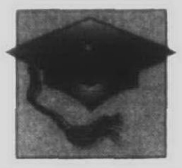
Board weighs new union offer



Although nine key issues remain unresolved, salary and health insurance appear to be the stumbling blocks in negotiations between Plymouth-Canton teachers and the school board.

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

As teachers picketed the board office on Harvey Street Monday afternoon, negotiators for the Plymouth-Canton Education Association presented an informal settlement proposal during a three-and-a-half hour mediation session.

The Board of Education scheduled a closed meeting for 4:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 2 to discuss the offer.

Tom Cotner, chief negotiator for the district, said that by law, he cannot disclose the settlement package. But it betters the offer currently on the table.

"Actually, there are nine unresolved issues. But the two we are concentrating on are salary and health insurance," Cotner said. "They've expressed a need to get concessions in health insurance, and to hold salary in check. We addressed both of those in our proposal."

Teachers have already presented a proposal that would save the district $175,000 in health care costs and $220,000 in salary, Cotner said.

The savings would be realized by a reduction in the proposed pay increase from 3.5 percent to 3 percent. Teachers want to keep their current health care carrier, Blue Cross-Blue Shield. But they've proposed an increase in their annual deductible, from $50 to $150 per individual, and from $100 to $300 per family.

The district has countered with an offer of no pay increase, but a new step at the top of the scale of 1.5 percent. For teachers with 12 years' experience, the raise would be $916. District negotiators are pressing for a switch from Blue Cross-Blue Shield to Preferred Choices, a Preferred Provider Organization affiliated with Mercy Health Plans.

New arena: Class act for Whalers

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

See related stories on the new arena and hockey team on pages 10A, 1C.

The moment hockey fans populating the western suburbs have awaited is here.

At long last? Can't say that, considering it's taken just six months, from start to finish, to construct the $20 million home for the Detroit Whalers.

And the Compuware Ambassadors. And Birmingham Brother Rice's hockey team. And figure skaters and hockey players from everywhere else in this general area.

On Saturday, the Whalers – defending champions of the Ontario Hockey League's Western Division – open their home season in their new arena.

Anticipation is running high. Only a few hundred seats remain for the opening weekend of games: Saturday against the Kingston Frontenacs (7:30 p.m.) and Sunday vs. the Barrie Colts (6 p.m.).

Saturday's opening-night ceremonies include a laser light show inside the arena beginning at approximately 7:40 p.m., followed by player introductions and a banner-raising ceremony, with a pennant commemorating the Whalers' 1995 division championship hoisted to the rafters.

After that, arena owners Tom Thewes and Thomas Mullin will be introduced, and then Plymouth Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen-McCarthy will drop the first puck.

The first 2,500 spectators to arrive Saturday will receive free Whaler schedule magnets, a gift sponsored by Durocell. On Sunday, the first 2,500 fans will receive free issues of Canadian Hockey League magazine.

All this to mark the opening of a structure that is expected to have a major impact on Plymouth Township.

This is no minor league facility; Compuware Arena may not have the seating available to National Hockey League franchises, but it has all the other amenities – and more.

For the record, the hockey arena holds 4,300 spectators; the other enclosed surface across the hall (basically for figure skating, it actually has a larger ice area) seats another 1,000. One look at the hockey arena provides proof that there are no bad seats in this house.

"This is a winning situation for everybody," said David Darovitz, the Whalers' director of public relations. "This brings so much to the area – businesses, jobs, development."

Anxious fans: Tickets are nearly gone for this weekend's home-openers against the Kingston Frontenacs and the Barrie Colts.

It would be understandable for fans to view the permanence sports franchises attach to their so-called "hometowns" with more than a little cynicism.

But one look at the Compuware Arena makes it clear that this is no short-term endeavor.

Two ice surfaces, open year-round. Concession stands, of course; a shop selling all sorts of

Lack of business support dooms music fest here

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

When the Plymouth Music Festival started five years ago, promoter Mike Watts said he eventually hoped to bring nationally known acts to town.

But last weekend's festival was the last, Watts said. "We just didn't get the community support we needed."

"But it's not the last music festival," Watts said, adding Canton could be a likely site for the music festival next year.

Some members of the Plymouth business community said it was sad to see the festival go. But while some helped sponsor the festival, several said there isn't enough money to pay for the growing number of downtown events.

"I think some of the business owners feel like they're getting hit from all sides, you get dozens of requests for donations from schools, day cares, everybody," said Gabriala's owner Larry Bird. He was among downtown businesses contributing to the music festival, coupled this year with "Plymouth is ARTrageous" which will continue.

Bird and some other business people said the festival seemed to grow in popularity, especially when it was presented in August. The last two years it was presented in the fall.

"This past weekend it was unfortunate we were hit with such bad weather," Bird said.

Steve Guile, downtown development director, said of Watts' music festival, "I think he's done his best to do an event that benefits downtown and is not intrusive to the traffic flow. The combination of the music celebration and ARTrageous was a good one."

"I think it offered a different type of entertainment people could take advantage of. Any event we lose is detrimental to where we're trying to go in this downtown area. Every event we have exposes a different group of people to a different group of services and goods we have downtown," Guile said.

No more bags

Because paper compost bags have become readily available at area businesses, the Plymouth Township solid waste department will no longer sell them.

All compost material – grass, clippings, leaves, and vegetative material – should be separated from other trash and placed in paper bags for disposal in Plymouth Township.

Wood debris, heavy brush and branches up to 6 inches in diameter should be tied in bundles no longer than 3 feet.

For more information on the compost program or trash disposal, call 454-0530.

Satellite broadcast

The Plymouth Seventh-Day Adventist church, 4295 Napier south of Ann Arbor Road presents the live satellite broadcast "Discoveries in Prophecy" at 7:15 p.m. Saturday in the church.

The series is presented by It Is Written Television. It continues nightly, except for Monday and Thursday. The series looks at where the world is headed.

the district's chief negotiator, said. "We're both working really hard and are hopeful we are going to get it finished. The issues are very difficult. Otherwise, this would have been settled by now.

"We modified our position so that the deductible would be $50 per individual and $100 per family under the PPO," Goldman said.

Bargainers for the district are asking for health care concessions of $450,000. The district has proposed that employees pay $740 per year to keep their Blue Cross-Blue Shield plan.

"The amount we are offering is less, but we didn't want any," said Cotner, who teaches advanced high school mathematics. "Basically, they're saying this $175,000 isn't $450,000. What I want to say back is, it also isn't zero. We have given recognition to what their request is. We've also given them a salary offer that's pretty close to the inflation rate."

Goldman said the board "will take a look at their proposal and see what we can put together as a response. We're always looking for solutions. We don't want to say we aren't proposing alternatives to the problems."

Teacher contract issues

There's been some movement in bargaining between Plymouth-Canton Community Schools and its 800 teachers.

- Teachers have placed on the table a reduction in their salary increase request from 3 1/2 percent to 3 percent.
- District negotiators have maintained their "no increase" position on the salary scale, but have offered to add a new top step of 1.5 percent. Currently, teachers' masters-degree schedule has 11 steps. Anyone who's been in the district 12 years or longer would reach a 12th step and receive a raise of $916.
- Health insurance has been the other major stumbling block.
- Teachers proposed an increase in their co-pay, or annual deductible. Individuals would accept a $150 co-pay, up from $50. Families would agree to raise their co-pay from $100 to $300.
- The Plymouth-Canton Education Association wants to keep its current carrier, Blue Cross-Blue Shield.
- The district is proposing that employees switch to Preferred Choices, a subsidiary of Mercy Health Plans, or pay $740 per year to keep their current coverage.

There's a misconception, said Cotner, that teachers receive a cost-of-living adjustment. "Folks think we're requesting a raise in addition to COLA. We have zero for cost of living. We'd gladly sign a contract that had a COLA agreement in it. If they wanted to do that, we could settle things for a long time. Being realistic, the school district isn't going to do that."

During Monday's mediation session, about 200 elementary, middle school and high school teachers took shifts picketing.

Cotner said the teachers' comprehensive package proposal addresses all nine unresolved issues as a settlement offer.

Under the teachers' expired contract, entry-level pay is $30,997. Top of the scale is $62,050.

Teachers' offer to go to binding arbitration stands, said Cotner. "That could end it within 10 minutes. But they continue to refuse it," he said.

Goldman said "fact finding is what the state calls for. In binding arbitration, like fact finding, you have a third party give a recommendation. It's been in place for 20-some years. I think we need to exhaust that remedy before we look at anything else."

Cotner says "fact finding is an option, it's not called for. Fact finding could be binding," he added.

"My first preference is to settle it at the table. If that seems to be a problem, then I am willing to submit to a process that will bring a definite end," said Cotner. "Beyond that, I'm not sure what more we can do from our side."

The board ratified the Plymouth-Canton Administrators' new contract last week. The agreement grants a 3.1 percent total increase in salary and benefits.

hockey merchandise; and a full-service restaurant (scheduled to open next March) that will seat 250.

But how first-rate is it, you ask? What about the details? Consider this: The hockey arena has separate locker rooms assigned to the Whalers, the Ambassadors and Brother Rice – and all are bigger than the locker rooms afforded the Detroit Red Wings at Joe Louis Arena.

And those are but three of eight locker rooms surrounding the hockey arena.

There are also four private suites, three of which have been purchased for the season. If needed or wished, more suites could be added "with no loss of seating," said Darovitz.

Ticket prices range from $5 in the corners and behind the nets to $12 for mid-ice VIP seats, 688 of which are already sold out for the 33 home games this season. The $8 executive reserve seats are also going fast, said Darovitz.

Will the arena provide anything else? "A lot of exposure," said arena manager Mike Vellucci. "It'll bring in a lot of visitors.

"The interest is huge. And we've gotten a real positive reaction with the building and its looks."

There are no plans to do anything not associated with skating with the arenas, said Vellucci.

"I hate to see us lose it," said Fran Toney, executive director of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce. "Mike Watts is a real professional, I know how hard he's worked."

Like Bird, Toney said the festival attendance seemed to dip when it was moved from August to the fall. On sponsorship by businesses, Toney also agreed: ". They can't contribute to everything."

The DDA and its Downtown Business Association have been talking about ways to raise money downtown for promotions. "We're trying to find an equitable way to do that. It would take some of the burden off some of these people," Guile said.

A likely solution will be levying a 2-mill tax on all downtown businesses, to raise $16,000 per year to pay for event promotions, Guile said – a remedy possible under state law that created downtown development authorities.

A final decision on whether to levy that tax, or seek another solution, has yet to be made, he added.

Torch runners go distance for Special Olympics

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

Sgt. Steve Ostrovich coordinates and participates in the Law Enforcement Torch Run for Michigan Special Olympics because he has an idea of what life is like for a handicapped youngster.

"I have a real close friend who has a child with Down syndrome, and I know a family with an autistic child. That's what makes me do this," said Ostrovich, a marathoner who's completed legs as long as 21 miles in past Torch Runs.

A corrections officer at Plymouth Township's Western Wayne Correctional Facility, Ostrovich joined two dozen fellow employees in the 12th annual Michigan Law Enforcement Torch Run Sept. 26.

Escorted by Northville Township police officer Matt Mayes and Scott Correctional Facility's Lt. David Clifton, the runners and walkers headed east on Five Mile Road from Western Wayne toward Scott Correctional Facility shortly after 9 a.m.

The 3.5-mile route took them north on Beck past Scott to Our Lady of Providence Center where they ran a loop, to Six Mile Road and back.

The volunteers began collecting pledges last April. "Just over $2,000 was raised from Western Wayne; we're above last year," said Ostrovich.

Inmates contributed $500, and the prison's Adopt-a-Family organization matched it, he said.

Clifton estimated Scott's total at $5,000.

The runners and walkers carried a torch saluting the 20,000 Michigan residents with mental retardation and developmental disabilities who train and compete in 21 sports year-round through Special Olympics.

Created by the Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr. Foundation, Special Olympics gives athletes "continuing opportunities to develop physical fitness, demonstrate courage, experience joy, and participate in the sharing of gifts, skills and friendships."

■'The purpose of the Torch Run is not only to raise funds and create public awareness for Michigan Special Olympics, but for members of law enforcement and correction agencies to build solid community relations.'

Jennifer Trombley
–Special Olympics

"The purpose of the Torch Run, however, is not only to raise funds and create public awareness for Michigan Special Olympics, but for members of law enforcement and correction agencies to build solid community relations," said Jennifer Trombley, of the Central Michigan University-based Special Olympics.

Sue Budlong, who works in personnel at Western Wayne, enters the Torch Run and raises funds for Special Olympics every year. "I'm lucky to have healthy children. I want to help those who aren't as lucky," said Budlong.

"It's a good cause, great exercise and a lot of fun," said her co-worker, Heidi Hamilton.

Western Wayne Corrections Officer Carlos Horn ran for the third consecutive year. "I just do it, because I figure you never can give enough for children. I make sure I'm available with my time and money."

Lt. Ardell Garland, a staff trainer who's worked at Western Wayne for 24 years, is unable to run, but "my heart is here anyway." Garland helps out photographing the event because "to give a little time and money isn't going to hurt anyone. I feel we are long overdue to provide adequate treatment for underprivileged people."

Also, Garland said, "together as a group, we forget about some things that might be troubling us with the camaraderie that comes about when you're helping others."

Garland knows of what he speaks. Western Wayne has an active Adopt-a-Family program to help the less fortunate, and assists families during the holidays, donating food, clothing and even beds to the needy.

Clifton says he'd like to see the local Torch Run expand with the participation from local police departments and Torch Run sponsor Ameritech Cellular Services.

If Clifton gets his wish, the recruits will join the 2,000-plus runners, walkers, in-line skaters and cyclists who participate in Michigan's 3,000-mile Torch Run. One of the longest and most successful Torch Runs in the country, the state's event features hundreds of community runs, in addition to the non-stop 700-mile relay that starts in Copper Harbor in the Upper Peninsula and ends in Detroit.

Michigan's Law Enforcement Torch Run raises more than $300,000 every year.

Craft fair will showcase Plymouth's Old Village

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

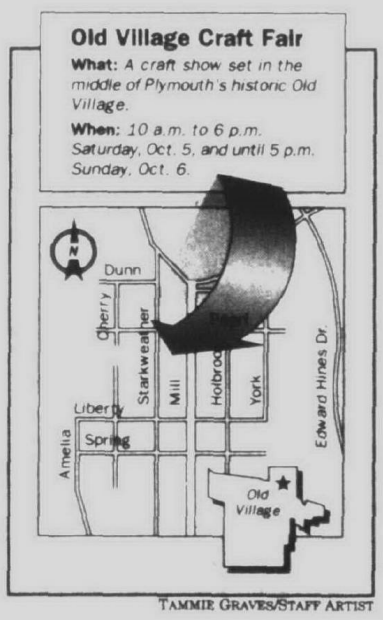
Plymouth's Old Village area gets its turn to shine this weekend, as the Old Village Craft Fair seeks to surpass the best of the old Applefests.

The fair features crafters doing their thing in person at 50 craft booths along Liberty and adjacent streets. There will also be a variety of live music, including a performance by the Vocal Arts Ensemble of Michigan.

Organizers say the purpose is to show off the north end of town, draw attention to new and existing businesses, and have fun.

The event happens from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Show coordinator Dianne Quinn, who also heads Art in the Park downtown, said the Station 885 Restaurant will offer an Octoberfest menu. The soon-to-open Lower Town Grill on Liberty will have beer and wine sales under an outdoor tent, in conjunction with Fleetwood Foundation Charities. Other Old Village restaurants also plan outdoor food and beverage sales.



TAMMIE GRAVES/STAFF ARTIST

"A lot of restaurants and businesses will be participating," Quinn said. There will also be old-fashioned outdoor grills cooking up roasted almonds and chicken in Cobblestone Alley and Cannon park.

One craft booth vendor will offer for sale historical photos of the area going back to the 1800s, with the Plymouth Historical Museum receiving some of the proceeds.

Artist Glen Allen is scheduled to paint a mural half a city block long, on the side of Robin's Nest Antiques on Mill Street. "It's really different – like a big sunburst with birds and a vine of sunflowers," said shop owner Gerry Sindici.

He plans to offer free door prizes and specials every hour, and other shopkeepers will offer specials.

Noting that some downtown shopkeepers have been critical of events in that part of the city, Sindici said, "Here in the Old Village we welcome any event."

"We have so much available parking, plus we'll take the business," he said.

"There will be hand-rubbed wood cut prints, stained glass, broom making, seasonal wood pieces, over 5 foot tall wooden Santas, and cement garden pieces," Quinn said.

Sindici said plans are in the works to have a "Haunted Village" event during Halloween.

Donations needed for Red Cross blanket days for homeless campaign

The Southeastern Michigan Chapter of the American Red Cross along with World Medical Relief are hoping to keep the homeless a little warmer this winter through their annual Blanket Days for the Homeless campaign.

The organizations hope to collect more than 7,500 blankets, 1,000 crib blankets and 5,000 towel/washcloth sets and distribute them to more than 100 shelters in the tri-county area.

"Last year more than 6,000 blankets were distributed and this winter it appears similar assistance will be needed," says Dick Kelly, volunteer chairman of the Blankets for the Homeless Committee, which oversees the collection and distribution of the blankets.

Recipients include the homeless, victims of domestic abuse, runaways at shelters in Detroit and the suburbs in Wayne, Oakland and Macomb counties.

The eighth annual campaign again this year received a grant of $500 from the Detroit Industrial School which specifically targets its gift be used to benefit homeless children.

Blanket Days was started in 1988 when the American Red Cross surveyed area shelters to determine their needs. The first year, more than 300 blankets were distributed to more than 20 shelters.

"This campaign gives everyone a chance to do something for their community and the homeless," says Barbara O'Neill of the Red Cross.

Cash donations of any amount are preferred, however donations of new, washable blankets are also appreciated. Blankets may be dropped off at any Red Cross Service Center. Call 1-800-552-5466 for the nearest center in your area.

Checks should be made payable to: American Red Cross, Southeastern Michigan Chapter, and sent to P.O. Box 33351, c/o Barbara O'Neill, Detroit, Mich. 48232-5351 and mark them "Blanket

Marching band shines on muddy field at competition

After two standstill competition performances due to nasty weekend weather, the Plymouth-Canton Marching Band finally got to march at the Novi Fanfare Marching Band Competition at Novi High School Saturday, Sept. 28.

The Plymouth-Canton performers swept the field once again with first place in Flight I, captions for Best Winds, Best Marching and Maneuvering, Best Percussion and Best Color Guard along with highest overall score of the 16 competing bands. But what a messy field it was.

"I've never had a band march in such awful conditions and I've also never had a band that has this demanding of a drill," said band director David McGrath. "These kids are flying. There are a couple places in the show where they're taking such huge steps at such a high velocity while they are playing, that we almost decided to do a standstill and just perform in exhibition."

Several times during the evening performances, McGrath and associate director Pat Ruddy checked on the field conditions as a heavy mist progressed into a steady soak. Even bales of straw spread out during breaks were quickly mashed into the sea of shoe-sucking mud. Several performers completed maneuvers in mire-soaked socks.

■'I've never had a band march in such awful conditions and I've also never had a band that has this demanding of a drill. These kids are flying.'

David McGrath
-band director

But the band and color guard were anxious to show their stuff and voted unanimously to let the show go on.

"If they hadn't worked as hard as they have this far, they wouldn't have been able to pull it off," McGrath admitted. The long hours of daily after-school practice and all-day Saturday drill paid off. Even so, the slippery slime was the downfall of a trumpet player, clarinet player and a bass drummer.

"But they were all OK," said McGrath. "They got right back up and did their jobs." He said that because the conditions were so hazardous, what the audience and judges saw was just "a shell of the show." But that wasn't obvious from the crowd reaction to the performance of "The Road to Oz." The crowd went wild as half the band jazzed it up while the other half stretched out in the murky mud to perform the munchkin maneuvers.

"The best was having everyone scream and go crazy for us afterwards," said Ruddy, then confessed, "We're going to have to buy about 200 gallons of bleach."

Plymouth-Canton's grand sweep of awards resulted from a score of 80.07. Lakeland took first place in Flight II with a

Plymouth police responded to an alarm call at 729 W. Ann Arbor Trail shortly before midnight Saturday, Sept. 28.

Officers found an opened door at the top of the fire escape at the Louisville Manufacturing Company. Upon entering, officers spotted a suspect in the room and shouted "police." The suspect darted into a dark office.

Police found the female suspect in the darkened office, and asked why she was there. "I am just here," the woman answered. The woman, a 34-year-old Detroiter, was arrested for breaking and entering. A search of her purse turned up the gold pen set that matched others in the office, and a pewter John Deere key chain that also appeared to belong to the business, said police.

Police said they contacted the company vice president who confirmed the property belonged to the company.

The vice president told police he doesn't know the suspect and did not given her permission to be in the building. The building owner, also contacted by police, said the same.

The suspect was intoxicated, and told police she entered the business to avoid abuse by an unnamed pursuer. Police said the woman didn't provide details of her defense.

At the station where she was booked and jailed, the woman's blood alcohol level was measured at .16 percent.

Loud party

Plymouth police responded to reports of a loud party at a residence at Byron and Arthur twice on Saturday, Sept. 28.

Officers warned that if the 20-year-old resident and his friends didn't keep it quiet, they would be back to write him a ticket.

Police returned to the home at 1:45 a.m. after neighbors reported a fight developing in the street.

Four police officers were unable to get the man to open his door, but when he finally did open it, they observed beer "everywhere in his kitchen, in many different types of containers." Police said a marijuana bong was on the floor. Rolling papers were on the counter. All of his guests were hiding in the basement.

Police asked all the guests to leave. It was learned the host was underage, and had been drinking. He said he'd consumed one beer. Police said they took a partially-full plastic mug of beer from the table as evidence. The man complained that it was his favorite mug. The resident was ticketed for being a minor in possession of alcohol.

Senior clarinetist Meghan Palk was very happy with the Plymouth-Canton performance. "It was fun," she said. "It was the first time we marched (in competition) all year so we were really excited. It felt good."

Lee Bonner, a 1995 graduate of Plymouth Salem and four-year member of the marching band, is now part of the teaching staff for tuba and euphonium. "They were fabulous," he said of the band's performance. "They're going to have a fabulous season. I'm really excited for them." Bonner is a sophomore at Eastern Michigan University majoring in musical education and psychology.

Said McGrath of his band," For them to perform as well as they did tonight ... they were just outstanding. They're very professional kids. Everyone in the community should be very proud of them."

Candidates split on vouchers, state academic standards

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

Two Democrats and a Republican running for the State Board of Education stuck together in opposing voucher aid to private schools and favoring mandatory academic standards.

Republican Louis Legg was joined by Democrats Herb Moyer and Marianne McGuire in supporting mainstream efforts of the 1980s and early '90s such as state standards and state money only for public schools.

They met Sept. 26 in a program sponsored by the Livonia branch of the American Association of University Women.

Vouchers

Moderator Yvonne Constas asked their views on vouchers, a proposed system under under which state money could follow students into private and parochial schools. The Michigan Constitution since 1970 has prohibited vouchers and parochiaid, but a petition drive to allow them is expected in 1997-98.

Lundy (R): "If we're talking parental choice, it's healthy." But the board vice-president, who supports most of president Clark Durant's views, insisted "it's not an issue in Michigan."

McGuire (D): Vouchers are a way of taking public money from public education. I have no problem with parents' sending children to private or parochial schools (at their own expense)."

Legg (R): "I'm not big on vouchers. Public money should go to public education."

Barnes (L): "It's another bureaucracy. I don't support vouchers." In closing remarks, she said, "We should lower the tax burden. We should not have to support public schools with tax dollars. Government has too much control."

Moyer (D) was unable to attend but sent a surrogate, Bill Hass: "Vouchers should not go to schools run by unelected officials."

Mandatory standards

Should academic standards be mandatory or voluntary? The Legislature required a mandatory core curriculum in a 1990 law but repealed it in 1993.

Legg (R): "I'm for mandatory standards. It does improve achievement. We've got a lot of information from the (MEAP and new High School Proficiency) tests. We need rigorous standards. They give us a lot of information about areas of the state."

Barnes (L): "I don't believe a mandated curriculum is the way to go."

Moyer (D, through Hass): "MEAP and the new tests are setting high standards."

Lundy (R): "The board recommended suggested standards, not mandated. . . or you have Big Brother state looking over your shoulder."

McGuire (D): "We should have very high standards, whether mandatory or not. . . We have to look at the deficiencies (in test scores)."

Certified administrators

How do you feel about the certification of public school administrators?

Barnes (L): "It (lack of certification) doesn't mean they can't teach that subject."

Moyer (D, through Hass): "We require barbers, nurses, doctors, attorneys and and certified public accountants to prove they're ready to do the job. In education, we should not lower the standards."

Lundy (R): "We should promote openness to bring people into education – their business skills, personnel skills."

McGuire (D): "We need certification down the line."

Legg (R): "Not administrators. We have a very good group of administrators. They're feet are held to the fire by the public."

Test private schools

Should we make students in non-public schools take state proficiency tests?

Barnes (L): "No. The private schools are doing a fine job."

Legg (R): "No. They should be paid for by the people who go to them."

McGuire (D): "I don't see why not."

Lundy (R): "Years back, the federal government paid for all to take the tests. Many (private schools) do take the tests. Nobody asks them to."

Moyer (D, through Hass): "If parents are to make wise decisions (about where to send their children), these tests should be taken and the scores made public."

Arts in schools

Are the arts in a stable position in schools?

Legg (R): "My son is taking music. It's how we (in the local school district) choose to spend our money. Money's not the problem in education."

McGuire (D): "It's a shame that when funding becomes short, art, music and nurses get cut – including health care workers. A lot is available at the federal level and through foundations."

Lundy (R): "We don't want the state making those decisions."

Moyer (D, through Hass): "We all agree they (arts) are important. The school boards place the three R's at the top of the list."

Candidates were quoted in the order in which they replied. To see the half-hour broadcast portion, call your local cable television company and ask it to obtain the Sept. 26 State Board of Education forum from Time Warner of Livonia.

State board of education

Democrats

Marianne Yared McGuire, age unlisted, Detroit, freelance journalist, former teacher in Grand Rapids and Grosse Pointe public schools.

Herb Moyer, 68, Temperance, superintendent of Bedford public schools; Ed.D.; many civic and party affiliations.

Republicans

Marilyn Lundy, incumbent, 72, Detroit, seeking second term; president of and active in Catholic social service agencies.

Louis Legg III, incumbent, 42, Battle Creek; seeking full term, appointed by governor in mid-year; president of lumber merchandising group; former president of Michigan Jaycees.

Libertarian

Diane Barnes, Eastpointe, has three children in both public and private schools.

The job

Eight members, two elected biennially. Constitutional duty of leadership and supervision of public education; distributes state funds to school districts; appoints superintendent of public instruction; meets monthly. Current makeup: 6 Republicans, 2 Democrats.

Author; minister to discuss homeschool movement

Karl Reed, author of "The Bible, Homeschooling and the Law" will be featured from 2-4 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 5 in the Southfield Civic Center, Room 115, 26000 Evergreen Road, Southfield.

Pre-registration admission tickets are $5 per person and $7.50 for couples. Cost is $7.50 per person and $10 for couples at the the day of the event.

Reed is a native to the state of Washington and entered the ministry in 1965. Reed and his wife, Virginia, educate their nine children at home. That, in turn, led to the many issues Reed addressed in his book, "Our Reeds Grow Free," first published in 1984.

Reed now enjoys 24 grandchildren and is involved in the homeschool movement through his ministry.

Besides addressing homeschool groups and churches, sharing much needed insight on the subject of child training and education, Reed is very concerned about the passage of homeschool laws which greatly affects the future of homeschooling.

New principal stresses partnerships and trust

BY M.B. DILLON
STAFF WRITER

It seems new principal Jane VanSteenis is a hit at Bird Elementary School.

A first-grader returning to her classroom Monday afternoon spotted VanSteenis in the hallway. She ran up and gave her principal a bear hug and a big smile.

Among a group of third-graders playing on the swings at recess, there was consensus that "She's really nice. I really like her," said Tess Ulrey.

"She seems nice," said Tierney Freeman.

"She knows how to play guitar. It's good," said Kyle Horn.

"Very different," said Tierney.

Most recently an elementary school principal with Saginaw Township Community Schools, a district a third the size of Plymouth-Canton schools, VanSteenis brings a strong musical background to the district.

■'I look at parents as partners. I think it's a support and a resource. I support a lot of involvement, but I expect a lot of trust that we are the professionals here.'

Jane VanSteenis,
–Bird principal

She replaces principal Claudia Kulnis, who accepted a position in the Troy public schools.

VanSteenis has taught vocal music, earned musical certification, and written fine arts curricula for both the Plainwell Community Schools and Oxford Area Community Schools where she formerly worked.

A soprano, VanSteenis performs with chorus groups and often solos.

School secretary Cheri Chrzanowski said parents coming into the office and mistaking VanSteenis for a secretary have asked her for help.

"She goes ahead and does whatever it is, and when the mom or dad asks, 'Who is the new principal?' she says, 'I am.'

"We've had so many favorable comments from parents and staff. She's very approachable," said Chrzanowski. "She's wonderful to work with," agreed fellow secretary Mary Kenealy.

An Oakland County native, VanSteenis said she looked for employment in this area to be closer to family. "This was a lateral move, but an opportunity to take a step into a larger district," said VanSteenis, who is buying a condominium in Ann Arbor Township.

Grateful for the warm welcome she's received, VanSteenis says her first priority is "to build relationships. That is what it's all about.

"I look at parents as partners," she added. "I think it's a support and a resource. I support a lot of involvement, but I expect a lot of trust that we are the professionals here."

A runner who's also taught physical education, VanSteenis is joining Michigan State University's Southeast Center in Birmingham where she'll teach courses in administration next summer.

VanSteenis earned an undergraduate degree in education from Western Michigan University, and graduate degrees from MSU in educational administration and the arts. She taught in Alaska On-Base Schools in 1968-69 and in Oxford from 1973-92. VanSteenis was an administrative intern in Lake Orion Community Schools from May-July 1992. She served as assistant principal at Plainwell Middle School from 1992-93.

Curriculum and staff development are strong interests, she said.

"I have some background in technology, and how that connects to teachers, which connects to children. We'll be using staff meeting time to be in the computer lab working on things," she said.

Other strengths that impressed Bird's hiring committee were VanSteenis' knowledge of the writing process, and her background in current best practice.

The committee included parents, teachers, administrators and other staff members.

"We flew into the information age," said the principal. "What's happening is happening so fast that we need to put some effort in three areas: accessing information, communicating, and demonstrating performance. I'm not just talking about computers, but the whole realm of equipment. We have no idea what kids are going to have to be prepared for."

Though she's been at Bird just a short time, "I can see so many strengths here – the special staff of people; eager learners; and the hands-on science curriculum. Bird has been fortunate to do some things with technology which have created some nice partnerships which have been to their advantage."

As Bird principal, VanStennis will receive an annual salary of $68,499 plus fringe benefits.

- They enjoy sizeable salaries. Their building administrators have settled their contract with 3.1% salary increases
- Most school districts have settled fairly. We are being asked to settle for a reduction in income!
- 60% of our 815 teachers have served this community for over 12 years, many for much longer. We are worth our pay.
- How long will Mr. Little and Mr. Goldman serve this community?
- Maybe the "fat" is not in teacher salaries. Maybe Harvey Street needs to go on the "diet"!!
- Class sizes are climbing in this district. Who's in the classroom with your children???

Program aims to get students ready for work

BY CASEY HANS
STAFF WRITER

Soon, students from Plymouth Salem High School may have a chance to visit the Canton-based manufacturer Metaltec, where they will spend a day getting a "snapshot" view of the steel abrasives business from the sales office to the manufacturing floor.

