Watts used a five iron and shot 78 for the round.

Woolgatherers meet

The Woolgatherers Knitting Guild meets the third Thursday of each month in the Plymouth Salvation Army fellowship hall on Main Street just south of Ann Arbor Road.

The guild is a local chapter of the Knitting Guild of America. The purpose of the group is to promote and advance the quality of knitting through education, communication and community service.

There are 47 members from Plymouth, Canton and other nearby towns. Community service projects include knitted outfits for stuffed bears for police to distribute to kids they encounter, and knitted caps, mittens and more for the Salvation Army.

Voters make decisions Tuesday

Plymouth voters will decide local issues at the general election. A state representative race is on tap. Also, city of Plymouth voters will decide the fate of a road millage.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

If you want to make voting a breeze on Tuesday, bring a cheat sheet.

Because of all those ballot proposals - added to judges' races and a slew of others including the presidential race - municipal clerks say it's OK to bring a list into the voting booth.

"We encourage that," said Plymouth City Clerk Linda Langmesser. "They should read up and educate themselves on the ballot language and make a decision before entering the polling place."

Both the city and township clerk's offices have sample ballots voters can review before entering the booth.

And when the voting is done, city and township voters will have helped determine if Bill Clinton or Bob Dole will serve as president.

They'll help determine if Democrat Lynn Rivers will return to the U.S. Congress, or be replaced with Republican Joe Fitzsimmons. Greater Plymouth voters will also help decide the 20th District state House race pitting Rep. Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, against Democrat Deborah Hoadley.

In the city of Plymouth, voters will determine how to pay for street improvements. If they vote yes on a proposed street bond issue, homeowners will be assessed roughly 2 mills for 20 years - a charge that is tax-deductible.

If they vote no, they'll pay special assessment costs when improvements come to their street. This charge is not tax-deductible.

In the township, voters will elect a township supervisor, clerk, treasurer and four trustees. The seven candidates for the seven positions, all Republicans, are unopposed.

Langmesser predicts 73 percent of registered voters will turn out Tuesday. "We had 70 percent four years ago," she said, adding the city street

Clinton wins mock election

BY JOANNE MALINOWSKI

If high school students in Canton and Plymouth had their way, Bill Clinton would occupy the White House for four more years, U.S. Sen. Carl Levin would continue on the Hill and newcomer Deborah Nesbit of Canton would take over incumbent Deborah Whyman's seat in the state House.

In other words, the students leaned toward the Democrats - in all but one race - seeking election or re-election in Tuesday's vote.

"Bill Grotzinger (Close Up teacher) claims the students predict it every year," said Bill Boyd, a Close Up teacher who released the results of the election conducted at the high school Friday during the second hour of classes.

Of the seven candidates running for president, the 1,708 students who voted in the race gave Clinton 42.3 percent of their vote, followed by Bob Dole with 25.4 percent and Ross Perot with 20.3.

Democrat Levin captured students' interest hands down with 50.4 percent of the votes cast by 1,621 students who voted in the race. Republican Ronna Romney trailed with 31.9 percent of the ballots cast.

In the race for state representative in the 21st District, which includes Canton, Democrat Nesbit squeezed by two-term Republican veteran Whyman with 50.3 percent of the votes cast by 1,454 students. Whyman was given 49.7 percent of the vote.

Newcomer Republican Joe Fitzsimmons who is seeking to oust one-term Democratic U.S. Rep. Lynn Rivers captured 44.8 percent of the votes cast by 1,581 students. Rivers came in with 41.3 percent of the votes.

The student election has given some a thought. Turnout ranged between 95-100 percent. "Maybe that's the answer. We did bring the ballots to them," Boyd said.

High fees push groups out of schools

BY M.B. DILLON

Community groups including scout troops and the American Association of University Women aren't happy about the fees charged to use Plymouth-Canton school buildings.

Canton's Peggy Seery, a longtime Huron Valley Girl Scout Council officer, said fees "are prohibitive, and you can be bounced at any time."

Scout leaders launching their annual cookie sale were being charged $60 to use a school for two hours, she said.

A scoutmaster and troop leader, Seery's husband, Frank said, "Twice within the last six years, they closed the schools strictly as a response to a millage defeat. Their response is to punish the community. The first time they closed them, they put 1,200 scouts on the street with no explanation other than, 'We have to save money and we're going to do it.'"

School officials deny the charge. "These groups are being asked to contribute to help defray the ever-increasing costs of operating these buildings," said Judy Evola, community relations director.

The Plymouth-Canton AAUW awards scholarships to prospective college students, raising funds with book sales and a spring play. Most members are from Plymouth-Canton, and they'd like to perform locally. But for the third year, the AAUW play will be elsewhere.

"The big cost for the play is the cost of renting Salem's auditorium and paying the crew," said the AAUW's Mickey Edell-Cotner, a speech pathologist in the district. "They do an outstanding job and

Witches shrieked, Dracula snarled, Dalmatians barked, Elvis crooned and the wind howled as the Gallimore Elementary School Halloween parade made its way down Leslie Lane on a blustery Thursday afternoon.

Leading the way was a farmer, or was it interim principal George Dodson?

His fellow farmers (or were they teachers?) carried signs and well-disguised students carried a banner with the message "Gallimore teachers plant the seeds of learning."

The scene on Leslie Lane and Forest Trails in Canton was one of moms, dads and videotape.

Parading before their eyes were robots, rabbits, witches and cats; princesses, scarecrows and doctors. Their compatriots were firefighters, devils, tigers, brides and skeletons; sumo wrestlers, cowboys, and Superman.

With them were Mexican mariachis, Jamaican Rastafarians, Frankenstein, jocks, monsters, Batman, wizards, Dorothy and Toto.

Even Michigan quarterback Scott Dreisbach was spotted having a little Halloween fun before Saturday's big game.

The phrase heard most often was, "I'm freezing!"

Streetscape

Street work: Mark Leid, an electrician working on the downtown streetscape project, installs street lamps on Friday afternoon.

Street work nears end

The last phase of the downtown streetscape project is on schedule and should wrap up this month, said Downtown Development Authority Director Steve Guile.

"We are moving ahead according to the schedule established during pre-construction meetings, we're anticipating completion Nov. 15," Guile said.

"The only thing that might be a problem is the final course of asphalt," Guile said.

"If it rains to any significant extent the next couple of weeks it may alter the schedule," he said. The work has been happening on Main Street on the north and south ends of downtown; from Fralick to Church and from the Mayflower Hotel to Wing Street.

Last week, he said the laying of bricks was 50 percent complete. New sidewalks are in, along with new curbs, tree grates, trees, an irrigation system and new lighting.

Benches for the streets and Kellogg Park won't be installed until spring.

Cost of the entire project is $2.5 million.

The Downtown Development Authority is making bond payments for the project from money it raises from taxes captured from businesses in the downtown development district. The project also was awarded a $155,000 federal grant.

The streetscape contractor is Basile and Sons.

Funeral services held for ex-hospital chief

Sister Mary Columbine Radzilowski, past president and chief executive officer of St. Mary Hospital died Oct. 23 in the Felician Sisters Motherhouse in Livonia after a long illness.

A funeral Mass was held Oct. 28 at the Felician Sisters Chapel in Livonia with burial at Holy Sepulchre Cemetery, Southfield.

A nun for 68 years, Sister Columbine will be remembered as the first administrator at St. Mary Hospital.

She was appointed by the Felician Sisters to oversee the hospital building project from its inception. It was through her efforts that in 1957 a Hill Burton Grant was obtained to provide the additional funds needed for the building project.

St. Mary Hospital was dedicated on Nov. 21, 1959 to provide health care to Livonia and its five surrounding communities.

During her tenure as president and CEO, the hospital underwent three major expansions (1965, 1967, 1972) to increase bed capacity from 212 to 335.

Sister Columbine had been actively involved in many local, state and national hospital associations. As a member of the Greater Detroit Area Hospital Council, she served at different times on the council's board of trustees, its executive committee, its planning committee's subcommittee, and the health insurance council.

COP CALLS

Man charged: A man found hiding inside a Plymouth Township business after an attempted burglary Sunday, Oct. 26, told police he was sorry as he was led off to jail.

The man arrested in the incident, a 25-year-old Plymouth Township resident, had worked at the firm, N.W. Coughlin Co., for a year and a half, according to the incident report filed by Plymouth Township police.

Police are seeking charges of breaking and entering and habitual offender-second offense against the man.

Police were called to the business at 9401 General Drive at 5 p.m. after a witness saw a man get inside the building by going through an open window. Officers went inside an office area, heard a noise, and proceeded to an adjacent company warehouse.

Officers found an $800 computer hard drive in a black plastic bag, but failed to turn up the thief. A K-9 unit was brought in, and the man was spotted in a hiding place between a north wall and some pallets, according to the police report.

The man asked that police pass on his apology to his employer. He was freed from jail and awaits charges after posting $500 bond.

Traffic arrest: Plymouth police arrested a 33-year-old Detroit man who was driving a blue 1987 Cadillac shortly after midnight Oct. 31.

An officer clocking motorists with stationary radar stopped the driver, who was traveling northbound at 38 mph near Plymouth and Main streets.

The driver produced a Michigan identification card instead of a license. He was wanted on a Detroit warrant for driving with a suspended license.

The man was arrested and handcuffed behind his back. His vehicle was locked at the scene. The driver was taken to the police station where he was processed and jailed.

The man was unable to post bond. He was turned over to Detroit Police Department and given a Nov. 20 court date.

18-YEAR-OLD CITED: An 18-year-old South Lyon man stopped for a traffic offense at Evergreen and Linden produced for police an altered, defaced driver's license.

His year of birth had been obscured with a knife or other sharp instrument, making it impossible to read, police said.

The driver, stopped at 10:07 p.m. Oct. 28, wouldn't confirm or deny that he'd altered it in any way. The license was seized and tagged, and the driver was cited.

CAR DAMAGED: A 61-year-old Plymouth man told police that someone damaged his 1995 green Ford Probe. The incident occurred while the car was parked on the lot south of the Cozy Cafe. The man recently reported the accident, which occurred Aug. 7.

Law wins award

The National Federation of Independent Business announced that State Representative Gerald Law has earned the NFIB Guardian of Small Business Award for supporting small business owners in the 88th legislative session.

Awards are earned through an analysis of legislator performance in three critical areas: The NFIB Vote Record, being a principal sponsor or advocate of NFIB priority legislation, taking a leadership role in moving a bill out of committee and helping line up votes on the chamber floor.

Local singer to tour Europe with Blue Lake choir

On tour: Plymouth Township student Kellie Drinkhahn is going to tour Europe with a group of singers.

BY KEVIN BROWN
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Canton High School freshman Kellie Drinkhahn is going to sing in Europe next summer.

"I'm really, really excited. It's going to be a lot of fun. We're going to stay with host families," said Drinkhahn, 15.

She's one of 300 youths selected from a field of 1,500 who tried out for the Blue Lake Fine Arts Camp International Choir group last summer.

Drinkhahn, of Plymouth Township, attended the two-week Blue Lake camp north of Muskegon for the first time last summer, because she's interested in theater.

"I learned movement and voice. I just like the thought of getting into a character, it's really interesting thinking how to do it and then actually do it," she said. Drinkhahn is also interested in dance.

She's one of 85 youths in the choir. Others going on the European trip perform in the orchestra or in a ballet group.

Drinkhahn has sung some in school and church, but not too much with choir groups. When it comes to singing, she said, "I pretty much like every style, as long as it has a good beat."

As for favorite singers, "I respect Celine Dion a lot, she has good placement, a good basic classical way of singing."

The group is touring six European countries from June 15 to July 6. Is there one Drinkhahn is most interested in visiting? "Probably Germany, because I'm part German."

While she takes Spanish in school, "We're not going anywhere where they speak Spanish," she said.

To make the trip, students seek to raise the money on their own. Drinkhahn is seeking to raise $3,500 by sending letters to potential sponsors.

"Blue Lake follows up with a letter about me and what they're doing," she explained, adding she's getting ready to send the letters.

Those who'd like to contribute to Drinkhahn's trip can write her at 8965 Pepperidge Court, Plymouth 48170.

