTBALL

The weekend had an ominous beginning for Madonna University's softball team. The Lady Crusaders managed just three hits in a 6-3 loss to Huntington (Ind.) College Friday.

But any concerns regarding Madonna's offensive prowess were quickly put to rest. The Crusaders followed that loss with five-straight victories, scoring 48 runs in the process.

The 5-1 weekend run gave Madonna a 23-11 overall record.

Perhaps the biggest wins came at the end. After their four-game stretch at St. Francis (Ind.) College Friday and Saturday, the Crusaders returned home Sunday to sweep Aquinas College, 6-2 and 8-3.

Shanna Streng was the winning pitcher in the opener, improving her season record to 10-7. Streng allowed eight hits and a walk in seven innings, striking out two.

A four-run second inning was all Madonna needed. Leading the 10-hit attack were Melissa McGue with three hits, two runs scored and a run batted in, and Dawn Shaffer, with two hits and two RBI.

In the second game, Crusaders' pitcher Janell Leschinger gave up two first-inning runs, then stopped the Saints on just one run over the last six. She upped her record to 6-1, giving up seven hits and one earned run without issuing a walk.

Stacey Piontkowski's two hits and two RBI topped Madonna. Jamie Vickers had three hits and an RBI, McGue contributed two hits and an RBI, Jeanie Baxter (from Redford St. Agatha) had two hits and scored twice, and Jamie Heins had a hit, an RBI and scored two runs.

The offense was really on fire Saturday at St. Francis as the Crusaders ripped Huntington 16-5 and Indiana-Purdue at Fort Wayne 14-5.

In the win over Huntington, Shaffer and Jennifer Pinter each collected three hits and three RBI, with Pinter slugging a home run. Courtney Senger also had a homer among her two hits; she drove in two runs. Michelle Birchmeier (Redford Thurston) had three hits and an RBI, and Lynda Weichel had a hit and two RBI.

Leschinger got the win in the five-inning mercy; she went the first four, surrendering two unearned runs on three hits and a walk.

Saturday's second game was nearly as one-sided, although it took six innings for Madonna to reach the 10-run mercy margin against IPFW.

Indeed, for four innings it was a close game, with the Crusaders clinging to a 7-5 lead. But six runs in the fifth and another in the sixth turned it into a rout.

Birchmeier was the big gun, slamming three homers to bring her season total to five. She drove in six runs.

Christy Riopelle contributed three hits and three RBI for Madonna, with McGue adding two hits and two RBI; Heins getting two hits and an RBI; and Vickers getting two hits.

Streng was the winning pitcher, allowing four earned runs on six hits in six innings, striking out four.

In Friday's second game, Streng earned the first of her three weekend pitching wins by holding off St. Francis for a 4-3 Madonna win. Streng gave up six hits and a walk, but just one earned run in seven innings.

The Crusaders scored three runs in the first two innings and got another in the fourth to build a 4-1 lead, but then had to repel a St. Francis comeback. McGue had three hits for Madonna and Jamie Vickers had a hit and two RBI.

In the 6-3 loss to Huntington that opened the weekend, the Crusaders three hits came from Baxter - a triple that scored a run - Pinter and Vickers. Angie VanDoorn (4-3 record) was the loser, allowing three earned runs on seven hits and three walks.

Despite semifinal loss, Rocks look good at tournament

SOFTBALL

If last Sunday's Taylor Invitational is any indication, Plymouth Salem's softball team will be a force to be reckoned with all season long.

One reason is the pitching of Jenny Trott. The Rocks reached the semifinals of the 16-team tournament before losing to eventual champion Southgate Anderson 5-4 in nine innings. And Trott pitched all three games for Salem.

She was the winner in the Rocks' 16-4 opening win over Romulus and their 12-4 victory over Melvindale in the second round. In those two games, Trott allowed a total of three earned runs on five hits and six walks, striking out 10 in 10 innings.

In the loss to Anderson, she was just as effective. Trott pitched all nine innings, surrendering one earned run on six hits and four walks, striking out five.

Another reason for Salem's emergence is catcher Stephanie Volpe. The sophomore slugger hammered a home run in each game of the tournament: a grand slam in the win over Romulus, a three-run homer in the Melvindale triumph, and a three-run job in the loss to Anderson.

For the game, Volpe totaled five hits and 14 runs batted in.

Against Anderson, it was Volpe's three-run poke that tied the game in the fourth innning (Anderson scored three times in the first). The game went to extra innings under the international tiebreaker rule, which allows each team to start its half of the inning with a baserunner at second.

Salem scored a run in the top of the eighth on a walk to Carah Best, a single by Volpe and a run-scoring single by Trott. But Anderson managed to re-tie the game in the bottom half of the inning, then scored a run on one hit in the ninth to win it.

Trott had two hits and an RBI and Volpe had two hits and three RBI for Salem.

The Rocks collected 13 hits in the win over Melvindale. Volpe, who had a homer, a single and five RBI, led the attack; Jenny Marsella had three singles and an RBI, Trott and Julie Cairo each had two singles and an RBI, and Nicole Sitek had two singles.

The opener against Romulus was ended after five innings by the mercy rule. Salem scored its 16 runs on just six hits, thanks to 10 walks issued by Romulus.

Besides Volpe's grand slam home run, which highlighted an 11-run fourth, the Rocks got a single, two doubles and four RBI from Best and a single, a double and two RBI from Terri Walters.

Salem is now 5-2 overall and 2-0 in the Western Lakes Activities Association after Monday's home game against North Farmington was rained out. That game will be made up when in a double-header, when Salem visits North May 10.

Spartans improve to 5-1; Patriots, Hawks battle to scoreless tie

SOCCER

Jenny Barker made six saves, improving her shutout total to four on the season as Livonia Stevenson scored a 5-0 girls soccer victory Monday over visiting Walled Lake Central.

Stevenson is now 5-1 on the year and 1-1 in the Lakes Division of the Western Lakes Activities Association.

Anne Fedrigo led the Spartans' scoring attack with one goal and one assists.

Other Stevenson goal scorers included Christine Wilson, Allison Campbell, Brianna Roy and Lanette Moss.

•FRANKLIN 0, HARRISON 0: In a WLAA Western Division encounter Monday, host Farmington Hills Harrison, despite being outshot 16-4, battled Livonia Franklin (1-3-1 overall) to a draw.

The Patriots had possession a majority of the match as midfielders Mo Biegas, Stacy Goodrich and Emily Kracht stood out according to first-year coach Dave Hebestreit.

"We did a good job pushing the ball forward to the corners," Hebestreit said. "We were real organized, but we just couldn't crack their goalie."

Rocks shine at Relays; Canton rules Lady Chiefs

GIRLS TRACK

Nice to be busy. Better to be productive, too.

That's just what Plymouth Salem's girls track team was in a pair of relay events last Saturday and Tuesday. The Rocks competed in the highly-touted West Bloomfield Relays Saturday and were at the April Showers Relays, hosted by Ypsilanti HS, Tuesday.

The Rocks placed second to host Ypsilanti Tuesday, scoring 99 points to the Braves' 108. Dearborn Edsel Ford was third with 51; eight teams participated.

Salem finished first in two of the 15 events and took second in six others. The wins came from the 3,200-meter relay team of Kristie Giddings, Evelyn Rahhal, Mari Disbrow and Ellen Stemmer in10:36.6 and from the distance medley relay team of Giddings (800), Hannah Watts (400), Rahhal (1,200) and Stemmer (1,600) in 14:02.3.

Nicole Van Hees and Kristin Kosik combined to place second in the high jump relay (9-feet, 10-inches); Angie Smith and Jessica Ash were second in the shot put relay (66-3/4); Smith and Sara Vida placed second in the discus relay (182-7); Jennifer Burke (800), Anett Juraszik (400), Kim Panko (400) and Nicole Bolton (1,600) were second in the 3,200 medley (11:19.93); Angela Sillmon (200), Candace Lynett (100), Joan Marquez (100) and Katie Bonner (400) finished second in the sprint medley (2:01.6); and Kim Sheldon, Van Hees and Watts took second in the 3x300 hurdles (2:37.7).

There were also four thirds for Salem, which means the Rocks finished in the top three in 12 of the 15 events.

"We were very competitive today," said Salem coach Mark Gregor, particularly impressed with the performances in the field events. "We were better in everything, actually."

Thirds went to the 4x100 shuttle hurdles team of Sheldon, Watts, Kosik and Van Hees (1:12.4); the 1,600 team of Giddings, Vida, Sheldon and Bonner (4:29.4); the five-member mixed medley team of Jessica Tabor (100), Tiffany Reiber (300), Rachel Thompson (200), Bolton (600) and Jennifer Burke (400), (4:42.8); and the special 4x200 relay, which included each team's two shot putters and two others - for Salem, Smith and Ash with Denise Brooks and Wendi Leanhardt (2:08.5).

