Teachers still without contract

The Plymouth-Canton schools and the district's teachers are still negotiating a contract. A session is scheduled this week.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth-Canton schools teachers are staying on the job, even though their labor contract expired Friday.

Teachers and administrators have scheduled their next contract negotiating session for Thursday. It is the first scheduled negotiation session since a two-hour meeting Aug. 29.

Errol Goldman, assistant superintendent for employee relations, said the two sides have yet to agree on wage and health care issues.

"We've had agreement on a lot of issues, we've reached agreement on such things as sick leave, the calendar's been agreed to, there are a lot of areas we've agreed on," Goldman said.

"The major issues are salary and insurance," he said, adding teachers are also seeking an increase in life insurance benefits.

Some teachers say a strategy being discussed is for teachers to call in sick one day each week, to encourage movement in contract talks.

Goldman said the administration has proposed health insurance changes that would save the district money and better serve employees. The administration is proposing that employees switch to Mercy Preferred Provider PPO or pay a monthly co-pay to keep their current Blue Cross-Blue Shield coverage.

their health insurance. Goldman said a union-selected consultant "said the plans are compatible, and the service will be better than they receive through Blue Cross."

"Because they're compatible, we don't believe the district should pay the higher of the two," Goldman said.

To keep Blue Cross, a single person would pay $23 per month. Per month payment for a family of four would be $62, Goldman said.

Goldman declined to detail the salary package being offered to teachers, but said it is tied to acceptance of health care changes.

On negotiations, he said, "We are a ways apart and we still have some work to do. We want to get a settlement as quickly as we can."

Hillary fan will meet first lady

BY KEVIN BROWN

Alicia Palma Lesko of Plymouth is having tea this week with Hillary Rodham Clinton.

Lesko was invited to the event Wednesday at the White House in Washington, D.C., because she's coordinator of the Hillary Rodham Clinton Fan Club which meets in Plymouth.

She heads the Northwest Wayne County chapter of the club, which has 138 chapters and more than 20,000 members worldwide.

It won't be the first time she's met the first lady. Lesko - a native of Chile who is a naturalized U.S. citizen - met Clinton when she signed copies of her book in Ann Arbor earlier this year. She met her a second time when Clinton visited Detroit two months ago.

Lesko said Clinton remembered her at the second meeting: "I have an accent. She said, 'Oh you're the one from Chile.'"

"I reminded her she has friends in Michigan, she really does."

Lesko, who said she's always admired Clinton, first learned of the fan club and its Ann Arbor chapter in

New local author to sign books at festival

BY JEFF COUNTS
STAFF WRITER

A Canton travel and outdoor writer has published a book on things to do in Michigan and will be signing copies during Plymouth's Fall Festival.

Bill Semion will be signing copies of the book, "Michigan Family Adventure Guide," 1-3 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 7, at Little Professor on the Park bookstore on Main Street in Plymouth. The store is located across from the Fall Festival site in Kellogg Park.

The book came about when a publisher called Michigan Living magazine, which is published by AAA. Semion is a longtime staff member of the magazine and a former newspaper reporter.

"I thought about it for a day. They wanted 50,000 words and 200 items," Semion said. "I sat down for an hour and half with a friend and came up with 200 items."

He said the ideas for places to visit in the book came from years of traveling the state, first as a child with his family and fisherman father, and from his work as a travel writer for Michigan Living.

"I remember crossing over to the Upper Peninsula on a ferry when they were still working on the Mackinac Bridge," he said.

Tims, received training in Dunn and Dunn Learning Styles, Classroom Assessment, and Campus America IMSeries curriculum development software.

After the specialized training, Tims worked with 40 elementary, middle school, and high school teachers and content consultants to develop curriculum in the area of Balancing Work and Family.

She was honored by the deputy director, Naomi Bryson, from the Office of Career and Technical Education, with a framed certificate of recognition at a concluding luncheon at the Harley Hotel, East Lansing.

Schools eye new harassment policy

By KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

A more defined policy on how to deal with complaints of sexual harassment or discrimination went before Plymouth-Canton schools officials Tuesday.

While some school board members and others suggested a few changes, the new policy guidelines - put together by Errol Goldman, assistant superintendent for employee relations and personnel - were generally accepted by board members.

"I think you addressed a lot of the questions we talked about before," said board member David Artley. "I'm relatively comfortable with this."

Board Treasurer Susan Davis questioned a portion of the guidelines that specified a team of a males and females "may" be assigned to investigate complaints. The word should be changed to "will," she suggested.

Goldman said that to follow complaints of sexual harassment, male and female teams would be used, unless the complainant was uncomfortable with that.

board members and administrators a newspaper editorial detailing the case of a Grand Rapids area teacher who was drummed out of his job because he was gay.

"We need policies spelled out," he said. "Somehow you're willing to say it but you're not willing to write it."

He also questioned policy guideline language about the rights of "covered individuals," saying that was unclear. Goldman said he would review the language and report back.

Plymouth-Canton schools teachers union President Chuck Portelli questioned a guideline provision that said teachers with a sexual harassment or discrimination complaint must seek a remedy through a union grievance or by filing a complaint with the district, but not both. "I don't believe it is correct, the MEA (Michigan Education Association) doesn't feel it's correct," Portelli said.

The board of education in March 1995 approved a new discrimination and harassment policy, as did other state school districts in response to a change in state law.

Goldman said the revised guidelines presented Tuesday give employees who feel they've been victimized a step-by-step process for lodging complaints.

Goldman said the Plymouth-Canton schools guidelines were modeled on those prepared by the National School Board Association and on guidelines put together by other districts.

For a while on Thursday, he was trapped in his home, unable to get in or out of his driveway because of a road construction project on Ridge. He had a dispute with the crews doing the work and made various complaints to Plymouth Township officials and Wayne County. The firm finally dropped off a load of gravel that now allows McAmmond to drive over the new curb at his home.

Kids stay on toes at tryouts

The Plymouth-Canton Ballet Company auditioned dancers Sunday for its Christmas performance of The Nutcracker.

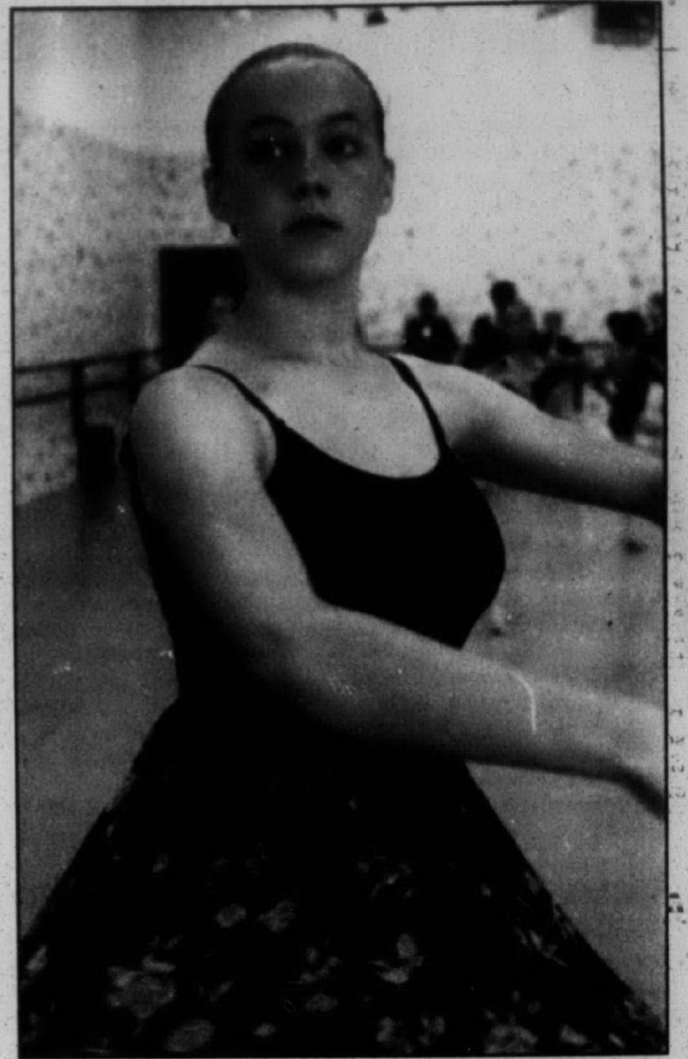

The ballet, accompanied by the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra, will be presented December 13, 14, and 15 at the Salem High School Auditorium.

Thirty-one prospective flowers, snowflakes and mushrooms, ages nine to 12, auditioned for places in the apprentice company. Forty dancers, ages 13 and older, auditioned for the senior company.

"We're going to do a whole new Waltz of the Flowers this year," said Dawn Greene, the company's artistic director.

Does Green ever spot a potential prima donna at these auditions? "Yes, if we see someone who has a lot of potential, we give them a scholarship."

Green also teaches dance at Joanne's Dance Extension in Canton, 455-4330.

Knievel takes motorcycle over 25 Massey Cadillacs at State Fair

BY JEFF COUNTS
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Cadillac dealer Don Massey is a trusting soul.

So trusting in fact that he loaned 25 brand, spanking new 1997 Cadillac cars to the Michigan State Fair on Wednesday so that the daredevil son of Evel Knievel, Robbie Knievel, could jump over them on a motorcycle.

The stunt was a major attraction at the fair, and the younger Knievel showed up in Plymouth Township on Thursday for an appearance at Massey Cadillac, the largest Cadillac dealership in the country.

"We're opening a new dealership in Memphis," said Massey. "Robbie said that when we're done, he'll jump over that."

The younger Knievel is following his father in the world of motorcycle jumping.

The Massey Cadillacs ended up at the State Fairgrounds in Detroit through negotiations between the dealership and State Fair officials.

"We're involved in Detroit and we're the number one dealership. And this is a grand sports event. We decided to marry the two," said George Harland, operations manager for Massey.

He estimated that about 20,000 people saw the jump and noted that almost all the television stations in metro Detroit carried film footage of the event.

Knievel showed up at the dealership, without his motorcycle, to sign autographs and shake hands with customers.

