Township looks to relocate town hall

BY KURT KUBAN

Plymouth Township officials are actively looking to purchase a property near the corner of Ann Arbor and Haggerty roads to be used for a new municipal complex.

Supervisor Steve Mann confirmed the township is negotiating with representatives from Don Massey Cadillac, which owns the 9.5-acre wooded property.

According to Mann, the township would like to build a complex that would house all its municipal offices on the site, and replace the buildings currently located at Ann Arbor Road and Mill Street.

"We have been negotiating with the Massey people. They are supposed to make us a proposal in the next two weeks. So the earliest anything will take place would be at the July 16 (board of trustees) meeting, when the proposal could be discussed," Mann said.

Replacing the aging municipal buildings has been one of Mann's biggest priorities since tak-

Plymouth Township Trustee Kay Arnold suffered severe burns when a grease fire blazed out of control at her home Friday evening.

According to Plymouth Community Fire Chief Larry Groth, Arnold had a pan of cooking grease on the stove about 6:45 p.m. when she heard a loud crash from an automobile accident outside her home near the corner of Ann Arbor Trail and Francis.

"She went outside to see if she could help the

City creates a youth advisory commission

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

After years of just hanging out in downtown because of "nothing to do," Plymouth's youth will soon have a voice in what kinds of activities and programs will be developed for them.

The Plymouth city commission Monday night created a Plymouth Community Youth Advisory Commission, and city officials are hoping Plymouth Township trustees will approve of the concept to make the project a community-wide youth commission.

The entity is the brainchild of Commissioner Michele Potter, who has carried the torch for the city's young people since being elected in November 1999. It became her push after two teens were ticketed in downtown Plymouth for blocking pedestrian traffic on the sidewalk.

"Teens are creative, and they're more apt buy into things when they consider them their own ideas," said Potter. "This commission can be a forum for them to be creative. I feel it's important we move forward with this because who better to tell us what kinds of programs they want than the users of the programming."

Plymouth's youth appear ready to tell government officials what's in their best interests.

"Kids should always have a say in what they want to do. You don't want adults to plan everything in your life," said Alicia Bashawaty, 12, of Plymouth Township. "It would be fun to plan our own activities. Like Music in the Park, it's for older adults or really young kids. I'd like to see something geared towards teens."

"The youth live in the city too. It shouldn't be just adults making all the decisions," said Marisa Carpinelli, 13, of Plymouth Township. "I'd like to discuss having a later curfew."

Golf course will cater to women and children

BY KURT KUBAN

AT FOX HILLS

Beginning today, golfers can play the new course at the Fox Hills Golf and Banquet Center in Plymouth Township.

Called the Strategic Fox, the 2,500-yard, 18-hole course features all par-3 holes.

The shorter course should attract more newcomers to the game, especially women and children, said Kathleen Dul Aznavorian, who owns Fox Hills with sister Sandy Dul Mily.

"Husbands can introduce their wives to golf, children can play with their grandparents, and juniors can learn the subtleties of the game and its etiquette. Strategic Fox is also good for players seeking to sharpen their short game or don't have time to play 18 holes on a regulation course," Dul Aznavorian said.

The new course was designed by Plymouth-based architect Ray Hearn.

"The Strategic Fox offers a fair challenge to a wide range of golfing abilities. The course starts out with a very user-friendly opening hole and then progressively increases in challenge. All the holes are set in beautiful surroundings," Hearn said.

The course actually opened yesterday, when 80 people participated in a grand opening and ribbon-cutting ceremony.

Fox Hills will hold a grand opening ceremony for everyone Saturday, July 14. Games and contests will take place throughout the day, and refreshments will be available. Adult and child league registration will also take place.

Fox Hills, which has 63 holes, is at 8768 North Territorial. For more information, call (734) 453-7272.

Athletic director leaving district

By Tony Bruscato
Staff Writer
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

Plymouth-Canton Community Schools will be losing its high school athletic director in August.

Brian Wolcott, who has held the position of director of athletics, will be leaving the district Aug. 10 to work for Birmingham Public Schools as dean of the ninth grade.

"I will be working with kids, which is what I miss tremendously," said Wolcott, who has worked in the district for six years. "I'll be helping Plymouth-Canton get through a transition period, working the next few weeks to clean up lose ends."

A replacement for Wolcott has not been announced.

Meanwhile, the board of education has approved the hiring of a new director of transportation and safety.

Melvin Latnie, most recently held the position of transportation director for Lincoln Consolidated Schools in Ypsilanti. Before that, Latnie worked as a transportation supervisor for Ann Arbor Public Schools.

Latnie will replace Marv Bartal, whose contract was not renewed by the district.

PLYMOUTH PIPELINE

Music, music, music

The summer concerts by the Plymouth Community Band begin at 8 p.m. tonight in Kellogg Park. The concerts continue for the next six weeks and end Thursday, July 26. The PCB also makes appearances in downtown Northville on Friday, June 29, at the gazebo and in Frankenmuth on July 4 at the city fireworks display.

Downtown Fridays "Music in the Air" presents the Brother Groove tomorrow (June 22 at 7 p.m.), sponsored by several merchants and the Downtown Development Authority.

Wednesday noon Music in the Park features Guy Lewis' Chautauqua Express next week (June 27.).

Parks for kids program

The city of Plymouth parks and recreation department will once again offer the summer park program to city resident children. This year's program will begin Monday, June 25, and run through Friday, Aug. 10. Hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday-Friday.

The following city parks will be used this summer: Kiwanis Club Park (Auburn and Junction), Rotary Club Park (Wing and Herald), Garden Club Park (Sutherland and Forest), Lion's Club Park (Burroughs and Fairground), and K of C Park (Holbrook and Spring).

Each park will have two leaders, who will provide daily activities for the children. Some of those activities include: active and quiet games, swimming, bowling, movies, skating, stories and field trips. Children may register for this program at the park nearest their home. For further information, call the recreation department at (734) 455-6620.

Circus, circus

Elephants putting up tents? Sure, we've got that. The Plymouth Lions Club will bring the Kelley Miller Circus to Plymouth Saturday, Aug. 4, with shows at 2 p.m. and 5:30 p.m. The pachyderms will help raise the tents at 9 a.m., with the circus setting up by 7:30 a.m. behind Central Middle School.

Co-sponsors are the Plymouth Absopure water outlet and Blackwell Ford. Tickets are $5 for kids and $7 for adults in advance, $6 for kids, and $9 for adults the day of the shows. The Lions Club gets more money from advance ticket sales, so circus-goers are asked to buy admissions in advance. Advanced tickets are on sale at the Trading Post, Wiltse's Community Pharmacy and at Krogers. Call Allen Odell with questions, (734) 459-6081.

Cischke honored

The Municipal Treasurers' Association of the United States and Canada announced today that city of Plymouth Treasurer Teresa Cischke has completed the requirements to earn the certification as a Certified Finance Administrator.

Library on the road

For the second consecutive year, the Teen Services Department of the Canton Public Library is joining with its counterpart in Plymouth to sponsor a summer reading program. "On the Road this Summer" begins Monday and runs through Aug. 14. The reading program offers weekly treats and prize drawings, as well as a chance at the final grand prize drawing at summer's end. Just read some books, listen to music or surf the Web – that's all that's required of program participants. "On the Road this Summer" is open to teens in sixth grade and older. Teens can register in person at either the Canton Public Library or Plymouth District Library. For more information, call Stefanie at the Canton library or e-mail her at: Stefanie@ metronet. lib. mi. us

Award for Huron Valley

Huron Valley Ambulance took both a second- and third-place award in the 2001 Emergency Medical Service Expo statewide competition last month in Grand Rapids.

Sharon Lake and Lori Kimball won second place in the Advance Life Support practical competition.

EMTs Matt Brewer and Steve Hickey won third place in the Basic Life Support practical competition.

Huron Valley Ambulance serves western Wayne and Washtenaw counties and surrounding communities.

Small crowds enjoys first Community Summer Fest

Mother nature didn't exactly lend a hand to the inaugural Plymouth Community Summer Fest, which ran Thursday through Sunday at the Compuware Arena in Plymouth Township. Early summer heat and a thunderstorm Friday evening contributed to smaller than expected crowds.

"The attendance was kind of light, and we didn't achieve all of our goals," said event organizer and Plymouth Township resident Mike Watts. "The first two days we had unbearable heat, and we kind of lost some momentum Friday with the storm."

Despite the weather problems, Watts said the people who did attend enjoyed themselves. The carnival featured rides, games, a classic car show and two days of musical entertainment.

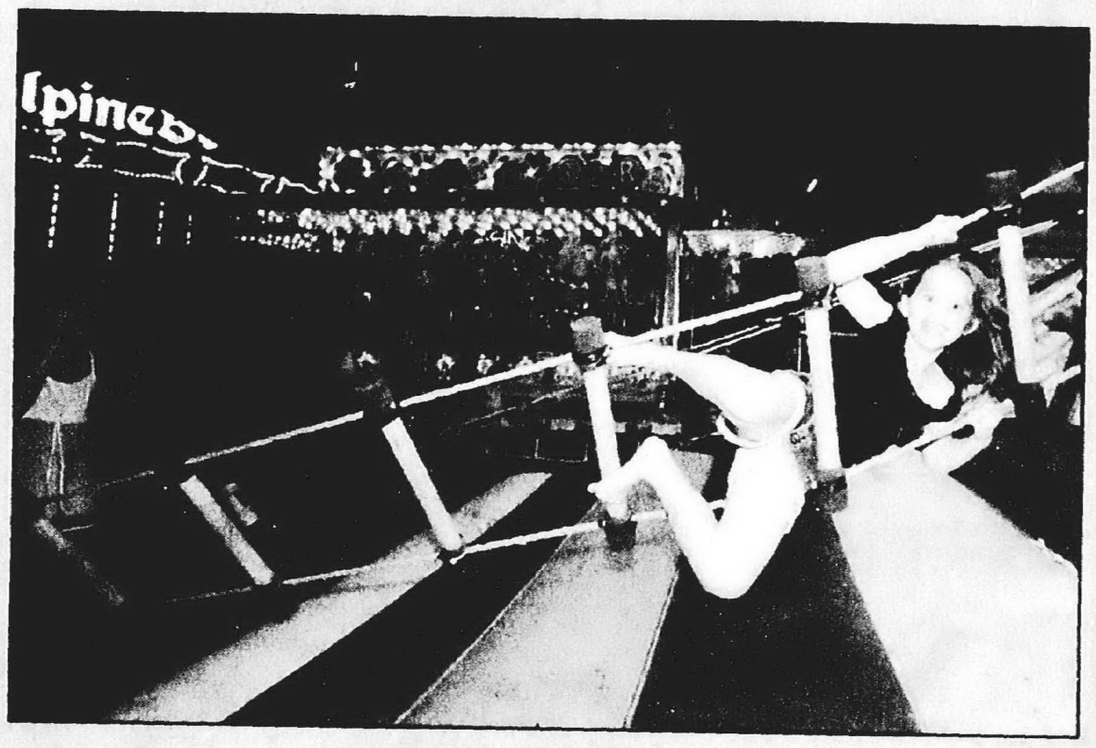

"Everybody that came out had a really good time. And the entertainment was great," Watts said.

As for the event's future, Watts said he is still hopeful it will become as big as other area festivals, such as the Livonia Spree.

"It was a first time event, so you can't expect too much. We haven't really had a chance to sit down and evaluate everything, but everyone is optimistic we will continue this event in the future and it grows into something special for Plymouth Township," he said.

P-C Marching Band will be in Plymouth Fourth parade

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

The Plymouth-Canton Marching Band, which finished second in national competition, will be among the nearly 100 entries in this year's Good Morning USA Fourth of July parade.

"The parents wanted the band to be in the parade, so we decided to do it," said Connie Moore, president of the Music Boosters Association. "The band has been practicing this week for the fall show, so the kids will be ready. They'll be playing traditional patriotic music for the parade.

"The parents are excited about it, and the kids are looking forward to playing," she said. "We're hoping for a big turnout and support."

The Plymouth-Canton Marching Band is the second high school band to enter the parade. The Lincoln High School Railsplitter Marching Band in Ypsilanti responded earlier, saying it will take part in Plymouth's holiday parade.

"It's very difficult to get high school bands to participate in the parade because most of their members are gone for the summer," said Hill. "I'm delighted that we'll have two of them in our parade this year."

The Good Morning USA Parade is the earliest parade in Michigan, with a starting time of 7:30 a.m. Despite the early morning preparations, Hill said this year's parade will be the biggest yet.

"People are still calling me to get in," he said. "By the time it's over, we'll have nearly 100 entries."

This year's parade will begin with a fly-over by two airplanes pulling banners, not unlike the ones seen flying overhead at football and baseball games. Hill said one will read "Welcome to Good Morning USA" with the other pulling this year's theme, "You're a Grand Old Flag."

The parade begins on Main Street at Theodore with the Plymouth Fife and Drum Corps, and continues south to Hartsough. Other entries include a 30-by-50-foot American flag, the Dogmatics, The Incredible Flying Aces, W.P. Cyclone's Magnificent High Wheel Band and Steve King and the Dittilies.

"The quality of the entries just keeps getting better," said Hill, who said this year's parade will cost in the neighborhood of $30,000. "It's all committed for by sponsors. It shows they must like the results they're getting from the parade."

Hill won't have to be concerned about the parade being cut off by a CSX train. A CSX vice president told him they will stop trains from running between 6-9 a.m. to avoid breaking up the flow of the parade.

This year's sponsor is the Kiwanis Club of Colonial Plymouth, which will make up a large portion of the 200 volunteers needed to hold down the helium balloons, carry banners and serve as marshals.

Hill's Creature Bleacher seats are back. For $10 you get a bleacher seat at Main and Penniman, plus a bag of Fourth of July-related goodies. Tickets are available from the Plymouth Community Chamber of Commerce.

City main break closes restaurants

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

The age of Plymouth's infrastructure came to light this week as the Department of Municipal Services worked around-the-clock to repair eight water main breaks in five days.

The break at Ann Arbor Trail and Forest Street shut down a number of businesses, most notably the restaurants in that downtown neighborhood.

"We were closed Monday, and couldn't get open until after lunch time on Tuesday," said Taili Lu, manager of Dinersty. "We couldn't serve our lunch buffet because the water was coming out yellow."

Across the street at E.G. Nicks, the eatery was closed both Monday and Tuesday.

"We had a lot of prep work that couldn't get done because of the water situation," said Grace Kibilko, manager. "If it was going to happen, at least Monday and Tuesday are our slowest days. The phones have been ringing off the hook asking if we're open."

City Manager Paul Sincock said water main breaks during the spring aren't unusual, however the number of them this past weekend was.

"Our infrastructure was put in during the 1930s and 1940s. Plus, we run into problems when Detroit increases the pressure to meet increased summer demands."

A 1980 water study indicated the city should consider replacing water mains. Nothing was done until 1995 when improvements were made in the Garling Subdivision, and on Beech, Byron and Simpson.

In 1999, the city sold nearly $2.7 million in bonds for repairs and replacements to the water and sewer systems in conjunction with street improvements through the year 2000.

Police search for missing girl

BY CAROL MARSHALL
STAFF WRITER

A Canton girl is missing, and her disappearance has her family and police stumped.

Angelica Jennifer Montero, 16, who prefers to be called Jennifer, disappeared after the last day of her sophomore year at Plymouth Canton.

"At first I didn't think she was (prone to be) a runaway, but now I'm not sure," said Canton Police Sgt. Charles Raycraft.

Montero called her mother, Trinidad Estefan, at 7:30 p.m. Thursday to tell her she was at the Westland Shopping Center.

"I told her she had to come home because she was expected at work," in the family's cleaning business Estefan said. "She told me she couldn't make it back because it would take an hour, so I got upset and said, 'Fine I'll just go to work.'" Estefan hasn't heard from her daughter since.

Montero's green 1995 Ford Escort was found Saturday in Southgate. A 21-year-old Detroit man was driving the car, according to Raycraft. Montero's purse and pager were in the car when Michigan State Police stopped the man driving it. The man was questioned and released, but Raycraft said police are continuing to question him.

The Detroit man told police he met Montero at a house party in southwest Detroit. Canton Police and the Detroit Police Gang Unit obtained a warrant to search the house, but did not find Montero. One man at the house was arrested on charges of possession with intent to deliver drugs and possession of guns.

Raycraft said after questioning witnesses at the house, he believes Montero was there sometime last week, but cannot determine when she left.

Jenny Montero

Witnesses said she arrived at the house, on the 4800 block of Trenton, with a girlfriend, another teen from Canton. The other teen has returned home, but said she has not heard from Montero.

Raycraft said some time after Montero's arrival at the house, she left alone on foot.

Raycraft reported the house caught fire Wednesday morning, and arson investigators are looking into the fire.

"Everything is suspicious and things are getting worse and worse," Raycraft said.

Lawrence Tech to offer MBA at site in Plymouth

BY DOUG JOHNSON
STAFF WRITER

■ Business and community leaders will tour the facilities and hear about the program next Monday from 5-8 p.m. Two masters degrees will be offered here; students will attend Saturdays only.

Lawrence Technological University will open an executive education center in Plymouth Township and offer two master's degree programs.

Business and community leaders may attend a reception and tour from 5-8 p.m. Monday, June 25, hosted by LTU in the Michigan Manufacturing Technology Center.

Open houses for prospective students are planned from 5-8 p.m. July 16 and Aug. 23.

The LTU course work at the center can lead to a master's degree in business or a master's of science in industrial operations.

The MMTC is at 47911 Halyard, between Ridge and Beck roads, north of M-14 and south of Five Mile.

The new center will offer the graduate programs beginning this fall, said Charles M. Chambers, Lawrence Tech president.

"Students will be able to pursue master's degrees in business administration or in industrial operations taking classes exclusively on Saturdays. By taking two classes each Saturday, students can earn their degrees in as few as 18 months."

There is a real need for advanced degree programs in western Wayne, where business and industry is rapidly growing, he said.

"Although we offer nearly 50 degree programs at our full-service Southfield campus, the accessibility to the state-of-the-art facilities of the MMTC provide tremendous flexibility and convenience for the area's working adults. We may consider expanding the university's degree programs in Plymouth after the launch of the MBA and MSIO programs.

"The Plymouth-Canton and Livonia school districts are two of the largest providers of undergraduate students at Lawrence Tech, and we are delighted with the high level of community support and interest that already exists."

Classes at Lawrence Tech's Executive Education Center will be taught by the faculty from Southfield.

Expanded offerings

Other programs could eventually be offered in Plymouth, said Steve Ragan, formerly of Plymouth, a past Schoolcraft college trustee and vice president of university advancement at LTU. One such program would be a master of science in information systems.

Accelerated programs are attractive to people who work full-time but want a master's degree to enhance their career opportunities, said Louis DeGennaro, dean of Lawrence Tech's College of Management.

"Lawrence Tech's new Executive Education Center is driven by the core values of program leadership and operational excellence," DeGennaro said. "This center is yet another example of Lawrence Tech's commitment to addressing the ever-changing educational needs of our students and their employers.

"We picked Plymouth and the technology center as an ideal place to offer the masters program. The technology center is very big on linking theory with practice. This is an ideal marriage for us, an ideal place to offer a masters with emphasis on e-business."

It will be a demanding program, DeGennaro said, noting that LTU offers programs in places as far away as British Columbia. MMTC has "state-of-the-art multi-media classrooms," DeGennaro said. About 800 graduate students are enrolled in the LTU college of management.

"We are delighted to partner with Lawrence Tech in making these existing new graduate degrees available to the western Wayne area," said Michael J. Coast, MMTC's president.

For information, students can contact Tricia Hack, graduate admissions counselor at (248) 204-3184 or e-mail ply@ltu. edu

Some already enrolled

Hack said the university has already admitted some students for the program, which begins Sept. 8. The MBA will require the equivalent of 36 semester hours, the MSIO 30 credit hours. Sessions will run from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. with a break for lunch.

She estimates the MBA would take 22 to 25 months and the MSIO 18 months. Students will move through the program in groups. Course work will be offered in modules, and each module is the same as six credits of university graduate work.

Lawrence Technological University (home campus in Southfield) enrolls 5,000 students and offers nearly 50 undergraduate and graduate degree programs in colleges of architecture and design, arts and sciences, engineering and management.

Coming down: One of Plymouth's oldest manufacturing facilities was under the wrecking ball the last few days as workers tore down the Plymouth Stamping plant on Ann Arbor Road. The land will eventually be the new home of Sunshine Honda. The site will have to be cleared of contaminants before the dealership building can be built. The township made it a brownfield site to help with clean-up costs; the new dealership will cost about $5 million.

Amateur Radio Field Day set for weekend

The Stu Rockefellow Amateur Radio Society of Plymouth will join with hundreds of amateur aadio clubs across the country to participate in Field Day 2001, June 23 and 24.

Field Day is sponsored by the American Radio Relay League. The object is "To work as many stations in less than optimal conditions. A premium is placed on developing skills to meet the challenges of emergency preparedness as well as to acquaint the general public with the capabilities of Amateur Radio." The event will be held at Plymouth Township Recreational Park at Ann Arbor Trail and McClumpha roads in the baseball diamond area.

The Stu Rockefellow Amateur Radio Society supports emergency communications when requested for the city of Plymouth, Plymouth and Northville townships. The club invites the public to come to the Field Day site and to also visit their Web site at www.qsl.net/w8njh.

City swears in two new officers

BY TONY BRUSCATO
STAFF WRITER
tbruscato@oe.homecomm.net

Plymouth residents will soon see two new police officers walking the beat and patrolling city streets.

City Clerk Linda Langmesser on Monday swore in Matthew Stoops, 23, and Chris Lahtinen, 31, bringing the department to 16 officers.

"These two recruits will be a great addition to the force," said Acting Chief Wayne Carroll. "With the recent retirement of several officers, they bring youth and new blood to the department."

Lahtinen, who was working as a police officer in Seattle the past five years, considers working in Plymouth a homecoming of sorts.

"We have family living in Livonia, so it will be like a reunion," he said. "Plymouth is a nice area to work in. It has a great sense of community."

Stoops, a graduate of the police academy at Grand Valley State University, served an internship in Northville Township.

"In a smaller department you have a sense of brotherhood, and that's what I like," he said. "I believe in the community policing program, and I love working with kids."

■ The city is looking for at least one more officer to fill its police ranks. The force currently has 16 officers.

Carroll said the selections of Lahtinen and Stoops were made with community policing in mind.

"They are committed to the concept," said Carroll. "They're an indication of the type of police officer we're looking for."

Carroll said he is looking for one more police officer to complete the department. That position will be paid for with the help of a federal grant for three years.

Say it with Flowers

by Steve Mansfield

LUSH AND FULL-BODIED

With their full-bodied flower heads, it is difficult to overlook peonies. These heavy-headed blooms are available in many shades, from deep crimson to pale pink, peach and white. The flower can be single, semi-double or double. In some varieties, the stamens are replaced with tiny, narrow petals that are of a different color than the rest of the flower. These lush, romantic blooms are familiar as country garden flowers, but they can take on a contemporary look when a monochromatic bunch is displayed in a brightly colored vase. Using a vase with a flared top, create a grid of transparent tape to hold the top-heavy flowers upright. Leave the stems in the center slightly longer to create a domed effect.