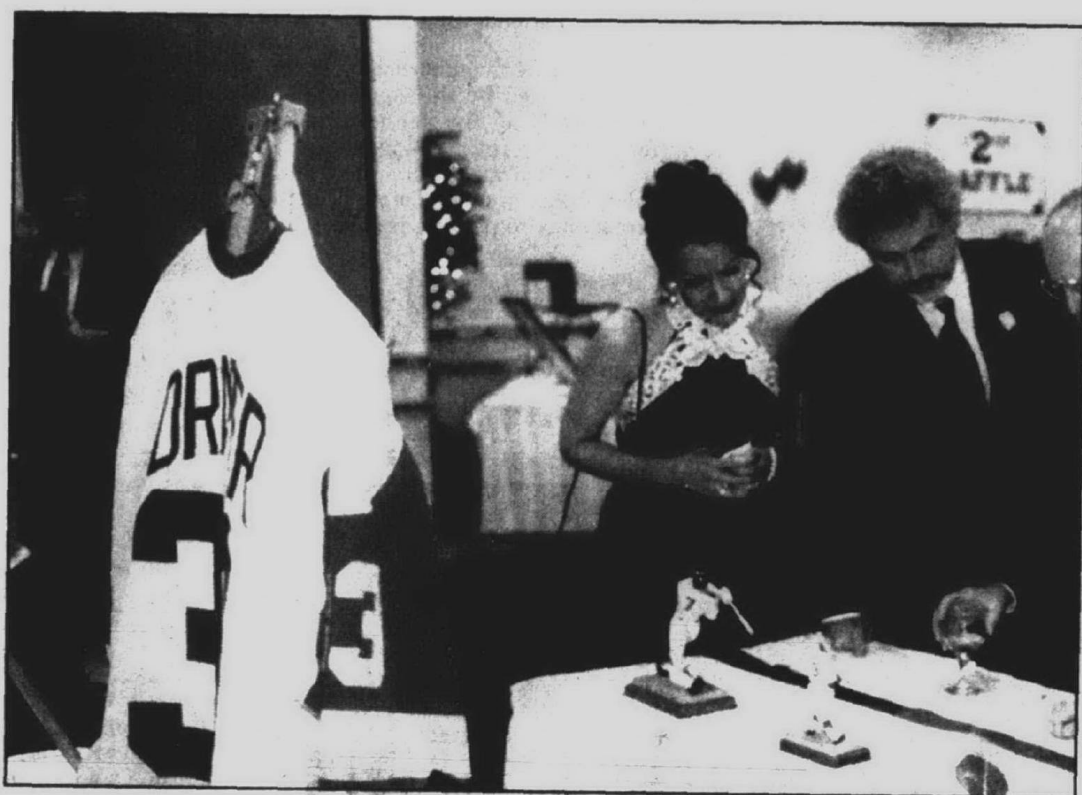

Rehearsals for the trip to Europe started two weeks ago. They're scheduled in Muskegon, and that means her parents and Kellie make the three-hour drive one way.

"We'll have another rehearsal on a Sunday, another one in April, then a weekend in May and an intense week in June before we leave," Drinkhahn said.

Numbers the group is performing consist mostly of slow ballads, "but we have a couple from Broadway," she said.

"My personal favorite is 'As If We've Never Said Goodbye' from 'Sunset Boulevard.'"

Crowd turns out for auction

BY JEFF COUNTS
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth's premiere social event of the season came off without a hitch on Friday at Laurel Manor.

A tax and black dress-clad crowd of nearly 800 Plymouth people showed up to bid on items donated to the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce's 7th Annual Dinner and Auction.

However, one person who wasn't there was honored. Mary Childs, a community leader from Plymouth, who died in October, was remembered by District Judge John MacDonald during a prayer before dinner. "She was an honorary member of the chamber," he said.

Fred Hill, a Plymouth Realtor, served as the master of ceremonies, running the live auction that included everything from a party catered by Uncle Frank's Chicagos and Coneys to tickets to the 1997 Michigan vs. Notre Dame football game.

Red Wing items were hot. An official jersey signed by Vyacheslav Koslov was up for grabs.

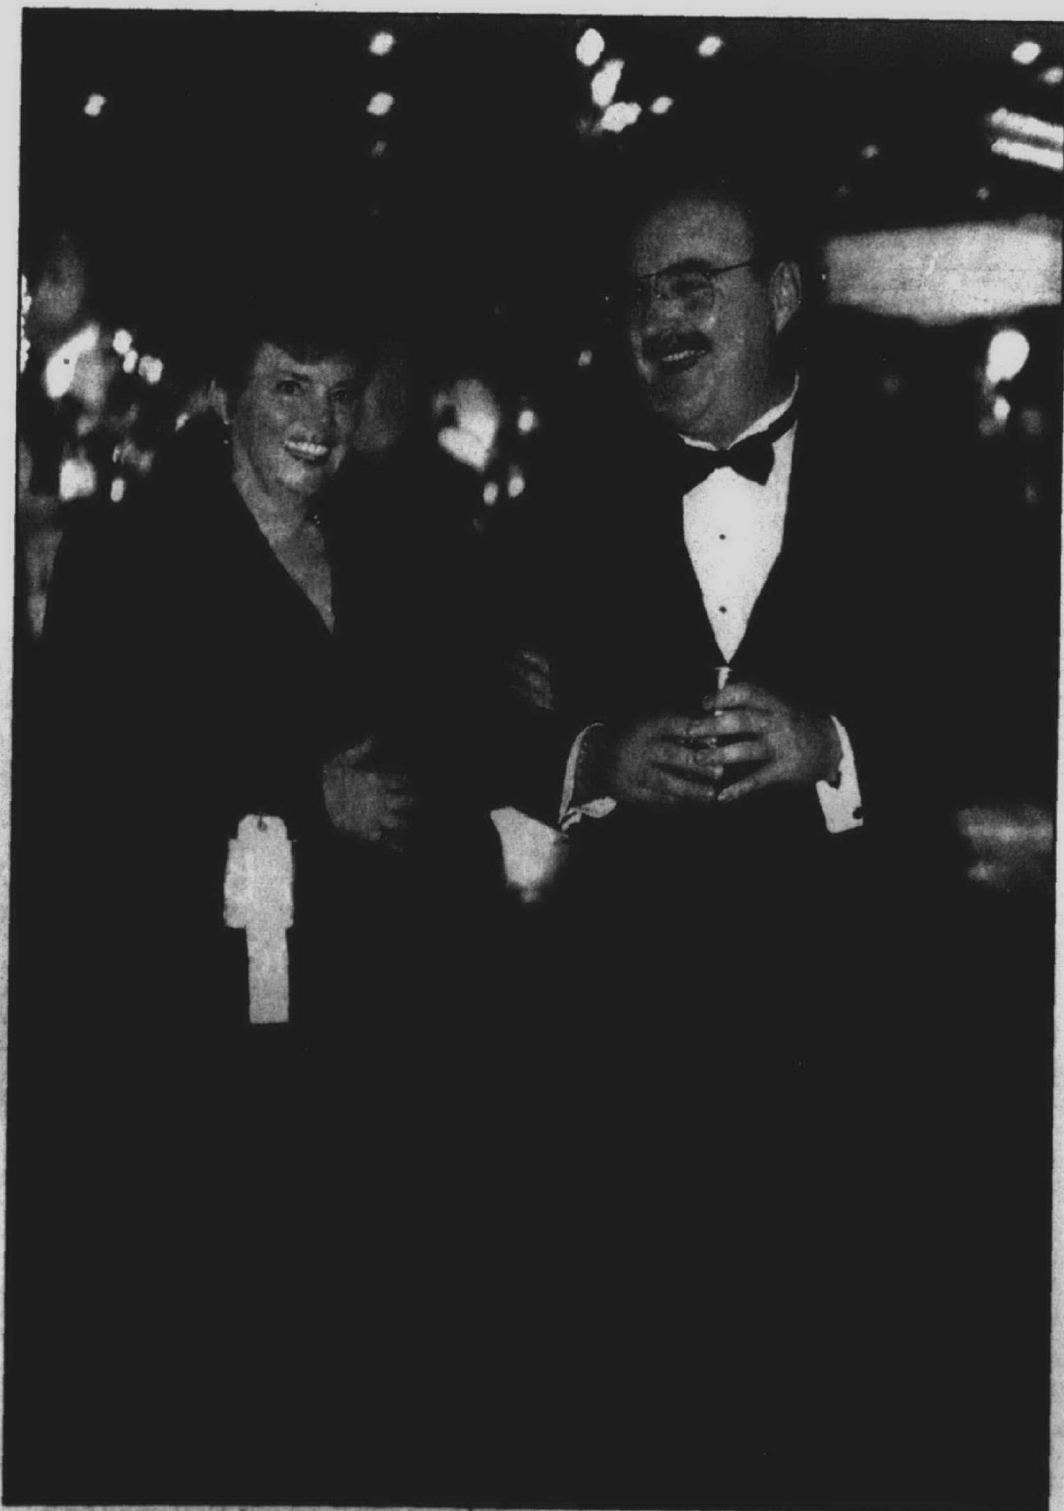

Not only is it a big social event, but it's also the chamber of commerce's prime annual fund-raiser.

The event raised $50,000 last year. The money pays for chamber activities that seek to boost the business community.

Fran Toney, chamber director, said she expected the auction to raise more money than last year.

Other items auctioned were autographed Lions and Red Wings jerseys, lamps, snowblowers, a wheelbarrow load of liquor, Oriental rugs, fur coats, kids' toys and sports items, cellular phones, a satellite dish and plenty more.

The event attracted more than just Plymouth residents and business people. Canton Township Supervisor Tom Yack was on hand to bid on items.

Fur trade: K.C. Mueller models a fur coat. Jim Anulwicz, a Plymouth Township official, seems to approve.

School counselor recognized for work

Mary Vertrees, counselor at Plymouth Salem High School, recently received a letter notifying her that she'd been nominated for special recognition at Western Michigan University.

Kristin Young, a 1995 Plymouth Salem graduate and a student in the Lee Honors College at WMU, nominated her high school counselor for the "Favorite Teacher Day" recognition sponsored by the honors college.

School officials say this is a way for students to show their appreciation, and for the university to show its support of excellence in teaching.

Young said, "Mrs. Vertrees is a very special woman who was much more to me than just a high school counselor. She was a help when I was confused, a comfort when I was troubled, and a good friend. She was always happy to see me; she made me feel welcome and cared for. She always wanted the best for me in everything that I did, and in my future...I still miss her and I would love for her to come visit me and see how well I am doing here at Western."

Young got her wish, as Vertrees recently visited the university. Vertrees was recognized for her work with high school students.

Salem principal Gerald Ostoin said, "We are very proud of our staff at the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park. Our staff of professionals has always shown that dedication to our students' success is a high priority."

mouth YMCA.

But the owner of the fifth house at the corner of Church and Union streets is challenging the library board's attempt to acquire the house.

"It's the library board suing my clients and we're responding, we've got two basic problems," said attorney Owen Cummings.

"We question if they really need the property for the library," Cummings said. "When all is said and done it won't be part of the building, if anything it will be a public street."

He called the $110,000 purchase offer from the library board "totally unrealistic," adding the house is assessed at $118,000. "It's just not a good faith offer on behalf of the library board," Cummings said.

The two sides are scheduled later this month to appear in a hearing on the matter before Judge Phillip Jourdan.

Library Director Pat Thomas said that with the house acquisition process nearing resolution, "we're looking at mid- to late November to start digging in the ground."

Work on the project will begin with taking out pipe and asbestos tile from the old library and dismantling the inside of the acquired houses. House demolition will follow, and the construction site will be fenced, Thomas said.

"The plan is to focus the activity where the new building will be in the initial phases so as not to disrupt activity and access in that area," she said. "We will be focused at the city hall end of the property."

At the temporary library site, Thomas said, "We're busy as we can be, we probably had the busiest September and October we've ever had."

"It's not the best circumstances, but it's certainly usable and people are taking advantage of the services and the facility," she said.

The new two-level library is scheduled to open in 1998.

