Leaders ponder future needs

Plymouth-area community leaders are spearheading an effort to plan for the future through an initiative called "Plymouth Vision 2020." The public will be asked for input this fall.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

To head off problems and meet the needs of residents, community government and business leaders want to start some serious planning.

"Plymouth Vision 2020" is the name for the planning effort headed by the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce. After one meeting, the group agrees a public meeting – probably in October at the Plymouth Cultural Center – would be a good way to find out what problems and goals need to be addressed.

Realtor Pat Pulkownik is chairwoman of the group, which so far includes city and township government leaders, school officials and business people.

"The chamber board of directors came up with the idea we needed to look 20 to 25 years in the future and see what we want this whole Plymouth community to look like, so we can avoid some of the errors of the past," Pulkownik said.

Low riders

Move over mountain bikes — "low riders" have arrived.

The small, slow-moving bikes recall the "Stingray" models popular in the 60s and low rider cars, first popular in the 70s. The current trend originated with the Latino population in the southwest, and it's catching on.

There is a magazine just for low rider bike fans. And a group of Plymouth and Canton youths are forming their own club.

Mike Lavander, 19, of Canton, said the main attraction of the bikes is, "You can build it up any way you want."

Lavander, a Schoolcraft College student, works at Easyriders Bike Shop in Canton. Before starting there in March he worked three years at Jerry's Bike Shop on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth Township.

"I noticed them around a year ago, all the people I work with started doing them," he said.

Most of the bikes have 20-inch wheels, whitewalls and a range of modifications. Lavander has a fatter whitewall tire in the back than in the front, back-up lights on the back, a rearview mirror and a car stereo mounted on the handlebars.

The bikes often feature bent chrome forks to hold the front wheel. "It's kind of like a chopper almost," Lavander said.

Over the stereo, while cruising with friends around Plymouth, Lavander likes to play Led Zeppelin, Metallica or other 70s rock. "It's just

Repairs ground Mettetal Airport

BY RALPH R. ECHTINAW
STAFF WRITER

Don't be alarmed if it seems that airplanes are leaving Mettetal Airport lately and not coming back.

The pilots are getting the heck out before the airport closes for 30 days, beginning Monday, Aug. 12, for about $478,000 worth of improvements.

The Michigan Bureau of Aeronautics has scheduled Mettetal for a long list of enhancements this year and beyond.

Officials hope that federal money will be available to pay for about 90 percent of it.

The big ticket item this year is the reconstruction and widening of the airport's lone runway.

The runway's length will remain the same — 2,556 feet — but the width will increase from 45 to 75 feet, making it safer for planes to land and take off.

Additional taxiways will be built and new runway lights installed.

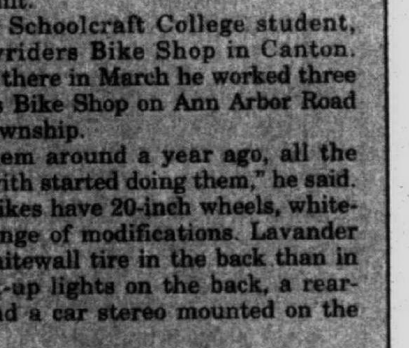

Construction of a new hangar and rehabilitation of existing hangars will wait until next year, said Bureau of Aeronautics spokesman Pete Bernardo.

Some of the existing hangars will likely be razed, while others are scheduled for preservation.

Mettetal Airport will probably reopen for business in mid-September.

In the meantime, many pilots have taken their aircraft to Willow Run Airport and elsewhere.

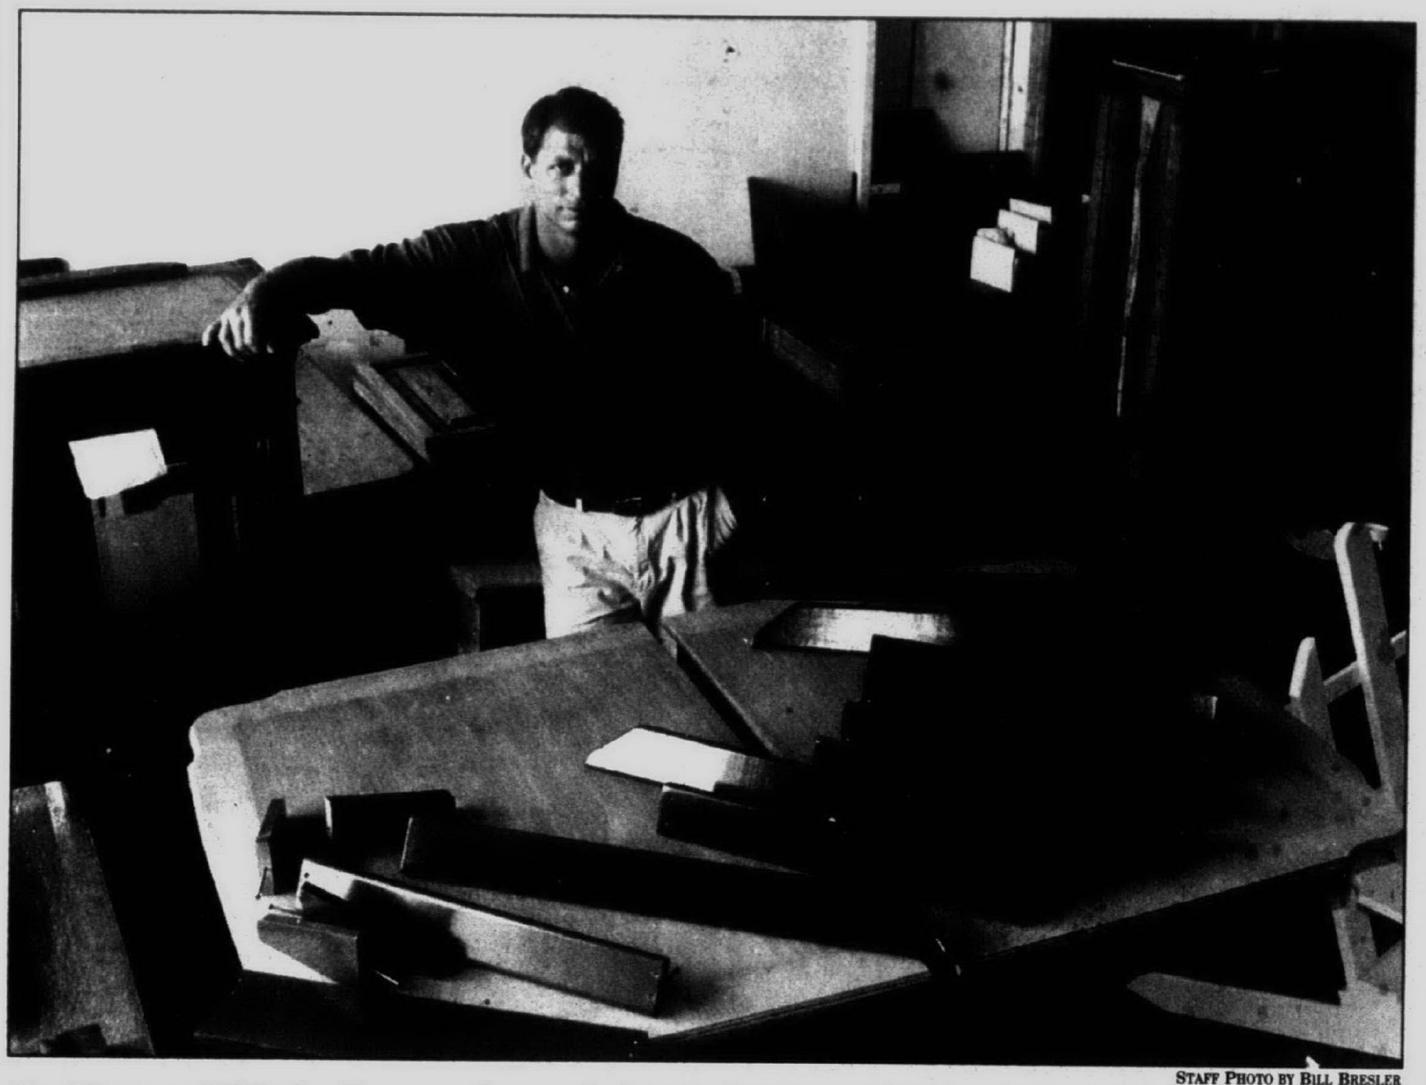

Kitze Aviation flying instruction will proceed as usual, but from New Hudson Airport.

Longtime businessman takes a shine to refinishing

Furniture specialist: Jay Densmore has worked in the furniture refinishing business for more than 20 years. Located in Old Village, his business is Plymouth Furniture Refinishing Inc.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

After 20 years of stripping chairs and tables, Jay Densmore isn't finished yet.

He's seen thousands of chairs, tables, desks and more, and some downturns in business in slow economic times.

But after slow business during the Carter years in the late '70s, Densmore said, "The Reagan years were really, really good. That trickle-down trickled right into here."

In recent years, business has steadied, and his 10,000-square-foot, two-level workshop at 331 N. Main is full of items waiting to be refinished or taken home by their owners.

"Everything is stripped down by hand. We run usually six to eight weeks turnaround," he said, before customers can expect to get the item back. He has five full-time employees.

It was in the mid-1970s when Densmore – a 1968 Plymouth High School grad – got interested in furniture refinishing. "I started doing my own stuff when I got married. We didn't have anything," he explained.

"I've always been a wood guy, one of the guys in high school who's always in the wood shop," he said.

Then in 1976 he started an Old Village business called Furniture Rejuvenation with four other partners. After five years, the partnership dissolved, and he started his own business which continues today, called Plymouth Furniture Refinishing Inc.