Learn more about flowers at HEIDE'S FLOWERS & GIFTS, located at 995 W. Ann Arbor Trail, Plymouth, or visit our website at www.heidesflowers.com. Lawmakers get their first look at LinkMichigan plan

BY MIKE MALOTT
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

The state's LinkMichigan program, a plan to build a network of "broadband" cabling throughout Michigan, may bring high speed Internet access to businesses and residents here sooner, but lawmakers are concerned it could slow down competition later on.

"We don't want to create disincentives for advancement by forcing people to buy access to high speed Internet services to that one provider," Rep. Buzz Thomas, D-Detroit, said. "Instead, shouldn't we be energizing the market so that more than one provider is here to spur competition?"

The Michigan Economic Development Corporation has proposed LinkMichigan because it has concluded high speed access to the Internet is not developing here as quickly as it is elsewhere. Of municipalities with fiber computer networks already in place nationwide, no Michigan city ranks even among the top 25. New York, Los Angeles, Houston and Atlanta lead the way. But Salt Lake City and Jacksonville, Florida currently have more broadband available even than the Detroit area.

"We are already hearing some frustration from auto company suppliers who have to link up at faster speeds but can't get the service in their areas," said Robert Filka, vice president of strategic initiatives for the MEDC. He said he believed it would not be long before those suppliers are forced to hook up at higher speeds or lose their contracts. "If we don't do this, in the next two years will you will see an outcry from small- and medium-sized businesses across the state."

First look

Representatives of the House Energy and Technology Committee got their first look at the MEDC's LinkMichigan proposal in a recent hearing. The plan is for the state to contract with a company to build and maintain a "high-speed backbone" to schools, state offices and municipal offices throughout the state, giving them access to broadband service. Excess capacity would then be sold to companies in the private sector who also need access to high speed computer networks.

Filka said the state is planning to put out a request for proposals for the construction of that system this fall.

Lawmakers would have to take action in several areas for the project to go ahead. For one, the state would need information on where telecommunications companies are already planning to place cabling for high speed services, so the state would know what exists and where gaps in the network need to be filled.

That alone poses concerns for some lawmakers. Thomas and Rep. Joseph Rivet, D-Bay City, say they believed that would be tantamount to ordering companies to turn over "proprietary information to make the MEDC's job easier."

Filka also called for a one-stop permit and license application system for laying cable. Currently, rights of way are managed by local municipalities, which set up their own application systems and fees.

One-stop process

Gov. John Engler has already proposed to standardize the process and costs. The MEDC proposes the one-stop permitting process should be placed under the control of the Michigan Public Services Commission.

Rep. Bob Brown, D-Dearborn Heights, said he wants to see more information from the MEDC on the proposal before he gives it his support.

"I want to see your business case. Are we going to get out money back out of it?" he asked. "What's are return on our investment going to be."

Filka responded by saying the MEDC anticipated a large amount of investment in the state by companies that want to hook up to high speed access.

The MEDC has completed an inventory of Internet access in the state and found that most businesses are still working on dial-up modems. Nothing faster than a T-1 line is available in Michigan. Digital Subscriber Lines and cable modems are being developed here by private companies, but remain unavailable in most of the state.

"Access to high-speed telecommunication services is the most important state infrastructure issue for the new century," according to the MEDC's LinkMichigan proposal report. "Whether for business, government, healthcare or educational purposes, higher speed access is increasingly becoming a necessity – not a luxury. Michigan is a recognized leader in competing for new business growth and attracting and retaining a world-class workforce, but unless greater telecommunications access becomes available to all parts of the state, Michigan stands to lose its prominence."

State travel will top last year's

PRNewswire – Travel Michigan, the state's official tourism promotion agency, has released estimates predicting a summer travel season that will top last year's. The prediction is based on an online survey of more than 2,000 Americans, focus group studies and analysis of national and local tourism and economic data.

The April online survey, which polled 2,221 Americans who travel in the spring and summer, revealed that 79 percent anticipate taking as many or more trips as they did last year. More than one-third, 39 percent, expect to take fewer leisure trips by plane, whereas only 17 percent indicate they will cut back on car travel.

"We believe we're going to top last year by about two percent, and there are a few reasons for that," said Dana Lee Cole, managing director of Travel Michigan. "When people start taking fewer expensive trips, Michiganders react by staying in their home state for fun.

The survey, which was conducted by the research firm Davidson-Peterson Associates, Travel Michigan's research supplier, found that people expect to travel a little farther by car this year than last and to stay overnight in paid accommodations as much or more than last year.

Travelers may obtain Michigan travel information by visiting the Travel Michigan web site at www.michigan.org ; or by calling toll-free 888-78-GREAT (784-7328), Monday through Friday.

In an e-mail to City Manager Paul Sincock, Plymouth Township Supervisor Steve Mann appears ready to give his stamp of approval.

"We would be happy to embrace a joint youth commission. Perhaps we should explore some citizen involvement, or seat, on the commission as well," said Mann.

Potter said she envisions the Youth Commission to be an 11-member group, with teens ages 13-17 involved. Some of the appointees would come from the Plymouth Youth Leadership classes through an application process. It hasn't yet been determined how the other board members will be chosen.

"The minimum responsibilities will be to act in an advisory capacity for the City of Plymouth and the Charter Township of Plymouth in matters pertaining to youth and teen populations in the community," said Potter, "to foster increased involvement in affairs of municipal government, to study issues and hold forums on activities and concerns of the Plymouth community youth, and recommend implementation of community programs.

"It's my sincere desire that the youth commission members create their own agenda and tackle their own issues, with the guiding hand of the city, township ... and devoted adults," said Potter.

people involved in the accident. When she returned, a fire had flared up from the pan and ignited some cupboards and the ceiling," Groth said. "She tried to smother it with a pan cover, and then she carried it outside. That is when she was burned."

Groth said Arnold suffered first degree burns to her chest and neck, as well as first and second degree burns on her right arm and hand. Firefighters, responding to the car accident, entered Arnold's house, but the fire had burned itself out. Groth estimated the damage to her home to be in the neighborhood of $10,000.

Arnold was transported to St. Mary Hospital, treated for her injuries and released Friday night. However, Groth said the burns were worse than originally thought.

"She called me over to take a look at her arm on Saturday. It was blistered pretty badly and causing her some pain, so I recommended she go to the University of Michigan Burn Center, which she did on Saturday," he said.

On Wednesday, doctors at the Burn Center performed skin graft surgery on Arnold's arm.

Arnold was recently elected to her third term as a trustee.

Band, boosters to fete McGrath

The Plymouth-Canton Marching Band will perform at the high school football field Friday at 7 p.m.

Following the performance, the boosters will hold a farewell reception for band director Dave McGrath, who is leaving to take a similar job in Texas.

Liberty Fest starts

The four-day Canton Liberty Fest extravaganza starts today and will be held in Heritage Park, behind the Canton Administration Building and Library, just west of Canton Center Road between Cherry Hill and Summit Parkway.

The festival will once again begin Thursday night with a family night. Chautauqua Express will perform a show in the amphitheater at 7:45, followed by an outdoor showing of Toy Story 2 at dusk.

Perhaps the favorite of traditions is the Saturday night fireworks display. Visitors are encouraged to arrive early.

ing office this year.

"I've been looking to fix this problem since I was elected. We have an eyesore for a town hall. It's an embarrassment. The buildings are inefficient and falling apart," he said. "If we are able to buy the Massey property, we would have all of our municipal offices under one roof in a nice spacious, park-like atmosphere."

According to Mann, the complex would be built along Haggerty, just behind the Bill Knapps restaurant. There would also be a main entrance along Ann Arbor Road.

During a closed session last week, Mann and the rest of the board of trustees reportedly discussed getting the current 3.4-acre township hall property appraised.

There have been reported accounts that Walgreens is looking to buy the property and build a drugstore on the corner of Ann Arbor and Mill. Brent Circle, who works for the realty division at the Walgreens corporate headquarters in Deerfield, Ill., said the chain has been actively looking to locate a store within the township for nearly three years.

However, he said there are no ongoing negotiations between him and the township about the town hall property.

"I have heard those rumors too. But the fact is we prefer to be more farther west than that location, because that is where the heart of the community is," he said. "We would like to be in the township, but we just can't find the right location. There is nothing available on a corner, and we need a corner."

In the past several years, Walgreens has attempted to build a store on two of the corners at the intersection of Sheldon and Joy roads, but was unable to get either Plymouth or Canton townships to rezone the area for such commercial use.

Circle said it is possible a local developer could be negotiating with the township without his knowledge. Typically Walgreens will lease a building from a local developer.

Mann offered no comment about the Walgreens connection.

Trustee Abe Munfakh said he is not necessarily in favor of moving the location of the municipal buildings.

"My first choice is to rebuild town hall on the current site. We have been there a long time, and the residents are used to going to that location," he said. "That said, I don't mind exploring the Massey property. If we can buy that property for less than we could get for the current property, I would be for the move."

'We're not cheaters' educators tell state lawmakers

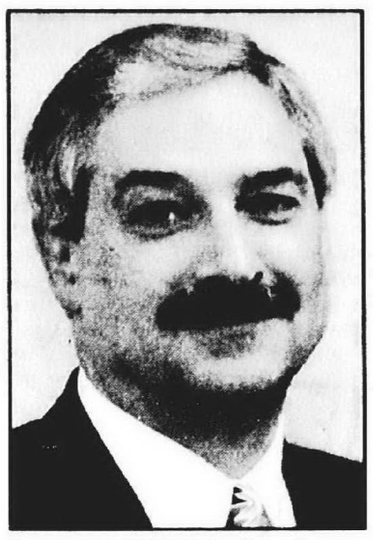

BY MIKE MALOTT
HOMETOWN NEWS SERVICE
mmalott@homecomm.net

"We're not cheaters" was the message dozens of superintendents sent to state lawmakers at a hearing on the MEAP test Thursday, June 14, in Lansing.

And despite a "sincere" apology from state Treasurer Doug Roberts for releasing the names of 71 schools where "irregularities" were spotted in MEAP test answers, educators say the damage has already been done.

"I am here today to sincerely apologize for the way this issue has unfolded," Roberts said at the outset of a special joint meeting of the Senate and House Education committees.

"Obviously, it was never the state's intention that schools, teachers and students be subjected to what was essentially an indictment of their integrity. I can't go back and undo what happened this year, but I can learn an important lesson about how this issue will be handled in the future. I can assure everyone here today, as well as a school officials throughout Michigan, that there will be no future press conferences about test irregularities prior to school districts being contacted for response."

Michael Wilmot: Garden City School Superintendent

■ 'Once this had been reviewed, you will find there is nothing improper here. But the accusation has been made and it cannot be corrected ... The damage has been done. The kids know they have been accused of cheating.'

Michael Wilmot
Garden City Schools Superintendent

Responded to leak

He explained he felt compelled to put out all the information about irregularities – which may indicate cheating or "teacher interference" – because a reporter had obtained a copy of the list through a leak.

Roberts said he realized later he should have simply refused to confirm the list for that reporter.

Sen. Loren Bennett, R-Canton, called Roberts a "class act" for apologizing and accepting responsibility so quickly. "How often do you see that in government these days?" he asked.

Bennett, chair of the Senate Education Committee, predicted that when the Treasury Department completes its review of the irregularities and the responses from school districts that it will find a few instances of actual cheating, but "the vast majority" will be exonerated.

"I look at that one example, out of a class of 20 in which six students gave identical answers, three sentences long, with every word spelled correctly. I find that a bit beyond chance," he said. Although that "irregularity" was included in a set of examples, the Treasury Department has not identified which school it came from.

Explanations given

Of the superintendents who appeared before his committee, most gave perfectly reasonable explanations for the "irregularities" seen in their test results. He noted that the original list of irregularities, after test scorers were done grading, included more than 400 schools.

Educators tossed out many of those on review, paring the list to 71. Roberts told lawmakers that what had been include as "irregularities" were test answers in which different students had answers that were virtual copies, different handwriting in a single answer, identical phrasing in different students' answers, and vocabulary that was inconsistent with the grade level of the student.

Test reviewers explained how they spotted irregularities. They said they were looking for similarities in large numbers. It's not practical for more than two or three students to copy each other's answers. But when eight answers are identical or very similar, it may indicate "teacher inference."

Garden City Superintendent Michael Wilmot explained why the phrase "descendants of Native Americans" showed up in the answers of five students at Memorial Elementary School. They had had a teacher who was married to a Native American and instructed the children that the term "Indian" is derogatory. So when asked about who migrated to North American in prehistoric times, students answered "descendants of Native Americans." That's an incorrect answer, Wilmot noted. It should have been "ancestors."

"Once this had been reviewed, you will find there is nothing improper here," he said. "But the accusation has been made and it cannot be corrected ... The damage has been done. The kids know they have been accused of cheating."

No fix

Of Roberts' comments, Wilmot said, "I accept his apology but it doesn't fix it."

Wilmot noted that the information was released one day before an election in Garden City for $36 million in bonds. While it still passed, he said several parents told him they would not vote for it because "cheating" was going on in the school district.

Oak Park's Pepper Elementary made the list because several students mentioned Oakwood Street in their essay answers to a question asking them to tell about a time when they got lost.

"Oakwood is three blocks from the school, and it's five blocks long. We have a lot of students who live on Oakwood," Superintendent Alexander Baily said.

But beyond that, he couldn't find any similarities in their answers.

Baily said the state handed out examples that constituted the worst irregularities seen in the test, but others, like those in his school district, were much less clear.

"How do you even assess irregularities when you have only one or two answers to look at?" he said.

Bailey contended that the state should indeed be reviewing the test for irregularities and cheating. But he said the release of the information, before it was reviewed by the schools, hurt students.

"They need to make sure the integrity of the school district is protected," Bailey said. "They also have to protect the integrity of the information about test. And it isn't fair to put the kids on the firing line."

Northville Superintendent Len Rezmierski said Winchester Elementary appeared on the list because several students, when asked for an example of problem solving, wrote about an issue at the school in which a playground had been taken over for parking space. Several had used the phrase "more parking for parents and teachers."

The issue was on the minds of students about the time the MEAP was taken, he said. "We tried to make it a civics lesson for them," he explained.

No response time

Rezmierski said he supported the state's review of the test for possible cheating. He said he didn't even mind answering their questions when they had concerns about the answers students gave.

What made him angry was that his school was named publicly 24 hours before he even had a chance to see what the concerns were.

"Accusing somebody without giving them a chance to defend themselves is wrong in our society," he said. "Our school, our teachers and our students have been tarnished."

Rezmierski wasn't satisfied with Roberts apology. He wants a letter of vindication.

"A mistake was made. We can try to make the most of it, we can say to the students, 'What did we learn from this,'" he said. "But how are we going to do that now that school is out?"

The Treasury Department has already taken two schools off the list, Brighton's Hornung Elementary and Lynch Elementary in Detroit. They were misidentified in being placed on the list. The "irregularities" apparently came from other schools.

Responses from those school districts that did have irregularities were due back to state by the end of last week. The Treasury Department will review the explanation and issue a report at the conclusion.

Roberts said the responses would be carefully reviewed and only one response will be issued when the review is complete.

"We are not going to get into doing a release-of-the-week," he said.

Leave Central issue with schools for now

Hopefully the school board can stay out of the cross hairs of city commission politics. Central (old Plymouth High) has been on that little rise of land for 85 years. Let's honor all the students and staff that have been in that building and keep the debate civil.

You can count on hearing a lot the next few months about saving Central Middle School. It will be the talk of downtown, and is likely to be an issue – rightly or wrongly – in the upcoming City Commission race, which includes a runoff primary in August.

Emotions are running high because the school is a landmark and was once Plymouth High School.

The school district recently released a facilities report projecting needs in the future. Amid the details of the report was the indication that Central Middle School in downtown Plymouth would cost $17 million to renovate and $22 million to replace. Money has been spent at the school including extensive energy saving work in the '80s.

Central was the subject of a contentious meeting at the Library last Thursday night. The meeting was organized by city commissioner David Byers, who is running for re-election.

Among the many worries, and conflicting points of view:

■ The new middle school would be built in Canton (because that's where the population growth is). After all, Plymouth and Plymouth Township have East and West and Pioneer.

■ The land could be sold for top dollar by the district with condominiums or something less attractive built.

■ The city planning commission is looking at Central to see if the existing master plan use for the land is appropriate.

■ The school would be torn down and the rather large piece of property sold or given to the city for a big park.

■ The city, the city commission, the city planning commission and the schools could easily get embroiled in controversy as various factions battle over what to do. After all, just look at what's happening in Livonia as the city and schools try to settle the issue of the old Rosedale School property in the Rosedale area (just south of Plymouth Road between Merriman and Farmington). That school was torn down and there was a prolonged city-school-residents debate about what to do with the land. Monday the school board stunned residents and sold the land to a developer.

■ Finally, a certain faction wants to keep the building as a school or recreation facility, restoring it for its innate historical value.

Our hope is that the school board stays calm in the storm that seems to be Plymouth city politics. In the end Central's fate is the school trustees' decision. Our sense is that action on Central is months, probably years, away. The school district has plenty on its plate including a need for another elementary school and funding the opening and operation of the third high school.

Recent indications from the board about what the budget looks like for 2002, 2003 and 2004, and the school facilities report, point to a board carefully weighing the future.

Hopefully the school board can stay out of the cross hairs of city commission politics.

Central (old Plymouth High) has been on that little rise of land for 85 years. Let's honor all the students and staff that have been in that building and keep the debate civil.

The MEAP 'irregularities' probe has to continue

Allegations of "irregularities" on Michigan Educational Assessment Program testing at 70 schools have turned into a public relations fiasco for the beleaguered tests.

State Treasurer Doug Roberts, whose agency runs MEAP testing for the state, apologized to school superintendents at a four-hour hearing in Lansing last Thursday. The school chiefs' main complaint: A list of the suspected schools was leaked to the media before the schools had a chance to see, and to respond to, the charges.

In major TV news shows and the daily newspapers "irregularities" became "cheating."

Garden City's usually calm superintendent Mike Wilmot was among the most upset, saying that Roberts apology doesn't "fix the wrong" done to students and staff at one of the accused schools, Memorial Elementary in Garden City.

Some state lawmakers are adding their opinions to the chorus of boos for Roberts.

State Sen. Gary Peters from Bloomfield Township wants to send MEAP back to the Michigan Department of Education where it was administered before a 1999 executive order from Republican Gov. John Engler sent the testing program to Treasury.

"School districts were unfairly convicted of cheating by the media before they were ever given a chance to respond because noneducators in the Treasury Department mishandled the situation. Education testing is too important to be given to people who don't understand education," Peters said Monday.

Careful readers will note that Peters is a likely candidate for governor in the Democratic primary. But he has a good point – the tests belong with educators, who might have been more sensitive to the consequences of releasing the report.

The important issue here is not bad PR for Treasury or that the Treasury shouldn't be administering the tests, it is: Did some students and, presumably, some teachers, cheat on MEAP tests? Unfortunately, all the white noise surrounding the recent MEAP events has obscured the fact that test checkers found something wrong with some of the answers to fifth grade science or writing, and eighth grade social science "structured response" or essay questions.

Test checkers documented cases where it was apparent these essay questions had exactly worded answers repeated by several students.

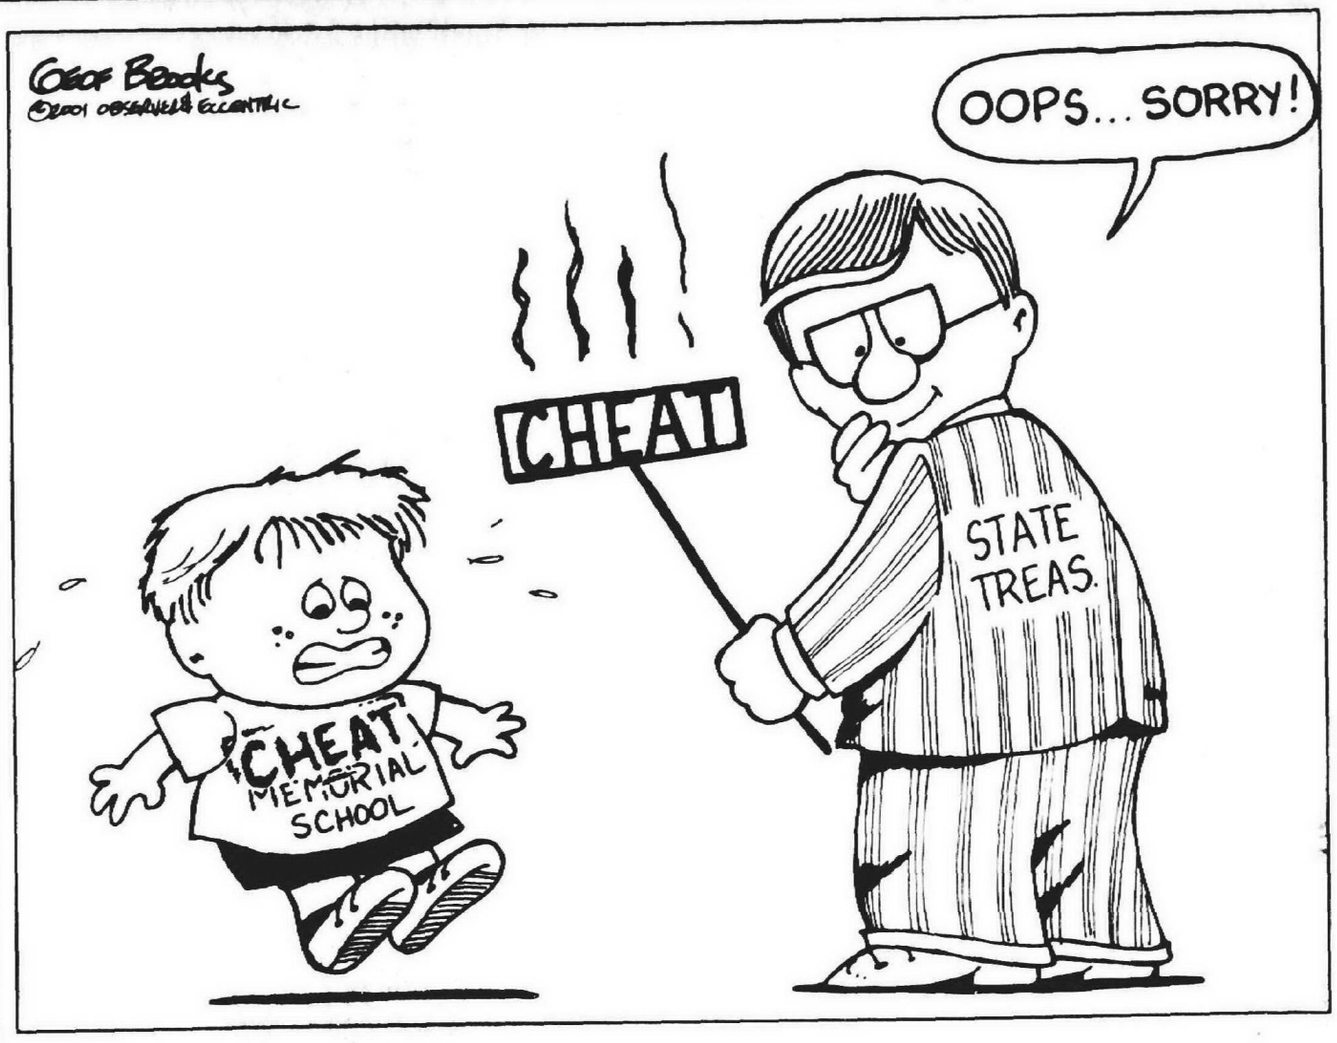

Many superintendents told a joint meeting of the House and Senate education committees last week that test answer similarities were the result of good preparation of the students for the test. Wilmot even walked legislators through Garden City's fifth grade textbook showing the source of a phrase about descendants of native Americans. His point: His kids had been taught well.