Considering the Rocks were coming off the West Bloomfield event, the showing was impressive. At West Bloomfield, Salem tied Farmington for fourth place, each scoring 39 points. Detroit Cass Tech was first with 49, with Troy and Detroit Mumford tying for second with 44.

Salem won one event: the shuttle hurdle relay, with Sheldon, Watts, Kosik and Van Hees (1:12.8). The Rocks' Van Hees took second with Kosik third in the high jump (5-1 and 4-11, respectively).

The 3,200 relay team of Giddings, Rahhal, Disbrow and Stemmer was also third (10:26.4); so was the sprint medley team of Bonner, Sillmon, Marquez and Giddings (4:01.5).

"We're finishing up a grueling week," said Gregor. "But it was designed to give us some competition. I think all of our hard work will set us up for a good meet Thursday (at North Farmington)."

Fishing tourney raises money for children

BY BILL PARKER
OUTDOORS EDITOR

Looking for something to do this weekend? Well, look no further.

Let's see . . . spring turkey season is open if you were lucky enough to draw a permit . . . the general trout and salmon season opens Saturday on designated trout waters . . . and walleye, sauger, pike and muskie seasons also opens Saturday on inland waters in the Lower Peninsula.

If you're not interested in any participatory sports quite yet you can take a leisurely drive east to St. Clair and watch the weigh-in of the 18th annual River Crab Salmon Stakes fishing tournament on Saturday afternoon. You could even win a trip to Disney World.

Based at Chuck Muer's River Crab Restaurant just north of St. Clair, the Salmon Stakes tournament is held annually to raise funds to benefit troubled children, adults and their families throughout Michigan. The tournament has raised over $700,000 over the years and netted better than $100,000 last year alone.

Get your tickets

Money is raised through the sale of $10 raffle/entry tickets. Ticket holders are automatically entered in the grand raffle. The tickets are also good for entry in the tournament. The grand prize in the raffle is a trip for four to Walt Disney World. Other prizes include a weekend for two in Toronto; $750 in gift certificates redeemable at any Chuck Muer restaurant nationwide; a charter fishing trip for four with overnight accommodations and dinner; and $300 in gift certificates redeemable at any Chuck Muer restaurant.

On top of a chance at winning one of the fabulous prizes, raffle/entry tickets are also redeemable after the tournament for $10 off dinner for two at any Chuck Muer restaurant nationwide. Tickets are available at all Chuck Muer restaurants or by calling Ruth Rhoades at the River Crab at 1-800-468-3727.

A fantastic fishery

Southern Lake Huron, with its shallow waters along the shoreline, offers some of the earliest spring salmon fishing of the season. As the water nears the 40-degree mark, smelt and perch move toward shore and the rivers, creeks and cuts used for spawning. Salmon, steelhead, brown trout and walleye follow to take advantage of the huge schools of bait fish.

The late arrival of spring is wreaking havoc for salmon anglers so far this year. The St. Clair River is still full of ice flows and no boats can get out into the river. The Black River at Port Huron is also plugged up with ice, but anglers are able to get into Lake Huron through the ports at Lake Port, Lexington, Port Sanilac and Harbor Beach.

Upwards of 250 boats and 1,000 anglers annually participate in the Salmon Stakes tournament. The weigh-in begins at 1 p.m. Saturday at the River Crab Restaurant and will feature a barbecue, live entertainment and a trout pond for the kids. The River Crab is located three miles north of St. Clair on River Road.

Chiefs put it together in sweep

BASEBALL

The pitching was good and the offense was better for Plymouth Canton's baseball team last weekend.

The Chiefs traveled to Ann Arbor Huron Saturday and returned home with a pair of victories by 9-1 and 9-2 margins. The non-conference wins improved their record to 5-3 overall.

A pair of three-run innings were instrumental in Canton's first-game win over the River Rats - those and the exceptional pitching of junior Jason Mortiere. Mortiere went all seven innings, giving up five hits and three walks and one unearned run, while striking out five.

The Chiefs scored three runs inboth the third and fifth innings. John Wright and Jason Bricker singled to start the third-inning rally; Pat Noonan's double scored both, and Scott Patterson singled to knock in Noonan.

In the fifth, both Patterson and Dave Walker reached base on Huron errors. Kurt Richards singled in one run, and Byran Dixon followed with a two-run single.

Fielder's choices by Wright scored runs for Canton in both the first and fourth innings. A Patterson single knocked in the Chief final run in the sixth.

Bricker went 3-for-3 for Canton, with Richards getting two hits, scoring three runs and knocking in one run and Patterson collecting two hits and driving in two runs. Dixon, Wright and Noonan each had a hit and two RBI.

In the second game, Bricker allowed two unearned runs in six innings on four hits and three walks, striking out four. Mark Hazzard finished, striking out two in his one inning of work.

Canton waited until the third to get its offense in gear, scoring twice that inning, once in the fourth and pushing two runs across in the fifth, sixth and seventh. A Wright double drove in both runs in the third; Patterson's single delivered the run in the fourth; Wright doubled in another run in the fifth, then scored on Noonan's fielder's choice; a wild pitch and Jeff Opalinski's single accounted for two runs in the sixth; and Noonan and Nate Copenhaver singled in runs in the seventh.

Wright and Noonan each had two hits for the Chiefs, with Wright driving in three runs and Noonan two. Copenhaver, Patterson and Opalinski each had a hit and an RBI.

While Canton has prospered the past week, washouts the last two Mondays could wreak havoc later on. "We're backed up in May," admitted Chiefs' coach Scott Dickey.

Canton's game against Livonia Franklin, originally slated for April 15, has been rescheduled as part of a double-header May 3. The Walled Lake Western game, which was supposed to be played last Monday, will be part of a twinbill May 10.

In between those two dates, Canton has six other games scheduled - including two double-headers. That makes 10 games in an eight-day span, which figures to be a real test of the Chiefs' pitching.

Stopen repeats in WB half-marathon

There were familiar faces in the winners circle Sunday at the 20th running of the West Bloomfield Half-Marathon.

Keith Stopen of Farmington Hills repeated as the overall champion, bettering last year's winning time by 51 seconds to take the crown in 1:10:04.

In the women's division, Romeo's Nancy Collister returned to the head of the pack after missing the race last year. The 1994 women's division champion struggled a bit this year and finished in 1:27:06, nearly nearly two-and-a-half minutes behind her winning time in '94.

Some 536 runners entered the half-marathon with 493 finishing the race which was run under nearly ideal conditions. Temperatures hovered around 63 degrees, the sky was partly cloudy and there was a mild breeze.

"I take back what I said last year about the hills not being so bad," said the 29-year-old Stopen. "There are some big hills on this course. I didn't remember them being so big. Overall, I feel pretty good.

"It was a good day. This is a great small-town course."

Sarnia's Rick Harris placed second in 1:11:41. Doug Kurtis of Northville, who set the current record of 1:07:32 in 1989, placed third in 1:13:48, Jim Heebsh of Rochester Hills finished fourth in 1:13:59 and Livonia's Chuck Block was fifth in 1:15:12.

Collister, who entered the half-marathon having already won four road races this spring, was shooting for a sub-1:20 finish. She was pleased with the victory but not with her personal performance.

"I'm very disappointed with my time," said the 24-year-old MSU senior who will graduate next month with a degree in fisheries and wildlife. "I wanted to be at least seven minutes faster. Maybe I was just training too much, and worrying about finals next week."

Shannon Bedard-Evon was the second female to cross the finish line, placing 37th overall.

Albertson steps down as Churchill's AD

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

The athletic director's chair at Livonia Churchill High School will be occupied by a new man come May 31.

Don Albertson, 52, is retiring from the Livonia Public Schools after nearly 28 years, including the last five as the Chargers' A.D.

School principal Rod Hosman has recommended that Marc Hage, a member of Churchill's physical education department, succeed Albertson as the third A.D. in school history.

Hage, a former reserve boys basketball coach, is believed to be the only LPS employee to apply for the job. The posting ended Monday.

"I've sent a memo to the central administration recommending Marc for the job," Hosman said. "But nothing is official until it is approved. We hope to get an answer by the end of the week."

Albertson spent eight seasons as both varsity boys and girls basketball coach before succeeding Larry Joiner in 1991.

"I'm ready to move on to other things and I'm looking forward to it," Albertson said. "There's a lot to do in life. My wife left her job and we have a lot of hobbies.

"We have a place in Florida and will also be here quite a bit of time in Northville. I'll be playing golf and I'm into collectibles."

Albertson is a graduate of Detroit Denby high school where he lettered in track and cross country. He went on to Adrian College where he was inducted into the Bulldogs' Athletic Hall of Fame in October of 1994.

He began his teaching career at Detroit Eastern High School before moving to Livonia. In all, Albertston spent 31 years in education.

"I owe a great deal of debt to three people," Albertson said. "Vern Oxender was the principal at Bryant Junior High and he was the reason I was able to come to Livonia.

"And (the late) Jim Carli (former Livonia superintendent) was very meaningful. He gave me a chance to get involved with student activities and various senior class activities.