Daytime thieves hit dealerships

Plymouth Township police on occasion get reports of night time thefts of parts from autos parked at local dealerships, but it's rare to get reports on daytime thefts. Police are investigating two such daytime thefts. The first was reported at noon Wednesday from Fox Hills Chrysler on Ann Arbor Road at Lilley Road, as thieves made off with five tires and wheels.

A second theft was reported at 8:30 a.m. Thursday at Blackwell Ford on Plymouth Road. There, thieves made off with two tires and wheels. Police said a witness spotted a getaway car at the scene of the second theft, a gray Pontiac LeMans, and recorded a license plate number.

An auto supplier is moving its headquarters from Farmington Hills to Plymouth. Hella North American Inc. has announced plans to build a new facility in Plymouth, according to its president, Michael J. Buford.

Hella North America is located in Farmington Hills, and is a manufacturer of electronics and lighting products for the automotive industry.

The new facility will be designed and built by the Argos group. Completion is planned for April 1997.

The new facility will use about 60,000 square feet for engineering and other office space. The remaining 44,000 square feet will be for manufacturing solid state electronics for the automotive industry.

Portelli was unavailable for comment Friday on the progress of contract talks. Recently implemented state law poses economic penalties on individual teachers, their union and the school district if there is a teacher's strike or work stoppage.

The contract which expired Friday granted teachers a two and a half percent pay increase. Entry level pay is currently $30,997 and top of the scale is $62,050. The district employs more than 800 teachers.

But while much of the book focuses on what to do and visit along the Great Lakes, Semion gives Plymouth, Canton and Northville their due in the travel guide. The Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular gets a mention. Here's what it says in the book: "Imitated but never duplicated, the annual Plymouth International Ice Sculpture Spectacular in mid-January draws more than 100,000 persons to the streets of this normally placid colonial downtown to ogle hundreds of sculptures carved from 400-pound blocks of ice. The event is one of the best of its kind, as carvers come to chip, chop, smooth, grind, and buff their way through town as they form more than 200 works of fleeting, crystalline art." In Canton, the book lists Rose Shores Racquetball and Fitness Center as a place to "play squash, racquetball, or an old American standard, paddleball. Nearby Northville also gets mentioned. Listed as places to go are: the Marquis Theater, which puts children in live stage performances; Gitfiddler, an acoustic music store; and Great Harvest Bread Company, a bakery. Also listed as a family venture is a drive on Middle Rouge Parkway, Hines Drive. Semion said that there's a renewed interest in tourism in southeastern Michigan, partly because of the election of Detroit Mayor Dennis Archer. "Good things are happening," he said, taking note of the Detroit Lions' impending move to downtown Detroit. He said southeastern Michigan has diverse activities, taking note that Lake Erie offers some good fishing, with charter boats taking people out after walleye and perch. But the book doesn't just stick with mainstream attractions. There are off-the-wall type places that abound in outstate Michigan. One such place is the Mackinac Bridge museum, which is located above a pizza parlor. For those headed north this fall for a color tour, the best place in Michigan is at the Porcupine Mountains in the western Upper Peninsula. That's where the Lake of the Clouds is located, and from that spot you can see fall color for miles. Semion lives in Canton with his wife, Kay, and their two children, Sonya and Justin.

October. "I felt very powerless about attacks on the first lady. She has been a child advocate, and she's active in causes she believes in and I admire that," she said.

The head of the Ann Arbor club asked if Lesko would like to start a local chapter here. With some other area fan club members who attended Ann Arbor chapter meetings, they started the Northwest Wayne chapter. Lesko acknowledges that club members see some humor in having a fan club named for the first lady. But they participate mainly out of respect for Clinton, who takes plenty of jabs from conservatives.

"I just felt very strongly, I hate to see somebody being attacked, she's trying to do what she can," Lesko said. About 12 members showed for the first meeting in March, at former Democratic Wayne County commissioner Bill Joyner's Plymouth Township home. Now, more than 20 attend meetings which typically take place the second Wednesday of each month. The first project the club tackled was giving Easter baskets to area families that didn't have the money to buy them. A potluck dinner is being planned for late September. The next meeting is scheduled for 7 p.m. Oct. 9 at Denny's Restaurant on Ann Arbor Road. Of meetings, she said, "We try to be not too formal, we try to have everybody feel at home and introduce new people," she said. Lesko said about 70 percent of club members are women, and some bring their husbands to fan club meetings. Members come from Plymouth, Canton, Livonia, Westland and other western Wayne communities. Friends and relatives of Lesko in Chile, Mexico and Germany have also started Hillary Rodham Clinton fan clubs. Fan club coordinators from the 138 club chapters are invited to Wednesday's tea with the first lady. Club Treasurer Karen Boyd of Plymouth will join Lesko in traveling to Washington, D.C. Lesko, who works as a librarian in Livonia, has four children. For more information on the club, call Lesko at 455-4713 or Boyd at 454-7439.

S'craft reports steady enrollment, budget surplus

BY BETH SUNDRLA JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

The fall semester is under way at Schoolcraft College and enrollment is holding steady compared to last year. The college also saw a $1.2 million surplus in its 1995-96 budget.

Enrollment is "about even," at about 9,400 credit students this semester, Conway Jeffress, vice president for instruction, told the Schoolcraft College Board of Trustees during its monthly meeting Wednesday.

"That's better than it sounds. We're one of the few colleges that held their own in the last year," he said.

The college saw a slight enrollment increase during the winter term.

Colleges around the area are showing mixed results, Jeffress said. Other colleges have been very aggressive with their advertising and recruitment efforts, he said.

Several weeks ago Schoolcraft was facing a "discrepancy" in enrollment, but about "7,000 phone calls" were made and many people came in to register, Jeffress said.

"It's going well," he said. The college is expected to meet its budget, he said.

Revenue increase

In other action, trustees approved allocating a $1.2 million increase over budgeted revenue in the 1995-96 fiscal year budget.

The money, which came from increases in the areas of tuition and fees, $388,000; interest, $438,000; property taxes, $230,000; and state aid, $144,000, will be allocated to the renovation of the bookstore, $400,000; Waterman Center boiler, $100,000; campus signs, $210,000; computer replacement, $350,000 and instructional expenses, $140,000.

One for the books

Trustees also approved a purchase order with Redstone Tiseo Architects for $20,260 to complete a bid specification package.

The construction contract is expected to be awarded in January with work to begin in March. The cost of the project is expected to be $400,000.

The bookstore, built more than 20 years ago, will be remodeled to meet Americans with Disabilities Act requirements, improve floor space use and spruce up the sales floor.

Nearby development

Trustees heard an update of a J.P. Properties proposal to build two hotels and an office building off of Six Mile Road near Schoolcraft College property.

The project is soon to come up at a Livonia City Council meeting, and Schoolcraft College will be asked to agree to improvements to an adjoining street, Adelard Raby, vice president for business services, told the board.

A rezoning hearing is scheduled soon and construction is expected to begin in the spring, he said.

Written off

Trustees agreed to write off $3,385.50 in delinquent student loans. The loan payments were due Oct. 30, 1994, and range from $9 to $225 from 18 students.

The list of delinquent loan amounts is longer this time, Adelard H. Raby III, vice president for business services, said.

College officials are looking at applying stricter standards to granting loans, Raby said.

New faculty welcomed

Schoolcraft trustees welcomed new faculty members, most of whom were introduced during Wednesday's meeting.

• Janet Arszno began teaching mathematics full time this term. A former high school math teacher at Thurston and Bishop Borgess, Arszno began teaching part time at Schoolcraft nine years ago. She is a resident of Plymouth.

• Colleen Case has been appointed a full-time faculty member in the computer graphics technology department. She has been a part-time instructor at Schoolcraft for two years and has worked part time at Henry Ford Community College, Cleary Business College and Concordia College. She is a resident of Livonia.

• Diane Flynn-Hahn is a full-time instructor in child care and development. She once operated her own child care center and also worked for the Dearborn Public Schools. She grew up in Redford Township.

• Cheryl Mascolo is a full-time nursing instructor this fall. She has spent more than 25 years as a nurse. She was an adjunct faculty member at Oakland Community College and was a clinical nurse specialist in employee health at Huron Valley Hospital.

• James Nissen is a full-time humanities instructor and has taught at Schoolcraft part time since 1990. He is the associate director of music at Ann Arbor's First Congregational Church and has studied at the University of Michigan and in Paris.

• Rheta Rubenstein is a new mathematics instructor. She comes to Schoolcraft from the University of Windsor, where she was a professor of education. She has been a math teacher in the Detroit school system at Renaissance and Murray-Wright.

Residents named to foster care review board

Several Wayne County residents have been appointed to a citizen volunteer board created by the Michigan Legislature to review children's foster care placements.

The new board members are Carolyn Armstrong, Evone Butler, Robert Clothier, Danita Echols, Clayton Evenden, Margaret Fasca, Ronald Hewitt, Gayle Hylton, Ethel Knight, Doris Owens, Kathleen Palmer, Sherrie King-Ross, Judith Rotthoff, Charlotte Kellar-Smiley, Kathy Taylor, Arlene Towns, Kathleen Trembath, Glada Webb, Patricia Wisk, Alfaye Woods, Betty Yarrell, Tamara York, and Judith Vetula. All of the board members participated in a two-day orientation training session conducted by the Foster Care Review Board in Lansing.

There are seven Wayne County Foster Care Review Boards, which meet one day each month to review a sample of cases of children placed in temporary foster care. The purpose of these reviews is to determine what efforts are being made by the juvenile court, the Family Independence Agency, or private child placing agency to develop and carry out a plan for permanent placement. The program is administered by the State Court Administrative Office.

Agency offers bid to buy hospital

Spectrum Human Services Inc. of Livonia has made an offer of $1.4 million for the Montgomery Hospital building in Westland.

Michigan Health Care Corp., which has been operating under Chapter 11 of the bankruptcy code since March 31, 1995, announced the sales agreement with Spectrum last week, but it is subject to the results of an auction planned for Sept. 11.

On Aug. 23, the U.S. Bankruptcy Court ordered a hearing set for approval of the proposed sale to Spectrum subject to the receipt of higher and better offers at an auction to be held at 9 a.m. Sept. 11, at the offices of Miller, Canfield, Paddock and Stone, 150 West Jefferson, Suite 2500, Detroit 48226.