"I learned that running a business with a partner is much like a marriage. Everyone has to be moving in pace for it to be successful," he said.

"I learned basically that quality is the key, our motto is: 'Nothing is less than the best.' That's what's kept us in business, and fair pricing."

Where there were once four furniture refinishing shops within a few blocks of each other in Old Village, now there are two. But Densmore said competitors around the area share information and even materials at times. "It's a nice network, we're not all wigged out about competition," he said.

Of trends in the business, Densmore said there's still plenty of mahogany furniture coming in for work from the 1930s and '40s – passed on parents to their baby boomer children. But he notes that he's been getting in more 1950s "modern" furniture, featuring lighter woods.

Among the unusual pieces that have come in over the years was a coffin. "The owner assured me he wasn't part of a cult," Densmore said, smiling. Another was a gynecologist's exam table.

"The nicest thing is you can actually take people back in time. You get a senior citizen who has something that belonged to their parents, when you refinish it, it brings back memories," he said.

Live entertainment program finale slated for Aug. 23

Downtown Plymouth's Friday night entertainment series offers free, live entertainment, as the first season of the series comes to an end this month.

The season finale Friday, Aug. 23, will feature two musical acts: Pamela Ransford and The Plymouth Guitar Band and Perry Hughes/Bill Reid Trio.

Ransford's live shows and critically acclaimed vocal work on the best selling childrens book/tape entitled "The Barefoot Ballerina" (by Bloomfield Hills author Dee Heinzerling) has won the hearts of all who listened. She has also performed the theme "Little Friend" in the feature film entitled "Running Free," on cable channels Cinemax and HBO last month, with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra.

Ransford also has a current release of her composition "Love Nights" in rotation on the national jazz/adult contemporary radio stations, which was part of a compilation by master producer/percussionist Gene Dunlap, on the Avenue Jazz label. Her group brings former temptations bassist Mark Geddes, sax/reedsman David Reinstein, formerly of Orange Lake Drive and Prismatic Band. And one can always count on a few surpises when Pam takes the stage.

George Benson once called Perry Hughes the best Jazz Guitarist in the United States. He is a major force on the jazz scene today. Although a great deal of his time has been devoted to world tours with Earl Klugh and previously, the Supremes, his first true love has always been the old style organ trio — organ, guitar, drums.

In the style of the old Wes Montgomery/Jimmy Smith albums, this trio will stun first-time listeners Bill Heid's left-hand bass technique must be seen to be believed.

The final concert series will be held in Kellogg Park in downtown Plymouth from 6-10 p.m.

About $1 A Day Can Buy You A New-Air Conditioner

Right now you can buy a new three ton central air-conditioning unit for only $39 per month. That's about one dollar a day when you apply your energy savings.

Here's why purchasing one of these systems at this price is a smart move for almost any homeowner with an older air conditioner. Air conditioners are the single largest consumer of energy in a home. And the older outdated ones use up far more energy than is needed. Even the least efficient of the newer systems cools your home with one half the energy of most older air conditioners.

This is the reason that 7 out of 10 systems we replace are still operating. Most people don't wait for their old unit to die. They know it is a smart move to go ahead and start enjoying all the savings and benefits of these new ones now.

So call MECHANICAL ENERGY SYSTEMS at 313-453-6746 and schedule a free inspection. Check out the prices and financing options that are available on all sizes.

fun to ride in," he said.

Lavander said the wildest modification he's heard of was the hot tub someone had on their bike.

Jason Meininger, a Plymouth Salem student from Plymouth Township who also rides with the group, said, "The chrome catches your eye. They draw crowds basically, it gets respect."

■ 'Some people will say why don't you get a car? Sometimes they say 'nice bike'. . .'

Jason Meininger
—Plymouth Township rider

He agrees an attraction is the variety of ways you can customize a low rider bike. "You can pick what seat color you want, the pedals, the chain — brass or silver, the type of air caps, mirrors, how long of a sissy bar, the kick stand," he said.

Some bikes have neon lights under the seats. Lavender has two electronic car horns on his bike. "It's hilarious," Meininger said.

Some have springs on the front, to allow the rider to imitate the bounce of a modified low rider car.

The reaction to the bikes? "Some people will say why don't you get a car? Sometime they say 'Nice bike'," Meininger said.

The youths say police hassle them a bit, like the time last week when an officer told them not to block the sidewalk. Not long after, another patrol officer swung his car around in front of them as they rode in the street.

"He was boiling mad, he said 'Why are you boys riding in the street'?" Meininger said. Lavander has been ticketed twice, once for noise from his stereo.

"It seems like they don't think we live around the area, one guy was telling us to go home," Meininger said.

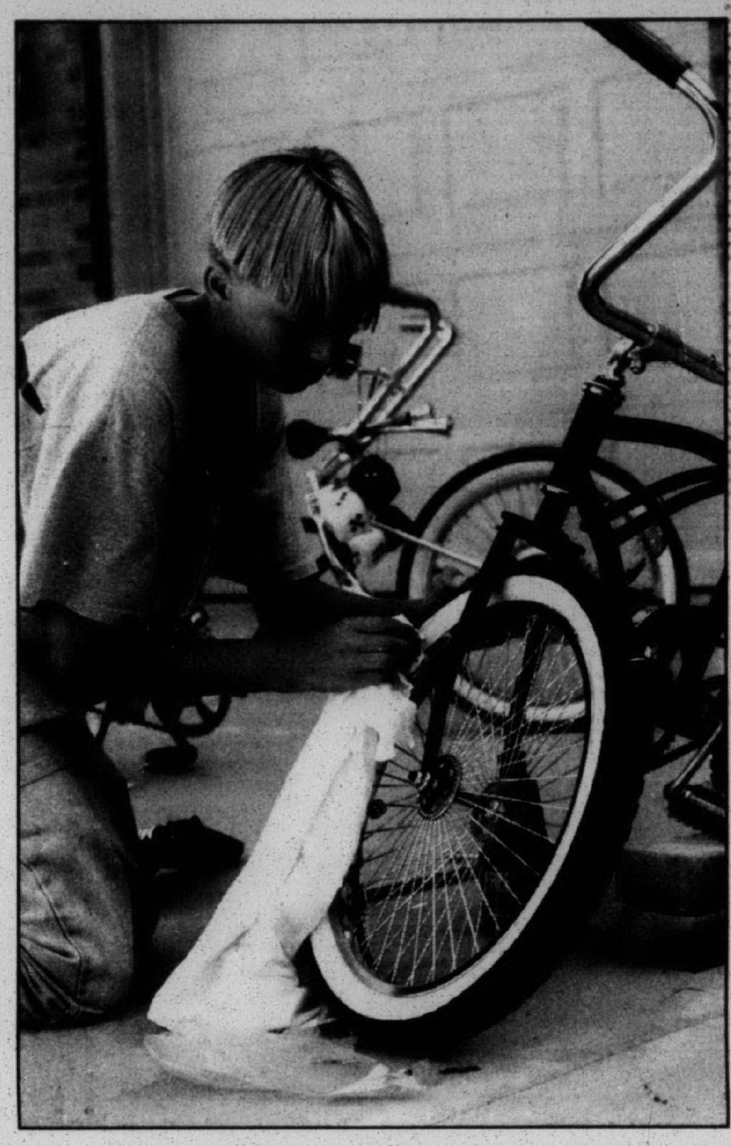

While you can buy a complete low rider bike, it's common to order a bike frame and the other parts separately, Lavander said. Cost for a basic bike is around $200.

Also planning to attend the meeting are parents upset that their kindergartners, all of whom have siblings at Bentley Elementary, will be transferred to Hulsing Elementary.

Juried art show scheduled for fall

The Plymouth Community Arts Council is sponsoring its 25th annual Artists and Craftsmen Show 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 7, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 8 at Central Middle School at Church Street and Main Street in downtown Plymouth.

who was part of the first meeting, said, "We want to see what kind of community we want to be, and what do we have to do to make sure we go in that direction."

The group wants to involve all segments of the community including church groups and residents, Loiselle said.

While he said it's too early to talk specifics, one topic already raised is traffic congestion on Beck Road near the industrial parks.

"Beck Road is an example of something currently that is starting to be a traffic problem but probably in a short time period it will get a lot worse," Loiselle said. That's because observers speculate it will become a major north-south road similar to Haggerty, as it runs between Novi and Belleville.

Pulkownik said trains also pose a traffic problem, and the group could look at having a road or two run under the tracks. "If this community had looked in terms of what we really wanted, maybe we could have avoided some of the congestion," she said.

"We want to address a lot of the aspects of the community," she said, including recreation.

"The intent is to bring all these various factors together and see what common elements we can come up with for an overall strategic plan for the community," said township Public Services Director Jim Anulewicz.

"With recreation, we recognize there is a lot of duplication of efforts with a lot of various organizations," Pulkownik said. "If we can get all the service organizations together, the schools and our various churches, we can avoid duplicating our efforts."

In future planning, she said the group also wants to avoid duplication in providing programs and activities for youth. "One of the things is kids don't have anything to do in this community," Pulkownik said. "We want to coordinate scholarships and work-study programs."

She said the group is also interested on finding out why newer residents moved here, and what they want the community to provide, along with input from long-time residents.

For the fall meeting, "We'll try to prepare various topics, and look at other strategic plans done by other communities in the metro area to see if there's something there that may be worthwhile.

"Hopefully this will be a long-term organization, with a lot of vitality," Pulkownik added.

County coalition aims to reduce smoking here

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

For non-smokers when smoke gets in your eyes, it isn't a good feeling, and experts say it isn't even healthy.