Stakes are admittedly high in the MEAP testing sequences. Schools can get a $50,000 Golden Apple Award for good results; high school students can earn a $2,500 scholarship. Good district MEAP scores are reportedly being used by Realtors to help sell homes in certain ZIP codes.

All 50 states are involved in some kind of performance testing of their public school students, according to Education Week Web magazine; 27 states hold schools responsible for results. Governors argue that the states are paying billions of dollars a year for an educational system and there must be some accountability.

Any uncanny sameness in what students wrote cannot go unchallenged by the state. While Roberts continues to deal with press leaks and bad publicity for the MEAP, the state must get full responses from the suspected schools.

Settling the nagging unrest about the MEAP depends upon it.

■ Central meeting

Thank you for attending and supporting Plymouth's first Town Hall Meeting to discuss the future of Central Middle School last Thursday evening. I appreciate you taking time out of your busy schedule to join your fellow residents and share your views. It was truly inspirational to see the commitment to our community and listen to the passion many residents expressed.

Your concern for Central Middle School and the role it will play in the future of our children and community are of utmost importance to me. It is clear we share the same opinion; that residents care, and that we must have input regarding the future of this significant issue prior to any decision being made by the Plymouth-Canton Community School Board.

We take pride in our community. Your voice counts. Let's continue the momentum and work together to develop the best solution for our community. The Central Middle School Action Committee has been formed and will meet in the near future to determine the next steps to be taken. If you have any questions or comments, please contact me at 453-3051.

In Partnership for a Strong Community

■ Some errors

I am pleased to have this opportunity to thank each of you (all the press) and all of you for the obituaries you carried in your April editions describing my dear wife, Ruby McClendon. This helped a lot of her friends to learn of her passing. There were, however, some errors which crept in and merit correction.

Perhaps the one regarding her years as a Methodist is the most apparent. Several of the papers said she had been a Methodist since 1966. She would roll over in her grave if she knew this had been said of her long life as a Methodist.

Her mother was a Baptist but an old and favorite aunt, who took her and her twin sister to the Methodist Church where she attended, made the greater impact.

She was attending Christ Methodist Church in Oklahoma City when I met her; we were married there in 1950 and our first two children were christened there. When we moved to Michigan we immediately transferred our membership to the Northville Methodist Church. Our third and last child was christened there. Speaking of our youngest child, one year when she was in about grade 6, she asked her mother if she could go to the Baptist Church across the street where most of her friends went. Ruby volunteered to go with her if she wanted (typical of Ruby) and of course, the child did want her.

So the two of them attended there for almost two years but neither of them moved their membership. Both of our daughters were married in the Methodist Church in Plymouth and we were active members all through the years. Ruby did innumerable volunteer jobs in the church. No task was too small or menial for her to serve her church for more than 50 years.

Her father's name is recorded as "A" Jackson Scott. Correctly his name was William or W. Jackson. One account said she died Aug. 8 rather than April 8. Perhaps this should be ignored as a typographical error as should the spelling of her sister's home town as Peteau rather than Poteau.

The fact that she was a descendant of the Cherokee tribal ancestry and her birthplace of Tahlequah is the Cherokee national tribal capital is more relevant than the minor facts listed above or perhaps that she was a Girl Scout Leader or that she served the mentally challenged children which she taught, defending them when they were confronted in school and she welcomed them to visit her at her home after they were no longer in any of her classes.

Some of them and their parents continued to send her letters and holiday cards up to the present.

It is my hope that as you look through this expanded list of things Ruby McClendon did for others, you will get a better view of what a kind, loving and caring person she was.

■ Libbing thanks

I would very much like to thank the many friends, relatives, neighbors, and colleagues who supported me in my recent campaign for the Plymouth-Canton School Board. It was most gratifying to experience this.

I had never before run for an elective office; it was quite interesting and illuminating.

The truly great thing about this particular election was that it was conducted in a cordial, courteous, respectful manner. I truly enjoyed talking with and listening to the other candidates.

The only sad aspect was that, to 95 percent of the community, it apparently was an obscure non-event, not worthy of interest or effort. This is most unfortunate, because our community is going to continue to face prodigious problems and issues, and the school board members need to have input and support from the citizens they represent.

Tom Wysocki will be a great addition to the board. He is an honest, credible and skillful person. Had I not been running, I would have voted for him.

I hope to remain active and productive in some manner in our school district. I feel that I still have some skills and knowledge that I can contribute.

Again, thanks!

■ Limits

As long as the population of this country is increasing at such rapid rate, like in third world countries, your saying that "the growth is inevitable" (Sprawl issues affect the details of our lives, June 7, 2001 by Phil Power), is certainly accurate appraisal of what is to be expected in the way of sprawl. Not only that; environmental destruction – pollution of air, water, and earth will get worse, so will crime, extinction of species of all kinds, old diseases, and new will appear, etc. Man caused worsening of climate will continue. Societal peace and tranquility will be farther disturbed.

This country is quickly becoming an overpopulated, over-polluted, unstable, exploited and manipulated by foreign interests third world country.

In civilized European countries the population growth is minuscule, in some of them even negative. This beautiful country of ours, its beauty being destroyed in consequence of the overpopulation, can comfortably accommodate no more than 120 million people.

■ No closure

The execution of Timothy McVeigh makes him forever a martyr. However, Sirhan, Sirhan ... to the majority of this country and especially its youth is a relatively unknown.

Closure is a state of mind. Closure is not something that comes after an act or action.

The death penalty in the end is only another homicide with a guarantee than an individual cannot kill again. The same result is achieved by a life term without any chance of parole!

■ Gun would help

In Brad Kadrich's article on the Plymouth shooting (In society today, safety is never a certain feeling, Observer, June 7) why wasn't the right to carry a concealed firearm mentioned?

Sir, you mention that a piece of paper (PPO) did not save her; neither did calling 911. If she had the right to carry a concealed weapon, perhaps she might still be with us.

I know this is a touchy subject, but having the right to protect ourselves, and our loved ones is not a touchy subject, it's common sense.

Thrash over MEAP issues an outburst in the making

The brouhaha over the MEAP test furnishes evidence of just how emotional and confused education policy has become.

The Department of Treasury compiled a list of 71 schools in 21 districts that it said indicated "irregularities" in MEAP test results. Parts were leaked to a Lansing reporter, who then bulldozed the department into releasing the whole thing.

Phil Power

The vulture components of the media beast immediately jumped on the story, quickly translating "investigate irregularities" into "MEAP test cheating" without bothering to dig much into the detail.

Turns out Treasury screwed up big time. One school – Brighton's Hornung Elementary – was on the list by mistake, and another – Northville's Winchester Elementary – seems entirely innocent. There are likely a few examples of outright cheating in the stuff now being looked at, but the vast majority of "irregularities" are probably just that – odd but perfectly innocent similarities in some test answers that in no way suggest cheating.

School people, already anxious about budget cuts being threatened for next year and busy with end-of-year activities, were furious.

Leonard Rezmierski, superintendent of the Northville district, fired off a representative letter to Treasury officials: "I am very disappointed in the method by which the Department of Treasury chose to announce the allegations and, therefore, to humiliate and discredit the reputation of the fine educators at Winchester Elementary School ... Receiving the phone call from Mr. Bob Nelson, at approximately 12-12:15 p.m. on Thursday, June 8, but not receiving the specific concerns until Friday at 12:35 p.m., caused me to deal with multiple media for 24 hours, as being guilty as charged without having any knowledge of the specific allegations. The incredible devastation that this caused the teaching staff, administration, students and parents at Winchester, as well as the entire district, is unconscionable."

Wisely, State Treasurer Doug Roberts apologized last week: "I am here today to sincerely apologize for the way this issue has unfolded. Obviously, it was never the state's intention that schools, teachers and students be subjected to what has been portrayed as an indictment of their integrity."

The fact that Roberts, one of the most capable and decent people in state government, has taken responsibility removes the incident from the realm of evil personal intention and allows us to consider the structural issues underlying the flap. Three main points come to mind.

First, whether the Engler Administration intended it or not, most school people in Michigan feel that the mentality of the state toward public education is one of suspicion and mistrust. Advocating more charter schools, favoring publicly financed vouchers for private and parochial schools, attacking unions and casting doubt on the ability of teachers is hardly the way to win friends. Given the background, the thrash over MEAP "cheating" was an outburst just waiting to happen.

Administration of the MEAP test and managing the merit awards that stem from good results are, mysteriously, in the hands of the Department of Treasury, taken by executive order from the Department of Education.

Second, there are no clear lines of authority in Michigan's structure of public education. Administration of the MEAP test and managing the merit awards that stem from good results are, mysteriously, in the hands of the Department of Treasury, taken by executive order from the Department of Education. Members of the State Board of Education, independently elected statewide, have the constitutional responsibility to set education policy. But the board's newly selected Superintendent of Public Instruction, Tom Watkins, is a Democratic refugee from the old Blanchard Administration. A corporation, Standard and Poors, is now rating overall performance of individual schools, while the separate Department of Career Development is concentrating on job training and vocational education.

When I talked with him last week, Watkins spoke about the "balkanization of education" and argued there is little alignment of policy with institutional responsibility. It's hard not to agree.

It's clear the next governor is going to have to take a long, hard look at what might be termed the "infrastructure of Michigan," the range of facilities that, taken together, determine the quality of life in our state: roads, sewers, water quality, public transit, broadband networks and so forth. The structure and workings of our educational infrastructure deserve an important place in this list.

Candidates for governor – there are seven already – should be addressing this issue as they jostle for early advantage.

State ranks dead last nationally in ethics laws

We like to think of Michigan as a leader, one of the states out ahead of the curve. In many respects it is.

Case in point: When George W. took office, his first priority was to get us a tax cut, one of the first at the federal level in years. But Michigan has been trimming the taxes for a long time. We've been there.

Congress has launched into debate on a Patient's Bill of Rights, but Michigan has had one for two years. Done that.

Still, there is one area where Michigan is anything but a leader. In fact, it falls in last place – ethics laws. Michigan doesn't have anything on the books, so it wound up in last place – along with Utah, Idaho and Vermont – when the Center for Public Integrity, a Washington, D.C.-based foundation for investigative journalism, did a survey of state ethics regulations.

Ethics laws are aimed at keeping elected officials from profiting personally from the decisions they make in office. Typically, they require some form of disclosure. When lawmakers have a business interest that would be directly affected by a vote, they are typically required to abstain and make known their "conflict of interest."

Apparently, there is a need. Even though most states have laws in place, the Center found that nationwide 25 percent of state legislators sat on committees that regulated businesses in which they had a financial interest. Another 23 percent received income from some government agency while collecting a paycheck from their respective legislatures. And 18 percent had financial ties to businesses that lobby their legislatures.

Rep. Mike Bishop, R-Rochester, contends that despite the lack of a law here, Michigan politics have been pretty clean. We haven't had the scandals over conflicts that have rocked legislatures in other states, he said.

That may be one reason why his proposed "Government Ethics Act," House Bill 4070, has drawn so little attention. The bill would prohibit state elected officials from using their public positions to gain anything of value for themselves or another person.

Legislators would have to publicly disclose any "conflict of interest," which would include personal relationships or economic associations with "a person that would likely be substantially affected by an official action or decision." Lawmakers would also be barred from lobbying for three months after leaving office.

A seven-member ethics board would be created to review complaints. Because the Constitution assigns the duties of disciplining members to each chamber of the legislature, reviews from the ethics board would be turn over to a legislative ethics committee for a final determination. Violations could carry civil or criminal penalties.

Ethics laws are aimed at keeping elected officials from profiting personally from the decisions they make in office. Typically, they require some form of disclosure.

Bishop chose not to include the extensive disclosure requirements that are typical of ethics laws elsewhere. And there are reasons.

"A lot of them are overly inclusive," he said. "A lot of them are absolutely intrusive. It is not my intention to chase people out of public office. If the financial disclosure is too extensive, there are many good honest people who will refuse to run for public office, and that would be a shame."

Instead, Bishop explained, he is looking for "transactional disclosure," current business deals that may have an impact on current issues before the legislature. They should be disclosed at the time.

Bishop admits that without full reporting, it might be more difficult to spot it when a lawmaker fails to disclose a conflict. On the other hand, with civil fines and criminal penalties for violations, lawmakers would have a strong motivation to disclose the information at the time it is required.

Common Cause, in fact, is pushing for more disclosure. The Center for Public Integrity would rank that as a flaw in the legislation.

But Bishop has a valid point. And it makes sense to get a set of rules on the books, so that elected officials know what rules they're supposed to be playing by.

Ultimately, it's a well-thought-out piece of legislation. All the more credit to Bishop for spotting a gap in the law before some scandal crops up to bring it to the forefront.

Are opponents to cell towers dialing the wrong number?

They always forget to ask a key question at these public hearings about where cellular phone towers should be built. They forgot again recently, as Trintel was turned away by the Canton Township Planning Commission for a site on residentially zoned property, across from the high schools.

Todd Schneider

Its simplicity is almost blindingly stupid.

All right, by a show of hands, how many of you in the audience either own or use cell phones?

Duh!

Now wouldn't that take the wind right out of the sails of those planning commissioners, not to mention the residents who line up at the microphone to talk about aesthetics, property values, radiation, child safety and traffic (Who can concentrate on driving while jabbering away?). Not to mention the dozen or so other issues in the official NIMBY handbook. About the only thing more amusing would be if one of those detractors had to stop in the middle of his or her harangue to – you guessed it – answer a cell phone call.

Of course, the communications companies could take a few notes too. I'm not sure Trintel representative Bryce Kelley gave Canton planners much of a choice when he said the company wasn't interested in tabling the petition but wanted only an up or down vote.

Now, I don't mean to poke too much fun here. I realize there are serious issues at play in the towering (excuse me) debate. Well, serious in the context of suburbia, anyway. And the emotions that sometimes run over in a planning commission meeting point up a weightier philosophical question.

It is awfully interesting how most of us are more than willing to adopt the technology, tap into the convenience it provides and then decry the harm it's causing to the landscape – especially our personal slice of it.

Here's a challenge to the Forest Trails residents who spoke up at the June 4 hearing: Join your brethren everywhere and speak up about the towers being built in Livonia, or Detroit, for goodness sakes. After all, there's strength in numbers and maybe, just maybe, you can stop this evil scourge if you try.

But I would suggest a change in tactics. Some of the typical NIMBY arguments are getting kind of stale and others don't hold much validity anymore, if they ever did.

■ Property values – Can anyone in Canton tell me the last time their assessment went down? Didn't think so, none of you are that old. In fact, even in the last really tough automotive downturn of 1981-83, most local home prices either remained stable or increased slightly. And the '90s – when cell towers were going up here, there and everywhere – saw them skyrocket.

■ Aesthetics – True, cell towers aren't exactly Albert Kahn or Frank Lloyd Wright-inspired masterpieces. But then neither are many of the strip malls, cookie-cutter subdivisions and giant SUVs that dominate the vista. Speaking of SUVs, why is it that we build, buy and can't seem to get enough of them while at the same time bemoan the cost of gasoline?

■ Radiation – I'll almost concede on this one, since the jury is still out. But proponents of the theory need to concentrate more on providing valid statistical studies than just bringing up the R-word as a scare tactic.

■ Traffic – Oh, come on. Will Canton's notorious congestion disappear overnight if township officials put a moratorium on cell towers? No. But it certainly would decrease if they halted all other residential, commercial and industrial building, not that I'm advocating any of that.

So here's my plan for cell tower opponents:

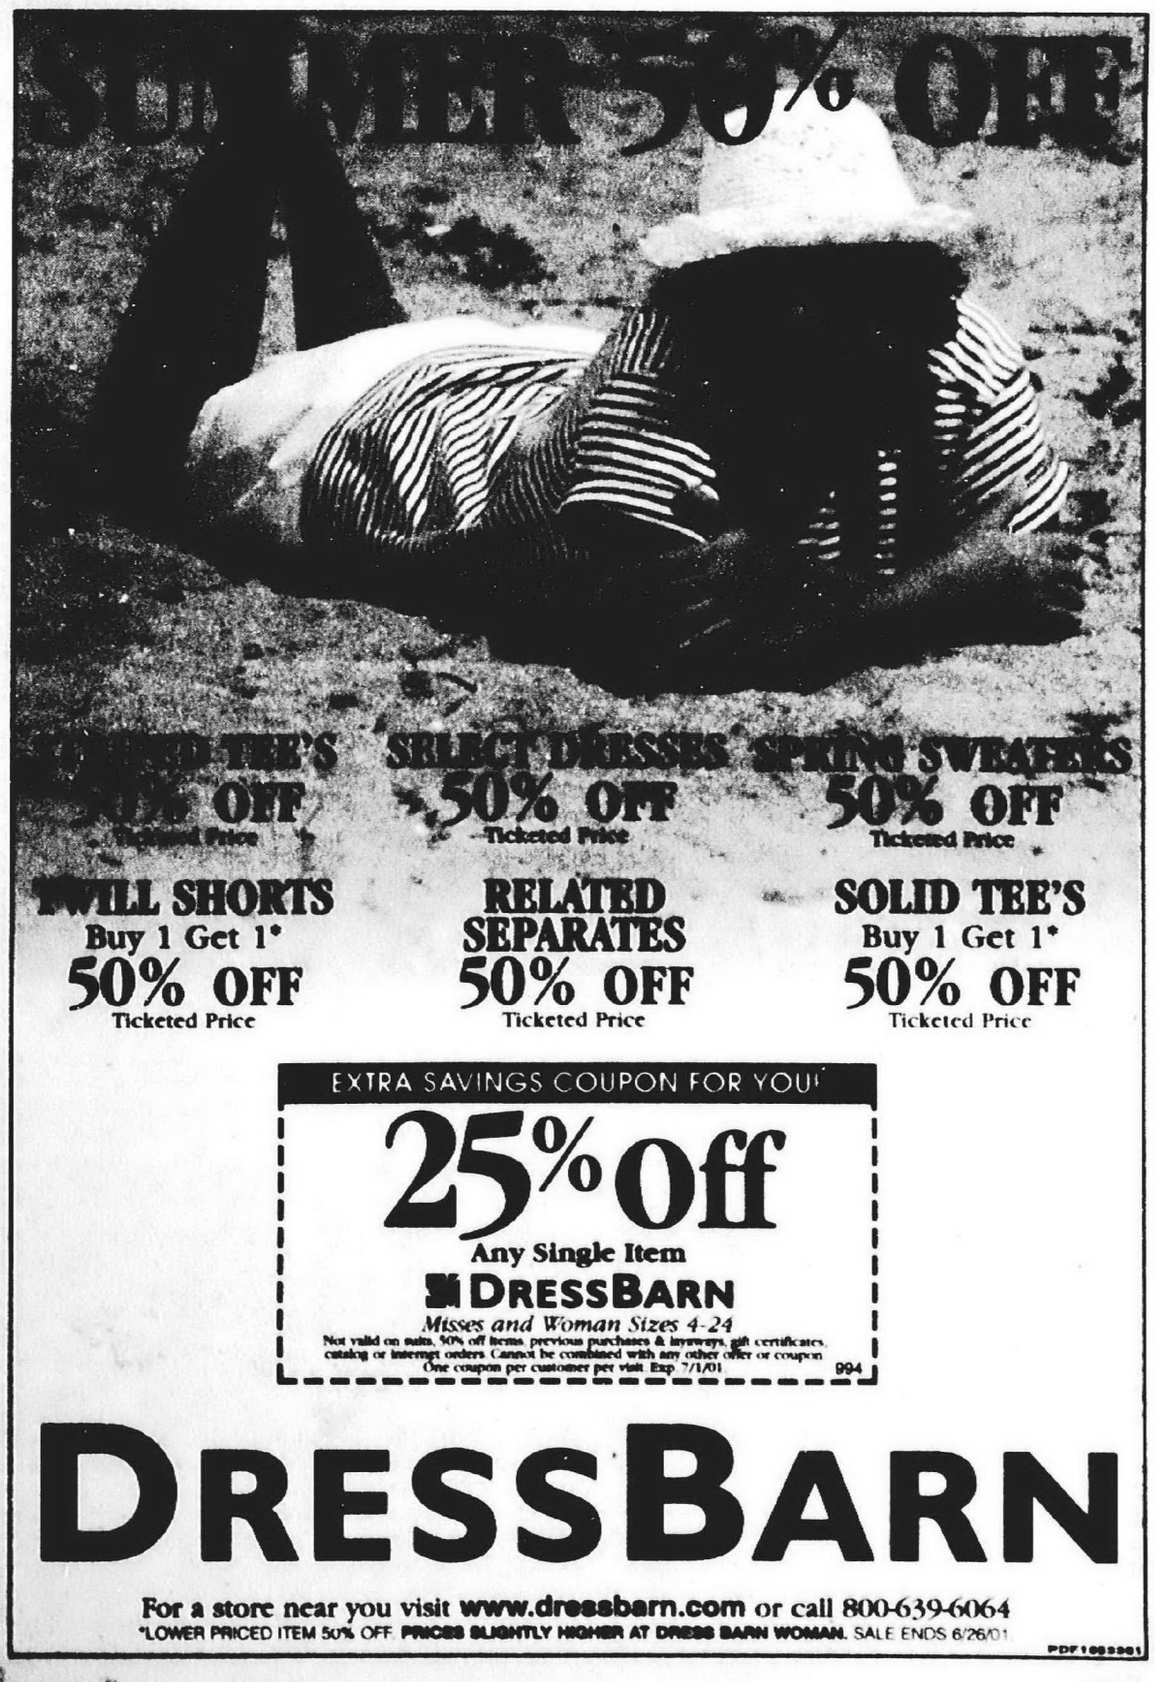

■ Plane crashes – Those tiny, single engine planes that take off from Mettetal Airport are no match for a 170-foot cell tower, like the one Trintel proposed. How about a plane in every driveway?

■ Terrorist staging areas – In the movies, they always seem to infiltrate a skyscraper, ship, Air Force One or some other super-sized structure.

■ Attractive nuisance – Now that Canton Township Police and Plymouth-Canton school officials have zero-tolerance for springtime pranks on the P-CEP campus, teens will discover the endless possibilities for nighttime mischief at cell tower sites.

I'd even be willing to host a strategy session (but not in my backyard) for interested residents to augment these suggestions.

HAMMER TIME

RETIREMENT PARTY BUILT ON HARDWARE THEME

BY MARY KLEMIC
STAFF WRITER
mklemic@oe.homecomm.net

Construction zones aren't unusual—with such sights as flashing orange lights, waving flags that direct traffic, crews in hard hats. But one "construction zone" was truly one of a kind.

This "zone" was contained in a building, and the completed "project" wasn't something like a highway or structure. The flashing orange lights and waving flags were fun guides. The hard hats were party hats. It was all part of a recent retirement party that was distinctive, to say the least.

The party didn't just have a hardware or construction theme in keeping with the guest of honor's passion for building. It took place in an actual hardware and home decor store.

Walt Davison of Northville, who worked in the automotive division at the IBM office in Southfield, was retiring after 30 years and friends and co-workers wanted to show their appreciation.