The upper floor is slated to house book stacks, a 170-capacity meeting room that can be divided in half and used after the main part of the library closes, circulation desk and staff offices.

The lower level will include quiet study and group study rooms, more book stacks and more staff area.

deserve every penny, but the cost became prohibitive for us."

The AAUW needs to make a few dollars, or there's nothing left for the scholarships, she said.

To use the auditorium, non-profit community groups pay $250 for four hours.

Since the mid-1980s, the AAUW has held used book sales in area schools. The fund-raiser is being canceled. There's no longer room at West Middle School, or elsewhere in the district, said Aj Hallerman of the AAUW.

Evola said that currently, 12 scout troops are using schools from 3-6 p.m. for an annual $10 fee.

Eighteen troops use the buildings from 6-10 p.m. They pay the $10 fee, plus "half the listed usage fee of $15 per hour for an elementary school gym or cafeteria; $25 for the kitchen, or $5 per classroom," said Evola.

Peggy Seery said that with "more than a thousand scouts in Plymouth and Canton, that doesn't begin to cover the need." Moreover, she said, "the majority of adults work and aren't available right after school."

The fees aren't in keeping with the intent of those who built the schools, said Esther Hulsing, a school board member from 1954 to 1972.

"They were to be neighborhood schools, to be used by the community as well as for school functions," she said. "Schools were to be open from 6 a.m.-10 p.m. It does mean you need more operating money to pay the janitors, but that is what they were originally built for. Our neighborhood schools were to be community centers. So of course they would be open for adults and students; Girl and Boy Scouts; or for symphony practice."

If residents are allowed to use the schools, they feel a sense of ownership and responsibility for them, she said.

Frank Seery, whose scouts now meet for free at a church, says "the custodians have always been very courteous and helpful. The school district, on the other hand, has used its power as a weapon. I find it very arrogant on their part. We employ them and supply the money, yet they treat us like we are subjects rather than citizens. I was ready to start a recall I was so angry about this."

"Things haven't changed, and I think it stinks," he said. "There's no concern for the community."

John Birchler, assistant superintendent for business, empathizes. "But it's one thing to build the buildings, and a whole other thing to operate them, especially with the funding changes under Proposal A," he said.

Community groups, especially non-profit ones, are charged less, he said. But fees still don't cover costs. "Everything you take out for operating these buildings means less for everything from textbooks to teacher salaries to computers," said Birchler, who doesn't see changes in the offing.

bond proposal is sparking interest among voters.

The city clerk's office recently added several used voting machines donated by the Plymouth-Canton schools. While Langmesser said there were some minor problems with the machines during the August primary, a maintenance man will be on hand during voting Tuesday to deal with any problems.

Plymouth Township Clerk Marilyn Massengill predicts a 65-70 percent turnout of registered voters, down from almost 80 percent four years ago.

"I don't think there's a lot of excitement generally," she said, adding the Rivers-Fitzsimmons U.S. House race seems to be generating the most interest.

Tuesday marks the first full-fledged test of the township's touch-screen voting system. "More people will be exposed to the new equipment," Massengill said.

"Last time (the primary), I asked some people 'Was it easy to use?' A lot of them said they liked it," she said.

In both the city and township, voters can vote by emergency absentee ballot today. City and township absentee voters should return ballots by today, with exceptions allowed for senior absentee voters who return them Tuesday.

Wayne improves bond rating, best in 17 years

Wayne County moved up two notches in the investment ratings of Standard and Poor's Ratings Group, reflecting the continuing improvement of the County's financial reputation on Wall Street, County Executive Edward McNamara announced Monday.

The new rating was Wayne County's highest in 17 years - its third upgrade by Standard & Poor's since 1989.

"This is good news for our residents," McNamara said. "Every time our investment grade goes up, we can sell bonds for a lower interest rate and put more money to work for taxpayers."

"The double upgrade, from BBB- to BBB+, is extremely unusual," said Steven Murphy, director of public finance ratings at Standard and Poor's. "We liked what we saw happening in Wayne County. They have shown real financial discipline."

The improved rating could save Wayne County as much as one-quarter percent in interest rates on future bond issues, including the planned construction of a new, $40 million juvenile detention facility.

If voters approve Proposal S on Tuesday, the upgrade will also lower the interest cost on the $80 million in "tourist tax" bonds that would be used to construct new downtown stadiums for the Detroit Lions and Detroit Tigers.

The improved rating was awarded based on the strength of the county's financial condition, the strength of the local economy and consideration of financial management, according to Thomas Naughton, the county chief financial officer.

Since a brush with bankruptcy in 1987, the county has eliminated a $134 million deficit and recorded eight straight balanced budgets. A ninth balanced budget is expected for 1996, when the county is expected to end the year with a $20 million surplus.

Naughton said the ratings serve as financial report cards for his staff, which has worked hard in recent years to bring county financial reporting in line with national accounting and auditing standards.

"There used to be a 60-page management letter attached to our financial reports - meaning auditors were seeing a lot of gray areas," Naughton said. "Now that management letter is only four pages long. We have addressed everything that our auditors had identified as major areas of concern and weakness, and we are getting a clean bill of health."

McNamara said he was particularly proud that the county had been able to restore its financial reputation without slashing needed services.

"We have worked hard to come up with more creative, cost-effective ways of managing programs, from indigent health care to misdemeanor sentencing," he said. "We've improved the condition of our roads and parks, eliminated inefficient offices like the Drain Commission and Road Commission, and no program is allowed to linger on without being fiscally accountable."

"As we look toward the opening of the new Metro Airport at the turn of the century, we want to be in the strongest financial position possible. Better bond ratings for the county could lead to a better market and lower interest rate for airport bonds, and will help us with other long-term projects like parks improvement, cleaning up the Rouge River, and fixing still more roads."

Standard & Poor's was the first of the three major bond-rating firms to report its findings.

"I think we have a solid shot at additional rating improvements," said Naughton said.

Grocery bagger wins contest

Melissa Shelton of Plymouth was recently chosen to represent Plymouth as a semi-finalist in the Michigan Best Bagger contest.

Shelton is an employee at Danny's Foods in Plymouth and a resident of Plymouth. The competition was hosted by Associated Food Dealers of Michigan and the Michigan Grocers Association.

Grocery stores across the state entered their best baggers in the contest. Shelton was selected as one of the 24 semi-finalists to compete in Lansing for the state title. She was chosen based on her great attitude, courtesy to customers and grocery bagging speed and technique.

Shelton competed against baggers from across the state. Mike Renden of Caro Central Shop-Rite bagged the competition with his fast moves and skillful technique. Renden will travel to Houston to compete in the National Grocers Association Best Bagger Contest next February.

Contestants were judged by speed, proper bag building technique, number of bags used per order, distribution of weight between bags and style/attitude/appearance. Baggers took their places at grocery-laden check-out counters set up on stage and waited for the whistle. The national record time is 30 seconds.

Students have robot to help

Lutz is familiar with the program because his son Jason attended Canton High School. He graduated in 1996 and is studying electrical engineering with the Navy.

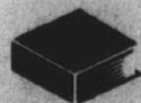

"We are very fortunate to have students like Jason," said Siedlik. "His enthusiasm in the program has allowed others the opportunity to gain knowledge through the donated robot."

Health care

Business groups split over proposed legislation

BY TIM RICHARD
STAFF WRITER

A health-care bill that sailed through the state House on a 108-0 vote is center of a storm in the Senate, where small businesses insist it will drive up costs and drive out insurers.

Rep. John Jamian, R-Bloomfield Township, steered House Bill 5572 through months of negotiations and compromise to easy passage in mid-September. It would:

- Require insurers to cover "pre-existing conditions" of an individual under a group policy. "Pre-existing conditions" include such ailments as diabetes, hypertension and heart problems.

- Allow insurers to exclude an individual buyer from coverage of a "pre-existing condition" for six months.

Sen. John Schwarz, R-Battle Creek, a physician and supporter of the Jamian bill, accused insurers of "cherry-picking" — wanting to insure only healthy people on whom they can make a profit and leaving others out in the cold.

"I find that unacceptable. There's a fairness issue here," Schwarz said at an Oct. 30 hearing in Lansing of the Financial Services and Health Policy committees. He cited an Ohio worker who would like to move to a job in Michigan but is blocked from health insurance coverage for six months.

A spokesperson for Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Michigan agreed. "To avoid high-risk enrollees, carriers use evasive tactics such as medical underwriting, pre-existing condition exclusions, industry screening and durational writing," said

Sen. John Schwarz, R-Battle Creek, a physician and supporter of the bill, accused insurers of "cherry-picking" — wanting to insure only healthy people on whom they can make a profit and leaving others out in the cold.

Mary Burgess-Faroni in a memo to lawmakers.

Bad odds cited

But some insurance agents say irresponsible customers hurt the system. "You need to look at why people wait," said Neale Musolf, a Holt agent for 32 years. "We don't sell fire insurance to people whose house is on fire. You can't sell a parachute to someone already in an airplane."

Richard Ryman, of American Medical Security Co. of Green Bay, Wis., opposed the bill, citing Kentucky's 1994 law prohibiting exclusion of pre-existing conditions. "In some cases we received applications (for insurance) the day before (transplant) surgery because we covered transplants," said Ryman.

His company's experience was one transplant in 613 Kentucky policies versus one in 3,000 in Florida. Ryman accused Kentucky of promoting "adverse selection," the opposite of cherry-picking.

Schwarz replied: "The number of transplants will do nothing but increase."

Barry Cargill, of the Small Business Association of Michigan, predicted HB 5572 would force the exit of two to five insurers from the state and raise costs for the rest.

Senators heard testimony from two dozen people and haven't scheduled a vote on either HB 5572 or other bills in the five-part package.

They are sponsored by Reps. Penny Crissman, R-Rochester, and Gerald Law, R-Plymouth, among others. Called the "Patient's Bill of Rights," the bills would require insurers to fully inform customers in plain-English documents and to establish formal grievance procedure by Oct. 1, 1997.

No comments on the testimony or bills were made by Sens. Michael Bouchard, R-Birmingham; Mike Rogers, R-Brighton; Willis Bullard Jr., R-Milford; or three Democrats.

'Modest step'

Larry Horwitz, of the Economic Alliance of Michigan, representing company and union buyers of health insurance, called an impromptu news conference during a break to rebut Ryman's charges concerning Kentucky and other states.

Many of those states regulated rates, guaranteed coverage and mandated benefits. "These (Michigan) bills don't do any of that. Their examples have been states that did far-reaching changes. They're comparing apples and grapefruit," said Horwitz, adding:

"The House bill is a very modest step."

Brighton insurance agent Patrick Humant said he had "mixed emotions" on the question of requiring coverage of pre-existing conditions. "I can't buy insurance from my own insurance company. That's not right. But it's not worth bankrupting the whole system for pre-existing conditions."

The answer, Humant said, is not to pass the House bills but to let the federal Kennedy-Kassebaum law take effect next July 1.

That federal act deals with portability of benefits, allowing workers to carry benefits from one job to the next. But it defines "eligible individual" as a person who recently had group health coverage, which some lawyers say won't help individual insurance buyers.

Chambers split

The debate found the Greater Detroit and Michigan Chambers of Commerce on opposing sides.

Tim Beck, a Detroit insurance agent, said that when he started in 1975 no one inquired about pre-existing conditions. After about 1980, insurers tried to get rid of pre-existing conditions. "The bottom line is how to avoid paying claims," said Beck. "I'm not interested in doing business that way."

Nancy McKeague, representing the state chamber, said in an earlier hearing that the Jamian bill "removes a major incentive for people to take personal responsibility and purchase health insurance before they need it."

OPINION

Commission Re-elect McCotter

Voters in Livonia, Plymouth and Plymouth Township will select a county commissioner on Tuesday, Nov. 5.

The candidates are incumbent Republican Thaddeus McCotter and challenger R. Karl Burnett, a Democrat.

McCotter, an attorney and Livonia resident, is seeking his third term on the commission. Based on his record as commissioner from the 10th District, McCotter merits re-election.

McCotter is intelligent and hardworking. His disagreements with Democrats on the commission are always honest and honorable. McCotter's keen insight on the issues along with his logical and well-reasoned approach to each and every issue that comes before the county board, make him a solid choice on Tuesday, Nov. 5.