If the deal goes through Spectrum plans to relocate its headquarters there, according to Shirley Edwards, deputy director of Spectrum. "We're looking for a larger location," she said.

The agency's site in Livonia, at 34000 Plymouth Road, has already been up for sale for a couple weeks, she said.

The Montgomery Hospital building, 28303 Joy Road, was bought by one of Michigan Health Care Corp.'s subsidiaries in 1987, renovated and operated as a 60-bed mental health facility from 1988 until November 1995, when it was closed. The 10,000-square-foot facility sits on 10 acres of land, according to John Southworth, special project coordinator for Quorum, which is managing Michigan Health Care Corp. during the reorganization.

The building still has furnished patient rooms and a telephone system, Southworth said.

"We're hoping for a couple (bids)," Southworth said, adding he doesn't know if there will be any. Interested parties must file with Miller Canfield by Sept. 9 for the auction Sept. 11, he said.

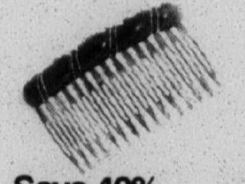

Proposed bids are required to exceed Spectrum's price by at least $50,000 and be subject to other terms and conditions in the notice of auction.

Spectrum Human Services Inc. is a nonprofit human service agency and offers foster care, in-home care, independent living, adoptions and residential treatment for abused teens and handicapped adults.

Michigan Health Care Corp. provides clinic, hospital and mental health services to Detroit and surrounding communities through the Michigan Hospital and Medical Center, Aurora Hospital for Children and 19 clinics. The corporation and its principal subsidiaries have filed a joint plan of reorganization, with its creditors' committees, and its principal secured creditors, which is expected to be confirmed by the end of the year.

SHOPPING CENTERED

Kids' eyewear flatters tiny faces with high style

As you prepare your child for the upcoming school season, a comprehensive eye exam should be the first item on your back-to-school checklist.

Good vision is crucial to a child's learning and development. Children with undiagnosed eye problems sit in classrooms all around the country staring at blurry blackboards or fuzzy pages in books. Often, they do not tell anyone because they believe everyone sees the way they do.

The American Optometric Association recommends that school-age children have their eyes examined annually. A startling 50-percent of reading problems in school-age children occur as a result of undetected vision problems.

According to the Vision Council of America, one-in-four children between the ages of 5 and 12, has a vision problem that may affect educational performance.

Indications of eye strain

Parents should watch for these signs of possible vision trouble, says Dr. Jack Weber, director of research and development for Marchon Eyewear:

- Excessive rubbing or blinking of eyes
- Covering one eye, then the other, when reading
- Placing head very close to the book to focus on words
- Squinting and complaints of headaches after reading or watching television
- Unequal tracking of moving objects
- Omitting, repeating and miscalling words or confusing similar words
- Evidence of poor eye-hand coordination
- A family history of poor vision or eye disease

Tips for finding the perfect frames:

If your child need glasses, the experts at Marchon Eyewear offer these suggestions:

Frame selection—Let your child try on several frames, including brand names like Marchon's Mickey & Co., and be satisfied with the final choice. Children can identify with the friendly characters of Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and Minnie.

Appearance—Metal rims are the rage, as is traditional gold and tortoise coloring, for kids 7 and older. In younger kids' frames, an added punch of color is splashed on frames with confetti-like patterns of bold pinks, reds, blues and violets. In fact, a favorite kids' frame by Mickey & Co. is colored blurple, a combination of blue and purple.

Durability—Kids tend to be hard on their frames. Therefore, well constructed, quality eyeglasses are very important to help keep breakage and adjustments to a minimum. With regard to lenses, nothing is safer for parents of active youngsters than impact-resistant lenses made of polycarbonate material.

Fit and comfort—Eyes should be centered with the lens (the optic center) for optimum correction effectiveness. The top of the frame should follow the child's brow line. The frame itself should not rest on the child's cheeks, and the temple should gently curve around the ears without pinching.

Safety features—Spring hinges in the temples of children's frames provide an extra measure of comfort and durability, adjustable Unifit bridges gently hug the tender cartilage of young noses, and comfort cables have a rubber tubing that covers the metal ear tip, providing a snug, comfortable fit so eyeglasses won't slip or fall off.

Flexible shape-retaining frames made of Flexon, a titanium-based metal alloy distributed and patented exclusively by Marchon Eyewear, can be twisted or bent, yet automatically spring back to their original shape to withstand rough handling and rough play.

Proper frame care—Lenses must be kept clean. Smudged, dirty lenses can distort your child's vision and should be cleaned with a soft cloth to avoid making scratches.

Health superstore opens MedMax promotes well-being

A Southfield company plans to roll out dozens of MedMax stores, aisles full of health care products for aging baby boomers. The prototype opened last week in Westland.

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Statistics show an aging American population entering the 21st century. So it's no wonder retail experts predict new and expanded markets in preventive care and medical supplies.

Leading the way is pharmacist F. Kevin Browett, 41, of Farmington Hills. His Southfield-based company MedMax just opened the area's first superstore specializing in health and care products in Westland.

Later this year, two more MedMax stores will open in Rochester Hills and Taylor. Next year, plans call for additional locations in Farmington and Troy.

Browett is no stranger to the health care industry. He spent 12 years as a pharmacist for Virginia-based People's Drugs, and the next four, as a general merchandising manager responsible for buying $18 million worth of health care products for K-mart. He said today's consumers are educated about their health, and have the information they need to buy health care items for themselves.

MedMax sells more than 20,000 different health products in 18,000-square feet of space. Shoppers can find merchandise devoted to helping bad backs, sports injuries, mobility, nutrition, maternity patients, and home environments.

There are also prescription medicines, vitamins, power drinks and bars, hand-held weights, exercise balls, wheelchairs, scooters and lift-assisted loungers for sale. Many items make home environments less stressful for patients and caregivers.

Bed, bath and office vignettes display products that might make life easier for arthritic patients like right-angle utensils, suction-bottom bowls, pencil grippers, bath rails, and door knob extensions. Items such as oven and stove security knobs, cupboard latches and toilet seat locks insure safer home for children or loved-ones with diseases like Alzheimer's or Dementia.

Whether the need is for apparel with velcro closings, shoes designed for diabetes and gout patients, therapeutic massage items, bedding products to aid sleep, a Porta warm mattress for baby, or allergy-free pillows, MedMax stocks it all, and if they don't, the staff carries note cards to pass customer requests on to buyers. By the year 2002, the Southfield-based company hopes to open 200 more stores nation-wide.

Professional Staff

"It's more than a pharmacy," said manager Dave Sicheneder. "What's going to set MedMax apart is the wide variety of items for health and care, plus a staff of true professionals — a registered nurse, sports and nutrition therapist, audiologist, respiratory therapist, and soon-to-come, a dietician."

"And it's not just a sick store," he continued. "We're also offering our services and products to the fit and healthy. We're going to work with school athletic directors to prep them on keeping their students injury-free, and we're hosting hospital-sponsored lectures on preventative medicine."

Private rooms are available for mastectomy patients seeking prosthetics, and shoppers needing custom-fitted braces. A computerized body composition analysis, measures fat and muscle content, and then tailors nutrition and exercise programs to the individual under the direction of an athletic trainer, not a bad deal for $40. Another computerized program caters to orthotics for podiatry needs.

A juice bar allows customers to rest and peruse the library of health-care books. A designated area incorporating a variety of surfaces from plush carpeting to ceramic tiles, provides walker patients with a place to try products before purchasing. MedMax is awaiting city approval for a drive-through pharmacy window.

"We've created a clinical setting in a retail environment," said Sicheneder.

MedMax is across from Westland Center, 35600 Central City Pkwy. (313) 458-7100.

Linda Allard's designs appeal to classic tastes

BY JUDITH DONER BERNE
SPECIAL WRITER

Linda Allard, designer for Ellen Tracy, is no stranger to receiving compliments for her clothing designs.

But maybe none so unusual as: "Your clothes have been to a ton of fires."

That's because Channel 7 news reporter Mary Conway was one of about 50 women invited to breakfast recently in the Neiman Marcus Cafe as part of a preview of the Ellen Tracy Collections for fall.

"The thing I appreciate is you don't just design clothes for waifs," Conway told Allard, who was breakfasting next to her. Also at the table was Ellen Tracy president, Herb Gallen, who started the firm 47 years ago and who recently has taken two grandsons into the business.

In fact, designer Allard is rather the portrait of the traditional Ellen Tracy customer — a busy professional who wears comfortable classic clothing by day and basic designs in dressy fabrics by night.

"That's a great look for evening," she said, as a model moved through the room in a simple shirt and jeans fabricated in elegant materials.

Allard, though a celebrated New York designer, seemed to fit right in with these customers, most of whom were wearing her clothes. Sporting little make-up, a casual hairstyle and no nail polish (she's both an accomplished cook and gardener), she spoke of the importance of family reunions and gardening "There's something about digging in the earth and getting your fingernails dirty."

Perhaps it's her Midwest background. She hails from Ohio and got her fine arts degree from Kent State University.

"I think I am the woman I'm designing for," she acknowledged. Fall trends, according to Allard, are:

- Intense sweeps of head-to-toe color — at Ellen Tracy in all-out red and aubergine.
- Sleek military inspired looks — the peacoat, jackets with a dropped yoke; trench styling in three-quarter and full lengths.
- Casual attitude evidenced by zip front jackets, slim jean styled pants, knit dressing.
- Sharp 70's styling in pant suits with peaked lapels and slim pant legs.
- Textural play through leather, slinky knits, vermicelli beading for evening shine.

Her new designs were definitely appreciated by this audience.

Linda December of Bloomfield Hills wasted no time. "I thought my black leather and I'm out of here," she said.

But most of the Ellen Tracy aficionados took their time. Overheard was, "I want it all!"

"I think they're so youthful this year and smartly tailored," Southfield resident Marcia Edelman said of the fall collection. "I love Ellen Tracy, but now my daughter (Sharon, who accompanied her,) can also wear them because they're youthful."

Although Ellen Tracy has come in petite sizes for a number of years, it was four years ago that the Company line, designed for a little younger, less conservative clientele, was added.