Guests were hobnobbing among the doorknobs, showering the honoree with good wishes among the showerheads, partaking of "fixin's" among the fixtures.

"It has been so much fun," said Lucy Oakleaf of Farmington Hills, who worked for the guest of honor.

"He's a really special guy."

"It's awesome," Mary Frances McCaleb, another employee, said of the party. "He deserves it."

Early phase

Oakleaf, client director-DaimlerChrysler AG, IBM Corp., contacted Carolyn Hefner of The China Closet to help plan the retirement party. The China Closet is designed to plan and coordinate special events. Hefner, a Beverly Hills resident, started the business in 1991 with a friend and is now sole owner and operator.

Oakleaf had thought of having the party in a restaurant or a venue for a caterer. Hefner asked Oakleaf about her boss, and Oakleaf related how much Davison liked building. He had even built his retirement home, including constructing the cabinets, pouring the foundations and shingling the roof.

"It was obvious to me where his retirement party should be — in a place he felt totally comfortable and found interesting — a hardware store!" Hefner said.

Is that possible? Oakleaf wondered. Hefner asked around at a few stores, and then approached the owners of Herald Wholesale Inc., 20830 Coolidge Highway in Oak Park.

"I loved it," Jerry Katz, owner of the business, said of the idea. "I love parties."

The event marked the first time in 37 years that Herald Wholesale was open on a Saturday night, he said.

It turned out that Davison had bought a lot of the furnishings for his retirement home from the store.

The event took three months to put together. The day was changed from a Friday to a Saturday so more people could come.

Since it was a surprise party, planners were busy just trying to keep Davison in town for the date, which was last month, without giving it away.

"We had to go through incredible gyrations to keep him here," Oakleaf said.

Party planning

The invitations were printed on actual size blueprints that were then rolled up, secured with a strip of the yellow and black plastic tape used to mark construction sites, and mailed in 24-by-2-1/2-inch mailing tubes.

The invitations read "Shhhh! Surprise Construction Project for Walt Davison." They said that "Project Dress" included plumbers, painters, electricians and carpenters, and that instead of gifts, contributions could be made to Habitat for Humanity, a charity in which Davison was active.

The date was given as "Project Starts," the time as "Project Span" and the place as "Project Site."

Tiffany Florist of Birmingham fashioned centerpieces by arranging flowers in drainpipes, fuse boxes and other hardware. Accents included paint rollers.

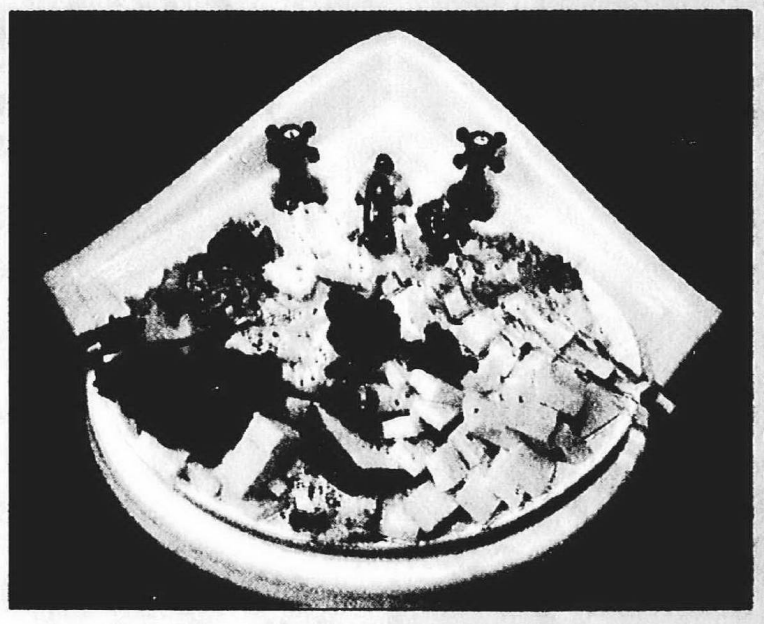

The food, catered by Epoch Events of Novi, was placed at stations around the store. A flashing construction light was near each station to help guide people through the store aisles and displays.

Sinks and countertops held platters of vegetables and bowls of salad. A granite tub on a pedestal was filled with crushed ice for cold salmon. Other seafood was arrayed by the showers. Carving areas were set up for turkey and beef.

The Dennis Tini Quartet performed in the middle of the sales counter. The bar was at another counter. Party favors (squeegees) were in a tub.

About 75 guests attended from all over the country, including Atlanta, Chicago and Boston. They wore such attire as overalls, jeans and caps. Hard hats donated by Jack Baker of Blue Hill Development of Ann Arbor were distributed.

Building on a theme: The party in Herald Wholesale in Oak Park featured such centerpieces by Tiffany Florist of Birmingham as an arrangement in an outlet box, accented with an outlet. A cheese plate was placed on a corner sink. The event was planned by Carolyn Hefner of The China Closet.

The completed 'project'

To make sure Davison didn't miss his own party, a friend had invited Davison to dinner at a "new restaurant" in Royal Oak. On the way, the friend asked if they could stop at Herald Wholesale to pick up something.

Still unsuspecting, Davison walked into the store with the friend. There he was greeted with the musicians playing For He's a Jolly Good Fellow and applause and cheers from the guests.

"It was pretty wild. It was a gas," Davison said later.

"It was pretty amazing. There was a broad range of people ther e— college friends, Mom."

He was presented with a special construction apron, and a shovel in honor of the ground-breaking at his retirement house. (His last day on the job was last Thursday.)

The project was a joyous success. The honoree, guests and planners had a good time.

"Carolyn is very gifted and committed to her work and it shows by the little details that made the evening so special," Oakleaf said.

"It was just such a wonderful event," Davison said.

'Fixin's' and fixtures: Food stations around the store included finger foods among the plumbing fixture display. Epoch Events of Novi catered the party.

Cable switch to digital causes confusion, then it needs service

APPLIANCE DOCTOR

JOE GAGNON

I happened to be home one recent weekday afternoon when the phone rang several times with various calls from different salespersons. One call came from our cable television company.

The salesperson said we were going to lose most of our premium channels because the cable company was switching over to a new digital system. That person wanted us to make an appointment with a technician to install new cable boxes, and then we could choose a cable package. Valorie and I talked, then set an appointment and received a new "super duper" package which gives us what seems to be hundreds of different channels.

Do we really need all of this? I hardly have time for television anyway and when I do, I watch news, Discovery, The History Channel and hockey games. I don't even have a digital television, so why did I need a whole conversion system to go that route?

With this new system comes a price increase and I guess that is normal for giving me something I really didn't initiate or want. How much is the increase is the question and I'll find that out after I try to figure out how to read the bill. This whole thing is getting more confusing by the minute.

System idled

Guess what happened to me two weeks after everything was installed? The system broke down and I needed service on the downstairs unit. I watched the news upstairs in bed and fell asleep during the program.

Now when I called for service on a Monday it took 45 minutes to get through to a human being because the lines were all busy. After someone finally said "Hello," I was put on hold for another seven minutes before I knew I could state my case.

A service call was arranged for the next day and I was told that no given time could be set up because they were so busy. It was classified as an "all day" service call which means they would be at my home sometime during the day, no specific time, but with a phone call from the technician before he got here.

That's exactly what happened the next day. The service man put on nice little blue covers over his shoes, walked in and out of the house in less than 10 minutes and the repairs were made. As a matter of fact, his politeness was the nicest part of this whole experience.

A short wait

Well, the whole episode is over now and I wasn't put out all that much. I only had to wait until around 11 a.m. and I didn't have to cancel any scheduled appointments for that day.

One thing bothered me though when I looked at a statement on the monthly billing form. It said on-time performance was hard to find, but at this certain company, it was guaranteed. If that company failed to arrive at a scheduled service appointment on time, the customer would receive a $20 credit. That didn't help me, because the company didn't schedule a specific time.

I've concluded that good ol' service still exists in this country but it seems to be getting more confusing, as are the products of today. There is no doubt that I have got to change my ways. Stay tuned.

GARDENING

Pick some perennials to add to your garden

GARDEN SPOT

MARTY FIGLEY

Just when you thought the planting was finished, take a second look in the nurseries and you will find quite a number of perennials just waiting to be added to your garden. The Perennial Plant Association has announced: "June is Perennial Gardening Month."

Although June is more than half over, you will find more mature specimens ready to "walk out the door" at your favorite garden store. Make a sketch of your garden as you move around to see where some desirable plants will grow and take some time to browse through the stores. You may be pleasantly surprised.

If you plant perennials in June or later in the summer you will need to give extra attention to them at first.

Be sure the planting bed has been enriched with organic material so that moisture retention is assured. Newly established beds should receive 4 inches of matter per 12 inches of soil so that good drainage and optimum root growth are guaranteed.

At this time of year it will be necessary to supply additional water for newly planted flowers. One deep watering per week is better than a number of shallow waterings.

Mulch around the plants after they are in the ground with shredded hardwood, pine bark or compost. This helps retain moisture, retards weed growth and puts a finishing touch on the garden. The mulch shouldn't be applied more than 2 inches deep and kept away from the crown of the plant to avoid rot.

I like to protect them from the very hot sun for a few days and have found that a plastic "milk crate" is ideal, as it lets some sun and rain in and keeps critters at bay.

What to choose, what to choose? The PPA has an answer and suggests these June flowering PPA Plants of the Year. All perform beautifully in many areas of the country: Astilbe "Sprite" (false spirea), Salvia nemorosa "Mainacht" (perennial salvia), Scabiosa columbaria "Butterfly Blue" (pincushion flower) and Calamagrostis "Karl Foerster" (feather reed grass).

Others that bloom in June and later in the summer include Leucanthemum "Becky" (Shasta daisy), Hemerocallis "Happy Returns" (daylily) and Iris sibirica (Siberian iris).

Here are some other suggestions. A pretty combination later in the year is Sedum "Herbstfreude" (Autumn Joy) with Physostegia virginiana "Vivid" (Obedient Plant); Lysimachia clethroides (Gooseneck Loosestrife) with Monarda didyma "Garden view Scarlet"; Rose "Carefree Wonder" (Carefree Wonder Rose) with Hemerocallis "Ice Carnival" and Phlox paniculata "David."

If you keep a schedule of garden chores by doing a little at a time, your perennials will reward you with their beauty.

Here are a few chores that can be done now.

Cut back by half tall late-season bloomers to control height and eliminate the need for staking.

The plants such as Aster novae-angliae (New England aster) selections; Artemisia "Silver King," Boltonia asteriodes (boltonia), Eupatorium maculatum (Joe-pye weed), Rudbeckia nitida "Herbstsonne" and Sedum "Herbstfreude" (Autumn Joy sedum) will mature at a shorter height and may flower slightly later than unpruned perennials, but it eliminates the need for staking!

Spent flowers should be deadheaded as they fade to improve their appearance. A bonus is that if this is done, unwanted seedlings will be eliminated. This may prolong the bloom and promote continued bloom or a rebloom.

Some plants that will benefit from deadheading are Coreopsis lanceolata (lanceleaf coreopsis), Hemerocallis hybrids (daylily), Allium species (chives), Phlox paniculata (garden phlox).

So, don't wait. Visit your garden nursery and take advantage of their expert advice as you make your selections.

Colorful combination: Physostegia (Obedient Plant) and Sedum (Autumn Joy sedum) make a pretty combination in a late summer and fall garden.

CREATURE COMFORTS

Two questions help make a difficult decision

ABOUT ANIMALS

DR. BRAD DAVIS

Veterinarians are often called upon to euthanize an animal, humanely ending its life when its condition or situation leaves no other good options. Doing this minimizes the pain our patients must face, but it isn't easy for vets, or for the owners faced with making the decision.

People decide that a pet needs to be put down for a variety of reasons. While most animals in this situation are sick, some have a behavioral problem, like an aggressive dog, or a cat with uncontrollable litterbox amnesia.

Other times a lifestyle change makes the pet difficult to keep. Owners often find it more humane to put the animal down than to find a new home. (The most irritating reason ever given me involved a lady who put her dog down because she had bought new furniture, and the dog's coat clashed.)

In the old days people seemed to believe it was cruel to keep an animal alive after a certain age. I still see grandchildren clash with grandparents who want to put a pet down just because it's getting old. Euthanizing for age alone has become an antiquated idea.

When should you make the decision? When is it right? How will you know you are making the best decision for your pet?

Questions

I have my clients ask themselves two questions to help them make a rational choice. These questions take some of the emotion and pain out of the decision, so people can find the answer that's right for their pet, and for them.

Before those questions, I'd like to explain why I don't like using the word "suffering." Levels of suffering vary dramatically between people, and this is even more true in animals.

I've watched a Yorkie flip onto his back, wailing in agony because of the slight prick caused by the tiny vaccination needle. That dog barely felt the slightest pain, but was clearly suffering.

I saw a Labrador retriever, after stepping in a hole and breaking his leg at Hines Park, come running into my clinic, bone protruding from his leg, still carrying the Frisbee, unsure why the game had stopped (Hey, I still have three legs!). Despite the pain, this dog was not suffering. Take suffering out of your thought process. We can't understand another creature's suffering.

Use these two questions instead. As a rule, they will point you toward the right decision. If you answer "No" to both, then the time to make the hard choice has probably come.

■ Question No 1: Is my animal still enjoying life?

Is life fun for your critter? Is it a chore? Does he or she greet you at the door? Eat well?

Animals live in the here and now. They don't look forward to weddings, graduations, the World Series. If they aren't happy now, if life is treating them harshly, and living itself is a bad thing, the answer is "No." Go to Question Two.

■ Question No. 2: Is there anything reasonable I can do to get my animal enjoying life again?

This is where your individual beliefs come into play. I've had people who wanted to get a kidney transplant for their cat who had advanced renal failure. I've had some people who felt giving a simple antibiotic was too far to go.

Sometimes deciding what's reasonable involves your belief system, other times it deals with finances (most can't afford a $10,000 kidney transplant for their cat).

Put simply, if your pet is not currently enjoying life, and there's nothing that can be done to get your pet enjoying life again, then it is time to make the decision, no matter how it hurts you.

Duty

In almost every case, the decision is hard, but fulfills your duty as a pet owner.

When taking on a new young pet, you are saying to them that they will give you affection and companionship, and that you will take care of them, do right by them, and make the hard decisions for them.

Years later, when the time comes to make the hard choice, no matter how much it hurts you, you're fulfilling that very important promise. It's not an easy decision, but that's because pets mean so much, and are such a part of our lives.

I believe this is one of the purist moments of love in anyone's life. Think about it: Marriage has a selfish side, gift giving has a selfish side, but this is a totally selfless act—you hurt so your pet won't have to.

Someday, it is hoped a very, very long time from now, when you are faced with a tough decision like this, do what you think is best. Only you can make the decision. Do what's right for you and your pet. You can't be wrong, as only you know what's right.

Take Home Message: Situations where the final decision needs to be made for a pet are always difficult. Use the two questions to decide if it's time. If it is, and you make that decision, pat yourself on the back for having the strength to hurt, so your pet won't have to. Remember, while you were lucky to have such a great pet, your pet was lucky also, to have had you.

Pond tour set for July 7

The Michigan Koi & Pond Club will present its fourth annual Pond and Garden Tour 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, July 7, in Grosse Pointe.

This year's event will feature nine outstanding ponds and gardens. Attractions include waterfalls, streams, unusual statuary and, of course, the "local residents" (fish and frogs). Garden vendors will be on hand. The site is the Neighborhood Club, 17150 Waterloo in Grosse Pointe (phone (313) 882-9600).

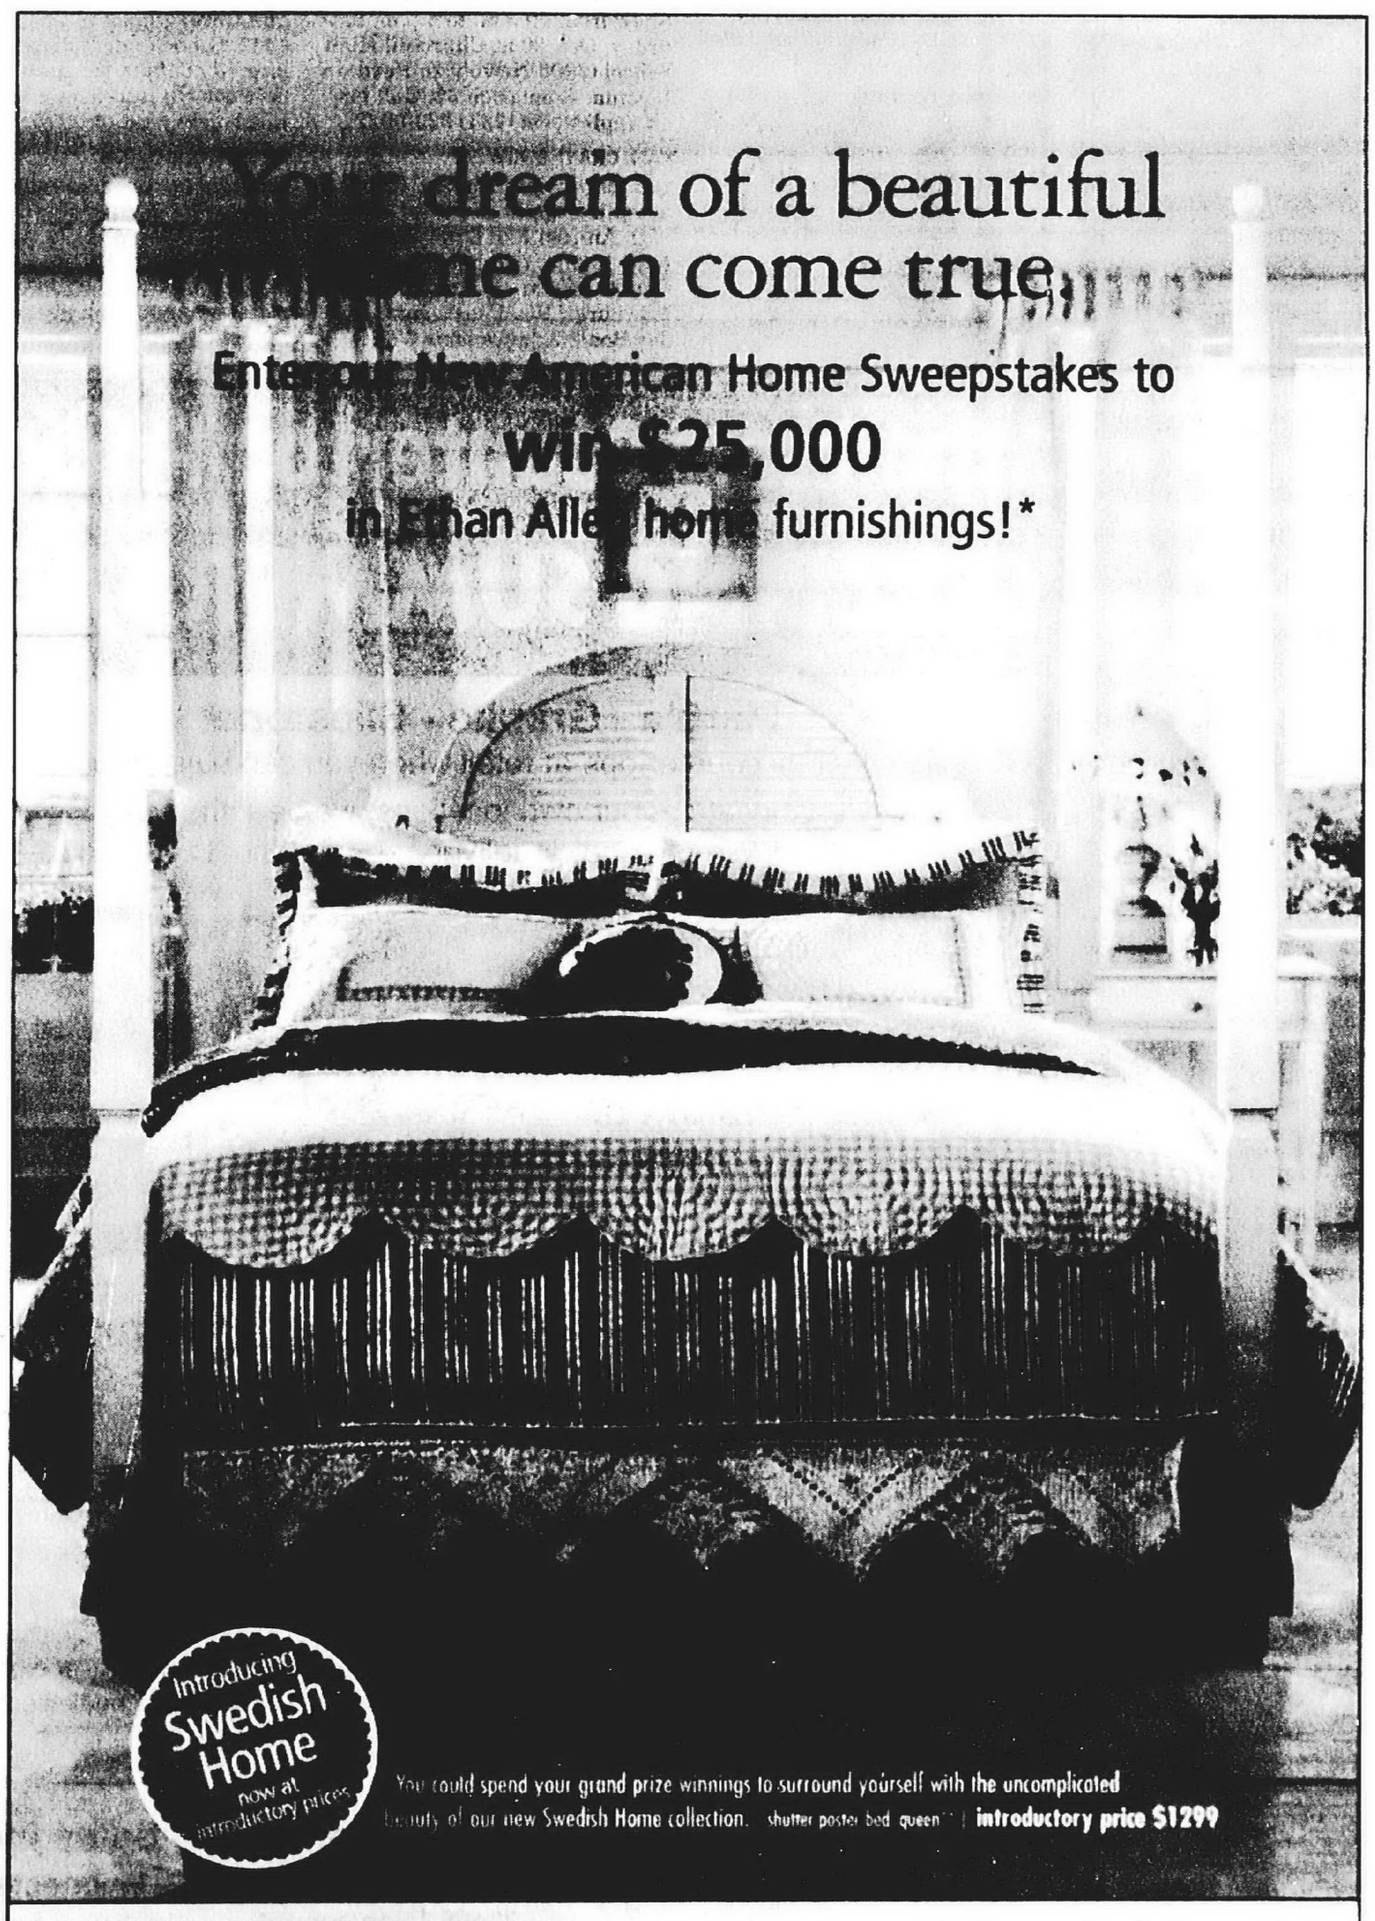

Collectible toy show is Saturday

Plymouth's 'Collectible Toy Show' returns Saturday, June 23, to the Plymouth V.F.W. Hall, 1426 S. Mill, in Plymouth.