"And Mr. Hosman was the greatest boss I ever worked for. He allowed me to do his job and he never interferred."

Hosman also appreciated Albertson's efforts during his years at Churchill.

"Don did a tremendous job of trying to pull all the athletic teams up first-class status," the Churchill principal said. "He tried to provide a balance for all teams.

"He also upgraded the equipment and supplies, something I can't say enough about."

Albertson said going from the classroom (where he taught math) to administration "opened my eyes."

"It was a role I never envisioned," he said. "I believe that the athletes were outfitted really well, second to none. Yes, there were some sports where we could have won a few more games, but overall I felt we were pretty competitive.

"Also, in the past few years I thought we made some strides in sportsmanship. The coaches had done a good job for the most part as far as their behavior on the sidelines. And they were able to pass it along to the kids. But there was always room for improvement."

The outgoing A.D., however, has noticed a disturbing trend in high school athletics during the past few years.

"The biggest disappointment is people who don't understand their role in the athletic venue," Albertson said. "Players need to play, coaches need to coach and parents need to be parents. When they get out of that role, problems are created.

"But overall it was a good run and I enjoyed the experience."

Signing

Schoolcraft College's men's basketball team had all kinds of problems in the last half of last season, but coach Glen Donahue believes he's on the right track to make the Ocelots not only respectable, but a Region 12 contender.

Donahue guided his team in that direction by signing Redford Catholic Central senior Justin Hoener this week. Hoener, a 6-foot-2 guard, was named third-team All-Observer as a nice complement to the Shamrocks' first-team All-Observer guard tandem ofChris Misiak and Marc McDonald.

"He did a great job for four years at CC (on the varsity)," Donahue said. "I think he's a quality player and really a good kid.

"I think he'll solve a lot of our problems at the guard spot."

Hoener came off the bench as CC's sixth man last season. For the two seasons prior to that, he played point guard.

Donahue plans to use him at both guard positions, but his top priority will be to put him at the point.

Nature recycles itself

By Tim Nowicki
Special Writer

As I prepared to fertilize my lawn, I began to think about what the natural world does to help plants grow. Neighborhood lawns are far from the forests and fields they once were, where nutrients are cycled naturally. Today we must supplement our lawns and soil with nutrients that we throw away during the course of the year.

Much of southeastern Michigan was forest years ago. A forest is a good system to illustrate how nutrients are recycled. In summer, the green leaves produce food for the tree which allows it to grow larger. Each leaf is also made up of compounds, minerals and nutrients. When autumn arrives, the leaves fall to the ground and are leached by rain and melting snow. Leaves decompose further with the help of small organisms like insects, fungi and bacteria. A great deal of the leaf's material is reabsorbed into the surrounding trees to be used in spring to make new leaves.

Each time I cut my grass I remove the leaves that would naturally replace nutrients back into the soil. I need to convert my mower into a mulching mower, so I can use the nutrients of the cut blades of grass like the forest uses the fallen leaves. When trees are removed from a forest, they represent a great loss of nutrients.

One of the remarkable features of the natural world is that its building blocks can by used by any living thing. If an insect eats some of my blades of grass, the carbon, oxygen or nitrogen in the leaf can be used to help the insect to grow. If a worm dies in my lawn, the hydrogen, phosphorus and sodium that made its body can be used by the plants of grass in my lawn. I don't want too many worms dying in my lawn because they help enrich the soil by aerating it and moving nutrients and minerals from down deep to the surface. I also get to see wildlife that likes to search for those worms.

Nutrients from many different sources can help plants and animals to grow. When a bird defecates a seed that has passed unharmed through its digestive system, if it lands in soil where it can grow, it will have some fertilizer because of its high nitrogen concentration.

The natural world has been recycling its building blocks for millions or years. By composting the leaves and grass clipping I will be able to return nutrients back into my ecosystem without bagged fertilizer. Of course, if I didn't have a lawn I could just let nature recycle naturally, which would also save me a lot of time and help reduce air pollution from my lawn mower.

Discuss TV Turnoff on-line

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

National TV-Turnoff Week will be observed April 24-30.

This week should be observed by those who are worried about how much TV Americans watch and those concerned about the negative effect television-watching has on health, families, communities, the environment, education and literacy.

More than one million people and 4,000 schools participated in the first TV-Turnoff in 1995, demonstrating that a solid one-week recess from television promotes family interaction, reading, volunteerism, exercise, enjoyment of nature, taking part in community affairs, thinking, creating and doing. Some three-four million are expected to participate this year.

There is a Listserv discussion group dedicated to TV-Turnoff. You will remember that PC users subscribe (free) to a Listserv group and get information or conduct discussions via E-mail. When you join a Listserv make sure you file away the instructions on how to quit the list and how to send messages.

To subscribe to TVFA-Announce, send a message to listproc@essential.org and in the body of the message type "SUBSCRIBE TVFA-ANNOUNCE yourfirstname yourlastname".

This list is moderated by Monte Burke, campaign organizer for TV- Free America. Subscribers will get information on how to become actively involved in the National TV-Turnoff Week and TV-Free America, get articles from TVFA publications and national news stories about the program, and can have access to lists of studies, recommended reading, facts and statistics about TV.

Climbing Everest

A South African team on March 13 started its efforts to climb Mount Everest. This is not only the first attempt by a South African team but is a high-tech expedition.

Satellite and computer technology will combine with the World Wide Web to allow the world to follow in the footsteps of the six-person team as they make their final assault on the world's highest peak.

Kodak digital cameras will provide the latest images from the Himalayas and computer equipment donated by Apple Computers, especially tested at altitudes of 30,000 feet, will allow the climbers to communicate with the base camp, journalists, and the Internet public.

You can check in on the climb by pointing to http://www.web.co.za/everest/. The public will be able to "talk to the climbers" as the ascend the freezing slopes of Everest and climbing fans can participate in the site's discussion forum. The site contains a wealth of information about the expedition and about Everest and the ecology of the Himalayas plus links to other expedition sites on the Net.

The site will be updated regularly with direct feeds from the climbers and with contributions from journalists and photographers at base camp.

A Spoof Site

Someone has gone to a lot of trouble to create a spoof site of the White House Web site. The official site is at http://www.whitehouse.gov and the spoof site is at http://www.whitehouse.net.

The two sites are similar but upon close examination a visitor will notice an occasional mildly humorous link at the spoof. If you "reload" the fake site, you will get different versions of the fake site.

When I visited there was one link that read "Vote '96, Political Campaigns: Four More Years" and another "Why?: Because we like you" and a link on the parody site was "Presidential Pastimes: The President hits a homerun everytime at bat."

Another page led off with this information: "The Executive Office of the President includes senior policy advisors and offices responsible for the President's correspondence and communications, the Office of the Vice President, the Office of the First Lady, as well as the Office of Mrs. Gore. That page encouraged visitors to send mail to 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., Annandale, VA 22003.

Earlier there reportedly was a link to the Gennifer Flowers' book homepage at http://wwwnt.thegroup.net/flowers.htm and another link replaced pictures of Clinton and Gore with a photo of Beavis and Butthead. This was one of several links to the real White House page.

The White House was said to be upset by the spoof site as someone might confuse the two, but had no plans to do anything about it.

In closing, my source of information on the spoof site has an interesting slogan as part of his signature: "A rumor without a leg to stand on will get around some other way."

GARDEN SPOT

Garden books offer wealth of ideas

MARTY FIGLEY

"Taylor's Guide to Container Gardening" is another excellent publication in the series, as is their revised edition of "Roses" (both Houghton Mifflin, $19.95 each).

In "Container Gardening," nearly 200 plants are described as suitable for container gardening, how to use them in the landscape, care for them, start from seeds, etc. Suitable containers are discussed as well. "Roses" is a guide to 400 roses selected for American gardens. This revised edition includes more than 100 new varieties. All phases of growing and caring for the plants are clearly explained.

In both books the color photos clearly illustrate; contributing authors are tops in their field.

Two books in a new series based on the four-volume Royal Horticultural Society Dictionary of Gardening will allow affordable information with expert advice. "Manual of Grasses," consulting editor Rick Darke, and "Manual of Climbers and Wall Plants," consulting editor J.K. Burras (both Timber Press, $39.95 each), include all the material found in the RHS Dictionary, as well as additional information.

Darke, Longwood's curator of plants, explains the history of grasses and gives a very understandable account of their general care. This introduction is followed by the encyclopedic listings. Burras, superintendent of the Oxford Botanic Garden, also shares his expert advice. Both books are superbly illustrated with line drawings. Serious gardeners and growers will find much useful information.

Two small softcover books in the For Your Garden series, "City Gardens" and "Arbors and Trellises," Warren Schultz (Little, Brown, $12.95 each), are filled with lovely photos to illustrate their focus. Schultz accompanies the photos with explanations that will inspire the gardener to try something new, different and perhaps dramatic.