The plan is to give them a real-life experience of what they can expect in the workplace when they graduate.

"Our hope is to open the eyes of these students . . . that you have to get an education," said Marty Schendel, director of quality and manufacturing at Metaltec, and coordinator of the project for his company. "You need a whole new set of skills today — you can't just go to school and goof around and hope to get some meaningful employment."

It's all part of a project funded through an initiative called the Wayne County School-to-Work Partnership, a 3-year project designed to bring the work world alive for area students, and encourage businesses to have a say in teaching the skills needed for their future.

The partnership has worked since its implementation in January of 1995 to encourage various business and education projects including job shadowing at Garden City High School, teaching international trade at Livonia's Frost Middle School and setting up a working newsroom at Stevenson Middle School in the Wayne-Westland district.

■ 'For years we considered voc ed the 'employment readied' classes. Now every class has the potential — English, history, science and all academic areas.'

Susan Everitt
–Employment and Training Designs

The idea is to bring work skills into every facet of the classroom, to give area businesses the type of employable workers they will need in the future.

"For years we considered voc ed the 'employment readied' classes," said Susan Everitt of the Livonia-based Employment and Training Designs. "Now every class has the potential — English, history, science and all academic areas."

Composed of education and business/community leaders from throughout out-Wayne County, the 23-member Partnership Board of Directors was formed as the county-level agency to implement the school-to-work initiative for all of Wayne County, except for the city of Detroit which has its own school-to-work board and program. Of the $1.7 million currently available to fund grants and other projects, $750,000 has already been awarded. More funding is expected to be allocated in October.

The partnership's slogan is "Partners for Lifelong Earnings," which was designed to get away from the words "career" and "job," which sometimes imply "professional" versus "industrial," Everitt said. "Everyone has 'earnings'," she added.

Some 25 businesses and 130 teachers and educators — including the Metaltec/Salem team — participated in a summer internship funded by the partnership. From the Observer area, six educators from Garden City, one from Livonia, five from the Plymouth-Canton schools, two from Redford Union and eight from Wayne-Westland teamed with businesses to do specific projects and with some beginning ongoing partnerships. Over the summer, teachers teamed with business leaders on various projects, gathering information that they will take back into the classroom.

Plymouth Salem counselor June Swartz spent time at Metaltec this summer, where the joint effort produced a 14-minute videotape that will be used to inform students about working in a basic manufacturing company. The video will be showed to ninth graders at the high school as part of that grade's career day.

"It was a wonderful opportunity to link firsthand with business," Swartz said, adding that the Plymouth Canton schools have had a business/school partnership program in place for some time. "This was another link, another extension.

"And business gains. They end up with a product — our students. They can team with us, and tell us about what they need. There's a lot both sides can use."

She said while business is seeking employees with specific skills, educators are seeking ways to teach useful information that students can use to build their futures. "The worker of the future is very different than the worker of 20 years ago," she said. "We (the schools) are the link to the world. What I like about the school-business partnership, is that we're all taking responsibility."

Metaltec's Schendel said his hope is that students will have a one-day experience in the workplace, where they can learn all aspects of the business, and that they will pull other local businesses into the process. He also wants the ongoing partnership to also involve other businesses to help bring the workplace into school.

Everitt said that although the partnership is a 3-year project, the hope is that the business/school partnerships will take on their own momentum, and continue once the grant money has run out.

Parks host Halloween fest

Youngsters are invited to come out and enjoy the Wayne County Parks Halloween Festival 1-3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 26 in Hines Park's Nankin Mills Picnic Area.

Youngsters ages 4-12 will be treated to a costume contest, games, candy hunt, hay rides and puppet show.

"The Boo Brothers Puppet Show of Funny Frights," presented by Pippin Puppets is planned 1:30-2 p.m. From 2-2:30 p.m. "The Red Rug Puppet Theater" will entertain. East Lansing-based puppeteer Beth Katz brings her one-woman old-fashioned "Punch & Judy" style audience-interaction show to Hines Park.

Festival admission is free, however, a nominal fee will be charged for the hay ride. Food concession will be available.

All events will be held outdoors so parents are urged to dress youngsters appropriately.

For more information, or to reserve a spot, call Wayne County Parks at (313) 261-1990.

Nankin Mills is on Hines Drive, just east of Ann Arbor Trail.

Box Bar owner says plans still on for micro brewery

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

The plan to expand the Box Bar and establish a micro brewery on site is still on.

Owner Chip Falcusan won approval for the project last year from city officials, and said work would probably start by spring this year.

Instead, it's taken a while to get started on the project because drawings have been redrawn again and again, as Falcusan and architect Joe Phillips work out the final layout of the two-story restaurant-microbrwery.

"It's a lot of work and it's taking longer than I thought, just the whole process," Falcusan said. Once complete, the business is to be renamed The Box Brewing Company.

"I had no idea how detailed the construction drawings have to be. We're trying to coordinate the brewery, kitchen and all the storage space _ it's a gigantic jigsaw puzzle. From time to time things get moved," he said.

Has he considered not going through with the project?

"No, absolutely not, this has been a dream for too long, 10 years," he said.

Falcusan is cautious about saying when construction will begin. "The drawings are almost completed, there are a couple more hurdles to go," he said.

Once complete, the building will have a brick facade and resemble a 1920s building "so it will look like part of Plymouth history," Falcusan said.

Besides offering five beers made on the premises, he plans to expand the imports and micro brews from the 240 offered now to nearly 1,000.

"The seating will be increased, people will be able to sit on first and second floors, all of the brewing equipment will be on three floors (including the basement,) most of that will be visible to the public," he said.

Falcusan said he won't know the project cost until construction drawings go out to bid

Township ready for hockey team, fans

What impact will the Detroit Whalers have on Plymouth business and government services?

It's just too early to say, according to government officials and business leaders just days before the grand opening Saturday of the 3,500-seat arena on Beck Road between Five Mile and M-14.

But business leaders say they're looking forward to increased business before and after games. And the township police department says it's prepared to handle increased traffic.

Sgt. Robert Smith said the department will be watching traffic closely at the first few home games, to figure out ways to best handle traffic generated by the arena.

"I'm sure opening night is going to be huge," Smith said. "We'll be evaluating the situation and adjusting our response."

Police Chief Carl Berry has met with Whalers officials over the summer to work out security concerns. A private security force will staff the facility and deal with minor incidents, but township police "will respond to incidents there as we would anyplace else in the township," Smith said.

"We're not going to be responding to a fist fight unless it gets out of hand, if it would break out in the stands," said Township Supervisor Kathleen Keen McCarthy.

The impact the arena will have on Plymouth Township is unknown, McCarthy said. "We have nothing to compare it to, we don't know all the impacts. Traffic is one thing we've been very concerned with," McCarthy said.

Township and Wayne County officials have discussed installing a traffic light at the arena entrance, and it will be installed this month, McCarthy said.

By spring, a second traffic light is to be installed south of M-14.

McCarthy anticipates local restaurants will see increased business around game time – especially because an on-site restaurant won't open until spring.

"I would anticipate some people coming out an hour or two early to see what's around," she said.

"I know the community is very excited about having the Whalers because people at the Fall Festival bought hundreds of tickets and picked up team schedules," said Fran Toney, executive director of the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

"We could not keep up with the demand."

"People will be using restaurants, gas stations, hotels. I see the Whalers coming to Plymouth and helping the economy of the community," she said.

Bill earmarks money for computers

BY TIM RICHARD

STATE NEWS

State Sen. Gary Peters, D-Bloomfield Township, wants to put $300 million worth of computers into K-4 classrooms in the next decade, and he has an idea where to get the money.

He would earmark 75 percent of the Michigan Renaissance Fund (formerly the Michigan Strategic Fund) for technology grants at the pace of $25 million a year.

But Gov. John Engler's appointees on the Renaissance Fund board have different ideas. According to Engler's office, the Renaissance Fund will go to:

- "Loans to local communities for land assembly and land reclamation in support of specific economic development projects."
- "Grants to the communities for infrastructure development for those projects."

Another line item

Engler dislikes Peters' bill because it amounts to "another line item" in the budget. The governor prefers to give school districts a lump sum and let them account to voters for how they spend it.

"Is the $11 billion we're spending (state school aid fund) adequate to educate 1.6 million kids?" Engler asked. "Mr. Peters, who has had strong support from the teachers union, would argue that if you put more money in, they could have higher salaries. If you put in more for computers, it would free up more for wages.

"It's all part of the negotiation process. It's neither right nor wrong.

"I believe our approach has been sound in that we get rid of all these line items and say to the school board, the school community, here's the money; you decide.

"But there are people – Sen. Peters is one, President Clinton's another – who believe that government, being all-knowing, should take funds and earmark them for specific little purposes.

"We had over 100 categorical programs in our school aid bill (prior to Proposal A of 1994) that virtually no one understood except a handful of people in the Legislature. We've gotten rid of that. They (school districts) now have to evaluate how they do business."

Previously the Renaissance Fund was used to push new industry. Some $55 million is aimed at the new Detroit Tigers stadium. Unlike the Strategic Fund, which made direct loans to companies, the Renaissance Fund will go to local governments.

Source of funds remains the same: casino slot machines.

Change focus

Peters, a first-term senator, told a news conference Sept. 25 that a better use yet would be computers for kindergarten through fourth grade, until a ratio of one per five students is reached.

"Our focus in delivering public education has been charter schools and vouchers," Peters said. "It should be technology. Technology has resulted in dramatic improvement in tests scores, reduced truancy and lower dropout rates," he said, citing Romulus, Cincinnati, and Willow Grove, Ill.

"The (federal) General Accounting Office ranks Michigan 44th of the 50 states in use of computers in classrooms. We're at the bottom of every category (such as software). Ohio is investing $400 million, primarily in the elementary grades.

"The biggest bang for the buck you can get is in the early grades. It's the opposite of what most schools do. It leverages teachers in math, reading and writing."

He expects his proposal to become an election issue. Just drafted, the bill so far doesn't have a number.

As Peters views it, teachers could group students by ability in clusters of five and let each group work at its own pace. "The teacher becomes a coach rather than a lecturer at the blackboard, with half the students wanting to go faster, half slower and most of them bored."

Half the money would be used on training teachers and acquiring software, half on equipment. It sets up a "public school technology and infrastructure improvement fund" within the Renaissance Fund act.

Joining Peters to endorse the measure were representatives of the Michigan Association of Secondary School Principals, Michigan Elementary and Middle School Principals Association, Michigan Association of School Administrators, PTA, the Michigan State University Department of Education Administration, Michigan Association of Intermediate School Administrators and Michigan Federation of Teachers.

Habitat for Humanity seeks local volunteers

A new affiliate of Habitat for Humanity brings the tradition of affordable housing for the working poor to Western Wayne County.

The recently formed Western Wayne-Habitat began construction on its first house, located at Middlebelt and Cherry Hill in Inkster on Saturday.

Volunteer labor and tax-deductible donations will help Western Wayne-Habitat build and rehabilitate houses in Western Wayne County. Each house will cost about $40,000 to $50,000 and will be sold to selected families with interest free mortgages. Selected families also are required to invest "sweat equity" hours in the construction of their own home or the home of another partner family.

In support of the newest Habitat affiliate, Hygrade Food Products, makers of Ball Park Franks and a long time resident of the metropolitan area, has made Saturday "Hygrade Day" at this first site. Many of the volunteers working this Saturday are employees from Hygrade Food Products two facilities located in Detroit.

Individuals interested in volunteering services, donating materials, or applying for a Habitat home, can contact the Western Wayne County Habitat for Humanity office at (313) 432-7700. Questions regarding this first site can be directed to board member Renee Schultz, (810) 208-1986.

Family court is next step toward single trial court

STAFF WRITER

■ 'The family court devised by the Legislature is a step in the right direction.'
Gov. John Engler

Gov. John Engler will sign into law a bill creating a new "family court" to handle work that used to be spread around three different kinds of courts.

It's a step toward unification of Michigan's circuit, probate and district courts into a single "trial court."

The "family court" would be a division of circuit court, which currently handles divorce and child custody cases.

The change would gut many of the juvenile functions of probate court, leaving probate custody only of estate cases. Probate courts cannot be abolished entirely, however, except by voter approval of a state constitutional amendment.

"It'll help us use judicial resources to the maximum," Engler said Sept. 26 in an interview with this newspaper. "We're at a point where judicial costs have been rising. We pay people well to be on the bench. We want to make sure we get rid of case backlogs.

"We want to eliminate features of the current court system which are not user-friendly. Currently, if you're in a divorce, that's done by the circuit court; but if there's an abuse and neglect issue, that's done in the probate court. There's too much 'What court is it?'

"The family court devised by the Legislature is a step in the right direction.

"For 20 years I've heard people talk about court reform and reorganization. While we waited for the legal community and the judiciary to come to grips with it, we've done nothing. The Legislature finally reached the point where patience had run out, and they acted," Engler said.

The governor for several years had threatened to veto the creation of new judgeships in suburban Oakland, Wayne and Washtenaw counties until courts were reorganized.

"I just felt very strongly we shouldn't be authorizing new judges until we saw what the system would look like."

Engler said "there's considerable work to be done," citing the need to eliminate part-time probate judgeships in rural counties.

The House on Sept. 24 was scene of the big battle. It approved Senate Bill 1052 on an 80-22 vote.

Voting yes: Reps. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, Jim Ryan, R-Redford, Eileen DeHart, D-Westland, and Deborah Whyman, R-Canton.

Absent: Reps. Lyn Bankes, R-Redford, and Tom Kelly, D-Wayne.

The Senate concurred in House amendments on a 30-7 vote.

Opponents gave a variety of reasons.

"Creating a family court is not an easy task," said Rep. Mary Schroer, D-Ann Arbor. "There is a lot of turf involved and a lot of egos involved here." Her amendment to delay implementation by one year, to 1999, was rejected.

Rep. David Jaye, R-Utica, said no "because it authorizes a $5,000 pay increase for 308 Michigan district and probate court judges who currently make $104,900. This $5,000 pay increase is in addition to the judges' getting a 3 percent pay increase in 1995 and another 3 percent pay increase in 1996."

Suit will fail

Engler predicted the city of Detroit's suit over funding of the 36th District Court – the only one in the state not funded by a local unit – "will fail on its merits, if not at the initial (trial) court, then at the appellate level.

"It's a petition for more money. I think both Detroit and Wayne County have been treated fairly on court reorganization," he said.

Suburban and outstate district courts are funded by cities and townships or counties. The state Supreme Court ruled against a lawsuit by cities and counties to get equal state funding for their courts.

Alliance offers seniors help with household chores

Do you need assistance with chores in the yard or around the house? Does your house need minor repairs?

The Senior Alliance offers a chore referral program. The group puts seniors in touch with chore workers willing to do the jobs.

The senior is given three referrals to contact. It will be the responsibility of the senior to select and then negotiate terms such as the fee that the senior will pay and when the job will be done.

Mammograms – A Controversial Necessity

By James Breckenfeld, M.D.

A screening mammogram means different things to different people. Patients, insurers, and physicians all see this topic from different angles. The basic definition of a screening mammogram is a routine X-ray study performed, usually yearly, on a patient with no symptoms. This study should be complemented by a breast self-examination as well as a current high quality physical exam.

There is current media controversy about the need to screen women 40 to 50 years old. Most medical societies, including the American Cancer Society, recommend annual or biannual mammograms for women in this age group. However, the National Cancer Institute (NCI) does not recommend screening women under 50 years of age because they believe statistics do not show cost effective benefits.

Most medical experts and societies recommend yearly screening after age 50. However, some insurance policies do not cover screening mammography and Medicare will only pay for screenings every two years for women over age 50.

Typically, cancer patients have a better survival rate when the tumor is discovered at an early stage. The goal of screening mammography is to detect tumors before they become clinically evident. These small tumors are usually detected by mammography only and rarely detected by physical exam alone. Patients with this type of neoplasm have a 90 percent survival rate because the tumor has rarely spread to the lymph nodes.

Since women in their 40's account for a significant percentage of breast cancer patients, they should benefit from the best diagnostic efforts. Women 40 to 50 years old have denser breast tissues, making it harder to detect smaller tumors and underscoring the need for more frequent mammography. Below age 40, the incidence of cancer is considerably lower and only a baseline study between ages 35 and 40 is recommended.

As breast cancer involves nine to 11 percent of the female population, we all are probably related to or acquainted with a breast cancer victim. I feel it is the obligation of everyone in the medical field to encourage utilization of routine breast cancer detection with emphasis on high quality screening mammography, physical examination, and patient self-evaluation.

Dr. Breckenfeld is Vice-Chief of Radiology at Oakwood Hospital and Medical Center- Dearborn and Co-director of the Oakwood Breast Care Center.

Team fighting auto theft wins national award

BY LEANNE ROGERS
STAFF WRITER

Members of the Western Wayne Auto Theft unit recently received a national award for their efforts and a $1,000 donation to an area charity.

The award was presented in August at the International Association of Auto Theft Investigators meeting. Recognized was the unit's efforts investigating a Metro Detroit area auto theft ring.

Specifically the award went to Michigan State Police Lt. David Gentry, Van Buren Township Police Detective Robert Greene, Detroit Police Detective Larry Fortier and Dennis Bielskis, a retired Detroit police officer who works for the National Insurance Crime Bureau.

The 3M Corp., which produces the mylar labels used to mark many automotive components with the vehicle indentification number, sponsors the award.

"The award goes to officers who develop a case using information contained on the mylar labels," said Gentry. "The award is given out once a year. I'm not aware of anyone in Michigan being given the award. The FBI has received the award before and I think they applied this year."

The labels are a high tech material, Gentry said, which shred if they are pulled off so they can't be reused.

Efforts recognized: Michigan State Police Lt. David Gentry shows off a national award received by the Western Wayne Auto Theft Unit in honor of an investigation into an auto theft ring operating in the metro area.

If the labels are removed from a part, Gentry said a footprint in left in paint. Some of the vehicles which utilize mylar labels include Lincoln Continentals, Chevrolet Lumina and Ford Mustangs.

"The labels help us identify stolen material so we can get it back to the owner and we'll know it was part of a stolen car," said Gentry. "It's a real good system. We've identified a lot of cars with parts that shouldn't have been there or at least recovered and resold."

The ongoing investigation for which the unit received the award involved a group stealing popular expensive vehicles. The stolen vehicles would be "surgically stripped" and the frame abandoned.

Gentry expects eight or nine people to face in excess of 23 criminals counts stemming from the investigation.

Once a vehicle frame was recovered and the thieves would buy it with a salvage title, put it back together and obtain a clear title.

As Gentry noted, it's not just illegal to possess a stolen vehicle – it's also illegal to have stolen parts on a legally owned vehicle.

In the area of auto thefts, the insurance industry provides assistance through agents such as Bielskis. Agents of the National Insurance Crime Bureau, often retired police officers or security investigators, investigate possible insurance frauds in areas such as thefts and workmen's compensation claims.

"We work with them a lot. Dennis (Bielskis) is especially useful. He's an expert at identifying cars," said Gentry. "If we can't find VINs we call him. He can go after hidden numbers we can't find."

The best part of the award, which included a crystal bowl, was the $1,000 to be donated to the charity of the officers choice, he said.

The officers donated the money to the Christ Child Society located on Joy near Greenfield in Detroit. The society provides residential counseling services to boys age 12 and under.

Survivors include: mother, Georgia McCarty; sister, Michelle; brother, Mike; and loving ex-wife, Kelly McCarty.

CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF CANTON
SPECIAL BOARD MEETING
THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1996

A Special Meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Canton was held on Thursday, September 19, 1996 at 1150 South Canton Center Road.Supervisor Yack called the meeting to order at 7:07 P.M.

ROLL CALL:

Members Present: Bennett, Burdziak, Kirchgatter, LaJoy, McLaughlin, Shefferly, and Yack
Members Absent: None
Staff Present: Durack, Machnik, Minghine, Santomauro, Rorabacher, Svec, Voyles, and Zevalkink

ITEM 1 REVIEW OF 1997 BUDGETS

GENERAL FUND:

Director Minghine thanked John Spencer for compiling most of the budget information. Director Minghine gave an overview of the 1997 Budget. He stated that revenue would be going up by 11 percent. The public hearing on the budget was made necessary because revenues went up beyond the inflation rate.

John Spencer said that General Township millage was one (1) mill, the Charter Township Millage is five (5) mills. He noted that there was a large increase in the amount budgeted for contracted services

Discussion took place on policy regarding budgeting for a voice mail system, funding to come from the General Government Department Capital Outlay. Director Minghine explained differences between voice mail and general answering machines. The consensus was that policy could be established for voice mail and to keep the system in the budget for 1997.

Township Board Budget:

Trustee McLaughlin pointed out that the fees for Planning Commission and Zoning Board of Appeals were incorrect. She said that on page 87 the amount for Planning Commission members is presently $65.00 per meeting and the Zoning Board of Appeals members receive $55.00 per meeting

Assessor:

It was noted that the Assessor's budget increased due to the Assessor's office moving into the Lower Level of the Administration Building. The contract with the Assessor requires the Township to provide space and tools. The budget reflected five (5) new workstations, office furniture, a printer and seven (7) computer memory upgrades. Director Minghine stated that the Assessor's office will be in the building in December whether or not the workstations are installed.

Personnel Services:

In response to a question by Trustee LaJoy, Director Durack explained that Personnel Services had budgeted for a video recorder and tripod for use during the interview process. He said that if borrowing the equipment from the Cable Studio was possible, the requested video recorder would not be purchased.

Communications:

The Board requested additional information on the quantity and uses of the budgeted laptop computers. Ken Voyles explained that this was a presentation laptop computer and was not the same item as a notebook laptop, requested by MIS.

Trustee Shefferly asked if the communications department would be putting together a community calendar.

Supervisor Yack commented that creating the calendar takes a considerable amount of time and money. He said that he realized that Dearborn puts out a calendar at a cost of around $3.00 per calendar. Mr. Yack stated that when focusing on cutting down on expenditures, the calendar was one of the first items cut.

Treasurer:

Treasurer Kirchgatter responded to questions regarding postage and printing & publishing costs for the 1997 budget. She explained that close to one thousand new tax bills are added yearly and postal rates have changed. Ms. Kirchgatter said that the new tax bill was clearly a better product and the new return envelope saved the Treasurer's office work. She also noted that by law all tax bills must be mailed first class, but by sorting them by zip code the rate is around 29 cents per tax bill.

Management Information Systems (MIS):

Staffing levels for Management Information Systems (MIS) was discussed. Supervisor Yack stated that a new employee was being budgeted in order to free up the programmers from training roles. He said that the hours billed to departments indicated that the programmers are being taken away from the jobs as programmers to fulfill the role of computer trainer. Director Durack corrected the salary for the trainer position, he stated that the budget should reflect a salary range of mid $30,000.

Director Minghine stated the reason for the portable notebook computer in the MIS budget was to allow programmers to take work home and later download different data applications.

Facilities Maintenance:

Supervisor Yack explained that the budget for Facilities Maintenance has grown over time. Historically from 1993 through 1997 the growth has been because of the Community Center. Director Durack noted that two(2) full-time maintenance technicians were added for the Summit on the Park and for Pheasant Run Golf Club.

Director Durack explained that it was planned to replace one roof top unit per year, and utilize the parts from the replaced unit for other units at the Administration Building.

Grounds Maintenance :

Director Durack explained that Grounds Maintenance Department continued to grow. The contract for the Downtown Development Authority Streetscape maintenance was renewed and no additional persons would be hired.

Public Safety:

Trustee McLaughlin responded to a question by Supervisor Yack, she said that the school system helped pay for crossing guards. The school pays 50 percent and Public Safety pays 50 percent of the crossing guard's pay.

Emergency Preparedness:

Director Santomauro said that the Emergency Preparedness Department budget reflects a laptop computer that would enable the communications staff to contact Police Headquarters.

General Fund:

Trustee LaJoy asked how many facsimile machines the Township had. He also questioned how many fax machines were necessary. He added that many computers with modems can now be used as fax machines. Director Durack said there was one fax machine on the third floor, one on the second floor and two on the first floor of the Administration Building. Fire Chief Rorabacher replied that there are two (2) fax machines in Public Safety one of which was purchased by the the State Police Union. He said that many items transmitted and received were not computer generated and he felt the department needed a new fax machine.

MUNICIPAL SERVICES

Building & Inspection Services:

Supervisor Yack pointed out the one (1) percent decrease in the Building and Inspection Services Department.

Engineering:

Director Machnik noted the increase in the budget for contracted services due to many issues and projects to be completed in conjunction with the Department of Environmental Quality such as roadways, storm sewers, water quality and the Rouge River clean up project.

Social Services:

The Social Services budget was discussed. The Board asked that a future Study Session be used to review the transportation issues in Canton. The Board also discussed the "youthful diversion," program of Growth Works, its costs and court/township reimbursement policies for minor offenders.

Treasurer Kirchgatter would like to see a break down of other sources of revenue for Growth Works. She also asked to see how moneys from Growth Works are distributed.

Recreation:

Recreation Services budget was reviewed. Trustee LaJoy pointed out the increase in the budget for conferences and seminars.

Referring to General Fund Printing and Publishing:

Trustee Shefferly explored printing and publishing expenses from the General Fund. He felt that the costs for stationery supplies should decrease because of all the added computers.

Director Minghine stated that this cost had risen dramatically with the cost of legal publications. He said that yearly about 1,000 new addresses are added to the master property database. The Board requested a future Study Session to discuss Township wide communication costs.

Department of Public safety:

Police & Fire Departments:

The Public Safety Department budget was reviewed. Director Santomauro summarized the 1997 budget proposal for the Public Safety Department. He based his summary on a comparative analysis to other communities, amounts of calls for Service, overtime, response time and available technology to overcome additional staffing issues for both police and fire. The budget reflected a 1.6 percent reduction for fire and a 1.2 percent increase for police. It was noted that the last time firefighters were added was 1986. He recommended the staffing for fire suppression be increased by two fire fighters. Director Santomauro reviewed the proposed capital outlay for 1997.

In response to questions, Chief Rorabacher explained that an increased budget for uniforms resulted from an increase in the police officers' contractual agreement for uniform allowance.

Community Center Fund:

Trustee LaJoy questioned the rental waivers in the budget. Director Durack explained that this was for a waiver of the rental fee at the Community Center banquet rooms for Township related events.

Trustee McLaughlin asked if the banners budgeted for would be like the ones on Veteran's Memorial Parkway. Director Durack said that the banners would be similar but they would be used in the aquatic center to deaden the noise level and to add color to the area.

Clerk Bennett asked about the HVAC. Director Durack explained that it is a Heat, Ventilation and Air Conditioning unit. He said that this unit became necessary in the aquatic office area due to a computer that corroded out rather quickly. Increasing ventilation would help extend the life of the computer in that area. The shampoo machine was referring to a rug shampooer.

In response to Trustee McLaughlin's question, Mr. Durack answered that the water fall would be located in the lazy river portion of the aquatic area.

Golf Course Fund:

Director Minghine stated that the Golf Course Fund includes the operating revenues and expenses of both the Fellows Creek Golf Course and Pheasant Run Golf Course. General discussion took place, regarding the improvements to both golf courses, and landscaping issues.

Streetlighting Fund:

Trustee McLaughlin questioned why there was continued balance in the streetlighting fund. John Spencer said that the fund balance was recommended for cash flow purposes.

Cable TV Fund:

Director Durack summarized the fund. He said that pursuant to the terms of the Cable TV franchise agreement, Continental Cable pays fee revenues to the Township based on a percentage of Cable TV subscriber fees, currently 5%. In 1995, Ameritech New Media Enterprises, also requested a franchise to operate a Cable TV system in the Township. He stated the major expenditures in 1996-1997 were to complete and furnish the Cable TV studio in the Summit on the Park community center and to equip the Administration Building Board Room with a multi- camera television production system.

Public Improvement Fund:

Director Minghine gave a background on the Public Improvement Fund. He said that historically expenditures from this fund have been for local road improvements. Money from the sale of property would be used for specific projects.

Community Improvement Fund:

This fund accounts for solid waste royalty revenues. To date these projects have included tree planting along roadways, sidewalk replacement in older subdivisions, park improvements, historic building renovations and establishment of curbside recycling and composting programs. A major project funded with these funds was the construction of the Summit on the Park community center.

Questions regarding the fund being used for work in the Historical District were raised by Trustee Shefferly. Mr. Shefferly commented that the General Fund was not as healthy as it used to be as stated in Supervisor Yack's letter to the Board. He pointed out the need to look at cutting spending.

Trustee McLaughlin stated that money for Cherry Hill School and the Sheldon School projects had been grant money. She noted that the utilities are paid from rental of the property. Ms. McLaughlin pointed out that volunteers and donations help with renovations to the Historic District. She added that any improvements made by Public Works to Travis House had been at a charge. The Board requested a study session to discuss Historic District renovations and their funding.

Federal Grants Fund:

This fund accounts for the Federal Community Development Block Grant program and is administered by Resource Development Division of the Administrative Services Department. Question by Trustee McLaughlin concerning Nankin and SMART. The Board requested a special report on the administration fees for transportation being paid out.

Capital Project Fund Road Paving Projects:

The road paving projects reviewed were Ford, Warren, Canton Center and Hanford Road East of Canton Center Road.

Building Authority Construction Fund:

Canton reached an agreement with the Building Authority to sell $3.5 million in revenue bonds for the construction of a new Fire Headquarters and Public Safety Building addition. Supervisor Yack estimated that these bonds will be sold in late October, with construction to start in late 1996 or early 1997.

Water & Sewer Fund:

Supervisor Yack noted that the water & sewer fund is still in a deficit. General discussion took place regarding a water pressure issue at Pilgrim Hills Subdivision. The special assessment district for repair of the water main in Pilgrim Hills Subdivision failed and the project will be budgeted for in 1997.

Director Minghine gave an overview of the proposed 1997 budget. He referred to Supervisor Yack's letter to the Board and to the Citizens of Canton. Mr. Minghine stated that the trend for the General Fund is a decline. He said that steps clearly needed to be taken in order to stop the current reduction in General Fund balance. Director Minghine suggested looking at the issues surrounding the revenue available in the General Fund and to decide the level of services that can be provided in the future. He cautioned that the water & sewer fund was not covering current expenses with current revenues. He said that in the long haul this policy is to the detriment of the system when the time comes for future major repair and improvement projects.

A complete copy of the proposed budget is available in the office of the Township Clerk during regular business hours.

OTHER:

Director Machnik addressed the Board regarding the New Archdiocese Catholic School on Warren Road.

Supervisor Yack adjourned the meeting at 10:06 p.m.

Schoolcraft to offer new enrichment classes for school-age youth

Eight weeks of enrichment classes await youngsters who enroll in Schoolcraft College's Adventures in Learning for Talented and Gifted Youth program.

The program, which begins Saturday, Oct. 19, features 16 classes and a special project in beginning piano. New classes include "Rocket Science," in which students build and launch their own rockets; "Mythology, Legends and Lore," during which students create their own legends; and "Eurythmics," which is an introduction to rhythm through movement in music.

"Project Piano," a program for students in the first through fourth grades, teaches beginning piano through private and group lessons. There are also master classes with piano professors to prepare students for public performance.

Additional classes are offered in the areas of computers, math and science and arts and sciences.

There also are classes available to parents while children are in class. They include Innovative "Holiday Cooking," "Personal Computer Basics," "Macintosh Basics" and "Superlearning Techniques for the '90s and Beyond."

Registration continues by mail and fax through Oct. 12 and in person through Oct. 16. For information on these or other classes or to register, call (313) 462-4448.