The show features vendors and collectors selling new, used, antique and collectible toys of all kinds from the 1950s to this year's hottest collectibles.

Public show hours are 10 a.m. until 3 p.m.

Admission for adults is $4, kids under 10 are free with an adult. For show or vendor information, call (734) 455-2110.

Don't be in the dark about night shots

FOCUS ON PHOTOGRAPHY

MONTE NAGLER

Have you ever been tempted to photograph a dramatic moonlit landscape and gave up because you just didn't know how to adjust the camera settings? Or, ever wanted to shoot Christmas lights at night, or the Fourth of July fireworks?

Well, stars, werewolves, and photographers who want to add to their portfolios all come out at night! So don't give up. Night photography offers an abundance of opportunity from the examples above to an intimate setting lit only by candlelight.

Most likely, your camera metering system won't function properly at night, so the best thing to do is use the recommended exposures given below.

You will, of course, need a steady tripod and cable release and bracket your shots to assure getting a correctly exposed negative or slide. You'll have to set your automatic cameras to a manual mode.

Subject – Settings (400 ASA)

Home interiors at night – 1/4 sec., f/5.6

Outdoor Christmas lights – 1/15 sec., f/5.6

Candlelit close-ups – 1/8 sec., f/5.6

Streets at night – 1/4 sec., f/4

Floodlit buildings/statues – 1/4 sec., f/4

Moonlit landscapes – 30 sec., f/4

Fireworks/lightning – "B", f/11

The "B" setting for fireworks and lightning shots means "bulb," and the shutter remains open for as long as the cable release is depressed.

While these recommendations are based on 400 ASA speed film, any other film speed can be used. Simply calculate what the exposure should be.

For example, 100 ASA film is two increments "slower" than 400. So a candlelit scene requires an exposure two increments less, or 1/2 second at f/5.6.

My wife, Mickey, took this fine picture of St. Peter's Cathedral in Adelaide, Australia. A wide angle lens, use of a tripod of course, and an exposure of 1/4 second at f/4 worked just perfect for her.

So don't always be a daytime photographer. Come out at night! Nighttime photography will offer dramatic and exciting opportunities for you and your camera.

Awesome In Australia: Mickey Nagler made this dramatic nighttime photograph in Adelaide, Australia. It's St. Peter's Cathedral, and an exposure of 1/4 second at f/4 worked just fine.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Viland

Leslie "Les" and Marjorie Miller Viland of Livonia are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary this month. The couple wed June 29, 1951 in Detroit and have lived in the Western Wayne County area for 48 years.

They have three children: James (Penelope), Thomas and Michael (Rosy). They also have eight grandchildren.

Les Viland worked at Ford and American Motors for 24 years, then spent 25 years at Detroit Testing Laboratory. Marjorie Viland is a nurse and worked in the Felician Sisters Infirmary for 25 years. Both retired last January.

The Vilands are members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints. Les Viland is a member of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

To celebrate this occasion, the couple will be guests of honor at a family gathering at the Dearborn Inn. The event is being arranged by their sons and daughters-in-law.

Smith

Guy and Irene Smith of Livonia will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary June 24 with a dinner and reception at Hawthorne Valley Country Club, along with family and friends.

The Smiths have lived in Livonia for 45 years. Guy Smith worked for Ford Motor Company as an industrial engineer for 30 years and retired in 1980.

The couple has two children: Darcy Quint and Darryl Smith. They also have five grandchildren.

Phillips-Mifsud

Tom and Carol Gourlay announce the marriage of their daughter, Jennifer Lynn Phillips, to Charles George Mifsud of Westland.

The bride is a 1990 graduate of Ladywood High School and a 1996 graduate of Madonna University. Jennifer will receive her masters in art of teaching degree in July from Marygrove College. She is a second grade teacher at Walled Lake Schools.

Her husband, son of Charles and Mary Mifsud of Detroit, works as an office manager at Entertainment Express in Dearborn.

The couple wed Feb. 17, 2001 at St. Michael Church before the Rev. Alberto Bondy. The bride was attended by Tina Ellis. The groom was attended by Mark Black. The couple received guests at Warren Valley Golf Course and took a wedding trip to the Bahamas. They made their home in Westland.

Sweet-Brahosky

Nancy Sweet of Garden City announces the engagement of her daughter, Jody Lynn, to Aaron Brahosky of Canton.

The bride-to-be, daughter of Nancy and the late Gordon Sweet, is an executive assistant at Tapco International Corp. in Plymouth.

Her fiancé, son of James and Joanne Brahosky of Greensburg, Penn., is a graduate of Duquesne University in Pittsburg and works as director of Logistics for Michigan Division of George DeLallo Co. Inc.

An April 2002 wedding is planned at St. Mary's Church in Forbes Road, Pennsylvania.

Wietecha

Thomas and Joyce B. (Simkiss) Wietecha of Westland will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary this month. The couple wed June 30, 1951 at St. Sebastian Church in Dearborn Heights and have lived in Westland for 45 years.

They have three children: Sandra Nielsen, Thomas and Leah Wietecha and Victor and Jean Wietecha. They have five grandchildren: Aaron and Jamie Nielsen, Drake and Kendal Wietecha and McKenna Wietecha. Shelby and Avery Nielsen are great-grandchildren.

Thomas Wietecha worked for Ford Motor Company for 35 years and General Motors for 5 years. He retired in 1991.

Thomas Wietecha is active in Ushers and Mens Club at St. Bernardine Church in Westland. Joyce is a past chairperson of the annual Parish carnival. They enjoy traveling to their cottage on Lake Huron, visiting their son Tom in Ludington, and traveling to many other states. Joyce Wietecha is an avid reader and Thomas has been an avid golfer for 57 years.

The couple will be honored at a celebration party, given by their children, with friends and relatives at Hawthorn Valley Garden. An anniversary mass will be given on June 30 at St. Bernardine Church.

Hamrick-Cosgrove

Rick and Sally Hamrick of Westland announce the engagement of their daughter, Julie Ardena, to Daniel Charles Cosgrove of Livonia.

The bride-to-be is a 1991 graduate of John Glenn High School and a 1995 graduate of Albion College. She works for Livonia Public Schools as a math teacher at Franklin High School.

Her fiancé, son of Jean Cosgrove of Livonia and the late Terry Cosgrove, is a 1986 graduate of Livonia Stevenson High School and a graduate of Eastern Michigan University. He works for Livonia Public Schools as a special education teacher at Franklin High School.

A July wedding is planned at St. Thomas A' Becket Church in Canton.

Wiley

Marion C. and Margaret (Arban) Wiley of Garden City recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. The couple wed April 21, 1951 in Wayne.

They have two children, Marion Scott (and his wife, Sheri) of Redford and Lisa Blumerich of Waterford. They also have four grandchildren: Alisha, Jacob, John and Cody, and four very special granddogs: Sadie, Molly, Sam and Zack.

Congratulations to the Wileys.

Papcun-Whitefoot

Jim and Jean Papcun of Livonia announce the marriage of their daughter, Melanie, to Jason Whitefoot of Redford.

The bride-to-be is a 1988 graduate of Bishop Borgess High School in Redford and works at MS Interactive in Livonia as a Web survey designer.

Her fiancé, son of Jerry and Marilyn Whitefoot of Livonia, is a 1994 graduate of Franklin High School in Livonia and works at Xitron Inc. in Ann Arbor as a technical support engineer.

A June wedding was held at St. Robert Bellarmine Catholic Church in Redford.

JACK GLADDEN

"You think you'll be all right, driving on the left side of the road?" The Feminist asked.

"I'll give it a shot," I said. "But I'm not driving a stick shift. You've got to get an automatic."

"I'll see what I can do," she said.

After some more research, she came up with a plan.

"Here's what we can do. We'll take a train from London to Cornwall. We'll pick the up car in Truro and drive to Quarryman's Cottages. It's about a 45-minute drive."

"That'll work. Maybe I can take the car for a couple of turns around the parking lot at the rental agency so I can get used to it before we get on the road."

So, a few months later, there we were in Truro, a charming town with lots of hills. Lots of streets. Narrow streets. And everyone driving on the left.

At the Avis agency our car was ready – a three-month-old black Vauxhall. While The Feminist handled the paperwork, a man with an Avis shirt pointed out the various controls: the headlights, the windshield wipers, radio and so on.

"Would you like a sticker for the windshield that says 'Keep to the left'?" he asked.

"Sure. Why not?" I said.

Unfortunately, there was no room in the parking lot to practice. No place to go but those narrow streets and the open (and narrow) highway.

"Just turn left out of the lot and go to the traffic light. Make a right turn at the light and you're on the highway," the Avis representative said. "And remember to stay left."

Staying left wasn't that hard. It was just how far left.

"You're awfully close to the curb over here," The Feminist would say from her left side vantage point.

"I can't see the center line. It's that damn 'Keep to the left' sticker. It's blocking my view."

Eventually I got the hang of it on the two-lane highways. Driving in the left lane wasn't that much of a problem. Sometimes it was no problem at all. There was no left. Just one narrow driving lane a few inches wider than the car with curbs or hedgerows on both sides.

"You're awfully close to the curb over here," The Feminist would say again.

"Yeah, well I'm awfully close to it over here, too."

Bump. Thud. Swerve.

Oops! I hit the curb again.

It was in Bodmin, a small town on the edge of Bodmin Moor, where the streets became narrower than the car. Or so it seemed.

"What's that shrieking noise?" I asked after a few seconds.

"You're driving against the curb! Didn't you notice?"

No, I didn't. Actually it was the wheel covers scraping against a very high curb on a very narrow street. And despite The Feminist's contention, it didn't do THAT much damage to them.

Then there was the day in Loo, a busy fishing village, when it started raining. I couldn't see out the rearview mirror because it was raining so hard. And where WAS the control for that rear window wiper? I finally found it. The next day. After it stopped raining.

But when the car started talking to me I got really concerned.

We were cruising along a highway when I heard a noise like a horn honking.

"Did someone just honk at you?" The Feminist asked.

"I don't think so."

Then the car started talking. A man's voice, coming from the middle of the dashboard, saying something about traffic conditions.

Did I accidentally turn on the radio? No, it was off.

It happened again when we were on the M-5 Motorway, heading for Heathrow to turn the car in. We're tooling along when we hear a beep, then a female voice saying something like "There is heavy traffic on the M-5 ahead. Expect a five-minute delay."

"Actually, that's kind of cool," I said. "It must be like that OnStar system or something."

Back at home someone asked, "What was the highlight of your trip?

"Oh, I don't know," I said. "I think maybe just driving through the small towns and the countryside."

Man balances faith, family, athletics

BY MARK "LINK" WARDE
SPECIAL WRITER

It would take an accountant able to crunch numbers to handle the weight of sports and servanthood of one Westland resident.

Meet Steve Engebretson. At 53, he has a full plate directing numerous athletic leagues and playing in three or four recreational sports. Last month began his 25th year as president of the Metro Assembly of God Athletic Association, which is primarily a multi-denominational church softball league. The MAGAA is open to church-sanctioned teams of men, women and youth (age 5-13). This year he serves around 50 teams.

"To my knowledge we're the largest church league in the region," Engebretson said. And this is a down year. As recently as 1993 there were 105 teams.

STAFF PHOTOS BY TOM HAWLEY

Finding the time: In addition to being president of the Metro Assembly of God Athletic Association, Steve Engebretson umpires games in Westland and Canton.

But he doesn't work alone. Susie Branim, of Dearborn Heights, Debbie Rees of Westland, Ken Stark of Novi, and Chuck Sutphin of Livonia play key leadership roles of the many divisions that play at Canton Softball Center and Hines Park in Westland.

"Big E," as friends call the 6-foot 4-inch Norwegian, is a financial analyst for Ford Motor Co., where he will celebrate 35 years in June of 2004.

Steve has helped direct both bowling and golf leagues for Ford employees and their friends for 20 years, one of which played at Westland Bowl this past winter. Fourteen years ago he started a bowling benefit through work for Penrickton Center for Blind Children. To date they have raised over $115,000 for the Taylor-based organization.

The Elmhurst, Ill., native was also a leader of a church basketball league in the 1980's that reached 30 teams from across the Detroit area. The sports enthusiast is a licensed official for the Michigan High School Sports Association and the United States Specialty Sports Association allowing him to call basketball, softball and volleyball games.

Following college and a stint with the Army, he and his wife, Maureen, moved to Westland. "We love the community," he says. "It was affordable housing that first attracted us." The Engebretso's have also raised a family there for 27 years. Their children, Steve Jr., 23, and Laura, 20, both graduates of John Glenn High School, are also athletic in their own right.

Common ground

The task of balancing the demands of family, work and being a catalyst in sports leagues has not always been easy for his marriage. "Now and then there's been friction," he admitted. "It's (running the leagues) a passion and a ministry for me. But Maureen has her hobbies, so she tolerates mine.

"She's been a patient Godsend, and has assisted me on occasion. I couldn't have done it without her help."

Engebretson cites the friendships he's established over the years, "from players to pastors ... so many class-act people," that makes the effort so rewarding. "Plus, seeing the joy in kids' faces, and watching people experience the emotional uplift that comes with the physical release of competition, let's me know it's a worthwhile labor."

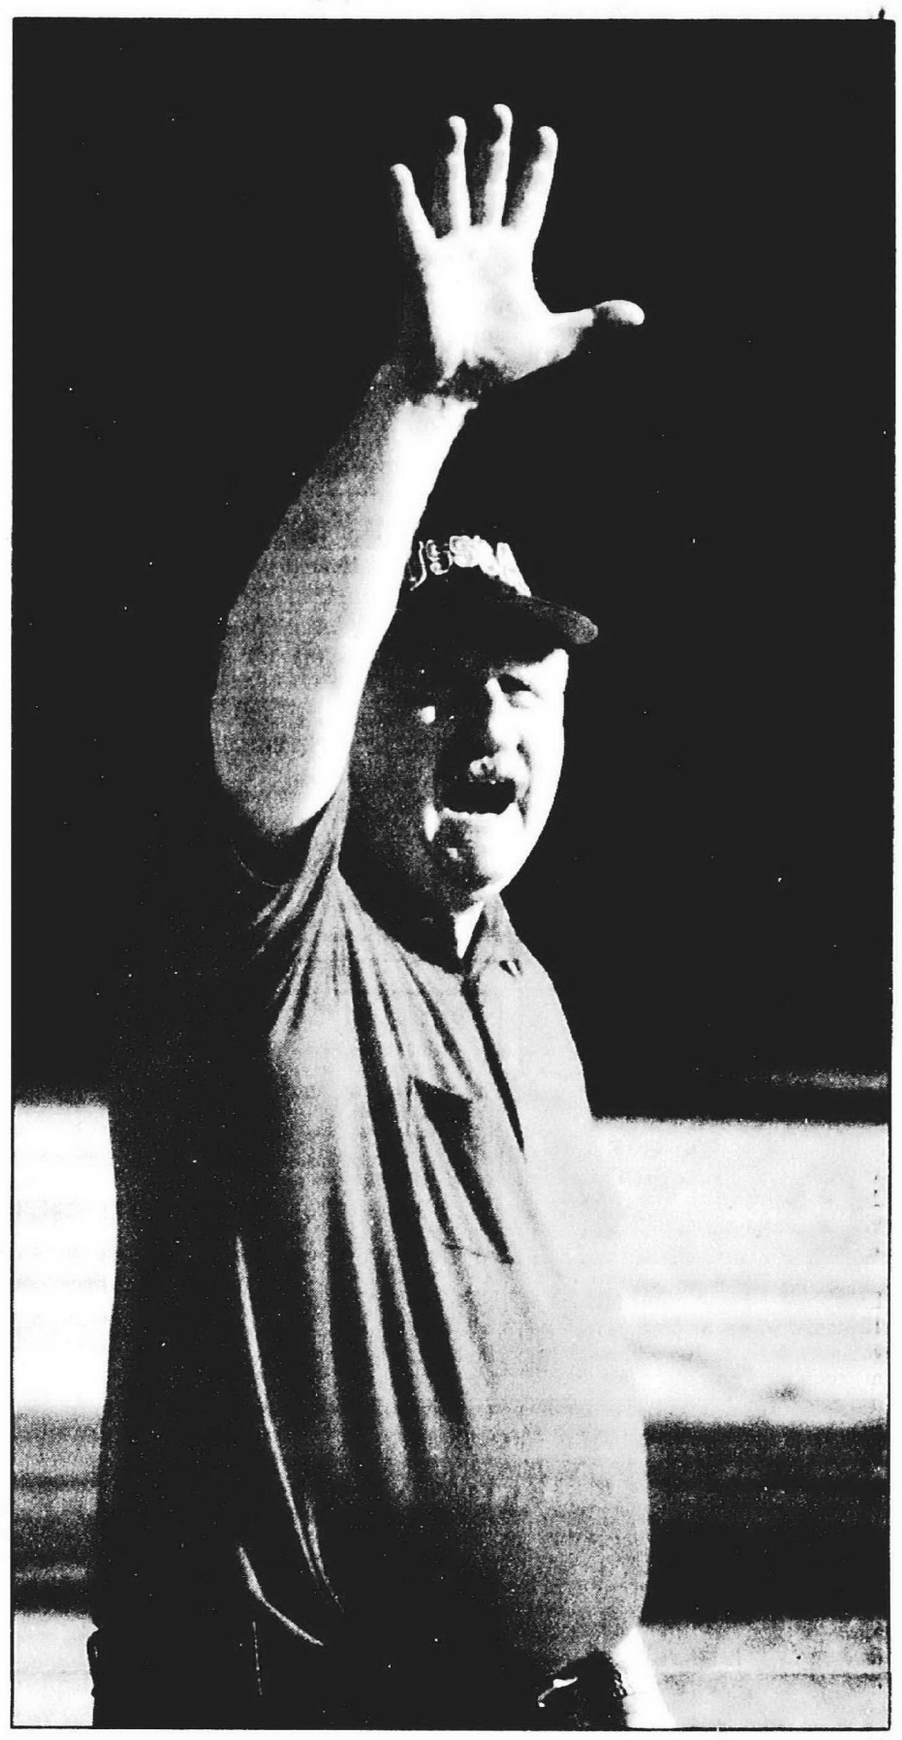

His service is strictly volunteer, which speaks volumes in a selfish culture. Scores of people are benefactors of his handiwork.

The ace sportsman is still a standout performer himself. He has batted under .700 in softball only twice in the past 20 years, bowled a 300 game in December, and carries a two or three handicap in golf. In fact, he even attempted to qualify for the Senior Tour in professional golf at the Kaanapali Classic in Maui in 1998. Had he been successful it would've been a dream come true for Steve, who has played over a hundred courses in 18 states.

The 300 game was rolled at Westland Bowl. "The first one on the lanes to congratulate me with a hug was my son," he said as his eyes welled up with tears only a father can know. "It was a priceless moment for both of us."

He listed a few other memorable accomplishments; shooting a 68 to win a Ford tournament on the links in 1976 at Dunham Hills in Milford, winning the 1997 Westland City Championship in golf, and pitching for two teams that won titles in the Michigan state church softball tournament.

Torn tendons and a rotator cuff injury, both in his left shoulder in 1999, might severely hinder someone from their regular activities. But not Engebretson. He simply added one-armed plate spinner to his list of conquered games!

Matchquiz.com Web site gives couples something to talk about

BY STEPHANIE ANGELYN CASOLA
STAFF WRITER

David and Donna Henderson know what it takes to make a marriage work. The Livonia couple met at Kensington Church in Troy and, six years later, are happily married. The Hendersons entered this bond with a little more experience and insight than most newlyweds. They are raising David's son from a previous marriage, as well as two young boys of their own.

Founders of Matchquiz.com, the Hendersons hope to share their knowledge with other couples – married, engaged or dating. They believe communication is powerful and said most couples don't discuss some important issues until after the honeymoon, issues that could damage a perfect union. The site is meant to shed some light on those subjects that aren't addressed when a couple starts dating.

■ 'It helps them to see whether they're compatible. A couple at really any stage in a relationship can really get to know each other.'

David Henderson
—Co-founder of Matchquiz.com

"It helps them to see whether they're compatible," said David. "A couple at really any stage in a relationship can really get to know each other."

Just two months since the launch of the site, www.matchquiz.com poses 70 questions covering seven major categories and rates a couple on their compatibility. Both partners must complete the quiz to obtain a score.

When the Hendersons wed, they were asked to take a personality survey and said it was not helpful. They liked the idea, but felt the "test" should've included more practical questions – questions about finances, ethics and children rather than question that asked about hobbies and interests.

"We definitely cannot claim to be experts," said David. But they do offer ideas from several perspectives. The couple worked together creating this concept. David, who has a background in World Wide Web, created the framework while his wife added another dimension to the quiz.

The objective was to identify seven "problem areas" or touchy subjects in relationships. Those themes are finances, family, couplehood, values, sex, political and social issues, and a final section which sets up a situational story problem and asks what the couple would do to solve it. "What we do with every question, we have another question that says how important it is that you match your partner," said David.

What it all means

Results reflect matched answers in green, non-matches of little significance in yellow and important non-matches in red. Green answers earn three points. Yellow answers earn two points. Red answers receive no points.

Donna Henderson, formerly of Lake Orion, feels good knowing her own husband developed this site. She said the survey is balanced for both men and women and goes beyond the surface issues of most compatibility tests to "the fundamental things you never think to ask.

"You realize those are the things that really matter," she said. Even the couple learned more about themselves by taking the quiz.

"We try not to interpret it," said David Henderson. "We don't want to say 'This couple does not have a healthy relationship.' We just want to encourage them to discuss it."

In the future, links to couples and relationship resources will also be available for those interested in seeking help or guidance. Articles and Web site links on related topics will also be included. Matchquiz might even add a separate survey for singles to sort out their own feelings on relationship issues.

David Henderson said the fact that it's a computerized test offers some privacy and might even interest couples to try it out because it is so accessible. "I'm hoping it's useful," he said.

Matchquiz.com charges a one-time fee of $4.95 for unlimited access to your survey account. Take it as many times as you like. See www.matchquiz.com for details.

The Observer & Eccentric Newspapers invites you to The Anniversary Party

Fine Line Features presents The Anniversary Party, starring Jennifer Jason Leigh, Alan Cumming, Gwyneth Paltrow, Parker Posey and Kevin Kline.

The film revolves around Joe and Sally Therrian, a couple who decide to throw an anniversary party to mark several important moments in their relationship: their sixth anniversary, their decision to start a family and their reconciliation after a year-long separation. An unexpected gift throws their lives out of balance. The film opens Friday, June 22 in metro area theaters.