And these days studies on the dangers of second-hand smoke have many people demanding smoke-free environments.

As part of a statewide effort, a Wayne County group is working to publicize the dangers of smoking and second-hand smoke.

"We're looking to see that smoking is eliminated in all Wayne County restaurants," Vel ReVels, director of the American Stop Smoking Intervention Study and coordinator of the Wayne County Smoking and Tobacco Intervention Coalition. The coalition is funded by a grant and its goal is to reduce the prevalence of smoking and other forms of tobacco use as part of a three-year program.

It is made up of volunteers from all Wayne County municipalities and includes community leaders, health professionals, educators, business people and lawmakers. The coalition's goal is to reduce smoking in Michigan to less than 17 percent by 1998, reduce exposure to second-hand smoke, prevent the sale of tobacco to minors and restrict advertising and promotion of tobacco.

The coalition recently released a list of smoke-free establishments including restaurants and doughnut shops in Wayne County.

In the next 10 months the plan is to try to convince more restaurateurs to make their establishments smoke-free, ReVels said.

Restaurant owners that already have smoke-free establishments will be like a speakers bureau to try to convince others, she said.

Wayne County Health Department food inspectors are also approaching restaurateurs when they make inspections, she said.

There's no such thing as smoking and non-smoking sections in restaurants, ReVels said. "How does smoke know where to go?" she said.

And restaurant owners say being smoke-free is working out great.

Raj Patel, owner of the Dunkin' Donuts on Ann Arbor Road in Plymouth, called the policy excellent.

"The response has been so favorable. People love it," he said.

The Dunkin' Donuts went smoke free about a year ago and at first there were complaints. "In the beginning it was risky to do that," Patel said, citing the image of patrons drinking coffee and smoking in doughnut shops.

But families with children prefer it and more are coming in now, and Patel thinks it has increased business.

Cafe Bon Homme in Plymouth has been smoke free since 1993, according to chef/owner Greg Goodman.

The restaurant "was little ahead of the times," when it went smoke free, he said. "But it turned out to be really a non-issue."

"Our market tends to be non-smokers anyway," he said.

The restaurant offers upscale dining, and smoke doesn't interact well with great wine and great food, he said.

The state legislature should ban smoking in restaurants so restaurateurs don't have to face the wrath of smokers, Goodman said. "The state legislature has been reluctant to jump in with both feet. They should be out front," he said.

Until the legislature takes action the coalition has instituted many anti-smoking programs, ReVels said. Restaurants are just a part of the coalition's work.

Recently in River Rouge a group of children presented a pile of tobacco products to the River Rouge City Council to demonstrate that they can buy the products, even though it's illegal for juveniles to make the purchases, she said.

The mayor of River Rouge directed the police department to get involved, but the problem is prevalent all over Wayne County, ReVels said.

Michigan is one of 17 intervention zones. "We use more tobacco products than the states that grow it," ReVels said. That's why the American Cancer Society and the Cancer Institute have targeted Michigan, she said.

The coalition has targeted billboard companies that allow cigarette advertising, and three have said they will not accept tobacco advertising, she said.

The coalition also rented a billboard at Michigan and Schaefer that had in the past been used to promote tobacco products and replaced the ads with an anti-smoking message, ReVels said.

Also a public service announcement and documentary are being completed and will be shown on Comcast later this month, ReVels said.

"You will see movements all over the state. We are just one link in the movement," she said.

Report: Cigarette smoke is serious health hazard

Some information about tobacco use from the National Cancer Institute and the American Cancer Society:

• Environmental tobacco smoke is the combination of smoke that comes from the burning cigarette, pipe or cigar and the smoke that is exhaled by the smoker. It contains substances that are toxic and cause cancer. Some of these cancer-causing substances are found in greater concentration in sidestream rather than mainstream smoke (that inhaled by the smoker.)

• The Environmental Protection Agency has classified environmental tobacco smoke or second-hand smoke as a Class A carcinogen. That is the same class as asbestos, benzene and radon.

• A 1986 Surgeon General's report on involuntary smoking and the report of the National Academy of Sciences concluded that exposure to environmental tobacco smoke can cause lung cancer. Nonsmoking spouses have a nearly doubled risk of developing lunch cancer if their spouses are heavy smokers.

• Cigarette smoke is a more serious public health hazard than almost any other kind of air pollution. Research has shown that more people spend 90 percent of their time indoors. The U.S. EPA has found that places where tobacco is smoked are more polluted than outdoor environments with numerous diesel trucks, buses or commuter vehicles.

Group plans Eastern Market area tour Aug. 17

Dentistry in the 90s

by Herbert M. Gardner, D.D.S. & Martha P. Zinderman, R.N., D.D.S.

BONDING EXPERIENCES

The cosmetic dentistry technique known as bonding makes use of a composite material that can be tinted to match the color of virtually any natural tooth enamel. As a result, these composite fillings are virtually indistingusihable from the teeth into which they are inserted. This makes bonding a more satisfactory choice than bleaching (which lightens stains) for eliminating tetracycline stains. Bonding is also useful for concealing calcium-deficient white "headlights," as well as the dark stains that are caused by diffusion from silver amalgam fillings. Bonding can also be used to build up the contours of teeth, to a limited extent, and restoring the edges of chipped or worn teeth. And, while the bonding composite is not strong enough to withstand heavy chewing pressure or repeated contact with opposing teeth, it provides a way to improve the appearance of teeth without going to the expense of resorting to veneers or crowns.

If you have any questions about cosmetic dentistry please call us at LIVONIA VILLAGE DENTAL ASSOCIATES. Our dental services include bridges, crowns, dentures, and cosmetic dentistry. It is important to us that any dental experience be a positive one for all of our patients. We are currently accepting new patients and invite you to call 478-2110 to schedule a convenient appointment. We're located at 19171 Merriman Road. Smiles are our business. Hrs: Mon., Tues., Thurs. & Fri. 8-5, Wed. til 9pm.

"I'M HAPPIER KNOWING THAT MOM IS IN GOOD HANDS. SHE'S JUST HAPPIER, PERIOD."

Active days. Discussion groups where every voice is important. Gardening where friendships bloom as well as flowers. And daily routines where people are secure knowing that trained, caring staff is nearby to offer assistance if necessary.
That's life at Springhouse, an assisted living facility for those who need extra help in their day-to-day routine, with things like dressing, bathing, and taking medications, but still want to enjoy life to its fullest. We customize care for our residents, giving them only the services they need or request. This helps them remain as independent as possible.
Friendship is one of the hallmarks of the Springhouse experience. In fact, it's never been easier for some of our residents as they are free to join each other for activities like walking and lectures. But residents can be on their own, too, setting their own routines. If they want to enjoy a quiet meal in their own apartment, they can. In short, residents make the choices that let them maintain control of their own lives.
We've designed Springhouse to be a safe and secure environment, with licensed health care professionals, staff and personal care assistants just seconds away—24 hours a day. So while residents are leading secure, active lives, their loved ones enjoy the peace of mind that comes from such special care—and Manor HealthCare's 35 year tradition of excellence in health care.
For a free brochure, call us or send in the coupon below. And if you'd like, schedule a tour to see firsthand how we make a difference in the lives of our residents.

Lots that's cool for back to school

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Look for bright colors combined with classic styles to set the hottest trend in back-to-school fashions for elementary students this fall.

"Bright is everything, bright and bold," said Delana Rutledge of The Children's Place at Oakland Mall, Troy. "For girls, people are buying plaid skirts in hot pink, yellow and orange ($18).

All of the separates at The Children's Place including jazzy black and white houndstooth skirts, shorts, dresses, jumpers, leggings and jeans, were meant to mix and match. Patent leather jackets ($28), jumpers and dresses ($20) now on reorder, hit the door as fast as they came in. Plaid fleece/flannel CPO jackets ($22) for boys are selling like crazy, according to Rutledge.

Classic looks in wide-wale corduroy pants ($22) are still popular, plus cords now come with matching baseball caps in tan, camel navy and black ($8).

Prewashed denim jeans in vintage and dark blue available in flare leg, tomboy cut with scooped waist, relaxed, and relaxed slim fit ($16-$18) are staples for back-to-school dressing.

For little jocks, wool varsity jackets, heather gray with leather like trim ($42-$52) are expected to arrive shortly.

Tammy Dinatale, sales associate for Gymboree at Laurel Park Place, Livonia, says hunter green and fabrics of plaid, flannel and fleece are big for boys. Vests are must-haves.

"There's a lot of red and floral prints for girls. Jumpers are real hot, swing tops and jackets, berets and suspenders, and vests are very, very hot for both boys and girls," she said.

According to assistant manager Emilie King, reversible denim and plaid jackets with moose patch ($30), topped off with a cap with ear flaps ($12) from the Northern Exposure collection, seem to be especially popular with the younger set. Also, thermal shirts in gray, royal blue, hunter green and gold, $24.

Red, black and white in solids or stripes is a big color statement for fall at Target in Westland. Girls will have fun wearing black and red jumpers by Xhilaration decorated with patent heart or flower appliques teamed with shirt for $19.99 or denim shortalls priced at $14.98.

Accessorize with 101 Dalmatians hair bows ($3.99) and bands ($4.99.) Boys will look like little jocks in a blue and gold running Michigan Wolverines running suit by Professional Sports Club ($29.88.)

It's easy for Colleen Clark of Westland to tell which backpacks and school merchandise will be most popular with her 8-year-old son Brent this year. She simply takes note of which stock is low. her. To start the school year off right, Brent will sport new jeans, tennis shoes, and a Tasmanian Devil T-shirt by Warner Brothers ($8.99).