Yes on auditor plan

Along with a series of state ballot issues, voters in Wayne County will decide three county issues - Proposition S, otherwise known as the "stadium tax", a proposal which would expand the power of the county auditor's office and a related amendment that would permit county commissioners to appoint an independent lawyer, instead of relying on the county corporation counsel for legal services.

We have already recommended a yes vote on S. We also now recommend a yes vote on the auditor general proposal, and a no vote on the independent counsel.

The auditor general proposal would clarify and broaden the scope of the auditor general's authority, making the agency independent of the county executive. The auditor general would have the power to hire an outside auditor to prepare an annual report on the county's finances.

On the independent counsel issue, the present charter does allow for the commission to retain temporary counsel, and the commission already retains legal counsel.

Yes on road taxes

City of Plymouth voters on Tuesday will decide how to pay for future street improvements.

On the ballot is a 2-mill property tax increase. However, the vote will decide more than a tax hike, it will determine how the city will finance road improvements.

The Observer recommends a yes vote on the road millage.

A yes vote means that all city residents will share equally in the cost of repairing and maintaining the roads that are used by all residents.

The road millage is fair for all residents.

fund alone is $22.9 million," Juarez said. "I do not think that this district, nor any other within western Wayne County, receives $22.9 million in services from Wayne County in either direct or indirect services."

"People wanted to see me work at it, get involved and get our representation back."

The issues are "taxes, taxes, taxes," Juarez said.

"People are upset with all the county issues on the ballot. People out county are not voting for them. The only one that supported the parks proposal was Trenton."

But Beard points to $6.7 million in improvements over the past four years as part of her work for the district.

That included widening of Cherry Hill to five lanes between Newburgh and Wayne Roads, Middle Belt from Ford to Warren, Wayne from Warren to Cowan, and about $700,000 in traffic equipment on Wayne from West Chicago in Livonia to Goddard in Romulus.

Also included in those improvements were three other projects scheduled to be completed in Inkster but postponed this year because of the debate between Gov. John Engler and local officials over federal monies for local projects.

The stadium tax proposal

Beard supported the placement of the stadium tax proposal on the ballot.

"People should vote on that," Beard said. "I look at it as a referendum on whether people want the Lions back in Detroit."

The proposal allows out-of-town guests to support the stadiums, Beard said. She was surprised at the support from hotels and rental car companies.

"That in and of itself won't bring back downtown," Beard said. "The airport also will make a difference for Detroit. It is a huge job generator."

Beard does not believe the tax represents corporate welfare for the Ilitches and the Fords, the respective owners of the Tigers and Lions.

"They are paying more than half," Beard said. "Many, many stadiums around the country are paid with 100 percent tax dollars. That's real corporate welfare."

Juarez ripped the stadium tax proposal.

"People are upset with this," she said.

Juarez doesn't believe it will bring growth to Detroit. "Coleman Young said that about the People Mover, and people said that about the Cobo Hall expansion," Juarez said.

If the Tigers or Lions pulled out of the deal, the tax could still be in effect if it is approved by voters, she said.

If the expected $5 million to $6 million is not collected as anticipated, taxpayers would be responsible for the general obligation tax, Juarez said.

County ballot proposals

Beard proposed placing the corporation counsel question on the ballot.

"We found it really doesn't work well to have one corporation counsel for two separate branches of government," Beard said. "Our founding fathers 200 years ago set up our government so that we'd have some tension between the separate branches."

"We feel we need our own legal counsel. It seems to me the public is better served if we have the independence of our own counsel."

The auditor general question was proposed because the auditor general was not getting information from some departments, Beard said.

"The auditor general has saved millions of dollars," Beard said. "(The auditor general's staff members) are always going in and making suggestions to save money. (The auditor general) needs more authority without being road blocked."

Juarez had not studied the proposal on corporation counsel, but believes and supports the auditor general's expanded role.

"Wayne County has had a problem with money forever. You always hear the excuse that 'we don't know where the money is' and people wonder is it spent where it is supposed to be spent."

Juarez also wants to repeal the parks tax. "My district voted 'no,' and they are upset about it," she said.

What needs improving?

Beard believes all services could use improvement. "All of us are unhappy about the roads," Beard said. She cited the $6.7 million in improvements for the district over the past four years.

Juarez wants to appoint committees to examine the budget.

Issues of housing, crime and drugs are more important?

Burnett: I think the county is putting the issues of stadiums in priority order with other important functions and issues. I support the concept of "year-round professional sports." I think twin stadiums will be needed to support professional sports overlapping seasons, predicted as a thing of the future.

McCotter: Ask the commission Democrats — every single one of them supported the stadium issue. The county should ever be in the business of taxing us to build stadiums for millionaires — let alone when residents already pay too many taxes and receive too few services. I voted against the stadium tax — and every other county tax. I will continue to do so.

Should Wayne County be made into two counties? Why or why not?

Burnett: No. Secession from this part of the county from the rest will not solve problems. The commissioner said he would during the primary. His opponent did. This is a bad idea that will only increase taxes, bureaucracy, and one of the things we all hate, the size of government.

McCotter: Secession will cost taxpayers millions in just the "start-up" costs of a new governmental entity — let alone the new county's proportionate share of outstanding Wayne County debt it will still be obligated to pay.

I am awaiting findings of the Conference of Western Wayne's formal study. In the remote instance that despite all current evidence to the contrary, secession proves to be in the best interests of western Wayne County taxpayers, I will support it.

I-94 to close at night for traffic sensor installation

I-94 in the vicinity of Detroit's Metro Airport will be closed during late evening and early morning hours periodically over the next week so that traffic sensor loops can be installed.

Airport management is advising motorists of planned road closures starting today and continuing between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 a.m.

Rockwell Transportation Systems will be installing sensor loops under contract to the Michigan Department of Transportation. The inductive pavement loops are intended for vehicle flow monitoring as part of MDOT's Intelligent Transportation System (ITS) program. Here is the schedule of road closures:

Today: The main through lanes on eastbound I-94 will be closed but traffic will continue through on the CD (collector-distributor) lanes associated with the airport exit and entrance ramps.

Tuesday: The same drill for westbound traffic on I-94.

Wednesday: Lane closures on westbound I-94 at I-275.

Thursday: Lane closures on eastbound I-94 at Inkster Road.

Friday: Lane closures on westbound I-94 at Inkster Road.

Monday, Nov. 11: Lane closures on eastbound I-94 at I-275.

Once again, the closures will occur only between the hours of 10 p.m. and 6 p.m., and thus are expected to have little impact on most traffic in and out of the airport.

The installation was intentionally scheduled to occur during night time hours and before the holidays to have the least impact on airport customers.

While silver amalgam provides a near-perfect solution as a filling material for cavities in terms of durability and cost, it may leave a lot to be desired in terms of aesthetics. Amalgam's silver color stands in stark contrast to natural tooth color when placed in the visible surfaces of the front teeth. For this reason, patients usually prefer composite resin (plastic) for its ability to match tooth color. New materials make composite resin restorations much better than when they were first introduced, and these tooth-colored restorations are closest to silver amalgam from a cost standpoint. While composite resin is perfectly adequate for restoring small-to-moderate size tooth defects, tooth-colored inlays and onlays have been developed for use in larger defects in back or filling (restoration) in place of a crown (cap) or filling (restoration) and are made of porcelain, other ceramics, or resin.

CHEF LARRY JANES

Mountain man shares secrets for cooking venison

With hunting season upon us, thousands of people will be heading out, or up, to deer camp. I polled some deer hunters and was surprised to learn that while most of them know good hunting and safety techniques, less than 20 percent know how to cook venison properly.

When I say properly, I mean to be able to make it taste good. So delicious that your entire family (and guests) are willing to eat it. Just about everyone I talked to said they know how to: pan fry a venison tenderloin in bacon grease with onions; bake a venison roast with potatoes, carrots and onions; or make venison burger stew. Only two hunters (out of 14 polled) really knew how to properly cook venison.

My best friend Mick Livernois, a financial consultant for Merrill Lynch, has probably discovered the best-kept secret to cooking great venison. He's not an avid hunter, but he gets venison from friends, family members and clients. Mick has never turned down an offer of venison meat. Upon receipt of the meat, he heads to the party store for some Miller Lite Beer, and calls me.

Mountain Man advice

Another good source for information on cooking venison is the "Mountain Man Cookbook" by Thomas Canino, (copyright 1989, TLC Books, $8.95). I contacted Canino at his residence just outside Littleton, Colo. When queried about venison cooking, here's what the Mountain Man had to say.

"The primary intention of the book is to introduce as many people as possible to the pleasure of venison cooking," he said. When asked for advice about cooking venison, Canino said to "remove as much of the bone, fat and sinew from all cuts before cooking to achieve success."

Canino's book is one of the few books on the market that offers recipes for just about every part of the deer (and if deer isn't your bag, Canino claims you can substitute elk, buffalo and even beef). His recipes feature venison cooked in butter, with cheese, spices, and on occasion, wine and sherry.

Cooking secrets

Now with all due respect to Mountain Man Canino, any inebriated hunter can make a tenderloin taste good. What I've discovered, in addition to the Mountain Man's recipes, is that when cooking venison, the tougher the cut, the longer the cooking time.

Roasts, ribs, chops and loins can be cooked like most cuts of beef, possibly requiring a bit more fat to keep them tender. Since venison fat (tallow) and sinew, which holds the various muscle sections together, are the nemesis of a good cook, I agree with the Mountain Man that they should be removed.

When roasting, I utilize strips of bacon secured over the well-trimmed cuts with toothpicks to ensure a good basting during cooking.

When cooking tougher cuts (such as hams, shoulder roasts and blade steaks), I prefer to cook the venison slow with lots of liquid. If the cut is small enough, I might dredge it in flour and then pan fry in a little grease to begin browning, only then to muster up a good marinade or baste made with wine, apple juice or broth and herbs.

Large hind quarters (my friend Mick says I excel at this) usually get slow roasted and basted over a low-heated grill or barbecue. (Of course, this prevails and only heralds the need for additional liquid refreshment for the chef.)

If you're looking to enjoy the great taste of venison (cooked right it really does taste good!) and aren't heading for the fields or know someone like Mick, you can buy farm-raised venison at The Butcher Boy, 13869 Herbert, Warren (810) 779-0600. Prices are comparable to that of aged beef.

Interested in locating Canino's book? Send $9.95 ($8.95 plus $1 shipping) to TLC Enterprises, P.O. Box 3372, Englewood, CO, 80155.

Seedy pomegranate: FRUIT WITH A PAST

BY CORINNE ABATT • SPECIAL WRITER

Like pumpkins, winter squash and homegrown apples, the truly remarkable pomegranate makes its appearance in produce departments in the fall.

Yet, even though it's been around for thousands of years and is frequently mentioned in the Old Testament, many questions surround this ruddy/red fruit. How do you peel it? How are you supposed to eat it? What about all those seeds: Do you crunch them up and swallow or spit them out? How do you use a pomegranate?

"Europeans often buy them by the case," said Harvey Freedman, one of the managers at Joe's Produce in Livonia. "They like to split them and eat them. Americans like to use the seeds as a garnish. Pomegranates are at their peak here between Thanksgiving and Christmas."

Julia Najor of West Bloomfield, who collects recipes from Middle Eastern cooks, anticipates publishing a cookbook, said, "My recipes that call for pomegranate seeds or juice are from Iran, Syria, Lebanon, Palestine, Jordan and such. But, the most popular thing is just to eat the seeds."

To sample these, you immediately realize that nobody packages like Mother Nature. The pomegranate, a marvel of ingenuity, comes with a leathery outer covering that firmly protects an inner honeycomb of crimson seeds clustered in sections separated by papery membranes.

Lucky for us, because that means this size, tree-grown berry, native to warmer climates, was designed for long-distance travel. It made its way to America aboard the sailing ships of Spanish conquistadors.

Imagine what a treat those slightly tart, nutritious pomegranates must have been for 15th-century sailors. Pomegranates are high in potassium, and contain a modest amount of vitamin C.

