Cheer Club

The holiday season is here - and so is the Plymouth-Canton Observer Cheer Club.

Opening the Cheer Club to new and returning "members" is one of our favorite holiday traditions. Please join us by bringing donations of new toys and canned or boxed food to our office at 794 S. Main Street in Plymouth during business hours.

The items will be collected until Friday, Dec. 15 when we turn them over to the good folks at Salvation Army. They'll distribute the items to needy people in Plymouth, Canton and Northville.

The idea is to make the holidays special for everybody, not just the lucky families where people have plenty to spend.

So if you're out doing your Christmas shopping and have a few minutes to look for another toy - or maybe a gift of warm clothing - your thoughtfulness will be appreciated.

When you bring your donations by our office, we'll ask you to leave your name and city/township of residence. That's because we like to print donor's names in the paper, while the Cheer Club drive is on. But you can be anonymous donor if you prefer.

Each year, we've recorded around 200 donors to the Cheer Club from Plymouth and Canton.

Happy Holidays! Please keep our Cheer Club in mind.

Holiday greetings

Arrival time: Santa Claus acknowledges some of his admirers as he arrives at the annual greeting ceremony Friday in Kellogg Park. There were Christmas carols, hot chocolate and plenty of youngsters in the park for the event, sponsored by the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce.

Eyes of a child are windows to happiness

Somebody call Dr. Laura and tell her she's through. Tell Dr. Ruth she won't be needed any more. Oprah? Obsolete.

I discovered the cure for the blues Friday night, and it has nothing to do with Prozac or therapy, doctors or hospitals.

Want to pull yourself out of a deep depression? Find some kids this time of year.

Mine blue mood went all the way to the soles of my shoes, but I knew Santa was arriving in Plymouth Friday night, so I closed up the office and made my way down Main Street. Get a couple of pictures, I told myself. Put in an appearance, watch Santa get there, get back to the office and put the paper to bed.

I felt like the Grinch walking along Main toward my favorite spot in the whole world, Kellogg Park. The fountain is off for the winter, but perhaps it's magical spell would still work, would pull me out of the dumps I couldn't explain.

I needn't have worried. As I approached, the bellowing tones of Bob Scoggins brought me back to the light.

It wasn't so much Scoggins, who again loaned his considerable vocal talent to lead the youngsters in Christmas carols for the annual arrival of the Jolly Old Elf. It was just ... the kids.

There were scads of them, bundled against the biting cold, parents sipping the hot chocolate provided by the Plymouth Salvation Army. There were tall ones, small ones, boy ones and girl ones. They had dark hair and light, but they all had one thing in common:

Salvation Army looking for bell ringers

The Salvation Army is looking for a few good men, women and teens to help ring bells for this season's Kettle Drive.

As of Friday afternoon, the unofficial start of the holiday shopping season, the Plymouth Salvation Army only had nine of its 16 bell-ringing sites manned, leaving plenty of cash behind in its quest to raise $113,000 for the local Kettle Drive campaign.

"We still have a lot of open spots for volunteers," said Capt. Jacqueline Hull of the Plymouth Corps. "We had the main kettles, like Target and Kmart, covered. But, we still have openings at grocery stores and other locations. We lose a lot of money when we can't ring the bells."

This past week, Buffalo, N.Y., received more than two feet of snow in the nation's first blizzard of the year.

Plymouth, Mich., is a long way from Buffalo. But, nonetheless, city crews are well prepared for when Old Man Winter strikes.

"We've budgeted approximately $125,000 for snow and ice removal this winter," said Acting City Manager Paul Sincock. "We estimate we'll use 2,000 tons of road salt this winter. Our ice and snow control measures in Plymouth are a model for many communities."

Businesses happy with early shopping returns

By Tony Bruscato

Downtown Plymouth retailers seemed generally pleased with results from the "official" first day of the holiday shopping season.

"We had them lining up around the corner at 8 a.m. waiting to get in," said Vickie Johns-Bird of Gabriala's with a smile. Gabriala's held a special promotion, and it obviously worked.

"We've had absolutely a great first day," said Johns-Bird. "We already beat last year's first shopping day, and we still have five hours to go. We're expecting a big holiday season."

The retail owners sentiment stretched from Main Street to Forrest Ave.

"We had a very busy day. For much of the time we had people lined up at the register," echoed Sandy Wright, owner of Village Shopkeeper. "Business has been picking up since the cold weather started, but nothing like today."

For many retailers, the holiday season makes up about 50 percent of the yearly profits. Without a big push now, many will be struggling for ways to make money and stay open.

At Angelo's Cards and Gifts, owner Ernie Gaggos said until Friday, business had been slow.

"Before today (Friday), there seemed to be a lot less people walking the streets and coming into the store," said Gaggos. "Based on the first day after Thanksgiving, hopefully we'll meet last year's sales."

As for shoppers, the charm of downtown Plymouth took center stage over being mauled at the malls.

"I like the small shops. I didn't even attempt the malls today," admitted Brittany Hester of Plymouth, who lives a couple of blocks from downtown.

Board ponders adopting rules of conduct

BY BRAD KADRICH
STAFF WRITER
bkadrich@oe.homecomm.net

Perhaps the new Plymouth Township Board learned a valuable lesson about rules Tuesday when it couldn't decide what rules it wanted to operate under, because it wasn't sure what rules to use to decide.

Sound confusing? Try being a township board member.

At a special board meeting called with establishing rules of conduct as one of its three specific agenda items, the seven-member board couldn't come up with a consensus as to the manner in which its meetings will be conducted.

The one agreement: Members will look at the issue again at their Dec. 12 meeting.

The special meeting was called by trustees Ron Griffith and Kay Arnold, who were upset at the reorganization plan pushed through by the previous board, particularly treasurer Ron Edwards and former trustee K.C. Mueller.

One of the three items on the agenda for the special meeting was a request to adopt the current edition of Robert's Rules of Order as the operating rules of the new board.

The special meeting was the first for the board, which now includes incumbent trustees Arnold, Griffith and Chuck Curmi, Edwards, clerk Marilyn Massengill, newly elected trustee Abe Munfakh and new supervisor Steve Mann.

Mann opened the meeting trying to get the agenda's second item, a motion to void the reorganization approved at the Nov. 14 meeting, removed from Tuesday's agenda. Former supervisor Maurice Breen stood and, without pointing a finger directly at Mann, urged the board to follow parliamentary procedure.

And, while it appeared generally to be a consensus the board would adopt Robert's Rules, the idea of which particular version to adopt kept the board from voting.

There were at least three different versions of the book floating around township hall Tuesday, and the board, after several long minutes of discussion, tabled the issue while board members do research.

"I like the small town atmosphere. It gets you into the Christmas spirit," added Shay Muncus, Hester's relative from Greenville, S.C. "It's better than fighting each other in line and trying to find parking."

Marcia Sinclair is visiting from Burlington, Ky., and prefers the small town ambiance of Plymouth over the madness of the malls.

"We've been here before and like to come back," said Sinclair, who said she didn't even attempt to go to the malls. "It reminds me of the Dickens-style Christmas."

"The malls are too cookie cutter, while this is much more unique," added her husband, Ron.

"I can't deal with the malls after Thanksgiving," admitted Becky Wyatt of Redford. "I order from the Internet or catalogues instead of shopping at the malls.

"I like Plymouth's small town atmosphere, and you can get one-of-a-kind gifts that you can't get anywhere else," she said. "And, it's friendly in the shops, a welcome you don't find in the bigger stores."

Hospice offers program

Arbor Hospice is offering community members a unique opportunity to honor or remember a loved one this holiday season through the "Tree of Remembrance" program.

Supporters of the program receive a hand-crafted, heart-shaped ornament and help Arbor Hospice ensure no person in the community faces the end of life alone.

For more information about the "Tree of Remembrance" program, call Arbor Hospice, (734) 662-5999, or visit their website at www.arborhospice.org.

PLYMOUTH PIPELINE

The Nutcracker

In a long-standing Plymouth tradition, the Plymouth Symphony once again joins the Plymouth-Canton Ballet and the Plymouth-Canton Educational Park Madrigal Singers to present the classic fairly tale, Tchaikovsky's Nutcracker ballet.

More than 150 ballet dancers, musicians and cast members bring the classic story to life Saturday, Dec. 9 (at 2 and 7 p.m.) and Sunday, Dec. 10 at 2 p.m. All performances take place at the Plymouth Salem High School Auditorium, 46181 Joy Road in Canton.

Following the matinee performance, the Plymouth Symphony League hosts the Sugar Plum Fairy Tea, an opportunity to meet and take pictures with the dancers, enjoy some refreshments and purchase an array of holiday gifts.

Admission is $18 for adults, $10 for children. Sugar Plum Fairy Tea tickets are an additional $5. For tickets, season subscriptions or more information, please contact the Symphony Office at (734) 451-2112 or email at plymouthsymphony@aol.com.

Exhibits on display

Plymouth resident Dennis Jones is currently exhibiting several stone sculpture pieces in the lobby of the Joanne Winkleman Hulce Gallery. The exhibit is up now and will remain on display through the first of the year.

Marge Pacer exhibits her unique photographic style Nov. 27 through Dec. 30. The exhibit includes her handcolored photographs in colored pencil, oil paint or oil pastel. The Ann Arbor artist works in a variety of media including painting, photography and digital imaging. She received a number of awards, including a grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts and Cultural Affairs and the Barbara Dorr Memorial Award.

Pacer conducts a workshop Dec. 11 from 7 to 9 p.m. The workshop will include one archival processed 16 x 20 silverprint on fiber-based paper (valued at $90). The cost of the workshop is $45.

For additional details and hours on the exhibits, call (734) 416-4278 from 9:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Plymouth man raises money

James Plummer, a resident of Plymouth, participated in BD's Mongolian Barbeque's "Lock Up to Support the Arts Wrap Up" which took place Nov. 13.

Plummer, who works at Commerce Bank in Ann Arbor, was one of 30 people who were "arrested" and brought to BD's Mongolian Barbeque's Ann Arbor restaurant. Prisoners were fed and entertained by magician, the Great Oz, while they called friends, colleagues, relatives, etc. to help raise "bail".

In seven hours, over $8,000 was raised to help three non-profit theatre companies. The Young People's Theatre, Michael Lee an OPUS Mime, and Jesse Richards and Hundredth Monkey.

School names theater after teacher

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

Allen DuBois taught American History in the Plymouth-Canton school district for more than 25 years, most of them while fighting cancer until his death in October 1998.

Two years after his passing at age 53, DuBois is still making an impact at Canton High School. On Tuesday, the Canton Little Theater, where DuBois plied his trade and made such an impression for two decades, will be renamed the Allen DuBois Little Theater.

"He stressed hard work ... and seemed proof that if you do what you love, and you work hard at it, you're going to be great," said Stephen Bernacki, 17, Canton High School senior class president. "And, that's what he did ... he was really great ... my favorite teacher ever."

DuBois was set to become a meteorologist, but fate had him changing his major while studying at the University of Michigan.

"He loved history, and he tried to pass that love onto his students," said his wife, Betty DuBois, who teaches vocational education at the high school. "He was known for his lectures in the Little Theater. You could have the doors shut and still hear him. He was very loud and demonstrative."

Allen DuBois

'He would always throw in interesting facts, not just a boring lecture.'
Stephen Bernacki
—Canton senior

"He would jump up and down in class, and it really got your attention," said Melissa Brown of Plymouth, a 1999 graduate of Canton High School. "Even if you hated history, you still would pay attention.

"When he was teaching about the Civil War he would bring a cannon and shoot it off in school," remembers Brown. "We were all shocked. He was amazing."

During lectures on the 1950's, DuBois could be heard yelling "The Commies are coming, the Commies are coming" in the hallways.

"When he was teaching about the Boston Massacre, he pretended to be a 14-year-old general, jump on the desk and screamed orders in a high-pitched voice," remembers Bernacki. "He would always throw in interesting facts, not just a boring lecture."

While the students took note of DuBois' lust for history, it was maybe DuBois who was getting his vigor from the students.

"At home he was very quiet, not the ham you saw in the auditorium," said Betty DuBois. "I think it was the kids. They kind of energized him."

While fighting cancer since 1974 at the age of 29, when doctors told him he had only two years to live, DuBois missed only a handful of days of teaching until 1997. He could be seen jogging four miles a day nearly five days a week.

"His way was a positive attitude ... not to give in to it," said Betty DuBois.

"I liked the fact that he did and said what he meant," said Chuck Portelli, president of the Plymouth-Canton Education Association, who worked closely with DuBois on union activities. "He was a high-intensity teacher, and the kids loved him. I wish my kids could have had him as a teacher."

Canton High School Principal Patricia Patton worked with DuBois while an assistant principal from 1980-83, and again as principal since 1995.

"He was a person who had a high level of professionalism, and demanded it of himself and others," said Patton. "He was devoted to teaching, and he cared about students as people."

No matter if you were the top student in the class, or the one with the lowest grade, DuBois took interest.

"He always recognized students who got the highest scores on tests," said Bernacki. "But, he also made note of those students who didn't do well. He always told us he didn't yell at us to shame us, but to make us better."

"You wanted to do well so he would be proud of you," said Brown, who also remembered the fun DuBois would have with students.

"If you didn't have a pencil and wanted to borrow one, he always asked for collateral ... and kids would give him rings, jewelry, coats ... so they would have something to write notes," she said. "It was all in fun, but he always got his pencils back."

The dedication ceremony honoring DuBois takes place Tuesday at 6 p.m. at Canton High School.

"I'm extremely proud," said Betty DuBois. "To have a teacher recognized for the work they've done is an honor to the profession as well as the individual."

Heide's among centennial honorees

The Michigan Retailers Association (MRA) today recognized 16 Michigan Centennial Retailers -- retail businesses that have been in operation for 100 years or more, and a Plymouth fixture was among them.

"As we close out the 20th century, it's fitting that we highlight the remarkable staying power of these Michigan retail businesses," said Larry Meyer, MRA's CEO. "These century-old businesses are a significant part of our state's history, as well as its present and future."

Heide's Flowers & Gifts, Inc. of Plymouth, founded in 1899 by Carl Heide, was among the honorees. The current owner is Steve Mansfield.

Hale's Department Store in South Haven, founded in 1855 by Marshall Hale, was the oldest business honored. The honorees include third-, fourth- and even fifth-generation family-owned companies, as well as Troy-based Kmart Corp., the nation's sixth-largest retailer.

Recipients were recognized at the Third Annual Michigan Retailer of the Year Awards luncheon, held at the R.E. Olds Transportation Museum in Lansing. Each Centennial Retailer received a bronze building plaque and a certificate.

The year 2000 marks the first time MRA has honored Centennial Retailers for their enduring contributions to Michigan's communities. The program was the idea of MRA members Jim and Fayenne Storrer, of 109-year-old Storrer's Clothing in Owosso.

The Association plans to present awards annually to additional Centennial Retailers. To notify MRA of a retailer that has been in business for 100 years or more, contact Retha Lachance at 800-366-3699 or rlachanceretailers.com .

pickup trucks with plows, two backhoe loaders and a front-end loader. And that doesn't include an entire fleet of snow blowers.

"We have to maintain 30 different public properties throughout the city," said Sincock. "Such as the sidewalks at City Hall and all the neighborhood parks. The city has to comply with the city's snow ordinance just like our neighborhood residents must."

The ordinance calls for shoveling sidewalks within 24 hours of a snowfall. If not, the city will do it for you, but at a price.

"We don't want to be in the snow plow business, so it's expensive to have us come out and shovel your sidewalk," said Sincock. "Our rate is $70 an hour, with a one hour minimum charge."

City ordinance calls for no parking on streets from 3-6 a.m. However, Sincock advises residents to keep cars off the streets when snow is expected.

"We encourage residents to keep their cars off the street when it snows, or when we expect snow, because it slows down the plowing process," he said. "We plow every residential street at four inches, sometimes less depending on weather conditions."

When the city declares a "snow emergency," all parked vehicles must be removed from the streets or they may be ticketed and towed by police.

Sincock said his crews have already been out salting city streets, having used more than 15 tons of salt thus far.

"We have a special snow and ice control policy," he said. "After business hours the police department notifies the on-call Municipal Services supervisor whenever there's a need for snow and ice control measures. We'll call in crews as the situation deems itself.

"We're adamant about keeping the salt dome (at the Municipal Services Department) full because you never know when you're gong to get an April ice storm. We maintain a stock of 250 tons on site."

Other recommended guidelines from the City of Plymouth:

- If possible, residents should wait until the street has been plowed before shoveling driveways.
- By city ordinance, residents, businesses or contractors clearing snow on private property are prohibited from depositing snow on public roadways, alleys, sidewalks or parking lots.
- Residents with questions about the city's snow plowing policy can contact the Municipal Service Department at (734) 453-7737.

responsible for 16 kettle locations in Plymouth, Canton and Northville. This year it also has four kettles in Belleville.

"We are looking for people who can ring the bells for shifts of four hours or more," said Hull. "Area churches and service clubs have volunteered to ring on the weekends, so our major concern is having bell ringers on weekdays."

Hull said the time slots most available are during Monday through Thursday, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. The Kettle Drive runs Monday through Saturday until Dec. 23.

Just like anywhere, the holiday drive accounts for most of the Corps' annual budget.

"We live or die by the Christmas drive," said Hull. "We need the money to fund assistance at Christmas, the food pantry and temporary housing for those in need."

They all wore smiles bright as sunshine. Seemed the colder they got, the bigger the grins became, as though the only way to truly ward off the cold was to smile as bright as possible.

Tough to be depressed in the face of all that.

There's something about this time of year, about watching the incredulity that fills a child's face watching Santa Claus. As adults, we get so bogged down in holiday schedules and work responsibilities and the commercial pretense of the whole holiday season.

Normally, I wouldn't take the job of Plymouth Mayor Dave McDonald or Plymouth Township Supervisor Steve Mann on a bet. But watching them on stage, helping sing the carols, waiting patiently in the cold to present Santa with the key to the hearts of every good little boy and girl, I'd have traded places with either of them in a minute.

Mann, newly elected and taking part in his first official ceremonial event, smiled nervously, but made it through his proclamation. McDonald, fresh off his own set of personal struggles, still made sure he was there.

I think it was the kids. When Scoggins and Chamber of Commerce Director Fran Toney couldn't remember the words to a song or two, children clambered on stage and fearlessly led the singing.

As I wandered through the crowd, watching parents trying to keep up with their children, sons hoisted on the shoulders of fathers, daughters bundled in the arms of mothers, my mood swung.

Again I felt like the Grinch, only this time in the scene where he realizes how wrong he is, and his heart pops out of his chest and he grabs the sleigh full of toys before it plummets back into Whoville.

On this night, in magical Kellogg Park, Plymouth welcomed Santa the way this town does everything, with a gentle hometown spirit that is engagingly unique.

And this time, there was the added benefit of hundreds of children. And that's my prescription for curin' what ails you:

Look at things through the wondrous eyes of a child. Things are a lot better that way.

First quarter may see a drop in job demand in county

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY
STAFF WRITER

Wayne County employers are running hot and cold when it comes to forecasting their employment needs for the first quarter in 2001.

"Thirty-two percent of employers plan to add workers, while 17 percent foresee reductions. Another 46 percent anticipate no changes and 5 percent have not finalized their first quarter plans," said Joe Ross, work force analyst for Manpower of Metro Detroit.

Manpower conducts workforce studies quarterly, then shares the information with the Federal Reserve and the State of Michigan among others. The information is also used by employment agencies, potential employees and students to determine employment opportunities in a particular region. Surveys are conducted throughout the country.

According to the report, Wayne County will experience a significant drop in the need for new employees January through March (down 25 percent from this year's fourth quarter). However, the county will still fare better than neighboring counties.

"What we notice going into the first quarter in Wayne County is that we're looking at the biggest drop we have seen in more than four years," said Ross, "but it's nothing to worry about. We will still be ahead of the (11 percent) Michigan average."

Ross attributes dwindling hiring opportunities to a sluggish automobile manufacturing market.

"For months, we've been hearing doom and gloom from parts suppliers, and it has finally caught up with us," he said.

Timing is another factor.

"As a general rule, the economy takes a little dip in the first quarter as businesses are planning and changing," he said.

World issues, such as a volatile stock market, can also affect the job forecast. As a result, Ross is closely watching the goings-on at Daimler-Chrysler. In the midst of a management shake-up and potential plant closings, Ross admitted "emotion does play a role."

Winter job opportunities are foreseen in the following standard industry markets: construction, finance, insurance, real estate, and services.

"Non-durable goods manufacturers plan cuts, while durable goods manufacturers, transportation/public utility firms and wholesale/retail merchants voice mixed intentions," said Ross.

The procedure

A sampling of businesses from 10 standard industry markets are questioned every quarter about their staffing needs.

"Because we are using a scientific research method, we have to talk to the same companies

Restaurant continues tradition of decorating for the holidays

By Jeff Counts
Staff Writer
jcounts@oe.homecomm.net

A little boy eating lunch with his parents at Redford's Sandy's by the Beech walked up to a large Christmas display of the North Pole, looked at it and said – "awesome."

It was all the reward that Sandy Draffen, owner of the landmark bar/restaurant at Five Mile and Beech Daly, needed.

For about ten years she and workers there have been decorating the place for Christmas, each year adding more and more displays.

"I do it for the kids," she said.

It makes the expense and work worth it. And work there is. Draffen and three employees spend about five nights during early November putting up the displays.

Each display has a particular motif.

"We've got the Disney characters on one wall," she said.

One of the most popular is the North Pole scene at the front of the tavern. It includes a large seal, the owner bought from a Christmas decoration store.

■ 'Christmas is my favorite season. I look around all year round for new items.'

—Owner

"I remember when I bought it, the owner of the store was so happy that the seal would have a home," she said.

The seal is so large, it barely fits in the scene. "We have to wrap the tail around the back," she said.

"Christmas is my favorite season," she said. "I look around all year round for new items."

And those efforts are rewarded. "People come in every year to see what's new," she said.

"The reaction of the kids just make it for me."

But Christmas wasn't always all that important at Sandy's. When she first opened the tavern, it was Halloween that she decorated for.

But then she switched to Christmas because "it's my favorite time of year," she said.

"Plus, I'm here more than at home."

The first moving figures she purchased were snowmen and then she went on to elves. And from there it just grew. Most of the walls are adorned with figures that move, fake snow and other decorations.

And she promises that Redford will have it's own Christmas wonderland in the future.

"I spend a lot of time looking for new displays."

That means Redford Christmas addicts will have something to look forward to next year.

Program open to gifted

The Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will once again be screening students for admission to the Talented and Gifted (TAG) Program for the 2000-01 school year.

The TAG Department screens all district third graders when they take the Cognitive Abilities Test in January. Parents of third graders eligible for further screening will be contacted by mail in late February.