And three years ago, the Ellen Tracy line was expanded for women who wear larger sizes.

This fall, look for the new Platinum group (the label reverses the traditional Ellen Tracy label with a platinum background and black letters) that Allard says comprises the favorites women keep asking her to bring back.

"Whenever I make a store appearance customers ask me to repeat certain classic styles that they've found they can't live without," Allard says. "So we've taken our most popular classics and developed an adjunct collection that women will be able to find year round."

The Platinum group includes long and short skirts, single and double breasted jackets, pants and the trench coat in navy, black and khaki and in a variety of materials.

Rivers shares personal struggle at convention

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

CHICAGO - "I expected, when I walked to the podium, to be unnerved," said U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers, who addressed the Democratic National Convention in prime time Tuesday.

"I was worried about the size of the audience (20,000-ish). I was worried about the TelePrompTer (which she never had used before). I was worried about my mom watching.

"It was fun," said Rivers, who four years ago was an obscure Ann Arbor school board member running for the state Legislature.

Now she's a member of Congress seeking a second term in the GOP-targeted 13th District (including western Wayne County) and getting a dose of national exposure.

It started a week earlier. "I got a call from (House minority leader Richard) Gephardt's office asking me to speak. I said yes instantly.

"The process was difficult for me - putting it on paper. Ordinarily I work with a few words of outline and speak extemporaneously. So I spent the weekend writing it out. I worked (in Chicago) with the TelePrompTer. Then I had to fly back Monday night for an event in the district."

Convention producers argued over a few minor items in her text. Rivers wanted to say the lack of health insurance for families is "shameful." She changed to "it's a challenge."

She was asked to drop lines about how many doctors' visits were skipped and prescriptions unfilled because they dwelt too much on the problem and not enough on Clinton-Democratic solutions.

As she stood in the on-deck circle gazing up at several tiers of seats, a convention stage manager warned her against trying to shout over the din because "people listening at home to TV don't want you shouting."

C-Span and CNN viewers saw Rivers, but commercial TV cut her out. She opened with the familiar story about being married at 18 the day after getting out of high school, having two babies by 21 and struggling to survive. Excerpts:

"We learned what it was like, at the end of the month, to have to take pop bottles back in order to buy a gallon of milk. . .

"We learned what it was like to go without health insurance, because, if our jobs didn't provide it, we couldn't afford it. . . We learned what it was like to have to wait until payday to take a sick baby to the doctor. That took place nearly 20 years ago.

"In too many American families (today), both spouses work, and neither have health insurance. For families, this is devastating. For us as a nation, it is a challenge of the highest order.

"Today, finally, we have a president who understands our situation and is moving us in the right direction on health care. But he needs a Democratic Congress working with him to truly protect America's children.

"I know how much guilt and silent second-guessing goes on in the hearts of parents who have to put off the visit to the doctor because the rent is due or the cupboard is bare. . . the heart-breaking choice between milk or medicine for their children. . .

"By making low-cost, comprehensive children's health insurance available to America's working families, we Democrats will make babies and children our highest health priority.

"We will also help hard-working parents rest a little easier each night, knowing that the families' medical needs will be met."

Footnote
Rivers, told she looks noticeably thinner, laughed: "I've lost 44 pounds since Easter. This is the era of smaller government."

Chicago convention has special meaning for McKnight

CHICAGO - Delegate Richard McKnight is a veteran of Democratic wars, but until this week he didn't know a relative had helped nominate William Jennings Bryan for president 100 years ago in this town.

"I talked to my mother on the phone, and she told me my uncle, William F. McKnight, was a delegate from Michigan," said the Westland attorney and congressional district chair.

"He was my great-great-father's brother. He was one of three delegates sent to the home of Bryan to inform him he had been nominated, though I presume Bryan knew by then.

"William McKnight was a Kent County prosecutor and attended several conventions. He died in 1918."

Sending several delegates to inform the nominee was, indeed, the custom of both parties until well into the 20th Century.

Bryan, "the boy orator of the Platte," was an obscure Nebraska congressman when he electrified the national convention with his famous speech attacking Republicans and the gold standard: "You shall not crucify mankind on this cross of gold."

Bryan lost to Ohioans William McKinley in 1896 and 1900 and William Howard Taft in 1908.

ADULT CONCERNS

While they may have worried about cavities as children, adults are more concerned about gum disease when they grow up. There is good reason to be concerned because about three out of four people over age 35 will eventually develop some form of gum disease. Fortunately, the problem is largely preventable. Consistent brushing and flossing can rid the teeth of the sticky, bacteria-laden film (plaque) that causes the mildest form of gum disease known as gingivitis. When the plaque is allowed to build along the gum line, the gums become irritated and inflamed by bacterial byproducts and by plaque that has hardened into tartar. If inattention to oral hygiene continues, mild gum disease will likely progress into periodontitis, which in its severe form affects about 10% to 15% of the population. By converting their worries to preventive action, adults can alleviate their concerns about their gums.

Most adults with gum disease are unaware they have it. Periodontal disease is usually a slow, painless, progressive disease. You need not lose your teeth to gum disease. If diagnosed early, the teeth can be saved. At LIVONIA VILLAGE DENTAL ASSOCIATES, we stress preventive dental health care for the whole family. We're located at 19171 Merriman Road, where we are currently accepting new patients. Please call 478-2110 to schedule an appointment. Hours: Mon, Tue, Thu & Fri 8-5, Wed til 9pm. ## TASTE BUDS

CHEF LARRY JANES

Cookbook puts new spin on salads

Salads have long taken a bad rap. To most people, salads are diet food; flavorless, low-calorie bowls of boring greens and lifeless vegetables. Finally, someone has come up with something new, and refreshing. "Lettuce in Your Kitchen" by Chris Schlesinger and John Willoughby, (William Morrow Publishers, copyright 1996, $22.50) redefines salads, and will forever change its negative image.

Schlesinger and Willoughby, who also wrote "The Thrill of the Grill," and "Big Flavors of the Hot Sun," have put together a book that gives salad a whole new spin, with dressings that do double duty, the best part about it, most of the recipes don't require turning on a stove, or microwave oven. The majority of these recipes are, as Maynard G. Krebs used to say, "cool, man."

Beyond tradition

In "Lettuce in Your Kitchen," the authors widen the definition of salad, opening the door to creativity. They tell readers everything you may want to know about traditional greens like lettuce and spinach, and give a wide definition of spicy greens such as watercress, arugula, and cooking greens such as beet, turnip, kale and Asian greens.

I don't want you to think we're discussing rabbit food here folks, because after the chapter on greens, the book explains how to develop a salad, and add flavor combinations. Black beans, lentils, chicken, seafood, fruits, nuts, and even lemon flavored bread crumbs, are suggested ingredients for cool, satisfying salad meals.

There are recipes for salads for every appetite — big salads, brown bag salads, fancy salads, and even vegetarian salads.

Dressing lovers will be able to gauge their expertise on making everything from a simple chunky blue cheese to creamy chipotle vinaigrette. There are more than 98 dressing recipes in "Lettuce in Your Kitchen."

Nutrient rich

Lettuce and other greens have traditionally been a dietary staple in the U.S.. But now, we're finding that like grains and legumes, greens are very good for you. They are universally high in fiber, contain large amounts of vitamins C and E and beta-carotene, which are antioxidants, which supposedly help prevent cancer. In addition, the darker the green the greater amounts of folic acid, which help prevent certain birth defects, and may also assist in preventing some forms of cancer. Greens of all types are also rich in phytochemicals, the macro nutrients that aid in disease prevention.

There are some basic rules about salad making the authors suggest.

"The first rule is that there are no rules," writes Schlesinger, "just important things to keep in mind when choosing greens and vegetables."

Choose only the freshest ingredients. Leaves on greens should be crisp, free from dark spots, and when possible, purchased with the roots still attached.

John Willoughby claims the biggest problem when making salads are "wet greens because they prevent the dressing from clinging to leaves."

Without a doubt, this book is particularly timely, but its appeal shouldn't be limited to the peak produce season. The authors have spun thrill back into salads, transforming them from a usually familiar course into an inventive, unexpected eating experience. You won't go wrong with this book on your cookbook shelf.

Here's a recipe to try:

CUCUMBER MINT DRESSING

- 1/3 cup peeled, seed and chopped cucumber
- 1/4 cup non fat plain yogurt
- 1/4 cup prepared mango chutney
- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh mint
- 1 tablespoon curry powder
- Salt and fresh ground black pepper to taste

In a blender or food processor, puree the cucumbers, yogurt, chutney and oil until smooth. Add mint and curry powder and pulse to blend. Transfer to a bowl and season with salt and pepper. Makes 2/3 cup.

What to watch for in Taste next week:

■ Laura's Fat Free Kitchen.

Bag a lunch your kids will eat

And don't forget to surprise your child with an occasional note or picture.

BY CHRISTINE VENEMA
HOME ECONOMIST

It's that time of year again — new lunch boxes waiting to be filled and hungry kids waiting to eat their contents. Your child's school may or may not have a lunch program, but even if it does; there are good reasons for packing his or her lunch:

- It saves money.
- It allows your child to spend more time eating instead of waiting in line to buy lunch.
- It assures that your child has food he or she likes and that you know it is a good nutritional choice.

The food that children eat affects their growth, their behavior and their ability to learn. A hungry child may get drowsy or restless and have difficulty focusing on classroom activities.

If you have a choosy eater in your household, it's OK to pack the same foods every day. Food likes and dislikes are often shaped by what foods are offered in the home, the way they are offered and how frequently they are offered. Keep this in mind as you pack lunches, you can occasionally try something new in the lunch box, but remember that kids need to see and taste food many times before they decide to like it. They also grow in and out of times when it is easier to introduce something new.

With a little planning, you can make it a treat for your child to open the lunch box. Try some of these healthful and practical ideas.

- Jazz up peanut butter sandwiches with raisins, grated carrots, banana or apple slices, chipped prunes or apple butter.

■ Add crunch to sliced or low-fat cheese sandwiches by adding pickles, sliced cucumber, chopped celery, grated carrots and/or pepper slices or rings.