To fax registrations, call (313) 462-4572. Schoolcraft College is at 18600 Haggerty Road, between Six and Seven Mile roads.

Be it further resolved, by the Township Board of the Charter Township of Canton, that pursuant to Public Act 33, 1951 there be levied on the taxable real property of said Township for the year 1996, for Fire Protection purposes, a Special Assessment of 3.0915 mills on the taxable State Equalized Value thereof, said value being $1,364,208,772 Real Property, and the tax amounting to $4,217,451.41.
Be it further resolved, by the Township Board of the Charter Township of Canton, that pursuant to Public Act 181 of 1951 there be levied on the taxable real property of said Township for the year 1996, for Police Protection purposes, a Special Assessment of 5.1508 mills on the taxable State Equalized Value thereof, said value being $1,364,208,772 Real Property, and the tax amounting to $7,026,766.54.

The proposed millage rates are as follows:

	Proposed 1996 Millage Rate	Proposed 1995 Millage Rate	Increase (Decrease)
Charter Millage	1.1100	1.1100	0
Fire Special Assessment Millage	3.0915	3.0915	0
Police Special Assessment Millage	5.1508	5.1508	0
Total	9.3523	9.3523	0

These millage rates are required to balance the proposed FY97 budgets. The Fire and Police Fund are supported almost entirely by the special assessment millage that were approved by the voters in 1975 and 1977. These millage rates were reduced in 1988,1989 and 1990, and remained the same from 1990 to 1993 and were increased to the current rate in 1994. The Charter millage has remained the same since 1988.

Recreation

Study is step in right direction

■ The best possible outcome would be the formation of a single recreation department that would serve the city and the township. If the township and city were able to push through a merger of their respective fire departments, creating a single recreation department should be easy.

A spat between the city of Plymouth and Plymouth Township over recreation fees is the best thing that could happen for residents of both communities.

As a result, the city and township have commissioned a recreation study of the community. It's the first step toward having the two governmental units work together on the issue.

The best possible outcome would be the formation of a single recreation department that would serve the city and the township. If the township and city were able to push through a merger of their respective fire departments, creating a single recreation department should be easy.

Such a single department reflects the reality of life in the Plymouth community. Kellogg and other parks in the city are used by township residents, just as city residents use the Plymouth Township Park.

Also, the Plymouth Cultural Center with its hockey rink and meeting rooms is a community asset to the township as well as the city.

Recreation is an important issue in the community. During city commission elections one year ago, it surfaced as a much-talked-about concern.

It's also one that must be addressed by both communities. Planning and creating recreational facilities must be done from a larger perspective than the city or township level.

The city and township should be pulling together on this one. Recreational opportunities are important to residents of all ages. Parks, skating rings and swimming pools help create a sense of community.

The spat between the city and township erupted this past summer when the city decided to increase recreation fees for non-residents. That increase has been put on hold while city and township officials hold more talks.

The city wanted to raise the fees to pay for street repairs and to balance the city budget. The increase would have generated $180,000.

The proposed fee hikes were stiff. Fees for classes at the Plymouth Cultural Center would have gone from $10 to $30-$40.

The city does have a problem. The cost of running the Cultural Center is $1 million annually. Fees generate about $800,000, creating a $200,000 shortfall.

The Cultural Center is a valuable community asset that serves the township as well as the city. It's understandable that city officials would seek to have its users pay for the operation.

The ultimate solution is for the city and township to cooperate on recreation. Let's hope the spat over fee increases starts both communities on the road to a single recreation department.

Welfare: Job opportunities needed

Now that President Clinton and the Republican controlled Congress have agreed to a welfare reform bill that ends "welfare as we know it," we must still find ways of dealing with the problems that welfare was created to ease in the first place.

The problem, as Jesse Jackson has noted, has never been welfare. The problem is poverty and the conditions that cause poverty and cause the economic isolation of certain groups within our economy. A disproportionate percentage of blacks and Hispanics live in poverty and have benefited from federally backed assistance programs.

Any welfare reform must find realistic ways to move the employable to jobs that pay meaningful wages, provides for children even when welfare payments end and provides for those who are unemployable.

Conservatives and liberals have reached a consensus that the welfare system didn't work. Rather than assisting families during extended unemployment and helping them become employed, the system instead created generations of "welfare families" for whom employment was never a realistic goal.

The system also created a self perpetuating bureaucracy more interested in maintaining a seriously flawed system than helping the poor move up economically. The system was both crippling and patronizing.

The new law requires that no family be on welfare for more than five years in a lifetime and that all welfare recipients find work in two years. It also shifts development and management of assistance money and programs to the states through block grants.

Gov. John Engler has made welfare a touchstone of his administration and has been a national leader on the federal welfare reform efforts.

Project Zero is the first initiative of Engler's To Strengthen Michigan Families program. The project targets six areas, including one in Detroit and one in Romulus/Wayne. The first phase begun last spring was to gather demographic and other information on welfare recipients. The second phase is to create programs that move recipients into employment.

These are laudable goals. But, as a recent New York Times report has shown, moving long term welfare families into work situations is not just a matter of "job training." For many welfare recipients there are few jobs available and few jobs that they will be qualified to fill.

Robert T. Jones, president and chief executive officer of the National Alliance of Business, was quoted in the New York Times as saying "Business is not in the business of providing jobs for welfare recipients."

He is wrong. The business community has an ethical responsibility to answer President Clinton's challenge. If welfare was wrong, then we must create an economic system that provides realistic opportunity for everyone.

Project Zero and similar state initiatives are a first step. But all state governments and private enterprise must find realistic approaches to giving people the bootstraps to pull themselves from poverty or we will soon be under pressure to return to welfare as we knew it.

Teen does the right thing

At the recent Rotary Chicken Barbecue, a large number of high school student volunteers were working. Without them, the barbecue could not be held. They often work long hours at difficult but important tasks. Each was supplied with a canvas apron and gloves, which they were expected to turn in after their task was completed.

A day or two after the barbecue, a woman telephoned my home. She said her daughter had been one of our volunteers and at the end of the day her apron and gloves were accidentally mixed with some of her own things and taken home. When she found them she was embarrassed and chagrined. Wanting to immediately bring them back, she found there was no place to return them to. The mother had promised to find a way.

Having failed to get the girl or her mother's name, I told her to drop them at the chamber office where I would pick them up and get them to the proper person.

I cannot address this letter to the young lady who made such a noble gesture, and this may be as well, since the only way to tell her how much we treasure what she did is to tell the whole community.

The used apron and gloves are worth a dollar or so at most, but why they symbolize is worth millions. This act is equivalent to what Abraham Lincoln is said to have done when he walked five miles to return a few pennies to a customer. It was the honest thing to do!

We often speak and act disparagingly regarding our teen-agers.

How great it is for us to be reminded by an act such as this of the quality of character many of them possess. Blessings on the young lady, whomever she may be, who brought the things back and on her mother who supported her in doing the right thing.

Here's to our kids – they are better than we think!

Pay attention to schools

Since I live in Plymouth, I find some comfort in the fact that Northville citizens are just as dumb as the folks in Plymouth: On Tuesday, Sept. 24, Northville voters turned down two school mileages, one for technology and one for renovating and building schools.

Until now, people who care about the quality of their children's education had begun to choose homes in Northville over those in Plymouth and Canton, because of the schools.

Last year, we briefly considered buying a house in Northville's Pheasant Hills, but decided not to because Northville schools had not yet made the investment in technology that Plymouth-Canton schools had. Also, since our neighborhood school has received summary accreditation, as have several schools in Northville, we saw no advantage in moving.

Here's a postscript to the voters of Plymouth and Canton: Soon the Plymouth-Canton school board will ask you to approve a bond issue to build more schools since our schools are overcrowded. I urge everyone to attend the meetings of the school board on the second and fourth Tuesdays of every month. They need to hear from you. The word is getting out that Plymouth-Canton schools are underfunded and overcrowded. Will you vote to improve our schools, or don't you care about your property values – or your children?

Voting for Fitzsimmons

I would like to express my support for Joe Fitzsimmons, candidate for the 13th U.S. Congressional District, and my serious discontent with incumbent Lynn Rivers, D-Ann Arbor.

Fitzsimmons is a successful business and community leader, not a politician. He wants to cut the taxes of hard-working American families and balance the budget.

Rivers seems to be content with passing all of Washington's problems off on my generation, supporting huge tax increases and continuing wasteful spending typical of politicians who have lost touch with their constituents.

Fitzsimmons' moderate social beliefs also appeal to me and are most representative of those in the 13th District. This is a very moderate, open-minded district.

I am a politically independent college student who will not tolerate more tax and spend negligence of Rivers. In November, I'll cast my for education, a balanced budget and responsible leadership. I'll vote for Joe Fitzsimmons.

POINTS OF VIEW

Investing in teachers and students wise

BY DAVID SEEMANN
GUEST COLUMNIST

I joked with a colleague the other day that I was going to run up to Meijer's and buy a new wallet, a smaller one.

I've been a teacher at Canton High School for 24 years. For most of that time, starting with my $8,900 contract in 1973, many people have groused that teachers make too much money. Others have said "you couldn't pay me enough to do that job," and for a brief, dizzying time in the late 1980s, there was a movement to double teacher pay to attract the "best and the brightest" to the profession. That didn't last.

Times change as they always do. The Board of Education is in a more powerful position now because of legislation. It will be instructive to see what they do with that power.

It has been fashionable for a long time to praise teachers publicly and condemn them privately as an obstacle to better education. Boards and some administrators have longed for the day when their hands would not be tied by union bargaining, certification, tenure, and salaries.

There happens also to be a huge supply of college educated people unemployed or underemployed in this country eager to teach for far less than the career teachers employed now.

So is it time for those now in power and so inclined to make that long sought for, long planned for, shake-up in the institution of education? Will we see the new lust for less government, more choices, lower taxes, improve education?

In my opinion, this current political breeze is blowing in exactly the wrong direction at the wrong time. It is precisely at this time in history that we need to develop and invest in human resources – in "human capital" as one of my colleagues reminds me.

Companies that are successful today have smaller, but highly-skilled, highly-flexible, well-paid, work forces that use technology to produce better products at lower costs for greater profits. These companies do not merely chase cheap labor, they know and their employees know that the future belongs to the highly-educated, high-tech "symbolic analyst" (as coined by Robert Reich) workers.

Teachers in society are the principal developers of human capital. Once wealth and wealth creation resided with the owners of fixed capital. No more. Now a product can be conceived in someone's home, designed in another state, manufactured in another country, and marketed world-wide without the entrepreneur leaving home. If we want to save the backbone of this country, the middle class, we must invest wisely and heavily in the development of our children.

Teachers are professional child-development experts. Teachers are experts at working within the new super-symbolic reality of today. Teachers are knowledge workers. We are considered professional because we work independently, creatively, with flexibility and skill in making important decisions about our clients' (our students') knowledge, skill and understanding.

No one has been able to make an assembly line for education. No one has been able to make teachers interchangeable. No Board of Education, no school administration has ever been able to identify and control all the variables that make education successful. Professional teachers, both career teachers and new teachers, hold in the balance the future of youth and our country.

We are far into the information age. There is no turning back. We want teachers who are enthusiastic, well supported, professional, high-tech knowledge decision makers, who work in collaboration with the community to maintain the promise of America.

Chasing cheap labor, isolating teachers as replaceable workers in an obsolete factory type structure, rolling back benefits, will not take our children into the next century successfully.

The board needs to wield its new found power very carefully. Boards of Education come and go. Political ideology shifts back and forth. Teachers and students remain. Let's be practical and wise about our future.

Voucher battle focuses on pocketbook, not on kids

To know what John Engler will preach tomorrow, read the Mackinac Center's stuff today. The correlation isn't perfect, but it's a wise way to bet.

Mackinac Center, the ideology-peddling machine in Midland, is pushing vouchers, hard. Vouchers are gimmicks to line the pockets of private and parochial schools with taxpayer money. The gimmick is to call it "parental choice," or "family choice," or "freedom" or some other propaganda term.

Mackinac Center's Lawrence Reed issued an essay in September arguing: "Michigan has made historic progress on the road to education reform. But that road is nearing a dead-end. Children deserve so much more, but if Article VIII Section 2 (of the Michigan Constitution) stays on the books, Michigan may lose its status as a reform leader and become the nation's laggard instead."

Students of propaganda will notice familiar techniques: live children versus the abstract Article VIII Section 2. Get on the bandwagon and be a leader instead of a laggard.

Reed describes the voter-approved section of the Michigan Constitution as "language more restrictive than that of any other state constitution in the country." He conveniently forgets to mention that Michigan was the first state in the Union to guarantee, constitutionally, a free public education. Reed wants to shame us into feeling like "laggards" if we don't give taxpayer money to private schools.

"It's time," said Reed, to strip out that constitutional protection. Paul DeWeese, the Lansing physician who's in one anti-public school organization or another, says the same.

TIM RICHARD

GOP figures like Betsy DeVos and Sharon Wise are preaching the line.

A petition drive to change the Michigan Constitution is probable, possibly in 1997.

The governor denies it. A petition drive? "It doesn't exist," Engler said last week, dodging the question of whether it will exist in a year or two. "I have not seen a petition," he went on, as if his seeing it were necessary for it to exist.

"The Legislature will not put it on the ballot," he predicted, probably correctly. Everyone knows the voucher gang doesn't have two-thirds support in either chamber and that it will take a petition drive to put vouchers on the 1998 ballot.

The strategy has been clear for about three years. Water down the core curriculum and educator standards. Institute as many little programs as possible that put public money into private hands. Smear the remaining constitutional restriction as hampering poor children, families and choice. Some steps:

- Most folks overlooked it, but the voucher forces, led by Sen. Doug Carl, R-Macomb County, won a big victory in the teen driver licensing act. First, they removed the requirement that public schools offer driver ed. Then they allowed a voucher system to send public money to private driving schools.
- Rep. Jessie Dalman, R-Holland, had a bill to let high school students take advance work in colleges – not just community colleges but private colleges, too.
- Charter academies were supposed to encourage innovation in public schools. Instead, private schools are lining up at the charter trough.
- Then there was the claptrap about alternative teacher certification. They said Lee Iacocca couldn't teach economics, Don Riegle couldn't teach politics, Ernest Hemingway couldn't teach composition and Albert Einstein couldn't teach math under Michigan's certification rules.

Well, Hemingway and Einstein are dead, and Iacocca and Riegle have other career plans. The purpose of weakening teacher certification is to give the minister's brother in-law a job.

The voucher battle is coming. And the prize is money, not good schooling for kids.

Tim Richard reports on the local implications of state and regional events.

Test-taking high schoolers are busy making history

Last spring, 11th-graders across Michigan took the new High School Proficiency Tests, designed to evaluate what kids actually learned in math, science, reading and writing.

The Michigan Department of Education released the results a couple of weeks ago. Although you'll have read the results for your local school district in this newspaper, the statewide average outcomes caused much hand-wringing:

- Math: 47.7 percent "proficient," 38 "novice," 14.3 below.
- Science: 32 percent "proficient," 52.2 "novice," 15.8 below.
- Reading: 40.2 percent "proficient," 51.3 "novice," 8.5 below.
- Writing: 34.4 percent "proficient," 53.1 "novice," 12.5 below.

Less than half of the Michigan kids who took the test were judged "proficient." Obviously, there's lots of work to do.

But embedded in the dry language of the Education Department handout – "The tests set expectations for Michigan teachers and students, will bring about curricular change, and alter instructional practice" – lies the good news.

For the first time in history, there now exists a solid, tough, quantifiable set of benchmarks against which to measure what our kids actually learn in school. Wonderful!

Newspapers like this one will print the results, school district by school district. Parents, concerned about poor scores, will get in the faces of teachers and administrators. Teaching methods, textbooks, expectations – all will change. Kids will gradually discover that getting good scores will affect their odds of getting into college or finding a good job.

It wasn't easy. Originally, reformers who urged benchmark assessments were shunned by all sides. Teachers (and more than a few parents) claimed that one statewide standard assessment system couldn't possibly be fair to their little darlings. Administrators complained that uniform statewide assessments would hurt local control. The religious right maintained that setting education standards was an anti-religious plot.

Never mind. School reform isn't rocket science. You define what you – parents, employers, society – expect educated children to learn in school. You then measure what in fact they do learn. You then put pressure on the system to change, improve teaching, get better books and more computers. Then you assess again. Seems pretty straightforward.

After years of passivity in the face of declining worker skills, business is finally waking up. The members of a group called Michigan Business Leaders for Educational Excellence (MBLEE) – including the Big 3 automakers, Dow Chemical, Kmart, Comerica, the University of Michigan – employ 500,000 of the state's 4.4 million workers.

MBLEE director Jim Sandy said, "For years we assumed that any child completing 13 years of school would be equipped with these skills (math, science, reading and writing).

"Unfortunately, we were wrong, but these tests and the endorsed diplomas will send the message that these skills are necessary and important."

Of course, one set of test results does not a reformed school system make. It remains to be seen how rapidly an endorsed diploma will make a difference in college admissions or in the minds of personnel managers. And the chasm between results from inner city schools and others, mostly suburban, is enormous and appalling.

But at long last the process has started.

We should all be grateful to the 93,000 Michigan 11th-graders who sat through 11 to 14 hours of proficiency testing last spring. They helped make history.

KAREN MEIER

Who's giving out my name?

It's that time of year again — the Catalogs-are-Stuffing-the-Mailboxes-across-the-Land time. Like autumn leaves crammed in gutters, mail order catalogs are crammed into post office boxes, mailboxes, mail slots, mail rooms. They're everywhere. Glossy, colorful, lots of them bulky and cut-throat competitive. And there's so many of them. How can that be?

Now, it seems to me there was a time when only one, maybe two, catalogs came to my house. This was years ago when I was first married. But now, 15 years later, there's a flood. I don't know if it's because there are so many more mail order businesses these days? Or maybe after I ordered that first item a long time ago, my name was fed into a "system."

If that's the case, it's one scary "system." It's out of control; it's a monster. And no matter what I do, the system keeps launching catalogs my way, and not just the original ones I once long ago ordered from, but more, different ones, and so-far-off-the-mark ones that I hope the mailman isn't paying much attention to what he's delivering because if he did, there might be FBI investigations.

Arsenal catalogs? Me? How did they get my name? I've thought about this and I can't come up with anything, except maybe the man's sweater I ordered for a Christmas gift that one time, from a regular kind of catalog. The sweater

Program helps 'wounded' heal

■ Divorce's "walking wounded" can find help dealing with the effects of a failing marriage and maybe even salvage it, thanks to the efforts of a program called DivorceCare and two "wounded healers."

BY CHRISTINA FUOCO
STAFF WRITER

Two "wounded healers" are hoping to help ease the pain of divorce or separation by offering a 13-week program through St. Michael Lutheran Church in Canton.

DivorceCare is a non-denominational program geared for people who have experienced or are experiencing the pain and suffering of separation or divorce.

Bernice Russian, who is co-facilitating the program with Steve Neuger, says the program is different from divorce recovery workshops.

"This is unlike that (workshops) in that it's on-going throughout the year," the Canton resident said. "This is different. It is very much Christ-centered. It's biblical teaching. It utilizes weekly seminar and support groups."

The program runs for 13 weeks, beginning Sunday, Oct. 20, in the chapel of the church, 7000 Sheldon. The registration fee is $5 and child care will be provided for children through the fifth grade.

Meetings are held from 7-9 p.m. with a video presentation for the first hour and group discussions the second. For more information, call (313) 459-3333.

"That's where you get the people to share their hurts and whatever happens that week," Russian said about the group discussions. "That's the advantage of this ongoing thing. You don't have to wait for a month to come share your frustrations about your situation."

The videotape seminar sessions feature nationally recognized experts on divorce and recovery top

Programs focus on date violence

As many as one out of every three high school and college youth experience violence in their intimate or dating relationships. In several studies, teens have reported that conflicts about sex often led to violence. In one study, 25 percent of the high school students told no one, 26 percent told their parents and 66 percent reported the abuse to friends.

With that in mind, two programs on dating violence to help teens and their parents recognize the early warning signs that lead to dating violence will be offered this month in conjunction with National Domestic Violence Awareness Month. The programs, which are free and open to the public, are co-sponsored by the Junior League of Ann Arbor, Parke-Davis Pharmaceutical Research and Borders Books and Music.

The "Parent Information Evening" will be at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 9, at Greenhills School, 850 Greenhills Dr., Ann Arbor.

■ She points out that the majority (47-86 percent) of violence occurs during the steady or serious dating phase of a relationship ...

Barrie Levy, a nationally renowned expert on the subject of dating violence will address the audience and lead an open discussion on teen dating violence. Levy the author of "In Love and In Danger: A Teen's Guide to Breaking Free of Abusive Relationships" and several other books on the subject.

Levy, who teaches at the School of Social Welfare, University of California – Los Angeles, has been active in the movement against dating violence for more than 20 years. She will discuss the warning signs of dating violence for parents to be aware of in their teen's dating relationships.

According to Levy, too often teens are not aware that they are in an abusive relationship until it escalates to violence. Many young women believe a boyfriend's controlling behavior indicates his love for her when it actually may be an early sign of an abusive relationship.

She points out that the majority (47-86 percent) of violence occurs during the steady or serious dating phase of a relationship and if violence occurs once in a dating relationship, it is likely to occur again.

The second program, "In Love and in Danger – Dating Violence: Is Your Teenager at Risk?," will be at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 10, at the Michigan Theater, 603 E. Liberty, Ann Arbor.

The program will include the premiere of "In Love and In Danger," a documentary video on dating violence. The 12-minute video provides an overview on dating violence – its prevalence and implications for young women.

It also presents specific behaviors associated with dating violence, the warning signs to look for in a dating relationship and how parents, teachers and counselors can help teens in unhealthy relationships.

Produced by the Junior League, the video features a victim of dating violence who tells her story, and experts who provide a perspective on the cycle of dating violence.

Speakers at the premiere include Levy; George Lardner Jr. of the Washington Post, Pulitzer Prize winner for a series of articles on the murder of his daughter as the result of dating violence; and Susan Murphy-Milano, founder of the Chicago-based Project: Protect, a non-profit agency dedicated to helping victims of stalking and domestic violence, and author of "Defending Our Lives."

The Silent Witness Exhibit will also be on display at the Michigan Theater. The exhibit of wooden silhouettes depicts Michigan women who were victims of dating violence.

A reception and book signing sponsored by Borders Books and Music, will follow the program.

REAL ESTATE UPDATE

AN EXCLUSIVE RIGHT- TO-SELL!

The most common and popular arrangement to have with a Realtor when selling a specific property is an "exclusive right-to-sell". This type of agreement has advantages for both the broker and the seller. It allows a Realtor to give his or her full attention to marketing a seller's home or property for a certain period of time without competition from other real estate companies.

Within such an exclusive arrangement, the Realtor shares the listing with national and worldwide referral networks through the Multiple Listing Service that is subscribed to by most real estate sales professionals. The MLS listing assures your home of the widest possible exposure to the market place.

Eight out of ten homes that are sold today are "listed" homes (more in some markets). Enough said!

is described as being, "rugged and tough. Available in hunter/navy or silver bullet/midnight."

The sweater couldn't have done it, could it? Triggered the "system?" That'd be ridiculous. It was just a sweater, with death wish dye lots, maybe. But that doesn't make me, a typical housewife/Mom sweater shopper, a gun-toting, bullet buying, camouflage wearing, firearms fancier. Does it?

At any rate, the catalogs are pouring in. Mondays are the worst. There's that whole extra day to get backlogged and then phloomp, there they are, so stuffed up in my mailbox on the front porch that I can't even get it open. I have to yank on the handle and tug down on the front and then rrrr-ipppp, something inside the mailbox rips and everything gets even more stuck.

I fight more with my mailbox at this time of year than at any other time. I don't like the fighting, I don't like the ripping, and I don't like the guns. This mail order business is getting too violent.

Now last year, I made a move to get away from this whole thing. For Christmas, for my brother and his wife, who live in Seattle and who are typically recipients of mail order stuff from me at Christmas, I sent to them instead something other than a mail order item. I did, though, get the idea from a catalog, but I just went on my own to accomplish the same thing the catalog was offering.

I gave Soren and Linda a certificate, a handmade and thoughtfully worded certificate with fancy edging and everything on the border, entitling them, the bearers of the certificate, to treats from my Michigan kitchen, mostly chocolate treats and all handmade, to be sent every three months throughout the following year directly to them. I just sent them the third installment a couple of weeks ago.

This was a great idea. Especially for them. That's because all of us, my sister, my brother, my Mom and Dad, me — for as far back as I can remember — have all loved treats, chocolate treats especially. We've always made pigs of ourselves when anything chocolate was around. We still do make pigs of ourselves when it comes to treats.

So anyway, like I said, I got the idea from one of the catalogs stuffed in my mailbox, some Goody of the Month Club type thing. Now while "Goody of the Month" sounded good (a treat every month would've been really slick), I had my doubts last December as to whether or not I'd be able to pull that off, what with baby No. 5 due a couple months later. So instead of monthly treats, I settled for quarterly treats. And it's worked out just fine.

Soren and Linda in Seattle seem to like it. My family here in Michigan seems to like it; that's because every time I prepare for a Seattle shipment, I double the recipe so my Michigan gang can have some, too. And I like doing it. It beats ordering a gob of goodies from a catalog and then somehow having my name tossed into the "system" and cross-referenced under "Piggy" and then some company, getting all mixed up and sending me some off-the-mark catalog featuring farm equipment with galvanized slop troughs, heavy duty hoof trimmers and 10-gauge wire fencing for the pig pen.

That would be useless. But there'd be no convincing the "system" of that, it's so powerful. Not very sensible, though.

I mean, what's with this Frederick's of Hollywood catalog coming to my house?

I am so sure.

If you have a question or comment for Karen Meier, call her at 953-2047, mailbox number 1883, on a Touch-Tone phone, or write her at The Observer Newspapers, 36251 Schoolcraft, Livonia 48150.

ics like "What's Happening to Me?," "The Road to Healing/Finding Help," "Facing Your Anger," "Facing Your Depression," "Facing Your Loneliness," "What Does The Owner's Manual Say?," "New Relationships," "Financial Survival," "Kidcare 1," "Kidcare 2," "Forgiveness," "Reconciliation," and "Moving On, Growing Closer to God."

"Many of the divorce recovery systems that are out there are workshops for a weekend. The problem is it's a long process going through divorce recovery. It's not something you can deal with in a weekend and you're done with it. It is a long process," said Neuger, a Plymouth resident.

The program is structured so that participants can join at any point during the 13 weeks.

"It's an ongoing process so if someone isn't at the first session, they don't have to wait for the next cycle to start because each session doesn't necessarily depend on the prior session," Neuger explained.

"People who go through the program are welcome to come back as many times as they want." Russian added. "They might have missed something."

The idea for the program came from St. Michael's assistant pastor Drex Morton, who received a mailing about DivorceCare, founded by a couple from Raleigh, N.C.

"Although he's married, he's always had a heart for singles," Russian said. "We've had different singles activities under his leadership. We've had Bible studies where we try to reach out to communities. He's very much excited about this program.

"We're looking to minister to our own people naturally but we feel that we're going to do much more out in the community."

Having both been divorced, Russian and Neuger prefer to call themselves "wounded healers" – people who have gone through the process and are able to give back what they have learned.

But Russian and Neuger stress that this is not a singles group.

"A lot of churches you find will have singles groups," Russian said. "This is not that. This is not where you want to come to seek out what's there.

"This is for hurting people who are looking for help and looking for that sounding board and hopefully through it all they realize that a personal relationship with Jesus Christ is really the main factor in healing."

And, they add, divorce is not a criteria for joining the program.

"You don't have to be divorced to take part in this," Russian said. "You could have just gotten separated, you may not even go through with the divorce. One of the nice things about this is there's a tape in the program called 'The Road Back' and it's for reconciliation.

"There's always hope that that can happen."

Canine Companions holds walk

Dogs from around the area are getting in shape and picking out their favorite costume all in preparation for the first annual Canine Companions for Independence Howl-O-Ween Dog Walk.

This year' walk will be Saturday, Oct. 5, at the Kensington Park . Registration will be at noon and the walk at 1 p.m.

Participants will collect pledges, with the chance at winning a one-year supply of Hills Science Diet or Iams Dog Food. The top pledge getter for the six cities holding the Howl-O-Ween Dog Walk will win a limited edition autographed Charles Schulz "Snoopy" print.

That's not all. While enjoying this 3.5K walk through the park, both owner and pooch will enjoy trick-or-treat stops with goodies provided by the sponsors.

After the haunting jaunt, walkers and dogs will be treated to free refreshments, costume contests and raffle drawings for prizes provided by the Michigan Institute of Neurological Disorders, South Lyon Jaycees, Innotek, Flexi USA, Pass Pets, CPI, AMC Theaters, Irwins Orchards, Media Play, Novi Bowl and Dreshire Lanes, to name a few.

Proceeds will benefit CCI, a nonprofit organization that breeds, trains and places assistance dogs with people with disabilities other than blindness. These special dogs increase their master's independence by performing a variety of tasks, such as opening and closing doors, pulling wheelchairs and retrieving dropped items.

Since 1975, more than 1,200 Canine Companions have been placed across the United States, including 215 from the North Central Regional Center in Delaware, Ohio. Pledge sheets are available at all Pass Pets, AMC and Media Play locations, Irwin Orchards, Novi Bowl and Dreshire Lanes, or by calling Canine Companions for Independence at (313) 671-7576.

She is a member of the Ladies' Oriental Shrine, Order of the Eastern Star and Daughters of the Nile.

Demsky

William and Marie Demsky of Garden City celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at a banquet at Stefan's in Dearborn Heights with family and friends.

The couple exchanged vows Sept. 14, 1946, at Zion Lutheran Church in Detroit. They have two married children Bill and wife Lynn of Livonia and Tom and wife Carole of Plymouth. They also have two grandchildren.

He is a retiree of the Ford Motor Co. She retired from the Secretary of State office in Wayne.

They are active at the Garden City Senior Center.

Gallop

Donald and Charlotte Gallop of Stanwood, formerly of Northville, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary at the Mayfair Clubhouse at Canadian Lakes.

The couple exchanged vows Sept. 27, 1946, at Nardin Park Methodist Church, Detroit. She is the former Charlotte Gilbert.

The couple has four children – Cathy Burton of Kearny, Mo., Susan Stott of Westland, Julie Graunstadt of Livonia and Donald Gallop of Twin Peaks, Calif. They also have nine grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

He retired from Michigan Consolidated Gas Co., and she retired from Real Estate One in Northville, both eight years ago.

They are members of United Church of Big Rapids and the Canadian Lakes men's and women's choirs. They enjoy traveling with the Canadian Lakes Travel Group, which she organized and founded.

Baby Fair comes to GC Hospital

BY SUE MASON
STAFF WRITER

So you're having a baby. Congratulations.

Oh, by the way, you may want to stop by Garden City Hospital on Sunday, Oct. 6.

No emergency, just the hospital's first ever Baby Fair.

Expectant parents – and those thinking about starting families – can stroll through "Baby Streets" and receive free information and gifts as well as have a chance to win prizes.

The fair will be 2-5 p.m. in the Medical Office Building on the hospital's main campus, 6245 Inkster Road, north of Ford Road, Garden City.

"We want to get people into the hospital and get them excited about obstetrics and what the hospital has to offer," said Suzanne Cleere, director of women's health at the hospital. "The Baby Fair isn't limited to just people who chose to have services at the hospital, it's for people interested in child bearing."

The fair has taken over two floors of the Medical Office Building. There will be 35 vendors from inside and outside of the hospital, providing information and the opportunity to purchase items.