If you're having a time deciding just what to grow on a difficult site such as windy, shady, stony, "Plants for Problem Places," Graham Rice (TImber Press, $19.95), now in paperback, will help. Rice describes 13 garden locations and their specific problems, then suggests suitable trees, shrubs, climbers, annuals and perennials for each.

"The Best of the Hardiest," Third Edition, John Sabuco (Plantmen's Publications, $29.95, soft) is encyclopedic in format but very "readable." The many plants listed are hardy to 20 degrees Fahrenheit or colder and include trees, shrubs, groundcovers, ferns, grasses, cacti and bulbs. Featured is a chapter on the climate and its effect on winter adaptability, plus cultural information. To order, write Plantsmen's Publications, P.O. Box 1, Flossmoor, Ill. 60422. Add $3 shipping and handling.

In "Winning at Flower Shows" (Fulcrum, $17.95), Jack Kramer gives the "scoop" on growing and showing. He suggests which plants to show and how to care for them before and during, and tells about requirements for judging. Shows are listed throughout the United States. Included are addresses of many plant societies. Good solid information.

"Grow It Indoors: How to Make Houseplants Thrive," Richard Langer (Stackpole, $16.95, soft), covers all the basics of plant care, form soils, water requirements, light and houseplant cycles. He describes houseplants from those that need dry conditions to those that require a humid location -- more than 250 plants. Line drawings help explain particular techniques. It's not colorful, but it's most informative.

The Brooklyn Botanic Garden's two new books, "Butterfly Gardens: Luring Nature's Loveliest Pollinators to Your Yard," guest editor Alcinda Lewis, and "Salad Gardens: Gourmet Greens and Beyond," guest editor Karan Davis Cutler ($6.95 each), are available at your local bookseller.

"Butterfly Gardens" illustrates with color photos and describes many commonly found butterflies and flowers that they prefer. A list of butterfly plants by region is a plus. "Salad Gardens" features growing tips and designs for the gardens, from the familiar greens to more exotic ones. Salad vegetables are included as are herbs and edible flowers. A chapter about seed sprouting is a nice addition. Seed sources for the unusual are helpful.

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

Here's how to get mower in shape

JOE GAGNON

In my research for information in this column I traveled the distance as far away as my own garage and to my good friend Gary Gray's house. If there was ever anybody in this world who would remind you of that television character it has to be my good friend. He owns everything there is for yard care and tools. I left him and went over to my neighbors the Herrimans who have the most beautiful back yard in the world. Naturally, I tell everyone who visits it is my back yard. Mr. Herriman is about to take classes and apply for a classification as master gardener. You can imagine how nice our back yard looks. From these stops I would like to give you some good old fashioned advice on yard tools and equipment.

Are you aware that it is against the law to deface a ladder? You can not drill a hole or put a sticker on a ladder. You can not paint a ladder or do anything that may cause or hide a stress crack against code.

Lawn tools such as weed wackers, trimmers, etc. work under extreme dirt conditions and should be cleaned after each operation. I have a leaf blower which I use to dry out these products after I put a garden hose to them after each use. I also use the recommended extension cords described in the owners manual of each electrical product. Using two cords instead of one is sometimes a sure way to destroy a product. I would say that the cleanliness of yard and garden products is the biggest factor to the long life of the product.

Last year, after living in a condo for many years, I moved into a house which has a responsibility called yard care. Being that I play hockey two nights a week during the winter months with little exercise in the summer, I purchased a used push type lawnmower for the yard care responsibility. I removed the four wheels and tightened the bearings making the wheels harder to turn. With the extra effort now needed to push this mower across the lawn I created beads of moisture across my forehead the size of large raindrops. I'm sure the folks who walked by and stopped to chat thought, "This old guy is so outta shape, he's going to drop dead cutting his grass."

I removed the blade of this used lawnmower and had it sharpened and purchased an extra one along the way. I wanted to make sure the blade was secured properly and I know that a dull blade on a lawnmower can really hurt a good looking lawn. A blade that comes off during operation can cause some rip roaring damage as well. I removed the foam type filter around the carburetor and cleaned it with dishwasher detergent and hot water. I used my brand new leaf blower to dry it. I installed a new recommended spark plug and made sure the connector was tight fitting and wouldn't fall off from vibration. I sprayed all cables and linkages which move with a light oil.

Last year, at the end of the lawn season, I ran the mower until the fuel tank was empty. Old gas will produce a varnish type coating which can cause engine and carburetor problems. I then did the most important thing you can do for any small engine, I changed the oil, and it is always best to do this before the winter arrives. The old oil has contaminates in it which can cause damage to engine parts during the off period. It is best to do this when the oil is warm and please make sure you are using the recommended oil as described in the owners manual. Most oil filling stations will dispose of the old oil for you.

As with any consumer product, if you take care of it, it will take care of you. A little maintenance on your yard helpers today will allow you to enjoy your summer season with the least amount of aggravation. Now would also be a good time to properly prepare your winter helpers for summer storage. Give the snow thrower, snow mobile and fishing auger a little TLC now, and you will appreciate them next winter when they start up on the first crank. Like a good neighbor, the Appliance Doctor is here.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM. He is author of "First Aid from the Appliance Doctor," available at area bookstores.

COVER STORY

WAKE TO THE SOUND OF BIRDS - GIVE THEM A HOME

STORY BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Hmm-hmm!: To attract hummingbirds, make a fresh solution of nectar from four parts water and one part sugar, then boil.

Spring is the season when birds begin returning to Michigan yards. Feeding birds and watching them tend their young ranks as one of the most enjoyable spring spectator sports next to baseball.

Did you know cardinals feed each other seed as part of their courtship ritual? Watching this rite of spring as well as other behavioral manners are yours for the asking when you invite birds into your yard. Whether you live in a house, apartment, condominium or even within an urban setting, a small oasis of food, water and greenery has the potential of becoming home to a number of feathered friends.

Attracting birds to your yard takes time and planning to provide the necessary elements for survival. The ongoing destruction of habitat forces birds to spend much of their time searching for food, water, housing and shelter in a comfortable and protected environment. The rewards of supplementing these requirements are many.

"Watching the birds is relaxing, entertaining and educational. The kids love it too but whatever location you choose make sure there's no place around the bird feeder and bird baths, a cat can hide and pounce," said Chris Gardner, owner of Wild Birds Unlimited in Rochester Hills.

Gardner loves watching the chickadees, goldfinches, hummingbirds, and red-bellied woodpeckers that visit her Bloomfield Township backyard. To encourage nesting she has placed a couple of small chickadee/wren houses as well as several well-stocked feeders around her yard. Leave the decorative bird houses inside. Birds prefer a natural looking home of rustic wood.

"Houses should be well-vented with the right size cavity so they don't waste energy filling it with materials. Birds spend a lot of time looking for nesting materials. To help them out take dryer lint and dog hair and place it on a branch. Also, pieces of yarn and mud for robins."

Nothing is more attactive to birds than a safe, shallow and clean supply of water. Develop a water source such as a garden pond or bird bath, preferably with moving water. These focal points not only look good but provide the necessities of life for drinking and bathing.

"Bird baths should not be deeper than two inches with a gradual slope, and slightly deeper for robins. Robins with all their splashing will empty out a bird bath in no time. It's also important to move the water. The sound of moving water brings them in. Use a dripper attached to a garden hose."

Plant preferred flowering and seed producing food plants as well as shurbs and trees for shelter.

Attracting a Diversity of Birds

Backyard Birds in Plymouth stocks more than 40 styles of bird houses and nesting boxes for every type of bird from purple martins, who live in colonies, to wood ducks and owls. Most nesting boxes don't have perches because sparrows will dominate the boxes. Because birds are so busy building nests in spring, their main desire is to find a dependable food source. Food supplies have dwindled by March and flowering plants and bushes won't produce nectar, berries and seeds until sometime in June, and many not until later in fall and winter. The guests attracted to your feeder depends on the type of seed with which it's filled.

Learn who's visiting your yard by reading one of the popular guides like "Peterson's Field Guide to Eastern Birds." Educational tours for children after hours at Backyard Birds in Plymouth helps children learn about birds and avoid misconceptions.

"Corn attracts grackles who eat baby chickadees," said Gary Phillips, owner of Backyard Birds in Plymouth, a retailer of more than 25 different types of seed.

"Pure sunflower hearts are for people living in condos or apartments because there's less mess. Oilers are for songbirds like goldfinch. Blue jays look for safflower. Avoid seed with fillers. To attract birds, you need fresh bird seed without fillers. Birds don't like fillers like milo. Mice like milo."

Phillips offers the birds and 10 squirrels visiting his Farmington yard a variety of feeders as well as a bird bath. Because he has been feeding birds for more than 20 years, Phillips is a wealth of information.

"Birds do everything by sight and smell. When a cardinal spots a feeder filled with oilers and striped sunflower seed if it's old or hasn't been cleaned in sometime he's out of there," he said.