■ Stuff pita halves; fill and roll low-fat tortilla skins or lettuce leaves or cut sandwiches into exciting shapes with cookie cutters.

■ Pack bright, colorful fruits and vegetables — carrots, peas, pepper rings, oranges, plums, kiwi, dried apricots, spinach leaves, cabbage slices, grapes, zucchini or turnip sticks.

■ Get kids involved in making their lunch. Play a game — "Guess who or what is going to lunch with you" — and let them cut the shape of the sandwich.

■ Make carrot curls and raisin eyes on sandwiches.

■ Choose fruit filled shredded cereals, pretzels, low-fat muffins or popcorn for treats.

■ Fill thermoses with low-fat or skim milk, orange juice, pineapple juice, apple cider or sparkling juice.

■ And don't forget to surprise your child with an occasional note or picture.

Remember a lunch box offers you a chance to shape foods your child eats for lunch. Make it full of healthful surprises that will keep him or her looking forward to tomorrow's treats.

Michigan native makes stellar Lynmar wines

BY ELEANOR & RAY HEALD
SPECIAL WRITERS

On a recent trip to California wine country, we visited Farmington, Mich. native Dan Moore at his new winemaking home, Lynmar Winery in Sonoma County's Russian River Valley appellation.

You may recall that Moore and his wife Natalie Zuccarelli were owners of Z Moore Winery, a small, hands-on operation crafting dry gewurztraminer and an off-dry style called Quaff. In the early 1990s, Moore made acquaintance with shipping magnate Lynn Fritz and his wife Mara (thus the winery name Lynmar) who own Quail Hill Ranch, 43 acres planted to chardonnay and pinot noir.

"Making wine from this property was the chance of a lifetime," Moore said. With Lynmar winemaking success in vintages 1992 through 1995, Dan and Natalie decided their future was with Lynmar and closed Z Moore Winery earlier this year.

After earning a degree in food science from Michigan State University, Moore moved to California because as he said, "It was the only place where I could swim and ski in the same season." He admitted that he was a white zinfandel drinker who learned winemaking from his hose hauling days in the cellars of Milano Winery in Mendocino County. He got turned on to gewurztraminer making wine at Hop Kiln Winery in Sonoma County.

"While I still love dry gewurztraminer, I expanded my horizons and I'm now passionate about pinot noir," he said. "There's no better place for it than Sonoma County's Russian River area."

Lynmar wines are in limited production, but more vines were planted this year. Plans for a new winery are on the drawing board. The splendid pinot noir character stems from the Quail Hill Ranch location where long hang time between bud break and harvest are combined with moderately warm days and cooling, evening fog intrusions that build in great fruit characters. Additionally, vineyard blocks have been identified as offering distinct qualities to a blend.

After assessing barrels from the 1992 production of pinot noir, Moore and Lynmar's owners decided that they would buy barrels exclusively from Tonnellerie Sirugue, a small cooper in Burgundy's Nuits-Saint-Georges. Great decision. The spicy elements from these barrels are in total harmony with the estate's fruit and yield wines of dynamic fruit prowess, but finishing with elegance, grace and finesse.

While only the very good 1993 Lynmar wines are in our market currently, vintage 1994 was nearly perfect in the Russian River and Lynmar's 1994 offerings demonstrate this. A cool, long harvest gave grapes extra hang time to develop flavor intensity and concentration. All fruit is hand-picked then hand-sorted on a conveyer table culling out anything but exceptional fruit.

Fermentation of pinot noir is done in small open-top fermenters where the cap is gently treated and gravity racking and bottling all maintain the wine's natural character.

The 1994 Lynmar Quail Hill Pinot Noir ($21) was just released. Made from 100 percent free-run juice, it is a blend of all the vineyard blocks. When 16 months barrel aging in the Sirugue barrels which were 70 percent new is added in, the sum is a dynamic harmony of aromas and flavors. The 1994 Lynmar Quail Hill Reserve Pinot Noir will be released before Christmas. It represents the culmination of a four-year study of the pinot noir blocks for the best soil and exposure profile. The very limited quantity is a blend of only five 100 percent new Sirugue barrels. The powerful, extracted fruit is complemented by the new wood and matches it in a seamless whole.

While we've raved about pinot noir, Moore's handling of fully-mature chardonnay fruit is noteworthy. The 1994 Lynmar Chardonnay ($25) has depthful flavors from both barrel and malolactic fermentations, extended aging on the lees and 15 months in 30 percent new French oak.

S'MORES S'MORES

- 2 cups oats (quick or old-fashioned, uncooked)
- 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt (optional)
- 1 cup (2 sticks) butter or margarine
- One 7-ounce jar marshmallow creme
- 1 cup (6 ounces) semisweet chocolate pieces

Heat oven to 350°F. Lightly grease 13 by 9-inch baking pan.

In large bowl, combine oats, flour, baking soda and salt; mix well. Add butter; blend with electric mixer on low to medium speed until crumbly. Reserve 1 1/2 cups oat mixture for topping; set aside. Press remaining oat mixture evenly onto bottom of pan. Bake 15 minutes.

Remove pan from oven to wire rack. Drop spoonfuls of marshmallow creme in rows across crust. With knife or spatula, carefully spread creme to within 1/4-inch of edges. (If marshmallow creme is difficult to spread, place baking pan in warm oven about 1 minute to slightly soften the creme).

Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until topping is light golden brown around the edges. Cool on wire rack 30 minutes. Cut into bars while warm. Serve warm or cool completely and store tightly covered. Yield 2 dozen.

TUNA FISH SALAD

- 1 13-ounce can solid white tuna in water
- 2 ribs celery, finely chopped
- 1 carrot, peeled and grated
- 2 tablespoons mayonnaise
- 2 tablespoons plain yogurt
- 1 tablespoon Italian or vinaigrette dressing
- Salt and pepper
- 8 slices of bread
- Chips and pickles for serving

Drain the liquid from the can of tuna. Empty tuna into a medium bowl and flake it with a fork. Add the celery and carrot.

Spoon in the mayonnaise, yogurt and dressing. Add salt and pepper to taste. Mix well and spread on the bread for sandwiches. Serve with chips and a pickle.

Makes 4 sandwiches. Variations: The following can be mixed into the tuna salad to give it more zip — lemon juice — curry powder — grated red onion — chopped dill — chopped hard-boiled eggs — raisins — chopped almonds or walnuts.

All Star Sandwiches
• Salad in a Pita Sandwich — Stuff a pita with lots of greens, shredded carrot, cucumber slices, sprouts, sliced red onion, and chopped tomato.

Add your favorite salad dressing, and if you like, some shredded Jarlsberg or crumbled feta cheese.

• Hero — Cut open a long loaf of Italian bread, lay it on a counter surrounded by cold cuts, cheese and condiments, and let the kids create their own.

• Peanut butter and jelly — For a different taste sensation, omit the jelly and add one of the following to a peanut butter and jelly sandwich: sliced banana, sliced apples, or apple butter. Recipes from: "Dad's Own Cookbook," by Bob Sloan (Workman Publishing, New York, 1993, $12.95)

Dad shares lunchbox tips

Here are some lunchbox tips from Bob Sloan author of "Dad's Own Cookbook," (Workman Publishing, New York, 1993, $12.95)

Remember, your children have to eat in front of other kids so don't turn their lunchboxes into exotic culinary adventures or the latest in macrobiotic cuisine.

Put lettuce between the tuna fish and bread to keep the bread from getting soggy.

If your child's lunchbox will be sitting at room temperature for a while, prepare a sandwich that won't spoil in the heat, such as salami or peanut butter and jelly.

Use small, reusable plastic containers to save on plastic wrap and plastic bags.

SALAD OF SPINACH, YELLOW SPLIT PEAS AND CORN WITH CUCUMBER MINT DRESSING

- 1/3 cup yellow split peas
- 1 teaspoon olive oil
- 1 small red onion, cut in half and thinly sliced

- 2 tablespoons jalapeno pepper, minced
- 1 1/2 cups fresh corn kernels (2 small ears)
- Salt and pepper to taste
- Cucumber mint dressing (see recipe pm Taste front)
- 12 cups torn spinach leaves (one 10 ounce package)
- 2 large vine ripened tomatoes, seeded and diced

Place the split peas in a saucepan. Cover with water by 1/2 inch. Bring to a boil. Remove from heat and allow to stand, covered, for 30 minutes. Drain.

In a large non stick skillet, heat olive oil over medium heat. Add onions and cook, stirring occasionally, until translucent, about 5 minutes. Add peppers, corn, the drained split peas and 1 cup water. Bring to a simmer, cover and cook until the split peas are tender but not mushy, about 5 minutes. Drain. Cool to room temperature. Season with salt and pepper. Make cucumber mint dressing.

In a large shallow bowl, combine spinach, tomatoes and the cooled split pea mixture. Add the dressing and toss gently. Serve. Serves 6.

Each serving of the salad is 175 calories; 7 grams protein, 6 grams fat (0.9 grams saturated), 27 grams carbohydrates, 5 grams fiber

- 2 cloves roasted garlic (from the dressing)
- 2 teaspoons extra virgin olive oil
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 2 cups 1/2 inch bread cubes, made from country styled bread

Salad
2 plum tomatoes, cored and halved lengthwise

- 1 red bell pepper, quartered and seeded
- 1 medium Vidalia or other sweet onion, cut into 1/2-inch thick slices
- 1 small eggplant, cut into 1/2-inch thick rounds
- 5 small red potatoes, boiled
- 1 tablespoon extra virgin olive oil
- Salt and fresh ground pepper to taste
- 1/3 cup pitted kalamatta olives
- 8 cups torn lettuce or Romaine leaves

To make dressing: Preheat oven to 450 degrees F. Peel away as much of the papery skin from the garlic heads as possible. Set each head on a square of tin foil, bringing the foil up around the garlic. Add 1 tablespoon water. Enclose the heads completely in foil and bake for 35-40 minutes or until cloves are very soft. Let cool slightly.

Squeeze the garlic cloves from their skins into a blender and add lemon juice, oil and 3 tablespoons water and process until smooth. Transfer to a small bowl, stir in parsley and add salt and pepper. Makes 2/3 cup.