"I always take him with me to get a few basics to encourage him to get in the mood to go back to school," said Clark.

Arctic Zone insulated lunch boxes ($8.99) or bags ($5.39) are available not only in solids but with children's favorite characters as well. From Toy Story to Tigger from Winne-the-Pooh, there's literally something for everyone. A word of advice from Clark however, Batman is out! Goosebumps, Looney Tunes, the Hunchback of Notre Dame, and Team NASCAR — in.

The '60s return this season at Kiddlywinks in Birmingham — at least with the youngest crowd.

"We're selling a lot of sherpa like the old vests Sonny and Cher used to wear, also velour, animal prints and Mylar outerwear. Kids ages 5 to 10 really like the satin jeans ($36) and painters pants ($36-$39). And for the girls, it's short midriff tops," said salesperson Barbara Grant.

Varsity rugby shirts in blue and gold ($34) and hockey jerseys are what's in for students at Gap-kids' Farmington Hills and Livonia locations. Back by popular demand is the 1969 division champs varsity jacket with beige sleeves and navy body priced at $148. Also look for their new collection of denim decorated with bulldog, football and pennant patches ($14.50-$34) for age 8 under and red plaid flannel shirts ($28-$34).

Budget savers

According to Children's Orchard of Canton owner Kay Suffron, every year customers look for primary colors when shopping for school clothes. If your budget is especially small this year, their stock of 70-percent resale/30-percent new clothes, could be the answer. On average, an entire outfit consisting of jeans or pants plus shirt or sweater, costs about $10 or less.

Business booms along Big Beaver

Restaurants, hotels, and office buildings catch Somerset fever as business booms along both sides of the new shopping center in Troy.

BY BARB PERT TEMPLETON
SPECIAL WRITER

The countdown to the grand opening of Somerset North is finally here and the importance of the event isn't lost on businesses in the surrounding area.

Hotels, restaurants and office complexes along Big Beaver in Troy have been reaping the benefits of a planned addition to the Somerset Collection for months.

The grand opening of the 120 specialty shops at Somerset North this Friday even prompted some businesses to do some fixing up of their own. A fresh coat of paint, lavish landscaping and even a new parking lot should help Gorman's Furniture Store standout along Big Beaver just south of the Somerset Collection.

At least that's the plan co-owner Jeff Roberts had in mind when he decided to give the exterior of his 19-year-old store "a whole new fresh look."

"Everyone's sprucing up and getting all dressed up for this," said Roberts, who is eagerly anticipating the opening at the mall. "Everybody driving in off I-75 will drive right by our store and so we expect to get a lot of exposure and traffic that way," he added.

Just up the street at the Somerset Inn it's the foot traffic that has kept things hopping. Somerset Inn General Manager Duane Swanson is pleasantly surprised when he checks his reservation list these days.

"Bookings are very solid, there are a few open dates but not many," said Swanson, who said the crowds at his hotel aren't limited to overnight guests. "We have also had many of our banquet facilities in use as interview locations for the new stores."

The Somerset Collection has spent months interviewing applicants to fill 3,500 new positions in Somerset North. "The opening of the north end has definitely helped us," said Swanson. "Although we've been strong for this first six months of the year, it's definitely picked up a couple of notches"

The 24-year-old hotel that boasts 250 guest suites didn't have to worry about revamping their image this year. Somerset Inn was completely renovated just two years ago, said Swanson.

Spruce-up time: With thousands of visitors expected to check-out the new Somerset Collection shopping complex this weekend, neighboring businesses wan t their best foot forward too. Gorman's Furniture is busy remodeling its showroom front.

Noting that a large portion of hotel's business is generated through corporate accounts, Swanson anticipates people booking rooms on more of a leisure basis to shop at the impressive new facility.

"We're hoping the weekend traffic will pick up because the mall is going to be a destination spot for folks that want to have the premiere shopping experience in southeastern Michigan," said Swanson.

Down the block at the Marriott Hotel the prospect of another nearby spot for guests to shop gets a huge thumbs up from general manager, Bob Grossman.

"The short term impact on us has been very positive," said Grossman, relaying that members of Somerset's management team have been staying at the hotel. "Long term it will give the guests something else to do because it's close by."

The Marriott is preparing to do some sprucing up of its own. "All 350 rooms in the hotel will be redone in the next several months including the banquet and conference facilities," said Grossman.

Beyond retail and overnight reservations, local leasing agents claim business owners are clamoring for office space in the buildings located in close proximity to the mall.

Getting a spot along what has already been dubbed "The Golden Corridor" may proof tough in the coming months, according to Larry Nemer, vice president of Nemer Management Co., Inc. Nemer's firm oversees the leasing of commercial office space in Troy Place. The complex, that includes five buildings covering 800,000-square feet, sits on the corner of Big Beaver and Coolidge, just across the street from the Somerset Collection

"Somerset is such an exciting project it will anchor that entire corridor so we see it as a plus," said Nemer. "And we have some vacancies now but about 95 percent of the complex is currently leased."

Similar tales of space deficiencies are reported for the Top of Troy and City Center complexes along Big Beaver.

"We are running out of space at the Top of Troy and we are approaching capacity at the City Center, which used to be the old VW building," said David Miller, an associate broker with Signature Associates, a commercial real estate brokerage firm that manages leasing for both facilities.

Development along Big Beaver, including the new mall, is attracting all kinds of business including smaller firms who want to be a part of what Miller describes as "Troy's wonderful rebirth."

"Just three years ago Troy had a 20 percent vacancy rate. Now it's down to about 10 percent," said Miller. "And we've even had tenants fighting over certain spaces in buildings."

All this talk of growth and progress is music to the ears of Troy City Manager, James Bacon. Just the thought of adding 950,000 square feet of new retail space inside the city is a plus for the entire area, said Bacon.

"I think it's going to be another attraction people will think about when they decide to come to Troy," he said. "And having a very high quality shopping experience is always a positive plus the employment opportunity is significant."

"Economically it's a very positive and significant addition and I think it will help the restaurants and hotels in the community," he said. The city is concerned, however, that once Somerset North opens, traffic snarls along streets in the area will be a problem.

"We're anticipating this project will have an impact (on traffic) but for the short term that issue is being addressed with off-site parking, shuttle services and valet," he said.

Blue — the color of the next decade

According to the color experts at Pantone Inc., 35-percent of Americans report that blue is a favorite color.

In the spring and summer, blue's a cool, calming shade. In many cultures it's the color of protection. A gate painted blue in an Amish community signals that there is a marriageable daughter in the home.

While the 90s has been called the "green" decade, experts see blue hues kicking off the first decade of the 21st century — watch for it in fashion and home decor products.

Doctor turns to Net for help in solving wife's murder

■ Iverson posted an appeal for assistance in the freelance section of the journalism discussion forum on Compuserve. The appeal has since been cross-posted to other journalism-related discussion groups on the Internet.

Dr. Robert Iverson has appealed to journalists on the Internet for support in his bid to find the person who murdered his wife, Deborah Iverson, M.D.

On July 31, Iverson called a press conference in Livonia to announce he was raising the reward for information leading to conviction from $250,000 to $500,000.

After that he posted an appeal for assistance in the freelance section of the journalism discussion forum on Compuserve. The appeal has since been cross-posted to other journalims-related discussion groups on the Internet.

In the message Iverson posted Aug. 3 he noted Detroit area media had been supportive but persons with information may now be elsewhere in the U.S. and so the border appeal on Compuserve and the Internet was made.

Iverson noted he was having trouble getting the national media to "pick up the story of the unsolved murder of my 38 year old wife, Deborah A. Iverson, M.D., respected ophthalmologist, mother of two infant children, respected medical teacher, with NO ENEMIES."

"Locally, this has become a high profile case," wrote Iverson. "But it is possible that murderers have fled the state, and the media coverage outside of Detroit has been nil, to the best of our knowledge. We need to publicize more widely the large reward offer of 1/2 million dollars, and hopefully generate 'tips' to assist the investigation.

"Incidentally, I'm told by news reporters, that this high reward is probably a 'record' for Michigan, and possibly for the nation, as offered by an individual. Apparently the reward offered for Jimmy Hoffa's case was $300,000.."

In another message, Iverson shares some of the details of the case. "My 38 year old wife was abducted in downtown Birmingham, Michigan on May 16th, robbed of $1,300, then strangled and left dead in her vehicle on a remote country road. A wide multi-jurisdictional investigation was initiated, but the trail has gone 'cold' the second day after her murder. Despite mountains of informational leads, many law enforcement manhours of excellent professional and technical work have lead nowhere so far.

"I initially offered a reward of $250,000 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the criminals, and on 7/31/96 announced an increase of the reward to half a million dollars, to be paid out of life insurance proceeds. The local news coverage has been excellent by all media, but appeals to the public for leads have been limited mainly to the counties surrounding the city of Detroit.

"The Associated Press somehow did not pick up the story and there has been little, if any, awareness of the case outside Michigan, despite the magnitude of the reward offer. So far, "Unsolved Mysteries" and People Magazine have been apprised of the case and the reward, and are considering running it.

"My concern relates to the possibility that the criminals fled the state immediately, leaving a cold trail. And unless there is national exposure, tips generated outside Michigan would be unlikely. Hence my appeal.

"The family, of course remains devastated by this senseless act, and now 2 1/2 months later, in the midst of our protracted, unresolved grief, has vowed to do anything possible to assist in the apprehension of the murderers. We need help in taking our case to the national media and the broader public in our quest for more 'leads'."

Iverson appealed to national journalists for "assistance or advice."

"Please help us bring our grieving to closure."