Married couples please send us your key to happiness. In 100 words or less, write your best marital advice and send it to: HomeTown Life, 36251 Schoolcraft Road, Livonia, MI 48150 or e-mail your story to scasola@oe.homecomm.net or kmortson@oe.homecomm.net.

Entries may be published. Include your full names and the city where you live.

The first 25 entries will receive a free pass for two to see The Anniversary Party at the Main Art Theatre in Royal Oak, on any Monday-Thursday, throughout the film's run. Early birds who enter the contest will also win a free official movie poster. Entries must be postmarked by June 30.

Being Helpful vs. Complaining

It is a wise person who knows when and how to tactfully speak up about a situation that may need correcting. When a person is critical of almost everything, they may be looked upon by others as being a "complainer". There is a significant difference between grumbling and honestly trying to be helpful. Most businesses have a customer service department to handle problems and complaints. They usually do not call them "complaint departments" because they know that correcting problems and providing good service are beneficial to good business, whereas complaining denotes a negative tone. In addition, no one likes to listen to someone who is always complaining. The Bible tells us in Colossians 3:13, "Be tolerant with one another and forgive one another whenever any of you has a complaint against someone else. You must forgive one another just as the Lord has forgiven you." We should try to be more positive to reduce the stress in our lives; God wants us to work and live in harmony with those around us.

Do everything without complaining or arguing.
Good News Bible Philip 2:14

Blessings from weeding a character garden

BY NANCY SEBRING
SPECIAL WRITER

Looking at our landscaping this spring, I noticed that the grass and weeds had begun to take over large areas of soil. I put off doing anything about it, thinking that it was too much work.

Then one day when the weather was especially beautiful I decided I would weed just one small section. That accomplished, I tackled another section, then another, and another. As I was digging up the stubborn bed of weeds and grass, I began to ponder the importance of this activity in order to have beautiful bushes and flowers. It reminded me of the parable of the sower that Jesus taught (Matthew 13), stressing the importance of maintaining good soil so that the seeds can bring forth fruit.

In this parable, the soil is a symbol of one's thinking. It seems that Jesus was instructing his followers to root out the weeds of ungodly thinking, thereby enabling them to be better prepared to receive the seed, or Word of God, that results in great blessings.

Ridding ourselves of ungodlike thoughts and character traits, sometimes, may seem to be a daunting task. Controlling our thoughts may not appear to be as much fun as undisciplined thinking because the resulting satisfaction and joy aren't always immediately visible. "It is easier to desire Truth than to rid one's self of error," writes Mary Baker Eddy (Science and Health p.322:31). How true it is. Yet, without ridding one's self of ungodly thinking, the truth of man's inherent godlike nature and its' unparalleled happiness can't be reached.

I have found, over the years, that eliminating thoughts and habits of selfishness, self-will, stubbornness, harshness, timidity, impatience, and so on, reveals within me the innate qualities of godliness that have always been there as a child of God. They had just been hidden by the overgrowth of ugly thought "weeds." With this change of heart and improved understanding of my true nature, came a greater sense of peace, poise, happiness, and health. These are some of the fruits of a well-tended character garden.

From persistent weeding of my garden, the weeds were eliminated and I was rewarded with a beautiful view and healthy bushes. In a similar way, tending the garden of thought is an ongoing task. But, oh, the results!

By this process not only have I seen the true god-like nature of myself better, I also began to more consistently see in others their true beauty and goodness. I saw that undesirable character traits are truly foreign to them, needing only to be rooted out of my own view in order to see God's goodness in each one. I found that thinking this way had a transforming effect for the better on myself and others.

Imagine what kind of community and world we would have if everyone kept uprooting the ungodlike thoughts and left behind only the garden of God's goodness in each one! Perhaps we'd even see some of the ills facing our society yielding, and greater peace and harmony blooming.

CORRECTION

■ It was erroneously reported in the Thursday, June 14, issue of the Home-Town Life section that Agapé Christian Academy will be achieving accreditation in July 2002, through North Central Accreditation. The error appeared in the story titled "Agapé strives for excellence."

■ In the same issue in the article "Call from Rome ensues change," Sister Mary Juanita Szymanski's name was spelled incorrectly.

We apologize for any inconvenience these two errors caused.

Church, family celebrate long history together

The Depression. World War II. The baby boom. Watergate. Most of us know of these historical landmarks, but few of us have lived through all of them, and fewer of us have experienced most of them while attending the same church.

Joe and Mabel Schaffer of Westland are one of those few. Their lives brought them from Stokes County, Ohio, and Belleville, Ontario, Canada to the Detroit area long before anyone had even heard of a place called Westland.

What makes the couple particularly special isn't just their 68-year marriage, but the fact that they have spent the last 50 years as faithful members of St. John's Lutheran Church in Westland.

Rich history

Pastor George Deckinger and 14 original families founded St. John's Evangelical Lutheran Church in Wayne on June 4, 1876. Within a year the first white frame building was constructed. After sharing a pastor with other local congregations for many years, in 1912 the congregation called its own resident pastor, the Rev. Oscar J. Peters.

On July 10, 1921 the congregation dedicated its a new church of Ohio limestone. This building unfortunately fell victim to the Wayne Urban Renewal project in February of 1961. A new church was built on Glenwood Road in Westland and was dedicated in February 1967. The school had previously relocated here in 1950 and, since then, has been constantly enlarged and renovated to include a parish hall/gymnasium, library, kitchen, additional classrooms and a music room.

Times have changed

The Schaffer's, who have five children, 19 grandchildren, and 38 great-grandchildren, have had almost all of their grandchildren attend the St. John's Elementary School. They are particularly proud of their commitment to their Christian beliefs and that four of their grandchildren are teachers in Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod schools. Three of them teach in Michigan and one in Wisconsin.

Things have changed since Joe and Mabel first attended St. John's. Joe recalls an unpaid caretaker position he held at the church with his sons. Mabel related her memories of a church picnic at Dynamite Park when all the ladies of the congregation assembled into a circle and two live roosters were let loose in the center. Whoever caught a rooster got to take it home. Mabel left that day with one of the two roosters.

At the same time, The Schaffers think one of the most important aspects of the church that hasn't changed is the family atmosphere. "No one can say that we are not a friendly church," said Mabel. The Westland couple still enjoy the Christmas services, school talent shows — so much so they haven't missed an opening service on the first day of school for the last 25 years.

The Schaffers won't be the only family celebrating the upcoming anniversary of the Westland Church. On June 24, the congregation will host a special 125th anniversary service.

This article was submitted by a member of St. John's Lutheran Church with the help of Alan BogenSchutz. He and his wife Elaine have three children and reside in Wayne. BogenSchutz, who teaches, is the Sunday School superintendent and serves on the board of education.

Director of Athletics departing

Brian Wolcott, director of athletics for the Plymouth-Canton school district, is apparently one of the first casualties of the new high school.

According to sources, Wolcott has accepted a position at Birmingham Groves, where he taught prior to taking the job at CEP, which he held for the past six years. At Groves, Wolcott will be dean of students.

Wolcott did not return numerous phone messages left at both his home and office.

A 1976 graduate of Plymouth Salem who played on the Rocks' 1975 state championship baseball team, Wolcott — a Michigan State University graduate — took over as director of the Plymouth-Canton school district's athletics in the fall of 1995, taking over for the retiring Paul Cummings .

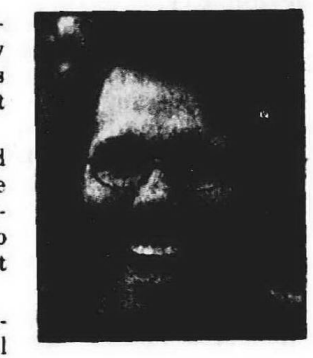

During his tenure, Plymouth Canton's girls' soccer team won two state championships, while Salem's boys team won one state title.

The CEP soccer field has served as the site for the Division I state final in girls soccer throughout Wolcott's time on top.

However, with the new high school scheduled to open next year, Wolcott's duties were apparently subject to change. Some sources indicated he would have to serve as building athletic director for the new high school, as well as serving in his current position.

Wolcott had also applied to be principal at the under-construction Plymouth HS, according to sources, but he did not get that position.

The structure of the athletic administration is still being sorted out, sources indicated.

Morrell is Miss Soccer

BY DANIEL STICKRADT
STAFF WRITER
dstickradt@oe.homecomm.net

A year ago, Anne Morrell had to do a little bit of sharing. This year, she gets it all to herself.

Morrell, a senior from Plymouth Canton who led her team to a Division I state title Saturday, was named the 2001 recipient of the Miss Soccer award, given annually to the state's top female soccer player, as voted on by members of the Michigan High School Soccer Coaches Association.

Last year, Morrell shared the honor with Tiffany Laskowski of Troy Athens, who recently completed her freshman year at Michigan State.

Morrell becomes the first player in over a decade to be named Miss Soccer twice, and she also becomes the first player in state history to be named to the All-State Dream Team all four years.

Morrell led Canton with 40 goals and eight assists, bringing her career goals count to 137 — second best by any Division I player in the state. More significantly, Morrell scored eight of her team's final 12 goals in the state playoffs, including all three in the Chiefs' 3-1 win over Troy last Saturday.

She has already signed to attend the University of North Carolina in the fall, the NCAA's defending champion in women's soccer.

Also named to this year's Dream Team, which features the state's Top 10 field players and top goalkeeper, are seven other seniors and three juniors.

Canton senior midfielder Amanda Lentz, who was an all-state selection a year ago, was also named to the Dream Team. Lentz, who has signed with Penn State, scored 14 goals and led Canton with 24 assists this season.

Chiefs' coach Don Smith was one of those honored as the state's coach of the year after guiding Canton through a tumultous start to the state championship.

Nicole Breger, a senior sweeper from Madison Heights Bishop Foley, was runner-up in the Miss Soccer voting and was named to the Dream Team for the third-straight year.

Morrell, Lentz and Breger were joined on the Dream Team by Livonia Stevenson senior forward Lindsay Gusick, Portage Central junior forward Lindsay Tarpley, Troy Athens junior sweeper Nina Mastracci, Portage Northern junior forward Emma Harris, Troy junior goalkeeper Kate Perz, Troy senior midfielder Adrienne Tredo, Bishop Foley senior midfielder Michelle Palazzolo and Birmingham-Detroit Country Day senior forward/fullback Libby Turner.

Tarpley and Gusick are the only other returning members to this year's Dream Team squad, while Mastracci, Harris, Perz, Tredo, Lentz, Palazzolo and Turner are all first-time recipients of the Dream Team award.

Smith was named the Large School Coach of the Year, Terri Shear of Clawson was named the Small School Coach of the Year and Rick Larson of Bishop Foley was named the Private School Coach of the Year. Larson also coaches Madonna University's women's soccer team in the fall.

The complete All-State teams, which feature a first-team, second-team, third-team and honorable-mention in each of the state's four divisions, will be released in the upcoming weeks.

SUMMER HOCKEY

A new venue, but summer hockey is underway

New season, new location.

The Metro Summer Hockey League got underway Monday, but something's different: Mainly, the location. The league, which was previously hosted by the Plymouth Cultural Center, will play this year at the Suburban Training Center in Farmington.

Other than that, not much has been altered.

On Monday, the Wolverines answered a two-goal, third-period rally by the Huskies with two goals of their own, both by Varujan Arman (from West Bloomfield), in the final four minutes to pull out a 5-4 victory.

Arman finished with two goals and an assist, while Wolverine teammates Frank Bourbonais, Jim Sotiroff and Mike Schmidt scored goals.

Ted Sturos and Phil Pietila each had a goal and an assist for the Huskies, and Trent Daavettila had two assists. Mark Pietila and Aaron Kilunen also scored goals for the Huskies.

Matt Migliaccio was in goal for the Wolves; Rick Marnon (Canton) and Travis Miller divided time in the nets for the Huskies.

Bulldogs 12, Lakers 8: It was a rematch of last season's MSHL championship game, but the results were the same Monday night at Farmington's Suburban Training Center — the Bulldogs beat the Lakers as Jason Basile (West Bloomfield) scored three goals and assisted on three others.

Ian Smith (Rochester) added three goals and an assist for the winners. Dan Cook (Livonia) and Matt York each had a goal and two assists, while Troy Nilam and Ryan Kesler (Livonia) each contributed a goal and an assist. Other goals came from Jamie Milam and Ryan Radakovich (Livonia) ; Ryan Lukiewski (Canton) contributed two assists.

Salem's Dombrowski picks Albany

PROFILE

There's a mixture of emotions swirling around Jill Dombrowski about now.

Her high school days are over. In the fall, she'll start college — and for her, the decision of which school to attend wasn't an easy one.

Jill Dombrowski headed for Albany

Dombrowski, formerly of Plymouth Salem HS, has been recruited for her athletic prowess. But complicating the decision-making process further, it isn't just one sport she's been pursued for.

Dombrowski is superb at both volleyball and soccer, good enough to play either one collegiately.

But which one?

Her choices weren't just which school to attend, but which sport to play. In the end, she picked volleyball and the University of Albany.

"It was a hard decision," said Dombrowski, whose prowess earned her Salem's Female Athlete of the Year honors. "I would have liked to play both, but (their seasos) are at the same time.

"I love 'em both."

Dombrowski has been an all-Observer and an all-Western Lakes Activities Association choice in both sports for each of the past two years. In the just-completed soccer season, she led Salem to a 13-5-1 overall record, collecting 11 shutouts and a 0.84 goals-against average.

She served as co-captain on a team that reached the state district final.

That was soccer. Her volleyball stats were just as impressive, if not more so.

Dombrowski led Salem to the WLAA championship, earning Most Valuable Player honors along the way. She led the Rocks in a half-dozen categories, including set assists (10.6 per game), kill percentage (.368), service aces (61) and blocks (32). Salem finished 33-8, winning a state district title before falling to Adrian in the regional semifinals.

In her junior year, the Rocks reached the state quarterfinals before being eliminated.

Still, the question lingers: Why volleyball instead of soccer? She's been playing both since she was a kid, competing in the Madonna Junior Crusaders volleyball program since she was 12 and with the Plymouth Lightning in soccer even earlier than that.

A 3rd division will be added to the WLAA

It's official.

When the Western Lakes Activities Association expands from 12 to 15 schools in the fall of 2002 there will be three divisions of five schools each.

In a press release dated May 25, the WLAA Board of Directors, consisting of the principals from each school, stipulated its new guidelines for the expanding league.

In a memo, WLAA president David Barry of Walled Lake Central stated the league constitution outlines in its by-laws and procedures that division realignment should always reflect the priorities of the WLAA.

The priorities include the concept of division play, equity of competition and practicality of scheduling.

Given those priorities, the principals outlined and endorsed specific guidelines to be used for realignment of the three divisions.

The proposal to have three divisions allows schools to maintain identity within a division

Goalie could become a bonus pick for Whalers

BY C.J. RISAK
SPORTS EDITOR
cjrisak@oe.homecomm.net

WHALERS

Some organizations just know how to win — no revelation there. It just so happens that the Plymouth Whalers are one of them.

There's a couple of reasons why. One is having a team like the Compuware Ambassadors, of the North American Hockey League, operating out of the same building. That allows Whaler scouts to get a look at potential future stars for the Ontario Hockey League.

James Wisniewski, a current Whaler from Canton, played for Compuware. So did David Legwand, now playing in the NHL.

It's not just the top picks that make the biggest impact, either. That's what current Whalers' coach/general manager Mike Vellucci is hoping.

Last season, as the OHL's entry draft was nearing its end, the Whalers took a bit of a gamble and selected Jason Bacashihua, a highly-touted goalie from Dearborn. Bacashihua, who played for the Chicago Fire in the NAHL, had already committed to the University of Michigan, but considering he was one of the top junior goalies in the country, team officials thought it was well worth the risk.

It may have proved to be just that. Bacashihua has backed away from his committment to U-M; he'll be in camp with the Whalers this fall.

"I think he's a top-notch goalie," said Vellucci. "He's rated 60th overall in (this weekend's) NHL draft."

Vellucci got a first-hand look at Bacashihua in the 1999-2000 season, when he coached the Ambassadors.

"He was a top goalie, for sure," said Vellucci. "Every junior team in the country wanted him when he decided not to go to U-M."

But the Whalers had his rights. "I expect him to have a big impact," Vellucci added. "I expect he and (returning goalie) Paul Drew to battle it out."

NHL hopefuls

The National Hockey League will conduct its player draft this weekend, and several Whalers figure to be among those selected.

First is Stephen Weiss, who led Plymouth in scoring during both the regular season and playoffs. The 6-foot, 184-pound center collected 40 goals and 47 assists (87 points) and was a plus-28 in the regular season, and he totaled seven goals and 16 assists (23 points) in 18 playoff games. He's expected to be among the top five players picked.

Cole Jarrett played left defense, spending a lot of time as James Wisniewski's partner on the power play. The 6-foot, 195-pounder had 12 goals and 36 assists during the regular season with a plus-22 rating; during the playoffs he sparkled, collecting six goals and 12 assists in 19 playoff games.

Chad LaRose played just 32 games for the Whalers after being signed as a free agent in January, but he excelled. The 5-10, 170-pound right wing/center had 18 goals and seven assists with a plus-18 rating in those 32 games, and he collected 10 goals and 10 assists in 19 playoff games.

Karl Stewart, a 5-10, 165-pound left wing, had nine goals and 14 assists in the regular season and added three goals and four assists in the playoffs.

Then there's new addition Jason Bacashihua, a goalie from Dearborn whom the Whalers selected in last year's OHL entry draft even though Bacashihua had committed to attending the University of Michigan. Bacashihua opted against attending U-M; according to Whalers' coach Mike Vellucci, he's rated as one of the top 60 players in this year's draft.

New coach

Whalers' coach/general manager Mike Vellucci has hired Alex Roberts as his assistant coach/assistant general manager.

Roberts, a native of Bloomfield Hills and a University of Michigan graduate, was the Wolverines' team captain and most valuable defenseman in 1990. The Chicago Blackhawks made Roberts their first selection in he 1988 supplemental draft.

After finishing at Michigan, Roberts spent three seasons in the minor leagues, playing with the Indianapolis Ice in the International Hockey League, the Adirondack Red Wings and Capitol District Islanders of the American Hockey League and the Toledo Storm of the ECHL, where he won the Riley Cup.

For the past four years, Roberts served as an assistant coach in the USA National Team Development Program. Primarily, he was an assistant with the U.S. National Under-18 Team; in 1997, he served as head coach of the U.S. Under-17 Select Team which won the silver medal in the Western International U-17 Tournament.

The next year, he was the head coach for the U.S. National Under-18 Team which brought home the silver medal from the International Freedom Challenge in Lake Placid, N.Y.

Roberts has also been an assistant coach with the Chicago Wolves in the IHL.

Schoolcraft coach hopes new recruits can help offset losses

BY BRAD EMONS

RECRUITING

Coach Karen Lafata has nearly completed her retooling for the 2001-02 Schoolcraft College women's basketball season.

Lafata lost three starters off last year's 27-5 squad, the most successful in school history. But she has signed five new players and hopes to add one or two more recruits before school starts in August.

Among the starters who have used up their eligibility include 6-1 center Angelica Blakely, who averaged 11.6 points and 8.6 rebounds per game; 5-10 forward Ra'Sheida Edwards, who averaged nine points and 6.4 rebounds; and 5-9 guard Janelle Olson.

Edwards is headed to Adrian College, while Olson is eyeing either Madonna University or Wayne State.

Reserves Shafawnda Smelley, Carla Saxton (the team's top three-point shooter) and Erin Torrence will not be back, but two starters return from a team which finished sixth in the National Junior College Athletic Association Division II Tournament, won the Eastern Conference championship and took the Region 12 title.

Rachel Eley, a 5-foot-3 point-guard who made third-team NJCAA Division II All-America, and Devin Francois, a 5-10 forward selected to the All-Region 12 Tournament team, both return.

Eley averaged 12.2 points, six steals and 5.7 assists per game, while Francois pulled down 7.2 rebounds per game.

Also back are area players Kelly Grenan (Redford Thurston) and Krystol Dennis (Redford St. Agatha).

Among Lafata's latest recruits:

- Pam Wingate, a 6-2 center from Southfield-Lathrup;
- Mia Henderson, a 5-9 power forward who transferred from Adrian College via Detroit Southeastern;
- Millicent Campbell, a 6-foot forward-center who played for Southeastern High in 1999;
- Mya Thomas, a 5-7 guard who transferred from Lansing Community College via Detroit Murray-Wright;
- Shannon Myree, a 5-3 point-guard from Warren Zoe Christian.

Wingate, an All-Division player who averaged double figures in both points and rebounds, could compete for a starting spot at center along with Dennis and 6-foot Keysa Hamilton.

"Pam is a strong inside player, a rebounder with a nice touch around the basket," said Lafata, who is 65-25 in three seasons with the Lady Ocelots. "Both Henderson and Campbell are very athletic, they're both strong inside and outside players. They played together on a pretty good team at Southeastern for Henry Washington (who is also Macomb CC's men's coach)."

Thomas was a starter last season for Lansing and will have to sit out the first semester before becoming eligible for the Lady Ocelots.

"Mya is a number two guard who can score and who can handle the ball," Lafata said. " And Myree is somebody we're looking to come in and back up Rachel."

"I've been talking to the coach (at Albany, Curtis Strife) for a while," said Dombrowski. "I liked the teammates there . . . I don't know, it just kind of clicked for me."

Albany wasn't the only school pursuing her. She was recruited by Eastern Michigan for soccer and several other schools expressed an interest in her.

Albany doesn't boast the strongest volleyball program. A member of the America East Conference, the Great Danes struggled to a 3-24 season last fall with an eight-player roster.

The good news is only one of those eight was a senior. Dombrowski is one of five incoming recruits; how soon she gets an opportunity to play depends upon a couple of factors, and she knows what they are.

"It would be a nice bonus," she said of getting a chance to start. "I plan to work hard and earn my spot.