Parents of second, fourth and fifth graders need to contact their school office for a nomination form (forms will be available at all PCCS school offices starting December 1). Second-grade nomination forms need to be returned to the building principal by Jan. 12. Fourth and fifth-grade nomination forms need to be returned to the building principal by Jan. 31. Sixth and seventh-grade nomination forms need to be returned to your school counselor by Jan. 31.

For fourth through seventh-graders, the TAG Department will look at previous testing. If you are a PCCS District resident and your child attends private school, please call the TAG office at (734) 416-4867 for instructions.

There are two informational meetings regarding the TAG Program scheduled for Dec. 13 and Jan. 9 at 7 p.m. in the Miller School gym. Interested parents should attend one of the above meetings.

If you need additional information or if you child attends private school, call the TAG office at Miller School at 416-4867.

PIRGIM warns about hazardous and toxic toys

Hazardous toys can still be found on store shelves across the country despite passage of the 1994 Child Safety Protection Act, according to a nationwide survey released today by PIRGIM, the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan. The annual report, available on the web at www.toysafety.net, has resulted in 68 recalls and other enforcement actions in the last 14 years.

While the group's 15th annual survey noted some signs of improvement, there were still 152,600 emergency room visits for toy-related injuries in 1999 alone. In additions to demonstrating choking hazards, the report also warns consumers about a number of plastic PVC toys posing toxic hazards from phthalates and urges manufacturers to voluntarily disclose safety whether the toy contains phthalates or PVC.

"Children are needlessly choking to death on toys and dangerous toys can still be found on store shelves," said Megan Owens, spokeswoman for PIRGIM. "Consumers should remember that just because a toy appears on store shelves, or doesn't appear on PIRGIM's list, doesn't mean that it is safe," she added.

The annual PIRGIM "Trouble in Toyland" report lists dangerous toys found during a national survey of stores in October and November.

PIRGIM cautioned consumers about toy hazards in four categories:

Choking hazards:

Choking on small toy parts, balloons and small balls continues to be the leading cause of toy-related deaths. According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission (CPSC), at least 190 children died from 1990 to 1999 playing with toys. In 1999, 16 children died playing with toys, nine of those from choking. In 1999, and estimated 152,600 people went to the emergency room for toy-related injuries. Nearly half, 69,600, were under 5 years old. One tragic example that occurred this past year was the death of a 5-month-old girl in El Paso, Texas, who choked to death after a small ball from a toy lodged in her throat.

Federal regulations ban any toy that poses a choking hazard because of small parts if it has "play value" for children under the age of 3, regardless of any age labeling to the contrary. The group also warned parents of the heightened choking hazards associated with small balls.

Small balls (from a diameter of 1.25 inches to 1.75 inches) are banned for sale for children under 3 because balls can completely block a child's airway.

Balloons:

Fifty-six children have choked to death on parts of balloons since 1990. PIRGIM criticized retailers for marketing balloons with toddler icons such as Winnie the Pooh or "Baby's First Birthday" messages. "Broken balloons are the leading choking killer," said Owens. "Because of the choking hazard, balloons are inappropriate for toddlers. Consumers should avoid balloons altogether for children under 8, and even then use extreme caution," continued Owens.

Toxic toys:

The group warned consumers of toys containing toxic chemicals known as phthalates that are added to polyvinyl chloride (PVC) plastic toys as a softener. The chemicals are linked to liver and kidney damage, are probable human carcinogens, and have already been banned by several European countries in toys for children under three because exposure to toxic chemicals is especially dangerous to small children.

"It is outrageous that a scientist who buys a bottle of phthalate chemicals receives a full hazard warning, but a parent buying a teething toy with phthalates often finds it labeled non-toxic," added Owens.

"Young children should not be chewing on toxic toys."

Scooters:

PIRGIM also offered tips to consumers about the use of scooters. The popular scooters, which went onto the U.S. market last year, have been responsible for over 26,000 injuries and two deaths (one 6-year-old, one adult) so far this year, according to the CPSC. PIRGIM joins the CPSC in their recommendations for avoiding scooter injuries. Scooter users should wear proper safety gear including a helmet that meets CPSC's standard, and knee and elbow pads as well as wrist guards, ride scooters only on smooth, paved surfaces without any traffic, and not ride scooters at night.

Warning on internet purchases:

Online toy sales grew from $45 million in 1998 to $425 million in 1999. Recognizing the growing numbers of toys purchased over the internet, the group urged toygivers to be cautious about buying toys on-line.

"While the internet offers consumers the convenience of avoiding crowded toy stores and the possibility of making a purchase at anytime, internet purchasers probably won't see child safety choke hazard warnings that toy packaging must by law prominently display," said Owens. PIRGIM urges manufacturers to voluntarily provide child safety warnings on the web.

"Shoppers should examine all toys carefully for hidden dangers before they make a purchase and should think about how a child actually plays with toys," Owens added. "While most manufacturers comply with the law, parents should not assume that all toys on store shelves this holiday shopping season are either safe or adequately labeled. Consumers should get toy safety tips on our web site, www.toysafety.net before they buytoys this season," concluded Owens.

PIRGIM is a nonprofit, nonpartisan consumer and environmental advocacy group with 10,000 members across Michigan. More information is available at http://www.pirgim.org. The full report is available for $30 from PIRGIM, 218 D St. SE, Washington, D.C. 20003 or on the toy safety website, http://www.toysafety.net/. Sent e-mail to uspirg@pirg.org for more information about the State PIRGIs consumer watchdog program.

County offers on-line auctions on abandoned property

BY LAURIE HUMPHREY
STAFF WRITER

Wayne County officials are opening a new door for those interested in home renovation.

Community groups, construction workers and skilled individuals are invited to inspect and bid on projects on-line at www.auction.epaconline.com/ through the county's Abandoned Properties Program. The site features multiple views of abandoned properties, including inside rooms; as well as addresses; a locator map and a brief description of each home.

"The objective (of this new program) is to get these homes fixed up," said June West, director of communications for Wayne County. "The majority of homes we are working with are abandoned homes, but they are still viable properties."

Bids will be accepted on-line for three weeks for each property.

"The process is similar to online bidding Web sites like eBay where bidders can check the status of the auction and up the price as other bidders submit higher bids," said West.

Featured properties

Five to 10 homes will be added to the Web site each month, though they may not all sell. Leftover properties may be sold to local organizations for a nominal amount.

Successful bidders will have six months to fix up the property or the title will revert to the county.

"That is why we are generally (marketing to) builders or community organizations. They will have the resources available to make sure the projects get finished on time," said West.

Serious buyers must put up a $10,000 bond before they can submit a bid.

"We want to make sure all bidders are in a financial position to make improvements and discourage speculators who have no interest in making an investment in the property," said Mike Duggan, Deputy Wayne County Executive.

In the beginning

County officials began targeting abandoned buildings for demolition in the summer of 1999, following a successful school renovation project.

"On the first day of school (fall 1999), Mike Duggan went out to ask the school principals how they liked the improvements in the schools," said West. "One principal said he really liked how the rooms looked, but showed him what the kids had to go through to get to school."

Abandoned homes peppered the neighborhood, forcing students to walk past "havens for crime" in order to get to school.

"We began asking ourselves 'how could we find a solution to this problem?'" said West. "Some of the houses were burned out; others were open to trespass."

A starting point

The first property up for auction, at 1162 Lakewood in Detroit, is a four-family building featuring four fireplaces. Plumbing, electrical and heating components have been removed. The starting bid is $1.

Wayne County acquired title to the properties following a series of successful lawsuits.

"The lawsuits claim the owners created and maintained a nuisance by permitting a vacant, deteriorated and dangerous dwelling," said West. "There is no question that these properties need a lot of work."

About 500 lawsuits have been filed since last December, yielding about 200 demolitions or renovations.

According to Duggan, "a number of these houses deserve a second chance. We'd rather see these houses turned into a home for a family than add another vacant lot to the neighborhood."

Those interested in learning more about the program or the properties should log on to www.auction.epaconline.com/ or call (313) 967-6010.

"We're getting 12-15 calls a day," said West. "We're hoping this will be a successful program."

every quarter," said Ross. "So we have been calling some companies for 10 years."

However, there are two exceptions to the rule. Companies can be added to the survey group as job markets are created; and companies can be removed from the survey group as sectors no longer represent a significant portion of a region's business.

"Our sampling group is based on the make-up of the county," said Ross. "In the Lansing area, there are a lot of political groups so government makes up a big portion of the sampling group. In Wayne County the survey group is weighted toward manufacturing."

The future

Ross foresees a change in the make-up of the Wayne County survey group as more businesses embrace technology.

"There has been a slow change even though the area is still influenced by manufacturing. In 2001, I think we're going to see an explosion in the information technology sector," he said.

Edison billing system begins here next week

(PRNewswire) – Detroit Edison will continue a massive transition to a new billing system that will provide its 2.1 million customers in Southeastern Michigan with more and detailed billing information.

The new billing system has been rolled out gradually to more than 700,000 customers in Macomb County and the Thumb area of Michigan. The remaining 1.4 million Detroit Edison customers will see the new bills when they are mailed beginning Nov. 28.

"The new bills will provide more detailed, understandable information, which our customers want and need as we move to a competitive electric industry environment," said Ron May, vice president, Energy Delivery and Service.

"But undertaking a conversion of this size can involve some glitches – for which we have contingencies – so to accommodate the changeover we will close our customer offices from Nov. 22 until Nov. 27, which includes the long Thanksgiving weekend."

All Detroit Edison customer representatives and customer office staffs have been trained to work with the new billing system, which offers customers better privacy and information protection, as well as changes that will help ensure that each transaction will be thorough and complete.

Many customers who receive a separate bill for each service they receive – such as interruptible space conditioning or water heating – will see all of those services itemized in one bill. In addition, residential customers will see a line item for the 5 percent rate decrease afforded by restructuring legislation that was implemented in June.

"We hoped that our customers will not be inconvenienced by the conversion and had planned ahead to make bill payments before Nov. 22," May said.

Honored youth: A celebration of dedicated young people who give their time to help others was held Nov. 12 at Oakland Mall. The "You Make a Difference" program was sponsored by WPLT Planet 96.3 radio, The Observer & Eccentric and others.

'You Make a Difference' honors 20 young people for their service

Twenty young people were honored for their service to the community Nov. 12 by the "You Make A Difference" program.

The program, cosponsored by mallmaps.com, The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, WXYZ-Channel 7, Oakland Mall, Viviano Flowers and WPLT Planet 96.3 radio, solicited entries from peers teachers, parents, neighbors, aunts and/or uncles.

The students saluted were Raj Bedi of Farmington, Adam Powell of Waterford, Nicole Hier of Royal Oak, Katherine Tierney of Southgate, Heather Steffy of Ann Arbor, Jonathan Mentz of Roseville, Tyler Palchak of Farmington Hills, Carli Balogh of Farmington Hills, Jaclyn Kostukoff of St. Clair Shores, Amanda Graor of Livonia, Rachel Mason of Dearborn, Ali Bonssi of Dearborn, Matthew Jackson of Rochester Hills, Jonathan Davis of Livonia, Matthew Sanborn of White Lake, Marnie Rogish of Clinton Township, Amelia Parnis of Livonia, Justin Wilson of Detroit, Jeffrey Neracher of Wixom and Sara Zanger of St. Clair Shores.

The program was to salute young people who are helpful, kind and generous, "someone who makes a difference." These kids (ages 8-18) are heavily involved in community programs and donate their time and effort to helping others.

There were more than 300 entries received. Judging took place and the top 20 kids were brought together Nov. 12 at Oakland Mall for a celebration. Both nominator and nominee were invited to come up on stage and tell their story.

The event was hosted by Johnny in the Morning, morning show host from Planet 96.3 and Heather Catallo, assignment reporter for Channel 7.

All kids received a certificate of accomplishment, a special gift basket from Viviano Flowers, a $100 savings bond, a "I Make A Difference" T-shirt and a special goodie bag from Oakland Mall.

NJCAA All-Americans

Although the NJCAA Tournament didn't go exactly as planned for Schoolcraft College's women's soccer team, it ended well enough — the Lady Ocelots won their two consolation games to finish fifth, then had three players receive all-American designation.

Kristah Manteuffel, a midfielder from Redford (Thurston), was named to the all-NJCAA first team. Manteuffel led SC in scoring with 16 goals and 20 assists for 52 points during the regular season.

Toni Perry earned second-team accolades. The defender from Grand Blanc was also named to the NJCAA's all-tournament team.

Angela Maile, a forward from Novi, was honorable mention all-NJCAA. Maile was the team's leading goal-scorer during the regular season with 17; she also had 14 assists for 48 points.

SC's Gans recognized

Former Schoolcraft College athletic director Marv Gans was recently named the Northville Chamber of Commerce's Citizen of the Year for 2000.

Gans, a Northville Township resident since 1967, currently serves as Schoolcraft's assistant dean of Continuing Education.

Gans is also a Northville Township trustee and long-time supporter of Friends of Northville Parks and Recreation.

PCJBA registration

The Plymouth-Canton Junior Basketball Association will have registration for its high school-level (grades 9-12) teams from 9 a.m.-noon on Saturday, Dec. 2 at East Middle School.

Used equipment sale

The Canton Parks and Recreation Services is once again sponsoring its annual used sports equipment sale, which will be 10 a.m.-1 p.m. Saturday, Dec.2 at the Pheasant Run Golf Club clubhouse in Canton.

Those wishing to sell items may drop them off at Pheasant Run from 6-9 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 30. Sellers set the prices and keep the money, minus 15 percent which goes to the Parks and Recreation, which provides the volunteers to do the selling. Money and/or unsold items may be claimed from 1-2 p.m. Dec. 2.

For more information, call the Parks and Recreation services at (734) 397-5110.

Pepsi hoops camps

Former Detroit Shock coach Nancy Lieberman-Cline and Shock player Anna DeForge will conducte a two-day camp for girls ages 7-17 Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 2-3 at Livonia Clarenceville High School.

The cost is $60.

For more information, call (248) 377-8665.

New soccer refs

A four-session class for training new soccer referees will be conducted from 9 a.m.-1 p.m. on successive Saturdays: Jan. 20, Jan. 27, Feb. 3 and Feb. 10. Those interested must attend all four classes.

Participants must be at least 12 years of age. To register, send your name, social security number and a check for $43 made payable to the Michigan Referee Committee to 9115 Muirland, Plymouth, MI, 48170.

For further information, call (734) 454-7335. Class size is limited.

Roller hockey action

Several opportunities for those interested in playing roller hockey are available at Skatin' Station II, located on Ronda in Canton.

- An adult drop-in roller hockey session will be from 9:45 a.m.-11:45 a.m. Mondays. Cost is $10.
- Hockey practice for anyone with league-required equipment will be held Wednesday's. Cost is $5. Sessions for ages 13-16: 4-5 p.m.; sessions for ages 9-12: 5-6 p.m.; sessions for ages 8-and-under: 4-5 p.m.
- There are also roller hockey leagues for all ages. Cost for a 10-week session is $110.

For information on any of these classes, call (734) 459-6401.

Whalers stop Sting, get back on track

The schedule hasn't exactly been kind to the Plymouth Whalers this season, with 15 of their first 22 games on the road. After losing twice on the road last weekend, they needed to bounce back. Against Sarnia, they did.

BY NICHOLAS A. GISMONDI
SPECIAL WRITER

There will be downslides in seasons that stretch over a few months. What's important is how a team recovers.

The Whalers recovered superbly from a 1-2 road trip last weekend that concluded with a 6-3 loss by beating the Sarnia Sting by the same 6-3 margin Wednesday night at the Compuware Sports Arena.

The Whalers were no doubt happy to be back on home ice after starting the season by playing 15-of-22 games on the road. Scoring six goals, after scoring just six goals in three games last weekend, was certainly an indicator.

The Sting, whose all-time record against the Whalers is dead even (21-21-10), is 9-12-1-1 this season. Plymouth is 16-4-2-1; its 35 points is good for first in the Ontario Hockey League's West Division.

Damian Surma, who would score three goals, netted the game's first at 5:17 of the opening period when he took a pass from Cole Jarrett on a play that originated with goalie Rob Zepp. Zepp threw the puck up ice, and Surma victimized Robert Gherson for a 1-0 lead.

The Stings Kris Newbury tied the game after a rebound slipped away from Zepp at 14:23 of the first. Newbury hammered it home for his fourth of the year.

Surma put home his second of the game and 11th of the season on the power play after Stephen Weiss and Jarrett executed some fancy passing that resulted in a Surma shot in tight at 18:03 of the first.

The Sting re-tied it at 2-all with just 35 seconds remaining in the period, Alex Buturlin knocking in the rebound of a Preston Mizzi shot from the blue line.

A comeback victory

BY RICHARD L. SHOOK
STAFF WRITER

Killing penalties all the time will kill your hockey team.

Plymouth Canton took advantage of what seemed like two periods of power plays Tuesday night to record a 4-2 victory over Plymouth Salem at the Plymouth Cultural Center.

"I know two things for certain," coach Dan Abraham of the Chiefs said. "You can't win in the penalty box, and we never quit."

Canton (3-0) spotted Salem (1-1) a two-goal lead early in the second period, then roared back with four unanswered goals, the first two by Brad Wolfe, to take advantage of the extra attacker.

The Rocks had nine penalties called on them, eight of them in a row, while the Chiefs were whistled for three infractions.

The game ended with sophomore Mark Nagel of Salem take a vain swipe at the puck laying free by the right side of the net with plenty of daylight between the pipe and winning goaltender Brad Arsenov.

It was that kind of night for the Rocks, who had pulled goalie James Dogonski after calling timeout with 43 seconds to play.

"The penalty situations hurt us," coach Fred Feiler of Salem said. "We took too many. And that ended up costing us.

"You can't be skating with two men down. That was the difference in the game, I think."

"I was a bit concerned after awhile," Abraham said. "Our power play was getting worn down. They did a nice job on the penalty kill."

The Chiefs seemed to come together on a 5-on-3, the first penalty of which came when sophomore John Schultz boarded Wolfe with 8:34 of the second period left to play. Wolfe slumped to the ice, the wind knocked out of him, for a couple of minutes.

Salem was called for another penalty 12 seconds later and Wolfe returned to the ice, banging in a shot from near the right faceoff circle.

Three seconds after the second penalty expired, and both teams were at full strength (with 6:19 left in the second period), Wolfe put a shot in to tie the score, converting a nice pass from John Bockstanz.

In the third period, sophomore Ryan McKendry put a shot on a prone Dogonski that lodged in his armpit and trickled across the red line as he was sliding backwards with 10:28 left to play.

Sean Depp scored a short-handed goal with 7:43 to play. He blocked a shot at the left point; it came off him and scooted backwards to center ice. Depp outraced the shooter to the puck and broke in alone to score.

Canton beat Salem twice in their inaugural season on the ice last year. The Chiefs went 11-10-2 while the Rocks managed just three victories.

But both knew they would be considerably stronger this season, bolstered by the addition of travel hockey players who were unable to play a year ago.

"We've improved, no doubt about it," Feiler said. "Last year, early, we got blown out in a few games.

"I really don't see that happening this year. All our games should be close, one way or the other."

What the Rocks can't be doing is spending so much time in the penalty box the seat never has a chance to get cold.8

They started strongly, carrying the play in the first period and at least holding their own through the first half of the second.

Ladywood plays tough, but can't keep pace with King

BY BRAD EMONS
SPORTS WRITER
bemons@oe.homecomm.net

It was Thanksgiving Eve and there were no turkeys left in the state Class A girls basketball tournament.

Unbeaten Detroit Martin Luther King gobbled up the regional championship Wednesday at host Livonia Ladywood's expense with a hard-fought 56-46 triumph before a crowd of about 1,000.

Ladywood, despite the heroic performance from 5-foot-9 senior guard Melissa Harakas, bowed out with a 17-7 overall record.

King, the Public School League and Operation-Friendship champion, takes a 19-0 record into Tuesday's quarterfinal matchup against 23-1 Belleville at Eastpointe-East Detroit.

After escaping with a 53-48 overtime win Monday over previously unbeaten Grosse Pointe North, the Crusaders figured they would be in for another battle against Ladywood.

Harakas, who finished with a game-high 21 points, kept Ladywood close with her all-around play and hustle in the first half.

She had a spectacular opening 16 minutes, scoring 18 points on five of seven shooting from the floor and four of six from the free throw line.

But despite her hot shooting, King led by two at intermission, 33-31.

"It's probably the best game Melissa has played this year," Ladywood coach Andrea Gorski said. "She also had a tough job guarding (Tishona) Gregory. She (Melissa) plays hard all the time and it was good to see her shots fall."

The Crusaders, however, offset Harakas' big first half behind the play of 5-7 senior point-guard Tishona Gregory. The University of Florida-bound Gregory finished with a team-high 20 points.

After hitting 11 of 20 shots in the first half, Ladywood couldn't keep up with the speedy Crusaders in the second half.

21 shots from the floor during the second half and were outrebounded for the game, 34-20.

"We didn't box out well and Gregory hit some tough shots," Gorski said. "Gregory is quick, she's a great player. There are a lot of good players out there, but the difference with her is that she finishes her shots. Give her credit because I thought we did a decent job of defending their other guards."

King outscored Ladywood 9-6 in the third quarter to lead 42-37.

Two straight baskets by Gregory to open the fourth period followed by 6-2 freshman center Lesha Jones's basket inside subsequent three-point play increased King's lead to 49-39 with 6:03 to go.

Ladywood pulled to within seven, 51-44, with 2:49 remaining on a basket by 6-foot senior forward Michelle Harakas, but King made five of 10 free throws in the final two minutes to seal the victory.

"Ladywood is great squad, we were lucky to come out of it with a victory, I'm serious," said King coach William Winfield, who has guided the Crusaders to three state titles and three runner-up finishes since 1985. "Their big girls are physical. Number 45 (Michelle Harakas) we thought would be a thorn inside because when she's not scoring, she's making good passes and getting rebounds."

Michelle Harakas scored eight of her 12 points in the second half, while Melissa was limited to three-point shot in five attempts.

"The key in the second half was paying attention to number 35 (Melissa) and cut down on her scoring," Winfield said. "We were geared to stop number 45 and we never thought number 35 would do what she did. She lit us up in the first half."

For the game, King made 22 of 58 shots from the floor (37.9 percent), while Ladywood cooled off to 15 of 41 (36.5 percent).

Stephanie Douglas added 10 points for King, while Shannon Steele added eight. Jones had seven.