To make croutons: Reduce oven temperature to 375 degrees F. In a bowl, mash 2 roasted garlic cloves with oil. Stir in lemon juice, salt and pepper; add bread cubes and toss to coat. Spread the cubes on a baking sheet. Bake until golden, about 15 minutes. Set aside to cool.

To make salad: Prepare a charcoal fire or preheat a gas grill. Place tomatoes, peppers, onions, eggplant and boiled potatoes in a large bowl. Add olive oil, salt and pepper and toss gently. Grill the vegetables over medium hot heat until softened and browned, about 5 minutes per side. Remove vegetables to a big dish when done.

When vegetables are cool enough to handle, cut into bite size pieces. In a bowl, toss the vegetables and olives with half the vinaigrette. On a platter, toss lettuce or Romaine with the remaining vinaigrette. Mound the vegetables in the center and top with the croutons. Serves 6.

The salad, vegetables and dressing are 220 calories per serving; 6 grams of protein, 9 grams fat (1/3 grams saturated fat), 32 grams carbohydrates, 3 grams fiber.

Salt and herbs enhance flavor of snapper fillets

Using more herbs and less salt throughout the year, could be one of the healthier steps you can take to improve your diet. When you lower your salt intake, you can reduce your risk of diseases, such as hypertension and heart disease. By simultaneously increasing your consumption of herbs, you may also lower your chances of getting certain cancers by receiving a host of phytochemicals - plant substances that research shows may assist our bodies in the fight against disease, according to the American Institute for Cancer Research.

Once you know the main sources of salt in your diet, it's easy to reduce your daily intake. Use fewer processed foods, a major source of hidden salt, and read labels to spot the word sodium in the ingredient list. Buy fresh or frozen vegetables instead of canned and look for the reduced-sodium versions of popular high-salt seasonings such as broth, spaghetti sauce, or soy sauce. Try not to cook with salt and, if needed, add it only at the table; studies have shown that people use less salt from the shaker than they would have used in cooking.

Retain flavor in food when reducing salt by boosting your use of herbs and spices as flavoring agents. The growing popularity of ethnic cuisines has sparked great interest in the use of herbs and exotic seasonings, as a way to add delicious flavor without salt. Italian dishes are known for their use of basil, oregano, rosemary, sage and parsley. French cooking relies heavily on thyme, savory, tarragon, rosemary and chives. Create a Greek-style marinade by combining lemon juice, oil, garlic, oregano, parsley and pepper in a shallow glass bowl. Add skinless, boneless chicken breasts to the dish and allow them to marinate in the refrigerator for at least 1 hour. Transfer the chicken to another pan and broil for 4 minutes on each side, basting with the marinade after turning the meat. Discard marinade and serve the chicken garnished with lemon slices and chopped parsley.

The drying process concentrates food's flavor, so use one-third to one-half the amount of dried herbs for fresh herbs when cooking. Fresh herbs provide the perfect accent to fresh fish like snapper, without overpowering its delicate flavor.

PACIFIC SNAPPER FILLETS WITH HERBS

- 1 tablespoon soft margarine
- 1 pound Pacific snapper fillets
- 1 tablespoon chopped shallots or onion
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 1/2 cup low-fat yogurt
- 2 teaspoon all-purpose flour
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley or chives
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh dill, thyme or tarragon
- salt and pepper

In a nonstick skillet, melt the margarine over medium heat. Cook the fish for 3 minutes on each side, until just opaque, and transfer it to a hot serving plate. (The fish will continue cooking as it stands.)

Add the shallots and lemon rind to the skillet. Cook for 1 minute or until the shallots are tender. Mix the yogurt with flour and stir into pan. Season the mixture with the herbs and bring to a simmer. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Return the fish briefly to the pan to reheat and lightly coat with the sauce.

Marian mauls Canton

■ There was no dodging challenges for Canton's basketball team in the opening week. And Marian provided the Chiefs with some insight into what they need to work on.

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

It was kinda like tossing a bucket of water into the face of a sleeping lion.

Birmingham Marian played that lion's role. Plymouth Canton was the unfortunate water-tosser in what figured to be a battle between two girls basketball lions.

The scene was Plymouth Salem's gymnasium -- the Canton floor is still being refurbished -- last Thursday. The bucket of water, delivered in the game's opening moments, was the Chiefs' 7-0 run to start the game. They led 9-2 when Marian called timeout with 5:38 left in the opening quarter.

The Mustangs returned to the floor after the respite in a full-court press, and from then on the game was theirs. They clawed Canton 16-6 the rest of the period and followed that with a 20-9 shredding in the second quarter, all culminating in a 62-47 triumph.

The result evened both team's record after one week of play at 1-1.

"We're looking good," admitted Marian coach Mary Lillie-Cicerone. The slow start concerned her, but what happened following it didn't.

After the Mustangs went to their pressure defense, they forced Canton into 28 turnovers (while making 19). Combining that with their superior size -- which led to a 29-22 rebounding advantage, including a whopping 16-8 edge on the offensive boards -- was more than the Chiefs could hope to cope with.

"They're just a real competitive group," said Canton coach Bob Blohm of the Mustangs. "I like their aggressiveness. Last year, we were able to survive it (Canton won 45-44 at Marian with a 15-5 fourth-quarter rally), but this year we couldn't."

That's a compliment Lillie-Cicerone is happy to hear. "That's what I was worried about most at the beginning (of practice sessions) -- the aggressiveness and intensity of our post people," she said. "But I've got good thoughts about them now."

"Them" may be the only way to describe what the Mustangs did to Canton. Andrea Gac led them with 13 points; Breean Walas added 12 and seven rebounds. Then four others scored eight apiece: Mary Trupiano, Stacey Yankovich, Michele Emig and Kellie Byers.

The Chiefs got 18 points from Kristi Fiorenzi. Next highest was Nkechi Okwumabua with nine.

Canton lost two starters to injuries in the game. Melissa Marzolf aggravated a rib injury late in the first half and was taken to the hospital; her condition was uncertain. Okwumabua turned an ankle in the fourth quarter and went to the sidelines for the rest of the game.

Other leaders for Marian were Trupiano, with four steals; Markeisha Thompson, with four assists and three steals; and Gac, with three steals.

For Canton, Fiorenzi had five boards, three assists and two blocked shots. Mary Anderson had four steals, and Marzolf dished out three assists.

The Chiefs' inability to handle Marian's defense was evident in the second quarter. The Mustangs scored nine-straight points after Okwumabua opened the second with two free throws for Canton -- all coming before the Chiefs could even get a shot at the basket. They ended up making just 1-of-5 from the floor in the quarter.

They also committed eight turnovers in the period and 16 in the half.

Driving: Canton senior Kristi Fiorenzi (with ball) drives past Marian defender Breean Walas en route to scoring two of her game-high 18 points. Fiorenzi's efforts weren't enough to save the Chiefs from defeat.

"I think their defense made us play fast," said Blohm. "We didn't get a good spread on the court -- it was just a matter of court organization, really."

A correctable mistake, certainly. But it will take more time than the Chiefs could devote to it Thursday.

Salem 52, Adams 44: A huge first quarter enabled Plymouth Salem to push its record to 2-0 with a big road win Thursday at Rochester Adams.

The Rocks outpointed Adams 22-9 in the first eight minutes, then simply held the Highlanders at bay the rest of the way. Laurel Weinman led the charge by nailing three three-pointers in that opening period. She finished with 10 points.

"It was really won on the glass," said Salem coach Fred Thomann, noting a 42-28 edge for the Rocks. "We jumped out on them and then it was just a matter of battling with them."

"It was just a hard-played, hard-fought game, with two good teams going at each other. You had to play tonight. Even though we jumped out big, it didn't matter because they kept playing."

After their strong first quarter, the Rocks were limited to 12 points in the next two. They were outscored 35-30 over the final three periods.

Angela Sillmon had 10 points and 11

Chiefs shock Athens, gain 1st triumph

Is this to be another prototype Don Smith soccer team?

This year's Plymouth Canton's boys soccer squad is beginning to have the hallmarks of a sneaky Smith special.

Canton, winless in its first two trials, defeated Troy Athens, 3-0, Thursday night to square its record at 1-1-1.

"We played very well," Smith said. "It was a good overall effort. We played well as a group. We needed this one."

The Chiefs scored some 1:30 into the game when Steve Epley converted a cross by Justin Fishaw.

They added a second scored just before halftime, Scott Wright finding brother Nick with a cross.

Nick Wright assisted on Canton's final goal, by Kevin Gniewek, with about 16 minutes left in the game.

A healthy challenge: SC coach Nikki Johnson knows injuries can ruin the season.

Ocelots lack numbers, but talent is apparent

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

Same ol' story.

Nikki Johnson is entering her third season as coach of the women's soccer team at Schoolcraft College (with a 21-15-2 overall record), facing the same troubles she experienced when she played here, and during her first two years as coach.

"Depth is a problem," she said. "But Schoolcraft has always had a short roster. It's something that happens here, and it's always going to be like that at Schoolcraft."

Which is the same thing Johnson said last year, when her roster was decimated by injury. Still, the Lady Ocelots finished 10-8-0, ending up fifth at the NJCAA Tournament with a 1-2 record.

The team that eliminated them from championship contention was Monroe (N.Y.) CC. SC was winning that match 3-2 with three minutes left in regulation. Monroe tied it and won in overtime, then went on to claim the national title. "That experience, of going to nationals and losing like that to the eventual national champion, that's going to help us tremendously," Johnson said.

What hurts is losing a player like Holly Kimble (from Livonia Stevenson), who completed her eligibility and is now playing at the University of Tennessee. Kimble was SC's top scorer.

Staci Muysenberg is one of the five -- actually six, when counting medical redshirt Jodee Wilsher (Plymouth Salem) -- returnees, and she was second in scoring with eight goals and six assists, for 22 points.

Muysenberg and Susan O'Neill (Plymouth Canton), another sophomore, are expected to lead the attack. O'Neill was named to the all-

Former football star survives the challenge of cross-country bicycle trek in Race Across America

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

"A man's got to know his limitations," actor Clint Eastwood once said in a classic movie line. Livonian John Buffington, however, may have taken it one spoke further in the Race Across America, a mind-boggling 2,905-mile cycling event from Irvine, Calif. to Savannah, Ga. (Aug. 1 through 11).