Hearing set on court reorganization

A hearing to gather public comment on the impact of the state's court reorganization plan is scheduled for 3 p.m. Tuesday, Aug. 13, in the fourth floor conference room at the Wayne County Building, 600 Randolph in Detroit.

The court reorganization bills Public Act 374 and 375 were passed by the state legislature July 17 and signed into law by the governor. The reorganization will require that Wayne County institute changes in court operations with the elimination of Detroit's Recorder's Court and could eventually increase the amount of county funds spent.

The public hearing is an opportunity for Wayne County residents, Recorder's Court employees and other interested parties to express their views regarding issues and changes such as employee transfers and court funding.

Wayne County Commissioner George Cushingberry, who represents District 6 in Detroit and serves as chairman of the commission's Ways and Means Committee, initiated the public hearing.

"Based on the input we received at the July 30 hearing, the citizens of our county are more than a little concerned about the effects of court reorganization on their lives. There are many issues and concerns regarding this reorganization that the commissioners will need to understand and address. I hope these hearings will help us to do that," Cushingberry said in press release.

CHEF LARRY JANES

Anyone can make an ice cream pie

Last week, I took a little trip Downriver and did "the good son thing." I edged momma's lawn, washed a few windows, drove dad out to the grand opening of the new Home Depot for a spot check, and when we returned, momma had made a cool ice cream pie.

Now you have to understand that momma's idea of an ice cream pie is a store bought graham cracker crust, a pint of the cheapest ice cream money can buy, a quart of ersatz non-dairy whipped topping and a healthy drizzle of Hershey's syrup. I call it summer comfort food. The best part? She made two and told me, in no uncertain terms, that the other pie was for me "to enjoy at home." I ate it all in one sitting, right out of the tin with nothing more than a spoon to catch all the meltings. Some habits are still difficult to break.

Having been invited to a late night soiree at some friends after the Ann Arbor Art Fair, I thought it would be a good idea if I tried my luck at a homemade ice cream pie. I knew the food police would be in attendance, and they would certainly be able to tell the difference between a store bought crust and a real one. So I drove to the store in search of butter, premium ice cream, real whipped cream, designer hot fudge sauce and Macadamia nuts bearing a price tag almost as high as the price of an airline ticket to Hawaii. Raves and kudos were gratuitously offered, but then I thought, hey, it wasn't that difficult and I really believe that anyone could make a stellar ice cream pie with minimal effort. I checked out a few books and here's what I found:

Cookie crusts

Ice cream pies have the advantages of quick preparation and can be made from the simplest of ingredients. But because ice cream pies are served frozen, they need to have crusts that taste good frozen. Cookie crumb crusts fit the bill perfectly. I was lucky enough to have a dozen chocolate chip cookies in the freezer. I tossed them in the food processor for a quick chop, noticed that a dozen three-inch cookies were just the right amount to make a deep dish 10-inch pie crust. It would also make a nine-inch in diameter, three-inch tall spring form pan. Knowing you might be prone to having the barest of gourmet necessities (ala momma), a dozen Oreo's, Chip's Ahoy or even 24 Nilla Wafers could suffice. Any dry cookie that might pose a problem standing up the sides of a spring form pan could handle the addition of a couple of tablespoons of melted butter or margarine.

Premium is better

Then I set out to really see if ice cream made a difference. Federal government regulations state that ice cream must have a minimum milk fat content of 10 percent. A good quality ice cream has 12 percent. A premium ice cream can have so much butterfat you'll need to take a plunger to your heart valves. Is higher fat better? In this case, definitely. A higher milk fat content of the ice cream retards ice crystal formation when the ice cream freezes hard after its slight softening during preparation. There is hope for healthy eaters though, as my testing did reveal that a good, high quality, fat free frozen dessert or frozen yogurt will suffice with minimal repercussions.

When preparing the pie, the first rule is to soften the ice cream until it is easy to scoop and spread. The less the ice cream melts, the better it will taste after freezing firm again. One good method is to soften the ice cream in a glass bowl in the refrigerator for about 30-40 minutes, so that it softens evenly without melted spots. Even though I worship my microwave, this is no time to push buttons and demand speed. As soon as the ice cream pie is assembled, immediately return it to the freezer and follow wrapping instructions carefully.

Burpable containers work best and you can safely store ice cream pies in the freezer for up to two weeks. After that, you better have a box of baking soda near by and hope that all those opened freezer doors looking for ice cubes, Popsicles and tomorrow's dinner haven't wreaked havoc on the pie's exterior.

When serving an ice cream pie, allow it to soften slowly for about 30 -40 minutes in the refrigerator. Since the temperature of your freezer and the temperature of your kitchen affect how the ice cream pie will react, there is no hard and fast rule as to how long to let it sit out of the freezer.

What a wonderful time of year! Fresh vegetables and fruit from our garden and the local produce stand are abundant and delicious. There's something special about biting into a juicy, ripe tomato, right out of the garden. Fresh salads are great now and so are green beans, corn, watermelon, zucchini and many other home-grown vegetables, fruits and herbs.

But if your bountiful harvest is crowding you out of house and garden, it's time for you to take action. My father makes a big pot of fresh marinara sauce, uses some of it immediately, and freezes the rest in family-size containers to enjoy later on. He calls it "Meneste" and doesn't follow a recipe.

He just cuts up tomatoes, seeds them and throws them into a pot, skins and all. he adds onions, green pepper, zucchini, mushrooms, fresh basil, oregano, garlic and whatever happens to be in the refrigerator — broccoli, green beans and eggplant are good. He then cooks it down to a nice consistency, seasons with a little salt and pepper to taste and ladles it over pasta.

If you have a large basil crop, pesto is a great thing to make. I freeze mine in ice cube trays and pop them out whenever I want to season a pasta sauce, marinara or soup.

For the rest of your harvest, home food preservation methods such as freezing or canning, work well. Canning is particularly good if you have an abundance of fruit or vegetables that you can't possibly consume fresh. Opening a jar of tomatoes or green beans in February that came from your garden can be especially gratifying.

Here are some simple food preservation ideas that keep your harvest healthy and tasty.

FREEZING

Freezing is one of the easiest ways to preserve food, although not all produce freezes well. I've had good luck with green beans, corn, marinara sauce, green peppers and shredded zucchini. Use rigid plastic containers, freezer bags or freezer paper and tape. Freeze in small batches at O degrees F or below. Be sure to thoroughly dry produce before freezing and do not freeze too much at a time. Leave space between packages so air can circulate freely until frozen.

Some fruits and vegetables must be blanched before freezing. Others can go directly into the freezer with little preparation. Peppers and shredded zucchini can simply be washed, (peppers cut into strips) and then packed tightly with no headspace.

For chopped peppers or blueberries, currants and raspberries; spread them one layer deep on a tray and freeze. Then pour into freezer bags and seal with no headspace.

Use a large kettle of boiling water with a basket for vegetables that require blanching. Wash the produce in cold water and cut if desired, then place vegetables into the boiling water, cover and start counting the time immediately. Different vegetables require different blanching times. It's best to check a recipe book, but as a general rule; greens take about 30 seconds; green beans two to three minutes; and corn-on-the-cob 7 to 11 minutes. After blanching, remove and plunge the basket of vegetables into a large quantity of ice water, allowing as much time for cooling as for boiling or blanching. Drain and dry vegetables thoroughly, then pack into labeled containers.

Fruit can be packed in sugar, syrup, water, fruit juice, or without sugar or liquid. Rhubarb, grapes and strawberries can be fresh frozen with no liquid. Some friends of mine have kids who love to eat frozen grapes, right out of the freezer. Try it! They're actually quite good.

CANNING

Most canning is done by using the Boiling Water Bath Process. The best advice I can give is to get a good canning book and follow the instructions carefully. The "Ball Blue Book of Canning" is a good reference and it's available in hardware stores and wherever canning supplies are sold.

You can use either the hot pack or raw pack method of packing food into jars. For hot pack, the food is pre-heated in a liquid or extracted juices. With the raw pack method, the produce is packed raw into jars, boiling liquid can be added if needed to meet headspace.

Prepare food and fill jars to specified headspace. Slide spatula around sides of jar to remove air pockets and wipe the top of jar clean. Immerse filled, sealed jars into boiling water, the water should be one inch or more above top of jars. Start counting the processing time as soon as all the jars have been added and the water returns to a boil. Boil gently for time recommended. After the food has been processed, carefully remove the jars and cool them slowly in a safe place, away from drafts.

After the jars have thoroughly cooled, test the jars by taping on the lid. If the lid can be moved, either reprocess or put into the refrigerator for immediate use. If a jar on the shelf is not completely sealed, do not eat the contents even if it looks and smells fine. It could contain clostridium botulism which cannot be killed by regular boiling.

But regardless of the way you preserve your produce, the important thing is to enjoy it now, while it's fresh and then pack away the rest. This winter, when the snow is climbing up your window sill, pull out a few ears of frozen corn. Savor the flavor as you think back to those warm days of the harvest.

Pare down fat in potato soup

BY LAURA L. SYKES
SPECIAL WRITER

We usually assume vegetable recipes are low in fat. We also tend to believe they are a healthy choice when planning a meal. The following recipe for potato soup shows us how incorrect this way of thinking can be.

At a quick glance, the original soup recipe doesn't seem to have many high fat items. By taking a closer look we can see it is loaded with sodium, fat and calories.

Let's look at the sodium content first. The majority of it is found in the one teaspoon of salt. There is a large amount of "hidden" sodium in the chicken broth and butter.

To help eliminate the salt problem we can use low sodium chicken broth, replace the butter with ButterBuds imitation powdered butter flavoring, and completely eliminate the teaspoon of salt. These simple substitutions eliminated over 700 mg of sodium per serving!