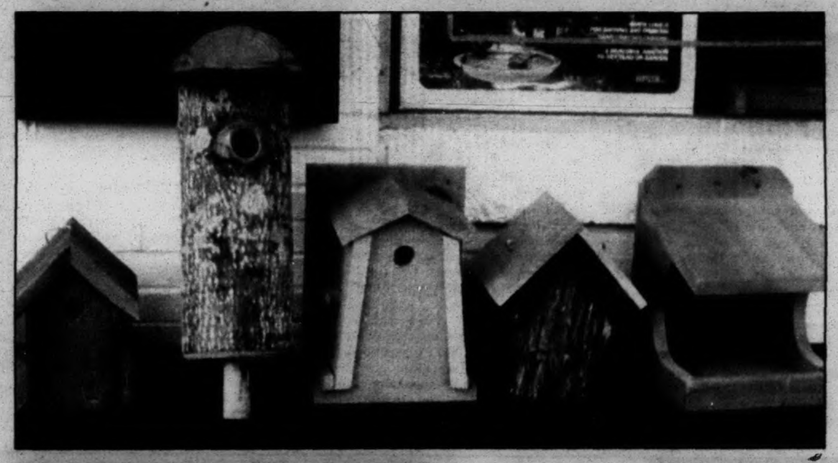

The favorite style of feeder in the Livonia and Plymouth area is made of cedar, Phillips said. Chap's Feed Store in Livonia sells more than 100 different styles of feeders in season.

"There's everything from platform feeders to giant feeders which hold up to 25 pounds of seed. There are even peanut feeders that discourage starlings because they bring their 39 buddies with them, and squirrel feeders to discourage the furry critters from raiding the bird feeder. It's what meets your needs whether it's something for your child's first feeder or sand blasted etchings on an art glass hummingbird feeder by Schrodt, there's something for everyone," Phillips said.

"We are the only hope these birds have. If there are no more forests, then this is where they live in our yards. I've found that this is a consumer driven business for nature lovers. There's a deep love for the animal kingdom in this area."

Audra Ribar loves all of the animals, even the squirrels some people try so hard to discourage from visiting their yards. She invites birds and squirrels to her Plymouth yard by offering a number of feeders, including a squirrel feeder, and two bird baths.

"It's so much fun to see the variety of birds and squirrels. I just enjoy watching the juncos, woodpeckers, house finches, chickadees and nuthatches. My sister in Canton has a window feeder, the kids get a kick out of."

For the birds: Don't forget to add a birdbath or garden pond. Birds need water not only to drink, but to keep their feathers clean.

On the cover: Birdhouses come in a variety of shapes and sizes, depending on the species. It's up to you what birds you want to attract to your yard.

LET'S REMODEL

Inspection is part of the process

Q: I went through the proper channels in hiring a good contractor to do a master bed and bath addition. Several times the inspector has come during the job and the work has failed inspection. What is the contractor doing wrong?

A: Probably nothing. To understand why your project might fail inspection, it is first necessary to understand the many factors involved. Building codes are complex laws enacted by government, establishing basic standards for construction to protect the health and safety of its citizens.

Building inspectors are responsible for maintaining those standards. Besides the basic building code that deals primarily with the structure (foundation, walls, floors, roof etc.) there are separate codes that deal with specific systems plumbing, heating,electrical, etc.).

Codes vary from state to state, and even, from city to city. Codes, like other laws, are subject to interpretation by the inspectors charged with enforcing them. Again, these interpretations also vary from city to city, and even among inspectors within the same department.

NARI MICHIGAN REMODELING ASSOCIATION

Codes constantly evolve as new materials are introduced and better designs are conceived. To further complicate matters, different aspects of the codes are affected by specific conditions that vary from job to job.

This is especially true in remodeling, when a contractor is trying to marry materials and methods of installation from two different eras. Often the materials used in the original building are no longer available, and sometimes conflicts occur when existing construction does not meet the current code. Is it any wonder then, that inspections don't always pass the first time?

As a responsible consumer, you did your homework and selected a good contractor. The building inspector, with his or her extensive training, did their job, and the system, designed to protect everyone, worked perfectly. As a professional remodeler, I don't mind failing an inspection from time to time _ I always learn something new and valuable. I view the building inspector as a member of my team, helping me do a better job.

John Baker, Owner of the House Mechanic, Leonard, 1-800-98-HOUSE.

Q: We're considering an island in our kitchen. Do you have suggestions for purpose and design.

A: The trend of the sixties and seventies to move the kitchen table out of the workspace has finally taken an about face in today's kitchen. We are finding that most of our customers miss the gatherings of friends and family around all of the action.

Center islands have become one solution to fit a more active lifestyle. Moms and dads can prepare dinner on one side while children can play or get their homework questions answered on the other.

Their storage needs can be met, as well as the cooks needs, with a well-thought-out and beautiful cabinet system. Angles are used more than ever to direct traffic and make them easier to manuever around. Unique and space saving accessories are incorporated to fit the needs of the user instead of the cookie cutter kitchen plans of past that said everyone lives the same way.

INVITING IDEAS

Experience Le Cordon Bleu at home

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

Billy Wilder's classic 1954 film "Sabrina," starring Audrey Hepburn and Humphrey Bogart, portrayed a young, lovesick chauffeur's daughter sent off to Paris to gain position and style, where she was sent to Le Cordon Bleu to learn how to whisk eggs!

This "Blue Ribbon" at 8 rue Leon-Delhomme has continued its commitment to excellence for 100 years. Le Cordon Bleu is more than a cooking school; it is an institution devoted to the promotion and preservation of fine art — the art of French cooking. For more information on Le Cordon Bleu, call 1-(800)-457-CHEF.

Wouldn't every kitchen novice like to have Audrey Hepburn's experience. Well if that's not possible, do a Le Cordon Bleu adventure at home.

Plan your evening as an instructional event or elegant dinner. The choice is yours. If you're planning a cooking class with dinner to follow — prepare your ingredients and equipment. Decide if you want guests to participate in the cooking.

If you choose to have an elegant evening instead, use candles for lighting, adorn your table with beautiful linen, use your best china, add cloth napkins, and create a centerpiece out of fresh cut flowers.

This recipe comes from the "Le Cordon Bleu Classic French Cookbook," published by Doring Kindersley in 1994, 100 recipes for 100 years. This one is an elegant and savory dish — perfect for special guests. I would add a mixed field green salad with a creamy dressing, crusty French bread and a sinfully delicious dessert.

RIB STEAKS PROVENCAL STYLE

6 boneless rib steaks, each weighing 5 ounces
Salt and freshly ground pepper to taste
1 1/2 pounds potatoes
1/2 cup vegetable oil
24 cherry tomatoes, peeled
3 tablespoons strong mustard
Ingredients for the sauce:
1 cup Madeira
1 1/4 cup veal stock
1/2 bunch thyme
3 tablespoons butter
Ingredients for vegetable compote:
1/2 pound onions, diced
A little olive oil
1 red pepper, cored, seeded and cut into small dice
1 yellow pepper, cored, seeded and cut into small dice
1 green pepper, cored, seeded and cut into small dice
3/4 pound zucchini, cut into small dice
4 tomatoes, cored — plunged into boiling water for 10-30 seconds, then plunged into cold water, peeled, sliced and chopped into small dice
2 garlic cloves (finely chopped)
Bouquet garni (your choice of herbs wrapped in a muslin bag or tea strainer)

Trim and season the steaks; set aside. Cut the potatoes into parisienne (peel the potatoes, use a melon baller to cut them into even-sized balls). Cook the potato balls in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain well and dry thoroughly.

Saute the potato balls in 3 tablespoons of hot oil until golden. Keep the potatoes warm.

Make the vegetable compote: cook the onions gently in a little olive oil until soft and tender. Add the pepper and zucchini dice to the onions, mix in a little more olive oil, and cook until the peppers are just tender. Season and add the tomatoes, the garlic, and the bouquet garni. Cook over low heat for 10 minutes, or until all the vegetables are tender.

Make the sauce: Boil the Madeira until reduced. Add the veal stock and reduce until syrupy. Whisk in the butter, cut into small pieces, to thicken the sauce slightly. Add the thyme leaves and keep the sauce warm.

Heat the cherry tomatoes in a steamer.

Heat the remaining oil in a pan and saute the steaks until well browned on both sides. They should be slightly rare in the center. Cover the steaks with mustard.

Spoon some vegetable compote in the center of each plate and set a steak on top. Surround with a ring of sauce and garnish with the potatoes and cherry tomatoes. Serve immediately. Serves 6.

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

Spring into photo action

MONTE NAGLER

It's often said in spring that "a young man's fancy turns to love." Well, springtime is one of the best times for your fancy to turn to photography. For spring is one of the most exciting times for capturing images on film.

Springtime is usually marked by changeable weather, which will reward you with impact-filled shots if you're alert. It can be raining one minute, then suddenly the sky will clear andthe sun will burst through. This moment offers you excellent photographic opportunities: wet pavement, water droplets clinging to a flower, raindrops trickling down a window, or even a rainbow itself.