You could say Buffington, the 43-year-old store manager from Office Depot took on several Eastwood-like roles at once, riding 300 miles-plus per day on the backroads of Arizona, Colorado, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Tennessee, as well as California and Georgia.

It was the Gauntlet and Heartbreak Ridge all rolled into one.

And there were the dark moments, were he was playing real-live parts in the Unforgiven, The Dead Pool, High Plains Drifter or Hang 'Em High.

Buffington, however, took the Any Which Way You Can approach, climbing to Where Eagles Dare.

Averaging more than 12 miles per hour and over 300 miles per day, the former Purdue University defensive back was one of only 12 of 30 individual riders to make it through the hellacious trip. (Sixty-other competitors took part in four-man relay teams, which included crews from such countries as Germany, Italy, Switzerland and Australia.)

He completed all 64 checkpoints, finishing ninth overall, clocking a respectable time of 9 days, 23 hours and 3 minutes.

The winner, Danny Chew of Pittsburgh, Pa., won in 8 days, 17 hours. He averaged 13.5 MPH.

"This is the pinnacle of ultra endurance," Buffington said. "An outdoor magazine said this is the toughest race in the world, and that includes the Iditarod (dog sled) in Alaska, Ironman Triathlon (in Hawaii) and the Western States 50-miler (run)."

"I can't close my eyes at night and not dream about it. It was more mentally exhausting than anything. It has left an indelible impression on me. The experience is indescribable."

Buffington has been off the bike now for two weeks, catching up on his job duties and sleep.

"There were two goals I wanted to accomplish," he said. "I wanted to be in the top 10. And a rookie rider had never beaten 10 days. That was a pretty big accomplishment."

Buffington is even more pleased that he navigated the trip on a shoestring budget.

He estimates it cost him around $4,000, not including his new titanium light-speed bicycle (with aerospoke wheels) which retails for around $4,500.

"They told us we'd never make it," said Buffington's wife Beth and No. 1 supporter. "Other teams had nurses ready with IVs, masseuses, bike mechanics and nutritionists ready with herbs and mixtures, even motivational people."

"Most people had budgets around $10,000 or more."

Whereas most riders had two or three support vehicles, Buffington relied on a single van and his immediate family, which included daughters, Sarah, 16, Katie, 14, Annie, 12, along with mother-in-law Sharon Zimmerman and brother-in-law Bobb Zimmerman.

His father-in-law, Dave Zimmerman, arrived three days into the trip driving a motor home.

"I have to give my crew all the credit in the world," John said. "Even when I was at my lowest and mentally hit rock bottom, my wife, my kids and my in-laws got me through it. The rider was never the one. It was a total team effort."

The entire family had to drive 2 1/2 days from Livonia to Los Angeles just to reach the starting point.

"My daughter (Katie) just got her license and she has trouble finding her way around Livonia, but she really arose to the occasion on this trip," Beth said.

Buffington said the key to completing the gruelling trek was to "stay focused."

Easier said than done, considering he was on the bike continuously 22 of the 24 hours each day.

"Sleep deprivation was a problem and I was fighting a lot of demons," Buffington said. "At times you become delirious, almost in a dream state."

Buffington spent nearly two days riding through the deserts of California and Arizona with temperatures reaching 130 degrees. The temperatures dropped to a seasonable 90 at night.

"I don't think hell is any hotter," he said. "I don't care if it's dry heat or what. Heat is heat. In the desert there is no shade. The bottom of my lips got fried. It's taken two weeks for my lips and my tongue to heal."

Buffington went to the extreme once he hit Flagstaff, Ariz. as temperatures plummeted.

"I went from frying to freezing," he said. "It was raining and I was suffering from hypothermia."

He continued into the higher elevations of Colorado, but reached a breaking point in the town of Cortez, 806 miles into the race, but he regrouped and trudged on.

"Emotionally and physically I just collapsed," Buffington said.

"But it was nice through Colorado. The temperatures were good and the climbs weren't too bad."

Once through Arizona, Buffington reached the desolate Oklahoma Panhandle where he saw "A lot of dead armadillos on the road."

By the halfway point, 1,441 miles in Slapout, Okla., Buffington got his second wind and climbed all the way to fifth position.

"That was the most exhilarating feeling," he said. "I was felling pretty good."

Going on an 80 percent liquid and 20 percent solid food diet (including numerous power bars and energy drinks), Buffington headed through muggy Arkansas and the hills of Tennessee.

Once again the mental battle raged.

"I got disoriented and got fuzzy," Buffington recalled. "Over the intercom they started asking me if I remembered by daughters, and if I was married. I remembered those things, but then they asked me about our dog Duke, and I said I couldn't remember and it kind of crushed one of my daughters."

Lack of sufficient oxygen while in the mountains of Tennessee led to even a more bizarre turn of events.

"I had three major climbs there," Buffington said. "The mind plays tricks when you're in thin air."

"I started getting hallucinations. I was seeing 12-inch green leafy guys in the road trying to get in my way."

With Georgia firmly in his grasp, Buffington confronted yet another demon.

"The toughest part was Fort Oglethorpe (just outside the Tennessee stateline)," Buffington said. "It was 3 a.m. and I rolled into town, rolled off my bike and into a grassy knoll. There was no way I was going to get back up."

Somehow, somehow Buffington completed the nearly 3,000-mile race with a banquet awaiting in Savannah for the survivors.

"My wife says never again and that I'm grounded for awhile," John said. "But I would never rule it out. The whole thing was mystifying. Some days you just starting hitting some walls, but looking back I think I could have lopped off a day. Experience counts for everything and knowing what to expect is key."

Adds Beth: "I'm glad we did it because it's the most awesome and awful thing all rolled into one. I told him he can't do it again until he's 50."

Buffington, who stands 5-foot-11 and weighs 175 pounds, trained vigorously for a chance to ride in the 1993 Race Across America, but his dream was dashed when he was hit by a car on his bike while riding to work en route to Madison Heights. He suffered broken ribs and a punctured lung.

He began riding seven years ago and progressed well enough to win the 1994 Boston-Montreal-Boston and Illinois Road Series. In 1995, he was co-winner of the Bike-Across-Missouri and was a division champ in the National 24-Hour Challenge (1993 and 1996). He has also been four-time consecutive winner in the Beat the Boats Challenge from Port Huron to Mackinac Island.

"I've kind of metamorphosized as an athlete and I've always gravitated toward extremes," Buffington said. "Five or six years after college I tried to qualify for the Ironman Triathlon and I came close. Then I started running. I did seven marathons, including the Free Press and I missed qualifying for Boston."

"Then running injuries set in, the knees, ankles and hips, so I turned to biking. It's something where you can compete and any level against any age level."

"I did a lot of training this year for the RAM, more training than I've done in previous years. About seven weeks before I made my mind up I was going to do the Race Across America."

Along with his family and relatives, Buffington credits family doctor Randall Bickle for giving him helpful advice on dealing with saddle sores and oxygen use (while in the Colorado Rockies). He also received financial support from Cole Brothers Spring Water of Peru, Ind. (his hometown), along with Aerospoke Bicycle Wheels of Milford, Spiz Energy Food, Dr. Lynn Babcock of Grand Elementary School in Livonia, Chaf-eeze and Office Depot ("Who helped pay some of my gas money," Buffington said).

"I've had only a few physical problems," said Buffington, a 1974 football letter winner for the Boilermakers and teammate of former NFLers Gary Danielson, Otis Armstrong, Darryl Stingley, Greg Bingham and Dave Butz. "The saddle sores were minimal. My right foot was numb for about six days. It took more out of me than I expected and I know it took me to the limit."

Opening day produces a perfect score

TEN PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

It didn't take long for the first reported 300 game of the new season.

It was bowled by John Chomin in the Sunday Printcraft League at Garden Lanes in Garden City on Aug. 25, the opening day of their season. John had a pretty good day -- a 751 series to go with the perfect. I'm sure we will see a few more 300 games ...

Some readers ask why their high scores don't get into the paper. The typical reason is that nobody bothered to report it.

Now that weekly scores will be collected from bowling centers throughout our Observerland cities, it is up to league officers to get the information to the control counter. Make sure to ask that the scores are reported to this newspaper.

In general, the five highest scores from any one league per week is all that space will allow.

Remember, "If you can bowl it, I can print it," says yours truly. It is not necessary to shoot an honor score to make the paper. Scoring is relative.

Say a 136 average bowler rolls a 224 game. That's just as newsworthy as the highest scores, which are most often bowled by the same people week after week.

Ever wonder what it's like to bowl on the Pro Bowlers Tour? Now, at Taylor Lanes, you can find out for yourself.

The lanes are starting a special league for scratch bowlers who want the experience of bowling on conditions similar to the PBS. It's ideal for those whose ambition may be to one day turn pro.

A unique draft system will be set up to determine teams and keep everybody competitive. It will be a "trio" league format with an anticipated 24 teams.

For further information call Grant Petersen at (931) 946-9092. The league draft is Sunday, Sept. 22. Bowling begins Sept. 29.

Almost overlooked but certainly not forgotten was the Senior Pro Tour in town is the National Senior Bowling Association event.

It was held on Aug. 3 at Novi Bowl. Earl VanNess of Livonia, qualifying in the No. 2 position, overcame some difficult conditions to win his first NSBA title.

His win gave him $900 plus a nice trophy. John's first match was a nail-biter as he topped John Zubor, the Buick dealer from Allen Park, 192-183.

He then defeated Larry Bonnee, 222-170, and outshot Doyle Israel of Bay City, 195-188. The championship match was against Roy Biggs of Canton.

They matched strikes until Biggs opened in the seventh frame. Earl took advantage and went on to win 244-206. Biggs, qualifying 8th, settled for runner-up and $450.

For information on NSBA competition call (810) 932-5263 or (810) 851-9474.

Entry forms are out for the Pro-Am event of the 1996 Ebonite Detroit Classic at Bowl One Lanes in Troy. The Pro-am is open to men or women with additional squads for youth bowlers. Fully paid entrants will receive a new Ebonite Nitro "A" Ball with Zirconium.