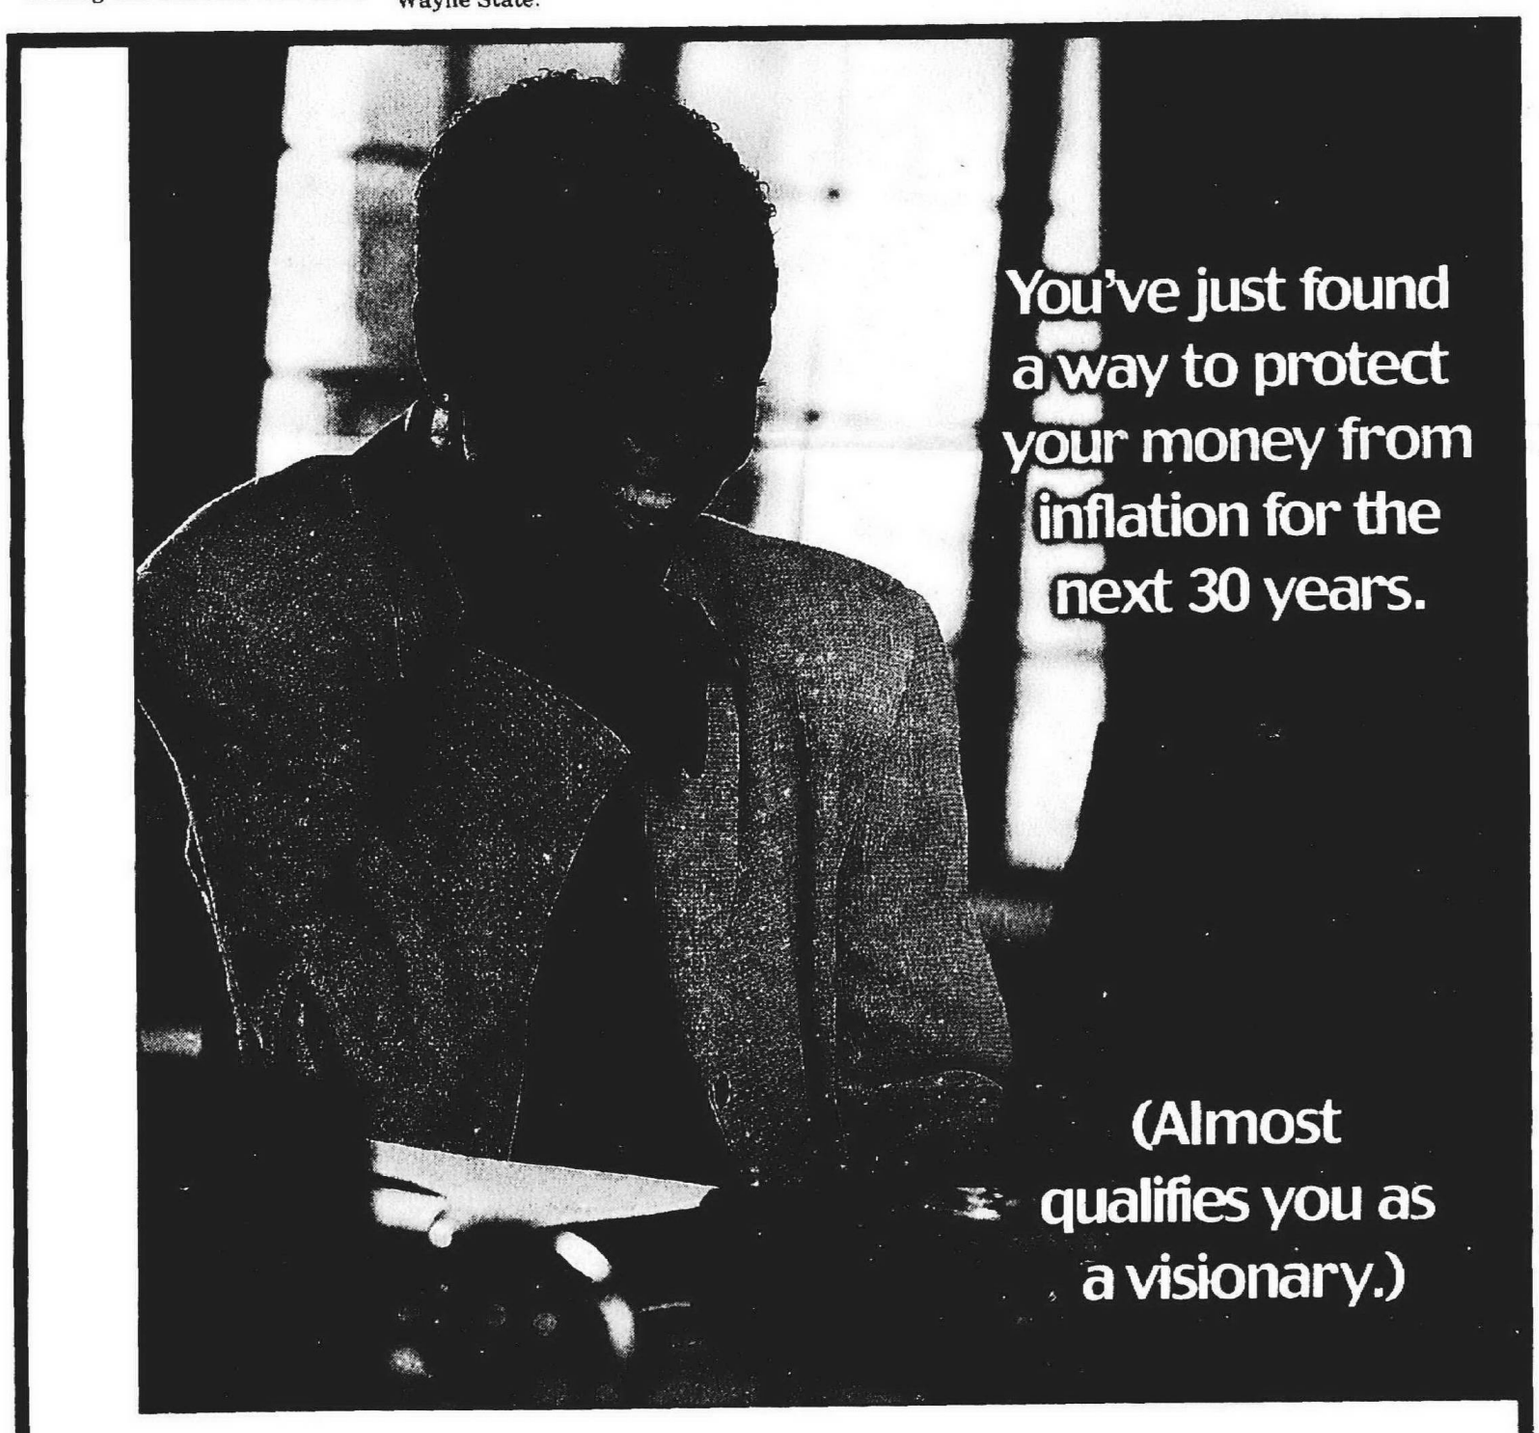

"But it would be nice if I started."

Especially in a program that's trying to get turned around. "They're rebuilding," Dombrowski said. "They'll be good."

Still, even though her decision is made, the adjustment won't be easy. "I had so much fun this (soccer) season," she said. "I'm really going to miss my team."

Then there's all the pressures every freshmen must handle when they go away to school. Dombrowski, a state all-district scholar-athlete, is both anxious to get started at Albany and apprehensive about leaving Canton.

Of course, should she help the Great Danes turn their program around quickly, this mixture of emotions will melt away, to be replaced by one happy feeling.

Young, old join in the fun at YMCA's run

For the 22nd time, people ran crazily through downtown Plymouth last Sunday — with a purpose.

The event: The 22nd annual Plymouth YMCA Father's Day run, which included something for everyone: a kid's trot for 2-3 year-olds, a kid's jog for 4-6 year-olds and even a diaper dash for those under-two.

The main events were a 10-kilometer run, a 5K run/walk and the "triple race" (one mile, 5K and 10K).

The following are the top five finishers in each division in each race (where possible).

TRIPLE RACE

Male Open Division

1. Ian Bedford (4:58 one mile, 16:54 5K, 36:06 10K), 57:58; 2. Greg Thomas (5:08 one mile, 17:21 5K, 36:33 10K), 59:02; 3. Brad Smith (5:06 one mile, 17:38 5K, 36:50 10K), 59:34; 4. Craig Dolecki (5:43 one mile, 18:50 5K, 39:26 10K), 1:03:59; 5. John Adair (5:15 one mile, 19:12 5K, 40:17 10K), 1:04:44.

Female Open Division

1. Colette Long (6:28 one mile, 21:14 5K, 43:37 10K), 1:11:19; 2. Frances Yturri (6:31 one mile, 22:46 5K, 47:54 10K), 1:17:11; 3. Vanessa Bodnar (6:11 one mile, 23:14 5K, 49:11 10K), 1:18:36; 4. Tracy Faraoni (6:58 one mile, 23:56 5K, 52:50 10K), 1:23:44; 5. Jennifer Lemieux (7:03 one mile, 25:08 5K, 53:02 10K), 1:25:13.

Male Masters

1. Kurt Schneider (5:13 one mile, 18:07 5K, 37:58 10K), 1:01:18; 2. Larry Gutierrez (5:27 one mile, 18:45 5K, 39:04 10K), 1:03:16; 3. Rick Straub (5:35 one mile, 19:05 5K, 39:52 10K), 1:04:32; 4. Ray Opie (5:37 one mile, 19:13 5K, 40:59 10K), 1:05:49; 5. Thomas Butler (5:55 one mile, 19:25 5K, 41:46 10K), 1:07:06.

Rams stop Decision streak

BASEBALL

The Michigan Lake Area Rams put a momentary halt to Decision Consultants, Inc.'s winning ways in the Livonia Collegiate Baseball League Sunday at Ford Field by taking the nightcap of a double-header, 8-2.

First place DCI captured the opener, 2-0, as Ryan Ford tossed a two-hitter.

Dale Hayes (Madonna University) improved to 4-0 for the Rams as he allowed just one run and two walks over four innings to salvage the split. Steve Kniebbe (two innings) and Tim Bebber (one inning) also threw for the Rams.

Mike Hayes (Madonna) led the Rams with two hits and three RBI. Rob Hudson (Jacksonville University) and Joe Zachariewski each added two hits one RBI.

The Rams (8-7) scored two in the first, four in the second and one each in the third and fourth inning to build an eight-run cushion.

Tim Andrezjak went 2-for-2 and knocked in a run for DCI. Randy Ortiz also collected two hits, while Dave Lusky drove in the other run.

Ford struck out six and didn't walk a batter in going the distance for DCI in the opener. He got defensive help in the bottom of the sixth when Andrezjak threw out Hudson at the plate with two outs after a singled by Charlie Anderson.

DCI scored the game-winning run in the sixth on a triple and a wild pitch when Spencer Hynes was attempting a suicide squeeze attempt. They added a run in the seventh on a walk, a sacrifice and an RBI single by Jim Nowicki.

Losing pitcher Brad McCloskey gave up just two hits, struck out 12 and walked two.

•DCI 5, RAMS II 4: On Monday, DCI bounced back to beat the Rams II in nine innings at Fraser High School, rallying for two runs in the bottom of the seventh when Jim Nowicki and Mark Cole each walked with the bases loaded.

In the ninth, Josh Patton singled, advanced to second on a sacrifice by Dobson and scored the game-winning run on John Sullivan's single.

Brent Brown (Oakland University) struck out eight of the final 14 batters he faced to pick up the victory. In nine innings he struck out 14, walked 12 and allowed just three hits.

DCI (11-3-1) collected just four hits.

"We haven't been hitting, but we're finding a way to win," DCI manager Mike George said.

•RAMS 6, HURRICANES 3: On Friday, The Lake Michigan Area Rams scored four times in the bottom of the eighth to defeat the host Hurricanes at Clintondale High School.

Mike Macek (Saginaw Valley State) hit an intentional walk ball to send Rob Hudson to third and Joe Aachariewski brought home the go-ahead run with a sacrifice fly.

Yaotequla Carrascu, who went 2-for-2, sent the game to extra innings with his second RBI.

Macek went 3-for-4 with a solo homer, while Charlie Anderson and Chris Mitchell each added two hits. Mitchell also had two RBI.

Rams starter Aaron Castle, who went 4 2/3 innings and allowed three runs, gave way to Tim Bebber and Sean O'Connor (the winner).

Rams pitchers held the Hurricanes hitless over the final seven innings.

•BULLS 5, RAMS 1: On June 13, the Rams fell to the Bulls, 5-1, as Villanova (Ontario) High School pitcher John Picco gave up just seven hits and one walk over seven innings at Ford Field.

Picco, a 15th-round draft pick of the New York Yankees, struck out eight.

Losing pitcher Steve Kniebbe gave up three runs on four walks and one hit batter over 4 1/3 innings.

Hudson and Zachariewski each had two hits in a losing cause.

Tom Melson went 2-for-2 and scored twice for the Bulls.

LEGAL NOTICE

1954 PA PROCEEDINGS
NOTICE OF SPECIAL ASSESSMENT HEARING

Charter Township of Plymouth
Wayne County, Michigan

TO: THE RESIDENTS AND PROPERTY OWNERS OF THE CHARTER TOWNSHIP OF PLYMOUTH, WAYNE COUNTY, MICHIGAN, AND OTHER INTERESTED PERSONS:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that as a result of Petitions of property owners within the Township signed by the record owners of land whose front footage constitutes more than 50% of the total front footage of the hereinafter described Special Assessment District and the Township Board of the Charter Township of Plymouth proposes road paving improvements on Burger and Micol Drives and to create a Special Assessment for the recovery of the cost thereof by Special Assessment against the properties benefited therein.

Notice is hereby given to all persons interested, that the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth has tentatively declared its intention to make the hereinafter described improvement:

> The project consists of approximately 1550 feet of existing gravel road along Micol Drive from Haggerty to the end of the existing right-of-way and along Buger Drive from Micol to Ann Arbor Trail to be paved with bituminous concrete. The proposed improvements shall consist of two-lane asphalt pavement constructed over the existing gravel road as well as miscellaneous driveway and drainage work which may be needed to facilitate the placement of the asphalt road pavement.

That it has further been tentatively determined that the following described lots and parcels of land will specially benefit from said improvements and will constitute a Special Assessment District against which the cost of said improvement shall be assessed:

> The district limit for frontage along Micol and Burger Drives consists of Lots 2 through 13 both inclusive, and Lots 22 through 34, both inclusive of Burger Estates, Liber 75, Page 56, as well as parcels within Applecrest Subdivision, Liber 68, Page 66, with the following parcel numbers: 064-01-0001-002, 064-01-0002-002, 064-01-0002-003, and 064-01-0003-002, located in the Northwest ¼ of Section 36 of T. 1S., R.8E., of Plymouth Township, Wayne County, Michigan.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the Board of Trustees of the Charter Township of Plymouth shall meet on Tuesday, June 26, 2001 at 7:00 p.m. at the Plymouth Township Hall, 42350 Ann Arbor Road, Plymouth Twp., Michigan 48170, for the purpose of reviewing said proposed Special Assessment District, and hearing objections to the improvement, creation of the Special Assessment District, and the assessment thereon. All persons may then and there appear and make any objections they may have to such improvement and assessment. Appearance and protest at the hearing is required in order to appeal the amount, if any, of the special assessment to the state tax tribunal. An owner or party in interest, or agent thereof, may appear in person at the hearing, or may file an appearance or protest by letter. All parties or agents appearing in person at the hearing for purposes of protest should request the appearance be entered into the record of the meeting.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that the plans, specifications, estimates of cost and recommendations of the engineer for said proposed Special Assessment District have been filed with the Township and are available for public examination at the office of the Township Clerk. The estimate of costs of such construction is in the approximate amount of $116,000.

PLEASE TAKE FURTHER NOTICE that periodic redetermination of costs for the proposed Special Assessment District may be necessary and may be made without further notice to the record owners or parties in interest in the property.

concept," Plymouth Salem athletic coordinator Tom Willette said. "Crossover games based on past performance would help address the equity issue."

Currently, the WLAA consists of 12 schools with six in the Western Division — Livonia Churchill, Livonia Franklin, Farmington Hills Harrison, Plymouth Canton, Northville and Walled Lake Western; and six in the Lakes Division — Livonia Stevenson, Plymouth Salem, Westland John Glenn, Farmington, Walled Lake Central and North Farmington.

Earlier this year, the WLAA principals voted to include Wayne Memorial from the Michigan Mega Conference and two new schools scheduled to open in 2002 — Plymouth High School and Walled Lake Northern.

The new guidelines also require that school districts with three high schools will play in separate divisions, and that division alignment will be fixed based upon overall sports program of the high school.

That seemed to be the driving force agreed alignment, deviating from the philosophy currently used by the Mega, Oakland Activities Macomb Athletic conferences.

As it stands, how each school will be slotted according to the following clusters based a four-year strength of program record: Livonia Public Schools (Stevenson, Churchill, Franklin); Farmington Public Schools (Farmington, Harrison and North Farmington); Plymouth-Canton Schools (Canton, Salem and Plymouth); Walled Lake Public Schools (Central, Western and Northern).

The other cluster will consist of Northville and two schools from Wayne-Westland School District (John Glenn and Wayne).

As an example, Livonia schools Churchill and Franklin will no longer compete in the same division. North Farmington and Farmington will also be in separate divisions.

Division alignment will be reviewed every two years.

Equity of competition will also be used to determine crossover games among inter-division play.

At this time, only hockey and gymnastics will remain in two divisions because not enough schools offer those sports.

The criteria used to determine the overall strength of the sports programs will be decided by the league athletic directors.

"The WLAA has been the most successful and cooperative conference because we all work together for the best for all of our students," Churchill principal Rod Hosman said.

The press release also stated:

"The WLAA has a rich tradition and supports the philosophy of providing equitable co-curricular experiences for our students to better serve the needs of all our students and our communities in the following areas:

- Facilitation of a comprehensive interscholastic athletic program;
- Continuation of promotion of student involvement in clubs and activities;
- Promotion of positive interaction of member school students;
- Development of high standards of sportsmanship, conduct and leadership."

CAMPS AND CLASSES

BASEBALL CAMPS

TOTAL BASEBALL CAMPS

Total Baseball will stage two sessions of summer camp for ages 7-17 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday through Wednesday, June 25-27 at Powers Park in Novi (10 Mile and Taft roads) and June 25-27 at Community Fields in Northville (Beck between Five and Six Mile roads).

The cost is $125.

Former pro players and collegiate coaches will instruct youths on the proper techniques of pitching, hitter and fielding. Participants will be clocked on a radar gun for arm and bat speed.

In case of rainouts, camps will be held indoors at Total Soccer in Wixom.

For more information, call (248) 668-0166 or e-mail totalballwixom@aol.com.

OU BASEBALL CAMPS

Oakland University will hold two sessions of summer baseball camps — 9 a.m. to 1p.m. for high school players (advanced camp) Tuesday through Thursday, June 26-29; and ages 8-14 (general skills camp) from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Thursday, July 9-12 and 9 a.m. to noon Friday, July 13.

For more information, call Mark Avery at (810) 362-3583.

EMU BASEBALL CAMPS

Eastern Michigan University's baseball team will stage three sessions of camps for ages 8-16 June 25-29, July 9-13 and July 16-20.

The cost for each session is $95, or $180 for two weeks. All three weeks is $250.

For more information, call (734) 487-0315.

HOCKEY SCHOOLS

SUBURBAN HOCKEY

Suburban Hockey School is preparing for its summer programs at arenas around the metro area, including Suburban Training Center in Farmington Hills.

There will be power-skating schools for mini-mites through bantams, a mini hockey clinic for mini-mites, a mite fun-damental hockey school, a squirt skill-builder program, a pee wee-bantam finishing school, a goalie school and adult programs.

Suburban Training Center also will have a girls program directed by Olympic gold medalist Lisa Brown-Miller.

The programs, which begin in July, will be led by Suburban-trained instructors, including those with professional and college coaching and playing experience.

To register or request more information call Suburban Hockey School at (248) 478-1600.

WSU HOCKEY SCHOOL

Wayne State hockey coach Bill Wilkinson is offering the Warrior Hockey School Aug. 6-10 for ages 5-13.

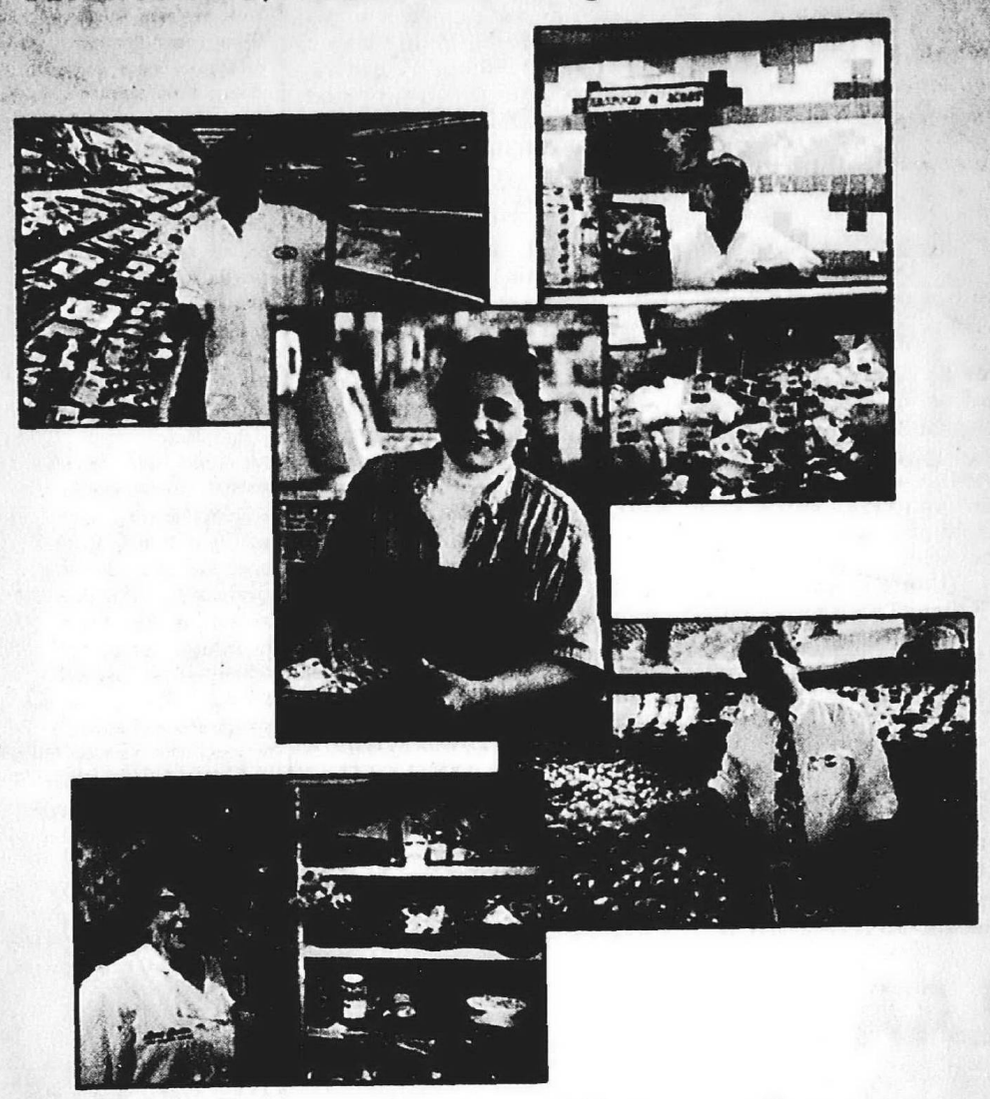

Cost is $225, with family and team discounts offered.

The camp is at the University-Liggett School in Grosse Pointe and designed to help young players, both novice and experienced, improve their hockey skills with on-and off-ice instruction. Students will be grouped by age and ability.

Wilkinson plus assistant coaches Danny Brooks and Cal McGowan will be instructing. For more information, call (313) 577-9174.

To submit items to the Sports Scene, write 36251 Schoolcraft Rd., Livonia, MI 48150, or send via fax to (734) 591-7279.

Legal threat will force board action

REAL ESTATE QUERIES

ROBERT M. MEISNER

We're living in a condo now, and our board refuses to pursue the developer because they are afraid of spending the legal fees and believe they can negotiate directly with the developer.

The developer is very deceptive, will stall and delay, and doesn't wish to honor his commitments. How can I get the board to move?

In many instances where condominiums have construction defects and deficiencies, a board of directors hasn't had a great deal of experience in negotiating with developers with this type of issue.

While they may have their own expertise in various areas of their avocations, the board members are generally at a disadvantage in negotiating with the developer. Because of his experience, the developer is well-versed in negotiating tactics. Depending on his willingness to resolve the problems reasonably, he may or may not be prepared to honor his commitments.