There will be vendors pertaining to photography and Create-A-Book, which offers books containing the children's names. There also will be Mother Time which showcases what will be in style for the coming season for mothers-to-be.

The information will cover what parents need to know about having and raising a baby.

"They'll cover basic things parents might not think about, like what their insurance covers," Cleere said. "We'll have a pharmacist to talk about what you should have in your house for children and what medications pregnant woman can and cannot take."

Pediatric physicians will set up a elemental growth chart and talk about what happens to an infant after birth as well as conduct hearing and visions tests for newborns.

One of the doctor is active in smoking cessation and will have information available for parents, Cleere added.

Free raffles will have prizes of car seats and dinners at area restaurants, and for those interested, there will be a guided tour of the hospital's Birthing Center.

And there also will be a clown to entertain children and plenty of refreshments.

This is the first time the hospital has offered a Baby Fair and it "definitely" won't be the last, according to Cleere.

"One vendor has given use 100 diaper bags to give to expectant mothers," Cleere said. "Fifty are for those who plan to breast feed and the other 50 for those who plan to bottle feed. So that's what we've targeted for in attendance, but we hope to attract grandparents and entire families."

A registered nurse, Cleere joined the hospital staff in late June and after feeling out the staff and organization for support, began planning the Baby Fair.

Cleere had worked at two larger organizations and found the community hospital setting an "eye opener" and something to share with the community as a whole.

"It's such an eye opener to have something as nice as this hospital in your own backyard," she said. "With the fair, we hope to demonstrate that it is a good place to come to. In fact, we'll have a physicians' referral table, so people who want our services can leave with a doctor's name."

For more information about the Baby Fair, call (313) 458-3233.

Observance aims to educate people about mental illness

Mental illness is everybody's business. That's the message the National Alliance for the Mentally Ill is promoting during Mental Illness Awareness Week, Oct. 6-12.

An annual event, the week is dedicated to eliminating the stigma of and educating the public about mental illness, a term used for a group of disorders causing severe disturbances in thinking, feeling and relating.

Mental illness can affect persons of any age – children, adolescents, adults and the elderly – and can occur in any family. Several million people in the United States suffer from a serious, long-term mental illness.

One of most serious and disabling of the mental illnesses is schizophrenia. It affects approximately one in 100 people. It affects both men and women equally and its onset usually is in the late teens and early 20s.

People with schizophrenia may have disconnected and confusing language, poor reasoning, memory and judgment, eating and sleeping disorders, hallucinations, delusions and loss of motivation and concentration.

What they don't have is a "split personality" and are not prone to criminal violence. The illness is not caused by parenting nor caused by a weakness of character. It is due to a biochemical disturbance of the brain.

Another form of mental illness is affective disorders, the most common psychiatric disorders. They are generally less persistently disabling than schizophrenia.

The primary disturbance is that of affect and mood. Mood disorders may be manic depressive illness (bi-polar) in which the person swings between extreme high and low moods and uni-polar in which the person suffers from persistent severe depression. About six percent of the population suffers from an affective disorder, a major cause of suicide.

Anxiety disorders, when severe, may also be consider a mental illness. Other conditions, such as personality disorders, behavioral disorders and the abuse of alcohol and drugs may be so disabling that they are labeled as a mental illness.

The cause of mental illness are not well understood. It is believed that the functions of the brain's neurotransmitters are involved, and there are many factors may contribute to the disturbed functioning. Heredity may be a factor, and stress and recreational drugs may contribute to its onset.

Since the cause are unknown, there currently is no effective prevention. However, there are treatments a which can substantially improve the functioning of people with these disorders.

Medications, while not enough to cure these illnesses, can reduce symptoms markedly for most people. In addition, most people can profit from a community program to help them build self-confidence and learn independent living skills. In fact, with well-developed programs, some patients recover substantially, hold a job and achieve a satisfactory life.

But community care can only be accomplished with the help of the community. And NAMI has some suggestions to make it all happen:

- Help combat the stigma by objecting to negative stereotyping of mentally ill people. Correct misunderstandings about mental illness held by friends and friends.
- If you are an employer, hire people with mental illnesses for low stress jobs.

People wanting more information about about Mental Illness Awareness Week or the Alliance for the Mentally Ill can call (800) 552-9585.

DAR chapter helps in research of family tree

Interested in tracing your family tree?

The Sarah Ann Cochrane Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution is offering free genealogical workshop 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Saturday. Oct. 12, at the Canton Public Library.

No registration is necessary, and participants should bring what information and documents of proof they have to work one-on-one with one of the chapter's genealogists.

The library is on Canton Center Road, south of Cherry Hill Road. For more information about the genealogical workshop, call (313) 495-0132.

The chapter meets monthly October through June. The next meeting will be at salad luncheon at noon Monday, Oct. 21, at the home of Doris Richards in Plymouth.

Upcoming meetings include a 69th birthday celebration on Nov. 18, at Station 885 in Plymouth, a Christmas tea on Dec. 16 at the Plymouth Historical Museum and the Good Citizens Tea and recognition of the American history essay contest winners on Feb. 17 at St. John's Episcopal Church in Plymouth.

For more information, call publicity chairman Pat Keyes at (810) 349-6056.

HOW CAN I HAVE SOMEONE DO TIME?
Call (810) 423-3200 to book your pick-up.
The March of Dimes will issue an official warrant for your "jailbird."
The March of Dimes Police will pick up the accused and take him/her to the nearest police station.
Once in March of Dimes Court of Law, the accused goes before our judge, bail is set and the jailbird is sentenced to one hour "hard labor."
Behind bars, all prisoners have unlimited use of their telephone to call their family, friends and co-workers to raise their bail in the form of pledges to the March of Dimes.
All inmates are released after raising their bail by spending one hour in jail - whichever comes first!
March of Dimes Police return the prisoner to their normal duties.

Mort Crim highlights 1996-97 Livonia Town Hall

From WDIV-TV anchor Mort Crim to the Appliance Doctor Joe Gagnon, Livonia Town Hall promises something for everyone for its 33rd season.

The first Livonia Town Hall lecture, on Oct. 16, will be at St. Mary's Antiochian Orthodox Church Cultural Center, 18100 Merriman Road, Livonia, while the remaining lectures will be at the perennial Town Hall site of Burton Manor, 27777 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia. Lectures are at 10:30 a.m., followed by lunch at noon.

Crim will open the season on Oct. 16 by offering his perspective on everything from himself to news events that have shaped history. In a twist on its usual format, a question and answer period will immediately follow his lecture.

Crim is the author of "Take Off and Fly: Second Thoughts in Living Positive in a Negative World," and his syndicated radio feature, "Second Thoughts," is heard on more than 240 radio stations nationally and on the Armed Services Radio around the world.

On Nov. 20, Dr. Laura Gruskin and her mother, Linda Merkle, will team up for "Mothers and Daughters: Building Bridges." Gruskin is an obstetrician-gynecologist on staff at Beaumont Hospital and Merkle is a child and family counselor in Livonia and Farmington Hills.

They will explore the stages of development of mother-daughter relationships, while sharing their insights into how to strengthen the bond that often doesn't develop naturally.

Opening the new year on Jan. 15 will be consumer advocate Joe Gagnon with "The Appliance Doctor's Prescription."

A columnist for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, owner of an appliance repair shop in Garden City and consumer advocate, Gagnon will provide an in depth look at the appliance industry with directions on how to defend yourself in the marketplace.

On March 19, humor educator Lila Green will help Town Hall patrons add more "smileage" to their lives with her "Those who Laugh ... Last." In a lively and lighthearted way, she will offer her unique perspectives and practical insights on the value of adding humor to all areas of their lives.

Green is a guest lecturer at the University of Michigan, a national seminar leader for the American College of Health Care Administrators and a founding member of the American Association of Therapeutic Humor.

A non-profit organization, profits from the 1996-97 season will be donated to the Livonia Symphony Society, Inc., to support the Livonia Symphony Orchestra.

Season lecture tickets are $38, with individual lecture tickets priced at $12. They can be ordered by sending a check, payable to Livonia Town Hall, to Joanne Buhl, 35638 Perth, Livonia 48154. For information, call Buhl at (313) 591-1673.

Season luncheon tickets are $48. Send checks, payable to Livonia Town Hall, to Dee Cullen, 9824 Berwick, Livonia 48150. For information, call Cullen at (313) 525-4596.

N'ville Town Hall opens season

Northville Town Hall will celebrate its 36th consecutive year with a touch of humor, some political insight and a dash of good reading.

Tow Hall lectures are held on Mondays at the Holiday Inn Livonia West, 17123 Laurel Park Dr., Livonia. Lectures are at 11 a.m., immediately followed by lunch.

Half of the proceeds from the series will benefit the sponsor, Our Lady of Victory Church in Northville, with the remainder being donated to charities in the Northville, Novi, Plymouth, Farmington, Livonia and South Lyons areas.

Opening the season will be Christopher Cerf on Oct. 21. An author, record and television producer, lyricist, humorist, satirist educational consultant and computer software designer, he has played a pivotal role in the ongoing funding of the "Sesame Street" television show.

Cerf is perhaps best known as a humorist. In 1970, he helped launch the most influential of recent humor magazines, the "National Lampoon." His most recent book, "The Official Politically Correct Dictionary," is an international best seller.

Attorney Sharon McPhail, the first woman to win a primary election for mayor of Detroit, will be the speaker on Nov. 18.

Named as one of "Ebony" magazine's 100 most influential black Americans in 1992, she also has served on the Detroit Board of Police Commissioners and as the division chief of screening and district courts for the Wayne County Prosecutor's Office.

In private practice since 1995, t is McPhail's desire to give something back to the community and to challenge a system that continues to deprive many of equal access.

On March 10, the guest will be Jane Chestnutt, editor-in-chief/vice president of "Women's Day" magazine, the largest selling single copy magazine in the United States.

Chesnutt first joined the magazine in 1978 as an assistant editor. Named one of Adweek's Editors of the Year in 1989, she serves on the Business Advisory Council of Washington Irving High School in New York City and heads the mentoring committee of Women in Communications Inc. She also is a member of the American Society of Magazine Editors, The Fashion Group International and the YWCA Academy of Achievers.

Closing out the season will be Hal Bruno, political director of ABC TV and radio networks. He has worked closely with producers and correspondents for all ABC News programs, including "20/20," "World News Tonight" and "Nightline."

He has covered presidential elections since 1960 and appears on air as the network's political analyst.

Bruno began his journalism career while a student at the University of Illinois. After graduation in 1950, he worked as a reporter for "Advertising Age" magazine and as sports editor of the Dekalb Daily Chronicle before joining the Chicago City News Bureau in 1954. His assignments have include six years covering gang warfare in Chicago and wars and revolutions in South Africa,, the Middle East and Cuba.

Season tickets for the lecture series only is $40 and $90 forboth the lectures and luncheons. Individual luncheon tickets are $15.

For more information, call Barb Armada at (810) 349-7255 or Sue Korte at (810) 349-2032.

A season best for Salem; Chiefs medal

GOLF

Plymouth Salem didn't really need a season-best peformance Monday at Hilltop Golf Course to beat Livonia Franklin, a team that is winless in Western Lakes Activities Association dual meets.

But it was nice to get it anyway.

The Rocks put up a 201 total, easily bettering Livonia Franklin's total of 232. The win pushed Salem's record to 6-2-1; Franklin is 0-8.

Jeff Lear and Adam Wilson both came close to carding par-breaking performances -- they each posted a 36 to tie for medalist honors. Brian Fox was next best for Salem with a 41, followed by Ryan Deschaw with a 42 and Erik Krueger with a 46.

Franklin's best was Ed Soulliere with a 44. Jon Keebaugh was next with a 45.

Salem plays at Walled Lake Central's home course Friday at 3 p.m.

Western edges Canton

Plymouth Canton had not just one medalist, but two -- with Derek Lineberry and Brendan Wheeler tying for medalist honors, each shooting a 42.

That, however, wasn't good enough Tuesday at Hilltop against Walled Lake Western. The Warriors had four golfers post 45s, and that kind of consistency was enough to propel them to a 224-229 win.

Canton, which dropped to 1-8 in WLAA duals, got solid scores from Derek Lineberry and Brendan Wheeler, each with a 42. Ben Tucker and Erik Arlen were next with 46s, followed by Adam Allen with a 53.

Western (now 6-2) was led by Mike Massey with a 44. Dave Kaznecki, Chris King, Jeff Wolf and Jason Kane each scored a 45.

On Monday, Canton wasn't so close against Livonia Churchill, falling 204-217 at Fox Creek in Livonia.

The Chiefs' scores were bunched better, with Lineberry leading the way with a 40. Next came Wheeler and Allen, 43; Tucker, 45; and Arlen, 46.

Churchill (5-2 overall) was paced by Tom Fitzstephans, 38, and Gary Kraus and Matt Van Buren, each with a 39.

SC runners solid

Competing against a field of mostly four-year schools, Schoolcraft College's women's cross country team nevertheless came away with a third-place finish at the eight-team Tower Trail Classic, hosted by Grand Valley State Saturday.

Hillsdale won the invitational, scoring the absolute minimum of15 points. The host Lakers were second with 64, followed by SC with 88.

Next was Lake Superior State (103), then Northwood University (112), Oakland CC (160), and Oakland University and Olivet College (did not finish).

The Lady Ocelots' scorers were Stacy Moore (from Plymouth Salem), 20th (21:21.9); Kris Lawrence, 25th (21:41.9); Kelly Passino, 33rd (22:22.5); Tara Teran, 34th (22:24.4); and Nicole Falk (Livonia Stevenson), 35th (22:37.6).

SC races Saturday at the Roadrunner Classic, hosted by Southwestern CC in Dowagiac.

On Sept. 21, SC competed against runners from Delta CC, Macomb CC and Michigan Christian College in Bay City. None of the other teams had a field of five runners, so there was no team score.

SC runners placed third through ninth. Moore was third (21:09), Passino was fourth (21:29), Kris Lawrence was fifth (21:39), Val Lawrence was sixth (21:45) and Teran was seventh (22:18).

Steelers stun Comets

The Plymouth-Canton Steelers varsity football team entered last Sunday's game against the Westland Comets unbeaten, but for the first 36 minutes it didn't look like it would stay that way.

Fortunately they play 40 minutes, and the Steelers needed all of it. In the last four minutes they overcame a 12-0 deficit to post a 15-12 victory.

Jerry Gaines scored on a 13-yard run and Charlie Haeger booted the extra point for the Steelers' first points, which came with four minutes left.

Nate Halbert then recovered an onside kick at the Comet 35-yard line and, on third-down-and-11 from the 25, Chris Hardy hit Chris Sherfey with the touchdown pass for the go-ahead points. Chris Trott also blocked two Comet extra-point kicks.

The Steeler junior varsity wasn't as fortunate, losing 6-0 to the Comets despite a strong defensive effort led by Chris Gentry, Mike Tomasaitis and Jonathan Pisani. The Steeler freshmen improved to 3-1 with an 8-0 triumph over the Comets, getting a 3-yard TD run from Josh Gay and a safety from Ryan Collins.

Lions fall short

The Canton Lions varsity football team got a strong effort, especially from Brandon Ellison, but it wasn't enough in a 13-6 loss to the Westland Meteors Sunday.

The Meteors led all the way, getting a second-quarter touchdown and then having a punt Ellison returned for a TD called back on a penalty against the Lions for roughing the kicker. The Meteors scored again to increase their lead to 13-0 before Ellison got a TD for the Lions in the final quarter. He then intercepted a pass, but time ran out on the Lions.

The Lions' junior varsity had a bit of success, tying their Meteor counterparts 6-6 Sunday. Which was somewhat more than the Lion freshmen enjoyed; they lost 13-6 Sunday to the Meteors, despite a 14-yard scoring pass from David Thomas to Nathan Rzeppa in the second quarter.

Gold medal performance

The magic number is 43.

That's how many tickets the Canton Parks and Recreation Services had available for the Tour of World Gymnastics Champions, scheduled to visit the Palace of Auburn Hills Sunday, Oct. 20.

Registration for the tickets is now underway for Canton residents. Cost is $20, which includes a reserved seat and bus transportation from the Summit on the Park.

The performance, which is expected to include Shannon Miller, Dominique Moceanu and Dominique Dawes, will begin at 3 p.m. The bus leaves the Summit at 1 p.m.

Registration ends Oct. 18. Call (313) 397-5110 for further information.

Twister finale

The Wayne County Twisters will try to close out their regular season on a winning note when they host the Findlay (Ohio) Lightning at the Downriver Community Conference Center (located at 15100 North Line, in Southgate) at 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

The Twisters are 4-4 in the first year of operation for the Lake Shore Football League. Since it is difficult to maintain consistent rosters on a semi-pro football team, the league has decided to have a season-ending league tournament, which will last three weekends (Oct. 12, 19 and 26).

The Twisters will be attempting to go into the league tournament on a high note. Earlier this season they lost to the Lightning, 32-18.

Rocks wreck Western

The last four games have provided Salem coach Fred Thomann with what he wanted – victories wrapped around a chance to refine things.

Salem's 72-28 victory Tuesday over visiting Walled Lake Western was the fourth win in a row for the Rocks, but more importantly, Salem is using a balanced scoring attack.

"This makes four games in a row where we have had dynamite balance in scoring and rebounding," Thomann said.

Amanda Abraham played a solid game for Salem, scoring 18 points to go along with 10 rebounds and five assists. Angie Sillmon added 17 points, seven rebounds and three assists and Andrea Pruett recorded 10 points and eight boards.

The Rocks also received nine points and four rebounds from Nikki Nauman and eight points and six boards from Merritt Walker.

Salem put the game away with a 15-5 first quarter and led by 15 at halftime. The Rocks dominated the third quarter, outscoring Western 25-8.

The Rocks improved to 8-2 overall and 3-1 in the WLAA. The Warriors dropped to 4-5 overall and 2-2 in the conference.

On Saturday, Salem routed host Adrian 66-30, as four Rocks reached double figures.

Pruett led the way with 17 points and 11 rebounds. Abraham played another great all-around game with 13 points, eight rebounds and four assists. Sillmon and Walker tallied 11 and 10 points, respectively.

Again Salem asserted itself early with a 15-7 first quarter advantage and a 29-11 halftime lead.

"This was a real good team game and we kind of dominated them from the beginning," Thomann said. "We got them inside a bit and methodically took them apart from there."

Kris Dankert's 17 points paced Adrian (4-3).

CANTON 52, STEVENSON 28: Despite a strong second-half performance Tuesday , Livonia Stevenson was no match for visiting Plymouth Canton.

Canton (9-1 overall, 4-0 in the WLAA) built a 29-9 halftime lead. The Spartans actually outscored Canton 12-10 in the third quarter to gain the moral victory.

"We aren't ready to play at that level yet, but learned a lot as the game progressed," Stevenson coach Wayne Henry said. "For the first time, I thought in the third quarter we really progressed and were doing things right. But you can't get down by that much to a state-ranked team."

Melissa Marzolf led the Chiefs with 14 points. Nkechi Okwumabua added 12.

Melissa Backus scored eight points to lead the Spartans (3-7 overall, 0-4 in the WLAA).

Ocelot cage coach takes job at CMU

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

All too often in the sports world, the main element involved in the making of a major decision is conveniently shoved aside, or simply -- and deliberately -- overlooked.

Money.

When a coach decides to move on, cash can weigh just as heavily as it does in real life. Indeed, it's the main reason Glen Donahue will leave as Schoolcraft College's men's basketball coach after just one year to take a position as a full-time assistant coach at Central Michigan.

"I was a part-time employee here," Donahue said. "I'll be full-time up there.

"I would have had to get a job in a gas station or something to stay here."

Donahue takes over for Glenn Herrerman, one of two of coach Leonard Drake's assistants to leave after last year's 6-20 season (3-15, ninth place in the Mid-American Conference).

Edgar Wilson accepted the job as head coach at Ferris State last spring. He was replaced by Tim Waller. Herrerman left on Aug. 1 to take a position coaching at a junior college in California.

Donahue has done some traveling as a coach in recent years. After 19 seasons at Highland Park CC (where he compiled a 401-205 record), he spent a year as an assistant at University of Detroit before taking over the St. Mary's College program in 1987.

Basketball was dropped at St. Mary's in '92, after Donahue had guided the Eagles to back-to-back appearances in the NAIA Tournament. He resurfaced at Redford Bishop Borgess, where he served as coach and dean of students until May of last year. When the SC job opened up, Donahue took that.

In his only season at the helm, Donahue guided the Ocelots to a 9-21 record. He did that without much time to recruit (he was hired six months prior to the start of the season); greater

OHL team brings winning tradition

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR

It isn't often -- indeed, never could easily be the proper description -- that a championship team is so unknown at the start of the season.

But to be perfectly honest, that is the situation the Detroit Whalers currently face. The Whalers have won the last three West Division titles in the Ontario Hockey League.

Problem is, they've done it from a variety of "home ice" locations. And that constant moving around over the past few years has left them, well, homeless.

That won't be a hindrance any longer. On Saturday, the Whalers open their new home: Compuware Arena, the sparkling new 4,300-seat arena in Plymouth Township.

It will be the pride and joy of the OHL. How could it be otherwise? What other OHL team can boast of a brand new $20 million home?

Thing is -- and this is an important point -- there will be more than an arena to boast of.

The Whalers, with three-straight West Division titles to their credit, and success go hand-in-hand. Thus far this season, there's no reason to think this will change.

People in the Plymouth community know little

Whaler questions most often asked

There are a lot of things people don't know about this new hockey team that's moved into town.

The Detroit Whalers – who the heck are they?

That, without doubt, is the most common question. And here's the answer:

The Whalers are members of the Canadian Hockey League, which means where they play – in the Ontario Hockey League – players are limited by age.

That limit is 16-to-20 years old. Which is the biggest difference between the Whalers, who have a roster full of players on their way to the NHL, and other local pro teams like the Vipers.

The Whalers are a breeding ground for future NHL stars. Thirty percent of the team

SOCCER

Sure, tougher tests await Plymouth Canton's soccer team, but in the games over the past couple of weeks, scoring certainly hasn't been a weakness.

The Chiefs showed that by winning a pair of Western Lakes Activities Association Western Division matches in a three-day span -- and both by convincing margins: 7-3 over Northville last Saturday at Northville, and 6-0 over Livonia Franklin at Canton Monday.

The wins kept Canton unbeaten (3-0) in divisional play going into last night's match at Livonia Churchill. The winner will play Livonia Stevenson for the WLAA championship Oct. 16.

The Chiefs built a 4-0 lead by halftime in its win over Franklin Monday. Goals came from five different players: Only Matt Marcos scored two.

Scott Wright added a goal and two assists, with Kevin Gniewek, Mike Riemma and Trevor Anulewicz scoring one goal apiece. Canton improved to 8-2-3 overall.

Against Northville, the scoring was again fairly well spread out, with five players getting goals. Nick Wright was the difference: He had three goals and an assist.

Gniewek, Marcos and Justin Fishaw each got a goal, and Scott Wright again had a goal and two assists.

The Chiefs had a 4-1 lead by halftime and were never threatened.

Canton is now idle until Monday, when it plays Plymouth Salem at 7 p.m. at CEP field.

Salem 9, Harrison 0: Scoring wasn't much of a problem for Plymouth Salem, either, in the last few days.

The Rocks perforated the Farmington Harrison defense for four first-half goals and cruised from there Monday at Harrison.

The win improved their record to 9-2-1 overall, 3-1 in the WLAA's Lakes Division.

Four players netted two goals apiece for Salem: Brett Konley, Ryan Konley, Andy Power and Matt Sarkesian. Andres Lopez, normally relegated to playing keeper but put in the field for a short stint against Harrison, also got a goal, and Joe Ianni had two assists.

Jeremy Finley was in goal; he faced two shots.

Last Saturday, Salem scored three times in the first half and disposed of Brighton 4-1.

Sarkesian, Brett Konley on a direct kick from 20 yards out, and Andy Power scored in the first half; Ryan Konley got a marker in the second.

Rob Zdrodowski and Nick Szczechowski paced the Rocks' defense. Brian Wozniak was in goal.

Salem hosts Troy Athens Saturday before the annual clash with Canton Monday.

Rocks run to a 6th place at Crestwood

Plymouth Salem finished sixth at last Saturday's Dearborn Crestwood Invitational, scoring 132 points -- and placing behind Belleville (44), Dearborn Divine Child (64), Dearborn Edsel Ford (66), Livonia Ladywood (96) and Lutheran Westland (131).

Hardly what one might have expected from Salem. But then again, coach Dave Gerbach didn't treat this like any other invitational.

He opted to give his varsity runners time off while allowing some others a shot at the big time.

Two Salem freshmen responded the way Gerbach had hoped: By finishing in the top 20. Rachel Moraitis was 12th (21:25) and Lisa Jasnowski was 17th (21:45).

The Rocks other scorers were senior Vanessa Bodnar, 30th (22:29); sophomore Becky Phelan, 35th (22:54); and freshman Aisha Chappell, 38th (23:45).

Christian.

Senior guard Jaci Ther scored 14 points and collected seven steals and four assists to lead Agape. Junior center Caley Mullen added 10 points and seven rebounds.

Junior center Robin Horton led Macomb with 15 points.

Agape led 20-14 at halftime and 31-21 heading into the fourth quarter.

INTER-CITY 33, PCA 28: Plymouth Christian Academy's fourth-quarter comeback fell short Friday as host Allen Park Inter City Baptist held on for the Michigan Independent Athletic Conference victory.

The Eagles (6-2 overall, 1-1 in the MIAC) trailed 14-5 after the first quarter and 29-18 heading into the fourth, before rallying. PCA closed the gap to four points with 3:50 remaining, but couldn't get any closer.

Elizabeth Pugno led PCA with 11 points. The Eagles also received six points and 11 rebounds from Sarah Sumner and six points and nine boards from Jenny Sutherland.

Allison Brown and Tara Tsemengas netted 12 and 10 points, respectively, for Allen Park (5-2 overall, 1-1 in the MIAC).

If you want more than just the highlights these are the guys to turn to:

In Garden City and Redford—

"Covering community sports is challenging."

We caught a glimpse of Steve Kowalski's sense of humor when he first told us why he enjoys doing what he is doing, "Coming home at three in the morning, paying for parking and hot dogs at the games..."

Then on a serious note he admits that it's the challenge that keeps him going, "Some of your sources are young, never been interviewed. It's fun and rewarding to do a good job."

Steve knew that when he scored only four points in Junior Varsity Basketball during his own high school days, that he had a better chance writing about sports than playing them. He's done it so well that he's received awards for it; the most recent in 1994 from the Michigan Press Association in their "top game story" category.

In Livonia and Westland—

"We have a good group of schools to cover."

When we asked Brad Emons what he enjoys most about covering community sports, he told us, "The people we deal with, from the coaches to the student-athletes, they truly appreciate the coverage—we cover a good group of schools from the smallest to the largest."

Brad began reading the major league box scores when he was still in grade school, wrote in high school and earned a degree in journalism from Franklin College in Indiana. He's been writing for your hometown newspapers since he graduated in 1977.

How does our coverage stack up? Brad says that unlike the metropolitan newspapers, "We cover a variety of prep sports and do it in-depth—both boys' and girls'. We're able to hit more than the highlights. We get to know nearly every high school coach and athletic director by their first names."

In Plymouth and Canton—

"It's real, it's serious, but it's also fun."

C.J. Risak is talking about SPORTS, of course.

When did he decide on sports reporting? "Early in my career, after being out in the real world. Sports is real, it's serious, but it's also fun."

One facet of the job C.J. especially enjoys is meeting people—the players and the coaches, "We get to know a lot of people first-hand," he said.

His enthusiasm and dedication is reflected in his writing. In 1994, he received a first place award from the industry for best sports column and second place for putting together the best sports section.

Canton, Salem to face difficult division challenges

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

We're entering the home stretch of the high school football season with several area schools still entertaining playoff possibilities.

The ranks of the unbeaten, however, has shrunk to two teams at 4-0 _ neighborhood rivals Westland John Glenn and Wayne Memorial.

Five other teams have only one defeat _ Redford Catholic Central, Farmington Hills Harrison, Livonia Franklin, Plymouth Salem and Lutheran High Westland _ all still retain post-season playoff aspirations.

One game also separates your friendly prognosticators.

Figures, Dan O'Meara, is taking the week off after correctly picking 14 of 15 games correctly raising his season total to 50-12. An impressive week none-the-less for the Irishman, who nearly went 15-0 had not Detroit St. Martin DePorres rallied in the final seconds to beat Catholic Central in a battle for state bragging rights, 8-7.

Yours truly went 13-2, playing a hunch that Canton would beat Harrison, but to no avail as the Hawks won 20-6.

No more hunches, please, but the good news is that the defending champion still maintains a slim lead with a 51-11 mark.

As for this week's slate, the big game is Sunday at Pontiac Wisner Stadium, between CC and unbeaten Birmingham Brother Rice.

Here is a sneak preview of the upcoming weekend action.

FRIDAY'S GAMES
(all 7:30 p.m. unless noted)

Chelsea at Redford Union (7 p.m.): This is a non-leaguer. RU (0-4) is searching for its first win, but the Panthers did ruin Dearborn's 13-game regular season shutout string in a 41-7 loss. Chelsea (2-2) is coming off a 20-12 win over Southeastern Conference foe Ypsilanti Lincoln as quarterback Dustin White threw for 149 yards (17 for 30) and Jay Schick rushed for 110 yards (on 22 carries). But the Bulldogs did give up 205 yards on the ground to Lincoln's Jaquan Wright. PICKS: Chelsea Clinton all the way.

Lutheran Westland at Clarenceville: Metro Conference bragging rights in Observerland are at stake in this one. If the Warriors (3-1, 3-1) win, it will be their best start in school history. Second-year coach Scott Wiemer, should get a boost this week when senior tight end Joe Pruchnik (elbow injury) returns to the lineup for the first time. Clarenceville (1-3, 1-3) lost to 4-0 Harper Woods last week, 28-13, but gave up 263 yards to Andrew Ciccorella. Can they stop the Warriors' Albert Cook. PICKS: The Warriors make it two straight against Clarenceville.

F.H. Harrison at Liv. Churchill: The Hawks (3-1, 1-1) are still very much alive in the Western Division race in the Western Lakes after stopping Plymouth Canton quarterback Rob Johnson in a 20-7 win. Churchill (0-4, 0-2) put 19 points on the board last week in a loss to Walled Lake Western, but the Chargers (1-57 for the 1990s) haven't beaten the Hawks since John Stoitsiadis quarterbacked Churchill to a shocking upset in 1984. PICKS: It's all Harrison.

Liv. Franklin at Ply. Canton: This game pits two of the WLAA's premier athletes in Franklin wide receiver Paul Terek and Canton QB Rob Johnson. Canton won last year's game in triple overtime. Franklin (3-1, 2-0) has won three straight and given up only 13 points since losing to No. 1-ranked Sterling Heights Stevenson in the season opener. Canton (2-2, 1-1) must find some offense from other people than Johnson. PICKS: Emons likes his Patriots in this one.

Liv. Stevenson at W.L. Central: A key battle in the Lakes Division of the WLAA. Central (3-1, 2-0), one of the state's largest teams, only beat winless North Farmington by a 16-0 count. Stevenson (2-2, 1-1) is coming off a 34-13 win over Farmington as senior Gade Clark had 228 yards in a school-record 38 carries. PICKS: Central keeps pace for first place.

N. Farmington at Westland Glenn: The state-ranked Rockets (4-0, 3-0) took care of previously unbeaten Plymouth Salem last week, scoring 31 unanswered points in a 31-14 victory. North (0-4, 0-2) has struggled in all four games to generate any kind of offense and the odds of that happening this week appear to be remote. But the Raiders did play Glenn tough a year ago, losing 14-0. PICKS: Glenn keeps it going with its fifth straight win.