The fat content was reduced by 17.2 grams of fat per serving. The majority of this was accomplished by eliminating the butter. It added 44 grams of fat to the recipe!

The remaining fat was found in the chicken broth and the sweetened condensed milk. By switching to fat free evaporated skim milk and fat free chicken broth we were able to dramatically reduce the fat content.

Keep in mind that every gram of fat contains 9 calories. By reducing the fat content we automatically cut back on our calories.

A few "kitchen hints" regarding this recipe come to mind.

- First, remember that potatoes have a very high sugar content. Therefore, I switched to evaporated skim milk instead of fat free sweetened condensed milk. The sweetened condensed milk is made with NutraSweet and gave this recipe a very artificial taste.
- Second, don't worry about chopping the vegetables too fine. You can always strain the soup when it is done and place the vegetables in a blender. This will thicken the soup and give it a nice texture.

See related story on Taste front. Recipes compliments of Peggy Martinelli-Everts, registered dietitian, director of clinical operations for HDS Services in Farmington Hills.

■ Freezing corn-on-the-cob — Scrub to remove silks and rinse thoroughly in cool water. Place about six ears in large pot of boiling water and cover 7-11 minutes, dependent on size. Using tongs, remove and place into ice water. Drain, wrap individually and then put several into freezer bags. Store in freezer 4-6 months. Cook, without thawing, in an uncovered pan of boiling salted water to cover ears 5--10 minutes.

■ Freezing peaches — Rinse, blanch 20-30 seconds, then immerse in ice water for the same time. Remove skins, and pits. Allow 2-3 pounds peaches for each quart. Dip peaches into water with ascorbic acid or 2 tablespoons salt and 2 teaspoons lemon juice for each gallon of water to retain color. Drain well. Halve or slice as desired. Stir 1 teaspoon ascorbic acid or salt and lemon juice into 4 cups cold water. Pack peaches tightly into quart containers, then add 1 to 1 1/2 cups of the water leaving 1/2-inch headspace. Seal, label and freeze.

■ Canning apples — Wash, peel and core apples. Slice, cut into chunks or leave in quarters. As you prepare apples, dip them in a solution of 1 tablespoon each salt and vinegar to 2 quarts of water to prevent darkening. Drain well, rinse and drain again.

Hot pack only — Boil apples 5 minutes in syrup or water, and pack hot into clean, hot jars. Cover with the boiling liquid and leave 1/2-inch head space. Process in boiling water bath: Pint jars 15 minutes, Quart jars 20 minutes.

■ Canning (firm) berries (blueberries, currants, Elderberries, Huckleberries and Gooseberries) — Wash and drain, remove stems etc. Add 1/2 cup sugar to each quart of berries.

Hot pack only — Heat berries and sugar to boiling, stirring and shaking pan often to keep from sticking, pack hot into clean, hot jars to within 1/2-inch from top, and process in boiling water bath: Pint jars 10 minutes, Quart jars 15 minutes.

■ Canning (soft) berries (blackberries, Dewberries, Loganberries, Raspberries, not Strawberries) — Wash and drain and remove stems, etc.

Raw pack only — Fill clean, hot jars with berries and cover with boiling syrup to within 1/2 inch from top. Process in boiling water bath: Pint jars 10 minutes, Quart jars 15 minutes.

■ Canning tomatoes — Wash tomatoes, slip skins by dipping into boiling water 30 seconds and then into cold water. Peel and remove stem ends. Tomatoes can be prepared whole, in halves or in quarters.

Raw pack — pack prepared tomatoes into jars leaving 1/2-inch head space. Pack tightly and press until juice covers tomatoes. Do not add water.

Add 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1 tablespoon of bottled lemon juice to each pint and 1 teaspoon salt and 2 tablespoons lemon juice to each quart. slice spatula around sides to remove air pockets and wipe top of jar clean.

Process in boiling water bath; Pint jars 35 minutes, Quart jars 45 minutes.

■ Canning Beans (Snap, String, Wax) — Wash beans and snap, removing ends and breaking into 1-inch pieces. Or leave beans whole and pack standing up in jars.

Raw pack — pack tightly to within 1/2 inch from top, and cover with boiling water. Add salt and process at 10 pounds pressure: Pint jars 20 minutes, Quart jars 25 minutes.

Hot pack — cover prepared beans with boiling water and cook five minutes.

Pack into jars to within 1/2 inch from top. Add salt, and cover with boiling liquid. Process at 10 pounds pressure for the same time as for raw pack.

- 3/4 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
- 1/4 cup pulverized walnuts
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1/2 cup packed fresh parsley

Puree all ingredients in a food processor or a blender then pack into an ice cube tray.

Cover and freeze. Makes 6 to 8 cubes. When ready to use, pop out one cube and add to soup broth, stews, or sauces for instant seasoning.

Kiwifruit adds refreshing twist to summer salads

BY MELANIE POLK
SPECIAL WRITER

For many Americans, morning doesn't really start until they've had a glass of orange juice or half of a grapefruit. It's a morning dose of nutrition and one step closer toward the goal of at least five daily servings of fruits and vegetables, as recommended by the American Institute for Cancer Research and other health experts. So, while it may seem heresy to suggest an alternative to such a healthy ritual, when you substitute two kiwifruit into your morning routine, you'll add variety to your diet, as well as over twice the recommended daily allowance of vitamin C and as much potassium as in a banana.

Buy firm kiwifruit and let them ripen at room temperature; place them in a bag with a banana or apple to speed up the process. Once slightly soft (like a ripe peach or avocado), kiwifruit can be stored for two to three weeks in the refrigerator. Although kiwifruit skin is edible (and adds fiber and texture), its slightly bitter flavor is not to everyone's liking. Fortunately, it's easy to peel and slice, or scoop out the pulp, depending on your intended use.

Add sliced kiwifruit to the ordinary dishes from your kitchen and transform them into unforgettable meals. With its tart-sweet flavor, kiwifruit can bring new life to your favorite fruit salad or compote. Instead of the regular tomato-based recipe, make a fruit salsa with kiwi, strawberries and melon cubes. Simply add sauteed chopped shallots, cilantro, and raspberry vinegar to make a great dip for tortilla chips, or a tangy topping for grilled fish or chicken.

Sprinkle kiwifruit slices on a salad made with radicchio or endive, just as you might use orange slices on a green salad.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE FOR CANCER RESEARCH

Sumptuous salad: New Zealand Brown Rice Salad combines rice, veggies, apple and kiwifruit with a tangy dressing.

Kiwifruit can even stand up to a barbecue flame, as part of a refreshing summer kabob made of skewered ginger-marinated fish and sweet onion chunks.

Pureed kiwifruit can also be an easy way to add variety and taste to a healthy diet. Be careful not to over-puree kiwi, as it can crush the fruit's seeds and result in a bitter flavor. Once liquefied, rub the kiwi puree on lean cuts of beef for 15 minutes to increase the tenderness of the meat. Sweetened with maple syrup or honey, kiwi puree makes a dessert sauce that transforms ordinary poached fruit and angel-food cake into a unique treat.

Kiwifruit adds a refreshing twist to this delicious summer salad recipe provided by the New Zealand Kiwifruit Commission.

NEW ZEALAND BROWN RICE SALAD

- 1 cup brown rice
- 2 kiwifruit
- 1 Granny Smith apple
- 1/2 cup thinly sliced celery
- 1/2 cup red pepper strips
- 1/4 cup toasted walnut pieces
- 1/4 cup thinly sliced green onions
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 3 tablespoons sherry vinegar
- 1 tablespoon olive oil

Cook the rice in water according to package directions, until the grains are tender and the water is absorbed. Peel the kiwifruit and cut it into 1/4-inch thick slices; cut again in half to form semi-circles. Core and dice the apple into 1/2-inch cubes.

In a salad bowl, toss together the fruit with the rice, celery, red pepper strips, walnuts, green onions, and parsley. Mix together the vinegar and oil; drizzle it over the salad and toss to mix well.

Cover and refrigerate the salad for 1-2 hours, allowing the flavors to blend before serving.

Each of the six servings provides 201 calories and 6 grams of fat.

Olympic training

When Krasimir Dounev was asked by students at the Michigan Academy of Gymnastics in Westland how much his silver medal was worth, the Bulgarian did not hesitate with a simple response.

"It's worth about 15 years of hard work," said the 24-year-old, who has plenty of calluses on his hands to show after placing second in the individual horizontal bars at the 1996 Summer Olympic Games in Atlanta.

"It was the highlight of my career," added Dounev, who has 12 years experience with the Bulgarian National Team and was making his second Olympic appearance.

Ivan Ivanov, 22, and Jordan Jovtchev, 23, who are also currently training and doing spot coaching at the Westland gym, helped the Bulgarian team to a sixth place finish in the team competition, while turning in impressive individual performances as well.

Ivanov took fourth in both floor exercise and vault, while Jovtchev, one of the favorites to medal in rings, also placed fourth.

All three are guests this month of Doug Rowe, who has run the Michigan Academy of Gymnastics the past 18 years.

Peter Gueorguiev, 31, who helped Bulgaria to a fifth-place team finish in the 1988 Olympics in Seoul, South Korea, has served as a coach, along with his wife Tania, at the Westland facility for the past 4 1/2 years. He is one of five Bulgarian coaches on site.

Gueorguiev, who resides in Westland, works daily with the young gymnasts along with two of his longtime friends and fellow elite National Team members Dian Kolev and Stoycho Gotchev.

All three are 31.

Kolev, who lives in Canton, is a two-time Olympian who placed fourth in the vault in 1988 and took a bronze in the 1987 World Championships.

The trio first met Rowe during the 1991 World Professional Championships in Indianapolis.