The Pro-Am squads will be held Oct. 9-11. Pro qualifying rounds begin the next day with finals slated for Oct. 15, 7:30-9 p.m. They will be nationally televised by ESPN.

For further details, call (810) 588-4850.

Schoolcraft from page 1C

NJCAA Tournament team with Kimble last year.

"She's really picked up her game," Johnson said of O'Neill, who will be at center midfield. "I'm looking for her to be one of our top finishers. She's got that speed."

Wilsher, who was involved in a car accident prior to last season that sidelined her for the entire campaign, will help immensely, Johnson feels. "She's a very, very stable player," the SC coach said.

With Wilsher (who has freshman eligibility) at sweeper, sophomore Susie Parrish (Plymouth Salem) can move up to midfield, or can even switch positions during play with Wilsher.

"A lot of these players played club ball together with the Livonia Strikers," Johnson said, "and that really helps."

Her other two returning sophomores are Nicole Gentry (Westland John Glenn) and Melissa Crain, both forwards. Unfortunately, Gentry suffered a broken toe in practice last week and will be out indefinitely.

Which brings into focus SC's major problem -- depth. Johnson has a 12-player roster at present, after losing two potential returning starters to academic problems last week.

With Gentry injured, Johnson took her team to Monroe CC last Saturday to open the season against the defending national champ with a team without substitutions.

"It's going to take some time for girls to adjust to not having any subs," Johnson admitted. "They won't be able to just push forward, push forward."

She believes the players she has back are experienced enough to help keep the clamps on. And although there aren't many of them, the people Johnson has are solid.

She figures freshmen Dawn Koontz and Kelly West, both graduates from the Canton HS state championship team, will be big contributors. She had planned to use both at midfield, but the loss of the two returning defenders has forced her to switch West to defense.

Another freshman, Janelle Baldwin, will be in goal. Indeed, she's the only keeper.

Stephanie Smith (Garden City) took a year off after graduating in '94. She should help the defense too, Johnson said: "We're getting her back into the swing of things."

And Anne Hokett (Livonia Franklin) and Stacy Baker (Livonia Churchill) have shown a lot of promise at midfield. "She's got a great passing game," Johnson said of Hokett.

In final analysis, the number of talented Lady Ocelots is greater than last year, even if the actual number of players has decreased. If they can stay on the field, if they can escape serious injuries, they could make a long run come national tournament time.

rebounds for Salem, with Merritt Walker and Amanda Abraham getting nine points apiece. Walker also had 12 boards, and Abraham had seven rebounds, six steals and five assists. Heather Guerin contributed eight points.

Adams got 16 points from Dianna Sorrentino and 13 more from Emily Schmidt.

PCA 43, Agape 25: Plymouth Christian Academy put the defensive clamps on Plymouth Agape Christian Thursday, limiting Agape to 10 second-half points in pushing its record to 2-0. Agape is 1-1.

Sarah Sumner led the Eagles with 15 points and seven steals. Jenny Sutherland added eight points and 13 rebounds, and Amanda Clark had four points and five assists. For Agape, Jaci Ther's 12 points was best; Caley Mullen had 10.

Soccer from page 1C

Ben Davis recorded the shutout for Canton.

The Chiefs survived a scare on their way to the contest. Their bus was late arriving to take them to Troy, then it broke down a short way from home.

A second bus was dispatched and took them -- late -- to the match.

"We were lucky it didn't happen on I-75," Smith said. "We might not have been able to make it, then."

BMW 840Ci
smooth, fast and full of fun

By Anne Fracassa
Avanti NewsFeatures

This car is really something. It turns heads. It has a 5-speed manual transmission.

It has an automatic transmission as well.

It goes like the wind. And costs a bundle.

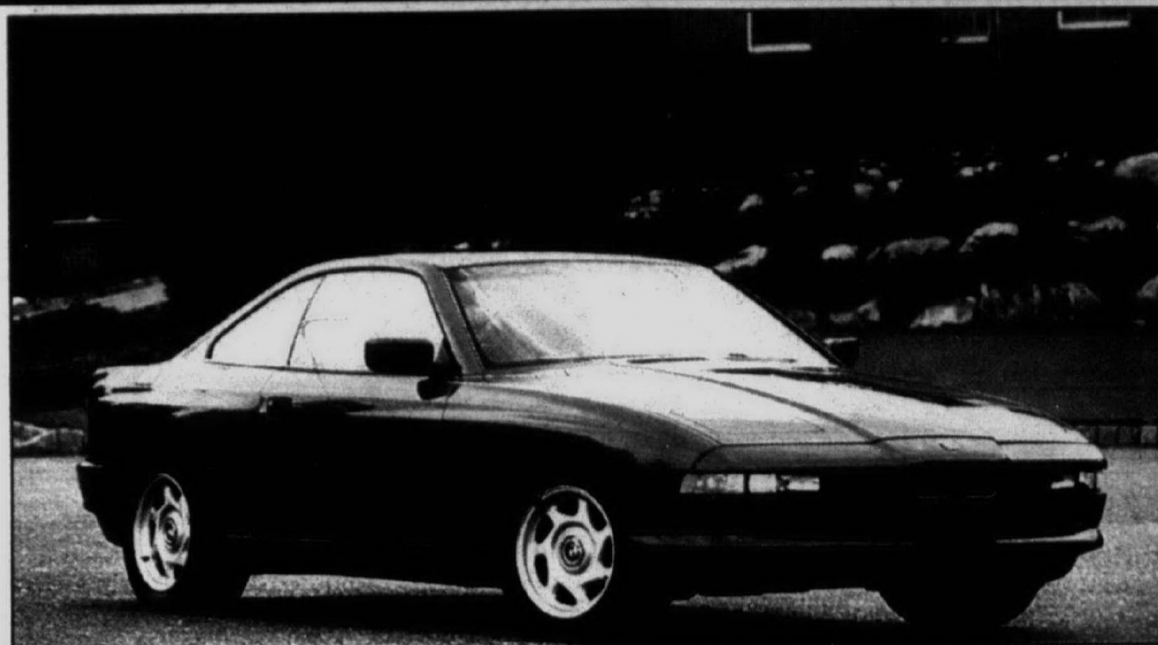

The 1996 BMW 840Ci has been significantly changed this model year. This ultra high-performance sedan is powered by a 4.4-liter 32-valve V8 engine that's not only smooth, but also fast. The road feel and responsive handling are so superb. This car is classy all around.

This is the first year BMW has installed its Servotronic speed-sensitive system in the 840Ci. It was first introduced in the 850Ci in 1994.

The Servotronic system reduces steering effort more at low speeds than engine-speed-sensitive systems — yet doesn't sacrifice the firm and accurate road feel at higher speeds.

The result is optimum control and handling characteristic of a world-class sedan.

You've heard about meshing automatic transmissions with manuals before, so this isn't new.

But BMW has it mastered with its Steptronic system. The automatic transmission is there, but you can switch to a manual transmission mode with just a flick of the wrist. To shift up or down, all you have to do is move the shifter.

All you have to do is this: From the "D" position, you can move the lever to the left, where "M" (manual) is located. To select the lower gear, you pull down or up on the shift lever. Really simple.

What I did find, however, is that the automatic is much, much more responsive pulling away from a standstill. The manual is a little bit sluggish, which is a surprise. Both transmissions were very easy to operate — and kind of fun to switch between.

The best part is having the choice. Optimum manual control over an automatic transmission. Really neat.

Interior upgrades to the 840Ci include a new in-dash audio unit, auto-storing of AM and FM stations and a larger, easier-to-read display. BMW has also included automatic locking retractors on passenger seatbelts that let you use child restraint seats easily.

Back to the engine. Horsepower is rated at 282 and it has a richer torque curve. This smart engine reaches a torque peak of 310 lb.-ft. at just 3900 rpm. In comparison, last year's engine did 295 lb.-ft. at 4500 rpm.

Power peak is at 5700 rpm, rather than last year's 5800. This is a strong, solid engine. Of course, this engine has OBDII as well.

Four-wheel disc brakes and 4-channel antilock brakes are standard, as well as automatic climate control system with integrated microfilter (that have individual driver and passenger controls), automatic dimming inside rearview mirror, power tilt steering wheel, leather trim, cruise control, fog lights, heated front seats, fold down rear seat, all-season traction control and power sun roof.

The 12-speaker 200-watt audio system is quite superior. Roll up those windows and you feel like you're in a fine music hall. You can even enhance the system by adding a 6-disc CD changer. The 840Ci is also pre-wired for dealer installation of a cellular phone.

Another neat feature is the vehicle-speed-controlled windshield wipers. The wipers automatically speed up when the vehicle does. There's also a coded driveaway protection system that provides an ever-changing coding of ignition key and lock to prevent starting the car with an unauthorized key.

Remote keyless entry security system is standard.

In the glovebox you'll find a rechargeable flashlight. In the trunk you'll find a full-size spare wheel and tire and a toolkit.

Base price of the 840Ci is a bit steep at $74,400, but once you slip inside and drive it a few miles you'll see it's worth it.

1996 BMW 840Ci

Engine: 4.4-liter, 32-valve V8.

Studies show that Daytime Running Lamps help to reduce accidents. They may also lower consumer insurance rates.

(NAPS)-Daylight Running Lamps (DRLs), an automatic lights-on system where the headlights are on at a reduced intensity during daylight hours, have been recognized as a significant factor in reducing automobile collisions. In fact, DRLs are now standard on all Cadillacs for 1996, and available for older models, making them more visible to other drivers, which improves collision avoidance.

A recent study in Canada, where DRLs have been standard equipment on all vehicles since 1989, showed an eight percent reduction in opposite-direction crashes for DRL-equipped vehicles.

Owners of 1996 model Cadillacs should check with their insurance provider to see if their DRL-equipped Cadillac provides a reduction in insurance rates. Other countries around the world have had DRLs since the early '90s, and evidence to substantiate DRLs as a legitimate safety system that deserves an insurance discount is growing in the United States.

The United Services Automobile Association (USAA), a top-rated insurance firm with more than 2.7 million members, offered a nationwide five percent discount on insurance premiums for DRL-equipped cars as of April 1, 1995.