Wayne at Wyandotte: The Zebras (4-0, 3-0) can't afford to be looking ahead to upcoming games with Belleville and Dearborn Fordson. Wyandotte (2-2, 2-1), coming off a 24-8 loss to Fordson, is a quality opponent, led by offensive tackle Jason Ptak (6-3, 270) considered one of the top linemen in the state. Wayne, however, can match any team in the state when it comes to beef. PICKS: Wayne eludes the Bears.

SATURDAY'S GAME

Ply. Salem at Farmington (1 p.m.): Salem (3-1, 1-1) came down to earth last week after getting thumped by Glenn. Farmington, meanwhile, is trying to pick up the pieces from a 34-13 loss to Stevenson. It could boil down to who has the better offense, not defense. PICKS: Take the Rocks in a tougher-than-expected game.

SUNDAY'S GAME

Redford CC vs. Birm. Brother Rice (2 p.m. at Pontiac's Wisner Stadium): It's the Boys Bowl meeting with much at stake. CC (3-1), stung by last week's 8-7 loss to Detroit St. Martin DePorres, needs a win to stay in the playoff hunt in Class AA-Region III. The Shamrocks have won 10 of the 12 meetings (since 1986), including two victories over the Warriors last year. Rice is led by All-State running back Brian Marshall, who racked up 169 yards in 32 carries in a 6-0 win last week over winless Harper Woods Bishop Gallagher. PICKS: CC continues to have the Warriors' number Emons says, but O'Meara likes Rice.

Thomas takes top job

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Greg Thomas, recently hired as Schoolcraft College's interim men's basketball coach, would like to put a his nameplate on Glen Donahue's office door permanently.

"I'm going to approach it from that point," said the 41-year-old Thomas, who conducted his first practice as head coach Tuesday. "I want to make sure the kids go to class Academics is first.

"And then we're going to try to win some ballgames and run a respectable program."

Thomas served one year as an assistant under Donahue, who announced Monday that he had accepted a full-time assistant coaching job under Leonard Drake at Central Michigan University.

"I thought the first practice went great," Thomas said. "It's going to take a couple of days for some of the kids to get over Glen's leaving.

"It's my job to instill the discipline, along with recruiting and scouting now. It will be fun and I'm looking forward to it."

Thomas has coached at nearly all levels, including stints as an assistant at Highland Park Community College, Detroit Martin Luther King High School (his alma mater), Detroit St. Hedwig and Detroit Benedictine.

He's also coached AAU and has been a head coach in the UAW League.

"I'm going to try to hold onto to his (Donahue's) style of play, but as the season goes along I'd like to implement some of my things," said Thomas, who has 39 days until the opener, Monday, Nov. 11 at Grand Rapids JC.

Thomas, a sales representative for Power Tools and Supply, Inc., attended Kalamazoo Valley and Highland Park community colleges.

Donahue's two other assistants, Ramsey Nichols and Mike Trudeau, will be given the option to return to the SC staff.

Thomas said that Clayton Woodard, who worked with the team during the summer, will serve as a volunteer assistant.

things were hoped for this year.

That won't happen now, not under Donahue's direction at least. One of his three assistants, Greg Thomas, will replace Donahue "on an interim basis," according to SC athletic director Ed Kavanaugh.

"We've taken one of his assistants and moved him into the head coaching position," said Kavanaugh. "Then at the end of the season, we're going to reevaluate."

There's no doubting Donahue's record of success: 637-370 as he enters his 30th year of coaching. He insists leaving SC was not easy.

"It was tough leaving here," he said. "They're going to have a good team. But the financial end of things was an enticement.

"I didn't ever think I was going to leave (SC). But financially, it was not a good situation for me."

Added Kavanaugh: "Yes, it does (come as a shock). He did make me aware this might happen. We appreciate what he's done for the program. He made great strides with the program in one year."

Donahue talked to Drake, then visited the CMU campus Sept. 20. "I'm making the move because it's a good situation for me," said Donahue. "I think we're going to have a good ball club. We've had a couple of tough years, but I think we've turned the corner."

Donahue was hoping to do just that at SC. One of the most difficult tasks he faced once he decided to take the CMU job was telling the SC players, which he did Monday.

"It was tough for me to face the kids today," he said. "Hopefully, I handled it in a tactful way. It was extremely hard for me."

Coaching the Chippewas won't be easy, for sure. Under Drake, CMU is 14-64 over the last three years.

But financially speaking, it was the right thing for Donahue to do.

DePorres rally stuns CC

BY BRAD EMONS
STAFF WRITER

Kevin Glenn turned out to be quite a maestro Saturday night.

The Detroit DePorres senior quarterback orchestrated a last-gasp winning touchdown drive as the Eagles stunned Redford Catholic Central, 8-7, in a tooth-and-nail struggle between defending state champions and unbeatens played before an overflow crowd at Livonia Clarenceville.

The loss ended CC's winning streak at 18 (dating back to 1994).

Glenn, who was only two of seven in the air for 4 yards through three quarters, made a series of clutch plays during the final 3:10 to pull out the victory, capped by an acrobatic grab by 6-foot-4 wide receiver Teremun Johnson for the game-winning two-pointer.

DePorres, the 1995 Class CC champs, pulled to within one with 17 seconds left when Glenn rifled a pass over the middle to a sprawling Michael Baldwin. The Eagles drove 79 yards in 11 plays to set up the dramatic TD.

"CC has a good football team and it was a dogfight the whole time, from the first to the fourth quarter," said Glenn, a four-year starter. "They blew us out 35-6 last year and we were determined to beat them. It's the first time I've beaten them and it feels great."

The game, however, ended with CC field goal kicker Aaron Rock bouncing a 40-yard attempt off the crossbar, which would have won it for the Shamrocks as time expired.

CC, the defending state Class A champs, got into position for the field goal try when quarterback Greg Call completed passes of 15 and 11 yards to Brian Teefey, followed by an offsides penalty against DePorres.

"When the ball hit the crossbar, I figured it wasn't meant to be because we did everything we possibly could," CC coach Tom Mach said. "With only a few seconds left we got in field-goal range and gave ourselves a chance to win the game."

The game had several twists and turns, but CC had the better of it for nearly four quarters.

The Shamrocks racked up 273 total yards, including 235 on the ground led by senior running back Greg Alcala, who had 118 on 18 carries.

of the league the Whalers compete in, and that causes confusion. Don't fret: That'll clear up in a very short period of time.

The OHL is the top developmental league for the National Hockey League. Nearly 200 of the current players on NHL rosters are OHL graduates.

There is an age limit in the OHL -- 16-to-20 years old. Players that have been drafted by NHL teams may still play in the OHL.

The Whalers have a half-dozen such players on their roster: Chad Cavanagh, Jesse Boulerice, Andrew Taylor, Steve Wasylko, Sergei Fedotov and Robert Esche.

What the Whalers don't have are an abundance of experienced players. On their current 22-player roster, there are only 11 players who played in the league last season.

When a team loses half its roster, trouble is a certainty. But so far, the Whalers are managing. With the arena not expected to be ready for play at the start of the season, the team opened with five-straight road games.

Young team, opening on the road? Sounds like tailor-made trouble.

But the Whalers survived, splitting their first four games -- including a 4-2 triumph over the Sarnia Sting last Friday, a team figured to be one of the title-contenders in the West.

The Whalers did it in comeback style. Trailing 2-0 early in the second period, they got goals from Mark Cadotte, Taylor, Harold Druken and Cavanagh. Druken's game-winner came 6:48 into the final period.

That got the Whalers in gear. On Sunday, they played the Erie Otters in the first meeting between two OHL teams based in the U.S. The Whalers won, 3-0, getting goals from Cavanagh, Anthony Terzo and Steve Wasylko. Esche was in the net for the shutout.

There are still 61 games remaining in the regular season (the Whalers played at Sarnia again Wednesday), so a judgement on the team's ability now would certainly be premature.

But with the optimism obtained with the move into a new building, it seems success could likely be a companion to the Whalers once again.

rent crop of players in the NHL have a background traceable to the OHL.

Of course, there are still loads of questions concerning the Whalers and the teams they play. Here are but a few of the more obvious ones. If you can correctly answer half of these, consider yourself a first-class hockey fanatic and pack your bags for immediate deportation to London, Ont.

•1. The Whalers open their new arena on Saturday against the Kingston Frontenacs. Can you explain, in 50 words or less, what a Frontenac is?

•2. Double credit is available if you can give directions to Owen Sound, Ont., home of the Owen Sound Platers.

2b. Also, define what a Plater is.

•3. Here's an easy one: What's the No. 1 requirement for an NHL scout?

•4. Name the two U.S.-based teams in the Ontario Hockey League.

•5. The Memorial Cup is the Canadian Hockey League's equivalent to the Stanley Cup. What was the last OHL team to win the Memorial Cup?

5b. When was it?

•6. Between 1969 and 1986, the OHL had more players drafted by the NHL every year but three ('75, '77 and '78). The OHL has not been the leading draft ground for the NHL since '86, but since 1991 one area has produced more NHL draftees than any other. What is that area?

•7. Who was the Whalers leading scorer last year, and where is he now?

•8. What were the Whalers known as before they became the Whalers?

•9. How many names has this franchise had? Can you recite them?

CHANGING TIMES
Any decision concerning how long an interval to allow between oil changes should be based on factors ranging from driving style, traffic conditions, and engine load and temperature to oil consumption. Most auto manufacturers recommend that the engine oil be changed about every 7,500 miles under normal driving conditions, or about every 3,000 miles if the car is subjected to severe conditions. Before car owners automatically assume that they drive their cars under normal conditions, they should realize that some of the factors that contribute to severe driving conditions include: a lot of stop-and-go traffic; making many successive short trips during which the engine cannot build to normal operating temperatures; extended high-speed highway driving; running under a heavy load, such as towing a trailer; and/or driving under dusty conditions. Changing engine oil frequently is inexpensive insurance against costly failure.
Changing your oil regularly is good preventative maintenance because it saves wear and tear on your engine over the long haul. At HOLIDAY CHEVROLET, INC., we are diligent in solving automotive problems and swift in diagnosis. Timeliness, reliability, friendliness and service excellence – these are our promises to you. Visit us at 30250 Grand River. Phone: 474-0500. Sales Hours: Mon.-Thurs. 8:30-9:00, Tu. & W. 8:30-6:30, F. 8:30-6; Service Hours: M-F 7-6; Parts/Body Shop: M-F 8-6. "Your Today and Tomorrow Dealer!"
HINT: Adding a quart of oil to the engine on a regular basis does not take the place of draining the oil and replacing the oil filter to remove contaminants and replenish additives.

Madonna blocks UM-Dearborn in 3

What Madonna University's volleyball team did to the University of Michigan-Dearborn Tuesday was almost merciless.

Fair, certainly, but merciless.

The Wolves lack size in the middle, and Madonna -- ranked 19th in the NAIA -- took complete advantage of that *short*coming in rolling to a 15-7, 15-7, 15-8 victory at UM-D.

The result pushed the Lady Crusaders' record to 20-2; UM-Dearborn is 20-11.

"We took away what they wanted to do," said Madonna assistant coach Brian McClain. "After that, we had it pretty much our way."

Leading the attack from the middle were seniors Kelly McCausland (from Redford Union), with 31 kills, and Julie Martin (Livonia Stevenson), with 22.

Erin Comment had eight kills and Karin Sisung got six.

The Crusaders have a difficult test Thursday when they play at Wayne State.

NOTES: Julie Martin, the senior middle hitter from Livonia Stevenson, was named NAIA Great Lakes Section volleyball player of the week, for the week ending Sept. 29.

Martin had 34 kills with a .538 kill percentage, seven solo blocks, seven block assists, five digs and two service aces.

Lady Ocelots go 1-1 in N.C.

Call it a look into the crystal ball.

Not too far into the future, mind you. Perhaps six weeks or so is all. But the trip to North Carolina was well worth it, in Nikki Johnson's mind.

The Schoolcraft College women's soccer coach took her team to play Brevard CC, the unbeaten and No. 1-ranked team in the NJCAA, last Saturday.

The result wasn't pretty -- a 6-0 defeat suffered in a downpour.

"They're big, strong and constantly moving," summarized Johnson. "They were a quick-moving team. And my team didn't play very well. We played a kick-ball game."

That's not what Johnson wanted to see from the Lady Ocelots. And yet, she wasn't too upset about it.

"It's OK because now they realize, after losing to Meramec (earlier this season) and now Brevard, what it will take," she said. "It's good because now they know what this is all about, what kind of competition to expect."

Brevard, 7-0 with the win, will be in the same NJCAA regional tournament as SC. If the Lady Ocelots hope to go beyond the regional and to the NJCAA Tournament, they'll first have to find a way to handle Brevard.

On Sunday, SC played Spartanburg Methodist in Spartanburg, N.C., and posted a 3-0 triumph. The first goal was scored by Melissa Crain; Lisa DeShano (from Livonia Franklin) scored the next two.

Dawn Koontz assisted on Crain's goal. Staci Muisenberg and Crain got assists on DeShano's goals.

It wasn't much of a challenge for SC; the Ocelots had a 27-1 shot advantage as they improved to 4-5-1.

•SCHOOLCRAFT (MEN) 12, ST. MARY'S 0: Mike Minicilli (from Livonia Stevenson) poured in four goals as Schoolcraft's men's team used the first-year squad from St. Mary's College in Orchard Lake as little more than target practice Saturday at SC.

"It was a good game for us because we got a chance to play people who have been practicing but haven't played much," said SC coach Van Dimitriou. "Every game has a purpose."

This match seemed little more than a chance to pad scoring statistics for some of the Ocelots. Minicilli also had one assist.

Mark Hill had two goals and an assist, Mike Preston scored twice, Kevin Fritz contributed a goal and three assists, Peter Lechowicz got a goal and an assist, Bill Krips chipped in two assists, and both James Bossieux (Plymouth Canton) and Chris Jaskolski (Canton) scored goals.

The win pushed SC's record to 6-4-2 overall.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

Excellence lauded

TicketMaster recently won an "Excellence in Community Awareness" award from Rehabilitation Institute of Michigan for its outstanding work in providing positive opportunities for persons with disabilities.

Employee Damon Page is an example of this. A quadriplegic who is only able to move his head, he was unable to operate TicketMaster's computers through traditional means of touch typing so they company acquired a voice-activated computer for him to use. Today, he works 24 hours each week as a telemarketing agent.

Exams convenient, close

When it comes to breast cancer detection, women know exactly what they want — convenience and immediate results. To help, the Barbara Ann Karmanos Cancer Institute now offers Saturday appointments at its Berkley Breast Center. Mammography, clinical breast exams and instruction on breast self-exam are now available. Patients also receive preliminary mammography results from the physician at the time of their visit.

"Women shouldn't have to wait for results of their mammogram," said medical director Cheryl Grigorian. "Eighty percent of breast lumps and calcifications are benign. Why wait in fear?"

While mammography does not prevent breast cancer, proper screening will dramatically increase the chance for survival and cure. When found at its earliest, most treatable breast cancer is more than 90 percent curable.

Need a doctor?

Call St. Mary Hospital in Livonia for a referral for either a primary care physician or specialist. The hospital will provide the name and information about a physician close to home, and, if desired, connect you directly to the physician's office to make an appointment. For information, call (800) 464-WELL.

HAP expands network

Health Alliance Plan has contracted with Huron Valley Physicians Association and Mission Health to serve HAP health maintenance organization members in Washtenaw and Livingston counties.

Effective Sept. 1, businesses and individuals living in those counties can now choose HAP.

"Our agreement with Huron Valley . . . and Mission Health strengthens our presence in Washtenaw and Livingston counties," said HAP President James Walworth. "We'll be able to meet the needs of businesses with employees residing in these areas, and our members will have a greater selection of highly respected physicians and community hospitals."

Grant given for health care

Renaissance Home Health Care is pleased to announce a grant award of $15,000 from The McGregor Fund. The award will provide home health care to high risk, uninsured, indigent mothers and newborns in Metro Detroit.

MedHealth expands

Plymouth-based MedHealth Systems is extending their medical and wellness center practice into Riverview with its purchase of the Riverview Tennis and Fitness Center. The renovated facility will house a new wellness center.

MedHealth owns and operates outpatient medical facilities that have orthopedics, cardiology, physical medicine and wellness programs.

M-CARE offers discounts

M-CARE, the managed care organization designed by the University of Michigan, recently unveiled a coupon book for its members offering discounts at health clubs, museums, athletic events, theaters and a variety of shops and restaurants.

Called the "M-CARE Active Lifestyle Book" it will be distributed this fall to new and existing members during open enrollment.

Based in Ann Arbor, M-CARE has 95,000 members and contracts with more than 500 employers and has offices throughout the state.

New addition: Pictured is a view of the new wing at St. Mary Hospital in Livonia, slated to house the new Women's Center. Martin Ochs and Mark Reichhold, of Centerline Electric, work on the addition to St. Mary, located at Five Mile and Levan in Livonia.

Family-centered care is the philosophy at St. Mary Hospital, and a planned expansion at the hospital will focus on services for women and children.

Scheduled to open in the spring of 1997 is the Miracle of Life Maternity Center and the new Women's Center.

"This (addition) will have one of the finest maternity centers in southeast Michigan with 20 private rooms," said Julie Sproul, director of community relations for the Livonia-based hospital.

"Women generally tend to make the health care decisions, not only for themselves, but for their entire family," Sproul added. "That's why health centers are offering more services for women."

The new center includes a LDRP (labor, delivery, recovery, postpartum) room available for each woman. To accommodate this, the hospital is expanding from four to 20 LDRPs.

The private suites, measuring 16 X 24, will include a refrigerator, built-in window seat with cushions suitable for sleeping, recliners and an electric warming blanket for baby and mom. Medical equipment is readily available, discreetly concealed behind a wall unit.

"We have streamlined the services to make it more comfortable for the (mom and baby) short stay as well as the staff," Sproul said.

Other services available in the new wing will include: mammography, radiology, ultrasound, breastfeeding programs, breast cancer and menopause support groups, childbirth education and premarital counseling classes and a resource library.

For further information on St. Mary services, call (313) 464-4800.

Other health care centers in the Wayne County area offer a potpourri of services for women and children.

Mission Health

Mission Health, the umbrella health group which includes Providence, St. Joseph Mercy-Ann Arbor, McPherson in Howell and Saline medical facilities, offers many educational and support services for women.

Mothers are invited to participate in the class entitled "MotherTOTS, Nutrition for Toddlers." This program, aimed at developing good eating habits for preschoolers, includes free food samples, food testing and a recipe packet.

Judy Brandell, program director for women's services, had first-hand experience in the pilot program of "Baby Building: The building blocks for healthy nutrition before, during and after pregnancy."

"I found it helpful. Everyone (who attended) wanted to make sure they were eating correctly," said the mother-to-be.

For more information on Mission Health services call (800) 231-2211.

Garden City Hospital

Garden City Hospital is willing to " make payment plans for those that are not insured or under-insured," said Terry Carroll, director of community relations. "We will work with women that need (attention) right away. This is important to the community; a lot of folks don't have the coverage that a pregnancy would need to see it through."

The hospital also offers a day care service administered by a registered nurse for working parents with sick children. The service is done on a day-by-day basis.

A special home care service is provided for new mothers. "A nurse will make a home visit within 24-48 hours of discharge," said Suzanne Cleere, director of women's services. "The mother needs reinforcement from a professional to increase (her) confidence level and to be sure there are no problems."

For information on Garden City Hospital services, call (313) 458-4330. To reach the day care center for sick children, call (313) 458-3338 anytime.

Sinai Hospital

Shelly Igrisan, assistant vice president for perinatal and GYN nursing at Sinai Hospital believes that "women are the major deciders of health care, not only for their kids and husbands, but often for their parents. A woman's reproductive years are only a portion of her life."

"We have a lot of support services for women — a counseling/support group for women who have sustained a prior pregnancy loss; also a support group for immediately after the loss (We have) a breast cancer support group and individual counseling."

Call (800) 248-3627 for information on Sinai services.

Oakwood HealthCare

"Keep Kids Safe" is a program sponsored by Oakwood HealthCare System. As part of this service, a team from Oakwood inspects car seats at local day care centers.

"Roll Up Your Sleeves" sponsored by Oakwood and the Michigan Health Department administers hepatitis-B shots to area adolescents. "The health department provides the education and we provide the immunizations," said Shaon Truskowski manager of the Kids Safe Team program.

Oakwood's Babytrack Program teaches immunization education to new parents, contacts parents for follow-up shots and provides immunizations.

The Oakwood Healthcare Center-North in Westland is scheduled to open in mid-November and will be a primary care center for the entire family with special emphasis on women's health issues. Osteoporosis testing, a resource library and classes geared for women will be featured at this site.

To request information on Oakwood's services, call (313) 278-5151.

Botsford General

Kids get special attention at Botsford General Hospital through a series of classes including "Sailing Through Surgery" which helps to prepare children for surgery, said Bridget Gosine, manager of community relations.

Siblings can learn about their new brother or sister in a class entitled: "Sibling: It's My Baby Too!"

Information on all Botsford classes and services can be obtained by calling (810) 442-7966.

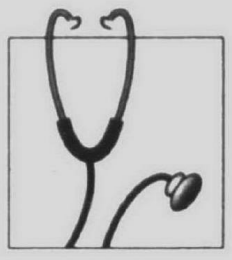
Flu season is upon us: Get your shots



The 1996 winter flu season is fast approaching and will possibly be severe. For area businesses, the flu brings unproductive work days, increased absenteeism and delayed business projects.

While most people with the flu recover, about 50,000-70,000 adults die each year from this and other preventable viruses. More people die from influenza than the AIDS virus.

Farmer Jack has committed to helping people get their flu vaccinations by sponsoring the Visiting Nurse Association's annual vaccination drive.

The supermarket chain has complete vaccination schedules in its stores beginning this week. In addition, they will direct-mail circulars listing the upcoming week's vaccination schedule on the front page.

"Farmer Jack has an ongoing commitment to the community. Bringing this flu vaccination program to the public is part of that," said Farmer Jack President Craig Sturken. "Flu vaccinations are important from both a personal and business standpoint, and we are proud to do everything we can to help the Visiting Nurse Association with its important work."

People receiving flu shots "take 43 percent fewer sick days" as well as make "44 percent fewer visits to doctors for respiratory illness," according to the publication "Bottom Line Business."

Because the flu vaccine contains only non-infectious viruses, it cannot give recipients the flu. As with most vaccines, side effects, if any, are generally mild and occur at low frequency within 48 hours. Those who are allergic to eggs or chicken feather, sensitive to amino glycosides or affected with Guillain-Barre Syndrome should not get a flu vaccination. Those under 18 and pregnant women should consult with their physician.

During October and part of November, the VNA support services will vaccinate about 20,000 adults at more than 200 locations. For more information, call (800) 296-8660.

In the Observer area, the following dates and times are scheduled at these Farmer Jack stores. Cost of the VNA flu clinic is $10; Medicare B patients are not charged:

- Sunday, Nov. 3, noon to 3 p.m., 10900 Belleville Road near I-94, Belleville.
- Sunday, Oct. 27, noon to 3 p.m. at the Canton store, 43404 Joy Road near Morton Taylor, Canton.
- Friday, Oct. 4, 5-8 p.m., 37685 Five Mile near Newburgh, Livonia.
- Thursday, Oct. 10 from 5-8 p.m. at the Livonia store, 29583 Five Mile near Middlebelt, Livonia.
- Saturday, Oct. 26, 2-5 p.m., 28107 W. Eight Mile, Livonia.
- Saturday, Nov. 2, 9 a.m. to noon, 37685 Five Mile near Newburgh, Livonia.
- Saturday, Oct. 5, 9 a.m. to noon, 27330 Plymouth Road near Inkster, Redford.

New resource available for 'cyberhounds'

O&E ONLINE

EMORY DANIELS

Time goes by fast when you are having fun, and I just can't remember how long ago I wrote a column about the new database guide released by Gale Research in Detroit.

It must have been about a year ago, because Cheryl McDonald has let me know that Gale Research has come out with its second edition, this one with the much more interesting title of "Cyberhound's Guide to Internet Databases." (The first edition was labeled "The Gale Guide to Internet Databases."

A thousand databases were added to the second edition, making a total of 2,748 domestic and international database listings. For each there is a description, evaluation, and information on how to access.

Cyberhound uses nontechnical language to tell about government, academic, research, educational databases. New to this edition is a rating system that evaluates each database's content, design, and ease of use.

Ratings range from one to four stars in three areas:

- Content ratings cover comprehensiveness, authoritativeness, scope and timeliness;
- Design ratings deal with use of graphics, layout and overall concept;
- Technical merit ratings provide information on ease of navigation, searchability, logic of presentation, and validity of links.

"Web sites are being continuously developed, and anybody with space on a server can put their stuff out there," explains Gwen Turecki, Cyberhound editor. "This creates a dilemma — the information that users may need is probably on the Internet, but how do they find it, evaluate it and quickly sort through the good, bad and the ugly to find information that suits their needs?

"This is where Cyberhound comes to the rescue. We could've rated sites by our mood of the moment, but we didn't. We created a checklist of objective criteria for each site that our experts used to determine how a database would rate."

To make location of databases easy to find in the guide, Cyberhound (under Gwen's direction, of course) created five indexes: master, subject, host/provider, white pages, and alternate format.

The announcement Cheryl sent piqued my imagination with some

■ '. . .The information that users may need is probably on the Internet, but how do they find it, evaluate it and quickly sort through the good, bad and the ugly . . . ?'

Gwen Turecki
Cyberhound editor

examples, such as The Moan and Groan Page at http://www.wwwz.tsixroads.com/moan/ which tries to give advice on how to avoid buying lemons (unless you need a lemon) or free access to 55,000 jobs via The Monster Board at http://www.monster.com.

Among the interesting sites listed in Cyberhound were Classical Music Home Page, NETworth, and Treasures of the Czars. But I won't give the URLs for these sites; otherwise, why would you be interested in looking at Cyberhound. So if you are interested at all, go to Gale's home page at http://www.gale.com or call 800-877-GALE.

Founded in 1954, Gale Research is a leading reference publisher with more than 600 active databases. Located in Detroit's Penobscot Building, Gale servers the information needs of libraries, businesses, nonprofit organizations, and consumers via print, online and CD-ROM products.

This Week's Jewels

- Speaking of databases, Kitty Bennett, who is news researcher for the St. Petersburg Times, shares her discovery of the Great Fat Cats database at http://www.mojones.com/coinop_congress/mojo_400/mojo_400.html. "Has everybody but me already noticed the Mother Jones 400, an interactive database of — as they put it — "the fattest of the Fat Cats."

I'm backgrounding one of them now, and as part of my routine noodling around I always check web sites just for fun. I just stumbled across this list this afternoon. They have meaty, and actually pretty amusing, profiles of the Fat Cats, and simple explanations of bundling, soft money, etc." I shared the job Mother Jones is doing in an earlier column on politics or campaign financing.

- Gleason Sackman of the Net-Happenings List discovered a site of political cartoons at http://imageserve.com/cartoonery.html where surfers will find humorous, tasteful, political color cartoons. The site was displayed on CNN in August. There also are quizzes, polls, audio impersonations. Order birthday cards and t-shirts from the White House and t-shirts.
- Mike Schelling of Ft. Washington, Md., feels many onliners will want to check out the Heart & Stroke Guide at http://www.amhrt.org/heartg/ab16.htm to access information on almost 300 subjects from the American Heart Association. Among the topics covered are Adams-Stokes disease, ambulatory cardiac catheterization, aspirin and heart attacks, a trial fibrillation, blood pressure levels, brain attack, chelation therapy, chicken skin, cholesterol in children, dental care and heart disease, desirable weight table, diabetesmellitus, dining out, infants and diet, innocent heart murmurs, Kawasaki disease, Marfan Syndrome, Mediterranean Diet, Spanish materials, stroke symptoms and warning signs, Wolff-Parkinson-White Syndrome, women and heart disease.

SPRING Newspapers have your winning number in suburban Detroit.

SPRING's audited circulation is a sure bet.

It's no gamble. Buying SPRING Newspapers in suburban Detroit is a sure bet. Why risk your newspaper media dollars on an unaudited circulation? When you buy SPRING Newspapers, you're buying the largest audited circulation in suburban Detroit. The Detroit News and the Free Press have yet to issue a current ABC audit, so there's no telling how many papers are being printed – and who's receiving them. SPRING Newspapers are not only a sure bet, they're also a smart bet. For example:

- 48% of adults in the SPRING survey area read SPRING weekly and daily newspapers.
- SPRING has an audited circulation of 761,885.
- SPRING delivers, on average, 1,060,000 total readers every week.*
- That means that SPRING delivers 1,167,000 gross impressions for an entire week.

Compare these numbers to your other media alternatives; only 37% of adults in the SPRING market read the weekday Detroit Free Press or The Detroit News.†

More suburban Detroit readers turn to SPRING.

- SPRING delivers more weekday suburban readers with household incomes over $60,000.
- SPRING delivers more suburban homeowners (51%) than any other weekday newspaper.

To find out more about the Detroit market and for more information about our current audit, call the SPRING Newspaper Network at 1-800/382-8878.

Revue campaigns for 'Undecided'

STORY BY KEELY WYGONIK • STAFF WRITER

You'll laugh, and want to return for more giggles, after watching the Second City – Detroit's eighth revue, "One Nation Undecided," which received a standing ovation on opening night, Sept. 26.

The talented cast — Joshua Funk, Grant Krause, Rico Bruce Wade, Larry Campbell, Kim Greene and Angela Shelton delivers steady laughs, and there's never a lull or dull moment. Celebrating its third anniversary, Second City – Detroit has put down roots. Without a doubt, this high energy revue is Motown all the way. Second City – Detroit has finally found a voice of its own.

"There ain't nothing wrong with being 'One Nation Undecided,' " is the theme of this revue, which gleefully gallops through a variety of controversial political, social, and cultural issues including racism, homosexuality, suicide, smoking, AIDS, and the presidential election.

Musical direction by Chad Krueger is first-rate. Krueger, who spent four years with the Second City National Touring Company, has acted in plays, and jumps into the action adding a dimension that wasn't a part of previous shows.

The stage is seasonally dressed in red, white and blue, there's an American flag in the background. "All the crazy people come from Michigan — gateway to Toledo, the only state you can make with your hands," opens this zany politically incorrect, or correct show, depending on your viewpoint. They're at the Democratic National Convention, about to cast their votes for Clinton, there's a rousing chorus of "Hail, Hail to Michigan the Psychos of the West," with references to some of our illustrious residents including Jack Kevorkian.

Satire is the truth before anyone thinks it, and no Second City – Detroit show would be complete without a skit about racism. Unfortunately, in spite of efforts by many people to bridge the "Eight Mile Gap," Detroit remains "One City Racially Divided."

"Slipped A Discus," the last show, told of a frightened white suburbanite sure the black (savage) parking lot attendant stole her car. The car is found, only to be stolen by a white man from Warren.

In this show, racism, and people's preconceived notions of it, are explored on a different level raising cultural and economic issues as well.

Miss Angela is black, and lives in Birmingham. She's in the hot tub with her boyfriend, and decides to go outside to talk to the Lawn Guy, (Rico Bruce Wade) who is also black. The Lawn Guy has worked for her family for 10 years, but she's never talked to him, until now, after attending an athletic event at Pershing High School in Detroit. Racial myths are exploded through casual conversation.

"How often do you talk to my parents?" she asks. "About once a week," he replies. "So do I," she answers.