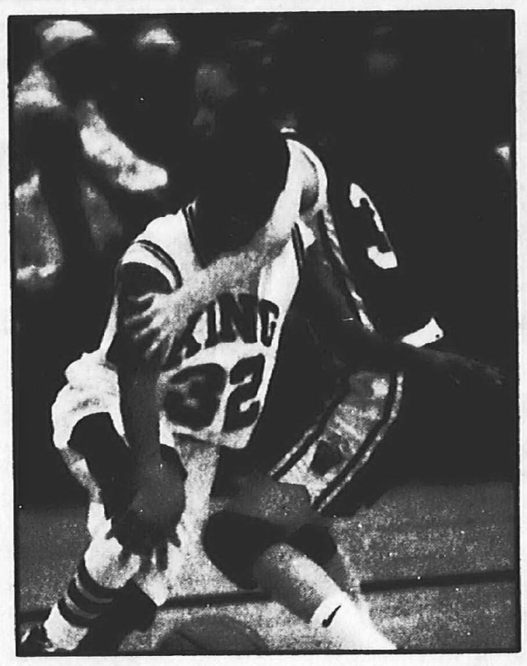
"It was time for Tishona (Gregory) to step it up because she's been dilly-dallying all year," Winfield said. "Other girls have stepped up this year and now it's her time."

King's 16-rebound edge also figured prominently in the final outcome. Ladywood's 6-2 junior center Liz Obrecht picked up two early fouls and sat most of the first half.

The Blazers, though, led by as many as eight during the second quarter.

"Take away their offensive putbacks and we win by 12 points," Gorski said. "We played a triangle-and-two defense, but we were not boxing out. We also tried a 3-2 zone, but then we had to get out of it because they hit a couple of 'threes' from the corners. They hit shots over our smaller guards.

"And when we got behind, we got out of offense. We were not as patient as we needed to be."



Time's up: In the final seconds of Wednesday's regional final, Ladywood's Jen Hunley (left) tries to stop King's Tishona Gregory.

Detroit CMA ends Borgess' run for the title

CLASS C

It was left to Deshawna Hoskin and Amber Taylor to put everything into perspective at the end of the game.

Taylor, Redford Bishop Borgess's fine senior forward, was sobbing her heart out while forward Hoskin of Detroit Communication and Media Arts was hugging and consoling her close friend after the Class C Regional 19 championship game.

CMA had just defeated Bishop Borgess, 55-54, to advance to the quarterfinals of the Michigan High School Athletic Association girls basketball tournament.

The Pharaohs will meet Harbor Beach on Tuesday at Orchard Lake St. Mary's.

"They're very good friends," said CMA coach James W. Rogers said after Hoskin had returned to her teammates for the medal presentation ceremony. "This is what high school sports are all about."

The fury and intensity of interscholastic battle, forgotten and put aside the instant the final horn goes off. Friends can be friends again.

Hoskin, along with Mia Simpson, both transferred from Bishop Borgess to Communication and Media Arts high school in the wake of the scandal that cost Dave Mann his job with the Spartans after last season.

New coach Monique Johnson inherited a squad of just eight players and guided it to an 18-3 record, Detroit Catholic League title and District Tournament championship.

"I loved the whole season," she said. "I just loved it. I can't wait until next year. We'll be back."

"I've got to hand it to Bishop Borgess," Rogers said. "With only eight girls, I don't know how they do it. How do you practice with just eight girls?"

Winning helps. It makes the boredom tolerable.

The Spartans, eliminated on their home floor by the same team by the same margin last year, played a strong game in every area except the coach-killer category - free throws.

Bishop Borgess went to the line 32 times and made just 14, which was critical because both teams shot roughly the same from the field. Both teams had 52 shots, with CMA making 20 and Borgess 19.

The Pharaohs, though, went 14-for-18 from the line.

"Free throws killed us," Johnson admitted. "All day every day. Free throws killed us.

"Our defense was good, but we must have missed 20 free throws. Make 10 of those and we win the game by nine.

"It was a tough game. It came down to the last couple of minutes like I thought it would. They came out on top. I wish them the best of luck."

CMA won its regional after beating Borgess in the districts last season but was eliminated by Sandusky in Sandusky in the quarterfinals.

The Pharaohs scored the first six points of the fourth quarter to overcome a 41-39 Spartan lead and scored six more in a row after a Bishop Borgess free throw to lead, 51-42, with 4:38 to play.

They had gone to a matchup zone but junior guard Ashley Gibson solved it with a three-pointer from the right baseline. Two free throws by Joie Clyburn, who had 18 points, plus another triple by Gibson made it 51-50 with 2:10 to go.

Hoskin put back a rebound to make it 53-50 with 1:16 left but Clyburn countered with a layup with 54 seconds to go to make the deficit one point again and Taylor sank a free throw with 38 seconds to play to knot the score at 53.

Jessica Corbett of CMA made a free throw with 25 seconds left to give her team a one-point lead and Sakima Smith, who had 13 points to lead her team, made a free throw with 15 seconds left to make it 55-53.

Liz Charles made a free throw with four seconds to play to shave the lead to one and Bishop Borgess intercepted the inbounds pass just beyond midcourt, but the Spartans didn't have a chance to set up a play and a desperation three-point attempt from just inside the center line was no good. The game ended with the Spartans scrambling for the ball and another shot.

Junior Raechelle Hampton scored 11 points for Bishop Borgess while guard Ryan Coleman had 12 points for CMA and Corbett added 11. Hoskin wound up with eight and Simpson seven.

The Pharaohs used full-court pressure after made baskets while the Spartans countered by double-teaming the ball once CMA got into its offensive sets.

Both teams ran when they could, which was often.

CMA held an 11-10 lead after the first quarter and stretched it out to 29-18 with 2:21 left in the half before Bishop Borgess closed with the last six points to make it 29-24.

The Spartans were very sharp in the third quarter, outrebounding the Pharoahs 11-7 and outscoring them 17-10, to take a 41-39 lead into the final eight minutes.

CMA held Bishop Borgess to just one rebound in the last quarter and thus just three baskets, which helped make the difference.

Halloween champs

Tournament winners: The Shatin' Station Team was victorious over the Halloween weekend, winning the Pee Wee Division at the Soccer Zone Halloween tournament in Novi. They won all five games they played. The championship game was played on Oct. 29 against the Force, and the Shatin' Station winning 9-4. Brent Turpinian led the way with two goals in the title game and led all scorers with eight for the tournament. Strong goaltending was supplied by Brent Steinberg, who made key saves in each game. The Shatin' Station team is coached by Jay Pesant and Mark Turpinian; Justin Pesant is the administration team manager. Team members are: Brent Steinberg (Brighton); Colin Sipperley (Walled Lake); Nick Pesant, Kevin Tollison, Ryan Gore, Brandon Egglesfield (Canton); Zach Bennett (White Lake); Brett Turpinian, Sean Turpinian (Novi); Dave Martin (Livonia); Jason Westfall (Bloomfield Hills); Kevin Etzel (Northville).

Prep Bowl champs

Winners at the Dome: Our Lady of Good Counsel celebrated its second-straight victory (above) in the Prep Bowl at the Pontiac Silverdome, beating Waterford Our Lady of the Lakes 16-8 on Oct. 21. Dave Neu and Scott Eagle scored touchdowns for Good Counsel and Brian Whiting booted both extra points. The varsity team's Most Valuable Player Award was presented to Whiting, with Jon Smart receiving the Defensive Most Valuable Player Award and Neu the Special Teams Most Valuable Player Award. The Most Improved Player Award was given to Dave Coppiellie, the Underclassman of the Year award was presented to Andy Rossow and the Christian Spirit Award was given to Chris Pederson. Good Counsel's varsity finished its season with a 7-2 record.

Record-wise, the junior varsity team was even better, posting a 6-1 mark with five shutouts while winning the Catholic Youth Organization's Blue Division title. The JV team received its division-winning trophy at halftime of the Prep

Firearms season anxiously anticipated

OUTDOOR INSIGHTS

BILL PARKER

Awakened for some unknown reason from a restless sleep, I peered out the window of the camper in disbelief. Daylight, although faint, was filtering through the treetops and into the forest in Manistee County.

After muttering a couple profanities to myself, I sprang out of bed and frantically called to my hunting partner Mark Sims, who was snoring aggressively at the other end of the trailer.

"Mark, Mark! Get up! We overslept and its daylight already," I said. I was beside myself with frustration. Here it was, opening day of the 2000 firearms deer season – the most anticipated opening day of the year – and we'd overslept the alarm. I couldn't believe it. After months of anticipation and days of preparation we'd be late getting into the woods.

"What time is it," asked Mark, trying to decide, through sleep-filled eyes, if I had actually awakened him with such a dire report, or if he was just having a bad dream.

"I don't know, but it's daylight," I said gloomily as I scrambled into my long johns and grabbed my wool socks.

I looked at the clock: 4:30 a.m. It must have stopped in the middle of the night and that explained why neither of us heard the alarm.

I gripped my wrist watch and checked it out. Something was wrong. Glancing back out the window a sense of bewilderment encompasses my thoughts...then embarrassment...then relief. As I surveyed the sight out the camper window I realized that there was no "daylight in the swamp" just yet. It actually was 4:30 a.m.

The moonlight was shining so brightly off the new-fallen snow that it appeared as if daylight was on the horizon.

"Oops!" I said sheepishly. "I guess you can go back to sleep. It's only 4:30. We still have an hour to sleep."

Anticipation can make you do some crazy things. Neither one of us slept very much for the remainder of the night and, yes, we were in the woods before daylight and seated comfortably in our respective hunting blinds by the time legal shooting hours arrived.

Snow cover, ranging from a dusting in southern Michigan to up to a foot or more in some areas of the north country, greeted hunters on opening day and made for some pretty exciting hunting across the state. While Mark and I saw our share of whitetails, we didn't tag one on this trip. Most of the deer we saw were bald and we were both holding out for a buck. The one buck I saw was on the run in some pines and never presented a good shot.

That wasn't the case for Westland's Tony Tierney, who I bumped into at the buck pole in Wellston on opening night.

Tierney dropped a big 8-point at 5 p.m. on opening day, while hunting in the Wellston area. The buck sported a symmetrical rack with a 16-inch spread and was one of the one of the biggest racks on the popular Welts buck pole, which attracted the attention of rock star and hunting fanatic Ted Nugent. Nuge was hunting in the area and stopped by the buck pole to sign some autographs and raise money for his popular Kamp for Kids.

Several other area hunters have also experienced success this year:

■ Dale Caddick, of Waterford, arrowed an 8-point buck on opening day of the archery season. It was the first deer for the hunter of five years, who was hunting in a tree stand in northern Oakland County.

■ Plymouth's Chet Miller shot a 6-point buck on opening day of the firearms season while hunting in Mecosta County.

■ Troy's Mike Bell shot a doe with his bow on Oct. 10th while hunting farmland in Clinton County.

■ Lake Orion's Tim King shot a doe on Nov. 20 while hunting from a ground blind in Lapeer County.

■ Lake Orion's Brian Goemare shot a 3-point buck with his bow on Oct. 5th.

■ Rochester's Rob McGlown shot a dandy 8-point that green scored 111 inches under the Pope & Young scoring system. McGlown shot the buck from the ground in Oakland County.

It's not too late to get your successful hunting report listed in a future edition of the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. Simply drop me a line and send it to: Observer & Eccentric, Outdoors Dept., 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009. Be sure to include the hunter's name, hometown, phone number (in case we need to contact you for further information) what type of deer (10-point buck, doe) where it was taken (county), when it was taken (day and time), and how it was taken (weapon, type of habitat you were hunting.) Then watch future editions for the Observer & Eccentric for your success report.

(Bill Parker writes a weekly outdoor column for the Observer & Eccentric Newspapers. Hunters and anglers are urged to report their success. Questions and comments are also encouraged. Send information to: Outdoors, Observer & Eccentric Newspapers, 805 E. Maple, Birmingham, MI 48009.)

goal of the season at 2:48 of the second period following a pass from Weiss.

Weiss got his first of two goals to expand the Whalers' lead to 4-2 at 15:12 of the second, assists going to Libor Ustrnul and Britstone. Mizzi narrowed Sarnia's deficit to one at 5:46 of the third period, winning a face-off deep in Whaler territory, then taking a touch pass from Buturlin and finishing it.

Weiss finished off the Sting with his 21st goal of the season, making it 5-3 at 9:22. Jarret and Britstone assisted. Surma completed his hat trick with an empty-net goal at 19:57.

"Any time you can come back from a loss the way we did tonight, it's a good thing," said Surma. "It's been great playing with Weiss and Britstone. We've been clicking lately and it was just an all-around good game for the team."

Weiss finished with four points, while Britstone and Surma had three apiece as their line scored all six of the Whalers' goals. Plymouth outshot the Sting 27-26.

They currently stand fifth in the Candian Hockey League rankings.

"We were able to get our confidence back out there," said Whalers' coach Pete DeBoer. "Whenever you have a tough road trip coming back like we did is very important. The line of Weiss, Surma and Britstone was a big part of the game tonight, but we all definitely played better."

NOTE: The Plymouth Whalers will be holding a coat drive to benefit local charities through Dec. 16. The Whalers are asking for coats that are in good condition; all coats will be accepted, though children's coats are preferred. If you bring a coat, you will receive a ticket to a future Whalers' game.

Hockey from B1

Freshman Mike Barr got Salem started right by ripping a shot from the right face-off circle past Arsznov just 1:12 into the game. Sophomore Dave Gill had gotten Arsznov out of position and Barr had a big hole to hit.

Both teams had just one penalty apiece in the opening period. Schultz gave the Rocks a 2-0 lead with 9:13 left in the second period, scoring from a scrum in front of the net.

"One thing we've been able to do in previous games is come back," Abraham said. "This year Salem is a lot deeper and their team speed is better, which was evident from the first period.

"We've got six new players. And it didn't take long for them to fit into our system."

The rematch will be Jan. 30. And both teams will again be better.

The Rockers trailed 6-0 at the half and, after closing to within four in the third period, failed to make further headway.

Rockers' points came from Arain Ibraimi (a two-pointer), Joel Shanker (two-pointer), Sean Bowers (a one-pointer and an assist) and Joe Malachino (one assist).

Jocelyn Roy also scored a two-pointer for Toronto, with Paolo Ceccarelli and Nicola Corneli earning assists.

Ceccarelli was in goal for the Thunder Hawks, making 15 saves. Dan Ilie Diac was in the net for Detroit, making 16 stops.

The Rockers, in an effort to increase their scoring punch, recently resigned forward Dennis Brose, a former team standout.

On Saturday, they'll face another when they travel to Buffalo to face the Blizzard. The team's goalie is former Rockers' all-star Bryan Finnerty, who opted not to re-sign with Detroit and went to Buffalo instead. He has a 2-5 record with the Blizzard, who are in last place in the NPSL's American Division. Finnerty is allowing 13.00 points per game while making 99 saves (14.1 per game). He ranks seventh in the NPSL in points-per-game average.

CITY OF PLYMOUTH ORDINANCE #2000-14

AN ORDINANCE FOR THE PURPOSE OF AMENDING SEC. 54-31 ARTICLE 11, "OFFENSES AFFECTING GOVERNMENTAL FUNCTIONS", CONCERNING FALSE ALARMS IN THE CITY OF PLYMOUTH, MICHIGAN.

THE CITY OF PLYMOUTH ORDAINS:

WHEREAS, THE CODE OF ORDINANCES OF THE CITY OF PLYMOUTH, MICHIGAN, IS HEREBY AMENDED BY REPEALING ORDINANCE #91-7 AND REPLACING WITH ORDINANCE #2000-14 AS FOLLOWS:

Sec.54-31 Definitions

A. "Alarm System" is defined as a device or an assembly of equipment or devices arranged to signal the presence of a hazard requiring urgent attention and to which police officials and/or firefighters are expected to respond.

B. "False Alarm" shall be defined as any alarm condition which is registered at the Police Department, Fire Department or elsewhere not resulting from the activity for which the alarm was intended.

C. "Alarm user" is defined as any person on whose premises an alarm system is maintained within the City of Plymouth, except for alarm systems on motor vehicles. If, however, an alarm system on a motor vehicles connected with an alarm system at a premises, the person using such alarm system is an alarm user. Also, excluded from this definition and room coverage of this Chapter are persons who use alarm system to alert or signal persons within unauthorized intrusion or hold-up attempt. If such a system, however, employs an audible signal emitting sounds of flashing lights or beacon designed to signal persons outside the premises, such system shall be within the definition of an alarm system and shall be subject to this Chapter.

Sec. 54-32. False Alarm Fines

A. The alarm user shall be required to pay a fine, as set forth in 54.32(c), for each false alarm in excess of three (3) false alarms occurring within the calendar year. The calendar year shall be defined as January 1st to December 31st of any given year. Upon the occasion of the second false alarm occurring within any one (1) year period, the alarm user shall be advised in writing by the City of Plymouth Police Department of the city recording of the occurrence of the two (2) false alarms and shall be advised of the existence of this Chapter. For purposes of the year 2000, the calendar year will begin, October to December 2000.

B. Alarm conditions caused by the following extenuating circumstances shall not constitute a false alarm and no false alarm fine shall be charged by the City.

(1) Alarm conditions being activated by persons working on alarm system with prior notification to the Police Department of the City of Plymouth, or the Plymouth Community Fire Department.

(2) Alarm conditions being activated by severe weather.

(3) Alarm conditions being activated by disruption or disturbance of telephone or other communication systems.

C. Notwithstanding any penalties provided for the event of a conviction for violation of this Chapter, and notwithstanding whether or not a prosecution had been commended, any person, corporation, partnership or other legal entity who uses, leases, installs or directs the installation of an alarm system described in this Chapter shall be subject to the following fines:

(1) First two false alarms requiring response by Police/Fire Department, occurring within the calendar year.	No fine
(2) Third false alarm requiring response by Police/Fire Department occurring within the calendar year.	$50.00
(3) Fourth false alarm requiring response by Police/Fire Department occurring within the calendar year.	$100.00
(4) Fifth false alarm requiring response by Police/Fire Department occurring within the calendar year.	$200.00
(5) Sixth false alarm requiring response by Police/Fire Department occurring within the calendar year.	$300.00
(6) Any false alarm in excess of six occurring within the calendar year.	$500.00 - (per occurrence)

Fine monies collected by the Charter Township of Plymouth on behalf of the City of Plymouth shall be shown as a credit on monthly billings for dispatching services.

Sec. 54-34 Interference with Telephone Communications Systems

No person shall sell, operate, adjust, arrange for or contract to provide a device or combination of devices that will upon activation, either mechanically, electronically, or by other means, initiate the automatic intrastate calling, dialing or connection to any telephone number assigned to any subscriber thereof by a public telephone company for the purpose of delivering a recorded message without the proper written consent of such subscriber.

Sec. 54-35 Audible or Visual Signals

No person shall use, install or direct to be installed any alarm system which emits a sound and/or visual signal for a period of longer than fifteen minutes, from the time of the initial signaling of the device(s).

Sec. 54-36 Violation and Penalty

Any person, corporation, partnership or other legal entity who violates the provisions of this Ordinance shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and may be fined not more than Five Hundred ($500.00) Dollars or imprisoned not more than ninety (90) days, or both, at the discretion of the Court. Each day that the violation continues after due notice has been served in accordance with the terms and provisions hereof shall be deemed a separate offense.

Section 54-37 Failure to Pay

When the City has responded to a false alarm, the charges set forth herein of the premises and forwarded to such owners by the City, and said charge shall be due and payable upon receipt.

Where the false alarm charge is not paid by an owner(s) within sixty (60) days after the billing for such false alarm as set forth herein, then the City manager shall cause to be recorded in the Treasurer's Office, the date and premises responded to. The recording of such statement shall constitute a lien on the property and shall remain in full force and effect for the amount due in principal and interest until final payment has been made and shall be collected in the manner provided by law for collection of taxes. Said provisions hereof shall be notice to every person concerned that the amount of the statement, plus interest, constitutes a charge against the premises described in the statement that the same is due.

NOW, THEREFORE, This Ordinance shall become effective twenty-one (21) days after final adoption.

Adopted by the City Commission of the City of Plymouth, Wayne County, Michigan, this 20th day of November, 2000.

Introduced: November 6, 2000

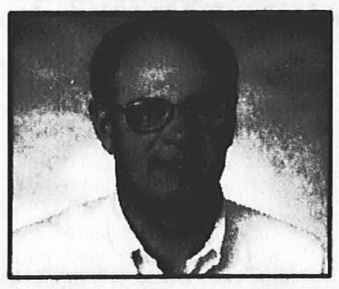
NATURE NOTES



TIM NOWICKI

The squirrel comes in many shapes, sizes

A parent approached me the other day and asked what kind of squirrels we have in the area. She came from Kansas and was unfamiliar with squirrels in Michigan.

According Baker's book Michigan Mammals, there are 10 members of the squirrel family in our state. There are two kinds of chipmunks, Eastern and least; the woodchuck; two ground squirrels, Franklin's and 13-lined; three tree squirrels, gray, fox and red; and two flying squirrels, southern and northern.

The two chipmunks in Michigan are very similar in appearance. Least chipmunks have dark stripes above, through and below the eye. Eastern chipmunks have a light area that surrounds the eye except for a dark stripe that passes through the eye. Both species can be seen in the Upper Peninsula, but only the Eastern can be seen in the Lower Peninsula.

Groundhog or woodchuck is the largest member of the squirrel family in Michigan. They are burrowing animals, medium brown in color with a furry tail about one quarter the length of the body. In fall they began preparing for hibernation that will keep them underground from October to March.

Both ground squirrels are uncommon species in Michigan. When Baker's book was published in 1983, no specimens of a Franklin's ground squirrel had been collected in the state. However, they had been collected within two miles of the Michigan-Indiana border. So it is very likely they are found in Michigan, but limited to the very southwestern corner of the state.

Like the Franklin's ground squirrel, the 13-lined ground squirrel likes short grass habitat. As their name suggests, they do have 13 dark brown or creamy tan stripes running the length of the back. They are commonly called a gopher.

When most people think of a squirrel, they think of a tree squirrel, like the fox, gray or red. Fox squirrels are the largest of the three. They have a brownish-orange coloration in Michigan.

Gray squirrels are slightly smaller and come in gray or black coloration. A white fringe outlines the edge of the tail in the gray color of the gray squirrel. Some unusual black colored individuals have been seen with a raccoon striped tail, others had a black body and a tan tail. It is believed these were just genetic abnormalities.

Before the lumbering era in Michigan, there were more gray squirrels than fox squirrels. When settlers cut down trees to make agricultural land, they created small woodlots that favored the fox squirrel. Today, gray squirrels are more common to the north where there are larger forests.

Though many call the red squirrel a baby when they see one, it is not. Red squirrel adults are only half the size of the fox squirrel. Like its name suggests, red squirrels are a rusty red coloration on top, with a white belly below. Nearly encircling each eye is a white ring. They are very fast moving, seem to be constantly moving and can be very aggressive.

All the squirrels mentioned thus far are considered diurnal, that is, they are active during the day. Michigan's two flying squirrels are very nocturnal, and because of that habit are seldom seen. Their large eyes allow good night vision, but more aesthetically, give them a cute, cuddly appearance. Extra skin between the belly and the legs creates a "sail" that allows them to glide.