The pomegranate was one of the wondrous things left behind when the last of the Moors fled Spain in 1492. It is still the emblem of the city of Grenada, Spain.

But, pomegranates are as much fun to eat as they are to talk about.

Peeling method

To peel a pomegranate, cut off the blossom end and remove some of the white pithy membrane with it. Then score the rind in quarters working from where you cut the top to the bottom. Be careful not to penetrate beyond the rind or you may get sprayed with the red juice, which happens to be the base for grenadine syrup and fabric dyes.

Then break apart along the cuts, first in halves, then in quarters. Pull back the rind from each quarter and pull out the seeds. Be careful, or you'll understand in a hurry why the word grenade comes from pomegranate. With a less-than-delicate touch, the clumps will explode and seeds fly in all directions.

Eating pomegranates

To swallow or spit out the seeds is an individual matter. Sucking the seeds and spitting appears to be too much trouble for most pomegranate aficionados. Besides, there's a charming precedent for swallowing the seeds. In Greek mythology, after Persephone, daughter Demeter, goddess of agriculture, was kidnapped and taken to Hades, she disobeyed her mother and swallowed four or five pomegranate seeds.

As punishment, she was condemned to spend that many months in the underworld away from the warmth of the sun. In short, that sweet kid who couldn't resist pomegranate seeds is responsible for our long winters — at least in mythology. Thank goodness, she didn't swallow a dozen.

Nathaniel Hawthorne used this myth as the basis of one of his Tanglewood Tales, "The Pomegranate Seeds." A contemporary version for children, "Persephone and the Pomegranate" by writer/illustrator Kris Waldherr was published by Dial Books in 1993.

Maybe, this tale is why it sounded so appropriate for Guy Wolf, produce manager of Vic's Quality Fruit Market in Beverly Hills, to say, "pomegranates are a winter fruit. They will be around until January. Ours come from California. When they start losing their color and look a little brownish, that's when they're at their sweetest."

"Many of our customers buy pomegranates to make juice," said Tim Coward, produce manager at Nino Salvaggio's International Marketplace of Farmington Hills. To make juice, place 1-1/2 to 2 cups seeds in a blender or food processor; blend until liquefied. Pour through a cheesecloth-lined strainer.

The pomegranate's area of origin is elusive — Persia, Afghanistan, India and the Himalayan region are among those mentioned in various sources. Moses assured the Israelites that when they made it to the Promised Land there would be pomegranates.

In architecture, design, literature and as a food, the pomegranate links us with early civilization.

See recipes inside.

SOME USES FOR POMEGRANATES

Brightly-colored, juicy pomegranate seeds can dress up many dishes:

- Add them to fresh fruit salads. For a festive touch, serve holiday breakfast or brunch, top slices of kiwi and oranges with pomegranate seeds.
- Drizzle them over Middle Eastern appetizers such as baba ghanouj.
- Add them to mixed green salads with a lemon and oil dressing or tossed salads such as the popular Middle Eastern salad, fattoush.
- If you make pomegranate juice and freeze it, add a bit to iced summer drinks for extra flavor.
- Use whole pomegranates in fruit and flower arrangements before you peel and eat them.
- Give youngsters a treat. Read them the book, "Persephone and the Pomegranate," by Kris Waldherr, then open and peel a pomegranate so they can see and taste it.

BUYING & STORAGE TIPS

- Choose pomegranates heavy for their size. The skin varies from bright to deep red with a fresh leather-like appearance, without cracks or splits.
- One medium pomegranate yields about 3/4 cup seeds and 1/2 cup juice.
- Whole pomegranates keep well at room temperature for several days, away from sunlight. They'll last up to three months stored in the refrigerator.
- Refrigerate seeds up to 3 days. Freeze in single layers, on trays; then up to 6 months in airtight containers. Remove only the seeds you plan to use.
- Refrigerate juice up to 3 days. Freeze up to 6 months in airtight containers.

Go portside with 1994 Vintage Ports

BY ELEANOR & RAY HEALD
SPECIAL WRITERS

There's been significant press surrounding 1994 Vintage Ports. Many are available now. Are these majestic, vintage-dated fortified wines with an extraordinarily long life span as good as many have said? Based on cask samples we began tasting in spring 1996, an unqualified yes.

Nearly all major Port houses declared the 1994 vintage. Adrian Bridge, marketing director for Taylor Fladgate and Fonseca Ports, explained the vintage greatness.

"Exceptional high quality of 1994 Ports is due to a number of climatic conditions that came together to yield grapes of extraordinary ripeness," he said. "In May, 1994 rain at flowering reduced the crop about 40 percent. From then on, the weather was very good. Summer was a little cooler than normal. Grapes ripened slowly and harvest conditions were ideal. Cool nights engineered long fermentations. Early tastings reveal Ports with great fruit intensity."

If you buy 1994 Vintage Ports (they would make a superior holiday gift), be prepared to age them at least 15 to 20 years before beginning to drink them or your money will be wasted. These wines will age up to 50 years from vintage quite easily.

"Ports go through what is called a dumb stage, approximately between years seven and 10 from vintage," Bridge cautioned. "The patient will be rewarded for cellaring these wines."

About 10,000 cases of 1994 Fonseca Port $51 per bottle were produced. A recent sampling showed a big, powerful red fruit melange in both aroma and flavor profile. Its incredible density is

2 tablespoons salt (optional)

Saute ground and diced meat in salad oil. Add butter, soy sauce and ginger and cook over medium heat for 1 minute. Combine meat and basic sauce in a crock pot or slow cooker. Add water, chili (red and green), cumin, oregano and salt. Simmer slowly at low heat in crock pot or slow cooker for 24 hours, covered, stirring occasionally. Taste. In a blender or mortar and pestle, combine garlic, 2 teaspoons salt, 1/2 cup warm water and 6 dried red chilies (seeded and stemmed) and pulverize until smooth. Stir into chili and cook, uncovered for 1 hour. Serves 4-6.

Chef's secret: I tried this and instead of water, substituted 1/2 V-8 vegetable juice and 1/2 beef broth or stock and eliminated the salt and the dish was outstanding!

voluptuous, rich and viscous. Overall balance is excellent. A similar number of cases of Taylor Fladgate $51 per bottle were produced. Currently, it is showing less fruity opulence. It's ripeness has firmness and grip. It comes across weightier than Fonseca with more tannins, but a velvety chocolate texture in the finish.

We'd compare 1994 Vintage Ports with those from 1970. However, judging from the 1960s forward, we put 1963, 1977 and 1985 ahead of 1970. Following in order after 1970 are 1991, 1966, 1992 (only Taylor Fladgate and Fonseca declared), 1983, 1987, 1967, 1980, 1982 and 1975.

If you shop at some of the area's larger wine shops, many older vintages, drinking well now, are available at not extraordinarily elevated prices. Based on our pre-release tastings, other 1994 Ports to buy are: Churchill's, Warre's, Cockburn, Dow's, Graham's, Sandeman's and Smith Woodhouse.

We're very impressed with Churchill's Ports overall. The 1994, $41, has fabulous aromatics and a spice element not encountered in other Ports from this vintage. Every imaginable black-fruit can be found in the aroma and played out on the palate. Rich, ripe and concentrated, it is best described in one word — delicious. Churchill's, unlike Taylor Fladgate which has released Vintage Ports since 1890 or Fonseca from 1896, is the youngest of the major port houses. Founded in 1981, it has come a long way in less than two decades releasing superbly crafted Ports.

If you're just discovering Ports, what is there to drink now while waiting for 1994s to age? 1990 Taylor Fladgate Late Bottled Vintage Port $16 does nicely for starters as well as 1989 Quinta do Noval Late Bottled Vintage Port $18. Serve these, as well as a vintage port, at the end of a meal with cheddar or stilton cheese or chocolates. Tawny Ports are also good, served slightly chilled at the end of a meal with cheeses such as camembert or brie. The rainy, nutty flavors of tawnies evolve on the palate and make them good accompaniments to claret or Colorado cigars.

Vintage-dated single quinta (vineyard) Ports have interesting vineyard characters. They mature earlier than Vintage Ports. The 1987 Churchill's Quinta da Agua Alta $29 is a good example. In years when Vintage Ports are declared, the single quinta is part of the blend. Quinta da Agua Alta is no exception. You should still be able to find some 1984 Warre's Quinta da Cavadinha $25 which is also stellar.

White Ports are uncommon and make a very good winter time aperitif. We recommend: Nonvintage Churchill Graham White Port $14.50. If you try it with your eyes closed, you'll easily taste it as a tawny style. It is seriously delicious and a fabulous accompaniment to Spanish tapas, strong cheese or Chinese cuisine. Taylor Fladgate Chip Dry Porto $15, an extra-dry white port, has an individual style. It's fragrant, delicate and nutty like a sherry. Over ice is nice. Serve it with roasted nuts as an aperitif pour.

Vegetables make fettucini flavorful

(NAPS)—More and more studies show your mother was right: you should eat your vegetables. In fact, according to Vegetarian Times magazine, research studies from as far back as the 1970s show a low-fat vegetarian diet can help prevent heart disease, diabetes and some kinds of cancer and may lower high blood pressure.

Here's a recipe that can help you learn some of the joys of a vegetarian diet:

LOW-FAT FETTUCINI ALFREDO

12 oz. dry fettucini, preferably whole wheat
2 cups evaporated skim milk or low-fat soymilk (or 1 1/2 cups powdered skim milk mixed with 1 1/2 cups water)
4 cloves garlic, minced or pressed

6 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese

1/4 cup chopped fresh parsley

Freshly ground black pepper to taste

2 cups chopped and steamed vegetables of choice: carrots, green beans, zucchini, onions, broccoli or peas

Cook pasta according to package directions. Drain. Place pasta in a large nonstick sauté pan along with milk and garlic. Bring to a simmer, stirring frequently. Add cheese. Continue cooking until cheese melts and sauce thickens. Stir in parsley and black pepper. Add steamed vegetables and toss gently. Serves 4.

Per serving: 179 cal.; 15g protein; 4g fat; 11mg chol.; 320 mg sodium.

Master art of making low-fat muffins

The idea behind low-fat muffins is a great one: use careful ingredient substitution to create baked goods that are healthful and taste great. In practice, however, reduced-fat baked goods can result in food with bland taste; rubbery texture and lackluster appearance.

But with a few simple guidelines, you can cut the fat in your favorite baked goods recipes and still create moist, delicious snacks.

Because of their dense texture, muffins are one of the best candidates among baked goods for fat-reducing recipe adaptations. The key to success is to replace between a third to half of the fat in a recipe and evaluate the results before reducing fat in further batches.

When a muffin recipe calls for butter, margarine or another solid shortening, replace the fat with a substitute: use half as much fruit juice, applesauce or fruit puree. If oil is an ingredient, replace all or part of it with three-fourths as much of a chosen substitute. Add a little more fruit, sauce or puree, if the resulting batter seems dry. Cut fat while preserving tenderness by using two egg whites for each whole egg. To retain moisture, bake the muffins at a slightly lower temperature and be careful not to over bake.

When you create lower fat versions of your favorite recipes, choose an alternative to fat that's compatible with the other ingredients. If the recipe already contains applesauce, fruit puree, fruit juice, buttermilk or yogurt, simply increase that ingredient as you reduce the fat. If there is no fat substitute among listed ingredients, consider adding a fat substitute with flavors that complement the recipe.

A mild-tasting substitute like nonfat buttermilk or plain non-fat yogurt would be a good addition to muffins with a subtle flavor. Spice muffins take fat alternatives with stronger flavors such as mashed bananas, mashed pumpkin or maple syrup.

If you eliminate all the fat in a recipe, it helps to substitute a whole grain flour for at least a third to a half of the refined flour in a recipe. The fiber in whole grain flour will help to ensure a pleasing texture.

- 1/4 cup olive oil
- 1 1/2 quarts mixed salad greens (optional)
- 2 oranges, peeled and sliced
- 4 kiwis, peeled and sliced
- 1 medium pomegranate, seeded (about 3/4 cup)

To make dressing, combine vinegar and next three ingredients; whisk in oil. Toss greens with 2 1/2 tablespoons dressing; arrange on serving platter. Alternating, arrange orange slices and kiwi slices over greens. Drizzle with remaining dressing. Sprinkle with pomegranate seeds. Makes 6 servings.