Making conversation, she says, "my mother is having an Urban Club meeting and went to Somerset Mall to get some black art to hang on the wall, but they didn't have any." "Where'd you get it, he asks, 'Blacks-Are-Us?'"

From there the talk turns to her going to Pershing High School. "It was like, totally scary," she says. "I had to put the Club on my jeep and everything. One of the students called me an Oreo, and my mother said, 'well honey they aren't you're friends.'

"I know you don't think we're black enough for you. But I am dealing with some serious issues in that hot tub, and I can't deal with you, and your attitude. I'm sorry I don't listen to WJLB or live in the ghetto. It's not my fault I don't fit in, Eight Mile seems awful wide. Where do all the black people hang out?"

Her boyfriend comes out to check on her, talks to the Lawn Guy in a patronizing sort of way, telling him what a great job he's doing with the lawn, and leaves. But Angela's opinion of the Lawn Guy changes, he becomes a person, and she Angela, instead of Miss Angela.

From there, the revue skips merrily along, zinging and zagging with funny songs like "I'm in love with teacher, she's the Square Root of my heart," to serious issues like AIDS, sexually transmitted diseases, and drug use. A young couple, engaged to be married, learns about each other's transgressions while answering a questionnaire in the doctor's office as they wait for blood test results, nervously singing, "Getting to Know You."

The cast gets the audience on their feet in a skit about funding cuts in Detroit Public Schools. There are no instruments, but the band has a concert to present. Band director, (Grant Krause) leads as cast, and audience play keys, stomp their feet, make mouth noises, and sing. It all comes together harmoniously in a rousing version of "Twist and Shout."

The stadium issue is tackled by two football players who happen to be gay — "I like Pontiac, there's so much to do. It's OK to be gay in Pontiac, like Ginsberg and Kerouac."

This show is about diversity, and understanding — "I have money, I am broke. I like Pepsi, I like Coke. I like 'Friends' I like "ER" —its message — "Ain't nothing wrong with being one big nation undecided," comes across loud and clear.

Old Village sets scene for craft show

SPECIAL WRITER

Diane Quinn thought it was about time to present a craft show in Plymouth's historic Old Village. Quinn founded Art in the Park in Plymouth 15 years ago with 30 artists. Last July, more than 350 exhibitors displayed their wares in and around Kellogg Park. Now, Quinn has the same vision for Old Village only on a smaller scale.

Browse through more than 50 booths at the first Old Village Craft Fair this weekend. The show will start in Cannon Park on Starkweather, wind through Cobblestone Alley then down to Spring and Liberty, where in the 1800s village shops housed a collection of dry goods, groceries and general merchandise. Santas of every description from ones made of vintage fabrics and quilts by Peggy Bonbrisco to 5 foot wood Old St. Nicks by David Hacker will be displayed along with handmade beeswax candles and brooms by Ron Lindgren of Hillsdale, and country wood crafts and tole painting by Debbie and Chris Bonbright of Westland.

Lindgren will demonstrate hand (tying) brooms; the Bonbrights, techniques of tole painting. There will also be painted slates; framed pressed flowers; stained glass; offset lithographs of technical drawings featuring steam locomotives; wood by Paul Kowalczuk of Canton; personalized drawings of professions, sports and hobbies by Todd Berlinski of Northville, and oil paintings and watercolors by Hugh Burley and Sharon Dillenbeck of D & M Art Studio in Plymouth.

"Come and enjoy the village marketplace filled with old fashioned charm in a unique historical setting," said show coordinator Diane Quinn of Plymouth.

ARTISTS CREATE WORKS "OUT OF SOLITUDE"

Redford sculptor Evelyn Bachorkski-Bowman is one of one hundred women artists showcased in the exhibit "Out of Solitude" continuing through Oct. 12 at the Michigan Gallery, 2261 Michigan Avenue in Detroit. The show was curated by Marianne Letassi of the Detroit Institute of Arts.

An admirer of master sculptors Rodin and Donatello, Bowman earned her master of fine arts degree in sculpture from Wayne State University in Detroit. Her goal is to capture the human figure and spirit in her work in the tradition of figurative art. Her sculpture has been exhibited at the Focus Gallery and the Scarab Club in Detroit.

Hours for the Michigan Gallery show run 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday, and until 5 p.m. Thursday through Saturday. For more information call (313) 961-7867.

OPENING RECEPTION

Canton artist Jim Isakson opens a one man show of his paintings with a reception 5-9 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 5 at the Clique Gallery, 200 W. Fifth in Royal Oak.

According to Isakson, the title "Surge," refers to the energy and basic physics found in his work. A graduate of Center for Creative Studies in Detroit, Isakson paints three dimensional illusion in a two dimensional format, blending a variety of styles from Surrealism to Impressionism. His works have been exhibited in the "Art of the Garden" exhibition at the University of Michigan's Matthaei Botanical Gardens in Ann Arbor and the Canton Project Arts Gallery Showing of Fine Art.

For more information call the gallery (810) 545-2200.

SHARING THE GIFT WITHIN

The fourth annual fine art show "Sharing the Gift Within You" takes place Oct. 5-11 at First Presbyterian Church, 200 East Main Street in Northville. Admission is free.

The juror was Edee Joppich of Farmington Hills, a well known artist, respected juror and teacher at the Visual Arts Association of Livonia. She owns Joppich's Bay Street Gallery in Northport.

Hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 5 through Thursday, Oct. 10, and until 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 8. Lunch is served 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Tuesday-Thursday. For more information call (810) 349-0911.

OCTOBER EXHIBITS

A one woman show of Kay Rowe's watercolors continues through Oct. 21 at the Downtown Farmington Public Library, 23500 Liberty. This is the Canton artist's first solo exhibit. It features recent paintings, many of which are celebrations of nature and the seasons, family and friends, and recent travels.

From Oct. 21 to 31 Rowe will feature the artists of her studio in Plymouth. Less than a year old, the studio is comprised of artists of all levels from beginners to seasoned exhibitors.

Farmington Library hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, until 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday, and 1-5 p.m. Sunday. For information call (810) 474-7770.

dating back from the Civil War to the early 1900s. A portion of the proceeds of their sales will be donated to the Plymouth Historical Museum to assist in further preservation of treasured photographs.

Besides woodcut prints of people, ducks and sailboats by Michael McCullough of Redford, fair visitors will have the opportunity to paint ceramic tiles at the Plymouth Community Arts Council's booth.

Diana Licht, a merchant on North Mill, is excited about the fair. She hopes people will take time out from viewing the crafts to stop into Petticoats, a shop selling children's and women's unique handmade clothing, many of which are cut from vintage fabrics. Licht spent the summer showing her wares at festivals in Northern Michigan.

"Dianne Quinn puts on such a great show, I'm sure it's going to draw large crowds and that can only benefit the merchants in Old Village," said Licht who will also display hand painted furniture by Plymouth artist Debbie Malek.

Lori Carollo agrees with Licht that the fair will give Old Village merchants exposure. She co-owns Picadilly's, a shop specializing in decoratives for the home and garden, with Paul Bezaire. Local artists will be painting furniture in their adjoining garden during the craft show.

"Even if they don't come in during the fair, I know eventually they'll come back and stop in," said Carollo, a native of Naples, Florida where small shops, not malls, are all the rage.

Other merchants and restaurants will also participate in the event. Station 885 will offer an Octoberfest menu; Harvey's Olde Village Deli, outdoor cooking and live entertainment on the deck, and the Lower Town Grille in conjunction with Fleetwood Foundation Charities, appetizers and refreshments in a tent on Liberty. The Robin's Nest Antique Mall will spotlight Glen Allen painting a mural on the side of the building. Inside, there will be a display of his artwork and sculpture.

Recital features Polish composers

Pianist Leszek Bartkiewicz will present a piano recital featuring Polish composers 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 6 in the Shrine Chapel on the Orchard Lake Schools' campus in Orchard Lake, (Orchard Lake Road at Commerce).

Tickets are $10 in advance, $12 at the door, call (810) 683-0428 for information.

Bartkiewicz is artist in residence at Orchard Lake Schools, and has performed extensively in Europe and the U.S.

His Oct. 6 program includes — "Roses and Thorns" by Juliusz Zarembski; "Introduction and Toccata" by Ignancy Paderewski; and "First Ballad in G Minor" by Fryderyk Chopin.

Bead Bonanza offers beads, beads, beads

LINDA ANN CHOMIN

Plymouth glass artist Don Schneider has a message for bead lovers. Whether you collect beads, string them, or simply admire the way they look when used in jewelry, incorporated in artworks or embroidered on clothes, the second annual Bead Bonanza hosted by the Great Lakes Beadworkers Guild is the place to be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 6 at the Van Dyke Park Hotel, Van Dyke Avenue between 13 and 14 Mile in Warren. Admission is $2 for adults, children age 6 and under free. For information call (810) 977-5935.

Schneider along with Fred Birkhill, University of Michigan art professor and Albert Young, Center for Creative Studies glass professor and owner of the Michigan Hot Glass Studio in Pontiac, will be demonstrating beadmaking and lampworking skills at 11 a.m., 1 p.m. and 3 p.m. All three are nationally-known glass artists.

"Glass beadmaking preceded the invention of the blow pipe by about 2,500 years. Part of the idea for the show is educating people about beadmaking and working. It's not hard to imagine this show becoming the premier show in the Midwest in a few years," said Schneider who recently returned from giving similar demonstrations in Seattle, Chicago and Boston.

Schneider has clearance from the Warren fire chief and is licensed by the Detroit Fire Department to demonstrate his techniques over a torch burning at 3,800 degrees Fahrenheit. Visitors, mesmerized by the flame, can watch as he makes millefiori (Italian for a thousand flowers) beads. Using a hot glass technique is risky business. Twirling the literally red-hot glowing glass rods over an open flame requires an intense amount of concentration.

"It's very safe and we're very careful about what we do," Schneider said.

Last year's show included 30 vendors. This year Bead Bonanza chairperson Posey Macedonia of Troy looks forward to presenting 41 bead vendors from Tallahassee to Virginia Beach and Royal Oak. Every kind of bead imaginable from handmade collectible art beads to imported glass, ethnic and antique will be on hand along with books, findings, tools, and glass beadmaking equipment. A 60 item bead auction, silent until 2 p.m. when Schneider takes over the calling chores, features loose as well as finished pieces such as earrings and necklaces donated by vendors and Guild members. The auction is a benefit for The Bead Museum in Prescott, Arizona. It was founded by 82 year old Gabrielle Liese who spent decades traveling and collecting beads and finished jewelry to display at the museum. The Bead Society of Greater Washington is assuming caretaker duties to provide the museum with more space and staff. The auction will help raise money to assist in the upkeep of the museum and the move from Arizona to Washington, D.C.

"I'm really excited the show has grown and for that many people to be excited about being in it. We'll have everything from delica's from Japan to chicklet beads of figurines like little dogs and cats, and wonder beads from Hummingbeads. It's the only show of this type in the state. The others are wholesale shows; the public isn't allowed," said Macedonia who knits beads into new purses as well as restores antique evening bags. Her work is available at Complements in Lake Orion.

Gerry Dimond, owner of Findings bead store in Ann Arbor, is one of the vendors. She will bring seed beads, Japanese and Czechoslovakian glass beads, tools, and supplies. A member of the GLBG, Dimond opened her shop two years ago after leaving a 9 to 5 job because she "wanted to be around creative people."

"I think more people are tapping into their creative selves. Many of the women who come into Findings are working women, people looking for a creative outlet. Most of the techniques used to put finished pieces together in beadworking are fairly easy. You don't need a lot to start with," said Dimond.

Donny Osmond continues recovery, makes cameo appearance

BY MATT JACHMAN
STAFF WRITER

Donny Osmond has not recovered enough from damaged vocal cords to reclaim the title role in the musical "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat," a role he has been singing since June of 1992.

Not to worry. Sam Harris is getting fantastic word-of-mouth reviews as Osmond's replacement. The show continues at Detroit's Fox Theatre through Saturday, Oct. 12.

Osmond is back on stage, however, putting in a cameo following closing bows for a brief speech – and praise of Harris' performance.

Osmond dropped out in August during the show's Boston run. He was expected back for the Detroit opening of "Dreamcoat" last month, but was still not properly healed. Last week, Livent Inc., the show's producer, announced that an ultrasound test had found residual swelling of Osmond's vocal cords.

A Livent Inc. spokesperson said doctors are optimistic that Donny will be able to perform, at some point, in the Detroit production, but don't have an exact date. The doctors report that no permanent injury has been done to Donny's vocal chords, and are monitoring his progress day by day.

"Dreamcoat," an early Andrew Lloyd Webber-Tim Rice collaboration, is based on the Biblical story of a young man who rose to power in Pharaoh's court because of his ability to interpret dreams. The current production casts local children as backing singers and dancers for its run in each city. In Detroit, four choirs were combined to make two "Dreamcoat" choirs that divide performances. They are the Redford Youth Theatre Choir and the Boychoir of Ann Arbor (the show's Calypso choir) and the Courville Concert Choir and the Young People's Theatre Troubadours (the Go Go choir).

Carla Freshwater, 15, of Canton Township, is with the Ann Arbor-based Troubadours.

"It's a lot of fun. It's really cool to work with the professional people," said Carla, a sophomore at Plymouth Canton High School. Carla quickly became a fan of Harris'. "I guess the show can go on without Donny. Sam Harris is so good," she said. She is near the front of the stage at the show's beginning. "He like bends down and sings to me. It's so cool."She recently met Osmond, too. "He is super nice."

The show requires intense commitment: rehearsals for much of August and an average of four shows a week starting Sept. 8. On show nights, Carla leaves home at 5:30 p.m. and doesn't get back until after midnight. And it's physically demanding. "We're on for like 95 percent of the show."The four local choirs have had time to socialize, and members get along well together, Carla said. They are even encouraged to write their counterparts in other cities.

Appearing at the Fox has made Carla rethink her future goals."After seeing this show, it's like, 'Oh my gosh, I could do this,' " she said.

"Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" continues at the Fox Theatre through Oct. 12. Call (810) 433-1515 for tickets or (313) 983-6611 for more information.

Sample the LSO Sunday

Savory samples — food and music — await at the Livonia Symphony Orchestra's season kick-off — "Sunday Symphony, Savory Samplings & Silent Auction," 6 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 6 at Laurel Park Place on Six Mile Road at Newburgh in Livonia. Tickets are $25 in advance, $30 at the door. Call (313) 421-1111 or (313) 464-2741.

"This event allows people an opportunity to hear the Livonia Symphony Orchestra, led by our world-renowned conductor, Volodymyr Schesiuk, in an informal, fun setting. Volodymyr was the former resident conductor of the famous Bolshoi Theater in Moscow," said event co-chairperson Justine Raymond. The symphony will be performing show tunes, and other crowd-pleasers.

Over 35 of metro Detroit's most popular restaurants, bakeries and caterers will be offering a taste of their specialties. Participants include the Botsford Inn, Copper Creek Restaurant, DePalma's, Genghis Khan, Great Harvest Bread Company, Heritage Bakery, Laurel Manor & Fonte D'Amore, Carver's, Mary Denning's Cake Shoppe, Thomas's Family Dining, and Water Club Seafood Grill.

"It's a food lover's delight," said Raymond who is chairing the event with Pat Sari.

Guests will have the opportunity to bid on a variety of items, including gift certificates for fine area restaurants, in the silent auction. Some of the top prizes are Northwest Airline round trip for two to any where in the U.S., four tickets (private suite) to a Piston's game at the Palace of Auburn Hills, weekend ski trip to Boyne Mountain, and a dinner party for eight at Fonte D'Amore.

The Livonia Symphony Orchestra season premiere — "Evening Fantasy" — 7:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 19, in the J.P. Carli Auditorium, Churchill High School, Newburgh at Joy Road, Livonia, features guest violinist Yuri Mazurkevich. Season, and concert tickets are now on sale. Call (313) 421-1111 for more information.

RECEPTIONS

THE ART GALLERY
Featured artists for October in the Pontiac Oakland Society of Artists gallery at Great Oaks Mall, Walton and Livernois, Rochester Hills, are sculptor Keith Baker and painters Bonnie Brede, Arlene Brown and Catherine Buffet. Reception to meet the artists 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 5. Baker creates action figures, both human and animal, in stoneware ceramic and wire. Brown paints in watercolor, interpreting flowers and fruit. Brown's watercolor subjects include landscapes, seascapes and familiar birds. Buffet works in acrylic, recalling her travels to the American Southwest as well as creating more general expressions in the medium. Call (810) 651-1579.

ARTQUEST GALLERY
"Art By Women, For Women, About Women," an exhibit of functional and decorative objects in glass, clay, wood and metal, jewelry and wearable art, continues to Oct. 31 at 185 N. Woodward, Birmingham. Opening reception 6-9 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 3. The display is presented in honor of Breast Cancer Awareness Month. Ten percent of all sales for the month of October will be contributed to the Reach to Recovery program of the American Cancer Society. Call (810) 540-2484.

CRANBROOK ART MUSEUM

PHILLIP CARUS

Sweet success: Steve Zahn, Jonathon Schaech, Tom Everett Scott, Liv Tyler and Ethan Embry react when they learn that their signature song is rising to the top of the charts in "That Thing You Do!"

Hanks mines rock's last innocent days

TICKETS PLEASE

JOHN MONAGHAN

With "That Thing You Do!" first-time director Tom Hanks has created a feature-length version of "Happy Days." His idealized America in 1964 is seen through the eyes of a talented young drummer whose rock band hits the top of the charts.Practicing nightly in an Erie, Pennsylvania garage, the Wonders have picked up the licks and spirit of The Beatles, troubadours of the British Invasion. Their signature song, "That Thing You Do!" lands them first prize in a local talent competition and a weekend gig at a pizza restaurant by the airport.

It's all uphill from there — almost. Soon they're playing state fairs, signed by Playtone Records and represented by a slick manager (played by Tom Hanks). He wrangles them a small part in a beach movie and then instant fame on an Ed Sullivan-like variety show.

The director has found an alter ego in Tom Everett Scott, whose drummer Guy Patterson looks like a young version of Hanks: cute, a little gawky, naturally talented, and just oozing sincerity. Seeing him and Hanks together on screen looks more like father and son than musician and manager.

The drummer is usually the goofy one, but the gags here go mostly to Lenny, the guitar player, who himself resembles a young Jeff Daniels. This "Muppet Babies" approach to casting brings a certain comfort level to the movie, but also hints at how formulaic it all is.

The music, by Howard Shore, captures the period well. It's a credit to the title song that I barely got sick of hearing it even after a dozen times. As in the infinitely more ambitious "Grace of My Heart," the movie has our heroes interact with thinly-disguised versions of real-life performers of the time.

Set in the months shortly after the JFK assassination, the movie has done its homework fairly well. It mines the usual pop culture icons and also tips a hat to Richard Lester's "A Hard Day's Night," especially in a montage in which the boys tumble across a yard-sized map of the United States.

Hanks, who also wrote the script, treats this story without a trace of irony. He gets caught up in the optimism of the band and of the time, best seen in the moment where Lenny, awed by the thousands who have come to see them, asks Guy, "How did we get here?"

But the honesty that Hanks has made a career out in his own performances doesn't always translate to "That Thing You Do!" Like the title song, it's got a nice beat, you can dance to it, but it's also so derivative of things we've encountered before that it's barely worth sitting through again.

Hanks falls especially short in the romantic department, keeping a girl on the side who you just know Guy is going to fall for. She's played by Liv Tyler, who, like contemporary Cameron Diaz, has chosen a strange plate of films (including Bertolucci's "Stealing Beauty") to make her a star.

And, strangely enough, this may be the only irony: In a movie about one-hit wonders, "That Thing You Do!" helps make Tyler little more than this year's model.

SCREEN SCENE

A sampling of what's playing at alternative movie theaters across metro Detroit as reviewed by John Monaghan.

Birmingham Theatre211 S. Woodward, Birmingham. Call (810) 644-FILM for information. ($6.50; $4.25 matinees and seniors)

• "Basquiat" (USA - 1996). Artist-turned-director Julian Schnabel's account of the life of contemporary Jean-Michel Basquiat, a New York graffiti artist who rose to fame in the 1980s. Co-starring Gary Oldman, Dennis Hopper, and David Bowie as an appropriately spacey Andy Warhol.

• "Stonewall" (USA - 1996). A fictionalized account of the real Greenwich Village uprising in 1969 that launched the modern gay rights movement.

Detroit Film Theatre5200 Woodward, Detroit. Call (313) 832-2730 for information. ($5.50; $4.50 students/seniors)

• "Cold Fever" (Iceland/USA - 1995). Oct. 4 - 6 (call for showtimes). A young Tokyo executive, anticipating a golf vacation in Hawaii, is instead compelled to visit a remote outpost in Iceland.

• "Who Killed Pasolini?" (Italy - 1995). 7 p.m. Oct. 7. An eye-opening dramatization of the death of the controversial Italian author and filmmaker Pier Paolo Pasolini.

Magic Bag Theatre22920 Woodward, Ferndale. Call (810) 544-3030 for information. ($2)

• "Superfly" (USA - 1980). 9:30 p.m. Oct. 9. Some would call it the quintessential 1970s' blaxploitation film, about a sharp-dressing Harlem drug dealer out for one last score. Curtis Mayfield supplies the incredible soundtrack.

Main Art Theatre118 N. Main Street at 11 Mile, Royal Oak. Films play through at least Thursday, unless noted otherwise. Call (810) 542-0180 for information and showtimes. ($6.50; $4 students, seniors and matinee; $3 twilight)

• "Big Night" (USA - 1996). A pair of brothers try to run an authentic Italian restaurant in the 1950s but discover that most people want simple spaghetti and meatballs. An independent comedy co-directed by and starring Stanley Tucci.

• "Wallace and Grommit: The Best of Aardman Animation." The work of British animator Nick Park is highlighted in this entertaining compilation. Commercials and short cartoons are mere warmups for the 30-minute "A Close Shave," last year's Oscar-winning cartoon about a wacky English inventor and his faithful pooch. Starts Friday.

• "Giant" (USA - 1956). "Gone With the Wind" wears a Stetson in this epic melodrama starring Elizabeth Taylor and Rock Hudson. Both are shown up by James Dean, in his final performance as ranchhand-turned-millionaire Jett Rink. Starts Friday.

Eels' single slithers through need for numbness

STAFF WRITER

Eels fans have had high expectations for the quirky alternapop band ever since the Mark Romanek-lensed video for its single "Novocaine for the Soul" was named an MTV "Buzz Clip."

"We really know how to fly," singer/guitarist/keyboardist E said during a recent phone conversation from Framingham, Mass. "The problem is now at concerts people are expecting us to fly. But we could either fly or channel all our energy into rocking as hard as we can and giving them the best show that we can. If they want flying, they should go to a Kiss concert. We might spit blood, though, maybe not intentionally."

Fans can try to convince the band otherwise when it opens for Poe at the 7th House in Pontiac on Wednesday, Oct. 9.

Eels formed after Virginia native E (ne Mike Edwards), who put out two solo albums – 1992's "A Man Called E" and 1993's "Broken Toy Shop" – on Polydor Records, met his bandmates during a jam session at Mint, a Los Angeles club.

"I was perfectly happy being a solo artist and figured I always would be one," E explained. "The songs on 'Beautiful Freak' were actually meant to be my third solo album. But I met Butch and Tommy along the way. I was so impressed with our chemistry as a live band, I decided to swallow my pride and be a band member. It's really exciting. It's really fun to be a part of a band. It's a completely different dynamic."

After gigging around town in late 1995, the band met Michael Simpson of the production team the Dust Brothers (Beck, Beastie Boys), who was by then an A&R rep for DreamWorks. Earlier this year, the band signed with the label and began selecting songs for "Beautiful Freak."

"We could have gotten a bigger deal with another label, but I really wanted to sign with DreamWorks because of the people who work there. These are some of the most well-respected people in the business."

The label is founded by David Geffen and run by the legendary Warner Bros. executive team of Mo Ostin, his son Michael, and Lenny Waronker.

Although Simpson, Mark Goldenberg, and Jen Brien co-produced "Beautiful Freak," E was the primary knob-turner.

"I'm the beautiful control freak," he said with a laugh.

"Beautiful Freak" slithers through pop-soul, hip-hop, guitar rock, jazzy samples, and a touch of Motown influence as heard in the opening to "Novocaine for the Soul." To pay homage to his influence, E said that he hopes to visit the Motown Museum while he's in town.

"We're a modern version of Motown, I think, in a way because what we do is we try to put this life-affirming element in the music that's like an extra lyric. That keeps our record different from the others that are wallowing in depression. That's what the whole Motown thing was about. It's obviously a different thing here but I've always understood why that is a powerful thing," he said.

"(It says), 'I'm sad but it's OK to be sad. I'm gonna survive.' I've already gave up and bounced back."

"Beautiful Freak" digs deep in the trenches of being an outsider. Alternately lush and painstakingly honest, "Susan's House" explores the urban yet bohemic nature of his Los Angeles neighborhood. The simplicity of the statement "Goin' over to Susan's house/I can't be alone tonight" is quickly followed by the harsh reality of Echo Park, "Down by the Donut Prince, a 15-year-old boy lies on the sidewalk with a bullet in his forehead/In a final act of indignity the paramedics take off all his clothes for the whole world to see while they put him in the bag," a narrative told over a hip-hop beat.

The morose song "Guest List" confronts the empty feeling of being left off a guest list at a club, and the attitude of the bouncers who don't believe that the person is supposed to be on the list: "Wanna be of the beautiful people/Wanna feel like I'm missed/Hey you with the walkie-talkie/ I know my clothes are not right/I wish I had my own walkie-talkie/ that reached to God every night/Everyone needs to be somebody/Everyone needs to find someone who cares/But I don't know if you know what I mean 'cause I'm/Never on your list."

The need to feel numb is dealt with in the lead-off single, "Novocaine for the Soul" : "Life is good/ and I feel great/ 'cause mother says I was a/ great mistake/Novocaine for the soul/You'd better give me somethin'/ to fill the hole/Before the sputter out."

"It's a song about being afraid to feel," E explained. "I wanted to write a non-judgmental view of our need for numbness and it's kind of the opposite of what the record's about."

"The album's about getting to the bottom of whatever's on the surface; to get in touch with what you're feeling. That's what it is for me. I wanted to be unblinkingly naked on these songs and 'Novocaine For The Soul' is a complicated song. It's unblinkingly naked about the need to not be naked."

Poe, Eels and Pure perform Wednesday, Oct. 9, at the 7th House, 7 N. Saginaw, Pontiac. Tickets are available at Ticketmaster for the 18 and older show. Tickets from the originally scheduled show, Sept. 2, will be honored. Doors open at 8 p.m. For more information, call (810) 335-8100.

Songwriter likes musical experimentation

CHRIISTINA FUOCO

Mark Kozelek, singer/guitarist/songwriter for the San Francisco band Red House Painters, appreciates the art of musical experimentation. So when it came time to record "Songs for a Blue Guitar" he continued that tradition – much to the dismay of his label, 4AD.

"They liked about 80 percent of it. They wanted to release the same record. They just wanted to leave some stuff off of it – 'Silly Love Songs,' and 'Make Like Paper,' " Kozelek explained.

True to Kozelek's form, he took the Paul McCartney staple "Silly Love Songs" and turned it into a 10 minute and 57 second somber tale.

"I think I can listen to songs that aren't very good and I can always hear a redeeming quality in them. ... I can listen to a song like 'Silly Love Songs' or 'Shock Me' by Ace Frehley and I can hear something that's good. It's just fun and challenging to cover songs that way – to take something and make it something to make it yours," Kozelek explained.

'They liked the real pretty side of our band. We have a side that to them is ugly but is beautiful in our way.'

Mark Kozelek
Red House Painters

Blended with the minimalist acoustic tracks are songs like "Make Like Paper," a rollicking, ragged song reminiscent of Neil Young and Crazy Horse. Pleased with his collection of songs, Kozelek wasn't about to leave either off the record.

"The things they wanted to do with the record I just felt like we would have been putting 'Ocean Beach' out again. I felt that those elements that they didn't like was what was growth for us. It was a change. ... They were caught up in a certain thing that we did. (On 'Songs for a Blue Guitar' the bare, acoustic track) 'Trailways' is a good example of that. They liked the real pretty side of our band. We have a side that to them is ugly but is beautiful in our way."

When talks broke down, Kozelek and his band left 4AD for Supreme Recordings/Island Records. Red House Painters, which formed in 1989 in San Francisco, had been with 4AD since the early 1990s and released five albums on the label including "Down Colorful Hill," which was a remixed version of their demo tape.

In 1993, the band recorded 23 songs which were released as two self-titled albums. Red House Painters followed that up with "Shock Me" EP, a cover of Ace Frehley's Kiss song, and 1995's "Ocean Beach."

"Songs for a Blue Guitar" originally was intended to be Kozelek's solo album for 4AD. During the recording process, Kozelek passed on his band – guitarist Phil Carney, bassist Jerry Vessel, and drummer Anthony Koutsos – and opted for John Hiatt's musicians to back him.

"I thought it would be more of an experiment to play with different musicians which I hadn't done in six or seven years," he said.

He ended up calling the record a Red House Painters project since the "whole switching labels thing took a really long time."

"It was in everybody's best interest to keep the name Red House Painters."

He has since reunited with his band and is touring with John Cale. The tour comes to St. Andrew's Hall, 431 E. Congress, Detroit, at 8 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 6. Tickets are $15.50 in advance for the 18 and older show. For more information, call (313) 961-MELT.

Dick O'Dows brings the old sod to Birmingham

BY JOE BAUMAN
STAFF WRITER

Dick O'Dows Irish Pub has taken Birmingham by storm since its opening two weeks ago, providing authentic cuisine and beverages in a fun and casual atmosphere easily mistaken for a pub on the Emerald Isle.

Dick O'Dows, 160 W. Maple in the site of the former Machus 160 restaurant, is the brainchild of co-owners Dick O'Connor and Peter Dow and managing partner Mitch Black. The pub is a franchise of the Irish Pub Co., a division of Guinness and one of only two in the United States.

Diners entering the restaurant will think they have been magically transported to Ireland, thanks to the meticulous detail that went into creating the interior. Much of the decor was brought over from Ireland, including the stone arch at the center of the bar which came from a quarry in Liscanner, Ireland, and was salvaged from a hospital near there built in the 18th century.

Heavy cups, tankards, swords and cookie tins adorn tables and chair railings along the walls, and three artists hired by the Irish Pub Co. spent a week placing Celtic lettering on the walls and using imagery on the ceilings to convey the feeling of being in Ireland. Guinness also exacted authenticity by sending technicians over to put the draft beer system in. Live Irish music is featured on weekends.

O'Dow, former president of the Campbell/Ewald ad agency, and O'Connor, who plans to retire at the end of the year as vice president of the firm, have big plans for their new venture. Additional sites are being scouted around the country, and a private food line may soon be showing up on the shelves of area specialty shops.

Dick O'Dows Irish Pub
Where: 160 W. Maple, downtown Birmingham (810) 642-1135.
Hours: 11 a.m.-2 a.m., seven days.
Menu: Traditional Irish fare with contemporary upgrades. Several vegetarian dishes, menu includes sandwiches, salads, many seafood selections, some beef and lamb.
Prices: Appetizers and snacks ($6.95-$8.95), snadwiches ($6.95-$9.50), entrees ($7.95-$16.95).
Reservations: None
Other: A special ventilation system makes the restaurant cigar-friendly; large non-smoking section available in back of restaurant.

On a recent visit, a dozen area members of the Ancient Order of Hibernians were on hand to sample the cuisine and atmosphere of Dick O'Dows, and gave both a big "thumbs up."

One member said Dick O'Dows was reminiscent of a typical pub in County Kerry, Ireland, while another called chef Joe Moriconi's Irish Stew "excellent."