Michigan has a wide variety of squirrels, more than just the tree squirrels in the back yard. Take time to enjoy them.

All Star Grille gals set world bowling record

TEN PIN ALLEY

AL HARRISON

A new world record high score of 3600 for a five-player women's bowling team was recorded last Monday night.

It happened at Cloverlanes in Livonia as the "All Star Grille" team rolled up the record score in the All-Star Bowlerettes league. The excitement was at a fever pitch as soon as it became apparent that a the old record of 3557 had been broken.

The team consisted of Julie Wright of Livonia, Renée Palmer of Bay City, Cyndi Black of Taylor, Carmen Allen of Highland Park and Lisa Bishop of Belleville. Their line scores appear in the nearby box.

The sixth team member is Tamika Glenn of Farmington Hills, who stayed home due to illness, but was phoned soon after and said "I'm mad at you," her good-natured way of saying "congratulations."

Their total was exactly 3600 pins, the first woman's team to reach this new plateau. The old record was set on April 10 this year by the Turbo 2-N-1 Grips team when their opponent on that night just happened to the All Star Grille. The team sponsor is Steve Klein, himself an all-star bowler and the food concessionaire in several local bowling centers including Cloverlanes.

Each member of the record breaking team has her own unique story. Lisa Bishop was on the recent PWBA pro tour and won a nationally televised event in Sebring, Fla. several weeks ago, and on this night she had her fourth 300 game in the middle of rolling 20 strikes in a row.

Carmen Allen had just been inducted into the Greater Detroit Bowling Hall of Fame two weeks earlier and was celebrating her birthday a few days early. (It was on Thanksgiving day.)

Cyndi Black was selected as the "Star of Tomorrow" for the year 1994. Lisa Bishop was honored with the same title in 1991, Julie Wright in 1992.

Renée Palmer is better known as Renée Tesner, and this right-hander drives more than 100 miles each way from her Bay City home to bowl with this team. She married Matt Palmer last year, thus the new surname.

Julie Wright recently moved to Livonia from Farmington Hills. This occasion also happened to be her first 800 series, at 807.

When typical bowlers reads this next item, they can appreciate this amazing performance even more as this team rolled a total of 113 strikes over three games. I don't throw that many all season. Thirty of those strikes were by Julie Wright.

Even more gratifying, some of their parents were on hand watching them perform on the lanes. Cyndi had both her dad and mom, Bob and Ida Black present, Julie's dad, Ed Wright, was on hand and Lisa's mom, Laura Bishop, were all there, proudly watching their kids re-write the record book.

It has been said that records are made to be broken, but it will take some doing to break this one. All bowlers of both genders can appreciate what happened last Monday night at Cloverlanes in the best women's bowling league to be found anywhere. And speaking for all of the bowlers in this vicinity, "All Star Grille team, we salute you."

Gone, but not forgotten

Company retrieves and recycles balls

GOLF NEWS

MICHAEL SHIELS

One summer day on The Bear course at Grand Traverse Resort, a woman misdirected her tee shot into a pond that fronts the par-three ninth hole.

Moments later, as she poked around at the water's edge looking for her ball, a diver appeared at her feet, emerged from the pond, and handed the women her ball.

"Unfortunately she was so startled that she fainted and had to be removed from the course for medical observation, but she did get her ball back," shrugs Mark Weatherly, general manager of Raven Golf Ball Company of Shelby Township. "That's what we do — we retrieve golf balls."

Raven Golf Ball Company, with 20 employees and three locations, sells about two million brand name golf balls each year — all of them previously used, lost and then recovered by Raven. Weatherly and his wife, Jan, purchased the business in October, 1999.

"All of the balls are brought into our facility, where they are washed and processed," explains Weatherly, who plays his golf, and presumably loses his own balls, at The Glacier Club in Washington Township. "We retrieve balls from golf courses in Michigan, Ohio, Tennessee and Florida.

"We have outlets in only Michigan and Florida, so most of our retail business comes from those two states. However, we ship golf balls all over the United States to golf courses, schools, driving ranges and individuals."

Weatherly chuckles about the man who recently came into one of his shops.

"He wanted to know if we carried those 'new golf balls guaranteed not to slice,'" Weatherly smiles.

Though a golf ball guaranteed not to slice does not exist, Weatherly does believe that players who buy Raven's golf balls do have a distinct advantage.

"The average golfer will buy approximately six-dozen golf balls per season. People who buy Raven golf balls will save enough money to pay for an extra three rounds of golf per year."

Since Raven-retrieved golf balls are previously used, Weatherly sells then at discount prices — far below their regular retail cost. Pricing depends on the condition the ball is in and its relative appearance.

"We have very high grading standards for our golf balls. Our five-star quality golf ball looks great with no imperfection or just a small imperfection," Weatherly explains. "The 4-star will have a slight imperfection but is still a very playable ball for all golfers.

"Even our 3-star golf ball would be great for the average golfer."

Each ball is hand inspected and over 50 percent of the balls Raven recovers are rejected.

Weatherly contends that the average golfer loses 3.5 golf balls per round, and that the most popular brand of ball retrieved and asked for is Titleist. Five-star Titleist balls, for instance, range in price from $12.95 to $20.95 per dozen.

So the next time you launch a wild shot to its aquatic doom, your ball may be gone, but it is not forgotten. Not as long as there's a local company's recycling effort.

For more information call 800-238-0009 or go to www.ravengolfball.com.

■ Former Bloomfield Hills Country Club staffer Gary Piotrowski, now general manager at Celebration Golf Club outside Orlando, Fla., is holding a unique "Car-In-One Challenge" at Celebration on Saturday, December 9.

The first 144 players to enter will have 18 chances to win a brand new Chevrolet or Oldsmobile car, truck or sport-utility vehicle by making an ace on any of Celebration's holes, which will be played at par-three length.

Players may also receive closest-to the pin prizes or compete in a million dollar hole-in-one bonus challenge.

"I played in last year's event and took home a new set of clubs," said Wayne Fontes, the former Detroit Lions football coach who will serve as honorary chairman for this year's event.

Proceeds from the $150 entry fee will benefit the Celebration High School golf team.

Call 407-566-GOLF for more information or to enter.

■ Mara Mazzoni of Livonia shot 79 to win the 8th GAM Women's Tournament of Club Champions, which was conducted at The Fortress in September.

The GAM Senior Women's Amateur Championship was played at Lakewood Shores Resort, also in August, and won by Dottie Blue of Onekama, who shot 84-84-168.

Eric Borowiec of South Lyon, one of the finest young golfers in Michigan, won the Michigan Girls' Junior Championship at Matheson Greens, and the Michigan Junior Championship, played at the University of Michigan Golf Course, was won by Matt Neusel. The University of Michigan Golf Course also hosted the Michigan Junior Match play Championship, which was won by Adam White of Ann Arbor.

Congratulations to the amateur champions and participants who dared to engage in friendly and spirited competition throughout the state of Michigan. The tournament season may be over, but the golf season certainly is not, as Michigan continues to be among the nation's leaders in the growth of the game.

ARTISTIC EXPRESSIONS

Local artists offer unusual gift solutions

If you're wondering what to give your loved ones this holiday season, look no further than the shows, studios and galleries spotlighting local artists. Giving a one-of-a-kind glass ornament, piece of jewelry, print of a loon, or a ceramic bowl or vase, says they're special.

Fortunately, we live in an area where the arts are appreciated and there are many venues available for choosing the perfect gift.

Here's a guide to where you can find original works at reasonable prices:

York Street Glassworks

Today is the final day of a 20 percent off sale on everything in the gallery at York Street Glassworks in Plymouth. Don Schneider promises his glass studio and gallery offers something for everyone from icicle ornaments for as little as $5 to a blown glass lamp at $2,500.

If you miss today's sale, there's still time to receive 10 percent off ornaments purchased by Christmas Eve.

"There's everything from beads and jewelry to paperweights, bowls, vessels and marbles. There's currently a specialized collectors' market for marbles," said Schneider, whose hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday-Friday or by appointment. "It's all available at their convenience. Just give me a call if they can't make it during regular hours."

Village Potters Guild

Christmas Show 2000 will offer an array of works by members of the Village Potters Guild from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, Dec. 1, until 6 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2, and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 3 in Plymouth.

Children can shop at a kids only table where ornaments and other items will cost $1-$3. An Oops Table is one bargain hunters won't want to miss.

"We'll have everything from bowls and casseroles to fountains, coffee table pieces, plates, candle holders, and wall hangings," said guild member Ruth Price. "Some of the clay pieces even have melted glass in them that gives a touch of sparkle."

Native West

The gallery hosts its 11th annual Holiday Art & Jewelry Festival 3-9 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 30, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday, Dec. 1, until 7 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2, and from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 3.

Highlighting this year's show is the painting of Bill Rabbit, a self-taught artist of Cherokee ancestry. The Trunk Show of Native American jewelry will feature an assortment of sterling silver combined with turquoise, lapis, jet, coral, and many other semi precious stones.

"The vibrant colors in Bill's paintings are awe inspiring and work with contemporary as well as traditional furnishings," said Annette Horn, co-owner of Native West with her husband Ken. "We'll also have a fabulous selection of jewelry from Albuquerque trader Jonathan Cox, who will be here. It's the only stop he's making in the area. And we'll have all the unique items in the store – ornaments made from gourds and others in the

Dancers still find magic in 'The Nutcracker'

BY LINDA ANN CHOMIN

lchomin@oe.homecomm.net

Land of sweets: Clara (Haley Albertson of Livonia) dreams of a land where dolls all of all kinds dance in "The Nutcracker," a production by the Plymouth Canton Ballet Company and the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra.

Dawnell Dryja lifts her leg onto the waist-high barre then slowly leans her head toward the knee. This is the first stretch of an hour long warm-up routine before a rehearsal for the Plymouth Canton Ballet Company's production of The Nutcracker Saturday-Sunday, Dec. 9-10.

The company will join the Plymouth Symphony Orchestra and conductor Nan Washburn to present Tchaikovsky's classic tale about a little girl who dreams about a dancing Sugar Plum Fairy after attending a family party on Christmas Eve.

Dryja, who is on break from dancing with the Cincinnati Ballet, is in town to rehearse the lead role of the Sugar Plum Fairy. She'll return to Ohio next week to begin six-hour rehearsals, five days a week for the Cincinnati Ballet's Nutcracker. In the meantime, she's at home in Canton visiting her mom, Dawn Greene, artistic director and founder of the Plymouth Canton Ballet Company.

"It's nice to dance here in my hometown and to see how the kids have grown up and are doing different parts," said Dryja, who joined the Cincinnati Ballet five years ago.

Calin Radulescu enjoys seeing the children dance as much as Dryja, who he accompanied to the rehearsal at Joanne's Dance Extension in Plymouth. Radulescu, who left his home in Bucharest, Romania to join the Cincinnati Ballet in 1999, will dance the role of the Cavalier.

"I like kids and this is a performance for young ages," said Radulescu.

The Nutcracker mesmerizes young dancers as well as the children in the audience. In many families seeing or dancing in The Nutcracker is a family tradition. Greene still remembers dancing her first Nutcracker with the Severo Ballet Company and the Detroit Symphony Orchestra at the Masonic Temple many years ago.

So, after forming her own company, New Dawn Ballet in the 1980s, Greene's first production was The Nutcracker. Daughter June danced the role of the Sugar Plum Fairy. Dryja was a mouse.

A few years later, Greene went on to found the Plymouth Canton Ballet Company which presented its first Nutcracker in 1989. The Plymouth Symphony Orchestra joined them for the first time in 1991.

Tradition

"It gets to be a tradition and the children look forward to doing the Nutcracker," said Greene, who began dancing at age four to strengthen her legs after contracting polio at three years of age. "What's Christmas without the Nutcracker? The Nutcracker Christmas tree is our Christmas tree. We never have one at home. It's the dream of every little girl to be like Clara."

Tradition is the reason Loni Lane and the Dearborn Ballet Theatre continue to dance The Nutcracker after more than 20 years. Lane fell in love with the production after performing it with the Detroit City Ballet at the Detroit Institute of Arts many years ago. The Dearborn Ballet Theatre will present the magical tale with the Livonia Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Volodymyr Shesiuk, Saturday, Dec. 2.

Joyful voices present Handel's grand oratorio

BY ALICE RHEIN

arhein@oe.homecomm.net

For the past 122 years, the University Musical Society Choral Union has staged a production of George Frideric Handel's Messiah.

The only other U.S. choral society that can boast a longer-running tradition is the Handel & Haydn Society in Boston, Mass. But Thomas Sheets, the UMS Choral Union conductor, jokes that every year his group comes closer to catching up to the Boston society's record.

The 125-voice UMS Choral Union and the Ann Arbor Symphony Orchestra will perform the grand oratorio Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 2-3.

On Sunday, Dec. 3, the Kirk in the Hills Chancel Choir and the Detroit Chamber Winds & Strings will perform Part I of the Messiah along with the Magnificat by Johann Sebastian Bach.

And at Orchestra Hall in Detroit, the Detroit Symphony Orchestra and the 60-voice Michigan State University Chorale's performance will be Friday-Sunday, Dec. 1-3.

"This is the first time for the chorale to perform with the DSO," said Charles Smith, director of the MSU Chorale. "It's a wonderful experience. I know people who say it isn't Christmas unless they sing the Messiah or go see it performed."

Popular oratorio

Indeed, though Handel's most popular oratorio has become synonymous with Christmas, its three movements actually focus on the birth, death and resurrection of Christ.

The text is composed entirely of Biblical quotations, the majority being Old Testament prophecies.

Sculpture celebrates life of long-time arts supporter

From the outside Mark Chatterley looked perfectly calm but inside his emotions pitched and peaked on a roller coaster of highs and lows as he anxiously awaited the unveiling of his latest sculpture Saturday, Nov. 18 at the Joanne Winkleman Hulce Center for the Arts in Plymouth.

This was a very special work of art. The internationally-known sculptor went through a range of feelings from joy to excitement to sadness and loss while designing the sculpture to honor his mother, Doris Chatterley, a longtime volunteer and supporter of the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

Doris was killed in an automobile accident in August 1999. The Release of the Turtle Woman, a 10-foot bronze sculpture commissioned by the arts council, recalls several of Doris' loves. Chatterley retains many memories of his mother from the days he spent growing up in Plymouth.

"Mom was very much into turtles," said Mark Chatterley whose work is in the collections of the Holocaust Museum in St. Petersburg, Fla.; Hocheng Cultural and Educational Foundation, Taiwan, and the Kresge Art Museum and Wharton Center for the Performing Arts, East Lansing. "She had hundreds of them all over the house. I've hidden them in the sculpture along with several other elements. People will have to come more than once to find all of them."

In memory: Mark Chatterley created this bronze sculpture in honor of his mother Doris Chatterley, a long-time supporter of the Plymouth Community Arts Council.

Public art

Chatterley agonized over the design six months before coming up with a female figure soaring, as if released, from a vacant space where only the outline of a figure survives. He destroyed the first two models, unsatisfied with what he was trying to say. Two later models were on display in the lobby of the arts council. Chatterley, who never creates "art by committee," made an exception this time. Suggestions from arts council executive director Jennifer Tobin and other arts council members resulted in a final [illegible] shape of little Native American drums, and hand blown glass chili peppers that go beyond the holidays. They can decorate kitchens or dining rooms all year long."

Michigan Hot Glass Workshop

Farmington Hills artist Deb Eliassen is one of 10 exhibitors at Michigan Hot Glass Workshop's Holiday Sale from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 2. Glass blowing demonstrations are sure to mesmerize shoppers as they watch the glowing orange gobs of glass dangling on the end of the pipes.

Michigan Hot Glass Workshop was founded by sculptor Albert Young, who began working in glass nearly 20 years ago. Originally located in downtown Pontiac, the workshop moved to a 4,000 square foot warehouse space at the Russell Industrial Center in Detroit last year.

Glassblowing classes begin there Jan. 7. An adjacent 13,000 square foot space, dubbed The Studio, is a working place for glass artists Deb Eliassen, Andrea Daoud and Paul Runde; sculptors Albert Young and Reba Pintzuk, and photographer Leslie Sponseller. The Studio will also be open on Dec. 2 and offer work for sale. Glass in the gallery will remain on exhibit through December.

The Art Gallery

The Garden City Fine Arts Association will present its Holiday Art Show and Sale Monday-Saturday, Dec. 11-16 at The Art Gallery. An awards reception will be held 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 11.

"There's a little bit of everything," according to show chairman Kenneth Barbb. " We'll have paintings – oil, watercolor, acrylic – colored pencil and sculptures that run a whole gamut of sizes in prices ranging from $25 to $350."

Holiday Art Fair

Farmington Hills print maker Michael McCullough is one of 130 contemporary artists in the Holiday Art Fair presented by the Michigan Guild of Artists and Artisans 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 9, and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 10 at Oakland Community College in Farmington Hills.

Media include glass, wood, photography, painting, jewelry, clay, fiber, enamel, paper, and sculpture. McCullough will show wood block prints featuring a variety of subject matter, several in holiday colors.

"It was a good show last year," said McCullough, who grew up in Redford. "There's lots of talented people there and a lot to choose from."

BBAC Holiday Shop

If you still haven't had enough shopping, visit the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Center Holiday Shop Friday-Saturday, Dec. 1-9. Westland artist Saundra Weed will exhibit quilted wall hangings, jackets, vests, purses, and beaded fiber necklaces in the Robinson Gallery at the art center. But a variety of hand-made goods, including beaded dreidels to painting, photography and prints, will be available.

An opening reception takes place 5-9 p.m. Friday, Dec. 1. Regular hours are from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday-Thursday, until 5 p.m. Friday-Saturday, and from noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

"What's special is that all these things in one whole room will be fiber art," said Weed, who exhibited in the Holiday Shop last year. "There will be all kinds of things made of fiber by members of Michigan Surface Design, the Michigan Weaving Guild, and the Needlework and Textile Guild of Michigan."

Other artists exhibiting in the Holiday Shop include Becky Buxton, wood bowls; Laura Amendt, stained glass; Annette Berenholz, jewelry; and watercolorist Donna Vogelheim, all of Farmington Hills; Nancy Guido, tiles and Betty Jo Woodworth, soft sculpture Santa dolls, both of Livonia; and Bernadine Vida of Redford, photographic greeting cards.

In addition to the Holiday Shop, a Small Works Sale will run Dec. 1-30 and feature more than 200 paintings, pastels, prints, photographs and mixed media in the art center. Artists include Jeri Fellwock, painting and Danielle Nelson, photography, both of Farmington Hills, and Celeste Roe, of Farmington, printmaking.

Echoes of Detroit gets resounding thumbs up

Echoes of Detroit: A 300-Year History* by Irwin Cohen, City Vision Publishing, 2000, $19.95

Irwin Cohen's Echoes of Detroit: A 300-Year History is a book that wasn't really written as much as it was constructed.

Cohen, the former editor of The Baseball Bulletin and an employee of the Detroit Tigers, takes on the daunting task of encapsulating the history of Detroit in 130 pages liberally sprinkled with pictures.

He does it by breaking the history into manageable chunks — the 1700s, the Early 1800s, 1830 — 1874 and so forth, to the present. Key events of each period are highlighted, often in no more than a paragraph.

This allows Cohen to cover an impressive amount of territory in a short amount of space and gives a shorthand version of Detroit's story from the day it was founded — July 24, 1701.

Whole books have been written on some of the topics that Cohen covers in a paragraph or two. The technique can be quite jarring. For example, in one paragraph we learn that the city appointed an Interracial Relations Committee after the brutal and deadly race riot of 1944.

And the next paragraph relates that "In a 1944 poll of radio writers in newspapers and magazines, the Lone Ranger placed first in popularity."

Still, the technique works in a surprisingly readable fashion and provides a satisfying overview of the city.

All the familiar characters are here, from The Rev. Gabriel Richard, one of Detroit's pioneers, to the colorful Augustus Woodward (the "colorful almost dictator of Detroit" in the early 1800s) to architect Albert Kahn, Henry Ford and Sonny Eliot.

Anecdotes abound: John R street derived its name from the city's first mayor, John R. Williams, who noted the middle initial to distinguish himself from another prominent John Williams in the 1820s.

Cohen makes an attempt to be inclusive, covering African-American and local Jewish history and the parts they played in the fabric of Detroit.

There are a few gaffes, the most serious being the revelation that Mayor Coleman A. Young was defeated for re-election in 1994. Actually, Young chose not to run.

And in the space of two pages, Col. John Francis Hamtramck is also referred to as John Frederick Hamtramck. It's actually Francis.

But these are not fatal errors. And as a whole the book is quite enjoyable and provides a wealth of information.

If there is a downside to the book, it's not in what Cohen has written but in the city itself, for Cohen recounts the city's erosion as well as its construction. And it is sad to see what a wonderful, lively city Detroit was just a few decades ago and how it is barely a shadow of that now. Echoes of Detroit indeed.

But that's not Cohen's fault and he leaves us on an upbeat note with some clever suggestions as to how to improve Downtown and what to do with old Tiger Stadium.

They, as well as the whole book, are worth pursuing.

Southfield Eccentric Editor Greg Kowalski is chairman of the Hamtramck Historical Commission and has a deep interest in the history of neighboring Detroit.

A Kalamazoo foundry spent the next four months casting and finishing the 700-pound sculpture. About 100 family members including Mark, Doris' husband Dr. Daniel Chatterley, sons Bruce, Brian, Scott, and daughter Lauren along with friends and arts council supporters were on hand for the unveiling on the lawn of the arts council. The evening, said Tobin, was a celebration of everything Doris loved – family, friends, the arts, and community. More than 150 of Doris' friends and family members contributed to making the $80,000 sculpture a reality.

"I didn't want to have it sentimentalized," said Chatterley, who donated all his time and talent to create the sculpture. "I wanted it to signify new beginnings."

Brian Chatterley was choked with emotion after speeches presented by Tobin, arts council founder Joanne Winkleman Hulce, former executive director Randy Lee, and Doris' longtime friend Nan Cooper. Each had stories and memories of the woman who became involved with the arts council more than 25 years ago.

"We didn't want it to be a memorial," said Brian. "We wanted it to be a new beginning."

Dr. Daniel Chatterley seconded the thoughts of his sons.

"It's a joyous occasion," said Dr. Chatterley. "It's something she would have enjoyed if she were here. She had great love for her children. She had a natural interest not only in art but literature. She was an avid reader. She injected this into her children."

Doris Chatterley passed on her love of art to everyone she met. Nancy Pilon met Doris 16 years ago when Pilon went to the arts council's rental gallery to borrow a piece of art for her home. Pilon and Chatterley served together on the arts council board for many years.

"She got me interested in buying pins," said Pilon pointing to the abstract work adorning her lapel. "Doris was so much fun to be with. She loved art and taught me how to look at art. She had a great eye. We went to a lot of openings at the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Center, Paint Creek and the Ann Arbor Art Center. We went to talk with them to research how to put on exhibits when we were first beginning to show artists."