- Freshly ground pepper
- 1/4 cup pomegranate seeds
- 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice

Place the pine nuts in a frying pan and toast them over moderate heat until golden-brown, stirring constantly; set aside.

Roll the spinach leaves into a tight cigar shape and cut crosswise into 1/8-inch chiffonade or shreds.

SALAD OF POMEGRANATES, PERSIMMONS, AND KIWIS

- 1 large pomegranate, seeded (1 cup seeds)

- 1 cup yogurt
- About 1 tablespoon honey
- About 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 4 small ripe persimmons
- 4 kiwis, peeled, halved lengthwise, then sliced crosswise

Lightly crush 2/3 cup pomegranate seeds in a bowl to extract some juice. Stir in yogurt and honey and lemon juice to taste. Refrigerate for 1/2 hour or longer.

Cut out leaf base from the persimmons, then halve fruits lengthwise. With a sharp paring knife gently cut into the flesh as close to the skin as possible, to separate the two. (Alternately, if you have one of the jelly-soft persimmons, you may have to first cut the fruit into lengthwise slices, then delicately pare off the skin from each slice.) Gently cut into the slices.

Arrange persimmons and kiwi slices on 4 salad plates. Drizzle the dressing over each, then sprinkle the reserved pomegranate seeds over all.

Sales are sweet in candy shops

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN
SPECIAL WRITER

Every time I visit Jacobson's candy department at Laurel Park Place in Livonia, the sweet business is bustling.

And a little investigation reveals an ironic twist - in the age when fitness reigns, rising candy sales suggest the need for a truffle or two to soothe psyches after all that strenuous exercise and healthy eating.

"It's a very exciting department here," said department manager Gladys Hines. We're always busy. Our best seller is Godiva, but people also seem to love our Jacobson's brand because of its creamy texture."

Jacobson's candy cases are filled with fine chocolates by Joseph Schmidt, Godiva ($29 per pound), Long Grove, and the Jacobson's brand which recently got new packaging. Seasonal items like Joseph Schmidt's truffles, molded in the shapes of turkeys and pumpkins, have arrived just in time for the holidays.

According to Hines, customers like treating themselves as well as others to tempting chocolate treats.

"Customers really like to give Joseph Schmidt as hostess gifts. Made with Belgian chocolate and no other oil than cocoa butter, the truffles ($1.75 each) are hand painted. They are beautiful as well as tasty. Seven times a year, Schmidt comes out with hand painted collector boxes for his goods. He even offers an edible acorn box filled with little chocolates ($14.50) that's sold at Harrod's in London," she explained.

For personal or corporate giving, Hines suggests "there's no more welcome gift" than a box of chocolates and a bottle of wine or champagne.

"People like giving chocolate as gifts. Our gift basket business is year-round. For a real chocolate, our custom chocolate basket ($150-$200) would be the answer. We include a little bit of every chocolate we carry," she said.

Hudson's Westland candy department is filled with gift baskets of every size and description along with an array of fancy chocolates including Godiva, Hudson's Gourmet (bulk chocolates), Chocolat Nouveau, Perugina, Bari & Gail, and their signature brand Frango. Candy is definitely big business here. The sales goal for November is $18,000, for December $83,500!

"Candy sales for the year are up 13-percent and we only do half the volume of our stores at Oakland Mall and Somerset," said department manager Joanne MacKenzie. "One of our best sellers is our scoop bulk for kids. Hudson's has always had a line of fun candy for children since our Hudson's store opened downtown in 1881."

Assistant manager Joanne Welch attested to the popularity of the department with adults.

"While shopping, men or women will buy one or two truffles and pop them into the mouth as a stress reliever. That's their treat for the day," she observed.

Tired of giving the same old box of chocolates? MacKenzie suggests Frango's new Michigan Cherry Chocolates ($15 for 16 ounces) made with Traverse City cherries. Also great little gifts are a ceramic Santabear dish filled with foil-wrapped milk chocolates ($11.50 for two ounces) and a decorator reindeer tin bearing raspberry and mint twists ($11.50 for eight ounces).

"Our candy department is a service that our customers really look for. We sold a lot of Godiva and Frango for Sweetest Day. You see more pre-packaged than years ago because people want ease," said acting store manager Maureen O'Brien.

Pre-packaged candy is all Neiman Marcus sells. Last September the Troy store eliminated the candy department, but it's temporarily being revived for the holidays.

"Holiday candy sales were always successful and this year is not intended to be any less. We'll have everything from Hanukkah items like stars with gold-wrapped chocolate coins to a $1,200 train filled with chocolates and gifts" said Neiman's gift gallery manager William Garbe.

There are also hand-dipped carob treats ($8) for the dog!

Candy addict: Hudson's enjoys brisk sales from the confections in its jazzed up Marketplace departments.

A better way: Geoff Hockman (left) of the Townsend Hotel and Chuck Viers (right) of Jacobson's, share their new visions for retailing along Main Street in the 21st century.

B'ham looks at 'new urbanism'

Somerset North and downtown Birmingham, are they oil & water - or milk and honey? That's the question put to two of the town's business leaders, Jacobson's operations manager and the Townsend Hotel president. Here are their answers.

BY JUDITH DONER BERNE
SPECIAL WRITER

The biggest influx of Somerset shoppers is coming from our suburbs to the west. So downtown Birmingham and its Jacobson's anchor store want to intercept them on their way to or from the newly expanded Troy mall.

That is key to the message that both Geoff Hockman, chairman of Birmingham's Principal Shopping District, and Chuck Viers, operational manager of Jacobson's Birmingham store, delivered to the Retail Executive Group Tuesday night at a dinner meeting at Chianti's in Southfield.

"If we do our job we have an opportunity to make that shopping trip include Birmingham," Hockman told the 30 people who attended to hear whether Somerset North and Downtown Birmingham are more like oil and water, or milk and honey. "The Somerset situation has not been negative but positive," he insisted.

Birmingham has engaged in a two-fold approach to accomplish this, according to Hockman, who is also president of the Townsend Hotel.

First, four years ago Lansing legislators were persuaded to give them the lawful legs to set up a Principal Shopping District. And over the past months the city has engaged an outside planner to oversee the creation of a new master plan.

The Birmingham PSD raises $450,000 annually through a special assessment on commercial space within its boundaries to cohesively promote its downtown and oversee tenant recruitment - practices which come naturally to a single-landlord mall.

The money, Hockman acknowledges, is "a drop in the bucket" compared with Somerset which, he says, spent over a million dollars just on its opening. And, he added, "I will be the first to tell you that this (the PSD) is not without its controversy" with landlords, retailers and residents all having a say.

Inherent in the up and coming master plan, Hockman suggests, is development of a new urbanism. Its underlying philosophy is "The pedestrian is king." Free two-hour parking was recently instituted to encourage parking in the existing city decks. Changing the street frontage to encourage pedestrian access and expanding city parks are under consideration.

Building more in-town residential housing is also part of the thinking. So is continuing to develop restaurant and entertainment opportunities that transcend the traditional hours of retail. After January, Hockman predicts, you'll have a lot fewer chain stores in Birmingham since several have relocated to Somerset.

To take up that slack, "We're trying to attract retailers who are interested in being in traditional town settings. We have a chance to bring in services and goods that aren't necessarily competitive with Somerset." That could include more art and antique galleries in the city which now number 44.

A frequently asked question at the concierge desk in Somerset, Hockman reports, is: "How do I get to Birmingham?" To that end, both shopping districts are talking about shuttle buses running between them. Viers, who started out selling toys at Jacobson's 40 years ago, echoes Hockman's positive stance on the ability to compete.

"After 46 years in downtown Birmingham, Jacobson's hasn't just survived change and new competition, the store has actually thrived from it," Viers says. "We've weathered many mall openings including Northland, Tel-Twelve and the Oakland Mall expansion."

And, he says, the Birmingham store has not stood still for Somerset North. "It allowed us to accelerate the remodeling plan we had. We've added a lot more bright colors. I don't believe we would have done it this quickly."

And Jacobson's took the cue from Somerset and opened up a concierge desk where, for example, free rain bonnets are available. But Viers says service has always defined Jacobson's.

"The way you compete anywhere you are is with service. Nordstrom reminds us of that," he said.

Although Jacobson's continues its policies of refusing to advertise comparative pricing and sales, he acknowledges that they've gone to tying gift certificates to a customer's monthly sales and giving discounts for those opening up new checking accounts.

Viers says his main competition is not the new Hudson's or Nordstrom, but "our Livonia store" which he says is doing great business. He is striving to continue a 47-year tradition of Birmingham as the No. 1 store in the Jacobson's chain.

The audience of metro-Detroit retailers and service providers to the retail industry seemed impressed.

"Birmingham seems to have a pretty decent plan that they've thought through," said Joe Fada, a director of the Retail Executive Group and a retail specialist at the accounting firm of Arthur Andersen. "The speakers showed clearly that if you understand what your mission is, you can accomplish your goals," added retail analyst Steve Epstein.

Hudson's axes 16 positions

In an ongoing effort to streamline the buying department and cut operating expenses, the Dayton Hudson Corp. terminated 180 positions Friday - 16 Michigan employees were affected.

"Most of the positions eliminated came from the buying department in our Minneapolis headquarters. Like all companies today, Dayton Hudson is looking at operating more efficiently."

Morrisroe said the management teams at all area Hudson stores remain in tact.

College standouts

•Michigan vs. Michigan State -- the mere mention of it raises the blood pressure at least a few notches.

It must've felt pretty good to some Michigan soccer fans when the Wolverines handed MSU a 5-1 lashing Oct. 24 in women's play. U-M goals came from five different sources, including Plymouth Salem graduate Mari Hoff, a freshman.

Hoff is second on the team in points with 11 and is tied for the team lead in goals scored with five.

Several other local products have turned in noteworthy performances for the Wolverines this season. Jori Welchans, a senior keeper from Plymouth Canton, has a 1-1 record with a 0.54 goals-against average, and has shared in three shutouts in a back-up role.

And Kelly Lukasik, a sophomore from Salem, has one assist in 15 games.

U-M had a 7-6-3 overall record and a 3-3-1 Big Ten mark entering last weekend's action.

•Shellye Sills, a freshman member of the University of Toledo's volleyball team and a Plymouth Salem graduate, leads the Rockets in blocks, averaging 0.75 per game.

She collected 11 block assists and one solo block in an 8-15, 15-9, 15-6, 16-14 loss to Akron, just two short of the school record. Sills is also third in hitting percentage at .213, and her 119 kills is fifth on the team.

Toledo was 11-14 overall and 4-8 in the Mid-American Conference entering Saturday's home match against Eastern Michigan.

•When Eastern Michigan's men's soccer team hosted Bowling Green last Wednesday, it was nice to see the Eagles draw first blood.

Matt Simons, a freshman from Plymouth Salem, put EMU on the board first when he scored unassisted at 22:34 of the first half. After that, it was all BGSU -- the Falcons tied it at 1-all by halftime, then posted four unanswered markers in the second half en route to a 5-1 victory.

The loss left the young Eagles with a 5-10-2 record, 0-3-1 in the MAC. BGSU is 13-3-1 overall, 4-0 in the MAC.

Softball coach wanted

Madonna University is seeking an assistant women's softball coach. The part-time position will begin with practice in January and run through May.

The sessions include flexibility, strength, aerobics and volleyball practice (instructed by Tom Teeters).

The cost is $25 per person.

For more information, call (313) 462-4413.

Holiday cage classic

The Great Lakes Christmas Classic basketball tournament will be held Thursday through Saturday, Dec. 26-28 at Garden City High and GC Junior High.

Age classifications include 11-and-under, 12-and-under, 13-and-under (format is round-robin three-game guarantee).

The cost is $150 (deadline Dec. 14). Included in the entry fee are sponsor trophies for the top two teams, individual trophies for the top two teams; and plaques going to tournament MVP and All-Tournament teams.

For more information, call Kevin Wilkinson at (313) 274-5405 or Jeff Bradley at (313) 595-6096.