Moriconi's presence in the kitchen is as much an oddity as the restaurant's presence in Birmingham. The chef describes himself as "Sicilian through and through," and has received most of his training in French technique with stints at Les Auteurs, Avenue Diner first under Ed Janos and then Mike Dunn, and finally at Jake's on the Lake before accepting his current assignment.

Moriconi has no formal education in the culinary arts, saying he is a graduate "of the school of hard knocks."

"I learned to cook at the knee of my grandmother," he explained. His philosophy for Dick O'Dows menu? "I just want to cook good, simple food and make people happy."

That includes obliging special requests from diners. "If I have it in the kitchen, I'll cook it." Most of the dishes were either created by Moriconi, or are "jazzed up" versions of traditional Irish fare.

Moriconi's menu includes nine, seafood dominated starters including Irish favorites Angels on Horseback, grilled-bacon wrapped oysters served with carrot chive coulis and brown bread ($7.95), rich, silky smoked salmon sliced thin and served with red onion relish, capers and brown bread ($7.95), and Dublin Coddle, described as traditional Irish grub with bacon, sausage, onions and potatoes stewed with herbs.

Four starters are offered including Farmhand's salad ($4.25), a mixture of mixed greens, cabbage, tomatoes, red onion, cucumbers, cheddar and bleu cheeses, hard cooked egg and ploughman's vegetables with pub dressing; a traditional Caesar salad and potato and leek soup, topped with fried leeks.

Eight sandwiches run from $4.25-$7.95, including the early crowd favorite, a grilled chicken club with cider marinated chicken breast served with bacon, greens, tomato and pub-made blackberry-apple marmalade; and the "screamin" steak sandwich, featuring grilled rib-eye with sauteed peppers, mushrooms, Swiss cheese and special sauce, named for the chef's nickname.

Ten entrees priced between $7.95 and $16.95 include traditional Irish dishes corned beef and cabbage ($9.95); Irish stew ($9.95) featuring lamb stewed with potatoes, onions, carrots and fresh herbs; Shepherd's Pie ($8.95), a combination of ground beef with mushrooms, carrots, peas and onions in a rich white sauce topped with a baked champ (mashed potatoes) and cheddar cheese; medallions of beef tenderloin grilled with Guinness sauce and served with champ and daily vegetable ($16.95); and Boxty ($12.95), a potato pancake stuffed with corned beef and cabbage.

Although no dessert is listed on the menu, be sure to ask a member of the wait staff for the daily offering. The entire staff trained for a month prior to the opening, learning about the cuisine and the 10 draft beers offered by the pint and half-pint including Guinness (of course), Harp's, Bass, Newcastle and other specialty beers. Wine drinkers will find a brief but well-selected list of reds and whites, as well as several sparkling wines. Several are offered by the glass.

McDonald's

McDonald's launched a new line of products — The Deluxe Line, at a press conference in Livonia on Sept. 26. "Our customers love our current line, but they wanted more variety. The Arch Deluxe has performed well in southeast Michigan, and we believe the Deluxe Line brand — (the Arch Deluxe, Crispy Chicken Deluxe, Grilled Chicken Deluxe, and Fish Filet Deluxe), will also be a hit with customers," said Dave Daniels, director of operations for the Detroit Regional Office of McDonald's in Southfield. "While our menu still features our traditional Classic favorites such as the Big Mac, our complete new line of 'Deluxe' sandwiches offer choices that have special appeal to grown up tastes. The sandwiches are now available at metro Detroit McDonald's. Daniels' said he has a preference for the new Crispy Chicken Deluxe — all white meat chicken breast, marinated with broth, salt, pepper and red chili, crispy breading, lettuce, tomato, mayonnaise on a bakery bun.

Troy living is the big draw at Stonecrest

People already living in Troy and familiar with the amenities of that community will be especially attracted to Stonecrest, a single-family platted subdivision, the developer/builder projects.

Fifty-four lots have been staked out by Saylor Building west off Dequindre between Long Lake and Square Lake roads.

"We built Long Lake Meadows five years ago, and we found people moved from one part of Troy to there," said Joseph M. Saylor. "We find that's happening again. People living in surrounding subs are ready for a change. They bring their neighbors, too."

Prices in Stonecrest range from $216,900 for a 2,280-square-foot two story with four bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths to $243,990 for a two story of 2,358 square feet with three bedrooms including a first-floor master and 2-1/2 baths.

"I really think one of the best things about the sub is there are no busy streets through here," Saylor said. "All roads are cul-de-sacs. For families, that's important. It's a nice, self-contained unit.

"Another big draw is Troy schools," he continued. "They're exemplary schools."

"It's close to Troy Beaumont (Hospital), close to M-59 and not far from I-75," said Claudia J. Tripp, sales director. "It's good pricing and square footage."

"Our floor plans are up to date for what people want – open foyers, walk-in closets," Saylor added.

Six floor plans are available.

Standard features at base price in all plans include fireplace, first-floor laundry with tub and cabinet, dishwasher, two-car attached garage and basement.

A little bonus storage area off the garage also is included in all plans.

Popular options include an upgraded trim package with crown molding ($3,500), air conditioning ($2,870), whirlpool tub ($1,975) and skylight ($750).

The model, a 2,738-square-foot colonial, features a library, living room, dining room, kitchen/nook with island and built-in desk, and family room with cathedral ceiling.

The master suite has a separate tub and shower and a walk-in closet. Two of the three secondary bedrooms also have walk-in closets. A second full bath also is upstairs.

The base price of the model is $238,990. The price as constructed with upgrades including landscaping is about $260,000.

About half of the buyers so far at Stonecrest have bought a new house before, and for half, it's a brand new experience.

"Our basic buyer to me is a middle manager or engineer who lives in Troy, has two or three kids probably 10 to 12 years of age or 10 to eight who doesn't want to leave Troy," Saylor said.

"Their main thing is the school system, in a nutshell," Tripp said.

"They see the quality of things we put in the home and are really amazed at some of the things that are standard – wood floor in the foyer, Merillat cabinets, our square footage.

"I always encourage them to go through as we're building so they can see the materials we're using as well as the quality of work," she said.

Tripp said she's also getting many inquiries from younger couples with no children.

Stonecrest is serviced by city water and city sewers. The sub will have sidewalks.

The property tax rate currently is $36.40 per $1,000 of state equalized valuation, half of market value. That means the owners of a $240,000 house would pay about $4,370 the first year.

Debbie and Jim Taylor, along with sons Jason and Jeff, will be moving to Stonecrest from a stone's throw away in Troy.

"We wanted to keep the kids in the same schools," Debbie said. "We went to some of his (Saylor's) other building sites and were pleased with the quality of construction.

"I wanted a colonial," Debbie said. "It had the master suite, it had a study. I like the cathedral ceiling in the family room and big, open kitchen area."

Ben and Lily Stroich also bought a colonial in Stonecrest for their family, which includes children Natalie, Andrew and Christina.

"Our first priority was more room that was well within our price range," Ben said. "I would say the kitchen, family room, nook area was nice and open for us. Upstairs had a very nice master bedroom with walk-in closets.

"We knew the Troy School District was a good school district," Stroich said.

The sales office at Stonecrest, (810) 828-7610, is open 1-6 p.m. daily, closed Thursdays.

MORTGAGE SHOPPING

DAVID MULLY

For the purchase of an existing home

How do you know that the house you have just selected to buy is worth the price the seller is asking?

One common way is to ask your Realtor for an analysis of area home prices. This is how John O'Brien, an associate broker with Real estate One in Northville, handles this question.

"When working with buyers, I give my customers a detailed statistical analysis of the homes that have recently sold in the subdivision in which the buyer's prospective home is located."

If enough data is not available within the subdivision O'Brien expands his area of reference to include homes within a square mile, in the same school district and of comparable size and style to the subject home.

This process helps demonstrate a range of value for a home in the current marketplace.

To gain an assessment, from the mortgage lender's point of view, the appraiser working for the lender uses the same approach, looking for the most comparable recent home sales located closest to the property.

For the purchase of a new construction home:

The relationship you establish with the buyer is important, and you should really feel comfortable with your choice. Before you make the big step of hiring a builder and signing a contract to build a new home, take a few minutes to consider just how much you know about this builder.

The most important issue when choosing a builder for a new home is researching the builder's background, according to Charlene Graham, a construction specialist with Old Kent Mortgage Co. in Farmington Hills.

"The buyer should check out the builder more thoroughly before signing a contract"

Charlene points out that there is a 900 number people can call to check out their builder. "You can call the Department of Licensing at 1-900-555-8374 with any complaints or disciplinary actions."

She adds that buyers should "read the contract. So many times I have seen disputes on what the buyer thought was included in the builder's contract and what was not included."

Make sure you read all the fine print.

Some other helpful hints to remember are:

- Ask your builder for references,
- Drive by some homes they have built,
- Talk to the owners to find out what their experience has been,
- Listen to the "word on the street" in the area they have done business in from lumber companies, and other suppliers.

Remember that when you sign a contract, you must be aware of just what portion of the construction process will be your responsibility and what exactly the builder's will be.

This way, you can avoid surprises that can make the whole experience unpleasant.

For the refinancing of your current home:

An important point to remember when refinancing is to consider prepayment penalties.

When taking out a no-points, no-closing-costs mortgage, often lenders will charge a prepayment penalty if you pay the loan off in the first few years of the mortgage.

The boom of refinancing over the last couple of years has caused lenders to rethink the prepayment penalty feature.

So many lenders lost money when people refinanced because the up-front cost for the lender to originate the loan was more substantial than the profit they received from the loan that was only on their books for a short time.

By still offering the no-points, no-cost loans, they can give homeowners what they want, that is, no out-of-pocket expense.

But, they now are getting the borrower to bear some of the risk or cost by asking them to pay this penalty if they do not hold on to the mortgage for at least the period of time it takes for the lender to break even.

The penalty usually lasts for the first three years you have the loan and equals one percent of the balance at the time of payoff.

Ten tips to prepare for the cold months

For most homeowners, household maintenance and improvements are ongoing year 'round. Luckily, there usually is a season when it is most appropriate to undertake particular tasks, so caring for a home need not be too overwhelming.

To get homeowners started, the CertainTeed Home Institute has prepared the following guide for maintenance and home improvements this season:

- Clean and store outdoor furniture. It will last longer and be more quickly available in the spring if it is cleaned and thoughtfully stored now.
- Clean gutters and downspouts to prevent serious damage to your home resulting from poor drainage. To clean them, choose a dry day since you'll need to stand on a ladder. Stand below the level of each gutter and using a towel, scoop out debris into a bag or onto the ground for sweeping up later.
- Upgrade attic insulation. If your home was built before 1980, chances are it needs more insulation to meet today's Department of Energy recommended levels for residential insulation.
- Maintain garage doors. Garage doors should slide smoothly when going up and down. Lubricate the rollers (the small wheels attached to the sides of the door) with a few drops of household oil or spray a small amount of silicone lubrication onto their spindles. Also check that the hinges are fastened securely to the door panels and tighten the screws if they are loose.
- Organize the garage. The goal of a well-functioning garage is to get everything you can off the floor. Walls, for instance, offer a wealth of storage opportunities. Hooks and pegboards are perfect for storing things like garden tools. Plastic bins or storage racks are good ideas as well.
- Caulk to prevent drafts. Caulking is a successful way to achieve a draft-proof home. Caulk around stationary parts of window and door frames, where house siding joins at corners or meets the roof eaves and foundation, around wall and roof vents, skylights and chimneys, around exterior water faucets and where other plumbing or electric wiring enters the home.
- Weatherstrip windows and doors. Drafty windows and doors rob heat from homes. Sealing them with weatherstripping is an easy, quick and effective cure to this problem. For double-hung windows, use channel stripping. For doors, seal the sides and tip of the door, then the bottom using foam edged wooden strips. Both products are available from your building materials retailer.
- Maintain storm windows and doors. Before the cold weather arrives, make minor repairs on storm doors and windows to prevent major annoyances later on. Rub frames and sashes with fine steel wool to rid them of corrosion. Then wipe with paste for further protection. Also, spray windows with silicone lubricant to keep sashes sliding smoothly.
- Prepare your heating system to begin working again. You can call a professional heating technician for inspection and service.
- Drain pipes to prevent freezing. The surest way to prevent pipes from freezing is to drain them before the colder weather arrives. To drain pipes supplying water to outside faucets, first close off the shutoff valves on the pipes supplying them. Next, open the faucets letting any water in the pipes run out and leave them open until the water supply is turned on again in the spring. Any water still in the pipes can expand if it freezes without creating damaging pressure.

2-story home plan offers great living

Imagine an exquisite master suite, isolated for your complete privacy, fitted with such amenities as a vaulted ceiling over a generous sleeping area, a huge walk-in closet, private bathroom with twin basins and personal access to a back deck with a roomy built-in spa waiting to ease the tensions of the day.

This is only one of the outstanding features available to you in the 2,714-square-foot Pensive. This remarkable two-story home is a perfect fit for a family with college-age children or aging parents living in the household.

The upper floor of the Pensive is practically an apartment in itself. It has two good-sized bedrooms, one with a built-in writing desk, that any student will appreciate.

There is also a small home office/library with vaulted ceiling and cozy window seat. The full bathroom that serves this floor has three basins and a handy laundry chute to the first-floor utility. Four hundred three square feet of attic space is at hand for storage.

The interior design of the first floor has an open feeling and allows a free flow of movement throughout the Pensive. The family room is adjacent to the breakfast nook and kitchen with only a serving island acting as a separating factor.

Sliding glass doors lead to an expansive back deck that may be the focus of family fun during the summer months. The nook features a bright bay window for enjoying the morning light. In addition to all the built-in appliances, the kitchen boasts a garden window and walk-in pantry.

The vaulted living room, directly in line with the entry, is the perfect spot to entertain your guests. A built-in fireplace will keep everyone snug on the coldest nights. The formal dining room, to the front, has the added benefit of a window seat that projects outward to the front porch.

Located conveniently near the inside entrance to the two-car garage, is a handy utility room with a sink, laundry chute and closet. A half-bath is nearby, and there is extra storage space in the garage.

For a study hit of the Pensive (335-280), send $10 to Landmark Designs, P.O. Box 2307-OE48. Eugene OR 97402. (Be sure to specify plan name and number.) For a collection of plan books featuring our most popular house plans, send $20 to Landmark, or call 1-800-562-1151.

HOME WORK PAYS OFF

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

Appliance Doctor has had a busy month

JOE GAGNON

For the last month or so, I have been running back and forth to Lansing working on the Appliance Repair Act, doing television interviews on consumer affairs and speaking to groups in between. It is all very exhilarating and make me happy doing what I do.

A few weeks ago I was invited to attend the WXYT expo at the Southfield Civic Center. At this yearly event which I have appeared as since it started, I answer questions about appliances and autograph my book. It is my publisher, Master Handyman Press, which rents a booth and space and provides me this opportunity to help consumers in person. Many people are confused when they see me at this function which is sponsored in total by a competitor of WJR Radio which employs the Appliance Doctor.

WJR has been very good to me and also very concerned about the need for consumer education. They realize that I have been doing all sorts of seminars and home shows with Glenn Haege for the past 10 years and don't want to put a hold on these shows even knowing that a competitor may receive some benefit from my appearance.

Most important is the fact that they want consumers to get to know the Appliance Doctor and gain from the information he distributes as these shows. It goes to show the cliche of competition being good for everyone concerned is true even in the radio business.

This very newspaper you are reading today is another example of a cooperative effort by people who find it important that consumer education comes before their own self interests. There aren't too many newspapers in this country who allow a radio talk show host to write about his radio career in his or her columns.

Just this past weekend I was the keynote speaker to a group of senior citizens in the city of Livonia. I shouldn't say a group, but instead say a few thousand of seniors who attended the Western Wayne County Senior Citizens Celebration Day and what a day is was for me. Can you imagine yourself being surrounded by hundreds of people who all want an autograph or who all want to ask a question at the same time.

Some of these seniors were getting angry with each other because one was cutting in front of the other etc. All in all, I would like to thank all of them for being there, and for being so nice to me. I can't describe the feeling in my heart when I give that dear old white-haired woman an answer to a question which makes her an even more intelligent consumer. I continue to see the faces of my mother and father anytime I look into the eyes of a senior citizen.

This event was co-sponsored by our government which many of us are quick to criticize for whatever reason. In this case they should be praised for their efforts to help consumers in regards to everyday spending. There were all sorts of booths which were staffed by people in business who were there to lend assistance to any senior in attendance. Responsibility for this event falls on the shoulders of state Reps. Bankes, Law, Ryan and Whyman and I trust they will continue to be involved with more issues of consumerism in the future.

Meanwhile, I will look forward to meeting many of the readers of this column at the upcoming home and garden shows around Detroit. Thanks to all of you for putting me on a pedestal, but remember, I am just an appliance repairman representing others who are the good guys in my industry.

Joe Gagnon, the Appliance Doctor, will answer your questions about maintaining and repairing large appliances. Gagnon is president of Carmack Appliances in Garden City and does a weekly radio program on WJR-AM.

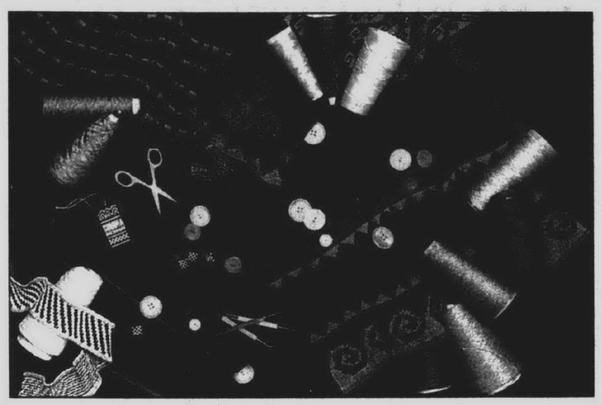
MARKET PLACE



Summa time

WEARABLE ART: Santa Fe designer Susan Summa brings her wearable knitted art to Mesa Arts, 32800 Franklin Road, Franklin, 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Friday, Oct. 4, and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 5. The trunk show features two collections, knitted in linen and cotton: Peruvian, based on ancient Andean color and graphic patterning, with sweaters/jackets in soft, smoky blue, smoky pink and burnished umber; and Ironwork, based on antique iron tools and grille work, with black and natural hemp creating smoky, neutral combinations in tweeds and subtle patterns. Summa's background in architectural interiors and textiles led her to design wearable knitted art with a strong emphasis on geometric shapes. Her knitted sweaters, jackets and coats are carefully researched from folk art, architectural ornament, primitive cave dwellings and ethnic textiles. She will take custom orders while at Mesa Arts. Call (810) 851-9949.

Furniture artistry

FIRST SHOW: The Leelanau Furniture Artists will host their inaugural Leelanau Furniture Show Friday-Sunday, Oct. 11-13, at the Old Art Building in Leland, Mich. This event will introduce the public to innovative, functional and significant furniture design by regional craftspeople including Robert Purvis, Bill Perkins, Larry Fox, Dave Elmgren and Emily Lichty-Woods. It will feature furnishings with works in metal, stone, glass, fiber and ceramics as well as species woods. More than a dozen artists and artisans from western and northern Michigan will be participating. Hours are 6-10 p.m. Oct. 11, 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Oct. 12 and 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Oct. 13. Call (616) 386-7568 for information.

Autumn items

AT THE TABLE: Hudson's "Shoctober Shops" showcase many items that are available for decorating your home or hosting a party in the spirit of Halloween. Among the merchandise are skinny wood figures including a wizard, ghost and pilgrim, $5 each, and a Manual Woodworkers pumpkin-carving runner, $32.

INVITING IDEAS

Save the remnants of summer garden

RUTH MOSSOK JOHNSTON

Cool weather is coming and the gardens are going to seed – time to get the last remnants of summer, dried or preserved. This activity seems a bit anticlimactic come late September – invite some friends to spend a day of gathering, preserving and cooking – make the most of the fruits of your labor, and share the goodies with those that help.

Green tomatoes still left on the vine? Make a batch of pickled green tomatoes, green tomato chutney, or batter and fry up some Southern fried green tomatoes. Pepper plants still fruiting? I'm still picking my cayennes, hot cherry peppers, and anchos – which have been very late this year. Cayennes are great dried – you can dry them by hanging them in a mesh bag and hanging them in a warm area, by placing them on a wire rack, much like sun-drying tomatoes, or by threading them. Once your peppers are dry; you can split them and put them into a bottle of vinegar or oil, dry and reconstitute them when needed, or grind them into powder and use them to spice up any dish.

My big harvest is always my herbs (I harvest the bulk of them when the plants that are ready to flower, and rich in essential oils – usually in late July or early August). Even in nippy weather, morning gatherings are best. When cutting your herbs, leave a lot of stem – if bottom leaves are tough, remove them. Gently wash the herbs – let dry on paper toweling or on clean cloth kitchen towels.

Bunch drying/Bag drying: place 6-10 stems per brown paper sack – large enough so the herbs don't touch the sides of the bag. Loosely tie the end of the sack leaving approximately 2 inches of stem showing. Hang the bags with leaves facing down in a warm, "airy" room with little light. Bag drying also allows for seeds to be caught for saving, and protects the herbs from collecting dust. When the leaves of your herbs are thoroughly dry (brittle) remove leaves from their stems and store in air-tight containers.

Herb rack method: use an antique or hand-built herb rack. This method provides an alternative to hanging culinary herbs from a beam or hooks in the ceiling. Hang the herbs upside down on the rack in small tied bunches – do not place too close together.

Wire mesh rack: spread herbs in a thin layer – as with other drying methods, make sure there is little light and lots of air circulating in the room. Gently stir the herbs from day to day to enable even drying.

Freezer preservation: this method works best on culinary herbs that have soft leaves. Parsley, chives and basil are best preserved in this method. Pick freezable herbs early in the morning when dew is still clinging to them – rinse them gently and shake off excess water. Place the herbs in small freezer bags. Use frozen herbs as you would fresh.

Dill and coriander are best preserved when pureed with a small amount of water and placed in ice cube trays – once frozen place herb cubes in plastic bags and use in sauces, soups and stews.

Dried and frozen herbs are best used within one year – label them! Like other foodstuffs, do not refreeze once de-frosted.

HERB IDEAS FOR THE HOLIDAYS AND FOR HOSTESS GIFTS

Small tied bunches of herbs make for great basting brushes – these can be used all year round, for use in grilling in or outdoors.

Make your own Herbs de Provence – a combination of: thyme, lavender, rosemary, summer savory and basil. This wonderful combination is delicious on tomato-based foods and lamb!

Give a selection of Bouquet Garni as gifts – traditionally a combination of parsley, thyme and bay leaves, try using different herbs to make up interesting flavors – tie up herbs in a small piece of muslin and secure with kitchen twine or place herbs in a sterling silver antique tea strainer and give as a very special gift.

Develop an assortment of herbed salts – add you favorite herb(s) to coarse salt (Kosher or Sea) grind and place in an attractive air-tight container.

Give a gift of beautifully tied assorted herbs (use hand dyed yarns or string) label them and indicate they are for throwing over coals when grilling.

Make herb butters – place in interesting crocks (new or antique). If using for the holidays – freeze.

Make herb wreaths by glue-gunning herb leaves on a grape vine (bay leaves work great – then paint with gold gilt).

Make big batches of soup loaded with herbs – freeze in individual containers and give as gifts – especially to those single friends that only eat microwave quickies.

Make herb vinegars and oils – place in interesting and unique bottles. Flavored vinegar is one of those wonderful no-brainers!-When making vinegar; always use a high quality wine vinegar – herbs and flavors will not mask poor vinegar quality, make sure all of your equipment is washed in hot soapy water and rinsed in hot clear water, use fresh, unblemished herbs – discard any leaves that are brown or bug-eaten.

TARRAGON VINEGAR

- 1.4-liter (16-cup) glass jar with gasket lid
- 16 cups Champagne vinegar
- 2 teaspoons sugar
- Large bunch of fresh tarragon, lightly bruised
- 4-6 small, fresh, hot peppers – slit, not sliced
- 5 large cloves garlic, peeled
- 2 teaspoons coriander seeds
- 1 teaspoon melange (multi-colored) of whole peppercorns

Warm the champagne vinegar with two teaspoons of sugar in a large non-reactive pot.

Place the tarragon, hot peppers, garlic, coriander seeds and peppercorns in the glass jar.

Pour the warmed vinegar into the jar and seal. Place the steeping jar into a dark, cool room for 4 weeks.

Strain the steeped vinegar. Using a funnel, fill the glass bottles and add fresh sprigs of tarragon and a small whole pepper or two. Cork or seal the bottles.

INTERIOR MOTIVES

These design geniuses have led the way

NAOMI STONE LEVY

There are so many prestigious names in the world of design that I could scarcely list all of them. However, I would like to acquaint you with several that are considered so important in their fields they cannot be ignored. They are unquestionably the arbiters of great taste of the 20th century.

- Eliel Saarinen – architecture and furniture
- Florence Knoll – fabrics and furniture
- Jack Lenor Larsen – fabrics
- Philip Johnson – architecture
- Charles and Ray Eames – furniture
- Frank Lloyd Wright – architecture, furniture and household items
- Mies van de Rohe – architecture and furniture
- Le Corbusier – architecture and furniture
- Philippe Stark – furniture and household items
- George Nelson - tableware, household items, architecture and furniture

It is interesting to acknowledge that the first three geniuses are connected with our own Cranbrook school in Bloomfield Hills. Doesn't that speak volumes about the quality of its art program? Almost all of the above embraced the theory that less is more. Those three words say all there is to say regarding contemporary.

Eliel Saarinen was the architect of Cranbrook. He also designed much of the furniture. Have you ever accorded yourself and your family the privilege and pleasure of visiting that campus? What a treat! Do it! It is world renowned.

Florence Knoll is best known for her simple, slim and contemporary furniture; no embellishments added to their form. She rarely applied hardware, preferring invisible cutout grabs for opening the drawers. Polished steel frames and exotic woods, such as rosewood, spoke for themselves. Her fabrics have withstood the tests of time. They are as wonderful as they were 20 years ago.

Jack Lenor Larsen, another Cranbrook superstar, has built a world around his innovative fabrics. The weaves of his upholstery materials are often knobby, and and so very subtle in hue and color. He also experimented with "sheers" that befit the miles of glass of the current buildings. See out, but don't see in.

Frank Lloyd Wright practiced architecture for more than 60 years. He did design some high-rise edifices, but his preference was always for low buildings that seemed to hug the ground as though they emerged from the soil. These were two diametrically opposing theories, each of which elicited its own style of furniture. He designed more ponderous oak furniture that was essential to the wood beams and otherwise wood interiors of some of his lower ceilinged homes. His versatility was awesome. There are many, many books devoted to his genius. I suggest the library.

The ever-famous Eames chair and ottoman was the first time a very large lounge chair was fashioned of molded and formed rosewood plywood and leather. It is open and light in concept. Its configuration forever changed bulky chairs.

Philippe Stark is still expounding his ultra-slim, almost delicate furniture, even though it is "structural" in concept. No one does it as well as he. His imitators fail to replicate his work. Inquire where you can see it for yourself. He is worth the acquaintance.

George Nelson is well known for his fiesta bright colored tableware. This pure red, blue, green and orange pottery has been in the marketplace for decades. His beginnings also embraced architecture and furniture.

It is fascinating to note that great architecture was the forerunner of almost everything esthetic. This is true of the 20th century. It also is true of the entire history of design of the world.

LET'S REMODEL

Sprinkler system needs to be winterized

Q. We just purchased a home with an automatic underground sprinkler system. Is there anything we should do to the system before winter?

A. Very simply: Yes. Your system needs to be winterized!

First, let's define the sprinkler system. A lawn sprinkler system is a rather straightforward combination of basic materials and equipment. They are put together with a reasonable amount of study and planning, which assures the practical application of those components. That application is to water your lawn and landscaping with maximum coverage and minimum water usage.

The proper shut down in the fall for a sprinkler system is called a winterization. Winterizing is the removal of water from the sprinkler system. The water is removed by hooking an air compressor to the irrigation system and blowing out the water through the sprinkler heads.

If the water isn't removed, it will freeze and expand into the irrigation system, breaking the pipes, valves and backflow preventers. Without proper winterization, irrigation system owners face the possibility of expensive and unnecessary repairs the following season.

The next step is contacting the proper company to do the work. By using the right techniques and the right tools, an irrigation contractor can properly flush out a sprinkler system, eliminating the chances of damage due to freezing. Consider these steps in choosing an irrigation contractor:

- Choose a full-time irrigation company that specializes in service.
- Be sure they are a local contractor with an established business location.
- Check to see if they are insured.
- Be sure you receive a written work order and a receipt for work performed.
- Be sure you receive a written work order and a receipt for work performed.
- Be sure they warranty their work against spring start-up damage.

Always pay be check and the check should be written to a company, not an individual. You can expect to be charged in the range of $40 to $60 for the average residential site. Don't be taken in by the land sharks who drive through the neighborhoods offering the super low rates for cash-only deals. Often their work is inferior and they can't be found in the spring when the damage is discovered. Remember, a legitimate contractor will always give you a business card and a receipt for work done. This type of contractor wants you to call them in the spring when it is time to turn the system on again. Good luck!

COUNTER INTELLIGENCE

Jeff Beuckelaere, V.P. DeGiulio Industries

Having sufficient counterspace is important in any kitchen because that is where the work is done. According to National Kitchen & Bath Association (NKBA) guidelines, a kitchen under 150 square feet should have at least 132 inches of usable countertop frontage in order to provide adequate room for a cook to work; a landing area for accepting dishes from the oven, cooktop, and microwave; and a loading area for the dishwasher. A larger kitchen requires at least 198 inches of usable countertop frontage.

The kitchen is the most important room in the home. Both beauty and space are important to consider when remodeling. DEGIULIO INDUSTRIES will review your needs and advise you on the countertop frontage and cabinetry that are most efficient. We cordially invite readers to visit our modern showroom and plant at 15150 Century Drive, Dearborn, or call us at 313-271-4990 or 1-800-277-9991, and ask for a free brochure.

MONTE NAGLER

We all had a terrific summer full of hot days and plenty of beach and sunshine. And we kind of hate to see it go.

But there is something to look forward to: the fall season. For seldom is there a better time to photograph. Fall is truly a painter's palette and you with your camera become the artist.

As the fall color change creeps gently southward, many an abundance of photographic opportunity awaits you. Miles of roads and trails will display rainbows of color and the numerous parks in the area will be alive with vibrant hues.

Here are some tips on how you can capture this color spectacular on film.

Shoot in the morning or afternoon. These times will produce maximum shadows and textures and will make your shots look more "alive." Try to position yourself to achieve back or side lighting, too.

Use whatever lens suits you best. Remember that a wide angle lens will give a greater expanse to your shot whereas a telephoto will move you in close to isolate a particular tree or capture a splash of color in a cluster of fallen leaves. If you have closeup equipment, you'll be able to highlight the veins in an individual leaf or detail any other intimate subject.

You'll find that color slide film will produce the most vivid colors. And by setting the film speed 1/4 to 1/2 stop higher than that recommended, you'll further increase color brilliance and saturation. For black and white lovers, don't think fall colors won't give you pleasing results. Under an overcast sky, the contrasts and tones of fall colors will produce very exciting photographs with a full tonal range.

As always, follow good rules of composition. If your shot contains a main subject, place it off-center to make your image appear more dynamic. "Frame" your pictures with overhanging branches or other foliage. Use fences, roads and streams as "lead-in lines" to your photographs.

Be aware of other fall picture-taking opportunities, too. Football games, cider mills in operation and patches of pumpkins are all full of picture potential. No better time of year exists than fall to put memorable shots in your photo album.