That can-do attitude is what Stella Green will always remember about Doris along with the bubbly laughter. Green first met Doris 15 years ago when Green joined the legion of moms, dads and grandparents who take van Gogh and Rembrandt into the schools via the arts council.

"She was always positive," said Green, who now serves as arts council development director. "She was one of those positive forces. We'd always have planning meetings at her house. When we were working on plans to renovate Wilcox Mill to turn it into a home for the arts council and it fell through, she took that in a positive way. Before long she was on the planning committee for this facility. She stuck with us all the way."

Randy Lee thought back to the dark days when the arts council was still looking for a home before acquiring the present building on Sheldon Road.

"Doris was a dedicated voice of reason," said Lee, who was executive director for three years in the mid 1990s. "She was a pillar. You'd love to clone her as a volunteer."

Joanne Winkleman Hulce, who founded the arts council in 1969, echoed Lee's sentiments whole heartedly and began ticking off a long list of Doris Chatterley's accomplishments including chairing the fall Artists and Craftsmen Show for many years, and the statewide Michigan Fine Arts Competition in the early 1990s. Doris was unstoppable when it came to showing art. Even though the council still was without a home, she twisted a few arms and before long art could be seen among the garden tractors at Saxton's in downtown Plymouth.

"Doris was so important to the arts council," said Winkleman Hulce. "And the sculpture is wonderful, just marvelous, not only for the Plymouth Community Arts Council but for the entire community to enjoy."

"It's such a wonderful tribute to her," added Cooper, Doris' friend of 30 years.

And to the hundreds of volunteers, like Doris, who've made the arts council a viable resource for culture in the community.

Ballet dances the role of the Cavalier. Jeanette Hanley returns as the Sugar Plum Fairy. Hanley, who was with the Les Grands Ballets Canadiens in Montreal last year, is now with the Milwaukee Ballet.

Lane's mother, Noretta Dunworth, owner of the Noretta Dunworth School of Dance in Dearborn since 1948, plays the Grandmother. It's part of a family tradition.

"The story line is easy to follow; it's a dream of Clara," said Lane. "People love the first act because all of the dolls at the Christmas party come alive. The second act people relate to the music – the Waltz of the Flowers. They love the live music.

"We've been doing it with the Livonia Symphony three years. Some of the dancers have gone from the Baby Doll role and even come back as a parent and bring their kids who are now in it. We have lots of families in the show – fathers, mothers, some with four children all having parts. And the dancers come from all over – Plymouth, Canton, Dearborn, Livonia, Ann Arbor, and Downriver."

'Every year we say here we go again. It's a lot of work but it gives the children a chance to dance in a professional atmosphere.'
Jean Newell
Artistic director Livonia Civic Ballet Company

The Livonia Civic Ballet Company production of The Nutcracker won't be danced to live music but the magic is still there. Artistic director Jean Newell has been presenting the ballet for more years than she cares to count. This year Deena Fornier will dance the role of the Sugar Plum Fairy.

Founded more than 30 years ago by Newell, the Livonia Civic Ballet Company was recognized as the official ballet company of the city of Livonia in 1991 by then Mayor Robert Bennett.

"Every year we say here we go again," said Newell. "It's a lot of work but it gives the children a chance to dance in a professional atmosphere.

"We have done other productions but this is the money maker that keeps our company afloat. It allows us to bring in professionals all year long to give master classes. Paul Sutherland, a former principal dancer with the Joffrey Ballet, will come in February to share his experience with the children."

Ireland. It was a huge success from its first performance," said Sheets, who also teaches graduate choral music classes at Wayne State University in addition to conducting Oakland Community College's Masterworks Chorale in Farmington Hills.

In fact, Handel turned to writing oratorios after his operas failed to gain him success. Written in 1741, the Messiah originally called for a 60-voice choir. But in the 19th and early 20th centuries, choirs of up to 4,000 singers assembled for a performance.

Smith, who has made the Messiah an MSU tradition since 1982, said that performance practice of the past 25 years has stressed authenticity. Thus, there are smaller choirs with more emphasis on articulation and exciting vocal effects.

And Sheets noted that by stripping away the grandiosity of the 19th century, it allows performers to get to the core of Handel's music.

"To me, the words are the star of the evening. It is incredible story-telling," he said.

The story is told all in music, and the soloists play no particular character. Both Sheets and Smith are excited about the soloists that are lined up for their respective performances.

Soloists

At Hill Auditorium in Ann Arbor, soprano Danielle de Niese, alto Jane Gilbert, tenor Stanford Olsen and bass-baritone Dean Ely will perform with the UMS Choral Union.

At Orchestra Hall, the soloists include soprano Lisa Saffer, mezzo-soprano Marietta Simpson, tenor William Burden and bass Philip Cutlip.

This week will be rich with rehearsals for both choirs as they prepare for their programs. But both conductors confess that since the singers have been performing the Messiah for so many years, they come highly prepared for their role.

But what about keeping it fresh after performing it year after year?

"That's never been a problem," Smith said. "There can be big difference in how fast or slow it's performed, and the style can vary based on what kind of ornamentation the soloists give it."

Sheets, who's been with the UMS Choral Union for eight years, admits he's still the new kid on the block.

"My predecessor performed it for 20 years, and his predecessor performed it for 20 years," Sheets said. "I'm just getting my feet wet."

Still, he said, "There is never more joy in the room than during the four piano rehearsals."

Holiday dressing gets dose of glamour

READY-TO-WEAR

KAREN DASKAS

It's hard to believe that the holidays are just around the corner.

The hustle and bustle of shopping for loved ones, attending holiday get-together and hosting dinner parties brings the age-old question: What should I wear?

This winter, the look is about glamour and luxe. Call it Manhattan meets Hollywood.

The season is embracing two looks: the glamorous rock-and-roller, such as the fashion-forward Courtney Love, and the ladylike Park Avenue socialite aura of the ever-elegant Gwyneth Paltrow.

These glamour girls are setting the trend with sophisticated styles, textured fabrics and ultra-hot accessories.

By adding a few simple pieces to your wardrobe, you can make an easy transition from Fall to Winter 2000.

Rock and Roll Glamour

HBO's Sex and the City television show and the film box-office hit Charlie's Angels exude the attitude of rock 'n' roll that's in style. Key elements are leather and fur. But don't forget the season's 'it' accessory: handbags.

■ 'This winter, the look is about glamour and luxe. Call it Manhattan meets Hollywood.'

Not sure where to start?

Pair your favorite skirt with a sleeveless turtleneck top in a berry shade and a brightly hued leather jacket. Complete your outfit with knee high boots and a bowling bag-inspired purse in rich camel colors. The look is edgy and chic.

For the woman on the go, it's finding the right outfit that takes you from day to evening.

Jazz up a smart suit with a beaded halter top, leather or suede high heels and a fur handbag. You'll be ready to dance the night away in seconds.

Ladylike reigns

If you're a Park Avenue girl at heart, you're in luck.

The ladylike look continues for winter. Such stars as Charlize Theron and the Miller sisters emanate the this understated elegance.

From the cashmere coat and gloves to matching handbag and high heels, the look is all about the right accessories.

While the trend is vintage, today's fashion captures the essence of vintage through modern shapes.

Create the look with a tailored, patterned dress, detachable fur collar and retro open-toe shoe with a platform heel reminiscent of the '40s.

Add the final touch with an intricately beaded handbag with luxurious velvet, embroidered trim and satin detailing. Voila! It's a pure vintage look with a modern twist.

Most important, you should feel comfortable in your outfit, not forced into a wardrobe that feels foreign. Each piece you wear is a reflection of your own personal style and will shine through when you put it on. Happy Holidays!

Holiday shopping the day after Thanksgiving is relatively calm

The busiest shopping day of the year?

The day when consumed shoppers head to the mall to make a dent in their gift lists?

From the looks of things at area malls and downtown shopping districts, that holiday phrase sounded like marketing and media hype.

"I don't think it's real busy today," observed Elaine Wagman, one veteran of shopping the day after Thanksgiving. It's family tradition for the Huntington Woods resident, who, along with her mother and sisters, always comes to Troy's Somerset Collection.

While Wagman had 12 gifts in tow before noon on Friday, it appeared that gift-buying shoppers weren't out in force to the degree they have been in the past.

In downtown Birmingham, shoppers strolled by store windows and walked through town with cups of gourmet coffee, mostly without shopping bags. Metered parking spots in Birmingham were readily available. And, store owners were outside tinkering with holiday decorations in hopes the rush was on the way.

At Somerset, shoppers had to fight for parking after 11 a.m., but early risers like Gregory Landau and David Soberman, both Huntington Woods residents, snatched a parking spot in minutes.

Landau and Soberman, who always shop the day after Thanksgiving, weren't buying gifts, either. "Gifts?" exclaimed Soberman. "It's all for me. Selfish shopping."

Both also noted that register lines were short and the crowds, relatively small, at Somerset.

"Actually, I thought there would be more people," said Landau. "I talked to some of the store cashiers and they thought it was busier on Wednesday," added Soberman.

Other Somerset shoppers just had no intention of jumping into the process of gift-getting.

"I wanted to come because I wanted to see the lights and decorations. I like to see the people," said Jody Myers, a Clarkston resident who bought three gifts. "I'm not a hard core shopper."

But Ed Kubiak, who came to Somerset with his wife from Westland, wasn't having any of it. "I personally don't like the crowds. That's why I'm sitting here drinking coffee. I think they're crazy for coming out like this.

No rush: Elyse Bankler-Aronoff strolls through downtown Birmingham with her young son Sam and a cup of coffee. Other shoppers looked just as leisurely.

Back by popular demand, the room features couches, holiday movies for all ages and books and activities for children. Twelve Oaks' Relaxation Room will offer complimentary gift wrapping and coffee and operate noon-8 p.m. Monday-Saturday and noon-6 p.m. Sunday through Dec. 24. For details, call (248) 348-9400. Fairlane's Relaxation Room will offer samples from the mall's specialty food shops and open one hour after the center does and close one hour before the mall does through Dec. 24. For Fairlane mall hours, call (313) 593-1370.

SANTA SEASON

Santa and his elves have set up shop at just about every mall including: Livonia's Wonderland Mall at Center Court through Dec. 18, call (734) 522-4100; Laurel Park Place in Livonia through Dec. 24, (734) 462-1100; Northland Center in Southfield through Dec. 24, (248) 569-6272; and Fairlane Town Center in Dearborn through Dec. 24, (248) 855-6777.

WHERE CAN I FIND?

This interactive feature is dedicated to helping readers locate retail merchandise that's difficult to find through reader feedback.

If you have a request or information about where a product is sold or service is available, call (248) 901-2555 and leave a message with your name and phone number.

Please be patient about your requests and feedback; we receive an overwhelming number of phone calls. If you don't see information about your request, we couldn't find it. Requests are published twice.

STUFF WE CRAVE

Just right: Simplicity, structural beauty and an appreciation for light inform Hudson's Prairie Style Tealight Holder, one of many pieces in the retailer's new Frank Lloyd Wright Collection of home products. The design is adapted from a wood detail in a house designed by the famous architect. The holder, which is ceramic and holds five tealights, is priced at $48, at Hudson's stores.

Metal magic: The Streamerica jewelry collection has clean lines and a metallic surface with white gold and diamonds, $1,300-$8,500, Tiffany & Co., Somerset Collection in Troy.

Families share a lot more than a last name. However, the things they have in common aren't always that obvious. Like their blood pressure. High blood pressure has been strongly linked to heredity, so it tends to run in families. There are no symptoms, so it can easily go unnoticed. And, left untreated, high blood pressure can lead to a heart attack, stroke, or kidney failure. But, the good news is that it's easily checked and readily treated. So maybe it's time to start a new family tradition. Call for an appointment to get your blood pressure checked today. To find a University of Michigan physician near you, simply call 1-800-211-8181. Inaugural impressions

Washington, D.C., hosts DIA exhibit through presidential ceremony

BY JUDITH DONER BERNE
SPECIAL WRITER

Though the results of the presidential election are still anything but clear-cut, when the inauguration takes place in January, Detroit's arts and culture will also be represented in our nation's capital.

At a time when Washington, D.C., will host hundreds of thousands of visitors and be the center of national — if not world — attention, the Phillips Collection will be hosting Degas to Matisse: Impressionist and Modern Masterworks from the Detroit Institute of Arts through the presidential inauguration weekend (Jan. 19-21).

I came upon it quite by accident on a trip to Washington in late September. One of the tours offered during the convention my husband and I attended was of The Phillips Collection, the first modern art museum in the United States. The show had opened just the day before.

"I didn't have to come all the way to Washington to see this," I grumbled a bit as I waited to pick up the audio tour.

I was wrong.

It proved an opportunity to see these 58 major paintings, sculptures and works on paper all together and in a more intimate setting than the DIA. More importantly, the slant of the exhibition added a different dimension to my viewing.

It turned out to be as much an exhibition of dueling collectors as of the works themselves.

All of the works from the DIA, I discovered, were once owned by Robert Tannahill, a native Detroiter who inherited his parents' fortune in J. L. Hudson. Tannahill started collecting art in the mid-1920s until the '60s, when he died. During his lifetime, he gave more than 450 objects to the DIA. The museum inherited both his property and more than 400 additional works from his private collection when he died.

Plan on taking in the presidential inauguration in January? If you're in Washington, D.C., you might also want to visit the Phillips Collection exhibit which focuses on Robert Hudson Tannahill of Detroit.
What: Degas to Matisse: Impressionist and Modern Masterworks from the Detroit Institute of Arts sponsored by the Ford Motor Co.
Where: The Phillips Collection, 1600 21st St. NW, Washington, D.C.
When: Through Sunday, Jan.21, 2001
Information: (202) 387-2151 or www.phillipscollection.org.

Tannahill's interest was primarily impressionist and modern art along with African objects. This exhibit focuses on his acquisitions from Europe by Paul Cezanne, Vincent van Gogh, Georges Seurat, Constantin Brancussi, Henri Matisse, Pierre-Auguste Renoir, Edgar Degas, Paul Klee, Pablo Picasso and Paul Gauguin. It also includes American artists such as John Marin, Morris Graves and Marsden Hartley.

A little earlier and over on the east coast, Duncan Phillips was well launched on a parallel collection of impressionist and modern art. Like Tannahill, he was the son of wealthy parents. After his father and brother died, he decided to create a museum of modern art in their memory. He added a second floor art gallery to their Washington D.C. home and opened it to the public.

Phillips, in particular, was a very important collector, a very experimental collector — before these artists had made their reputation, George Keyes, curator of European painting for the DIA, told me upon my return to Detroit. "At a little later date, Tannahill collected in a similar vein."

The exhibit deals with the similarities (they were drawn to many of the same artists) and contrasts (but often for different reasons) in their collecting. As the very helpful audio tape points out, Tannahill concentrated on portraits and figures and the works he sought were concerned with line and form. He wasn't attracted to non-representational art.

Phillips, on the other hand, was somewhat receptive to abstract works. Romantic landscapes and interiors mark his collection and he was very much drawn to art that emphasized color.

Two views of Paris, both painted by Henri Rousseau in 1909, are side by side in the exhibit. The Environs of Paris from the DIA depicts an industrial suburb. Tall factory chimneys, which Rousseau gives monumentality and balance, dominate, while in the sky murky gray-brown clouds mingle with factory smoke.

In Notre Dame, from the Phillips Collection, Rousseau depicts the tall, elegant buildings of Ile St. Louis leading up to the famous cathedral silhouetted against the soft golden-blue twilight.

Although both paintings reveal the artist's interest in geometric form and love of Paris, Tannahill's purchase deals more with reality, Phillips' more with romance.

But "pairing" the two collector's paintings is the exception throughout the exhibit. Since only 15 or so works are from The Phillips Collection, most stand on their own, leaving the viewer ample room for his or her own analysis.

They didn't always go after the same artist. "Duncan Phillips was fixated on Georges Braque," Keyes reported. "Tannahill saw more beauty in the German expressionists."

The seeds of this exhibit are interesting. It's sponsored by Ford Motor Co., which has funded other exhibitions at The Phillips Collection over the past 10 years. Degas to Matisse, according to Keyes, was driven by Ford's wish to have the culture of Detroit on display in the nation's capitol during the inauguration.

And there, for many to see, will be the signature impressionist and modern paintings from our own Detroit Institute of Arts. They include: Matisse's Poppies, 1919; Picasso's Woman Seated in an Armchair, 1923; van Gogh's Bank of the Oise at Auvers, 1890; Degas' Violinist and Young Woman, 1871; Renoir's Seated Bather, 1903-06; Seurat's View of Le Crotoy from Upstream, 1889; and Marin's New Mexican Landscape Near Taos, 1930.

"The tremendous dedication and generosity of great collectors like Robert Tannahill and Duncan Phillips have enriched the lives of so many," Ford Chairman William Clay Ford said. "At Ford Motor Company, we believe in the power of art to inspire originality and ingenuity, and are grateful to The Phillips Collection for helping us share the treasures of the Detroit Institute of Arts with the nation."

On loan: van Gogh's Bank at the Oise at Auvers is one of the DIA's Robert Hudson Tannahill collection that is in Washington, D.C., through the inauguration.

I recommend the audio-tour, which features Jay Gates, director of the Phillips Collection; Graham Beal, director of the DIA; and MaryAnn Wilkinson, curator of the DIA's modern and contemporary art works.

Meantime, with their major works on loan, the DIA's European and modern collections have taken on a different look.

"We're lucky in Detroit," Wilkinson said. "We have a collection with depth. It's an opportunity to make some new connections between paintings."

CULINARY ADVENTURES

BRUCE KONOWALOW

Shortbread easy enough for novices

Out of the cold and misty moors of Scotland comes a sweet treat that even a novice baker can whip up in a moment's notice.

It is the shortbread cookie, which hosts will find an easy, last-minute recipe during the holiday rush.

The shortbread cookie was traditionally made with oatmeal, but modern recipes substitute wheat flour for the oatmeal. The ultra-buttery, soft dough is generally pressed into a pan, baked and cut into squares after baking, or in European tradition, shaped into a circle, baked and cut into pie-shaped wedges. This custom dates back to pagan ritual New Year's cakes, which were shaped in a circle to symbolize the sun.

Three ingredients

There are only three ingredients in shortbread – butter, flour and sugar. Of course, there are hundreds of variations of the basic recipe.

Some recipes include flavorings such as vanilla, almond, or hazelnut. Other recipes contain egg yolks and lemon rind, chocolate or cinnamon.

Certified Master Chef Jeff Gabriel, owner of the Farm Restaurant in Port Austin and an instructor at Schoolcraft College, likes to press his shortbread cookie dough into little farmhouse molds. He decorates mousse and other desserts with these cookies.

Although shortbread dough can be difficult to handle when it is soft, the finished dough can be refrigerated for an hour or two, rolled out to a 1/4-inch thickness, then cut with cookie cutters. If you choose to roll it out rather than press it into a pan, I suggest you use all-purpose flour and work quickly so the dough does not get overly soft.

Tips

Certified Master Chef Joe Decker, lead pastry instructor for the Schoolcraft College Culinary Arts Department, likes to grate cooked egg yolks into his shortbread cookie dough. Egg yolks give the dough a slightly more pliable texture, softening some of the crunchiness of a typical shortbread.

My mother used to make short bread cookies frequently, and often served them with ice cream or fresh berries with whipped cream. When there was no homemade shortbread around, there was always a trusty box of Lorna Doones in the pantry closet. Every year we purchased several boxes of Girl Scout Shortbread Cookies to support that fine organization and our addiction to shortbread.

Simple pleasures

Shortbread cookies are one of the simple pleasures of life.

Here is one of my favorite recipes. Serve these cookies with tea or coffee and some unsweetened fruit spread or with French vanilla ice cream. Eat them plain and they are still superb.

SHORTBREAD

1/2 pound sweet butter
1/2 cup of super granulated sugar (extra-fine sugar)
1 cup of pastry flour (sifted)
1 cup of all-purpose flour (sifted)
1 teaspoon of pure vanilla extract
1 pinch of kosher salt
1 tablespoon granulated sugar (optional)

Pre-heat the oven to 325° F.

Either by hand or with a mixer, cream the butter vigorously.

Add the sugar and continue creaming until light in color and texture. Add all of the other ingredients and mix until soft dough is formed. Overmixing can toughen the dough.

Remove the dough and press into a 7-inch-by-11-inch ungreased baking pan to a thickness of no more than 1/4 of an inch. With a fork, prick holes all over the surface of the dough.

Bake until light brown, approximately 45 minutes.

While the dough is warm (not hot), cut the dough into 1-inch squares or

COOKIE CRAZED!

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER
kabramczyk@oe.homecomm.net

For Evelyn Olszewski of Plymouth, Christmas and cookies are inseparable.

Every year Olszewski bakes kolacky, a cookie made with nuts or apricots. She uses her grandmother's recipe, but unlike her grandmother who made the cookies for family and friends, Olszewski bakes kolacky for Holy Transfiguration Orthodox Church in Livonia to sell at its annual Cookie Walk.

"It is kind of a tradition to have cookies for the holidays," said Olszewski, who also co-chairs the event.

Olszewski and more than 50 volunteers made six or seven batches of cookies each, for a total of 110 varieties, for this year's walk, explained Anne Jury of Plymouth, Cookie Walk co-chairwoman. "It's unbelievable," Jury said.

The church serves 200 families from Wayne and Oakland counties, including Livonia and Plymouth, Farmington Hills and Bloomfield Township.

Flavors span the globe

Talk about tradition. These cookie recipes were passed from generation to generation. Many originate from Russian, Polish, Slovak or Greek ancestors of church members.

"We have many different ethnic groups, a lot of converts and a lot of baby boomers," Jury said.

Olszewski is uncertain whether kolacky is a Slovak or Polish cookie. "It's hard to tell where it originates from because the borders have changed so many times," she said.

Olszewski said the walk is successful because event proceeds are used to improve and maintain the church. "Cookie walkers" get an added benefit – they save time during the holiday season.

"It's very successful because a lot of women are working now, and it takes a lot of time and energy to bake cookies, plus people want something that is homemade, not store bought," Olszewski said.

Arlene Sudia of Plymouth, who is also co-chairing the event, bakes Ukrainian kiefle, which is a cookie filled with ground nuts.

"It has a delicate flavor and it's traditional," Sudia said. Her grandmother also made these cookies, especially during Christmas and Easter holidays.

Sudia enjoys the walk because it brings the congregation together. "We really enjoy the cooking and the baking," Sudia said. "We really have good fellowship in the group. We have a lot of seniors that help out, and they have a lot of background in cooking. But we do this because we really enjoy it."