Be on the lookout for trees silhouetted against a receding storm cloud as emerging sunbeams highlight the branches. This is perhaps one of the most dramatic scenes you'll see through the viewfinder.

Flowers are, of course, associated with spring, but few people manage to successfully get them on film. They tend to point the camera quickly and shoot. Without careful composition and attention to depth-of-field, the results can be disappointing.

First, get down low, on the flower's level, concentrate your viewfinder on just a few blossoms, maybe even one, and move in close. A tripod will help to steady the camera. Remember, the closer you get to your subject, the more you'll "lose" depth-of-field, and the more you may want a small aperture.

One of the most common errors in photographing flowers is a distracting background. Use a small piece of black cardboard or cloth behind the flowers and you'll be amazed at the difference in your results. As in most photography, try to shoot flowers in the early morning or late afternoon so that the crosslighting will highlight the color and texture of the petals. If using slide film, underexpose slightly so to deepen and enrich the colors.

How about photogrpahing the progression of spring? A series of pictures of a lone tree in your back yard as it gets progressively thicker and thicker with darker and darker leaves will produce an exciting picture story.

Don't overlook other springtime photographic possibilities, too. Festivals and celebrations are usually in abundance. People become more active in spring both at work and leisure, so look for picture potential here.So "spring" you and your camera into action at springtime. You'll be glad you did!

Ageless energy drives builder

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

H. Fred Campbell, a developer/builder, likes to show off a couple of ideas for speculative projects he has on drawing boards in his Southfield office.

One is a warehouse over a contamination site in Dearborn. Another is for an office/apartments/parking structure on land he owns across the street from Orchestra Hall in Detroit.

Campbell also shows off a brochure for Monterey Estates, a residential subdivision he developed on Belleville Lake.

Then there's the patents. He has nearly a dozen and is always looking for better ways to put things together.

What's especially amazing about all of Campbell's activity is that he will be 90 years old this month. The Bloomfield Hills resident has no plans to slow down.

"In the first place, I can't sit around doing nothing," Campbell said. "Then, I don't become a barnacle on the ship of life. I've been fortunate with good health. I'm enthusiastic and I stay enthusiastic. My motivation is contributing to my chosen field."

That he has.

Campbell said his company has designed or built hundreds of manufacturing, industrial and office buildings.

Some of the more recognizable are Robbins Executive Park in Troy, the Ford Parts Distribution Center in Redford, the UAW Conference Center at Black Lake and Gar Wood Industries in Wayne.

Yet, ask Campbell about his most memorable building accomplishment and it's one in which he played a behind-the-scenes rather than direct role.

"Saving Orchestra Hall was one of my biggest ones," he said. "I saw that it got done. It was a contribution to the city."

Campbell said his company provided the salary for a secretary to coordinate activities of the original Save Orchestra Hall movement. From there, the project snowballed.

Campbell fondly looks back at the challenge of attaching three Lord & Taylor stores to existing malls at Eastland, Westland and Twelve Oaks.

"They all had to be done at the same time," he said. "It takes a lot out of you."

Campbell, who shows up at the office every day, has covered a lot of ground over the years.

The first job he remembers is hauling bricks up ladders on construction sites.

He's also sold lots to individuals for home construction, worked as an architectural draftsman, built dozens of gas stations and physically relocated buildings when major streets in Detroit were widened during the Depression.

Tough times made a big impression on Campbell, who started on his own in 1929 after collaborating with an uncle.

"Competition was so tight," he recalled. "You could take your scrap from a project in a wheelbarrow. That's how I learned to estimate so closely. Jobs were won and lost by $10."

JERRY ZOLINSKY/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Going strong: H. Fred Campbell, who started his own construction company in 1929, refuses to bow to time.

The growth of the auto industry was very good to Campbell. A solid reputation - building better, faster, for less was his calling card - gained plenty of referrals.

A natural curiosity and good business judgment helped overcome a lack of formal education.

"I learned practically by just doing it and hiring good people who became my tutors," Campbell said. "I had the best engineers, the best architects."

Donald C. Templin worked for Campbell during the 1970s, starting as an engineer and rising to president.

"He's a very intelligent person," Templin said. "He was very persistent. He had a wide range of experiences.

"He did warehouse after warehouse. He had developed a system that allowed him to develop a better building for less cost.

"Fred was a very disciplined person, himself," Templin added. "He'd eat lunch at the DAC or Dearborn Country Club. When he walked into the dining room, they brought him a pad of paper and pencil immediately. You knew it when you had a business lunch."

'In the first place, I can't sit around doing nothing. Then, I don't become a barnacle on the ship of life. I've been fortunate with good health. I'm enthusiastic and I stay enthusiastic. My motivation is contributing to my chosen field.'

H. Fred Campbell
builder

Geraldine, Campbell's wife of 14 years, acknowledges that her husband is a self-starter.

"I suppose it's a God-given drive," she said. "He's not a greedy man. It's not money. He loves working. Not the aggravation but the fun part of going to the office and doing what you do there. He loves accomplishing. He's just a worker."

Jim Trebilcott has been a friend of Campbell for years.

"He's got eternal energy - no question about that," Trebilcott said. "Fred's always got an interest in something new, something different. He's always looking forward. He says he'll never retire and I believe that."

Campbell bowls regularly and plays bridge. He can be found at the speaker's table at most luncheon meetings of the Detroit Economic Club.

"How do I keep up?" he said. "I'm a workaholic. I'm always looking for a better way to build a building."

Before you rent you should have legal counsel

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q: I read a recent real estate query which responded to an inquiry from a rental property owner about cheap legal services.

I have represented tenants over a good part of my legal career, which gives me a good perspective of both sides of the transaction.

In addition, I own a small summer rental property. Landlords who have neglected to comply with various statutes governing landlord/tenant relationships have often lamented that they simply don't know the law, which implicitly means that they should be excused from knowing the law.

My response is that anyone in the business of renting residential property ought to know the laws pertaining to that business. Perhaps you ought to address the value of obtaining legal counsel before one undertakes residential rental activities and the wisdom of spending a relatively small sum to avoid much larger consequences later.

A: As you point out in your letter to me, in our field, as in most fields, you usually get what you pay for. There are no free lunches and one who engages in commercial transactions such as residential real estate property transactions should be cognizant of the legal ramifications of what they do from whatever perspective they may be positioned.

While there are various agencies which can provide persons with limited economic means with reduced fee or free legal advice, it is important that anyone who contemplates entering into a landlord/tenant relationship or any other type of legal obligation should consult with an experienced and knowledgeable attorney who can provide the insight and avoid potential costly errors saving the person potentially thousands of dollars.

Q: With the advent of the new small size in satellite dishes, does our community association still have the right to ban satellite dishes which are specifically prohibited in the documents.

A: More than likely it does. Generally the prohibitions on satellites does not address the issue of size, but merely the "evil" of satellites. Before an association can move forward in the age of technology, it must amend its documents to provide that the smaller and certainly less objectionable satellites are permitted.

Failure to address the issue of the size of the satellite provisions leaves the association with no alternative but to enforce the satellite provisions based on certain cases reported at a Community Associations Institute Law Seminar which this author attended in San Diego, Calif. Courts have reasoned that the fact an exterior satellite dish is hidden does not "remove the fact that a violation exists, however concealed, and that in a private agreement, as extinguished from a criminal situation, the Court may not impose its view on what may be reasonable, contrary to the agreement of the parties, or contrary to exercise of good faith by the association."

Common questions on home financing

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID C. MULLY

Some questions to ask to get needed information on the best mortgage for your situation.

Q: How do I make sure I get the lowest rate possible?

A: You should request information from a variety of banks and mortgage companies. Keep in mind that, as with any financial decision, searching for the best price is only the starting point in comparison shopping. Low rates combined with unfavorable or inflexible terms can result in added costs rather than savings. Before making an application, be sure to compare the lenders' answers to the following questions:

- Will you have to pay points or closing costs?
- What is the exact breakdown of the closing costs?
- Can you lock the interest rate and, if so, is there a fee to lock the interest rate?
- What happens if the rates move between the time you apply and the time you close?
- Is there a prepayment penalty on your loan?

Q: What are no-closing cost mortgages and are they always the best choice?

A: With no-closing cost mortgages, the borrower does not pay closing costs. This can result in large savings when the loan is initiated. However, the interest rate on a no-closing cost loan will be higher than the rate on a mortgage with closing costs. After a certain number of years, the additional interest you will have paid may exceed the amount you initially saved by not paying closing costs. No-closing cost loans may be a good choice if you have limited amount of cash available, if you have recently refinanced, or are planning to move within a few years.

Q: My current loan has been sold several times to different lenders. Is there any way I can make sure my new mortgage will not be sold?