Finals on PASS

Salem corrals Canton

BY NEAL ZIPSER
STAFF WRITER

Plymouth Salem football coach Tom Moshimer has seen his share of successful teams during his 30-year tenure at Salem. This season wasn't supposed to include one of those teams.

But the Rocks exceeded all expectations, including their coach's. Salem capped its surprising season with a 36-20 victory over rival Plymouth Canton Friday at CEP.

The Rocks finished 6-3 and just missed the playoffs. The Chiefs end at 4-5.

"This was one of my most enjoyable teams to coach since I've been here," Moshimer said. "There are some great kids here and we've had no discipline problems or no one complaining. We have been limited in numbers, but one thing this team is not lacking is heart."

It was the fourth time in a row Salem has beaten the Chiefs. Unlike the previous victories, which saw the Rocks make second-half comebacks, Salem took the lead for good just before halftime.

With the game tied 14-14 with 52 seconds remaining in the first half, Salem appeared to be content to run the clock out. But after a Canton timeout, Matt Johnson broke through the line and scampered 69 yards for the go-ahead touchdown.

"We weren't going to throw the ball down field or do anything crazy but they had everybody jumping up at the line and Matt broke through," Moshimer said.

Johnson was the workhorse for Salem. The senior fullback saved his best game for last, carrying 30 times for 158 yards with four touchdowns.

"This win and season makes up for everything," Johnson said. "Last year, we were 3-6 and this makes up for that. This is the prime moment of my career."

The Rocks scored first, taking advantage of a Rob Johnson fumble on the first play of scrimmage. Eight plays after the fumble, which was recovered by Salem's James Chapman, Johnson scored on a 1-yard run.

Canton came right back with a

On the run: Salem quarterback Nate Gray (11) was hard to corner for Canton defenders. He rushed for 71 yards and got another 29 passing in the Rocks' victory.

15-play, 66-yard drive, capped by a 4-yard run by Byron Miller (seven carries for 44 yards) that knotted the game at 7-7.

Another 1-yard scoring run by Johnson with 3:07 left in the second quarter put Salem back on top. The Chiefs countered quickly as Rob Johnson connected with Rob Proctor on a 26-yard scoring strike.

Matt Johnson's 69-yard jaunt on the ensuing possession gave Salem the 20-14 halftime lead.

"We're a triple option team and you have to make teams stop the fullback," Moshimer said. "If they can't stop the fullback, you keep going with it. Matt was picking up three or four yards a carry which is what you want."

Salem's defense dominated the third quarter and pinned the Chiefs in at their own 4 after sacks of Rob Johnson by Teono Wilson and Eric Peterson. Doug Kinney then blocked Jason Pennebaker's punt which rolled out of the end zone for a safety and a 22-14 Salem lead.

After that, the Rocks drove 59 yards in 13 plays and made it 29-14 on a 2-yard roll out by Nate Gray. The drive was sparked by a 3-yard Gray sneak on a critical fourth down.

Gray did his job moving the Salem offense, which didn't commit a turnover. Gray completed two-of-four passes for 29 yards and gained 71 yards on 16 carries.

The Rocks got the ball back at the Canton 2-yard line after Kwaku Dankwa fumbled a pitch. On the next play, Matt Johnson scored giving the Rocks a comfortable 36-14 lead.

The Chiefs completed the scoring when Rob Johnson tossed a 32-yard touchdown pass to Casey McCuaker with 54 seconds left.

Rob Johnson completed 8-of-22 passes for 117 yards, but completed only 1-of-12 passes in the second half. The elusive Johnson gained 35 yards on 12 carries.

"We wanted to contain Rob," Moshimer said. "I thought we didn't do a good job early in the game but did better as the game went on. He was giving us a fake inside and then beating us to the outside. We made sure that we weren't going to go for any fakes."

"This is a big win for us," Jerome added. "This lets us keep our head up high while we walk around school. Everybody dug down deep tonight. We have a tradition at Salem and we didn't want to let anyone down."

Rocks, Chiefs to meet in WLAA semis

It's playoff time.

This is no time to mess around. That's the lesson Plymouth Salem's girls basketball team delivered to its first-round opponent in the Western Lakes Activities Association playoffs, Walled Lake Western, Thursday.

The Rocks were not taking prisoners, in a manner of speaking. They limited the visiting Warriors to single digits on offense in each of the first three quarters, while they were building a 25-point advantage.

When the final buzzer finally sounded, Salem had a 56-26 victory and a berth in the WLAA semifinals opposite Plymouth Canton.

BASKETBALL

That game will be 7 p.m. Tuesday at Salem. The winner advances to the WLAA championship contest, which is 7 p.m. Friday at Walled Lake Central.

"Western tried to press and run us the first time," said Salem coach Fred Thomann, his team now 15-3. "This time they slowed it down and we ran a little bit."

Salem pulled in front 22-10 by halftime, holding Western to four points in the first quarter and six in the second. By the end of three, the Rocks had a 40-15 lead.

Angie Sillmon was Salem's leader, scoring 16 points and grabbing seven rebounds. Amanda Abraham contributed 10 points, five boards and three assists, with Andrea Pruett getting eight points and six rebounds.

Jody Miller's 13 points led Western (7-10).

Canton 34, Farmington 20: Talk about a sluggish start.

Plymouth Canton got through the first round of the WLAA Tournament, but it wasn't easy. The Chiefs had to overcome a slow, patient offense utilized by Farmington -- which they did as they improved to 16-2 while gaining a berth in the league semifinals opposite Salem (7 p.m. Tuesday at Salem).

It took the Chiefs awhile to get in gear. There was only one point scored in the first quarter by both teams combined -- a free throw by Canton's Nkechi Okwumabua. At halftime, the Chiefs had the lead, but it was only 10-8.

The second half was a bit better. Kristi Fiorezzi, who led Canton with 14 points, got six of them in a 12-7 third quarter.

Melissa Marzolf chipped in with eight points.

The Falcons (7-11) were led by Amanda Porter with nine points.

Stevenson nudges Canton from regional

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK
STAFF WRITER

You have to seize your opportunity when it comes in a close game.

Livonia Stevenson struck when the time was right Saturday to nip Plymouth Canton, 1-0, and win the Michigan High School Athletic Association soccer regional at Brighton.

Stevenson advanced to a quarterfinal match Tuesday night against neighborhood rival Livonia Churchill.

"What about voting?" jubilant Stevenson coach Walt Barrett said after accepting his school's regional championship trophy. "I guess I'll have to vote early."

Paul Tokarsky netted the game-winner, a goal with 19:02 left to play that came out of a mill of confusion in front of Chiefs' goalkeeper Ben Davis.

It began when the Spartans' Jim Bullock and the Chiefs' Dan Steinert collided while struggling for possession of a loose ball on the left side of the box.

Bullock and Steinert were scuffling, trying to get their conflicting points across without actually coming to blows. Referee Victor West was putting himself in the middle of the situation to keep things from escalating.

Meantime, play continued. And other assorted misplays in front of Davis.

"I was watching the box," Canton coach Don

Smith said. "And the referee. They were still playing. I didn't even see the goal."

"The ball just popped loose," Tokarsky said. "It came out, thanks to Jason Roy, and I just shot it."

The ball clanked off the goal post to Davis' right and banked across the goal mouth behind him.

"It was a total melee," Barrett said after his team raised its record to 16-2-1 with its second victory in three matches against Canton, which finished 15-3-4.

"There were four or five things going on at once," Barrett said. "The referee just let play go."

"That's the way it goes," Smith said. "We had a good run this season, no doubt about it. I was proud of the way we played. We gave 125 percent effort."

The match was played in temperatures just slightly above freezing but with a brisk wind that sucked the heat from anything living. In addition, a swirling cornmeal snow fell with varying degrees of intensity during the match.

Stevenson and Canton both started like teams who knew they were involved in a one-goal game. Every offensive thrust was countered by a long-ball kick to midfield.

"Canton never quit," Barrett said. "We knew we could play with them. What we didn't know is whether we could stay in it mentally until the last second."

Question answered.

TEN PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

Super Bowl in Canton was the host for the Ladies Ebonite Classic of the Sam's Town Ladies Pro Bowlers Tour.

Although they did not make the TV finals, our local area competitors fared quite well during the qualifying and match-play. Aleta Sill, Cheryl Daniels, Marianne Derupo and Lisa Bishop all gave it their best effort, but it was a difficult lane condition, and the TV finalists were Wendy McPherson, Anne Marie Duggan, Lisa Wagner, Dede Davidson and Kim Adler.

Dede is a former Detroit area bowler, now residing in Florida. This show is on a tape delay of almost one week and can be viewed on Tuesday ESPN-TV at midnight.

Marianne Derupo, formerly of New Jersey, but now residing here was showing her talents during a practice session.

I watched her throw strike after strike using different balls and a different line to the pocket. "The right ball in any particular lane condition can make a difference between making the show or going home," said DeRupo, as she selected a set of about six Ebonite grey Wolf balls, each with a slightly different pin position, or drilling pattern for balance.

Just making the right choice in equipment can make a big difference, and to get a little more carry can get you the finals.

I asked her if she brings about a dozen balls to the event and she replied: "No, I have over 20." Most of the competitors have that kind of an arsenal of bowling balls, and often the winning performers are those who chose to bowl with the right one for the lanes on that particular day.

Belleville's Lisa Bishop made a fine showing, but the stubborn 10-pin turned out to be her nemesis. We all know how frustrating it can be to leave a "solid 10" on what looks like a great shot, but Lisa had lots of them, otherwise she bowled well enough to win.

Defending champion Aleta Sill did not make it to the TV finals. She was slightly hampered by a muscle strain during practice. She seemed OK, but often even a little discomfort can be enough to get you off target, ever so slightly that it goes un-noticed. Sill is still the leading all-time money winner on the ladies pro tour.

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

Dave Fairchild has aspirations of someday fishing on "The Tour".

"I'm putting a resume together and trying to get some sponsors lined up in hopes of someday fishing the tour," said the Rochester angler, in reference to the national Bassmasters Tournament Trail. "I guess that's what every serious angler wants to do."

Fairchild is well on his way to gaining the consistency needed to partake in such a strenuous endeavor. And his resume is growing rapidly.

Over the summer, Fairchild and his partner, Lapeer's Bill Higgins, roared through Michigan Division of the Bass Champions Team Challenge, placing first in the six-tournament series. By doing so, Fairchild and Higgins qualified for the Region III Bass Champions Team Challenge, Sept. 24-28, in Buffalo, New York. The duo upended the local teams and won the tournament with a catch weighing 30.34 pounds. Second place went to a team from New York with a catch of 26.81 pounds.

For their efforts, Fairchild and Higgins won a fully-rigged Ranger bass boat.

A mechanic by trade, Fairchild works through the winter months, then takes the summer off to fish in as many tournaments as possible.

"It takes a long time and a lot of fishing to get the consistency," said Fairchild. "Fortunately, so far it's worked out well for me."

Your vote counts

The campaigns surrounding proposals "D" and "G" are coming to an end and it's time to be heard at the polls. All the hard work by Citizens for Professional Wildlife Management and the sportsmen and sportswomen of Michigan will have been in vain if we don't show our support on Election Day.

If you think your vote won't be heard and won't make a difference, think again. The fate of proposals "D" and "G" — and scientific wildlife management — will not be decided by a majority of Michigan residents, rather they will be decided by a majority of Michigan residents who choose to exercise their right to vote. The fate of proposals "D" and "G" will most likely be decided by something like 40- or 50-percent of the population of voting-age residents.

You can bet the proponents of Proposal D and opponents of Proposal G will be out in force on Tuesday. If those of us who care about the welfare of Michigan's abundant wildlife populations take the time and show up at the polls in force, we will be heard. You can make a difference.

Vote "No" on "D" and "Yes" on "G". Wildlife needs your support.

Anglers and hunters are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009. Fax information to (810) 644-1314 or call Bill Parker evenings at (810) 901-2573.

Charger comeback leads to quarters

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK
STAFF WRITER

Practice pays off. Everybody on the Livonia-Churchill boys soccer team knows that now.