Jury said the event started as a fund-raiser to raise money to build a new church in Livonia. This

Tips & Variations

Dough:
7 tablespoons warm water (110-120° F)
1 1/2 packages (1/4 ounce each) dry yeast (or about 3 1/8 teaspoons)
Pinch sugar
1/2 cup margarine
3 tablespoons sugar
1 whole large egg
3 egg yolks (set whites to use in filling)
1/2 cup sour cream
4 cups all-purpose flour
Pinch of salt
1/2 teaspoon shortening
Filling:
3 egg whites
1 1/2 pounds finely ground walnuts (about 6 cups ground)
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup honey
1/2 cup to 3/4 cup hot milk
Raisins, optional

Place warm water in a small bowl. Sprinkle yeast over water and stir in. Sprinkle a pinch of sugar over mixture, cover with plastic wrap and let rise and bubble in a warm place, about 10-15 minutes.

Meanwhile, in a large mixing bowl, cream together the margarine and 3 tablespoons of sugar. Add egg and egg yolks, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Add the sour cream and mix well. Add 1 cup of flour and mix well. Then add the yeast mixture and blend well. Gradually add the remaining 3 cups of flour and the pinch of salt; set aside.

Preheat oven to 350° F. Using shortening, grease a jelly-roll pan and set aside.

To prepare the filling: Place egg whites in a mixing bowl and beat until stiff peaks form; set aside. In a large bowl, combine the ground walnuts, sugar, honey and hot milk. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites.

Divide the dough into three portions. Roll each portion into a 9-by-18-inch rectangle, about 1/4-inch thick. Evenly spread about 1 1/2 cups to 2 cups of the filling mixture over dough, leaving about a 1/2-inch edge. If desired, sprinkle raisins over filling.

Beginning at the shorter end, roll dough loosely, like a jelly roll. Repeat with remaining dough. Place rolls on prepared baking sheet, seam side down. Cover and set in a warm place to rise, about 30-45 minutes.

Just before baking, pierce the tops of each roll with a fork. Bake 30-40 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from oven and place on a wire rack. Immediately brush with milk. Makes 3 nut rolls with about 16 1/2 inch serving slices each.

Cookbook dishes up energy-packed recipes

BY KEN ABRAMCZYK
STAFF WRITER
kabramczyk@oe.homecomm.net

No matter how carefully diners watch what they consume over the holidays, most will gain a few pounds.

With the ubiquitous New Year's resolutions to lose weight approaching, a new cookbook promises to help readers discover healthy natural foods that will give them more energy.

"Energy Foods" by Nic Rowley and Kirsten Hartvig, published in October 2000 by Duncan Baird Publishers ($12.95), shows readers how to pack their diets with foods that will maximize energy, vitality and zest.

"Energy foods are the foundations of health and vitality," write the husband and wife authors in the beginning of chapter two of "Foods for Life."

"As the level of energy that we need on a daily basis varies depending on our activity, our age and the type of metabolism we have, it makes sense to base our diet on those foods which optimize our energy output accordingly — fresh fruits and vegetables, pulses, pasta and whole grain bread." (Pulses are legumes, namely peas, beans and lentils.)

The book is an easy read, and colorful photos accompany each recipe. There are also many suggestions for ways to improve your diet to fuel your daily work routine. Pasta, wholegrain bread, legumes and fresh vegetables are all good sources of complex carbohydrates, which help maintain energy levels throughout the day.

Eating a good breakfast raises blood sugar late in the morning and sharpens memory and mental clarity.

While the book is geared toward vegetarians, the 30 recipes certainly fit any diet, especially fruit and vegetable lovers.

For example, the authors offer a recipe for pancakes filled with bananas, peaches, apricots and strawberries. It sounds like an excellent way to kick start your day.

For lunch, they suggest penne pesto with Italian salad, tabouleh Orientale with couscous, lettuce, tomatoes, onions and green peppers with mint, parsley and lemon juice, or crunchy Spanish salad with hot sesame sauce.

Then there's dinner. The dishes highlighted in this book will work as side dishes, but are filling and nutritional enough to be a main course.

Ratatouille with polenta cakes is flavored with fresh basil, garlic and tomato paste. Carrot and almond jacket potatoes and vegetable crumble will fill out menus and benefit your body.

Quick fix-it snacks include a strawberry-banana smoothie, crispy lettuce rolls with avocado, onion, carrot and celery.

"Energy Foods" will serve as a helpful aid to people wanting to make New Year resolutions to eat healthier foods.

"If we want our bodies to be healthy, and to function at peak performance level, the best long-term investment we can make is to eat the natural way," the authors write.

"By adopting a mainly plant-centered diet including fresh fruit, raw vegetables, pulses and whole grains, supplemented by organically-reared meat and fish if we wish, we can provide ourselves with all the basic nutrients we need to increase our energy levels."

year's event – the seventh walk – will help pay the cost of painting church icons, Jury said.

The men of the parish are also involved. George Jacobs organized about 15 men on two consecutive Saturdays to create "no bake" cookies, such as rum balls or peanut butter chocolate balls.

So, what is a cookie walk?

"You are given a plastic cookie box and plastic gloves and you pick out the varieties you want," Jury said. Cookies will be displayed the day of the sale on long tables decorated for the holidays. Shoppers take their boxes to a table to be weighed and paid for.

Bakers make cookies year-round, but Christmas is a special time of year for them too. Just ask Scott Carlson, co-owner of Cookies by Design in Southfield, or Mary Denning, co-owner of Mary Denning's Cake Shoppe in Westland.

'Guests enjoy cookies because they are more convenient for them than a piece of pie or cake.'

Mary Denning

Co-owner of Mary Denning's Cake Shoppe

"People used to give them as gifts, either a tin of cookies or a cake, before Christmas became so commercial," said Denning, a Garden City resident.

"They would create gingerbread houses to give neighbors or relatives."

Denning said customers like the cut-out cookies, thumbprint cookies with fruits and nuts, and snowballs. "People really look for them," Denning said. "They like the colors, the red and green, on them."

Carlson also sees his cookie business pick up at this time of year. "People give them to employees, or give them for parties at work and people send them to friends," Carlson said.

Cookies by Design, which also has stores in Livonia and West Bloomfield, offers cookie bouquets with Santa, reindeer and snowman shapes of sugar cookies with vanilla frosting or cinnamon-brown sugar. Other popular varieties include chocolate chips, peanut butter and oatmeal raisin.

Bakers should use real butter to make good cookies, Denning said. "You need to take your time so they turn out perfect," Denning said.

Guests enjoy cookies because they are more convenient for them than a piece of pie or cake, Denning said. "People can pick them up two or three at a time, and they are always on hand."

Energize yourself with pancakes or ratatouille

See related story on Taste front.

Here are recipes from the cookbook "Energy Foods" by Nic Rowley and Kirsten Hartvig, published in October 2000 by Duncan Baird Publishers ($12.95).

FILLED PANCAKES

Pancake batter
2 cups wheat flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
Pinch of sea salt
1/2 cup soy milk
2/3 cup water
3 tablespoons safflower oil
Grapeseed oil for cooking
Pancake filling
2 bananas, thinly sliced
2 peaches, thinly sliced
2 apricots, thinly sliced
12 strawberries, chopped
cinnamon
3 tablespoons chopped almonds or pistachios, lightly roasted in a dry frying pan
Maple syrup to taste

Sift the flour and baking powder into a bowl, add salt and mix well. Pour in the soy milk a little at a time, stirring continuously with a whisk. Continue stirring and gradually mix in the water to form a thick batter. Slowly pour in the oil and continue to stir until completely blended. Allow the mixture to stand while you prepare the pancake filling.

For the filling mix the bananas, peaches, apricots and strawberries in a bowl.

Cook pancakes one at a time in a frying pan in grapeseed oil. Place a couple of spoonfuls of the fruit mixture in the center of each pancake, sprinkle with cinnamon and chopped nuts, top with maple syrup and roll up. Makes 12 pancakes.

RATATOUILLE WITH POLENTA CAKES

Ratatouille
2 onions, sliced
5 tablespoons extra virgin olive oil
2 small eggplants, chopped
2 small zucchini, sliced
1 red pepper, sliced
1 green pepper, sliced
2 cloves of garlic, crushed
8 medium ripe tomatoes, peeled and chopped
1 small bunch fresh basil, chopped
Water
Sea salt and pepper
Tomato paste

Sauté the onions in the olive oil and add the other vegetables one at a time in the order given above. Stir in the basil, keeping a few leaves to garnish the dish and cook for two more minutes, adding extra water if required. Season with salt and pepper, turn down the heat, cover and simmer gently for approximately 20 minutes. Remove the lid and simmer for 5 minutes, thickening with a little tomato paste. Garnish with fresh basil. Serves 4.

Polenta cakes
2 cups pre-cooked polenta
2 teaspoons herbs de Provence
1/2 teaspoon sea salt
Pinch of black pepper
1 1/4 cups boiling water
Grapeseed oil

Put the polenta in a bowl, add the herbs, salt, pepper and mix well. Gradually pour in the boiling water and stir to form a thick dough. Leave for 5 minutes, then knead to an even consistency. Break off the handles of the dough and mold them into small round cakes, 2-inches in diameter and 1/2-inch thick.

Shallow-fry the cakes in a little oil until golden brown, turning frequently. Serve with the ratatouille and thick slices of bread. Makes 12 cakes.

KOLACKY

2 packages dry yeast
1/2 cup warm milk (110-120° F)
Pinch sugar
5-6 cups flour
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 pound shortening or margarine
1/4 pound butter
3 eggs
1 teaspoon vanilla
Filling:
1 to 1 1/2 pounds ground nuts
1 cup sugar
1/4 cup honey
3/4 cup warm milk or enough to moisten nuts
2 stiffly beaten egg whites

Dissolve yeast in milk, add a pinch of sugar. Cover bowl with plastic wrap and let rise until bubbly, approximately 5 minutes.

In a large bowl, combine flour, sugar and salt. Cut in shortening and butter as you would for a pie crust.

Add beaten eggs and vanilla. Blend in yeast mixture thoroughly. Dough should pull away from hands and bowl. If dough is still sticky, add a little more flour. Place in refrigerator overnight or for several hours, covered.

To make filling, mix nuts, sugar, honey and milk. Fold in egg whites. Other fillings such as apricot, raspberry or prune may be used. Set aside.

Make a combination of 1 cup each of flour and sugar for rolling out dough. Cut off one small piece of dough at a time and roll to 1/8-inch thickness in the flour-sugar mixture. Cut into 2 1/2-inch squares. Place approximately 1 teaspoon of filling in center. Fold one corner over the filling. Take the opposite corner and fold over, pinching the tip where it meets the dough. For a fancier cookie, you can make a pinwheel. Make a small slit at each corner of the square. Place filling in center. Pinch edges of points at center.

Dip the top of the cookie into sugar and place on a greased cookie sheet. Bake at 350° F for 10-12 minutes. (Cookie should be turning just slightly tan.) Sprinkle with powdered sugar before serving.

KIEFLE

8 cups of flour
8 egg yolks
3 cups (1.5 pounds) of unsalted butter
1 cup plus 3 Tablespoons of sour cream.
Two packages of dry yeast
1/2 cup of water
1 Tablespoon of sugar
Filling:
4 to 6 cups ground nuts
1 to 1 1/4 cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
8 egg whites, beaten stiff

Mix the sugar in water and heat to 110°F. Add the yeast and mix.

Set aside until it rises.

Separately cut the butter into the flour. Mix the egg yolks with the sour cream, then add it to the mixture of yeast, sugar and water. Add both mixtures to flour mixture. Handle gently and shape into a ball as in a pie crust.

Make filling by combining all filling ingredients.

Make 24 balls out of dough. Roll each ball out into a circle and cut each circle into eight wedges. Add filling on the widest part and roll it like a crescent.

Bake in ungreased pans at 400°F for 15 minutes until brown.

You won't desert good health with this dessert

Don't think you can't enjoy delicious holiday desserts without deserting a healthy diet.

Many wonderful sweets make great seasonal treats that don't pack the fat and calories often associated with holiday fare.

They often feature the natural sweetness of fruit, so you can actually benefit from the nutrients and phytochemicals these special treats provide.

You can't beat the festive color of a mixed fruit compote made by simmering golden raisins with dried apricots and tart cherries in water and sugar. Cool the mixture, then stir in pink grapefruit and orange sections, along with finely chopped mint. Chill and serve garnished with fresh mint sprigs.

Your family and holiday guests will love sweet cherry crisp. Make the fruit filling by combining pitted sweet cherries or thawed frozen cherries with cornstarch and sugar. Coat a casserole dish with non-stick cooking spray, then pour in the fruit filling.

To make the topping, combine quick-cooking oats, light brown sugar, toasted wheat germ and a little thawed frozen orange or apple juice concentrate. Mix until moist and crumbly. Sprinkle over the fruit and bake at 375° F for 30 minutes or until the filling is bubbly and the topping is golden brown.

SWEET POTATO PIE

Crust

1 cup graham cracker crumbs
2/3 cup gingersnap crumbs
2 tablespoons canola oil

Filling

2 pounds (4-5 medium) sweet potatoes or yams
1/2 cup packed dark brown sugar
1/4 cup maple syrup
2 teaspoons grated orange zest
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon grated nutmeg
1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
1/4 teaspoon salt
3 eggs, plus 1 egg white
1/2 cup evaporated skim milk

Preheat oven to 350° F.

Using a fork, mix together graham cracker and gingersnap crumbs in a medium bowl. Add oil and blend with fork until evenly mixed. Add 2 tablespoons water and blend until mixture has texture of moist meal.

Press mixture into a 9-inch silver-colored pie plate. (Dark metal will cause the crust to brown too quickly.) Bake 10 minutes. The crust will be slightly firm to the touch and harden as it cools.) Cool completely on a rack. This may be done 1 to 2 days ahead.

Increase oven heat to 400° F. Bake sweet potatoes until soft, 35 to 45 minutes. When potatoes are cool enough to handle but still warm, peel and mash with a fork. Measure out 3 cups for the pie and set aside the remains for another use. (This can be done a day ahead.)

When ready to prepare and bake pie filling, preheat oven to 350° F.

Combine yams in a large bowl with sugar, syrup, orange zest, spices and salt, blending with a fork. Mix in eggs and egg white. Blend in milk. Pour filling into prepared crust.

Bake pie in center of oven for 45 minutes, until all but center of pie is set. The center should still be slightly soft. If necessary, cover the edges of the pie with aluminum foil during the last 15 minutes to prevent burning.

Cool pie completely on a rack. This pie tastes best the next day, when flavors have had time to meld. It keeps 2 to 3 days.

GFS Marketplace opens Livonia store

A distributor of food service products to restaurants and schools will be opening a store in Livonia.

Gordon Food Service will open a new GFS Marketplace Wednesday, Nov. 29, at 29150 Six Mile Road.

Managed by Brian Stuk, the new store is approximately 14,000 square feet and will display thousands of top quality food service products. A large selection of fresh produce and a greatly expanded selection of frozen and grocery foods are also available. As with all GFS Marketplace stores, shoppers will also find a large variety of paper items at cost-saving prices.

Hours will be Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and noon to 5 p.m. on Sunday. Grand opening activities begin Friday, Dec. 1, and continue Saturday, Dec. 2, and will include food sampling and raffle prizes.

■ Shoppers visiting the new GFS Marketplace will find a professionally trained staff prepared to help customers plan special occasions for the home or office.

Gordon Food Service is headquartered in Grand Rapids.

The GFS Marketplace Stores service the emergency needs of GFS delivery customers and are also the primary supplier to many smaller operators who prefer to pick up their products. They also offer the public these high quality products at wholesale prices.

There are now 76 GFS Marketplace stores throughout Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan.

Unlike the wholesale clubs, Gordon Food Service is a "local" company committed to serving the needs of the community and does not charge a membership fee to shop in its stores. GFS Marketplace stores carry many conveniently packaged products for the average household.

Shoppers visiting the new GFS Marketplace will find a professionally trained staff prepared to help customers plan special occasions for the home or office with menu ideas and serving suggestions.

Chefs to share tips at Christmas Show

It's all part of the Michigan Christmas Show, which runs Thursday-Sunday, Nov. 30- Dec. 3, at the Novi Expo Center.

During the show's four days, more than two dozen cooking programs are scheduled for the stage sponsored by Honey Baked Ham Co.

Kathy Stark, a cooking instructor and professional chef, will demonstrate how to cook the perfect holiday ham or turkey.

Stark has a holiday menu planned, along with a soup sampler, quick and elegant holiday appetizers and what she calls "twice is nice." You may call them leftovers.

Maureen Kimmel of the Pampered Chef demonstrates easy and simple (and prize-winning) luscious desserts. Chef Jeff Evans of Steve & Rocky's in Novi will cook up some holiday surprises. You'll learn the real secrets of cake decorating from Rhoda Sheridan at Lechter's Housewares.

Hour Detroit magazine is bringing Chef Evans, and chefs from the Epoch Group and The Essence of Northville. Karie Lee Shull, the Homemade Gourmet, will have time-saving tips for the cooking season ahead.

Small shops will be set up with crafts, gourmet foods, hot-piping strudel, gifts for everyone on your list and entertainment. The show is sponsored by Fox-2 News.

Show hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., Sunday. Admission is $7 for adults and $4 for children 6-12. Children six and under, excluding groups, are free.

A Farmer Jack bonus card will get $1 off admission. Discount coupons are available at Honey Baked Ham and Einstein Bagel stores.

MEDICAL BRIEFS

Speedy ER

Oakwood Healthcare System's has expanded its 30-Minute Guarantee to Oakwood Annapolis Hospital in Wayne. If patients are not seen by a physician within 30 minutes of their arrival, they'll receive a letter of apology and a pair of movie tickets.

The program has been a big success at Oakwood Hospital & Medical Center in Dearborn. Between July 17 (when the program started) and Sept. 29 the hospital treated more than 15,000 emergency patients but gave away only 15 pairs of movie tickets. The average wait time was 22 minutes.

The average length of stay in the emergency department is less than two hours for a patient who is sent home and less than 3.5 hours for a patient who is admitted, down from eight hours and 12 hours respectively.

"We expect to see similar results at Annapolis and look forward to expanding this program even more so that all of Oakwood's emergency facilities are included," said Corinne Victor, administrator of emergency services for Oakwood Health System.

Lung cancer Web site

This year more than 163,000 people will be diagnosed with lung cancer and almost 157,000 will die from the disease – more than breast, prostate, and colorectal cancers combined. However, there are new developments in screening and treatment that can help extend and save the lives of people with lung cancer.

Cancer nurses and social workers will be available to answer questions and provide support for new patients and families and friends of those newly diagnosed by visiting www.lungcancer.org through the rest of the year.

Volunteers

The American Cancer Society's Discovery Shops are looking for volunteers to make a difference in the fight against cancer. Various positions, flexible hours and training are available. Call the American Cancer Society at (248) 557-5353 and 1-800-925-2271.

Tree of Memories

Now's the time to dedicate a beautiful golden angel ornament in honor of your loved one for a donation of your choice. The "Hospice Tree of Memories," sponsored by Community Hospice and Home Care Services, will be on display at the Plymouth District Library, 233 South Main Street, beginning Friday, Nov. 24. All proceeds directly benefit CHHCS patients. Call Sandra Sommer at (734) 522-4244.

Warm feet, good sleep

Been searching for a good night's sleep? The answer may be a pair of cozy socks or a hot water bottle.

Sleep researchers in Switzerland monitored the heart rates and body temperatures of a group of healthy men as they dozed off at night. The study, published in the journal Nature, found that the major factor that influenced how quickly the volunteers fell asleep was increased blood flow to the hands and feet, which makes them warmer.

Those with the highest blood flow rates to their extremities went to sleep the soonest. So the next time you can't sleep, keep your tootsies toasty with socks or a hot water bottle.

Hospice... Comforting the body, healing the Soul

BY MAUREEN MCGERTY
SPECIAL WRITER

It's 2:30 Thursday, any Thursday. Indoors, small groups cluster at linen-draped tables, settling into the comforting atmosphere. Sweet odors of fresh pastries and flowers intermingle, and softly playing melodies strengthen the ambience. Four kindred souls unobtrusively fill bone china cups and pass silver trays of bite-size quiche, finger sandwiches and authentic English lemon tarts among guests.

Autumn's beauty works its magic inside, imbuing the great room, spacious with many large windows, with warm natural colors and textures.

High tea is a gift, a joy, an offering at Angela Hospice Care Center in Livonia.

"The things never absent in hospice are hugs, food and laughter," said volunteer coordinator Donna Kolodsick of Livonia.

■ "I didn't know what hospice was. Our oncologist recommended Angela Hospice for which I'll bless him forever. They don't take over; they let you take care of your loved one. They were so giving."

Barbara Whell
Wife of a hospice patient

A vision

Fifteen years ago, Sister Mary Giovanni's vision of providing quality end-of-life care became bricks-and-mortar reality. Today, growth is reflected in a staff of 115, more than 500 volunteers and an ever-growing list of donors.

Many people volunteer after a loved one has been a patient at Angela Hospice, such as Barbara Whell of Northville and Georgia Scappaticci of Plymouth, who with Kolodsick, created weekly high tea for hospice patients and their guests. Doris Larco of Livonia recently joined the team.

"When my husband was diagnosed as terminal, we were fortunate that our oncologist mentioned 'hospice,'" said Whell, who also facilitates grief workshops, serving in the bereavement care program. "I didn't know what 'hospice' was. He recommended Angela Hospice for which I'll bless him forever. They don't take over; they let you take care of your loved one. They were so giving."

Whell explains her motivation for volunteering:

"It's the fact that I'm doing something for somebody else," she said. "It's such a good feeling doing something because you want to.... Actually, you get much more in return than you're ever able to give."

Holistic care

Angela Hospice's medical team includes a physician who oversees patients' care; a nurse who monitors pain levels; a social worker who organizes community resources such as Meals on Wheels, child care or special equipment; nursing aides who give direct care ranging from personal hygiene care to companionship; and two chaplains who train volunteers interested in becoming part of the spiritual care team.

Preparing the soul for death is as crucial to end-of-life care as are the physical, social, nutritional and legal aspects.

"While we're a Catholic-sponsored organization, we care for people of all faiths and, of course, for people who claim they have no faith," said Sister Giovanni. "We make every effort to work with a patient's own congregation. As we have continuity of care with the health, we try to have spiritual continuity as well. That's a comfort for family members."

Angela Hospice also offers "My Nest Is Best," a program for terminally ill children.

"We have hospice and palliative care for the children who're dying," she said. "Some are newborns born with congenital heart disease. Some are hydrocephalic. Others have muscular dystrophy and live longer."

Interdisciplinary efforts, including social services and fund-raising, procure the unusual, and often exorbitantly priced, equipment for pediatric hospice care.

Eligibility

Terminally ill patients with six months to live are eligible for hospice care. Yet, many professionals agree that most patients wait until their final weeks, even days, to approach a hospice for care.