A: The vast majority of loans are sold on the secondary market. The largest buyer is the federally chartered Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae). The real issue is whether the lender will sell the servicing of your mortgage. Disclosures required of almost all lenders selling in the secondary market will help determine the following:

- Whether the lender is able to service your loan or whether they plan to assign, transfer or sell the servicing.
- The lender's best estimate of the percentage of loans they are likely to transfer over the next 12 months.
- The percentage of loans which the lender has originated and then transferred in the past.

Q: Can you explain some of the advantages and disadvantages of the basic loan types?

A: Sure. Here's some information on common loans.

30-year fixed rate loans have low monthly payments. It's easier to qualify and budget for the loan. There is slower equity build-up however. Tax write-offs in the early years may partly offset large interest payments.

20-year fixed rate loans are predictable with low monthly payments. They have lower interest rates and larger interest savings but higher monthly payments than 30-year mortgages.

7/23 balloon loans offer low monthly payments with lower interest than the above programs. The loan is amortized on a 30-year schedule but must be refinanced at the end of the seventh year. 5/25 A.R.M. and 7/23 A.R.M. loans have low monthly payments and interest rates. The loan is amortized on a 30-year schedule. There is a one time adjustment after the fifth or seventh year, with a maximum increase of 6 percent above the initial rate.

The Winning Edge
by Roger Hempel

Interviewing: According To The Law

Many of today's national employment laws (Title VII) were prompted by abuses involving discrimination in hiring practices. It could not be legislated away, but they had to draw a line in the sand. Walking that line! That's what many employers are doing, when they interview candidates for an open position. It is a very thin line and you should be aware of the government's interpretation of those laws. The two main sets of laws that employers must deal with are the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) legislation.

By law, an interviewer can NOT legally ask you the following questions:

- Age (except that you are over 18 and less than their mandatory retirement age)
- Height and Weight (During the interview, the interviewers can make their own assessment of your possible physical limitations.)
- Maiden Name (They may ask if you have ever worked for the company under a different name.)
- Married, Single, Divorced or Widowed
- Spouse's Occupation (with the exception of whether your spouse is an employee of the company and could have an influence on the reporting hierarchy)
- Number of Children and Their Ages (They also may not ask if you plan on having any children or if you are presently pregnant.)
- Place of Birth (They may ask if you are a U.S. citizen or a resident alien with permission to work in the U.S.)
- Native Language (They may ask level of fluency of a language, if it is pertinent to the position for which you are applying.)
- Religion (They may state that the position requires Saturday working hours and ask if that would be a problem for you.)
- Have You Been Arrested (They may request a background check for security reasons, if it is related to the position.)
- Have You Been Hospitalized.

Some of these questions may still appear on very, very old application forms and technically are illegal on the form and can NOT be asked. The common way around many of these questions is a simple request of you to "Tell me about yourself?" What you volunteer about yourself is not a violation of your rights.

As you can see, many questions have exceptions that are valid in special cases. The problem that you have is, if they ask you one of these illegal questions, how do you want to answer them? Do you want to respond that it is an illegal question and that you refuse to answer? Would you go as far as to even leave the interview and threaten to contact your lawyer? Do you swallow hard and answer that question, choosing your words carefully? Do you try to change the subject? How badly do you want this position? These illegal practices are very hard to prove in a court of law and is that really where you want to spend your time and money? Interviews are not easy to come by in these very competitive times. You may find that this type of questioning will provide you with an insight into this corporation. With this in mind, even if you are extended a position, you may choose to refuse the offer!

Be aware of the illegal "non-interview"! It has been a practice of some employers to gain responses to some of these questions through other personnel in the corporation. As an example, I heard of a practice where the applicant was kept waiting in the private, outer office of the hiring manager, where a well-trained receptionist subtly asked leading questions. The only two people in the room were the applicant and this unofficial interviewer. The dead quiet and lack of reading material was used to start an apparent innocent conversation, like, "How was your weekend?" if early in the week or "Do you have plans for the weekend?" if it was later in the week. Many people would respond, telling about their home life or family. These comments would then be expanded upon to include details, along with other information about tastes and likes. Many of these questions dealt with the very types of information that the law was intended to protect. The receptionist had a very specific set of questions, for which they were trying to gain answers. Small notes were made on the responses and this fact sheet was slipped to the interviewer, when the other paperwork was handed to them, at the start of the real interview.

Is this done? Yes, but many times not as blatant as in this case. Is it illegal? If the sole purpose of that delayed entry and the informal nature of the questioning process is to establish answers to ancestry, family origin, religion, family plans, physical or age concerns and other questions that normally cannot be asked, then the answer is YES! If you have specific questions about an interview or about your rights, please contact your lawyer for details. Be knowledgeable, Be wise and Be safe!

Until next time - this is Roger ... Go out and make it a great day!

Renovated apartments convey community

Oak Village in Westland is one unique living situation.

Some 315 units in 157 duplexes provide a rental opportunity in a setting that could pass for a community of ranches built in the 1950s.

They're renovated apartments - neat and clean - that don't look like apartments.

Certified Realty of Farmington Hills, which acquired the property in February of 1995, set about weeding out tenants who had chronic problems paying rent or keeping up the units.

Certified also has continued an upgrading process to bring the duplexes, now more than 40 years old, into the 1990s.

The result is a 600-square-foot unit with two bedrooms, living room, kitchen/eating nook and full bath, plus a basement, driveway, front and rear yards and porch renting for $500 per month.

About two thirds are occupied.

"This is an unusual property," said Ron Boraks, a managing partner. "It's not your typical apartment complex. Folks that live here want the feel of their own home, their own front door, their own driveway."

"When Ron and I first saw this property," said Ron Abrams, also a managing partner and Boraks' brother-in-law, "you didn't know it was a rental property. You'd never know.

"When I showed it to my wife for the first time, her mouth dropped open," Abrams added. "She said, 'It's a neighborhood.' "

Boraks picked up on that track.

"It's a neighborhood where anyone can live. It's two single people who want to live together. It's a single parent, young marrieds who want to start a family or already have kids. It's older folks.

"You have the benefits of renting - someone else is responsible for everything in your unit," Boraks said.

Oak Village
at Glenwood and Ackley, east of Wayne Rd.

"The biggest key to tenant retention is making sure all maintenance items are taken care of immediately and people are treated as being king of the castle," Boraks said.

"Normally when you rent an apartment, you get a little storage locker in the basement," Abrams said. "It's unheard of to have a 600-square-foot basement."

"Young families have a place for their kids to play," Boraks said. "You can't get it (basement) in apartments."

Spacious yards with no fences also offer recreational opportunities, Abrams said. "It's great for kids back here."

Abrams also brought up another selling - make that leasing - point.

"We allow a small pet which is very unusual for apartments today. This is something people like," he said.

Oak Village is on Ackley and Steiber off Glenwood east of Wayne Road. Refrigerators and ovens are included.

The duplex exteriors are predominantly brick. As windows are updated to vinyl, wood trim is replaced with aluminum siding.

Interior renovations are completed as needed. Most bathrooms get tile work. Carpeting is changed. Light fixtures, duct grates, electrical plates and door knobs are replaced.

Roofs and appliances are fairly new.

Tenants pay for all of their own utilities including water and gas. The complex is serviced by city water and sewers. It's within the Wayne/Westland school boundaries.

The city snowplows the streets. Oak Village clears snow from the sidewalks and cuts the grass.

Renters are limited to four residents per unit.

Marlene and Tony Lave moved in last September.

'Here, the kids can play in the back yard. They can run around and have a good time. I think it's great.'

Carolyn Anderson
Oak Village resident

"My husband lived here (in the area)," Marlene said. "His parents are a half mile away. That's why he likes it. Stores are close by. That's why I like it. What we like best is the fact it has its own entrance. An apartment doesn't.

"I love the basement," Marlene added. "That's where all the kids' toys are. They still have the yard. That's attractive to me, also."

Carolyn and Karen Anderson, sisters, heard about Oak Village from a friend of a friend.

"It's more a neighborhood setting," Carolyn said. "You have your own driveway, your own entrance. You don't have people living above you or below you.

"When you get a regular apartment, you pay $500 to $600 for a basic two bedroom," she said. "Here, you get your own basement. It's two levels. They're perfect.

"Here, the kids can play in the back yard," Carolyn said. "They can run around and have a good time. I think it's great."

The leasing office at Oak Village, (313) 721-8111, is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday.

Housing starts take the biggest dip in a year

BY JOHN D. MCCLAIN
ASSOCIATED PRESS WRITER

WASHINGTON (AP) _ Housing starts slipped 3.9 percent in March, the steepest drop in a year, but construction activity still remained strong for the fifth straight month.

Analysts said much of the loss was in the multi-family sector and, despite rising mortgage rates, single-family housing dropped just slightly.

Some economists said the growing economy is helping offset the effects of higher rates.

"But I get nervous going forward," admitted David Lereah, an economist with the Mortgage Bankers Association. "Eventually, interest rates will win this war."

Activity was mixed regionally, rising in the Northeast and Midwest and falling in the South and West.