"We work in a little bit different style," Gueorguiev said. "It's kind of professional because we want what's best for the kids. And working for Doug, I've never met a better person. He's like a father to all of us."

Dounev, Ivanov and Jovtchev arrived last month in Atlanta with Olympic experience, having competed in Barcelona, Spain in 1992.

"All of them have been on the National Team for at least 10 years, starting with junior," said Gueorguiev, who acts are their interpreter. "They've competed in two Olympics and six World Championships, three or four Europeon Cups.

"They're all hard workers. They'll go like it's a 9-to-5 job, for more than eight hours, two or three practices per day."

Ivanov and Dounev were each recently married (in June), but both hope to latch on with an NCAA school. Michigan and Ohio State are possibilities if they meet eligibility.

"They really want an education," Gueorguiev said. "Right now they're waiting to see if they get any offers. They work out every day in the morning and keep their bodies in shape."

Dounev, the silver medalist, is also awaiting word about the possibility of going on an international show tour of Europe with other Olympians.

"Nobody knows when it's going to start or how long it's going to last," Gueorguiev said. "It could go for about two months (in the fall)."

Dounev, along with Jovtchev, are both from the historical town of Plovdiv, much like Athens is to Greece.

"I may try for 2000 (in Sydney, Australia)," Dounev said. "But I'd really like to be at a university and compete. I'd like to study computer engineering. I'd like to know as soon as possible."

Dounev, who remembers the fall of the Todor Zhivkov Communist regime in 1989, enjoys his new liberties, as well as the American way of life.

"Young people have freedom and many opportunities, but they're polite, friendly and honest, too," Dounev said. "Just being honest is important. Money is important only if you make it important."

Ivanov, the youngest of the trio, comes from the Black Sea resort city of Varna.

He came close to winning a medal in two different individual events, but was one place too short according to the judges.

"I'm not really upset because I came up with my best result and I was in the top eight (finalists) against some of the best," he said. "They (the judges) did the best they could. That's just gymnastics. I just felt lucky to compete. Look at the world (all-around) champ from Belarus injured his Achilles two weeks before and couldn't compete."

Ivanov was a relative rookie four years earlier in Barcelona. He

Roberts sees same issues ahead

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Jack Roberts has been Executive Director for the Michigan High School Athletic Association for a decade now.

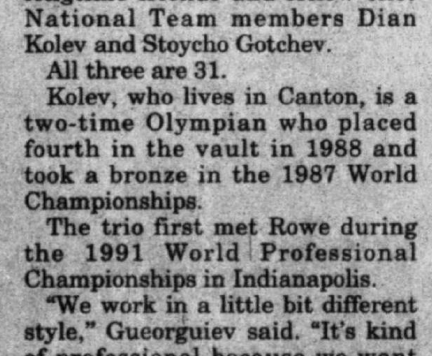

And if he has any say about it, he will continue on the same course for the next 10.

"The fundamental issues remain scholarship, safety, sportsmanship and the overall scope of the program," said Roberts, who met with Detroit-area media members Tuesday at the Troy Hilton. "Sportsmanship, the atmosphere that surrounds the field, will be with us 10 years from now. It will always be a defining issue."

The 19-member MHSAA Representative Council approved a 13-point package in May which calls for expanded sportsmanship efforts in education, encouragement and enforcement.

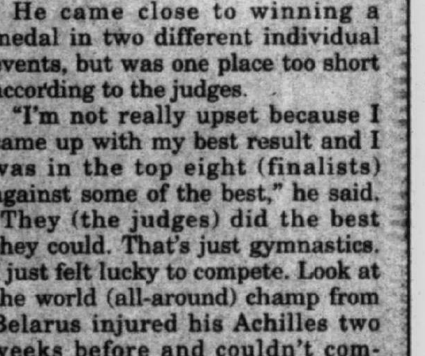

The package also added a fourth element, exposure for those coaches and programs which are consistently poor in their behavior and sportsmanship efforts.

The Council is reacting to three embarrassing incidents during the fall of 1995, which included a coach throwing a chair during a district girls basketball tourney game; a coach head-butting an official during a regional soccer match; and a bench-clearing brawl in football, which received national attention during the regular season.

'It was amazing to us that each school had an equal opportunity to speak at the time in question. That was one of the easier ones to deal with because of what is clearly stated in our (MHSAA) Handbook, and because of that, I would not review that (Canton vs. Churchill soccer) case.'

Jack Roberts, MHSAA director

Roberts said there were 132 schools where three or more unsportsmanlike reports were submitted during 1995-96.

To end that, the Council approved proposals to have the names of those schools which receive three or more negative officials reports in a single school year, and to publish the names of coaches who are ejected from contests, to be published in the MHSAA Bulletin.

Also, players who receive three ejections in one year will be banned from post-season play.

Other changes

The Council also announced some new wrinkles for the 1995-96 season.

•Michigan International Speedway in Brooklyn will host the Lower Peninsula Cross Country Finals (all classes). Nearly 1,900 student-athletes from approximately 500 MHSAA member schools will gather

Halls of Fame honor those worthy

TEN-PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

Anyone who attains the distinction of getting inducted to the Hall of Fame has "climbed that mountain" and should wear their honors with great pride.

In bowling, there are local and national halls of fame, with a few others in between.

For our area, the Greater Detroit and Detroit Women's Bowling Associations are representative of the best of the best.

Those who get into the hall have earned their way with outstanding performances on the lanes over the course of many years.

The GDBA and DWBA hall of fame committees act with full consideration of all reports and resumes received, then discuss each candidate on merit.

The nominees are voted upon with a point system, and the winning candidates are then named.

The winners, unless deceased, are to be presented with their honors at the annual hall of fame banquet each November.

This year's inductees are Jack Treolar of Farmington Hills in the men's category and Dina Manni-Jones in the women's classification. Dale Seavoy took the senior division; Free Press writer Matt Fiorito won in the Meritorious Service category, following yours truly, who received the same honor in 1990.

Additionally, the Tom McKay Award went to the late Steve Cruchon, who founded the Bowlers Digest. The Judge John D. Watts Award was bestowed upon Mary Sanders.

Treolar is a perfect example of what it takes to make it to the Hall of Fame.

He is the only man in GDBA history to have won the Association tournament in every event.

He captured the team event in 1968, doubles in 1968, singles in 1970, all-events in 1970; Masters in 1972.

Jack also has an ABC title (team all-events with Goebel Beer in 1974). He won the BJ singles 10-game total at Long Beach, Calif., in 1972, a Michigan team title in 1963, an all-events state title in 1974, four Michigan Majors (MMBA) titles and was elected to their Hall of Fame in 1982.

Treolar was a member of the first GDBA All-City team in 1964-65, 1967-68 (captain) and 1969-70.

He has rolled three 300 games and an 802 series and was Rookie of the Year in the All-Star Classic in the 1962-63 season. His highest average to date was 225.

There were many other worthy candidates in this category, all deserving of hall of fame consideration.

The quality of this year's candidates made the selections difficult, but all of the nominees from this year will be up for consideration again for the next voting session.

•Last year, Wonderland Lanes in Livonia took on a very innovative program in an effort to attract new bowlers.

Called "Bowlers First," it was pretty successful, having brought in 30 new bowlers for their leagues.

The premise was, if a bowler brought in a new person to join who had not been a regular league bowler, the program would pay the sanction fee for the new bowler in addition to doing so for the person who brought him or her in.

This season they will continue the same, hoping for similar results.

•Last Wednesday was the end of the Wonderland Summer Trio session, and some of the guys and gals finished with a flourish.

Chuck Ruel had a 299 in his last game, while Jeff Peer shot a 275 after striking in the first nine frames.

Butch Cook fired a 279; only a stubborn 7-pin in the seventh frame kept him from a "perfecto."

Ken Bashara called his shot; facing the "Greek Church" split, he told everybody nearby that he would make it and, sure enough, he did.

broke his wrist while vaulting.

"I was young, a kid," he said. "I didn't have the experience to do my best."

The animated and friendly Ivanov has never formally studied English, but has picked up the language while competing in meets around the world.

"He's learned a lot, but his body language along shows you what kind of person he is," Gueorguiev said. "He'd like to study psychology and help people. He really wants to find the best spot for himself in the U.S."

Ivanov also appreciates the lifestyle in America.

"They give young people a chance and they have a lot of choices," he said. "In a democracy, everyone has to find themselves, and the best survive."

Ivanov also admired the way newly-discovered U.S. golden girl Kerri Strug overcame torn ligaments in her ankle to help the Americans win a gold medal in team competion.

"She's a very tough girl and I think she's a hero," Ivanov said. "No matter what you think of her, she's a fighter and she did it for the team. She knew everybody on her team worked four years for that success. And she knew you only have one chance every four years to do it."

The Bulgarian coaches and gymnasts also realized their opportunities come every so often, and now they're trying to make the best of it.

at MIS, negotiating a course which begins on the infield of the facility, proceeds to an adjacent wooded area for nearly one-half of each race, and finishes in front of the main grandstand. Two-thirds of the race will be visible to spectators, but binoculars are recommended.

•Girls will be allowed to compete in pole vault in boys track and field meets.

•In wrestling, a weight monitoring program will allow a two-pound Jan. 15 growth allowance as permitted by National Federation rules. In 1997-98, the MHSAA will adopt a skinfold phase of the program, which determines body fat content according to a wrestler's competition weight range.

•Increase in state tournament ticket prices from $3 to $4 for the 1997-98 season.

•Provide three options for greater athletic participating flexibility to students who attend new and specialized public and private schools.