"What's driving and shaping our care is that we're facing more and more later referrals," said Teri Turner, director/clinical manager of Hospice of Washtenaw, an affiliate of St. Joseph Mercy Hospital in Ann Arbor. "People are coming to us at the very end of life. Because of that, we're forced to compress our services to do a lot in a very short period of time. It would work better if we got to know the patient and family over a longer period of time. The ideal time would be probably 90 days."

Why people wait so long to contact a hospice program for care is complex.

"Western society is a death-defying society," Turner said. "We put a lot of emphasis on youth and life. We all like to deny the fact that we're dying. Often people don't think about this until they're in the throes of the dying experience."

Often, family members are uninformed about hospice care, Turner added.

Community benefit

Hospice benefits not just individuals but the community-at-large.

"Hospice reminds the community-at-large that there are those who are suffering in our midst," said Dr. John Finn, executive medical director at Hospice of Michigan and president-elect of the American Academy of Hospice and Palliative Medicine. "The appropriate way to respond to that suffering is with a societal embrace.... The terminally ill are a vulnerable population that are largely unseen and not currently getting all the care they need and deserve. This is a difficult medical age for a person to die...."

Finn noted that hospitals, nursing homes and medical doctors are restricted by law and policy and often burdened by agendas detracting from individual needs ranging from pain management to social services.

"It's an indictment of modern medicine that we're even talking about this," Finn said. "Repeated medical studies show that we're inadequately treating pain at the end of life. The whole assisted suicide debate is likewise an indictment that we're not meeting the needs of people who're dying as we have in the past. In medicine, there's the old adage that it's a physician's duty to cure sometimes, to relieve often, but to comfort always.

"Somehow, in our techno-biological reductionist medical model that we're training our young physicians in, whole person care in the context of their values and their relationships has been lost.... Modern physicians view a patient's death as a technologic failure as if death could be cured. Yet, death of our patients is simply the outcome of our mortality."

Madonna University extends hospice education to Israel

Professional: Dr. Kelly Rhoades, chairwoman of Madonna's Hospice Education Department, College of Nursing and Health, talks about hospice.

Madonna University has begun an online hospice education program with Central Galilee in Israel thanks to the vision of community and faculty members and a $25,000 Michigan Colleges Foundation-Ameritech grant. Currently, Madonna offers the only university-based hospice education program in the United States.

The hospice movement started in Ireland, spread to England and came to the United States in 1974. Although the establishment of a hospice program in Israel is ground-breaking, it is not unusual.

"Hospice is not so much a place as it is a philosophy," said Dr. Kelly Rhodes, chairwoman of Madonna's Hospice Education Department, College of Nursing and Health.

The idea for the hospice education course began two years ago with an ongoing dialogue with Rabbi Bunny Friedman, an activist with the Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Detroit. Eventually, Friedman secured benefactors who enabled two Madonna faculty members to visit Israel.

The faculty members shared their information with Rhoades, who, along with adjunct faculty member Lucy Stern, created a hospice course in narrative form, complete with instruction and suggestions for reference materials. They received a boost from Henry Ford Health System's Hospice Division.

"They gave us 15 years of policies and procedures and said, 'Here, share this,'" said Rhoades.

Recently, the course received its second grant, thanks to the generosity of Guy and Nora Berron, members of the Jewish Federation of Metropolitan Detroit.

Less interactive

Due to socio-political factors, the online hospice education course developed between Madonna University and Israel is driven more by content than by the usual dynamic interaction inherent in online courses.

"The hospice course was very much designed to meet the specifications of the individuals we were working with in Israel. There's a certain level of government control over what can be accessed over the Internet because the area is so volatile," said Dr. Ernest Nolan, vice president for academic administration at Madonna University.

The course, which is translated into Hebrew, is accessed primarily by Israeli medical personnel.

Last spring, Jewish, Muslim and Christian representatives met at Madonna to discuss ways in which the fledgling hospice program in Israel could be extended to the Arab population; at this time, such aspirations remain a dream.

However, in general, the hospice education relationship between Madonna University and Israel has yielded a positive outcome.

"It has been very successful," said Nolan. "Because of this interest in hospice, some changes in the medical system have occurred. The government's medical plan now covers hospice services. That makes it available to the broad population. That's a remarkable spin-off."

Previously, terminally ill patients in Israel were cared for in hospitals rather than at home.

Rabbi Friedman's vision is one of brotherhood, said Rhoades, adding: "The act of assisting with a good death is a way to achieve it."

Another visit to Israel by Madonna faculty is possible. "We are very receptive to an ongoing relationship. Sometimes it is important to be there in person," said Rhoades.

Student gives, receives as volunteer at local hospice

Yolanda Chapman learned about hospice in a Christian traditions class she took last year as a Mercy High School junior.

So intrigued was she with the concept that she signed on to volunteer at the Farmington Hills Hospice Home kitty-corner from her school at the intersection of 11 Mile and Middlebelt roads.

"I never experienced anything with death until my grandpa died two months ago," said Chapman, a bright-eyed, energetic senior who says she tries to do a community service project every week. "I like to talk to people, and I've helped feed the people here," she added.

Hospice of Michigan trains high school students, ages 16 or 17, as junior volunteers. Currently, there are three junior volunteers at the Farmington Hills Hospice Home and two other junior volunteers at other sites.

Junior volunteers must complete 12 hours of training and must have parental consent for TB testing. They are paired with an adult volunteer or staff member for patient contact or events.

Some of the tasks junior volunteers perform at the Farmington Hills home, which has a 20-patient capacity and a waiting list, include: visiting patients, helping patients write their life history, assisting at the reception desk, helping with group activities, and assisting patients at meal time.

Part of the three-day volunteer training, which Chapman took last summer in Southfield, emphasizes communication and listening skills, respect for the patient's end-of-life journey, and the importance of keeping patient information confidential.

"The training was excellent," Chapman said. "Past volunteers talked about their experiences. They calmed me down."

A senior pass allows Chapman to leave school grounds for a two-class period in her daily schedule. She often crosses the street to Hospice Home to help out.

"I've fed people, talked to them, walked with them," she said. "And I met a past Mercy alumna here. I love to talk to people who went there."

Chapman said it was a paper she wrote about treatment of the elderly in her Christian traditions class that made her think more about elderly people.

"They're so much stronger today. They're living longer. If someone is (terminally) sick, they come here to have a peaceful death," she said. "These people didn't die hurting. They died peacefully without pain."

What she gives of herself as a hospice volunteer, she seems to get back double, she said.

"It makes me feel good. They want to talk to me. They're glad to see me. Even if they don't want to talk, they might just want me to sit with them. That's fine, too.

"The best thing is to give them a hug and see their face smile. It's so nice that they appreciate me being there."

Following graduation next June, Chapman plans to attend college and major in business with a minor in psychology "so that I can learn more about people." Then she plans to attend law school.

"I have recommended (volunteering at hospice) to other students," she said.

Linda Smith, volunteer services manager for Hospice of Michigan's South Oakland team, said there are many benefits of the junior volunteer program.

"Adolescents and elders tend to have many things in common," Smith said. "Both need to feel that they make meaningful contributions to the community so the community honors them as valuable. These questions of identity and meaning come from opposite ends of the life cycle and both groups tend to find solace in other's needs and strengths.

"Teens are social and full of energy, which makes for great visitors," she added. "The junior volunteer program tried to meet the needs of the hospice patients and the abilities of the teens involved with appropriate amounts of adult mentoring and guidance."

Teens/adults who would like to learn more about volunteering with Hospice of Michigan can call Linda Smith at (248) 559-3195. There is an ongoing need at the Farmington Hills Hospice Home for visitors and helpers for mealtime feedings at 8:30 a.m., 12:30 p.m., 5 p.m.

Pain management

Pain management is essential for terminally ill patients. However, access to pain medication may be limited by one's physician or specialist for legal reasons. There is pending legislation that could ease restrictions on the kinds and amounts of pain medications Michigan physicians choose to prescribe for the dying.

"The biggest item is the eradication of the Official Prescription Program bill," said Sister Giovanni, one of 12 appointees to the Governor's Commission for End-of-Life Care and a sub-committee member of the Pain and Symptom Advisory Board.

"If a physician orders a narcotic medication, whether it be for you after surgery or a hospice patient, he or she must fill out a triplicate form," she said. "The thing that seems to scare the doctors is that one of those copies goes to Lansing. They're afraid of prescribing adequate pain medication for patients because they fear being scrutinized .... Secondly, some doctors have an unfounded fear of terminally ill patients being addicted to this pain medication."

Comfort

Palliative medicine, a newer specialty in the field of medicine, seeks to comfort patients, particularly those who are dying. Blended with the interdisciplinary approach of hospice programs, palliative care seeks to support individuals in just about any place they may wish to be – home, residential hospice facility, nursing home, assisted living site or hospital.

Many professionals are drawn to hospice work because they believe the field reflects the ideals that originally attracted them to medicine.

After working as a medical/surgical nurse for seven years, Sue Mojica's hospital began a hospice care program.

"It was the basics of what I'd always wanted to do in nursing, that type of helping with those kinds of patients," said Mojica, recently promoted to care coordinator manager at Hospice of Michigan in Taylor after working on a hospice team there for 2 1/2 years. "I decided to make a job change because you can really make a difference in people's lives and their families. This is more individualized, personal care.

Michigan is home to 100 hospice organizations among more than 3,000 nationwide. Medicare coverage for hospice care is guaranteed to all U.S. citizens who are at the end of their lives. For more information about hospice care, contact:

Research suggests tea might be good the heart

BY DANIEL Q. HANEY
AP MEDICAL EDITOR

NEW ORLEANS (AP) – A nice cup of tea might just be good for the heart, a study sponsored by the tea industry suggests.

Although it is too soon to elevate tea to the status of health food, researchers at Boston University found that it may help the arteries work better when people have heart disease.

Several studies have found that regular tea drinkers seem to have a lower risk of heart attacks. However, it is still unclear whether this is actually the case or how tea might help the heart.

In a new study, doctors had people drink tea regularly while carefully measuring the effects on their bodies. The work was financed by the North America Tea Trade Health Research Association and presented at a recent meeting in New Orleans of the American Heart Association.

"Drinking tea reverses an important underlying abnormality of blood vessel function that is related to heart disease and stroke," said Dr. Joseph A. Vita.

People with heart disease often have a defect in which the lining of their blood vessels fails to relax quickly in times of stress to allow more blood flow. The researchers studied 50 men and women who had this defect.

All were asked to drink four eight-ounce cups of tea a day for a month. Then they drank four cups of water a day for another month.

They found that the response of their blood vessels to the stress of a blood pressure cuff became normal during the month of tea drinking. However, there was no change when they drank water.

But Vita cautioned that it is too soon to urge tea drinking as a treatment for heart disease.

"I drink tea because I believe it's healthy," Vita said. "But we are not ready to make any recommendation on tea drinking."

Just how tea might be good for the heart or the circulatory system is unclear, though some suspect it is chemicals called flavinoids, which give tea its taste.

Alice H. Lichtenstein, a nutrition professor at Tufts University outside Boston, cautioned that until much more research is done, no one can say with certainty whether tea actually does anything good for people's health.

Year-end tax savings tactics in the face of new congress, president

FINANCES

BY GARY KLOTT
TRIBUNE MEDIA SERVICES

Despite uncertainty over what, if any, tax changes might be in store next year, individuals can take many steps in the remaining weeks of the year to trim their 2000 tax bill and start saving on next year's taxes.

Taxpayers can even do certain things to put themselves in a position to benefit should Congress and the White House reach agreement on tax-cut legislation next year.

No matter how busy you may be preparing for Christmas and Chanukah, squeezing in time during the holiday season for some year-end tax planning can pay rich dividends next tax season and beyond.

Major tax law changes in the last few years have added to the opportunities for last-minute tax savings. And year-end planning is especially important this year given the possibility of sweeping tax-law changes next year.

Most year-end strategies won't take much time or effort. In many cases, hundreds or thousands of dollars in taxes can be saved at year-end simply by writing a few checks for deductible expenses and carefully timing the sale and purchase of investments. And even more can be saved in future years by taking advantage of year-end opportunities to make financial gifts to children, contribute to education IRAs, convert traditional IRAs to Roth IRAs, and sign-up for your employer's 401(k) plan and tax-sheltered "flexible-spending arrangements" for child-care and medical expenses.

Planning for uncertainty

To be sure, plotting year-end strategies is trickier this year because the political prospects for tax legislation are so uncertain.

At this point, many tax advisers are counseling their clients not to bank on any major new tax breaks next year from Congress.

"I think there will be gridlock," said Hank Gutman, a former chief of staff of the Congressional Joint Committee on Taxation and now a partner at the accounting firm of KPMG in Washington, D.C.

He said the near-even party split in Congress and the close vote in the presidential election mean neither Democrats nor Republicans will be able to claim a public mandate for their policy agendas. "The lack of a mandate, particularly on tax issues, doesn't give clear direction to anybody," he said.

But tax practitioners say that the traditional year-end strategies for minimizing tax bills — prepaying some of next year's deductible expenses and deferring income where possible until next year — will prove fruitful for most people no matter what happens on the tax front in Washington.

Deferring income is not considered a risky strategy since there is no threat that tax rates will be raised. But deferring income leaves open the possibility that the money could be taxed at a lower rate if Republicans are able to push through a cut in tax rates next year.

Even if there were no rate cut, deferring income would still be beneficial since you would be able to put off the tax for an extra year. And that would leave you with extra cash to invest in the interim.

■ Several types of deductions will reduce your adjusted gross income. They include business expenses incurred by the self-employed and rental property owners; job-related moving expenses; deductible retirement account contributions; alimony payments; and health-insurance premiums paid by eligible self-employed individuals.

For many middle- and lower-income taxpayers, there is additional incentive to postpone until next year the sale of some investments. Under a tax-law change that becomes effective next year, individuals in the 15-percent tax bracket will pay capital gains tax at a rate of 8 percent, instead of 10 percent, on investments held more than five years.

A similar capital gains rate reduction will eventually apply to higher-income investors — but not for a while. If you're in a tax bracket higher than 15 percent, you'll be eligible for an 18-percent capital gains rate, rather than 20 percent, for investments that are acquired on or after Jan. 1, 2001, and then held more than five years. Since the 18-percent rate will apply only to investments bought after this year, higher-bracket investors may want to wait until after Jan. 1 to buy assets that they plan to hold for more than five years, such as a vacation home. "By buying next year, it will automatically qualify for the lower capital gains rate," said Bob Trinz, an editor at RIA in New York, a publisher of tax references for accountants and lawyers.

Accelerating deductions

The possibility of tax-cut legislation next year also provides incentive to pursue extra deductions this year.

If tax rates were lowered, deductions would become less-valuable. Deductions provide more tax savings at higher rates.

Another tax proposal that might be considered next year is one that would sharply increase the standard deduction for married couples. The idea has been proposed by both Democrats and Republicans. If such an increase were enacted, millions of couples would no longer find benefit to itemizing deductions. The possibility of such a proposal being enacted provides extra incentive for those couples to nab itemized deductions this year.

Tax breaks

For many middle-income taxpayers, an important objective of year-end tax planning is to meet the income-eligibility requirements for some of the valuable tax breaks created by the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997. Many of the benefits are phased out for taxpayers with incomes above certain levels.

For instance, the student loan deduction begins to phase out for "adjusted gross incomes" above $60,000 on a joint return ($40,000 for singles). The child tax credit starts to phase out for joint incomes above $110,000 ($75,000 for singles). And the college tuition credits start to phase out for incomes above $80,000 on a joint return ($40,000 for singles).

If you're bordering on the income limits for a tax break you hope to claim, you may be able to do some things to keep your adjusted gross income low enough to make you partly or fully eligible for the tax benefit.

Investors can wait until next year to sell their profitable investments. And they can rush to sell their money-losing investments before the end of this year so that the losses can be written off.

Self-employed individuals can delay sending out bills so that payments from clients and customers won't arrive until after Dec. 31.

If you're selling real estate that will be subject to capital gains tax, such as a vacation home, consider waiting until next year to close the sale.

Another way to reduce your adjusted gross income is to pay certain deductible expenses by Dec. 31.

Several types of deductions will reduce your adjusted gross income. They include business expenses incurred by the self-employed and rental property owners; job-related moving expenses; deductible retirement account contributions; alimony payments; and health-insurance premiums paid by eligible self-employed individuals. The student loan deduction will also reduce adjusted gross income, but not for purposes of determining eligibility for the student loan deduction itself.

Most other types of deductions, such as for charitable contributions, state taxes and other itemized deductions, won't affect your adjusted gross income. (Adjusted gross income is computed on tax forms before itemized deductions enter into the tax calculations.)

Of course, itemized deductions are still worth pursuing at year-end if you expect to itemize since they will reduce your 2000 tax bill.

Alternative strategies

When mapping year-end strategy, be sure to assess both this year's and next year's tax situation.

If, for instance, you just received a big promotion at work and expect to jump from the 15-percent tax bracket this year to the 28-percent bracket next year, you may find it pays to accelerate income into this year — instead of deferring it. By so doing, the money will be taxed at your lower 2000 rate.

Higher-income individuals who expect to fall victim to the "alternative minimum tax" (AMT) this year, but not next year, may also want to accelerate income because AMT rates are lower than the top regular income tax rates. And instead of chasing after year-end deductions, consider deferring payment of deductible expenses until next year. Many expenses that are normally deductible are disallowed and others are worth less under the AMT computation.

Arthritis Today

ANKLE SWELLING - WHEN ARTHRITIS, WHEN NOT

Arthritis of the ankle will cause ankle swelling but so will other conditions and the treatment of these other causes is far different than the therapy for arthritis.

The most common confusion occurs when ankle swelling results from poor circulation, specifically from bad leg veins. Often the incompetent veins are deep. The absence of varicose veins does not mean that you do not suffer from poor circulation. A related problem is prolonged sitting with your legs in the dependent position for hours. You may have the same experience if you take a long distance, non-stop plane flight and get up once if at all during your time on the plane.

Ankle swelling coming from poor circulation is painless, while in contrast ankle swelling from arthritis creates a constant ache. The difference holds only to a point. For a swollen ankle leads to a swollen foot and if that foot is in a rigid shoe, your foot and ankle will begin to ache as the swelling presses against the shoe.

Your doctor can usually determine the cause of the ankle pain by its features. Pain across the ankle and foot is in keeping with arthritis as the cause. Pain at the sides of the ankle or top of the foot results from swelling against the sides and top of a shoe.

For ankle swelling from poor circulation support hose and leg elevation when at rest are the treatments of choice. If arthritis is the cause, then an investigation to find the type of arthritis involved, with systemic medication and intermittent joint injection following are the proper approach.

Everyone gets massive debit this holiday says national survey

Americans plan to spend 45 percent more on holiday shopping than they did last year, according to the second annual Holiday Survey by Myvesta.org, formerly Debt Counselors of America. The average holiday shopper will spend $1,220 in 2000, up from $841 in 1999. One in 10 shoppers will spend more than $1,500.

In addition, Americans' credit card balances have increased by 60 percent.

Myvesta.org's nationwide telephone survey asked 1,000 respondents how much debt they carry on all of their credit cards, including major bank, retail, gas and other cards. Americans, average credit card debt increased from $1,751 in 1999 to $2,814 in 2000.

"People's appetite for credit made a big leap forward in the past year," said Mike Kidwell, vice president and co-founder of the nonprofit Myvesta.org. "It's not surprising after another year of economic enthusiasm. Until we experience a major economic downturn, people will continue to push their credit limits to the sky."

Kidwell added: "If consumers use their credit cards to pay for those holiday purchases, the average total credit card debt in January will jump to more than $4,000. Assuming that people make only the 2 percent minimum payment, it will take 38 years to pay off the debt and the interest payments will top $9,000." This calculation uses today's 18 percent average credit card interest rate.

"The holiday lesson is clear," Kidwell said. "Charge only what you can pay back in three months or less." By repaying the $4,000 debt in three months, the person would pay only about $120 in total interest.

Myvesta.org offers the following credit tips for a happy holiday season and an even happier New Year:

- Carry only two cards when shopping. Use one with a zero balance for purchases you will pay off in full. Use the other, low-interest-rate card for purchases you will pay off over time.
- Record all of your purchases in your checkbook register. Even if you don't write a check, subtract the amount of the purchase. That way, when the bill arrives, the money will be in your checking account to pay the bill in full.
- Avoid "skip payment" offers that cause you to pay more interest and face larger bills.
- Avoid "buy now and pay later" offers that encourage you to spend money you don't have.
- Use low-rate, major credit cards instead of high-rate department store cards.
- When you're thinking about holiday gifts, remember that the personal involvement, not the cost, is what people remember, Kidwell added.

Additional survey findings include:

- Forty-two percent of respondents say they do not carry a balance on their credit cards, a decrease from the 50 percent who reported no balance in 1999.
- People carry an average of three credit cards; the same number reported in 1999.
- More than 20 percent of people have five or more cards; just about the same number report that they have no credit cards.
- People earning less than $25,000 a year have the highest average credit card balances ($3,674).
- While 33.6 percent of people will spend $500 or more on holiday gifts, 4.8 percent say they have no plans to shop for holiday gifts.
- More than 55 percent of 18- to 24-years-olds have at least one card; 10 percent have five or more.
- Five percent of people are clueless about how much they owe on their credit cards.

Myvesta.org, founded in 1994, is a national, nonprofit organization dedicated to helping people get out of debt. Its programs and services include debt management, crisis resolution, online bill management, creditor problem resolution, coaching and financial recovery counseling. Prior to April 2000, Myvesta.org was known as Debt Counselors of America.

Donate your unwanted car during this season of giving

More than 3,000 Michigan residents are giving thanks. They are thankful because they received a life-saving kidney transplant. But there are still over 1,700 people in Michigan waiting for a kidney transplant. This number could be greatly reduced if there were more donors.

Car donors, however, can help in a different way. They can donate a car, truck, motorcycle or boat through the Kidney Cars Program and join in the fight against kidney disease.

Donating a used car is an environmentally friendly way to get rid of an unwanted vehicle. The removal of used cars and trucks prevents hazardous fluids from entering ground water and improves the appearance of local neighborhoods. A majority of the proceeds from the donation help fund programs and services for kidney patients in local communities.

The National Kidney Foundation of Michigan benefits from the donation of each vehicle. In Michigan alone, there are more than 8,700 patients on dialysis and more than 1,700 waiting life-saving kidney transplants. Donating a vehicle is simple, easy and free. Vehicles must have their titles. Please call 1-800-488-CARS (2277).

Great outdoors is feature of condos

Hidden Paradise, a detached site condominium community in Commerce Township, is well named.

Only 74 houses will be built on a parcel of 134 acres off Benstein Road north of Maple between Twin Sun Lakes and Wolverine Lake.

The site, itself, features canals, wetlands, woodlands and several islands.

"This property is one of a kind," said E. Wynn Berry, developer.