The Commerce Department said last week that construction of new homes and apartments totaled 1.45 million at a seasonally adjusted annual rate _ the fifth straight month above a 1.4 million rate. Last month's total was down from a revised 1.51 million in February, when the rate was initially estimated to be 1.49 million.

The drop, biggest since a 6.17 percent plunge in March 1995, was in line with analysts' expectations.

The February rate was the highest since 1.51 million in May 1994. Analysts said the 3.6 percent jump reflected builders' rush to pour foundations before rising rates priced buyers out of the market.

But many analysts believe the housing market has peaked now that financing has grown more expensive.

Thirty-year, fixed-rate mortgages averaged 7.68 percent in March, up from 7.17 percent in February and 7.03 percent in January 1996. They have continued to climb and averaged 8.05 percent last week, highest since 8.27 percent in May 1995.

The monthly payment on a $100,000 mortgage with a 7 percent interest rate is $665, while the payment on the same loan with a 8 percent rate is $734 _ a difference of $69.

An early April membership survey by the National Association of Home Builders resulted in a 60 on the organization's Housing Market Index, unchanged from March.

But while the index was flat, it remained above 50, suggesting more builders believe conditions remained good than those who describe them as poor.

"Whether this strong level of activity continues remains to be seen, considering that mortgage rates have risen more than 1 percentage point since February," said Randy Smith, the association president.

Applications for building permits, often a barometer for future activity, were virtually unchanged in March, inching up just 0.1 percent to a 1.41 million annual rate.

Interest-sensitive single-family starts, about 80 percent of residential building activity, fell 1.4 percent to a 1.16 million rate from 1.18 million in February.

Construction of apartments and condominiums, an often volatile category subject to interest-rate changes, plunged 12.7 percent to a 288,000 rate. Multi-family starts totaled a 330,000 rate in February.

Regionally, starts shot up 10.2 percent in the Northeast to a 140,000 rate, highest since 169,000 in November 1994. They rose 3.5 percent in the Midwest, to 322,000.

But they sank 16.1 percent in the West, to a 349,000 rate, the biggest drop since falling 20.7 percent in March 1995. They were down 2.3 percent in the South, to 636,000.

Ameritech offers tips on moving efficiently

CHICAGO, April 23 /PRNewswire/ -- After a long, rough Midwest winter and slow start to Spring 1996, May is a good time to begin those spring cleaning projects, dive into some outdoor activities and for many, it's the month to move. Memorial Day weekend is, in fact, one of the heaviest moving periods of the year since school is out, the weather is good and the three-day weekend gives people some extra time to complete moving.

Ameritech (NYSE: AIT) reminds movers to plan for their communications needs in advance in order to save money and avoid any inconvenience.

"We know that three out of four movers are moving locally, and their needs for telephone, fax and extra lines will change with their new location, especially if there is new construction. To ensure a seamless transition, it's important that you discuss all your needs with your phone provider before the technician arrives at your new home," said Joan Lipman, Ameritech's relocation manager.

For instance, if the home to which you're moving previously had phone service, your service can be hooked up without a service call in most cases. However, if there is more than one phone line, a service visit usually is necessary to test lines. Customers also should consider activities in and around the home that might affect phone service. If you spend a lot of time in your yard or garage, for instance, phone jacks and lines will need to be installed.

New construction also impacts telephone and cable wiring needs. Ordering new jacks during construction rather than after will save time and money. If the new location requires wiring for telephone service, Ameritech provides telephone service to the Network Interface - the gray box located on the outside of the home at no charge. The internal wiring, however, needs to be connected to that Interface and is the responsibility of the homeowner.

This year has already proven to be solid in terms of housing sales and relocation activity, despite the severe winter weather. The National Association of Realtors reports the housing market is on the rise with home resale activity increasing in every region throughout the country last month. "Existing-home sales increased 6.5 percent," said Art Godi, president of the National Association of Realtors. "The Midwest has been the steadiest market during the 90's when strong price increases resulted from a boost in the trade up market and strong local economies," he said.

More than 45 million Americans move annually. Ameritech expects approximately 3 million people to move in their Midwest region - Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Wisconsin.

The moving season begins in earnest Memorial Day weekend and culminates on Labor Day weekend.

Ameritech, one of the world's largest communications companies, helps than 13 million customers keep in touch. The company provides a wide array of local phone, data and video services in Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio and Wisconsin. Ameritech is creating dozens of new information, entertainment and interactive services for homes, businesses and governments around the world.

Also one of the world's leading wireless companies, Ameritech serves more than 1.9 million cellular and 750,000 paging customers, and holds cellular interests in China, Norway and Poland. Ameritech owns interests in telephone companies in New Zealand and Hungary and in business directories in Germany and other countries. Nearly 1 million investors hold Ameritech (NYSE: AIT) shares.

ments. Gather valuable personal papers and put them in one place. Arrange to transfer bank accounts.

Assess new home security needs and/or transfer existing security monitoring to new address. In your new home, consider replacing all locks, installing deadbolts on doors leading outside and adding a security system.

According to FBI statistics, a home with a professionally installed security system is 15 times less likely to be burglarized than a home without a security system.

Make sure your new home has smoke detectors. The National Fire Protection Association recommends that one be installed outside each bedroom, and on all levels of your home. Smoke alarms connected to a professionally monitored security system provide the maximum protection against harm from fire. They sound an alarm, alert you to potential danger and automatically send a signal to dispatch the fire department.

Make arrangements to disconnect your current phone service and place an order to start your new service. Include your home office telephone service too. Disconnections take place any time after midnight on the date specified.

When you call your local phone company, have some basic information handy, such as address, previous telephone number and location, credit information, a number where you can be reached and your choice of long distance company.

Arrange to have appliances and utilities, like gas and electric service disconnected in your old residence. Arrange hookups in your new home.

•At 1 week

Pack everything except essential items. If the movers will be packing for you, group the items you want packed together.

Empty your safety deposit box.

Discontinue delivery services, like newspapers and magazines.

Pack your telephone directories and bring them along to your new house.

Make sure you know what your choice is for cable service and make arrangements for reconnection or new service.

•Moving Day

Be there when the driver arrives and stay until the moving crew leaves.

Carefully read the inventory and bill of lading before you sign it. Keep your copies in a safe place.

Before the moving van leaves, walk through the house to make sure nothing has been left behind.

On the scheduled installation date for phone service, make sure your telephones are plugged in so the lines can be tested.

Furniture sales in spring doldrums

BY PAUL NOWELL
AP BUSINESS WRITER

The signs are not pointing to a prosperous spring furniture market in High Point as debt-ridden consumers continue to stay away from furniture stores.

"The consumer is overextended," said industry analyst Jerry Epperson. "Debt is as high as it was prior to the 1989 recession."

That's not what manufacturers like to hear on the eve of the International Home Furnishings Market, which is running this week.

The good news is that there has been some recent improvement at the cash registers, with some retailers reporting better sales in February and March after a slow winter.

"High-end furniture is doing reasonably well and there's been a pickup in the ultra low-end," Epperson said. "The problem is with the middle-price points. These products are dependent on credit and they seem to be hurting the most."

About 70,000 people attend the semiannual trade show, which draws buyers from all 50 states and 85 foreign countries to the small North Carolina city.

The furniture market is very important to the region, pumping more than $200 million annually into the area's economy. Buyers, dealers and other visitors patronize hotels, restaurants and shops as far away as Greensboro and Winston-Salem.

Orders written by furniture buyers also are harbingers of things to come over the next few months for the industry. About 60 percent of all American furniture is made within a 200-mile radius of High Point.

After three solid years of growth, furniture sales slumped after the Federal Reserve Bank began to tighten credit in 1994. That slowed housing sales in early 1995, which in turn hurt furniture sales.

While housing has regained some strength, the furniture business has yet to recover.

"It hasn't been terribly fun for the people in the industry," said analyst Bill Bavin, who follows furniture for Ferris, Baker Watts Inc. in Baltimore.

A number of factors are pulling down the furniture industry's profits, he said.

"Consumer sentiment is not as strong as it could be could be," he said. "Obviously, retailers would like people to be buying more."

Many people who took advantage of low mortgage rates in 1995 to buy a new house should now be in the position to start looking for furniture, Bavin said.

"Many of them have had their houses for a year and they now might want to furnish them a little better," he said.

The problem many consumers are carrying high balances on their credit cards. Until they can pay them off, they won't be making any trips to the local furniture store.

Epperson said the low point came right after Christmas.

"December and January were terrible months," he said. "It got better in February and March was a little better."

He attributed the drop in sales to the fact that many bargain-hungry shoppers waited until the last minute to buy Christmas gifts. That hurt spending on durables like cars, appliances and furniture.

Despite their concerns, both analysts showed some optimism.

"The premarket 30 days ago was pretty encouraging," Epperson said. "I don't know if it will flow through the market itself. But it was a lot stronger than I would have expected."

Manufacturers and retailers are hoping for pent-up consumer demand to let loose, Bavin said.

"Everybody seems to keep waiting for it to happen," he said.