The association is well advised to get an experienced attorney and be prepared to pay for it.

Oftentimes, the board's excuse is that they do not have the money, but the truth is they choose not to levy sufficient assessments to build a "war chest," which may be necessary to effectively deal with the developer.

You should hire your own lawyer to advise the board of its legal and fiduciary duties, warning it of the ramifications if it doesn't conduct its affairs in a reasonable fashion.

■ 'I had a very difficult house, custom-built, quite large, a ranch, 2,400-2,500 square feet. It only had two bedrooms. Something that big, you would think would have more than two bedrooms.

Darlene Shemanski
Quality Properties-GMAC, Plymouth

Realtors say there's a buyer for every home. Some may take longer to sell, others command a lower price due to a quirky feature, poor location or general condition.

But houses eventually move.

"I had a very difficult house, custom-built, quite large, a ranch, 2,400-2,500 square feet," said Darlene Shemanski, broker/ owner of Quality Properties-GMAC in Plymouth.

"It only had two bedrooms. Instead, it had a very large great room, 30 by 25 feet. Something that big, you would think would have more than two bedrooms.

"I actually had to go out and get estimates from contractors to construct a wall and put in a third bedroom," Shemanski added. "It would have eliminated space but made it more functional.

"People we sold it to were interested in the estimates, but I don't think they ever had it done. It had so many other nice amenities – natural woodwork, crown molding, updated kitchen. People who bought it fell in love."

Fortunately, both of their children were the same sex.

But it took nearly three times as long – four months – to finally sell, Shemanski said.

Ahoy, matey

For Bill Hampton, an associate broker with RE/ MAX Consultants in Clarkston, his most unusual listing was a house on an island in northwest Oakland County.

"The only way you could show it was take a boat out," he said.

Few people looked and it took a little longer to sell.

"I even advertised it in a newsletter for a pontoon plane association."

The eventual buyer – surprisingly, or maybe not – already owned a house on that lake. Hampton couldn't recall the purchase price because the transaction occurred 30 years ago.

Realtors who list a home out of the mainstream have to streamline marketing efforts and arm themselves with a mega dose of patience, Shemanski said.

Exclusive, multi-million dollar houses probably would best be advertised in publications such as the Wall Street Journal or Dupont Registry.

More-affordable starter homes would be targeted to apartment dwellers, move-up communities to areas where middle-age parents with children currently live.

"The Web now is becoming such an important part of marketing homes," Shemanski added.

Fair value

"There's a buyer for everything, as long as the price is correct," Hampton said.

"Someone will remodel and rehabilitate and try to make a financial killing. It just isn't going to happen. Buyers have become educated, especially since buyer's agency came into being."

Owners of quirky, unique, hard-to-sell homes may need special attention early on, said Denise Misaras, a Realtor with AF Pauly in Waterford.

"The biggest challenge, in my opinion, is talking with the seller to make sure they understand it's not an easy prospect," Misaras said.

"It may take longer. Don't expect miracles. In some respects, if it's a real unique situation, I suggest that they might get want to an appraisal," she said.

Misaras once got a listing from a bank on a foreclosure of an older house that had been gutted inside during a remodeling.

"Normally, you market something like that as needs work, handyman special, something of that nature. The buyers got it for a very fair price. Everyone was happy."

And why did Misaras even get involved with the shell of a home in the first place?

"I was new in the business," she said with a laugh. "I don't usually turn my back on properties."

Mammoth garage

Karen Remy, associate broker with Prudential Chamberlain Stiehl in Birmingham, recalled a one-of-a-kind listing. "The unusuality was a six-car garage. The problem was it was on a main road," she said.

The house took twice as long to sell, Remy said. She tried advertising in a publication distributed among people in the auto industry, but the home sold to an antique car collector brought by chance by another Realtor.

"I try to address any problem with an unusual property up front with ads or the multi-list. If you address problems up front, you actually overcome more objections than if you try to hide them until you get into the house.

"Sometimes, it pays to know Realtors with a specialty in whatever a hose has to offer."

That occurred when a colleague who dealt with sports figures found a buyer for a listing Remy had for an entertainer's delight – a home with a large great room and Jacuzzi.

Do yourself a favor and cut the risk

MORTGAGE BITS

TIM 'TIMBO' PHILLIPS

What would you do if I told you that one of your investments had a one-in-eight chance of failing, but I knew of a way to improve your success rate 15-fold? Better yet, what if I told you there was a way to increase your investment success rate 160 times?

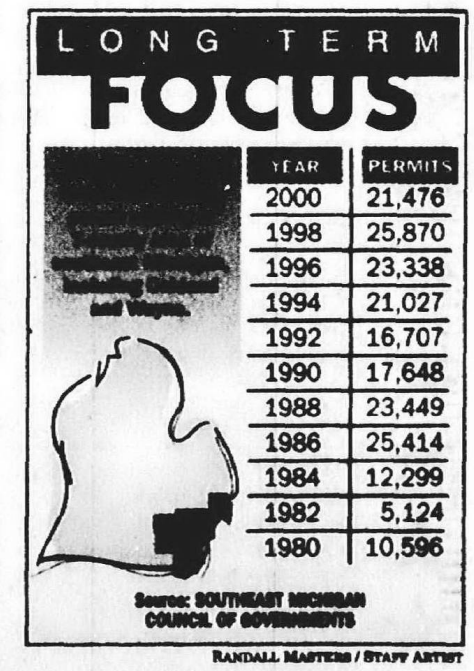

Like you, mortgage lenders are interested in any information that will help you make sound decisions. They have discovered many secrets to securing their investment in your home. The most notable of these secrets is the ubiquitous "credit score." Your credit score is a numerical representation of your ability to pay your financial obligations as promised. They provide potential lenders a synopsis of your credit history ... and very good idea how you might fare with your new mortgage.

While credit scoring formulae remain a secret, the conclusions that lenders may draw from the scores are certain. If your scores are less than 600, there is a one-in-eight chance you will default on your loan. If you score just above 700, the chances are 119 out of 120 that loaning you money will be a good decision. With scores over 800, the lender assumes almost no risk because there is less than a one-in-1,000 chance of the loan failing.

Credit scores also help borrowers better understand why mortgage lenders maintain certain "minimum" scores for specific programs. For instance, a borrower with a 700 score should have no problem getting 100-percent financing to buy her home, while a borrower with a 570 score may need a 15-percent down payment. It all makes a lot of sense if you put yourself in the lender's position and understand that he wants to limit his risk.

Whether you have "bruised credit" or not, give your lender a reason to give you a better mortgage by paying at least the minimum payment on all of your accounts for a full year. By doing so, lenders will consider you to be half as risky, and you may earn your way into a much more attractive loan product.

A NEW WAY HOME

Before you move, get some advice

(NUE) – Renting an apartment has its benefits.

When a problem occurs, someone else pays to fix it. Plus, many complexes provide the amenities of a single-family home.

But high rents and dealing with a landlord can get tiresome. If you want your hard-earned money to start working for you, buying a home may be your best option.

Buying a home can be fun and exciting. But it won't happen overnight so patience is required. The first thing to do is determine how much you can afford to spend.

Unless you come into a generous inheritance or win the lottery, you probably will have to borrow money to finance your home. When you start talking to lending institutions, they are going to want to know about your net worth and disposable income. Your net worth consists of your total assets (savings, 401(k)s, stocks, cars) minus your total liabilities (credit card balances, car payments, long-term loans).

■ Buying a home can be fun and exciting. But it won't happen overnight so patience is required.

Lenders will also inquire about your current disposable income which is your gross annual salary minus your total annual living expenses.

Once you find out how much you can borrow, it's time to start searching for your dream home.

First, draw up a list of things you must have in a home and a list of things you'd like to have, such as style, location, average utility bills, and the number of bedrooms and bathrooms.

Once you find that dream house and have your sales offer accepted, it's time to find a secure lender. Ask for references from friends and family then settle on the lender that provides the best rate.

Before you close on the house, you need to have it inspected by a professional to see if the home has any defects, such as substandard plumbing, a leaky roof, radon problems, termites or lead-based paint. After everything checks out in the house and you settle with the lender, it's time to start moving.

Whether it's across town or across country, moving is a hectic time. The stresses of the move itself are usually coupled with worries about what life will be like in your new home. Whether you decide to do the packing and moving yourself or hire professionals to do it, here are some tips for a successful move:

■ Start packing a month before you move.

■ Place china in plastic bags and stack plates upright, on their edges, not flat.

■ Keep boxes to 50 pounds or less.

■ Do not move flammables.

■ Fill out a change-of-address form with the post office.

BOMA encourages national energy policy

The Building Owners and Managers Association International, an advocacy group for the commercial real estate industry, called on Congress and the Bush administration to adopt a national energy policy that would benefit America's workforce - commercial building tenants - during its annual National Issues Conference in Washington, D.C.

More than 250 members of BOMA International met with their congressional representatives to discuss the energy challenge and other issues important to the commercial real estate industry.

BOMA International's newly adopted energy policy, unanimously approved at the association's board of governors meeting, encourages Congress to enact a national energy policy that ensures all consumers have access to adequate supplies of reasonably priced energy by addressing the energy challenge from both demand and supply perspectives.

BOMA suggests the following actions on the part of the federal government:

■ Identify reliable sources of domestic and renewable energy;

■ Eliminate unreasonable regulatory burdens and restrictions that inhibit the development of these energy sources;

■ Identify and eliminate regulatory structures that impose artificial pricing schemes;

■ Ensure an uninterrupted transmission and distribution energy network; and

■ Protect consumers in the absence of competitive market forces.

■ 'It's imperative that the federal government put in place a national energy policy that addresses the supply side of the energy equation, as well.'

Richard D. Baier,
BOMA president

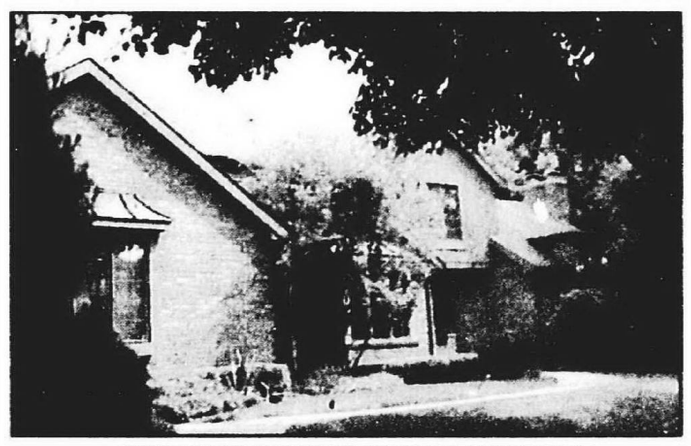

BOMA members pledged to partner with all levels of government - as well as tenants - to continue to reduce energy demand through conservation. BOMA members will look to the government as a resource partner for research and education on the efficient use of energy.

Government help needed

"While BOMA members will do their part to conserve energy and reduce demand, this alone will not solve our present and future energy shortages," said BOMA President Richard D. Baier, managing director for CB Richard Ellis in Kansas City, Mo. "It's imperative that the federal government put in place a national energy policy that addresses the supply side of the energy equation, as well."

In addition to energy concerns, BOMA members discussed other top industry concerns with their elected officials.

Founded in 1907, the Building Owners and Managers Association International is an international federation of 104 local associations. BOMA International's 18,000-plus members own or manage more than 8.5 billion square feet of downtown and suburban commercial properties and facilities in North America and abroad. The mission of BOMA International is to advance the performance of commercial real estate through advocacy, professional competency, standards and research. Mortgage rates drop Mortgage rates around the country edged down last week amid expectations that the Federal Reserve at the end of the month will cut short-term interest rates for a sixth time this year.

The average interest rate on 30-year fixed-rate mortgages slipped to 7.14 percent, down from 7.20 percent the previous week, according to a nationwide survey released by Freddie Mac, the mortgage company.

Fifteen-year mortgages, a popular option for refinancing, fell to 6.70 percent, compared with 6.74 percent the previous week.

At the same time last year, rates for 30-year mortgages averaged 8.22 percent and rates for 15-year mortgage averaged 7.91 percent.

On one-year adjustable-rate mortgages, lenders were asking an average initial rate of 5.82 percent, down from 5.85 percent the week before. Last year, one-year ARMs remained at a nine-year high of 7.21 percent.

These rates do not include add-on fees known as points, which averaged around 1 percent of the loan amount for all three types of mortgages.

The government reported that inflation at the wholesale level rose a smaller-than-expected 0.1 percent in May.

Farmington Hills firm goes into new markets

ACN Energy will expand its residential electricity and gas services into new markets.

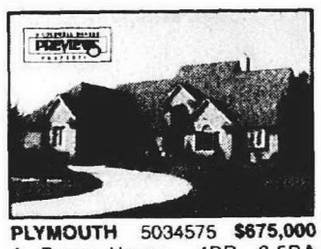

These new markets include areas of Pennsylvania, New York, Ohio, Maryland, Texas, and Washington, D.C.

In addition, sometime during summer, ACN Energy will expand its gas services into the Columbia Gas of Ohio area in Columbus and the Dominion East Ohio area in Cleveland, pending PUC and utility approval. Other planned gas services expansion includes Baltimore, Maryland, Washington D.C., and Canada, pending approved licenses.

ACN Energy, which was founded in 1998 by the Michigan-based ACN Inc., has continued to grow steadily since its inception.

A privately held customer acquisition company, ACN Inc., is headquartered in Farmington Hills. One of the fastest growing companies in America, ACN Inc. is in the rapid expansion of the telecommunications and utility industries.

Commercial real estate markets stabilize

■ 'Vacancy rates should remain generally low, while rent increases will be modest compared to the overall rate of inflation.'

David Lereah, NAR's chief economist

Commercial market sectors slowed during the last three months of 2000, but a general improvement is expected during the second half of this year, according to the National Association of Realtors commercial real estate quarterly. The report covers a wide range of statistics and market rankings for the five major commercial sectors during the fourth quarter of 2000, including the office, warehouse, retail, lodging and multifamily markets, as well as market sector forecasts for 2001.

A relative weakness in fourth quarter commercial markets should stabilize during this year, as most markets adjust to a slower economic environment, David Lereah, NAR's chief economist, said.

"However, the expected economic rebound in the second half of this year should bode well for all commercial real estate markets. Vacancy rates should remain generally low, while rent increases will be modest compared to the overall rate of inflation. The double-digit rent hikes we observed in a number of major markets will not be repeated in 2001, given generally weaker economic conditions," he added.

For the office market, NAR reported that the slowing economy and dot-com failures had a negligible effect in the 54 major markets tracked in the fourth quarter, boosting inventory levels 2.9 percent. The vacancy rate was 9.9 percent for all of 2000, down from 10.3 percent in 1999. Inflation-adjusted office rent rose an average 7.0 percent last year. Construction climbed to 59 million square feet in the fourth quarter, up 7.0 percent from 1999.

The association expects positive but moderating office demand growth in 2001. However, new space coming on line will consistently outpace demand, and vacancy rates are expected to rise to 10.8 percent this year. Inflation-adjusted rents will grow at a more sustainable pace of 3.8 percent in 2001.

Slower worldwide

In the warehouse market, NAR reported inventory growth slowed as a result of manufacturing weakness, which subtracted 0.62 percentage points from overall gross domestic product growth in the fourth quarter. Net absorption in the 54 markets tracked declined to 30 million square feet during the fourth quarter, but on an annualized basis a total of 135 million square feet was absorbed, up 3.0 percent from 1999. Meanwhile, completions of warehouse space dropped 5.6 percent from the third quarter to 34 million square feet. This raised inventory 2.9 percent to a total of 4.9 million square feet in 2000, while the space availability rate was 7.3 percent last year, down 0.1 percent from 1999. Construction totaled 191 million square feet in 2000, the highest level since 1994.

The association projects the outlook for warehouse space to be strong but weaker in 2001. Net absorption should drop 28.9 percent from 1999 to a total of 96 million square feet this year. The national availability rate should rise from 7.4 percent in the first quarter to 7.7 percent by the end of the year. Warehouse rents, adjusted for inflation, are projected to rise 1.2 percent in 2001.

Retail down

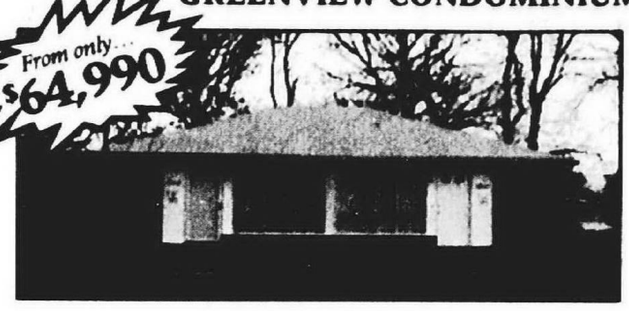

In the retail market, NAR reports 26 million square feet was absorbed in the fourth quarter, down 17.0 percent from the third quarter. Although this reflects the closure of retailers such as Montgomery Ward, this absorption level is still considered strong. At the same time, net new space completions totaled 31 million square feet. The national vacancy rate for all of 2000 was relatively low at 9.5 percent, down 0.7 percentage points from 1999. Rents rose at an inflation-adjusted 3.2 percent in the fourth quarter, down from a 3.6 percent growth in the third quarter. Construction starts in the 54 markets tracked were at 38 million square feet in the fourth quarter, down 22.4 percent from the third quarter.

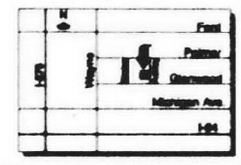

The association projects that net absorption will slow in the first half of the year, then rise during the second half. The vacancy rate in the 54 markets tracked is expected to rise to 9.9 percent in 2001 from 9.5 percent last year. Rents are expected to rise an inflation-adjusted 1.8 percent this year.

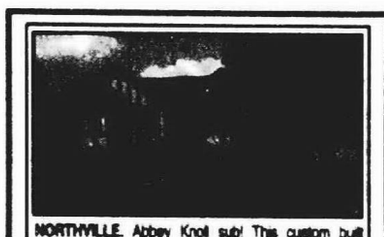

Mulit-family strong

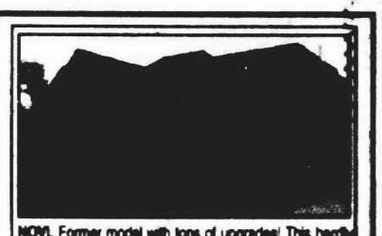

In the multifamily sector, the association reports strong activity as the renter population increased last year, resulting in a net absorption of 42,200 units. At the same time, net completions of new rental units were high at 52,300 units in the fourth quarter. Rental vacancy rates were relatively low at 5.0 percent last year. Inflation-adjusted rents rose a solid 5.2 percent in the same time frame. Construction rose 3.0 percent from the third quarter to 62,200 units in the fourth quarter.

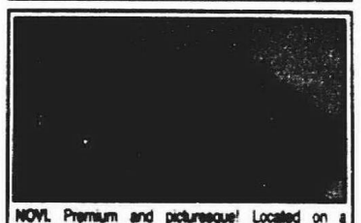

NAR's outlook for multifamily housing projects moderating demand in the next six months.

Michigan Mortgage Reality Check

Consumer Mortgage Advisory #6: The Good Faith Estimate.

Before you complete that mortgage application and pay the fee, get a "good faith estimate." This discloses your interest rate, term, all costs and fees, amount of cash you will need at closing, and the annual percentage rate. It must be very close to accurate at the time of your application. That's the law.

MEYERS ON MORTGAGES

DON'T BE AFRAID OF MORTGAGE QUESTIONS

by GARY S. MEYERS

When you're starting the mortgage process, don't be afraid of asking too many questions. Be afraid of asking too few.

This week The Meyers Report looks at some of the questions you should ask as you look for, negotiate, and finalize your mortgage. Remember: in a process this important, questions are your best ally.

With mortgage rates their lowest in several years, many people are taking the plunge and buying their first home, or seizing the chance to step up a few notches to a larger home. Whether you're a first-time buyer or a veteran of one or two purchases, be sure you ask enough questions.

"The old saying is true of mortgages, especially," said Norm Stein, Vice President of lending with al large Bankcorp, "there's no such thing as a dumb question."

Stein added that with the abundance of paperwork, numbers and steps required to obtain a mortgage, questions are just part of the process.

"Most people don't do this every day," he said. "It's not their job to keep up with markets, regulations, procedures, and so on. In fact, in most cases they're usually excited, or stressed out, or both, and under those conditions it's hard to keep information straight. Questions, no matter how basic, help keep you out of trouble."

• Keep a dedicated notebook for your mortgage and purchase process, and file it with your important records. Write the questions you want to ask in the notebook. Then write the answers given with the question.

• Get clarification. If the answer to a question contains a term or number that you don't understand, don't pretend that you know. Ask until you understand the information. You're dealing with professionals, and what they consider common knowledge may not be so common for you.

• Know what questions to ask. "Sometimes knowing what questions to ask depends on location," said Stein. "Because rules vary from state to state, and even from one community to the next, it can be hard to know how many different variables there are."

One way to get local information is to look at the Frequently Asked Questions (FAQ) section of a local lender's website.

Here are only a few of the questions that you should be asking, but don't be afraid of posing others:

• What are all of the closing costs and prepaid items? – "Most people are familiar with the term 'closing costs'," said Stein, "Prepaids are considered costs, too, but they are out-of-pocket cash, so they should consider them. Prepaids can include interest, homeowner's insurance, taxes, and private mortgage insurance (PMI).

• How long is the rate lock? "You need to ask this question when you're shopping for rates," Stein warned. "Let's say you're closing in 60 days based on a great rate that a lender has quoted. He may have quoted you a 15-day rate lock, and that's not going to do you much good. Get the rate in writing that day, and make sure you know how long it will take to close to make sure you can get the rate in time.

• Who pays for the transfer stamps? "This may not apply in all areas of the country," said Stein, "but in some places, when title is transferred, it can run into sizable money. In Chicago proper, it's $7.50 per $1,000 on the purchase price. This is not a lender's charge: it's a city/county tax, so you may have to foot the bill on this one. In the Chicago metro area, it varies from community to community. In some, the seller pays, and in some the buyer pays. The highest I know of in the Chicago area is $10 per $1,000."

• How does my down payment affect PMI? – "Your down payment can have quite an effect on the PMI premiums you pay," said Stein. PMI, or private mortgage insurance, is set up to protect the lender in case of foreclosure on your property and they can't make enough on the sale to recover their losses. In most cases, it is required on mortgages where the down payment is less than 20 percent.

"The premium changes with the percentage you put down," said Stein. "Sometimes you might be so close to the top end of a bracket that putting an extra $500 down can make a huge difference in the PMI you pay."

After all your questions have been asked and answered, remember to put one more to your lender:

"Is there anything else I should know?"

Helpful Hints:

For the best results when writing your classified ad, put yourself in the readers/buyers shoes. Describe the items for sale or job opening by including details that would attract your friends. Avoid abbreviations. Include a phone number and best times to call. Include price/salary range, and benefits. Include an e-mail address if possible, because your ad also appears on our internet site. Use key wording for easy searching and reading. List age, brand, style and condition of items. Don't be afraid to ask our friendly, professional staff for help. Remember you want results, so the more you tell and the more people your ad reaches, the more responses you will receive. Call us today, we can help you!