"It's an environmentally sensitive project," said Wendell Allen, owner of Mid-Oakland Building & Development. "There's islands in here each connected by foot bridges, about 5,200 feet of walking paths.

"What's really unique about the sub, and what attracted me, is the lots are all different sizes, different configurations. That lends itself to custom construction," Allen added.

He will build on nine lots in the Hidden Paradise.

"The amenities – bridges, rolling terrain, individuality of each lot, walkouts, canals – it's a lovely place to bring up children," said Jan Raney, owner of Creative Homes.

"Walled Lake is a good school system. That's a big issue," she added.

Raney will build on eight lots.

"Trees, canals, bridges – the whole ambience of the subdivision is tranquil, relaxing," said Vanett Vereeke, owner of M. Rose Construction. "It's very accessible to 15 Mile. It's close to a lot of things, but gives you a feeling you're far away."

She will build on 22 lots.

Raney, Vereeke and Allen are all custom builders. All three offer a variety of plans for prospective buyers as starting points, working documents from which to design and construct a home.

"We work directly with a customer to get what they want and help them realize what products are available," Allen said. "We offer anything and everything that has to do with construction of a house."

"I take a buyer to an architect/designer specifically for their precise needs within the confines of restrictions of the development – and their budget," Raney said.

"Every home we're building in here is going to be different," Vereeke said. "I drive my trades insane."

Wynn has established minimum sizes for houses – 2,200 square feet for ranches, 2,550 for story-and-a-half and 2,880 square feet for story and a half.

Exteriors must be two thirds brick. Vinyl and aluminum siding aren't allowed.

Beautiful property: The canals, wetlands and woodlots at Hidden Paradise make for a picturesque setting.

All three builders include the same basic features in their plans – three-car garage, air conditioning, energy-efficient furnace, fireplace, jet tub and separate shower in the master, basements with nine-foot ceilings, and dimensional shingles.

Vereeke includes all major appliances in the kitchen, Allen and Raney dishwashers only.

Allen said most of the houses he's building in Hidden Paradise will come in between $500,000 and $600,000, which includes the lot.

He's constructed a model, a story-and-a-half of 3,467 square feet, that contains different kinds of volume ceilings throughout.

The plan features a great room, dining area, den, kitchen/nook with granite counters, first-floor laundry and first-floor master with two separate vanities, a pair of walk-in closets and compartmentalized commode.

Decks wrap around the family room and master.

A loft, which could be enclosed as a bedroom, is at the head of the stairs.

One upstairs bedroom, a possible guest suite, has its own bath with shower. A second bedroom is up, as is a bonus room that could be used as a playroom, media room or office, plus a full bath.

The model, as is, carries a price of $599,900, which includes lot and landscaping.

Vereeke figures that most of her houses at Hidden Paradise will start at $450,000 with lot.

She has a model under construction, a two-story of 3,600 square feet, that features plenty of windows, wood flooring and tile.

The main living area contains a large foyer with tile laid in wood, office with French doors, great room, dining room, kitchen/ nook with island and large pantry, and a laundry.

The unique design features a mid-level loft between the first floor and basement.

Three bedrooms, including step-up master with dual-sink vanity and make-up area, two walk-in closets and compartmentalized commode, are upstairs. A second full bath also is up.

Base price of the model, with lot but excluding landscaping, is $510,000.

Raney has three houses in the early construction phase. They range in price from $389,900 for a 2,300-square-foot ranch with three bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths to $444,900, for a story-and-a-half of 2,900 square feet with four bedrooms and 2-1/2 baths. Those prices include lots, exclude landscaping.

Raney said she intends to offer wider hallways and doors in ranch plans for people who need barrier free living now, or may have that need in the future.

Homes at Hidden Paradise will be serviced by individual water wells and septic systems. All community residents will have access to the canals. Gas motors aren't allowed on watercraft. Several parks/ gathering areas will be included on site.

The property tax rate is $25.44 per $1,000 of state taxable value, half of sales price. That means the owners of a $500,000 house there would pay about $6,400 the first year.

The quarterly association fee is $135.

Two other builders – Huntington Park Homes, (248), 347-6141, and AA & Sons, (810) 360-0072 – have four and two lots, respectively, at Hidden Paradise.

Allen's model is open noon to 6 p.m. Saturdays and by appointment. His sales reps, David and Maureen Ridley, can be reached at (248) 360-3900.

Verkeeke's model, (248) 330-7181, is open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, 1-5 p.m. weekends. Raney can be reached at (248) 363-7200.

Urban infill: Smart growth opportunity

BERNARD GLIEBERMAN

My personal experience with home building and development proves that Smart Growth today does include building new homes in older urban areas. Although the growth pattern for Detroit as in most cities is still moving away from the city center, up to five percent of new home buyers will purchase in urban areas if suitable homes are offered.

Success at Detroit's Victoria Park showed us that those urban home buyers were not, as we once thought, primarily city employees who, at that time, were required to live within the city limits. They were young singles, couples and empty-nesters who sought out the vitality of urban living. Although families with children continue to choose suburban living, the urban lifestyle with its proximity to work, shopping and night-life has a pace and quality which suburbia can seldom equal.

When urban buyers are offered new townhouses and lofts with contemporary features like open plan living, enclosed garages, air conditioning, dishwashers, laundry areas, oak flooring, skylights and fireplaces, located in the city's most engaging areas, their ownership interest peaks. The value of such residential offerings easily qualifies for mortgages with bankers and brokers alike. As a matter of fact, Crosswinds Communities has been so effective building within the city that all of our infill developments have been accomplished without the use of government money.

Built with the best in efficient building practices, these new urban homes have proven to be worth more than their purchase prices. In other words, buyers have been able to build equity simply by purchasing.

Although infill is a small part of the building market, there is nothing more fulfilling to me than to embrace the challenge of helping those who want to live the urban lifestyle in a new home of their own.

Bernard (Bernie) Glieberman has been in real estate, building and development for more than 40 years and is a past president of Building Industry Association.

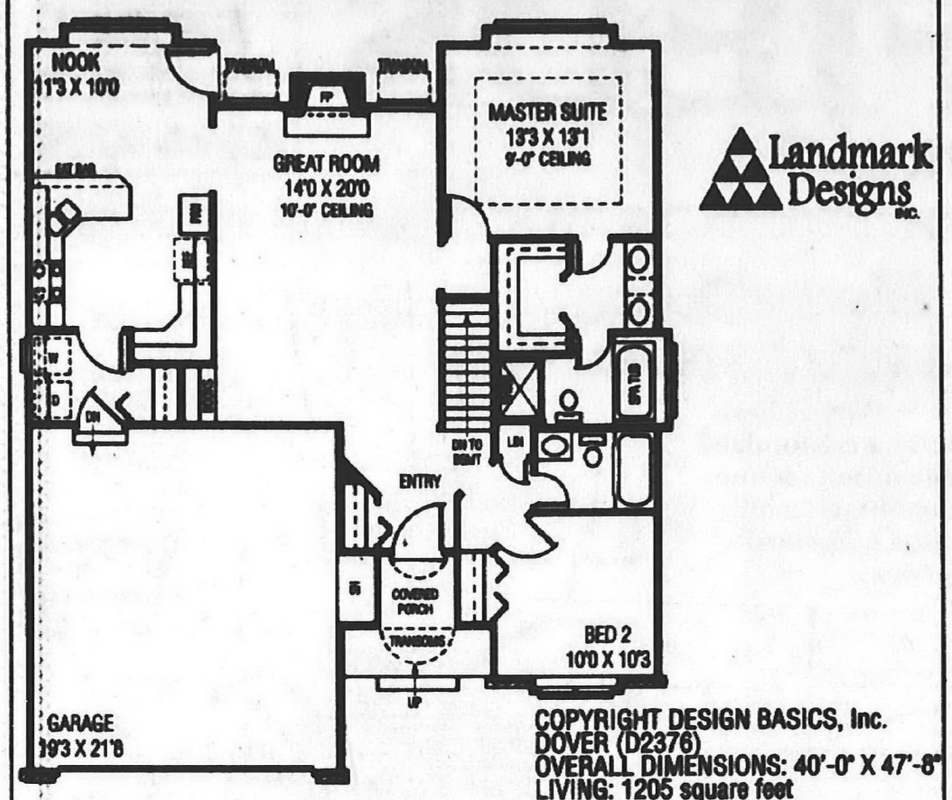
Starter plan may appeal to empty-nesters, too



The facade of the Dover (D2376) is very appealing. It has three gabled roofs that accent the classic lines of the home.

The garage has a slight overhang above the door, the entry has an arch with a half moon window overhead, and the window has a distinct frame casing, all emphasizing the classic look.

Once inside, the great room is straight ahead and the stairs to the optional unfinished basement are on the right.

The Dover has only two bedrooms, both on the right side. The second bedroom is located in front with a window facing the front on the home, and a wall closet on the left. The main bathroom is just off bedroom 2 along with a large linen closet.

The master suite door is located on the other side of the basement stairs. It has a coffered ceiling and a large window facing the back yard. The master bath has dual sinks and a walk-in closet, separated from the rest of the bathroom by a door. It also contains a spa tub, as well as an oversized shower.

With a fireplace at one end, the family room appears elongated. Transoms over the windows on each side of the fireplace adds character to the outside of the home. High ceilings of 10 feet add the feeling of spaciousness to this great room.

The nook and kitchen are on the left side of the Dover, along with a utility room that opens into the two-car garage.

The nook has a large set of windows that provide light for those early morning coffee breaks. There is a door that opens to the back yard. As an ideal place for kids to eat, an eating bar has been added along the counter facing the nook.

This kitchen has been designed in a C shape with twin sinks in the corner. A pantry on the opposite wall is close for putting groceries away. A large amount of counter space has specifically been added to the kitchen to make the preparation of food easier.

The Dover has 1,205 square feet of open living space. Being compact, it would fit on small lots and leave some space for flowers and yard.

For a study plan, including scaled floor plans, elevations and an artist rendering, send $24.95 to Landmark Designs, 33127 Saginaw Road E., Cottage Grove, OR 97424. Specify plan name (Dover) and number (D2376).

Let's Talk About Real Estate

"BEDROOMS AND BATHROOMS"

Two of the biggest determinants of a home's value are its bedrooms and bathrooms. The first two questions asked by one Realtor about another agent's listing is, "how many bedrooms and baths does it have?"

These are also the same features that buyers use when deciding which homes they want to see. A buyer for a four bedrooms home will seldom consider a three bedroom house. It is also true that someone needing three bedrooms usually won't consider four.

The master bedroom is a key factor in most home buying decisions. Its location, size, bathroom access and closet space are carefully considered. The master bedroom has become so important that it can make or break the sale. Certain price ranges demand particular master bedroom features. The attached full bathroom with bathing and or shower facilities is a must with many buyers. In the higher priced homes, it is not unusual to see a bathtub and separate shower. The bathtub may have a built in hot tub. Skylights are popular in many modern bathrooms.

The location of baths also makes a difference. A bath located in the basement usually does not increase a home's value. That same bath located on the main floor could dramatically increase the demand for a certain house.

Many expensive homes are expected to have a powder room adjoining the entrance foyer. Likewise, a half bath just off the entrance to the garage is customary. Two bedrooms that are connected by a bathroom can enhance the desirability of both rooms.

ADVICE: Because of the investment potential of buying a home, it is best to work with a Realtor. Realtors know about many of the little things that affect value.

Winter opens up some job opportunities

By Diane Gale Andreassi
Special Writer

We've all heard of summer jobs, but businesses also hire people for winter stints, too.

Ski instructors, tax preparers, snow removers and skating instructors are in demand as the temperatures drop.

If you like to ski and you're willing to drive to Mt. Brighton Ski Area then there's probably a job for you.

While Lodge Manager Diane Olmstead said she can't pinpoint exactly when she opens every year, it's usually the second week in November "when it's cold enough to make snow."

"The season lasts until the middle of March depending on the weather," she said.

Most Mt. Brighton Ski Area employees live in Brighton, Howell, South Lyon and Pinckney, but anyone willing to commute from other communities is eligible, too.

Many college students are attracted by the free skiing perk to all employees and apply for jobs at the resort during their December winter breaks. Mt. Brighton Ski Area hires a wide range of people from 14 years old to senior citizen age. Minors usually work in the ski rental department and cafeteria and earn $3.50 an hour. The pay rate rises to an average of $10 an hour for other employees. Salary is based on responsibilities and experience, Olmstead said.

Every year after the leaves have fallen, the ski lodge begins looking for instructors, who must pass Mt. Brighton Ski Area tests; security people; chair lift operators; cashiers and a wide assortment of other jobs, including department heads who manage scheduling, inventory and basic overseeing.

Finding people for these positions isn't easy, Olmstead added.

"Nowadays it's hard because there are so many jobs out there and not too many people want a part-time, seasonal job," she said. "We make due with what we have and sometimes the managers end-up working."

Making due during busy times is something that the people at Pete's Heating and Cooling, in Livonia know all about.

The phone is ringing constantly at Petes the first few days of cold weather and the first few days of extremely hot weather when people are making sure their furnaces and air conditioners are working.

"You tend to be really busy when it first gets cold and first gets hot," according to Isa Shatara, who describes his job as the "guy who wears all the hats that no one else wants to wear around here." His brother, Pete, is the owner.

"Then it tapers off to a normal fast pace," he added.

Pete's Heating and Cooling employees are trained for heating, cooling, ventilation and boiler repairs. Finding employees, in general, has been tough, Shatara said.

"We haven't been able to find people for the last year," he explained. "It's almost impossible. There's a lot of construction going on. Either that or the trade schools aren't putting out enough people."

The high demand from customers, plus a low number of employees, equals a lot of overtime.

"You can only accommodate so many people in a day, but you try to help as many people as possible," Shatara said.

The cold winds also bring snow storms and a job market for people to clean sidewalks and driveways.

Cheryl Stepanian, senior citizen coordinator for Garden City, coordinates the Home Chore program, which includes snow removal for 30 senior cit-

JOB SEARCH

GEORGE HAYES

Q. Are there any rules for handling tasteless or blatantly illegal questions in an interview?

A. It usually boils down to a judgment call that requires a quick assessment of the offense and an educated guess about the consequences of a challenge.

What does the offending question reveal about the interviewer or the company? Does it suggest rampant bigotry or sexism, or was it simply a gaffe? Is it consistent with the tone set by other interviewers, or just one bozo who is out of sync with the rest of the world?

Importantly, would you be working closely with this individual or would contact be minimal?

Some people try to put the conversation back on course with a mild rebuke: "Well, I'm not sure that really relates to the job," or "Wow, we're getting off track. Tell me more about the job responsibilities."

Be assured that if you protest in a confrontational way, you will greatly diminish the odds of getting an offer. Maybe that's OK. Maybe you wouldn't want to work for a jerk, anyway. Maybe it's more important to right a wrong. Legal channels are always available. It's your call. I'd like to hear from readers on this one.

Q. After I was let go, a friend told me to expect one month of unemployment for every $10,000 in salary. Is this true?

A. This is a wildly popular, simple-minded cliche that has great potential for hurting people.

If I told you that the average 40-year-old female can run a mile in 14 minutes, would you expect to match her time? Maybe. Maybe not. It would depend on your current physical condition, whether the mile was up hill or down hill, and if you even wanted to run right now.

This job pays $9.50 hourly.

The city will hire people as young as 16 if they're not using machinery. If machinery is used the person must be at least 18 and older and you don't have to be a Garden City resident for the job. Anyone interested in this work should apply at the Garden City personnel department.

"Right now we have two chore workers," Stepanian said. "The problem is when it snows everyone wants their snow shoveled. We fill these positions, but it's hard to keep our workers, because it's seasonal.

"You work more in the summer than the fall and we haven't had a lot of snow to keep our workers busy in the winter season," Stepanian added.

This program is funded through a grant from the Senior Alliance, the Area Agency on Aging and the City of Garden City.

To be eligible for the free snow removal service you must be at least 60 and live in Garden City. Low income and disabled people receive first priority.

The City of Garden City also hires people for after school elementary programs where kids are invited to play flag football and floor hockey before going home. These jobs usually fill quickly.

"We generally have people who come back from year to year," according to Vicki Blitz, Garden City personnel director.

The Garden City parks and recreation department employs skating and hockey instructors during the winter, too.

For the last few years, Blitz said, the city hasn't had a problem filling these part-time positions.

If it's hockey season, it must be time to think about filing income tax returns. The employment market for tax return preparers is the strongest between Jan. 15 and April 30.

Joann Blake, owner of JTS Financial Service in Livonia, begins hiring in the fall to ensure that her employees will be trained and ready to begin work during tax season.

"I've never had to advertise," she said. "I've just done networking and asked people. Generally it takes someone who has the ability to learn."

Blake, who has four employees, sends her workers to tax school.

"And I train them from scratch to work in the office," she said.

Their work, however, isn't done April 15 when taxes are due.

"I consider the season closed about April 30," Blake said. "There are the last people who come in and we have to file extensions and we need to clean up the office."

The work week during the winter months is full-time, plus any over time the employees are willing to do. The rest of the year, her employees work about two days a week concentrating on Blake's bookkeeping practice.

"We offer people flexible hours," Blake said.

Nationwide tax preparers are busy in the winter, too. In fact, during the winter H & R Block hires 10 times the employees they have full time during the spring, summer and fall, according to Neil Getzlow, spokesperson headquartered in Kansas.

From May through December H & R Block has some 10,000 full-time employees in the United States and Canada. Between January and April the staff reaches 100,000 employees.

"We're always looking for people," he said. "Our seasonal work of course swells between January and April."

People from all different walks of life work as tax preparers at H & R Block tax. Since they must complete courses, Getzlow said, recruiters look for potential employees from a list of class graduates.

"Obviously we look for people who want to come back year after year," Getzlow said. "A lot of times we have retired accountants."

Pay rates vary from region to region throughout the United States, he added.

Besides you might be 16 or 106 years old. You might not even be female. So what kind of a target is this? Well, it's one that I just invented.

This "rule" which is repeated daily among candidates in every outplacement office in the country has no credible research to back it up. Even if there was supporting evidence, such a statistic couldn't be applied in a meaningful way because candidates are in such widely differing circumstances.

This silly notion can do nothing more than create negative expectations. Some combination of your own attitude, hard work, market forces and luck will determine how long you are unemployed – nothing else.

Send questions or comments to Job Search, P.O. Box 2497, Southfield, MI 48037 or email george@emplexcorp.com. Please note that it is not always possible to respond to individual questions. Hayes is president of Emplex Corp., a management coaching and employment consulting firm.

Daimler Chrysler mini vans

BY BILL SIURU
AUTOWIRE.NET

Chrysler is credited with inventing the "garage-able" minivan. Since 1983, DaimlerChrysler has been the leading producer of minivans, selling some 8 million worldwide to capture nearly 40 per cent of the North American minivan market.

It is credited with almost 50 minivan firsts, including several for 2001. For its 17th year, Daimler Chrysler has completely redone its minivans.

The minivans come in Dodge Caravan, Chrysler Voyager and Chrysler Town & Country versions.

The Plymouth nameplate, which was attached to the Voyager, is now history.

Dodges come in both short wheelbase Caravan and long wheelbase Grand Caravan form. The Chrysler Voyager is only available with the 113.3-inch wheelbase while the Town & Country comes only with a 119.3-inch wheelbase.

Add SE, Sport, and ES trim levels on Dodges and base, LX, LXi and Limited levels on Chryslers, so even without Plymouth there are 14 models to chose from.

Realizing the minivan's purpose in life — carrying people and lots of stuff — the restyled Daimler-Chrysler haulers are very attractive. The stylists have done a good job in making them quite recognizable as Chryslers and Dodges, mainly through grille designs that are patterned after those used throughout the Chrysler and Dodge product lines.

There are also several engines to choose from starting with a 2.4 liter, four-cylinder engine that is the standard engine in the base Voyager and Caravan SE. This dual-overhead-camshaft (DOHC), 16-valve engine produces150-horsepower at 5200 rpm and 167 foot-pounds of torque at 4000 rpm. These entry-level models come with only a three-speed automatic transmission.

Standard on the Voyager LX, Town & Country LX and LXi, Caravan Sport, Grand Voyager Sport and ES models is a 3.3 liter, overhead valve (OHV), 12-valve, V6. This engine, which is an option on the entry-level models, is rated at 180 horsepower at 5000 rpm and 210 foot-pound of torque at 4000 rpm.

With this engine, the minivans are flexible fuel vehicles in that they can operate on E85 (a blend of 85 per cent ethanol and 15 per cent unleaded gasoline), straight gasoline, or any combination of the two. A 3.8-liter, OHV, 12-valve, V6 is optional on the Grand Voyager ES and Town & Country. This engine, which is standard on Town & Country Limited and on models ordered with all-wheel-drive, produces 215-horsepower at 5000 rpm and 245 foot-pound of torque at 4000 rpm. A four-speed automatic transmission is used with all the V6 engines. Chrysler plans to offer a new, 3.5-liter, 24-valve, SOHC V6 with 230 horsepower engine in March 2001.

In keeping with it reputation as the minivan innovator, DaimlerChrysler offers several new industry "firsts."

Height challenged people will appreciate the powered rear lift gate that goes up and down in only four seconds. Equipped with an obstacle detection system and pinch sensors on the sides to detect hands and other small objects, it also gives a beep-beep sound when in operation.

Also offered are dual powered sliding side doors with obstacle and pinch sensors. Other innovations include an optional center console between the front or middle seats that is removable and includes a 12-volt power port. Incidentally, without the console installed, the space between the front two seats is large enough for easy access to the rear without having to exit the vehicle. Also new is an optional pop-up organizer for grocery bags and other cargo.

I test drove a Dodge Caravan Sport. While not a sports car, nor a truck, handling, steering and braking was very respectable, indeed as good as found in any family-oriented sedans I have tested recently.

Performance from the 3.3-liter V6 was very good and the transmission shifted effortlessly. I was especially impressed with the low wind and road noise. Even at high interstate speeds, it was easy to carry on conversations with those riding in the rear seats.

The minivans come with three rows of seats, two of which are removable with a moderate amount of effort. As in most minivans, visibility in all directions is excellent. The centrally located controls for the radio/cassette/CD and climate controls are a little on the busy side but are easy to operate.

Materials used appear to be of high quality and should wear well, and the more upscale Town & Country has wood styled trim.

Prices for the new minivans start at $19,800 for a bare bones Chrysler Voyager and Dodge Caravan, and you can easily top the $39,000 mark on the window sticker. The list of options and option packages is mind-boggling.

As might be expected, many options are creature comforts for drivers and passengers, including three-zone air conditioning controls, a variety of seats and seating configurations, steering wheel radio controls, several sound systems, and even an overhead video player that is ready for PlayStation 2.

Even though there are lots of great competitors in this segment of the market, DaimlerChrysler is still the minivan leader, especially if you are looking for innovative features and styling.