Tournament revenues

Roberts reported that the state boys basketball tournament continues to be the most lucrative source of revenue for the nearly $5 million MHSAA budget, followed by football, girls basketball, wrestling and ice hockey.

Predetermined sites for pre-regional and regional football playoff games, however, are not in the immediate future.

"The host school has received 10 percent of the gate or $300, whichever is greater," Roberts said. "They also get to keep all the concessions and parking.

"There is not a lot of sentiment from the football committee to change this. Most want to host games because they've earned the right to host (based on playoff points).

"However, it's very difficult to get schools to host certain tournaments, such as regional cross country or individual district or wrestling regionals. We're trying to add incentives through revenue sharing from other sports."

With the ticket increase in effect two years from now, a percentage of gate receipts to host state basketball tournament games will drop from 33 to 30 percent.

Other business

Roberts said there is interest in boys volleyball (in the spring), but the Council reported there is little movement among member schools.

"For the MHSAA to consider running a tourney, we either have to have 10 percent or 70 schools involved," he said. "It's a sport that is there, but only half of the teams are recognized by their school boards. The rest are considered club teams."

Roberts also said the misapplication of overtime rules in the Plymouth Canton-Livonia Churchill district girls game last May was a clear-cut issue.

"It was amazing to us that each school had an equal opportunity to speak at the time in question," the MHSAA Executive Director said. "That was one of the easier ones to deal with because of what is clearly stated in our (MHSAA) Handbook, and because of that, I would not review that case."

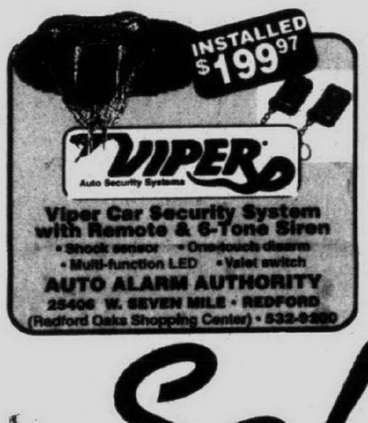

He also refused to blame the officials for making the mistake.

"The tournament manager had someone assigned to that game," Roberts said. "Do you keep good officials from our selection committees for something like that?"

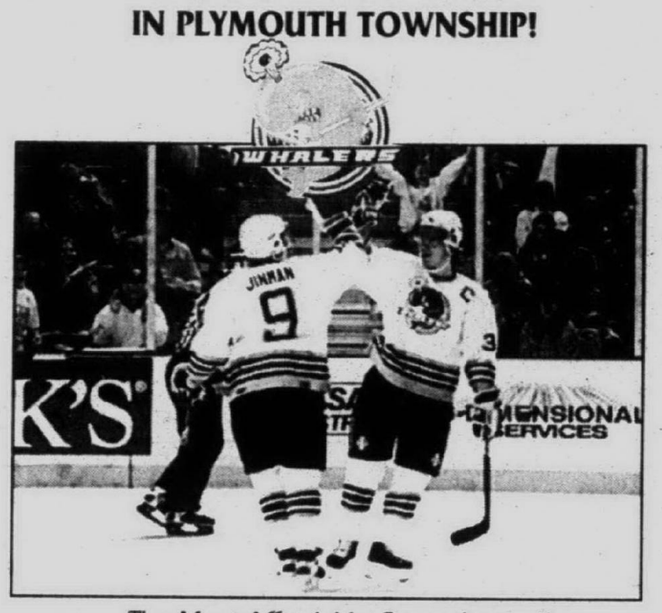

Roberts also is concerned that the MHSAA is in tune with Michigan Department of Health standards regarding legal depths of pools.

"I don't see any change in the Association's policy," he said. "In swimming, our committee people feel there should be no conversion times for in-water starts. It would only lead to more problems.

"The current debate is that many of our diving boards are below Board of Health standards, but meet National Federation standards. Two schools on the west side of the state were just declared inoperable. With all the changes, it's been a moving target since 1983."

1997 Ford Expedition: Aw, heck, it's a pretty truck

By Anne Fracassa
Avanti NewsFeatures

ROAD TEST By Anne Fracassa

GIRDWOOD, Alaska — Look at it next to a Ford Explorer and you'll see a world's difference in size.

The new 1997 Ford Expedition actually looks huge sitting next to the Explorer. But slip inside, and you'll feel different. Sure, there's a lot of room in there. But it's cozy just the same.

In making the new Expedition, Ford hopes to tap into the full-size sport utility segment that may just double in volume by the end of the century. By the end of 1994, more than 1.6 million sport utes had been sold. And the majority of the growth has been happening in the full-size sport ute segment.

Even Ford officials have been surprised by the popularity and buying frenzy brought on by General Motors' Tahoe and Yukon models.

"(The full-size sport utility) is the fastest growing segment in the industry and we've seen Tahoe and Yukon take off since their introduction in January of 1995," said Bob Girard, the Expedition's brand manager at Ford. "The growth in this segment is fueled by customer demand for larger sport utility vehicles."

The reason the segment is growing is the lifestyle change a lot of families are going through. People are looking for a full-size, four-door sport utility that can haul a lot of people comfortably, have towing capacity better than a compact sport utility, good fuel economy, superior ride and handling characteristics and at the same time fit in the garage.

The Ford Expedition, available in dealer showrooms Oct. 2, will fit that bill.

A base price has not yet been determined by Ford for the new Expedition. The vehicle it replaces in the lineup, the Bronco, went for more than $25,000 in its last year.

Ford hopes to attract suburban families with teenagers (who are sick of the minivan scene), those in rural areas who use a sport ute to take to town and double it as a work truck, and empty nesters who lead active lives and trailer a boat or mobile home.

It also caters to the guy or gal who does some heavy-duty off-roading.

Actually, that's where the Expedition really opened my eyes.

Here in Alaska, right around Anchorage, you would expect to see a lot of people off-roading. Nope. There are a lot of environmentalists here — a la the Tread Lightly folks — who don't want you to spoil the natural beauty of this wonderful and picturesque state.

We ended up on the Fort Richardson Army base to do a little "off-roading" exercise, the Ford guys said.

The "exercise" took us through spindle-thin dirt roads with near cliff-like drops, steep hills, hair-raising turns and plenty of mud and muck. The rugged Expedition handled all of it with the ease and comfort of a well-paved road. If you long for a 4-wheel-drive vehicle with a lot of mettle, these are your wheels.

With the third — and optional — third row of seats, the Expedition can handle seating for nine people. The 72-pound third row bench seat can be removed without tools. More practical, however, is the front and rear seats and leaving the extra space for cargo.

In the more than nine hours we spent in the truck, the Expedition was very comfortable. We never felt fatigued or suffered any back pain.

On the inside, instrumentation is easy to read and understand and the buttons are large and high so you don't have to take your eyes off the road for long.

On the outside, intelligent styling takes over. The truck is rounder and softer than the old Bronco. It's actually kinda sexy looking, yet has a commanding stance. Aw, heck, it's a pretty truck.

From the A-pillar forward, by the way, the Expedition is common with the F-150. It's even built on the F-150 platform and shares more than 50 percent of its components with the F-Series. But that's all that's common. The rest of the truck, inside and out, is very different.

It's got a longer wheelbase, wide doors for easy entry, visibility is superb, the power is wonderful and the quietness and ride are as classy as a luxury sedan.

The Expedition is outifitted with a standard Triton 4.6-liter modular V8 (with 215 horsepower) or the optional Triton 5.4-liter V8 with 230 horses. Both were tested and both were powerful. The 5.4-liter is an all-new engine and can tow up to 8,000 pounds when properly equipped. And the Class III hitch is now available through Ford dealers.

The engines also feature fail-safe cooling coupled with an early warning and safeguard system that prevents overheating through an engine protection mode. In this mode, the engine will run on alternate sets of cylinders, allowing one set of four to cool off before switching back to them. If the temperature of the engine reaches a certain level, the computer shuts down the engine to prevent engine failure.

The 4-wheel-drive system, Control Trak, has been enhanced and features a new transfer case. With the heavy-duty Control Trak, you can choose from four drive settings — automatic 4-wheel-drive, 2 high, 4 low and 4 high.

Also an option is a four-corner load-leveling suspension for the 4x4 models. By using compressed air, rather than conventional shocks and coiled springs in the suspension, the rear air springs and front air shocks allow the Expedition to "kneel" down 1 inch after the ignition key is turned off. By leveling the load, air suspension improves towing and hauling capabilities, ride quality, command of the road and trailer-tow handling.

It also allows you to get in and out of the Expedition easily. There are optional running boards that are lighted (and operated by the key fob) that you won't be able to live without. You still can get in and out of the truck easily, it's just that if you're over 30, you'd be much more comfortable with the assistance of the running boards package.

The Expedition has large 16-inch wheels and a 119-inch wheelbase, which enhances its stance, strength and stability. The increase in side glass provides better overall visibility.

Dale Claudepierre, the chief project engineer for Expedition, said the Lincoln Town Car's noise, vibration and harshness levels were used as targets for the Expedition. That was achieved.

Standard are dual airbags, height-adjustable seat belts, 4-wheel anti-lock brakes, speed-sensitive variable effort steering, and it exceeds all applicable truck safety requirements through 1999.

Another neat safety feature exclusive to the Expedition: Outside signal mirrors. It's an option on the Eddie Bauer models that increases the Expedition's visibility to other traffic.

When the driver activates the turn signals, drivers in vehicles behind the Expedition see a large red flashing arrow in the corresponding side-view mirror. The Expedition's driver can't see it from the inside of the vehicle, but the other drivers can — clearly.

The Expedition is a fine offering in the full-size sport utility segment. One to consider, that's for sure.