Churchill used a 3-2 edge in the overtime shootout Friday night to defeat Ann Arbor Pioneer, 4-3, and win the Ann Arbor regional in the Michigan High School Athletic Association's boys soccer tournament.

Churchill, 15-6, thus advanced to the state tournament quarterfinals Tuesday at Canton.

"We practiced shootouts the last couple of weeks," Churchill coach Chad Campau said after his Chargers deeded the score, 3-3, with 60 seconds to go in regulation and then played state-ranked Pioneer scoreless through two 15-minute overtimes. "The goalies hate them."

"They're in there, by themselves, for a half-hour or 45 minutes every day -- diving, sliding, getting dirty. But it sure helped us in this game."

Overtimes and shootouts aren't used during the regular season, so practicing them would make as much sense as working on archery skills to get ready for fishing. But in the MHSAA tournament, shootouts are the tie-breaker of last resort.

State rules limit matches to two sudden-death overtimes. If the match is still tied, coaches then select five players from those on the field to take a shot at an unaided goaltender.

"I hate 'em, I hate 'em, hate 'em," Campau said before the shootout began. The ball was spotted for each shooter on about the three-yard line of Hollway Stadium, Pioneer's home field. The nets fronted the football goal posts.

Campau selected Peter Pososki, Chris White, Dave George, Rob Bartoletti and Corey Berzac to shoot against Pioneer goalie Nate Hovan. Pioneer countered with ace scorer Corey Woolfolk, Brian Peters, Ali Curtis, Luseni Pieh and Dennis Salomon against Mike "Boomer" Skolnik.

The first two for each team scored before Skolnik rescued his mates' failed attempts with a deflection and a stop.

Salomon tried to go high on Skolnik and he did -- a good foot over the crossbar. That sent Churchill's players into a pile on the field -- the only way to warm up on an afternoon when the temperature was falling through freezing and the wind chill factor neared zero.

You wouldn't have given a nickel for Churchill's chances after Pioneer piled up a 3-0 halftime lead. And that was down to two cents nearly halfway through the second half.

Pioneer was the aggressor through most of the first half, scoring on two goals by the swift Curtis -- one a penalty kick -- plus a score by Patrick Finn off a cross-mouth pass by Woolfolk.

"We came out flat in the first period. We weren't playing the feet," said Campau, who drew a pictorial foot on the chalkboard at halftime to get the point home to his players. "In the second half we came out and knew what to do. We had a lot of opportunities before we finally were able to capitalize." Churchill took charge early in the second half but, because Pioneer was packing it in defensively, got few quality scoring chances.

Then, with 21:18 to play, Berzac left-footed home a medium range shot from the middle. It definitely lifted the Chargers.

"I was hoping to get that first goal at the end of the first half," Campau said. "I knew once we got that first goal, we'd be okay." Matt Wysocki scored with 6:43 left in the second half on a rebound of a Bartoletti shot off a corner kick by George Kithas.

Lorenzo Pivanti swept the left corner with a minute left in regulation, drilling a shot into the right side of the net to force OT.

The overtimes were a mirror of the halves, with the Pioneers dominating the first and the Chargers the second.

Campau cited Wysocki for his defensive work on Curtis. Stopping Curtis and Woolfolk is like trying to halt a tornado but Mike Slack and Chris White, with some help from their friends, did good work.

Then it was time for all that practice on overtime shootouts to pay off. And it did.

Franklin gives Trenton its 1st loss

BY DAN O'MEARA
STAFF WRITER

Livonia Franklin played as if it was the football team trying to accomplish an undefeated regular season Friday night.

The highly-motivated Patriots concluded the 1996 campaign with a huge home-field victory by handing Trenton its first loss, 24-15.

"I believe we're always capable of winning, but (the Franklin players) really came out fired up," Franklin coach Rick Lee said. "We were very happy with the outcome."

The Patriots dominated the game with a potent rushing attack as senior halfback Anthony Grech rushed for 234 yards and two touchdowns on 36 carries.

Franklin outgained Trenton on the ground 313-87, and Lee distributed the credit for that among the many players who blocked for Grech and John Kopchak, who added 70 yards on 13 carries.

"It's the offensive line and the fullbacks -- everybody working together," Lee said. "After the Harrison loss, I challenged the offensive line to dominate like we thought they could at the beginning of the year, and they've met the challenge the last two weeks."

"Getting those surges, getting those (Trenton) guys on their heels makes a world of difference."

The Patriots (6-3) scored on their first possession and were ahead most of the game.

When the Trojans didn't field the opening kickoff, apparently thinking it would roll out of bounds, Franklin recovered the free ball in Trenton territory.

It took Franklin only a few plays to gain a 7-0 lead on Steve Ashbay's 2-yard run and the extra point by Nick Anagnostopoulos.

"That gave us a lot of confidence," Lee said. "I told them to come out hitting hard and see what happens. Then, the defense said 'OK, the offense is going,' and the defense stepped up, too. That was super defense."

Trenton (8-1) came back to tie in the second quarter when quarterback Ryan Szokola hit tight end Phil Nagy with a 48-yard touchdown pass.

The Patriots had an eight-minute drive that ended just before halftime with a 1-yard touchdown run by Grech. After a bad snap on the PAT, Anagnostopoulos passed to Paul Terek for two points and a 15-7 lead.

Franklin began the second half with a nine-play drive culminated in a 27-yard field goal by Anagnostopoulos, adding three points to the lead.

The Patriots cemented the victory with a four-play, 40-yard drive. Grech dashed 21 yards with 21 seconds remaining in the period for a 24-7 lead.

"This is a great example of one team playing harder and better than the other team," Trenton coach Bob Czarnecki said. "They did an outstanding job tonight, and we by and large stood around and watched them do it."

"Franklin plays in a great league. Their losses were to Harrison, Walled Lake Western and Sterling Heights Stevenson, and those three are going to be playoff teams."

The Trojans narrowed the gap with 2:52 left in the game. Franklin's defense stopped Trenton twice on fourth-and-1 before Szokola ran around left end for the TD. He also ran for the two points, making the score 24-15.

Szokola was 15-of-21 passing for 201 yards, and he also rushed 21 times for 66 yards.

Franklin quarterback Brian Facione completed three of seven passes for 13 yards, but he was hurt near the end of the first half and didn't play in the second.

Spartans stop Churchill

It was not the best of endings to the football season Friday when crosstown rivals Livonia Churchill and Livonia Stevenson met at Stevenson.

The Spartans did get something more out of it -- a 28-7 win. Stevenson finishes with a 6-3 record. The Chargers go 0-for-9.

The Spartans outgained Churchill 413-113, but 10 fumbles (losing six) frustrated them.

Jade Clark gained 240 yards on 30 tries, scoring on a 4-yard run in the third quarter and an 11-yard dash in the fourth. Still, the Spartans could manage just a 7-0 lead at the half, on a 4-yard pass from Chris Colley to Mike Allison.

Carey Tulik's 4-yard TD run pulled Churchill to within 13-7. But fourth-quarter scores by Clark and Matt Allison (five rushes, 50 yards), the latter a 1-yard plunge, insured Stevenson's triumph.

Disney World Quest test: This minivan measures up

By Anne Fracassa
Avanti NewsFeatures

ORLANDO, Fla. — This is the perfect place to have a minivan. They're everywhere: At Disney World. At Disney-MGM Studios. At Sea World. Heck, even at the largest McDonald's hamburger and pizza store in the world, which is right down the street.

No matter where you look, every parking lot is 90 percent filled with minivans in this tourist town. Incredible.

That's what makes this the right site to test the 1997 Nissan Quest.

We decided the kids were big enough to enjoy the wonders of Disney, so off we went a few weeks ago. All the travel guides and the weather people told us the first week in October would be perfect: No rain, lower temperatures, less humidity, small crowds. It was supposed to be perfect, or close to it, but no one told us about the week being the 25th anniversary celebration or the fact that Hurricane Josephine was on her way or that it would rain every day we were there.

Despite the rain and despite the crowds, my 3-year-old and

ROAD TEST By Anne Fracassa

5-year-old still had loads of fun. We can credit the Nissan Quest for getting us to the storied theme parks in comfort and without incident.

The sister truck to the Mercury Villager proved to be a great choice for our Disney trip. The Quest offered enough space to bring whatever we needed with us, and there was enough seating (and elbow room) to satisfy everybody. And since it rained so much, we had a chance to see the Quest react to the bad weather by showing off the road manners of a high-end luxury sedan.

Built in Avon Lake, Ohio, next to the Villager, the Quest has a 3.0-liter V6 engine. Both vehicles were designed by the same classy lady (Ford's Bobbie Gaunt) who brainstormed the creation of the Taurus and Sable more than a decade ago.

Gaunt is the one who demanded the Quest drive like a fine sedan. Hop into it without the assist of running boards or assist grips. Everything on the inside is smartly laid out, with big buttons and easy-to-use controls.

Never mind the Quest has been the best-selling import-brand minivan since 1993.

This year, it's even better. Everything has been revised — exterior, interior, convenience and safety — it's all there.

The best part about it, though, is the car-like handling and the ride comfort. We drove from Orlando to Tampa to St. Pete and other places and never once was I fatigued. My girls enjoyed the comfort as well, snoozing in the backseats without a care in the world on some of our longer trips around Florida.

The Quest has a unique feature that's worth a mention. It's called the Quest Trac flexible seating system. The seats can be arranged in 20 different configurations. That means lots and lots of passenger/cargo arrangements.

And if you outfit the Quest in captain's chairs, you can arrange the interior in four more ways. Seating capacity is for seven with everything in it. Leave just the front seats in and you can get almost 115 cubic feet of cargo room. That's versatile.

As always, safety is all there: Standard dual air bags, three-point front seat belts that are height-adjustable, steel side-door guard beams and a child safety lock on the sliding side door.

And if you want, you can order integrated child safety seats on both the XE and GXE models.

Don't you ever worry about locking your keys in this van. The Quest has a micro computer chip that senses if the key is still in the ignition and doesn't allow you to lock the door. Neat. If anything else but the key is put in the ignition, the Quest won't start. Plain and simple, the security system shuts the whole thing down. Even neater.

Earlier we mentioned the engine, that 3.0-liter single overhead cam V6. It has more oomph than any other import-brand minivan — a whopping 151 horsepower. The powertrain is mated to an electronically controlled 4-speed automatic trans that has an overdrive fourth gear. What that means in plain English is that you've got greater pulling power and acceleration is smooth and constant — even if you're pulling a substantial load.

This sweetheart is loaded with standard equipment, including power windows, power mirrors, power locks, illuminated driver-side vanity mirror, a 12-volt power outlet in the second row seating area (on GXE models), remote keyless entry, power assisted steering and power front disc brakes. ABS is an option — and again, well worth the price.

By the way, the Quest we tested had ABS. Unfortunately, I had to use it. It was raining (again) on a main thoroughfare in Kissimmee, Fla., and some little bitty Cutlass in front of us hammered its brakes without warning to stop at a light. I pumped mine to stay out of trouble, and we managed to stop in time. Thankfully, we avoided having to meet the Cutlass' owner over bent fenders that drizzled night.

Even competitors know that when it comes to quality, the Quest is no Mickey Mouse minivan. All this mini needs is a fourth door to make it as perfect as Minnie's smile.

Study Shows Asphalt Roads Safer, Quieter

(NAPS) — A study in Europe five years ago showed that when a road is constructed with a special-pur-pose mixture called open-graded friction course, or porous asphalt, it contains a relatively large percentage of air voids. The Open structure of this mix drains rainwater effectively, thus reducing the splash and spray and eliminating aquaplaning. It also reduces noise.

All of this means increased safety. According to the National Asphalt Pavement Association, in many locations, pavement surfaces are wet between 12 and 15 percent of the average year. During this time, the number and severity of accidents decrease if roadways are constructed with this open-graded friction course mixture.

How to make money in three easy steps.

Step 1.

Sell a solution! Your old rattle trap is a teen's dream machine. That old set of golf clubs is sure to be a big hit with a beginner. Here's the point: Your former treasure can bring another pleasure. And if you've got a skill to market or service you'd like to provide—there's someone looking for you in classified.

Step 2.

Aim for an audience. After you've selected a solution for another to seize, bring that person to life.