TACKLING THEIR OWN PROJECT

STORY BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN • SPECIAL WRITER

When Louanne Johnson and her husband, Mark, decided to renovate their 4,000-square-foot West Bloomfield home and add a new kitchen, they never dreamed it would take so long. Divided into two phases, the project lasted 2-1/2 years because the Johnsons, choosing not to hire a builder, did the work themselves with the help of brother-in-law and master carpenter Russ Abate.

"Our friends would ask us when would we be finished. Anyone who has built or renovated knows the inside joke there's just one more molding to go," Louanne Johnson said during a tour of the 19-year-old colonial on Middle Straits Lake.

This was the fourth lakefront home the Johnsons remodeled so it wasn't a totally new experience for them. After firing an architect, Louanne spent seven months drawing up the plans. Living in the house for 11 years, she knew better than anyone where she wanted the 18-by-23-foot kitchen. Phase one began.

Louanne admits a builder would have completed the work in a more timely fashion. However, the savings of not hiring one allowed the couple to buy higher quality materials such as the scratch-resistant granite counter tops in the kitchen.

The center island boasts a stove with retractable vent and light plus plenty of space for chopping, or measuring and mixing ingredients. A spice drawer next to the stove shortens the time spent sorting through dozens of bottles in search of oregano. Naturally finished hickory cabinetry is in keeping with the 3/4-acre wooded landscape outside the kitchen window.

A rolltop desk next to the telephone hides the clutter of bills and paperwork necessary to run a household. To complete the bright and airy space, Louanne looked for advice from friends who decorated interiors professionally. Floral-pattern scarf drapes ordered from a catalog pick up the cranberry veins in the granite.

"The children loved the neighborhood and we loved our lot too much to move. Number one in the kitchen was space and storage but most importantly I wanted a view of the lake," said Louanne, who minored in art in college.

Next phase

The entire main floor was gutted during phase two, the old kitchen torn out, foyer expanded and the laundry room moved to the first floor from an inconvenient space in the basement. Louanne, Mark and children Natalie, 14; Ryan, 12; and Eric, 9; helped remove debris after each room was demolished. In order to let more light in the double front doors, recycled to a walk-out garage, were replaced with a single white door and two sidelights featuring beveled glass designs.

"At the time it was being built, I hated it," Natalie said. "Now the house looks nicer than it did before."

The worst days occurred when the poured cement basement wall was cut open with a wet saw to construct the walk-out garage, Louanne said. Dust, spewed from every vent in the house, took three days to clean up.

"Our house was like a set from 'Tales from the Crypt.' It looked like there was smoke in the house," Louanne said.

Putting on a new face

When asked which elements of the project made the biggest difference, Louanne answered with one word: paint. The brick fireplace in the family room became white-beige to accent cocoa-colored walls. Neutral colors throughout the first floor encourage a flow between rooms.

"If someone wants to add instant newness to a house they should repaint the trim. All of the trim was painted white. It makes it look much fresher and brighter."

Louanne's painting wizardry extended much further than simply painting woodwork. Classes taken at Bloomfield Decor led to labor intensive decorative painting of walls by Louanne. Surfaces, painted up to four times with a variety of techniques, not only create interest but avoided the costly installation of wallpaper.

But Louanne didn't stop at the walls. An antique chest hidden away in the garage took on a marbleized look. Next came a bench and other furniture. Instead of buying a new dining room set, chairs were recovered with fabric from a local store then painted black and sponged in with green. Louanne loved the decorative painting so much she has started a business with sister Rene Abate.

Mark credits his wife for the success of the finished product. She found and bought materials, caulked and painted, and coordinated the project while he was at work.

"It was Louanne who had the vision to move the kitchen into a totally different area," Mark Johnson said, "and that's how this all began."

In progress: The Johnsons' renovation project took 2-1/2 years because the family did the work themselves with the help of brother-in-law and master carpenter Russ Abate.

Fine view: It was important that the Johnsons had a view of the lake.

AROUND THE HOUSE

Roof leaks can start at joints and valleys

When you hear of roof leaks, your first thought is probably directed to the roof covering, such as the asphalt shingles. You may be surprised to hear that approximately 60 percent of all leaks occur at joints, valleys or projections through the roof.

Typical leak locations are at chimneys, plumbing vents, roof valleys, dormers, joints where a roof meets a wall, skylights and parapet walls. In short, any time you have a roof penetration or projection, you have a more vulnerable area.

Of the remaining 40 percent of roofing problems, approximately 25 percent of roofing failures are due to worn, deteriorated roofing materials. The remaining 15 percent are due to improper roofing material applications, poor workmanship and miscellaneous items.

The remedy for many problem areas is properly installed flashings. Step flashings are typically aluminum "L-shaped" pieces used to divert water away from the projection or roof penetration. Proper flashings and workmanship should help make a dependable roof surface.

In most instances, proper flashings are made up of step and counter-step flashings. The first piece on a step flashing is the "L-shaped" piece mentioned above. The average size is seven inches long and five inches wide. It is bent into the seven-inch length, with three inches and two inches on each side. This step flashing is placed with the three-inch side against the roof shingles and the two-inch side placed vertically against the wall or chimney, etc.

The second piece, known as a counter flashing, covers the vertical portion of the step flashing to keep water deflected away from the top of the step flashing. At a wall, the siding can usually act as an appropriate counter flashing.

At a chimney, the counter flashing looks like an inverted L with the short 3/4-inch portion being inserted into the brick or masonry joints after the mortar has been cut out. On most newer construction, this counter flashing isn't embedded into the joints but is rather fastened to the chimney with mechanical fasteners and sealed at the top. The performance of these joints isn't as good as the "old-fashioned" way and should be monitored for separations.

Skylights should be installed on a curb to allow room for proper flashings and shouldn't be installed level at the roof surface. The height of the curb is dictated by the slope of the roof (i.e., roofs with a slope of 4/12 to 6/12 should have a curb of at least four inches). Skylights on flat or nearly flat roofs should have a curb of eight inches or more depending on possible snow accumulation.

Roofs that don't allow water to drain successfully are prone to problems at seams and premature deterioration. Ponding on low slope roofs is generally not considered acceptable if it doesn't evaporate within 48 hours after a rain.

Problem areas should be addressed as soon as possible due to the unavoidable interior damage that will typically occur (e.g., roof sheathing, drywall or plaster and wood-framing components).

Valleys are dependable if the proper materials are used and the workmanship is acceptable. Valleys are vulnerable because a large percentage of the water that hits the roof accumulates in the valleys. This creates a disproportionate amount of wear. It isn't unusual for the valleys to wear out ahead of the shingles.

Homeowners should check their roof after major storms and before and after winter, looking for blown off shingles, tree damage and lifted or missing flashings. Regular review of the roof surface can eliminate the source of many leaks.

Once a roof has been installed, some flashings and roof components aren't visible. Thus, in addition to a visual review of the roof in good weather, it is a good idea to look in an attic during a heavy rainstorm. Some leaks can actually go undetected for years! A few minutes of your time and a strong flashlight during a good drencher may save you unwanted repairs in the long run.

GARDEN SPOT

Colorful bulbs brighten garden

MARTY FIGLEY

Yep, it's that time again to get spring-flowering bulbs in the ground so that our gardens will soon greet us with color. By choosing bulbs for sequence of bloom, we can enjoy snowdrops in early February to Dutch Iris in July. We can't always predict exactly when they will bloom.

The history of bulbs is ancient. In 1590, Carolus Clusius, a famous botanist of the day who lived in Vienna, established a botanic garden at the University of Leiden in Holland, where he grew all manner of bulbs. The people went nuts to see such plants! Unfortunately Clusius was stingy and wouldn't share his bulbs, and soon the people raided his garden and stole the bulbs. This may have started the tulip toward its commercial success.

At first, only the wealthy could afford bulbs and fortunes were made and lost on them. Some speculators bought bulbs still in the ground and traded those that never existed. Now, however, we can all enjoy these interesting and beautiful flowers.

Growers have been harvesting the bulbs and are now shipping them to their outlets and the little "storage tanks" are just waiting to settle into their garden place. As the temperatures indicate they'll begin their growing season after their winter dormant period.

Advice

The Netherlands Flower Bulb Association gives the following advice:

- Plant spring flowering bulbs in September, October or November, before the first hard frost. It is wise to plant the bulbs soon after purchase to prevent them from drying out.
- Choose a sunny or shady site (the trees and shrubs won't be fully leafed out before the flowers bloom, nor will perennials be tall enough to shade them).
- Plant the same variety or color for the biggest impact; 10 to 15 tulips, seven to 10 hyacinths, 25 to 30 crocuses.
- Bulbs need well-drained soil. If the soil is clay, incorporate sand, sphagnum peat or compost into the bed; they need no additional fertilizer at this time.
- A rule of thumb for depth of planting is to plant the bulbs twice their own depth. Or, large bulbs (i.e. daffodils, tulips and hyacinth), the lower end of the bulb should be five to seven inches down; smaller bulbs, such as snowdrop and crocus, three inches down.
- After planting the bulbs, keep the soil moist, especially during dry periods.
- For continuous bloom, choose the following:

February/March – Snowdrop, Galanthus; Winter aconite, Eranthis; Iris reticulata; Anemone blanda; the many varieties of Crocus; Puschkinia; Daffodils; Scilla siberica and Spring snowflake, Leucojum vernum.

April/May – Tulips, Triumph and Darwin-hybrid, Lily-flowering and Parrot; Daffodils; Grape hyacinth, Muscari; Crown imperial, Fritillaria imperialis; Hyacinth; Ornamental onion, Allium; Star of Bethlehem, Ornithogalum; and Summer snowflake, Leucojum aestrivum.

And in July you'll still see the Alliums, Bluebell, Scilla campanulata as well as the Dutch Iris.

Selection

Study books and catalogs to assure a long sequence of bloom. Unfortunately, all authors don't agree on information, so sometimes you may have to experiment to find out what works in your garden.

Choose bulbs that are firm, without blemishes. The dry skin won't be a problem if it has sloughed off.

Do buy bulbs from a company that propagates in their facility. For a copy of a brochure, just published by the American Horticulture Society and Fauna and Floral International, which lists those companies that have pledged either to never sell or to clearly label any bulbs that have been collected in the wild, send your name and address with $1 for shipping and handling to: The Good Bulb Guide, AHS, 7931 E. Boulevard Drive, Alexandria, Va. 22308.

If you would like a brochure, "Color All Year Long with Dutch Flower Bulbs," send a business-size, stamped envelope to me at The Observer & Eccentric, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham 48009.

TIMELY GARDEN TIPS

- Divide those perennials that bloomed in the summer.
- Don't put weeds in the compost now, unless it is really hot and cooking.
- Oct. 12 is the traditional day to plant garlic in the North.
- To encourage earthworms to dig deeper in the soil (better aeration), mulch lightly.
- Plant bulbs en masse for a greater impact.

Home theater systems need to be designed

As home theater continues to increase in popularity, you – whether it's at the start of the football season or for a love of movies – will face the inevitable urge to invest in a home theater system. Where do you begin, and how do you find a system that's right for your home?

High-quality home theater systems are available in all price ranges, beginning at around $1,500, up to systems in the six-figure range. You also can find home theater systems that will mix well with just about any decor. In fact, by working with a custom installer and an interior designer, you'll see that you don't have to pay outrageous prices to get great quality, and you don't have to compromise on aesthetics. Here are some basic tips to get you started.

Begin by taking a look at what you have now – a television, hi-fi VCR, laser disk player, loudspeakers, A/V receiver. Determine the weakest link in your system, and start upgrading from that point. A custom installer can help you here and may be the best person to tell you which product you should replace first and what products will blend well with the remaining ones.

Then, consider where the system will be located and the parameters of the space. Do you want your home theater in the living room, or will you create a room exclusively for the system? What size television set will you need? Try to find something that fits the room. You don't want to put an 80-inch television set in a 12-foot-by-12-foot room. Normally, the viewing distance should be three to four times the screen size.

Another important but often overlooked element of home theater is lighting. "Whichever room you select, make sure the lighting is right for the equipment – and that the equipment is right for the room," explains Wayne Puntel, president of AudioCraft, an Ohio-based installation company.

"For example, if you have a front-projection television set in a well-lit room, you won't be able to see the screen." If you decide on a dark home theater media room, you might think about using a projector-type set, which is well-adapted for such an environment.

Next, you need to get the right sound. Quite often, people hear a demonstration in the store, and when they get the equipment home, the sound is different. It's important to pay close attention to the room, because what sounds crisp and clear in one room may not sound as good in others. While sound is subjective to each person, each room also has a different acoustical personality. Puntel adds, "it's imperative that the equipment is placed properly to maximize the effect. If you compromise the placement of your equipment, you will compromise the quality of your system."

When planning the layout of a home theater system, you'll want to consider the type of floor covering and the shape and size of the room. Once you've decided on a system, an interior designer can work with the installer to determine which space to use, how much space to use, and whether to place the projector inside your coffee table. Do you want plush velvet seats? Or, how about gargoyles to create an authentic theater effect? A designer can put the finishing touches on your home theater system and camouflage any components that don't blend in with the decor. If you really want to have some fun, you might even ask your designer about incorporating a popcorn machine.

A main advantage to working with a designer and an installer, and to owning a home theater system made up of several components, is that you can improve a single element of the system at a time.

Courses delight photographer and hiker

Fall is a good time to shape and prune trees or shrubs, dig into the garden one last time, or take a refreshing autumn hike.

Regardless of your level of interest, the University of Michigan Matthaei Botanical Gardens' adult education courses will help get you started. Members of the Friends of the Botanical Gardens receive 10 percent off any adult education class. Call (313) 998-7061 for information.

Courses include:

• Photography – 9:30-11 a.m. Saturdays, Oct. 5, 12 and 19, $35 per person, conducted by David Bay. Learn the history of photography and the evolution of the camera, which will enable a first-time buyer to go into the marketplace for a difficult shooting situation with confidence. Learn the advantages of different types of film exposure and depth of field, plus other useful techniques from this professional photographer. The second class date will be a practical shooting session in the conservatory or outdoors. The last class date will be a viewing of the results of the week's photographing and will be directed by requests and questions generated. Bring your own camera and up to 10 of your best (or most troublesome) slides or prints to the first session.

• Quaking Quagmires – 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturdays, Oct. 12 and 19, $55 per person, conducted by Anton Reznicek. Floating mats are a highly specialized form of wetland that are little known and poorly understood. Typically thought to be associated with bogs, floating mats can also be associated with sedge meadows, fens and even marshes. In all cases, they are formed by peat accumulating on a matrix of plant roots, usually sedges. They are mostly avoided by botanists because of the risk of getting more than just one's feet wet, but floating mats can harbor a number of very unusual plants. They are also a most interesting adaptation of fluctuating water levels and an important component of wetland succession. Wear tennis shoes, keep wallets and anything else you don't want to get wet out of your pockets and back at the car.

• Edible Wild Plants – 6-8 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 8, and 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 13, conducted by Ellen Elliott Weatherbee. Fall brings wild rice, new crops of greens, plump tubers, delicious pawpaws, frost-sweetened cranberries and handsome mushrooms. The class will attempt to find all and learn about preparing the tasty edible ones. Appropriate for all levels of foraging expertise. The class has been the authoritative source for information on the wild edibles since 1973.

• Fall Raptors – 7-8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 10, and 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 12, $35 per person, conducted by Michael Kielb. Early October is an exciting time to observe migrating diurnal raptors in southeastern Michigan. Large numbers of Red-tailed, Red-shouldered, Cooper's Hawks and a few Golden Eagles are exiting Canada and passing through Michigan in search of winter feeding grounds. The class will explore the reasons and composition of this migration and visit nearby Erie Metropark to observe the flight.

• Floodplain Forests – 7:30-9 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 10, and 2-5 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 13, $35 per person, conducted by Sylvia Taylor. This is the perfect time of year to learn about the floodplain forests in southeastern Michigan. The evening class session features a discussion on the ecology, natural history and fragile balance of nature with political and economic considerations; the field trip examines plants in a classic old-growth forest that is one of the finest natural areas remaining in the state. Fall color should be at its height, which should emphasize the unusual collection of huge woody plants and unusual shrubs and herbaceous plants.

• Garden Photography – 6:30-9 p.m. Thursdays, Oct. 10 and 17, and 9 a.m. to noon Saturday, Oct. 12, $55 per person, conducted by Steve Nikkila. This class features a double attraction: Take a beautiful tour of plants in gardens and greenhouses, while learning to capture your own garden on film. Framing the shot, using light and shadow to advantage, correcting for less-than-perfect light or subject matter, and seasonal differences are discussed for both manual and automatic cameras.

Shoot film Oct. 12 and develop it for review and critique during the Oct. 17 session.

Celebrate fall with Harvest Happening

English Gardens will celebrate fall with its fourth annual Harvest Happening 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 5, and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 6, at English Gardens in West Bloomfield.

English Gardens is at 6370 Orchard Lake Road at Maple. Call (810) 851-7506.

Harvest Happening is filled with a variety of family-oriented activities, including a petting zoo, country music and ongoing fall decorating demonstrations. Each store will also feature free children's activities, such as straw mazes, decorating mini pumpkins and a tulip bulb search.

Jacunski wins honor

Charlotte Jacunski

Charlotte Jacunski, a Realtor associate with Century 21 Row in Livonia, placed among the Top 21 Century 21 agents in the Great Lakes region for gross closed commissions as of the midpoint of this year.

Jacunski lives in Livonia.

Agents complete training

Susan LaCarter, Carol Taylor, Stephanie Taylor, Michelle Wilson and Sally Witt, all with Heritage Real Estate/Better Homes & Gardens, have completed the training of the Historic Real Estate Program and are now certified by the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

The course covered such topics as historical architectural styles, legal/regulatory issues governing historic properties and tax incentives as they relate to historic home ownership.

Heritage Real Estate/Better Homes and Gardens says that it's one of only four companies in Michigan to be certified by the National Trust for Historic Preservation.

Realtors roll up sleeves again

BY DOUG FUNKE
STAFF WRITER

It was a day well spent.

That was the thinking of several dozen Realtors, financial managers, title insurance salespeople and friends who gathered recently to fix up and clean up the property of a single mom in Farmington Hills.

Front and rear doors were replaced, windows scraped and repainted. New paneling was applied. The weather-beaten garage received vinyl siding, the driveway a new batch of stones.

Extensive landscaping also was the order of the day.

"I'm overwhelmed," said Robin Smith, who grew up in the house and now lives there with sons Daniel and Dylon. "They told me a lot of people were going to show up, but you have to see it to believe it. It's great."

The third annual home renovation project was sponsored by the Western Wayne Oakland County Association of Realtors.

"I think every single person who shows up just loves helping someone," said Dan Haverty, manager of real estate lending for Dearborn Federal Credit Union and co-chairman of the project. "It's not for the recognition.

"Last night, I slept only an hour and a half," Haverty said while taking a break from installing a front door. "You get excited, ready to go. It's really coming together nice."

Diane Winkelmann, a Realtor with Red Carpet Keim Midwest in Farmington, also coordinated the renovation project.

"I think it's important that the membership reach out to the community in a positive way," she said. "I want everyone to know we're warm, fuzzy people.

"There's a Ralph Waldo Emerson quote I like – 'What lies before us and what lies behind us is nothing compared to what lies within us,'" Winkelmann said.

"Sometimes, when we work on a project like this, it makes us more tolerant of problems in our daily life. And we get a working knowledge of the dynamics of a house.

"You meet people in a professional capacity, they perform miracles and have fun doing it," Winkelmann said.

The work appeared to be a labor of love for all the volunteers.

"It's probably the most feel-good thing I'll do all year," said Teri Spiro, a Realtor with Century 21 Town & Country in West Bloomfield.She kept the volunteers on task at the house on work day.

"This is what we do for a living," Spiro said. "We go into houses and evaluate deficiencies every day on some level. We're making suggestions.

"I made a list of all duties. I have my clipboard over there," she said. "There are months of planning. This is the fun part."

John Michniak, a Realtor with Coldwell Banker Schweitzer in Northville, shoveled stones onto the driveway.

"One thing I want people to know is Realtors enjoy the enjoyment of homeowners," he said. "We really take a lot of pleasure in seeing people happy and doing this."

Ron McNeal, a Realtor with the Prudential Preview in Northville dug a stump from a diseased evergreen from the ground.

"You get more out of it than you put in," McNeal said. "If you're the least bit introspective, you know how lucky you've had it."

Eric Rader, manager of Real Estate One in Livonia, worked on the back door replacement.

"Real estate is what we do. Home ownership is what it's all about," he said. "We feel it's an obligation. We feel every business has to give back to the community where it makes its bread and butter."

Smith and her family came to the attention of WWOCAR through Farmington's Head Start preschool program.

"I was shocked," she recalled. "I really do appreciate everyone's time and effort. I'm thankful for their help."

Plumbing, roof repairs and insulation subsequently were completed the house. Some electrical upgrades remain to be finished.

"I couldn't do it without everyone else," Winkelmann said. "Every year it's a different challenge. It's still just as much fun. I wish we had the physical and financial ability to do 10 houses a year."

Compensation needed if ALL your land use limited

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

Q. I have heard of a concept of inverse condemnation and am wondering whether you can give me some insight into what it means.

A. The Constitution of the United States guarantees that the taking of property cannot be done without just compensation. The taking of property will require "just compensation" if a landowner's property either is invaded physically or is regulated "too far."

Compensation is required where a land use regulation either does not advance substantially legitimate state interests or denies the land owner all economically viable use of the land. However, compensation is not required where the land-use regulation merely results in a diminution of the property's value.

In short, land can be condemned even though the property has not been physically seized by the municipality, but rather where a regulation denies all economically beneficial or productive use of ones land. This is a legal concept that is utilized in the law of condemnation.

Q. I am a member of a condominium association that has a weighted average for voting and assessing costs. I understand that there is a movement going on to do a special assessment of a lump sum to everyone.

Is this legal since the master deed says that all assessments, costs of administration and votes must be done using the weighted average?

A. Assuming the facts that you have indicated are correct, and the assessment is benefitting all of the co-owners, the association must assess based on percentage of value.

However, there are exceptions to the rule based upon the contents of the documents and the nature of the additional assessment so that it is difficult, without reviewing the documents as to all of the specifics of the additional assessments, to give you a definitive response.

You are best advised to consult legal counsel.

Robert M. Meisner is an Oakland County area attorney concentrating his practice in the areas of condominiums, real estate, corporate law and litigation. You are invited to submit topics that you would like to see discussed in this column, including questions about condominiums, by writing Robert M. Meisner, 30200 Telegraph Road, Suite 467, Bingham Farms MI 48025. This column provides general information and should not be construed as legal opinion.

High-tech windows lower energy bills

Your home's windows can make your home colder in the winter, and hotter in the summer. In fact, more heat is lost – or gained – through the windows than through any other area of your home, according to the Edison Electric Institute, the national association of electric companies.

Conduction is one way heat passes through windows. In this manner, the inside warmth is gradually conveyed through the window pane.

A window made of single-pane glass (R-value of approximately 1.0) transfers heat almost 14-times faster than a well-insulated wall.

Radiant energy transfer is the other way heat gets through a window. Heat inside your home is carried out on its infrared light rays. In the summer, the sun's heat energy goes straight through the window panes warming up your home.

You now have several options to slow down window heat loss or gain. Adding a multi-pane window, one with either two- or three-panes of glass, will raise the window's R-value approximately 1.0 for each additional pane of glass used.

Some double-pane windows use a gas denser than common air, such as argon or carbon dioxide, between the panes of glass. These gases, being heavier than air, makes it harder for the heat to transfer through them.

Consequently, this slows the conductive transfer of heat.

To reduce radiant heat loss or buildup, a low-e coating, for low emissivity, blocks radiant heat transfer by acting as a mirror.

In the winter, the low-e coating reflects the indoor heat's infrared radiation back into the house. In the summer, it reflects the sun's radiant energy back outside. The coating, however, does block visibility or look shiny.

For more information on how to increase the value of electricity in your home, call the electric utility department's residential marketing department.

Concrete stain solves problem

Homeowners will be pleased to learn that their durable, concrete driveway can take on a persona of its own with a little assistance from a concrete stain and the creative mind of the consumer.

That's right, your concrete driveway doesn't have to look like just a slab of concrete anymore. If you've ever dreamed of a brick driveway or special block, or prefer the aesthetic appeal of a black drive to offset your home but would rather not deal with the maintenance, your dream can become a reality in just a few simple steps.

Now you can protect and beautify nearly any concrete surface inside or outside of your home by using a concrete stain. Concrete stains add lasting value to driveways, walkways, patios, garage floors, brick and masonry walls and other concrete surfaces including pool decks, porches, and even basketball, tennis and shuffleboard courts.

According to Steve Davis, director of sales and marketing for H&C Concrete Stain, using a concrete stain offers today's busy homeowners many advantages not found with using an alternative form of concrete protection like paint. "Many of today's concrete stains will not fade or lose color prematurely and offer superior resistance to water, acids, ultra-violet light, oil, gas and hot-tire pickup," said Davis. "Because the stain penetrates the surface, it will not peel or flake, thereby providing long-lasting, more effective protection than other types of concrete coatings which only lay on the top of the concrete surface. By using a concrete stain, homeowners will not only save time and money but will enhance the look of their home."

■ "Many of today's concrete stains will not fade or lose color prematurely and offer superior resistance to water, acids, ultra-violet light, oil, gas and hot-tire pickup.'

Steve Davis,
director of sales and marketing for H&C Concrete Stain

A full line of products meet a variety of application needs

Concrete stains further appeal to all users because, with just two coats, they protect concrete and masonry surfaces from the damaging effects of the elements which cause unprotected concrete to crack. Unlike paint, many concrete stains require no primers and are perfectly suited for both interior and exterior applications. In addition, they are available in a wide variety of ready-mixed colors or can be custom matched to meet any specification.

"H&C Concrete Stain, for example, is available in 27 premixed colors and offers consumers a multitude of products for a variety of application needs including, sealing, staining, water repellent and slip resistance and customizing," said Davis.

Or for the special needs of today's consumers, the H&C Shark Grip™ Slip-Resistant Additive can be used to provide slip resistance on otherwise slippery surfaces. Since the product is not highly abrasive, it ensures a more pleasant coating for bare feet which is critical when finishing traditionally slippery areas such as pool decks and patios.

Unique stencil program makes the ordinary extraordinary

Consumers seeking a novel approach to staining need look no further than H&C's unique Custom Stencil Program. This visionary program brings the full complement of stains together into a complete package for any user. Six different solvent-resistant plastic stencils, including a brick border, offer templates for concrete driveways, walkways and patios, and may be used to create brick, tile and paver appearances for the ultimate in style and at a fraction of the cost of custom masonry work.

Protecting your concrete surfaces will not only bring greater aesthetic beauty to your home but also will decrease maintenance projects often associated with unprotected or painted concrete such as dampness, cracking, staining and peeling.

H&C Concrete Stain line of products are available nationwide at paint stores, home centers and building material outlets.

To find a store near you or for application questions, do-it-yourselfers can call H&C Concrete Stain's toll-free consumer help line at 1-800-TO-STAIN (800 867 8246).

Hark! Heraldry becomes popular decorating theme

By Barbara Mayer
For AP Special Features

Georgia Greenberg read legends of King Arthur to her sons and took them to see the armor collection at the Metropolitan Museum of Art. So she was delighted when her 9-year-old asked that his bedroom be done up in a heraldic style.

That was about four years ago, and Greenberg, a New York composer and writer who tackles her projects with gusto, was stretched to find thematic furnishings to bring the room to life. She ultimately ordered a custom-made rug decorated with shields, found suitable imported fabric for bed and window coverings and hung antique shields and swords on the walls.

Today, the trappings of heraldry are found in a variety of American home furnishings, including fabrics and wallpaper. There is also furniture with iron strapping and other details reminiscent of medieval times. And decorator show houses and magazines are providing inspiration.

"The bold look of heraldry lends itself to the style of the '90s, which is sparer and less cluttered than in the opulent '80s,"Jamie Gibbs, an interior designer in New York, says.

Heraldic patterns on fabric from Europe began to trickle into the United States about six years ago, Gibbs says. American fabric and wallpaper manufacturers are now catching up.

The home furnishings trade publication, "Furniture Today,"reports that fabrics with heraldic icons, such as one with a lion rampant, are featured in new home decorating fabrics.

Among companies with wallpaper patterns harking to days when knighthood was in flower are Chapters, with the Chart Room Collection; Eisenhart, with Lynn Hollyn's Sunsplashed Garden Collection; and Sanitas, with the Associates Collection.

Look for coats of arms, crests, shields, pennants, banners, lances, and images of knights, dragons and unicorns. They likely will be mixed with traditional detailing such as the fleur-de-lis, oak leaves, ribbons, banners and tartan plaids.

Ron Soeder, marketing chairman of the Wallcoverings Association, says today's heraldic designs have a realistic look. Imperial Wallcoverings Inc. of Cleveland, where Soeder is vice president and general manager, is using computer-generated motifs of knights, castles, unicorns, wizards and coats of armor in two children's collections, "For Boys Only"and "For Girls Only,"and in "Ascot,"a more sophisticated collection.

Among decorators who have mined this vein is Geoffrey Bradfield of New York, who recently did a decorator showcase room in a Knights of the Round Table theme. The room, set up for two hypothetical pre-teen boys, featured decorative moldings and partitions that looked like castles. He borrowed a suit of armor, valued at $7,000, from Newell Galleries in New York, and draped it with prep school ties.

"The look is romantic, masculine and fun for boys' rooms and media rooms,"says Bradfield, who has created several rooms in the idiom for clients.

Gibbs sees heraldry as "an opportunity to get away from flowers"and to make use of dramatic furniture pieces with iron bases and stone tops and drapery rods that look like an arrow or a lance.

Used in moderation, heraldic motifs impart a sense of tradition. With a more lavish hand, the style verges on the baronial, as in Gibbs' most elaborate effort – a reception hall in a Tudor revival house in the Chicago area.

"We didn't want it to look like a dungeon, but we did want a King Henry VIII feeling,"he said.

Towards that goal, there's a copy of a steel shield over the fireplace and a radiator cover that looks like a medieval strapped chest. The most telling accessory is a costly 16th-century suit of armor, bought in England by the client.

But perhaps the chains on the wall are the most talked-about accessory. Gibbs said they were bought – for decorative purposes – at an S&M shop.

Gas lights: safety with beauty

Natural gas lights are an attractive way to illuminate yards, driveways, patios and decks at a very low cost, according to the American Gas Association.

Unlike electric lights that give off a harsh glare, natural gas lights provide security with an aesthetically pleasing glow, while providing ample illumination without attracting bugs.

Natural gas lights can be equipped with automatic on-and-off switches or dimmers that reduce illumination during daylight hours.

These energy-saving features can reduce the already low cost of natural gas lighting by as much as 50 percent, A.G.A. says.

634 Death Notices

DENNIS "DENNY" O'LEARY, 46, formerly of Detroit. Denny died suddenly on Sept. 20, 1996. He is survived by his parents, Ellen and Jack Bergan, Dennis and Vivian O'Leary; brother Mark; sisters, Ellen Lamphere and Bridget Peasley; nephews, Tom and Brennan Mickley and Dale O'Leary and niece, Elicka Lamphere.
Denny was a popular classmate of Detroit Henry Ford High School, Class of 1968. He also attended Eastern Michigan University. Gifted with wit, humor and charisma, it was often said that Den never met a stranger.
A beautiful service was held at Assumption Catholic Church in Belmont, MI on Sept. 23, 1996. All arrangements wonderfully handled by the Pederson Funeral Home of Rockford.
